For Caribbean Aid...

Plan Is Generally Praised

By The Associated Press

President Reagan's Caribbean aid plan brought cautious praise from Panama, Costa Rica and Hunduras and the expected attack from Nicaragua, but Mexico, a potential contributing partner, remained silent.

Reagan unveiled the proposal Wednesday in a speech to the Organization of American States. He called for $350 million in addition to the $474.9 million appropriated this year for 17 economically troubled nations in Central America and the Caribbean — with most of the money earmarked for El Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica, Belize, Jamaica and the Dominican Republic.

The president outlined an integrated program of trade, aid and investment for the area, including free trade for some products exported to the United States.

Reagan also proposed increasing grant military assistance by $60 million to $182.1 for fiscal 1982 to help nations in the area against the "Soviet-backed, Cuban-managed support for violent revolution in Central America."

Reagan excluded Nicaragua, Cuba and Grenada from the program, saying their governments were "totalitarian," repressive, and threats to the region's security.

The oil-rich nations of Mexico and Venezuela previously indicated their willingness to join the United States in a coordinated economic aid plan for the area. But neither had any immediate official reaction to Reagan's initiative.

It appeared likely that Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo would condemn the proposal because of his often stated opposition to military aid, and to the exclusion of any country from the plan.

Lopez Portillo has strongly opposed U.S. attempts to put down leftist expansion in Central America. In a speech Sunday, apparently intended to influence Reagan's plan, he offered to mediate between the United States and the governments of Cuba and Nicaragua, and also suggested ways to end the civil war in El Salvador.

Nicaragua's ambassador to the United Nations Alejandro Bendana Rodriguez, said in New York "it is a pity" that Reagan "was not consistent in his speech ... and excluded Nicaragua."

There was no immediate official comment from Managua. But Nicaragua's Ambassador to the United States Francisco Navarro, speaking on the CBS show "Morning," said he thought the Reagan plan was "a good step the region needs badly" and that Nicaragua would like to be included.

Other Latin American nations reacted favorably but cautiously to the plan, which faces an uncertain fate in Congress because of growing voter resistance to foreign aid at a time of heavy domestic budget cuts.

Panamanian Vice President Ricardo de la Espriella said it represented "a good step toward the solution" of the area's problems.

But he said he wanted to see a "more concrete" outline approved by Congress, which he hoped "would not impose a political price on countries such as ours...."

Inflation Rose At Slowest Pace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite surging food prices, inflation in January rose at its slowest pace since the summer of 1980 — an annual rate of 3.5 percent, the government said today.

Analysts, in advance of today's report, attributed the overall slowdown mostly to the continuing recession, but cautioned that the low January figure would likely pick up somewhat later in the year.

The Labor Department said in its new report that the Consumer Price Index rose a seasonally adjusted 0.3 percent last month, the smallest increase since the 0.1 percent of July 1980. If the January figure held steady for 12 straight months, the annual figure would be 3.5 percent.

The new monthly calculation was slightly better than the 0.4 percent increase of December and the 0.5 percent of November.

For all of 1981, inflation rose 8.9 percent, well below the 12.4 percent of 1980 and the smallest increase in four years.

Economists are predicting an even lower rate for all of 1982, barring an unforeseen disaster, such as a crop failure or a major interruption in oil imports. Most predictions foresee inflation this year averaging 6 percent to 7 percent.

The government's new report said the January slowdown was helped by a sharp drop in gasoline prices, the smallest rise in used car prices in almost two years and a decline in clothing costs.

Housing costs, led by a 0.4 percent drop in prices for homes, rose a modest 0.3 percent, continuing a trend began in the fall. Mortgage interest rates went up a small 0.2 percent.

Rent was up 0.6 percent, less than in recent months, but fuel and other utility bills jumped 1.1 percent, the report said.

Food costs rose 0.7 percent last month, following small advances of 0.1 percent in each of the previous two months.

Prices of fresh vegetables soared 16.8 percent.

C-C Board Session Set

Snyder Chamber of Commerce directors are scheduled to meet at 4 p. m. today in the chamber conference room.

The meeting was originally scheduled last week, but was postponed for lack of a quorum.

Reports on several activities are scheduled, including playoff basketball games, sponsorship of the Dallas Cowboy Hoopsters here March 16 and plans for the American Junior Rodeo Association National Finals Rodeo set for August.

Other topics will include the distribution of white buffalo stickers, senior citizen housing and the possibility of conducting an insurance seminar here.

Campaign Brings Mrs. Snelson Here

Mrs. Pete Snelson of Midland campaigned most of the day in Snyder yesterday for her husband, who is a candidate for the office of State Land Commissioner.

Snelson, a veteran legislator who has served 20 years in the state senate, is seeking the office being vacated by Bob Armstrong, who is running for governor. He is a candidate in the Democratic Primary election.

Mrs. Snelson visited in the downtown area, toured the county courthouse and was guest at an informal coffee Wednesday morning at the Diamond M Museum of Fine Arts.

"We are trying to cover the West Texas area early in the campaign," Mrs. Snelson said. "We feel that Pete is known well enough here, but we do want to visit as many of our neighbors as possible."

Mrs. Snelson said that their campaigning will be focused mostly in East Texas during the latter stages.

