Data On Highway Projects Gathered

Cost and Extent of Proposed Paved Roads Being Compiled; Petitions to Be Circulated Soon.

Data on the cost of the road improvement plan advocated by the recently organized Lubbock County Good Roads association is expected to be compiled and delivered to the association some time next week, leaders in the work said yesterday. The data will include the extent and cost of the hard-surfacing improvements.

With the completion of these estimates the executive committee of the group will call into session and petitions drafted bearing the exact amount asked by the bond issue. The petitions will be circulated over the county soon after the meeting of the committee, it was said.

When It Is Due. Community chairman are working diligently on their organizations with the avowed intention of carrying the county for the issue and better roads. Lloyd A. State Is Appealed To In Paving Work By Commissioners

Two-Thirds Cost of Paving From City Limits to Highway Points Is Asked By County Court.

Movement for additional paving of the highways of the county both in and out of the city limits took definite proportions yesterday when the application of the county for state and federal aid in paving several miles north and south of the present city paving.

This application was made by the Lubbock county commissioners in a meeting yesterday afternoon by a vote of 3 to 1. It will be sent to Austin immediately.

The application seeks two-thirds of the cost of paving the Plainview highway, No. 9, from the city which is more than a mile north of the city limits, and the Slaton highway, No. 7, from the present paving on it to a point one and a half miles on the Slaton road near the Lubbock cemetery.

Fields Is Notified. George A. Fields, district highway engineer, who is in Austin at the present time in connection with the better road program of the county, yesterday was wired of the action taken by the county commission.

This project will not interfere with the proposed bond election for county wide paving of highways which has been considered by the county commission for some time.

Abductors Say Will Decapitate Lad

Three Men Believed Connected With Ranieri Case Are Held; Federal Men Enter Search.

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Confident that they have in custody three of the six men who kidnaped ten-year-old Billy Ranieri twelve days ago, police tonight were in what they termed a race with death—an attempt to find the other three abductors before they carry out their threats to kill the boy and send his head to the frantic parents.

Demand $15,000 Now. The abductors, who at first demanded $50,000 from A. Frank Ranieri, Italian sewer contractor, for the return of his son, today sent what they called final demands, in which they asked $15,000 and threatened to decapitate the child and send the parents "A little package."

Those under arrest are Salvatore Mastroianni and Renoldo Soliedo, already charged with the kidnaping and Angelo Pettit, alleged co-conspirator. The police said they knew the names of the other three men they charge perpetrated the kidnaping, but did not reveal them.

Possibility that federal authorities have entered the hunt for the boy came today when it was learned that three men from the United States Marshal's office attended a conference late today at the Ranieri home at which also were present representatives of the family, police officials and an assistant state's attorney.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

I do not believe in "forcing" children. There is seldom anything gained in hammering away at a child day in and day out to get him to do something that is absolutely beyond his comprehension.

Nothing is likely to result from that but mental confusion.

But on the other hand I should not encourage him into giving up too easily. It is good for a child occasionally to have things to do that are not quite within his scope of understanding or accomplishment.

If we were always to do the things we know how to do perfectly there would be no advancement.

There isn't a thing wrong once in a blue moon for the mother of twelve-year-old Elizabeth to say, "I won't be home in time to get dinner this evening, but there is plenty of food to cook. You see that your father and the boys are fed."

Elizabeth may be thunderstruck, unhappy and indignant. Furthermore father may have to get out his indignation pills afterwards and the boys sneak off to the hot-dog stand an hour later to fill up the vacuum that nature seems to abhor, but Elizabeth surely will have learned something of culinary skill in the experiment and make mistakes she won't make again.

Jack's father may say to him, "I ordered some lumber today for the partitions in the vegetable cellar your mother has been wanting. Tomorrow is Saturday and I want you to get it and do what you can."

Jack may not claim cousinship with the gentleman of the rhyme, "This is the house that Jack built."

Perhaps he knows no more about a hammer and a saw than I know about wireless telegraphy. But if he is worth his salt he is going to put together some boards in such a way that the potatoes, apples, cabbages, carrots, and turnips, whatever else one keeps on the dirt floor of a "vegetable cellar" through the winter, won't be rubbing elbows with one another.

The next time he does any carpenter work, he will know more about wood and nails, angles and corners, sawing and planing, than he did before.

It need not be cooking. It need not be hammering. It need indeed

No one deserves praise so much for the things he knows how to do well, as for the thing that he does not know how to do but isn't afraid to tackle.

Suspended Term Given To Rentz

Hog Theft Charge Against Youth Rendered by Jury; Faces Additional Charge In Crosby County.

