BCD approves $12,000 request

Scurry Board of County Development on Wednesday unanimously approved an additional $12,000 toward the Winston Field airport project.

The decision was made as BCD board members met in the airport terminal building, which is undergoing extensive renovation.

With the additional $12,000 obligated Wednesday, the BCD has now put $37,000 into the project. The first $25,000 was approved in January.

Doug Hutchinson, Development Corporation of Snyder executive director, stressed the importance of the renovation.

"Many of the prospects who come in here arrive at the airport and this is the first thing they see," he said.

Hutchinson said that the renovation has been performed with the thought of the terminal being a low maintenance facility. Energy-efficient heating and cooling is being installed, along with adequate insulation and storm windows.

"We want to keep operational expenses down so that we can afford to keep it open," he said.

The additional $12,000 in funding will be used for flooring, landscaping, a sprinkler system, vanities, sinks, cabinets and other items.

The overall cost has been kept

132nd District Court...

Judge nomination delayed

The anticipated nomination of a new judge for the 132nd District Court will not occur this week, and word from Austin Wednesday afternoon is that the nomination will not be made until after the current legislative session adjourns.

Two weeks ago, Gordon Johndroe in the governor's appointment's office said Gov. George W. Bush planned to forward his nomination by the end of this week so that the confirmation process could be completed in the Texas Senate prior to the May 29 adjournment.

A spokesman for Bush said Wednesday that the nomination would not be made until after the session ends. The nomination would be subject to Senate confirmation only in the event that a special session is called.

The governor's aide said the prospects of a special session is unlikely. In such case, a nominee could begin serving immediately and would serve until the next general election which is November, 1996.

The appointment's office would not speculate on the cause for the nomination delay, but said the fact that two senators are involved is not a factor.

The Senate has a practice of Senatorial Courtesy in which a Senator which represents a judicial district can block a nomination.

The 132nd Judicial District comprises Scurry and Borden Counties. Scurry County is represented by Sen. Tom Haywood, a Republican, and Borden County is in the Senatorial district of Democrat John Montford of Lubbock.

It is also traditional that governors nominate members of their own party. Gov. Bush is a Republican and only one of the four who have interviewed for the judgeship is a Republican.

The lone Republican is local private practice attorney Mike Brown. The Democrats are District Attorney Ernie Armstrong, County Attorney Pete Greene and local lawyer Marvin Sentell.

The post became vacant last November when Judge Gene Dulaney reached mandatory retirement age. Since that time, Dulaney has been designated as a senior judge and has been appointed to hear both civil and criminal cases on the 132nd District Court docket.

DCOS will address tabled agenda items

Consideration of incentives, contract guidelines for consultants and committee assignments are on the agenda for the Development Corporation of Snyder board, which meets today at 7 p.m.

All three items have been held over from the board's April 27 meeting, during which there was discussion, but no action taken.

The board is expected to again consider incentives for Big Country Incineration (BCI), an 11-employee copper wire reclamation company which is interested in expanding and relocating at the Hermleigh Gin site.

The incentives being requested include a buildings grant, payroll assistance and scholarships, in addition to tax abatement.

DCOS board members are also expected to consider contract guidelines for anyone who requests a finder's fee for locating a business or industry in Scurry County. Similar guidelines were approved Wednesday by the Board of County Development.

Also on tonight's agenda are presentation of Open Meetings Act guidelines and approval of minutes.

Personnel items on SISD agenda

Personnel matters will be one of the main topics of consideration for Snyder ISD trustees when they meet tonight at 6 o'clock at Stanfield Elementary.

Trustees will consider accepting the resignations of five instructors and filling three positions.

The resignations that will be considered due to retirement include Bob O'Day, high school boys golf coach and West Elementary P.E. instructor; Monette O'Day, Stanfield Elementary music instructor; Ann Cross, Central Elementary third grade teacher; and Barbara Bigham, speech/language pathologist.

High school choral director Melanie Smith has also submitted her resignation.

Trustees will also consider hiring an instructor for Northeast Elementary for the hearing impaired and two instructors for the Humble-Smith School — a speech/language pathologist and a diagnostician.

The board will canvass the results of Saturday's election which saw Luann Burleson and Charles Anderson re-elected to the board unopposed. Board reorganization is also on the agenda.

In other matters, trustees will consider the approval of several policy revisons and approval of bids for volleyball and basketball equipment and for carpet at the high school.

The trustees will also have an executive session in which they will meet with Keli Karczewski of the Schwartz and Eichelbaum law firm to discuss the status of the lawsuit filed by Baylor Medical Center.

SNB to receive business award

Snyder National Bank will be presented with a "1995 Small Business Achievement Award" during a brief ceremony scheduled for 5 p.m. Friday.

Ed Hodges, a representative from U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm's office, will present the award to Sue Mize, a member of the bank's board of directors. The award is being presented in recognition of the bank's 90 years of service to the community, according to Gramm.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "We liked the fortune cookie message: 'If man is too busy making fortune, somebody may steal his cookie.'"

A few days ago, somebody in the coffee shop mentioned the Lubbock toronado. A fellow responded that it happened 10 or 15 years ago.

Actually, today marks the 25th anniversary of the deadly storm that wiped out a large portion of that city.

Most folks can remember where they were when such events occurred. We remember reading about it the following morning in Schweinfurt, Germany. The Lubbock toronado was the banner headline in the European Edition of Stars and Stripes.

Dr. Harry Krenek, president of Western Texas College, has much more vivid memories of the event. Krenek was a doctoral student at Texas Tech that spring.

He and his wife, Marsha, had a 11-month-old son, Dan. On the day of the toronado, Marsha and Dan were visiting her parents in Midland.

Krenek was warming up a frozen TV dinner and studying for a French language final in his mobile home located in Mobile Lodge, just north of 4th Street. The mobile home park had a storm cellar and Krenek wisely decided he could study just as easily in the shelter.

He recalls that 25 to 30 persons took refuge in the cellar, and that four or five men were holding onto a rope, trying to keep the cellar door from blowing away.

The Krenek's mobile home was destroyed as a 50-foot steel beam tossed through the air crashed through the trailer home. The mobile home next door was repaired with only a piece of duct tape.

Krenek said the Lubbock storm was his only toronado experience — and he hopes his last. The toronado did, however, result in a summer job for the history graduate student. Krenek went to work for the Southwest Collection interviewing residents who had survived the storm.

'Rural Life' celebration slated Friday

Catholic Mass begins at 7 p.m. at St. John's in Hermleigh

The following is based on an article in the current issue of South Plains Catholic, Volume 10, Number 21.)

The annual Feast of Saint Isidore the Farmer: A Celebration of Rural Life is planned Friday at 7 p.m. at St. John's Catholic Church in Hermleigh.

Both St. John's and St. Elizabeth in Snyder are hosting this year's Mass and barbecue, along with the diocesan Rural Life Office in Lubbock.

The Lubbock Diocese has celebrated this day since the diocese was established in 1983. Both sponsoring churches are members of the diocese.

Lubbock Bishop Placido Rodriguez will celebrate the special Mass, held in honor of Saint Isidore the Farmer, the patron of agriculture. All persons interested in rural life and family farming are invited to attend. A barbecue will follow.

