GET READY FOR PLENTY OF LAUGHS. This ALLEY OOP fellow with the funny cave man expressions in a brand new idea in comics and The NEWS is beginning it with the first release. We dedicate it to L. O. Johnson, our bone-digging circulation manager, and Prof. Dumlevy of Winfield, Kans., and his colleagues.

We certainly hope the NRA (near recovery again) will succeed. We know very well Mr. Roosevelt has other plans ready to spring and we're tired of working all day explaining the present one.

Famous initials: RFC, NRA, FDR, IOU.

And never says Chairman C. H. Walker, have I seen a fowl so popular as the blue eagle. There's a reason: Housewives know it helps make secure their husband's jobs; they look for the bird.

Mistake not: There is a closed season on shooting at blue eagles.

BENT—NOT BROKEN

J. C. Estlack in Donley County Leader: America's greatest asset is her people. The people's greatest asset is that indomitable will to maintain an enterprising spirit to overcome handicaps. Their courage may have been badly bent; their faith may have been shaken, but neither has broken through it all during the unpleasantness since the fall of 1929.

There is every prospect that the new day is dawning. Hopes are brighter. The marts of trade are again lighted with a ray of hope. Prosperity is apparently beginning at the right end of the deal—with the consumers. The consumer must be able to buy before commodity prices may be advanced successfully.

(The enthusiasm of NRA springs from the backs of the nation. Their jobs will be more stable, their wages likewise, if it succeeds. That enthusiasm must be bridled and controlled. We don't wish the mob spirit but we do wish patriotism which is willing to sacrifice a bit for the good of the nation. This includes employees as well as employers, and strikes are sadly out of place at

REPORT BRINGS QUICK DROP OF $1.50 A BALE

CROP IS 74.2 PER CENT OF NORMAL ON AUGUST 1

BY SAM BLEDSOE.
Associated Press Staff Writer.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The unusually good condition of the cotton crop today resulted in a government forecast of 12,314,000 bales this year, as compared with slightly more than 13,000,000 last year.
In making public the estimates, the crop reporting board said the potential crop, if there had been no cotton reduction program, would have been approximately 16,561,000 bales. The board said the amount of cotton taken out of production is around 4,247,000 bales.
The unusual production report, despite the approximately 10,304,000 acres plowed under, was attributed to the estimate that the crop on August 1 was 74.2 per cent of normal. This compared with 65.6 per cent a year ago and a ten-year average of 67.9 per cent.

Government statisticians said the August 1 condition was higher than any other August 1 since 1915, except the 74.9 per cent reported in 1931.
Growing conditions have been particularly favorable in the Atlantic seaboard states, and in Texas and Oklahoma and the central part of the belt, conditions above the average although less favorable than along the seaboard.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—Cotton dropped about $1.50 a bale today following publication of the first official crop estimate for the season.
All features of the government report which placed the condition of the crop at 74.2, acreage for harvest at 29,704,000 acres and indicated yield at 12,314,000 bales, were interpreted as bearish, traders said, against expectation based on the private reports issued during the past few weeks.
Prior to the report, which was released at noon, the market remained in a narrow range with trading in small volume. With the publication of the figures, heavy selling came into the market forcing all the active contracts well below the previous closing levels.

July slumped to 19.46 cents a pound, off $1.55 a bale; May 10.35, off $1.15, and March 10.14, off $1.35.
A Minneapolis heddler in the alcohol racket was reported to be the third man held in a St. Paul jail. He was picked up after making a deposit at a downtown bank and then asking to have his account transferred to another bank.
His deposit, it was understood, also was identified as part of the Urschel ransom.

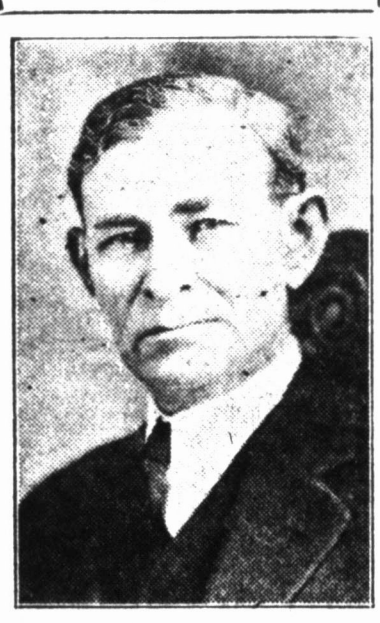

NRA Group To Meet Tonight

Instructions for carrying out the NRA census of compliance and unemployment and for educating the public will be considered tonight by the local readjustment council.

The council is composed of the "military" organization headed by R. G. Allen. The session will be held at Mr. Allen's home.
Yesterday at Dalhart, Chairman C. H. Walker of the Pampa recovery organization addressed a large audience called to perfect the campaign in that city. He also discussed the proposed Texas amendment to permit issuance of up to $20,000,000 in bonds for unemployment relief in the next two years.

Indications are that the Dalhart community will vote strongly for the amendment.
ELECTION ORDERED
LUBBOCK, Aug. 8 (AP)—Lubbock county citizens will cast ballots on local option of 3.2 beer August 26 along with their state votes on beer and repeal of the 18th amendment. The local option election was ordered by the county commissioners' court in a called session late Monday. Petitions asking for the election contained signatures of 535 qualified voters of the county.

Changed Mind

LIEUT. GOV. EDGAR WITT, above, has "changed his mind" about the proposed Texas bond issue for unemployment relief and is supporting it.

WITT THINKS BOND ISSUE IS MUCH NEEDED

Conditions Critical in Many Parts of State

AUSTIN, Aug. 8 (AP)—Lieut. Governor Edgar Witt of Waco, an original opponent of the proposed constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to issue relief bonds, today announced that after acquainting himself with the relief situation he believes it would be a tragedy not to adopt the proposal.
"When the legislature submitted the proposed amendment last spring," said the lieutenant governor, "I was hopeful that we would not need federal aid in Texas. But there have been developments since then, and I have learned the true and dark picture of suffering in Texas and I now believe it would be sheer tragedy to defeat the relief bonds."

"In the first place, the drought and crop failures in certain sections change the picture from what it was three months ago. I am told authoritatively that before the end of this winter there may be as high as 80 per cent of all the inhabitants of some Panhandle counties who will have to be publicly fed. So much Texas cotton has been plowed up and crops are so short that the usually dependable labor of cotton picking will be reduced by more than half of normal."

"Twenty per cent of our population is now on relief rolls, but that is only a part of the picture. More than that proportion are unemployed, using the last of their reserves

RURAL SCHOOL CHILDREN GIVEN NEW DEAL, SAYS STATE OFFICIAL

A NEW deal for Texas rural school children, including standardization of methods, 8-month terms, and transportation to accredited schools for students of high school grades was outlined here yesterday by Pat Bullock, representative of the state department of education.

