A TALE OF THE SEA

Sailors' yarns are generally amusing and interesting, even if many of them are not gospel truth. We just ran across an old one from the log of Henry Hudson's ship when that famed explorer was trying to find the long-sought "northwest passage to China" in 1608. For vivid imagination it is hard to beat.

It tells of sighting a "mermaid," in the following record, dated June 15, in latitude 75 degrees 7 minutes north:

"One of our company looking overboard saw a mermaid and, calling up some of the company to see her, one more came up and by that time she was come close to the ship's side, looking earnestly on the men. A little after, a sea came up and overturned her; from the waist upwards her back and breasts were like a woman's, her body being as big as one of us; her skin was very white, and her hair hanging down behind being of colour black; in her going down, they saw her taylor, which was like the taylor of a porpoise and speckled like a marcell. Their names that saw her were Thomas Hitler and Robert Rayner."

Like many other myths and superstitions this yarn was for a long time believed by thousands. Stories equally foolish are believed to this day.

THE ICE PATROL

It sometimes takes a great disaster to awaken a community or a nation to the fact that a known menace to life and property often may be removed through intelligent action. Such was the lesson of the Titanic sunk through collision with an iceberg on April 14, 1912, with a loss of 1,517 lives.

This shocking tragedy of the sea aroused a demand for precautionary measures, resulting in the formation of the international ice patrol to watch for and report the locations of icebergs in the North Atlantic steamer lanes during the dangerous season of the year, which is in the late spring and early summer.

Ten nations joined in bearing the expense, the patrol duty being performed by the United States Coast Guard cutters. This patrol has been maintained each year since the Titanic disaster, with the exception of two years during the war.

Two cutters are employed each year, using Halifax as a base, and they send out information of icebergs sighted, this information being transmitted by radio to all vessels in the danger zone. Captains of vessels of all nations cooperate by reporting to the ice patrol any icebergs sighted by them, this data also being broadcast by radio twice daily.

In the 20 years since the ice patrol was established not a single life has been lost nor a single ship damaged through collision with icebergs. Truly a fine record.

UNIFORM TRAFFIC LAW

In the interest of uniform traffic laws for the entire country, a national conference on street and highway safety was held in Washington. Those sponsoring the conference rightly believe that the wide diversity of traffic regulations now in effect tends to increase the number of accidents which occur.

With each state, county and city a law unto itself in traffic matters, it is inevitable that tourists and other travelers find it difficult to keep informed of the varying rules of the many different communities through which they pass.

At the conference mentioned considerable discussion of speed regulations was had, after which it was voted to recommend a uniform limit of twenty miles an hour for both business and residential sections of cities, except at street intersections and school zones, where it should be reduced to fifteen miles an hour.

Such speed limit rigidly enforced would conduce a greater safety than the freakish ordinances which exist in some places which prescribe a much less speed, but which no one pays any attention to. As a matter of fact, no arbitrary speed limit can insure safety when drivers fail to use common sense.

But whatever speed or other regulations are determined upon should be uniform throughout the entire country and the movement toward that end should have the hearty support of every community.

THE AMERICA'S CUP

At Gosport, England, was recently launched a new racing yacht, the Velsheda, which is expected to compete for the famous America's Cup, won first on August 22 1851, when the America defeated the English Aurora, and kept on this side of the Atlantic ever since.

This original contest for the coveted trophy was a single race, as was the second in 1870 when the American Magic defeated the English Cambria. Since then the contests have been decided by the best two out of three races, or the best three out of five.

To date 13 British challengers have tried unsuccessfully to wrest the cup from American yachtsmen, of which the last five were owned by the late Sir Thomas Lipton, who made his last attempt in 1930, when his Shamrock V was defeated by the American yacht Enterprise. He had promised to try a sixth time, but death intervened.

Sir Thomas was greatly admired by the American people, and shortly after his last defeat he was invited to return to New York to receive a "consolated cup" as a token of appreciation of his fine sportsmanship. He was affectionately known as "the world's best loser."

