GIVING support to the belief that an organized body of thieves are operating in South Plains cities, officers at Lamesa and Plainview report a series of burglaries of homes in those cities, following report of four house burglaries in Lubbock Sunday night.

Officers here recall an exposure of a group of persons in Vernon several months ago whose arrests led to uncovering of property, stored in a warehouse in that city, which was stolen in homes and business houses in Vernon, Wichita Falls, Childress and Quanah. A similar organization of criminals is perhaps operating in South Plains cities, it is thought.

Indicating that a woman and man were cooperating in the looting of homes, about $30 to $75 in cash and valuable clothing were stolen from five residences in Lamesa early Monday morning.

House Members Stand Firm Against Debenture Plan In Farm Relief Bill

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 21.—House members of the farm relief conference committee stood firm today in their contention that the export debenture plan must be eliminated from consideration before an agreement can be reached on differences between the house and senate farm bills.

Senate members of the committee insisted the house itself ought to be persuaded to have a roll call vote on the debenture section, but house conferees declared they could not ask this because this branch considered the section an invasion by the senate of the house's right to initiate revenue legislation.

Although the meeting for the second time broke up in total disagreement, the conferees were not pessimistic about the ultimate outcome of their negotiations.

In preparation for another meeting of the conference committee tomorrow, Chairman McNary, of the senate agriculture committee, talked over the situation with house leaders. They were unable, however, to conclude on anything that might speedily help the situation.

Galveston To See Foreign Beauty

Miss Kelly Hipp

One of the foreign beauties who will compete with Uncle Sam's loveliest at the International Pageant of Pulpititude to be held in Galveston, Texas, June 8-12, is Miss Kelly Hipp, of the little duchy of Luxembourg.

Miss Hipp received a total of 638 points as against 426 for her nearest rival from a jury of artists, newspaper people and moving picture directors.

How to Achieve Beauty

Summer tanned girls and women must use special rouge and lipstick—yes, and eye make-up—with their new brown skins. Delicate rosy tints deep enough for light winter skins are scarcely suitable for the summer tanned complexion.

Gypsies and American Indian maids do not enhance their copper color with crushed roses or raspberry tones. Their taste of color is quite properly runs along brighter lines.

For the summer tanned skin—whether its color is a natural or an artificial brown—needs bright rouge and a very definite make-up to emphasize its charms.

The lady who chooses this complexion must be prepared to do it justly—by wearing rouge with an orange tint in it, either vivid coral or the more scarlet geranium shade. All types, blonde, medium and brunette, wear either of these rouges to great advantage with a gypsy tan.

You may select either a cream rouge or the dry compact kind. The cream is a little more difficult to apply smoothly—it must be blended in evenly over the foundation cream or liquid—but it is most attractive when skillfully used. The powder rouge goes on easily.

Whichever rouge you choose, be sure to dust over it with the final fluff of powder that completes your make-up—either in the gypsy tan or the warmer French ochre. In this way, the natural look is kept—and a naturalistic effect should be the key-note of this make-up.

Your lipstick, of course, will match your rouge, geranium to go with geranium or cardinal red to go with the coral tone.

And now for the eyes. Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance of eye make-up with the dark tanned skin tones. It is absolutely necessary, to give life and animation to the face, to wear eye-shadow—and, unless your eyelashes are dark—mascara.

Light brown eyelashes against a copper skin look curiously unharmonious and unattractive. They must be brushed and touched up lightly with a faint application of dark brown or black mascara, to give the eyes character and expression.

The eye shadow is worn on the eyelid in a creamy blend. It should match or harmonize with the eyes in color. Blondes usually look best in blue—although they may wear green. Mediums wear either blue, green or gray, and brunettes either gray or dark brown. This faint shiny touch of eye-shadow acts as the last delightful accent mark to the summer tan ensemble.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Thomas Edison is hunting the brightest boy in America. His lantern is a questionnaire which he is sending to schools the country over, asking school principals to administer it to their most likely pupils.

Mr. Edison's questionnaire caused quite a stir some time ago when college boys, applying for jobs in the Edison plant, were given it and fell down disastrously. Whereupon Mr. Edison, Self-Made Man, had a few things to say about the inadequacy of our modern educational system, and so on.

HE WAS "GUYED"
There was no little "guying" directed at the questionnaire and Mr. Edison's ability to tell when Rome fell and why means real intelligence. Many critics who resented his "showing up" of higher learning reminded him that anyone could find out specific facts, but that education created a trained mind which knew what to do with facts, as well as where to find them.

HE'S BRAVE
However, all this may be. Mr. Edison is as brave as the judge of a baby contest, for finding the brightest boy in America involves parental pride in offspring, and nothing raises such a hubbalooboo as a clashing of some several hundred thousand samples of said parental pride.

CANT BE DONE
While there is little doubt that no possible imaginable method can really pick the nation's brightest boy any more than a beauty contest can ever really find the prettiest girl, these attempts of successful age to help yearning youth always bring a mellow glow.

That grand old woman, Schumann-Heink, used her swan song audience to set upon the stager's road a young girl.

Women and men seem equally generous in this attempt to pass on to youth those things which they attained through soul-bilistering endeavor.

It is not a sex trait to be generous or nigardly. It's axiomatic that the really big human does this; the small one does not.

LET GIRL DO IT!
Speaking of youth, a political row severed the ranks of the Cleveland League of Women Voters. After weeks of bickering with the usually dignified organization almost split, a girl just five years out of college was given the acting presidency and the challenge to caulk the seams of the splitting vessel.

SHE'LL DO IT
Probably she'll do the job and do it "slick," but by the same token, there is little doubt that any number of older women could have been found to do it equally well. The point is that we are living in an age of youth, with youth having everything its own way from the time it takes its new weekly pair of silk stockings for granted while mother goes in cotton, down to the time when a woman of over 35 is evicted from the job in order that a younger one may have it.

SHE WAS OLDER
Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, 58, and a grandmother, for instance, is showing some of the spirit and ability and logic and good judgment which most employers and other people are inclined to believe that only youth has these days.

No spicier line has been heard in our nation's forum for a long time than her edict that neither she nor anyone else should pay her unjust fine. And her completely femalish "giving the court a piece of her mind" was quite in line with the antics for which we praise and admire youth, but which, if we would only stop and look and listen for it, is heard and seen just as often in the elders.

Time Is Misjudged Robber Gets Mixed Up In Dallas

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, May 21.—A misjudgment of time today resulted in the failure of an attempt to steal the payroll of the Armstrong Packing company.

Thomas Miers, 17, messenger, took the payroll of several thousand dollars from the bank to the company office at 9 a. m. two hours later, while on another errand, an automobile bumped the rear of his car. An unmasked youth opened the door of Miers' automobile, apologizing. Then he jumped in, held a pistol at Miers' side and ordered the messenger to drive on. A few blocks away, the would-be robber alighted, without the payroll, which he had found was not in the car. He jumped into another machine which had been following and sped away. The robber's first automobile was found where he left it, the engine still running. It belonged to a local auto rent company.

(By Associated Press) SAN ANTONIO, May 21.—A telegram signed by three women was sent to Attorney General William D. Mitchell today asking that a special federal prosecutor investigate the congressional election in this district last November which returned Congressman Augustus McCloskey, democrat, a victor over Harry M. Wurzbach, republican. Congressman McCloskey subsequently was tried on charges of altering election returns and was acquitted. The telegram, signed by Mrs. J. S. Peter, former president of the city federation of women's clubs, Mrs. W. C. Gardner, and Mrs. T. J. Murray, declared there was reason to believe that John D. Hartman, U. S. District Attorney, deliberately failed to conduct any investigation, and is "not in sympathy" with an investigation of the election such as was recently asked in petitions by a number of San Antonio women. The telegram charged conspiracy.

Tech is to edit a booklet of information intended primarily for freshmen but which will probably be given to all new students at the beginning of the fall term. This booklet, used by many colleges and is popularly nicknamed "Freshman Bible." Don Boggs will be editor-in-chief and will be assisted by Luther Williams while Holmes Webb, has been named art editor; Canon Clements, sub editor; H. Y. Price, Jr., poetry editor; Wayne Castleberry, humor editor; Lizzie Belle Clements, social editor; and Hubert Hopper, church editor.

The book is sponsored by the religious organizations of the campus and will give a review of college life in Texas Tech, of activities and introduce the faculty through illustrations.

The final all-college dance of the year will be given tonight at the gymnasium beginning at 9 o'clock. The Bucannear's orchestra is to play.

Grover C. Good, of Dallas, head boy's work in Texas, sponsored by Y. M. C. A. was a campus visitor yesterday.

