DSGH still making profit

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith General Hospital had fewer patients in October 1988 compared to October 1987, and its patient revenues were lower, but the hospital is continuing to make a profit. The Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors reviewed the month's financial statistics and heard a report on Hepatitis-B screening during a brief board meeting Tuesday at the hospital.

The board also voted to spend $7,405 on opthalmology equipment that a Clovis doctor will use on a part-time basis at the hospital, and learned that a new general surgeon, Dr. Robert Clark, will be moving to Hereford on Dec. 1.

Clark is moving to Hereford from Memphis, Tx.

An orthopedic surgeon visited Hereford last Friday and is considering moving his practice to Hereford.

The hospital's cash flow statement showed a profit of $30,256 for October. That compares with a cash flow loss of $56,531. The cash flow statement reflects the amount of money needed to operate the hospital during the month compared to the month's expenses.

Patient revenues were $556,845, off $60,000 from October 1987. Total revenues were down $164,000 in October 1988, but most of that is due to fewer tax dollars received by the hospital district through Oct. 31 comapred to a year ago.

DSGH Administrator Gary Moore explained that there were actually more admissions last month than there were in October 1987, but the length of stay was over a day shorter per patient this year.

Board member Dr. Gerald Payne and chief of staff Dr. Harold Baddour explained that doctors will screen all pregnant women for a Hepatitis-B surface antigen that would determine whether or not the mother is a carrier of the disease.

Hepatitis-B, if passed on to the baby, could lead to the baby later developing cirrhosis of the liver or other disease.

Both doctors said they believed that Hepatitis-B is not a big problem in our area, but felt that the screening program, which would cost about $30 per test, would be good practice and could avoid liability problems in the future.

The board also declined to consider a possible purchase of the Hereford Clinic building at Miles and Fourth streets in Hereford, citing a legal opinion that wouldn't allow the hospital district to purchase or lease the building at this time.

The board did agree to advertise for bids for renovation of the western half of the hospital's west wing to create patient rooms, a waiting room and office space for doctors, including Dr. Clark and other physicians that may join the hospital in the future.

A $20,000 estimate was given for the renovation.

Timberrrrrrr

This 25-year old "rain" tree at the home of Clint and Margaret Formby, 408 Sunset, was felled by winds that gusted over 70 miles per hour on Tuesday in Hereford. The winds blew down signs, power poles, antennas and many fences in town, and damaged roofs in several parts of towns.

Services pending for Nell Miller

Doris Lanell(Nell) Miller, 56, longtime tax assessor-collector for Deaf Smith County, died this morning at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. Services are pending through Gililland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Miller had been in ill health for some time and recently resigned her office. She served in the tax office for 35 years–28 as the elected tax assessor-collector. She was officially re-elected this month, since her resignation was too late to remove her name from the ballot.

NELL MILLER

Born in Castro County Dec. 4, 1931, Mrs. Miller graduated from Dimmitt High School. She moved to Hereford in January, 1953 to begin work as a deputy sheriff-tax assessor-collector under Sheriff Lowell Sharp. The offices were combined at that time.

She was elected as tax assessor-collector in 1960 from a field of seven candidates, and voters returned her to the office each term since that time.

Mrs. Miller is a longtime member of the First Baptist Church, a member of the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, and a member of a number of professional tax associations.

Survivors include her mother, Gladys Mobley of Hereford; two sisters, Marguerite Cole of Hereford and Dorothy Reno of Midland; and two brothers, Don Mobley and Raymond Mobley, both of Farmington, N.M.

HJH open house is Thursday night

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

An open house will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. at Hereford Junior High.

The open house will showcase some of the new tools and ideas at the school, which was expanded this year to include all Hereford seventh and eighth graders.

The open house will also include a meeting to discuss some of the problems at HJH this year, and information packets will be available to parents and other persons.

Teachers will explain the self-responsiblity curriculum, which is a model for junior high classes across the state. A course similar to Hereford's will probably be mandated across the state for seventh graders within the next two years.

Also on display will be a new reading computer at the HJH library. The computer, a joint effort of the Hereford Independent School District, Amarillo College and the Texas Employment Commission, will be used in the school's seventh grade reading program and in adult literacy courses.