Mr. Bullock was 8 years superintendent of Scurry county, at Snyder. His audience included school men of Gray, Roberts, Wheeler, and Hemphill counties.
"More schools for the money" is the slogan of L. A. Woods, state superintendent. Especially in East Texas will the new plan, embodied in legislation passed by the 43rd legislature, tend to reduce the number of rural schools, but the grade load per teacher, and give better opportunities for educating the pupils. The schools will, in most instances, have 7 grades and last 8 months.
The $6,000,000 rural school aid appropriation (2 years) includes sums for transporting entire district's pupils if necessary, and embodies help

IDENTITY OF GUNMEN SAID TO BE KNOWN

ATTEMPTED DELIVERY IS PLANNED AT HOME OF 'DOC' STACY

CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (AP)—Federal authorities announced today they were holding Louis Stacy, the man who plotted the attempted delivery of Frank Nash, a convict, at Kansas City, and that they had learned the identity of the gunmen who killed five persons in the attempt.

Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the United States bureau of investigation here, disclosed that Stacy was arrested on a federal warrant issued at Kansas City charging conspiracy to deliver Nash.

Purvis named Verne Miller, notorious South Dakota outlaw, as one of the gunmen who killed Nash and four police officers in a wild shooting fray at the union station in Kansas City. He said the other gunmen were known to federal authorities.

"The attempted delivery was planned at Stacy's home in Maywood (a Chicago suburb) but Stacy himself took no part in the shooting in Kansas City," Purvis said. "It is probable he was not even in Kansas City at the time."

Purvis said Stacy would be removed to Kansas City as soon as possible.

Havana Is Quiet After Massacre Of 21 Persons

HAVANA, Aug. 8 (AP)—One wounded person died today, bringing the known fatalities from yesterday's riotous political disorders in Havana streets to 21.

The capital was quiet this morning, the army forces having been withdrawn from the city following the outbreak of firing late yesterday afternoon in which more than a hundred were wounded in addition to the number known to have been killed.

The disorders came as a climax to a week of agitation and strikes, which spread as opposition leaders sought to induce President Machado, storm center of political unrest, to retire from his office, and while Sumner Welles, United States ambassador, was seeking to obtain an agreement by all groups upon a proposed plan of peaceful settlement.

Uptown stores continued to be closed today although many smaller ones on the outskirts opened. Groceries were becoming scarcer.

MINERS VOTE TO GO BACK TO DIGGINGS

Union Heads Approve Roosevelt Truce After McGrady Makes Speech.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 8 (AP)—More than 100 heads of United mine workers locals, representing about 200,000 miners, voted unanimously today to return to work in the soft coal fields of southwestern Pennsylvania.

The action was taken in a rising vote after Edward P. McGrady, labor advisor of the national recovery administration, delivered a stirring appeal to the men to support President Roosevelt's recovery program.

McGrady flew to the coal fields from Washington at the request of General Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator.

Several hundred people, many of them strikers, milled about the streets as the decision was reached.

The men have been on strike for more than two weeks, demanding recognition of the United Mine Workers of America.

Opposition to the return-to-work plan failed to materialize after McGrady's appeal, brought directly from the administration in Washington.

Labor Is Asked To Report All Code Violations

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Signs multiplied today that the national recovery administration will brook no holding back or double dealing in the determined prosecution of its plans to bulwark popular buying power and employment.

While setting no specific deadline, Hugh S. Johnson spoke again of allowing "two weeks" for those businesses still outside the blanket code to come in—before asking the public to apply the boycott screws.

And on top of that, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, prominent in NRA activity, told reporters he would ask all state and city branches of his organization to watch for and report violations of the recovery act.

Labor organizations over the entire country thus would watch for infractions of codes as they affect both the manufacturers or sellers and laborers.

Reports of violations would be cleared through city and state headquarters to the federal's national headquarters here, to be turned over to the recovery administration for disciplinary action after investigation.

DESERTED ELECTRA WOMAN CUTS THROATS OF HER TWO CHILDREN THEN KILLS SELF IN SAME WAY

'Nothing For Us But Death,' Mother Writes

ELECTRA, Aug. 8 (AP)—Deserted by her husband and finding "nothing for us but death," Mrs. J. H. Gordon, 32, last night cut the throats of her two children, Wynell, 8, and Ellen Beth, 9, and then killed herself with the same razor. Mrs. L. C. Johns, a neighbor, found the bodies today.

The bodies were on a pallet in the front room of the Gordon residence, next door to that of Mrs. Johns.

A note Mrs. Gordon had written to her husband said, "I know of nothing for us but death. I love you dearly, Myrtle."

She also said in the note that she had not told the children they had been deserted and that every morning and night they had prayed for God to send him back to them.

Her letter apparently was in reply to one from Gordon dated August 2 and mailed from Florence, Texas, in which he stated he would not return and told her to return to her father, W. J. Huckle, at Dublin, Texas.

Gordon, formerly was constable of the Electra precinct and jailer and policeman at Wichita Falls. He had been employed as a special detective recently but for the past month had been unemployed. He left Electra 10 days ago, going to Dublin, where his relatives resided.

The Gordon family had lived in Electra about 8 years.

REPORT FROM THREE TO FIVE MEN ARE HELD

FEDERAL AGENTS FIND MONEY IN BANK AT MINNEAPOLIS

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 8 (AP)—Police and federal operatives united today in a hunt for the Twin Cities' underworld for the actual kidnapers of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 8 (AP)—Part of the ransom money paid kidnapers for the release of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire, has been discovered in a Minneapolis bank. Federal investigators disclosed today.

The utmost secrecy cloaked the work of Federal operatives, and reports as to the number of men held incommunicado in connection with the finding of the money varied from three to five.

Bank officials positively identified that part of the currency that passed through their hands as part of the Urschel ransom by serial numbers on the bills.

The amount of the Urschel loot which found its way to Minneapolis was not revealed. The first of the $10 and $20 bills paid for Urschel's freedom made its appearance last Saturday at a neighborhood bank here.

Bank officials ascertained they were part of the ransom money and by a use detained the man who presented the bills and a cashier's check until Federal department of justice operatives arrived.

He was taken into custody and reports were that his story led to the questioning of an official of a Minneapolis transfer company who also was held.

The unexpected discovery of the Urschel money was linked with the movement here of federal agents from Chicago, first reported to have been inspired by the need of William Hamm Jr., millionaire St. Paul brewer, and witnesses in his kidnapping case against attacks from the Roger Touhy gang, charged with Hamm's recent abduction.

The three held incommunicado are Sam Abrahim, whose true name is Sam Kronick, Minneapolis; John C. Walker, whose real name is Chas. Wolk, and another booked as Paul Frederick. His real name is believed to be Nelson.