Reports from Dean Geronzo of June are to the effect that few juniors have had their hours checked and made out a tentative schedule for next year.

OLD GOLD wins second place at Harvard

Two-year old "O. G." runs second to the old favorite brand entrenched at HARVARD for more than 14 years

Two years against fourteen... a comparatively new cigarette against three veteran brands. Yet OLD GOLD, the youngster, almost won! It defeated two of its veteran contenders... and nearly defeated the third!

This is the story of the Public Cigarette Test conducted at Harvard, by Edward T. Batchelder of "The Harvard Crimson" Editorial Board.

With the single exception of the test at Harvard, OLD GOLD has scored an unbroken string of victories in these comparative taste-tests.

But at Harvard, where pipe smoking is a tradition and the taste is for heavy tobaccos, smooth and mellow OLD GOLD faced its hardest contest. 148 undergraduates smoked and compared the four cigarettes with names concealed.

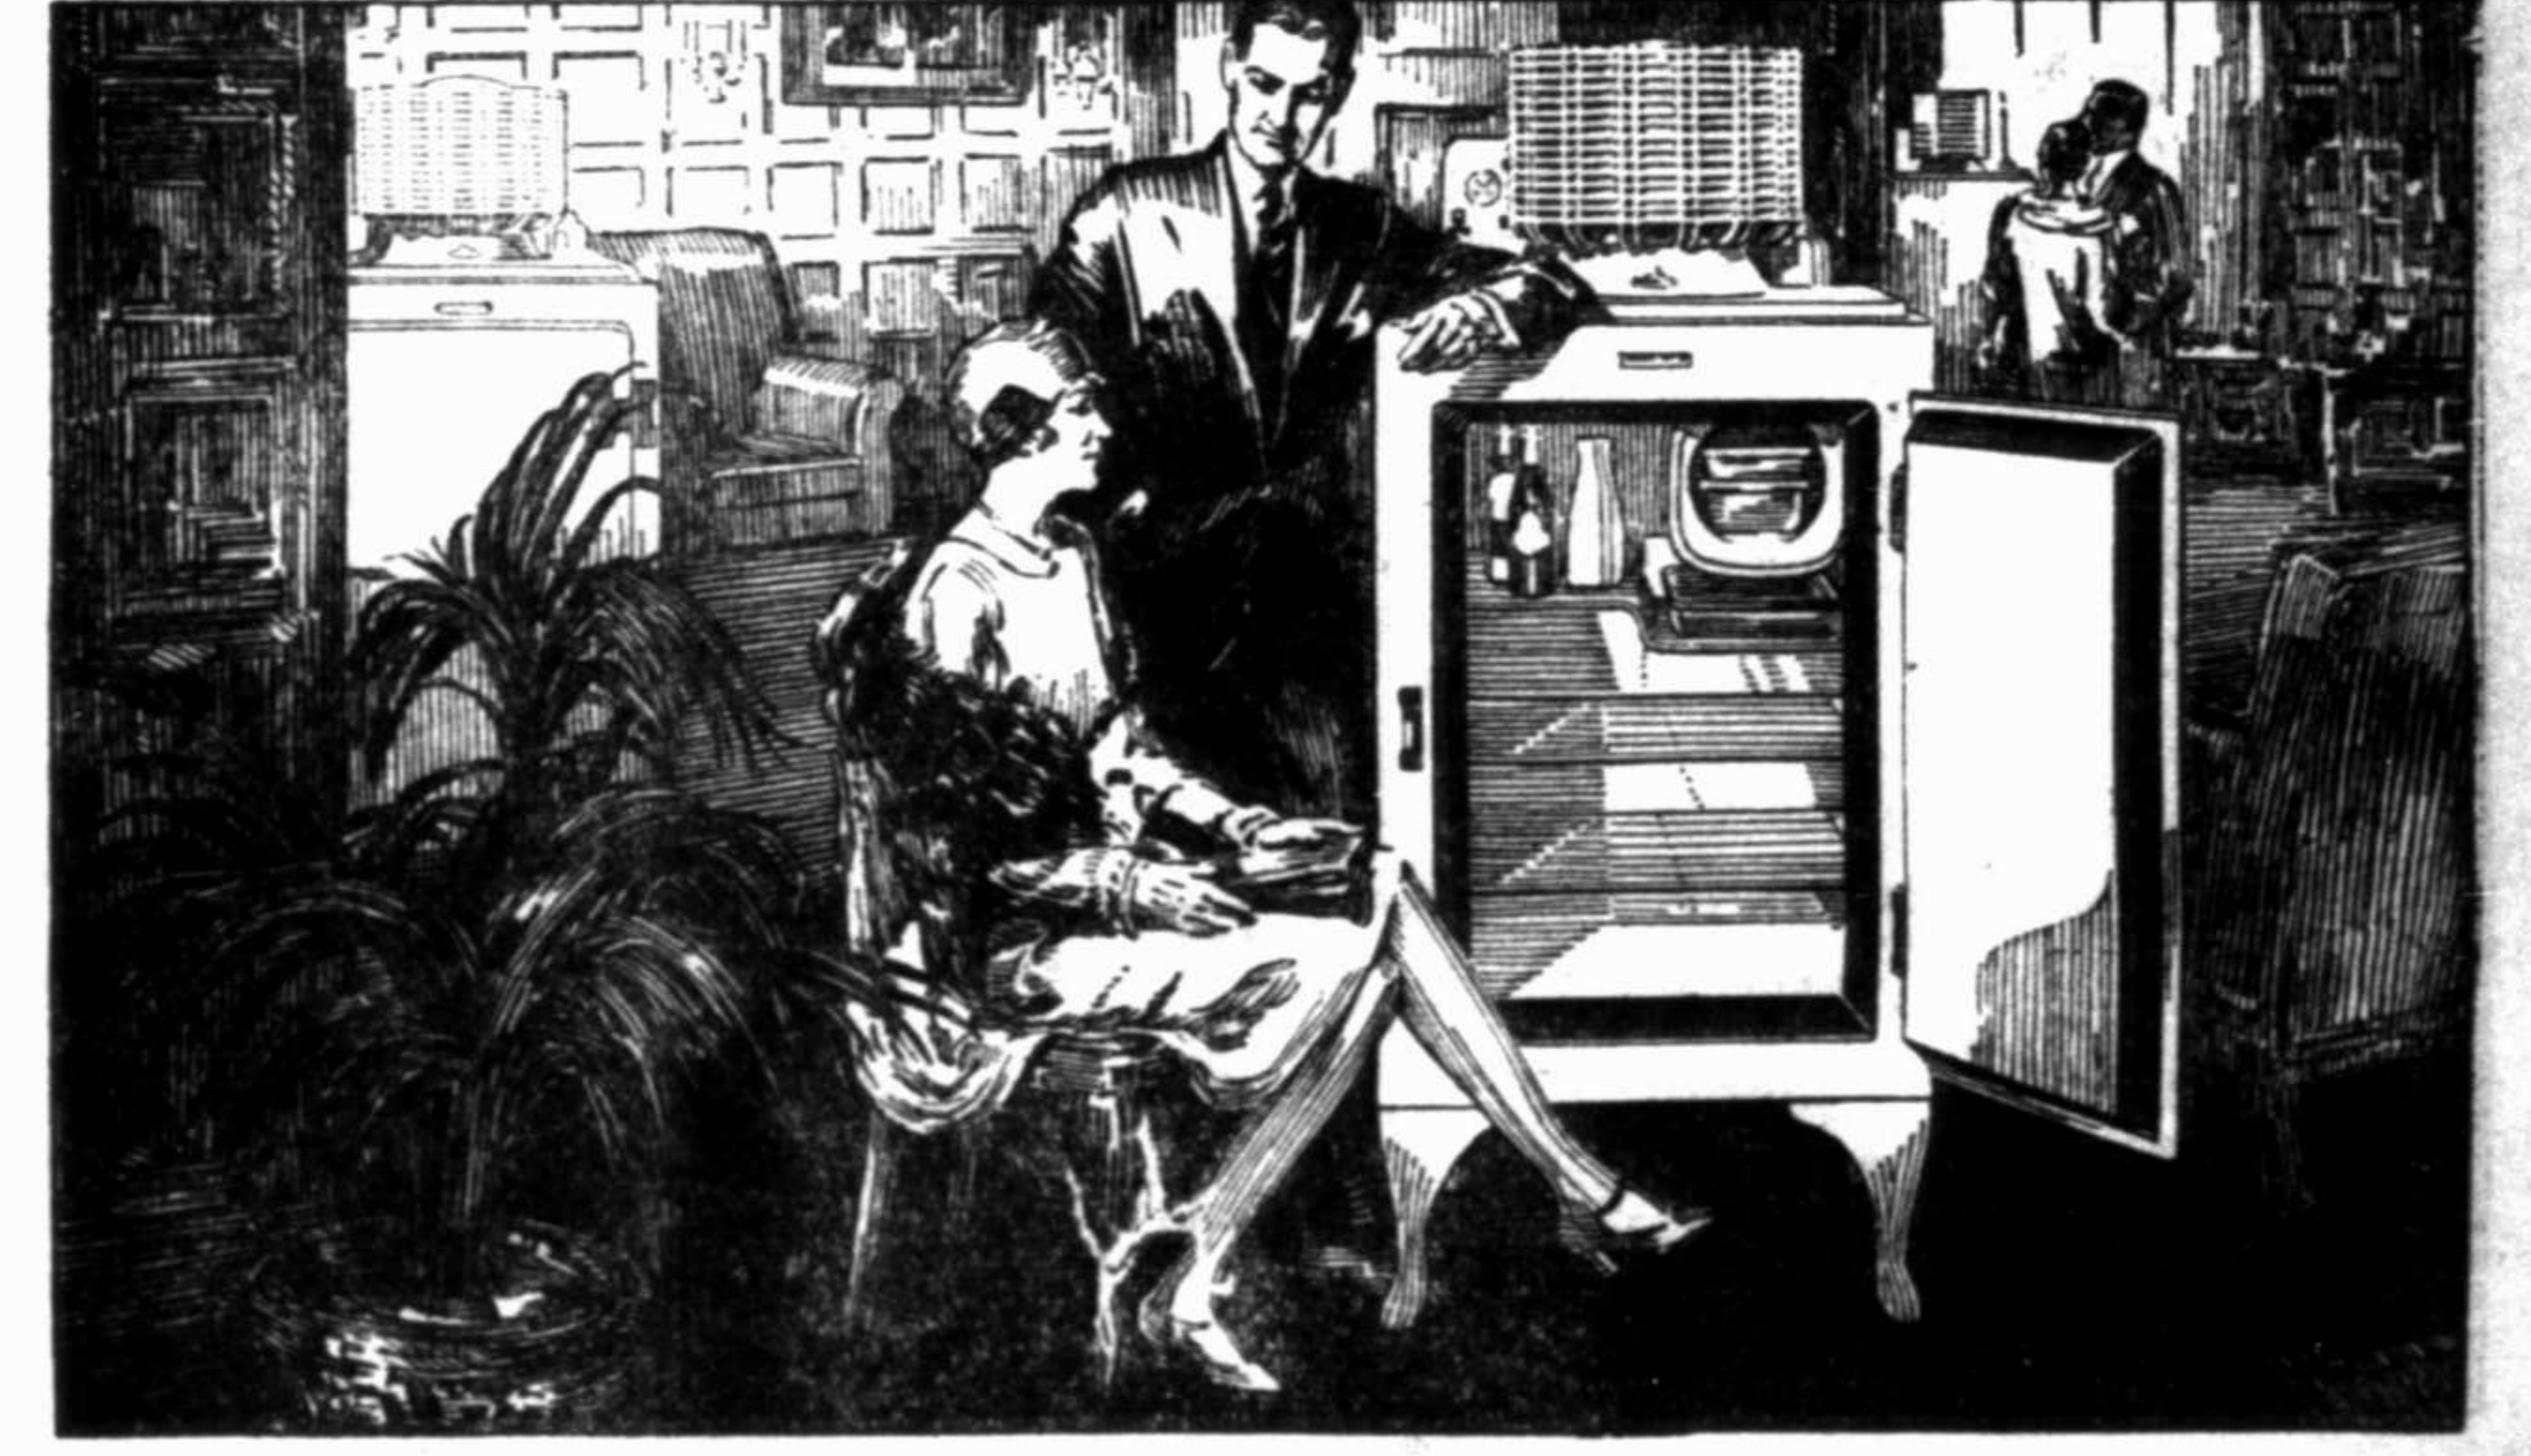

Yet OLD GOLD stood second in its total of "first choices!" It barely missed defeating the brand established at Harvard 14 years!

Man o' War, the greatest horse of his time, lost one race. And in its first and only defeat, OLD GOLD, the two-year old, felicitates the fourteen-year old victor.