HJH principal Raymond Schroeder said teachers and administrators will discuss the discipline policy, supervision of students, and information about "gangs" and other problems "real and imagined," Schroeder said. "Information will be given and available, and we will be happy to discuss our school and any problems with anyone at the open house."

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the school's cafeteria. Following the meeting, teachers will be in their classrooms to visit with parents.

Bush picks Brady, Sununu

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush, promising to bring both continuity and change to the White House, is keeping Nicholas Brady on board as treasury secretary, while sources say the president-elect has tapped feisty New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu as chief of staff.

Bush was meeting British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at the White House today while his transition co-chairmen, Craig Fuller and Robert Teeter, were expected to announce a raft of additions to the transition team.

Among those slated to be named deputy transition directors is Fred Fielding, the former Reagan White House counsel now advising Dan Quayle, the vice president-elect.

On Tuesday, after flying home from a four-day Florida vacation with Sununu in tow, Bush met with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and announced Brady as the second occupant of his Cabinet. He said he was not prepared to announce his chief of staff, "but it might be fairly soon."

Sources close to Bush who insisted on anonymity said the choice was already made, with the nod going to the 49-year-old lame duck New Hampshire governor who helped Bush bounce back from a defeat in the Iowa caucuses last February.

The blunt-spoken Sununu, a onetime engineering professor, was an indefatigable Bush campaigner, often employed as a surrogate to attack Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic nominee, and his claims of a "Massachusetts miracle."

The Sununu choice should cheer conservatives worried that the pivotal White House job would fall to Fuller, chief of Bush's vice presidential staff for the past four years and regarded as more of a moderate and pragmatist. Fuller may be in line for a Cabinet post, possibly Transportation. He is expected to disdain working under Sununu at the White House.

But Sununu's selection would leave Bush with a right-hand aide with no Washington experience. Sununu's government experience consists of six years as chief executive of one of the smallest states in the union. A father of eight, Sununu decided against seeking a fourth term this fall, largely for financial reasons.

Brady, 58, former chairman of the investment banking house of Dillon, Read & Co., joins James A. Baker III, the secretary of state-designate, as a cornerstone member of the Bush Cabinet. Brady took over the Treasury Department post in August when Baker quit to run Bush's campaign.

Bush said Brady "will be the chief economic spokesman for my administration."

"He knows that our most important priority is to keep our economy growing with low inflation and ... that we must resist the policies that will impede that effort, such as raising taxes or resorting to protection."

Bush added that Brady also "knows we've got to sit down with the Congress and hammer out a budget deficit reduction agreement and that we have to do it soon."

"I'm putting together a good team here. ... " said Bush. "You'll see some continuity and you'll see some change."

Sununu flew to Florida Monday for a private dinner with Bush at a friend's beach home where the Bushes took their post-election respite.

At a dinner Tuesday night honoring his wife Barbara for her crusade against illiteracy, Bush joked that he had not quite been able to escape the media on his vacation.

Tickets remain on sale

Advance tickets for Saturday's Hereford-Sweetwater area playoff game at Jones Stadium in Lubbock will be on sale through noon Friday at Troy's Sweet Shop in Hereford.

Tickets for the game are $5 for adults and $2 for students if purchased in advance. All tickets at the gate will be $6 per person.

The game's starting time will probably be closer to 8:30 p.m. than the original 8 p.m. starting time. The delay is likely because Houston, which is playing Texas Tech at 2 p.m. at the stadium, will be formally offered a bid to the Aloha Bowl following the game.

That invitation, and the anticipated acceptance, will lead to a delay in accessiblity to the dressing rooms at the stadium and is expected to tie up other facilities.

Bus going to playoff

A bus has been chartered by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce for Hereford fans wanting to ride to the Hereford-Sweetwater football game on Saturday at Jones Stadium in Lubbock.

The cost for the bus is $15 per person. The trip cost does not include a game ticket.

The bus will leave from the chamber office, 701 North Main, at 4:30 p.m., and will return to Hereford immediately following the game.