Those attending are asked to bring chairs or a blanket for seating and a box of soil if they want it to be blessed. Barbecue and tea will be provided but, if possible, those attending are asked to bring a covered dish entree, salad or vegetable.

The special rural mass is celebrated at a different site within the diocese each year. Hermleigh was chosen this year because it is the oldest church in the diocese.

Spanish missionaries brought Saint Isidore to the New World and today he is still the most celebrated patron saint in rural Mexico.

At least 90 celebrations in rural villages and towns nationwide are planned for the May 15 Feast of Saint Isidore.

A devout 12-century peasant farmer, Isidore apparently spent as much time in his village church in Spain as he did in the fields and was linked to a series of miracles by local people who were convinced of his sanctity even during his lifetime.

Today he is known as the patron saint of farmers and of Madrid, the capital city of Spain. By the time Isidore was canonized in 1622 Spanish missionaries had already been evangelizing in the New World for over a hundred years.

Today, some 372 years since Saint Isidore's canonization, the patron saint of farmers is fully incorporated into the religious cycles of many communities in rural Mexico — and especially in those communities where the Indians adopted the Spanish technique of using yoked oxen to pull plows.

Other feast days in Mexico are celebrated more widely, but few are celebrated as colorfully or as meaningfuly as that of Saint Isidore the Farmer, patron of rural laborers the length and breadth of Mexico.

35 military bases added to closure list

WASHINGTON (AP) — Weighing local job worries against pressure to cut defense spending, a government panel added 35 military bases to its possible closure list, setting state and local officials scrambling to protect them.

The recommendations Wednesday by the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission come as bad news to officials and workers in the affected regions and good news to those representing bases already on the proposed list, since their chances of survival are now increased.

"There are some that were on the original list that in the end won't be closed," said former Illinois Sen. Alan Dixon, the commission chairman. "All things are possible."

In a hearing room packed with members of Congress, state and local officials, military officers and lobbyists, the commission members accepted virtually all the recommendations presented by their staff while voicing sympathy for the communities now facing a possibly devastating economic blow.

"All of us commissioners appreciate the concept of cumulative economic impact," retired Army Maj. Gen. Joe Robles Jr. said just before the commission voted to add several California bases to the list.

Concern over the heavy hit California took in the 1993 base closure round led the Pentagon to recommend only slight reductions this time around. Some accused the Clinton administration of worrying about electoral votes in the nation's most populous state.

The commission decided to widen its possible choices as it prepares its final proposal due July 1. President Clinton and Congress then will have to accept or reject the list in its entirety. In past closure rounds, commission recommendations have been approved.

The commission added 29 bases and also said it would consider closing six bases that the Pentagon had recommended previously only for realignment, such as reducing the work force or changing the mission of a facility. The changes could affect facilities ranging from major bases involving thousands of jobs to small offices with relatively few employees.

Among the major facilities added to the list Wednesday are McClellan Air Force Base, Sacramento, Calif.; Kelly Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas; Oakland Army Base, Calif.; Tobyhanna Army Depot, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, on the New Hampshire border in Kittery, Maine; Grand Forks Air Force Base, N.D., and Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma City.

The state hardest hit was California, with eight facilities. There were four bases in Texas, and three each in Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Georgia. Other affected states were Utah, Florida, Illinois, Minnesota, Mississippi, New York, Ohio, Wisconsin, Alabama, Maryland, Maine and North Dakota, along with Guam.

Reporting Telephone Fraud Is As Easy As Making a Call

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1995 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, you published a letter from a woman in Illinois whose mother has been victimized by fraudulent telemarketers because she can't resist those sweepstakes "prizes" that come in the mail.

Abby, the law enforcement community can and should do more than offer sympathy.

First, complaints concerning telemarketing scams should be filed with the National Fraud Information Center. Call (800) 876-7060 during normal business hours Monday through Friday (Eastern time). Or contact your state's attorney general.

Last year, a nationwide effort was made to crack down on telemarketing fraud. Law enforcement officials now share access to a national computer database that contains information about ongoing investigations, active cases and consumer complaints.

In addition, the National Association of Attorneys General, the Federal Trade Commission and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) have launched a consumer education campaign to combat telemarketing fraud.

A free brochure, "Telephone Scams and Older Consumers," is available by writing to: Federal Trade Commission, Sixth and Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

RONALD W. BURRIS, ILLINOIS ATTORNEY GENERAL

DEAR ATTORNEY GENERAL BURRIS: Thank you for the helpful information. I hope my readers will place the toll-free number near their telephones and report all suspicious calls.

DEAR ABBY: The recent letter from "Unshakable in Milwaukee" reflects a common concern of people who have arthritis. In your answer, you offered a good strategy when confronted by a potentially painful handshake. Here are three additional options:

— When people offer their hand, enclose their hand with both of yours. This offers a warm response and gives you control over the intensity of the handshake.

— Place only one or two inches of the end of your fingers into the other person's palm. This alerts them to be careful and keeps large knuckles out of their grip.

— A smile and a friendly nod before a hand is offered may avoid a handshake.

Thank you for pointing out that many men as well as women have arthritis. In fact, nearly 40 million Americans of all ages have some form of the disease, according to statistics released by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Those interested in learning more about how to reduce joint stress from arthritis can receive a free "Basic Facts" brochure by contacting their local chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, or by calling (800) 283-7800.

TERESA J. BRADY, NATIONAL MEDICAL ADVISER, ARTHRITIS FOUNDATION

DEAR MS. BRADY: Thank you for the additional suggestions, which should benefit many readers. And thanks for sending the "Basic Facts" brochure, which I found most informative. I had been unaware that the word "arthritis" refers to more than 100 different diseases that can affect the joints and other parts of the body.

San Antonio gears up for yet another Kelly AFB battle

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Kelly Air Force Base workers weren't surprised and weren't panicking Wednesday about the addition of their installation to a list of military bases under review for possible closure.

They, along with local civic leaders, simply started mustering their strength for another battle to save the huge base, one of the city's largest employers with about 10,400 civilian workers at its air logistics center.

"We're tired. We keep going through this every two years," said Kelly employee John Lewis, who stood at the base's entrance Wednesday holding a blue and white "United For Kelly AFB" sign.

In 1993, Kelly was considered for closure but was spared by the independent Defense Base and Closure Realignment Commission. Kelly didn't appear earlier this year on the Air Force's list of proposed closures.

But Wednesday, on an 8-0 vote, the commission placed Kelly and the Air Force's four other Air Logistics Centers on the list as had been expected.

"Everybody is nervous about it, as you can well imagine," said Edward Riojas Jr., Kelly logistics center executive director. But he added, "Just because we're being reviewed does not mean we will be closed."

Kelly boosters will be sounding some of the same themes that apparently resonated with base closure commissioners before.

"The people here in San Antonio put out a tremendous workload. We've got the excellent facilities here," said Lou Georges, first vice president of the American Federation of Government Employees Local 1617, Kelly's union.

Georges and others plan to emphasize that more than 60 percent of the base's workers are Hispanic, accounting for 45 percent of all Hispanics in the Air Force.

Lotto Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Two tickets, sold in Houston and Waco, correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $11 million.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 13, 14, 15, 24, 25 and 31.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $4 million.