The quickest way to make something popular is to pass a law against it.

Some live to a ripe old age, while others remain green or become rotten.

Pope Celebrates 76th Birthday

Pope Pious Wednesday celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday anniversary by receiving hundreds of pilgrims who had come to Vatican

City in celebration of holy year.

Desiring to observe the anniversary by busying himself as usual from morning until evening, the pontiff held several audiences at which pilgrims were received.

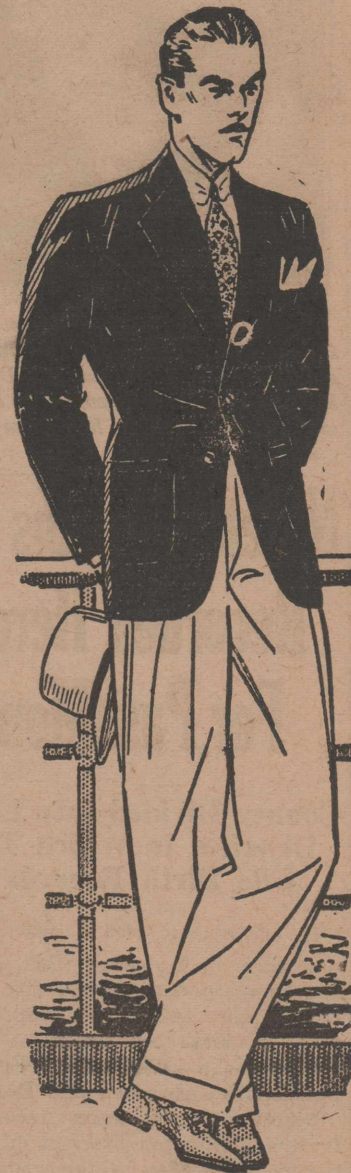

The pontiff said a low mass of thanksgiving in his private chapel in the morning. A number of his distant relatives were present. He talked for a few minutes with them after the mass and then began his duties for the day.

Many telegrams and other messages of congratulation were received by the elderly but sturdy pontiff. Some of the communications were from royal persons, statesmen, bishops and distinguished laymen.

WELLINGTON People . . . Places . . . Philosophy

By Jimmie Gillentine

The Best Story of this week is another one of those "true" fish stories. It happened near Clarendon and is chronicled by J. C. Estlack in his Donley County News.

Best Story Of The Week

Most people abhor snakes. That is probably one reason why snakes usually bite people. Some people make friends of snakes and keep them as pets. If people treated snakes like they do dogs, it is logical that in time snakes might be domesticated. Here is Mr. Estlack's story of how one man made a friend of a snake: "A fisherman here who acts pious around town was down at Taylor lake fishing Sunday. That's nothing to talk about, but he ran out of bait. About that time he spied a water moccasin with a frog in its mouth. He poured some hooch on the snake's head as a joke and grabbed the frog as the snake turned it loose. He fished a few minutes until he felt something rasp his ankle. Looking down, he saw the snake looking up at him with a wink—and another frog."

As soon as the signs get right there should be some really good fish stories to tell around Wellington. It seems as if there was never a more ambitious group of fishermen, and they are going to make a record as soon as they learn to watch the signs.

What? No Table Manners?

Press dispatches this week said that the "Aggies" at Stillwater A. and M. were being taught how to eat properly with the use of plenty of cutlery, finger bowls, and fancy dishes. That is something. Aggies are supposed to become farmers and maybe some of these institutions of higher learning are now shifting the agricultural problem right back to the farmer, saying that prices have been down low because the farmers don't know how to eat correctly. That may be right, but I would personally rather have plenty to eat and not know how to eat correctly than to not have anything at all to eat—and still know how to balance a tea cup or dip my fingers into a finger-bowl.

The question with a lot of folks is not "How" we are going to eat, but "what are we going to eat?"

Flying Colors!

