Storms Unleash Heavy Rains; Shutdown Due

Moisture 'Rescues' Dryland Cotton Crop

FLOODED STREETS and occasional funnel clouds plagued South Plains cities again Monday as massive thunderclouds rolled over the northwestern half of Texas.

Motorists in much of the Lubbock area encountered high waters in downtown areas and highways in the wake of rains that measured up to three inches in some parts of the region.

Weather service forecasters predicted a shutdown to the showers today after two days of widespread and sometimes heavy rainfall had ended a lengthy dry spell across the High Plains.

By dusk, Lubbock had received 2.86 inches and city officials had closed East Broadway adjacent to Mackenzie Park, and North Quaker Avenue between Fourth Street and Loop 289, accoording to Don Jennings, street superintendent.

Jennings added that portions of Quaker Avenue also were under water south to 50th Street.

By early afternoon several areas were flooded, Jennings said, noting that "It's a combination of flat country and high intensity rains. It just takes a little while for it to run off."

South Plains highways, however, were less affected by the heavy rains, according to a spokeswoman for the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, who said, "water is just over the pavement a little bit — no roads are closed or impassable."

Area experiencing the most flooding were in Swisher, Lynn and Floyd counties. Garza County remained under a flash flood warning almost three hours Monday afternoon after 1 to 3 inches of rain fell within an hour.

Mike Bostain, a spokesman for KPOS Radio Station in Post, said, "We had some minor flooding but it wasn't anything serious."

Flash flood warnings also were issued for Gaines, Martin and Dawson counties, but residents reported only slight or no flooding in those areas.

Monday's extensive cloud cover, expected to move eastward out of the area by today, also spawned several funnel clouds in parts of West Texas.

The public reported several sightings of tornadoes and funnel clouds northeast of Clovis at 2:40 p.m. Monday, but a spokesman for the Curry County Sheriff's Office said, "We've had numerous sightings, but nothing's been confirmed and no damage was reported."

Another twister, reported by Bud Creamer of Muleshoe, reportedly knocked out some power lines along a highway three miles southeast of the city.

Tornado warnings also were issued Monday for persons in Kerr County near San Antonio after a twister was reported at 1:30 p.m. near Kerrville State Park along with marble size hail. About 7:30 p.m., the National Weather Service issued a tornado warning for Wilbarger County after a tornado was sighted by the public 10 miles south of Vernon.

As the frontal system and upper level disturbance causing Monday's turbulent weather move out of the area, temperatures that rose only to 64 Monday will reach into the middle 70s this afternoon before dropping to an overnight low in the upper 50s.

Furor Over CETA To Surface Again At Board Meeting

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE SOUTH PLAINS Association of Governments Board today will be asked to approve a five-month-old audit of its CETA operation that shows almost $150,000 in questionable costs.

Also, the board will discuss a report by the auditing firm that strongly criticizes numerous operations and policies of the governmental panel.

Both the report and the audit were completed several months ago, and at least one board member, Lubbock County Judge Rod Shaw, is expected to question why the reports were not disclosed earlier.

The board will meet at 9 a.m. at 1709 26th St.

The panel's staff will recommend to the board that it accept a financial and compliance audit of Comprehensive Employment Training Act funds from Oct. 1, 1976, through June 30, 1978.

An accompanying statement by the auditing firm, Kelley, Cole & Co., questions $148,409 in costs that the accountants say "result from failure of the grantee (the South Plains Association of Governments) to comply with specific regulations as set forth in the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act."

Juanita Forbes, local CETA administrator, was vague about regulations the auditors are questioning. However, she said, they involve such things as staff salaries, eligibility of clients and completion of on-the-job training contracts.

Nuclear Regulators Admit Laxity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House inquiry into the Three Mile Island nuclear accident said Monday the same type mishap "is likely at any time" at another nuclear power plant.

Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., made the assertion in presenting a report by his panel suggesting that equipment and instrument failure played a much greater role in the March 28 accident than operator error.

Powers Delegated

Meanwhile, the House approved and sent to the White House a measure giving broad powers to the special commission named by Presdent Carter to investigate the nuclear accident.

The measure, passed unanimously, gives the commission the power to subpoena and put witnesses under oath and to inspect certain records.

Commission members last week suspended hearings into the accident until it had obtained the power. The Senate passed the bill on Friday.

"Such an accident not only could happen again but it is likely to at any time," Weaver told members of a House Interior subcommittee.

"Three Mile island has proved the extreme vulnerability of nuclear power."

False Information

The task force headed by Weaver concluded in its report that control room operators were unable to harness the nation's worst nuclear accident because their instruments gave them false or misleading information.

"I saw no operator error not closely related to design or equipment error," Weaver said.

"Operators and engineers involved from the start of the accident repeatedly told the task force they did not know the extent of damage — the degree of serious danger — until one or two days after the damage had occurred."

Task Force Findings

Central findings of the task force report were that:

—Instruments that could have given control room operators a clear indication of what was happening were either nonexistent or inadequately calibrated.

—Operators followed prescribed procedures during the the first hours of the accident based on the best information available to them — even though these procedures turned out to be inappropriate under the circumstances.

—A presssure relief valve stuck in the open position was probably the single most serious malfunction, but conflicting information reaching the control room delayed a diagnosis of the problem for more than two hours.

—An emergency core cooling system that had turned on automatically was throttled back dramatically, contributing to reactor overheating — a move based on a misinterpretation by operators of a water-level gauge.

Monitors Inadequate

—The temperature in the reactor core soared to a dangerous 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit during the first hours of the accident but control room monitors were inadequate for measuring this high a temperature directly.

—Two valves on an auxiliary water pump system that mistakenly had been left closed when they should have been open may not have contributed as much to the severity of the accident as previously suspected.

"Throughout the early hours of the accident, the operators could not readily interpret (reactor) core temperatures," said the report.

Thus at the time when most of the Bill Advances To Kill Car Coverage Penalty

AUSTIN (AP) — Auto insurance penalties for traffic convictions would be outlawed under a bill passed by the Texas House.

The bill went through with minimal discussion Friday on a calendar of local and uncontested bills.

'Rating Plans'

Representatives were informed by their calendar that the potentially controversial bill was simply one "relating to premium rating plans."

Speaker Bill Clayton had referred the bill to the House Transportation Committee when it first was introduced instead of to the House Insurance Committee, where it normally would go.

"I don't know why we put it in transportation. ... Nobody fussed about it," Clayton said.

He said the bill had not slipped through unnoticed because there was a question or two on the floor when it came up.

As for the bill, he said, "I like it."

Similar Bills Backed

Clayton has backed legislation in previous sessions that would have eliminated premium surcharges for speeding convictions where the speed was between 55 miles per hour and 70 mph.

Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe vetoed such a bill in 1977.

Premium surcharges amount to 15 percent for the second speeding ticket in a year or the third within 36 months. Once a driver receives a surcharge, it is added to the price of his car insurance policy for three consecutive years.

Surcharges also are imposed for driving with a suspended license, driving while intoxicated, hit-and-run accidents, negligent collision or any moving violation that results in cancellation or suspension of a driver's license.

The State Insurance Board says the surcharges add 1.5 percent a year —

'Bee' Senators Win, Acknowledges Hobby

AUSTIN (UPI) — With the continuing absence of 12 "killer bees" from the Texas Senate, the state's legislative process started grinding to a halt Monday, and there were indications the "bees" were winning their fight to kill a presidential primary bill favoring Texan John Connally.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who Friday ordered the Texas Rangers to go out, find and retrieve 12 senators whose absence meant the Senate could not call itself into session, conceded Monday that the bill probably was dead.

Not Without A Fight

He refused, however, to withdraw the measure — not wanting the 12 liberal senators to feel they had won without a fight.

"To reward behavior of this sort is obviously not wise," Hobby said of the senators he dubbed the "killer bees."

Rules of the 31-member Senate state that 21 members constitute a quorum to officially conduct business. Only 19 senators are now present in Austin. Although the majority of the Senate favors the primary bill, without at least two more members present it cannot call itself into session to pass the measure.

Early Monday, Hobby considered temporarily replacing the missing 12 on various House-Senate committees because without them the committees could not meet. With the committees unable to meet, the Texas House also was hampered in its attempt to do business.

Conciliatory Move

He said later Monday, however, he would postpone the naming of "acting conferees" until Tuesday.

Hobby also admitted that he and supporters of the Connally primary bill had discussed a proposal for dropping a statewide alert for the arrest of the 12 missing senators as a conciliatory gesture.

Spokesmen for the missing senators indicated they plan to remain in self-imposed exie until midnight Tuesday when parliamentary rules would require a two-thirds vote for the Senate to consider the primary legislation.

Conflict Of Interest Dispute Splits Morton School Board

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

MORTON — Despite charges of conflict of interest, the board of trustees of the Morton Independent School District Monday voted to pay for goods and service provided by school board members.

The 3-to-1 vote followed a sharp clash among several board members over the interpretation of state laws prohibiting a school district from dealing with any business or company in which a board member is involved.

The board was told that according to state penal code 3602, "Even though the trustees agree not to profit from the transaction, the school district should not contract with any company employing a school board member."

The board finally passed the proposal to pay the bills after learning that another statute states that "if it is not possible for the school board to get goods and services elsewhere, the board member involved should remain away from all votes on the matter and forego any direct or indirect gain resulting from the transaction."

Over the course of a school year, local transactions ranging from office supplies to building construction and maintenance can run into "many, many thousands of dollars," said a board member after the meeting.

He declined to release an exact figure for the 1978-79 school year.

Working with local businesses, including those owned by or employing board members, often is more convenient and saves money, said board member Ray Lewis. Lewis, through his Lewis's Farm and Ranch Supply, deals extensively with the Morton schools.

"That law is there to prevent fraud but I'm just trying to use common sense," Lewis said. "It's much simpler and more feasible to work with the local businesses. I can't see the taxpayers wanting to spend more money than necessary."

Lewis, however, abstained from voting on the issue.

Board members voting to transact business with themselves or other board members are subject to a $1,000 fine each time they vote to do so, according to state statutes.

"It only takes one disgruntled taxpayer to file a conflict of interest suit and we're back in court," said Bill Thomas,

Carter Determined To Overhaul Fed Pay System

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Monday he is determined to overhaul the federal pay system, a move his aides say could save taxpayers $4.6 billion yearly.

"This is a very important challenge for us all. I am determined to bring this about," Carter told a hand-picked group of federal employees in the White House.

He also disclosed that he is studying staffing levels at U.S. embassies overseas after being told by two outgoing ambassadors that they could have done their jobs better with half the number of subordinates.

And he denied a published report that he will seek to raise the minimum age at which civil service workers may retire and receive pensions. Those with 30 years of service may now draw pensions at age 55, and such early retirements add significantly to the expense of the taxpayer-subsidized system.

Carter's meeting with the employees was arranged to help counter what administration officials feel is a growing uneasiness in the bureaucracy about jobs, pay and benefits.

A White House television crew recorded the meeting on videotape for later playback to groups of federal workers around the country.

Carter said final details of the pay legislation have not yet reached his desk, but said its aim will be to peg the pay of federal workers closer to official calculations of the going rate for similar work in the private sector.

Such a move would mean holding down future pay raises for most of some 4 million civilian and military employees.

But Carter predicted it would benefit the federal workforce in the long run by bringing increased stability and predictability to federal pay.

"We must take action of this type in order to protect the federal comparability system," Carter said.

He said the alternative is to return to the old system under which Congress set pay raises arbitrarily.

Meanwhile Monday, a congressional agency contended salaries for top government officials have risen too slowly in the past decade and must be boosted to prevent losing talented managers to private business.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' research and investigative arm, said in a report that salaries of administration executives have risen only 28 percent on the average during the past 10 years to a maximum of $66,000 a year for cabinet officers down to $47,500 for lower-ranked executives.

The report said pay boosts for government executives "are critically needed" if government agencies "are to avoid serious recruitment and retention problems."

The outlines of Carter's pay package have been well known for some time, but Monday's meeting was the first time the president had publicly committed himself to it so firmly.

Administration officials say the pay legislation, due to be introduced by early June, will require that the government's generous fringe benefits be counted when figuring comparability between federal and non-federal pay. They say that would save some $4 billion or more per year.

It also will hold down top pay scales for blue-collar workers, now set by law at 12 percent above the going local rate, until federal and non-federal scales are comparable. Savings from this portion are estimated at $600,000 yearly.

Another feature of the pay plan would set up local pay scales for low-ranking federal white collar workers, who now are paid under a rigid national scale regardless of local wages. Some federal pay would go up and some would be held down under this part.

Federal unions have attacked Carter because of the pay plan, his moves to hold down federal pay raises to 5.5 percent a year as part of his anti-inflation program and other real and rumored cutbacks in federal pay and benefits.

The American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, is currently calling for a boycott of U.S. Savings Bonds as part a drive it is calling the "Save Our Benefits" program.

Stockpiling Of Gasoline Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil company executives denied on Monday withholding gasoline from the market to await higher prices and blamed the nation's gasoline squeeze on a lack of crude oil.

Administration spokesmen testified before a congressional committee blamed tight crude oil supplies on unrest in the Mideast.

And White House press secretary Jody Powell said Congress was primarily responsible for the nation's current gasoline problems and that President Carter was getting too much of the blame.

Deputy Energy Secretary John O'Leary told a Senate hearing that shortages may be eased somewhat if Iran increases its oil production. He said there is a chance Iran might export an additional 200,000 to 300,000 barrels a day to the United States.

But such an increase, O'Leary added, would only make the country "more comfortable" in a time of continuing shortage.

O'Leary and executives of five major oil companies testified before a Senate Energy subcommittee studying the present shortages.

Senators told the officials that they, like exasperated motorists in gasoline station lines, wanted an answer to the question of whether gasoline is being held back to bid up the price.

"I don't know of any oil being withheld for higher prices," said James H. DeNike, a vice president of Shell Oil Co.

"I can't answer that," O'Leary said. He acknowledged that some oil is probably being held back but said companies doing so may be acting prudently to maintain their inventories.

O'Leary said he doesn't know of any easy ways for oil companies to stretch their tight supplies any further.

The problem is less crude oil and a higher demand, especially for gasoline, O'Leary testified.

"There is a shortage," O'Leary said, "and the fault for that shortage is the revolution in Iran."

While Iran has resumed production, O'Leary said, only now is world production coming roughly in balance with daily world demand.

The chairman of the energy committee, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said this year's shortage is a re-run of the 1973 Arab oil embargo. This time, he said, the Mideast oil countries are limiting production in order to drive up the price.

"There is no reasonable limit to that in the short run," Jackson said.

Shell's DeNike said his firm could use another 1.5 million barrels of imported oil daily to keep its refineries running at capacity. J.W. Price, vice president of Chevron, testified his company is "significantly short" of the crude oil it needs.

C.R. Sitter, Exxon Co. vice president, said that industrywide refinery production would approach last summer's levels, but still fall 2 or 3 percent short of the increased demand for gasoline.

Eight Hostages Escape San Salvador Embassy

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Venezuela's ambassador, armed with a pistol smuggled to him by his wife, and all seven other hostages inside the Venezuelan Embassy escaped Sunday night, leaving the building to the nine anti-government militants who occupied it May 11, authorities said.

Ambassador Santiago Ochoa said his military attache and two other embassy employees stayed inside the building when the others escaped, but police said later that the three left during the night, climbing out the same side window used earlier by the ambassador. No other details were available.

Ochoa said he and his fellow hostages were not hurt during the time they were held by the members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, who are armed with pistols.

Other members of the Bloc continue to hold the French Embassy and have occupied several churches to back their demands that the military government of this tiny Central American nation release three leaders of their movement.

The ambassador said his wife paved the way for the escape by smuggling a small caliber pistol to the hostages Sunday afternoon.

Ochoa said the attache, who was not identified by name, broke down a door to a rear office with access to the outside. He said all the hostages ran in and barricaded themselves inside. Then, with the attache shouting through the door to divert the militants' attention, the five others escaped, he said.

Ochoa said the hostages started hatching their escape plan after their captors demanded to search confidential embassy files.

Service Station Owners May Get Bigger Share Of Gas Profits

United Press International

The Energy Department is considering four proposals that would give service station owners a bigger share of pump profits and make gasoline even costlier for motorists, an authoritative petroleum newsletter said Monday.

Under pressure from gasoline retailers, who called off a threatened nationwide strike last week to protest current price regulations, the DOE Announced last week it may allow service stations to raise gasoline prices to meet increased costs.

The proposals now under study by the DOE could boost pump prices by between 1.3 cents and 6.8 cents a gallon above current levels, according to the Lundberg Letter.

Although the AAA reported last week that retail gasoline prices have jumped by 17 cents a gallon since January, Lundberg pointed out that "on average gasoline retailers are making fewer actual cents per gallon now than they were allowed in March 1974."

The indepenent newsletter, published in North Hollywood, Calif., specializes in oil market analysis and gasoline statistics.

"Gasoline retailers are laboring today under federal price ceilings that have not been basically changed in more than five years, although the cost of living has risen almost 50 percent during that time," the letter said.

"It is no surprise retailers are asking for relief and the government is considering giving it."

On March 1, 1974, the federal government granted gasoline dealers additional margins to offset reduced gasoline supplies during the Arab oil embargo.

Under the 1974 regulations, a dealer's ceiling price is based on his profit margins of May 15, 1973, plus an additional 3 cents a gallon to cover the increased cost of doing business.

"The 10.8 cent per gallon average margin retailers were allowed to make back in March 1974 represented a markup of 37.2 percent over the average wholesale buying price," Lundberg said.

"The current average retail margin (for April) of 9.6 cents a gallon represents a markup of only 17.6 percent over the average wholesale buying price of 54.6 cents a gallon in April 1979."

Lundberg calculated the economic impact of the four proposals now being weighed by the DOE, and UPI measured the Lundberg projections in terms of the April 1979 profit margin of 9.6 cents a gallon to find out how much each lould cost the motorist.

•A flat 3.4 cent-a-gallon increase, which would raise the dealer's allowable profit margin to 14.2 cents a gallon and boost the motorist's bill by roughly 4.6 cents a gallon.

•A 25 percent markup over wholesale buying prices excluding taxes — for a 13.6 cent margin, or a rise of about 4 cents a gallon at the pump.

•A modified percentage markup, with 30 percent for full-service and 20 percent for self-service, would add 6.8 cents a gallon to full-service prices and 1.3 cents for pump-it-yourself prices.

•A uniform flat margin of 15 cents, which would increase retail prices by 5.4 cents. The DOE reportedly has abandoned this plan, Lundberg said.

Funds Issued Dead Citizens In California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — In a single month in 1977, California paid medical benefits for at least 377 persons who were already dead, state Controller Ken Cory said Monday.

