

DEMANDS PROHIBITION SHOWDOWN

EDITORS CLOSE SESSION HERE TODAY

RECORD, MERRIAM ARE REELECTED; STAFF MAN INSTALLED

Electing James R. Record, of Fort Worth, president and Allan Merriam of Dallas, secretary for their third terms, just before noon, members of the Texas Managing Editors association were preparing to leave Lubbock this afternoon after closing their convention with a luncheon at Hotel Lubbock. Approximately 40 members from over the state attended the sessions which opened yesterday morning.

Featuring this morning's program was an address by J. M. Kendrick of New York, executive assistant to Kent Cooper, president of the Associated Press, who brought greetings from Mr. Cooper and made a short talk on the service.

To Add New Man Other talks were by Fred Dye of Dallas, director of the Texas bureau of the Associated Press, who announced that another regular staff man would be installed January 1 in the Northwest Texas area, from Lubbock to Southwestern Oklahoma and from Amarillo to Eastern New Mexico. This makes the 15th staff man the service now has in Texas. Other speakers were Mr. C. A. Price, of Dallas, director of traffic, F. B. Prothro of Dallas, supervisor of leased lines and Major R. J. Halpin, of San Antonio.

NEGRO IS HELD FOR MURDER

EVANS JOHNSON SHOT BY BLACK SUNDAY; MOB IS FEARED

FORT WORTH, Nov. 24.—The district attorney's office will resist any efforts to obtain bond for Sam Louder, 26, negro charged with murder after admitting that he killed Evans Johnson, 22, Arlington night watchman, at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, it was announced today. District Attorney Stuart said the case would be investigated by the grand jury as soon as possible, but the jury is in recess until next week.

FREIGHT RATES CASE RULED OUT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Southwestern railroads failed in the supreme court today in their attack on an Interstate Commerce Commission order making a division of freight rates on traffic passing between them and carriers of the western trunk line territory.

Hankins Not Found After Jail Escape

AMARILLO, Nov. 24.—Although due to face trial here today on charges of forging the name of Dr. J. E. Nunn of Amarillo to a check, Rev. C. W. Hankins last night had not been located by officers. He had been made a trustee by the Pecos county jailer but left the jail Thursday night.

Mother Kills Girl And Hangs Herself

BILLINGS, Mont., Nov. 24.—(AP)—Elnora Kietala, 15, died at Red Lodge last night from a skull fracture, indicated officers said, by an iron bar in the hands of her mother, Mrs. Elnora Kietala, 45.

SEEKING RECORD

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Nov. 24. (AP)—Miss Ruth Nichols, below, skinned off the ground and soared away to the west at 8:17 a. m. (est) today in quest of the women's transcontinental flight record held by Mrs. Keith Miller of Australia. The society aviatrix, flying a radio-equipped plane called "The New Cincinnati," planned four stops before reaching Los Angeles. She expected to touch today at Port Columbus, Ohio, and St. Louis and spend the night at Wichita, Kas. Tomorrow, if all goes well, she will halt briefly at Albuquerque, N. M., and then go on to the coast.

MILLER TELLS OF WATERWAY NEEDS

TEXAN DECLARES U. S. $100,000,000 EACH YEAR FOR WORK

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 24.—An annual appropriation of $100,000,000 constitutes the irreducible minimum which should be made available to complete the national waterways program, Roy Miller of Corpus Christi, Texas, a speaker on today's program of the Mississippi Valley Association convention, said here.

"I do not want to be understood as critic of the present method of handling our river and harbor improvements," Miller said. "On the contrary, I should regard it as a national calamity if the authority of the United States army engineers in supervising and controlling construction work should be modified or curtailed in any way. I do submit, however, that the means at their disposal to accomplish what is expected of them must be substantially and materially augmented."

Miller recalled the work of the Intracoastal Canal association of Louisiana and Texas to bring about construction of an "inland waterway from the Mississippi river to the Rio Grande" and said the assured early completion of the intracoastal canal from New Orleans to Corpus Christi was stimulating widespread interest throughout the southwest in the improvement of many streams which would connect with it.

Petty Offenders Lose In Decision

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24. (AP)—The supreme court today refused to pass upon the constitutional right of petty offenders to a trial by jury, a question much discussed in connection with prohibition enforcement legislation.

LINDY'S NEW WING IS SENSATION

A sensation in aviation has been caused by the disclosure that a radical new airplane wing, designed by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, has been completed and tested with amazing results, at a Burbank, Cal., factory. It will be turned over to him, shortly, for use on his South American flight. The wing increases the normal flying speed of his plane to 235 miles per hour. The principal innovation is the removal of wheels and landing gear as resistance factors. Photos below, show, top, the plane flying with wheels up in the wings, out of the way; below, close-up showing how the wheels go up into a compartment within the wing, thus doing away with "parasitic drag."

DAM BREAKS IN SOUTH TEXAS

MATHIS, Nov. 24.—Ranchmen and farmers along the Utecos river valley, today saw flood waters of the river subside after yesterday's break in the recently-completed dam at a point near here, and reported negligible property loss. No one was drowned and livestock were not in danger, the water not exceeding a crest such as was set by floods before the dam was constructed about one year ago.

DEMAND MADE FOR FUNDS IN LETTER

LETTER IS RECEIVED BY PASTOR; POLICE GUARD SERVICES

DALLAS, Nov. 24.—Police guards were stationed about the Cliff Temple Baptist church and the church parsonage here last night after the pastor, Rev. Wallace Bassett, received a letter signed "hungry men" which threatened bombing of both church and parsonage unless the church deacons raised $2,500 at the evening services.

WACO STORE ROBBED

WACO, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Burglars took approximately $5,000 from a safe in Sanger Brothers store here last night, after they tied C. C. Matheny, night watchman.

Didn't Leave Lubbock

The telephone was used to warn ranchmen and farmers along the river, but the water did not leave the lowlands that rises usually covered before the dam as built. The lake above the dam was approximately two miles wide and nine miles long, and the bulk of the water had flowed through the opening in the dam. The river was reported subsiding all along the distance to Nueces bay, near Corpus Christi, where it empties.

Didn't Leave Lubbock

Two brief addresses were made before the ministers this morning, by A. B. Davis, manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, who told of the coming Community Chest drive, and another by Grover C. Good, executive secretary of the State Y. M. C. A., who spoke on the Northwest Texas Older Boys' conference to be held here in December.

Wingerter an ex-marine, is 23 and Jones is 15, but both are married. Their wives and mothers saw them off. Jones' mother is sponsoring the flight. The fliers planned to spend the night at Baltimore.

The baby monoplane, Blue and Orange, has a wing spread of 23 feet. The young men plan to visit consuls, mayors and presidents in the principal South American countries.

Cottons Vie With Silk and Wool For Winter Frocks

Lower left, bolero frock of velvet; above, pique velvet blouse; next waterproofed velvet raincoat; fourth, jumper frock of blue and white tweed with washable blouse; fifth, brown and tan cotton broadcloth suit for little boy; right, bolero school frock of brown monotone tweed posed over tan silk blouse.