Persons wishing to ride should contact the chamber before noon Friday in person at the office or by calling 364-3333.

C of C vote deadline Friday

Friday is the deadline for returning ballots in the election of new directors for Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Members were recently mailed ballots to select four new directors, who will serve three-year terms on the board. The seven nominees on the ballots are Jeryl Baker, Carol Gerk, Ruben Gutierrez, Scott Keeling, Bobby Moore, Pat Robbins and Garry Yosten.

Juveniles arrested

Hereford police arrested two 14-year-old boys Tuesday afternoon when they were caught burglarizing the golf course pro shop.

The police department was notified of a silent alarm and found a window broken and protective bars removed. The boys were found inside.

A woman in the 600 block of Irving Street reported that another woman threatened to beat her and filed charges against the woman; a woman in the 700 block of N. Lee Street reported that a pornographic magazine was left on her doorstep; theft of service by not paying a $146 bill was reported at the Plains Motel;

A window was found open in the 500 block of Grand Avenue, but nothing was taken from the house; Child Protective Services and the Hereford Police Department are investigating a possible child molestation case and a tractor-trailer rig rolled across a parking lot due to high winds and struck a car. Neither vehicle was occupied.

Three citations were issued.

County arrests three

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office arrested a 32-year-old man on charges of public intoxication; a man, 18, was charged with violating his probation; and a woman, 20, was jailed on a no liability insurance (second offense) charge.

Assault was reported at Holly Sugar Corporation when one woman hit another woman in the face and a dog bite was reported at Westway.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

Hunting season is here.

Not every hunting season is open. You cannot kill a pheasant with anything but your car or pickup until December.

There are certain rules that seem to apply to any type of hunting or fishing. It makes no difference if you are hunting deer or quail or pheasant or geese, or fishing for anything from guppies to great white sharks, something will happen that will "enhance" the occassion.

No matter how big a deer or bird you shoot, you will miss an even easier shot on a bigger or prettier one.

The best bird or deer of the day will be shot by a person who has hunted at least 15 fewer years than you have.

When you are trying to find a friend's hunting spot, you will discover your friend has left at least one crossroad and one turn off of the map.

You will not feel the call of nature unless you have forgotten to stick some toilet paper in the glove compartment.

The size of any game animal increases anytime you stop and light a cigarette, eat a sandwich, get a drink or just run out of ammunition.

That last little adjustment on the scope on your deer rifle will move the sighting off by more than three inches.

Once you finally have your rifle properly sighted, you will drop your rifle and knock everything out of whack just as the biggest deer ever seen walks by in front of you. To make matters worse, this will be the first buck you have seen all day.

If the temperature on the first day of pheasant season at 10 a.m. is 40 degrees, you will have only seen two pheasants all day. If the temperature on the first day of pheasant season at 10 a.m. is 10 degress, you will have seen 100 pheasants.

With each mile you drive, the number of animals that you are going to see when you get there decreases proportionately.

With each mile you drive, the percentage increases that your hotel has "lost" your reservation that you made the season before.

Your chances of hitting a two-inch sapling at 100 yard increases proportionately with the size of the deer just the other side of the sapling.

The number of deer on that lease you paid dearly for decreases proportionately with each dollar you pay for the lease.

This is the year you're not going to get wild-eyed drunk before you go out pheasant hunting on opening day. You're in bed by 10 p.m., and up at 5 a.m. This will also be the year you will not see a pheasant.

"New" firetruck

Mike Watts and Glenn Hendrickson of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department accept the title to a 1928 fire truck from Marie Griffin of Hereford. Griffin had purchased the truck from Wilford Taylor of Canyon as a collector's item, and decided to give it to the department. After restoration work (it runs fine, but is being repainted by volunteer firemen), the department will use the truck in parades and other special occasions.

Amnesty program fraud surfaces

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials say extensive fraud has surfaced in a special farm worker amnesty program that has attracted more than 1 million applications, more than twice most projections.

Duke Austin, a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said the program has resulted in cases of gross fraud, partly because of its generous provisions, and fraud "cartels" have sprung up to provide false affidavits or other work documentation.

