SIX CONVICTS FLEE HARLEM PRISON

Wide Search Is Directed by Police Near Houston

HOUSTON, Feb. 19.—Six long term convicts, including a murderer, fled in a daring break from a field of the Harlem State Prison Farm, 24 miles west of here, late yesterday.

Prisoners, meager information received here said, obtained an automobile from a Mexican and drove away toward Houston. Authorities believed it possible the prisoners might have skirted Houston and turned toward Clovis and an indirect road leading to northern Harris County and the network of state highways crossing that section.

Houston police immediately dispatched radio cars to all highways leading to the city in the hope of capturing the desperadoes. Prison officials scoured highways in all directions from the prison farm, which is located on the banks of the Brazos River. Captain A. N. Owens, farm manager, said the six men who escaped were Walter Sarrett, of Hopkins County, serving 50 years for murder; Eddie Vanden, of Houston, serving 99 for robbery; S. B. Vowell of Lynn County, serving 50 for robbery; LeRoy Eggleston of Nueces County, serving seven for car theft; and Nonie Dobbs, of Kaufman County, serving 13 for arson.

Description of the fleeing desperadoes was broadcast to all Texas police departments.

'We Need Rain,' Dr. MacMillan Tells Rotarians—And Gets Hearty Applause

When Dr. John Angus MacMillan, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, said "a good soaking in rain" as the principal necessity in his talk, "What We Need," before the Rotary Club today, he struck a responsive chord and was rewarded with a hearty round of applause.

"And another thing we need," he continued, "is a tonic for our

SHERIFF NAMED AS OKLAHOMA WARDEN

Succeeds Woman as Head of Granite Reformatory

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 19.—Sheriff Fred Hunt, Tishomingo, was appointed warden of the Granite State Reformatory today, succeeding Mrs. George A. Waters, only woman warden of a prison for men in the United States.

The appointment followed the second break from the prison in recent months, and came while huge posses of citizens scoured southwestern Oklahoma for 18 desperadoes who left a trail of terror as they continued attempts to make good their escape.

Mrs. Waters said posses were concentrating in the vicinities of Elk City, Sentinal and Carter, where homes were robbed and cars seized.

Chairman L. M. Nichols of the Board of Affairs recommended yesterday that Mrs. Waters be removed and a man named in her place. He said he made the recommendation because he believed that sex perversion was practiced and could not be stamped out by a woman; that there was idleness and lack of a program, and that use of a woman warden is contrary to the "best judgment" of leading penologists. He added "it is no place for a woman."

Bruno's Counsel Is Denied Appeal

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 19.—Chancellor Luther A. Campbell today denied the counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann an application for an appeal to Supreme Court from conviction for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Authorities Study Legislative Needs

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Administration authorities gave special study today to possible legislative needs arising from yesterday's Supreme Court ruling, although White House officials said immediate action was unnecessary.

Legal experts were especially concerned regarding Chief Justice Hughes finding that government alterations of its own bonds was unconstitutional and might constitute a breach of contract if damages could be shown.

ROOSEVELT IS WELL SATISFIED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—President Roosevelt today turned his attention to completing his new NRA recommendations, completely satisfied that yesterday's supreme court action leaves his monetary program in a position so sound that no further action is needed.

Information from the White House said a message proposing a revised National Recovery Administration probably would go before Congress tomorrow.

A 'WHITE LIE' THAT ALL PARIS SHARES

Mme. Stavisky Goes Weekly From Prison Cell to Hospital, Where Children Visit Mother They Think Is Ill

Once every week Madame Arlette Stavisky leaves (as shown here) the Petite Rocquette jail and goes to a hospital, where her two children, Claude, 10, (right), and Micheline, 6 (left), go to the bedside of the "ailing" mother.

By NEA Service
PARIS, Feb. 19.—A plot in which Madame Arlette Stavisky, widow of the famous crook; the police, and most of the population of Paris is included, is keeping the two Stavisky children from knowing that their mother is in prison.

Every week, Madame Stavisky leaves the Petite Rocquette jail, accompanied by a detective. She goes to a private hospital, gets into a bed and there receives her two children.