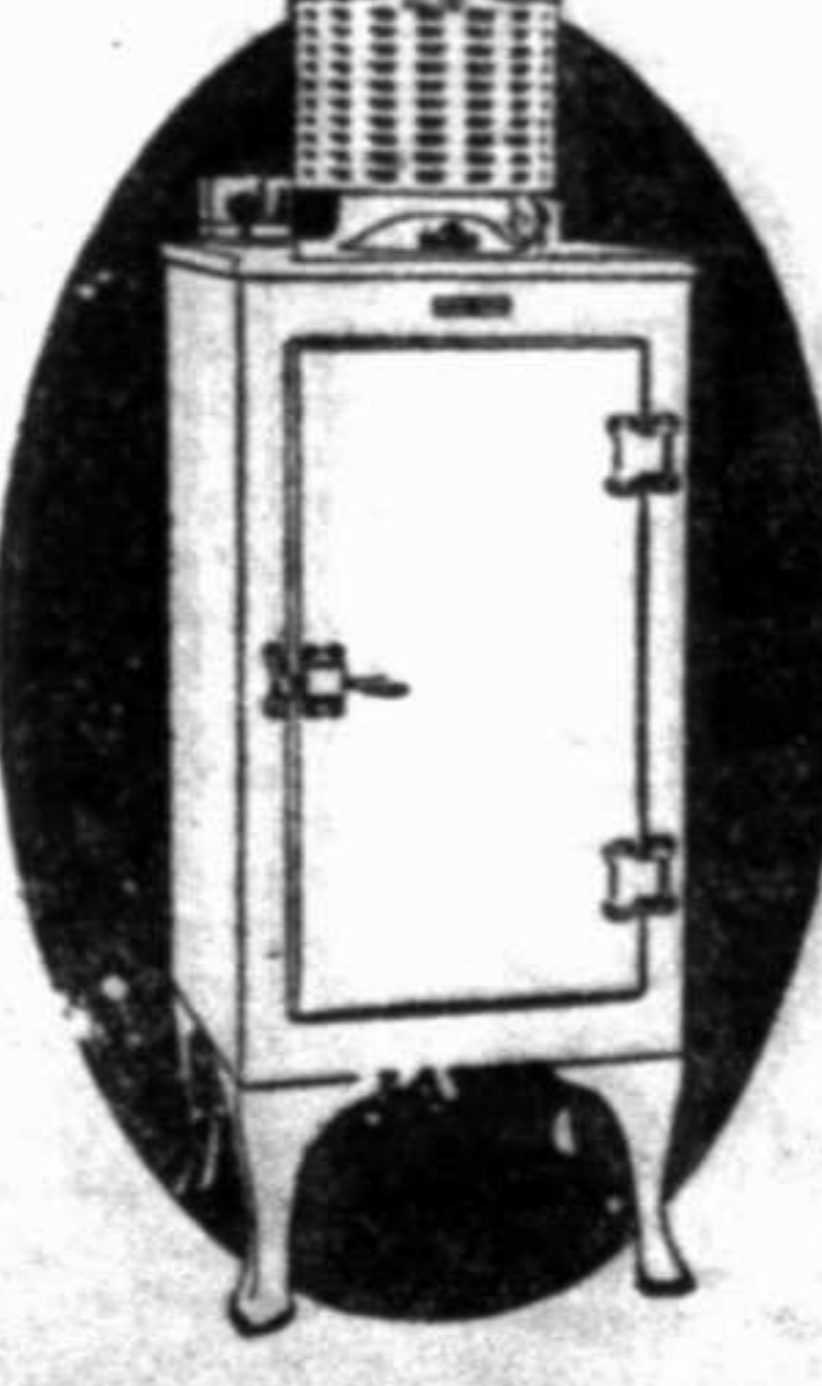

The four leading cigarettes, "masked" with paper sleeves to conceal their brand names.

Two years ago this month the General Electric Refrigerator was first publicly announced. It completely revolutionized the art of refrigeration. Fifteen years of research and development had produced a refrigerator with an hermetically sealed, dust-proof mechanism, mounted on top... a refrigerator with an improved type of cabinet, mounted on legs... one with an accessible temperature control... that established a new standard of quiet operation... that required no oiling... that dispensed with all troublesome machinery... that lowered operating costs... that carried an unqualified two-year service guarantee. A radical improvement has been made in the cabinet! It is now all-steel! It cannot warp. It is as strong as a safe. The new models at our display rooms invite your inspection. You may purchase on conveniently spaced payments. Artist Has Praise For Tech Campus; Finishes Work On Dr. Horn's Portrait

"The Texas Tech campus has one of the prettiest plants in the world," said Dr. Peter Plotkin, artist, who returned to his home in Abilene yesterday after putting the finishing touches to a portrait of Dr. Paul W. Horn which is to be presented to the college by the senior class.