Herman Rentz, 18, was found guilty by a jury in 99th district court yesterday charged with the theft of a hog. He was given a four year's suspension in lieu of a fine. The jury was completed shortly after noon yesterday and the verdict rendered before night.

Arrested in Campaign. Rentz was arrested several months ago in connection with a campaign against hog and turkey thieves following an epidemic of thievery here in which a large number was arrested.

Judge Clark M. Mullican, who presided at the trial, deplored the condition of so many young persons committing offenses. "Most of the defendants now are about 18 and 20 years old," he said. "Juries seem to think young men of that age are entitled to commit at least one crime before they are punished." He distributed the spread of lawlessness to this locality.

Similar Charges in Crosby. Rentz faces similar charges of theft in Crosby county, local officers said.

The hog figuring in the case yesterday was stolen from a farm in the southwest part of the county. It was found some time later on a farm near the city. Testimony showed that the hog was taken by the young defendant and sold.

This was the first case to be tried in 99th district court this term. Criminal week which began yesterday will continue throughout until Saturday. Only a few arrests had been made yesterday by the sheriff's department of the persons indicted by the grand jury in session last week.

Make Friends With Your Neighbors Go On One of the Fair Trips

With the first of four good-will fair booster trips in progress today, thoughts of the city and the fair officials will turn next to the second excursion to be staged Thursday. Failure of the city of Lubbock to support these good-will jaunts would give the fair a black eye which would take years to heal. It is being left to the citizens to "sell" the fair to the South Plains. It must be remembered that this is a sectional fair—not one for Lubbock only. Center of this area, Lubbock is the logical place for the annual fair, and to take one of these trips seems the least one could do as a token of appreciation for the fair.

The Avalanche urges local citizens to make the next trips. Call the Chamber of Commerce offices today and make arrangements. And remember the dates: September 20, 25, and 27.

SUNDAY BABY DAY

Program Offered at First Christian Church

Baby Day was observed Sunday in the First Christian church with the Sunday school primary department and the Berean class cooperating. A family scene, enacted by the Charles Collier family, was a feature of the program. As "Sweet and Low" was sung, Mrs. Collier rocked the baby while Mr. Collier read from the Bible to the family group. Little Robert Jennings Collier was presented with a Bible by the church pastor, Rev. Walter P. Jennings.

Mrs. Joe Coursey sang "Take Me Back to Babyland" preceding the introduction of 14 infants in arms and 25 members of the beginners department. Each child was presented with a balloon.

With the city flooded with school children as a result of the record enrollment of the schools, Chief John Lemond issued a warning yesterday to all motorists of the city to use caution in driving in the school zones of the city. Warning signs have been placed near all schools and the motorists are expected to observe them. If necessary, he said, arrests will be made in the violation of the warnings.

The streets of the city are again taking on the collegiate atmosphere as scores of early arrivals for the opening of Texas Technological college make their appearance here preparatory to entering school next week. The business men are catching the spirit also and hardly a store in the city is minus the "Welcome, Tech students" placard. Saturday will find Lubbock again enveloped in activities of the younger set.

SIX ALIBI CONVENTIONS—3
Sometimes the "third hand high" rule is also quoted thus: "Never finesse against your partner." Literally followed, it would mean that every time your partner led a card, you, as third hand, should play the highest card of that suit in your hand.

The futility of carrying out such instructions becomes quite apparent in the following illustrations:

West leads spades 3; dummy holds spades K Q 4. East should play the Jack of spades. Playing the King of spades would deny the Queen and Jack of spades.

West leads hearts 3; east holds hearts A Q. East should play the Ace of hearts. Playing the Queen of hearts would be finessing against partner.

West leads diamonds 3; dummy holds diamonds K 7 5; east holds diamonds A Q J. Obviously, east should play the Ace of diamonds only if the King of diamonds is played from the dummy. Otherwise, east should play the Jack of Diamonds.

West leads clubs 3; dummy holds clubs K 5; east holds clubs A J 8 2. If dummy covers with the King of clubs, east should in turn cover with the Ace of clubs. If the 5 of clubs is played from the dummy, east should play the Jack of clubs. West may be leading away from the Queen of clubs, and there is nothing to be lost by finessing the Jack of clubs.

West leads spades J; dummy holds spades K 8 4; east holds spades A 5 3. Obviously, the declarer holds the Queen of spades Partner must be leading from a suit headed by the Jack-10. East should not

What Is The Ideal Cooking Fuel?

