T. & P. Plans An Extension West and North From Lovington

G. O. Bateman, Vice-President of Texas & Pacific System Much Impressed With Roswell

Roswell, N. M., March 4.—The Texas & Pacific railroad, in the event of its petition for an extension to Lovington in granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, contemplates an extension west and north from Lovington, G. O. Bateman, vice president of the Texas & Pacific told Roswell business men at a late hour Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Bateman made it plain that at this time he had nothing definite in the way of a promise that the Texas & Pacific would extend to Roswell, all that being dependent upon many matters yet to be worked out.

"In the first place we are not yet at Lovington. We would have to get to Lovington before we would get to Roswell," said Mr. Bateman, "and we have at this time not made much investigation as to tonnage and other matters which would justify a definite expression on this matter," he said.

"Oil development will also have much to do with our future plans," he said. "All of this is now in the future. However I can say that the Texas & Pacific does not at this time contemplate stopping at Lovington."

Mr. Bateman was much impressed with Roswell and the surrounding section. He was emphatic in this statement and suggested to Roswell business men in the discussion Saturday that Roswell and the Pecos Valley had more to gain from a Texas & Pacific extension into Lovington than from a Santa Fe extension.

The Texas & Pacific railroad has made application with the Interstate Commerce Commission for a permit to build a railroad from the extreme southeastern corner of the state into Lovington, a distance of 70 miles. The Santa Fe has made application to build a line from Seagraves, Texas, into Lovington, a distance of 30 miles, with a branch running from Lovington south into Hobbs, N. M.

Mexico in Theos of Revolution

Mexico City, Mar. 4, 1929.—Former President Calles today took over the duties of quelling a serious revolt in Mexico, being called out of retirement to the office of Secretary of War.

Thus far all indications have been that the revolt is entirely of a military nature, no mention being made in dispatches of any connection with so-called Catholic uprising reported at various times.

Two states—Sonora and Vera Cruz—are in control of the rebels who also claim that six states have joined the movement.

While royal troops were being dispatched to the affected regions, there had been no bloodshed thus far, the revolting military commanders simply taking over the state under their control without fighting.

Ambassador Dwight W. Morow, who spent the week-end at the Cuernavaca residence with his family and his prospective son-in-law Colonel Charles A. Lindberg, decided to cut his holiday short and return to the capital today.

President Portes-Gil issued a lengthy statement in which he asserted that the authorities had the situation in hand and that the revolt was engineered by a dissatisfied military-political group.

Ernest Orisson and Ed. Robinson, Lubbock dry goods merchants were prospecting in Portales Tuesday.

J. N. Killion was also arrested on charge of possession of liquor and was fined by Justice of Peace Kerr in the sum of $25.00.

Two automobiles of assorted liquors from Mexico were seized Friday by prohibition officers at Las Cruces, it was reported to the prohibition office here.

Al Shipley, Louis Stutz, and J. D. Earl, all claiming to be from Hollywood, were arrested. A large Paige sedan and a Dodge Six were confiscated.

The automobiles were fitted with secret compartments.

A 50-gallon still, a quantity of mash and seven gallons of moonshine whiskey were found on the Davis ranch nine miles southwest of Clovis. C. H. Davis was arrested.

Chamber of Com. Invites T. & P. to Extend to Portales

At the weekly luncheon on Tuesday it was decided that the Portales Chamber of Commerce would get busy and invite the Texas & Pacific railroad, which will be built into Lea county, to extend its line from Lovington to Portales.

From Lovington to Portales would open a rich agricultural and oil field, and would by the means of settling this immense area which is now principally used for pasture.

On the other hand it would give the Portales Valley a competing outlet for its products, which would greatly enhance the value of the Portales Valley irrigated farms.

It would also give a shorter haul for freight from Galveston, Dallas and Fort Worth Texas.

There is no estimating the value of this road should the Chamber of Commerce succeed in bringing it into this territory.

Reassessment Bill Headed for Defeat Is Belief of Writer

Santa Fe, March 5.—Senate bill 81, which would give the state tax commission authority to put into effect a reassessment of all property in the state, appeared doomed for defeat in the senate this afternoon.

Objections made to the bill are that it would give too much power to the tax commission, that it is cumbersome and that it is impracticable.

Anti-Liquor Bill is a Law; Vote 22 to 1

Vesely Casts Only Dissenting Ballot REPLACES "ONE QUART"

Edwards Says Senate Passed Back to House.

Santa Fe, March 5.—New Mexico has a new prohibition bill to replace the famous "one quart" law which drew so much fire from democratic orators during the campaign last fall.

The senate this afternoon passed house bill 224, the prohibition measure drafted by the house after it had killed senate bill 4, considered too drastic. The new prohibition bill, which is reported to be acceptable to the anti-saloon league and other temperance organizations, removes the one-quart provision from the old law and makes it more effective.

Vote 22 to 1.

The bill passed by a vote of 22-1. Senator Vesely casting the only dissenting vote. Senator Geake was absent.

Some rather lively discussion preceded passage of the bill. Senator Edwards, who voted against the senate prohibition bill, openly accused the senate of having passed the measure purely for the purpose of passing the buck to the house.

"This is a measure I can vote for and believe it is sensible," Edwards said of the house bill.

Senator Moon objected to a proposal to pass the bill without its third reading.

"Two years ago we did that, and they slipped in a one-quart provision and made us swallow it," Senator Moon declared.

Senator Vesely wanted to know if Senator Moon meant to tell the senate he had swallowed a quart.

The senate passed house bill 225 permitting the State University to mortgage its permanent fund for building purposes and a similar measure for the benefit of State College.

Rumor at Juarez Says Rebels Soon Be in Control

Details Lacking and Not Known Whether Troops There will Join Rebels

El Paso, Texas, March 6.—Claims that Juarez will be in the hands of revolutionists within 12 hours were made in Juarez today by revolutionary sympathizers.

Those sympathizers said that as soon as Juarez is in their hands the revolutionists will have possession of every port of entry into Mexico, including seaports.

Nothing definite could be learned in Juarez as to whether Gen. Marcelino Caraveo has gone over to the revolutionists and official denial was lacking. Army and civil authorities said they did not know whether General Caraveo had revolted.

Gen. Manuel J. Limon, commander of the Juarez Garrison, was not in his office this morning but was expected later.