In his February magazine, the editor of New Zealand Bridge, Richard Solomon, started a competition called Magic Moments. It will feature deals in which good fortune was heaped upon declarer (or the defenders, I suppose). Two examples are given, one being today's deal.

North's opening bid showed 7-11 high-card points with at least 5-5 in spades and another suit. This bid has its good moments. If you have a fit with partner, you can win a lot of tricks with few points. Here, though, North caught his partner with a misfitting strong hand. South had nowhere to go but three no-trump.

At first glance, the contract appears hopeless, but look closely at the minor-suit spot-card distribution.

West led his fourth-highest diamond: eight, queen, ace. (One cannot help thinking that East should put in the nine, especially as he knows declarer has five diamonds.) South returned the diamond four, collecting both the jack and nine. Now West tried the club nine: five, queen, ace. South cashed his three diamond winners, East throwing hearts and West releasing the club eight. South continued with the club jack, dropping the seven from West. East won with the king and switched to the spade queen, which didn't cause South any pain. After winning the second spade, declarer cashed his three club winners. The last trick was won with dummy's heart ace, giving South 10 tricks.

If you have a candidate, send the full details to me care of your newspaper and I will forward it to the magazine.

Local sweetheart is runner-up

Snyder Lions Club sweetheart, Holly Sanders, 18, was named first runner-up in a line-up of 28 candidates at the recent District 2T2 Governor's Banquet held recently in Lubbock.

Contestants presented a two-minute speech, modeled, and were interviewed by three judges before their decision. Emily Jones of Plainview was named the district's queen.

Miss Sanders, a senior, has served the local club as sweetheart the past year and is the daughter of Mike and Cindy Sanders. She was a Tiger football manager; sports editor and ad manager for the Snyder High School Tiger's Tale, and named in "Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Lion tail twister Cliff Smith, was her sponsor.

A pardon forgives and releases a person from further punishment and is granted by a chief of state or a governor. By itself, it does not expunge a record of conviction, if one exists, and it does not by itself restore civil rights. A general pardon, usually for political offenses, is called amnesty. Parole is the release of a prisoner before the sentence has expired, on condition of good behavior. It is granted by a parole board, part of the executive branch of government, and can be revoked only by the board. Probation is the suspension of sentence for a person convicted, but not yet imprisoned, on condition of good behavior. It is imposed and revoked only by a judge.

Jordan returns to form with 38 points in 104-94 upset win

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Wearing his old number, Michael Jordan was back playing like his old self.

Michael Jordan

Jordan brought No. 23 out of retirement Wednesday night, scoring 38 points and controlling the action in the Chicago Bulls' 104-94 victory over the Orlando Magic. Jordan hit 11-of-13 shots in the second half to send the Bulls home to Chicago with a 1-1 split in their best-of-7 Eastern Conference semifinals.

Scottie Pippen, who combined with Jordan to go 10-of-33 in a Game 1 loss, had 22 points, and Toni Kukoc and Steve Kerr each added 11.

Shaquille O'Neal led Orlando with 25 points and 11 rebounds, and Horace Grant had 23 points and 15 rebounds.

Jordan took nearly everyone by surprise when he walked on the court wearing No. 23. When he returned to the NBA on March 19, Jordan wore No. 45 and said he would leave his old number hanging from the roof of the United Center because it was the last number his father, murdered in 1993, saw him wear.

But after an 8-of-22 shooting night in which he made two crucial mistakes at the end of a 94-91 loss Sunday, Jordan may have thought he needed a change.

However, the switch could be in violation of NBA rules, and league officials were to meet Thursday to discuss the matter, NBA spokesman Jan Hubbard said Wednesday night.

Jordan's first half looked pretty much like his game Sunday, but he came back to score 12 in the third quarter. He hit his first six shots, including a 14-footer that gave the Bulls a 71-62 lead with 4:50 left in the period.

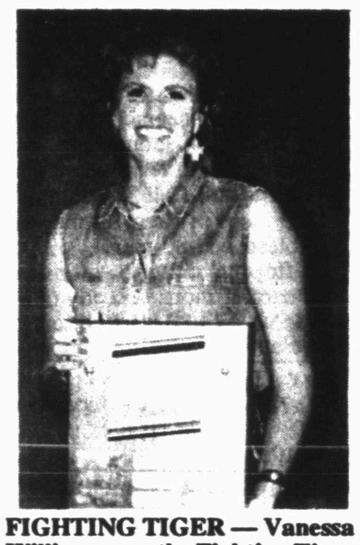

In the fourth quarter, the Magic got no closer than five, and that was early in the period. Jordan continued to hit jumpers and put the finishing touches on the win with a soaring breakaway dunk with 1:34 remaining.

That definitely looked like the old No. 23.

He missed only one shot in the quarter, and the Bulls shot 58 percent.

Right from the start, Jordan made it clear this game was his. He took 13 shots in the first quarter alone, made five and scored 11 points.

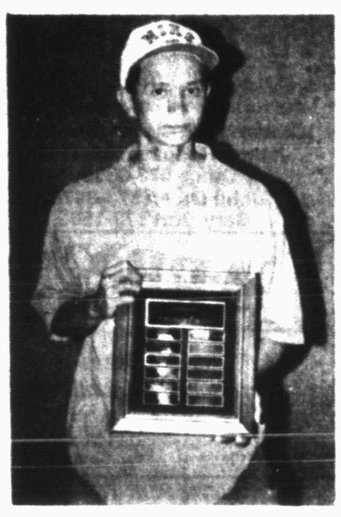

But he had another bad shooting half, missing 11-of-17 field goal attempts, and he shot free throws like O'Neal, clanging 5-of-8.

FIGHTING TIGER — Vanessa Williams won the Fighting Tiger Award for the 1994-95 basketball season.

MOST IMPROVED — Clay Koening and Cailey Coffee were named the Most Improved Players for the 1994-95 tennis season.

MVP — Tracey Chavez won the Most Valuable Player Award for the 1994-95 tennis season.

Bowhunters win Triple Crown

Three Snyder Bowhunters finished in the top three places of the West Texas I.B.O. Triple Crown two day shoot held in Odessa over the wekend.

Randy Brewer placed second in the Male Bowhunter Release category, as well as second overall on the Triple Crown competition.

Joni Wenetschlaeger captured second in the Female Bowhunter Release category, as well as taking second place in the overall standings of the Triple Crown.

Eddie Morris took third in the Triple Crown.

In order to place in the Triple Crown competition, bowhunters must qualify in one or more of the shoots held throughout the year. The shooters points are then totaled and places are then given accordingly.

Other Snyder members participating in Odessa were: James Wenetschlaeger, Steve Hand, Donny Mullins, Dale Byrd, Kevin Gentry, Billy Rollins and Tommy E. Smith.

For more information regarding the Snyder Bowhunters call 573-0024 or 573-4020.

Lake O.H. Ivie fishing report

A Lake O.H. Ivie record walleye was landed by Roswell, N.M. fisherman Darryl Stuart last Thursday. Stuart's catch weighed in at 6 lbs. 4 oz. and measured 26 inches.

While the record walleye was the talk of the week on the Colorado River Municipal Water District's newest lake, there were other catches, as well.

Fishermen found crappie, black and white bass as well as channel, blue and yellow catfish all biting as the water temperature rose to 66.5 degrees on the surface and 58.2 degrees at the bottom. The lake level was 1550.46 feet, or just slightly more than one foot below capacity of 1551.5 feet.