Though none of the three are understood to be suspected of being the actual kidnapers, they may, authorities hope, supply a clue leading to the arrest of Urschel's abductors.

Rogers and his 11-piece band will play at the Pampa-Mor tonight only, from 9 to 1 o'clock.

Miss Ann Neely, the torch singer, is popular everywhere, and plenty of applause will be saved for the Rogers trio and the featured vocalists, Clyde Austin and Al Sheldale.

Rogers comes here from a 2-year stay with the Gunter hotel and WOA! at San Antonio. Tickets for the dance are on sale at the Corner drug store.

U. S. DECLARES WAR ON CRIME

Kidnapers, racketeers and gangsters have been declared in on the New Deal by President Roosevelt. And they will be the only ones who will not like it.

The president has instructed the Department of Justice to use all its resources in helping local authorities stamp out lawlessness. This action will be welcomed not only by a public which has at last become alarmed over this succession of sensational kidnappings and the growing depredations of gangsters, but it will be welcomed also by local authorities for organized crime has been conducted on a scale with which city and county police have been unable successfully to cope.

The United States government cannot, under the constitution, set up a central detective agency like Britain's Scotland Yard. But the federal government can perform many similar functions. It can bring to the aid of local police the services of a corps of highly trained and efficient agents who are not hampered by questions of jurisdiction and who can co-ordinate local efforts to bring criminals to book.

There is no desire on the part of the federal government to usurp local police functions in the preservation of the peace, but intervention has been made inevitable and is now desirable because criminal operations have become national in character, and a national problem. Joseph B. Keenn, in charge of the government's anti-racketeering campaign, called the situation "a veritable revolt against orderly government."

The federal government in recent years has demonstrated its power by putting in prison a number of gangsters who had been able to operate in large cities virtually without molestation. Lately the government has done effective work in arresting several persons in millionaire kidnaping cases soon after the victims were released. These men will be prosecuted in federal courts under the so-called Lindbergh law. Federal agents assisted in obtaining the death penalty for the kidnaper of Mary McElroy in Kansas City.

"The Department of Justice will build up its force and increase its activities in co-operation with the states to crush bands of kidnapers and racketeers," promises Attorney General Cummings.

It seems safe to predict that gangsters are witnessing the beginning of the end.

Arkansas Preacher Is In New Quarrel

JONESBORO, Ark., Aug. 8 (AP)—The Rev. Joe Jeffers, evangelist involved in a church war that necessitated calling out of the national guard here two years ago, was in a legal dispute with the Rev. Dale Crowley, pastor of the Baptist tabernacle today.

Sunday night, the evangelist took over the pulpit and Crowley said to avoid bloodshed. The action was followed by an injunction suit to prevent Jeffers from occupying the pulpit further.

In 1931, Jeffers became involved in a dispute with the Rev. Dowheard, pastor of the First Baptist church here, and the militia was called out to preserve order.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Coffey and daughter, Frances and Margie, returned yesterday from Rolf, Okla., where they visited the last 10 days.

Lenore Ulric To Divorce Blackmer

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 8 (AP)—Lenore Ulric, actress, is about to climax her separation agreement of last October with her actor husband, Sidney Blackmer, in a Mexican divorce court.

Blackmer announced the impending divorce Sunday. He said:

E. D. Zimmerman, employed by the Tulsa Rig and Reel, and Manufacturing company the past seven years, has accepted a position with the Acme Lumber company.

"It was the old struggle between a home and a career. . . I regret very much that the divorce has come but I will not contest it."

The two played opposite each other for a number of years before their marriage in May, 1929.

SLEUTH CHIEF SOLVED 15 OF 17 KIDNAPINGS

Hoover Fights Crime With Invaluable Statistics

By MELVIN E. COLEMAN Associated Press Staff Writer
Chief of staff to the army of sleuths which the government is launching in its war on crime, is J. Edgar Hoover, director of the investigation division of the department of justice.

No detective story methods figure in his scheme. He believes rather in drills, training, study and careful plotting of the enemy positions. "Crime," he says, "can not be fought effectively until we know its extent, nature and geographical concentration. The best way to diagnose it is to collect statistics on it."

One result of his crusade for definite information is that his division has 3,800,000 sets of finger prints. It is the greatest collection of its kind in the world.

He has developed a national crime laboratory, a crime statistics collection service and an officers training school.

The laboratory studies handwriting, typewriting and similar evidence. The statistics service gets reports from law agencies all over the nation, reduces them to a composite picture and sends the result back to sheriffs and police chiefs. The training school gives each field agent six weeks of intensive study in scientific crime detection. One result of all this drilling and study: Since the Lindbergh kidnaping, the department's men have investigated 17 extortion and kidnaping cases. Arrests were made in 15 of them, convictions obtained in 12 and trials are pending in the other three.

The record on federal indictments last year was 95.51 per cent of convictions. Hoover thinks this proves that federal agents get evidence which stands up in court.

He is on the advisory board of the international police association recently formed at Chicago to exchange crime information among the United States, Canada and European countries.

He has one outstanding distinction as a federal office holder in Washington. He was born, reared and educated right in the capital. He has been in the department of justice since 1919.

Cotton Farm In Hockley County Has 9,000 Acres

LEVELLAND, Aug. 8.—What is said to be the largest cotton acreage in West Texas to come under the federal cotton acreage reduction program, is the Beasley brothers farm of 9,000 acres, located west of Ropesville in southeastern Hockley county.

The Beasleys, who reside in Lubbock, have 8,200 acres up to a good stand and they have offered 50 per cent of it to the government. Based on an estimated average of 68 per acre for the crop, the total offered the government will bring approximately $20,800.

A larger acreage was planted to cotton, but as some was not felt to be up to the standard it was not offered to the government, George Beasley explained. The place is known as the "old Woodley" ranch. It is planned to plant the rest of the crop land in feed. There is a gin operated on the place. Farming operations are said to be about the largest under one single management on the south plains.

The Trap Is Sprung

EVERYBODY UNDER BLUE EAGLE IN TWO WEEKS, IS OBJECTIVE

GOAL IS FIVE MILLION JOBS BY LABOR DAY

TO PICK MEN ENTITLED TO DISPLAY BLUE EAGLE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (P)—To employers the country over went today an indirect but renewed warning that Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, wants everybody under the blue eagle in two weeks.

With that goal in mind, he appointed a special board to consider and speed temporary application of the many pending codes that fix minimum wages and minimum hours for as many trades.

When the two weeks have expired, the administrator now plans a concerted appeal for consumers to buy only from the men who are entitled to display the blue eagle.

As members of that board, Johnson named Robert T. Stevens, a deputy administrator; Edward R. Steilman, secretary of the recovery administrator's industrial advisory board; Robert K. Straus, an administrative assistant to Johnson; W. Woolston, of the labor advisory board, and Kilbourne Johnston, son of the administrator.