"There are so many votes east of Interstate 35 that we feel we must concentrate our efforts there beginning next month," she said.

Mrs. Snelson said she believes her husband is highly qualified to serve as land commissioner.

"So few people are familiar with this office, and one of our biggest efforts in the campaign is to remind people how important the land commissioner's office is."

Mrs. Snelson is the first to campaign here in a state race this political season.

Thursday update

Urged To Collect Debts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government agencies could ease tremendously the "strain and pain" of paring the federal budget if they would do a better job of collecting money owed to them, a Texas congressman said.

Rep. Jack Brooks, a Democrat from Beaumont, said Wednesday the continuing failure of agencies to recover money owed to them is unforgivable in light of the current budget squeeze on their funds.

Brooks, dean of the 24-member Texas congressional delegation, is chairman both of the House Committee on Government Operations and its subcommittee on Legislation and National Security.

Gunmen Free Passengers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A dozen Shiite Moslem gunmen early today freed all 105 passengers and crewmen they had held for nine hours aboard a grounded jetliner at Beirut airport and surrendered to Syrian peacekeeping forces, the Lebanese government announced.

No injuries were reported.

A government statement said the gunmen, all Lebanese, took six Libyan and two Lebanese hostages with them to guarantee they would not be molested when they abandoned the Kuwaiti jetliner and were driven by Syrian troops to a nearby Syrian army post.

The last eight hostages were freed at the Syrian post, a few hundred yards from the airport, the statement said. It gave no indication of what happened to the gunmen beyond saying they were in Syrian custody.

Testimony May End

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An ex-convict has testified in the capital murder trial of inmate Eroy Edward Brown that slain Warden Wallace Pack once ordered him in 1970 to beat another inmate.

Prosecutor Mike Hinton closed the state's case against Brown Wednesday, pending limited testimony today by three out-of-state witnesses.

Defense attorney Craig Washington planned to recall Texas Department of Corrections medical officials.

Tommy Carlisle, 39, of San Antonio testified Wednesday that Pack ordered him and prisoner Dennis Woodbury to beat inmate Melvin Austin. The ex-inmate said he didn't beat Austin but that Woodbury, now deceased, did.

Psychic Joins Hunt

LAKE DALLAS, Texas (AP) — A psychic who joined the search for three members of a family missing since Valentine's Day says he has "a picture in his mind" of what the place looks like where the bodies will be found.

"They tell me there's a place that matches the description, and we're going to try and find it," John Catchings of Dallas said Wednesday.

Catchings was called to help the investigation after the body of a fourth family member, 6-year-old Kayleen Merillat, was found Sunday by a couple walking along the shores of Lake Lewisville.

"I came up with some definite leads," Catchings said. "I feel like foul play was involved ... that these people are all deceased."

The family has been missing since the Merillat couple and their two young daughters drove to the lake to look for firewood.

Handgun Ban Urged

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A handgun ban to make San Francisco a "bastion of sanity" has been proposed by Mayor Dianne Feinstein, who was appointed to her job after the previous mayor was shot to death — with a handgun.

"Guns flow in this society like taffy candy," the mayor said Wednesday as she suggested banning private possession of handguns, a proposal modeled on a city ordinance that recently went into effect in Morton Grove, Ill.

Only police officers, security guards, military personnel and some other specified people would be allowed to carry handguns. Others caught with the weapons would be subject to 30 days in jail.

The SDN Column

Who should decide how many social programs government should provide, and how should the funds be channeled to support these programs?

That is a question pressing heavily upon the shoulders of state and local officials as they ponder the far-flung implications of President Reagan's proposal to shift some of the programs to the states.

It was inevitable that the greatest resistance would come from states who already are heavily involved in vast programs of their own as well as swallowing as much of the federal carrot as possible.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby says Texas is in better shape than most to absorb this federal effort because our economy is strong and we have not depended upon the federal government to the degree of others.

However, Hobby cautions that the state, counties and communities must establish their own priorities to determine which level of government is best suited to fill the gaps that may be left as the federal funds are withdrawn.

"We should not assume, however, that state government must move in and duplicate the mistakes of the federal government," Hobby cautions.

And that, in a nutshell, is what the federal administration is hoping--that the states will lop off some of the fat. There are those, of course, who feel that since it was the federal government that laid it on, it should be the federal government that cuts it off. Either way, we are going to hear a lot more about it in the campaigns this year.

Speaking of Reaganomics, we came across this piece that emerged from some alert, would-be poet:

When supply-side gits the bacon and demand-side's up the crick, it can start a heap uv achin' in the body politic. And when them truly needy git their safety nets and stuff, that'll make the merely seedy truly needy quick enuf.

Testimony In Trial Ends

ATLANTA (AP) — Testimony ended in Wayne B. Williams' murder trial today, with the defendant's mother telling the jury: "They have not produced evidence that my son is a killer."

Defense attorney Alvin Binder immediately moved for a directed verdict of acquittal, telling the judge the state "has not shown that this accused has killed or murdered anybody."

Judge Clarence Cooper denied the motion and scheduled closing arguments for Friday.

Faye Williams was one of three rebuttal witnesses called by the defense after prosecutors concluded their rebuttal testimony in the ninth week of the trial.