Answer:—The kind that can be easily and quickly controlled . . . the kind that doesn't smoke your vessels or leage disagreeable odors . . . the kind that is quick, dependable and economical. If the ideal cooking fuel embodies all of the above virtues—then without question electricity IS the ideal cooking fuel.

World Series Will Start October Fourth

Event Is Set One Day Later Due To Closeness of Race

Schedules Covering Every Likely Outcome of Pennant Fights Are Drawn At Meeting.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—The world series of 1928 will begin Thursday, October 4, with either the Yankees or the Athletics playing at home. Because of the closeness of both races, the Thursday date was agreed on in preference to the tentatively set Wednesday opening.

Contending clubs feared a late decision in the League battles might make it impossible properly to distribute the vast numbers of reserved tickets for a Wednesday game.

The schedule and other points were settled here today at a meeting of Commissioner Landis with the presidents of the two major leagues and representatives of contending clubs. Only the Yankees and the Athletics sent delegates for the American League, but all clubs in the National League's first division attended.

Three Schedules
Three schedules were drawn, covering every likely outcome of the pennant fights. If the Cardinals or the Cubs win, the following dates will obtain:

October 4 and 5—At New York or Philadelphia.
October 6—Open for travel.
October 7, 8 and 9—At Chicago or St. Louis.
October 10—Open for travel.
October 11 and 12—At New York or Philadelphia (if needed).

A Giant Victory in the National League calls for the following dates: October 4 and 5—At Yankee Stadium or Shibe Park.
October 6, 7 and 8—At Polo Grounds.
October 9 and 10—Yankee Stadium or Shibe Park (if needed).

The most remote possibility is a Pittsburgh victory in the National League. The Pirates would play at home on October 4 and 5—At New York or Philadelphia.
October 6, 8 and 9—At Pittsburgh.
October 10 and 11—At New York or Philadelphia (if needed).

Further Agreements
A game postponed on account of rain, or halted short of becoming a legal contest or a legal draw, will be decided the following day on the grounds where it occurred, and the schedule advanced to accommodate the change. A tied game, however, will be played over only if necessary after the seven scheduled games have been completed. In such an event, the teams will repair to the grounds where the tie occurred and replay the game.

Harvard To Have Usual Weak Line Indications Show

Green Material On Hand Is Lacking In Experience; Plenty of Material In Backfield.

By WILLIAM B. KING (Associated Press Sports Writer) CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 17. (AP)—Though Harvard has the best looking varsity football squad that Arnold Norvren has gathered together since he became head coach two years ago, indications are that it will have its usual weak line unless "Eddie" Clarke and "Duke" Dunn, center and line coaches, perform miracles with their green material.

Norvren had 103 varsity candidates, including 11 letter men who played against Yale last fall, working out in the stadium today, but observers were able to count his likely looking line prospects on the fingers of their hands.

AN OBJECT LESSON IN THESE INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

To the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva, Premier Mackenzie King of Canada has stated that the Dominion's budget does not contemplate expending "a single dollar" though fear of American aggression. No foreign statesman is more familiar with the United States' policies and views than is Mackenzie King. In his younger days he taught political economy at Harvard university, and in 1914 the Rockefeller Foundation commissioned him to investigate relations between labor and capital. Mr. Mackenzie King particularly impressed the League Assembly by calling attention to the fortified border between Canada and the United States, which symbolizes renunciation of war as strikingly as does the Kellogg compact. The few military posts near the line were established long ago, but their garrisons are small. None has artillery, and all are maintained more as training centers than for other purposes. From the Atlantic to the Pacific the frontier measures 3898 miles, and the border between Alaska and Canada also is unfortified. Fifty years before the Dominion was created, Britain and the United States concluded the Rush-Bagot convention, by which each Power might build or maintain four warships on the Great Lakes. Two were to be on the upper lakes, another on Ontario and the fourth on Champlain. It was stipulated that each craft should be of 100 tons burden at most and might carry an 18-pounder. That compact is still in force, but neither Canada nor this country considers maintaining other than coast guard vessels on any border lake. British troops garrisoned several places in the region now the Dominion until the '70's, when they evacuated all but Halifax Citadel. In 1905 London transferred the Citadel to Ottawa and withdrew the garrison. Canada's regulars—scattered in small detachments from Halifax to Vancouver—total only 500 officers and 3550 enlisted men, including the Royal Canadian Air Force. As the Dominion counts almost nine million inhabitants, such an establishment is modest indeed. It also maintains a non-permanent volunteer militia, aggregating 10,000 officers and 117,000 men, that corresponds to the National Guard in this country. Canada probably will join the Pan-American Union within a few years. Its chair is waiting at Washington, and it would be welcomed by all the New World republics. The Dominion is in the League Council by election, and its envoys are not subservient to Britain's. At Geneva, Premier Mackenzie King has two able colleagues in Senator Raoul Dandurand, former president of the League Assembly and Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Railroads and Canals. Mr. Dandurand represents the Dominion's French-speaking people, who have supported Mackenzie King for many years. The Canadian cabinet is largely Liberal, but the Progressives also are represented. Moreover, the Dominion's Conservatives are as desirous as their political opponents to maintain cordial relations with this country. A change in the administration at Ottawa would not affect Canada's friendship for the United States.