BY LUCY CLAIRE
Fashion Writer for Central Press

COTTON would be king in winter as well as in summer, or at least it would claim equal style value with silk and wool, as witness the cottons that look like woollens, and the velveteens. Velveteen made a hit at the Paris openings for its versatility for sports and evening clothes, dressmaker suits and lounging pajamas, coats and accessories. Chained Redfern, Marcel Rochas, Vionnet, Lemet and O'Rosen selected it for some of their most successful models.

One of the new developments in the velveteen field is the raincoat. It is specially treated, of course, to make it waterproof and keep it fresh looking under duress of rainstorms. It makes a charming storm coat for the high school student who can also wear it in pleasant weather. One of the latest models is sketched at the left center. It is belted, scarfed, pocketed and cuffed with all the intention of a smart sports coat.

Good Model for School
At the center right is a very good model for a school frock for the high school miss. This is an over-blouse model in jumper effect, posed over a tub blouse, and is of tweed in a blue and white mixture, with a slightly nubby surface. It is here shown worn with a dark blue leather belt and dark blue kid shoes.

At the upper left is shown an interesting blouse, also suitable for the high school student. It is of pique velveteen, and has a novel collar and cuff treatment of white storm coat for the high school student who can also wear it in pleasant weather. One of the latest models is sketched at the left center. It is belted, scarfed, pocketed and cuffed with all the intention of a smart sports coat.

SHALLOWATER NEW SCHOOL FINISHED

DEDICATION PROGRAM CLIMAXES WORK FOR NEW STRUCTURE

By Staff Correspondent
SHALLOWATER, Nov. 24—Dedication Friday night of the new $61,000 Shallowater school building has brought to realization a dream of years on the part of the residents of the northeastern section of Lubbock county.

The building is one of the most efficient educational structures in West Texas, bar no one, for a rural school district. In fact there are few small town school buildings any better equipped or more efficient than the new Shallowater building.

Can Be Added To
Built of brick, steel and concrete, with a basement, the building is so arranged that it can be added to, either with another story or the construction of more units.

Present construction is one unit. It consists of ten class rooms, a study hall, combination gymnasium and auditorium and music room, with a book room and an office for the superintendent.

In the center is the gymnasium, with a stage, that permits the conversion with very little work, into an auditorium seating more than 1,000 persons. The stage permits the giving of dramatic productions, with rows in either wing that can be used as dressing rooms.

The gym is 76 by 50 feet, practically two stories high, with plenty of windows for the second story, affording day light. The playing floor is 66 by 50 feet.

Two hundred and twenty persons may be seated in the gallery on the side of the room. An additional 180 may be seated on the platform or stage.

When used as an auditorium, 700 chairs can be accommodated on the floor of the room. It is well lighted for night performances.

Equipment Is Latest
Equipment for the class rooms is of the latest type.

Each room has a moveable blackboard, behind which the children may hang their wraps. The board is in sections, giving almost individual lockers. The teacher also has a locker and there is another locker for books, papers, etc. In fact, these two are closets.

Library Space Offered
The study hall has a library space with tables and chairs. It is a large room, on the south side of the building, insuring warmth in winter and coolness in summer. It can be converted into class rooms with but little additional cost when enlargement is necessary.

Laboratory equipment for the general science department is of the latest type. In the laboratory it will be possible to give instruction in laboratory work and also lectures at the same time.

The home economics department equipment is for both work in sewing and cooking. The first half of the year sewing instruction is being given. Four machines are available for this work. Later the ranges will be installed.

Besides the laboratory work, there is a combination room for both living room instruction and dining room work.

On the east side of the structure are the grammar grade rooms. The south side rooms include the study hall, office of Superintendent Hooten and a class room, with classrooms and laboratories on the west side.

280 Lockers Provided
The halls, surrounding the gym, have lockers for students. There are 280 lockers.

In the basement, underneath the gymnasium, is located toilets for boys on one side and girls on the other, with shower baths and locker space. This will permit basketball teams from other schools, playing at the Shallowater gym, to have a shower and change from playing suits to ordinary clothes, without going out into the open air.

The building is steam heated, with the steam plant in the basement. Hot and cold water will be available at all times.

Total cost of the building is given as approximately $61,000, with an additional $5,500 for equipment.

A new department, rather two new ones, are being added, music and expression. Miss Mary Alice Walden of Lubbock will teach expression and Miss Sue Brown, music.

Extra Curricular Work Given
Extra curricular work includes a glee club of 26 girls. Professor Hooten has been instructing the girls but it is probable that Miss Brown will have charge of this. A boy's club of the 4-H department of the county and a girl's 4-H club, are also a part of the community work.

Some of the boys have won trips to the International Livestock show in Chicago.

