PARADE, RODEO IN SPOTLIGHT

O'Daniel Argues For Sales Tax Proposal

FIESTA HORSE

A $20 cowpony that can do $20,000 worth of tricks might be a description of "Dago," Shoenail ranch horse, trained by W. J. (Wink) Adams. This horse will be exhibited in the rodeo performance of the Top O' Texas Fiesta at Recreation park Tuesday and Wednesday, and will be in the parade Tuesday morning.

Dozen Injured As Police And Pickets Clash

FLINT, Mich., June 12 (AP)—A dozen persons were injured, three seriously, in a clash between police and pickets of the United Auto Workers (AFL) at Saginaw this morning as automobile workers sought a show-down in their inter-union fight for recognition as bargaining agent for General Motors employees. Six men were arrested.

In Flint, where the entire police force was mobilized in anticipation of disorder, there was no violence. All plants here as well as in the Grey Iron Foundry unit at Saginaw began operations today, despite a strike call of the AFL-affiliated union.

Workers at Saginaw were escorted into the plant by a detail of police men.

A spokesman for General Motors said today the union apparently had concentrated on Chevrolet plant No. 5, and Fisher Body No. 1, at Flint. The latter is a key unit in Buick assembly. The corporation representative said there was no immediate indication operations would have to be halted.

Chevrolet No. 5 was operating with about half of its regular day force of 400 men. Tals plant makes valves and crank cases. Although small it is vital in Chevrolet assembly, a corporation spokesman said.

Fisher No. 1 supplies bodies for Buick.

The Saginaw clash started, police said, when Police Lt. Fred Bosman struck over the head by a picket armed with a club. The police then dispersed the pickets, approximately 200 strong, and cleared the way for the maintenance crew to enter the plant. By the time the full day shift was due the pickets had scattered.

Luncheon Set For Tuesday Noon At Schneider Hotel

A Top O' Texas Press luncheon in reverse English will be held for visiting newspaper and radio men at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday noon in the Schneider hotel.

There will be no speeches. The luncheon has been arranged to give the visiting newspaper and radio men an opportunity to get together in one spot and to relax after the big Fiesta parade and before beginning the round of afternoon activities.

At the luncheon as special guests will be Miss Nellie Walker, Hollywood stunt girl; George Windy Hayes, star of the Western films; Walter Mattux, Hollywood agent, and other notables.

Derby Entrants Asked To Meet Before Parade

All boys who plan to take part in the Soap Box Derby division of the big Fiesta parade tomorrow are urged to meet at 10 o'clock in the morning on the vacant lot just west of the American Legion hall on West Foster street.

Boys are asked to bring their cars with them. The cars need not be completely finished. Just as long as they are finished to the stage where they can be wheeled, they may be entered in the parade.

Girl Riders Must Be Ready At 10 Tomorrow Morning

Cowgirls who will be in the "Royal Pageant of Flags" in the Top O' Texas Fiesta parade are to report at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at the parade starting point, the intersection of Hobart and West Foster. It was announced today by F. O. Gurler.

Girls whose horses are stabled at Recreation park will not need to make a trip to the park to secure their mounts, as the horses will be on hand at the parade formation point, Mr. Gurler said.

Small Asks Pension Law Be Suspended

Persons To Wear Costumes Wanted

An appeal of Pampans to volunteer to wear costumes in the Fiesta parade was made today by Wayne Phelps, chairman of the Top O' Texas parade committee.

Mr. Phelps urged that the parade be held on Tuesday night, and that the requested number of Pampans volunteer for this service. Mr. Phelps said. Persons can secure costumes at once.

5 Drown And 4 Killed On Texas Roads

At least five persons drowned in Texas during the week-end and four were killed in highway accidents. Another died beneath a train. Three of the drownings were in swimming pools yesterday.

J. P. Hargrove Jr., 14, high school student who could not swim, was found lying at the bottom of the Forest Park pool at Fort Worth.

A party of swimmers missed James Franklin Brandenburg, 18, and his body was found in the pool at Vickery Park, Dallas county, Victor Gordon, 13, died in a Wichita Falls pool.

A wading party ended with death for Ray Jones near Rusk. All of the boys in the party were 14 years old or younger and none could swim. Jones and two other boys stepped into deep water in a lake. Albert Bagley, 14, rescued two of the boys by reaching a pole to them.

The bodies of Ernest Gray, 25, and Milton Blue, 23, both of Lufkin, were found beside their wrecked motorcycle in a ditch at a curve on the highway near Palestine. They had been missing since Saturday night.

Franklin Blackburn of Dallas was killed in an automobile-truck collision near Ben Wheeler. Van Zandt county. A truck driver was jailed at Canton.

Frank Smith, about 65, was killed by an automobile on the outskirts of Houston. The driver said he did not see Smith.

Late News

AUSTIN, June 12 (AP)—Hopes for an adjournment of the legislature this week were virtually crushed by a house action today. By 88 to 60, the house refused even to set Tuesday of next week as the date for the end of the longest Texas legislative session on record. This was the session's 154th day, members having worked on half pay since May 9.

By the ROVING REPORTER. All's set for the Top O' Texas Fiesta party for veteran drillers and tooldressers at Cliff Chambers' wrestling arena tomorrow night, and now there's nothing for them to do but go to the affair, which will feature Dutch lunch "with plenty of Dutch."

DEATH THWARTS AGED PIONEER'S PLAN TO ATTEND FIESTA HERE

Above is a picture of John Austin Paris, taken on his 90th birthday. Mr. Paris died yesterday morning at the age of 92 years. He came to the Panhandle in 1887 and has been a resident since that time. For the past 35 years he had made his home with Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Shackleton and during the past eight years he has been a worker and booster of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce old timer celebrations. The cake shown above was baked by Austin Hughes, a favorite grandson who always baked a cake for Mr. Paris on his birthday.

Death Takes Another Pioneer, J. A. Paris

John Austin Paris, one of Gray county's oldest residents, died at 3:35 o'clock Sunday morning in a local hospital. He was in his 92nd year. Mr. Paris first came to the Panhandle in 1887 and two years later moved with his family to a ranch near Laketon.

Mr. Paris was taken to the hospital last week but he told his physician and relatives that he wouldn't stay long because he had to get out and make plans for the Top O' Texas Fiesta which will begin tomorrow. "If you don't let me out in time for the Fiesta I'll get my cane and walk out," Mr. Paris told his physician. "I'm going to be the first to register for the 89er celebration."

Mr. Paris died at 3:35 o'clock Sunday afternoon. He was taken to the hospital Friday after a heart attack. He protested that he didn't want to go to the hospital, saying that he was not particularly ill, but finally agreed to go, warning his descendants that he would be "out in three days to help put on that Fiesta." Mr. Paris was usually first to register in the old-timers' roundups. Before he went to the hospital he urged his relatives to "go ahead and enjoy the Fiesta as if I were not sick." He told them to carry on with the plans they'd made.

At his bedside when he died were Mrs. E. A. Shackleton, a daughter, and Mr. E. A. Shackleton, a son. See DEATH, Page 3.

Byron Nelson Wins Golf Title

PHILADELPHIA, June 12 (AP)—Byron Nelson today won the 43rd National open golf championship by shooting a 70 to Craig Wood's 72 in their second 18-hole playoff at the Philadelphia country club.

The slim former Texan, now playing out of Reading, Pa., and shortly to take a new job at Toledo, Ohio, took the lead for good at the third hole with a birdie 3, doubled it to a four-shot advantage with an eagle 2 on the 453-yard fourth, where he rolled in a No. 2 iron shot from 200 yards out, and was out front by three strokes when he hit the turn in 33, one under par.

He started back badly, with three bogeys on the first four holes, but since Wood also went over par on three of them, Nelson lost only one stroke of his advantage. He went four ahead again with a par to Wood's 5 on the 14th, both played the next two in par, and then Wood made a final gallant try with a birdie 3 on the 17th.

Trained Cowboy Pony To Do His Tricks At Rodeo

Top O' Texas Fiesta committees were rushing final preparations today for the celebration which will open formally at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, when speeches are to be delivered from the marquee of the LaNora theater. Arrangements for the opening program are in charge of J. M. Collins and Garnet Reeves.

Carl Benefiel, general chairman, said plans of all committees were nearly completed.

Stock for the rodeos to be held at Recreation park started arriving in Pampa Sunday, when Lynn Beutler shipped in two-truckloads of broncs, and George (Windy) Hayes were enroute to the fiesta. These three will be featured in the presentation of a Hollywood premiere at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night at the LaNora theater, when the Republic picture "Man of Conquest," the story of Sam Houston and of the founding of Texas will be shown.

Third Week Jurors Dismissed For Term

Repeating the procedure of last week, the third week of the May term of 31st district court started today with no jury cases called for trial and the consequential dismissal of the petit jury panel. Half of the panel of 40 jurors from District Judge W. R. Ewing opened court at 10:15 o'clock this morning.

Judge Ewing said no cases had been set for trial today and that he knew of no cases set during this week.

Members of the grand jury reconvened today.

Only one new case had been filed today in 31st district court, that of United Employers Casualty company vs. Dewey Manry. Plaintiff asks setting aside of an Industrial Accident Board award of May 23, 1938, whereby Manry, who had been employed by the Rogers Rig & Equipment company was to receive compensation at a rate of $20 a week for an indefinite period, not to exceed 401 weeks.

Shamrock Pair Held On Robbery Charge

Ruby Guyton, 18-year-old Shamrock woman, was still being held in Gray county jail today, following the arrest of Mrs. Guyton and her husband, Eldon Guyton, in Shamrock Saturday.

The couple has been charged in a complaint filed Saturday in justice of the peace court at Wheeler with robbery with firearms, following the hi-jacking of a feed store bookkeeper and the taking of $25.

District Attorney Clifford Bray obtained statements from both the man and woman here Saturday. The man is being held in jail at Wheeler.

The case will be heard in 31st district court at Wheeler during the next term, which starts in September.

Band To Assemble At 9:15 A. M. Tuesday

Members of the combined Harvester-Reaper band which will play at the official opening of the Top O' Texas Fiesta at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in front of the LaNora theater, will assemble at 9:15 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Lamar school building on the high school campus.

The band will be in its place in front of the theater at 9:45 o'clock, 15 minutes before the opening program starts. Members of the band are to wear cowboy garb. A. C. Cox, director said.

Band To Meet At 9:30

Members of Woodrow Wilson school band are requested to meet at the school at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. They are also requested to be dressed in their full parade uniforms and to have their instruments with them.

Marriage Of Miss Claxton And Claude Heiskell Announced Here

Mrs. R. H. Estes has announced the marriage of her daughter, Miss Hazel Madena Claxton, to Claude A. Heiskell, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Heiskell, long-time residents of this city. The ceremony was solemnized at Sayre, Oklahoma, on May 4 with the Rev. H. A. Erdmann officiating.

The bride was attractively dressed in an old rose dress trimmed in British tan with matching accessories.

Accompanying the couple were Mrs. Melvin W. Lewis of Pampa, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. John L. Pingleton, Jr. of Shamrock, Lee Goodard, and Mrs. H. A. Erdmann.

Mrs. Heiskell attended Pampa High school where she was a member of the girls' glee club, pep squad, volleyball team and student council. She was chosen the most beautiful girl in the class in her sophomore year.

Mr. Heiskell also attended Pampa High school where he played football, was captain of the basketball team, a member of the track team, and student council. He played professional baseball earlier this summer. He is employed by his father who is a water well contractor.

The couple will be at home in Pampa.

MITCHELL'S

DOING LITTLE THINGS WON HER BIG SUCCESS

Here's Scharmel Elliott, attractive young designer, at her work table with several of her collection of 30 dolls, dressed in authentic American costumes from 1492 to 1939.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The tale of Scharmel Elliott's success is a success story in reverse.