An audit of the Medi-Cal program of free medical care for the poor found that benefits were paid for at least 7.8 percent of the 4,800 medical recipients who had died in December 1977, Cory said.

Many of the improper payments were for less than $50 and could have resulted from clerical errors, Cory said. He said auditors were not looking for fraud, just overpayments.

But, he added, " have a certain normal suspicion when a pharmacy is providing medication to someone who is already deceased."

Auditors found numerous instances in which Medi-Cal cards were issued to dead people, in one case as long as 18 months after death, Cory said.

The controller said the problem was that elegibility for the cards was determined largely by federal computer tapes which were not kept up to date.

The policing of the program was mainly left up to Medi-Cal's private bill collector, which Cory said lacked sufficient incentives to weed out improper payments.

A new contract gives the state tighter control over Medi-Cal bill collection and new procedures instituted by the state Health Services Department should help solve the problem, Cory said.

In the meantime, Cory said he had asked the department to seek repayment of the funds.

Jury Convicts Lubbock Man Of Robbery

A 140th District Court jury took an hour and 10 minutes Monday afternoon to convict 20-year-old Ricky Don Thornton of aggravated robbery in a Feb. 8 meat market hold-up.

Jurors were to consider punishment in the second phase of the trial beginning at 9 a.m. today.

Thornton, of 2207 E. Cornell St., is accused of holding up Newburn's Meat Market at 215 Quirt Ave. with another man, Ralph Eugene Evans, 18, of 3314 E. Cornell St., who was convicted of aggravated robbery in the case last week and given a 10-year probated sentence.

Market owner Gary Newburn Monday identified Thornton as the man who held a shotgun on him while Evans took $50 from the cash register.

Assistant Criminal District Attorney Mark McBride, head of the aggravated robbery prosecution unit for the criminal district attorney's office, argued after testimony in the brief trial was over that Newburn was more credible than witnesses for the defense.

Three witnesses called by defense attorney Lane Arthur testified that Thornton was taking his brother to work at a steel company while the robbery was taking place between 7:30 a.m. and 7:40 a.m. Feb. 8.

Thornton's mother said he was asleep in the living room until she awakened him to drive to a Lubbock motel and take his brother to work. She said he returned home about 8:15 a.m. and that Evans arrived there while he was gone.

A woman who was staying at the motel testified that he arrived there between 7:30 a.m. and 8 a.m., and a coworker of the brother at the company said the two brothers were there a few minutes before 8 a.m.

The motel was about six miles from the Thornton home, Mrs. Thornton said.

Because of two prior felony convictions, the charge against Thornton has been "enhanced," and he faces a possible sentence of 99 years or life.

The minimum sentence the jury can assess is 15 years. It does not have the option of giving probation.

Terrorism--Footing The Bill

ALTHOUGH IT has not made the headlines as much as in the past, partly because of the concentration on the energy crisis, the wave of terrorism around the world continues unabated.

Not only are the more publicized senseless bombings by the PLO in the Mideast still with us, but in Italy and Asia and South America, terrorist acts of violence continue to take their toll.

Ironically, the terrorists still have their apologists and indeed those who support them with money—sometimes U.S. tax dollars.

THE LATEST surge of terrorism has taken place in Israel and Lebanon where Yasser Arafat and his stooges gleefully claim credit for killing and maiming innocent men, women and children.

This, the sworn enemy of the U.S. and peace, except on his terms, says is the PLO's way of "protest."

In Italy, prominent businessmen and government officials now travel with bodyguards. In South America, fringe groups kidnap and kill at will.

And in the U.S., there are those who while offering slight condemnation for such things also defend "protest," violent and otherwise as the "last resort" for the "oppressed."

The quotes are used for good reason. All are key words often mouthed by the "do-gooders" to defend anarchy, "taking to the streets" to get what they want.

RECENTLY, THE charge was made that the United Nations is now helping to finance at least 10 revolutionary terrorist organizations around the world, with the U.S. footing a big part of the bill.

The shocking details, revealed in a study by the Institute of American Relations, notes the large amounts of money funneled to such Marxist backed guerrilla movements as SWAP in South West Africa and the groups fighting to seize control in Rhodesia. In the latter instance, the World Council of Churches has also contributed heavily.

"Not surprisingly," the study notes, "all 10 so-called liberation groups' aim primarily is to overthrow Western-oriented administrations and install predominantly Marxist dictatorships..."

It is far past time for millions of Americans to let the White House and Congress know, as well as whatever church groups may be aiding and abetting the World Council of Churches, that they demand that their money and this nation's prestige—through the likes of U.N. Amb. Andrew Young—quit being used to further the overthrow of the Free World.

Good Query, Wrong Answer

A POLITICALLY popular but potentially devastating suggestion that the U.S. raise trade barriers in order to end its enormous international trade deficits has been made by U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

It was precisely a round of retaliatory trade restrictions and tariffs that led to the stock market crash of 1929 and the world-wide Great Depression that followed.

Not that Sen. Bentsen, chairman of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, doesn't raise valid concerns about American naivete and shortcomings in dealing with our foreign trading partners.

"IN MANY RESPECTS, the United States still approaches questions of trade with that splendid spirit of munificence and goodwill that served us so well in the first two decades after World War II but is sadly and dangerously out of place today," Bentsen told the Senate.

He added:

"Today, the global economic scene is characterized by intense economic competition among countries with completely different political institutions and sharply contrasting national economic objectives...and the traditional free trader has all of the advantages of an antelope in a world of lions."

Singling out Japan, Bentsen said "if it is impossible or impractical for the Japanese to buy more from us, then we must be prepared to purchase less from them."

He also said that the U.S. must do away with the "adversary relationship" that exists between government and business in this country; in other words, our government ought to be on the side of our business, not against it.

AS BENTSEN POINTS out, the U.S. had its first trade deficit in 50 years in 1971. By 1978, that deficit rose to $32 billion.

Since 1965, our share of the world's imports has grown from 11.8 percent to 13.6 percent, while our share of the world's exports has fallen from 14.3 percent to 10.7 percent.

During that same period, not coincidentally, the U.S. rate of productivity growth was only 2.2 percent, while Japan's productivity rose by an annual rate of 8.9 percent.

Obviously, tax incentives for investment and liberalized schedules for depreciation, along with other measures to make American industry more productive per man hour, would be steps in the right direction, as Sen. Bentsen asserts.

That, plus positive government-industry joint action to remove trade barriers raised against our products abroad—and not the erection of retaliatory barriers in this country—would be a healthy approach to solving our international economic woes.

ART BUCHWALD:

It's Not Nice To Refuse Offer From 'Godfather'

WASHINGTON—The fight of private universities to obtain funding becomes more desperate as each year goes by. Even Harvard seems to be up against the wall when it comes to finding new money.

The situation has become so crucial that President Derek Bok, the school's ayatollah, has just issued a strong defense for accepting "tainted money" as long as it benefits his university.

In a recent "White Paper," Bok said that his university is willing to overlook the "unsavory behavior" of some benefactors because an "institution will do more by using such funds constructively than by forcing the donor to keep his money."

Bok also said that the university could be accused of "honoring immorality and legitimating unethical conduct" by naming buildings and professorships and scholarships after donors with questionable reputations.

BUT HE said, "In practice, recipients of gifts and awards have regarded the use of a donor's name more as a way of acknowledging the source of the donation than as an affirmation of his moral character."

The White Paper couldn't have come out at a more opportune time.

Don Corleone, the Godfather, who had been wondering what to do with all his ill-gotten gains, decided it was time to make a contribution to his son's alma mater, Concrete State University. He asked the president of Concrete State to visit him at his well-guarded home on Long Island.

The president was ushered in by one of Don Corleone's bodyguards. He kissed the Godfather's hand.

"I called you here because I want to make you a proposition of a gift horse."

"YES, GODFATHER," the president said nervously.

"I want to give Concrete State University $5 million for a new bulletproof law library. As you know I have devoted my life to the law."

"Everyone knows that, Godfather."

"I have to tell you this is tainted money and comes from illegal enterprises such as gambling, drugs, loan-sharking and other activities that my family has been engaged in since we had to go out of the bootlegging business. Perhaps you won't accept it?"

"Don't worry, Godfather, money is money and Concrete State never asks where it comes from. Of course we wouldn't want it to infringe on our academic freedom."

"I understand that. I assure you the family has no interest in moving in on the university."

"THEN I DON'T see any problem," the president said. "We can use the money for constructive purposes, while if you kept it it would probably go for some unsavory enterprise."

"That's exactly what I thought. I think education is very important, particularly when it comes to producing good lawyers. I wouldn't be here today if it wasn't for my lawyers.

"The Feds have been trying to get me for years, but they haven't laid a finger on me. Now I want you to understand that I will have to give you this contribution in cash, as unfortunately it doesn't pay for me to have a bank account."

"We'll take it any way we can get it, with no questions asked," the president said.

"THERE BETTER not be," the Don said.

"How can Concrete State acknowledge your generous gift?"

"I thought maybe 'The Don Corleone Law Library' might look nice chipped in marble above the entrance, and maybe a quote like, 'He Made Us an Offer We Couldn't Refuse.'"

"Yes, that might be possible, but I want you to understand that just because we will name the building after you does not mean that we are affirming your moral character."

"That's understood. Here's the money in a satchel. It was just collected this morning."

"Thank you, Godfather," the president said, kissing his hand again. "If there were more unsavory people like you we wouldn't have to worry about our kids getting a decent education."

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Politics Of Rationing

EVANS

WASHINGTON—Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger was in Reno, Nev. while the administration's standby rationing plan was being unsuccessfully sold to the House, pointing up the truth about this latest confrontation between President and Congress: It had little to do with energy, much to do with politics.

Rationing would help neither the production of more energy nor the consuming of less. The plan sent Congress was not intended for spot shortages that suddenly sprouted in California.

Indeed, the procedure under which it went to Capitol Hill was originally intended as a Democratic trap for a Republican President.

For these reasons, Schlesinger recommended against going to the mat with Congress on a proposal basically irrelevant to the nation's energy problem. The President and his men thought otherwise.

"The feeling was," confided one insider, "that we had to demonstrate leadership on some issue."

Carter advisers believe he has done just that. They think Carter looked strong, Congress weak, even though the proposal would have accomplished nothing now or in the foreseeable future except to grant standby authority of a kind traditionally unpalatable in this country.

If this is a victory, it is doubtful Jimmy Carter can afford many more.

The history of the confrontation that left the President outraged begins with the Energy Act of 1975.

One provision called for President Ford to submit a standby gasoline rationing plan, designed for an emergency of wartime proportions, by mid-1976 for approval by both houses of Congress.

VIEWING THIS as a Democratic trap to snare the embattled Republican President, the White House ordered the federal energy office to do nothing.

A lameduck Ford finally submitted a rationing plan in January 1977, but it was ignored in expectation that the new Democratic President would submit his own.

Over the next 28 months, however, no plan was submitted or, apparently, even contemplated—not until the Iranian revolution.

With reduced crude oil supplies and escalated demand inducing panic and gasoline lines in California, there was a demand for Carter not to just sit there but do something. Schlesinger suggested submitting the standby rationing scheme due by statute three years ago.

Rationing had not been thought about much, so the plan of Carter's Department of Energy was mighty like the plan of Ford's federal energy office.

It was identical in being totally unrelated to the panic on California freeways and in failing either to produce or conserve a single extra gallon.

WHAT COULD trigger its use? Short of war, nothing less than a calamitous cutoff of crude oil supplies from the Persian Gulf.

Consequently, Schlesinger urged against any great public drive for a standby plan which, even if approved, could be vetoed by either house if and when actually invoked.

He also suggested submitting the plan to Congress take-it-or-leave-it with no attempts at log-rolling. But the White House was thinking of leadership imagery, and the modest plan was transmogrified into the key for unraveling the energy tangle.

For the first of Carter's many energy battles in Congress, Schlesinger was absent (not cancelling a speech to an oil producers convention in Reno). Although his own lobbying has been criticized, he could scarcely have matched the incompetence level by the White House in guiding the rationing plan.

AFTER THE plan was revised to suit individual senators, it was presented to House members two hours before the vote May 10.

"I frankly did not want to oppose a rationing plan," one Democratic congressman told us. "But I couldn't figure out what the devil was in this one."

He voted no, unlobbied by House Democratic leaders. It was among the most feeble Carter efforts in Congress.

So, congressmen were scarcely ready for the President's emotional condemnation of Congress May 11, unmatched since Richard Nixon denounced the Senate for rejecting a Supreme Court appointment.

Carter's aides rejoiced in his firm stand, even though his reaction dwarfed the importance of the plan. "This transcends energy, and goes to the question of leadership," one of the President's men explained to us.

WHITE HOUSE aides believe that here the President is on the right side and Congress on the wrong side.

That may be correct now, but it assumes the public will be up in arms over failure to adopt a plan that does nothing for the present, provides no extra gasoline for the future and, if ever actually used, would prove massively unpopular.

That is thin fuel indeed to power the regeneration of Jimmy Carter as a masterful national leader.

DONALD F. GRAFF:

Ticktock Time Out

TIME WAS when time was a real moneymaker for the Swiss.

As recently as 1970, their watchmaking industry held 70 percent of the world market. Today, they are down to 30 percent and still losing ground.

The Swiss are having a time of it for two reasons. Japanese and American producers got a jump on them in the introduction of digital and quartz watches and the rapid appreciation of the Swiss franc is pricing Swiss-made timepieces out of the world market.

One response to falling exports of watches has been to export production operations to Hong Kong and similar cheap-labor sites, according to a Wall Street Journal report on the situation.

That, however, is no help to thousands of Swiss back homes whose livelihoods have depended on the industry. With companies operating at from 70 to 50 or less percent of capacity, layoffs are increasing.

It's a situation which a number of U.S. industries—textiles, garments, television sets—can well sympathize with. Unfortunately, they can't offer the Swiss any solutions because they haven't been able to come up with any for themselves.

Chalk it up to another example of how the economic times are changing.

WHAT WITH an estimated three-million of them, Peking's bicyclists would appear to have enough of a traffic problem just keeping out of each other's way.

Now they're going to have something new to contend with: automatic stoplights.

The Western-style lights, according to a recent report from the capital, will be timed to control the flow of traffic at two minute, 10 second intervals during rush hours.

But with only nine of them to be installed on one major shopping street, it would appear that Peking traffic is going to continue to be more go than stop.

ONE PROFESSION that continues to grow in popularity and employment opportunities is the law.

There's probably no connection, but some interesting professional statistics were reported in a recent edition of "Student Lawyer", monthly publication of the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association.

For one thing, the attraction of public-interest work has apparently passed into history with the '60s. Polled recently as to their intentions, only 15 percent of Harvard Law School students indicated any interest in devoting their professional efforts to low-paying public service.

For a hefty 62 percent, the goal is established law firms with starting salaries in the $22-25,000 range and ultimately partnerships drawing six figures.

The publication also noted that while 10 percent of drinking Americans are estimated to be alcoholics, within the legal profession alcohol and similar dependency may afflict 20 to 35 percent.

The office quip heard of a restaurant for joggers only—"people who like to eat and run!"

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Strength In Union

MY DEAR father was born in Columbus, Ohio, April 20, 1865. Later, he moved to Chicago where I grew up.

I can see him now—a massive man, 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighing close to 190 pounds. Father had dark hair, blue eyes, a mustache, and his shoulders were as formidable as the great stone lions of Babylon. He had a back straight as a ramrod, and his strength was prodigious.

But there was nothing ponderous about father, the way he walked, spoke or laughed—which was frequent and heartwarming. His eyes were full of zest and I never heard my father speak an unkind word to my dear mother.

At the turn of this century father was president of the Illinois Coal Operators Association. Later, he was elected to be the first president of the National Coal Association.

COAL COMPANIES were too powerful and labor unions too weak. Father signed the world's first collective bargaining agreement with John Mitchell, the United Mine Workers president. And throughout his life he was a revered factor in labor-management matters.

Although John Mitchell looked Italian he was Irish. He was the American Trade Union movement's earliest hero. In fact, in Scranton, Pa., the UMW erected a statue to John Mitchell.

In those days only about 10,000 of the 300,000 miners in the bituminous fields were members of the UMW, headed for many years by the late John L. Lewis.

But coal mines were tough places; father and Mitchell had many battles. Yet, invariably, Mitchell's biographers note their unbounded respect and admiration. In their quieter years, each was the other's close friend.

I RECALL THAT once during a bitter strike in central Illinois about 900 miners were jammed in Braidwood's Masonic Hall. The Taylor Coal Company building was across the street and father heard Mitchell going for him with every brickbat in the bag.

Alone, mad as a goaded bull, my father rushed across the street. He mounted the platform—the only man not carrying a union card—and pounded out his side of the argument.

Mitchell sat there, angry and flushed, his muscles taut along the line of the jaw. But he let father have his say.

A miner in the front row threw a chair. It hit father square on the shoulder. Then the miner sprang to the platform. Mitchell jumped up and he and my father dove for the miner.

THEY THREW him out of Masonic Hall on his head. Instead of a riot, the crowd laughed—including Mitchell and my dad.

That was the American way. As our country has grown and become more complex, labor-management affairs also have changed drastically. But a few needed principles remain.

President Carter, benefiting from the unions' privileged legislation, is beholden to them for his election. Rousseau compared power to a great river. When it overflows it wears down all before it.

The true liberal, essential democratic position opposed any undue concentration of power from whatever direction; big government, big business, big labor or anywhere.

But President Carter deals in Alice-in-Wonderland formulas about wages and prices, trick economic rationalizations, political brawls and duress. He allows the unions with their concentration of power to overflow the public trust.

JUSTICE BELONGS to all men and enterprises or it belongs to none.

Today many unions are insatiable and unending in their demands for wage increases—Brezhnev or no Brezhnev, inflation or no inflation, national peril or no peril.

Yet, of course, there are ceilings as well as floors beyond which wages become both inequitable and unworkable.

No increased pay raise is any more justified than that of a trust's old-time gouging. And President Carter should realize that there is no right way to do a wrong thing.

Most enterprises live in a profit-and-loss cycle. Costs are very delicate, complicated mechanisms. Forced at gunpoint, cost maladjustments can be disastrous for the workers, the community and the company.

IN FACT, due to union politics and raw power, some wage increases have resulted in pricing many American products smack out of the domestic and foreign markets.

Whether management or labor is at fault, the action weakens our economy and helps the Soviet Union.

America stands by to help many other countries, but there is no strong country standing by to help the United States. If we blow up, the free world blows up.

The great trade unions have a majestic responsibility; to see that they use their power not for themselves but for America. I think John Mitchell would subscribe to that.