Gen. Gregorio Prieto, chief of staff to Gen. Limon, said that troops left Juarez for the south last night, but he refused to state how many. It is believed that the detachment was made up of several hundred men.

Mayor Augustin Gallo of Juarez, arrived at the Garrison shortly before nine o'clock and hurriedly went into conference with Gen. Prieto. Both apparently very excited, and refused to give any information.

"You will find out later what I am going to do," Mayor Gallo told newspapermen.

El Paso, Texas, March 6.—The fate of Juarez was apparently hanging in the balance today with the revolutionary movement gaining greater force.

Both Gen. M. J. Limon, commander of the Juarez Garrison and Augustin Gallo, mayor of Juarez, fused to discuss the situation after of their stand in the rebellion.

Gen. Limon, who was in conference with army officials and civilians throughout the morning, refused to discuss the situation other than to say, "I know what I am going to do but I have no statement to make."

JEWELRY AUCTION AT N. M. DRUG STORE

New President In Early Start On Mass Of Work

Day Free of Engagements As He Starts His Work As Chief Executive

Washington, Mar. 5.—President Hoover made an early start on his first day as chief executive, arriving at his office at 8:55 a. m. ahead of nearly all the members of his staff and the White House force.

He switched on the electric lights to banish the murky gloom caused by lowering clouds outside and plunged immediately into work. His morning was free of formal engagements so that he might be unimpeded as he examined a mass of data which had been prepared for him.

Mr. Hoover arose at his usual hour, 7 a. m., and had breakfast with Mrs. Hoover and members of family. The menu consisted of grapefruit, bacon and eggs, toast and coffee, which is standard with the President.

The chief executive and the First Lady are occupying the Presidential suite used by Presidents Coolidge, Harding, Wilson, Taft, and Roosevelt. It consists of two large bedrooms with dressing room and sitting room and is located in the southeast corner of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr. and their children, Peggy Ann and Herbert III, have their suite in the northwest corner of the mansion. They will remain at the White House only a few weeks, returning then to their home in California.

Mrs. Mary Leavitt, of Long Beach Calif., sister of Mr. Hoover, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Regua of San Francisco, are guests at the White House for a week or more. Mrs. Jean H. Large of Palo Alto, California, sister of Mrs. Hoover and W. O. Henry, of North Dakota, uncle of the First Lady, remained overnight at the Street home, which will be occupied by Senator Walcott of Connecticut about April 1.

PADLOCKED FOR YEAR CHARGE SELLING LIQUOR

Santa Fe, Mar. 4.—The Del Norte company farm house at Albuquerque was ordered padlocked for one year by Federal Judge Colin Neblett here today. The place was operated by George Grag, Corn Grag, and Lewis Del Norte.

In the case of A. N. Gragg, Vernon Gragg and Eliseo Sanchez, also of Albuquerque, Judge Neblett ordered Sanchez to post $500 bond as bond against the future sale or possession of liquors.

SENATE TODAY PASSED GAME COMMISSION BILL

Santa Fe, March 5.—Another party pledge bill was half way thru the legislature today after once being killed. The senate today passed without debate the game and fish commission bill which vests in the game commission power to regulate seasons and bag limits, and also the power of employment of members of the department. The bill now goes to the house. A similar measure recently was killed in the house after once being passed.

Will Contest for State Championship

On Friday night the Floyd and Forrest Girls Basketball teams will contest for the state championship at the Floyd Gym.

The Floyd girls have held the state girls championship for the past four years and have been undefeated for the past six years.

These two teams have been undefeated this season.

This game is of importance to the entire county, as Floyd's victory means a victory for the schools of the county.

Floyd has a team that has gained state wide reputation, and Friday night's game will be watched with interest by the fans of the county and state.

Capt. Ira Eaker Honored at Old Home Tulsa, Okla.

On Wednesday night Tulsa, Okla. honored captain Ira Eaker with a reception.

Captain Eaker was presented with a handsome medal in four colors of gold, bearing the picture of the Question Mark, date, hours and minutes of his famous flight.

The Captain made a very interesting talk, telling of the progress in aviation.

This is of special interest to Portales people, as his father and mother were formerly residents of Portales, and many Portales people listened in on the program over the radio.

House Passes Appropriation for E. N. M. Normal

Santa Fe, March 5.—Carrying considerably more than a million in excess of the 1927 bill (which was a record-maker in its day), the general appropriation bill passed the house last night without a vote cast against it, but with Muir and McCrae excused from voting.

The only opposition, was to an amendment, which Speaker Baca succeeded in attaching, to enable the Eastern State Normal to build at Portales. The new school is given $62,500 a year.

"Without the amendments, these appropriations will raise the state tax rate to approximately 9 1-2 mills, speaking against the Eastern State Normal amendment." The limit for state purposes is 10 mills.

Speaker Baca made a strong plea for the Portales Normal, supported by Mrs. Marie Vavanaugh, Harbison and Kellahan.

There were only few scattering "no's" when the speakers amendment was adopted on a viva voce vote. A ripple of applause broke out.

Other big increases made by amendments are: $50,000 a year for the Military Institute to build barracks; $18,000 interest on assessments made against the state by the Middle Rio Grande conservancy district; $50,000 ($10,000 for the protection of roads within the district and $5,000 for health, safety, convenience and welfare); $13,700 for surveys of the inter-state boundaries; $10,000 for the Normal University, Las Vegas; $7,500 for the State Museum to put up a fireproof building to preserve records; $5,000 for the new office of state librarian.

Governor Dillon, Lieutenant Hugh B. Woodward and Ed. Sanford, republican state chairman were spectators in the gallery when the bill was read off and the appropriations sent upward to a new altitude record.

The bill was reported in by the finance committee with 20 or more amendments, all increases except one which reduced the proceeds of convicts earnings credited to the state prison from $48,000 to $46,000.

Then the floor amendments began to pour in, all for raises. There wasn't a word against any of these, all being adopted by unanimous votes, until Speaker Baca, waiting until everybody else had taken his shot at the bill, proposed the Eastern State Normal amendment.

"I'd like to ask who presented that amendment," said Representative J. M. McMath, referring to an item of $647.25 for the Las Vegas News for printing which was added to the emergency appropriations for the state school department. Chairman Jose Ortiz said Speaker Baca did.

"That's all right," said McMath when Baca explained he was assistant state school superintendent at the time the expense was incurred and could vouch for it.