In one of more than 100 cases of alleged fraud now under prosecution, a New Jersey woman with five acres attested to employing 1,000 applicants, Austin said.

"There is extensive fraud in the program," Austin said. "The problem is identifying the fraud and how you go about eliminating it. That is a serious concern of ours."

Under the special agricultural worker (SAW) program, aliens who can document that they worked in U.S. agriculture for 90 days between May 1985 and May 1986 are eligible for temporary residency. After waiting either one or two years, they are then eligible for permanent residency.

The government bears the burden of disproving an alien's claim under SAW, unlike the general amnesty program that required undocumented aliens to compile exhaustive evidence of having lived in the United States continuously since 1982, Austin said.

The application period ends Nov. 30, and already more than 1 million applications have been received, the majority from California, Florida and Texas, Austin said.

"I don't think anybody in government or the service anticipated this number," Austin said. Under the general amnesty program of the 1986 Immigration Reform Act, 1,765,000 aliens applied for legalization.

Ron D'Aloisio, executive director of the Farmer Worker Justice Fund, said the great majority of applicants have valid claims and warned that if INS overreacts to questions of fraud that it could "chill the desires of people who do have valid applications to step forward and apply."

The SAW part of the immigration bill was never debated in Congress and no public hearings were ever held, Austin said.

SAW was included in the bill as a compromise with Western growers of perishable fruits and vegetables, who feared a legalized work force would lead to farm worker shortages and that crops would rot in the fields.

Beginning Dec. 1, farm employers will face sanctions for hiring undocumented workers. They can, however, request a replenishment of their work force under the replacement agricultural worker (RAW) program beginning next Oct. 1.

Burning cotton spreads fire to homes

ALTUS, Okla. (AP) — Burning bits of newly harvested cotton carried by swirling winds spread a fire through this city, destroying 20 houses and businesses, injuring 18 people and keeping 400 evacuees from their homes today.

Police Chief Jim Hughes said the best he hoped for was that the driving winds would subside and no bodies would turn up as workers dug through rubble left from the blaze, which spread from giant bundles of cotton stored in an open field.

"The damage has been done," Hughes said late Tuesday after the fire was contained. "I'll be happy if we don't find anyone in that rubble. I don't think they will."

Dense smoke from the burning cotton forced the evacuation of about 400 of this southwest Oklahoma city's 23,000 residents. Several schools closed early. The smoke, fanned by 40-65 mph gusts, could be seen from 30 miles away and made firefighting difficult.

"We couldn't see a hand or foot in front of our face," said firefighter Eddie Williamson. "We had to feel from house to house."

The fire seemed to skip and jump like a tornado through a residential area, burning some houses and leaving others unscathed, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said.

Eighteen people were treated for smoke inhalation at Jackson County Memorial hospital, with six or seven hospitalized for observation, officials said.

Altus Civil Defense director Dwight Dennis said that evacuated residents would not be allowed to return home until at least today.

"It's just the dense smoke. We don't want them breathing it," Dennis said.

The fire broke out about noon in cotton modules, which resemble giant bales of cotton, said city Administrator Joe Courtney. The modules were about 40 feet long, 8 feet high and 8 feet wide and were stored in an open field to await processing at a cotton gin.

Tuesday night, about 40 cotton modules looked like the last logs on a huge campfire, with the soft red afterglow of embers flickering here and there.

Officials said the cause of the fire had not been determined.

"It's not uncommon for a module to self-ignite under certain situations," Courtney said. "It might sit out there and smother for two days and we might not even be aware of it."

Hughes, who said the destroyed cotton was worth about $3 million, estimated that about 100 homes were damaged by smoke and about 20 destroyed by fire.

He did not have cost estimates on the damage to residences and businesses.

Courtney said the city would seek state aid. "We suspect we will have a substantial amount of losses," he said.

Altus firefighter Clay Richardson said that when he arrived about 50 minutes after the blaze was reported, 50 mph gusts kept firefighters from being able to train water on the fire.

"There was fire all around us," Richardson said. "We didn't know where to go. It seemed like mass confusion."

The blaze crossed U.S. Highway 283 and destroyed a garden tool shop, a moving and storage company, a motel, a number of homes and damaged part of a mobile home park, officials said.