One of the most talked of things that has happened in Wellington in several months was a fight between two negro women across from the vacant lot south of the Legion Hall last Thursday afternoon. One of the women was big and fat, while the other was equally as little and skinny. The big one had a two-by-four about three feet long and the other managed to grab half of a brick-bat. The whole thing started because the little negro woman was stealing the big one's man—and the big one wanted to "leahn huh" something. Everyone who saw the fight reported that the little one finally whipped the big one—and if they ran true to feminine form, it is to be supposed that they both whipped the man next time they saw him.

The cotton market has certainly been on a spree for the past two weeks, but as usually happens, prices of cotton and wheat go up just after the farmers sold out.

About The Weather

Anyone who is able to keep cool in weather like this is certainly to be congratulated. Stanley Larson and Fred Taylor are the only two men who I know that actually go to work to cool off. I sure do envy these two men. Mr. Taylor almost froze his hand Sunday while he was knocking the ice from one of the refrigerators in his ice cream plant. Of course the hotter the weather gets the more ice Mr. Larson sells, which is all fine and dandy, but I saw him last winter trying to sell ice while the ground was covered with snow and sleet. I guess there just is not any kind of job that doesn't have its disadvantages once in a while. Even this weather has its good points. As hot as it was Sunday, when the mercury hit the 108 point—I just got to thinking how much worse it would have been if the hot wind had been accompanied with one of those famous Collingsworth County sand storms.

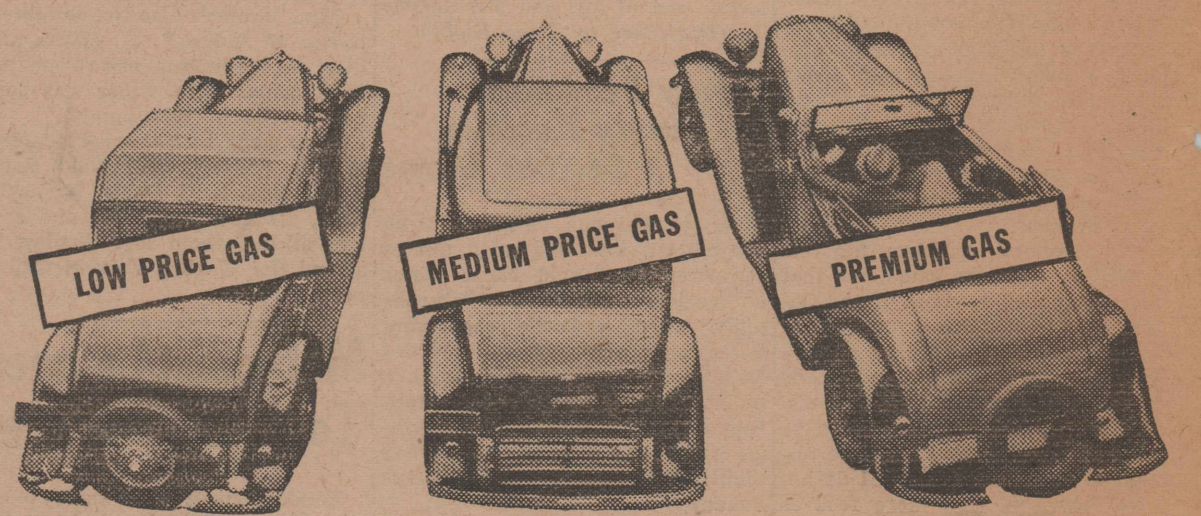

Crude and reclaimed rubber consumption in the United States in 1931 was less than in any year since 1925.

One of the few women masters of surgery in the world is Mrs. Philippa Parry Martin of London, Eng.

Declaring her husband has abused her since she voted for Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Walter L. Powell of Washington is seeking a divorce.

Stop Chills and Fever!

Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any store.

Following the close of school recently the Boy Scouts have started out in earnest to make the most of the vacation period. The Cub Scouts went on their first hike of the year Saturday and Troop I is planning a hike Friday afternoon.

Troop I Activities

The troop had their regular meeting last Friday night with 21 Scouts present. Registration cards were distributed to the boys who had paid their fees and the following leaders were chosen for the trip: Paige Wilson, senior patrol leader; C. C. Williams, treasurer; Wayne Jackson, assistant treasurer; Mooney Stall, scribe.