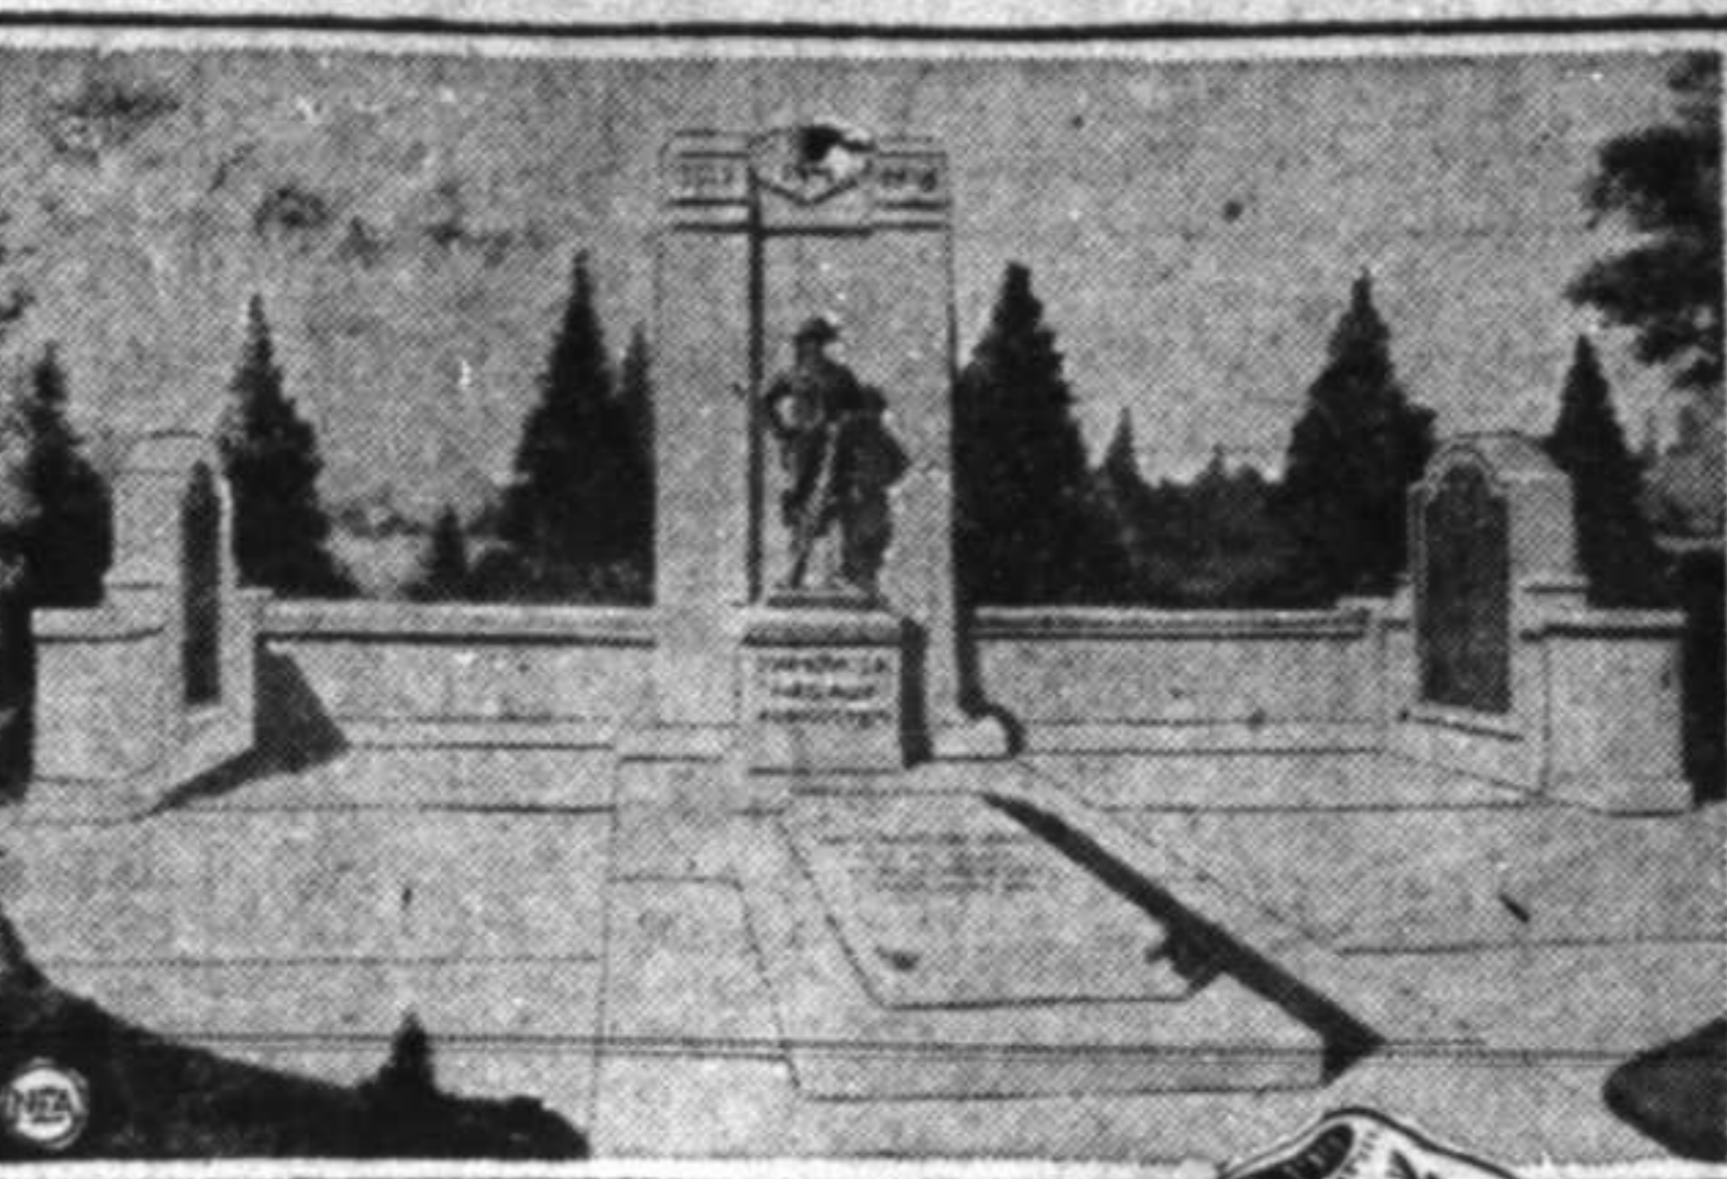

"We are talking the formation of a Hi-Y club this year," the superintendent added.

"Our Parent-Teachers' association has a membership of about 50," he continued. "It is one of the best supporters we have."

Enrollment for the school is 220. Approximately 70 of these are in the high school and 150 in the grades. Last year the total enrollment was 242 for the entire year. It is believed that this number will be passed before the spring.

Besides Superintendent Hooten, who was given his degree by Texas Technological college at Lubbock, other teachers include: M. F. Stephens, B. A. from Tech. science; A. P. Risor, B. A., University of Texas, history; Mrs. A. F. Risor, B. A., University of Texas, English and Spanish; Miss Tommie Edith Wynn, Oklahoma A and M, Stillwater, home economics; Miss Lena Maserang, North Texas Teachers, Denton, fourth and fifth grades; Miss Theresa Lawrence, Texas Woman's

Honor First Yank Killed in France

A national shrine to mark the last resting place of Private James B. Gresham, honored by Evansville, Ind., Gold Star mothers as the first American soldier killed in France, is planned in that city. Gresham, Private Thomas F. Enright of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Private Merle D. Hay of Gilman, Iowa, met death when Germans raided the 16th Infantry's trenches near Bathelmont on the night of Nov. 2-3, 1917. Gresham, who now rests in an obscure grave at Evansville, is shown here with the memorial planned in his honor.

BURGLARS BREAK INTO LOCAL STORE

Entering through a rear door, burglars ransacked the cash drawers of the Mark Halsey drug store, 1221 Broadway, early Sunday morning and escaped with approximately $5 in small change, according to a report this morning at police headquarters.

The robbery was discovered Sunday morning about 2 o'clock by a patrolman on the Broadway beat when he found the rear door ajar. An investigation followed and both cash registers were found rifled of all change.

Entrance through the door was gained by breaking a glass with a large rock, the robber then being able to reach inside and turn the lock.

Aside from the small change, nothing else was reported missing. The store safe, in which a large amount of cash had been locked Saturday night, was not molested.

Plainview To Send Large Delegation

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 24—(Special)—Between 40 and 50 Plainview high school boys and their sponsors will attend the Northwest Texas Older Boys conference at Lubbock, December 5, 6 and 7. Superintendent Lee Clark announces. Sponsors include, T. L. Hawkins, J. T. Fielder and George E. McWhirter.

Elongated residents of Hutchinson, Kas., after suffering bruised foreheads, have complained to city officials that awnings on the main streets are too low.

RIFLE CLUB TO SPONSOR SHOOT

A turkey shoot, wherein live turkeys whose heads are exposed as targets for expert gunners will be awarded as prizes, will be held on the Texas Tech campus Tuesday afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock. The Texas Tech Rifle club is sponsoring the event and proceeds will go to the treasury of the club to finance further undertakings.

"Every one is invited—every one is eligible," say the posters claiming the tournament. Rules for the contest hold that all shooting must be done with 22 sub-caliber rifles and ammunition furnished by the club; that duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties; and that the shooting will be done as directed by an attendant.