"When it crossed the highway that's when it got out of control," Richardson said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to warn others of a mistake that my husband and I made.

When "Larry" and I retired seven years ago, we started to plan some wonderful trips we couldn't afford in our younger years. Three weeks after we talked to our travel agent, Larry's 90-year-old mother suffered a stroke and had to be put in a nursing home. We are the only relatives who live in this city, although his brothers and sisters come to visit at least once a year.

Our long-dreamed-of trips were postponed until "Mother was gone." Larry spent part of every day with her. I was not resentful, in fact I was proud that he was such a devoted son.

Last March my darling Larry died of a heart attack. He was 67. Mother, at 97, is still alive in the nursing home. Soon I will be making those trips by myself, and they won't be half as much fun.

So, tell your readers, Ann, not to put their lives on hold, waiting for an elderly relative to die. A lot can happen that you don't expect. I am an authority on this subject who will be – Traveling Alone From Omaha

DEAR OMAHA: There's a ton of sound advice in your letter. No way can I improve on it, so I will just second the motion and say thanks for the wisdom.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 17-year-old girl, average except for one thing: I have a tendency to have sex with guys after going out with them only once or twice. I have never been in love with any of them, but I like the fun and excitement of sex. I even slept with one guy because he was boring and it was too hard to carry on a conversation.

In the past two weeks I have had sex with two different guys, which makes me feel lousy about myself. I know my reputation is bad and the guys say some pretty rough things behind my back, but I just can't seem to help myself.

I need to know how to control my hormones or whatever it is that makes me fall into bed so fast. I don't know who else to turn to for help. I need advice.–Horny in Baltimore

DEAR BALTIMORE: Your problem isn't hormonal. It's behavioral. You need to get into counseling and find out why you think so little of yourself that you are willing to give away the whole store when a few samples would be adequate.

I urge you to take this advice seriously before you wind up in a maternity ward, or a doctor's office being treated for a venereal disease, or worse yet an AIDS victim.

A TAX ON HEADS

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Originally, in the 13th century, "poll" meant the top or back of a head and came to mean the counting or entering of votes and, also, to vote at a poll or to give one's vote.

"Polltax," a tax on heads (or, in other words, people) became in this country in 1692 a tax that one had to pay in some states in order to vote in elections, accordiong to "Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary."

Family film scheduled at library

The public is invited to view the Walt Disney production, "Miracle of the White Stallions", at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. There is no charge.

The film, which runs approximately one hour and 55 minutes, stars Robert Taylor, Lilli Palmer, Curt Jurgens and Eddie Albert. The film, based on factual files from World War II, is about a dedicated Austrian colonel, director of the famous Spanish Riding School of Vienna, who disregards his German commander's orders and courageously evacuates the priceless Lippizan stallions from bombarded Vienna during the critical months of the war.

Family film night is sponsored by members of Friends of the Library.

The oldest undisputed artifacts (mainly fluted points) ever found in the New World were made by Paleo-Indian hunters known as the Clovis people, who pursued Ice Age mammoths, camels, bison and horses nearly 12,000 years ago.

Gibson's impact results in MVP

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Forget the three digits that represent the batting average. Disregard the numbers in the RBI and homer columns.

Some accomplishments don't lend themselves to impersonal, precise measurement.

Kirk Gibson's numbers weren't all that impressive this season. Then he had only one — very memorable — at-bat in the entire World Series. But his contributions to the world champions Los Angeles Dodgers were unmistakable.

Those contributions were recognized Tuesday when Gibson was named the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1988.

"He helped turn the team around and played a leadership role," the New Yorks Mets' Kevin McReynolds, third in the MVP voting, said of Gibson.

"Winning the MVP was never my goal," Gibson said from his home in Michigan. "But I'm happy that so many people had the opinion that I had that much impact on our winning. My goal was for us to become world champs. That's what makes this that much sweeter ...

"I'm not a numbers person. I never set goals to hit this number or get so many RBIs. The intangibles obviously were taken into consideration and that makes me feel good."