Paige Wilson related the happenings of the trip to N. T. N. Park and urged all Wellington Scouts to attend the big summer camp at Los Vegas, August 1 to 10. The fees for this trip will be $10.

The Scouts are at the present interested in cleaning the weeds from the new ball park and Ira Morgan, manager, has promised the gate receipts from one matched game for this service.

Wrestling and boxing played an important role in the meeting and the Troop I Scouts announced their intention of challenging the Scouts in Troop II in both wrestling and boxing.

Troop I will leave Friday afternoon on a two day hike to the caves and will return early Sunday morning. Camp meetings will be featured both nights and each patrol will put on stunts at the camp fire program. The hike will take the place of the regular meeting for the Scouts of the troop. Tests will be given to any Scout that is prepared to advance to a higher rank.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars.

The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results.

Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the drive-shaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around, the mettle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon. Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients too,—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

Legion Feels Speech Of Throckmorton Speaker Of Benefit To County

The following speech was delivered in Wellington on Sunday, May 30, at a program under the auspices of the Frank King Post of American Legion and is published by the Wellington Leader as a courtesy to the American Legion members of this city, who believe each person in Collingsworth County is entitled to know the message delivered by Mr. Smith on Memorial Day.

Mr. Chairman, Comrades, and Friends: I appreciate the gracious words of introduction with which your chairman has so kindly presented me, but, I realize, of course, I am not deserving of the high merit with which he has endowed me. I am conscious of the importance of this meeting and I recognize the solemnity of this occasion. I think it altogether fitting and proper, too, that this memorial service be held in God's house on the Lord's day. In the words of one of the world's greatest orators I would say: We meet under the God of Battles today. He was almost with indignation and pity at every one of those frightful hemorrhages of humanity which history designates as wars. He was present at Marathon, at Charonea, at Waterloo, Gettysburg, St. Mihiel and the Argonne. The Lord of Hosts is his name.

We come today to do the soldiers of every battlefield that marks the course of American history. In the fancy of our minds there marches across the western sky a phantom army. At its head rides Washington. And as those innumerable battalions of the dead deploy before us we witness the solemn parade of the immortal spirits whose fidelity and faith have carried forward the banner of American liberty from time immemorial down to our history's latest battlefield. But we are gathered to pay especial tribute to those comrades of ours who gave the last full measure of devotion to the cause of this republic in the Great War.

I appreciate this splendid audience who joins with us in this memorial service, but I cannot refrain from saying something about the vacant seats which I behold here. Your presence this evening betokens a faith with the dead that has been truly kept, but these vacant seats are mute witnesses against those of your citizenship who are not here. They speak of a sacrifice that has not been appreciated. In their silence they give testimony of those in this community who are not worthy of the costly offering of blood that has been made for their peace and security.

How well do I recall another occasion when the earth was filled with tumult and the skies were dark with wrath. How a great Republic girded her loins for battle and called her sons to her defense. Throughout this mighty land in cities and towns and hamlets a nation assembled to bid farewell to those who had been chosen to fight for her existence on the field of conflict. A building three times this size would not have held the multitude which sent the sons of Wellington away to war. With loud acclaim you urged them on to death for them and victory for you. They battled through the surging seas of hell for you. In that conflict many fell never to rise again. They sleep in the silence of the Great Shadow. There in the dust of other war-made graves, buried with them, are the hopes and dreams of more than a quarter of a million young Americans whose lives were suddenly ended ere the morning-tide of their existence had passed. With all the force of my soul I censure and condemn those who are not here today. Sickness and the decrepitude of age are the only valid excuses for absence from an occasion such as this.

When I witness the indifference of so many of our fellow citizens today, my heart sometimes becomes bitter. I am unwillingly forced to realize that there is a host among us who know not the meaning of true Americanism.