There will be five different events. The first will consist of shooting at the head of a live turkey whose body has been buried in a box leaving the head and neck exposed at a distance of 100 yards. Next will be the same shot, at a distance of 75 yards. Then a turkey target, picturing a life-size bird, will be exposed. If as many as eight out of ten shots strike the vital parts of the target, a live turkey will be given

BAIRD PLANS TO VOTE ROAD BONDS

BAIRD, Nov. 24 (AP)—Seeking relief for unemployment here, the Baird Chamber of Commerce has voted to petition the county commissioners' court to order an election at the earliest date possible on a $1,000,000 county-wide bond issue. The proposal was that $387,000 be used for the construction of lateral roads, $350,000 for construction of a hard-surface highway from Cross Plains to Baird, and $292,000 for retiring outstanding bonds in road districts one and four. If the issue carried, it was believed the lateral road money could be made available by February.

Two blind targets, with numbers hidden from the gunman, will constitute the final events. The last shot will be offered free of charge, with all others claiming fees.

Spur To Observe Thanksgiving Day

(By Staff Correspondent)
SPUR, Nov. 24—All Spur business houses will be closed Thanksgiving Day, D. L. Granberry, secretary of the chamber of commerce, announces. Local business houses unite in closing four holidays each year Mr. Granberry said. They are: Armistice Day, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas and Independence Day. Several years ago business men here adopted a resolution adhering to these dates and this has been the custom since, the secretary explained.

THE PLAINSMAN
Says:
That Girl on Broadway says there are no dues in matrimony; they're mostly "don'ts."

The wise woman keeps two servants—one coming and one going.

THE Plainman is downright sorry for Mrs. Joseph M. Schenck, Meyer Goldwyn and Mayer, William Fox, Cecile B. DeMille and the rest of the Irish immigrant boys who make the movies, haven't been in Lubbock the past two days to make a personal investigation of newspapermen. Perhaps an investigation in the 'type' presented on the flicker-films, as symbolical of the newspaperman, might be improved as a result.

Ever since Saturday at noon Lubbock has sheltered various and sundry managing editors of Texas newspapers—the shirt-sleeve news executives of the Lone Star state—and if there's anybody in town who recognized any of the visitors from the movie 'types' so dear to the heart of Hollywood, The Plainman is ready to do something for him in a big way. In other words, newspapermen in the movies and newspapermen in real life are altogether different.

A clear-eyed, intelligent, respectable group of young men has been holding the annual two-day business session of the Texas Managing Editors Association here during Sunday and today and police records fall to show any arrests on a charge of drunkenness, something which would prove terribly disappointing to the movie magicians could they be advised of it. Further, not a single one of the thirty visitors reeled in or out of any of the business sessions, none of them looked frowny, or in need of the attentions of a barber or a tailor. It may be hard for the public to believe, but the Associated Press men who have been viewing Lubbock for the first time have departed themselves as becoming gentlemen of the manner born.

THE Plainman is a veteran of conventions. Newspapermen have to be for they are called upon to attend many such gatherings in the role of reporter. And out of the score or more of different kinds of conventions this writer has attended the Texas Managing Editors association takes special attention to business than any of the rest.

Frankly, conventions are often marked by sores, alcohol and otherwise. Usually, there is little attention paid to business.
Perhaps The Plainman has been going to the wrong
kind of conventions but nevertheless he is ready to debate the issue with anyone, anywhere:
"Resolved, that in spite of the movies the newspaperman is as steady, as reliable and as gentlemanly as the average of any business or profession under the sun!"

THE Plainman looked over the managing editors grouped in business session here yesterday and those from those present 20 men with whom he is intimately acquainted. Of the twenty, four are total abstainers, seven others make what is called a "socialable drink" upon rare occasions, while the balance, like the majority of adult males of the times, "take a drink when I get ready." There was not a habitual drinker in the group. Can these figures be surpassed or exceeded by any similar group of representatives of the legal or medical profession, of the contracting or mercantile business?

The palaver about the "wet press," like the ludicrous presentation of the newspaper profession in a place especially poorly applied. It is The Plainman's opinion, based upon personal experience, that no larger member of newspapermen
are addicted to the use of alcohol, than the usual percentage of men in any line of work.

Pennsylvania Politics Are As Muddled As Ever, Is View Of Rodney Dutcher, Pinchot Now Makes Bid For Support

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—Those fascinating politics of Pennsylvania, which were all scrambled during the primary and election campaigns, are still scrambled.

The great Republican commonwealth of 9,000,000 population appears to be too large for any single group
under any control
and the election
have given it a system of bloc
government in which captains of industry
and finance, directors of political machines and various lesser groups and personages will play with the unique Governor Pinchot a game of trades and compromises.

Just as elated Democrats in Washington sought to reassure business by renouncing any policy of legislative instruction, Pinchot, almost defeated in the election because so many business men were afraid of his "radicalism," has been making overtures to Pennsylvania business asking it to have confidence in his personality. He is trying to get the idea over that he is not against business or big business as such.

Pinchot, a national figure largely because of his fight on the public utilities and his position as an outstanding Republican dry, is likely to dominate Pennsylvania legislation for the first couple of years if only because of his patronage power. After the good jobs are all filled he probably will have more trouble. In any event there is likely to be much compromising under his administration.

Many Powerful Blocs
The legislature has blocs representing the Vire, Atterbury, Philadelphia, the Allegheny county machine and the Mellons, the hard coal district, the railroad, labor, Joe Grundy with his many manufacturers, and others.

Presumably there will be different blocs on separate measures, since no faction can dominate Pennsylvania alone. Joe Grundy, although defeated in his senatorial primary campaign, occupies a favored position because he fought for Pinchot's election and even contributed $10,000. He and Pinchot probably will work together as long as they can and then Grundy is a hard-boiled reactionary and Pinchot a progressive, political individualist who never stays hitched.

One thing they both share is deep hatred for W. W. Atterbury, the Pennsylvania railroad and the Vire machine of Philadelphia, with which Atterbury is allied.

The skin is part of the body. It is supplied with blood and nerves just as every other organ is. It suffers from general disease of the body just as any other organ does.
It has peculiar diseases of its own just as any other organ has.

The next most important function of the skin is the heat regulation of the body. The important duty is performed by the skin and lungs. To accomplish it the skin needs fresh air and sunlight.

There are many self-made men who seem to have forgotten one last essential: polish.

In New York
With Swan
Gilbert Swan

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The flame looming largest at the moment on the Broadway skyline is that of Maxwell Anderson.

Anderson's latest play, "Elizabeth the Queen," which the Theater Guild is presenting, has been greeted with critical prophecies to the effect that it will be one of the few contemporary dramas likely to be heard from 20 years hence.
That's a long time in playdom's memory, if you asked me.

And if this be so, no playwright has been more patient or persevering in struggling toward his eventual achievement. Certainly few living writers have been more defiantly independent in their attitude toward the stage. He has insisted on keeping the poetic aspect in the face of all theatrical temptations to get the "quick money."

When I first encountered Anderson, he was writing editorials on a San Francisco newspaper. His opportunities for expression being thwarted, he chanced upon papers only to run afoul of similar dictations a few blocks away. In the end, he packed up and headed east.

For a time Anderson was associated with a poetry magazine, but no such berth was ever known to pay the rent. He went about through newspapers and magazines and then suddenly reappeared as co-author with Lawrence Stallings of "What Price Glory?" It was, as everyone knows, a great hit. Yet, somehow, the name of Anderson came attached to it, and Anderson appeared in the light of an albatross.