Ask Us

Q.—How can a homeowner in the Snyder area determine whether or not his house was constructed with insulation materials containing formaldehyde?

A.—City Building Inspector Bobbby Jones says the only sure way he knows is to have a sample analyzed. You may obtain a sample by taking the cover off of an electrical outlet on an outside wall and probing the insulation space. If the space is filled with foam type insulation, there is a possibility that it contains formaldehyde, although not all foam-type insulation has formaldehyde.

Architect Hired By School Board

Gary and Company, an architectural firm from Big Spring, was employed Wednesday to prepare plans for a three-room kindergarten addition at Northeast Elementary School.

Snyder school trustees interviewed three firms Wednesday afternoon in a special meeting held at the school administration building.

The firm will start immediately to prepare plans and specifications for the addition. After the project is bid, estimated construction time would be five months.

In the only other business item, the board admended its budget to include payment to the Scurry County Appraisal District in the amount of $32,436.

This is the school's 1982 portion of the cost of obtaining a permanent location to house the appraisal district. All taxing jurisdictions have given approval to purchase the building at 2612 College Ave.

Anti-Busing...

Senate Liberals Filibuster Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hour by hour, minute by minute, the Senate's anti-busing majority is winding down the clock toward inevitable victory over a band of filibustering liberals who argue that Congress should not be telling courts how to rule.

"This debate is not about busing," said Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., leader of a filibuster with about 80 hours to run. "It is about preserving the Constitution."

Weicker and his allies are opposed to legislation removing busing as a school desegregation tool, claiming such a law would pose a direct threat to the Constitution.

For more than 15 hours on Wednesday and early today, senators endured a stream of roll call votes and procedural maneuvers, all part of Weicker's efforts to delay a final vote on the toughest anti-busing bill ever to clear the House or Senate. In all, 20 roll calls were taken.

The Senate adjourned shortly before 1:30 a.m. EST, but was expected to resume today after senators got some sleep.

Towards the end of Wednesday night, tempers frayed. And just before midnight, Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee sought to reduce more than 100 minor amendments Weicker has introduced as tools for keeping the filibuster alive.

By prior arrangement, Baker called up for debate dozens of minor amendments Weicker planned to use as vehicles for legislative maneuvering.

Opponents Of Bingo Plan Meeting Here

A campaign to oppose the legalizing of bingo here will be discussed tonight at a meeting of area ministers.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p. m. at Faith Baptist Church.

Voters in the City of Snyder are scheduled to decide April 3 whether bingo will be legalized here under terms of a constitutional amendment adopted in 1980 and subsequent legislation implementing the amendment.

A preliminary session attended by several ministers was held earlier, and spokesmen said that tonight's session has been scheduled to discuss legal aspects of the bingo proposal. At the earlier session, Clarence Minton was named to head up the effort.

Bingo is legal in Texas now, under sponsorship of non-profit, benevolent organizations, but only as a local option. It may be legalized by ballot in a county, justice precinct, or incorporated city or town. The election scheduled here April 3 involves the city only.

Columbia Will Be Launched As Scheduled And Not Any Earlier

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The extra time that work crews picked up as they prepared the space shuttle ahead of schedule will be used to give workers time off before the March 22 launch, officials say.

NASA officials said Wednesday they had decided that Columbia's blastoff on its third space mission won't take place early, even though two days were gained in preparing the shuttle for space faster than foreseen by the timetable.

That extra time will be "used to ease off on launch pad crews and give people some time off before the launch," said James Kukowski, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman in Washington.

The extra time also gives the space agency elbow room to troubleshoot any difficulties on the pad. "If there are problems, we do have that cushion," Kukowski told the Today newspaper in Cocoa.

Speculation the liftoff might be early began Feb. 16 after the fully assembled shuttle was moved from its hangar.

Meanwhile, the space shuttle's massive external tank was readied Wednesday for a trial loading of more than a half-million gallons of supercold liquid fuels.

The tanking test, one of two milestones remaining before the third flight, is part of another simulated launch countdown scheduled to begin this afternoon.

The test loading is to take place Friday.

Another element of the trial run is the operation of the reusable spacecraft's three fuel cells. They will be turned on during the last two hours of the mock countdown to make sure they work properly.

Failure of one of the fuel cells during Columbia's second flight caused the mission to be cut down from five days to two last November.

A post-flight analysis determined that a particle of aluminum hydroxide had lodged in an aspirator that removes water formed as a byproduct of the fuel cell's chemical reaction. This resulted in flooding of the cell, and it was shut down.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

For a total of 26 days out of each year, I am one year older than my husband.

Did you hear that, world?

For you and for my husband who treats me like a Greek ruin, let me repeat it. Until March 19, I am one year older than my husband!

I don't know why he makes such a big deal out of it. Fourteen out of every 100 wives in this country married "younger men." Yet during those 26 days, he displays a mean streak in him that is almost frightening.

We'll be standing around at a party and someone will say, "Does anyone know the verse to 'Stardust'?" Then, this stranger for whom I have borne three children and trimmed the hair over his ears when he's between haircuts will publicly turn on me and say, "That was before my time, but maybe Erma knows." You'd think in 26 days he'd have heard someone humming it.

