THIRD BODY RECOVERED AT BAYSIDE

Bodies Of Plane Crash Victims Recovered From Copano Bay

The bodies of two men and a woman — victims of a plane crash in Copano Bay — were recovered early this week from the bay in the area of Bayside.

The bodies of the two men were recovered within hours of each other Sunday, March 23. The body of the woman was recovered Tuesday morning, March 25.

The men have been identified as Robert Robinson, 20 of Sinton, pilot of the single-engine plane, and David A. Parrott Jr., 33, of Austin.

As of Tuesday morning, the woman's body had not been officially identified, but it is known that the third passenger in the plane was Joyce Chillingham of Brownsville.

The plane disappeared during a flight from Brownsville to Sinton March 16.

Searchers Tuesday were still seeking wreckage of the plane. As of Monday afternoon, they had found a woman's shoe and the cover of a seat that could have

Work Underway To Restore Mansion

By Pat Blair
Chain-linked fences with padlocked gates surround Fulton Mansion these days, and inside are the sounds of workmen with hammers and saws.

When they finish their work — sometime around July of 1981, according to expectations — the mansion will look pretty much the way it did back in the mid-1870s when it was completed for Colonel George Ware Fulton Sr.

John Carle, general superintendent for the restoration job, said work was started on the mansion on Fulton Beach Road a little over a month ago. Total completion time on the project is expected to be about 18 months.

Carle is employed by William Shaw, general contractor of Corpus Christi, who was awarded the project by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department.

Jim Bigger, with the TP&WD in Austin, is project manager for the restoration.

Research on the mansion began about three years ago, Carle said, not long after the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department bought the old mansion.

Besides information on the house itself, "going back to when it was originally built," Carle said, the research included information on the Fulton family

Residents Express Views On Gun Ordinance

Council Sets Election Canvass Date, Appoints Board Of Equalization

By Pat Blair
Rockport's city council set April 7 as date to canvass results of the April 5 city elections and appointed the 1980 Board of Equalization.

The action came during the council's regular session at 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 24, during which council members voted to table consideration of a loan application for funds to construct a new City Hall.

And although the proposed city gun ordinance was not on Monday's agenda, some 10 or 12 citizens were on hand to express their feelings about the matter.

The council set 5 p.m. Monday, April 7, as date and time to canvass returns of the election in which Rockport voters will elect a mayor and two aldermen — one from each of the two city wards.

The council reappointed 1979 board of equalization members Mary C. McMullen, W.C. Allen and Joseph Lister to the 1980 board and set June 5 from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. as the time for the board to meet and go over city tax rolls.

The board will meet jointly with the school and county (See COUNCIL, page 7)

County Commission Agrees To Reassignment Of Airport Lease

By Beverly Wilkeh
The Aransas County Commissioners Court heard requests from Victoria Attorney Knute Dietz and Victoria Airport Incorporated representative, Dink Jones, for the consent and support of the court in reassigning the Aransas County Airport lease to Mr. Jones' corporation, during a special meeting at 9 a.m. on Friday, March 21. Mr. Dietz represents Linwood Bland, who is presently leasing the airport.

Judge John Wendell said the airport contract, which began in 1975 and is good until 1985, has been a "thorn in (Aransas County's) side."

"We're losing money on the contract," said Judge

Wendell. "There are so many problems out at that airport."

Mr. Jones assured the court that his corporation could give Aransas County a good professional airport. He said he believed the airport needed more flight instructors, and the corporation

Two Men Injured In Fight

Lewis White of Rockport was still hospitalized Monday and four men had been charged with aggravated assault following a fight early Saturday at Pepe's Restaurant. Also injured was Robbie Amason, 26, of Holiday Beach, a security guard with McMahan Electronic Security Service.

Two charges each of aggravated assault -- one for Amason and one for White -- have been filed against Juan Rolando Solis, 20, Jose (Joe) Luis Gonzales, 22, and Lucas Rodriguez, 18, all area residents. Charges have also been filed against one juvenile.

All four have been placed under bond of $10,000 each, $5,000 for each assault charge, according to the report of Rockport police.

The case is still under investigation and other arrests may be made, police said.

According to the report of Police Officer S.P. Trevino, the incident began about 1:40 a.m. Saturday when the owner of Pepe's Restaurant asked Amason to ask several men to leave.