Anderson, meanwhile, had moved his family to a low-priced Bronx flat where they were all but doubling up to keep expenses down.
That's all changed now. He has an in Hollywood for his movie moments and a New York dwelling place.
But these came only through struggle.

From his Bronx window, Anderson gained the material for "Salvador's Children"—a splendid portrait of his kind, but not a commercial success. "Outside Looking In" added to his prestige, but only slightly to his pocketbook. "Gypsy" and another drama about the Sacco-Vanzetti case have brought him all variously a top letter, too ironic or poetic for the big box-office.

Now comes a public admission of his standing as one of the very better playwrights. The moral of the play is just as pressing as struggling young playwright wishes to make it.

And speaking of playwright, a note comes to hand announcing that Earl Carroll has invented some pre-gadgets by which necessary dialog may be sprinkled upon the actresses and chorines.

This Carroll device is showing up with some tricky delay. He is known chiefly as a producer who seems to be in jail-houses and courthouses for breach of good taste, yet his role as a theatrical technician and inventor may someday make the man-on-the-street recognize this other side of the man.

While all the Times looked around the fishing boats, high on the ground, one of them shouted loudly, "Look! One ship's still out at sea. The sails are all spread out really wide. Upon that ship I'd like to ride. If all the fishing boats are here, what can that big ship be?"

One of the fishermen then said,
"Towards that boat is going to head. It, too, is just a fishing smack. It's late in getting in. The pilot, if you lads are good, will let you ride. I know I would. When he arrives we'll ask him." Course this made the Times grin.

They watched the big boat swing around so's not to stick on solid ground. It picked a little channel that led right up to the shore. The Tinymites were thrilled to see that it was handled cleverly. "Ahoy!
Don't come ashore just yet." They heard we Clowny roar.

"We want to take a little trip upon your wondrous sailing ship."
"All right," one of the men cried back. "Row out. We'll do the rest! Be just as careful as can be, so you don't topple in the sea.
That isn't very much fun when in all your clothes you're dressed."

They reached the boat and had their ride. 'Twas fun just leaning over the side and watching waves so sailing by. In 'bout an hour they came ashore and drifted on their way once more. "Oh, thank you for that fun," the boatman heard the Times cry.

Back into town, they shortly found another sight, while looking around. A fair 'jockey' sat at work. The Times ran up near.
She short, heard brave Society ask, "Say, can we watch you at your task?" "Of course you can,"
the maid replied. "I'm very glad you're here."

(The Tinymites meet a shepherd in the next story.)

CHAPTER XXVII

Mrs. Malone finished checking over real estate accounts in the library of her home. Business was good. Recent speculations insured the comfortable security of Terry's future as well as her own. Soon, she could retire.

She looked up happily and started humming an old Irish tune which was connected with the picture that rose in her memory. Green hills and the broad waters of the Shannon river; the sails of boats while against the distant shore. The promised land to which all the Irish are going to return but somehow never do.

Mrs. Malone got up from her desk and walked across the room, then snuggled down comfortably in a big upholstered chair, picked up the evening paper and turned to the sporting page. The photograph of a boy, head down, knees high, a football tucked under his right arm, as if charging an imaginary Yale line, attracted her attention. Sitting there still she gazed long and lovingly at the picture, her eyes reluctant to look away; eyes that seemed like those of an excited girl. She read the accompanying paragraph a score of times with the surging of blood at the salient sentence: "Princeton's Yale eleven, against the undefeated Yale eleven. Local boy will lead strong Tiger team in the fifty-odd battle against ancient rival in Palmer Stadium next Saturday. Terry Malone is one of the outstanding players of the year."

A maid entered and placed a telegram at her elbow. Happily she reached out, picked it up and suspected it was from Terry. He never wrote letters any more, using telegrams that invariably ran for a considerable length. Her trembling fingers striped the edge of the yellow envelope.

"All set for the big game. Secured seat with Warwick family on fifty yard line. Going to have swell party in our rooms after game. This is the first really big game you've ever seen me play and I'm all excited."

"Burns and Sonny are here with me. They send regards. See you Saturday. Sonny says don't forget to carry a pennant so he'll know you at the game. Or a chrysanthemum. Or wear fur coat."

Love, Terry.

Mrs. Malone smiled, making a strange sound in her throat. Then she laughed outright, her eyes watering with the happiness of it all. Her eyes fell on a picture over the fireplace, that of a baseball player in an old-fashioned uniform of the New York Giants. The great Lefty Malone, the "Iron man of baseball."

What would her husband say if he knew! How tremendous it would be to go to the game with him. Again there were crows'-feet around her eyes. Her hair, frothed in the firelight, was streaked with grey.

She folded Terry's telegram and sat pressing the edges between her fingers thoughtfully spanning the last twenty-odd years of her life; recalling hard, restless days and getting their proportion and significance in the peace of her own home, far from the roar of the baseball crowds.

The hours in her castle of memory were flung open and she saw herself as a young girl on the day she met Lefty Malone. Coming out of a theater where Chauncey O'cott was billed, she passed a corner saloon. A swaying figure lurched through swinging doors and fell at her feet. She uttered a sharp cry when the drunken man grabbed her skirt. Out of the saloon came a big man, swift and determined. He pulled the drunken man away and grabbed her.

But the drunken man had his cohorts. They poured out of swinging doors—four of them—and rushing in all directions, landed on noses, eyes and bodies. In an amazingly short time the four allies were sprawled on the pavement with the mighty Lefty Malone, his clothes torn in shreds on his magnificent body, towering over them.

Remembering the wild animal beauty of her protector brought a whimsical smile to Mrs. Malone's face and her pulse quickened again as she recalled the admiration in his eyes. He was as tender as a child, escorting her through the gathering crowd to a waiting hack.

Inside the cab he proudly introduced himself.

"I'm Lefty Malone, lady. Iron Man of the New York Giants."

"Really?" She knew nothing of the Giants or of baseball, having just landed in the country from Ireland.

"Yep, I'm Lefty Malone and I like you. What's your name?"

The bold smile she had been everything. How she was supposed to go to a sister in Australia, how she roomed with an American girl in a French convent and her futile attempts to find her when she suddenly decided to come to America. How political differences of her father with English Government policies caused a break up of the family home in Ireland.

He was sympathetic, awed. And that was how it started.

Because she pitied the big giant with the heart of a brain of a boy, because she was bound to him by some maternal instinct which clashed with her better judgment, she saw more and more of him. His illiteracy and endless whining about the new manager, McGraw, just up from Baltimore, bored her to tears. Lefty Malone continually talked of jumping to the new American league with LaJole and that crowd if he didn't get a better deal with McGraw. Later, she learned that McGraw was a capable, intelligent manager and that Lefty would whine against managers and umpires as long as he played, he was the type.

But she found him very interesting on warm summer evenings when the moon glistened on the black waters of the Hudson river and she saw couples embraced in darkened corners of the river boat. She wanted Lefty Malone's strong arms around her, wanted to run fingers through his thick hair, to feel his lips on hers.

Many men, strong and spirited in the prime of life were ushered into the obscurity from whence they came by such minor injuries. So the mighty Lefty Malone went the way of all ball players. He lingered around for a while and was released.