Gibson had just 76 RBI, the lowest total for a league MVP since Pete Rose won the award in 1973. Gibson's batting average was .290 and he had 25 homers.

The four hitters who finished behind him in the MVP voting — the Mets' Darryl Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds, Pittsburgh's Andy Van Slyke and San Francisco's Will Clark — had better statistics.

Still, Gibson was an easy winner in the MVP balloting, receiving 13 first-place votes and 272 points. Strawberry had seven first-place votes and 236, followed by McReynolds with the other four first-place votes and 162.

Van Slyke was fourth with 160 points, Clark got 135 and Gibson's Dodger teammate, NL playoffs and World Series MVP Orel Hershiser had 111.

UCLA set an NCAA championship game record by pulling down 61 rebounds against Purdue in 1969.

Ruling due on team's status

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Education Agency and University Interscholastic League planned to rule today on whether undefeated Dallas Carter will be ousted from the state football playoffs for playing an athlete who may have failed an algebra class in the first six weeks.

The UIL state executive committee met Tuesday to decide whether Carter High has played — and should be punished for playing — an ineligible athlete.

But the panel abruptly broke off its hearing in the afternoon and adjourned until 1 p.m. today. The executive committee and TEA officials began to question the UIL's jurisdiction.

"The UIL cannot make a decision as to whether the player is ineligible," UIL assistant athletic director Gina Mazzolini said. "It's the TEA that needs to step in to decide whether punishments are deserved. Then the UIL would come in to decide what the penalties are."

Following six hours of testimony before a standing-room-only crowd, the 14-member UIL committee agreed to reconvene to give the State Board of Education a chance to decide if Dallas Carter player Gary Edwards is ineligible. State officials were looking into alleged grade tampering.

"If there is a violation, it has to be confirmed by the State Board of Education," said UIL Athletic Director Bill Farney. "If it is indeed a violation, the State Executive Committee will rule on what they have heard."

Carter, 9-0-1, was ranked No. 6 in the final Class 5A schoolboy poll of The Associated Press.

Carter remains scheduled to play Dallas Samuell at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Cotton Bowl in an area playoff game. But Carter could be replaced by Plano East, which lost to Carter 21-7 in the bi-district round, if Carter is forced to forfeit that victory.

"I don't know what they are going to do," said UIL Director Bailey Marshall. "I don't have an answer to if the UIL has jurisdiction in this particular case. It's a matter of legalities."

An appeal by the Dallas Independent School District of findings from TEA field investigator Walter Rambo would be taken up by TEA Deputy Commissioner Tom Anderson. If another appeal was made, it would go to Commissioner William N. Kirby.

Correction

In a graphic in Tuesday's Brand that included a bracket for the state Class 4A playoffs, a mistake was made on Katy Mayde Creek and Tomball, the representatives of District 21.

Katy Mayde Creek was the district winner, and will play Lamar Consolidated this week. Tomball, the district's runner-up, will play Bay City this week.

The Brand regrets the error.

Ditka may be due more credit

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

The tendency is to think of Mike Ditka as brawn rather than brain; Mr. Macho (Mr. Chunky?) to the genius of Bill Walsh and the cool of Joe Gibbs, his challengers as the most successful coaches of the '80s.

Nor has he more than a 50-50 shot at Coach of the Year, an honor that usually goes to those whose teams improve dramatically. His competition is probably Marv Levy and Sam Wyche, the latter at the top of the most-likely-to-be-fired list when the season began.

Yet who else but Ditka should get the credit for Chicago's apparent return to dominance after losing four Pro Bowlers and an appliance to retirement, free agency or injury; losing an All-Pro offensive tackle for more than a half-season and once again losing quarterback Jim McMahon, possibly for the season?

Who else would have stood on the sideline at RFK Stadium 11 days after suffering a heart attack, pretending not to coach the Bears to a 34-14 victory Sunday over the defending Super Bowl champions, the Washington Redskins?

And who else but Ditka's players would have used his health as a reverse incentive?

"The last thing we wanted was to have him screaming at us," said middle linebacker Mike Singletary. "We knew that wouldn't be good for him."