Miss Elliott, designer of clothes, started out "doing" big things, but reached the peak in an interesting career through her skill in "doing" little ones. From being a straight fashion designer of clothes for women she has become one of America's outstanding designers of dolls' clothes.

Her exhibition of thirty dolls, made in New York, depicting a panorama of American civilization as it is expressed in the evolution of American fashion, is on display in one of New York's largest department stores. And other stores throughout the country are eagerly awaiting their chance to show the exhibit in their toy and fashion departments.

"Teacher probably told you that history can be traced through the kind of clothes that people wear at different times," Miss Elliott says. "Study the clothes of a certain period and you will be able to tell fairly accurately the kind of lives people led—whether they were prosperous, whether they had time to make and wear elaborate clothing, or whether they were pioneering and wearing simple clothes, conserving their time and money for working and building."

Number One doll in Miss Elliott's collection is dressed in the garb of an American Indian. Next is a replica of a dress worn by a Spanish-American woman in 1665, the date S. Augustine, Fla. was settled. This is another Indian costume, and it shows clearly how much more colorfully the Indians dressed after white men had been here a few years.

"I call the thirtieth doll in the collection Miss Early 1939," Miss Elliott went on. In her costume is reflected the fact that Spain has been so much in the news. She wears a colorful, gypsy skirt and a full blouse with long, full sleeves.

"If I had been doing two 1939ers, I would have dressed one in frothy lace to show that women are more interested in genuinely feminine pursuits now than they were a few years ago when any woman with a job was inevitably known as a career woman."

The 24-year-old, dark-haired, dark-eyed Scharmel Elliott goes about designing a costume for a doll in the customary manner of the majority of designers. After a wealth of research, she makes a sketch, then, from the sketch, cuts a paper pattern to fit the doll. The pattern goes to a professional cutter, who cuts the costume from the material Miss Elliott has selected.

Miss Martin Becomes Bride Of E. E. Shelhamer Sunday Afternoon

Miss Lois Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Martin of Ralls, became the bride of E. E. Shelhamer, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Shelhamer of Winfield, Kansas, in an impressive ceremony Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist church.

The Rev. W. M. Pearce, minister of the church, officiated at the service which was read before an altar decorated with vases of peonies, wardwardia fern, Kentia palms, and tall candelabra.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Josephine Lane played "Oh Promise Me" and "India's Love Call" at the organ, after which she accompanied Mrs. R. M. Klingner who sang "Because." As the bridal party entered Miss Lane played Lohengrin's Wedding March and following the service she played the wedding march from Mendelssohn. As the vows were read, "I Love You Truly" was softly played.

The bride was attractive in a gown of white silk organza over tulle with a Peter Pan collar, jet o' nutton sleeves, and yoke of white daisies on net edged with lace. White daisies trimmed the skirt and train also. Her fingertip veil was held with a coronet of lilies of the valley and orange blossoms. She carried a white leather prayer book topped with an orchid from which showers of white ribbons and lilies of the valley fell.

Attending Miss Martin were Miss Ann Johnson, maid of honor, and Mrs. Fred Thompson, matron of honor, who were matching dresses of pink net over taffeta with short puffed sleeves and full hooped skirts. They carried nosegay bouquets of pink peonies. Helen Kay Wilson, who was dressed in pink net also, was flower girl.

Mr. Shelhamer was attended by his brother, Robert Shelhamer of Ponca City and Dr. H. E. Howard, Ushers were J. I. Myers and R. W. Sidwell.

Following the ceremony a reception was given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thompson. Decorating the rooms were arrangements of large white peonies. The lace-covered table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake topped with a silver wedding bell tied with a bow of tulle on a reflector encircled in a lei of white carnations. Mrs. Bob Curry and Miss Johnnie Hodge presided.

Out of town guests were Mrs. J. M. Butner of Ralls, Bill Busch and Joe Arnold of Winfield, Kansas, Mr. W. P. Shelhamer of Winfield, Kansas, Mrs. Robert Shelhamer and son, Don, of Ponca City, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Martin of Ralls, Miss Leta Fern Martin of Abilene, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Powell and son, Dan, of Paducah, and Miss Lois Stiners of Ralls.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Colorado and Winfield, Kans. The bride's going-away costume was a beige wool suit with a Japanese tan chiffon blouse and japonica accessories. Her corsage was of tall-mam roses. They will return to Pampa where they will be at home at the Murphy apartments.

Mrs. Shelhamer is employed at the Gump-Hinerman Tire company and Mr. Shelhamer is connected with the Murray Tool Supply company.

Mrs. Simpson Of Canadian Was First Bride In Texas Panhandle

The Panhandle's very first bride who said the marriage vows with a young buffalo hunter at Old Fort Elliott back in 1877 still resides on the plains.

She is Mrs. Sylvania Simpson, now 79, widow of George Simpson, and she lives today in Canadian, the thriving community and town around which centers much of the Panhandle's interesting history.

It was on an October day 62 years ago that Mrs. Simpson, then Miss Sylvania Woods, stood in the officer's quarters at the old fort and became the bride of young Mr. Simpson. The marriage was performed by a U. S. Army Adjutant. Her husband died two years ago in Canadian.

And, just because it follows naturally after the first wedding, the Panhandle's first honeymoon couple started out the following day, October 5, 1877, on a wagon honeymoon to another Texas county several hundred miles away.

Mrs. Simpson came to the Panhandle country before Fort Elliott was built. She was a girl of 16 when she arrived in the area, with her parents early in 1875. Her romance with Mr. Simpson was one of the girl who fell in love with the dashing young buffalo hunter employed by her father.

The Woods' outfit of buffalo hunters was from Colorado and it was in 1874 that they first set out on the hazardous journey toward the Panhandle where they had heard of the depredations by the Indians.

But back to the adventures of the Woods family in the early days in the Panhandle. After they moved down onto Sand Creek, they had an exciting encounter with the Indians. The men were all out buffalo hunting when Mrs. Woods and the children noticed that Indians were coming up on each side of them. So Mrs. Woods and her group started out to look for the men. Finally they got within hailing distance of a wagon, and mother got up on a high place and waved her black shawl to attract their attention. The men came, and Cook (the man whom they had found wandering about the day they arrived at Adobe Walls) went back to the camp to see what harm the Indians had done, and if they were still there. On the way he met two soldiers who were looking out for the hunters and protecting them from the Indians. They were afraid to try to drive the Indians away, and they were making no headway. So the soldiers advised Mrs. Woods and her family to return to camp and feed the Indians. This was done. A huge fire was built and the family huddled around the fire. They were circled in by the Indians who were waiting.

"The soldiers have told my mother to feed the chief, but she couldn't tell which was the chief, as they all looked alike. So we cooked up every bit of our provisions and handed the food out to all of the Indians as they came up. The soldiers advised us to go to Fort Elliott. We slipped away and went up near where the present town of Canadian is located. It was on Red Deer creek that we camped. Father and the other men went out and killed about 20 buffalo. Soon the Indians followed us and took all the buffaloes away and ate them.

After this the Woods headed for Gageby Creek, and settled at the head of that small stream. George Simpson, who had been with the Woods' outfit for some time, left and went down on the Washita and settled on land a short distance from that of Woods. Shortly after they settled there, Woods plowed up a little land and went to Fort Elliott for seed and planted his little patch of tilled soil.

"The buffalo weren't so plentiful on Gageby. But I have seen the present townsite of Gageby positively black with buffalo. There were lots of them across the river, too. We stayed on the Gageby two years."

It was while they were living on Gageby Creek that Sylvania, the 17-year-old daughter of the Woods, married George Simpson. The day after the wedding the bride and groom and the Woods family left for Kimble County. They did not like that part of the country, and stayed there only a year. Many of their cattle died of fever. Two little buffalo calves which they had taken to Kimble county died during the epidemic of fever. Their horses were stolen by the Indians and driven into New Mexico and they were never able to recover them. At one time they were close enough to make the Indians abandon camp, leaving the meat of a newly-cooked calf in their hasty departure. But the Indians escaped. Finding little in this new home to like, the Simpsons and the Woods went up to Coleman county and stayed there almost a year before returning to the Panhandle.

On the way back to the Panhandle the group made camp at Hackberry Creek. It was cold and raining. In one of the wagons at the camp a son was born in the younger Woods family.

Finally they arrived in the Panhandle and settled on claims. The elder Mr. Woods took up a claim on the site of the present town of Mobeetie. The Simpsons went a bit farther up and took up a claim about three miles from Old Mobeetie. No house had been built, and they were living in their wagon when one of the Panhandle's famous March blizzards struck. It was a terrific storm and they were snowbound in the wagon for three days. At the end of that time Mr. Simpson crawled out and dug a little cave to live in until the storm abated.

The Simpsons stayed on their claim for three years. Then they and the Woods came up on the Washita and took up a claim. Still later they went into Oklahoma and settled on some land below Oklahoma City. They didn't like it there, so they came back to the Panhandle. The Simpsons settled on Cedar Creek above the present Studer ranch and stayed there for 20 years. Then they bought a place on the Canadian River just below the bridge. There was lots on hay on the land. They stayed there for three years, and they went to New Mexico, only to find that they did not like it there either. They returned to Canadian and bought a place on Clear Creek. Later on they moved into the town of Canadian.

Mrs. Simpson has very few effects of her pioneer days left. Their rarest possession, the first wedding license issued in the Panhandle, is on display at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum at Canyon.

Queen Assists FDR's Mother Down Aisle

By FRANK H. KING.

BOARD THE ROYALTY PILOT TRAIN, June 12 (AP)—Relaxed after a quiet visit at Hyde Park, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth returned today to their Dominion of Canada, whence they will sail for England Thursday night.

The British rulers, who in three weeks in Canada and four days in the United States were seen by probably 5,000,000 persons in each country, came to the end of their journey still smiling.

They were more at ease and apparently enjoyed themselves more thoroughly during the informal week-end visit with President and Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park than at any time during their tour of more than 7,000 miles.

Lunching on picnic plates, they drank beer; rode in an old automobile, with the President driving, through the beautiful Hudson valley, and attended a country church.

The preacher—a bishop—went home to a meal with them, and in the afternoon the king and the Queen went swimming together in the new pool on the Roosevelt estate. The wives and "Ma"—Mrs. Roosevelt's affectionate name for the President's mother—just visited.

Queen Assists "Ma."

Queen Elizabeth had walked up the aisle of St. James Parish church gently assisting the 84-year-old mother of the President.

For the select 200 who were admitted to the church because they have attended regularly, this unexpected touch helped relieve the awe occasioned by the sight of a sovereign of the world's greatest empire and the President of the United States seated on the front pew.

Bishop Henry St. George Tucker, head of the Episcopal church in the United States, broke the ice completely by looking over the crowd and observing, "one sees what happens when our parishioners bring their guests to church. If anyone would do this, our church would be filled every Sunday."

After a day crowded with friendly contacts, the Roosevelts took their royal guests down to the little railroad station at Hyde Park, and with handclaps and waves of good-bye sent them off to Canada again. A throng at the depot sang "Auld Lang Syne" as the train pulled out with George and Elizabeth waving from the rear platform.

The special train stopped for 20 minutes at Rensselaer, near Albany, late Sunday night, but the king and queen evidently had retired, and were not seen by knots of people who stood in the rain.

To Sail Thursday.

Crossing the international boundary on a 5 a. m. (CST) schedule, at Rouses Point, N. Y., the train headed for "the Maritimes," as the eastern seaboard of Canada is known to its residents.

The king and queen will sail from Halifax Thursday, arriving in London June 22 to complete a mission already under discussion throughout the world in its effect as a unifying influence in the British empire and because of implications and possibilities regarding Anglo-American relations.

Already there have been reports the king issued a "pressing" invitation to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt to visit England, but American and British officials said this was without foundation.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—Rallying amid a lull, the stock market today, and leading issues stepped down to more than a point.

Recovery proponents derived a grain of comfort from the fact selling was exceptionally light throughout.