Dreading to face the world in anything but the baseball uniform of the Giants, Lefty came home that heart-breaking day, kissed his wife good-bye, caressed his little son, Terry, emptied pockets of his last salary and then walked out of his happy home. Unable to comprehend his actions, Mrs. Malone stood in the door with Terry crying in her arms and watched what had once been the mighty Lefty Malone turn the corner to oblivion. She never saw or heard of him again.

From that day on she had only Terry. The veil of romance lifted and, faced with the immediate problem of making a living for the two of them, she looked at the world with the eyes of the undefeated.

She was prepared to twist some joy and happiness out of the tangled mess of life, to dance and laugh and sing with Terry to the song of life before they placed her in the ground.

She needed money—lots of it—and planned to direct the forces of nature to her advantage; of moulding circumstance and opportunity into dollars and cents.

It was a hard, nerve-racking job. She utilized all her vision and intelligence—and much she learned from the Jews. She moved to Philadelphia, went into real estate, in-

But she did not see the playful wrestling match in the dressing room after the game which resulted in one of the great tragedies of the game. Lefty tripped and fell against the edge of a bench, bruising his pitching arm. There were sad whistlings among the players.

But the same spirit carried her back over the road, although the journey was sometimes hard and painful.

The "easy come, easy go" of the baseball world fascinated her. A happy band of vagabonds they were, trooping around the country and ready to put up with anything, yet always complaining. They lived in a world of base-hits, errors and pennants. There were no yesterday, no tomorrow—nothing but the pennant race under way. Unlike the smart young men in the game today, they never saved their money or their bodies, unmindful of the fact that an injured arm, a twisted knee or broken hand might cut short what he promised to be a brilliant career on the diamond; something that Lefty Malone or his young wife never dreamed about on long summer afternoons when the Giants were in action. Out on the field, the center of all eyes, the butt of all jokes, was her plumed knight in the spangles of his beloved Giants. She never tired of watching him pitch. Every wind up, every movement at the plate, with Lefty swinging his broad shoulders, thrilled her. And she was there the afternoon that he pitched a double header against the famous Chicago Cubs and shut them out in both games.

But she did not see the playful wrestling match in the dressing room after the game which resulted in one of the great tragedies of the game. Lefty tripped and fell against the edge of a bench, bruising his pitching arm. There were sad whistlings among the players.

LINCOLN QUOTED IN INDIAN SESSION

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Abraham Lincoln was quoted at the opening session of the Indian roundtable conference today in support of the appeal of the Indian princess for a federated India.

The Maharajah of Bikaner, veteran soldier and ruler of his native state for 32 years, concluded an appeal for a unified, peaceful motherland of India with the remark:

"I would commend to you on the threshold of our great enterprise, which is the conquest of anarchy and reaction in Hindustan and the assurance of her contentment and prosperity as a co-equal partner in our great commonwealth, the words" vested a little here and a little there. She borrowed up to the hilt and she gambled.

None of the modern business woman about her. Dressed in latest fashion—she loved fine clothes—Mrs. Malone came silently, untransacted her business and left in a rustle of silk. The Jews liked her and exaggerated her wealth because of her confident manner, wit and easy charm. She was smart, clever and good-looking.

"Widow" Malone became an arresting figure in real estate circles. A born showman, she hired a chauffeur and steadily employed a big, rough Irish carpenter to do all repair work on her houses, taught him the fundamentals of the business and urged him on until, today, he is a wealthy contractor and builder. She placed signs everywhere; on vacant lots, houses, stores. More than one enterprising Jew suggested a partnership. "What, Cohen and Malone!" she would laugh. "No good could ever come of that."

Dancer-Bride Just Tired Of Husband

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 24 (AP)—The blonde, dancer-bride of Charles J. Flynn, 34-year-old World War veteran and Yuma, Ariz., rancher, whom he met and married after a four-day courtship during the recent American Legion convention in Boston, is safe in Mountain Grove, Mo., near here. She left Flynn, who thought she might have been kidnaped here Tuesday night when she disappeared, of her own accord, because she was "tired of him."

The bride, Marguerite B. Clark, professional dancer of Boston whose marriage to Flynn during the Legion convention attracted considerable attention there, made the assertion after being apprehended in Mountain Grove last midnight by a deputy sheriff. After the Legion convention the couple started hitch-hiking to Yuma, and Flynn's wife disappeared from a Springfield restaurant while he was out seeking hotel accommodations.

Government Deficit Showing Increase

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—The government's deficit on November 15 was $278,291,336, or $71,000,000 greater than last year.

Income tax collections the middle of next month and in March will wipe it out temporarily at least. Whether the treasury will finish the fiscal year in July with the deficit expected by President Hoover will depend on the March and June collections.

Treasury figures today also showed federal expenditures had increased $55,000,000 in the first four months of this fiscal year, as compared with the same period a year ago. From last July 1 to Oct. 31, $790,000,000 was spent.

At the close of business Saturday, the government had collected $1,075,181,988 since July 1 and had spent $1,353,473,345.

It's Football

(By Associated Press)
PHILADELPHIA—Bill Roper knows a method whereby young men brought up in ease and luxury may be taught to withstand jolts. It is football. The retiring Princeton coach in a Rotarian speech praised the game as worth all the time, effort and enthusiasm put into it.

Endorses Argotane

"My Son Was In A Very Run Down Condition—Argotane Proves To Be A Good System Builder"

Mr. J. S. Stowe, of 2417 S. First St., Abilene, Texas, makes the following statement regarding his son's health, and what Argotane did for him.

"My son has been in a very poor run down condition for several years. He has been bothered with stomach trouble and had to be very careful with what he ate or it would sour and he didn't take any interest in anything. He was gradually growing weaker and took all kinds of medicine and treatments but nothing seemed to do him any good. We realized that he needed a good tonic and strength builder but couldn't seem to find the right medicine for him."

"We read so many local statements in the newspaper about the benefits people had derived from Argotane and decided that he should try it. It seemed to be the right medicine for him he is in much better health now than he has been for years, his general health is improved greatly. He can eat most anything he wants to now and seems to be stronger and have more energy than he did. Argotane has proven to be a mighty good system builder and tonic in my son's case and it has helped him more, than anything else and, we both are glad to recommend it."

bership in the body.
First Visit Here
This is her first visit to Lubbock and she has two particular points to visit before she returns to her home in Bryan; one is the Texas Technological college, located here, the other is the far-famed caprock of West Texas. She expects to see each of these sometime this afternoon.

Did Most Everything
At first I did everything connected with publishing the paper and drove myself to work long, hard hours to avoid thought of my sorrow. Later I discovered that I did not have strength for so much, but then I was more reconciled," she said this morning.

Believes In Youth
Although she has no children, Mrs. Rountree is a believer in the youth of the nation. She thinks that they drink and smoke no more than their elders and she has little patience with those who complain of the behavior of the present generation. Since the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College is situated near Bryan, she has a personal contact with young people.

MRS. RAGSDALE IS
HERE FOR SESSION
After attending two sessions of the Texas Managing Editors' association, Mrs. Silas B. Ragdale, of Galveston, was anxious enough to attend another that she spent two days and two nights enroute.