...Pass It On

THE BALL point pen didn't really get popular until World War II, even though it had been invented generations earlier. What boosted it greatly was a request from the U.S. Army Quartermaster General to find a writing instrument that wouldn't leak at high altitudes, would use quick-dry ink unaffected by climate, and would contain enough ink to last awhile.

Jury In San Franciso Finds White Guilty On Lesser Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dan White, the onetime city supervisor, policeman and fire fighter who admitted the City Hall slayings of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk, was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in their deaths Monday.

DAN WHITE

The two verdicts from the seven-woman, five-man jury were a major victory for the defense, which had conceded that White killed the mayor and Milk, but claimed White was mentally ill at the time.

The jury deliberated six days, returning often to rehear evidence.

White bowed his head when the first verdict — that in Milk's death — was read, and there was a collective gasp from the packed, 92-seat courtroom.

Then 32-year-old White looked at his wife, Mary Ann, who was weeping in the front row of the spectator section. At least three jurors wiped tears from their eyes.

No date was set for sentencing, but Superior Court Judge Walter Calcagno set a deadline of June 19 for a presentencing report. White could serve a prison term ranging from just under five years to slightly less than eight years on the two convictions.

White was charged with murder in the November 1978 shootings of 49-year-old Moscone and 48-year-old Milk and could have faced the death penalty if convicted of murder.

Earlier Monday, the jury returned to the courtroom for two hours to rehear the testimony of Dr. Roland Levy, the only psychiatrist to testify for the prosecution.

Levy said White had the mental capacity to premeditate the killings and harbor malice — requirements for a murder conviction. Four other psychiatrists testified for the defense, saying White was depressed and had a diminished mental capacity.

It was the sixth time the jurors returned to the courtroom since receiving the case last Wednesday. They asked to rehear testimony four times and twice asked to rehear the legal distinctions between murder and manslaughter.

White was considered the strongest advocate of law and order on the 11-member Board of Supervisors. He was elected from a largely blue-collar neighborhood in November 1977, and quit his job as a San Francisco fire fighter. His $9,600 salary as supervisor was half of his fireman's pay.

After a year on the board, White resigned, saying he could not support his wife and infant son on a supervisor's salary. But less than two weeks later, with assurances of financial aid from his 16 brothers and sisters, White asked Moscone to reappoint him.

Moscone initially announced he would reappoint White, but later changed his mind and was about to name another man as White's successor the morning of the shootings.

White did not testify at his trial but the prosecution played a tape of his 25-minute confession. He said on the tape his mind was "in a fog" and that he had shot Moscone when the mayor asked about his family.

He said he ran across to City Hall, wanting to see Milk and ask him why the supervisor was opposing his reappointment. Milk was shot about a minute later.

White said he called his wife and met with her briefly at St. Mary's Cathedral. He surrendered to police within an hour after the killings, bringing along the gun used in the shootings.

In her testimony, Mrs. White tearfully recalled a marriage troubled by her husband's periodic depressions. She quoted her husband as saying: "I shot the mayor and Harvey."

According to testimony, White had good personal rapport with Moscone and Milk, the first avowed homosexual elected to the board, but often disagreed with them politically.

White was the only member of the board to vote against a measure introduced by Milk to prohibit discrimination against homosexuals in housing and employment.

The night both men were elected to the board, Milk said he was pleased with the political makeup of the panel. "But Dan White — he's going to be trouble," Milk was quoted as saying.

'Later Date' For Hearing Set By Judge

CROSBYTON (Special) — A 6-year-old boy and his 9-year-old brother were released to their parents Monday after being accused, along with a third youth, of causing $22,000 in damage to the Lorenzo Elementary School.

Crosby County Judge Robert Work met with the trio's parents Monday morning and decided to release the two youngest boys. He said a hearing for the third youth, 11, would be held at a later date.

Work said the 6-and 9-year-olds were turned over to their parents because "they're too young to be considered juvenile delinquents." To be made the subject of a civil hearing, state law requires that a child be at least 10-years-old, Work said.

He said that before any decision is reached in the case of the 11-year-old, the county's probation department will conduct a thorough investigation into the boy's background and home life.

Supt. Dean Andrews said the list of property damaged or destroyed in the Friday night spree includes audio visual equipment, chalkboards, world globes, maps and doors. Electric typewriters also were found dumped on the floors, 117 windows were broken and paint was sprayed on the carpet, he added.

The episode is believed to have occurred sometime between 8:15 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., as evidenced by clocks broken by the vandals.

The vandalism was discovered early Saturday by a member of the custodial staff making an unscheduled visit to the school. Normally, a school spokesman said, no one would have been at the school during the weekend, and the damage would not have been discovered until Monday morning.

TOWN MOOD — William Dowling, manager of the Confederate Gun Shop, and Rev. Jophn M. Flynn, of the St. Mark's Episcopal Church, offer their views on the executions of John Spenkelink and Willie Darden scheduled Wednesday.(AP Laserphoto)

Execution Favored In Prison Town

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — "If the Bible says it's justified, then it is," said the young businessman. "The Old Testament goes along with capital punishment."

Bruce Scott, the 26-year-old assistant manager of a hardware store, explained Monday why he saw no reason to delay Wednesday's scheduled execution of John A. Spenkelink and Willie Darden in Florida's electric chair.

Starke, a town of 6,000, is 11 miles from the Death Row where Spenkelink and Darden have been held. Religion and respect for law and order run deep; a survey found that 55 percent of the townspeople are active churchgoers. Many are employed at one of the four state prison facilities scattered through the piney North Florida landscape.

"I'm not bloodthirsty," Scott said. "I wouldn't want to see a man put to death, but I wouldn't want to see the victims put to death either."

Spenkelink and Darden both say they've found a redeeming religious faith while in prison. Scott said he hopes that's true. "If he's born again, as soon as it (the execution) happens he's in Glory. But if he's not really born again ... if he thinks he's got trouble with a little burning here, he'll have a lot more later on."

At St. Mark's Episcopal Church, the Rev. John M. Flynn said he personally opposes capital punishment. He said he's far outnumbered by his parishioners and even other clergymen here.

Many in his congregation work at one of the prisons. "Their fathers worked there. Their grandfathers worked there," Flynn said. Over the generations, he said, "a decided attitude is formed. The people actually become enemies of the men in prison — not just because they're criminals, but to keep them in place. Trying to convert this town to oppose capital punishment would be almostimpossible."

Mayor Joseph Warren said that in some ways, the feeling in Starke is a microcosm of the country's turmoil over capital punishment.

"People here know two wrongs don't make a right. Most people wish there was a better answer, but the right answer hasn't come forward," the mayor said. "I don't know what that answer is. That's the only answer to give if you place any value on human life."

Bradford County Sheriff Dolph Reddish said execution is an efficient preventive measure. "In 20 years of law enforcement I can give you several examples where the death penalty was imposed and not carried out," he said, "and those people have gone on to kill other people. To me, that's what it's all about."

At the Confederate Gun Shop, manager William Dowling said he doesn't believe in executing a murderer. "Just killing him, that's too easy," said Dowling, who'd prefer a sentence of life plus one day. "If they kept him in Hell and tormented him the rest of his life, that's something else."

Dowling said most of his customers disagree. "The majority of people that come in here work for the prison," he said. "They say, 'Burn the s.o.b.'s.'"

Youth Stabbed During Brawl In City Nightclub

Girl Reports Beating Outside School Cafeteria

Tony Rengel Marin, 18, of 2123 Second Place was treated and later released from Methodist Hospital Monday after he was stabbed about 2:10 a.m . at a club at East Fourth Street and Quirt Avenue.

Marin told officers a fight broke out at the club and that when he heard shots fired, he and his companion ran for the front door. He said, however, that before he could get out of the club, someone hit him in the face with a chair and stabbed him in the back when he fell.

Theresa Gay Mitchell, a 16-year-old Estacado High School student, was treated and later released from West Texas Hospital Monday after she was reportedly beaten at the school about 7:30 a.m.

Miss Mitchell told police that a young black male cornered her outside the school cafeteria and started hitting her on the head and shoulders. She said the man was 18 to 25 years old, of medium height and heavy build.

Steve Smith of Glazer's Wholesale Drug Co. in Amarillo told police he is missing $3,000 in cash, $7,000 in liquor and a $10,000 truck after the driver of the truck didn't return to Amarillo Saturday night.

Smith said the suspect, a white male, about 18 to 25 and of medium height and build, has not been seen since he made a delivery to Cecil's Liquor Store Saturday morning, where he collected $3,000 cash.

In reported burglaries and thefts, Roddy Lee Neel of 1516 28th St. said that about 1 a.m. Monday he discovered his house burglarized and $1,133 in property stolen, including coins, guns and a Home Box Office television accessory.

Cecil Harvey Puryear of 1717 Ave. K complained that someone took a $90 banjo from his room sometime between 8:30 a.m. Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Monday.

J.V. Adcox, operator of Adcox Pharmacy at 3801 22nd St., reported that thieves stole $200 worth of drugs sometime between 3 p.m. Sunday and 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Jane Bassinger of 8509 Jordan Dr. told police that a young, white female stole her mail Monday morning. Mrs. Bassinger said her son saw the young woman get out of a 1976 red and white Cutlass and take the mail from the box. The boy said the woman, who was about 18 to 25 and had light brown hair, left driving north on Jordan Drive.

George Schrandt of 4511 59th St. said thieves removed all four tires, valued together at $800, from his car sometime Sunday night or early Monday.

Mickey Carlen told police that burglars carted off $3,100 worth of paint sprayer equipment from a garage at 3524 Marshall St. sometime between noon Sunday and 10 a.m. Monday.

Lino Ramirez Mendez of Idalou told police that he went in a convenience store at Parkway Drive and Zenith Avenue about 5:30 a.m. Sunday and went out to find that someone had driven away in his $3,000 car.

Speeds peaked at 100 miles per hour Sunday night in a chase on city streets involving a policeman and a 19-year-old motorist. And the pursuit did not end until the suspect's vehicle and the patrol car landed in a ditch.

Neither officer Richard Foster nor the man he arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and evading arrest was injured when their vehicles went out of control shortly after 11 p.m. in the 5600-block of Spur 327, near Loop 289.

The man, whose address was unknown early today, jumped out of his stalled vehicle but was taken into custody after Foster chased him down in a nearby field, reports indicate.

Foster stated in his report that he saw the man driving erratically in the 6800-block of Avenue H, and that when he attempted to stop the car, the motorist accelerated and drove onto the loop.

Foster said that, with lights flashing and siren blaring, he pursued the man on the loop at speeds up to 100 mph. Officer Randy Bournes attempted to set up a blockade in the 3700-block of Loop 289 by parking his unit in the roadway.

However, the suspect reportedly failed to slow down, and avoided colliding with the patrol car by driving onto the shoulder of the road.

Reports indicate the man made an abrupt turn off the loop and began traveling southwest on Spur 327 with Foster close behind. Seconds later, the motorist lost control of his vehicle, which came to rest on a dirt embankment.

Foster also lost control of his unit and slid into the embankment. The man was taken into custody and transported to the county jail, after Foster caught up with him in the field.

In other activity, a 27-year-old taxi cab driver said he was robbed by two black men shortly before 10 p.m. Sunday, after he had picked up the suspects at a residence in the 3300-block of Cornell Street.

Jihad A. Shawwa, employed by Yellow Cab Co., told police the men, who had asked to be taken to a club at East 19th Street and Oak Avenue, robbed him of $18 cash and a pack of cigarettes. He added that the bandits failed to pay the $3.40 fare when they jumped out of the cab at East 19th St. and Ute Avenue.

Shawwa told police the man in the back seat grabbed him and placed a small black revolver to his head. The gunman's companion, sitting in the front seat, reached over and emptied the cab driver's pockets, according to reports.

Shawwa said the men then jumped out of the cab and ran off. The bandits were described as tall and between 25 and 30 years old. One was wearing a black hat, dark coat and black pants. The other was clad in a white hat, beige shirt and white pants.

Hospital Seeks More Patients

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

In a move to fill some of Health Sciences Center Hospital's empty beds, Lubbock County Hospital District officials are considering scrapping Emergency Medical Services (EMS) delivery-on-rotation system for a policy of mandatory delivery to the teaching hospital.

But the chief of the emergency section at Methodist Hospital — one of those admitting EMS rotation patients — says area health care could suffer if Health Sciences Center Hospital shoulders the responsibility of patients currently shared among three city hospitals.

Dr. Millard Carnrick spoke to the LCHD Board of Managers Monday, saying he doesn't think Health Sciences Center Hospital is adequately staffed to handle the extra patients.

Under the rotation system, emergency victims are asked if they have a hospital preference. If the individual has no preference, EMS attendants alternate between the emergency rooms at Health Sciences, St. Mary's and Methodist Hospital.

Abandoning the rotation system would mean that patients without a hospital preference automatically would be delivered to Health Sciences Center Hospital. Facing an unexpected problem of low admissions, the administrators for Health Sciences hope the increased emergency deliveries would fill more beds.

"There are strong indications health care would best be served by continuing the rotation," Carnrick said.

LCHD Executive Director Gerald Bosworth defended the plan, saying Health Sciences "is doing an excellent job" of providing emergency care for persons brought in by EMS.

"The question is whether you have the capabilities to handle them all," Carnrick countered.

Carnrick told the Avalanche-Journal he was speaking for himself, but Methodist Hospital administrator George Brewer said the emergency room chief spoke with the approval of his office.

"We can only make our presentation to the hospital district board and explain what we think is the best method of taking care of the patient," Brewer explained.

"They (Health Sciences) don't have the experience or the volume or the physicians to take care of the load," Carnrick added.

"This hospital has the capability to care for more patients," Bosworth said. He told the Avalanche-Journal that the majority of people transported by EMS do have a hospital preference and that a relatively small number of people are therefore divided between the three hospitals on the rotation plan.

Board members said the hospital district has a right to the non-preference EMS patients since EMS is funded by the hospital district. Discussion of the proposal was tabled until the board receives a written opinion from the Lubbock Crosby Garza County Medical Society on the matter.

The hospital district board members voted to appear before the County Commissioners next week to ask for the formation of a "Blue Ribbon Committee." The LCHD is asking the commissioners to form the committee to both analyze the alternate sources of revenue available to the teaching hospital and look at the economic impact of the Health Sciences Center complex on the Lubbock community.

Bosworth predicted a study of the hospital's contributtion to the community would be "very revealing," adding that the hospital and medical school could add to the economy in the way of continued construction jobs, as well as growth in retail sales.

In other business, the board adopted a policy to "writeoff" bad debts for the hospital. The policy calls for debts which have remained uncollected for a certain period of time — with no expectation of collection — to be transferred from the accounts receivable section of the hospital's balance sheet to an allowance for uncollected debts.

Though the debts would be removed from active business transactions, the hospital would still maintain a file on the debtor assuming the debt might be paid at a future date. Keeping a record of the debt would also allow the admitting office to check a patient's file by computer to insure the prospective patient has not already incurred unpayable debts at the hospital.

The Board of Managers approved two programs of reimbursement for the hospital:

The first plan calls for payment to be made for hospitals providing kidney donors for transplants at Health Sciences. The payment would be provided by Medicare and would not cost the hospital anything.

The second plan calls for funding of high-risk maternity cases by a group called the South Plains Health Providers.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I have a large bath towel with a beach scene on one end, which became slightly worn in the mid-section. I cut a large orange colored washcloth into a circle to represent either a sun aor a beach ball and appliqued it into the worn spot.

Good as new and also a changed scene! — Catherine Harper

By golly Catherine, you've come up with a goodie!

So often we just throw things away without even thinking how they can be mended or repaired.

Your idea saved you several dollars besides giving you an original beach towel.

Thanks for sharing! — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:
One of my jobs around the house is to paint the screens each spring. The easiest way I have found to do this is to run a piece of cord through the hooks on the top of each screen and then tie both sides of the cord to the clothesline. You can paint both sides of the screen at the same time. — H.A.G.

DEAR HELOISE:
Now that most of us have these new drip coffee makers, we either shove our old percolator in the corner or give it away.

I keep mine filled with clear tap water, plug it in early in the morning, so when my neighbors drop in for a cup of coffee or hot tea, I'm all set for them. It only takes a minute for me to whip up a cup just to their liking.

Thanks for all those nice little hints that make living so much simpler and easier! — Vera Sentilles

DEAR HELOISE:
When I get in the car on the driver's side, I always put my purse on the floor behind the driver's seat.

I don't have to worry about someone reaching in the window and grabbing it or, when I stop suddenly, having my purse turn over and spill out all its contents on the seat or floor. (You know how we women are, we never zip our purses.) — Gloria Zapata

DEAR HELOISE:
There's nearly always a pot of tea on the table in our house. Trying to keep it warm for very long created a problem. So my mother just washed an extra stocking cap and stuck it on our teapot. It works like a charm. — Amy Kirgis

DEAR HELOISE:
Put that smelly tired kitchen sponge into the dishwasher once a week to keep it smelling sweet. — Joan B. Maguire

DEAR HELOISE:
We have several children and they feel that they are mistreated if I don't bake at least once a week.

When I do bake I always try to send a few samples to my family and my in-laws. I have found that a half-dozen cupcakes fit perfectly in the box that extra heavy aluminum foil comes in. You can close the lid and they won't move around and you also get to your destination with the icing just as pretty as when you started out. — Bobby Sikes

Sheriff's Posse Rides To Austin For Monday's Special Olympics

By BEVERLY O'BRIANT
Family News Staff

The Bexar County Sheriff's Posse from San Antonio will be in Lubbock today and Wednesday to begin a long trailride to Austin, carrying the Special Olympics flag and torch to the site of the meet which begins Monday.

Lubbock has been chosen as the site for the beginning of the ride. The riders will visit Ballenger School today and offer the children rides on their horses. Tonight, a barbeque will be held in the Lubbock State School campus for the residents, riders and others involved in Special Olympics. Lubbock Jaycees, the Volunteer Council of the Lubbock State School and other individuals will be present.

During the barbeque, the residents will be able to participate in a "mock trailride" on the back part of the campus. The Bexar County Sheriff's Posse, the Lubbock Rangers Riding Club, the Abernathy Riding Club, Hi-Riders and the Lamb County Riding Club will hold a "playday" of riding events to entertain the group.

Wednesday, the Bexar County Sheriff's Posse will leave Lubbock for Austin, carrying with them a lighted torch presented by one of the Lubbock participants in the Special Olympics. They will begin their trip near South Loop 289, travelling along Highway 87. Local riders will escort the ten San Antonio riders as far as possible. Any riders along the way are free to go along to Austin. Their route will bring them to Tahoka, Lamesa, Big Spring, Carlsbad, San Angelo, Brady, Llano and finally, to Austin.