Some observers felt the list was entitled to a breathing spell after last week's rising performance and profit taking in recent gains was inspired partly by this thought.

Union labor troubles, confronting the General Motors plants in Michigan were hardly conducive to bullishness, but hope was expressed a settlement would be reached soon.

Bonds and commodities inclined to give ground.

Prominent shares in the offside drift included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Safeway Stores, Douglas Aircraft, American Smelting, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Johnsonville, Philip Morris, U. S. Gypsum, Santa Fe and Great Northern.

Among the few resistant issues were Pan-American Airways, Gohel, Philadelphia Reading, U. S. Iron and International Harvester.

Mainly About People

Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Bove of Carthage, Tenn., are visiting in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Wilson Hatcher and Mr. Hatcher. They were accompanied by a son, Charles, and Miss Mary Martin of Carthage.

Mrs. Lilly Hartsfield has returned from a visit with relatives in Hillsboro and Washburn.

Miss Lois Hinton of McLean was a Pampa visitor Sunday.

Jim Gann of Carthage, Tenn., is visiting with Mrs. D. R. Henry.

Mrs. A. E. Monroe, a former Pampa resident, recently underwent an operation in the Presbyterian hospital at Denver. Her condition is reported as favorable. Mrs. Bill Harben has returned home after visiting with Mrs. Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. Omer Hunt, Miss Birdie Belle Turner, and Mrs. Betty Elkins left Sunday morning for Galveston, Corpus Christi, and points in Old Mexico. Also they will visit in New Mexico and California before returning to Pampa the latter part of June.

A marriage license was issued Sunday to Mack Harmon and Miss Florence Sammons.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stewart of Shamrock, parents of Deputy Sheriff James Stewart, are in Pampa for the Top O' Texas Fiesta. They arrived here Sunday.

ENGINEER

"I would hesitate to say," Patton replied.

"Should the East Texas field be permitted to produce more?" Thompson followed up.

"Any marked increase in production will cause a dangerous decline in bottomhole pressure and will cause physical waste," Patton answered. "In my opinion, the allowance should be kept as at present."

Commissioner Sadler then said there were five Saturdays and Sundays in July and asked whether, if the Saturday and Sunday closing in Texas fields on one weekday was lifted, that would be considered a marked increase.

"No," Patton said.

Pressure Will Decline

"If the closings on one weekday are removed, will it hurt the bottomhole pressure?" Sadler then asked.

"Pressure will decline two or three points possibly and will continue at that point some time," Patton said.

He testified the pressure in a recent 30-day period declined 2.45 pounds per square inch, being 1,087.53 on May 8 and 1,085.08 on June 2. The decline was noted after a production increase granted in March.

Reverting to the court decision, Thompson said:

"The court has struck down our order and indicated a greater allowable should be permitted. Under present regulations and conditions, how much should a man with five acres be allowed to produce, and how much a man with one-tenth acre, taking into consideration the factor of acreage?"

Patton replied that the man with five acres would receive an allowable of 20 barrels a day roughly and the man with one-tenth acre approximately four-tenths of a barrel.

Whether acreage should be considered in prorating production of Texas fields long has been an issue.

In 1887 Mr. Paris made a trip to the Panhandle "to look over the country." He believed there was a great future in this section, so he filed on a piece of land near Laketon. Two years later with his wife and family he left Henryetta and came to the Panhandle with a 13-wagon train and 2,500 head of

Anglo-American Spirit at Royal High

The Paris family upon arriving built a dugout on the land selected by Mr. Paris, and that was their first home in the Panhandle.

Thirty-five years ago Mr. Paris moved east of Pampa to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Shackleton where he has since made his home except for a year while he lived with his granddaughter, Mrs. Lyles, in Pampa.

Last week Mr. Paris planned to invite the 80er members to the Shackleton's for a get-together and he had made elaborate plans for the gathering.

Williams Here

Only last week one of his old friends, B. P. Williams of Dalhart, a brother-in-law, came here with Mrs. Leo Paris for the Fiesta and they had a long talk and discussed plans for the celebration. Mr. Williams was the first teacher in Gray county and organizer of the first church in the county.

Mr. Paris was born in Tennessee. When still a boy in his early teens he ran away from home to join the army. He was too young but he followed the army of the South around the country. At 21 he rode from Tennessee to Texas on horseback.

Mr. Paris was married in Texas. Austin Hughes, a great-grandson, baked a birthday cake for Mr. Paris nearly every year. He was very fond of "Buddy," J. D. Paris' class of the Miami Baptist church will have charge of flowers at the funeral. He is another grandson.

Bones Injured

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Shackleton and Mrs. L. O. Boney, Moore, and two sons, Leo Paris, Laketon, and Wheeler Paris, Whittier, Calif., who will be unable to attend the funeral services. The Boney's, injured in a car wreck yesterday, also may not attend.

Final tribute was paid Mr. Paris at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the First Baptist church at Miami. The Rev. H. B. Cornelison, pastor, and the Rev. Robert Snell, rector of St. Matthews Episcopal church, Pampa, officiated. Burial followed in Miami cemetery under direction of Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral home of Pampa.

Palbearers were Harley Talley, Dave Payne, Jim Gill, Ben Kivelen, Clark Mathers and Milo O'Loughlin. Honorary palbearers were old time friends.

furnished by the Panhandle Packing company on the Berger highway. Grady Slocum of the Highland Sales company, West Foster, will furnish the drinks, pickles, mustard and onions also will be served.

A second party for the veteran drillers who come in between 12 and 8 o'clock tomorrow night from the midnight tower will be held at the arena, and such workers are invited to come directly from their wells to the arena for refreshments. It is likely that several who attend the first party will be on hand for the second.

Muscle will be provided for the guests. All veteran oil workers who have been following the oil fields at least 15 years and are still doing it, or have retired, are eligible to attend, and are invited to come. All they got to do is fill out the following blank and see that it gets to the Roving Reporter today or tomorrow. Due to the short period of time that intervened between the announcement of the party and the day of the affair, it was desired to extend the time of registration to tomorrow night.

The party will be decidedly informal. Nobody will be called on to speak. The guests can reminisce when they please and talk to whom they please. Purpose of the party is for the men to get together and talk. There will be no speeches to amount to anything. It will not be necessary to dress up in "Sunday go-to-meeting clothes"—now remember that. Come as you are. If you want to—just as you are. The affair will be most informal, free and easy, and nobody's going to be embarrassed.

And when "Ferdinand" comes rolling out, it's a sign Frey's task is completed. It's the only piece he knows.

Up From The Rank

The United States has reason to be proud of Stanley W. Dzuban.

He has led the 456 members of his graduating class at the Military Academy at West Point through the four years of their hard grind.

Of course, in every class somebody does that. But Dzuban's performance means more than that of some class leaders at the academy. He was appointed from the ranks of the regular army.

A Yonkers, N. Y., boy, he went through high school there, studied a year at New York University. But he was a member of New York's 71st National Guard Infantry. And in this field, open to all young Americans, he saw his opportunity. He enlisted in the 62d Coast Artillery and promptly attended the Second Corps area preparatory school which the army maintains for the benefit of ambitious regular army men.

But most important is the fact that pull, position, and patronage had nothing to do with his success. The army has been wise in keeping this road open to any private in the army. What Dzuban has done, any private can do.

That is the democratic way, and it is the wise way, too, for any army and any government must keep the road to progress open on equal terms to all who have "what it takes."

Behind The News Of The Day

BY BRUCE CATTON

Pampa News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 12—Five years and four months after the prohibition amendment was discarded, the United States has finally returned to its pre-prohibition status, as far as bootlegging is concerned.

Which is to say that the chief problem of the Treasury Department's "enforcers" today is that perennial old faithful, the mountain moonshiner.

Organized big-city gangs are no longer much of a problem, as far as the liquor laws are concerned. "Rum row" has ceased to exist, and there is practically no smuggling of liquor any more. Enforcing the liquor laws is a revenue problem once again, attended by just the same amount of difficulty as was encountered back before the war.

The job is primarily in the hands of Alcohol Tax Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau. Immediately after repeal, the Treasury moved to co-ordinate the activities of this unit with those of the customs service and the coast guard, and began an intensive drive on smuggling.

More Foreign Co-operation It took about two years to get the smugglers checked. In a great many cases, they had laid in huge stocks of liquor at such bases as Havana, the Bahamas and St. Pierre Miquelon. They persisted in trying to unload this liquor despite the fact that the big profit margin of prohibition days had ceased to exist.

But the picture has changed. The morale of the "revenuers," to say nothing of the morale of customs and coast guard men, had gone up with the advent of repeal.

Furthermore, the attitude of foreign authorities subtle changed. In St. Pierre, for instance, better co-operation came from the local authorities to prevent booze being shipped illegally to the United States.

So the smuggling problem was finally solved. Today neither the customs men nor the coast guards men are bothered with it, for the simple reason that no one seems to be trying to bring booze in illegally.

City Situation Changes, Too During prohibition, the city bootlegger was a sinister chap who belonged to a big and powerful outfit, who dealt in carload lots and who swaggered his way about from speakeasy to speakeasy. Today he is a furtive fellow who hangs out behind the bar in some third-rate ginmill and has a container full of colored grain alcohol down on a shelf in front of him.

When a customer gets too tight to notice the difference, this man will serve him the colored alcohol rather than with regular whisky. And that, say the Treasury people, is about the size of the operations of the average city bootlegger today.

On July 1, 1938, the federal tax on distilled liquor went up from $2 to $2.25 a gallon. It was expected that this would bring a substantial rise in bootlegging, but the rise which did take place was far smaller than had been expected.

The Tax Unit experts say that the big fellows had mostly gone out of business, and that the 25-cent tax increase didn't promise enough of a profit to induce them to open up again.

The best gauge to the illegal liquor traffic is the Tax Unit's figures on seizures of mash. These are more important than the figures of stills, since a confiscated still may have been operating only one or two days a week; mash seizures definitely show the rate of production.

In 1937, the unit seized more than 12,000,000 gallons of mash; in 1938, the figure dropped to 7,500,000 gallons. Furthermore, 63 per cent of the mash seized was confiscated in the southern states—indicating, say the Treasury people, that it is the mountain still, just as in the pre-war days, that is responsible for most of the illegal output.

No Profit in Beer Incidentally, there is no bootlegging of beer at all now, as far as the Treasury people know. Despite the federal tax of $5 a barrel, it simply isn't economic to make and sell beer illegally.

It happens, too, that the American people are not drinking as much beer as they were in 1937. The annual per capita consumption of hard liquor now is just under one gallon—99-100ths of a gallon,

Sharing The Comforts Of Life

CHARACTER BUILDING BOOKS Would that all people who have anything to do with legislation, preaching and educating along social and economic lines would read half a dozen character building books that are now out of print. If these books had been read by people in important positions and their precepts followed, the United States would be entirely different from what it is today. Most of them are available in State Libraries.

Here are the six character building books: 1. "Christianity as Old as the Creation," by Mathew Tindal, published in 1731. It is known as the Bible of Deism and explains a natural, rational and righteous religion, as opposed to religion of superstition and revelations.

2. "Refutation of Socialism and Communism," by M. Thiers, first President of the present French Republic. This book was printed in 1848. About this time, France and Germany were going through the socialistic swing as we are today. It points out the various socialistic moves, including government made-work, artificial taxation and government regulation. It is one of the best presentations I have ever read, as to how progress comes from man's rights in property.

3. "Man Versus The State," by Herbert Spencer. Albert Nock, in the November issue of the American Mercury, says this book is to good government what the New Testament is to Christianity.

It is an accumulation of some of Spencer's best essays on government and economics and included "The Coming Slavery." He foresaw how the government would eventually infringe on the liberty of man, as it is doing today and how it would stifle progress, initiative and make people slaves, instead of creative human beings.

4. "What Social Classes Owe to Each Other," by William Graham Sumner. The name of this book sounds socialistic, but it is one of the soundest presentations on social problems ever written. Mr. Sumner was professor of political and social science at Yale.