Amason reportedly went outside to ask the men to leave and a fight started. White, who was in the restaurant at the time, reportedly went to Amason's assistance and was

RULES OF DOG EDUCATION:

1. Conduct short -- approximately 15 to 20 minutes -- education sessions. Twice a day if possible.
2. Give your dog exercise before each lesson begins, with ample opportunity for him to relieve himself.
3. Begin each lesson with a review of one or more previous lessons. Thus your dog can earn praise right from the start, putting you both in a good mood.
4. Make all your commands definite and clear. Be firm.
5. Never let yourself become impatient with your dog. One quality you must exercise is patience.
6. Never let your dog disregard even one of your commands. From the first lesson to the last, once you give an order, see that it is obeyed. Your commands must be law to him.
7. Always end each lesson with some improvement. If you are working on one of the harder subjects, you may have to ease up a little on that learning session in order to let the dog be successful. The dog must always succeed; if your dog fails to merit praise, keep on until he does accomplish the command you have given.

Quitting on a note of success, and meriting profuse praise, does wonders for the dog's morale.

8. If a particular lesson is not going well, it is a good idea to switch to a review of learned commands to give you an excuse to praise and pet your dog. Then resume the new tougher command.

9. Conduct the lessons in strict privacy, without distractions. You must have the dog's complete attention. There must not be any other animals around to distract his attention.

Just remember you are smarter than the dog.

ACMSI To Have Booth At Oysterfest

The Women's Committee of Aransas County Medical Services Inc. will have a booth at Fulton's Oysterfest.

The announcement was made Friday, March 21, at the Women's Committee luncheon attended by some 66 committee members and their guests.

The luncheon was the last to be held at Cattleman's Bay House. Next month's luncheon will be at the Sandollar Restaurant.

Members were told that the Fulton Volunteer Fire Department, sponsors of the city's annual Oysterfest, offered a booth to the committee at no charge.

The Oysterfest is a three-day event starting Friday, March 28, and continuing through Sunday, March 30.

Thera Russell told members of the Women's Committee they now have a chance to buy a "pet rock" or a piece of one to help landscape the area around Enterprise Medical Clinic.

She said the city and county combined to clean out the area around the clinic and fill in the low spots, and it is now ready for landscaping. Shrubs have been ordered for each side of the clinic entrance, and plans are to place some boulders in the area to relieve the "flat look."

Mrs. Russell said anyone who wants to help pay for a boulder can do so by contributing $10 to the committee's "Rock Fund."

Vi Street presented the treasurer's report which showed that, as of February 29, the Women's Committee had a balance of $2,601.37 in funds raised for 1980 to date.

More than $15,000 was raised through various projects during 1979, according to the report. Fundraising efforts include the Women's Committee workshop, the Valentine Dance and a drawing for a doll house built for the committee by Jane Turner.

Mrs. Street also brought attention to the work of Milton Sorem who took pictures at this year's Valentine Dance for the ACMSI files at no cost to the Women's Committee.

Two other previously "unsung heroes" of the dance were Joanne Haskell and her husband who contributed more than $100 worth of food to the dance.

The program was presented by Patty Fishwick and Juanita Fields — who became a member of the organization Friday — who showed some of the dolls from their collections.

Committee members Carolyn Behee, Billie Franklin and Thera Russell were lauded for their perfect attendance record at committee meetings.

Morales Service Held

Elena Gonzales Morales, age 36, of Aransas Pass, died Sunday, March 23, in an automobile accident south of Aransas Pass.

She was born in Gregory and had been a resident of Aransas Pass for seven years. She was a member of the Catholic Church.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Emelia Gusman and Mrs. Benito Morales, both of Rockport; two sons, Santana Pena, III and Richard Morales Jr., both of Aransas Pass; three daughters, Mary Helen Lee, Margarita Pena and Mary Alice Morales, all of Aransas Pass; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesus Gonzales of Aransas Pass; one brother, Jesus Jr. of Gregory.

Rosary was recited Monday, March 24, at the Marshall Chapel. Funeral Mass was scheduled for Tuesday at St. Mary's Star of Sea Catholic Church with Rev. James Hamilton officiating. Burial was in the Prairie View Cemetery.

Marshall Funeral Home of Aransas Pass handled arrangements.

Scott First In Shot Put

Pirates Fifth At Beeville

By Edward Lane
On a windy and cool March 21, the Rockport-Fulton varsity Pirates travelled to Beeville to compete with 12 other teams at the Trojan Relays. They placed fifth out of a field that included all of the area 4-A schools except Carroll, and a few 3-A teams.

King and Beeville tied for first place, followed by Alice, King, Tuloso-Midway and the Pirates. Other teams represented were Moody, Miller, Ray, Flour Bluff, Robstown, Sinton and Mathis, the only 2-A school there.