REAPPRAISING THE WAR

Statisticians, in this decade since 1918, have proved no end of figures to show the war losses. They have furnished tables, percentages, comparisons. And the totals from whatever viewpoint they are regarded, are staggering. In them the advocates of peace have found potent materials for their arguments. But, after 10 years, there is a new compilation that needs to be made relative to the war. Such a compilation would not be strictly statistical. But it would set forth, in a series of simple facts, the significant, hopeful developments that war has brought to pass. Some of these facts are too obvious to need chronicling; the topping of autocratic regimes; the new experiments in democracy; the definite, if only partially successful, steps toward self-determination; the beginning, if only a beginning, of an era of open diplomacy; the rise of world opinion against war; the establishment of machinery for peace. This evidence, made specific and contrasted with the pre-war situation, would constitute a decidedly heartening case for those who believe in progress.

And most significant of all changes which the war began or speeded are those in the field of social relationships. Almost parenthetically, one-half of the students at the University of Berlin are working their way through school. Back of that brief story is the history of a decade in which old ideas of caste and aristocracy have been widely revised and new, more hopeful ideals widely accepted. Such a record of social transformation could be found, in a marked degree, in nearly every country of central Europe. The literature of pessimism that the war provoked has almost run its course. European and world conditions are, as yet, far from settled. But students of affairs might well turn their attention, at the end of this first decade since the war, from the statistics of despair to those of hope. There are still some international "danger spots." Sensation-seeking newspapers will see that they are not forgotten. Meanwhile, a sense of proportion will make it possible to understand that there is more in the field of international relationships than these irritations. And a sense of fairness on the part of those who chronicle current events will give an increasing emphasis to the evidence of a new world accumulating. In the end it may appear that the ideas proclaimed in the war can no longer be ridiculed as mere shibboleths.

THE PARTY WANTS COURT REFORM

If the members of the next Legislature give heed to the platform demands of the democratic party, Texas people will again have an opportunity to pass judgment upon a court reform constitutional amendment. The party platform which was adopted at Dallas the other day contained this plank: "Instead of a supreme court of three members and a commission of appeals of six members, the commission of appeals should be abolished and nine men placed on the supreme court, and the court should be given the power to formulate rules of procedure affecting civil cases." This platform declaration embodies the substance of a lengthy constitutional amendment which was defeated, along with four or five others, two years ago. It probably will be defeated when again submitted, unless a vigorous campaign is waged in its support. Everybody in Texas agrees that some measures of court reform are needed, but there is such a wide divergence of opinion as to the specific measures which should be adopted that it is difficult to secure agreement upon any plan that may be offered. The amendment suggested by the democratic platform, which follows so closely the provisions of the amendment offered and defeated two years ago would not bring about a complete reform of the judicial structure of the state and is not designed to do so. It would, however, provide a great deal of relief and would lay the foundation upon which other reform measures might be developed. As a matter of fact, it seems to us, the best method of achieving court reform is by the gradual change of some of the more important rules of procedure which now govern the courts, rather than by a comprehensive revision of the entire judicial system undertaking to cure all the evils and apparent evils, which have been pointed out in the long-pending discussion of the matter. The supreme court is the head of the state's court system, and a modification of its work can well be made as the beginning of the court reform movement.

The republican vote in the Michigan primaries last week was in round numbers 600,000; the democratic a little under 9000. Upon hearing this John J. Raskob, the chairman of the democratic National Committee, who has been claiming Michigan for Smith, issued a hasty bulletin that Pennsylvania would go democratic by 150,000.

Waste of $3,000,000,000 annually by British workmen on beer and on horse and dog racing is bemoaned by a labor leader. A horse, a dog and a man make a mighty triad of good companionship without the racing and the beer, but, unfortunately, it is only the man who has anything to say about it.

Two chestnut trees planted by Frances E. Willard 80 years ago in Evanston, Ill., in the cause of prohibition, are to be restored by the W. C. T. U. to the use Miss Willard made of them—to post bulletins. The first might read: "A well-watered tree bears the best fruit."