Dr. Plotkin is a graduate of the Royal Russian university and has travelled widely and seen many colleges and universities.

Left An Orphan. The artist who is a Russian-Jew was left an orphan at an early age, his parents having been massacred during an Easter celebration. A man who was an intimate friend of Leo Tolstoy, the famous novelist and dramatist, adopted Plotkin and he became a follower of the Russian writer.

At the Royal Russian university the young man became a pupil of Replin, an eminent painter, sculptor and etcher. Following his graduation from the university, Dr. Plotkin came to America with a delegation from the Keresny government requesting American intervention in Russian affairs and spoke at Madison Square Gardens in behalf of his mission.

Legion Adopts Painting. Perhaps the most famous picture done by the Russian-American is the one entitled "Never Alone" which was adopted by the American Legion during the national convention held in 1921 as their official picture. This past spring Dr. Plotkin has

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Evil men understand not judgment; but they that seek the Lord understand all things.

Better is the poor that walketh in his uprightness, than he that is perverse in his ways, though he be rich.—Proverbs, xxviii, 5, 6.

BETTERING THE DRAINAGE

THE AVALANCHE notes with considerable pleasure the fact that the city is already taking steps to improve the drainage on South Avenue Q where the flood water, in time of rain, has a habit of backing up into people's yards and basements, stalling motor cars endeavoring to get to the southwest portion of the city and making itself generally obnoxious. It is a forward step—this enlarging of the storm sewers and doubtless there are other sections in need of attention.

To be sure, it doesn't rain a great deal in this part of the world. But when it rains, as the old adage has it, it generally pours and when it pours water stands in the streets and basements.

Flood waters, even when they only make their appearance once or twice in every blue moon, are not conducive to good public health. Farther than that, they make traffic terrors practically unbearable. The fact that the city fathers realize the problem in its true light is worthy of commendation.

MALE MORE SUICIDAL

The male of the human species is more deadly than the female in the matter of self destruction, according to a statistical bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. If you are a man you are many times more liable to end your own life by your own hand than a woman is to take the same rash liberties with her own vital spark.

Between the ages of 15 and 19 female suicides are more than two and a half times as many as those among males, but beyond that age man's prodigious self-destruction is increasingly fatal and carries the lead to the bitter end. After the age of 55 about seven times as many men as women make the sorry finish that proves them to be towards.

There is honor for women in these figures. They are shown to be of firmer courage at every age except the years in which they are most impressionable. No reasons for the taking of their own lives by either men or women are given but the figures give bases for guesses. One can envisage the young girl being prompted by a blasted love romance, lack of employment or shame. As she passes the dividing line between extreme youth and maturity she enters that period wherein she possibly is happily married, satisfactorily employed or has acquired the judgment that steers her away from possible causes of self-destruction or detours her from the dead end in the face of what might have prompted her to act differently at an earlier age.

The ages at which male suicides far outnumber those of female, from 55 on, indicate that lack of wealth and the difficulty of making headway against the trials of falling business or lack of employment may be causes of self-destruction. The strength of both men and women begins to lessen at about 40 and it is to the credit of women that they have more courage to bear the onslaughts of nature than men have.

A TRAFFIC PROBLEM

Sooner or later the community must choose between utility, coupled with necessity, and beauty, coupled with tradition. At least once in the life of every community, whether of colonial settlement or modern product of a realtor's advertising, there comes a time when one road or the other must be traveled. At the fork in the road every traveler must choose for himself.

It is coincidental that traffic has been the vehicle which has most frequently brought communities to the puzzling cross-roads. The need for broader thoroughfares and the menace of highway curves and obstructions make it mandatory upon states, counties, cities and towns to answer the question.

Soldiers and firemen's monuments and elaborate fountains raised by communities and elaborate squares a half century ago are today making traffic control extremely difficult if not impossible in many cities and towns. The Lincoln Highway Association threatened to change the route of that highway if a Pennsylvania city on the highway did not remove the monument on its public square. The city had been debating the question for years while traffic at its busiest street intersection was in constant chaos. In some communities the broad open courts themselves provide traffic problems. Ancient trees, historical buildings, landmarks, and valuable buildings present similar difficulties.

Reverence for traditions, landmarks and monuments is deep-rooted in the citizen after centuries of cultivation. Traffic needs and problems are as neutral as they are practical. The public will watch with interest this battle between sentiment and utility.

THAT WHEAT YIELD

With every section of the Panhandle-Plains area represented, the Panhandle Grain Dealers association, in convention at Amarillo the other day, estimated the 1920 wheat yield in their territory at 30,000,000 bushels—a banner crop for all time.

The 30,000,000 bushel estimate, says the Amarillo Daily News, is highly conservative and many old timers in the section believed that the 35,000,000 bushel mark would be reached by the time all the crop is gathered.

If the price of wheat is held to the point where it should be there will be prosperous times in the Panhandle and in the northern section of the South Plains. If, however, there is a bumper crop everywhere, growers will likely fail to realize as much as they did year before last and the year before that.

This farming game, as it is played in America, is a funny one at times. You often lose when you win and win when you lose. Yields—as far as being heavy are concerned—rarely cut much ice in the matter of bank balances. It is a condition which should not be tolerated much longer.

Sooner or later we shall have to have a serial count guard to bring down liquor-laden planes which make hold to fly within three miles of this grid.

People say that it is a few cuts words for a rainy day.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

ANNULING OBSOLETE FEDERAL LAWS FOUND TO BE ALMOST HOPELESS JOB

BY CHARLES F. STEWART Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Among every so often some student of the legal past digs up one obsolete law or another—adopted by an extinct generation for the needs of its time; long forgotten but never repealed—and chuck it, like a wrench, into the social and economic works of today, to play smash, until legislative mechanics fish it out and repair all the damage they can.

Statutes which have outlived their usefulness, and are liable to become an infernal nuisance in irresponsible hands, obviously ought to be annulled.

"But just try it," exclaims Congressman Roy G. Fitzgerald, of Ohio, chairman of the house of representatives' committee on revision of laws, "and see what a hopeless job it is!"

After years of toll Representative Fitzgerald succeeded in getting the last congress approval of a United States code, approximately the size of an unabridged dictionary; and of a system by which future supplements will automatically keep themselves up to date.

Thus he has rendered it possible to find a law, once passed—which it was not before.

"The next step, however," he explains, "is to rewrite the whole thing, so that any layman can understand it, without consulting an expert; and to omit, following their repeal, all the laws for which there is no further excuse.

"And to speak of that as a life-time undertaking is to express it entirely too mildly. It will require several."

The start on the task of codifying the federal laws dates back to the early 1870's.

"Before that," says the Ohio representative, "the jumble was terrible. Nobody knew what earlier congress had done or left undone. Laws which already had been enacted were re-enacted. Laws were amended which already had been repealed. The courts had no idea what law was and what was not law.

Then arose a new difficulty. Much of what had been enacted was so idiotic that the temptation was irresistible to change it, to make some sense. That amounted to new legislation, which did not do. A great deal of work had to be thrown away after it had been done."

Nevertheless, an edition and a second edition did appear, as a result of General Butler's efforts, but more statutes continued to pile up. Soon the situation was as bad as ever. A commission dallied over it for years.

A decade ago another resolute attempt was initiated, which finally gravitated into Representative Fitzgerald's charge.

"A more thankless work never was devised for a member of congress," he declares. "What does his district care?—when told that he is putting all his best energies into a federal code!"

All the same, the Ohioan is an enthusiast. Moreover, the bar, the courts and everyone who may yet be involved in federal litigation owe him a debt of gratitude. Especially will they owe him their thanks if he achieves the repeal of a veritable mountain of obsolete laws.

How many are there which should be wiped out forthwith?

"Hundreds," rejoins the congressman.

"Yet they must be annulled," he continued, "with the utmost care and diplomacy or each attempt develops into a hard-fought issue.

"For instance, we have a statute which deals with the status of certain army officers, of a rank no longer in existence. For that reason I want the law rescinded. I was basing on the ground that some time, congress may create those ranks again."

The Buckeye representative exhibited a tentative draft of a bill to cancel some 200 laws enumerated by number and title.

"But sh-h-h!" he warned. "Nobody must hear of it. They're as dead as mummies now, but they would be resurrected and have plenty of fighting friends if it were revealed that I'm trying to bury them."