5. "Reconciliation of Government with Liberty," by John W. Burgess. This was printed in 1915. He points out very clearly how the different nations of the world gradually acquired more liberty. It points out when we have the most liberty and when we began to lose our liberty.

6. "Philosophical Background of Current Economic and Social Problems," by Everett Dean Martin. This was a series of lectures delivered in 1938 to the Graduate School of Bankers. It presents the philosophy of Christianity and of Democracy in a wonderfully clear manner. It was so much in demand that it is already out of print.

Those people who contend that this is a land of plenty, when books of the importance of these books cannot be purchased, indicates the absurdity of the contention that this can be a land of plenty. Probably the people who argue that this can be a land of plenty have never read any of these books.

They are books that every patriotic citizen would want to read and would want his children to read. They present principles that would result, if put into practice in social relations that would develop the character and standard of living of the people.

There are two other books among this same class which are still obtainable and should be read by every legislator, every preacher and every educator in social problems. "Economics and Ethics" by J. A. R. Marriott, professor of Economics at Oxford, printed in 1923; and "Sharing the Wealth," by John Rustgard. Of this Rustgard book, Roger Babson said, if anyone bought it and was not satisfied and would mail it to him, he would mail them a check for what it cost.

Anyone who really wants to accumulate books on social problems would do well to purchase these two books while they are still available. They are really in the class of the six books mentioned above and are out of print.

People are always expecting to get peace in heaven; but you know whatever peace they get there will be ready-made. Whatever making of peace they can do best for, must be on the earth here. —Ruskin.

The Nation's Press

BY BENJAMIN de CASSERES (Los Angeles (Cal.) Examiner)

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, of the Riverside Drive Church, New York, is one of the pastors in our pulpits who doesn't hesitate to face raw facts merely because he doesn't like them.

Here is something unpleasant to contemplate but, in my opinion, it is absolutely true: "All around us there is a decreased insistence on liberty and an acceptance of regimentation, as though to say, with a certain British imperialist, speaking about India, 'It is better to be fed regularly than be free.' Obviously millions are growing tired of liberty."

The instinct of parasitism, as I have declared over and over in this column, is the most formidable enemy to be combated in America.

When a people wants to be kept, that people is through.

Americans, better one meal a day and your liberties than three meals a day and the bill-and-chain of collectivism, to which the main policies of this Administration have been headed for six years. And I do not speak theoretically or rhetorically, but from experience. For I have known what it is to live on one meal a day. But at no time in those hard years would I have exchanged a single particle of my American birthright for three full meals and a Fifth Avenue mansion thrown in.

It is better to be a free man in hades than a parasite in paradise.

Ted Peckham's New York cash-and-carry escort business was called "a very serious evil." From the feminine viewpoint, that depends, of course on the escort.

Headline: "Wheat Trading Is Nervous." Not as much as the traders, however.

To be exact. Between 1910 and 1915 it stood at 1 1-3 gallons.

Since more women are drinking in bars nowadays than before the war, the Treasury experts believe that the average consumption has really dropped even more than the figures indicate.

Less beer is being drunk, too. In 1917, the nation's beer production totaled 1,885,000,000 gallons. Last year it was 1,800,000,000 gallons.

THE SEARCH FOR SECURITY

Around Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, June 12.—Short takes: Among the subjects of federal investigation here which brought out J. Edgar Hoover and some of his super-snoopers are the gambling ships anchored just outside the territorial limit.

Small boats ply back and forth between shore and those floating casinos, which are on the free, high seas, without any customers or immigration inspection. What, then, is to prevent the smuggling of goods or, more dangerously, aliens into the United States? A former gambler with money could board a gambling ship from another craft, play roulette a while, and ride to shore in a water taxi along with the crowds of home-bound suckers. The federal government could sink the gambling-ship business quickly enough by imposing inspections and restrictions enforced at major ports of entry. And it may.

Ika Chase nearly got the role that Rosalind Russell plays in "The Women," so when Miss Russell fumbles a line Director George Cukor calls to an assistant: "See if you can get Ika Chase to come out and play this scene." But Cukor, if you recall was replaced by Victor Fleming as the director of "Gone With the Wind." So Miss Russell calls to the same assistant: "Telephone Mr. Fleming and ask when he's going to take over the picture."

Three Roles at Once. Bustier actor in town now is Alan Hale, who's sprinting between Warner sound stages to play simultaneous roles in "Elizabeth and Essex," "Dust Be My Destiny," and "Career Man." Out at 20th-Fox, Kane Richmond is playing in two pictures, but that is a policeman in each one. All that he has to change between sets is his badge.

Gene Autry, top-hand of the westerns, has a new Republic contract permitting him to make one picture a year at another studio. And three major companies are bidding for it.

Richard Barthelmess, as a result of his rave performance in "Only Angels Have Wings," is talking terms for a new career. . . . A scanty play suit worn in "Are Husbands Necessary" will show more of Madeleine Carroll than ever has been revealed to the screen.

Marquee sign of the week: "Made for Each Other"—Carole Lombard—Donald Duck. . . . Sign on a Negro's shine stand: "Pedal habiliments artistically lubricated with ambidextrous facility for the infinitesimal remuneration of 10 cents."

For eight years the Signal Corps of the U. S. Army has assigned officers and men to study Hollywood film production with the idea of making pictorial records and propaganda movies in the event of war. Now the Air Corps is sending technicians here to learn how such effective aviation pictures are made.

Dick Powell has given his small son, Norman, a silver comb bearing this inscription: "Don't let Hoolywood get in your hair."

John Payne and Claire Trevor, who were jostled to prominence in "Stagecoach," will meet again in "Pennsylvania Uprising," a pre-revolutionary story. . . . A funnier description of Basil Rathbone than "two profiles pasted together" is this: "He looks like a well-scribbled vulva."

Too Ill to Die Today. Nigel Bruce is supposed to die in "The Rains Came," but when they reached that scene someone at his home called the studio and said, "Mr. Bruce says to tell you that he is too ill to die today." . . . For the same picture, the flood and storm scenes were postponed for a week because the sun didn't shine.

Earnest young students of dramatics are being drilled in shouting tongue-twisters again. Some new ones: "The short sort shoot straight through." "Old oily oolts."

People You Know

Young Dale Harrell, 14, reports that the R. G. Harrell family went on the kind of a vacation trip that it pays to take. He says that during the two weeks they were gone they visited so many relatives in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Texas that they had to buy only one meal. . . . An entire page in the West Texas State college year-book is dedicated to Betty Blythe, student in the college who died last fall. The page does not have a picture of Betty on it, but shows the college flag-pole at half mast and the administration building in the background. . . . An interesting picture of Arvo Goddard shown walking like Lil' Abner. . . . Lawrence McBea who was mixed up in a dozen activities, had his picture in the annual more than any other Pampian. Two Pampa girls were among the beauties, Mary Elizabeth Seeds and Mary Walton. Joe Crisler and Hazel Bath were in the Prairie staff photograph.

Olds old oily autos. "Soldiers' shoulders shudder when shrill shells shriek."

The growing report that a monied group financed the purchase of "Grapes of Wrath" to keep it from the screen is silly. It can't be suppressed that way because the author's contract provides that if it is not filmed within a certain time the rights will revert to him for resale.

It has been found that when monkeys are injected with live virus of infantile paralysis, they develop within their blood some protection against this disease. However, these animals will develop this disease if enough of the virus is introduced into the nose. These investigations indicate that the only way to develop effective resistance against infantile paralysis is to have an attack of the disease which involves action of the live virus on the brain or nervous tissues.

The presence of a certain amount of material in the blood of the character of that which resists infantile paralysis is apparently not sufficient to protect against the disease. Scientists everywhere have been trying to work out some techniq whereby specific protection against infantile paralysis can be developed.

Attempts have been made to make vaccines out of killed virus and out of live virus. Attempts have also been made to block the nose by which the virus usually gets into the body. There is, however, some evidence that perhaps the nose is not the only way by which the virus may get into the body.

It has been suggested that the serum, or fluid material of the blood, from children who have had this disease or from adults who have some of the protecting substance may be injected into children and that by this way they will be protected against infantile paralysis.

Unfortunately not one of these methods seems as yet to be established as certain to prevent the disease in any considerable number of cases. Fortunately considerable funds are now available to encourage research on the prevention of infantile paralysis and on methods of diagnosing the disease at the very earliest moment.

It seems reasonable to believe that application of such research under modern conditions will lead eventually to some specific method of control.

Book A Day

One of the outstanding historical novels of the year, a graphic picture of the French and Indian War, including the exploits of Rogers' Rangers, "Next to Valour" by John Jennings (MacMillan; $2.75). One episode of the fighting near Lake Champlain, typical of the whole dramatic tone of the book, is given here.

At the road Rogers spread us out in the bushes on either side, with orders not to shoot unless he gave the signal. Two men he sent to watch the road from the post, and two to watch the fort and the clearing. Two more . . . to guard our rear. Shortly after this a large detachment of regulars, some 113 in number, passed out from the fort in the direction of Lake George; but as they were too strong for us, we lay close in the bush and let them by. A few moments later another detachment, numbering some 22 men, came from the direction of the outpost. Rogers gave the signal to fire, and we poured a volley into them.

At the moment it seemed the natural thing to do. These men were armed. They would do the same to us if they could see us. We were enemies, sworn to kill each other on sight. I aimed at the leader and pressed the trigger. As the smoke of our blast rolled out across the road I was amazed to see that only eight or nine of them were down, though I had expected to see at least half of them in the dust. Vaguely I remember thinking that several of us must have picked the same man, for to miss at such pointblank range was almost out of the question.

In the next instant the rest had broken and were fleeing up the road, while Rogers, with a wild whoop, burst from the brush at the roadside and dashed in pursuit. The rest of us followed suit, but quick as we were, they were too swift for us. We went back to where the ambush had taken place, to find the dead Frenchmen already scalped by two of our men who had stayed behind for the purpose. "We'll have to travel now!" said Rogers. He lined us up and counted heads to see that we were all present. "All right," he said, "Follow me." . . . He plunged from the road running eastward away from it. I shall not forget that run. . . . "We'll scatter here. Each one pick your own way. We'll meet at the boats at nightfall. Any man not there by then will be left behind."

With the coming of warm weather, infantile paralysis again becomes a menace. This disease usually comes on in the summer season and disappears with cold weather. Recently an epidemic appeared in Charleston, S. C. It is not yet known whether or not this is an early indication of an epidemic this year.

It is generally recognized that infantile paralysis is caused by a virus which is an infectious agent smaller than any of the germs we know and which we can see under the microscope. Only the largest viruses are visible under very powerful microscopes and can be seen by special types of lighting. Methods have also been developed for growing viruses. Viruses have been developed for certain diseases so that it is possible to reproduce these diseases in animals.

Thus it is possible to transmit infantile paralysis to the monkey; nowadays most of the studies on the prevention of infantile paralysis are being made on monkeys. Investigators in the Rockefeller Institute found that viruses of infantile paralysis will grow on brain tissue.

It has been found that when monkeys are injected with live virus of infantile paralysis, they develop within their blood some protection against this disease. However, these animals will develop this disease if enough of the virus is introduced into the nose. These investigations indicate that the only way to develop effective resistance against infantile paralysis is to have an attack of the disease which involves action of the live virus on the brain or nervous tissues.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Greenland—the First American Republic

WITH a fair for bold schemes and the rare ability to carry them out, Eric the Red discovered Greenland 1057 years ago. At least no other explorer had touched its shores and come back with the story. Eric, as a matter of fact, had no exact knowledge of the island when he started out. His daring conception, however, spurred him on and at last he arrived at Greenland in 982 or early in 983.

He landed on the west coast, close to the present Danish colony of Julianehab. As it turned out, it was one of history's most significant events for Eric the Red not only explored, he established the first American republic.