The hope is that this board may speed study of the many pending codes and order into effect as many of them as are acceptable. Later, all will be studied in public hearings, and modifications made, if any are necessary, before they are promulgated by the president and made permanent.

This move will augment the continuing attempt to get employers to sign individual agreements with the president to raise wages and shorten working hours. One major purpose of the temporary codes is to apply them to groups which feel the blanket presidential agreement is too inflexible for their purposes.

Behind the two-way drive is the announced objective of 5,000,000 new jobs by labor day, less than a month away. Pressure, meanwhile, will be put on lagging employers by the many local organizations now being established.

Johnson and his agents in the capital concentrated on these aspects of their problem while a traveling mediator, Edward F. McGrady, assistant administrator for labor, went into Pennsylvania to try to persuade the miners to go back to work under the terms of the strike truce Johnson obtained. From Pennsylvania, McGrady will fly to Massachusetts for discussions with differing employers and workers in the boot and shoe industry.

The national conciliation board at the same time was considering its problems. Its first meeting, informal, found the chairman, Senator Wagner of New York, absent. He is in Europe. But Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of the recovery administrator's labor advisory board, presided.

Dr. Wolman said that among other things, the board, named by President Roosevelt, likely would select sub-committees to take up the Pennsylvania hosiery and Hollywood motion picture strikes.

Bids Received On Observatory

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (P)—Leo C. Haynes, secretary to the board of regents of the University of Texas, said today that it was hoped to formally award a contract for an astronomical observatory in the Davis Mountains soon.

The board opened bids on Saturday for the telescope and a building to house it, but Haynes said legal questions remained to be settled before the contract could be let.

The Warner Swasey Sales Company of Cleveland, Ohio, was low bidder for an 80-inch telescope, it and the main building to cost $317,000. He said contracts for a group of buildings to include living quarters and light plants would be made later. He estimated the cost of the contemplated observatory at about $400,000.

The HIDDEN DOOR

BY FRANK L. PACKARD

SYNOPSIS: Reddy Turner, crook, has been shot down by the Mask, underdog power, in Colin Hewitt's room. Colin writes mysteries, and is the friend of both crooks and the police. Reddy was trying to get the Mask, who was responsible for the death of his sister. Colin was badly wounded; he has just left the hospital and is remembering his promise to deliver a mysterious letter for Reddy when the Mask telephones to say that only if Colin does not meddle, will he be safe. Sergeant Mulvey tells Colin he must leave New York. Colin takes a bunch of skeleton keys and starts for Reddy's old room.

Chapter Seven COLIN'S VENTURE

A full moon flooded the little courtyard with light, and his eyes, entirely of their own volition, it seemed, searched every corner of it narrowly. It was deserted—empty. No one was there. Of course not. Who, or what, had expected to see? A lurking shadow?

He shrugged his shoulders in sudden irritation, as he stepped forward as he gained the street he found himself instinctively glancing again in all directions about him. That telephone conversation, of course! The fact that the Mask had seemingly been conversant with his every movement that day!

He laughed shortly. Well, there wasn't anyone in sight here, anyway. And yet—

"Oh, all right!" Colin muttered savagely to himself. "Absurd of course; but no use taking any chances! If anyone is sticking around, I'll be delighted to give him a run for his money."

A taxi hove in sight, and Colin hailed it. Reddy's erstwhile lodging was in the upper Forties between Fifth and Sixth avenues. Colin gave the chauffeur an address on Fifth Avenue a block away from his actual destination, and assured by a swift glance up and down the street that there was no one near enough to warrant even the suspicion of being concerned in his movements, stepped into the cab.

He wasn't at all so badly off physically—not perhaps quite up to par, but fit enough. It wasn't as though he had been bedridden all the time. He had voluntarily extended his stay in the hospital because, having neither kith nor kin in the world and no one to look after him, except old Mrs. Higgin, his landlord's wife, who came daily to keep his diggings in order, he could recuperate there better than anywhere else. Yes, he was quite all right.

And besides there was a very good and valid reason why he should go to Reddy's old room tonight. It wasn't so easy to steal into a house and take down the bedroom curtain pole without anybody knowing anything about it! But tonight Reddy's old room was unoccupied, that was all.

Colin screwed his head around and looked out through the back window. Several cars had passed him, but there was none behind. That took care of that! He settled himself back in his seat again.

He nodded reflectively to himself. Despite the fact that he had no family ties, he had not lacked for visitors during his illness once he had been able to see them. Rather a heterogeneous lot! Personal friends of perfectly respectable social status; the police; the members of Reddy's mob. The nurses had been more often aghast than not.

Yes, quite so! But that was how he knew Reddy's old room was empty tonight. Butch Connal had up and told him so yesterday afternoon. Butch was one of Reddy's mob, and Butch had taken over Reddy's room. Butch had casually remarked that he'd be spending the next couple of nights out of town. And wouldn't be calling at the hospital again.

It remained only to get into the room once occupied by Reddy. Well, he had the "open sesame," hadn't he? Those skeleton keys? He smiled suddenly—a little crookedly. This was getting to be very much like one of his own chapters! He had enacted scenes like this a hundred times—vicariously—in his books. A queer turn of fate that he was to live one of those scenes now instead of write it!

He felt his nerves tingle suddenly at the prospect before him. Simple enough! Not a single one of his heroes would have batted an eyelash. The whole street where he was going was filled with speakeasies—people at the peepholes waiting to pass inspection or present credentials. No one would pay any attention to him if he took a few moments to open a front door, then along the hall to the rear door on the right; then five minutes at most in an unoccupied room—and out again.

He half closed his eyes. That apart, what was it all about? Even if he delivered the letter he would never know. Had it anything to do with this worse than pervert who called himself, like some character out of blatant melodrama, the Mask? He hoped so.

The car slowed down and drew up to the curb. Colin glanced out. It was the street corner he had given the taxi driver as an address. He stepped to the pavement as the man opened the door, paid the other, stood there for a moment, as he watched the cab rattle away, and while a car traveling at a rate that defied all speed laws whizzed by, then he crossed to the west side of Fifth Avenue, walked a block north—and swung around the first corner headed toward Sixth Avenue.

Start from a rather hilarious sextette of men and women emerging from a basement door, and a parked car here and there, the street at the moment showed little sign of life. Exactly! The life at this hour was indoors! It had once been a very good residential neighborhood, of course, but time and prohibition had wrought its havoc in that respect.

The houses were for the most part substantial, but many of them were now used for quite other purposes than those for which they had been erected. Colin smiled thinly. He had a "membership card" himself to the "club" he was just passing.

He had been walking briskly. He was now halfway down the block and he suddenly slowed his pace. The house into which he proposed to make that "felonious" entry should be just about here. Yes, here it was!