The boy, Claude, 10 years old, and his little sister, Micheline, 6, are brought to the hospital by their devoted nurse, Mlle. Camille Lafrancois. They pass an hour with their mother and go away hoping that next week mamma will be well enough to come home with them.

The fact that the children are able to live without public charity—since Mlle. Stavisky is broke—is due to two people, Mlle. Lafrancois, who is using her own small income to support them, and a former colleague of Stavisky's called Poulner, now a fugitive from justice himself, who rented the apartment where they live for them before he himself ran afoul of the law some weeks ago.

JUDGE SOUNDS CIVIL COURT DOCKET

Two Indictments Returned by District Grand Jury

Judge R. H. Cocke, special district judge occupying the bench for District Judge A. J. Fires, who is ill, this morning sounded the civil docket for the February term of 100th Judicial District Court of Hall County, and set cases for the balance of the term.

Several default cases, including a number of divorce suits, are scheduled to be heard by the judge this afternoon. Attorneys asked continuance in almost a third of the cases called by Judge Cocke this morning.

Two indictments had been returned by the grand jury last night and the jurors are still in session investigating possible indictments today, according to District Clerk J. N. Cybert. Among the true bills of indictment expected to be returned by the grand jury before they are dismissed the latter part of this week are possible charges of forgery, cattle theft, burglary, felony theft and liquor.

Judge Cocke yesterday morning charged the grand jury to "work towards justice by returning bills of indictment against all parties where evidence of guilt was presented."

Petit jurors have been summoned for next week and for the balance of the term. The first week is to be devoted to non-jury civil cases, the judge indicated this morning.

Bomb Is Received In Mail by Long

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Examination of a bomb received in the mail yesterday at the office of Senator Huey Long disclosed today that a piece of paper used in constructing the instrument bore a strange message. War Department interpreters informed Long's office the message contained Greek, Yiddish and Turkish words. The package was postmarked Medford, Ore.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—A bomb which failed to explode was received in the mail Monday by Senator Huey P. Long.

Long was absent from the capital, spending the weekend in New York on private business, when a package was delivered in the mail.

Earl Christenberry, the Senator's secretary, said he opened the package without noticing from where it had been sent. The machine was found within.

He immediately telephoned postal authorities and inspectors were sent to take charge.

Glorifying Yourself

No elaborate equipment is needed to pat tonic into skin. This young woman uses a piece of cotton twisted into a firm pad. Skin tonic should never be rubbed into the skin.

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer
Skin tonics and mild astringents are to the complexion what a cold shower after a hot bath is to the body. Each closes pores, clarifies the skin and makes one feel fresher.

Furthermore, tonics that are applied correctly stimulate circulation. They never should be smoothed or rubbed into the skin. Instead, a patten should be used.

Keep your bottle of astringent in the ice box or put a little of it into a dish and place the dish in a bowl of cracked ice for ten minutes. Then, when you have cleaned your face, applied tissue cream and removed it, wrap clean cotton around the end of a patten, dip it in the tonic and then pat face and neck.

Use only upward and outward motions while you are patting. Be careful not to bruise the skin, but pat briskly enough to make the blood rush to your face. If you don't own a regular patten, the end of a shoe tree, heavily wrapped with soft cotton, will do very well. So will a patten made from cotton alone.

Simply take a large piece of cotton, twist one end to make a handle and flatten the other end to form a hard pad.

Use tonic on the neck as well as face. If you have vertical lines between your eyes or horizontal ones across your forehead, be sure to pat them for an unusually long length of time.

The old gold standard, worked from London, is on test of what the new standard would be, worked from several centers.

Pains That Cardui Helps

For monthly discomfort, tired nerves, run-down women ought to try Cardui. So many who build up with the help of purely vegetable Cardui overcome periodic pains. "At times, I would cramp and feel mighty bad," writes Mrs. M. L. Brady, of Swansea, S. C. "I knew that I needed something to help me. My mother had taken Cardui and had told me about it. It helped me. I find it a very good tonic as well as a help for pain and nervous condition."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

$170,000 Placed in County by Relief Measure During Two Years

A total of $170,393.80 has been spent to administer relief in Hall County during the past two years, it was revealed in a financial report compiled last week-end in the office of Judge A. C. Hoffman, county relief administrator.