Along the way, the group will stop and speak to various civic and church groups about the Special Olympics. The speaking activities of the group are strictly promotional. Each year, the Sheriff's Posse chooses a different point of origin for their annual trailride to Austin.

The riders will arrive in Austin Sunday, as will most of the participants in the Special Olympics. During the opening cermony Monday, one of the students from Lubbock will light the torch in Memoral Stadium on the University of Texas campus, the site of the meet.

The Sheriff's Posse, after their long ride, will remain active during the Special Olympics. They will spend their week timing events, catching softballs and helping in whatever way possible.

The state level of the Special Olympics will begin Monday and continue through May 30. There are 3,343 registered participants in the Texas meet, making the competition the largest track and field meet in the world. Thirty youngsters from Lubbock will be going to compete in the meet.

Some of the field events to be held at the Special Olympics are the 50 meter dash, 100 meter dash, 200-and 400-meter runs, 200-and 400-meter relays, high jump, gymnastics, frisbee throw, softball throw and standing long jump.

Following the state meet, at least 100 athletes from Texas will be participating in the International Special Olympics, to be held in Brockport, N.Y.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Six months ago my husband and I were divorced after 16 years of marriage. There was another woman involved, which is always painful, but this was particularly difficult since the other woman was my brother's wife. I loved her and trusted her like a sister.

When the story came out about how they had been meeting in motels (and in the home of a mutual friend) I was stunned. My brother went into a state of shock. Shortly after I filed for divorce, my brother also filed. It was very traumatic because there are children involved. Of course, our agonies provided delicious gossip for the whole town.

After six months I thought I would be well over my misery but I'm still fighting depression and feeling sorry for myself. My brother isn't doing much better.

I've had counseling which helped some and my brother has talked to his priest. (He turned Catholic to marry.) We would appreciate it if you could suggest something we might read to help us see our problem in a healthier perspective. We both seem unable to get on with the business of living. Thank you. — Faithful Readers

Dear Readers: I'm going to recommend "Living With Divorce" by Kathleen Sheridan. This is a splendid, supportive and simply-written book that explores the feelings of divorced people in a way that will make each and every person feel, "This book was written for me." I believe it will help both you and your brother.

If your bookstore doesn't have it, write to Thomas More Press, 180 North Wabash, Chicago, Ill. 60601. Send $6.50 which will include cost of mailing.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is being written by two very respectable married couples who enjoy taking trips together. Some friends and relatives have raised a question that has never occurred to us. It is less expensive if we get one room with two large beds instead of two rooms, and this is what we've been doing. The guys sleep in their shorts and we wear appropriate nightgowns. We take turns using the bathroom and undress there.

We think it's an OK arrangement but, like I said, we've been getting some uncouth remarks from ceterin peple. What do you say? — Just Wonderin'

Dear Wonderin': So am I — about several things. For example: Vacations are ideal opportunities for married couples to catch up on lovemaking that often is neglected because of the stresses of routine living. With two couples sharing a room — well, need I say more?

It seems to me the privacy of separate quarters, plus the convenience of two bathrooms, would be well worth the extra few dollars.

Dear Ann Landers: I have two unrelated questions I would like to have you answer. Although I realize you don't know everything, you seem to know someone in nearly every field who does.

(1) Where did the custom of addressing all correspondents "dear" come from? Some people we address as "dear" are strangers.

(2) Why is the main course of a meal called the "entree"? It sounds like the first course or the "appetizer." Thank you. — Wilberton, Okla.

Dear Wil: I do not know the answers to either of the questions you raise. I wonder how many of my readers do. Let's hear from you out there. Now's your chance to sit in my chair and play Ann Landers.

Frances Barnhart envied girls who could wear fitted clothes-especially bikinis.

Thanks to Pat Walker's, she now has a 24" waistline

And that, she says, is something she never dreamed was possible.

But then, lots of dreams come true at Pat Walker's Figure Perfection Salons, International—and yours could be among them. Here's Ms. Barnhart's story:

Having been a housewife and mother for 10 years, I decided it was time for a change . . . to get out of the house and get a job. Hearing that a Pat Walker's Figure Salon was coming to [my] area, I got very excited and knew that I would enjoy that type of work.

I never liked to admit I had a weight problem, so I attributed my 33" waist to a large bone structure. I envied all the girls who could wear fitted clothes and especially bikinis. I had always worn long blouses and coverups to hide my large abdomen. When I did diet, I always lost weight in all the wrong places—my arms, legs and bust—but never where I needed it—my waist and tummy.

[At] Pat Walker's I learned I could still eat all the foods I enjoyed without giving up anything except the 27" I've lost . . . The beautiful part of it is that I did it with help from my co-workers and most enjoyably with my patrons. It's nice to know there is a place you can go when you need help with a figure problem and where people understand . . .

Ms. Barnhart now enjoys a career as manager of a Pat Walker Salon.

Don't wait any longer

. . . to find out what Pat Walker can do for YOU! Now is the best time. In fact, we invite you to come in for a FREE treatment and figure analysis, without charge or obligation. All you have to do is call to reserve time for your complimentary appointment. We await your call—and hope to hear from you soon.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: For years I used a combination hot-water bottle and douche unit. It deteriorated with time and the sides became stuck together. When I ripped it apart, I found black marks on the inside of the bag. Could it have been a breeding place for the trichomonas germ? I was treated for a fungus infection recently. — R.S.

The water bottle is not a breeding ground for the trichomonas organism. It thrives only in special body tissue. The one that causes vaginitis in women and infects the urethra (urine outlet) and prostate in men is a very particular little organism. It thrives only in the moist, alkaline (non-acid) world of human tissues. It may live a few hours outside of this environment, but will not reproduce. The substance in your bag was probably common mildew. The only possible way for the bag to have been the source of an infection is if it had been used by a woman who had it, then immediately afterward by a second woman.

There are three different trichomonas organisms: one found in the bowels (trichomonas hominis), one in the vagina (trichomonas vaginalis), and the trichomonas tenax, found in the mouth tissues. People do get trichomonas other than through sexual contact, however. Women may get it when isolated in institutions, where it is believed spread by contaminated toilet articles, clothing, washcloths — and douches. The organism cannot survive drying or an acid environment, which is why vinegar douches are helpful in treatment of the vaginal infection.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please tell me the difference between mineral oil and castor oil for the relief of constipation. — E.B.

There's a lot of difference:

Mineral oil is a lubricating laxative. Castor oil is an irritating purgative. Castor oil is one of the most rapidly-acting laxatives you can imagine, and it may result in large explosive bowel movements. The only good thing to be said for it is its awful taste, which fortunately limits its use. It is to be avoided unless specifically recommended by a doctor for unusual circumstances (such as bowel cleansing for x-rays).

Mineral oil must be used with caution also. It can interfere with vitamin and mineral absorption and cause malnutrition. It should be used carefully with tots and the elderly to prevent its being breathed into air passages and lungs, which can cause pneumonia.

Castor oil contains various substances, chiefly oil from the castor beans. Mineral oil is a liquid petrolatum, a derivative of petroleum. For a complete discussion on the subject, see "The Way to Stop Constipation." For a copy send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is any form of shaking called Parkinson's disease? — J.F.

Absolutely not. There are several forms of palsy and different causes for them. The shaking of Parkinson's disease is quite distinctive. It is called "resting tremor," meaning it is most pronounced when the hands are relaxed, as when they are laying on one's lap. That's only one sign. There are other symptoms and little diagnostic tricks the doctor uses to confirm Parkinson's and distinguish it from other neurological disturbances. I wish I had space to discuss this complex subject more fully, which I will on another occasion. For now, be assured that all shaking is NOT Parkinson's disease.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Will calcium tablets help arthritis? — J.G.

Calcium in any form will not help because arthritis is not caused by calcium deficiency. An adequate calcium intake is advised for any person throughout life. It is not considered a treatment for arthritis, however.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of the booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains!" Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The advance analysis of this hand was way off the line with the results we watched. The analysis was that every hand except West held a doubtful opening bid. The principal discussion was about East's miserable 11 high-card point assortment with the analysis that East should and would pass. That was correct. No East did open the bidding where we watched. Some North's did, but at most tables fourth hand opened with one heart and was promptly raised to game.

Every declarer except one managed to bring the game home. It wasn't what we would call inspired or brilliant play. These winning declarers merely played out the ace and king of trumps to drop the queen. Then they lost one trick in each side suit.

A well-deserved bottom score went to the one player who decided to go against the percentage and play for a 3-1 trump break with the queen in the West hand. As he remarked later, "I played brilliantly, but with complete lack of success."

No, we don't. The hand has 12 high-card points, but is conspicuously weak in the major suits and we are more likely to wind up minus than plus if we open.

Support Mounting For Bergland's Farm Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those close to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland say his campaign for "a full-scale national dialogue" on farm policy has generated mostly favorable responses from farm groups, bankers, agribusinesses and consumer groups.

Bergland asked for a farm policy dialogue March 12 at the annual meeting of the National Farmers Union in Kansas Cityn Mo. He has often spoken out about it since then.

In Bergland's view, government farm policy never worked well, although it helped "create a food and fiber production system that is the envy of the world."

But he is troubled by the structure of U. S. agriculture, how it is made up, the people and families involved, and its future. Some drastic changes may be in order, he says.

Not everyone has been quick to side with Bergland on this, and the more Bergland talks about the possibiliy of changing the old ways of parcelling out price supports, target price payments, acreage allotments and other benefits, the more static he will hear.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, recently expressed support of Bergland's national dialogue but warned "this should not be a signal to abandon farm price and income protection" included in existing legislation.

Talmadge added farm programs "for all their shortcomings and imperfections have sought to assure the American farmer a fair footing in our economy."

A background paper prepared by Bergland's staff sheds further light on his quest for a debate on the structure of U. S. agriculture. A copy of the paper was made available to The Associated Press.

In describing stucture, the report said the definition should include the numbers and size of farms, tenure, age of farm operators, type of farm and geographic location.

The report said talk of structure also should include how farming is set up — as single proprietorships, partnerships, corporations and cooperatives; how marketing and purchasing is performed, such as in competitive markets, contracting and other means; and who owns and controls resources.

No specific recommendations were made in the report. It did, however, describe what the role of the Agriculture Department should not be.

"We should not imagine that our objective is to simply develop our own solutions to the problems we will be attacking, and to impose them on the agricultural community.

"From the outset, we need to encourage the involvement of people outside of the department — farm and consumer groups, the Congress, and the universities, to name a few," the report said.

Also, it said, "We should recognize at the inception that we are not going to be dealing with instant solutions, readily arrived at and accepted with happy unanimity. The problems are difficult."

"The present structure has evolved in response to these factors, and largely without serious public consideration of the type of structure desired or being obtained," it said.

Two basic reasons emerge for looking at the structure of agriculture, the report said. The first involves its economic efficiency, an aspect that "has dominated the thinking and research on agricultural policy since the 1950s."

The second major reason cited in the report relates to "the objectives, ideals, values and goals, both of society as a whole and those who are most directly affected — farm operators, tenants, laborers, marketers and consumers. This is the area in which questions of culture, tradiion, population and income distribution and rural ways of life are raised."

The United States endorses a family farm structure for agriculture, an objective that has been "recited in the preamble of every major farm bill enacted since 1933," the report said. However, it said, policies and programs unintentionally "sometimes had precisely the opposite effect" on family farms.

"They have enhanced the competitive position of large farms rather than contributing to the viability of small and medium-sized farms," the report said.

The report said it is necessary to keep in mind the concentration of agricultural production that has occurred in the past two decades. The nation's approximately 2.7 million farms (by one definition) show that:

—162,000 of them market $100,000 or more worth of products annually, accounting for 52 percent of the total sales of farm products. They represent about 6 percent of the farms.

—348,000 farms, 12.9 percent, market $40,000 to $100,000 worth of products, 25.6 percent of the total sales.

—321,000 farms sell $20,000 to $40,000 worth annually, 11.1 percent of the total. Those are 11.9 percent of all farms.

—1,825,000 farms, 69.2 percent of the total, market less than $20,000 worth of products a year, 10.7 percent of all sales.

"Today, the 55,000 largest farms — or 2 percent with gross sales greater than $200,000 — account for over one-third of the food an fiber sales," the report said.

Land prices, which have gone up an average of 17 percent a year since 1967, are the "single most-prohibitive barrier to entry into farming and to the successful operation of the beginning farm business, even if the necessary acquisition capital is obtained," the report said.

While higher land values have enhanced the net worth of farm owner-operators, they have hurt the incomes of tenants, which are a growing proportion of farm operators, it said.

"Forty percent of all farmland is today farmed by someone other than the owner. This in itself has created a structural dilemma — The separation of the ownership of the resources from the operation — contrary to the long-held public policy that those who operate the land should have the opportunity to eventually own it."

Other factors outside agriculture affect the farm structure, including policies on transportation, energy, taxes, labor, economics and regulation.

"There are some people who would have no objection if all of the food in the country were produced by 100,000 farms," the report said.

But, it added, "There are few things that get urban people angrier than the notion that their tax dollar is going to support 'fat-cat farmers' while the 'family farmer' is being driven off of the land."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE BOB BERGLAND says the Department of Agriculture "strongly opposes" a bill to raise the minimum loan rate on cotton.

The House Agriculture Committee Wednesday will consider a bill to boost the cotton loan floor. The measure was introduced by Rep. David Bowen, D-Miss., chairman of the House Cotton Subcommittee.

In a letter to Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the full Agriculture Committee, Bergland said:

"The bill would raise the minimum national average loan rate for the 1980 and 1981 crops for strict low middling 1 1/16th-inch cotton, micronaire 3.5-4.9, upland cotton from the current rate of 48 cents per pound to 50.23 cents — equal to the 1979 loan rate.

"WHEN THE PROCEDURE FOR ESTABLISHING the cotton loan rate originally was set forth in the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977, cotton interests successfully argued that the loan should be set so as to keep U. S. cotton competitive in world markets.

"The detailed procedures were agreed to by all segments of the cotton industry and by the department. It was recognized that cotton prices go down as well as up and that, as a result, the loan rate would go down as well as up.

"Other procedures were incorporated to help stabilize cotton prices and to prevent extreme fluctuations. No minimum loan rate was included in the 1977 act.

"Yet when world prices declined in the fall of 1977 and the 1978 loan rate was established at 44 cents per pound — slightly below the 1977 loan rate of 44.63 cents — the 1977 act was amended to change the formula and to provide a minimum rate of 48 cents per pound.

"NOW, WHEN IT APPEARS THAT THE 1980 loan rate will drop back to the minimum, action is being taken to raise the minimum level.

"It now seems that only upward market trends are acceptable, yet the goal of maintaining U. S. cotton's competiveness in world markets is still valid.

"In fact, it is a necessity, since about 40 percent of our crop is normally exported.

"The quick-fix approach of legislating higher minimum loan rates every time the loan rate would go down because of declining prices violates the original intent and purpose of the 1977 act provisions."

The secretary also voiced opposition to other parts of the bill calling for a paid diversion program for the 1979 crop and a waiver of certain cross-compliance requirements for disaster payments for the 1978 crop.

AN ECONOMIC AND TECHNOLOGICAL review of the federal cotton dust standard was released last week by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The reassessment had been ordered by an amendment to the appropriations bill last year for the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare departments.

As expected, the internal review by the Department of Labor (DOL) found OSHA's rule to be the "most cost-effective and flexible way to protect workers from brown lung disease."

National Cotton Council economists said the document is a mockery of a congressional directive to study the most cost-effective alternatives to the current rule.

The DOL's report gives no consideration to the industry's proposal, nor does it acknowledge the industry's charge that OSHA's cost estimates for the current standard are grossly understated.

Cattle Futures Close Limit Up

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 140 to 150 points higher with most contracts at the daily limit level advance Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Earlier, all contracts except distant October were up the limit. Sales totaled 21,121 cars with unfilled bids at the close.

Prices gained from the start and rose to the highest levels in almost two weeks. Light cattle supplies plus mostly higher prices and strength in beef fueled local and commission house buying. Traders also noted a forecast for world wide beef shortage and high prices.

Wholesale beef was unchanged to up 1 at 104½ to 106½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were up $2 to off $1.50 with the best top $74 per hundredweight at Joliet. Omaha's top was $73. Slaughter was 109,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 12,400 head today.

Feeder cattle closed the daily limit of 150 higher with buyers over across the board. Volume was 3,240 lots. Prices were higher from the start. The upturn followed Friday's expiration of May at the limit level decline.

Much of the support spilled over from limit higher live cattle futures and also followed strength in cash feeders and beef. The food and agriculture organization predicted beef prices this year will average well above 1978 levels as world wide import demand remains strong.

Deliveries total 457 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were up $5 to off $2 with the best top $138 per hundredweight at San Antonio. About 1,800 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Hog futures closed 70 to 145 higher led by August on 5,364 contracts. That contract along with October and distant June posted 150 limit gains early.

Prices were higher from the start on spillover support from surging cattle futures as traders ignored heavy hog supplies and mostly lower prices. The firmer trend to most pork products at noon was also positive as was technical support after most contracts fell to new season's lows Friday.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1½ at 68½ to 70½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were off 50 to up 50 with the best top $45.50 per hundredweight, which is a 3½ week low, at Peoria. Kill was 297,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to total 31,500 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 82 to 135 higher led by May at 5,203 cars. Earlier, distant July was up 195 after February dipped 7.

Demand carried over from Friday and also followed limit higher prices in other meat pits. The constructive cold storage report and heavy bacon slicings combined with firmer tone to cash bellies to offset increased hog supplies and mostly lower prices.

There have been 207 deliveries thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up 1½ at 40 to 44¼ cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Roller Coaster Jackpot Won By Taiwan Student

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — It meant a lot to a Taiwanese student to become the two-millionth rider of the "Montezooma's Revenge" roller coaster at Knott's Berry Farm. In fact, it meant 2 million Mexican centavos in prize money.

But for a few minutes Sunday the prize meant nothing to 26-year-old Fu-Mang Shy because he didn't speak enough English to understand why the mariachi bands began playing when he went through the turnstile and why someone put a piece of paper in his hand.

When friends explained in Chinese that Shy, who has been in the United States for only a month, had won the equivalent of $800, "he was very excited and happy," said Denny Shanahan, spokesman for the amusement park.

Shy, who will return to Taiwan in July after studying computer engineering, told Shanahan that Knott's was the first amusement park he and his friends had visited.

Mesquite Encroaches On New Mexico Range

LAS CRUCES (Special) — Mesquite is everywhere on about 11 million acres of rangeland in southern and eastern New Mexico.