Bubba Scott made a good showing by taking Rockport-Fulton's only first place; this was in the shot put—a throw of 53 feet, 4 1/2 inches. Scott was also second in the discus with a toss of 149 feet, 4 1/2 inches.

The two-mile relay team of Raul Castro, David Corpus, Esequiel Hernandez and Miguel Contreras took third place with a time of 8:21.11 minutes.

Kroy DeForest was fourth in the shot put—50 feet, 1/4 inch. He then came back to anchor the sprint relay team due to an injury to speedster Ernest Gonzales. This team, made up of Mike Covarrubias, Michael Simmons, David Kelly and DeForest, placed fifth.

David Corpus was fifth in the 880-yard dash.

With several people out and others running with injuries, Coach Ron Richardson was happy with the team's competition with the larger schools.

"The times of our distance people are steadily getting faster and our field events are improving," he said. "I am well pleased."

TREATY REJECTED

Japan on Sept. 27, 1978, rejected the Soviet offer of a cooperation treaty unless the Soviets returned the Kurile Islands.

Rockport-Fulton Falls To Wildcat One-Hitter

By Bob Crawford

Marty Foss, Gregory-Portland's answer to the Incredible Hulk, threw seven innings of zeroes as he shut out the Pirates of Rockport-Fulton on a one-hitter in Rockport Friday night. GP was a 13-0 winner.

"We played excellent ball for five innings," said Coach Skip Richardson as he looked back over the game. "We were down only 3-0 going into the sixth. Mark Setterbo had pitched well, and when they hit the ball where we could touch it, we fielded pretty well," Richardson went on to say.

Foss was throwing "heat," as the terminology goes, striking out 16 Pirates. The Pirates could never seem to find the ball, and Foss just kept on firing.

The game was scoreless through two innings. Then in the top of the third, GP's John Carillo hit his first of two home runs for the game, giving the Wildcats a 2-0 lead. A pair of hits brought in another run in the fourth. That rally, by the way, was silenced by a perfect throw from catcher Dennis Hull to third baseman Eric Commander to nail the runner at third on an attempted steal.

The Pirates' only hit came in the bottom of the fourth when Wayne Childers pulled a ball to the left side in the hole between first and second. The second baseman made a play on the ball, knocked it down, but couldn't find the handle, letting the possible no-hitter slip away.

Setterbo was cruising along until the top of the sixth. A little arm-weary, he grew wild, and when he tried to place the ball over the plate, GP hit it out of the park for him. GP picked up four runs on two hits, both homers, to chase Setterbo and run out ahead 7-0.

The Wildcats were not kind to reliever Chris Butler, either. Six runs crossed the plate before the Wildcats were silenced in the seventh. Butler also felt the brunt of GP's attack as they roughed him up for five hits in the inning, including a round-tripper.

Between Foss and the Wildcat power, the Pirates were in trouble and could never climb out.

Girls Compete In Tuloso Meet

The Rockport-Fulton Lady Pirate varsity and JV competed in a track meet at Tuloso-Midway last weekend, and both teams finished in sixth place.

For the varsity, Alma Dickerson took second place in the 100-meter dash (12.75 seconds).

Third-place finishers included Julie Huff in the shot put, Darlene Dilworth in the triple jump and Belinda Cross in the 880-yard dash.

The 440-yard relay team of Danielle Adams, Renee Wagoner, Dilworth and Dickerson placed fourth in the 440-yard relay (55.37 seconds).

In the long jump, Dilworth was fifth, as was the 880-yard relay team of Cross, Wagoner, Lee Elsey

Fulton Mansion Has Been Area Landmark For Almost 100 Years

By Pat Blair
Back in 1872, when a dollar was worth something, the price tag on Colonel George W. Fulton's new mansion was $125,000.

By comparison, the Governor's Mansion, built only 15 years earlier, was valued at about $14,000, says John Carle, head of the project to restore the old Fulton Mansion.

Located on Fulton Beach Road, looking out over the not-always peaceful waters of Aransas Bay, Col. Fulton's mansion was a focal point for visitors to this area as far back as 1888.

For many years, the house was the talk of South Texas, the site of lavish parties which Fulton threw for the most powerful men of his day in Texas, including governors and heads of state.

It so stirred the envy of the wife of his partner in the Coleman-Fulton Pasture Company that she demanded her husband build her a larger version of the Fulton Mansion -- and so the Coleman Mansion was modeled.