The emergency appropriations for this department include salaries for extra clerks employed by Miss Lois Randolph, former state school superintendent, whom she was unable to pay, having exhausted the appropriation for the year out of which their salaries were payable, and for other reasons.

Another amendment named Isidoro Armijo, chief clerk of the house, as translator of the session laws.

House Steering Committee

Santa Fe, March 5.—Speaker Baca last night appointed the house steering committee. It named Ortiz Y. Pino, Mitchell, Madrid, McMath, J. V. Gallegos, Contreras, Romero, Trujillo, Otero, Muir and White.

At the opening of the night session, the Speaker said there had been complaints that law books were being taken from the legislators' desks and threatened to appoint a committee to investigate.

The Speaker added McMath, Sandoval and Trujillo to the finance committee.

Spring will soon be here. A spring clean up and beautifying campaign should be inaugurated at once. Nothing adds more to the town than well kept lawns and flower gardens. It enhances the value of residential property, and creates a favorable impression of travelers passing through.

Some of the New England states have passed laws regulating hitchhikers. One state requires a license fee and requires when they travel at night that they carry a head and tail light. The hitchhiker has come into existence since the increase in auto travel, and have become a problem for the autoist.

Saturday, Portales will entertain the county Grade B. Basketball Tournament. Many of the schools of the county have entered, and Portales should turn out and give this tournament a full backing. The rural schools of the county are equal importance with the city schools. They have their mission to perform, and are delivering the goods. This tournament will exhibit a number of real games, and should have a liberal patronage.

Plans are under way to organize several bull rings in the county. This method will be of great benefit to the dairy industry, and should meet with the encouragement of the dairymen in each section of the county.

Work is progressing on the Junior High building. This building will be a great help to the schools of Portales. The increased attendance for the past year or so has made more room necessary, and the growth of the future will demand more grade buildings. The Portales Schools have enjoyed a wonderful growth since the erection of the high school building, and have also been the means of bringing many desirable citizens to Portales. Schools are the best town builders, and should be encouraged at every opportunity.

The state has been wrought up over the proposed labor bill. While the News has not studied the provisions of this bill, if it will compel all idlers to perform some manual labor, we are for it. Portales has some idle citizens who have not labored for many years.

Roosevelt county farmers would favor a labor bill which would compel the dairy cows to produce the milk without the necessity of "milking" twice a day.

Then again, there are many flocks of poultry in the county that do not perform their part of labor in producing eggs. These should be required to produce at least one egg per day by each hen.

The News printers are hoping for the passage of the labor bill expecting to get shorter hours. In that case we ought to be able to print one edition each month.

How it would effect the Irish section hands who take five minutes to move a shovel of dirt, is a problem for statisticians.

The coal operators would probably be required to keep the mines open long enough to supply coal to the public at a price that would break one to keep a fire.

Then again many husbands are wondering how it will affect them when dish washing time comes around. They will probably have to organize a union, limiting the work of husbands eating and driving the family car.

March 2nd came in with a real old fashioned sand storm. Old settlers were made to feel at home and new comers will have something to write home about.

The news would suggest that the time for the meeting of the state legislature be changed from January to July. At that time of the year the tourist travel is at its best, and by providing a large auditorium and charging admission to all sessions of the state senate, sufficient revenue could be raised to take care of the states needs, and all taxes could be done away with.

MUST ADVERTISE.

T. O. Huckle, publisher of the Cadillac (Mich.) Evening News, says:

That chain stores are here to stay and local retail merchants must adopt modern merchandising methods rather than sit back crying about business going to the stores with gaudy, yet attractive fronts.

First, merchants must have attractive fronts.

Store and display windows must be well lighted.

Merchandise must be attractively displayed.

Merchandise must be rearranged regularly.

Stores must have sales people—not just clerks.

Both merchants and clerks must know the merchandise they sell.

Merchants should not buy unknown merchandise to get so called "Buys," but rather feature known brands. Note chain store advertising.

Service is the one big weapon that the Home Town Merchant has, and which the chain stores would give a great deal to possess.

Prospective customers will not know what the home town merchants have to offer in new merchandise if they "let their lights shine under a bushel." In other words—Advertise!

PRIDE

Often small town newspapers are joked by larger papers about the stories they carry of home-town boys who are succeeding in their work.

To our minds this is the best kind of news item any paper can print.

Lecturers, preachers, writers, and poets keep driving home the lesson always of the success of world workers.

Well, now, when some home boy makes good, why isn't that the best thing to put in the paper?

- BOOST -

As we boost, so shall we reap. Each and every home we give this community, whether it be in our intercourse with home folks or with strangers, will return to us many fold in increased community betterment.

Never has a community had too many boosters. It keeps the interest of all aroused. It gets things done that benefit the community as a whole and each member of the community as an individual.

The time to boost is every day. The opportunity to boost is always present. Read what the merchants and the professional men of this city have to say about boosting. Let's all go along together.

"BE A BOOSTER"

Last week we had four or five stories about boys who are making good in their work, and everybody around here is pleased about it. Those that make fun and don't live here, well, we don't care anything about them.

The more of this kind of news we have, the better we will consider our paper.—Leesburg, Ohio, Citizen.

This is a very important meeting and your presence is cordially solicited.

Medical Sermonettes

By W. E. LEONARD, M. D.

(© 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Everybody loves a fat man." Why? Because he is generally jolly, and always looks so comfortable. Even in hot weather his perspiring face is enticing as he mops his forehead and smilingly seeks a cooler spot.

And yet Mr. Irvin Cobb affirms that the life of a fat man is not all a bed of roses. In a very amusing monograph he details the discomforts of obesity, not the least of which is getting fitted to clothes.

From a medical standpoint the very fleshy person is a liability. From lack of exercise, in most cases, fat takes the place of normal muscular tissues all over the body, and a general sluggishness of all functions results. If such a person will avoid entirely the use of starch and sweet foods, eat only three times daily, leaving out too much meat and concentrated, rich articles, his machinery may move on smoothly for some time and permit great mental and other activities. But the danger lies chiefly in the heart muscle, which has to support all this extra weight and tends itself to become fatty, and therefore weak. If this occurs, a catastrophe is sure to follow.

Drifting—Where ?

THERE is one tried and proved method of accomplishing anything, of getting anywhere—and that is to have a definite plan to follow—and follow it.