Reports of numerous catches of 12 to 16 inch black bass being caught in 5 to 10 feet of water along the shoreline were fairly common. More 18-inch plus fish are being taken in 15 to 25 feet of water on points and drop-offs using plastic worms.

Fishermen reported success with white bass while trolling or casting on sandy and rocky points and shorelines. Small spinners and crank baits were working best.

Catches of some nice, black crappie were also being made in 10 to 20 feet of water in the main lake as well as in small coves and up the creeks.

Stink baits and shad were the most effective baits on channel and blue cats in water 10 to 20 feet deep. Success was reported on both trotlines and with rods and reels and there were several stringers of 2 to 6 pound fish reported.

The yellow cats were being caught on trotlines with live bait along rocky areas, in the main lake and up both the Concho and Colorado rivers.

Is long-term insulin use dangerous?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been an insulin-dependent diabetic for over 26 years. My question concerns the possibility of damage to arteries from long-term insulin use. Do drugs prolong this damage? Are there any criteria for people like myself who have taken insulin for such a long period?

DEAR READER: Insulin itself does not adversely affect circulation. Quite the contrary. The diabetes is the culprit, by accelerating arteriosclerosis, leading to premature heart and kidney disease.

Moreover, the degree of arterial damage is directly related to how well the diabetes is controlled: in short, whether the blood sugar can be brought under strict control and maintained in a normal range.

Your doctor can recommend the ideal doses of insulin for your diabetes, in conjunction with a suitable diet and a program of regular exercise. You should adhere to his suggestions.

The only real drawback to insulin therapy is the risk that, on occasion, you may self-administer too much, with resulting hypoglycemia (weakness, lightheadedness, hunger, sweating, and rapid pulse). As you know, such hypoglycemia is treated with orange juice or other sugary drinks.

The major criterion for good control of diabetes (to minimize circulatory disturbances) is whether the blood sugar can be maintained in the normal range. Your physician can advise you.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Diabetes Mellitus." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please comment on the effects of garlic. I am under the impression that it reduces the concentration of saturated fats in the bloodstream, yet I have been unable to find a supplement that makes these claims.

DEAR READER: You can't find a garlic supplement that claims to cure elevated blood fats because such an unproved allegation would be illegal. Scientific studies have not confirmed that garlic has such an effect.

True, garlic may possess healthful properties and is a delicious component of many fine dishes. However, the Harvard Health Letter cautions that any supposed health benefits from the herb are only preliminary and have yet to be confirmed.

Lubbock reflects, 25 years after devastating tornado

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK (AP) — One quarter of the city found itself May 11, 1970, in the path of a tornado that roared like a jet and spewed balls of ice.

Such precise details still haunt the Rev. Cornelio Ramirez's memory.

Ramirez rode out the storm that night with about 600 parishioners crowded and prayerful in the hot basement of St. Joseph's Catholic Church. When they emerged, he recalls, they saw the moon.

Rainwater was gushing through the streets around St. Joseph's. Utility poles lay scattered. Voices cried out for help.

"And there were funerals," Ramirez said, "and funerals."

Twenty-six Lubbock residents died after sunny skies that Monday afternoon rotted into a nighttime tornado one observer described as "blue on top and red on the bottom. ... It looked like a big blowtorch."

Press clippings cite as many as 2,000 injured people. Property damage was estimated as high as $150 million.

"The shock of this disaster will remain for a long time," read an editorial in the next day's eight-page Avalanche-Journal. "But so will memories of the manner in which so many hands pitched in to make it right again in their city."

Longtime residents consider the twister an event as key to Lubbock's shape as the arrival of the railroad or Texas Tech University.

Voters took just three months to pass a $13.6 million bond redevelopment program.

Substandard housing near St. Joseph's — an area nicknamed "El Barrio" — was replaced by new homes. Downtown rubble was cleared for a new library, Civic Center, hotels and headquarters for the Department of Public Safety. Texas Tech created the Institute for Disaster Research.

Mayor David Langston called the tornado a catalyst for progress.

"Out of that disaster came tremendous challenges but also tremendous opportunities," Langston said. "We went through it together. It's part of our common heritage."

Langston was a junior at Monterey High School when he ventured out into the high winds to park his 1968 Buick Skylark in a neighbor's garage. Something blew over his head.

The next morning Langston learned what nearly smacked his skull: a basketball goal from down the block.

Meteorologists estimated the tornado's ground-level winds at 200 mph. Its path was a mile wide, 8-miles long.

The most enduring symbol remains the battered Great Plains Life Building — at 20 stories, the tallest Lubbock skyscraper then and now. Civil defense trucks had gone around blaring the building's demise with a premature warning: "The building is falling!"

Observance of the tornado's 25th anniversary began Sunday with a museum exhibit called "Winds of Destruction, Currents of Change." City officials planned a public forum Thursday night at the Civic Center.

Ramirez, now pastor at St. Joseph's, always celebrates a memorial Mass on May 11. He cherishes a plaque that bears the names of five parishioners who died.

He said the disaster led to stronger religious faith and greater city unity. Whenever skies turn threatening, he said, people still get queasy.

"It took away the old homes, but of course life can never be replaced," Ramirez reflected. "That was the sad part."

Reba McEntire wins her first Entertainer of Year Award

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. (AP) — Country queen Reba McEntire won her first entertainer of the year trophy at the Academy of Country Music Awards on Wednesday and accepted it on behalf of "fellow Okies who have endured" the bombing.

"I want to dedicate this to all those who were left behind," said McEntire, who was raised in Stringtown in southeast Oklahoma.

The bombing of the Oklahoma City federal building weighed heavy on many artists: "Oklahoma, I love you. We're proud of you. Keep it up," said Garth Brooks, who hails from the Oklahoma City suburb of Yukon.

Brooks won the video award for "The Red Strokes," and was given the Jim Reeves Memorial Award for furthering the cause of country music internationally.

McEntire earlier won the female vocalist trophy, her seventh Academy of Country Music Award since 1985. But the entertainer award had eluded her.

"That girl has worked her butt off and no one stopped to say thanks. So I'm very happy for her," Brooks said.

"I just keep working, trying to get it," she said minutes before the winner was announced.

Newcomer Tim McGraw took top album for "Not a Moment Too Soon."

"This is totally unexpected," said a stunned McGraw, who won over Garth Brooks, Vince Gill, Alan Jackson and Mary Chapin Carpenter.

He also received new male artist honors.

Jackson, who went into the show with seven nominations, walked away with a single trophy, the top male vocalist award. Gill, who had five nominations, left empty handed.

John Michael Montgomery's "I Swear" was picked song and single record of the year.

"Are you sure you got the right guy? I really wasn't expecting to win this," Montgomery said after winning the top single trophy. He was last year's best new artist winner.

The Mavericks won awards for top vocal group and new group or duet: "Well now, this is too much," said Mavericks member Robert Reynolds, husband of Trisha Yearwood. "From the Mavericks to the fans, we love you very much."

Brooks & Dunn expressed surprise at winning their fourth consecutive top duet award: "You never know when the train is going to stop," said Ronnie Dunn.

Chely Wright was the new female vocalist winner.