Aided by the moonlight, he selected a key from among its fellows and inserted it in the lock. It was almost too easy, but he none the less experienced a distinct sense of relief as the door gave under his hand at the first attempt.

Chapter Eight THE CURTAIN POLE

He was in the hall now, and here he stood still again, this time to listen. Faintly, from upstairs somewhere, he could hear men's voices, a snatch of laughter, and unless he was far wide of the mark, the rattling of chips. There was no other sound.

There was no light to be seen anywhere; but again the moonlight aided him, for the front doors were glass-paneled and a streak of it, filtering in lay along the hall.

He started forward; but, as he tiptoed silently down the hall, he became all at once conscious of a sense of eeriness, coupled with a sort of panicky impulse to hurry and get it all over and done with as quickly as possible. No reason for it. Of course not!

Somehow he did not feel at all debonair, not nearly so nonchalant as he had felt in the cab. It was easier to write about this sort of thing!

There were two doors that opened off the right-hand side of the hall. He passed the first, reached the second. This was the room that had once been Reddy's and was now occupied by Butch Connal.

A sudden disturbing suggestion occurred to him. Butch Connal was away, but any one of Butch's crowd might be bunking up in there for the night. Nonsense! His type figured. He tried the door. Locked, of course.

His keys came into play again. The first one would not work—the second. He was not so good, after all! He made a third attempt with a third key, and this time, after persisting for a moment, he was successful. His face cleared as the lock bolt clicked back responsively.

He pushed the door open a few inches at a time, and peered into the room. There was only one window—a bay window that looked out on the rear, and the curtains, hanging across the bay window, forming a sort of little alcove, were not quite drawn. The moonlight flooding in enabled him to see plainly. The room was unoccupied. The room was empty.

Colin slipped through the doorway, closed the door quietly, and stepped swiftly across the room to the window. Behind the portieres in the window bay was a chair. He passed behind the curtains and then standing on the chair, reached up for the heavy brass curtain pole.

It came away readily enough from its supports as he lifted it, but its weight, even though the pole was of course hollow, combined with the weight of the heavy portieres, was so much more than he had expected, that it nearly caused him to lose his balance. He recovered himself with a muttered imprecation, stepped down from the chair, and laid the pole and portieres on the floor.

"The right-hand knob," Reddy had said. That would mean the window, of course. Well, here it was—the usual thing, a knob to most curtain poles, a ball-like ornament. It required no effort to unscrew it, and it came away readily.

He probed, with his fingers into the hollow of the pole. The envelope, twisted into a roll, was there. He pulled it out, flattened it into shape, and thrust it into his pocket.

He screwed the knob back into place, picked up the pole, and backing into the window bay, stood up again on the chair. He hoisted the pole above his head to replace it on its supports—and his hands, in mid-air, became suddenly motionless. The portieres were slightly parted as they dangled in front of him, and in the track of the moonlight he could see the far end of the room.

The door from the hall was being stealthily opened.

The blood for an instant whipped through Colin's veins, pounding at his eardrums, and then a cold, unnatural calm settled upon him. The door was closed now, and a man was coming toward him across the room. He could see but little of the man's face, for it was mostly hidden by the other's hat brim but he could see quite plainly the revolver in the outflung hand.

Colin's lips tightened into a straight line. It seemed as though there had endured an eternity of time since he had first seen that door begin to open, though in reality he knew it could have been but scarcely more than the passing of a second.

"Don't move!" snarled the man, "you've got your hands above your head—keep 'em there!"

Colin's mind was delving, probing swiftly. What was he to do? Not a nice situation. Not likely, but there was always the possibility that one of Butch Connal's crowd, or one of the gangsters who lodged in the house had seen him come in here; if not, then the Mask, both by telephone and physical contact through proxy—for disguised or not, it was a certainty that this was the Mask in person—was becoming visible tonight. This man was too tall to be the Mask.

"All right, but this thing's heavy," Colin complained, then coolly: "And may I ask what you are doing? ... 7 ... STORY ... HIDDEN DOOR ing here, and who you are?" "You're kind of fresh, ain't you?" snapped the other, "well, you won't be so fresh when I'm through with you! See? It don't matter who I am. What matters is that you are a guy named Colin Hewitt."

"I am," Colin admitted. "But how do you know?"

"You're some talker, ain't you?" sneered the man. "I followed you here from your dump, that's how I know."

"Oh, no, you didn't!" Colin retorted confidently. "I'm sure of that."

"Sure, you're sure," the man evily chuckled. "Gummed up your trail and kept your eyes open, didn't you? You're a hot detective writer, you are! Maybe if you get out of this alive, which the chances are you won't, you'll be able to hand out some of the real goods for a change. You were a laugh with your head going around like it was on a swivel trying to make sure no one was lamping you."

Colin's ire rose. All doubt that he was dealing with one of the Mask's tools was gone now, and it was obviously true that he had been outwitted, but this arraignment was a bit stiff.

"Thank you!" he said curtly.

PRO AGENTS DISMISSED
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (P)—All prohibition enforcement employees of the government today received official notification of dismissal effective at midnight tomorrow, under President Roosevelt's federal reorganization program abolishing the bureau.

J. J. Meyers and G. W. Wise of Monroe, La., are Pampa visitors for a few days.

"Tell me how," "Aw," sniffed the man contemptuously, "there was nothing to it! I was waiting just around the corner with a car where I could watch that dinky little alleyway of yours in case you came out. I didn't know whether I'd need a car or not, but I had it there. See?"

"You got a taxi before you'd gone half a block. I passed your taxi and after that I kept you in sight behind. When you got uptown a bit where there was more traffic, I could get the goods on you—like I have."

The curtain pole was heavy. But it was only a sort of subconscious way that Colin was aware his arms were beginning to ache with the strain. He was trapped. He had meddled—and been caught in the act. And Reddy's letter was in his pocket.

"Thanks," he said again curtly. "You have refused to introduce yourself, but I suppose, after all, that would be superfluous. As I take it, you are representing a certain personage known to both of us as the Mask, and—"

"Cut it out," interrupted the other man savagely. "You've guessed plenty. We'll get down to cases."

A sudden inspiration dawned in Colin's mind. Grim, swift humor, an ironic laugh at himself was in his soul. It was what he would have had "daring and resourceful" heroes do, of course, if he had been writing the scene. Well, if it was plausible, there was a chance, an even chance—if he could bait the trap. This thing weighed a ton. How much longer could he stand here balanced on the chair like a trick performer on a stage?

Colin takes a wild chance, tomorrow.

EMPLOYERS WHO TURN OFF ANY EMPLOYEES ARE NOT COMPLYING WITH REEMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT

Curb Boys Also Come Under Provisions Of NRA Code

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (P)—What does the NRA mean? The following questions were developed and answered today by officials of the National Recovery Administration.