This is the story. Hardly had Eric landed when he built barns, cut hay for the cattle he carried and founded the dairy industry which even today is important. Next, Eric made sweeping explorations of interior Greenland over a period of three years.

Then he returned to Iceland, proceeded to "sell" his story of the rich new land he had found. The result: he was able to take some 700 colonists back to Greenland with him in 986, the largest colony ever established up to then in the New World.

And soon after these colonists, under Eric's superb direction, established a republic with a parliament. It was to last until 1261 when Greenland voluntarily became a province of Norway. Meanwhile, however, it had become America's first republic.

Labor Warfare Discussed By Bishop Lucey

CLEVELAND, June 12 (AP)—Bishop Robert E. Lucey of Amarillo, Texas, keyed the second National Catholic Social Action Congress today with the assertion the economic order "must be organized, directed and controlled—it must be made to function for the common good."

The three-day congress consists of discussions, from the viewpoints of capital, labor and government, of the social-economic doctrine of the Roman Catholic church as found in encyclicals of Popes Leo XIII and Pius XI.

Bishop Lucey, who as a Los Angeles priest was chairman of the California State Board of Public Welfare, said in a sermon prepared for a pontifical mass opening of the congress:

"This warfare between employers and employees is an unequal battle. The owning and employing classes have been characterized by strength, the workers by weakness. . . . the wage earners being generally poor, unorganized and without the leadership which they need."

On "another battle front," he said, wage earners' fight among themselves, and "added to all this is the present day conflict in the house of labor divided against itself."

In the reconstruction of the social order, "labor unions, as a first step, must be organized thoroughly and intelligently," he said.

"Trade associations will be needed for the owning, employing group. These later can be compelled to solve their common problems. . . . Until these occupational groups are prepared to operate industry and agriculture on their own responsibility, government must continue to offer cooperation, leadership and social legislation."

USED TO THEM MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Whispering spectators in City Judge William Bateman's court bring an impatient rap of the gavel—but babies can cry all they want.

"Their crying doesn't bother me a bit," says the judge, who has one of his own.

Economy Bloc Plans New Fiscal Attack

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP)—Double-barreled attack on administration fiscal policies was taking shape in the Senate today, with the so-called "economy bloc" opening fire on dollar devaluation legislation and western senators criticizing the silver program.

Republican Leader McNary disclosed he was planning conference of his party members to map opposition to a House-approved bill extending the President's authority to reduce the gold content of the dollar and to continue the $2,000,000 stabilization fund.

Joining the Republican opposition was a group of economy-minded Democrats led by Senators Glass of Virginia and Adams of Colorado.

At the same time, Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) said he has urged Secretary Morgenthau to make known the administration's intentions about a possible change in the price of silver when the Democratic purchase proclamation expires June 30.

Pittman charged the western mining industry was being "strangled" by lack of knowledge of future silver prices.

Meanwhile, Congress was pushing its tax revision and relief programs to meet June 30 deadlines and to increase its chances for a July adjournment.

EVEN BALKY MULE CAN'T COPE WITH TRUCK DRIVER BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—"You've got to know just what to say," explained the pleased-with-himself truck driver to the astonished throng of traffic jammed citizens as he whispered in the mule's ear and led him away, pleasantly.

The long-eared one chose to balk crosswise of a main street, completely blocking the narrow thoroughfare.

Other drivers and the perplexed owner had coddled him; talked sweetly, then gruffly; had twisted his ear and did everything but build a fire under him before the mule-wise truck driver came along with his whispering stunt.

Abilene Will Open 3-Game Series Tonight

Pampa Splits Doubleheader With Midland

Abilene's Apaches will arrive in Pampa today for a three-game series with the Oilers. The first game will be called at 8:30 o'clock tonight with the next two games, on Tuesday and Wednesday, being Top O' Texas Fiesta attractions beginning at 4:30 o'clock. All games will be at Broad Runner park with admission 40 cents.

Manager Grover Seltz will probably send Milbert Vannoy to the mound tonight with Frank Grabek the likely choice for tomorrow afternoon. The Apaches have been stepping up in the world and giving the top teams plenty of trouble the past couple of weeks.

Yesterday afternoon the Pampa Oilers and Midland Cowboys staged two of the wildest battles seen on a local field in many a year. Midland won the first game 23 to 7 but dropped the nightcap 12 to 10.

A strong south wind roared across the field, whipping up the dust, blinding the players and carrying the ball away from fielders. It was one of those days when the Oilers pitchers couldn't do anything right.

Cowboys Hit Ball

Art Verrenga started on the mound for the Oilers but he had nothing on the ball but a prayer and 14 runs had crossed the plate in less than three innings when he walked from the mound. Lefty Loren Treney then appeared on the scene but he just threw practice pitches to the Cowboys, or that is the way they treated his offerings.

The Cowboys blasted 28 hits off Verrenga and Treney while Brown, a slow-motion pitcher with a freak delivery, limited the Oilers to seven bingles, well scattered after the first two innings. Gordon Nell, big Oiler outfielder, hit his first of two home runs in the opening inning with Reeves on base.

Winn, runner, and nine hits were made off Verrenga in the opening inning and there wasn't even a double among the nine. Five more runs crossed the plate in the third inning and the Cowboys were away, riding hard and spurring furiously.

Nell Hits Fair

Nell's homer gave the Oilers a pair in the first and singles by Pietras, Cross, and Swift added two more in the second as the Oilers appeared to be away to the races. But Midland's splurge in the third took the sting out of the Oiler attack. Petzold and Guynes led the Cowboy assault with five hits each.

Manager Grover Seltz sent Harvey Hutton to the mound in an effort to salvage the second game but to the end of the first inning it looked as though the Cowboys were away on another spree as five runs had crossed the plate on four hits. But big Gordon Nell hadn't been reckoned with and he blasted a ball over deep centerfield fence scoring Reeves and Seltz, who had singled, ahead of him. Beavers followed with a triple and Bailey singled, all of which caused Mr. Bianchi of Midland to be called to the showers.

Blair relieved and blanked Pietras.

Dodger Fans In High As Brooklyn Takes Series

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

The good people of Brooklyn, Kings county, New York, who stir easily over their Dodgers, are just about fit to be roped.

Their heroes took a series from the Cincinnati Reds over the weekend, the only one the National League leaders lost on their eastern swing, and the Dodgers moved within a game and a half of second place.

There were 35,893 fans, considerably more than the listed capacity of Ebbets' field, on hand yesterday as Brooklyn and Cincinnati divided a pair of feverish extra innings games. This brought the attendance for 30 home games at Brooklyn at 415,769 persons and shows how the Dodgers' fans feel.

The Reds took their first game, 3-1, in 10 innings when Hugh Casey

Centennial Of Baseball To Be Celebrated In Games

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—Baseball's great take over Abner Doubleday Field today in the climax of the nation's celebration of the 100th anniversary of its number one game.

Sentimentalism has crept into the picture since the celebration was first announced, when it was no secret among professional ball players that the nation's celebration of the 100th anniversary of its number one game.

When present-day big leaguers go on the ball pasture that became baseball's birthplace, all living members of the sport's Hall of Fame will be on hand to assist in the proceedings.

dropped two games Saturday, by winning the nightcap of a doubleheader, 4-1, after losing the first, 5-4, in 11 innings.

Giants Win 5th Straight

The New York Giants ran their winning streak to five games with a 7-3 and 5-4 double triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who now have lost five straight.

The Chicago Cubs and Boston Bees divided their bill, the Bees taking the first, 4-3, and the Cubs the second, 5-3, in six innings. The nightcap was called because of Sunday law in the last of the seventh inning when Boston had taken the lead, but the score reverted to the sixth.

The New York Yankees completed their western tour with two victories at St. Louis, 8-5 and 5-1, giving the champions a record of eight wins and two losses for the trip.

Tommy West of Sox and Chicago White Sox divided their program, enabling the Cleveland Indians to scout into third place in the American league with two victories over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Joe Kuhel's homer with one on in the ninth won for Chicago, 7-5, in the first game. A couple of timely triples by Jim Tabor helped the Red Sox take the nightcap, 4-3.

Jeff Heath decided both the Tribe's tussles. He singled the winning run home in the ninth of the first game and hit a homer in the sixth for the second game. The scores were 4-3 and 3-2.

In Sunday's only single session Detroit won its fifth straight, dropping Washington, 6-3, although out-hit.

Hitchcock Stars As American Polo Team Takes Cup

NEW YORK, June 12 (AP)—At an age when most athletes are content to paste up scrapbooks, Tommy Hitchcock is still doing an honest imitation of Tenyson's Brook—the one that went on and on.

Tommy never will see the sunny side of 40 again but if you study the play-by-play account of yesterday's second, and clinching, match of the international polo series with the British, you find the story of America's 9-4 triumph is wrapped around the flashing mallet that "Mr. Polo" himself wielded.

The Americans called on team play, with Hitchcock the hub around which the victory spun, to carry them to an easy triumph in a match that makes next Sunday's battle merely an excuse for the horse set.

There were some 21,000 in the category yesterday and a beautiful Old Westbury. The cup is safe again since Sunday's victory was the second straight, Hitchcock & Company, having won the opener a week ago, 11-7.

It was in the seventh chukker that Hitchcock stepped up his game to the heights that have made him the star of every international series since the war. The Americans then were leading 6-3, and the issue still a trifle in doubt, but when the chukker ended the Americans were out in front, 9-3, the cup was safe and so was Hitchcock's reputation as the best in the business.

Tommy also played his worth as a team player when he set up shots for Mike Phipps, who along with Hitchcock scored three times, and thus made the "coordination" angle of the victory an important part of the story.

The game marked the twelfth straight triumph scored by the defenders since they regained the cup in 1921.

Askins Wins 'Last' State Pistol Title

DALLAS, June 12. (AP)—Clarence Askins Jr. of El Paso left for home today with his fourth, and he said his last, consecutive state pistol championship.

Askins scored 1,422 points of a possible 1,500 at the Texas Rifle and Pistol association match and led the immigration patrol's former man winning team by scoring 265 of a possible 300 points. He won't participate next year to avoid discouraging other contenders.

Scores of his team mates were: William T. Toney Jr., McAllen, 280; H. B. Carter, Laredo, 278; and M. T. B. Pazo, 267.

Carter was runner-up to Askins with 1,413 points. Lieut. Charles Densford, San Antonio, scored 1,412, and Corp. R. V. Wilzowski, Shreveport, had 1,406 points.

Harold M. Gilne of San Antonio and Densford won the two-man match with 585 out of a possible 600. Askins and Carter were second with 584.

Bobby Curtis Wins State Tennis Title

DALLAS, June 12 (AP)—Bobby Curtis, 19-year-old Houston star, was men's state tennis champion today.

The young Rice Institute netter displayed an assortment of head-work and shotmaking to defeat Bobby Kamrath of Austin, 6-2, 7-5, 1-6, and 6-1, here yesterday.

Kamrath and Maurice Fincher of Abilene won the doubles title over Curtis and Jack Rodgers of Dallas, 6-2, 8-6, 1-6, 2-6 and 6-2.

In the only other match, Ben Nixon of San Antonio won the junior singles from his brother, Tom, 9-7, 6-4, and 6-4.

Rebels Lose To Houston In 10 To 4 Rout

(By The Associated Press.)

Just when the Texas league-leading Dallas Rebels got going good they were pushed over.

After sweeping a three-game series at Shreveport for their fourth consecutive win, the Rebels went down by Houston yesterday, ran into a 14-hit attack from the Buffs and were walloped, 10-4.

Houston climbed to second place over the San Antonio Missions who lost the first game to Tulsa, 6-5, but won the second, 5-1.

Shreveport took one from Fort Worth, 8-6, while Beaumont climbed out of the cellar and put Oklahoma City in by beating the Indians, 7-6 and 1-0.