The show was broadcast on NBC from the Universal Amphitheatre. Hollywood's usual Armani suits and diamonds were replaced with Stetsons, rhinestones and cowboy boots.

The usual row of stretch limousines dropped off celebrities, including Barbara Mandrell, whose black lace miniskirt had photographers hopping. Another eye-popping arrival was a squealing pig with a red, white and blue bandana.

Former "Green Acres" star Tim Lester brought the porcine named Gordy as a stunt to promote the comedy "Gordy" opening Friday.

The show kicked off with a hearty welcome from hosts Clint Black, Tanya Tucker and Jeff Foxworthy.

The evening featured a nostalgic look back at top country songs sung by modern artists. Brooks brought the audience to its feet with his fun-loving medley of country hits of the past, including "White Lightnin'."

Other guests included Kitty Wells, Randy Travis and a mixture of Hollywood and Nashville, including Jay Leno, Janine Turner, Crystal Gayle, Naomi Judd and Willie Nelson.

Winners were selected by 3,800 academy members.

Computer games planned for sick children

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Steven Spielberg is bringing his high-tech wizardry to the hospital.

The film mogul's nonprofit Starbright Foundation is joining with several Silicon Valley high-tech companies to create a network of bedside computer games for sick children.

He envisions a "virtual playground" for sick youngsters — complete with 3-D special effects and interactive cartoon characters.

"By linking these kids ... we give them a play space just like a park or playground in which they can interact with one another unencumbered by their physical limitations," Spielberg said Tuesday.

Tour Across America coming here Saturday

Wal-Mart and Anderson Merchandisers have teamed up with country music's hotest new artists for the "Wal-Mart Country Music Tour Across America '95."

This tour will offer residents of the area to see one of country music's up and coming stars, Noah Gordon.

Gordon will perform in the parking lot of Snyder's Wal-Mart on Saturday at 7 p.m.

Those attending the free show will have the opportunity for an autograph with the star after the show.

Gordon's first album was titled "I Need A Break" and he co-wrote all the songs on the album.

Gordon started in the music business when he was four years old by playing in his family's bluegrass band.

Gordon said all sorts of musical models have shaped his own distinctive vocal style: "Keith Whitley has been one of my main influences. I just absolutely love his music," said the singer.

Gordon records for Patriot Records.

HISD sponsors celebration

Hermleigh School will sponsor an "All Activities Celebration" on Saturday, beginning at 4 p.m. in the cafeteria.

Barbecue and homemade ice cream will be served.

Students will be recognized for their accomplishments in UIL events, honor roll, athletics and other extra-curricular activities. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Quiet day for officers, who note a single arrest

Local law enforcement officials had a relatively quiet day Wednesday as one person was booked into Scurry County Jail.

A 21-year-old male was arrested at 5:47 a.m. following a disturbance call from the 1700 block of Avenue N at 5:15. He was taken into custody for Class C assault/family violence.

A person called the sheriff's office at 7:55 a.m. Wednesday in reference to someone dumping trash along County Road 4137.

A report of criminal mischief was filed at 9:33 a.m. Wednesday in reference to damage to a storage building at Grimmett Bros.

A close patrol of Stanfield Elementary was requested at 9:43 a.m. Wednesday in reference to juveniles painting on the brick on the outside of the buildings.

An offense report for Class B theft was submitted at 11:04 a.m. in reference to someone stealing items from a yard in the 200 block of Elm Street.

A minor accident was reported at 3:20 p.m. at the Sonic Drive In. Involved were a 1995 Ford pickup driven by James Martin of 3604 Jacksboro and a 1995 Chevrolet driven by Steven Guerrero of 1707 Smith.

An officer was requested at 5:53 a.m. in the 300 block of 35th Street in reference to a car being scratched by keys.

A two-vehicle accident was reported at 6:43 p.m. in the 3100 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1982 Chevrolet driven by Javiar Martinez of 2002 Ave. O and a 1988 Mercury driven by Euphemia Silva of 2411 30th St. Silva was transported to Cogdell Hospital by EMS where she was treated and released. A passenger in the vehicle, Pete Silva Jr., was taken to the hospital by private vehicle where he was also treated and released.

Officers were notified at 12:58 a.m. today of a possible prowler at a residence on East 23rd Street.

A report of a prowler was also made at 1:32 this morning from the 2500 block of Avenue W.

Man pleads guilty to local burglary

An 18-year-old Snyder man was sentenced to seven years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice and ordered to participate in the prison's boot camp program.

The sentence was handed down Tuesday in 132nd District Court by Senior District Judge Gene Dulaney. Action followed a guilty plea entered by Alfredo Carrizales Jr. who was charged with the July 19 burglary of a building owned by William Chris Maxfield. Carrizales, who had been held in Scurry County Jail, was also ordered to make restitution.

Of course houses aren't anchored in place. Ever heard of a home run?

Nuclear non-proliferation pact extended

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A global conference decided today to extend the Non-Proliferation Treaty indefinitely, laying the foundation for the nuclear world of the 21st century.

After 24 days of demands, debate and backroom compromise, the conference approved a U.S.-backed plan to make the 25-year-old pact permanent, perpetuating an international system in which only five nations can legitimately possess nuclear weapons.

The extension, which was agreed to without a vote, was announced by conference President Jayantha Dhanapala of Sri Lanka, in a climactic session in the great domed hall of the U.N. General Assembly.

To placate non-weapons states that sought to pressure nuclear powers into moving more quickly on arms control, a list of disarmament goals was attached to the extension decision.

Those objectives are paired up with a plan for annual meetings to review progress toward the goals.

Dhanapala described the package as "a fair and equitable balance of interests."

"The conference is a major victory for non-proliferation," said Joseph Cirincione, head of a coalition of U.S. arms control groups. "It made the treaty permanent, stronger and more accountable."

Despite disagreements, all sounded pleased that the treaty that has largely held the line against the spread of man's deadliest weapons was being protected.

Dhanapala also hailed the conference for producing what he called "commitments" by the nuclear weapon states "to ensure progress recently achieved for nuclear disarmament is continued until we have total elimination of nuclear weapons."

The extension decision had been delayed by a day because 14 Arab states submitted a last-minute resolution demanding that Israel "without delay" sign the Non-Proliferation Treaty and dismantle its nuclear weapons program.

Israel has said only that it will consider signing the treaty two years after it wins peace agreements with all Middle Eastern states.

Arab and U.S. delegates worked out a compromise resolution, also adopted today, that does not single out Israel by name but calls on all states in the region that have not signed the treaty to do so.

The 1970 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty had only a 25-year guaranteed term. It stipulated that in 1995, member states would have to decide how to extend it or indefinitely.

The treaty's 178 signatory nations recognize five nuclear powers — the United States, Russia, Britain, France and China — and are pledged to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons to any other nation.

In exchange, the five are supposed to work toward total nuclear disarmament, and the non-weapons states are guaranteed the right to obtain peaceful nuclear technology.

Evidence mounts against Terry Nichols

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Investigators have evidence that Terry Nichols traveled here from Kansas with the Ryder truck used in the federal building bombing, a law enforcement source said.

Nichols was charged Wednesday with the April 19 bombing that killed 167 people. He told the FBI he picked up suspect Timothy McVeigh in Oklahoma City three days before the blast, then dropped him off in the Kansas town where the truck was rented, prosecutors say.