Especially is this applicable to those who would be a success in a financial way. They must adopt a carefully laid out plan and follow it. Of the utmost importance in this plan is the protection of your credit. Without credit no man or business can hope to get very far. Meeting obligations promptly, as promised, is the real foundation upon which to build a credit of value in commercial affairs.

Without a definite financial plan we are drifting aimlessly upon the sea of life, without sail or rudder.

EDITORIAL.

In my opinion the student council is by far the most important organization in the school. Although the other student organizations benefit only a few, the student council benefits all the students who are enrolled.

It is always striving to better the conditions in the school, not by harsh radical means, but by educating the students to their needs and helping them to remedy their faults and perfect a stronger organization.

Some of the outstanding accomplishments of the Council are as follows:

At the first of the year, the Council changed the custom of allowing the presidents of the various classes to represent their classes in the Council and had each class elect two students from their class as representatives. The Council was instrumental in electing a girl's athletic manager, a position which should have been introduced long ago.

It is to be accredited with the establishment of the hall patrol and its eminent success.

The Council is sponsoring the intra-mural one act play contest which is now nearing completion. Although the Council worked under the handicap of incomplete membership during the first semester they are now going strong and have several projects under way.

If the student body appreciates what the council has done for them they should support every thing which the council is behind.

The film "Bo Peep" will be shown to the Home Economic girls Monday.

The Cure All.

A One Act comedy, "The Cure All" was given in chapel Tuesday morning by the boys pepper club. Mr. Stinnett coached the play.

The characters in the play were:

Augustus Babbitt—Jones Brown

Smith.

Aunt Amanda—Melvin Schumpert.

Doris, Aunt Amanda's niece—James Compton.

Kent, Augustus' Nephew—Clock Foster.

Paul, the lost heir—Vincent Cox.

Clara, Paul's wife—Emmett White.

Augustus Babbitt and Aunt Amanda live in the same house.

The house belonged to Augustus' brother and Aunt Amanda's sister.

They die and their only son is a lost heir.

Augustus and Aunt Amanda are patent medicine addicts. They are bitter enemies. Doris and Kent fix a medicine to cure Augustus and Aunt Amanda of their disposition.

Paul, the lost heir and his wife, Clara, arrive upon the scene and pass as Doctor and Nurse. They offer this medicine to Augustus and Amanda. It cures them. They go to the courthouse and are married.

James Compton was in charge of the program at the Senatus Romanus Club meeting Monday, Feb. 25, at the third period. After the business had been attended to, "Puns" on Latin words were read by the Chairman of the Program Committee. Just before adjournment "America" was sung in Latin by the members.

Annie Maude Hunter gave a party at her home last Friday night.

Hazel Galloway spent last Sunday with Mary Brink.

The County Demonstration agent visited the Home Ec. I class Monday morning, the fourth period.

Student Council

Spring Sports, was the chief topic of discussion in the student council meeting last Thursday. Mr. Steiner gave a talk on the organization of a tennis club for Portales High School. Myrtice Schock, Wynna Ohlhausen, Ruby Isom and Beulah Brown all talked on tennis for girls and Eulah Elliott talked for Volley ball.

Both boys and girls teams will enter this athletic contest. There are a few people at Dora who have taken interest in this sport. These young folks have had to root for themselves. They were badly defeated by the Portales Rams with a score of 31-11. This game concluded the basketball season.

Track.

Plans are being made for a successful track season for the boys. A track will be laid around the schoolhouse by the High School sometime in the near future. Material has been ordered. Supt. Wilson has promised the boys that if they break six of the State records of last year he will take them to the State Tournament.

SKIM MILK FOR HENS IS FAVORED

Skim milk is great pig feed, but the man who feeds the milk to his hens and takes his profit in the form of increased egg yields is the one who makes the most money from his milk, according to Iowa State college poultrymen.

Seven years of continuous experimentation at the college has proved that milk, when fed to poultry, will return from three to six times as much profit as when fed to pigs. It has also been found that when eggs are selling for not less than 30 cents a dozen, skim milk is worth around $2 a hundredweight as feed for good pullets. There is practically no difference between the value of skim milk and buttermilk for poultry, repeated tests have revealed.

When hens fed tankage or meat meals as their main source of protein were compared with those that also had milk, it was found that milk-fed birds outlived the tankage-fed birds by 25 to 40 per cent during cold weather. Milk should always be fed sour because birds will consume more of it in this condition. It has a slightly laxative effect and the lactic acid combats many disease germs. From October 1 to May 1 it is profitable to give the hens nothing but milk to drink and from May 1 to October 1 they may be allowed to choose between milk and water. When birds are given all of the milk they will drink, the amount of tankage or other packing house by-products may be reduced one-half, for milk furnishes one-half the protein necessary for laying hens. The Iowa poultry specialists advise the keeping of only as many birds as can be supplied with milk.

Laying Hens Need Moist Mash in Warm Weather

Summer feeding of farm poultry can be carried on economically and to good advantage, says Cora Cooke, extension poultry specialist at the University of Minnesota. The amount of feed required on the average farm is less than in winter, a higher production can be counted upon, and prices of eggs are usually ascending after the low period caused by the spring surplus. The specialist points out that the cost of the ration can be reduced by cutting down the meat scrap one-half and omitting it altogether if plenty of milk is available, and also by reducing the amount of corn and, in the case of dual purpose flocks, omitting it entirely. "The principal thing to look out for is that plenty of mash is used," she says. "As warm weather comes on a moist mash once a day will do wonders in keeping up egg production. Hens that molt early should be disposed of before poultry prices drop in the early fall." Reports of storage conditions presage a favorable season, says Miss Cooke. A recent report said that 13 per cent fewer eggs and 30 per cent less dressed poultry are in storage than a year ago.

Egg That Has Life Very Essential for Success

Whether breeding chickens, ducks, geese or turkeys, the first essential for success is to get an egg that has life. Strong, vigorous parents that are well fed and well cared for produce such eggs. The general principles of breeding apply to all poultry, says a writer in Wallace's Farmer. Well fed, but not overfat, is the ideal condition. Enough feed to keep the flock active during the day; a liberal feed at night. Green feed and animal feed, clean water, no lice or mites; fresh air without draft at night, together with plenty of room, are conditions that favor eggs with life in any locality. There are no rules for growing poultry that must be followed absolutely. There are the general principles of clean food, in abundance with work on the part of the fowl to get it; clean houses, clean yards and fresh air, but success comes with about as many different systems as there are breeders. Bone meal, meat scraps and buttermilk furnish bone and muscle building material; corn, wheat and oats add the necessary fat and energy; green feeds give life and health. Upon the character of the seed depends the harvest.