I speak, if my poor lips be worthy, for my dead comrades who sleep on the hillsides and in the valleys of France 'neath the cross-dimmed Lexington down to our history's latest battlefield. But distant realm to which their phantom convoys have carried them it seems I hear them as they cry: "Why did we die? Does there live beneath the flag we stained with our blood men who treat with indifference the great offering which we laid with bloody hand and bleeding body at the feet of this Republic?"

Since Valley Forge America has unfortunately had the Tories in her midst. When Washington's little army was freezing thru the bitter winter of 1778 there were a larger number of Americans living comfortably in Philadelphia on the bribes of British gold than were wearing the buff and brown of the Continental Army. In the beginning the disloyal Tory was presented to hamper and hinder the brave men who fought to give birth to the Republic. They are present in your town and my town today. They reap the fruits of the hard won victories but they give nothing in return. They desire to gather the harvest made by the sowing of the bodies of the battlefields the mark the path of American progress. We will be performing a great thing for our country if we will call the nation's attention to these craven hearted and greedy ghouls that batten and fatten in our midst.

Some years ago in a town near my own we held such a meeting as this. It was such a day as this and the elements were somewhat inclement. One of the wealthiest men in town was not present. He had reaped rich profits during the war by selling high priced cattle to feed fighting armies. He had enjoyed the privilege and protection of a government renowned in peace and great in war. But that privilege and protection had been bought by other men's blood, and not his own. After the meeting I chanced to meet him and asked him why he was not present. He said the weather was too windy. The savage in me rose up and I felt that rage which is born of abhorrence and contempt. I remembered the snows, the dark and stormy nights, the muddy and the bloody fields, through which thousands of my comrades had waded, some to their death and others to the ruin of their health and strength, in order that an unworthy worm of the earth like this imitation of a man might sit by his fire-side and enjoy the luxury of a home made rich by the profits of war. He could not get out from home on a windy day to honor those who had died for him! I have more respect for the grey-clad soldiers of Hindenburg who fought us with a courage equal to our own than I have for such contemptible Americans as this.

I will tell you a story that you have not heard from that awful conflict. It is a page of American history dripping with blood. It is a story of an experience in hell, for as has been truly said a battlefield is hell temporarily placed upon earth. It was near the town of St. Etienne. Regiment after regiment of youthful Americans, your sons, brothers, and husbands, were marching into battle. It was an historic scene. Those old battle-scarred French hills and witnessed the clash of fighting armies for two thousand years. But a new army—one that had never before appeared in Europe—was marching across the battle beaten terrain. It advanced with the fervor of youth. Around and about it a thousand guns rocked the earth with their fury. Tornadoes of shot and shell beat upon it, clouds of deadly gas swirled about it, machine guns chanted the staccato song of death, while above it the gloomy clouds wept as though the heavens mourned over the dark tragedies of humanity. Thousands of men were mangled and broken in a few short minutes. Exploding shells hurled their bodies into fragments. Men were cut in twain as with a giant cleaver as some projectile slashed thru the gallant ranks. Over the shell torn hillsides men lay in heaps—some with staring eyes quiet in the chill embrace of merciful death—others writhed in unutterable agony from ghastly wounds. And even above the roar and tumult of battle the shriek of the dying and wail of the wounded added to the horror of this frightful scene. But this army did not fly in defeat. It hugged the rampart of death with a sublime courage and bought victory with its blood. Thousands of them have returned and are with us now, but up there on those old battlefields a mighty host still sleeps, wrapped in their bloody blankets in which we tenderly laid them down to their last long rest. Their spirits marched over the dark horizons of death into the great red dawn of eternity's morning.

To you mothers upon whose tenderest tribute. You are the breasts shine those golden stars of sublime service we pay our real heroes of the Great War. We who went with your brave boys down to the dark gates of death can, perhaps, sympathize a little more keenly in your loss than most others. Your sons were our buddies. They walked by our sides and we kept step with them until that dark hour when their spirits dropped the mantle of flesh and answered the bugle notes of God who assembles the brave on fields of glory beyond the river of death.