"You don't know what fetish worship is!"

And are the states as bad as the federal government?

Representative Fitzgerald laughed. "The last I knew about it," he answered, "there was a law in Ohio—I suppose there is yet—in which a holly defender, anyone should refer to it as old fashion and gut alike; that there is between them some vague attachment, something like a telepathic connection, which causes them to be joyful or sorrowful at the same moments.

In order to prove the truth or falsity of this belief, Professor H. H. Newman of the University of Chicago, one of the greatest authorities on the subject of twins, has studied the cases of several sets of twins separated in youth and reared at great distances from each other.

A Wide Difference

In one instance, one of the twins was adopted by relatives and the other by friends of the family. One was taken to Canada when she was 2 years old and the other remained in England until she was 17 years of age. These girls received about the same amount of education and had about the same opportunities.

They are what modern science recognizes as identical twins. Indeed, the markings on the palms of the hands are almost the same, as well as the finger prints. The twins were found to be, after the passage of time, about nine pounds different in weight but with hair color, eye color and ears and teeth very similar, if not identical.

They were given a great many mental tests and were found to be quite different.

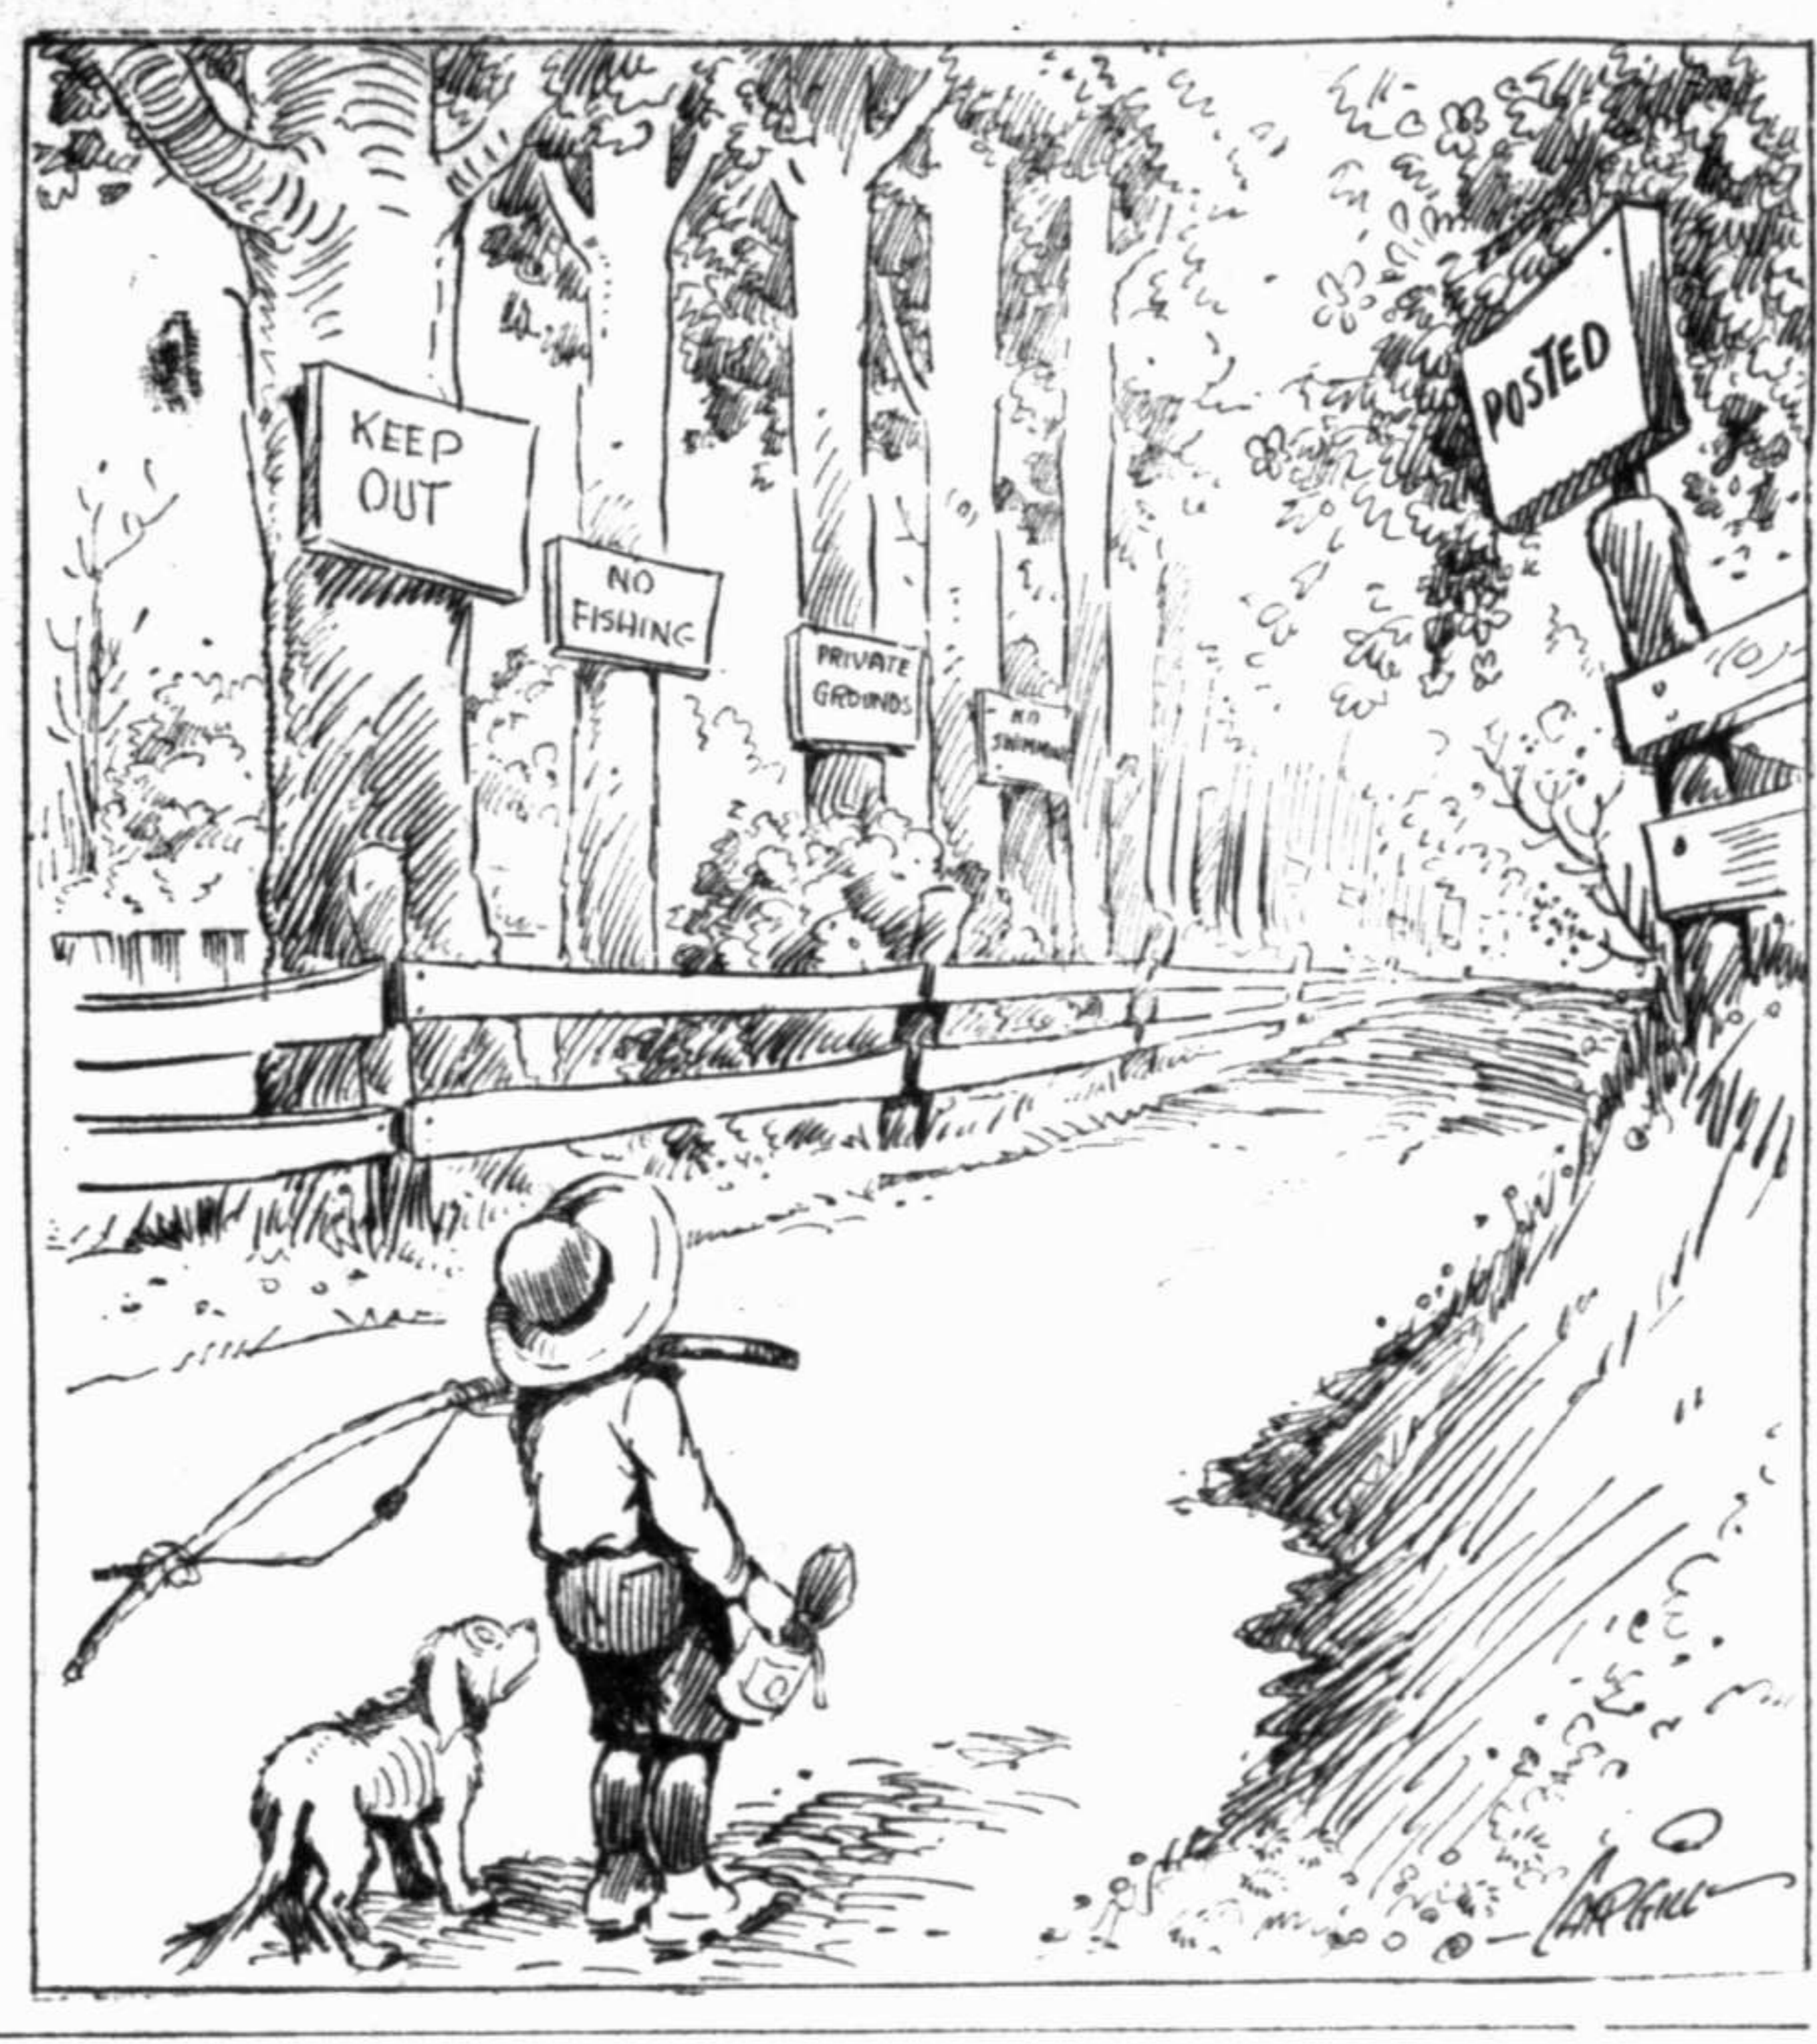

If twins are far apart and are not acted on by the same situations, they are not likely to be affected at the same time in any way. In other words, there is not the slightest proof of any spiritual or telepathic connection between identical twins.

A humorous writer pleading for immediate abolition of the word "reaction" claims it has been over-worked. There was bound to be a reaction.

The Voice Of The Great Outdoors

RICH GIRL AND POOR GIRL BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE meets STEPHEN ARMITAGE when he rescues her fox fur from a thief.

Their friendship grows until PAMELA JUDSON, daughter of Mildred's employer, tries to lure him away from her.

NOBLE becomes infatuated with Pamela and she plays both men. Her brother, HOWARD, is in love with Mildred, who tries to keep him from gambling with Huck's crowd.

When Stephen continues seeing Mildred, Pamela cables her father to discharge her. Harold tries to prevent this but fails. Pamela succeeds in poisoning Stephen's mind against Mildred and the latter leaves her.

Then Pamela tries to break with Huck and when he objects tells him she and Stephen are engaged. She tells Stephen that is the only way she can get rid of Huck and pleads with him to confirm the engagement.

Huck commands Harold to prevent Pamela's marriage to Stephen under fear of exposure concerning a forged check. Harold says he can't force Pamela so Huck plans to dispose of Stephen. He has one of his pals ask for a demonstration of a car by Stephen and they set a trap to steal it from him. He goes back to his office expecting to be discharged but nothing is to be done until after a full investigation.