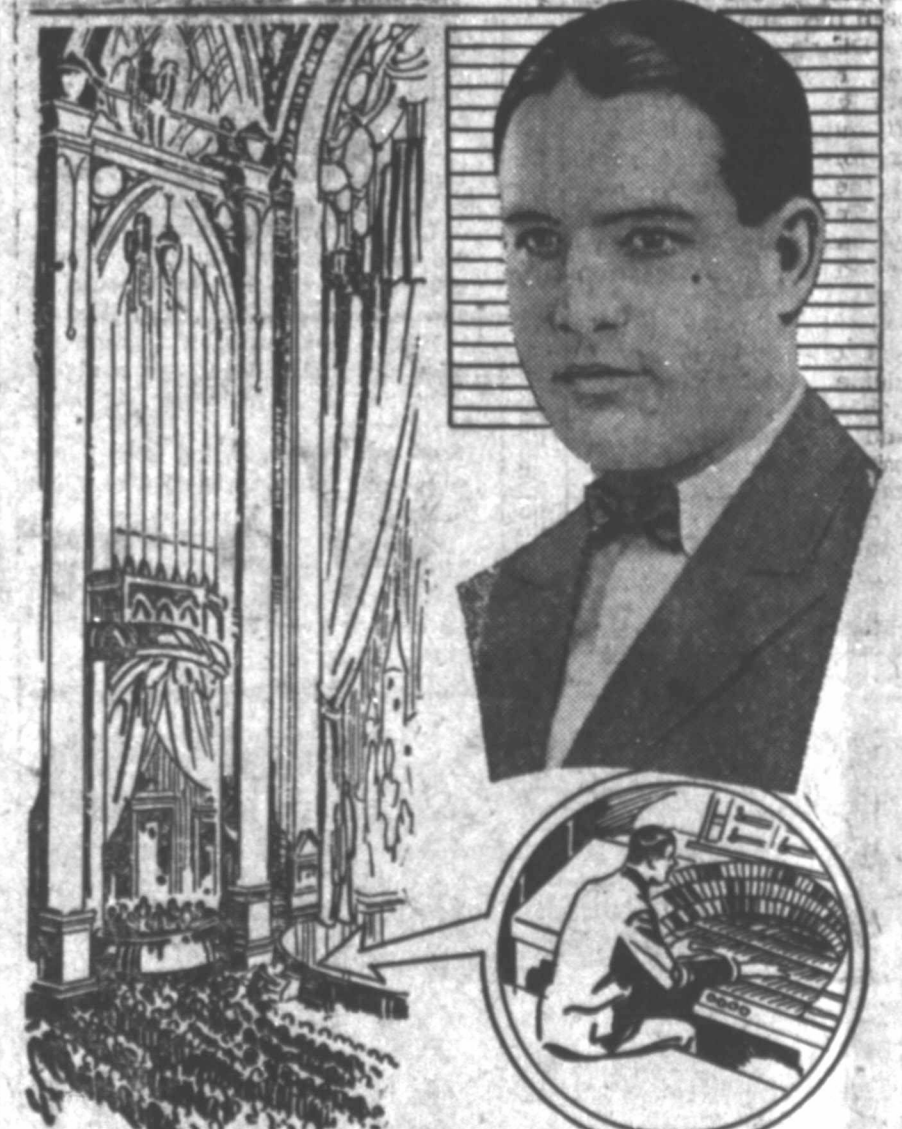

Poultry Prospects

Says the Massachusetts Agricultural college: "The outlook for egg, broiler and poultry prices is slightly better than in 1927. Feed costs on the other hand are expected to continue high, at least during the first half of the year." We've covered nine sheets of paper trying to figure out whether it's better to raise poultry or not. If you're a poultry man, you know the answer. Our own opinion is that poultry looks better this year than last, and we're going right ahead for a better flock.

Organ, Greatest Of Musical Instruments Gaining Recognition

BOB CORDRAY

Good night—dear good night—There's a light in your eyes shining bright—

Detroit Organist Predicts Great Innovations in Instrument

Detroit—The greatest musical instrument in the world, the organ, is still in an embryonic state of development. Invented over two thousand years ago, its potentialities have been permitted to lie dormant until within the last ten years.

This is the opinion of Bob Cordray, leading organist of Detroit, and an internationally recognized authority on the history and technique of the organ.