I do not believe the doctrine of immortality is a myth. I have faith that a noble spirit will live again in the land which the God of battles has prepared for it. He who was the Author of the bloody sacrifice will tenderly care for that son of his who gave his life for the liberties of men might not die. These sacred dead whom we honor today need no advocate before that Judge who commanded that the first altar be built and that blood be offered upon it. They will find in Him their dearest friend and he will find in them the fairest lambs that humanity may offer a God who demands that blood be shed for the remission of sins.

Civilization is an age long struggle. From the time that the earliest man first lifted his face in the jungle and went out to subdue the earth, until now, the glories of achievement have been won by struggle. We commemorate today one of the greatest struggles that man has made to preserve civilization. Our comrades who died in that struggle are worthy to be recorded on that golden scroll of the world's immortals, because they died for civilization.

We bow our heads in sorrow to live those who worship at the feet of the golden calf; and we know that they sit in the seat of the mighty. The land which brave men have died for seems to be under the dominion of those plunderers of great wealth, but it is not Morgan and Mellon that America was born. If I thought that Wall Street had dominion over that flag I would denounce it as an unholy rag. It is that flag and the blood that has been shed for it that leads me to hope that some day its principles will banish those parasites and plutocrats who have shamed America among the nations of men. It is not those sinister forces of evil which inspire me to love my country. It is two little boys and a little girl that have come to live in my home that awakens in me the hope of a fairer and better day for my unhappy country. When I see the light that shines from those childish faces, when I hear the prattle of those little voices, it seems to me that out of the vast void of the silence of death I can hear the cry of my comrades who were lost in the storm of war, crying to me from across the boundaries of time, "It is these little ones we died to save, for them was our blood shed. The flag you wrapped around us does not represent Wall Street and its gold. It represents the hope of your children—their smiles and their tears. Be a good comrade of ours and make a better America for them." And hearing this voice I am resolved to carry on for the old flag, for the comrades who died for it, and for the little children who dwell beneath its silken folds. I thank you.

New Deal Given Practical Trial By Gulf Company

Advertising Campaign Is Launched In Behalf Of Better Times

Here's one of the most remarkable stories, as well as one that is of special interest to all the people of Texas. Three years ago the Gulf Refining Company engineers made a discovery of revolutionary importance to the oil industry. A discovery so advanced, so significant, that it made possible a finer, longer-lived motor oil than the industry had ever seen.

This discovery was an utterly new refining process—the now-famous Alchior Process, exclusive with Gulf. The oil made by it is called Gulfpride.

At first it was possible to produce only limited quantities of this new and remarkable oil. But so amazingly outstanding was its quality that—utterly without advertising and publicity—its fame spread throughout the United States and all foreign nations. It came into universal demand wherever the finest motor lubrication was sought.

Gulfpride has now proved itself beyond question the finest motor oil in the world. This oil is manufactured in the Gulf Refinery in Port Arthur, Texas. It has established seventeen world's records. It has surpassed every set of specifications ever issued for a motor oil, including U. S. Army, U. S. Navy and British Government.

Gulfpride is now in demand in all corners of the earth and shipped to all points from Port Arthur, Texas, where it is manufactured.

The current extensive advertising campaign of the Gulf Refining Company new appearing in Texas newspapers is stressing this oil and, too, the fact that Gulf stations sell three grades of oil and gasoline at three different prices, ranging from the buying power of the motorist who wants low priced gasoline or oil, but wants the most possible value for the money, to the motorist who wants the very best regardless of cost.

Will Rogers can be heard on the radio every Sunday evening on the Gulf Refining Company radio program at 7:00 p. m. and Irvin S. Berlin on Wednesday and Friday evenings at the same hour. A daily comic paper is distributed free at all Gulf stations.

Obituary

In loving remembrance of a dear friend, Oliver E. Tucker.

In the little town of Wheeler we gathered to pay our last sad tribute to the one we loved; how ineffable the beauty of the scene, so peaceful, so still.