During that brief period of time before his birthday, he doesn't let a bit of trivia get by him. Who was Lincoln with at the time he was assassinated? Ask Erma. Was Melanie's baby in "Gone with the Wind" a boy or a girl? Ask Erma. What was Bill Shakespeare REALLY like? Ask Erma.

I told him the other night, "I'm sick of your taking cheap shots at my age. Men don't get flak for marrying women younger than they are."

"That's different," he said. "They're supposed to be. That's how our culture is set up."

"You are saying there's nothing wrong with your friend, Frank, who at 51 is marrying a girl young enough to be his granddaughter?"

"She's not that young," he said.

"She has training wheels on her brain. How can he relate to a wife who classifies bras as 'antiques'?"

Don't ask me why society has divined that men must be older and taller than their wives.

Since men are slower to develop than women, I figured I did him a big favor taking him off the shelf and raising him until he caught up.

It's only during the period from Feb. 21-March 19 that I realize my limitations. What can you do in 26 days?

New Hampshire May Go Dry

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire may be going dry if a legislative logjam can't be broken.

The state has a sunset law that requires all state agencies to be renewed by the Legislature every six years. The deadline for the state-run Liquor Commission that sells all the alcoholic beverages in the state is April 15, legislators were told at a hearing Monday.

Poor leg drainage

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is 65 years old and retired. He used to sell furniture and was on his feet a lot. He had to wear surgical hose. Now his ankles and legs are swelling. What would cause this and what can he do for it? At night the swelling goes down but during the day they swell.

DEAR READER — Your story sounds like the swelling is from varicose veins or a similar condition, poor drainage of the lymphatic system in the legs. As blood or lymph accumulates in the legs, the normal system to draw fluid out of the tissues and return it to the circulation does not work and the accumulating fluid causes swelling.

Varicose veins or lymphedema may affect one leg only, if the vessels in that leg alone are involved, or both if both legs are involved. Most other medical causes result in bilateral swelling. This includes a decrease in blood proteins associated with starvation, which I doubt your husband has. We all have blood proteins in the blood vessels that literally suck the fluid back into the circulation. If these are decreased as in poor nutrition you can see swelling.

More common causes for bilateral swelling include marked fluid retention as in premenstrual tension (which usually produces only mild swelling), liver disease, kidney disease and right heart failure. Many of these conditions result in increased body fluid because the body retains an excess amount of sodium.

There are three factors that contribute to the location of swelling: the pressure inside the blood vessels (often related to position), the pressure inside the tissues that resist the flow of fluid into the space and the blood proteins inside the blood vessels to suck the fluid back.

Your husband accumulates fluid in the feet in the day because he is up and the vertical position increases the pressure inside the blood vessels in his legs. He might avoid this by wearing support hose or pressure bandages to increase the pressure inside his tissues. That counteracts the fluid accumulation.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-6, Swelling: Causes and Management. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please settle a dispute with my girlfriend. She says that pepper is bad for your heart. I disagree. If it is why doesn't a person ever read or hear about it?

DEAR READER — You are right. Your girlfriend probably has gotten misinformation about salt and pepper. Pepper is just a spice. It can be irritating to the digestive system in sensitive people. It has no effect on the heart. Hot spicy foods can activate the temperature regulating center and cause sweating. The effort to eliminate heat may increase the heart work a little but pepper is not that effective in most people.

By contrast, sodium in salt tends to cause the body to retain water. That is because there must be enough water to limit the concentration of sodium in body fluids. The fluid retention results in raising the blood pressure. In a person with high blood pressure it is often useful to help the body eliminate excess fluids. For that reason salt is restricted or medicines are given to help the body eliminate sodium.

Dear Abby

Lonely 'Loser' Can't Win, Place or Show

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 24-year-old guy who can't seem to get a girlfriend. I've tried everything. I don't know what the problem is, but I suspect it's my looks or personality. Abby, people who know me say I'm really a nice guy once you get to know me. The problem is that in today's society girls judge guys by their looks.

I'm so lonely, I'd do anything to have a girlfriend to share things with. I'm shy, but when I do get up the courage to ask a girl to dance, I get turned down. I'm well-groomed, dress neatly and have good manners, but I was turned down 10 times one night in a disco. It's so depressing. Why am I such a loser?

All my friends have girlfriends. Some even have two or three, and they all treat their girlfriends lousy. I get invited to parties, but I hate to go because I don't have anyone to take. I hate going to movies all by myself and eating alone. I'm not the most exciting guy in the world, but I have a good job, a nice car and a few dollars in the bank, but money can't buy happiness.

JUST PLAIN LONELY

DEAR LONELY: I can't believe that a man of your description can't find a girl to date. A guy who gets invited to parties must have at least one good friend. Ask him (or her) what there is about you that turns girls off. Skip the discos, and ask your co-workers. Everyone has a sister, a roommate, a cousin or a neighbor who'd like to meet a nice guy. Don't give up. She's out there. And by the way, the answer to your prayers may be found in church.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is to be married soon. A friend told me to expect some of the guests to bring their wedding gifts to the reception. She says it's a common and acceptable practice these days because people want to save the postage. I always thought wedding gifts should be delivered to the bride's home before the wedding.