Mismanagement of grazing lands, protection from fire, drought and fencing have encourage encroachment of mesquite, says Kirk McDaniel, extension range brush and weed control specialist at New Mexico State University.

Of the four varieties of "mesquite," honey mesquite is probably the most economically important, McDaniel says.

Ecologically, mesquite competes with desirable forages for soil, water and nutrients. Mesquite is not preferred by livestock or wildlife except at specific times during the year. At times, mesquite beans can even become toxic to grazing animals, McDaniel says.

Mesquite is an aggressive, deeply top-rooted plant with many lateral roots. Since the seeds do not germinate readily unless scarified, they may lie dormant in the soil for 10 to 40 years.

Established mesquite plants sprout profusely following damage of top growth. The main bud zone, which lies two to 12 inches beneath the soil surface, is the main sprouting part. To successfully control the bush, the top must be killed or destroyed as well as the sprouting root-collar bud zone.

Growth and reproduction characteristics of mesquite make it impossible to eradicate, the NMSU specialist says. However, control programs that reduce the canopy area and density of mesquite enhance the productivity of grasslands and are economically desirable for ranchmen to operate at a profitable level.

To produce one pound of mesquite foliage requires two to four times more water than the production of one pound of desirable native forage. Therefore, reducing leaf surface area of mesquite is extremely important.

Attempts at controlling mesquite with fire, mechanical, chemical and biological methods date back at least 40 years. Because of the sprouting characteristics of mesquite, fire is less effective than mechanical methods, such as grubbing, root plowing or stacking.

Mechanical methods are effective on medium to heavy textured soils but are not generally recommended for sandy soils in southern New Mexico because of poor reseeding success.

Low cost herbicides usually give moderate control but result in the most favorable forage responses. On range s

Mart Shows Small Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — A rapid-fire succession of merger developments provided most of the action as the stock market struggled to a small gain Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials posted a .52 advance to 842.43 after drifting in a narrow range all day.

New York Stock Exchange volume was a sluggish 25.55 million shares, down from 26.59 million Friday.

But things were anything but quiet on the takeover front. Among numerous individual issues responding to merger news was Reliance Electric, up 10½ at 47 as of the 4 p.m. close in New York, following last Friday's announcement that Exxon had approached the company about a possible acquisition.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 1.08 to 181.18. The NAS-DAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 131.16, up .15.

New York (AP) — Monday prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Former Politician Becomes TV-Radio Consumer Reporter

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Herbert Simon Denenberg, Pennsylvania's former insurance commissioner, makes his living these days as a slam-dunking consumer reporter.

Wearing a sanitation worker's jumpsuit and a hard hat instead of a basketball player's sateen shorts, he mercilessly heaves mislabeled and hazardous-to-your-health packages into "Denenberg's Dump," a huge trashcan.

His fans sit on the sidelines, at their radios and television sets, joining gleefully in the cheers led by "Horrible Herb" himself: "Ripoff!" "Fraud!" "Lies!" "Poison!"

Denenberg defends his "dump," the costume, and his tantrums on WCAU-TV's evening news by saying that if that's what it takes to make folks aware they're being ripped-off, then that's what he'll do.

A balding, blunt-talking, brown-bagger of peanut butter sandwiches, Denenberg has made a career out of publicly attacking sacred cows such as doctors, lawyers, and government agencies. He never has been sued.

"I'm surprised I don't irritate more people," said Denenberg, who also is host of a two-hour show on WCAU radio every weekday morning called "In Your Corner."

Some say his I'm-right-and-you're-wrong delivery, coupled with his nasal, Omha-bred twang, oozes with ego and comes across somewhat abrasive.

Armed with two law degrees, a doctorate in economics from the University of Pennsylvania (where he has held an endowed professorship), experience as the state's insurance commissioner (1971-1974) and as a member of the Public Utility Commission, plus service in numerous state and federal government consulting posts, Denenberg knows many of the answers — or at least where to get them.

He also relies on what he calls his "crack research team" — One paid assistant, Virginia McDowell, a few unpaid interns from local colleges, and his wife of 20 years, Naomi, also unpaid.

"People really view me as friend, someone who's fighting for them. And they like what I'm doing," Denenberg said.

Denenberg, 49, said his parents, Russian immigrants, "inculcated in me ... a sense of social justice." That, he said, is the basis of his consumer advocacy, but not why he became a consumer reporter.

"No, I just fell into it. I was never one to plan ahead. I just fell into it, just like I fell into government when I was teaching at Penn and just like I fell into the media."

He did, however, plan to make teaching a career.

"I decided to be a teacher when I was in the third grade. We had a retarded kid in my class. I was always the first one done with a test or an assignment and, if we had an hour to do the work, I'd be done in 10 minutes. So the teacher told me to take the rest of the time and tutor this kid. That's when I decided I'd like to teach."

But teaching went by the boards when Denenberg "fell into" government as former Gov. Milton Shapp's insurance commissioner. He later resigned that post to challenge Pete Flaherty for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate, but lost.

Shapp then appointed Denenberg to an interim opening on the Public Utility Commission, but the Senate voted him out.

Denenberg's cutting wit wasn't exactly endearing to the powers in Harrisburg during his stay there. Soon after becoming insurance commissioner, he made public his personal slogan: "The public has been screwed long enough."

"I put it on the covers of all the shopper's guides (consumer information booklets on insurance, health care and legal problems) we put out.

"The legislature used to raise hell about it," he added impishly. "But that's like Nixon complaining about Harry Truman's language."

DENENBERG'S DUMP — WCAU-TV and radio consumer reporter Herb Denenberg pours a box full of objectional household products into a trash barrel. His listeners love his antics, but his victims want him muzzled. He attempts to make people aware of ripoffs. Denenberg is Pennsylvania's former insurance commissioner. (AP Laserphoto)

Court Taps Rock Star Mick Jagger For Support Of Estranged Spouse

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge ordered rock star Mick Jagger on Monday to pay his wife Bianca $12,000 in temporary support and up to $2,500 to cover her medical bills.

Mrs. Jagger appeared at the hearing leaning heavily on a cane. She injured her knee last week in a rollerskating accident.

Superior Court Judge Harry Shafer also ruled that Jagger must deposit with his attorney $35,000 to be held for paying Mrs. Jagger's attorney fees as the couple's bitterly disputed divorce case proceeds.

However, Shafer delayed testimony on the question of Mrs. Jagger's monthly support for herself and the couple's child, 7-year-old Jade, pending the outcome of a support hearing in England.

Jagger's lawyer, Arthur Groman, told the judge the British high court in London had agreed to hold a hearing on June 6. Mrs. Jagger's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, disputed the propriety of holding the hearing in England.

Groman also said he plans to appeal Shafer's ruling last week that California has jurisdiction in the Jagger case.

BIANCA JAGGER

Mitchelson said Groman had told him he might pursue the appeal as far as the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

"Mr. Jagger is going to continue to support Mrs. Jagger in the style to which she is accustomed," Groman promised.

"What does that mean?" the judge asked, but the answer was interrupted by arguments and Shafer finally set the figure of $12,000 on his own.

"This matter is continued to June 8," the judge said. "In the interim, Mr. Jagger will pay directly to Mrs. Jagger by Tuesday, May 29, the sum of $12,000 plus itemized medical bills not to exceed $2,500.

"In addition, Mr. Jagger is directed to deposit with Mr. Groman $35,000 to be applied to attorneys' fees."

Mitchelson noted that Mrs. Jagger owes nearly $5,000 to the Hollywood Hotel where she is now staying. The judge said that bill could be paid out of the $12,000.

Jagger did not appear at the hearing. Groman said he was in England.

Chinese Exhibit Narrows U.S. Cultural Gap

LOS ANGELES (AP) — America's narrow exposure to modern Chinese culture widened Monday with the opening of an exhibit by China's top living artists — 1,000 watercolors to see and, for the first time, to buy.

Both the Chinese and importer Michael Srednick are hoping the seemingly inexhaustible enthusiasm for Chinese antiques in the United States will carry over to the paintings.

"They're running out of antiques, and the prices are getting out of sight now," said Srednick, 49, who has been importing Chinese antiques since 1974.

Srednick, who made his fortune selling housewares, including the Vegematic seen on late-night television commercials, was one of the first American merchants to deal with the People's Republic after the 1972 thaw in Sino-American relations.

"You don't tell the Chinese what you want, you wait for them to come to you," he said. "So I asked them, 'What else can you show me?'"

It took a year, he said, but the China National Arts & Crafts Import & Export Corporation, the government art concern, assembled 100 paintings from each of the country's 10 most prominent artists.

"Two of the artists are the fourth and fifth sons of a famous Chinese artist, Ch'i Pai-Shih," Srednick said.

He said many of the paintings were produced while the artists worked on farms and communes; one artist is identified in his biography as the manager of a fruit orchard.

Each watercolor is on silk-bordered rice paper and portrays one of several traditional subjects — flowers, birds, insects and fish — that were discouraged during the Cultural Revolution of the 1960s but have since returned to favor.

The collection will be exhibited and sold, not at chic art galleries but at department stores in Los Angeles, New York, Chicago and Detroit. If the show isn't sold out by then, it may continue to Miami.

The paintings are priced at what Srednick describes as a bargain-basement $150 a shot.

"You can barely buy a signed litho for that today. Certainly they are worth more because they're originals," Srednick said. "And the funny part of it is, they're cheaper here than in China. They cost $400 to $500 in Shanghai art stores."

Srednick said the low prices and the department store settings — including a promotional drawing for a free trip to China to meet one of the artists — were part of his agreement with the Chinese, who want exposure as well as American dollars from the venture.

"They're interested in having the masses see it," he explained.

'Hair' Star 'Feels Like Cinderella'

CANNES, France (AP) — It was her first film.

The young star applied rouge to her cheeks and changed her mind three times before selecting a wardrobe in which to greet photographers.

"I feel like Cinderella," said 28-year-old Cheryl Barnes, one of the stars of the musical "Hair."

"What is there not to love here, for me from Westfield, New Jersey?" she added, glancing at the ocean from the window of her flower-decorated room at the Carlton Hotel, a fashionable place for the stars, moviemakers and producers who converge on this French Riviera city for its famed annual film festival.

"I feel at ease. I have a warm bed to sleep in, people smile at me. Why they're nice, I couldn't care less about."

The 5-foot, 6-inch black actress and singer finally donned jeans and a long, black-and-white striped chemise, saying, "It's what I feel comfortable in."

In the film, directed by Milos Forman and based on the 1960s Broadway hit, she plays the role of Hud's fiancee and the mother of his child, giving a moving rendition of the song "How Can People Be So Cruel." At both the critics' showing and the gala performance, an enthusiastic audience gave her loud applause.

"It was the first time a film revealed hippies as individuals. Whenever people referred to hippies, it was always as a block of troublemakers," she said, adding, "Mon dieu," in French to stress her point.

"I got very involved with my role. I could identify with her in many ways — with her feelings and her rejections," she said, adjusting her beige leather belt.

"I don't have a boyfriend," she volunteered. "It's time for romance but not here in Cannes. Everyone here is playing a part. It's like a huge, expensive disco where everyone becomes whoever he wants to be but nobody is real."

Most of the day she lay on the beach alone, sunbathing and reading, away from the hordes of fans who mobbed her after the gala performance. She said she left a dinner for the "Hair" performers the night before to sit on the pier and breathe the ocean air.

Her singing career began eight years ago with short stints with such groups as Classics Five and 10-Wheel-Drive. Later, she performed in Leonard Bernstein's "Mass" and appeared in "Godspell," "Jesus Christ Superstar" and "The Magic Show."

In high school, she said she was headed for a career as a biochemist.

"My involvement in this business was accidental. I was at Union College in New Jersey when I met rock band performers who asked me join their group," she said. "My parents didn't feel good about my quitting school, but now they're happy with my career."

Miss Barnes said people tend to stereotype black singers. She is frequently asked whether she to learned to sing in church.

"Gospel is a part of black heritage, but I didn't learn to sing in church, and gospel isn't the only thing we can do. Our music is diverse."

Her ambition — to star in a film as Josephine Baker, a popular black songstress and dancer who captivated Paris in the 1930s.

"Josephine Baker led a fabulous life as a woman and a black person of her time, and had the freedom and charisma to break down a lot of barriers," Miss Barnes said.

Comedian Reveals Inside Dope On Quiz Show

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "The Hollywood Squares" is TV's longest consecutive-running game show which celebrates its 3,000th show this month — and is anything but square according to regular panelist George Gobel.

The tic-tac-toe game pits a board of nine celebrities aginst a pair of contestants who compete to be the first to place an "x" or an "o" in three consecutive squares, diagonally, vertically or horizontally.

A contestant can collect $20,000 if he wins five shows.

Host Peter Marshall asks each contestant to select a celebrity to answer a question on almost any subject under the sun which he then puts to the personality. The contestant subsequently agrees or disagrees with the answer.

The star may give a correct reply or bluff with a phony answer. Panelists are encouraged to come up with a joke first to keep proceedings lively.

Paul Lynde is ostensibly the "star" of the show inasmuch as he is regularly in the center square. He is also the funniest. Lynde gets away with double entendres and outright blue responses.

Gobel is stationed in the lower left-hand corner of the grid. He, along with Rose Marie, are the only other regulars.

"We may be making jokes," Gobel said, "but we try to win as much money as possible for the contestants who take the game seriously.

"Nobody can come up with enough gags to keep the show moving. After all, I do 350 shows a year — 250 daytime and 100 nightime. So some of us are supplied in advance with a few of the general areas of the questions to be asked."

Often "Hollywood Squares" guest panelists include TV and movie stars who seek out the show to plug their latest projects.

Newcomers are nervous because, as Gobel says, the show is as much a test of a panelist's intelligence and knowledge of current events as it is a game for the contestants.

"I've seen some big stars broken-hearted when they don't get called on during a show," he said. "When they come up with a couple of wrong answers, they're devastated.

"It happened to me before I Became a regular six years ago. If you get called on once, or not at all, it means the contestants don't really trust you.

"So I began reading newspapers, scandal sheets and magazines to learn all I could about as many subjects as possible.

"You have to remember little known facts, like the name of the guy who jumped 34,000 feet from a plane while eating a peanut butter sandwich. My head is filled with stuff like that.

"I'm terrible on Shakespeare and not so good on the Bible. But I'm pretty informed on sports and famous sayings. I'm not bad at numbers either.

"There's a sort of competitive attitude on the panel to be funny. But we also do your best to come up with th right answers. If you miss too often, you begin to worry. I hate to look like an idiot.

"I came up with the right answer when Peter asked for the exact amount of the Lee Marvin payoff to Michelle — $104,000. That really stuck in my mind.

"The whole panel was stymied not long ago when the question was: 'When Norma Talmadge fell down and broke her leg many years ago, a Hollywood tradition was born. What did Norma's accident start?'

"I bluffed the answer, saying she started Alcoholics Anonymous on the spot. It got a laugh out nobody had a clue to the real answer.

"The fact was that she fell into a square of wet cement in the forecourt of Grauman's Chinese Theater. She was the first to leave her hand prints there. Now all the prints at the theater are a tourist attraction.

"You have to be careful about 'facts.' You usually have to attribute them to some authority. Sometimes the right answer is wrong.

"We had a big controversy over the question: 'A little ——————is a dangerous thing. What is the missing word?'

"I answered that 'A little KNOWLEDGE is a dangerous thing.' It turned out the precise answer was LEARNING, not knowledge. There are guys backstage with dictionaries and research books. They catch a lot of errors.

"But we've had contestants come back months after we've come up with a wrong answer. When that happens, the producers gives them another chance to win the big money."

"Hollywood Squares" is taped twice a week, racking up five shows, with two different audiences, in about six hours.

Between shows the panelists commiserate lith each other.

"We usually hash over the audience," George said. "The success of the game depends a lot on the audience. Sometimes we really get a dull bunch and they don't laugh at anything. That's murder."

DOUBLE TIME — Harold Luce keeps New England fairgoers and dance hall crowds on their toes with his old-time music. The former dairy farmer keeps his own feet busy by accompanying himself on the piano with an unlikely contraption made of old bedboard slats and rubber bands. (AP Laserphoto)

Man Plays Fiddle, Piano At Same Time

CHELSEA, Vt (AP) — Harold Luce's fiddle playing may get peple dancing, but it's what he does with his own feet that sets him apart from other old-time Vermont musicians.

For more than 40 years, Luce has entertained rural fair-goers and dancehall crowds by playing the fiddle with his hands and the piano with his feet — at the same time.

"Does sort of make folks stop and take a notice," he observes, a grin threatening to break through the traditional Yankee reserve.

Luce accomplishes the feat with a collection of bedboard slats, pieces of an old wooden table and a healthy supply of rubber bands to hold everything in place.

Together they make up a foot-powered, piano-playing machine, the product of a farm boy's brainstorm and a mother's willingness to look the other way as her son sawed up the kitchen table for parts.

"I was about 17, I guess, when I was playing fiddle with our bob-tailed cat sittin' on my lap," recalls Luce, now in his 60s.

"And I noticed that old cat was just a-pawing away on my knee in time with the music. So I figured if he could do it, I could too."

Before long the young inventor was pumping on foot pedals connected to dowels that led to cross bars that pressed down the chords.

"And they still do all that, if I can get everything strung up here right," Luce mutters, as he hauls the unwieldy contraption out of a closet.

Soon the strains of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" waft through the old farmhouse, followed in short order by "Speed the Plow" and a spirited rendition of "In the Good Old Summertime."

Brow furled in concentration, Luce fiddles the melody as he pounds out the accompaniment. Fingers that looked stubby wrapped around a coffee cup suddenly seem lithe and nimble as they dart along the strings.

"Some people just play, you know, but Harold's music makes people want to dance," says Edith, his wife of 40 years. "Kinda tickles their feet, if you know what I mean."

A row of trophies from old-time fiddling contests across New England bears witness to her description.

"For it to be authentic old-time style, you've got to play just the melody, one note at a time," Luce says. "None of this fancy stuff that the younger fellows go in for."

A former dairy farmer who now works for a Springfield tool company, Luce also numbers among his inventions a foot-powered device that strums chords on a guitar.

Nowadays, the fiddler says, his one-man duets are a rarity.

"I mostly just play the violin now. I go to a few of the contests every year, and when we get going, we can play for hours."

But Luce still mourns the passing of Vermont's country dancehalls, wood-floored meeting houses that were given names like "Dreamland" one night a week.

"They're all gone now. And I don't know anything but the old songs," he says. "But they're still good enough for me."