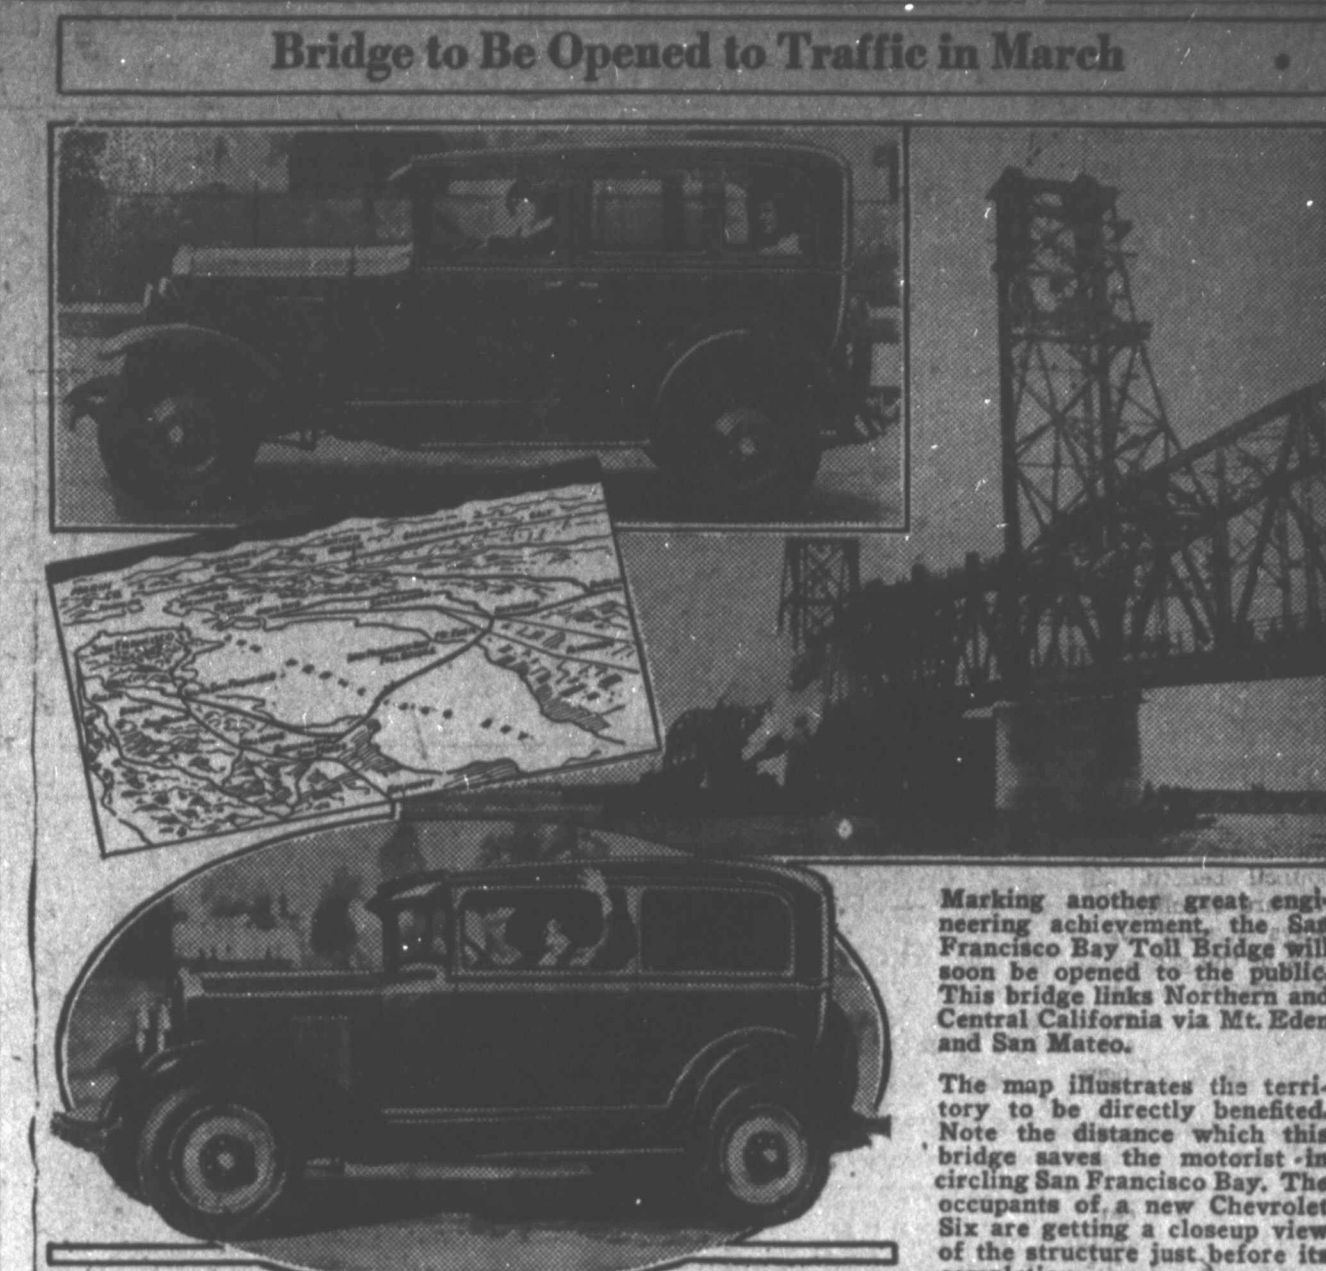

"The musician who uses the organ as a medium of expression has before him a noble instrument, one that can reproduce the effect of a whole orchestra or of the simplest single instrument," says Mr. Cordray. "What greater wonder have we in our whole list of musical mediums?"

"It is, however, only within the last ten years that the possibilities of the organ have been recognized. For over two thousand years we have relegated it to the church loft. Its great voice and infinite versatility of expression were used to express only one kind of music, serious sacred music.

"Within the last ten years, the organ has been placed in every theatre of any size and in many homes. It has been 'discovered' anew. I predict that the instrument will play an increasingly more important role in the musical world.

"Many pieces have been developed which give the organ a great chance. 'Good Night,' a waltz based on the theme of tap, is a good example. The organ qualities give especial scope for the organ. 'Of course 'Good Night' is so popular it would be hard for the organ to add more admirers to it, but nevertheless I predict that within a few years all ballrooms will have to be equipped with organs."

Buttons Were There to Stay

By DEAN DOUGLAS

KITTY was making very good progress toward success in business and felt that all was well, except for one fact that stared her continuously in the face. "Kitty had fallen desperately in love with a man whom she had not even met and yet whose smiling eyes haunted even her sleeping dreams."

He was the face that appeared in all the advertisements for Bachelor's Buttons, the patent button that Kitty had put on the market and was selling in huge quantities. The young man pictured on her buttons was so happy, so completely in harmony with the whole world merely because of his shirt, his pajamas, his trousers and his coat, there were the wonderful little buttons that put all people in a good humor—simply because they were there to stay.

Kitty had gazed for hours at the handsome man with the golden, mustache and heavy waving hair and the daintily trimmed Van Dyke beard and thought she had never seen anyone so disarmingly good looking.

The firm who had got up the advertising pages for Bachelor's Buttons had certainly been in luck when they found the model for their pictures. Kitty had written straight back to the town in the Middle West and secured the sole agency for the button for the Eastern territory.

All during the months following when her sales began in a small way, had arrived at most flattering heights, Kitty had kept right on admiring the young man in the photos.

The owners of the patent were nice people, to deal with and had more than once complimented Kitty on the enormous sales her office was effecting.

All over her office were framed the various advertisements in which Mr. Buttons, as Kitty called him for want of knowing his real name, was pictured. She felt sometimes that all was vain in the way of success and the making of money if she was to go loveless all the days of her life.

She even went so far as to prowl about some of the advertising offices with a view of picking up information as to where and how models were obtained and whether or not they were usually of the professional type.