The sun was slowly sinking toward the golden west, all is calm. The silence is broken only by the singing of hymns which he loved to sing, and the gentle sobbing of loved ones gathered near, and standing there our hearts rejoiced with joy unspeakable to know that God had permitted our eyes to be opened to an understanding of his wonderful plan and purpose and we sorrowed not as others, but humbly bowed our heads and said, "Lord, Thy Will Be Done."

We shall no more see his dear face nor hear his sweet voice singing. He who has borne so much suffering and tasted so early of life's deepest sorrows.

The flowers, how beautiful and their perfume was wafted toward us in the gentle sighing breezes. We knew that God who made the flowers with their fragrance and the birds with their songs would some day awaken our loved one, put him out of death and place him again upon this earth, perfect in mind and in body indeed faint to look upon. Yes, the earth shall be made beautiful also, a paradise for the children of men.

While the casket was being lowered to its final resting place, the place to be his sacred home, our lips formed a silent prayer to God, the giver of all things. Our eyes closed and sorrowing hearts we bowed our heads in final prayer, and with one last lingering look upon the scene, we left him alone in the silent city of the dead.

By a friend, Verna Lee Harris.

French Security To Bring Peace

Quick French concurrence in an international pledge to abandon objective Roosevelt diplomacy.

Today he confidently looked for word from over-seas that France's traditional demand for concrete assurance of national security had been satisfied by newly expressed American attitude promising cooperation in enforcing the peace of the world.

Meanwhile a Japanese delegation was speeding to the capital to discuss with him the whole wide ranging field of international economy.

To the fore sprang the perplexing problem of warfare in the Orient, intensified by the position of Japanese troops at the gate at China's ancient capital and the American definition of an aggressor nation as one sends troops on an alien soil in violation of its treaties.

Still another pressing subject was a bill virtually read for submission to congress, under which the chief executive would have authority to revise downward the Smoot-Hawley tariff schedules in return for similar concession from other nations.

One final conference with Secretary Hull, postponed from yesterday was due before the bill could be pronounced ready.

British Knight Sells Home Made Ties To Friends

Friends can be profitable if one knows how to use them, says Sir Francis Acland. He makes about $100 a year out of his selling home made neck wear to them.

Sir Francis is a member of parliament, and except when he is in formal attire, he said at a meeting recently, he wears ties which he weaves himself.

He makes them in all sorts of colors and patterns, spending about an hour on each. They cost him about 8 cents a piece and he sells them for 50 cents.

Charles Coles, pretended deaf and dumb beggar of Chicago, was arrested for cursing a man who refused to give him money.

Michael Goldsmith of St. Louis boasted to his wife the he had a girl in 60 towns, so she secured a divorce.

Caught milking a neighbors cow, Charles West of Burnham, Ill., was fined for theft.

Ritz Theatre Announces Stage And Screen Shows

Week after week excellent announcements are made by the Ritz Theatre. During recent months this popular play house has furnished diversified entertainment on stage and screen, with stage attractions more noticeable than any time during the past few years. Popular demand seems to warrant the management's policy of this timely diversification. The theatre was comfortably filled to witness a presentation of the "Show of Shows" last Wednesday, and when Jimmie Allard's "Southern Brevities" played here a few weeks ago, the theatre was filled.

Jimmie Allard with New Show Is Stage Attraction

Again this week manager Bonner announces a stage attraction. It is Jimmie Allard with his "Southern Brevities" filling a return engagement, presenting complete new show. This group of sixteen eminent players will appear in an entirely new show to their former engagement in Wellington. Jimmie Allard is one of the South's most lovable performers, and always brings to theatre patrons a show of splendid comedy and genuine brilliance. The offering scheduled for Friday of this week is a complete change of program from his previous performance, and is said to be more entertaining from every angle than his initial performance. The picture scheduled for this date is "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," considered one of the finest mystery screen plays ever produced. This complete double program of stage and screen is being offered at regular prices, and there is little doubt but what local patrons will take advantage of the rare opportunity to witness such a bill at such reasonable prices.