Ex-Tarzan's Health Said Failing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney for Johnny Weissmuller's wife said Monday it's the health of the 74-year-old former "Tarzan" movie star that is failing — not his mind — and that's why Weissmuller is being transferred to a convalescent home.

Albert Coombes disputed statements by Jack Staggs of the Motion Picture and Country Hospital, where Weissmuller is staying. Staggs had indicated the actor is suffering from "psychological problems."

"The move was only necessitated by fear that medically he might need 24-hour care," Coombes said. "The problem is that Johnny has several medical conditions that could endanger his life, were he to be unattended for a period of time.

"Our fear was that if he just went wandering off without a nurse with him, he could get into a situation where he might be in danger."

Coombes said plans are under way to transfer Weissmuller, also a former Olympic swimming champion, from the Motion Picture hospital in suburban Woodland Hills to Holiday Manor, a convalescent home in nearby Canoga Park. Holiday Manor does not accept psychotic patients.

The transfer was agreed to by Weissmuller's sixth wife, Maria, who was named conservator of her husband's business and financial affairs by a Superior Court judge Saturday.

Staggs told The Associated Press Saturday that he requested the transfer "because the man did have psychological problems and we're not licensed to handle those kinds of patients."

Solon Compares Nuke Accident To Film

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., chairman of a House task force investigating the Three Mile Island accident, said there is a big similarity between the accident and the fictional one depicted in the movie "China Syndrome."

For instance, Weaver told a House interior subcommittee, the early comments of Metropolitan Edison spokesman Jack Herbein were "amazingly similar — almost word for word — to the 'everything is fine' statements by the public relations man in the movie."

"It seemed as if Jack Herbein had the same scriptwriter," Weaver said.

BOATS OR CARS? — Lubbock motorists, faced with flooding streets much of Monday, probably wondered if a boat might be more appropriate. City's Streets Awash In Wake Of Area's Widespread Rainfall more rain exists today.

Afternoon highs should continue in the 80s through Saturday accompanied by seasonal nighttime temperatures. A new chance for scattered afternoon and evening showers enters the forecast again by Thursday.

Although heavy rains inconvenienced city motorists, no increase in accidents was reported by Lubbock police.

The widespread rains were proving to be "neck-savers" for many dryland cotton farmers, agricultural officials said. Dr. L. L. Ray, cotton breeder at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock, said those dryland farmers who received an inch or more of rain "should be in good shape," especially in the longer growing season areas in the southern Plains.

"They can make about as much off late-May plantings as off early-May cotton," he said.

Planting moisture had been inadequate or questionable on an estimated 1.1 million to 1.2 million acres of cotton land in the 25-county High Plains area.

Rainfall reports indicate the bulk of this acreage now has sufficient planting moisture, agricultural officials said.

Preliminary and unofficial estimates on the amount of the previously dry acreage that had received sufficient planting moisture Monday afternoon ranged from 60 percent to more than 90 percent.

Hockley County Agent Bill Taylor of Levelland said 60 to 65 percent of that county's cotton had been planted and 10 to 15 percent was up to a stand.

Taylor said 2 to 3 inches of rain fell in the northwest part of the county — around Pettit and Whitharral — but added that he did not have complete rainfall reports from across the county.

"There probably will be some replanting," Taylor said, but added that it will not be a large acreage.

Hail fell around Pettit, he said, and hard, washing rains may force replanting where furrow or lister planters were used. Most cotton that had been planted on the bed probably can be "scratched up" if necessary, he said.

Taylor said 50,000 to 75,000 acres of Hockley County cotton land had been too dry to plant or wasn't as wet as farmers would have liked.

Terry County Agent Ed Smith of Brownfield said about 20 percent of that county's cotton had been planted. He said some farmers had been irrigating land that had dried out after having been watered earlier.

Agricultural officials said the rains will be highly beneficial to irrigated cotton land as well as to dryland acreages.

Irrigation farmers normally do not begin applying water to cotton until near the bloom stage.

Planting will be underway later this week, if favorable weather prevails, in much of the dryland belt which received rain.

Dawson County Agent Joe Wise of Lamesa said 2 inches of rain had been needed for farmers there to be able to plant all areas. He said only about 20 percent of the county's cotton had been planted.

"Everybody is feeling better now," Wise said. "At least we know it can rain — we were beginning to doubt it."

Furor Over CETA To Surface Again

act'srequirements, will determine whether the local office violated the regulations, she said.

Mrs. Forbes, who said the labor department has requested further information about the questioned costs, added her office has compiled all responses and will mail them to the department's Dallas office within a week.

She said she believes most of the costs will be cleared by the labor department.

The accountants' statement about improving internal management policies censures many of the government panel's procedures.

For example, the auditors say the South Plains Association of Governments has "obsolete per diem limits" in its travel policy and that the association does not "enforce prompt submission of travel expense reports covering the use of travel advances."

On past due invoices, the auditors note, "Two of SPAG's major subcontractors, SER and LOIC, were not timely in submitting invoices to the finance department for payment. In one instance, invoices covering July 1978 activities were not submitted for payment until December 1978."

In another case, the report says, association made payments for such programs as group hospitalization on behalf of employees from whom payroll deductions were not made.

The South Plains Association of Governments needs "closer controls over contracting agences...in the area of proper documentation of expenses and reporting requirements," which, the auditors said, "will aid in alleviating problems upon eventual audits and resultant questioned costs."

The association has "inadequate controls" in maintaining cash records and has a "weakness in controlling expenditures by cost categories," the statement says.

Kelley, Cole & Co. concludes its report by noting its recommendations "would not necessarily disclose all weaknesses in the system."

At least one board member finds the fact that the association staff withheld the information for so long almost as upsetting as the audit and report.

When asked about the accountants' findings, Judge Shaw said, "I think the whole SPAG board is going to be unhappy about the delay in furnishing us this information."

Shaw, long an advocate for tighter reins on the Comprehensive Employment Training Act program, noted the accountants said the audit results "were reported separately in a report dated Nov. 15, 1978."

But the association board is learning of the findings almost six months later, when half the fiscal year is over, Shaw said.

"I think it's unexcusable for the board of directors to be kept in the dark about problems of this nature," he fumed. "I think for the crew to not tell the captain his ship is sinking is unacceptable."

Shaw, who said he believes "someone sat on" the information last November, speculated it may have been because of the furor over audit discrepancies in another Comprehensive Employment Training Act program.

That audit, conducted by the Texas Employment Commission on classroom allowances for CETA clients, indicated some students were paid for time they were not in class.

"I think every member of the (SPAG) executive committee was demanding complete facts" about the CETA operation at that time, Shaw said.

"I can't believe the staff was unaware of the (Department of Labor) audit at that time," he added.

"We should have had that report in November."

Conflict Of Interest Splits School Panel

referring to several lawsuits already facing the school district.

Thomas opposed all moves to deal with board members and cast the lone dissenting vote against paying for transactions already conducted.

"The taxpayers don't mind dealing with these businesses on an emergency basis," Thomas said. "But they do disagree with the day to day dealings that easily could be done otherwise."

The Texas Education Agency states that should a suit be filed on conflict of interest, the board member in question should resign and the school should never deal with that member again.

Supreme Court To Hear Minority Funds Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide whether Congress acted constitutionally when it reserved 10 percent of $4 billion in public works grants for minority owned businesses.

The justices, setting the stage for possible new edicts on "affirmative action," racial quotas and "reverse discrimination," said they will study the set-aside provision in the Public Works Employment Act of 1977.

Divided Opinions

A federal appeals court in New York upheld the quota, but other courts have called the 10 percent set-aside a form of unconstitutional racial bias against white-owned businesses.

In a busy day, the high court took these other actions Monday:

—Rejected an emergency request aimed at letting a Rhode Island boy play on his high school girls' volleyball team in two matches this week.

The justices refused to order athletic league officials to let Donald M. Gomes become a member of the girls' team at Rogers High School in Newport, R.I.

—Ruled, by a 6-3 vote in a Kentucky case, that criminal defendants have no absolute constitutional right to have a judge instruct jurors that they are presumed innocent until proved guilty.

Parole Crime Case

—Agreed to hear the appeal of a San Diego man trying to sue California authorities in connection with his young daughter's murder by a convicted sex offender paroled from prison months earlier.

State court rulings said that George Martinez has no right to file such a suit.

—Refused to kill a lawsuit charging three California community colleges with sex bias for refusing to establish child-care centers. The refusal clears the way for a trial on the charges.

—Ruled unanimously that anti-fraud provisions of federal securities laws apply to cheated brokers as well as duped investors.

Arguments Rejected

In the minority set-aside case, the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last Sept. 22 rejected arguments by contractor groups doing business in New York that the act fostered impermissible racial bias.

The 1977 act was passed by Congress to provide additional funds for a 1976 law designed to alleviate national unemployment and to stimulate the economy.

The 1977 act made $4 billion available to state and local governments for public works projects, and put the secretary of commerce in charge of disbursing the funds to states and local governments.

The legislation barred any grant unless the local or state government applying for it assured the commerce secretary that 10 percent of the money would go to minority-owned enterprises.

All grants authorized by the act were awarded by Sept. 30, 1977. But contractors throughout the country filed lawsuits seeking to halt distribution of the remaining funds.

New York received at least 45 grants under the act, totaling more than $42 million. New York City received at least 83 grants totaling nearly $194 million.

Government lawyers had urged the justices to leave intact the appeals court ruling. The Carter administration argued that the controversy is "largely academic" because Congress probably will not pass similar legislation in the future.

Florida High Court Refuses To Delay Executions Of Two

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Supreme Court on Monday refused to delay the executions of condemned killers John A. Spenkelink and Willie Jasper Darden Jr., scheduled to die in the electric chair Wednesday morning.

Even as the state's highest court rejected the appeal from Spenkelink, his attorneys hand-delivered an emergency appeal with the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. The U.S. Supreme Court has four times refused to grant Spenkelink a reprieve.

Unanimous Vote

The seven Florida justices voted unanimously to refuse a stay of execution for Spenkelink and by a 4-3 margin to reject Darden's appeal. They issued their decision after meeting in private most of the day, Monday.

Anti-death penalty protesters, meanwhile, maintained a prayer vigil outside the office of Florida's Gov. Bob Graham, vowing to stay there until he grants reprieves for the condemned killers.

"We intend to remain in the office and pray," said one of the protesters, Mike Jendrzejczyk of Nyack, N.Y. "We're going to stay here until the governor grants a stay of both executions."

Graham said the protesters could remain "as long as their action does not infringe on other people's legitimate rights."

Heavy, Oaken Chair

Spenkelink, 30, faced electrocution at 7 a.m. and Darden, 45, one hour later in Florida's heavy oak electric chair — a three-legged seat built by inmates, with arms deeply gouged by the struggles of the convicts who have died in it.

They would be the first men executed in the United States since Gary Mark Gilmore was put to death by firing squad in Utah in 1977.

The state Supreme Court turned down Spenkelink's appeal, saying he raised no new issues. The majority also found no merit in arguments by Darden's attorney that he was denied due process of law by the state's clemency process, in which the state Cabinet considered whether to commute his sentence to life in prison.

However, three minority justices said Darden should be granted a two-day stay of execution to allow his case to be argued in the courts.

Request Denied

Earlier Monday, U.S. District Judge William Stafford denied a request for a stay of execution from Spenkelink's attorney, David Kendall. An appeal to overturn Stafford's denial was filed immediately with the appellate court in New Orleans.

And in Bartow, Fla., Circuit Court Judge John H. Dewell — the man who originally sentenced 45-year-old Darden to die — denied a request for a new hearing for the condemned man. The appeal was one of several pursued by Robert Harper Jr., attorney for Darden.

At the state prison, Superintendent David Brierton told reporters outside the prison gate Monday that he would permit no interviews with any Death Row inmates. Nor would he discuss any of the procedures leading up to the execution.

"They should get some dignity on their way out," Brierton said.

Spenkelink was convicted of killing his traveling companion, Joseph Syzmankiewicz, in Tallahassee in 1973. Darden was convicted of killing a Lakeland merchant, James Turman, during a 1973 holdup.

Insurance Bill Hits Penalty

about $15 million — to insurance companies' total premium revenue from Texas.

'Bees' May Hurt

The bill abolishing surcharges next goes to the Senate, where its likelihood of passage could be harmed by the inability of that chamber to do business because of the absence of "Killer Bee" senators.

Jerry Johns, president of the Southwestern Insurance Information Service, said the effect of the bill would be to raise premiums for good drivers while reducing them for bad drivers.

"If you can't penalize a consistently bad driver, who is going to pay for that? The person who is a good driver. Somebody has got to take up that slack," Johns said.

He claimed 80 percent of the drivers would "subsidize" the 20 percent who he said were "bad drivers."

Regulators Admit Laxity

damage was done to the fuel core at the plant's reactor No. 2, control room operators were responding to the emergency based on inaccurate information, the report indicated.

The report presented the first formal assessment of what went wrong at the nuclear plant near Harrisburg, Pa. The report noted, however, that final conclusions would have to await the presidential commission's larger-scale inquiry.

Weaver said control room operators had neither the knowledege nor the instruments needed to bring the runaway reactor under control until most of the damage had been done.

"The operators did not know what was happening inside of it (the reactor). They could not look in. They could not go in. Measuring devices and guages had either failed or were nonexistent, were set improperly or in the wrong places," he said.

Core Ungauged

A major problem, the report found, was the lack of instruments to measure the level of water around the reactor core. Reliance on gauges showing the water level in a nearby system gave operators the mistaken impression that the core was covered with coolant when it was actually totally uncovered for about an hour, the report said.

Why is there no gauge to read water levels around the core?

"People never expected to see things drain down that far and still be in a position where they could measure it," said Joseph Hendrie, Nuclear Regulatory Commission Chairman.

Hendrie, who testified after presentation of the report, said this is one area that is being examined for improvements.

Push For Additional Funding For Odessa Health Unit Seen

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A push for increased funding for Texas Tech's Permian Basin health center in Odessa is expected when House and Senate conferees meet at 10 a.m. today in Austin to continue work on the biennial appropriations bill.

Texas Tech originally requested $271,000 for 1980 and $321,000 for 1981 for start-up operations costs at the Odessa center, according to Dr. Sam Richards, associate vice president of the Tech School of Medicine.

Richards said the funds were needed as "seed money to get an administrative staff and basic faculty" to help begin planning for the center.

Both the House and Senate bills, however, drastically slashed Tech's request to $33,604 and $35,216 for the two years.

Because those versions are the same, there are no differences for the 10 committee members to adjust — and therefore those figures would be expected to remain the same in the conference committee's report to the two houses.

However, those figures could be altered, and approval given by a concurrent resolution authorizing the change.

Monday, sources in Austin said, Rep. Jay Gibson of Odessa and Rep. Dick Slack of Pecos reportedly were planning an attempt to increase the amount of funding to $250,000 a year.

Gibson, however, said he did not wish to make a statement prior to this morning's meeting regarding the reported plans.

However, one House member commented that the Odessa faction is "going to play some hardball" when the committee meets today.

The differences in the House and Senate versions of the appropriations bill add up to a total of $3,008,000, none of which directly involves the Permian Basin Regional Academic Health Center.

Sunday Airline Story Erred

A story concerning changes in airline service in Sunday's Avalanche-Journal failed to note that Texas International Airlines has permission to fly between Dallas-Fort Worth Airport and Lubbock, but has set no official start-up date.

Also, Braniff International is dropping two daily flights from DFW to Lubbock, but none from Lubbock to Dallas, as was stated in the story. The four daily outgoing flights have been rescheduled but not dropped. Beginning in June, Braniff flights will leave Lubbock for Dallas at 6:30 a.m., 9:35 a.m., 2:35 p.m. and 7:35 p.m. during the week.

'Bull' Simon Dies In Dallas; Led Son Tay, Iran Raids

DALLAS (AP) — Col. Arthur "Bull" Simons, the Special Forces officer who led the unsuccessful assault deep into North Vietnam to liberate Americans at the Son Tay prisoner of war camp, died of heart failure late Monday afternoon at Baylor Hospital here. He was 60.

The prisoners had been removed from the camp, 30 miles north of Hanoi, before Simons' raiding party of 53 men arrived. The strike force met heavy resistance but sustained no casualties in the raid.

Engineers Rescued

In February, Simons led a team that rescued two Electronic Data Systems engineers, Paul Chiapparone and Bill Gaylord, who had been held hostage in Iran.

Simons suffered a heart attack in March while vacationing in Colorado.

EDS founder H. Ross Perot, who financed the mission into Iran, dispatched a stretcher-equipped jet to Colorado to bring the ailing Simons back to Dallas,where he remained hospitalized until his death.

Perot said he contacted Simons in January after attempts failed to negotiate a $12.7 million ransom for the two engineers, who had been imprisoned for seven weeks on official corruption charges.

He told reporters that he was ripe for the EDS assignment. His wife of 38 years had died in March 1978, and he was left a lonely and restless man.

Bigger Raid Eyed

In an interview following his Iranian mission, Simons said he was contemplating an offer to lead another guerrilla raid, "a big one this time." An action he said would be bigger than the one in Iran and bigger than the one in North Vietnam..

"It's something I've wanted to do for some time. Something that needs to be done," said Simons, who refused to elaborate other than to say it would not be in Iran.

Simons retired in 1970, ending a military career that spanned 30 years and three wars. It also included a stint training guerrillas in Laos.

Ski-Masked Bandit Hits Food Store

A man wearing a Dallas Cowboys ski mask but who reportedly never displayed a weapon made off with about $40 from the 7-Eleven convenience store at 4201 Boston Ave. shortly after 9 p.m. Monday.

Store clerk Belle Perez said the man, who kept one hand in his pocket, asked for a pack of cigarettes. She told police that when she asked for 79 cents for the cigarettes the man said, "Just give me the cash and we'll call it even. Just give me the large bills."

Miss Perez described the suspect as white, 25 years old, about 5 feet 8 and muscular. She said he was wearing a brown raincoat over a black coat, blue jeans and brown gloves.

The clerk told police she thought the robber got in a car and headed east from the store.

KIDNAPPED CHILD 'PARKED'

CHICAGO (AP) — Three persons have been accused in the weekend kidnapping of a 7-year-old suburban boy. The child, Adelberto Garcia Jr., was found crying but unharmed in a Southwest Side park Saturday, 22 hours after he had been abducted from his Schiller Park home, authorities said. Abram Chacon,30, and his brother, Manuel,23, were chareged with aggravated kidnapping. Manuel's wife, Consuelo, 23, was charged with child abandonment for leaving the child in the park.

Job Of 'Fed' To Prevent Another Depression

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

If anyone could speculate which way the American economy will swing in the next few months, it would probably be Nancy Teeters.