When did this practice of bringing wedding gifts to the reception become "acceptable"? Surely the bride can't be expected to open gifts that are handed to her in the receiving line! Also, what if there are no adequate facilities for collecting and safeguarding gifts at the church, hall or wherever the reception is held?

And since the bride and groom leave for their honeymoon immediately following the reception, they can't very well take the gifts with them, so that means the bride's mother has the job of carting all the gifts to her home for safekeeping.

Please enlighten me.

BOTHERED AND BEWILDERED

DEAR B AND B: Thank you for pointing out the tremendous burden imposed on the bride's mother when thoughtless friends hand-carry gifts to the reception. No matter how "common" it has become, it is not acceptable.

DEAR ABBY: I'm considered a good cook, and I don't mind giving out my recipe to anyone who wants it. My gripe is the person who doesn't follow the instructions and then complains because it didn't turn out like mine.

For example, take this simple recipe I have used for over 20 years and have given to countless guests:

INFALLIBLE RICE
(serves four hungry, or six polite people)

1 medium onion, minced
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup long-grain, raw white rice
2 cups chicken broth (hot)

Saute onions in butter until transparent. Combine onions, rice and hot broth. Bring to a boil on top of range. Cover and place in 325-degree oven for 20 minutes. Serve and listen to the compliments.

Simple enough? Well, you ain't heard nuthin' yet. I have had people complain that theirs wasn't like mine. Upon questioning them, I learned why. Here are a few reasons:

a. Used instant rice.
b. Used another shortening, not butter.
c. Left out the onions.
d. Failed to cover the rice while baking.
e. Used water instead of broth.
f. Allowed rice to "boil" for some time before placing in oven.
g. Let broth cool before using.
h. Baked for 40 minutes.
i. Liked onions, so added second onion.

Now I ask you! Why can't some people just follow instructions?

RESIGNED

DEAR RESIGNED: For some people, instructions are something they read carefully after a failure to find out what they did wrong.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Starting with boards 48-to-64 of the 96-board match the Americans took command. The hands were quieter and it became a matter of card play with the Americans picking up on many difficult hands.

Both South players arrived at a very optimistic four hearts. We have shown bidding with a club opening, a heart overcall, one of those modern expert doubles for takeout, a sporting heart raise by North and a game closing four hearts by South.

John Solodar for America took dummy's ace of spades and led a club. A duck by East would almost surely have led to John's defeat, but East took his ace of clubs and led a second spade.

John ruffed, cashed his ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond in dummy, ruffed a second spade, ruffed another diamond as East's king dropped, ruffed dummy's last spade and led his king of trumps.

East was in with the ace and led back a trump to John's queen. John led his good queen of diamonds. East ruffed and had to lead a club. John finessed the jack and was home.

The Pakistani South didn't find John's play and went down one.

B&PW Hears Program On Poetry

Faye McGollum was hostess for the Business and Professional Women's February dinner meeting at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Table decorations carried out a patriotic theme with small flags and colorful nut cups. Plate favors were poems.

Ethel Mae Studivant arranged the program, a presentation on poetry by Dorothy Cox.

Mrs. Cox has been writing since she was nine years of age and has recently published her first book of poems, "Wings of Wind." She gave definitions of poetry and read several poems. These included "My House in Wintertime," "Making Sure," "Depiction of Age," "Mary's Little Donkey," "The Old Blacksmith Shop," "Monday Wash," and "Reward."

Mrs. Anton Weaver, club president, took pictures for the club scrapbook and arranged for the autograph party that followed the program.

Clemy Andress, Nellie Smith and Frances Brown were appointed to the committee to arrange a memorial for Florence Leftwich who was a charter member of B&PW in 1950.

The Miss America Pageant was originally a floral parade.

Woman Gets Flamingo

MIAMI (AP) — When Sandra Morgan spotted the 17-foot-tall pink flamingo in 1961, it was love at first sight.

It took two decades, but finally the concrete-and-steel flamingo was given a home in front of the persistent woman's Miami business.

"It's so tacky, it's wonderful," she says of the big bird adorning her store entrance.

She saw it for the first time 21 years ago in front of an Everglades tourist shop.

"I just had to have it," she said.

She offered Jack Fiscus, the owner of the Everglades shop and the artist who built the bird, $300 for it. But he refused.

Last July, Fiscus leased his store to Jim Brown, who turned it into a shell shop. Brown was not fond of the funny fowl.

"I wanted to change the image to get it way from that 1950s look," said Brown, who added that he thinks 17-foot flamingos are "a bit tacky."

Grammy Awards...

Lennon-Ono Record Album Of Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A tearful Yoko Ono brought the audience to its feet at the 24th annual Grammy awards as she accepted the album-of-the year honor she shared with her slain husband, ex-Beatle John Lennon.

Miss Ono's appearance on stage with the couple's 6-year-old son, Sean, all but eclipsed the rest of the winners, including Quincy Jones, who won more Grammys than anyone else, and Kim Carnes, whose raspy-voiced hit, "Bette Davis Eyes," was named record and song of the year.