Nick Cullop of Houston pounded his twelfth homer of the season in the sixth inning off Jelly SoRelle, third Dallas hurler, in the two meet on. The Buffs have won five of six games with Dallas this season.

Tulsa gathered ten hits and five runs off Pitcher Chili Wagner in the first game with San Antonio, then added a run on a walk and an error by the Buffs in the ninth. No Oilers got to third after the first inning of the second game.

Vernon Washington's heavy hitting helped Shreveport down Fort Worth in the first game of the series.

Wilmington took the first from City with a three-run rally in the ninth. Harold Newhouse, 18-year-old lefthander, was introduced as the starting pitcher in the second game and held the Indians to one hit.

Major General Doubleday, generally credited with inventing the game, really made a team contest out of the individual affair baseball was before 1839. It is to celebrate that change the baseball world gathered in Cooperstown.

The homecoming has drawn many outstanding stars of yesteryears. Two of them, Eddie Collins and Hans Wagner, playing leading roles as captain and manager of the teams of major leaguers, to be chosen by the boyhood "hand-over-hand" method, which play the centennial's dedication game.

The others—Ty Cobb, Tri Speaker, Babe Ruth, Walter Johnson, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Sisler, Connie Mack, Cy Young, and Nap Lajoie—form the board of strategy for the teams.

Both the American and National League will be represented on each team when the lineups are announced (about 1 p. m. CST).

Prior to the major leaguers' "chase-up" game, Cooperstown high schools boys will see play "town ball" as played before 1839, and a group of soldiers are to depict a game of 1850 between the New York Knickerbockers, first organized team to wear uniforms, and the Brooklyn Excelsiors.

Lefty Cox Beats John Austin In City Tourney

John Austin, defending champion and favorite to win the 1939 City Championship golf tournament, was blasted out of the picture yesterday when Lefty Cox, former baseball star of the Pampa Road Runners, upset Austin 3 and 2.

Another former baseball star, Leroy Trenary, defeated Marvin Harris, 3 and 1, to drop another favorite from the running for the title. A third favorite, little Zade Watkins, caddy, lost to his brother Elmer Watkins on the 18th hole.

With Austin out of the running, Reg Greenhaw became a strong contender with Cox, Trenary, Mark Heath, Floyd Ward, Joe Parkinson, Watkins, Roy Ray, all dangerous.

Greenhaw was runner-up last year which automatically put him in the favorite spot. However, with some of the newcomers to the championship flight shooting sensational golf this summer, upsets galore are expected.

Play wasn't quite so close in the first and second flights but third flight players battled to close scores.

D. F. Lowe and T. Hines failed to report yesterday and their opponents to play them instead of taking wins on forfeits. If they can play their matches within the next two days they are asked to call Pete Nossent, pro at the Pampa Country club.

Cox won his match on the 16th hole when he sunk a putt from the edge. Trenary also sunk from near the edge to beat Harris, medalist. The closest match of the day was between Joe Parkinson and C. F. McGinnis which went 19 holes. Never more than one hole separated the pair. Parkinson came out of a trap to lay inches from the pin on the 18th to tie the game and then went on to win on the 19th hole.

Second round matches will be played during the week with the third round set for next Sunday.

Results of play yesterday:
Championship Flight
Cox defeated Austin, 3 and 2.
Greenhaw beat Richesin, 3 and 2.
Parkinson won from McGinnis, 1 up, 19 holes.

Heath defeated Perkins, 5 and 3.
Trenary won from Harris, 2 and 1.
E. Watkins beat Z. Watkins, 1 up.
Ward beat M. Watkins, 6 and 5.
R. Ray defeated Tom White, 3 and 2.

First Flight
Newsome beat Graham, default.
Wagner won from Thut, 5 and 4.
Maguire beat Carraway, 4 and 2.
Green and Shotwell, yet to play.
Kilgore won from Voss, 5 and 4.
Allen beat C. Fathere, 7 and 6.
Clemmons beat Goldsack, 5 and 4.
Hatfield beat Hawthorne, 4 and 3.

Second Flight
G. Austin, Sr., won from Irving.
McFall beat Ted White, 1 up.
Cook won from C. Braly, 5 and 4.
Miskimin beat Jarratt, 1 up.
Barfield won from Ponton, 2 and 1.

Weston won by default from Brumley.
Third Flight
McConnell won by default from Osborne.
Hagan beat T. Braly, 6 and 5.
Haggard beat Ellis, 1 up.
Fenberg won from S. Faulkner, Jr., 3 and 2.
Peeler beat Rogers, 3 and 2.
Wanner won on a bye.
Dr. Jones defeated Boyd, 1 up, 19 holes.
A. Rogers won on a bye.

Henderson Sweeps Marshall Series

(By The Associated Press.)

Marshall hasn't won a game in its last eight tries against Henderson, the East Texas League leader. Tiger errors helped the Oilers sweep the two-game series, 5-3, yesterday.

The Longview White Sox also won the series over Palestine, 7-6, as Ray Sparr singled Skipper John Fitzpatrick home in the 11th inning. Palestine protected the game in the fifth when Bob Williams, at the plate for Longview, was called out for interfering with catcher Eddie Raeser on a squeeze play. The runner was sent back to third and scored a moment later.

Kilgore got 12 hits to win, 8-2, from Texarkana while Mule Toter held the Liners to 8 scattered hits.

Tyler took the two-game series from Jacksonville, 6-5, while Dick Nash and Joe Rundus held the Jax to six bingles.

Sammy Hale To Be Manager Of Midland Team

When the Midland Cowboys come to Pampa next time they'll have a new playing manager, one well known and loved by Pampa baseball fans. The new manager will be Sammy Hale, former Pampa Road Runner manager.

Hale and the president of the Cowboys got together here yesterday afternoon. After a lengthy discussion Hale signed a contract to become playing manager after he gets in shape. Hale will join the Cowboys in Amarillo Thursday but will not start playing for a week or two.

The New Midland manager is anything but a youngster. He played third base for the Philadelphia Athletics 'way back and has since been with other professional teams, the Pampa Road Runners and the Phillips 66 team of Berger.

Hale hasn't been active in baseball the last two years.

Mrs. Winger Wins State Golf Title

MINERAL WELLS, June 12 (AP)—Fort Worth stars held major honors of the Women's West Texas golf tournament today.

Mrs. R. E. Winger beat her townswoman, Mrs. George Thompson, Jr., 6 and 5, to win the championship for the fourth straight year yesterday. Mrs. C. J. Davidson won the first flight 5-3, from Mrs. Claude Whalen, also of Fort Worth. Mrs. K. French gave Fort Worth another victory by taking the second flight, 6-5, from Mrs. Veina McLaughlin of Elctor.

Miss Anna Bland Thompson beat Mrs. Ted Huetsis of Abilene, 4-3, in the championship consolation.

Other winners:
Mrs. Glenn L. Smith, Amarillo, won the consolation consolation flight, one-up from Mrs. John B. Fair, Abilene.

Mrs. Frank McMordie, Mineral Wells, beat Mrs. H. Haynie, Abilene, 7-5, in the second division.

Wanted: Landlord To Fix Leaky Roof

MACON, Ga., June 12 (AP)—Deputy Sheriff William Pranam reported to this conversation with a negro who sought his official assistance.

"Boss, I want to find out who owns the house I live in."

"Who do you pay your rent to?"

"Ah! paid none."

"How long have you been living there?"

"Nine years."

"Well, then, what's your trouble?"

"Boss, the roof has started to leak and if the landlord doesn't fix it quick I'm a-goin' to move out."

L. C. Davis, St. Louis Post-Dispatch: "We doubt if Tony Galento's fous would prevail against Joe Louis ... The bomber simply dotes on any kind of chicken."

Byron Nelson And Wood In Another Tie

PHILADELPHIA, June 12 (AP)—The National open golf tournament, which started somewhere in the dim past, went into its second extra session today as two tenacious survivors, Craig Wood and Byron Nelson, continued to fight it out for the title relinquished by Ralph Guldahl.

The tall grass long since had become trampled and discouraged and the spectators who raced the fairways in high enthusiasm when this tournament was young, had retired to nurse blistered feet, but there was no relief in sight for Nelson and Wood. Since they tied with spectacular rounds of 68 in yesterday's first extra spasm, they had to battle on.

Denny Shute, of the original three who tied with scores of 284 at the end of the regulation 72 hole Saturday night, found yesterday's sizzling pace too fast and dropped out. In the fury of the finish between Wood and Nelson on the 18th green, poor Denny scarcely was noticed. He shot a 76.

Wood, by virtue of a shocking "break" on the last hole, when his wild second shot hit a spectator squarely in the temple and bounded back to safety on the fairway, had a golden opportunity to win his first national championship yesterday. After the injured man had been carried senseless and bleeding from the scene, Wood chipped up and had a five-foot putt for a 67 and the victory. But he missed it.

All the way the pair had waged a tense, dramatic duel, first the 27-year-old Nelson, then his seasoned rival leading. Both shot brilliant golf and they quickly shook off Shute.

Denny never was in waving distance from his rivals hit the turn in 33 strokes apiece.

Even Sky Clouds Up For LaCross-Ludwig Battle

Only rain can keep Pampan from seeing a rough wrestling match tonight at the Pampa athletic arena. On Saturday Promoter Chambers had the roof taken from the arena which means that he's got to have nice weather to stage his matches this summer.

The morning made it look like rain would interfere with tonight's card but after looking at the sky Promoter Chambers remarked that it was only clouding up for the big main event between Roughhouse Gil LaCross and Otto Ludwig.

That's the main event fit for a championship brawl. LaCross is one of the roughest, toughest, meanest matiners in the entire world and Ludwig is his bitter enemy.

When the urge strikes LaCross he slugs his opponent, the referee or anyone else that gets in his way. Promoter Chambers is trying to secure Ray "Big Train" Clemmons, now working in Berger, for the referee.

A semi-final as rough and tough as the main event is expected when Dale Haddock, tough gentleman from Detroit, mixes with Sugi Hayama, tricky Jap who gets dirty work in with ju-jitsu holds.

Opening hostilities at 8:30 o'clock will be Saller Jack Adams, pride of the navy, and Pete Biscastro, champion of the northwest, reported to be a couple of rough cookies.

Hostilities under the stars will be presented for 40 cents for men and 40 cents for women, general admission.

Deloit Track Star To Enter Texas U.

DETROIT, June 12 (AP)—Seventeen-year-old James (Mac) Umstad, ran the 80-yard event in 1:56.6 seconds in the finals of the Detroit Metropolitan High school league track meet last Friday and this should be good news to followers of track in Texas.

This may sound a bit strange but it isn't queer at all when the fact is added that young Jim, an all-around student at Northwestern high school here, will enter the University of Texas next fall. His father is an instructor there.

Deloit has produced countless star trackmen among them Eddie Tolian, winner of both dash events in the 1932 Olympics, Alan Tomich, great Wayne university hurdler, and others—but the city's prep track coaches are agreed Umstad is the greatest prospect of all.

In setting a new Detroit and state 800-yard record, Umstad finished more than 60 yards ahead of the second place runner. He has never been in a race where the opposition was troublesome and how fast he will run in serious competition remains to be determined.

Most coaches at the city meet threatened the national interscholastic record of 1:54.4 set by E. L. Rush, of Sunset High school, Dallas, in 1932 at Chicago if he had been entered.

In 1911, Perry Rodgers completed the first transcontinental airplane hop, flying from Sheepshead Bay, L. I. to Long Beach, Calif. Rodgers was killed in a plane crash six months later.

"Wants come over tonight and help me heckle Fan's date? I'll cut you in for a dime if he gives us a quarter."

SERIAL STORY

BRIDE ON A BUDGET

BY JANET DORAN

COPYRIGHT, 1938, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday Iris can't cook. Bart says she should buy a new stove. They spend right and left for other new stoves until Iris will settle down soon.