BOYS' SESSION
PLANS ARE MOVING

ALL COMMITTEES FOR CONFERENCE THIS WEEK ACTIVE

Indicating that all committees and groups in charge of arrangements for the Northwest Texas Older Boys' conference, to be held here December 5, 6 and 7, are functioning well, reports from several committees were made public this morning through Grover C. Good, executive secretary of the state Y.
M. C. A. organization.

With T. A. White as chairman, the welcoming committee, charged with the duty of obtaining 30 automobiles and 80 boys as drivers to carry the visitors over the city, this morning reports that 15 cars have been secured through Grover C. Good,
executive secretary of the state Y.
M. C. A. organization.

Mr. Good, together with Jack Boyd, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., at Texas Tech, this morning appeared before the meeting of the Lubbock Ministerial association, explaining the coming conference and its work and enlisting the aid of the local churches. The two men also spoke before a gathering of some 400 boys at the high school shortly before noon.

MARRIAGE LAW
have four and five days.
Prevents Runaways
Mr. Hollis said that he personally knew of instances where the law had been effective in preventing hasty or runaway marriages. "I know of where many youthful marriages have been stopped," he said.
"In one instance a Fort Worth couple went to Oklahoma and got married. The mothers made them get married again in Texas."

"With my knowledge of what the law has done, I want to say this—that the law has already served its purpose in preventing of many irresponsible marriages."

The general public, once they come to know the provisions of the law, have given it their hearty approval.

The chief objectors that I know of are the disgruntled justices of the peace who used to marry a lot of couples and the so-called "marrying persons," who made money by performing hasty marriages," he added.

Check On Red Cross
Drive Unavailable
A complete report on the annual Red Cross roll call, staged in Lubbock Saturday, was not available today, according to officials of the local chapter, who stated this morning that a final cleanup would be made within the next few days and that a report probably would be revealed the latter part of the week.

George E. Benson, chairman of the roll call committee, is out of the city today and workers could give no accurate statement regarding funds which were received.

"We were very well pleased, however, with the response of local people," Mrs. S. C. Arnett, one of the workers, said today.

The roll call was made to raise funds for payment of dues of the local chapter, that the charter might be maintained in the national association.

Interest Is Revived
In Tahoka Kiwanis
TAHOKA, Nov. 24 (Special)— Interest in the local Kiwanis Club was revived when a recent meeting of the club was turned into an old-fashioned "experience" meeting at which each member confessed his misgivings as a member. As a result of the meeting, a drive for new members and the return of the "back-sliders" has been instituted by President Trust Smith. New officers of the club will be elected at an early date, and plans are to make every one of the thirty-five members either an officer or a committeeman in the organization.

RAIL HEAD DIES

here yesterday at the age of 117.

Captain John S. Drever

Captain John S. Drever

By NEA Service
LOS ANGELES.—Captain
John S. Drever, reigning monarch of a tiny tropical island, where wonderful natives anticipate his every whim and beautiful native dancing girls entertain him, is visiting the United States for the first time in eight years.

Captain Drever's palace is a structure of palm leaves. His kingdom is the island of Launayana, near the equator in mid-Pacific.
His subjects are 650 Polynesians, unpolluted by contact with civilization. And, "he said, his dancing girls would make Marc Antony throw stones at Cleopatra.

Eight years ago a Scotch schoolteacher, the island of Launayana, in command dropped anchor at the little island. Polynesian men, their teeth flashing in friendly smiles, and beautiful native girls, flowers twined in their jet-black hair, swam out to meet him.

When the trading vessel left, Captain Drever stayed behind to govern the island, the only white man to live there. The natives regard him as a great magician—a sort of demigod. He bosses the whole show—and it's a Garden of Eden production.

Captain Drever made it known on arriving here on the S. S. City of Los Angeles that his call is only a visit and that he's going back to his Pacific paradise.

The island, one of the Solomon Islands' group, is only 200 yards wide and five miles long.

Slaton Ginnings
Near 3,000 Bales
SLATON, Nov. 24.—The cotton ginning total for this season stood at 2,883 bales Saturday night for the five Slaton gins that are operating. This was a gain of 165 bales during the past week. Ginnings and farmers say the crop is 85 to 90 per cent gathered in this immediate section. The final total will exceed 3,000 bales, it is believed. Three gins in adjacent rural communities, Union, Posey, and McClung, are not included in these figures.

NIGHT and morning—and during the day, when you wish to freshen your face—you should follow this little program of cleansing:

With a towel or band, secure the hair firmly away from the face so that hairline and ears are completely exposed. Squeeze a piece of absorbent cotton out of cold water. Moisten with Skin Tonic and dip in Cleansing Cream. Cleanse from the chin upward paying special attention to either side of the nose and around the mouth and chin; work gently around the eyes. Do not overlook the neck. Remove Cleansing Cream with Cleansing Tissues carefully so as not to stretch the skin.

Squeeze a fresh pad of cotton out of cold water, saturate with Skin Tonic and commence patting on the neck. Pat from the center around to the back on either side. Then, from the chin upward to the forehead. Continue for five minutes, going over the same movements. Dry with Cleansing Tissues.

ARMY OFFICER IS ATTENDING PRESS SESSION IN CITY

Uncle Sam has gone into the public relations business in a big way. One of his public relations men, connected with G-2, has been in Lubbock the past two days, meeting people and selling to them the army service.

The army representative is Major Robert John Halpin, U. S. A., assistant chief of staff, Eighth corps area, Fort Sam Houston. He is the contact man between the corps general staff and the public, working through newspapers, civic and service organizations, former service groups and any and all organizations and groups that the government needs to keep in touch with.

In Public Relations "My department is the department of military intelligence of the army," Major Halpin said. "One of the functions of the military intelligence work under army regulations 600-700, is that of public relations."

"My duty is to make available to the Associated Press, the International News Service and other press associations, the daily newspapers and other newspapers, army news. This includes such as the transfer of army officers, a list of officers attending and graduating at the several schools such as Baker's Field and Kelly Field, army maneuvers,

PLAY CHECKERS

Trophy To Be Given Winner In Fair Tourney

HARLINGEN, Nov. 24 (SP)—The best checker player at the Valley Midwinter fair here, Nov. 22-30 will receive a silver loving cup, won last year by J. B. James.

James will be in charge of the arrangements. A cash prize will be awarded the runner-up. More than 20 communities national guard maneuvers and movements, the organized reserve, etc.

Give Army News "We also keep in touch with chambers of commerce, Rotary clubs, Kiwanis clubs and other service clubs, Spanish-American war organizations, American Legion and other former service groups. We give them first hand army news."

Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and a part of Wyoming, are included in the Eighth Corps area. Major General Edwin B. Winan, at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, is the commanding officer.

Associated in the work is the regular army, the national guards of the several states, the Reserve Officers Training corps and the Citizens Military Training corps.

LUBBOCK SECOND IN VISITORS AT CARLSBAD CAVERN

Lubbock this year has sent 3,000 people to Carlsbad, N. M., to go through the famous Carlsbad Caverns, Colonel Thomas L. Boles, superintendent of the national park there, who was here to attend the Texas Managing Editors association convention, declared.

"We have handled through the caverns so far this year more than 88,000 people," Colonel Boles stated. "More of them came from Texas than any other state in the union."