Brewers in 1881 declared that "prohibition could be repealed at any time, but woman suffrage would insure the permanency of prohibition." Now that the United States has both, what would the brewers say—if there were any brewers?

One-third more small residences are being built in the United States this year than last, a nationally known constructor estimates. This increase shows that, despite some modern influence to the contrary, the home is gaining a firmer foundation.

The Department of Commerce reports that more than a billion dollars has been spent on army aeronautics in the United States since 1899. Sending up a few more good will pilots would help to keep down the rising costs of aerial prepared-

SO THINK WE

We think the people of Lubbock want to make the young men and the young women of the Tech College feel at home, or at least they want them to be happy, and not harbor a severe case of "blues." Sunday the several churches of the communities are going to invite the students who will go into the homes of Lubbock for lunch Sunday after the preaching services. Every church member is expected to take one or more of the Tech students home with them Sunday, and get their minds off the idea of being away from home, among strangers and people who do not care about them. Lubbock people appreciate the Tech students, and are glad to have them in the city, and this is going to be one of the several ways they will have of proving to the young people that they are welcome in Lubbock and to our homes.

We think that kind words go a long way even in civic improvement programs. Some one must take the lead in everything of that nature, and the others should at least render their assistance in putting it over by lending a word of encouragement and not trip up those who are trying to do something but saying unkind words about the proposition.

We think that a great amount of hard feeling toward others might be avoided by not repeating what you hear, until you have had time to go to the source of the matter and get it straight. In all probability at least ninety percent of the gossip of the town could be eliminated, at least that much of the misunderstandings of the community could be put in the discard by knowing the truth of the matter.

We think that it is a very peculiar nature that people have, about trading in other towns and cities, but this is about the way the thing runs. Moore people think they can get what they want better at Abernathy and Abernathy knows they can get better stuff at Lubbock and Lubbock folks run off to Dallas or San Antonio to do their buying and the people that they get off to New York and buy their stuff, and what we have never been in New York to see what these folks do, we bet they go to Paris or London to do their trading, and we suppose those people over there just do the best they can by buying from the home merchant. Anyway, we believe it's wrong principle, and if we would spend more of our money with the home merchants they would be able to build up a bigger stock, a greater variety of merchandise, and the volume of business would make them to make even better prices than they do.

PRESS COMMENTS

TO CLEAR UP THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM The uniform traffic ordinance soon to be up for consideration here had its origin in the growing concern throughout the country over the country over the mounting loss of life and property in traffic accidents. Along with that was recognition of the need of simplifying municipal regulations for the convenience of motorists and the expeditious handling of traffic itself. The ordinance has been devised by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, which was organized several years ago on call of Herbert Hoover, as Secretary of Commerce. The conference is composed of traffic and safety officials representing every part of the United States. The suggested uniform ordinance is the result of extended study by men who are familiar with the subject in hand. Obviously, there are local conditions peculiar to the various cities which could not be dealt with adequately by blanket regulations. But due account of these can be taken and the proposed ordinance adapted

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that no man is a friend unless he is absolutely closed-mouthed about his friend.

It is reported that there is a lot of talk these days about classical music. We do not know what kind of music that is, but if it is this stuff that people sing in churches, when the congregation cannot understand one single word that is being sung, we are not one bit enthusiastic over it, and if it is that stuff that we hear coming off most of the phonograph records we do not wish about that. We would rather hear something more religious in the church choir, and we would enjoy a record of sweet harmony from the phonograph record something like the sweethearts of fifty years ago would sing, rather than this Jazz, Blues, etc.

It is reported that women are becoming more beautiful all the time; possibly we just see more of them.

YOUR HEALTH

Air Pressure One Risk Deep Sea Diver Takes By DR. MORRIS FISHER Editor Journal of the American Medical Ass'n and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine The man living on the earth is exposed constantly to a certain pressure of air. This pressure varies according to the altitude or height at which he lives, commonly estimated in relation to the pressure at sea level. At sea level the weight of air above the earth represents a pressure equivalent to that of a column of mercury 760 millimeters high or about 15 pounds to the square inch. As a height similar to that of Mt. Everest, some 29,000 feet, the pressure is one-half as much.

DRIVING 80 MILES AN HOUR

A New York society couple recently bet that they could drive their automobile to Boston in less time than the fastest train between the two cities required. They did it and won their bet; but the Massachusetts state police are looking for them, because they broke so many speed laws.