CHAPTER IV

It was Bart himself who brought home the little budget book, a month later. After spending rather a bad hour with his accounts and figures. After discovering that two could not only not live as cheaply as one, but instead, could not, apparently, live for three times what it cost one! After the cold figures told him that he had spent at the rate of $25 or better a week for food alone, for the two of them!

In the bathroom, a high sweet contralto sang happily. Obviously his little wife was having herself a tub and shower. And on the bed was spread a billowing concoction of pale green organdie flounces, with a deep, leaf green satin sash, and a big floppy milian hat of green straw. On the rug stood two diminutive size AAAA white kid sandals.

They were dining out. They were dining and dancing out. Again.

Bart sat down heavily in the chair and the Chinese grass rush chair by the open window.

Then Iris came out, trailing her pale blue chemise robe about her. Her ivory shoulders bare and glowing, rising above the robe caught together carelessly, her slender legs and thighs peering in and out as she hurried to find fresh lingerie, stockings, powder and make-up.

"Hurry, Bart darling," was her slightly absent greeting, when she noticed him sitting there by the window, "we'll be late if you don't. You'll have to get a bath and dress. Or had you forgotten we're dining with the Kents?"

HE had forgotten. Completely. So engrossed had he been in the budget book, so lost in the wild hope of living to a scale he could encompass, the memory of Ellen and John Kent's invitation to dine with them at the new Bay-shore Plaza, and then go to the new play the Guild was putting on, had completely slipped his mind.

He laid out his shaving kit and turned the hot water on in the tub. Rubbing the shaving lather over his face, he watched Iris in the mirror over the wash-bow, that reflected squarely the entire wall of the bedroom beyond, where she sat at the vanity mirror.

"We're eating at home tomorrow, honey," Bart said casually, cutting a neat lane through the drift of lather and faint stubble, "I've got a surprise for you."

"Oh Bart, not company!" Iris exclaimed petulantly, "When you know how much I have to do at the office, and all this besides."

Bart grinned silently at the all this. He did more than half the housework around the little apartment, and thus far, they'd eaten most of their meals out. Still Iris took her home-making seriously.

"No, not company, honey. Just a book. It tells all about budgets and menus and buying and planning meals. So we can begin to save a little."

"It costs almost as much to live at home, Bart, as it does to dine out," Iris argued, "with prices the way they are."

"You don't see any restaurant men going broke do you, Iris? No, and you won't. And this book tells how we can eat like kings on a third of what it's costing us now. Better food, home cooked, and at a third the cost."

Iris said nothing. But the tiny line between her wide violet eyes was warning that she was thinking intently.

ALL that evening, Iris was the life of the party. She flirted with John Kent when she danced with him, and teased Bart constantly. She kept them all in gales of merriment. She had such a grand time herself it was a shock to discover it was time to go on to the play. And then all at once it was 11, and they were home again, and yawning sleepily to bed.

Next day, Bart managed to shut up shop directly after 5. He pulled the curtains as soon as the whistles blew, and didn't answer knocks on the door as he made everything fast for the night. But Iris was home ahead of him. Iris, clad in a faded pink check gingham gown with a ragged tear in one puffed sleeve and a tea towel pinned bewitchingly about her blond curls. Iris, bending over the stove, hurrying to and fro, studying a cookbook. Cooking dinner.

The bedroom was in order, the living room neat, and the table set. And a pot-roast simmered in the oven in an iron kettle, and vegetables steamed in the rich brown juices. On the window-ledge an apple pie cooled, and she dug in a bran muffin recipe when he came in.

"Hi, wife of my bosom," he greeted her fervently. She flung him a worried, absent glance and wiped her damp forehead on the ragged sleeve.

"Hello, Bart," Iris answered wanly.

"That was the beginning. When the meal was on the table, Iris wasn't hungry. She was too tired to eat. Too hot. There was too much to do."

"Besides, you want to economize, Bart, and you'll save whatever I might eat."

He grinned, not taking it seriously. It was too silly, really, to take in any other light than as a joke. Only she didn't eat. And he did not guess she had had a sandwich and a glass of milk and small cupcake before starting her culinary preparations.

After dinner, when all efforts to coax her into eating some of the really good dinner failed, Bart tried to make her lie down and rest a bit.

"It's this heat, honey; you over did. You shouldn't try to do everything at once, weather like this."

"As if that mattered, so long as you can save a little, Bart!" Iris muttered petulantly.

BART'S slow, quiet wrath simmered slowly at that, but he said nothing. And Iris attacked the dishes with more temper than caution, smashing a fragile blue pie plate as it slid to the floor crashing against the gas stove.

Bart picked up the pieces silently. And when the dishes were done, and Iris took the vacuum cleaner and dust cloths and began thoroughly cleaning the living room, his wrath began to pass the temper stage.

"Look, Iris, this room looks all right. You're tired, why don't you quit and rest now?"

"This place is a pig pen," she stated shortly, "and work has to be done. Your precious budget book said nothing about that, Bart Whitaker. It was concerned only with pennies, not persons!"

Bart went into the bedroom, taking the evening paper, and lay down on the bed to read it. But the sound of her energetic cleaning, the whisk of the brush on the cushions, the roar of the electric cleaner, distracted him. Until 10:30, Iris worked at her cleaning. She washed the windows, she cleaned the paint, she wiped the floor around the rug, and she polished the furniture.

Then, spent, weary, she crept into bed to sleep instantly, while her puzzled young husband lay wide awake, trying to figure out this newest angle. This married strike against economy and budgeting. This act that he did not recognize as an act, nor guess was a role played with the gusto and enthusiasm of sheer relish.

Lake Marvin Has 156,000 'Front Seats'

CANADIAN, June 12.—Although not the largest lake in the world nor does it even measure up to the largest in the Panhandle, Lake Marvin has the distinction of having more reserved seats for boat races than any course in the world.

By exact count there are 156,000 reserved seats available for followers of the Boat Drivers' Association, so spaced to afford the most comfort and best seeing advantage to be found. These seats are sand bags placed on the dam by the government but so arranged that a natural grandstand has resulted. These seats will be available to the thousands of the official opening of Lake Marvin, Sunday, June 18, and no one will be able to find an objection to the seating arrangements.

The 10 races will be run the length of the dam in order that every visitor will have a ring-side seat for the attraction. No spectator will ever be more than 50 yards from these powerful boats, promising more thrills than any race ever staged in the southwest. Officials have roped off the entire dam to allow everyone an opportunity for seat accommodations. Cars will be parked in arenas reserved for such purposes to insure the greatest degree of safety.

Lake Marvin is the perfect racing course, according to the boat drivers who have seen the water. Measuring three-quarters of a mile in length along the dam, where the water is more than 15 feet deep, the lake circles to form a perfect oval. Drivers claim that more speed may be made on this lake with safety than any other lake in the west. The even depth of the water allows the largest type boats as much speed as the middle and whether the water rough or calm on opening day drivers expect to set some new records in class racing.

Hemphill county has announced that one way traffic to and from Lake Marvin will be the plan for opening day to avoid congested highways and marled traffic. Visitors will appreciate this rule as the road to Lake Marvin from this city winds through some of the most beautiful scenery to be found in Texas. No surprise is registered in seeing deer bounding through the brush and trees as quail or prairie chicken flush from the thickets along the way. This is nature's habitat and Lake Marvin a crowning jewel to the mounting.

Dedication services of the lake, water stunts, Sea Scout review, bathing, revue for rejection of Miss Lake Marvin and $50 cash awards are program as well as passenger rides in some of the finest boats obtainable will complete the celebration.

First College Chemurgy Course In U. S. Opened At Texas Institution

DENTON, June 10.—North Texas State Teachers college formally opened the first college course in chemurgy ever to be given in the United States in a program held here Wednesday morning.

Victor H. Schoffemayer, agricultural editor of the Dallas News, who was principal speaker, paid tribute to the teachers college chemurgic course as "making history" in introducing chemurgy to students and teachers who can "quickly learn a new type of thinking" in the state.

Through chemurgy, he said, Texas, with the greatest supply of raw materials of any state in the union, can build "an entirely new civilization" in which agriculture and industry working together can find new industrial outlets for farmers' crops, replacing foreign markets lost to this country forever.

Other speakers included Dr. W. J. McConnell, president of the Teachers College; A. E. Eubanks of McKinney, members of the Teachers College Board of Regents; F. D. Perkins of McKinney, president of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce; W. N. Masters, head of the chemistry faculty at North Texas and chemurgic course director;

M. C. Counts of Fort Worth, Tarrant county agent; Luther Sharp of Dallas, Agricultural Relations, Inc.; Homer D. Wade, executive secretary, Texas Cooperative council, Dallas; Gilbert C. Wilson, chemurgic course instructor, and C. G. Cook, research chemist of the Petrotex Chemical company, Gladewater.

Plans for a two-day chemurgic meeting at the Denton Teachers college Friday and Saturday, June 23-24, were also completed at a committee meeting at the college Wednesday afternoon. Two general meetings will reach more than 2,000 students and visitors daily in general meetings of the course in conservation at the college, it is estimated.

Lochner Says Hitler Wants To Halt War

NEW YORK, June 12. (AP)—The German nation is making one of the most gigantic attempts in history to stave off a possible war not only from a military but also from an economic point of view, in the opinion of Louis F. Lochner, chief of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press, who is spending his vacation in the United States. Should war come despite all international efforts at peace, however, Germany, too, wants to be prepared. "Rightly or wrongly the German nation is convinced that Great Britain and France are determined not to concede to Germany that place in the sun which she feels entitled to as a matter of over 80,000,000 virile people," he said today.

"The average German fears—whether rightly or wrongly is beside the point, I can only register a fact—that British and French denials of any desire to encircle Germany are just so much eyewash. Their vast rearmament programs are accepted in Germany as evidence that a way may be in the offing.

"So the nation is determined to anticipate such an eventuality. I find on returning to the United States that the American people generally are well informed on Germany's military preparedness. The dramatic story of how the Nazi regime within but a few months managed to construct a western fortifications line which Hitler has again and again declared to be invincible has been well publicized in this country, I find.

Sacrifices Known
"Also well known appears to be the story of Germany's struggle and sacrifices to be prepared economically in case a war that apparently nobody in Europe wants and everybody dreads should become a reality.

"Even the construction of the western fortifications has an important economic element in it, for hundreds of thousands of men were taken out of gainful occupations or out of comfortable jobs to go in for ditch digging in what has since become internationally known as the Siegfried line (incidentally a term that did not originate in Germany, consequently accepted with a tolerant smile). There was a general call for volunteers last year to help build the fortifications, and the government labor service as well as all sorts of skilled hands were called in for this service.

"But beyond that there is the carefully planned, conscious economic preparedness. The Germans realize that they were, in the last analysis, beaten in the World War by the breakdown of their economic system. So they have developed something that they call 'wehrtwirtschaft'—defense economics—of which the famous four year plan for economic self-sufficiency is the mainstay and backbone.

"Field Marshal Hermann Goering as early as last September during the annual party rally at Nurnberg claimed that Germany was prepared economically for any war that might come. Since that time economic preparedness has been intensified.

Little Coffee Drinking
"The whole nation is making sacrifices in the way of getting along with less butter, less meat, fewer eggs, little coffee. This is partly because there is government storing against a possible international entanglement and partly because the people have been educated up to sacrificing personal comforts, such as drinking coffee in great quantities, when it means that these comforts must be paid for in foreign exchange. Of this Germany has little and she must ration it carefully for the purchase of things she won't be able to import in case she should be cut off from the rest of the world in a war.

"What has impressed me during my long stay in Germany is the unflinching fortitude with which the German nation accepts sacrifice after sacrifice. There is naturally the grumbling that you will hear in any nation, but so long as the people are truly convinced that by making such a sacrifice a war can be averted then the grumbling on the other side may decide not to fight if it thinks Germany is unbeatable, this grumbling means nothing."

Lochner doesn't believe there will be major international moves in Europe until after the harvest is over. Then the air may become tense again but the statesmen will always be careful not to walk over the precipice.