El Paso furnished the largest number of any one city, 5,000. Lubbock was next with 3,000 people. Contract for the elevators will be let this week at San Francisco. The shaft will go from the hill a half mile southwest of the present entrance, Colonel Boles explained, down into the big room. It will be 750 feet from the surface of the hill to the bottom of the room.

The work will be completed in time for the rush to the caverns next spring. Only one elevator is to be installed at this time but the shaft will be large enough for two cars and the second one can be easily installed.

Pent House Towers On top of the hill will be the pent house, where the machinery for the elevators will be housed. It will be 40 feet above the ground, or about three stories high, Colonel Boles said.

"We had hoped to have 100,000 people go through the caverns this year, but we will not quite make it," Colonel Boles added. "I believe we will have about 92,000 people to visit the caverns. We are now having around 100 people a day."

are expected to send exhibits to the fair and the outstanding ones will be included in the Valley display at the 1933 World's Fair in Chicago.

Rev. Haymes Gives First Sermon Here

Rev. J. O. Haymes preached his introductory sermon to Lubbock congregations yesterday at the First Methodist church. The subject for the morning service was "The Preacher's Main Theme," and for the evening hour, "Rev. Haymes brought a Thanksgiving message on the theme "Where Are The Nine?" The ingratitude of people for the necessities of every day life was spoken of, and the minister stated that residents of this section of the country should be unusually grateful with conditions so distressing in many places.

"We forget to thank our doctors, our farmers, our mothers, in short every one who contributes to our welfare," Rev. Haymes said, "and a greater tragedy we forget to thank our Heavenly Father who makes everything possible."

Both services were well attended.

FLOYDADA TO CELEBRATE

FLOYDADA, Nov. 24—(Special)—Plans are under way by local business men for the lighting with colored electric lights of the downtown section of Floydada, S. W. Ross secretary of the chamber of commerce, announced. The lights will be used for decorations during the Christmas period.

SELL HOBBS BUSINESS

HOBBS, N. M., Nov. 24—(Special)—J. R. Stewart, owner of feed store here and handling both retail and wholesale lines, has sold his business to E. L. Russell of Breckenridge, Texas. Mr. Russell takes charge about the first of December.

TEXAS COLLEGE IS TO CLOSE

BURLESON COLLEGE TO CLOSE, DECEMBER 5 DUE TO FINANCES

(By The Associated Press) GREENVILLE, Nov. 24—On account of financial straits, the Burleson college, established here in 1895 and one of the oldest Baptist educational institutions in Texas, will close at the end of the current term December 5, members of the board of trustees have announced.

The board met Saturday night with the Revs. W. H. McKenzie of Waxahachie and J. A. Ellis of Sherman, members of a committee recently appointed by the Baptist general convention of Texas to work out a policy for the school.

A resolution adopted follows: "Believing it to be financially impossible to operate the school, it is the sense of this board that Burleson college should be closed Dec. 5."

The executive board of the Baptist general convention will be asked to take the necessary steps to co-operate with the trustees to that end.

The Revs. W. E. B. Lockridge of Terrell, S. W. Reaves of Greenville and O. C. Payne of Dallas were appointed to communicate the decision to the state board.

Dr. E. W. Provence, president of the institution, is in a Houston hospital recovering from a nervous breakdown, said to have been superinduced by worries over the college's financial problems. He was the object of a state-wide search a few weeks ago, when he disappeared while on a visit to Dallas. He was found at Crockett and said he had no recollection of his movements in the interim.

HAS SOME TASK

Roosters' Owner Must Find Way To Muffle Crowing

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 24 (AP)—Vive-Chance! Fred doesn't know how to keep roosters from sounding off but he expects John Webster to find out.

The chancery court granted an injunction against Webster yesterday on the complaint of a neighbor that the roosters had kept him awake and made an invalid of him. The vice-chancellor instructed Webster to muffle them between the hours of 10 p. m. and 7:30 a. m.

"How will I keep the roosters quiet?" asked Webster. "I don't know," Mr. Fallon replied. "That is up to you."

Another Bar Aside In School-Squabble

NEW HOBBS, Nov. 24 (Special)—Another bar to the progress of the New Hobbs schools was cast aside in a district court at Roswell by Judge Granville A. Richardson when he dissolved an injunction sought by C. R. Dancer, a Hobbs contractor, against the New Hobbs school board and J. L. Scott, contractor.

Dancer brought the suit after his contract to erect 11 temporary buildings for the New Hobbs district children had been set aside. It had been decided to erect a gymnasium and auditorium and also the 11 temporary buildings.

Work was stopped pending hearing of the case after a temporary injunction had been secured. Members of the board are C. C. Emerson, C. R. McNeill, A. C. Chesher and J. B. McCain.

AMHERST MAN DIES

AMHERST, Nov. 24—(Special)—Charlie Wright, 26, a former sailor in the U. S. Navy, died at the home of his wife's father here following a long siege of tuberculosis. Born at Marlin, Texas in 1904 he moved to Hall county in 1914, to Hale county in 1915 and to Amherst in 1928. He served three years in the navy and was honorably discharged in 1926. In that year he married Ruby Atkinson. Death occurred at the home of W. M. Atkinson. His widow, an 8 months old daughter, four sisters and five brothers and his aged parents survive.

MOVES TO LUBBOCK

HALE CENTER, Nov. 24. (Special)—W. I. Cumble, who has lived here for the past year, is moving to Lubbock where he and Mrs. Cumble and a daughter Pauline will live.

LORE SUCCESSFUL
 Nature Remedy Is Cure For Spider Bite
 SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 24. (AP)—The bush lore of an elderly aboriginal woman, whom his parents employed as cook, saved the life of 20 months old Jimmy Bowcott, here.
 The baby was playing near a clump of blackberry bushes when a deadly trapdoor spider bit him, injecting its poison into his foot and clinging there till it was killed. The black cook cut a piece off his foot, rubbed in some tribal herbs, and when the doctor arrived expecting to find the child either dead or beyond aid, he found the bush lore of the native woman had been successful.

Klondyke School Stages Poultry Play
 LAMESA, Nov. 24—(Special)—Poultry interest in Dawson county was demonstrated forcibly recently, in a poultry play and program put on in the auditorium of the new $21,000 school building in the Klondyke community, southwest of Lamesa. Several hundred poultry raisers and their families attended the four act comedy, entitled "The Lay of the Hen," which in a humorous manner emphasized the principal points of successful poultry husbandry.
 The play and entertainment was given under the supervision of W. W. Evans, county agricultural agent, and Miss Roselle McKinney, county home demonstration agent.

NEW RESIDENT
 Porcupine Shows Up In Cochran County
 MORTON, Nov. 24—(Special)—Cochran county has a new kind of resident in the person of a porcupine, captured by Lon Mullinax at his farm five miles northwest of town.
 Lon's dogs first found Mr. Porcupine and being "marines" started to treat him rough. When their jaws were filled with quills, they laid off, but kept up a racket until Lon showed up.
 After roping the animal and then tying his feet with wire, Mr. Mullinax succeeded in bringing him to town. He was left at the Morton Produce company plant here.
 The animal is a vegetarian according to Jack Jones, plant manager and trainer of the new resident.
 Tennessee's five-cent gasoline tax yielded the state a total of $1,504,502.35 in October.