Then one bright and shining morning Kitty had a long letter from the firm in the West who manufactured the buttons.

"Would Miss Woodrow be likely to come out and pay a visit to the firm? We feel that we should like to make the acquaintance in a more personal way, of our Eastern representative and will gladly pay all expenses."

Kitty sat down and pondered over the letter. Certainly she would like a trip out through the West, and, since she was feeling a bit fagged, she wrote back saying she would accept and would take great pleasure in meeting the firm.

disease to recognize, starting usually like simple cold, with a thin, watery discharge from the nose and eyes. This secretion has a peculiar, offensive odor. Inflammation sets into the nasal passages, eyes and spaces just below the eyeballs. Birds often cough and sneeze and breathing becomes noisy. If nasal passages become blocked the birds breathe through their mouths. The birds soon lose their appetite and become depressed.

And much to her own disgust she realized that for the first time in two years her heart had leapt at the sight of a man. That organ had reserved all its leaps and bounds for the young man on the button advertisements. She felt truly tickle.

"You know," said Mr. Vickers, confidentially, "you were really the means of putting our firm on the map at all. We were just a little one-horse concern, trying to float the button my dad patented, when your letter came along. It's been wonderful the way you've made a go of it. I'm taking you straight to our home. If you don't mind—my mother is waiting much to entertain you."

"I am more than charmed," laughed Kitty, and when Mr. Vickers laughed and she cast a keen glance at him, she knew the whole story.

Young Vickers and her Mr. Buttons were one and the same person. Her face must have reflected much of her inward elation for young Vickers almost gasped as he looked deep into her eyes.

"I say, I do believe you're as glad to meet us as we are you," he remarked frankly.

"As a matter of fact—perhaps I am more so. Even with that quaint little Van Dyke beard and mustache—I should like to have met you."

Vickers laughed loud and long and very boyishly and happily. "We didn't even have the price for a regular model—at that time—so they used me and I certainly felt silly about it all."

"You needn't have," she said, and knew now that all was really well. (Copyright.)

The Simple Life

"We've bought a co-operative apartment. There are six families in the building. You pay $17.00; then you live there free for the rest of your life. It's a great saving. Junior? Taxes? Running expenses? John didn't mention them, but he did say if anything comes up, all we have to do is to call a meeting of the six families and agree. It's very simple—Exchange."

Didn't Have Nerve to Cook the Little Pig

A Cleveland housewife who was entertaining some very special friends from out of the city, wanted to have a dinner that would linger in their memory for some time to come. What could be nicer, she thought, than a roast suckling pig?

Accordingly the little pig was sent home from the butcher's, unwrapped and laid on the kitchen table, where her small son caught sight of it and burst into tears. "Don't cook that dear little piggie!" he wailed, desperately.

His mother sent him from the kitchen and picked the pig up to carry it across the room. "In that moment," she reports, "my courage failed me. There was something so much like a little baby about that poor little pig that I set it down in a hurry. I realized then and there that I didn't have the nerve to cook it. Like my son, I wiped the tears out of my eyes and put the dear little piggie out of my mind forever. We had roast beef for dinner."

Dramatic Criticism

To the duke of York's house to see the new play called "The Man Is the Master," where the house was, it being not one o'clock, very full. By and by the king came; and we sat just under him, so that I durst not turn my back all the play. The most of the mirth was sorry, poor stuff, of calling of sack posset and snobbering themselves, and mirth fit for clowns; the prologue but poor, and the epilogue little in it, but the extraordinariness of it, it being sung by Harris and another in the form of a ballet. My wife extraordinary fine today in her flower baby suite, bought a year or more ago.—Samuel Pepys

Hope to Find Bones of Cardinal Wolsey

Leicester abbey, where Cardinal Wolsey told the abbot he had "come to lay his bones," is to undergo transformation. For many years the abbey grounds have been used as a farm, but now they are to be laid out as gardens and for recreation. Pierre Van Passant, writing in the Atlanta Constitution, tells us. Wolsey's body was laid in an unknown grave, and it is thought that in the excavations necessary to adapt the grounds to their new use, some trace of it may be found, but there is no record of any of the cardinal's possessions being buried with him the search seems likely to end in failure. One fact about Wolsey is probably not widely known. When he was at the height of his power he employed an Italian sculptor to make a magnificent sarcophagus beneath which he should lie. Leicester monks told him to rest in plain earth and Henry VIII sequestered the sarcophagus with the rest of the cardinal's vast possessions. The sarcophagus remained government property and idle until 1803, when it was used to cover the body of Nelson after his remains were brought from Trafalgar. The man who said that England expected every man to do his duty, and led them in so doing, rests under the covering prepared for the man who was led away and ruined by overweening ambition.

Callup, that Ed. J. was standing on a corner when a taxi drove up and the driver said, "Master any part of the city for 50 cents." Ed. J. said nothing doing. I was in Philadelphia several years ago attending the Shriners convention when a party sold me the endowment Hall, and I have never been able to get a clear title."

Owing to sickness in the family, the editor was unable to attend the Junior play at the high school on last Thursday night. However, from reports the play was exceptionally good and a full house turned out to see them. The Junior class are a peppy bunch and great things are in store for them in their senior year. The writer wishes to acknowledge the receipt of two tickets to this play and regrets very much that he was unable to use them.

Rev. Sowell has announced as his text for next Sunday morning, "The Meanest Man in Portales." There is much speculation as to who it is, and he will doubtless have a full house for the exposure. However, in our private opinion, the meanest man in Portales is the one who promiscuously scattered poison on last Saturday night. As a result there were a number of dead dogs over town Sunday. The man who will go about town putting poison in the yards of the owners of dogs is too contemptible to describe. If caught and convicted he lays himself liable to a penitentiary sentence. If this happens a special prison would have to be erected for him, as it would be an injustice to the other inmates to have to associate with him.

The low down on the poultry show develops that Tom Jernigan contested for the pen producing the greatest number of eggs during the show. Some have even been so mean as to intimate that Tom swiped the eggs from other pens. We do not believe that our high sheriff would be guilty of such conduct, but it is strange to relate that a barred rock egg was found in his pen of Rhode Island Reds. A freak of nature, we call it.

On last Friday the bill collectors bombarded the News office until the editor tried to get away. He stepped into his car, stepped on the starter—a bill collector was nearing the office. The motor stalled.