"The statesmen of Europe all realize what a terrible thing the war of the future will be if, alas, it should come," he argued. "So

Ships Sail the Mighty Missouri Again

First vessels leave Omaha, Neb., for St. Louis, Mo., as Missouri river is opened for commercial traffic between two cities for first time in 70 years. Inset, Mayor McCall, left, of Council Bluffs, Ia., directly across river from Omaha, and Mayor Butler of Omaha watch ceremonies. It took army engineers 12 years, required $140,000,000 of federal funds to dig 25-foot deep channel in river.

nobody will want to take the responsibility for starting it. "That may yet save the situation. The immediate difficulty that I see ahead is that of so-called 'incidents' which may so inflame the passions that somewhere somebody goes off half-cocked—and then the fight may be on despite the wishes of the leaders."

'Hi Ya, King!' Kinda Worries British Public

LONDON, June 12 (AP)—Britons have decided after four days of judicious study that King George VI and Queen Elizabeth got a "proper" reception in the United States.

But they are just a bit put out at the frankness of some of those who hailed their majesties. "The man in the street and his wife didn't quite like those shouts of 'Hi Ya, King!' and those openly put comments on the appearance of the queen. Those things were not done here.

Newspaper correspondents were amazed by the number of soldiers and police used to guard the king and queen but that did not surprise this writer's landlady. "They must 'ave them," she said, "what with all those red Indians and train robbers about."

(Note: The movies "Jesse James," "Stagecoach" and "Union Pacific" are playing to standees in London.)

Not one British subject interviewed seemed to believe British-American relations would be affected one way or another.

"It's a bit like a reception we would give a film star," said a bus driver. "I was over there and I know it doesn't mean a thing."

A clerk in his Sunday best killed his pint of beer and commented, "Of course they like them. It's a fine young man and she's a nice little body. But they ain't selling any goods. Why should they? The Yankees wouldn't like guests to try to sell them anything."

One man wanted to know why President Roosevelt didn't "command" absent congressmen to attend the capitol reception. A waiter asked if the king might knight Mr. Roosevelt and when told it was forbidden by the constitution to accept such an honor, asked, "The constitution—what's that?"

Nominees May Be Decided Before Big Conventions

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP)—The presidential nominees of the two major parties may be fairly well decided before the roll call of states starts in the 1940 conventions.

That has been the case in five of the last six national conventions. The stage was fairly well set for the nomination of Alf M. Landon at Cleveland in 1936 before the convention got going. President Roosevelt's renomination by the Democrats in that year was a foregone conclusion. Only Roosevelt of all the nominees in the last three campaigns had a convention fight for the nomination. That 1932 fight died when John Nance Garner gave him the votes of the Texas and California delegations on the fourth ballot, and took the vice-presidential nomination.

Since the long Democratic convention fight in 1924, the groundwork for the nominations has been laid in the pre-convention maneuverings. By the time the horns begin to blow around state standards in convention, the nominations usually have been pretty well put in the bag.

The same thing may easily happen in 1940. That is one of the big reasons why talk is running so far ahead of the conventions. Emissaries of the major parties are sifting through the states, making contact with party officials, laying plans for the future.

PRIZE MILK COW GIVES 45 QUARTS A DAY

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Production of enough milk to leave one quart daily at your doorstep for 43 days is just one day's work for V. S. KILLPAULINE, University of Nebraska College of Agriculture Holstein. In 65 days she produced a total of 6,023 pounds of milk and 236 pounds of butterfat. The butterfat would provide your table with 4 1/2 pounds of butter daily.

Judge Mead's Bone-Digging Has Attracted Scientists From All Over This Nation

HOW ONE MAN BUILDED BETTER THAN HE KNEW
As Told By LORENE OSBORNE LOCKE

Long after the tales of early days, of buffalo hunters, of gold-seekers, of enormous ranches, and of pioneer builders have passed into oblivion, I believe that the most important claim that Miami will have to fame is that it was the home of J. A. Mead. When the exploits of others are forgotten the collection that he started as a hobby, that grew into an absorbing interest, and has now become a definite contribution to geological science, will live and grow.

Judge Mead says that he cannot remember when he was not interested in how the rocks were made. He started as a hobby, that grew into an absorbing interest, and has now become a definite contribution to geological science, will live and grow.

He learned not to speak when he should be listening. In fact, he continued, "because we did emphasize the value of silence I lost the art, to a great extent, of expressing my thoughts and opinions. It has been a handicap to me in my public career. But in an early day a 'windy' cowboy was neither believed nor depended upon. However, there was no law against wondering about things."

Although Mr. Mead was born in Michigan, he moved with his parents to Kansas and later, in 1884, to the Texas Panhandle.

As he grew up, a typical cowboy, riding horseback over the flat-topped mesas, herding cattle, roping lobes, swimming in the Canadian river, he observed, and as he observed, speculated. Why were the banks of the river composed of varicolored layers of soil? Why were strangely shaped flint rocks thickly strewn in certain localities? What was the story back of the discovery of a man's bones in the river bank a few miles below Miami? At the time the accepted belief was that during the building of the railroad someone had killed a man and hidden his body here in this rude grave.

Yet, Mr. Mead seeking to find the answers to such questions for himself was not satisfied with the current explanation, and when, later, across the river he excavated an Indian burial ground, his belief, that this first skeleton was too ancient to be connected with civilization, was verified.

Geologists Interested
Through Judge Mead's activities, geologists have become interested in seeking historical geological remains in the Panhandle, and have found Roberts county a rich field of fossil remains.

Parties from the University of California located at Berkeley, from Ann Arbor University under the direction of Dr. Chase, from The American Museum of New York, from S. M. U., and from the University of Texas, under the direction of Prof. E. H. Sellards, of the department of commercial geology, all these have made excavations in this field. Judge Mead had had word that the principal field man for the American Museum of New York, also Dr. Sellards will return in June for further research.

The Mead collection includes specimens that he and others have excavated here in Roberts, from the glacial epoch when mammoth beasts roamed the Great Southern Plains, through the Stone Age, and on down to the relics left by the Indians only a short generation before the coming of the white man.

His most significant find and the one that brought his efforts into national prominence, is that of a mammoth elephant's cervical vertebrae with a Yuma spearhead in it, so located as to show that some prehistoric man had buried his spear into the beast's neck and never recovered it. National Geology bulletins announced this find and accredited Mr. Mead with thus supplying long-sought proof of man's contemporary existence with these huge pre-historic creatures.

On Cowan Ranch
This fossilized vertebrae was taken on the Cowan ranch nine miles northeast of Miami. Glen Evans of the University of Texas helped him to remove it. Further excavation brought to light bone fragments of five mammoths in all. The animals had apparently bogged down in a water-hole or taken refuge there and had been overcome in a storm.

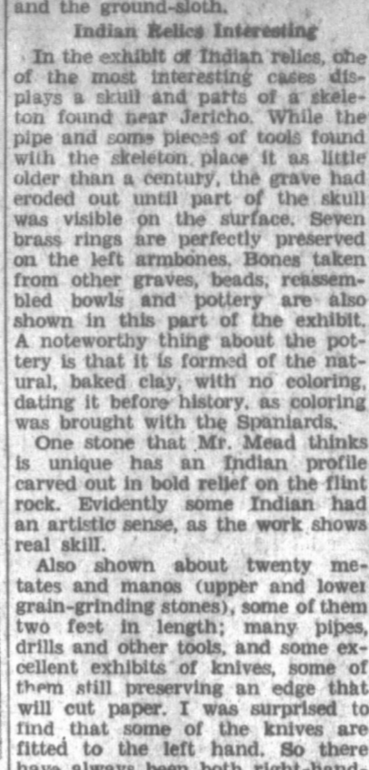

Another attraction of the collection is the reassembled pelvis of a Pleistocene epoch mammoth measuring six feet across. There is also a tusk ten feet long which measures twenty-eight inches in circumference. Imagine the size of the animal that carried two such weapons around. There are also bones from other epochs including those of the mastodon, the pre-historic rhinoceros, and horse; the bear-dog, and the ground-sloth.

Indian Relics Interesting
In the exhibit of Indian relics, one of the most interesting cases displays a skull and parts of a skeleton found near Jericho. While the pipe and some pieces of tools found with the skeleton, place it as little older than a century, the grave had eroded out until part of the skull was visible on the surface. Seven brass rings are perfectly preserved on the left arm bones. Bones taken from other graves, beads, reassembled bowls and pottery are also shown in this part of the exhibit. A noteworthy thing about the pottery is that it is formed of the natural, baked clay, with no coloring, dating it before history, as coloring was brought with the Spaniards.

One stone that Mr. Mead thinks is unique has an Indian profile carved out in bold relief on the flint rock. Evidently some Indian had an artistic sense, as the work shows real skill.

1500 Arrowheads
Mr. Mead said that one thing about the pipes taken in excavations in this area has puzzled him. That is, that they are so small that he thinks the Indians must have smoked some powerful weed in them such as marijuana. But no one whom he has questioned can offer an explanation. No odor clings to the pipes even when first found.

unusual and ancient articles. A recent addition to the collection is an original program of the first teachers' convention held in Miami, in 1896. Miss Lula Fitch, now Mrs. W. R. Ewing, and Mrs. Pope, of Pampa were among those having parts on this program.

Recently, a sea turtle estimated to be at least three million years old was unearthed near Higgins. It was presented to Judge Mead and he is now preparing it for exhibition. The shell measures twenty-eight by thirty inches.

In Courthouse
The Mead collection is housed in the courthouse in Miami, where Mr. Mead has been a county official for over 28 years. At the present time he is serving his fifth term as county judge.

In June, 1937, the Judge began to keep a record of visitors to the museum. In the 22 months since, almost three thousand visitors, from every state in the union, have registered.

Schools are becoming cognizant of the value to science and history of this small museum. They are bringing their students to study its exhibits. Last week (May 8th) buses brought forty-three Mobeetie students for a visit.

"I plan to make provision for the housing of this collection," said

Owns Old Violin
Among the miscellaneous contributions to the museum are a Stradivari violin dated 1890 and made in Algam, owned by Sam Shartzler of Miami; two old Bibles printed in 1740 and 1812; many ancient types of firearms; a Madonna carved from Oklahoma gypsum by Frank Raasor, Roberts county commissioner; a hair wreath made by Mrs. Gus Severson, an eighty year old Miami woman when she was only a girl, containing hair from the heads of one hundred and twenty persons; a case of old coins, and many other

"One-Man Band" Plays At Wedding Reception Sunday

Wearing a battered hat, torn shirt and trousers and knee-length boots, the "one-man band," who arrived in town for the Top O' Texas Fiesta, had been invited to play at the reception which was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thomson honoring Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Shelhamer, Mrs. Shelhamer is the former Miss Lois Martin.

After playing several selections on his guitar by picking it with nothing more than a pine stick about a foot long, the red-haired, snaggle-toothed troubador addressed the group assembled in the yard and one of the guests joined in dancing.

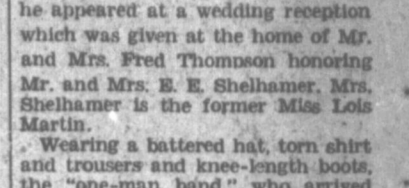

dark eras of the past that have left their imprint buried deeply within the earth. So deeply that only the earnest seeker may find and interpret them.

Writing Index
Mr. Mead is preparing a complete description and history of each find in his collection for future reference. In Roberts, Gray, and Hemphill counties, the 62 locations of ancient settlements from which these remains and relics were taken, are located in his history. He has even been far-seeing enough to locate them by natural objects, hills, valleys, rocks, and so on, that the geologist years from now may be guided in further excavation.

One can well understand why Judge Mead has earned the title, "The Bone-man of the Panhandle." His collection, while the result of only a few years in one man's life will live on to perpetuate his memory, and to throw light on those