All automobile drivers should hope that the police get hold of this pair. Skimming over main roads at 80 miles an hour is little less than idiocy. No man has the right to endanger other motorists in that way. A short jail sentence might persuade this wealthy thrill-seeker that trying to become famous with an automobile is not a sport that any community can countenance.—Amarillo News.

R. H. Nichols of the Vernon News is tremendously interested in the baseball series for the Texas League pennant. Persons wishing to reach Lubbock and possibly to Dallas, but all others may be taken home on the afternoon of Sept. 27.

Urging citizens of Panhandle and vicinity to attend the Tri-State fair at Amarillo on Panhandle Day, when the Panhandle-Claude football game will be played, David M. Warren of the Herald declares: "The Tri-State Fair has assumed proportions that cannot be sneezed at even by habitues and drummers of old and established fairs. It is peculiar to the Panhandle and should have the support of its citizens."

R. H. Nichols of the Vernon Record modestly takes credit for making an orator out of Andy Bourland, new president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. "When I first knew him," Mr. Nichols writes, "Andy couldn't make a speech at all but during the last 15 years he has run around with me a lot and has become a polished platform orator."

Three Fairs in Lynn County The fact that Lynn county is one of the most progressive counties in Texas will be emphasized by the three fairs that are to be held in the county this year.

The O'Donnell community fair will be held Sept. 21-22. The women's and Girl's club work and all other work of that type will be judged on Sept. 21, by Miss Bessie Mae Jackson, County Home Demonstration Agent, Dawson county. The Wilson community fair will be held Sept. 22. Women's and Girl's club work and all other work will be judged Sept. 22 by Miss Louise Baird, County Home Demonstration Agent of Lubbock county. The Lynn county fair will be held in Tahoka, Sept. 25-27. The judging of women's and girl's work will be Sept. 25.

Miss Myrtle Murray, District Home Demonstration Agent and Miss Lois Ellis, Home Economics teacher, Tahoka are to be the judges. I am urging that all articles to be exhibited except poultry, dairy products, cooking and flowers be brought to American Legion Home, before Sept. 23. The reason for this is because Miss Murray can only be here one day; and the articles can be kept safely at this place. They can then be put in place before the fair begins on Sept. 26 and be left until the end of the fair.

Please leave all first, second and third place articles to be taken to Lubbock and possibly to Dallas, but all others may be taken home on the afternoon of Sept. 27. Please remember these dates and in this way assist the Home Demonstration Agent, Fair Directors and Superintendents of Departments. Let's make this the biggest and best fair Lynn county has ever had.—Lynn County News.

"What book has helped you most in your career?" was asked. "The volume of business," replied the merchant prince.—Havana Post.

Public Opinion

PUBLIC OPINION To The Avalanche: Some time ago I stated in an article to the Avalanche that Tom J. Mooney, a labor leader of San Francisco, Cal., was a labor agitator, and presented, and other evidence not permitted on the stand; also according to later acknowledgment of a frame-up, said Thomas J. Mooney was not guilty of the San Francisco preparedness parade bomb disaster in 1916 with which he was charged and given the death sentence, and later it was commuted to a life imprisonment. The only thing that was the matter with Tom Mooney was that he was a very intelligent man and an influential person in the labor union. (Isn't it necessary, and don't we all belong to some organization?) He was neither a criminal nor a lawbreaker any more than other ordinary American citizens. He was a man who at that time the dominant property was labor crime and seeking for victims, and labor unions and leaders were singled out, it seemed, for victimizing and thousands of innocent men, women and children suffered unjustly. That is a fact well known by all intelligent Americans, although the Wilson commission after investigation, reported that the Mooney case seemed to be a frame-up; and President Wilson recommended a new hearing that might have shown up the real dirty criminality in the case, yet Tom Mooney got no rehearing, and now, after 11 years of false imprisonment, must still be kept in a foul, lathouse prison for a crime he never committed, and yet we call this a free, liberty loving, truly American, Christian country.

Are you an American citizen? So is Tom Mooney! Do you love and association under the Constitution and laws of the United States? So does Tom Mooney. The man that is not willing to give justice does not deserve it himself, and he is not a Christian or a good citizen. I have some history of this case, and others. If anyone does not believe what I have written, please read the following which appeared in many of the leading newspapers of the nation under date of June 4, sent out by the American Press Association. If there is a spark of humane or Christian principles in your heart, then please put yourself in Tom Mooney's place, and think of his condition. Then think of your own wife and children and home and liberty, and be fair just and merciful to others. Oh, God of love, and mercy, deliver us from war and from hate, and from prejudice and injustice. Yours for right and justice. T. J. ESTES.