Pamela insists on Stephen attending a dinner that night in honor of their engagement.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVII Pamela was stirring rock candy in her demi-tasse when Stephen joined her in the dining room of the Judson Hotel. She ordered a cup for him and Stephen told the waiter to bring a regular size. Pamela filled it twice for him.

"Nervous," she smiled at him across her own particular table which had fresh cut flowers on it.

"Bad day," Stephen replied. Pamela pouted. "You don't look at all as if you liked being engaged," she said childishly.

The remark irritated Stephen; it always made him impatient when Pamela stepped out of character. He preferred her as the ruthless little demon he knew she was under her exterior of angelic beauty. But the beauty made him tolerant. And tonight she had enhanced it with all the art and skill she could command from high-priced beauty specialists.

She had slept until midnight, got up at the early afternoon to wake her up, and then had come home to give herself over to becoming a fairy princess for the night.

Suddenly Stephen reached out and touched her hand. "If I lose you, Pam," he said, "I'll never get over it."

Pamela looked at him in astonishment. "Are you rattling a skeleton at me?" she asked. "You sound suspiciously like a person with a past."

"Not a past," Stephen confided but a darning uneasy present with a most uncertain future.

Pamela laughed. "Don't let it get you," she advised. "Marriage isn't such a responsibility anymore. I take it you're thinking of how you're going to pay for my stockings. That's about all a touter's salary is supposed to be good for with rich girls, isn't it? But really, I think I'll use it to buy bath salts for my Peké."

Stephen did not smile. "Don't joke, Pam," he said earnestly.

"I'm in a hole."

Pamela shrugged. "Well, what of it?" she returned lightly. "Dad will get you out."

Stephen groaned. "He'll get you out, you should say. It's said miserably. 'Your father will never let you marry a man with no future.'"

"Oh what is the trouble?" Pamela exclaimed impatiently. She was beginning to feel bored.

Stephen told her all that had happened that day. "Is that what's spoiling our evening?" she cried unfeeling. "I thought it was something serious."

"It will be serious when old D. A. M. gives me the gale and I've nowhere to go," Stephen declared. "Don't be silly, you'll find another position."

"That's only half the trouble," Stephen persisted. "Can you, Pam, dear, live on the money I'm able to earn?"

Pamela looked at him with melting eyes. "Of course, Steve, darling," she whispered tenderly. But there was no more sincerity back of her words than real softness in her heart. She hadn't a matter of fact, the barest idea of what living on a small salary meant. But all such matters could be adjusted after she and Stephen were married, she felt.

Stephen believed her, at least he believed that she would try to meet him halfway. His burden became lighter but he'd have such instant relief to hopelessness if he'd known that the man who had furiously watched his departure from his hotel was at that moment in his, Stephen's room, on a silent and malicious errand.

Or that Carl Short was more than ever convinced of his guilt. Short had not been able to get in touch with Lefty Flint, but his failure did not occasion him any surprise. It only confirmed his belief that Stephen had warned the man he was under suspicion.