Al Jarreau, Lena Horne, Dolly Parton, The Police, Manhattan Transfer, and "Hill Street Blues" theme composer Mike Post won two awards each Wednesday night from the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences.

Miss Ono, regal in an off-white evening gown, was at first unable to speak as the Shrine Auditorium audience roared its approval.

Miss Ono and Lennon — who had won no Grammys since his days as a Beatle — were honored both as producers and artists for "Double Fantasy," with co-producer Jack Douglas also receiving a Grammy. The LP was released in October 1980, two months before Lennon was gunned down outside his New York apartment and just after the Oct. 1, 1980, opening of the 1981 Grammy eligibility year.

Jones, triumphing not only as a musician but as an arranger and record producer, grabbed five Grammys, including producer of the year, an award honoring all his production work.

Jones' "The Dude" LP earned honors as best rhythm and blues performance by a group; the tracks "Velas" and "Ai No Corrida" were cited, respectively, for instrumental arrangement and instrumental arrangement accompanying vocals.

Finally Jones shared a Grammy with Lena Horne for best cast show album, "Lena Horne: The Lady and Her Music."

Miss Horne was also a surprise winner in the female pop performance category, and Jones picked that award up for her.

Jones' magic rubbed off on one other nominee: newcomer James Ingram won best rhythm and blues male vocal honors for "One Hundred Ways," a track from "The Dude." The female rhythm and blues award went to Aretha Franklin for "Hold On I'm Comin'."

Miss Carnes was an exuberant record-of-the-year winner for "Bette Davis Eyes," the No. 1 hit which also earned song-of-the-year honors for songwriters Jackie DeShannon and Donna Weiss.

In rock categories, Rick Springfield — whom soap opera fans know as a regular on "General Hospital" — won male vocal honors for "Jessie's Girl" and Pat Benatar got the female vocal nod for "Fire and Ice." The Police grabbed both best group vocal and best instrumental performance for "Don't Stand So Close To Me" and "Behind My Camel," respectively.

In classical music, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Chorus performance of "Mahler: Symphony No. 2," with Sir Georg Solti conducting.

Diet Helps Liver Disease

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — A liver disease similar to cirrhosis can be sucessfully managed through diet, tests with a dog demonstrate.

A bulldog pup was suffering from "portacaval shunt," a disease in which toxins usually removed by the liver are allowed to accumulate in the body, says Judith L. Weissinger, a Colorado State University pharmacology professor.

Perkins: Turning On WTC's Inside Game

By BILL McCLELLAN

Just a year ago Dorcas Perkins was learning the system, doing spot work for Coach Joe Cushing's Dusters, resting the likes of Shari Teal, Valerie Wells and others. She was averaging just over three points and three rebounds a game, and nobody was certain if the 6-2 postgirl from Lubbock Dunbar would be able to help the next year.

But a year's experience and hard work in the off-season has produced one of the conference's most intimidating players on the court, and she's been one of the driving forces behind Western Texas' bid towards the Region 14 Tournament, which begins next week in Big Spring.

"It's the most important part of the season. Playing in regionals is what we've been working for all this time," said the WTC sophomore, who wants to work as a recreational director, perhaps for a park, when she graduates from college. "I feel like when we get there we're going to win it. We can compete with all of the teams and I know we can beat them. It just depends on how we play," she added.

As a sophomore, Perkins is still shy and soft-spoken off the court, but her starting role would indicate she's gaining in confidence. She's averaging 11.8 points and 7.3 rebounds a game, and her 99 blocked shots proves she can be a force inside.

"What the stats don't reveal is the intimidation factor Dorcas gives us," said Coach Joe Cushing, who believes Perkins has still not reached her potential. "She's done a superb job for us this year and I don't have any doubts Dorcas will go on from here and be an even better player as she continues college. She's not a vocal leader, but if she's having a good night it reflects on our other players as well. If she gets herself ready, they are ready."

Perkins realizes that at times the team looks to her, and she explained what she has to do in order to help the team in the playoffs.

"I feel like I have to have a good game. It helps the team a lot, especially getting on the boards. If we come out and don't hit the first two or three shots I feel like if I can get those rebounds it will help lift the team," she said.