Are small businesses, employing only a few persons, required to pay stated wage salaries and observe the hours specified in the blanket code?

They are.

How are unchartered home industries such as home laundries, affected by the NRA?

Where only one person is engaged in such industries he or she is not affected. Where more are at work, the business is expected to come in under the blanket code.

What about firms having curb service and employing several small boys or young men to serve cars at the curb?

The minimum wage for a part time worker in such businesses is expected to be such that if the employee worked at that wage for a full week or 40 hours, he would receive the minimum weekly wage prescribed for him by the president's reemployment agreement.

Is an employer expected to discharge employees where he has been spreading work by means of the "share-the-work" movement so as to give regular work for a less number of workers?

No. Compensation of employees above the minimum wage group, whether now fixed by the hour, day, week or otherwise, shall not be reduced, either to compensate the employer for increases that he may be required to make in the minimum wage group in order to comply with the president's reemployment agreement, or to turn this agreement into a mere "share-the-work" movement without a resulting increase of total purchasing power.

Is an employer who has signed the president's reemployment agreement abiding by its provisions if he turns off any of his employees?

He is not complying with the spirit of the agreement.

Shorter Hours Conflict With Blanket Code

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (P)—The official NRA attitude is that shorter business hours conflict with the president's blanket code.

A. D. Whiteside, deputy administrator, has wired the Indiana Retail Grocers Association urging it to "give serious consideration to the fact that in several local communities retailers are making joint agreements to shorten store hours."

"This is not in keeping," he stated, "with either the spirit or the fact as expressed in the president's reemployment agreement or in the president's statements regarding reemployment of which the essence is to effect an increase both in reemployment and in wages to those employed."

"The proposal to shorten store hours is in violation of section 8 of the president's reemployment agreement. Reconsideration of the provision of the retail codes and possible withdrawal of insignia will be necessary immediately if community or concerted action to shorten store operating hours is taken."

Inman And Wife Now in Colorado

RANDOLPH, Ia., Aug. 7. (P)—Obeying the advice of a famous American editor, Sharon Inman, former Cave Springs, Mo., minister, has gone west with the girl for whom he left his wife and church. Inman was divorced by his wife, who now fills his old pulpit in the Presbyterian church at Cave Springs, several months ago after she had attempted to win back his love by bringing his sweetheart, Eliza Holdridge, 20, into their home to live with them.

The experiment failed when Inman and Miss Holdridge left the home together.

Inman's mother today revealed that he had obtained work in Colorado and, after marrying Miss Holdridge, had gone there to start over again.

Green Corn Has Uses For Every Meal in Summer

DENTON, Aug. 8.—At this time of the summer the majority of our gardens are gone due to lack of moisture. As the result, we may turn to our fields for fresh green corn, and as it is composed largely of starch we may substitute it for our over-used rice and potatoes. It may be used as a main dish either in a lunch or dinner menu or it may be used in a salad or perhaps for variety in our breakfast menu.

Breakfast: Green corn waffles, bacon, maple syrup, coffee.

Lunch: Corn soup, beet and onion salad, with mayonnaise, bread, butter, rhubarb pie, milk.

Dinner: Corn croquettes, buttered spinach, creamed carrots, rolls, butter, halves of peaches, whipped cream, coffee, or stuffed green peppers, brussel sprouts, creamed beets, corn salad, bread, butter, coconut cake, iced tea, lemon.

Recipes With Corn
Green corn waffle: 2 c flour, 3/4 t soda, 1 t baking powder, 4 t melted shortening, 1 t salt, 1 1/2 c sour milk, 2 eggs beaten separately. Mix and sift dry ingredients, add milk slowly, then yolks of eggs and shortening; add corn pulp and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake.

Corn Soup: 1 1/2 c strained corn pulp, 3 c milk, 1 t grated onion, 1 t pepper, 2 t salt, 1 1/2 t fat, 1 1/2 t flour. Make white sauce of fat, flour, salt, pepper, milk. Add onion, corn pulp. Cook until corn and onion done. Serve hot. Makes 2 cups.

Corn Croquettes: 1 1/2 c strained corn, 2-3 c milk, 1 egg beaten, 1 t melted butter, 2 t grated celery, 1 t grated onion, 1 t lemon juice, 1 1/2-2 c soft crumbs, 2 t salt, 1/2 t pepper, egg and crumbs. Mix well, fry in deep fat. (Makes 16).

Last Program Of Vawter Party To Be Given Today

The last program of the Vawter evangelistic party will be given tonight at 8 o'clock, when they present their travogue and concert. This travogue, or trip around the world will start at 8 o'clock, and will take the audience through 42 different countries.

The pictures, which were all taken by the party personally, are in brilliant colors and show the life, customs and conditions in the countries visited.

Australia will be especially featured and many pictures will be shown showing the life of the aborigines in that far away country. Australia is different from any other place on earth. With a country practically the same size of the United States they only have a population of about 6,000,000. The animals, trees and birds of Australia are also different. It is the only country having the platypus or "duckbill", an animal that it is said belongs to the animal, bird and fish kingdoms. It is a fur bearing animal that has a bill and feet like a duck. It lives in the water, lays eggs and suckles its young.

Concert features will include singing and instrumental selections on the chimes, marimba and piano, whistling and a group of cartoons, rag and trick pictures by Mr. House.

Jeby Ready To Risk His Title Tomorrow Night

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—With as little fanfare as the tough old timers knew when they battled out of reach of the law, Ben Jeby, claimant of the world's middleweight championship, and Lou Brouillard, Worcester southpaw, will duel 15 rounds in the Polo Grounds tomorrow night.

Recognized in New York as champion, but his claim disputed elsewhere, Jeby will risk his part right to the crown that has adorned the noggin of such illustrious warriors as Ruby Rob Fitzsimmons and down the line through Mickey Walker, last of the generally recognized titleholders.

Perhaps the lack of color in the present middleweight crop, the total absence of punchers of better than ordinary ability, accounts for the failure of the youngsters to excite the faithful. A crowd of about 10,000, small for a title affair, is in prospect.

Brouillard's fine showing in training here has made him a slight favorite.

YANKS RISE UP AND HIT AND WIN 2 GAMES

SENATORS LEAD PARED TO ONE GAME AFTER DOUBLEHEADER

By EDWARD J. NEIL, Associated Press Sports Writer.

Every time the Yankees skid and knock off a wheel or two, the boys nod wisely at the indisputable signs of an aged, hard-to-inspire machine about to fly apart.

It has long been an axiom that when the issue is man to man with the title at stake, Babe Ruth and his "Doddering" brethren are the toughest foes in all baseball.

This was true yesterday, with 45,000 roosting in the great horseshoe stands, and the high riding Senators, three games in the lead, opening a four-game series with a double header.