The report covers the period from January 1933, when the local relief office was established, to and including December 1934.

Of the total expenditures, slightly less than 40 per cent was spent for direct relief while less than 24 per cent was spent for work relief, the report shows. Only about four per cent of the total amount was spent for local administration expenses, the balance of 32 per cent going for CWA, teachers' salaries and other authorized expenses, the report shows.

According to the report, a total of 972 families representing 4,370 persons are now on relief. The smallest number on relief during the two-year period was in October of 1933 when only 40 families, representing 122 persons, were receiving aid, the report shows. For the same month of last year, 727 families, including 3,206 persons, were receiving aid.

The report includes direct relief, work relief, administration expenses, C. W. A. expenses, teachers' salaries, other authorized expenses, total expenditures for each month, number of cases on record and the number of persons receiving relief, as well as receipts and disbursements. Copies of the report were filed with the Texas Relief Commission as well as the Hall County Relief Administration board, Judge Hoffman said.

Recapitulation sheets of the report show the following totals for the two year period: Total expenditures $170,393; direct relief $65,558; work relief $40,418; administration expenses $7,117; other authorized expenses $1,201; teachers' salaries $5,618; C. W. A. expenses $50,490; average number of families on relief per month 396.

A break-down of the report for the two-year period shows the following comparisons: Direct relief in 1933, $2,147 and in 1934, $63,410; work relief in 1933, $20,259 and in 1934, $20,159; administration expenses in 1933, $1,555 and in 1934, $5,561; Total expenditures in 1933, $32,352 and in 1934, $137,141.

Government CWA projects were in operation only from December of 1933 until March of 1934 and during the four months a total of $41,398 was spent in this county, the report shows.

Claims Bulls Better for Work Than Horses

(By United Press)

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Feb. 19.—J. A. Fisher would make life less rosy for His Majesty the Bull. The 61-year-old Missouri farmer would goad the cow pasture king out of the Sultaness life of ease and make him a beast of burden.

"I have been training bulls to saddle and harness for 45 years," Fisher asserted, "and they make better work animals than horses."

"Bulls can be used profitably on many farms. A 1,500-pound bull will pull as much as the average team of horses, and is better in muddy, swampy land."

"A bull pulls much like an ox, slow but steady."

Fisher's current saddle bull is "Baby," a Shorthorn. "Baby" also is broken to harness and can pull up a four-inch tree with ease.

"I started breaking bulls when I lived in Wyandotte, Kan.," said Fisher. "I rode to my Missouri farm 34 years ago on the back of a saddle-broke Shorthorn."

Bull-breaking has its disadvantages, as when one recalcitrant animal recently knocked its trainer down. But that was because Fisher turned his back and lost "control," Fisher's "control" is a rope attached to a ring in the bull's nose. A good yank on the rope will make a bad bull behave, says Fisher.

Meacham's Jumps Into City Cage League Le Quannah Selected as Site of Greenbelt Golf Tour

TARVER'S FALLS IN CRUCIAL BATTLE

Harrison's in Third Place; Play Continues Tonight

Led by Bob Clark's spree of basket-tossing, Meacham's Marines plunged into the lead as the City Basketball League entered the final stretch of its championship race, defeating the Tarver Pillboys, 50 to 24, in a crucial game last night at the high school gymnasium.

In the second game of the doubleheaders, the Harrison five pushed into third place over the Compressors, 29 to 25.

Tonight's Games
The battle is renewed tonight at 7:15 o'clock with Meacham's tangle with the bottom place Compress quintet in the first game of another doubleheader. In the second game, Tarver's meets Harrison's. Tarver supplies the referee for the first tilt, and Meacham's for the second.

The Marines gained an early lead over the Pillboys last night and were never headed, although the Tarver shooters tried in vain to multiply their counters. Clark set the pace throughout more than three-quarters of the game, going out in the final session on personal fouls, but not until he had accounted for 21 points.

Dean Is 'Off'
Dean, Tarver ace, did not get into the game until halftime, and with Meacham holding a double score on the Pillboys, he was unable to get underway. He made only six points, as compared with 27 in his previous appearance.