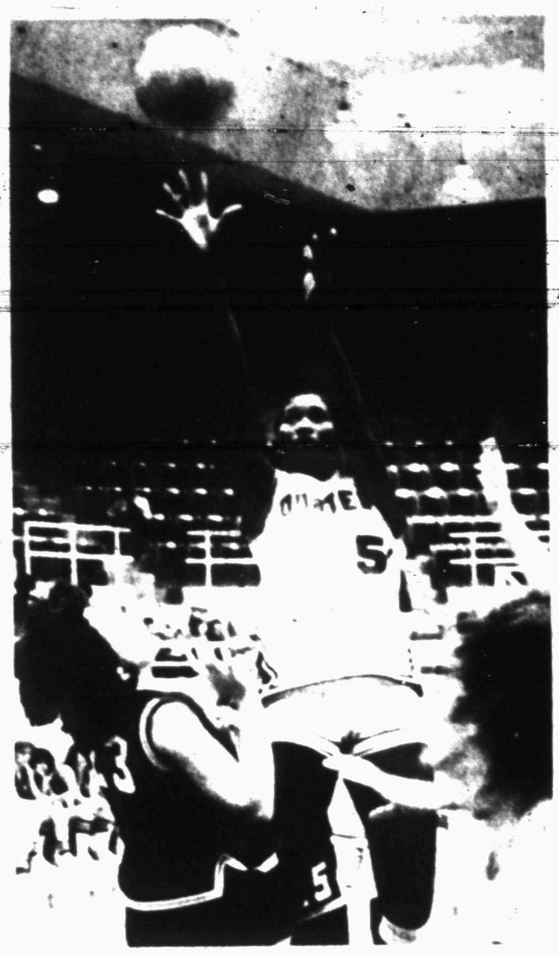

Success in the regional tournament usually comes down to two factors; talent and mental attitude. Perkins isn't concerned about WTC's talent - that has been proven - and she believes its attitude is good.

"I feel good about going to regionals because I believe everyone wants to win. As long as they want it, we can get it. I know it sometimes means less to the freshmen than the sophomores, but I think they are beginning to understand how important regionals is. This is what we've worked for all year long. This is it."

Snyder fans will have their final opportunity to see the Dusters at home tonight, when WTC meets South Plains in a doubleheader at the coliseum. But like any other athlete, Perkins hopes the crowds will back the team through the playoffs.

"I wish the fans would support us at regionals because it helps the team a lot. It seems to motivate me, and I know we play better when we know there are people up there cheering for us."

A complete regional tournament schedule won't be determined until after tonight's games. The tourney begins Sunday and runs through Wednesday. It is being held at Big Spring's Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Girls Dribblers Begin Registration

Scurry County Girls Little Dribblers will hold registration today through Feb. 27 at the Scurry County Boy's Club.

Each girl age 8-11 (as of Sept. 1, 1981) should be accompanied by a parent or guardian and bring a birth certificate and $5 registration fee.

Registration times will be from 4 to 6 p.m. today and Friday and from 10 a.m. through 7 p.m. on the 27th.

If there are enough 12 and 13-year-olds, a senior league will be formed for the first time.

Scrimmage Postponed

Snyder High School head baseball coach Albert Lewis reported this morning that today's scrimmage with Big Spring has been postponed until Saturday at 1 p.m. here.

The Tigers had scheduled to scrimmage with the Steers at 4 today, but adverse weather prompted the change.

'Do-Or-Die' For SPC Ladies Here Tonight

When your opponent is cornered, when it's down to the bottom line, when the entire season is banked on one game - look out for the fireworks.

Western Texas College entertains South Plains at 6 and 8 tonight, for the final home appearances of the Dusters and Westerners. Schools officials were hoping for large fan support, despite the possibility of poor weather conditions.

Western Texas' Dusters get a small taste of what the regional playoff opponents might be like tonight as a do-or-die South Plains team charges into the coliseum.

Simply put, South Plains' women must defeat the Dusters tonight to make it into next week's Region V Tournament. A loss leaves them at home. No tomorrow.

The Dusters are already in the tournament, though tonight's outcomes throughout the conference will determine their seeding. Despite the obvious difference in motivation, WTC needs a victory to build momentum for the tournament.

"It's going to be a barnburner," said WTC's Coach Joe Cushing. "South Plains won't be expecting any favors and we certainly aren't going to either. It boils down to getting out there and playing good basketball. I'm sure they are just going to turn loose and let it rip."

SPC's ladies come in at 18-10 for the season and 4-7 in WJCAC play - a half game behind Odessa. Western is 22-7 and 7-4 and will take either the third or fourth place seeding next week.

Tonight's 8 o'clock game is one for pride, as neither South Plains (16-14 and 5-12) nor Western Texas (13-17, 5-12) enter into the men's regional playoff picture.

The game is an important one for the Westerners, however, who will be under the direction of Coach Larry Dunaway for the final time. Dunaway announced his intent to resign earlier this week.

"Obviously, I'd like to leave with a win in our last game, and I'm sure the kids want to end the season with a victory," said Dunaway. "These kids have worked hard all season. I think it would be great if we could come away with a win tonight."

Thinclads Head For Track Meet

FORT STOCKTON -- Snyder's Tigers go against some pretty heady competition in their first official outing of the season, here at the annual Comanche Relays.

Thirty-one teams in three divisions make up the Relays, which begins at 2:30 Friday and continues through Saturday.

Snyder is placed in division II, composed of 3A and 4A schools. Other teams entered in the division include Monahans, Odessa Ector, San Angelo Lake View, Fort Stockton and Pecos - all from District 2-4A - as well as Seminole and Alpine.

The Tigers hold two meet records and a division record here. Lloyd Benson set the meet's 400 meters mark in 1980 with a time of 49.33 and Dale Jenkins holds the meet pole vault record with a height of 14-7, set in 1979. Keith McClain holds the division II 110 meter high hurdles mark with a time of 15.2, set in 1979. All three have graduated.

"I'm looking for us to be good in the high jump, the long jump and the 300 hurdles," said new head track coach Robert Crawford this week. "I think our relay teams may surprise some people, and I think we'll have some kids that are going to do better than they think they are."