Here is the news item referred to above. CHICAGO, Ill., June 4 (AP)—A voice from the dead spoke Monday and said Tom Mooney, radical labor leader, from the life sentence he is serving in the San Quentin, Cal., penitentiary. It was an affidavit bearing the signature of Alfred H. Spink, court reporter, who died last week, and set forth that the preparedness parade bombing at San Francisco July 22, 1916, was not plotted and executed by Mooney, who was found guilty of it, but by agents of the German Government. Tells About Warning. The threat on which the Spink affidavit spins the suggestion of absolution for Mooney winds back to ante bellum days, when Mr. and Mrs. Spink made their home at Oakland, Cal. Mrs. Spink, who was a German, became friendly with Mr. and Mrs. Powell Merta, neighbors, who the affidavit says, were reputed German agents. On the day of the preparedness parade in San Francisco, Mrs. Spink mentioned to her neighbors that she planned to cross the bay for the celebration. Mrs. Merta warned her not to, the affidavit sets forth, telling her that "something awful" was going to happen. Kept Quiet for Wife's Sake. "Something awful" did happen, 11 persons being killed, Spink planned to notify the authorities of what had been said by Mrs. Merta, according to the affidavit, but was persuaded not to by his wife, whose health was poor and who feared the consequences of any disclosures they might make. Spink kept the information to himself until the death of his wife, a year ago. He then notified the president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, but made Friedrich promise that the things he had revealed would not be made public until Spink himself died. His death last week released the affidavit and led the federation to renew efforts to obtain a pardon for Mooney.

Today's Poem

BLESSED WITH THE RHYTHM OF FAITH "Abba, Father" (Rom. 8:18; Jer. 33:3.) How can it be the mighty God, Maker of earth and heaven A child's sweet privilege and place To me has freely given? The way into His Father-heart One day was opened wide. When Christ, His son, for men and all The world, was crucified! He bore my sins, that I might come "with boldness" to the throne And hear that loving voice: "Thou art My child, My very own" It reaches down within my heart And countless times each day, I whisper: "Father!" and He knows All that I long to say. In His unending, faithful care I'm sheltered constantly, And I can never tell in words All that He means to me "My Father!" Ah, no heart can be Alone or desolate, That knows this Father love so true So tender and so great! Edith Lillian Young.

WHIRLWIND

BY ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, social butterfly, finds herself courted on ship-board by a fascinating and dangerous lover, RICHARD Eastle. Subconsciously Sybil is seeking romance, and Richard, with his mad, modern notions, very nearly sweeps her off her feet. Her own love life has been tragic. When she was 18 she fell desperately in love with a young soldier, JOHN LAWRENCE, who never returned from France.

Several years later, when all Boston society is talking of her indiscretions, CRAIG NEWHALL, most popular bachelor in the city, asks her to marry him. In order to please her father, who is very ill, Sybil becomes engaged to Newhall. But her father dies, and then TAD, her adored brother, is married to VALERIE WEST, an incredibly rich young woman. Sybil is left desolate. She decides to take a trip with MABEL BLAKE, a social worker admittedly anxious to get married.

On the boat they meet Richard Eastle, whom Mabel promptly falls in love with. Richard tells Sybil that she would make a wretched wife. "You're not stupid enough," he informs her cheerfully. "And me—Tad makes a rotten husband. I'm too clever for matrimony."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV

"Sybil," Richard put both hands on her shoulders, and held her at arms length. "Will you marry me, Sybil?" "Richard Eastle!" "Will you, Sybil?" "But Richard, she cried. "You don't know what you're saying. You don't believe in marriage."

"No," he told her firmly. "I don't. But I want you. I want you so much that it seems as though I could not live without you."

"But, Rich..." she faltered helplessly. "You've only known me five days. You—you've let me emotion sweep you away, Rich. You don't really want to marry me. Marriage is positive anathema to you. You've said so loads of times. You'd hate me if I married you. And—besides—I don't want to. I loathe all your ideas about love and marriage. I think they're simply sickening. I—I wouldn't marry you for the world. I've told you so hundreds of times."

"You make me sick," Sybil had retorted. "You're perfectly dreadful."

"No, darling." He had shaken his head wearily. "Only once and very rarely. All men love in the same fashion. The rest are hypocritical about it."

"But all that," he cried, "was before I knew you."

"Oh, no," she said. "Five little days and a few experiences have not changed you at all—not basically. You have an absolute obsession regarding marriage. You believe that you could not love any woman except transiently. How can you then be willing to make a legal contract to love me as long as I shall live? You don't even believe in fidelity."