The second game last night was rough and fast all the way, with the teams fighting hard for the lead. The scoring was also close, with Parker, Harrison forward, leading with 10 points, followed by his teammate, Billings, center, and Evans, Compress forward, with nine, and Harrison, Compress center, with eight.

Admission for tonight's doubleheader is five and 10 cents. A near capacity crowd witnessed last night's crucial contests.

Couldn't Beat Blondy

In 1933 one of these fellows helped the Giants win the National League pennant and the winner's share of the world series dough. He was jockey Blondy Ryan, shortstop, whose classic "They can't beat us, Bill," slogan, and everyday chatter and aggressiveness in the infield, was the old pepper needed to cinch the honors for Bill Terry's outfit. In 1934 another yelper, also a shortstop, was oratorical enough to push the Cards through that last-ditch fight for the National League bunting with the Giants, and vitriolic to such a degree that he simply slew Mickey Cochrane's very nice and gentlemanly ball players. Leo Durocher was the guy. Sometimes he's known as "Mouthy"; other times as "Lippy."

This season we'll have three of the "holler guys" performing in the National League, which promises a very interesting and exciting campaign. Joining the ranks of Ryan and Durocher is Dick Bartell, a beeper in his own right, whose light has been partly hidden under a bushel while playing shortstop for the Fruitless Phillies. Bartell switched places with Blondy Ryan in the winter deal between the Giants and Jimmy Wilson's team. If he can come up to the standards set by Ryan, Terry's team is due to terrorize the turnip thumpers again.

CYCLONE HAS FIVE MORE GAMES

The Memphis Cyclone, far from being ready to close its basketball season after rising up to smite the Estelline Bear Cubs in the battle for third place in the county championship tournament, is entering the cage sport with a final spree before closing its season nearly two weeks from now. Coach Arthur Howard this morning announced five games to be played between now and

March 1, at which time the season definitely will end. The Cyclone returns to the painted court here Thursday night, meeting the powerful Carey cagers. After dropping two games to the Carey five, the second after the Cyclone had led for three quarters, Howard is certain his club can emerge with a victory here Thursday night. Next week the Cyclone has a feature series. The club will play two games with the Estelline Cubs, at Estelline Tuesday night and here next Thursday night. The season ends when the Cyclone again invades the stronghold of the Lakeview Eagles Friday night, March 1. In the meantime, the Cyclone is slated to meet the Hedley Owls. However, the date and place of this game has not been decided upon.

Baseball Requires More 'Holler Guys' in Action

By JIMMY DONAHUE
(NEA Service Sports Writer)
NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Back

in 1908 it was a "holler guy" who won the pennant for the Chicago Cubs. Little Johnny Evers, the second baseman, was the fellow. He talked Umpire Hank O'Day into rendering a decision that Fred Merkle, for failing to touch second after knocking in what apparently was the winning Giant run, was out, and that the game which would have decided the National League championship would have to be played over.

Mordecai Brown bested Christy Mathewson in the playoff, the Cubs won the gonfalon, and took Detroit in the world series that followed—all because Evers had what it took to stand out there on second base and beller that Merkle was out. The "holler guys," as the trade knows 'em, still are winning pennants in the majors. They are the cocky, militant sort of players who, on the slightest provocation, beef about umpires' decision, pester opposing pitchers and players, carry a chip on their shoulders, and generally make themselves obnoxious while playing a bangup game of ball.

Couldn't Beat Blondy
In 1933 one of these fellows helped the Giants win the National League pennant and the winner's share of the world series dough. He was jockey Blondy Ryan, shortstop, whose classic "They can't beat us, Bill," slogan, and everyday chatter and aggressiveness in the infield, was the old pepper needed to cinch the honors for Bill Terry's outfit. In 1934 another yelper, also a shortstop, was oratorical enough to push the Cards through that last-ditch fight for the National League bunting with the Giants, and vitriolic to such a degree that he simply slew Mickey Cochrane's very nice and gentlemanly ball players. Leo Durocher was the guy. Sometimes he's known as "Mouthy"; other times as "Lippy."