After Col. Fulton's death, his widow sold the house to J.W. Davidson, in 1907. Davidson did some modernizing to the structure which he kept until 1943.

A year after Davidson sold it, the mansion was resold and turned into a restaurant, and then, after a lag of several years, the site became a trailer park.

Then in 1976, the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department bought the land -- and began the planning to restore the old mansion to its former grandeur.

Grand it was, with its copper mansard roof, thick walls designed to withstand area storms, the small room -- the captain's loft -- at the front of the house overlooking the bay.

Plans for the house are said to have been designed by Fulton himself, reflecting his image as a renaissance man -- and a man in advance of his time.

The design included seven bedrooms and three baths, and a 19th-century version of central air and heating.

A coal-fed furnace in the basement provided the heat in winter, which was carried by ducts to mock fireplaces in all rooms of the house.

During the summer, a fresh-air intake system brought outside air into the house and forced it through the vents to provide a cooling system.

Two underground gas storage tanks in the back yard of the mansion held carbide gas which was forced into the house to provide lighting and heat for laundry and cooking.

Troughs in the basement kitchen were used to chill food. There was even a plumbing system, and running water was available throughout the house, even in the captain's loft, which is the highest point.

Other features in the century-old mansion include a dumbwaiter that carried food from the basement kitchen to the first-floor pantry where servants waited to carry it into the dining room. And on the third floor, Col. Fulton had his "money room" where he stored the funds for his various business transactions.

The house was built to last, and last it has...landmark, tourist attraction, impressive even in neglect and abandonment.

And it should be even more impressive when restoration is completed and the public gets to see it as it was in Col. Fulton's day...

The day when $125,000 bought a mansion.

MANSION

and this area.

Plans are to "completely restore" the old mansion from basement to third floor. The third floor, when completed, will provide office space for Texas P&WD personnel. The basement, first and second floors will be open to the public.

Carle added that current plans call for one room to be unrestored to show the condition of the house when restoration work was started.

In order to maintain authenticity Carle said, "every item that is removed is numbered and either that item--or a replica if the original is too badly deteriorated--will be returned to its original location."

In cases where new lumber must replace wood that has rotted away, the new wood is stamped with the date "1980" so that someone in the future would be able to tell which wood is original and which was added in this restoration.

A number of doors and windows had the original hardware, Carle continued, and this will be duplicated so that all hardware throughout the restored mansion will be either the original or a replica of the original.

Porcelain-headed picture

hangars found in many of the walls will help pinpoint where paintings were hung.

This painstaking authenticity even extends to the nails used in the new construction. Every nail will be a square one, like the nails used in Col. Fulton's day.

In seeking for square nails, Carle added, he found that there is only one company in America that still makes them -- the firm of Tremont in Wareham, Massachusetts.

So the nails used in restoring the Fulton Mansion come from Tremont, which, incidentally, still operates from the same location at which it started in 1819.

Architects for the restoration -- expected to cost in the neighborhood of $1 1/2 million -- are Turner, Rome and Boltinghouse of Corpus Christi.

Carle added the Parks & Wildlife Department has located most of the original invoices and records on the mansion. "I would imagine the originals or copies will be on display here" when the house is opened to the public, he said.

Fulton Mansion is the third restoration project for the firm of William Shaw.

Right-Of-Way Granted

By Beverly Wilken

One right-of-way would be located on FM 3036 in Raymond Owens' precinct, number three. Mr. Owens asked if the boundary would cross the drainage ditch. Mr. Griffith assured the commissioner there would be no conflict to drainage. The other right-of-way was requested for Airport Road.

The commissioners agreed to both requests made by the oil company.

Mr. Griffith said a Getty

Oil representative will be in Aransas County on Wednesday, March 26, to present the county with an $8,000 check for the right-of-way to cross two roads and one drainage ditch.

ARANSAS PASS

boards of equalization on June 6 to examine the city's share of gas and utility taxes.

The one item tabled at Monday's meeting was consideration of a proposed new City Hall and Community Center.

Mayor Walter Falk told the more than 20 people attending the session that this application did not finalize anything — it is merely an attempt to determine if the city could qualify for a low-interest loan.

Peter Lazidis, a member of the audience and a candidate for the city council, suggested that the council table the matter. "You have two council members and a mayor going up for election in a couple of weeks," he said. "I would propose that this (matter) be tabled for a couple of weeks until the new city fathers are elected."

Although a proposed ordinance that would prohibit carrying or discharging loaded rifles or shotguns in the city was not on Monday's agenda, the council heard from a group of citizens who wanted to express their views and ask questions about the matter.