But there's more than screaming to Ditka, who has edged ahead of Gibbs and Don Shula as the coach with the best regular-season winning percentage — he's 70-29, .707, to 91-38, .705 for Gibbs. Since 1984, moreover, Ditka has a regular-season record of 49-9.

But he's never received due credit for it, in part because the low estate of Tampa Bay, Green Bay and Detroit allows the Bears to start the season with six almost-guaranteed wins; in part because since the Super Bowl season of 1985, they've been knocked out of the playoffs in their first game; in part because of the assumption that someone else is the brains behind Ditka's brawn — defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan, for example, got as much or more credit for the 1985 champions as Ditka.

So isn't it curious that the Bears' defense is as good or even better this year under Vince Tobin? With Ron Rivera and Jim Morrissey at outside linebacker in place of Wilber Marshall and Otis Wilson? With two rookies from Oklahoma, Dante Jones and Troy Johnson, replacing Rivera and Morrissey when they got hurt? With Al Harris replacing (obvious to the benefit of the defense) the injured William "The Refrigerator" Perry?

Of course. The credit goes to Tobin, the stand-in as head coach during Ditka's hospitalization.

In fact, there are 13 rookies on Ditka's Bears, making the fact that they are 9-2 a remarkable example of building on the run. In addition to Jones and Johnson, they include David Tate, the starting free safety, an eighth-round draft choice, the 208th player chosen last April. He's replaced the retired Gary Fencik without missing a beat, just as John Wojciechowski filled in until All-Pro left tackle Jimbo Covert returned from injured reserve.

Moreover, Neal Anderson has stepped in for Walter Payton and is headed for a 1,000-yard season; Mike Tomczak has actually been more effective than McMahon and Ditka still has the on-field leaders any successful team needs — Singletary, strong safety Dave Duerson; fullback Matt Suhey and center Jay Hilgenberg among others.

These Bears aren't perfect. Their two losses have been blowouts by the Vikings (31-7) and Patriots (30-7). But the win over Washington and a 24-3 shutdown of (10-1) Buffalo a month ago has established Chicago as the one team that may stand above the rest of the parity-beset NFL.

That leaves one question.

Will the post-heart attack Ditka be as efficient as he was before?

"I'm changing my style," he said after Sunday's game. "You won't see me get excited on the sideline anymore."

Miami has new vice: the Heat

By The Associated Press

Miami has a new vice — its basketball team.

The pastel city's team was putrid Tuesday night, losing to the Boston Celtics 85-64, the third-fewest points scored by an NBA team since 1955.

Miami scored 26 points in the second half, one more than the record low. The expansion Heat missed 16 of its first 17 shots in the fourth quarter and scored nine points.

"Well, we escaped the record books," Miami coach Ron Rothstein said. "It's tough when you're on defense all the time. They come down and score quickly — it's like a dagger in your heart.

"We had our usual lapse," Rothstein said. "We did some good things, but we stopped. Who knows why? The guy who figures that out will sell it across the country and become a multimillionaire."

Miami made just 29 of 92 shots, 32 percent. Pearl Washington was 4-for-20. But at least one Miami player thought coming close to the Celtics was positive.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers beat Denver 148-146 in double overtime, Atlanta beat Cleveland 97-95, Portland beat the Los Angeles Clippers 125-103, New Jersey beat Charlotte 106-99, New York beat Houston 126-121, Chicago beat Philadelphia 120-107, Detroit beat Dallas 108-89, Utah beat Indiana 108-96 and Phoenix beat Sacramento 119-89.

How to Spot and Prevent Gas Pipeline Emergencies

Natural gas is transported through a system of underground piping. These pipelines are installed and maintained in accordance with highest safety standards, but damage from outside forces can occur. If the pipes are struck or disturbed by excavators or by natural disasters such as floods or tornadoes, personal injury or property damage could result.

3 R's OF PIPELINE SAFETY

You can help prevent or minimize pipeline emergencies by keeping in mind the 3 R's of Pipeline Safety:

RECOGNIZE a pipeline emergency:
- Hissing or shrill SOUND.
- Unusual BLOWING dirt or dust.
- Persistent BUBBLES in water.
- DYING PLANTS amid healthy ones.
- Distinctive SMELL, if odorized.
- FIRE or EXPLOSION near pipeline.