But Short wasn't worried over that either. So long as Stephen felt himself secure it would be possible to reach Lefty Flint simply by shadowing the former. What Short wanted was information that would prove beyond a doubt that Lefty was a suspicious character. This he got easily enough.

He learned that Lefty had a room record. Before becoming a runner he'd been in trouble over a stolen car. That was enough for Short.

Which was exactly what Duke Brogan and Huck Connor had had in mind when they polished off their plans for framing Stephen.

At this point in his handling of the case Short went home and to bed. But he did not go to sleep. And while he thought over the circumstantial evidence against Stephen that young man was the center of interest among a group of Pamela's friends. He'd almost forgotten his troubles.

But if he could not see the black cloud that was gathering over his head there was one who prayed tearfully that harm would not befall him.

When Harold had gone to Mildred after his visit to Huck's room at the time Huck had avowed his intention of ruining Stephen, he was in a pitiable condition indeed. His resistance was at a low ebb and the temptation to unburden himself to Mildred was almost overpowering. His knowledge of her love for Stephen alone held him back. He couldn't depend upon her to keep his secret. And even if he did not tell her that Huck had threatened Stephen he knew that she would not remain silent with Pamela in danger.

Harold had no mercy for himself in comparing his cowardice with Mildred's staunch spirit.

not left to his cringing will. Mildred saw at once that he was in an unusually anguished state of mind. She almost feared that he was verging on madness. His face was alternately flushed and pale and he couldn't hold his hands steady enough to light a cigaret.

He sat down, got up again, walked to the radio tuned it in, tuned it out, sat down again, got up.

Mildred couldn't stand it. She signaled Connie out of the room and then she told Harold to sit down, pointing to the big arm chair that was now back in the living room.

He sank into it with an audible groan and Mildred flew to his side. She put her hands on his shoulders in a comforting way and begged him to tell her what was wrong.

"Something," she said frantically. "You refuse to let me help you. I'm going to Mr. Dazel and have him cable your father."

Harold jerked up his head. "For God's sake, Mildred, don't do that!" he screamed. "Something," she said frantically. "You refuse to let me help you. I'm going to Mr. Dazel and have him cable your father."

Harold sank his face in his hands again and Mildred waited. Her heart ached for him but she believed that a more level head than his was needed to fight Huck Connor.

With a painful gulp in his throat Harold looked up and spoke. "He's got something that... I don't want dad to see," he said and his terror drove him to glance about at his simple surroundings in a quick way that revealed to Mildred more than anything else the magnitude of his oppression.

"No one's listening," she said soothingly. "Won't you tell me more?"

Harold gripped her hands. "I'm afraid of him, Mildred," he whimpered, and a cold sickening feeling crept over the girl.

"Why?" she whispered, and Harold's subject fear had communicated itself to her to such an extent that her voice came strained and unnatural.

"He can make me do anything," Harold told her wildly. "I'm a beastly coward, Mildred. His voice was growing louder now, showing his excitement. "You ought to kick me out in the gutter where I belong! I'm no good! I won't even save my sister, and maybe it's just because you love him that I won't save Armitage either! I'm too rotten to know what's decent."

"Stephen!" The name burst from Mildred's lips in a passionate cry. "Harold, what do you mean? What has Huck Connor to do with Stephen?"

phen?" She was shaking the boy's shoulders furiously, trying to make him speak, but Harold's confession was at an end. Mildred's reaction to the mention of Stephen's name had made him realize that she would fight for Stephen at any cost.

Her fingers clutched painfully through his clothing; he heard her voice break, it was unbearable. He had to tell her something.

"Stop shaking me," he said, and tried to pull away.

"Then tell me; tell me about Stephen," Mildred pleaded.

"I will. Let me get my breath. Mildred dropped her hands and waited. Harold did not look at her. "He's going to marry Pamela," he said reluctantly.

For a moment there was a ghastly, faint silence. Then Mildred turned away with a choked sob. Harold lifted his face, saw her, the door, in flight. He stood up again. Franklin's name called to her but she did not answer.

Presently she sent Connie to ask him to excuse her. "She seems to have acute indigestion or something," Connie said a bit peeved because she could not understand the drama that she sensed was being played in their flat.

Harold left immediately, which provoked Connie into going back to join Mildred and trying to make her talk.

Finally Mildred reached out to her sister's hand and clung to it in a way that silenced Connie.

But later, with Connie offering sympathy and comfort as best as she could without words, Mildred told her about Stephen's engagement.

"And I love him, Connie," she added a word of pain in the white period words.

Connie said nothing, only pressed closer the arm she had thrown over her shoulder. But after a while her feelings got the better of her and she burst out angrily. "He'll get all that's coming to him with Pamela Judson. Marrying is money."

"Connie, he wouldn't. He loves her."

"After knowing you? Don't make me laugh."

Her words were small comfort to Mildred, who lay awake all night, through regretting that she had not made Harold tell her what Huck Connor could do to Stephen.

"Tomorrow," she told herself last. "I'll go to Huck Connor himself."

Death Takes James M. Dobie, Pioneer Cattleman Of Texas, Tuesday; Played Leading Part in State's Early Days

(By Associated Press)
SAN ANTONIO, May 21.—One of the southwest's most familiar figures was known to hundreds of his cattleman comrades of the old trails, moved to southwest Texas when he was 21. He was engaged in the cattle business until the time of his death. The Dobie ranches extend through La Salle, Webb, McMullen and Live Oak counties.

It was a favorite pastime of the pioneer cattleman to recall interesting experiences of the frontier and one of his stock stories was about a time when his wagon bogged down in front of what is now the Rice Hotel, in Houston.

Mr. Dobie made his first cattle drive in the late seventies. In 1878 he sent a herd of 800 horses to Dodge City, Kansas.

About 25 years ago Mr. Dobie purchased a 30,000 acre ranch thirty miles from Odessa. This has been known as the Dobie ranch since then. The major portion of it has been sold.

Mr. Dobie is survived by his widow and one brother, W. N. Dobie of La Grate.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday.

Wichita Men

between Wichita Falls and the South Plains, that city's trade relations with this section has been growing more and more in importance, until today its wholesale and distributing center is looked upon as that of such cities of Fort Worth, Dallas and others.

Surprised at Section

The vast majority of the Wichita Falls boosters had never before visited Lubbock and the South Plains. Expressions of amazement at the development obtaining here, particularly in this city, were to be heard from scores of them. Texas Technological college was a revelation to them, as was the city itself.

Mayor Harley D. Woods, as toastmaster at the banquet, spoke of the intercommunication of trade between Wichita Falls and Lubbock as engendering a relationship which had become a most valuable asset to both cities. "We are proud to have you here," he said, "so you may familiarize yourselves with this city's resources." He declared that West Texas was becoming more and more in the eyes of the remainder of the country and is being recognized as a section possessing resources that, while already momentous were hardly developed.

Bullington Talks

Orville Bullington, president of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, told the banqueters that many of the folks from his city had never before seen the South Plains. "They have marveled at the immensity of this area, and at the development which you folks have brought about in the past few years. I don't know of a place in the whole United States that gives the promise this section does, in every phase of activity. The entire Panhandle is coming to be looked upon by the rest of the nation as the breadbasket of the United States."

Bullington spoke of the evidence everywhere visible of an expanding dairy development and predicted that the South Plains was destined to take the lead in dairying for the state of Texas. He urged cooperation in the West Texas chamber of commerce in getting West Texas its rightful recognition from state and national governmental agencies.

Carcher City Mayor Talks

The mayor of Archer City, James Powers, delivered a flowery oration "diaphanously and sonorously," as he called it. Walter Nelson, president of the Wichita Falls junior chamber of commerce, and Burt King, attorney of that city, made well-received remarks. R. E. Shepherd, former mayor, "the singing troubador," and Don T. Haynes, mezzo-basso profundo, of that city, sang two numbers each that were heartily enjoyed.

Dean J. M. Gordon, of the school of liberal arts, at Texas Technological college, told the visitors of the needs of Texas Tech, as well as explaining its remarkable growth, with enrollment the first year, at 1,043; the second, at 1,533; the third at 1,682 and the fourth year, at 2,088. He declared the reason for the school's large enrollment being the urgent need of an institution of higher learning in West Texas.

R. J. Murray, vice-president of the chamber of commerce, spoke on cities being built, telling his hearers that while Wichita Falls was growing, in the past 12 or 15 years, by an increase of about 50,000, Lubbock had climbed from 4,851 to more than 22,000. "The next 10 years will see Lubbock a city of 65,000," the size of Wichita Falls today," he said, "and you city will grow accordingly. This is the greatest undeveloped agricultural section, here on the South Plains, in the United States."