This season we'll have three of the "holler guys" performing in the National League, which promises a very interesting and exciting campaign. Joining the ranks of Ryan and Durocher is Dick Bartell, a beeper in his own right, whose light has been partly hidden under a bushel while playing shortstop for the Fruitless Phillies. Simon Legree—Phooey!
Bartell is just about the cockiest, devil-take-the-hindmost cuse

These three National Leaguers have the reputation of being the greatest "jockeys" in the majors. Left is Blondy Ryan, Phillies' shortstop; center, Dick Bartell, whose short-stopping may be just what the Giants need to raise the National League pennant in the Polo grounds; and right, Leo Durocher, Cardinals' shortstop whose cocky attitude has earned him the nicknames "Mouthy" and "Lippy."

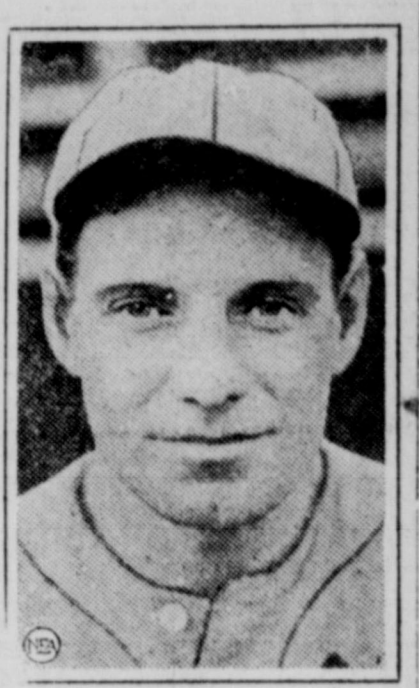

that ever slid into second with his spikes in battle array. Twice last year brought on near riots when he slashed Linus Frey and Joe Judge, Brooklyn players, with his steel. A vituperative gent, in there kicking at everything and riding opposing players unmercifully, Dick is one of the greatest little goat getters in the game, and a distinct psychological advantage to have on your side of the fence. It takes a guy like Dick to pep up the infield. With the Phils, he inspired Pinky Whitney to play the best ball of his career when they played side by side, held up the pitchers with his chatter and cockiness, and was one big reason why Curt Davis was such a success on the mound in his first year up last season.

Bartell will have plenty of competition from Durocher and Ryan. Lippy is already predicting the Cards will repeat, and Ryan, figured to be squelched when he was shipped downstream to the Phils, is telling Manager Wilson to huck up; that everything is all right now that he, Mister Ryan, is playing shortstop.

Cronin's Chin Hunts Trouble
In the American League, the "holler guys" aren't so plentiful. Probably the outstanding one is another shortstop—Joe Cronin.

Although he doesn't go out of his way to antagonize opposing players, the Mick isn't one to be shoved around. Always ready to argue with an umpire at the drop of a hat, he also is watchful of his men's welfare on the field, and you'll always find him sticking that lantern jaw of his into any mess his boys start.

He won a pennant for Washington in 1933 with his never-say-die attitude. He might have repeated last season had not everything from myopia to spavins attacked his athletes at the capital.

If Cronin can steer the bantshoes clear of his trail in Beantown—and those Boston Irish brew powerful potions to guard against the evil spirits—he again may wag that chin home in front in the American League race.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person or corporation, which may appear in the columns of this paper, will be gladly corrected upon due notice of same being given to the editor personally at the office at 617 Main Street, Memphis, Texas.

MEMBERS of the Hall County sheriff's department went out recently and did some "home work" with machine gun, tear gas bombs and bullet-proof shields and protectors. They proved to be fairly efficient with these weapons.

We do not know, really, whether there is any official consideration of supplying the department with these latest types of criminal intimidators, but if there is no such idea, we believe there should be.

The Hall County sheriff's department is about the only one left in this section of the country not fully equipped to cope with desperadoes in the latest and most successful methods. Machine gun and tear gas have become a part of the modern law enforcement office, and are the only weapons with which officers can meet desperadoes on an even footing. They have been added to the forces at Wellington, Childress, Quanah, Vernon, Wichita Falls, Amarillo and many other places in the Panhandle.