Saturday Offers More Than Usual Thrills

The feature for Saturday is John Wayne in "Telegraph Trail," said to be one of the most thrilling episodes of the days of pioneers. The story is laid in the great open spaces at a time when the telegraph company is laying lines to connect the length and breadth of the country, and renegades of the out posts of civilization plot to wreck vengeance on such progress. It is replete with action and thrills. The second chapter of the new serial, "Clancey of the Mounted," will be shown, and a cartoon comedy will complete the program.

First Time in History Three Barrymores Together

Undoubtedly one of the most outstanding announcements the motion picture industry has ever been privileged to make is that of the public appearance of the three elders of the most famous theatrical family in American history. It is John, Ethel and Lionel Barrymore. One of America's greatest stage producers said that if these three could have been induced to appear in a legitimate stage attraction, no theatre in the United States could have held the crowds. That is probably true, but since it is left to the talking screen to offer this unique attraction, it will be brought to many millions more people than could have been possible on the speaking stage. These famous characters of American stage and screen history appear together in "Rasputin and the Empress," the special attraction at the Ritz on Saturday and Monday, June 11, with pre-

Misses Dorothy Margaret Coker and Faye Bell were joint hostesses last Friday afternoon with a delightful party at the Bell home. The guests arrived at 2:30 o'clock and were seated for bridge games. Tables were arranged for nine sets of players. At the close of the games high score went to Miss Pauline Payne and low to Mrs. Charles Crews.

Green and orchid were used in the attractive refreshments which were served following the games. On each of the tables bowls of roses formed center pieces.

Many out-of-town visitors and girls home from college were in attendance. The guest list included Miss Peggy Page of Wheeler, Miss Etta Shelton and Miss Ada Shelton of Odell, Miss Ruth Eaton of Canon City, Colorado, Mrs. Archie Copeland of Memphis, Mrs. John Herman Starr of Quail, Miss Ramona Mitchell, Miss Faye Anderson, Miss Elizabeth Giltentine, Miss Julia Slough, Mrs. Julius Haralson, Miss Oletha Vaughan, Miss Patti Lee Lewis, Miss Pauline Payne, Miss Carrie N. Campbell, Miss Lois Miller, Lucile Miller, Miss Marianne Scott, Miss Margaret Hix, Miss Argen Hix, Miss Effie Lee Richards, Mrs. Loren Thompson, Mrs. Carroll Logan, Mrs. Charles Crews, Mrs. Harris Royal, Miss Mittie Lee Royal, Miss Erlays Manze, Mrs. Wade Mahan, Mrs. Richard Coker, Miss Clara Castleberry, Miss Nora Coker, Mrs. Ansel McDowell, Mrs. Dempsey Harrell, Mrs. Earl Hunter, Miss Mildred Hill, Miss Mildred Henard, Mrs. J. C. Roberts and hostesses, Miss Dorothy Margaret Coker and Miss Faye Bell.

view Saturday night at 10:30. Society, Young and Old Has a Treat Coming Soon

While giving out the review for Ritz attractions, manager Bonner stated to a representative of The Leader that he was going to give Wellington society, both young and old, a genuine treat in the near future. It is somewhat a cherished idea of the management, for the special treat which he referred to is a local appearance of one of the most marvelous child entertainers in the state; and one that Manager Bonner gave her first stage opportunity when she was only eight months old. This diminutive star, now only five years old, has amazed thousands of people with her marvelous talents. She is none other than little Doris Bayless, life-long family acquaintance of manager Bonner's family who is to visit them soon, and he promised to give a public performance during their visit. Definite announcements will be made soon as it is possible to determine her presence in Wellington, a Manager Bonner assures us that it will be one of the great treats ever offered local people parents and children.

Broadcast Will Tell Of Glacier National Park

Montana, according to Wells, would still be a great mountain playground if Glacier Park had never existed. But that doesn't mean that Glacier isn't a real phenomenon, he says. The Glacier Park lakes, for example, are the most beautiful in the world, and the streams that feed them appear milky.

The Conoco program may be heard by local listeners who tune in on station WFAA, Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock.