Murray spoke of the fact that many great oil companies are carrying on extensive exploration campaigns for oil in this area, as they had in Wichita Falls during the past decade. He also told of Lubbock's national advertising campaign, being carried on in many national farm publications, and predicted that there were 100,000 families in East Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and other adjoining states, who would move into this section as soon as their financial conditions would enable them to move.

Much of the success of the occasion is due to the committees of the Lubbock chamber of commerce. The ticket committee for the banquet was composed of Ray Grisham, O. H. Hunt, C. W. Ribble, J. A. Bailey, E. L. Robertson and J. C. Anderson, while the committee in charge of providing transportation for the visitors was composed of Mrs. W. B. Powell and J. T. Trigg.

C. Wilson, N. L. Felton and W. J. Fowler. The latter two will represent the firm of Peters, Strange & Bradshaw, architects.

Hub Motor Company's Safe Rifled Of $135 Monday

Shortly after a car payment of $135 had been made, the safe of Hub Motor company, 1112 Main street, was rifled of that amount of cash and a considerable amount of checks Monday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock, while employees of the company were in the rear of the building.

City and county officers knew nothing of the robbery, they said Tuesday. One of the company had located no clue to the robbery last night.

No one was in the room when the cashier went to the bank, although he remembers seeing a man in the front office at the time the payment was made.

Banks have been notified to refuse payment of the checks taken in the loot.

Two Men Held In Jail In Chicken Theft Prolong

Two men are being held in the Lubbock county jail for investigation in connection with the theft of chickens, following reports which indicate that chicken thievery in Lubbock has been fairly widespread within the last few days.

W. M. Ross, who lives six miles southwest of Lubbock, reported Tuesday that 18 of his chickens had been stolen.

"Four or five other farmers have called in with similar reports within the last few days," said Sheriff Hardy. "In such cases officers encounter a difficult problem. If the stolen chickens are marked, or tagged, the thief removes all identification marks, and it is extremely difficult for a farmer to identify his chickens."

Silicon Deposit In Lynn Attracts Much Attention

Discovery Is Made 6 Miles South Of Tahoka; Rains Prevent Survey By Kansas Producer Last Week

(Special to The Avalanche)
TAHOKA, May 21.—Much interest is being manifested by the people of this place and the Silicon producers of the United States over the new Silicon deposit which has recently been found in this county. The deposit is six miles south of Tahoka and from the recent survey made by T. C. Thomas, a producer of Fowler, Kansas. It is of a very fine quality and of considerable quantity.

Thomas spent most of last week here making a survey and attempting to learn the extent of the deposit, but owing to the heavy rain and lack of proper tools went back to Kansas to get more equipment for a further survey.

Silicon is said to have a number of uses and is a very valuable product when found to be located near the surface of the earth as this is. It has been found to exist under four or five hundred acres of ground to a depth of from one to fifteen feet. The thickness has not yet been determined.

Settings of the Alamo, of Goliad, where Santa Anna massacred the Texans, and the conflict at San Jacinto, where Sam Houston's army was victorious would contribute a background that would grasp the attention of the nation, promoters claim.

BLANCHETTE NOW FEELS 30 YEARS YOUNGER, HE SAYS

"There is no question in my mind that no medicine that takes hold of a case of years standing, with a man of my years—I am 78—and builds up his strength and energy to a gain of ten pounds is a remarkable medicine."

MR. O. BLANCHETTE

"Before I started the Sargon treatment, I was so weak and run down, that I could hardly get around. I had suffered with chronic constipation and stomach trouble for years. My digestion was poor, my appetite failed me, and I was suffering with constipation brought on by biliousness.

"I tried medicines that gave me temporary relief, but that was all, and I was never more surprised, soon after beginning the Sargon treatment, than to find my appetite had returned, and to find myself eating and enjoying my food, and feeling better in every way. Then, as my strength and energy came back, and I commenced to feel alert, to take a new interest in things around me, and really enjoy life I was convinced I had at last found the right medicine.

"I feel thirty years younger than when I started the treatment.

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills ended my constipation and my biliousness is gone. They don't shock the system like other laxatives I have used, but are mild and act surely and naturally. I am certainly grateful to this wonderful treatment for all it has done for me."

The above statement was made recently by O. Blanchette, of 1512 Victoria St., Beaumont, a pioneer citizen of that place.

Sargon may be obtained in Lubbock from City Drug Stores or in Slaton at the City Drug Store.

Tunney Sued

Mrs. Fogarty's claim against Tunney on file at Stamford says that she met Tunney early in 1925 when he was training at Hot Springs, Ark., and that on May 29, that year, she obtained a divorce from John S. Fogarty at Fort Worth, Texas. Five days later, she says, she met Tunney at Hot Springs, Ark., and "on subsequent days" Tunney proposed to her and she agreed to marry him. She is "ready to comply with the request now" the complaint runs, but the retired champion "married another person."

The identity of that "other person" is not described.

To set up her claim of damages Mrs. Fogarty says she suffered such "mental shock" because of Tunney's marriage that she has been under care of physicians at Fort Worth and New York ever since due to a nervous condition.

Mrs. Fogarty has a son, Merrill, aged 10.

The land which Tunney bought comprises 90 acres. The tax records indicated that it was assessed for $14,000.

Copies Of Affidavit Made In 1928 Are Published

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP).—George W. Whiteside, attorney for Gene Tunney, made public today copies of an affidavit over the signature of Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty and dated July 24, 1928, stating the former heavyweight champion was under no obligation to her.

Whiteside said that prior to her action today in preparing to file papers in a $500,000 breach of promise action, Mrs. Fogarty had made numerous threats of damaging publicity, culminating in insistent demands just before Tunney's last fight. Her claims were investigated at that time, he said, and found to be without merit.

"Must Be Another Joke," Tunney Says In Italy

BRIONI, Italy, May 21 (AP).—James J. Tunney exclaims "I know absolutely nothing of the report," when informed today that papers in a suit for alleged breach of promise of marriage had been sent to Bridgeport, Conn., for filing. "It must be another joke," declared the former heavyweight boxing champion.

"When I am sued I let my attorneys worry," he went on. "I have all the worries I can handle right now here."

Mr. Tunney did not explain whether his last remark was in reference to the recent serious illness of his wife, the former Polly Lauder of Greenwich, Conn., upon whom an emergency operation was performed for acute appendicitis. She had been reported progressing favorably. He has remained in Europe since his marriage in Rome last October 3.

Thirty thousand automobiles will be registered in the Philippines this year, according to officials of the bureau of public works.

feet on points of personal privilege. Representative Harper, who was the author of the amendment, said he was too good "a sport" to try to kill the bill on account of the committee's action, but that he wanted the people of Texas to place the responsibility on the committee where it belonged.

The house was in turmoil during the last hours of its session, Speaker Barron being able to keep a quorum voting only by dispensing with the electric voting machine and having the clerk call the roll with each member compelled to either vote aye or no or record himself present but not voting.

The house concurred in amendments to the bills by Mrs. Laura Burleson Negley of San Antonio, which were designed to exempt from the 84 hour law matrons, nurses and superintendents of the state hospitals and eleemosynary institutions, but which the senate changed to apply only to orphan homes operated privately without profit. Under the bills as passed, employees of the state institutions are not affected.

Unaware of the damage, the occupants of the plane continued in the air more than an hour after the accident.

"Repairs will be made tonight and the plane would take off tomorrow morning on a second attempt to beat the record of the "Question Mark."

AMARILLO FIREMAN MAKES WISE DECISION

Another Railroad Man Has Gained Wonderfully On Only Two Bottles Of Orgatone

"I am just finishing my second bottle of Orgatone and I have gained wonderfully in health," said W. N. Worford, at his home a few days ago. Mr. Worford, a stationery fireman at the general office Santa Fe Railroad and lives at 3802 Tyler St., Amarillo, Texas.

"For twenty years," continued Mr. Worford, "I have suffered from indigestion, and my stomach was in such a bad condition every thing disagreed with me and I couldn't digest the food which my system really demanded. A short time after eating my food would sour, gas would form and bloat me up so at times I could scarcely breathe, many a night I would have to get up out of bed and take a dose of soda so I could get momentary relief. I would get up in the morning feeling as tired and worn out as if I hadn't gone to bed.

"I decided after reading the high endorsements to try Orgatone, and it certainly was a wise decision. My stomach is now in better shape than it has been in years and my food digests properly. I am relieved of constipation, and that tired and aching feeling has left me as if by magic. Orgatone has certainly proven to be a great medicine for my case and I highly endorse it to anyone suffering as I have done."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowers Drug Store under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Adv.