Babe Ruth belted one; Lou Gehrig hit another. The pitchers pitched as they're capable of pitching. Red Ruffing, Herby Penn, Russell Van Atta, Old Willy Moore; the hitters hit, the defense was tight. The Yanks swept both games, 6 to 5 and 5 to 4, and the Senators lead was shaved to a single game.

Both the Yanks and the Senators have played 102 of the 154 games on the schedule with 52 to go apiece. After two more here they travel their separate ways until August 13, when they meet again in a single game in Washington.

Then they are apart again until September 28, 29 and 30, when they collide on the stadium turf in a final three game series. The season ends October 1.

It is possible that the two-team feud may carry on into the show-downs of the approaching world series, with the pressure on and the championship hanging on every play.

The battle of the Yanks and the Senators overshadowed the major league battlefronts yesterday with action largely suspended along the National league front.

The Yanks had to rally in the ninth inning of both games to win. With two out, old Earl Combs and Sam Byrd, running for Ruth, on second and third, Ben Chapman picked Jack Russell, finishing for Alvin Crowder, for the hit that scored two and won the first game.

In the second, with the count tied at 4-4, two out in the ninth again, and Crossett waiting patiently, old Joey Sewell belted him home with the counter that won. Ruth and Gehrig hit their homers, 26th and 20th, respectively, in the second.

The St. Louis Browns won their first series for Manager Rogers Hornsby as Lena Stiles shut out the White Sox 6 to 0 for a 3-1 edge. A five inning headache by fourth gave the Tigers enough runs to beat Cleveland 6 to 3 despite six errors. The home folks gave Bucky Walters, Red Sox third baseman, a chest of silver and a loving cup at Philadelphia, and he in turn gave the Athletics a headache by driving in five runs with a homer and triple and Boston won 8 to 5.

PLAINVIEW, Aug. 7 (AP)—Farmers in the Panhandle who signed cotton acreage reduction contracts can still grow a crop on the land that has been plowed up. SARAZEN IS HERO OF PROS AS NATIONAL PLAY STARTS

Gene Picked As Golfer To West P. G. A. Title From Dutra, Champ.

By PAUL MICKELSON, Associated Press Sports Writer.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 7 (AP)—Olin Dutra, the strapping caballero from California, was the defending champ and the marked man, but Gene Sarazen was the hero of the hour as 100 marksmen of the fairways opened a week's battle for the national professional golf championship at Blue Mound today.

Gene, making a late but dramatic entry, had saved the day for the field just when Milwaukee tournament sponsors, angered at the loss of several Ryder cup stars, threatened to withdraw the guarantee fund of $9,000 and force the players to play for the gate only.

As player after player finished his final practice round over the championship layout, yesterday and Sarazen failed to show up, local tournament boosters grew apprehensive lest the former American and British open champion would "walk out" on the tournament, just as the fears and threats of withdrawing the money were at their highest, a cheer went up. Into the clubhouse strode Sarazen, not only ready for action but confident of beating Dutra and the rest of the professional contenders for the crown.

Sarazen, who demonstrated in the British open that he was near the peak of his famed game, stood out as one man to beat but there were at least a score of serious contenders, including Dutra and five other Ryder cup players—Billie Burke, Paul Runyan, Horton Smith, Leo Diegel and Ed Dudley.

Other golfing notables, all given a chance to come through in one of the most grueling tests of the game, were Harry Cooper, Chicago; Bobby Cruikshank, from Richmond, Va.; John Golden, Noroton, Conn.; Johnny Farrell, New York; Johnny Revolta, young star of the winter tournament was from Menominee, Mich.; Tom Crevy, 1931 champion from Albany, N. Y.; Ed die Schulte, Troy, N. Y.; Willie Klein, New York veteran; Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis, runner-up to Johnny Goodman in the national open at Glen View, and Francis Gallett, home club pro and pride of Milwaukee golf.

Today's qualifying round called for 36 holes—18 holes in the afternoon, the 31 low scorers will join Dutra in the championship flight over the match play route tomorrow. Each match play battle will be over 36 holes through the finals Sunday.

The consumer campaign will be delayed until supplies are furnished each business man who wishes to comply.

NEW PACT WOULD TAKE U. S. MARINES OUT OF HAITI IN 1934

PROPOSAL WAS NOT ACCEPTED IN FIRST TERM

U. S. HAS KEPT PEACE ON ISLAND SINCE 1915 TERRORS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—A new agreement may remove marines from Haiti for the first time since an angry mob on July 26, 1915, dragged President Guillaume Sam from refuge in the French legation and killed him.

This new agreement was signed in Port-Au-Prince, Haitian capital, by Norman Armour, American minister, and a Haitian official. It provides withdrawal of American marines from the Haitian constabulary so that only natives will officer the "garde" by October 1, 1934. Thirty days later, the marine brigade of about 800 men would leave the island.

Just last year, the Haitian congress rejected a similar proposal on the ground that it left withdrawal of marines in doubt and omitted necessary specifications as to the island republic's financial affairs. Revolutions and bloodshed have characterized the island's history. From 1910 to 1915 it had seven presidents.

In the 1915 revolution, the party led by President Sam was credited with having massacred 167 political prisoners in jail. Sam fled to the French legation, and on the day of the funeral for the 167 dead was torn from his protectors and slain.

Two hours later, United States marines landed from a cruiser anchored in Port-Au-Prince. Quiet was reported, and a treaty drawn, Haitians charging that Smedley D. Butler, commander of the marines, locked their senate in its chamber until it ratified the pact.

Markets

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—The stock market was a trifle more lively today and prices were pushed up 1 to around 3 points. Despite weakness of cotton and irregularity in grains, the close was firm. Trading was largely professional, with public participation still hesitant. Approximately 1,200,000 shares changed hands.

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (AP)—Grain values crumbled late today, influenced by sympathy with cotton market weakness and because of increased hedging sales of wheat at a record. A rally, however, ensued at the finish, and left the market a trifle above yesterday.

Late declines of grains took place notwithstanding an earlier advance that accompanied reports President Roosevelt and economic advisers were to discuss the commodity dollar. The volume of grain trading was somewhat larger than yesterday, and until near the close the prevailing sentiment was notably less pessimistic.

Wheat closed nervous, 1/4 off to 3/4 up compared with yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 3/4 down, oats at 1/4 decline to 3/4 advance, and provisions showing 7 to 20 cents setback.

BUSY MERCHANTS

H. Deskins Wells in Wellington Leader: The farmers are still wondering about their cotton checks, but the merchants have completely forgotten all about cotton for the time being. They are so busy trying to figure out what NIRA is doing to them that they have no time to speculate about any body else's good luck or bad luck. This code business certainly is something, and I am for it even if I don't know what it is all about. As a matter of fact you might as well be for it whether you like it or not. As soon as your code is adopted, you will be subject to its regulations regardless of whether you like it or not.