Investigators believe Nichols then made a second trip to Oklahoma City with the truck, a law enforcement source in Washington told The Associated Press. "We're not absolutely certain it's true, but it is credible," the source said. He didn't elaborate.

The source did not say when or with whom Nichols made the second trip, or whether the truck was carrying the bomb at the time. He surrendered in Kansas on April 21 after learning he was wanted for questioning.

The truck was destroyed in the blast, and McVeigh was arrested alone 90 minutes after the blast in Perry, Okla. Therefore, investigators are trying to uncover how Nichols got back to Kansas.

Investigators are working on the theory that four to six people may have been involved in the bombing conspiracy, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Dallas Morning News, citing unidentified sources, reported today that Nichols admitted driving the truck from Kansas to Oklahoma City. He told officials he didn't know what the truck would be used for, the paper said.

Wearing a bulletproof vest, Nichols was flown Wednesday from Wichita, Kan., where he had been held as a material witness, to the federal prison outside Oklahoma City where McVeigh is being held without bail.

Nichols was to go to court this afternoon for an initial appearance, at which he will hear the charges read and be advised of his rights. He will not enter a plea. A sealed affidavit filed with the charges, giving details on the accusations, might be opened at that time.

Central Zaire has epidemic of Ebola

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — The hospital where the Ebola epidemic began was eerily deserted when health experts arrived today to investigate the outbreak of the virus already blamed for dozens of deaths in central Zaire.

The patients and staff apparently fled the disease-infected, 350-bed hospital in Kikwit, 370 miles east of the capital of Kinshasa, and the fear is that they would spread the virus. Some, however, may be among the dead.

Health officials also were looking today into a possible second outbreak of the virus in another hospital about 60 miles from Kikwit.

It is the first Ebola epidemic in 16 years. The virus causes hemorrhaging, fevers and death within days for up to 80 percent of those infected.

Kikwit, a city of 600,000 people, was put under quarantine Tuesday. A team of experts who arrived there today found its main hospital deserted except for 20 patients, the World Health Organization said in Geneva.

"In view of the dispersal of patients and staff from the hospital, WHO believes that more cases of Ebola disease will occur in the vicinity," the agency said. It said 20 more cases were suspected in the hospital in Mosango, about 60 miles outside of Kikwit.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta identified the virus after testing blood samples from victims in Zaire, WHO spokesman Philippe Stroot said.

The number of deaths has been difficult to nail down because of conflicting reports and the uncertainty that Ebola was the cause of all deaths.

The aid group Doctors Without Borders reported today from Brussels, Belgium, that 170 people had died since hemorrhagic fever was reported in Kikwit a month ago, but later backed down from this figure. Its team was not expected in Kikwit until later today.

The group's spokeswoman in Kinshasa said 20 deaths from Ebola were confirmed as of Tuesday and 61 others died from bloody diarrhea, which tests may show to have been caused by Ebola or the bacteria shigella.

The spokeswoman, Veerle Eygenraam, said 20 others were quarantined with suspected Ebola.

Oleko Taoibashe, an economics professor at the University of Kinshasa, warned today that even if the disease doesn't spread, the quarantine could cause hardships.

"Kikwit is the most important agricultural area near Kinshasa," he said. "If trucks cannot leave there, there will be food shortages."

There is no vaccine or treatment for Ebola, which Ralph Henderson, the assistant director for WHO, called "one of the deadliest viruses we know."

He said, "This is not a public health emergency in the sense of a wild spread either in Zaire or internationally. It is a very serious outbreak in the area it concerns."

Henderson and other WHO officials emphasized that in previous outbreaks, the virus has run its course quickly. Like the AIDS virus, Ebola is spread through body fluids and secretions, not casual contact. Those infected with Ebola become sick almost immediately and are unlikely or unable to pass it on unknowingly.

The doctor who first discovered Ebola two decades ago said its fatality rate is as high as 80 percent and victims die within days.

at about half of what the project would normally, Hutchinson said, largely because of the use of inmate labor.

The $37,000 is expected to include all costs except furniture, and donations will be sought for that. Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. said Wednesday that he anticipates completion of the project sometime in mid-June.

In support of the BCD's investment at the airport, the board will be requesting that the county make a commitment to renovate and paint the large hanger. That request has not been formally made, and it is expected that commissioners court would not allocate any funds for such renovations until the 1995-96 budget.

BCD board members also approved contract guidelines for the board in dealing with any third-party consultant. These would typically be a person who requests a "finder's fee" for bringing a business to Scurry County. Among other stipulations, the guidelines assure that no fees, expenses or services will be paid up front. They also state that any fees paid to a consultant will be deducted from incentives, loans or grants secured by qualified companies.

In other business, the board approved bills, the financial report and previous minutes.

Present were BCD members Terry Hefner, Max von Roeder, Mark McCormick and Pete Hester. Tim Riggan was absent.

Negotiators said split on voucher plan

AUSTIN (AP) — House and Senate education negotiators have deadlocked on a second major issue: whether to create a pilot program to allow disadvantaged students to use public money to attend private schools.

Wednesday's split over the so-called voucher proposal followed disagreement Tuesday over whether any public school districts should be allowed to escape state class-size limits in the lower grades.

"Those are two of the things that are on the critical list" that will be looked at again by the education conference committee, said Sen. Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant.

The committee is racing against the May 29 end of the regular session to resolve differences between House and Senate bills designed to loosen state control of school districts.

House panel OKs balanced budget plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans won a first vote early today on their plan to slash the size of government, reduce social-welfare programs and usher in a balanced budget within seven years.

Defending the GOP proposal against Democratic charges that it would bring inordinate suffering to the weak, the poor and the old, House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio, said the blueprint would require fair sacrifices of all Americans.

"It is across the board, and I think it's shared and I think it is something the American people will accept," Kasich said prior to the 1 a.m. vote.

Rep. Bob Walker, R-Pa., challenged Democrats to stop picking apart the Republican plan and come up with their own ideas for balancing the budget. "I've heard a defense of nearly every government spending program known to man," he said during daylong debate Wednesday.

Democrats fired back, with the White House leading the charge.

The Senate Budget Committee was close behind, racing to finish work on its budget plan today.

The Emu Report

By Shirley Pate, Pate Emu Farm

Any successful business, wholesale, retail, crops or livestock, depends on accurate records.

In the past records were an important instrument in selling emu for breeding purposes. Even though we are now in a transitional period as we enter the slaughter market we must not become complacent and fall down on our record keeping.

There will always be a breeder market for which we will need the accurate records. As the product market progresses accurate records will help us in selecting which birds to keep and which will be slaughtered. We will be looking for producers of a large number of big healthy chicks that will produce a high amount of fat and meat at 12 to 14 months of age.

Documentation should begin the day you purchase your first emu. It should begin with their genealogy and continue through the entire time you own them.

Each bird should have a separate sheet giving his hatch date, micro chip number and any visible tag, both color and number and sex. Any sickness or lameness and the medication that was administered and how they recovered, should be included. Accurate records on all medications and time given, for illness and vaccinations are essential.