Mrs. J. E. Camp wants a picture of her great Dane dog, and the News Boston Bull. As the News dog is named Beans, she suggests the title for the picture, "Pork and Beans."

It is rumored that a chicken dinner was recently served by some of the gentlemen of Portales. Just who attended, this department of the News has been unable to learn, but from the sty digs passed around it must have been a "swell" affair.

When Is a Hog Big?

The Portales News wants to know when a hog should be called big. Cause of which the butchering by George Johnston of that place, a porker which weighed 649 pounds dressed. The animal was two years old, and was fed mostly on skimmed milk. The sum of 32 cents for vaccine was the total cash expense on the animal from the time it was born until it was butchered, and the big basket of spare-ribs inspired the Portales editor to a record of the facts.

The Hog editor of the Morning Dispatch was absent when this item appeared, and judgment as to what constitutes a big hog was referred to C. L. Sandusky, the buyer, who is in Roswell resting for a while. Mr. Sandusky says any hog that dresses 50 pounds or more is a big hog.

And we have some big hogs in Roswell who don't weight nearly that much.—Roswell Dispatch.

Doubtless the hogs that Editor Will Robinson refers to are out of the porker class. Even in this neck of the woods some "hogs" have been reported that are real big hogs—road hogs for instance.

The Frank Falls family and Miss Aldene Rhyne motored to Clovis Sunday and were guests of the Elbert Trapp family.

MILNESAND

Last Thursday witnessed the closing of the month of February.

It brought us sunshine and shadow, real spring like weather with a wind-up of snow and wintry blasts.

The Milnesand girls played a game of basketball with the Bledsoe girls last Saturday night and the score was 22-26 in Milnesand's favor.

Mrs. Bennie Adams, of Lubbock, Texas, is visiting her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ditto.

A number of the Milnesand people went to Warren, N. M., Sunday to the singing convention. They report some fine singing with lots of good eats on the ground.

Mr. O. A. Pruitt, who had the misfortune to lose his house by fire a few days ago, is rapidly completing a new and better building in place of the old one.

Mr. T. E. Davis agreeably surprised his family last Monday with a Chevrolet 6 and a new radio.

Mrs. G. B. Doughtie, who has been real sick with appendicitis is able to be around again.

The County tournament will be played at Portales Saturday, March 8th, which will be the closing of the ball season for 1928. Basketball is a most delightful game for boys and girls. Why, yes, and old folks too, we have to see our home team win.

Mr. T. T. Cooper, of Boby, Tex., is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Cliff Watson.

A number of the farmers around Milnesand have their land prepared for a crop already. We are all hoping there will be an abundant yield.

There is soon to be a blacksmith shop, a garage, also a grist mill at Milnesand. Walter Wallace, we understand, will be the proprietor.

The next singing convention will be held at Milnesand March 9, 1929.

For as the lightning cometh out of the East and shineth even unto the West, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be. Matt: 24-27.

Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Burn and Children, Bettie and Russell, were Clovis visitors Monday.

Tires for the new Ford are specially made to give long wear

WHEN the new Ford was designed, it was immediately apparent that a new tire would have to be made to match the car's performance. It was distinctly a new problem, for here was a car with quicker acceleration, greater speed and more braking efficiency than any car of similar size or weight.

So that every Ford owner might be assured of maximum tire mileage at the lowest cost, the Ford Motor Company devoted many months to research and experiment in conjunction with the leading tire manufacturers.

As a result, certain definite specifications were developed for tires for the new Ford. These specify cords of certain strength and texture, a large volume of tread and side-wall rubber, sturdy non-skid design, and reinforced plies for protection against bruise breaks—all the strong features of construction formerly considered for only the largest tires.

Great care also was taken to secure the best riding qualities in connection with the transverse springs and the Houdaille shock absorbers.

Though the Ford tires are designated as 30 x 4.50 they have the resiliency and air space of much larger tires because of the drop center rim of the steel-spoke wheels.

For best results, the tires on the new Ford should be kept inflated to an air pressure of 35 pounds and checked regularly to insure this pressure all the time. This is important. Low inflation breaks down the side-walls of a tire. By causing overheating, it also destroys the rubber that acts as an insulation, with consequent separation of the cord.

At the end of each 5000 miles, when you have the front wheels packed with grease, it is a good plan to have the wheel alignment checked. This will prevent premature wear.

When punctures come, as they will with any tire, you will find the Ford dealer particularly well-equipped to make repairs quickly and at small cost. See him, too, for replacements. Then you will be sure of getting tires built specially for the Ford car according to definite Ford specifications.

Chinese Telegraphy

The transmission and receipt of telegrams in China is not so easy as in western countries, because the Chinese language lacks an alphabet and expresses itself by characters and signs that represent words. In consequence, for purposes of telegraphing an exact list has been made of signs in quantity sufficient for ordinary correspondence, and to each one of the signs a different number is given, which is transmitted by the Morse telegraphic system. The code consists of 9,800 signs, the whole forming a pamphlet of 40 pages, each one of which contains 10 series of 20 characters with its corresponding number. On receipt of a telegram the operator looks up in his book the characters represented by the numbers transmitted by the apparatus and transcribes them into legible Chinese.

S'anned the Letter

Saraton was four was a, her way with her mother to mail a letter to daddy. As they approached the post office, Saraton, who carried the letter, ran to put it in the box. Her mother, knowing it was unstamped, called to her young daughter: "Saraton, the letter must be stamped before you mail it, or daddy will never get it."

Saraton looked hesitatingly into her mother's eyes. Then without much hesitation, she placed the letter on the sidewalk, and with all the wild enthusiasm of a four-year-old, jumped up and down with both feet upon the letter. Thinking it had been stamped sufficiently, Saraton picked it up and, sold in most convincing and convincing tones, "Saraton, I stamped it; now daddy will get it, won't he?"—Indianapolis News

IF THE NEWS IS LATE

On Wednesday of this week, the News Linotype acted very ungentlemanly and broke the dingbat, which works on the thingebob which slides on the dufunny.

All the mechanics of the town were called to make the repair, and after several hours work of welding and drilling, with the use of a batch of baling wire and a few wooden wedges, the linotype was able to hobble along on crutches.

So if you find that the News is short of reading matter or the paper is late, do not blame us, we suffered torment enough Wednesday afternoon and night.