But Mrs. Teeters, the first woman appointed to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, says just about all "the Fed" can do is try to prevent a depression — such as the one which crippled the U.S. in the early 1930s.

Mrs. Teeters spoke briefly Monday about some of the problems faced by the American consumer as part of the Sixth Annual School of Banking at Texas Tech. She discussed the competing cycles of inflation and recession, saying American economic problems cannot be solved internally.

Foreign trade can have a major impact on any economy, she said, as evidenced by current oil shortages resulting from the wheeling and dealing of OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries).

Getting a grip on rising inflation from within would still leave the problems caused by foreign trade, she said.

"Dealing with OPEC is like playing poker with a wild card," she quipped. If foreign prices level off, U.S. consumers would probably see a drop in the current inflation level, she said.

But even with a leveling off of foreign oil prices, beef shortages (as well as shortages of other food items) would still continue to add to inflation. Americans have been feeling the pinch of "the food and fuel crisis" since the early 70s, she said.

Mrs. Teeters agrees with many economists who believe the cycles of inflation and recession are largely governed by history — that is, the recurring cycles can be compared to the inevitable forces governing high and low tides. Looking at a historical analysis of the U.S. economy, a graph of economic upswings and downswings occurs pretty regularly.

But economists such as Mrs. Teeters believe there is something that can be done about the problems. She claims that "the Fed" can influence the degree if not the direction — in which the economy swings.

Currently, the governors for the Federal Reserve System are trying to slow down the economy without plunging the country into a recession. Mrs. Teeters said recent patterns have produced an economy which results in one good fiscal quarter, followed by a poor quarter, followed by another good quarter and so on.

She defined the economists' interpretation of a recession as two succeeding quarters of negative growth.

"Recessions are very expensive," Mrs. Teeters said. Each point of unemployment adds anywhere from $16 billion to $20 billion to the federal deficit, she said.

Other related factors push up government costs, she said. For example, during a recession, people who can't find jobs often retire early. And other people without jobs cannot afford health care insurance, which pushes up the already high cost of Medicare programs.

Mrs. Teeters predicted the point at which the U.S. might enter a recession (and she stressed the word "might") would come during the second half of the year. She said the inflation level is already starting to come down a bit, even predicting the rate of inflation might be down to six or seven percent by the end of the year.

However, somewhat higher than normal levels of unemployment will remain a reality until the last of the post-World War II baby boom enters the job market and becomes settled, she said. Mrs. Teeters predicted the boom generation will probably be settled by the late 80s.

Mrs. Teeters was the keynote speaker for the School of Banking's opening session. Scheduled to run through May 26, the seminar will offer 46 hours of operational and management courses for workers in the banking industry. The week-long seminar is sponsored by the Center for Professional Development at the College of Business Administration at Texas Tech.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I have a small civil service pension coming now and must work at least eight more years on my present job to receive another pension. Our home is free and clear. We have a $10,000 savings certificate maturing in three months and $7,800 in ready cash.

I have become interested in Wall Street by watching television. They say that many stocks are undervalued and that now is the time to buy. If stocks go up, beautiful. They say, if stocks go down, buy more. What do you suggest for me — growth stocks?

A. I not only suggest, I recommend — as strongly as I can — that you learn a good deal more about the market before you even consider buying any stocks — growth or otherwise. Visit your local public library. Borrow a couple of the less complicated books about the stock market. Study them. Then, start considering what stocks you want to buy — or whether you want to buy any at all.

It's obvious that, to have any hopes for success in the stock market, you'll need much more knowledge than you have picked up watching the boob tube.

With eight years to go before final retirement, growth stocks — those which have increased in value in the past and hopefully will do so in the future — seem reasonably right for you. But, as you get closer to retirement, you should switch into higher income producing and less risky investments.

Good luck with your investments. But, unless you are willing to take on big risks of losing, don't buy highly speculative stocks in hopes of turning your nestegg into a big bundle in a hurry.

Q. I have heard that "averaging" reduces the risk of investing in stocks and almost guarantees a profit. Can you explain averaging?

A. There are two basic methods of averaging — "dollar averaging" and "averaging down." Both can be very useful. But neither guarantees a profit.

You dollar average by investing the same amount of money in the same security at fixed intervals — such as putting $100, $1,000 or whatever amount you decide on into XYZ Corp. common stock or QRX Mutual Fund shares every month, three months or whatever time period you pick.

When you dollar average, you get fewer shares when prices are high, more shares when prices are low and, usually, a better than average price on all your investments. Meanwhile, you get no ulcers from trying to outguess the stock market. Dollar averaging is a favorite method of serious, long-term investors.

You average down by buying more shares of something you already own at a lower price than you originally paid. Say you bought 100 shares of XYZ common at $30 a share, for a total oost of $3,000. Say that XYZ's market price has dropped to $20.

If you buy 100 more XYZ at $20, for an additional cost of $2,000, you'll own 200 shares, with a toal oost of $5,000. Your average cost — $5,000 divided by 200 — will be $25 a share. If XYZ's market price rises to $25, you'll be able to sell and get even.

Q. At age 52 I have started an insurance company annuity plan where I work. Every month, $50 is taken out of my paycheck and I get a statement that $44.59 has been invested and $5.41 has been deducted for charges. Am I doing the right thing for my retirement?

A. The $5.41 charge figures out to 10.82 percent of the $50 taken out of your paycheck and a walloping 12.13 percent of the $44.59 actually invested for you. That's the big complaint about many annuities — tremendously high charges.

The total value of your investment has to increase by at least the amount of those charges, before you begin to break even. Without knowing the specifics of that particular annuity plan, it seems that you didn't make the best choice for building a retirement nestegg.

Lubbock Pair Charged In Burglary Incident

Two Lubbock men, including one who was shot by police early Monday, were charged with burglary Monday in a break-in at an Avenue A lumber company.

They are Porfirio Salazar, 21, of 3314 Harvard St., who was treated and released at Methodist Hospital after being shot in both legs by a patrolman, and Pedro Palacios, 30, of the Frontier Motel, No. 8.

The criminal district attorney's office is recommending their bonds be set at $15,000 each.

Salazar and Palacios were apprehended after officers answered a burglar alarm about 12:45 a.m. Monday at Veazey Cash Lumber Co. at 2701 Ave. A.

Patrolman John Tucker arrested Palacios, he reported, after his police dog found the suspect inside the east part of the building.

While the dog held the first man at bay, officers said, the second ignored orders to stop and crawled out through a small hole made by glass having been broken in a door.

Outside, Cpl. Larry Jenkins shot the man in the legs with a shotgun after he again refused to stop and tried to run away.

Police information officer Bill Morgan said the dog was highly excited during the arrests and that Tucker had to control it to keep Jenkins from being attacked when Jenkins entered the building briefly before rushing back outside in pursuit of the second man.

"They're non-discriminatory," Morgan said of the police dogs.

Plains Banker's Trial Continues

Testimony was to begin today in the federal court embezzlement trial of a former Plains bank officer.

Jury selection was completed Monday in the trial of Ben E. Pate, former vice president at Plains State Bank and mayor of the Yoakum County city.

Pate was indicted in Lubbock in March on five counts of misapplication of funds and two counts involving "certain false entries" in bank records.

Assistant U. S. Attorney David Bass is prosecuting the case.

Pate is being defended by attorneys Travis Shelton of Lubbock and Leon Taylor of Albuquerque, N. M.

The four suits in playing cards originally represented four classes: hearts were the clergy; spades the military; diamonds the merchants, and clubs the peasantry.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Arthur Fiedler, the 84-year-old conductor of the Boston Pops, blew kisses to a cheering crowd Monday as he received an honorary degree in music from Providence College. "Over the past 50 years, the world has become infernally noisy, which makes us all the more grateful to you for having provided us with the celestial relief of the Boston Pops Orchestra," a citation to Fiedler said.

Raiders Nab Ace; Hamilton Signs Midland Netter

The Texas Tech tennis program took another step forward Monday when coach Mark Hamilton signed Midland College netter Jose Rivera to a national letter-of-intent.

Rivera, who graduated from El Paso Irvin, is the second tennis sighee this year — and the second to come out of Midland. Earlier this spring Jeff Bramlett of Midland High signed with the Raiders.

"We were very fortunate to get Jose," said Hamilton. "A lot of schools have been talking to him. But he knows Jeff (Bramlett) pretty well, and I think that had something to do with his decision."

Rivera is currently competing in the national junior college tournament in Waco where, according to Hamilton, he is one of the top seeds.

Last year Rivera won the national juco title in the No. 4 position as a freshman. This year it will be a little tougher for him to repeat that performance, though — Rivera is now playing in the No. 1 position.

However, he won the Western Junior College Conference championship in the No. 1 position this year.

As a senior in high school, Rivera reached the Class AAAA doubles semifinals before being eliminated.

"Jose can play for us probably as soon as he gets here," said Hamilton. "He's already beaten Mike Moss and Trey Schutz of Texas A&M this year. Heck, that was more than we could do."

Moss and Schutz played in the Nos. 3 and 4 positions for A&M this year. And when the Raiders tangled with the Aggies, Moss defeated Harrison Bowes and Schutz was also victorious over David Crissey.

Bowes and Crissey graduated in May, and the Raiders also lost one other player, Randy Clayton, who dropped out of school.

Hamilton said he is seeking players that can make an immediate contribution to the Tech tennis team that was 1-8 in Southwest Conference competition last year. He is hopeful that he can sign two more junior college players before the end of the week.

Plainsmen Eye State Trip; But Face EP Austin Today

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

EL PASO — Bobby Moegle felt so good after the Plainsmen won the bidistrict series over Pampa that he reserved ten motel rooms in Austin for the first part of June.

Disch-Faulk field on the University of Texas campus will be the site of the state high school baseball finals next month. And Saturday, when Monterey won its 14th bidistrict championship, Moegle liked the Plainsmen's chances of qualifying for a second consecutive trip to Austin.

But 48 hours later, as the Plainsmen were loading on the bus to make the trip to El Paso, the Monterey mentor had modified his feelings.

Today, Monterey and El Paso Austin will open a best two-out-of-three games regional series at Dudley Field here. The two teams will play a single contest starting at 4 p.m. CDT.

After today's game, the series will move to Lubbock and Lowrey Field. The two teams will play a single game on Friday at 4 p.m., and if a third game is necessary, it'll begin at 11 a.m. Saturday.

"When you make it to the regionals, you're playing one of the 16 best teams in the state," said Moegle. "We may lose a game. We may lose two."

Moegle is hoping Kent Potts (9-2) can get the Plainsmen off on the right foot. The junior righthander will pitch for Monterey, while the Panthers will counter with Doug Woods (9-1).

Moegle chose Potts to throw the first game of the series despite a control problem that forced Potts to leave the hill after only one-third of an inning of work in the first game of Pampa bidistrict series.

"At first I thought Kent's arm was just a little tired because he pitched so much during the nonconference season," said Moegle. "But I think he was wild (against Pampa), because he's had too much rest. Now, I'm hoping he'll be ready to go."

Meanwhile, Austin coach Leon Antwine describes Woods as a finesse pitcher.

"He's not overpowering," said Antwine. "Doug's greatest strength is his ability to confuse hitters."

Monterey will bring a 26-7 record into the action, while Austin stands 19-6 after whipping Ysleta in bidistrict.

"I think the difference in the series could be which team handles the playoff pressures the best," said Moegle. "We've been in this situation before, and though we're looking at El Paso as a vacation, we're not going to let it get in the way of the importance in the game. I think El Paso's trip to Lubbock will distract their concentration."

Monterey will meet an Austin team that is designed around speed. Antwine makes it no secret that the Panthers are going to test Monterey catcher Kelly Smith's arm on the base paths.

Panther leftfielder Gregg Quinn (.444) is the batter who makes things happen for Austin. Quinn stole 11 bases during the district season, but during the bidistrict playoffs, the Panthers leftfielder had five steals in just two games.

"I don't think it's any secret that our speed is our main weapon," said Antwine. "We don't have a real power hitter, so we rely on speed to score runs."

So far during the playoffs, Smith has won the battle with runners on the base paths. Pampa runners tried to run on Smith's arm three times and were only successful once.

"Kelly has a pretty quick release," said Moegle. "He's also pretty accurate."

With Potts on the mound, Tom Bevins will fill in first base, with Steve Coleman taking over Bevins' designated hitting duties.

Erxleben Signed For Record Contract

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Russell Erxleben, the sure-footed kicker from the University of Texas who was the New Orleans Saints' first-round pick in the National Football League draft, signed a six-year, million-dollar contract Monday.

The signatures went on the dotted lines in ceremonies at the Saints' camp here, but no terms were announced.

However, reports indicated it may have made Erxleben the highest paid kicker in professional football history.

The contract — a series of six, one-year pacts — reportedly included a $300,000 signing bonus and a sliding salary that will average about $150,000 plus bonuses.

Erxleben, both a punter and a kicker, holds the NCAA field goal record with a 77-yarder against Rice in 1977. He made three field goals of more than 60 yards and 11 of more than 50 yards.

Asked if he thought his distance would be cut by the NFL rules which forbid use of a kicking tee, Erxleben said it might be reduced about 10 years a kick.

But he said he didn't expect any trouble kicking off the artificial turf in the Superdome.

As a combination kicker, he scored 120 of 134 extra points attempted in college and 49 of 78 field goals. He punted 214 times for a 44.2-yard average, with a hang time on punts consistently more than five seconds.

Most NFL teams have a separate kicker and punter, but Erxleben said he plans to keep on kicking both ways.

He said coaches' resistance to having only one kicker might be because it would require two replacements if the kicker got hurt.

"But we don't get hurt that much," he said.

According to the NFL's player salary survey from 1978, Oakland All-Pro Ray Guy, a No. 1 pick in 1973, was paid $68,571 last season. The highest salary recorded for a kicker in the survey was $90,000 for an 11-year veteran, either Don Cockroft or Garo Yepremian.

Eddie Jones, executive vice president of the Saints, said he is "not sure Russell will be the highest paid kicker in the NFL but I'm sure he will be the highest scorer in the NFL."

Tigers Stun Guidry, Yankees; Astros Lose

By The Associated Press

Steve Kemp singled in the winning run in the seventh inning and Jack Billingham scattered eight hits Monday night as the Detroit Tigers beat Cy Young Award winner Ron Guidry and the New York Yankees 3-1.

Guidry, 4-3, who struck out 13 in beating Detroit 6-2 Wednesday, gave up 13 hits — the most in a game in his career. His third loss was as many as Guidry had all of last year when he won the Cy Young prize with a 25-3 record.

With the game tied 1-1 going into the Detroit seventh, Ron LeFlore led off with a double down the first base line just out of the diving reach of Chris Chambliss. Lou Whitaker, who was 3-for-3, sacrificed LeFlore to third and Kemp lashed his tie-breaking single to left.

Lance Parrish hit a solo homer for the Tigers in the eighth.

New York scored its run off Billingham, 4-3, in the second inning. Reggie Jackson led off with an infield single and took third when Chambliss' grounder bounced high off the bag at second for a lucky single. Roy White hit into a double play as Jackson scored.

The Tigers tied it in the fourth on a Guidry wild pitch. Rusty Staub had led off with a double. He took third on a groundout by Jason Thompson and trotted home on an errant Guidry pitch to Parrish.

BRAVES 7, ASTROS 5

Bob Horner's three-run homer in the fifth inning carried the Atlanta Braves to a 7-5 victory over the Houston Astros Monday night.

Horner's third homer of the season came off reliever Bo McLaughlin, 1-2, following a double by Gary Matthews and a throwing error by Enos Cabell that allowed Jeff Burroughs to reach safely on an infield grounder.

Matthews hit his ninth home run in the third, off Houston starter Tom Dixon, after Jerry Royster had singled to center.

TWINS 7, RANGERS 6

Hosken Powell's RBI double capped a three-run rally in the ninth inning to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 7-6 victory over the Texas Rangers Monday night.

Mike Marshall gained his 11th save of the young season, preserving the victory for Pete Redfern, 2-0, with a ninth-inning appearance. Sparky Lyle, 3-3, who attempted to stop the Minnesota rally in the ninth, was the loser.

Jerry Morales singled to open the Minnesota ninth off Texas starter Jon Matlack. Lyle replaced Matlack and was greeted by Butch Wynegar's single. Willie Norwood's pinch single scored Morales and John Castino followed with the game-tying single, scoring pinch-runner Rob Wilfong.

Jim Kern relieved Lyle and pinch-hitter Powell doubled home Castino for the winning run.

Earlier, the Rangers had scored three runs in the sixth and one in the eighth to take a 6-4 lead.

BLUE JAYS 8, INDIANS 1

Rick Bosetti drove in two runs with a double to key a five-run outburst in the fourth inning as the Blue Jays defeated the Cleveland Indians 8-1, snapping a four-game losing streak.

Dave Lemanczyk, 4-2, matched his victory output for 1978 when he was 4-14.

Lemanczyk limited the Indians to seven hits and struck out eight, posting hs fifth complete game of the season.

Cleveland starter Rick Wise took the loss to even his record at 3-5.

The Blue Jays sent nine batters to the plate in their five-run fourth inning.

PIRATES 4, EXPOS 2

Willie Stargell belted his ninth home run of the season and Bert Blyleven earned his first victory as the Pittsburgh Pirates snapped Montreal's three-game winning streak with a 4-2 decision over the Expos.

Stargell's seventh homer in his last nine games off starter Scott Sanderson, 2-3, broke a 2-2 tie in the ifth inning. Ed Ott's homer in the eighth provided Pittsburgh with an insurance run.

Kent Tekulve relieved Blyleven with one out in the ninth after Tony Perez doubled. He retired the next two batters and nailed down his fourth save. Blyleven, 1-2, allowed six hits. Omar Moreno gave the Pirates a 1-0 lead, hitting the first pitch of the game from Sanderson over the right-field fence for his second homer of the season.

PHILLIES 5, CARDS 3

Mike Schmidt's first-pitch leadoff home run in the sixth inning triggered the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Monday night.

Steve Carlton, who gave up a run in each of the first three innings to fall behind 3-0, was credited with his fifth victory against five losses, allowing only two hits after the third inning. He struck out seven and walked none.

MARINERS 12, ROYALS 7

Willie Horton unloaded a three-run homer and Dan Meyer collected a single and two doubles Monday night, powering the Seattle Mariners to a 12-7 victory over Kansas City.

Glenn Abbott, who hadn't beaten the Royals since July 1976, got roughed up for four runs in the first but, with seventh-inning relief help from Shane Rawley, improved his record to 2-5 behind the 15-hit Mariner attack.

Horton's 197th career homer and ninth of this season capped a five-run outburst in the third against Rich Gale, 3-3.