Records should be kept on each breeder pair, both rooster and hen. They should not be related, nor should their chicks be mated with birds of the same blood line. There is research being done on line breeding but nothing is conclusive at this time. Notations should be made on: are they breeding successfully; how many eggs does the hen lay each year; how many are fertile; if they did not hatch, at what stage did they die; how many chicks are hatched each year; do the chicks hatch by themselves or do they need assitance; and the number of good live chicks that are raised each year. With what do you assess the problems that occurred.

Information on the egg from the time it is laid should be kept. Date, time and when it was picked up, condition of egg, where it was laid, whether not washed, if stored, temperature, humidity and length of time stored. Incubation data should be recorded; at what temperature and humidity each hen's eggs hatch best and length of incubation time. The air flow within the incubation room is equally important, so any changes and the date changes were made should be recorded.

Any change in feed and contents are a very important notation. Feed can have effect both on the number of eggs a hen lays, the shell density and their hatchability.

This takes little time if you do it daily and with this information at the end of the season, you will be able to determine any problem areas that appear and make the necessary changes so as not to repeat them next laying season.

At this time you may see the need to do a swab test on both the rooster and hen or possible DNA fingerprint to see if they both have a gene that is being carried over to the eggs or chicks and causing a problem. For more information call, Pate Emu Farm, 573-5340.

Scurry County 4-H Meats Judging Team dominated the South Plains District 2 Meats Judging Contest held recently, winning five of the six first-place awards.

The contest was held at the meat laboratory on the Texas Tech University Campus and was open to 4-H teams from the 20-county district.

The Junior I team of Jacinda Judah, Malorye Miller and Stacy Perkins won first place overall awards with Jacinda Judah capturing the first place overall individual award.

The Junior II team of Sally Barham, Morgan Miller, Stephanie Perkins and Dana Stribling also won the top overall award in the contest. Sally Barham won the first high individual award while teammate Stephanie Perkins was third high overall in the contest.

In the senior division, Jenise Judah captured the first place overall award. As a result of winning the district contest, she will represent District 2 at the state contest held on the Texas A&M University Campus June 6-9, where she will compete against the top 4-H meat judgers from across the state. The meats judging team was coached by Jim Judah.

Following is a list of facts concerning child abuse:

•In 1961, child abuse was formally recognized by the medical community as "battered child syndrome."

•In 1992, state child protective services (CPS) agencies received and referred for investigation approximately 1.9 million reports of alleged child abuse and neglect which involved an estimated 2.9 million children.

•Abuse and neglect was found to be substantiated or indicated in 993,000 victims in 1992. Based on reports from 44 states, 1,100 children died from abuse or neglect. (NCANDS; Child Maltreatment 1992).

•Based on 1992 reports of substantiated or indicated maltreatment, 49 percent suffered neglect, 23 percent physical abuse, 14 percent sexual abuse, and 17 percent other forms of maltreatment.

•Over the years, the link between substance abuse and child abuse has strengthened. Use of alcohol and other drugs by parents has been identified as a major contributing factor contribution to child maltreatment and death.

•Oftentimes child maltreatment has negative short- and long-term effects on children's development and mental health.

•Child abuse effects may often be obvious years later. Violence, suicide, deliquency, drug and alcohol abuse and forms of criminality are frequently related to child abuse.

•Child abuse occurs in all racial, ethnic, cultural and socioeconomic groups. However, physical abuse and neglect is more likely to occur among people in poverty.

Seminar is set for June 15-16

Women who find themselves somewhat unprepared to operate ranches and farms that they have inherited from husbands or other family members may find some assistance from a seminar set June 15-16 in Lubbock.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is sponsoring the two-day workshop to help women explore income-generating and tax-saving opportunities for their farms and ranches.

A registration fee of $75 is required and includes all seminar materials and lunches for both days.

Workshops are also planned June 12-13 in San Antonio, June 19:20 in Tyler and June 22-23 at College Station.

The June 15-16 seminar in Lubbock will be held at the Sheraton Inn, near the Lubbock Civic Center.

Further information is available from local extension agents or from Hayenga or Carol Sabo at the department of agricultural economics, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas, 77843-2124, telephone (409) 845-2226.

Rolling Plains Ratite

Rolling Plains Ratite Association met Saturday at the West Elementary Auditorium. Guest speakers were M.M. Hand, Flo Singleton and T.O. Scherer with United Emu.

United Emu objectives are: 1. raise a war chest of $75,000 to form a National Farmers' Co-op; 2. form "United Emu," a National Farmers' Co-op; 3. raise a $7.5 million war chest to fund "United Emu" (Texas goal is $3 million); 4. hire best available CEO; 5. secure a big-6 accounting business plan and maintain; 6. mandate business plan to CEO; 7. create market demand; 8. secure contracts with market; 9. slaughter and supply; 10. sustain the industry.

United Emu wants to be sufficiently funded before hiring a CEO and staff. They will not slaughter birds until they have future contracts to fill. There will be no spot contracts. There will be contracts with corporate America and the world.

United Emu is an agri-business, selling stock. They are not an association you join by giving either money or birds. United Emu is a stock held corporation.

United Emu's philosophy is, in order for this to become a viable industry and not an exotic market, the farmers must unite together and show financial strength and business responsibility to lead all existing and potential emu farmers into a commercial market.

We will be our own middleman. We will get spot value at slaughter and will be able to share in the wholesale value. We will prove this is a viable industry with a future.

United Emu is the united effort of the EMU farmer eliminating the middleman and hiring his own marketing management creating highest profits at slaughter.

Fiber optics used in test

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department researchers are testing a new poultry inspection aid they designed using fiber optic probes.

The system, being tried out at several Eastern processing plants, trains a light beam onto a carcass and uses a computer to interpret the reflected light, Agricultural Research Service officials said.

Snyder High volunteers recognized included Mike Post, Kathy Post, Pete Juarez, Jerry House, Arlie Eicke, Sharlot Sparlin, Loretta Lee and Jennifer Voss. Also recognized at the banquet were parents who had completed a parenting class series.

Serving as master of ceremonies for the banquet was Mary Ann Juarez, SISD Targeting All Parents coordinator.

Asst. Superintendent Ann McCabe addressed the gathering on behalf of the school district and said everyone wants their children to be responsible, full of self esteem, successful and to be safe.