A major thrust of the proposed ordinance is to fill in a gap left by State laws which prohibit hand guns, knives and clubs in bars but do not extend the ban to include rifles and shotguns.

Members of the group at Monday's meeting said they had no objections to such a prohibition, but expressed concern that the ordinance as it is now written could open the way to police harassment.

COUNTY

would want to run the airport for a short time as it is, so they can see just what the problems are.

Attorney Dietz reminded the court that his clients, the Blands, have every right to sell without consent from the Commissioners Court.

"We can sell the stock to anybody and you have no control on how the stock is handled," he said.

Mr. Jones said, however, he was not in favor of taking over the present lease if the corporation did not have the support of the court.

The avionics shop at the airport is one of the best; the mechanics and the tools are excellent, said Mr. Dietz. But if someone cannot take the facilities over for his client, the airport could lose those tools, plus 200,000 gallons of fuel. The airport has a contract with Exxon Company now for 400,000 gallons per year, and could lose that extra fuel if a March 31 deadline on the contract is not met.

injured.

White was taken to Lyman-Roberts and held for observation but had been released as of Monday, March 24.

Trevino arrested Solis and the juvenile at the scene Saturday. Gonzales and Rodriguez were arrested late Saturday.

In addition to the Rockport police, units from the county and state were at the scene.

'FEST

Furlong says that he will roast one pig each day outside the Paws & Taws building. When it is done, pork plates, including all the trimmings, will be sold.

The ray-oyster-eating contestants will sit around a table and be presented with a bag containing 25 nice fat ones. When they finish off one bag, they get another bag full. It should be interesting, to say the least.

There will be pumper races between area fire departments to test the skills of the various teams. They will be doing their very best, because prizes ranging from $25 to $200 await the winners.

The whole weekend sounds like it will be a lot of fun.

See you there.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

Progress In Packaging

Packaging is one of the most effective instruments of conservation devised by man, according to one of America's leading businessmen, the President and Chief Executive Officer of Philip Morris Inc. In this article he explains this statement, and also points out how packaging works to cut costs and fight inflation.

By William McCoy

Packaging helps us conserve our most precious resources—our land—by enabling us to allocate it to its most productive uses. It conserves products by protecting them from damage and spoilage, reduces waste by enabling people to buy no more than they want.

Packaging conserves energy and labor by fostering remarkable efficiencies in transportation, handling and retailing.

The most enthusiastic users of single-serve packages are those most conscious of cost and waste controls—the institutional feeding systems. Consumers are now following them because they, too, are aware of cost benefits. Decisions made in the marketplace often make more economic sense than arbitrary laws or regulations.

Legal restrictions can be patently wasteful and thus inflationary. For example, a product that is close to me is Miller Beer, part of Philip Morris Incorporated. Miller has had great success with the seven-ounce pony bottle. Some people want to drink only that much; others are slow sippers; before they get to the bottom of a 12-ounce bottle, the beer is warm and flat—so they throw it out.

Yet, for reasons known only to the powers that be, the seven-ounce bottle is illegal in some states. How much waste that means is also unknown.

There is a degree of moralizing over any packaging. Some people see problems with waste disposal and litter at the end of the line without recognizing the marvelous string of efficiencies that has gone on before.

For virtually every product on the market, the first imperative is conservation and cost-effectiveness. This imperative has led to great technological advances that conserve enormous amounts of energy in production and distribution. They revolutionized the marketing of milk, soft drinks and beer by replacing returnable containers with disposable ones.

Now there is a movement to take a giant step backwards by requiring soft drinks and beer to be packaged in returnable containers. Returnable containers are costly and inflationary.

In today's society, the only acceptable means of conservation is innovation. Conservation need not be denial and reversion to the old days. It can be the science and art of making the most of what we have.

The solution?

First, comprehensive recycling and disposal systems for all solid waste. Second, comprehensive litter clean-up systems.