Canadiens Claim Cup

MONTREAL (AP) — Jacques Lemaire scored twice — including the second Stanley Cup-winning goal of his career — and Rejean Houle added three assists as the Montreal Canadiens beat the New York Rangers 4-1 Monday night and won their fourth consecutive NHL championship.

Before a jubilant crowd of 18,076, among them Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, the Canadiens won the cherished silver trophy at their Montreal Forum home for the first time since 1968. They did it with the overwhelming skating speed and pinpoint passing that has been their trademark.

Rick Chartraw and Bob Gainey added goals in the triumph, which marked the 12th consecutive playoff series Montreal has won. Carol Vadnais scored for New York, which last won the National Hockey League title in 1940.

Lemaire, who scored the Cup clincher in 1976, snapped a 1-1 tie with a power-play goal at 1:02 of the second period, powering a 65-foot shot between the feet of New York goalie John Davidson.

Gainey, a star throughout this five-game final series and the winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as the playoffs' most valuable player, made it 3-1 at 11:01, converting a Doug Jarvis pass from five feet away. Then Lemaire took a feed from Houle and broke in on Davidson for the 20-foot backhand that ended any hopes for New York, at 18:49 of the middle period.

HEATED DISCUSSION — Indiana basketball coach Bobby Knight talks with bicyclist Paul Kenny on a Bloomington, Ind. street following a disagreement between the the two regarding the right-of-way in traffic. The Indiana Daily Student reported the story Monday and the paper said Knight stopped his car and began talking with Kenny. Knight told Daily Student photographer Bill Warren, who was walking by, to stop taking pictures. When he continued, Warren said Knight pushed him into bushes. (AP Laserphoto)

Nancy's On A Hot Streak Again

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Nancy Lopez is on a hot streak again, but says success is a lot tougher the second time around.

"I feel like I have to work harder to win. It was a lot easier last year — it just seemed easier," she said. "I had nothing to lose and everything to gain. Now I feel like I should win all the time, rather than just finishing in the top ten."

The 22-year-old LPGA headliner made it two straight victories Sunday, emerging from a five-way playoff at the $100,000 Upper Montclair Country Club tournament with her fourth victory of the year.

It was precisely this time a year ago that Mrs Lopez, a rookie, won the New Jersey tournament for her second consecutive triumph on the way to a record five straight victories.

"If I felt I had to win I'd be out here every week," she said, who is skipping this week's event in Corning, N.Y. "Mentally, I feel ready to play when I take off a week.

"I'm probably not playing as well as I did last year during the streak. When I was on that streak, it just seemed everything wanted to go in the hole, everything I hit wound up on the green. I feel like I have to work harder to win now," she said.

The $15,000 first prize opez took home Sunday upped her 1979 tour earnings over $100,000 — halfway to $200,000, the only goal she set for herself this year.

Nancy's cutting down her schedule from 25 tournaments of a year ago to 21 or 22 this year. Her marriage, mental and physical fatigue and a new life style are all factors in her decision.

"It was so hard being out there the whole year. Last year I really had nothing else to do. Now that I'm married, it's been good for me. I'm not letting myself get worn out.

"I don't ever want to feel like it's a job. I love golf but I don't want to be on a course and say, 'Boy, I don't want to be out here today.' I feel good now," she said with her characteristic smile.

Mrs Lopez defeated the legendary Mickey Wright on the second hole of the five-way playoff after Hollis Stacy, Jo Ann Washam and Bonnie Bryant were eliminated on the first hole.

"She's a beautiful golfer. She played like a champion," said Wright, the LPGA record-holder with 82 career victories and 13 in one year. "Maybe I'm giving myself too much credit, but I see in her like I used to feel — composure."

After the tournament, after meeting with the media, Mrs Lopez was swamped by autograph seekers. She responded by signing for 25 minutes, loving every minute of it.

"When they stop asking me, then I'll worry," she said.

Rain Delays Open Qualifier

The heavy rains on Monday forced the scheduled U.S. Open Qualifiers Meet at the Hillcrest Country Club Monday to be postponed until today.

Unless of course, the rain continues. Play is scheduled to begin at 7:45 this morning for the 32 contestants from the West Texas area. The top four finishers will advance to the regional qualifier in Dallas.

"We don't even want to think about any more rain," said Hillcrest golf pro Richard Whittenburg Monday afternoon. "It just can't rain like that again."

Fitch Resigns Cavalier Post

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Cavaliers coach Bill Fitch and Cavaliers president Nick J. Mileti announced Monday that Fitch has been released from the final two years of his contract as coach and general manager of the national Basketball Association team.

Fitch, the only coach in the nine-year history of the expansion-born Cavaliers, said "sometimes the actors need a new stage."

Fitch said he has no immediate plans but, "if I stay in basketball and go elsewhere, and I think the chances are 90 percent that I will, I just want to give myself 24 or 48 hours of breathing room before I do anything."

Mileti said Fitch called him at 8 o'clock Sunday night to tell him that he had reached a decision about leaving, a subject they had talked about following the Cavaliers' 30-52 season.

"It was a mutual conclusion," Mileti said. "I think, number one, it will be a good thing for the Cleveland Cavaliers to have a new coach, and number two, for Bill Fitch to have a new opportunity."

The Cavaliers were the worst team in pro basketball in their first season, 1970-71, as they won only 15 games and lost 67. The team improved steadily over the years, finally making the playoffs and going all the way to the Eastern Division finals against Boston in 1975-76. They also made the playoffs the next two seasons, but failed to earn a post-season berth in 1978-79.

Fitch's overall NBA coaching record stands at 304-434, all with the Cavaliers.

Fitch said the announcement was made Monday in order to coincide with a Cavaliers board of directors meeting today.

Roberts Named Coach Of Year

LEVELLAND (Special) — Larry Roberts of South Plains College has been named 1979 Coach of the Year in tennis for the Western Junior College Athletic Conference.

Roberts was selected in a poll of the WJAC men's tennis coaches, and repeats as a winner of the award. He was also named Coach of the Year in 1977.

"The team shares in this honor," Roberts said. "It is honestly a total surprise. Our team played a very tough schedule, and if not for the hard work of our players, we would not have a competitive program. It is really an honor for me to be recognized by my fellow coaches."

SPC finished fourth in the conference this season with an 11-13 dual match record.

Ideas For Citibus Advertising Considered By Transit Board

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

With gasoline prices rising, Citibus needs a hard-sell advertising campaign to entice residents to ride the bus rather than drive their cars, the Lubbock Transit Advisory Board was told Monday.

Saying he agrees with Mayor Dirk West that Citibus needs a more "functional, hard-sell" advertising campaign, Phil Price, of Phil Price Advertising Inc., presented what he called a "stark, direct" media strategy.

"The cute ads served their purpose," Price said , "but with gasoline prices heading for a dollar a gallon, we have a different situation, a different market and will need different advertising."

West last week called for Citibus advertising aimed at getting white collar workers, who traditionally drive their cars, to ride the bus. Transit coordinator John Wilson agreed the higher price of fuel might get more people out of their cars and onto the bus.

Price said the new ads, which are subject to approval by city council, would emphasize that Citibus offers Lubbockites "an alternative" to driving.

"Ride Citibus, and save gas for the fun trips," was the bottom line on many of the ads he presented to the board.

In other business, board members heard a request by a representative of the League of Women Voters for transit service to the Lubbock City and County Health Departments.

Darlene Buckberry, president of the league, said in light of the "steady rise in client utilization of the health department," the board should consider at least a trial run to the facility located at North University Avenue and Jarvis Street.

Mrs. Buckberry cited figures from a recent league survey at the health department which indicated 106 clients a week would be interested in bus service, of which 46 percent came from East Lubbock.

In response to the league request, which was made on behalf of the maternity and well-child clinic clients, the board ordered a transit department feasibliity study of the situation.

Wilson said the study, which he estimated would be completed in late July, also would include transit department findings on the feasibility of service to the Lubbock International Airport. "I've received quite a few calls for bus service there, too," he said.

Wilson reported Citibus ridership was up one percent during April, with revenue slightly down.

Revenue for the year to date, however, is "above what we had projected," Wilson said. Looking ahead to the end of the present fiscal year on Sept. 30, he projected "we should be slightly under budget for the year — but it will be tight."

Citibus's experimental Route Four, which ran from Monterey Shopping Center to the South Plains Mall via 82nd Street, was deleted May 14, as a result of a City Council vote May 10.

Transit board members had voted last month to ask council for an additional $5,645 to extend the route's 90-day trial period until the end of the present fiscal year.

The route was added in January. Low ridership prompted Wilson's original recommendation that it be deleted.

Some Physicians Do 'Play Doctor'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Up to 13 percent of doctors and 25 percent of gynecologists who responded to a recent survey admitted to "erotic contact" with female patients, The Ladies Home Journal reported Monday.

The definition of "erotic contact" included everything from kissing, to fondling and sexual intercourse.

Of the 460 physicians responding to the survey by UCLA Professors Sheldon H. Kardener and Ivan N. Mensh, 19 percent said they "actually felt this was useful to patients."

Mensh noted that figure compared closely to a study that showed 25 percent of medical students believed erotic contact was acceptable "under the right circumstances."

The figures "delineate a core group of physicians-in-training and physicians-in-practice who are quite seriously asking, 'Why not,.'" said Mensh, a professor of medical psychology.

The gynecologists' study was conducted by Dr. Don Sloan, director of the Human Sexuality clinic at Lenox Hill Hospital in New York.

When five medical specialties were ranked by frequency of contact, gynecologists came in first, followed closely by general practitioners, psychiatrists, internists and surgeons, the story said.

But respondents to the survey said physicians maintain "the seductive patient is far, far more common than the seductive doctor. And the only reason we don't hear more about the seductive patient is that her victim, the physician, has nowhere to complain."

Panic Buying Helps Create Gas Shortage

NEW YORK (AP) — The great toilet paper shortage began fairly simply.

Johnny Carson made a joke on the "Tonight" show a couple of years ago about supplies of toilet paper being tight. There really was no shortage — until Carson's joke.

In a matter of days, toilet paper became a rare commodity. Americans, believing Carson was serious, bought every roll of toilet paper they could get hold of. Soon, lots of people had several weeks' supply of toilet paper — but stores had virtually none.

That phenomenon is known as panic buying. And many experts say it's a chief cause of the current gasoline crunch.

There is little question that there actually is a shortage of gasoline — demand for the fuel has been going up at a 4 percent annual pace, while oil companies, compensating for a shortage of crude oil, have cut back shipments to dealers by about 10 percent.

But analysts say that shortage should have been easy to manage. The lines which have appeared in California and elsewhere, they say, have been due not so much to the shortage itself as to motorists' perception that the shortage is worse than it actually is.

That perception — built from news reports, rumor and personal experience with gas lines — has worsened the situation, analysts say.

"If you wake up in the morning, turn on the TV and see a news story about long gas lines, you're going to think, 'Wow, I better go out and buy some gas,'" said one oil industry executive.

"As I drive around and I see people in lines at gasoline stations I think I can't afford to let my car get down to a low level," said Michael Canes, an analyst at the American Petroleum Institute, a Washington-based industry group. "It inclines me to think I must fill up earlier to avoid that."

If enough people have the same thought, they can cause serious problems for the nation's gasoline supply.

Analysts say that what happens in a panic-buying situation is that motorists start pulling up to gas pumps as soon as the gas gauge reaches the three-quarters mark, instead of waiting until they're down to one-quarter of a tank, as is normal.

The origins of this are varied. Many analysts say panic buying is tripped by the first signs of tight gasoline supplies — news that companies are cutting shipments to dealers or that gas stations are closing Sundays, cutting hours or limiting sales to a few gallons.

By saying "top it off" instead of "fill 'er up," motorists are setting off a whole chain of events that analysts say can lead to trouble.

To begin with, the difference between running around with a quarter tank of gas and three-quarters of a tank is about 10 gallons. If all of America's 134 million cars and trucks made that change, 1.34 billion gallons of gasoline would shift from the distribution system to gas tanks. That's a 42-day supply, an amount called "absolutely staggering" by Larry Goldstein of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, an industry group.

While that probably would never happen, a recent American Automobile Association check of 40 cars coming into a Washington, D.C., gas station found only two actually low on gas. The rest were topping off.

And topping off creates problems. It takes just about as long to buy two gallons of gas as it does to buy 10. Although the pumping time is a bit longer for 10 gallons, the time to pull up, give your order, have the pump nozzle put into your tank, put the nozzle back, replace the gas cap and pay is just about the same no matter how much gas is bought.

So five motorists buying two gallons each take about five times as much time as one motorist purchasing 10 gallons.

"You get more visits per person into gas stations, and under queueing theory, you must take up more time at the pump," said the petroleum institute's Canes.

That time translates into lines. And those lines, and news reports of them, cause more people to think about topping off. Hoarding starts, further depleting supplies and forcing gas stations to close earlier. And motorists, seeing stations closing, rush to buy gas before stations close, causing them to shut down even earlier.

In other words, panic begets panic.

"The characteristics, the physical phenomena that cause this behavior do feed on themselves," said Canes.

Eventually, analysts say, the panic-buying fever wears off, and supplies return to something like normal. But no one is sure when that will happen, though there are suggestions on how to hasten it.

One possibility is to replace maximum purchase limits — which analysts say encourage panic buying — with minimum purchase levels.

"I think one thing that every state should require is a minimum purchase of $5," said Goldstein. "That will force people to keep from topping their tanks.

"If everybody bought 10 gallons," he added, "It would be faster than if everybody bought two gallons — because you'd have everybody in line that many fewer times."

French Paper Says Emperor Saw Massacre Of Children

PARIS (AP) — Emperor Bokassa I was present at a massacre of school children last month in the Central African Empire, a Paris daily newspaper reported Monday, quoting a person recently returned to France.

The Communist Party newspaper L'Humanite said its witness, a French woman who asked not to be identified, did not personally see any of the alleged killings. But it said she talked with survivors and the families of children who had disappeared.

"According to all the accounts told to me, Emperor Bokassa was present at Ngaragba Prison during the two nights during which the massacres were carried out," she was quoted as saying.

The Paris section of the London-based human rights organization Amnesty International, citing "numerous, varied and reliable sources, both African and European," said last week about 100 school children between the ages of 8 and 16 were killed April 18 by soldiers of Bokassa's imperial guard.

Amnesty said the children were beaten, stabbed and stoned to death in punishment for a demonstrations against new government regulations that they buy and wear uniforms to school.

The Paris daily Le Monde, in a report Monday from Kigali, Rwanda, where Bokassa is attending a Franco-African summit meeting, said the emperor issued a strong denial and challenged Amnesty to divulge the sources of its information. "Nobody massacred any children," Bokassa said. "It was students at the Jean-Bedel Bokassa University, these big children, that revolted over the question of scholarships.

I immediately took measures to pay the scholarships. Then they protested about the uniforms. We told them: 'If you don't want to wear them, okay, forget it.' In fact, now they wear them.

"It was the students, the big children, that demonstrated, never the little children of eight years old. None of them were killed. In my country, everybody calls me Papa."

The woman quoted by L'Humanite said police and members of the imperial guard rounded up the children and put them in trucks. The children were not allowed to stand, but instead were stacked up in thre layers, she said, and several were dead of suffocation on arrival at the prison.

"This I got not only from survivors, but also from people who live near the prison and saw the trucks arrive," she said.

She said that at the prison 50 or 60 children were put in each small cell and left for 24 hours in temperatures of about 95 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit with nothing to drink.

"From time to time they would open the door and tell the survivors to pull the bodies of their comrades outside," she said, adding that one youth told her he was the sole survivor from a group of 25.

"He was arrested in the middle of the night, thrown in a truck and taken to the outskirts of town. He told me that when he arrived, Emperor Bokassa was there," she said.

She said the youth told her Bokassa made the children lie in the road and ordered a soldier to drive a truck over them.

"The soldier began to cry," she said. "He had children of the same age and he could not do what he was ordered. According to her story, Bokassa beat the driver with a stick and ordered the guards to stone the youths. She said the bodies were then taken to the prison. The sole survivor regained consciousness about 3 a.m., she said. Of two soldiers present one wanted to kill him, but the second stopped the first and allowed the youth to flee."

Student Gunned Down In Street

ATLANTA (AP) — A Georgia Tech student had little chance to save himself before he was gunned down on a midtown street, according to two fellow students who escaped unharmed but frightened.

"He just said, 'What are you doing? That's my car,'" and then was fatally shot in the chest, said David Lapin, 19, of Westbury, N.Y.

The body of Alex George Kiehl, 20, of Virginia Beach, Va., was left lying in the street, while two men forced Lapin and JoAnn Vassalo, 19, of Mantua, N.J., to ride away with them in Kiehl's car.

Lapin told police he and Miss Vassalo were waiting in Kiehl's car in front of Miss Vassalo's apartment Sunday when two men jumped into the car and demanded money.

Kiehl was shot when he returned and asked what the men were doing in his car, Lapin said.

"We are looking for two black males," Detective J.T. Turner said Monday. "Other than that there is nothing new."

"One guy was definitely crazy," said Lapin. "He kept on telling me how much he loved money, and how much he wanted to blow my face away. He held the gun to the back of my head and kept on clicking it and unclicking it, just to scare me."

"We were sitting in the back seat, and they turned the music up and told us to shut our eyes. I thought it was all over then," said Miss Vassalo.

"We don't know why they let us go," she said. "They said if we didn't give them any hassles, they wouldn't kill us."

The gunmen took the two to a bank to withdraw $100 from an automatic teller, Lapin said.

The students said they tried to assure their abductors that Kiehl was not badly hurt. "We thought if they knew they had killed one, they would just go ahead and kill us," Miss Vassalo said.

After about an hour, they were driven to the west side of the city.

"They said 'Get out,'" said Miss Vassalo. "We did, and we ran ... and they took off."

Police said Kiehl's car was recovered later Sunday morning near where the two students were released.

Lapin said he and Kiehl had been planning to go to Kiehl's hometown over the weekend but changed their plans.

"If only we had gone ...," he said.

Bonn Agency Bans Nazi Books, Records

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A West German government agency on Monday banned from public display eight books and records on grounds they glorified and represented the Nazi regime as harmless.

The banned material included Nazi propaganda photographs found in so-called candy surprise bags, said a statement from the federal agency preventing the distribution of material endangering minors.

The books prohibited for sale to minors included "The Century Fraud," implying that reports of the Nazi genocide were fabrication, "Dictatorship, War, Destroyed Homeland 1933-1945," which also contained photographs produced by the propaganda ministry of Joseph Goebbels.

Among the records banned were a speech Goebbels gave at a mass rally.