Snyder had three athletes who elected not to compete this season, and three others to join the track team this week. Added to the squad have been Mark Shaw, Whit Parks and Mike Everett. Norman Malone, James Cody and Greg Pruitt will not compete in track this spring.

Friday's events begin at 2:30 p.m. with the field events. Running prelims begin at 3:30. Saturday's action continues with field events at 9 a.m. Running finals will begin at 12:15.

Snyder entries (tentative) include:

SHOT, DISCUS- Ross Bawcum, Ricky Vaughn; HIGH JUMP- Glenn Parham, James Caldwell, D.W. Lofton; POLE VAULT- David Nicholson, Tracy Neves; LONG JUMP- James Caldwell, Glenn Parham; 100 METERS- Mark Shaw, David Nicholson, Tracy Neves; 200 METERS- Ramsey Rodriques, Carlos Carrisales; 400 METERS- James Caldwell, Tommy Holladay; 800 METERS- Chris Doles, David Miller; 1600 METERS- D.W. Polish Official Speaks Out Against Democracy

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A top Communist Party official told the Central Committee today that "unrestrained democracy" must be stopped because it leads to "anarchy" and "cripples the party," the official PAP news agency reported.

Jerzy Urbanski, chairman of the party's Central Control Commission that disciplines errant members, issued his warning the day after martial law ruler Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski blamed U.S. and internal opposition for delaying the end of military rule.

"Democracy means rejecting blind obedience," Urbanski was quoted as saying by the official news agency. "The party must be pure."

His comments apparently were in reference to democratic reforms won by the now-suspended independent union Solidarity in the 16 months before the Dec. 13 military crackdown. One of the reforms was the first election by secret ballot of the Central Committee during a party congress in July.

Police Investigate Criminal Mischief

Snyder police officers investigated three thefts and three incidents of criminal mischief reported Wednesday.

Donnie Cole, with Deeco Services Inc. of 3611 23rd St., called police around 9:30 Wednesday morning and reported the theft of some 300 gallons of gasoline. Value of the missing gasoline was set at $360.

Two other misdemeanor thefts were also reported Wednesday morning. Scharalot Prentice, an employee of the East Highway Dairy Queen, reported the theft of a barrel of grease from that business sometime Tuesday night.

Mrs. Paula Turner of Fluvanna called police around 11:30 a.m. Wednesday and reported the theft of two wire hub caps from her 1978 Ford on Feb. 20. The hubcaps were reportedly taken while the Turner vehicle was parked at Munden's on that date. Value of the missing wheel covers was listed at $197.

The major incident of criminal mischief occurred in the TG & Y parking lot sometime before 5:45 yesterday afternoon. Four vehicles parked at that location were reportedly sprayed with red spray paint. Dollar value of the damage to the vehicles was not estimated.

Vandals were also active in the 1400 block of 20th St. yesterday afternoon. Lynn Wilson of 1406 20th called police around 5 p.m. Wednesday and told officers that vandals had damaged th front door to her mobile home at that address.

Later Wednesday evening, around 9:55, Paula Rodriquez told police that someone had shot a window out of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church on 13th St. Investigation into all of these incidents is continuing.

ASTRO·GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

February 26, 1982

Persons who can be truly helpful in bettering your lot will confide in your more this coming year than they ever had in the past. Their confidential tips will prove advantageous.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rather than earmarking incoming funds for new products or goods, it may be wise at this time to use some of your monies to pay off old obligations first. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It'll be easy to get along well with most people today, but one with whom you've had cross words in the past could still have a chip on his shoulder.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can achieve your aims today by using common sense and tact. However, if you begin to get too pushy you might undo everything. Be assertive, not antagonistic.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In conversations with friends today, be careful not to force your views. You may win the debate but you could alienate a pal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) From your vantage point you should be able to see ways to make changes today which could benefit your family. However, you won't get their support if you don't clearly explain your methods.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Partners or associates may have better ideas than you today, but convincing you might not be so easy. Don't let pride of authorship affect your judgment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your suggestions regarding ways another should manage his or her affairs will be on target today. However, you may not be as wise in your own dealings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Beware of a tendency today to get a trifle heavy in situations which should be treated lightly. Don't take yourself or events too seriously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Tasks requiring concentration should be attended to early in the day. Possibilities for frustration and mistakes increase as your energy wanes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll enjoy socializing today, provided the events are not of long duration. When things drag on your social graces may desert you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You should be able to find some good buys today that fit neatly into your budget. Subdue impulses to purchase something you know you shouldn't just because another owns one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you feel you have good ideas today, believe in them and follow them through. Don't be intimidated by a know-it-all who may try to pick them apart.

Try To Form Coalition

PEKING (AP) — China, Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk and the Khmer Rouge guerrillas today appealed to former Cambodian Prime Minister Son Sann to join a coalition aimed at driving Vietnamese troops out of Cambodia.

Son Sann, whose National Liberation Front has about 5,000 troops fighting the Vietnamese, has refused to join an alliance that would be controlled by the Khmer Rouge.

Sihanouk and the Khmer Rouge agreed Sunday on the principles of a three-party coalition to fight the Soviet-backed Vietnamese.

Vietnam is believed to have about 200,000 troops in Cambodia battling loyalists of the Khmer Rouge government toppled in January 1979.