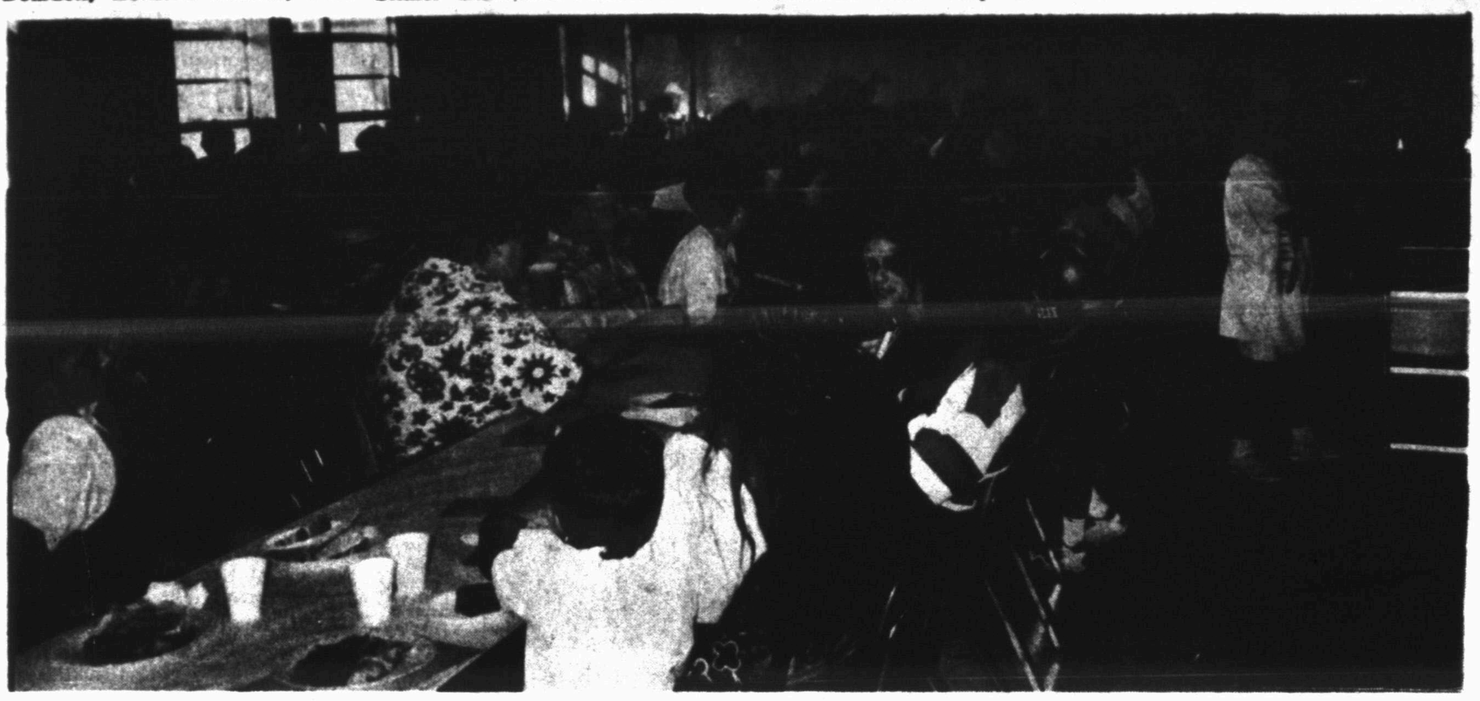

"Our hope to meet that challenge is for our parents, school and community to combine efforts to provide the needs of our children for the future," she added.

Robert Adams, instructor of history and foreign language at Western Texas College, was the guest speaker and addressed the crowd in both English and Spanish.

Adams stressed the importance of the parent's role in the home and in education.

Snyder Junior High student Reid Johnson provided the entertainment and local merchants donated door prizes.

Your Birthday

Friday, May 12, 1995

Persons for whom you did favors in the past will eagerly seek ways to reciprocate in the year ahead. You will discover that being a nice guy can really pay off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before relaxing and letting go today, make sure you've paid adequate attention to your responsibilities. You won't be able to enjoy yourself if you have a guilty conscience. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Go along with the majority today instead of insisting upon having your own way. A small sacrifice will be better than a fight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This will not be a good day to discuss business or mundane matters with friends, especially if you're out together in hopes of finding some fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Strive to achieve things today from which everyone can derive some type of benefit. Avoid goals which would reward only you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you get involved in a joint venture today, make certain the costs and efforts will be shared proportionately. If it doesn't balance out, pass the action.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might not be able to function as independently as you'd like today due to your mate's demands. Instead of fighting, try to find some sort of compromise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your way of doing things might be best today, but you'd be wise not to call too much attention to your tactics. It might wound some sensitive egos.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Go slowly with someone of the opposite sex that you met recently. There is a chance that this person may not be all he/she professes to be.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Whether you like it or not, everything you do today is likely to be scrutinized by others, so be doubly careful about how you behave in public.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes we can get away with telling harmless little fibs, but today won't be one of those days. Keep this in mind if you feel like embellishing a story.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Disappointment is possible if you do something for another in hopes of getting more back in return. Insincere motives aren't likely gain you any ground today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Flattery might work to gain temporary support today, but after the persons you target realize they've been manipulated, they might turn their backs on you.

Murder defendant slashes throat on the witness stand

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — A man accused of murder was on the witness stand when he pulled out a tiny piece of razor blade and slashed his throat.

Robert Skinner had just been sworn in and was making a statement when he suddenly cut himself Wednesday. He was treated at a hospital and taken to a psychiatric center.

Undersheriff Peter Paravati said the blade was "about the size of a small fingernail" and might not even register on a metal detector. Security procedures were being reviewed to determine how Skinner obtained and concealed the blade, he said.

The judge planned to question jurors about the incident and what impact it might have on deliberations.

Skinner and a co-defendant are charged with murder in the January 1994 shooting death of a man outside a restaurant. Skinner scuffled with his co-defendant in court earlier this week, and was shackled when he took the stand Wednesday.

Fewer Asian teens become unwed moms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Immigrants from several Asian and Pacific Island countries are far less likely than other women in this country to have babies as teen-agers or without being married, a government report said today.

Fewer than 2 percent of births to women from Korea and India were to teen-agers, compared with 12 percent of all births in the United States in 1992, the National Center for Health Statistics said today.

The center said that only 8 percent of the Indian babies and about 4 percent of Korean babies were born to unmarried women, compared with 30 percent of all babies born in this country.

The government has previously tracked births of babies of Chinese, Japanese, Filipino or Hawaiian descent. The new report provides details for the first time on births to mothers of Indian, Korean, Vietnamese, Guamanian and Samoan origin.

Most of the Vietnamese, Indian and Korean mothers who had babies here in 1992 were born outside the United States. These mothers tended to be older and were more likely to be married than U.S.-born women of the same ancestry.

The center said the Asian and Pacific Island population in the United States more than doubled between 1980 and 1991, making it this country's fastest growing minority group.

The statistics were derived from seven states — California, Hawaii, Illinois, New Jersey, New York, Texas and Washington — that account for 72 percent of the Asian and Pacific Island births.

The seven states reported 108,295 babies of Asian or Pacific Island descent born in 1992. Only 17 percent of the mothers were born in this country.

JIMMY HALL

Hall recital set Saturday

Melanie Smith will present Jimmy Hall in his senior voice recital on Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theatre at Western Texas College.

Hall is a three-year All State choir member, a winner in the National Association of Teachers of Singing Contest, and a state qualifier in UIL prose reading.

He is a member of the National Honor Society, French Club and Student Council. He is also a member of the First Presbyterian Church Choir.

As a five-year vocal student of Smith, he has entered the Youth Division of National Association of Teachers of Singing and placed second. He also won a medal for outstanding soloist in the Texas State Solo and Ensemble Contest in 1994 where 10,000 students performed.

Hall plans to major in vocal performance with major concentration in opera.

The public is invited to the recital and reception. The concert will include selections by Strauss, Brahms, Debussy, Scarlatti, Belini and Schumann. Hall and Smith will also perform a duet.

He is the son of Rick and Janie Hall and the grandson of Clyde and Elizabeth Hall and James and Donna Stehley, all of Snyder.

Breastfed babies are happier and less prone to disease than their formula-fed counterparts. They are also less prone to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.