"But you're going to marry me," he retorted. "The moon shone full on his face. His skin was very pale. It seemed almost translucent. On one cheek there was a scarlet mark where her lips had brushed it. And his lips, from her kisses, were crimson. His hair had fallen across his forehead. Blood hair, beautiful in the moonlight."

"Darling," he begged, "let's not talk like two people in a book. Don't try to make me feel like a villain on the stage."

"I've a few ideas on the subject myself. I quite agree with you on the importance of honesty. I believe that if love could be honestly discussed, there'd be a great deal more happiness. I think that every human relation should be based on honest understandings. There is never any harmony unless there is understanding."

"I was going to say that we bring all our little deceptions and petty jealousies, about which we've builded all our lives, right on to love and marriage. And that, of course, is disastrous. That's why marriage founders. Lack of honest understanding."

"You can't expect compatibility, if you haven't understanding. And incompatibility is back of every divorce. Back of infidelity, and the thing that masquerades as cruel and abusive treatment. Back of desertion and non-support—back of everything that takes men and women to court, to throw dirt, and cry for freedom. Men and women who loved each other!"

When she stopped for breath he laughed at her seriousness. "Darling," he bragged mockingly. "I'm the only man who's ever been perfectly honest with you. I have thrown discretion to the winds, and begged you to marry me. But I'm not telling you, Sybil, that my life will be ruined if I cannot make you listen to me. For there are other women as beautiful as other women as charming."

"But you're here. And I'm here. And, oh, my dear, you'd search the wide world over before you'd find a man who could love you so."

"Richard," she assured him solemnly. "I'm sure you're crazy."

"Listen, darling," he besought her. "Did you know the captain could marry us—here in the harbor?" "Look Rich," shrilly she interrupted him. "Morro Castle through the mist. Over there beyond the fog. Oh, Rich, isn't it thrilling?" "Thrilling!" she snapped.

"And now," she told him calmly. "I'm going down and taking a shower, so I won't look like a wreck. And I'll see you on deck in 15 minutes. I'll bring Mab up with me. And we'll ask John Arnold to go ashore with us—shall we?"

"Darling," moaned Richard, and turned his back on Morro Castle. "There are times when I could slap your pretty face. But you're going to marry me."

"The trouble with marriage," he proclaimed. "Is this—there's no sense in physical attraction—no time for reason. It's blind as a bat. People mistake a powerful physical attraction for love, and so they get married, and expect the thing to last. That's idiotic."

65 YEARS YOUNG

AND NOBODY'S HIRED MAN

Life Insurance is a protection against loss, occasioned by death of course, but its greatest benefits are enjoyed by the living. If you want to be financially free and independent at 65... if you want to have your Life Insurance paid up for life... or if you want to have a guaranteed income upon which to retire, investigate the possibilities of two policies offered by this company.

The rate on our "Paid up at 65" policy is unusually low, permitting the average man to carry more than the usual "20 pay life" form. The Old Age Endowment policy is the inflexible way to a comfortable income during the years when work has lost its zest.

Many thousands promise much higher earnings than Life Insurance, but few of them pay more and none of them are safe. Let the Southland Life Agent help you build a "lock-iron" savings program.

A NEW VICTORY SIX BY DODGE BROTHERS

SMARTER, ROOMIER, MORE COMFORTABLE

With Famed Victory Performance Made Still More Brilliant

Striking improvements in beauty, comfort and roominess, set Dodge Brothers new Victory Six apart as a distinctive and impressively attractive motor car.

Seat dimensions are more generous; cushions deeper and more luxurious; doors higher and wider; and passenger vision materially increased.

New Victory lines sweep gracefully forward to a radiator that expresses new ruggedness and power; and improved fenders further accentuate the vigorous and arresting charm of Victory Six design.

Moreover, new Victory Six construction has many unique and vital advantages.

The wide Victory chassis frame, flush with the body lines, provides a foundation for the body—which is directly mounted without axles. This remarkable construction lowers the all-important center of gravity, increases the head room, and eliminates the customary body overhang.

And as a consequence, the new Victory grips the road at the curves, travels rough pavement with incredible smoothness, obeys the four-wheel brakes instantly, etc. with no discommodities to passengers. And provides a quality of pick-up, flexibility and foot-feeding action that we urge you most earnestly to investigate.

ALSO DODGE BROTHERS STANDARD SIX $1895

Great beauty, comfort and convenience with speed, power, smoothness and dependability more remarkable than ever. Four full-size body styles fully equipped.