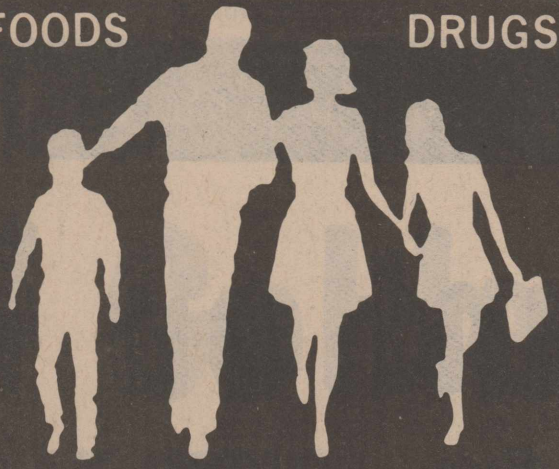

Third, intensive efforts to convince people that littering is an indecent act. And finally, active support of innovation by industry to conserve our resources with packaging and other technological efficiencies.

ints For Homeowners

DECORATE TO SAVE ENERGY AND DOLLARS

By Dave Farrar
National Home Furnishings
Coordinator
Montgomery Ward

Energy-saving products and ideas for your home can be fashionable and attractive.

Draperies, for example, can provide a major focal point for a room, but since windows contribute up to 35 percent of a typical home's heating loss, window coverings should have a thermal lining.

Draperies are the perfect window treatment for many of today's popular Romantic and casual looks. They can be combined with casements or sheers, hung from wood or brass rods, or paired with custom window shades or thin, slat blinds for a unique design look.

To give a smaller window a dramatic effect, try laminated fabric shades. A reverse roll-up shade, for instance, is clean, uncluttered and modern. Tight-fitting with an upholstered frame, it helps block drafts, acting as an insulator for the room. The shade can be lowered to let in sunlight while still providing privacy and pizzazz.

Another practical suggestion: cover windows with a quilted material. Simply apply Velcro to both the quilting edge and the window frame, or a 1"x2" constructed frame. Velcro allows a tight seal and at the same time permits easy material removal for cleaning.

Quilted material should be slit about three-quarters of the way up, then two or three small ties affixed. This lets you open the window covering during the day for a dramatic, tentlike effect. At night the flap can be closed and tied to provide privacy and help keep out the cold.

To add a dramatic touch to a room while keeping an eye on energy conservation, apply fabric to a wall. It can be as easy as hanging wallpaper and is ideal for damaged walls, or on an outside wall, as another way to reduce conduction and drafts.

A handsome print or stripe can add size to a small room while making a dramatic statement, and it adds an acoustical dimension as well.

Common Misconceptions About Electric Rates Cleared Up

By Jay B. Kennedy

Let's shed some light on electricity bills!

Who's paying what and why? Misconceptions can cloud public thinking as states consider electric rates. Let's look clearly at some of the facts:

Misconception No. 1: Homeowners are subsidizing industrial electricity use.

Fact: Residential electricity consumers are not paying more for electricity so industrial consumers can get a "bargain" rate. In fact, in most cases, it's the other way around. Studies show that power companies earn a higher return rate on invested capital from industrial customers than from residential ones. If industrial customers didn't provide such good revenues for utilities, the utilities would have to get the revenues from homeowners.

Misconception No. 2: Industry gets "bargain" or "promotional" electric rates.

Fact: Rates are based on the cost of providing service to each class of consumer—industrial, commercial, residential. Large users often pay lower unit prices because it costs less to bring a kilowatt hour of electricity to a large user (such as a factory) than to a single-family home.

Misconception No. 3: Penalizing industry would help people.

Fact: If every customer paid the same for every kilowatt hour of electricity used—industry would pay rates substantially higher than the cost of providing their service. The higher rates to industry would be passed on to everybody who buys industrial goods and services. Money saved on the light bill would be lost on the bills paid for food, clothes, other consumer items and transportation.

Misconception No. 4: Large industrial users are to blame for peak demands for electricity.

Fact: Residential and commercial customers put the strains on supply systems. They exhibit sharp variations in their demands that require expensive, inefficient units to serve their daily peaks.

Misconception No. 5: Uncle Sam has all the answers.

Fact: The Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act doesn't mandate adoption of any rate-reform measure.

It says states have to take a look at those specified in the law. But guidance and money from Uncle Sam is apt to engender some waffling at the level of state regulation, and some expectation that "the real information" will flow from Washington.

The energy problem is really not a dream, and dealing with it requires clear thinking and decision not dictated by politics or emotion. Three principles can serve all consumers in this process:

• An adequate, reliable supply of electricity for everybody must be assured.

We will have "spot shortages" of electricity if somebody stops the installation of adequate capacity.

• Fair share, cost-of-service prices are equitable for everybody. Tinkering with prices can only put off—and probably make worse—the necessary economic consequences.

• Regulation of electricity has to remain a state and local matter. What works in one state will not necessarily work in another.

• Dr. Kennedy is executive director of the Electricity Consumers Resource Council (ELCON).