REPORT a pipeline emergency:
Phone the Natural Gas Pipeline 24-hour line: 1-312-691-3399. Call COLLECT.

RESPOND to a pipeline emergency:
- Evacuate the area immediately.
- Avoid potential ignition sources.
- Warn others to stay away.
- Phone Natural.

YOU CAN PREVENT PIPELINE ACCIDENTS:
- Call BEFORE you dig, drill, or doze.
- Watch for our signs at road, railroad and river crossings, at fence lines, ditches and other sites.
- For no-cost location of ALL underground facilities, call the Texas Excavation Safety System (TESS) at 1-800-DIG-TESS. Please call 48 hours in advance.

Jill Pickens honored with miscellaneous bridal shower

Jill Pickens, bride-elect of Key Harrison, was feted with a miscellaneous bridal shower Saturday morning in the E.B. Black House.

Approximately 25 guests were received by the honoree and her mother, Betty Mannon.

Refreshments of fruit plate, pumpkin roll, finger breads and almond tea were served by the honoree's sister, Jackie Murphey, from a table covered with an ecru lace cloth and centered by a silk floral arrangement in colors of mauve, blue and navy.

Hostesses included Erma Murphey, Sandy Josserand, Johnnie Alford, Martha Jones, Marylin Leasure, Rose Brownlow, Vicki Wilson, Pam Wagner, Kay Williams, Leslie Mayfield and Linda Warren.

The Spanish Civil War ended in 1939 as Madrid fell to the forces of Francisco Franco.

WTSU to present "Tartuffe"

The West Texas State University art, communication and theatre department will present Moliere's "Tartuffe" (pronounced tar-TOOF) Nov. 17-20 in the Branding Iron Theatre.

Performances on Thursday-Saturday, Nov. 17-19 will begin at 8 p.m.

The Sunday, Nov. 20 performance begins at 3 p.m.

Written during the reign of Louis XIV, the fast-paced French comedy brings to stage the hypocrisy of Tartuffe, a church beggar who preaches piety and faith yet fails to live his own life according to his teachings.

The play is directed by Director of Theatre Royal R. Brantley with Pete Evans as assistant director and will feature a cast of 14 students: Lee Colette of Canyon; Tommy Cochran, Wellington; Kyle Wyatt, Canyon; Chris Bessett, El Paso; Daniel Harp, Canyon; Andy Nies, Fritch; Dean Birkes, Canyon; Mellssa Parks, El Paso; Stacy Bennett, Pampa; Amy Yonker, San Antonio; Marlisa Harris, Liberal, Kan.; Jayme Cotton, Dimmitt; Kim Wieck, Canyon and Marj Ekleberry of Clarendon.

Tickets are available for $5 to the general public and are free to WT students and faculty with ID. Reservations may be made by calling 656-2798 or 656-2804 the evening of a performance.

Hints from Heloise

SPECIAL PAMPHLET OFFER

Dear Readers: Two of my pamphlets, Heloise's Favorite Recipes (my newest one!) and Heloise's Holiday Hints, are now available for $3. To receive these two holiday helpers, send your money and a stamped (65 cents), self-addressed legal-sized envelope to Heloise/Recipes, P.O. Box 19765, Irvine, Calif. 92713. — Heloise

CLEAN BLENDER

Dear Heloise: I found a great way to clean my blender. I was always a little nervous putting my hand in there, fearing I would get cut on the blades.

Now, I pour water to the halfway mark and add a drop or two of detergent. I put the lid on and turn it on — presto, it's clean in less than a minute.

After rinsing well, it's sparkling clean. — Pat Ramsey, Atlanta, Ga.

ALUMINUM FOIL

Dear Heloise: I was in the middle of scrubbing pots when I ran out of soap pads. I had to devise something to get those pots and pans clean.

I remembered a little trick my mother used. She put some cleanser in the pot and crumpled a piece of aluminum foil loosely. She used it as you would a soap pad.

I tried it and it worked! It sure comes in handy in a pinch. — Alice James, Virginia Beach, Va.