(It may seem queer in theory to force a course of action on any business man. The fact is that much of the present business chaos results from practices which tear down price and wage structures. To get at the source of the problem, it is necessary temporarily to force uniformity. It is necessary to speed up the processes which would eventually restore business were business not so near disaster. A sick man doesn't like medicine; modern business may not be unanimous for NRA. To refuse the medicine is not to help the patient, and we are all patients.)

HISTORY CAN REPEAT

M. Noble in Canadian Record: In 1860 the federal government cost the average citizen $2.08 per year. In 1931 the cost of government for all units, was $107.37 per capita. In 1913 the total cost of government was $2,900,000,000, and in 1931 it was $7,500,000,000, and in 1931 it was $14,000,000,000.

In 1929—a year of inflated prosperity—the total tax of the American people amounted to 16 per cent of their incomes.

In 1931—a year of bleak depression—it amounted to 28 per cent. The current year may be the most expensive in our history, with the exception of the war period.

(This is the most expensive administration since the war. It will make or break the democratic party. If the program now under way fails, it will be the failure of business and industry to self-govern itself. We see no going back to republican conservatism. If there is a retreat from the old parties, it will be toward even more liberalism than the democratic party has assumed. It is desperately important that the new deal succeed.)

REGULARITY PAYS

David M. Warren in Panhandle Herald: For many years a well known product was advertised consistently in the newspapers. It used small ads, but used them regularly. In recent years, it quit advertising and sales dropped quickly. Now, this prominent firm has learned its lesson and is advertising regularly again.

This is an old, old story. Other advertisers have experienced the same business losses when they quit and have been forced to come back to the newspapers.

(Advertising tells some of the most interesting stories carried in any publication. It has reader appeal. But its appeal is for today; tomorrow it may have another. Like changing styles, so must advertising consistently appeal to the changing wishes and demands of buyers. To stop advertising is as unwise as to fail to place seasonal, stylish goods on the shelves. And today's styles permeate every commodity, even foods.)

CAPACITY AUDIENCE APPROVES NEW PLAYERS OF SADLER SHOW

Harley Sadler still packs 'em in. Opening a week's engagement here in his tent theater last night, he presented a company with many new faces but enough of the old to satisfy those who have been seeing his plays for the last 14 years.

There was plenty of applause for Miss Diana DeLaire, new ingenue leading lady, but the hold of Billy Sadler on the audience has not dimmed. Nor were Ethel Snow, A. C. Hefner, and the rest any less popular. Jimmie Parsons as the new juvenile leading man was especially approved for his authentic boyish role.

The most appealing vaudeville offering was by the Whitehouse twins, singers and dancers of identical appearance. The crowds are still anticipating the appearance of little Gloria—who is fast growing up—and Ewert and Barry, the accordionists and dancers, who will be seen and heard tonight.

The new orchestra was a hit, but the show, as usual, was a personal triumph for Harley as "grandpa." Every bit as good as in other years and looking physically fit when not dressed in red flannels and baggy pants, Sadler is continuing to be a West Texas "institution." Last night's comedy was "Don't Rush Me"—and the villain "got his" in a big way.

Mrs. Luther Davis underwent a major operation at Worley hospital today.

Bonds Seized—Attorney Held

DALLAS, Aug. 8 (AP)—Bonds valued at $35,000, which Dallas police said were stolen from a New York bank messenger during a hold up on May 25, were seized here today with the arrest of a Dallas attorney in the lobby of a downtown office building.

While agents of an insurance firm were attempting to identify the bonds as those stolen in New York, police sought with little success to learn details of alleged efforts to dispose of the securities to Dallas bond buyers.

The attorney under arrest refused to name a client who, he said, had sent the bonds to him by messenger to sell. He also refused to give the police any information except that the messenger had delivered the bonds to his office today and that he had taken them to the building where he was arrested.

Mrs. Noel Reynolds is to be dismissed from Worley hospital today.

VISITOR AVERS HE REFUSED TO MARRY CLARA BOW—FOR MONEY

"I've got a lipstick in my pocket that Gloria Swanson told me to hold—right here it is," said Cowboy Mountain Kid, long-haired Anglo-Indian, who arrived back in Pampa Sunday. In his wanderings Cowboy has stopped in Pampa often—back in 1929 for three days and once five years before that.

"I'm the man who refused to marry Clara Bow," said the 61-year old man who boasts that he hasn't got a gray hair in his head, although several front teeth are missing. "She wanted me to marry her just to spite Rex Bell—wanted to give me $50 and divorce me in three days, but I ran away."

"Greta Garbo? She's a cat! And I ought to know. Seen her many a time. . . . I've played in plenty western pictures—with Rex Bell, William S. Hart, Buck Jones. . . . They always get me to do the Indiana war dances. . . . I'm the best stonper in Hollywood."

Cowboy Mountain Kid was here yesterday advertising "Tomorrow at Seven" by walking up and down the street with signs tied to his back. He was greeted by many people who remembered seeing him here on previous occasions.

If you want to insult Cowboy Mountain Kid, just drop a hint that you don't believe that he has had extensive dealings and associations with the movie stars. He has other proof besides the Swanson lipstick.

●ABOVE—IN RATING THE POPULAR CIGARETTES, Shute says, "Camels are milder, and what is even more important to any golfer, they do not jangle the nerves."

●ABOVE—TWO CONTINENTS CHEERED when slender Densmore Shute, brilliant young American golfer, with wrists of steel and nerves that never wavered, won the British Open—the tenth American champion in ten years!

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

When it comes to healthy nerves, "DENNY" SHUTE speaks with authority. "I couldn't have won the British Open if my nerves hadn't been in perfect condition," says Shute. "Healthy nerves are essential to any golfer who wants to turn in a good score. The enjoyment of cigarettes has not interfered with my golf game because I have smoked Camels right along. I have tried all the brands and long ago found that Camels are milder, and what is even more important to any golfer, they do not jangle the nerves."

"Denny" Shute offers conclusive evidence that Camels are milder. That they don't interfere with healthy nerves. That smokers like Camels better, the more they smoke them. Consider the fact that Camels are made from costlier tobaccos—and switch to them yourself. You will also discover that Camels are better for steady smoking.

●RIGHT—"I'M NOT A CHAMPION GOLFER—not even a fair one, according to Mr. Shute's standards! I'm a young married woman, interested in home and children. But I'm inclined to be the nervous type. So I switched to Camels for the sake of my nerves, and because Camels are definitely a milder cigarette."

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. Leaf tobaccos for cigarettes can be bought from 5¢ a pound to $1.00...but Camel pays the millions more that insure your enjoyment.