Without such weapons, how can the sheriff and his deputies successfully cope with such men as Raymond Hamilton, who at present is at large with no less than eight machine guns and 3,600 rounds of ammunition? Perhaps you will reply that there is little possibility of Hamilton being spotted here. That may be correct, yet he is believed to have passed through here recently, and if the officers had cornered him, what chance would they have had with pistols if he were armed with machine guns and other more effective weapons?

Eighteen convicts are now at large in southwestern Oklahoma. Most of them are desperate and would not hesitate to shoot it out with the law. They could easily head in this direction—at least a few of them—and our officers should be prepared to meet such men, not on an even footing or at a disadvantage, but with everything possible to their advantage.

These are just a couple of examples. It will be too late to wait until such weapons are needed before we consider getting them. They should be ready for any emergency.

LEAGUE NO BETTER THAN ITS MEMBERS

IF you have innocently wondered why the League of Nations was quite unable to do anything in the least effective along the line of slowing up Japan's seizure of territory in Manchuria, you might profitably read the current cable dispatches about Italy's dispute with Abyssinia.

Just what has been happening in those sun-smitten outposts along the Ethiopian border is not at all clear—won't be clear, probably, until the smoke clears away and a good many young men of both races have died.

But it is evident that the excellent old game of imperialism is being played anew, and the wind-up will probably see a new sector of Africa experiencing the joys of European rule.

Two or three things are rather significant.

One is the fact that Abyssinia appealed to the League of Nations to settle the dispute, and that Italy refused to permit it. Another is that France, according to a recent cable, "has agreed tacitly to give Italy a free hand in dealing with Abyssinia, even to taking over most of the country."

In other words, Italy is behaving toward Abyssinia—with Europe's general consent—in much the same way that Japan behaved toward China; and this need not imply a criticism of either nation, because that is the way strong nations almost invariably behave toward weak ones.

Our own nation got possession of California and other southwestern states in much the same way, incidentally.

Now the thing to bear in mind in this connection is simply the fact that a stream can rise no higher than its source. An international organization cannot impose on any nation a rule of conduct which all its member nations are not ready to accept for themselves.

The league, to be brief, could not keep Japan from taking what it wanted in the Orient because the leading members of the league have done the same sort of thing themselves and are prepared to do it again if they see fit.

The plain fact, then, is that no international league can keep the peace until the nations which compose it are ready to turn over a new leaf, individually, in their own dealings with other nations.

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Whenever the least little pimple or blemish appears of your face or scalp, don't try to pick at it with your fingers, no matter how clean they may be. Doing so may make the condition worse and cause the spread of what is generally called acne.

Acne usually refers to that type of eruption which comes on in young men and women in the period between youth and manhood and womanhood. The scalp is scaly, the skin slightly greasy, and marked by a considerable number of blackheads and pimples. Sometimes these pimples break, form crusts, and leave either tiny pits in the skin, or scars.

Since this condition is associated usually with an infection by germs which are almost constantly present on the skin, cleanliness is of greatest importance.

It is particularly important that the material from the scalp does not spread down over the skin. If there is much infection on the forehead, the hair should be kept short.

Plenty of good soap and warm water is of great help in this condition. Soft water is preferable and any good non-irritating soap will help to clear up a greasy, scaly skin.

If a cloth is used in washing the face, this cloth should be boiled each time after use and a new cloth should be taken frequently. It is sometimes helpful in such cases to apply repeated towels or to steam the face.

The flow of perspiration carries with it a good deal of infected material. After a series of such hot applications, it is well to apply cold briefly, to contract the swollen blood vessels and pores.

The question often is raised about the use of makeup on a face frequently covered with pimples and blackheads. Makeup will do no harm if it is completely removed each evening and applied freshly the next day.

The lotions used on the face preferably should include those that are antiseptic by their content of alcohol, and which are at the same time astringent.

In many cases, it will be found that persons with acne are con-

That Take Profit Out of War
Commission Silently Fades Out
Baruch Won't Be Handled

is a Wary Soul.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—There's some talk of sending a search party after the president's take-profit-out-of-war commission appointed several weeks ago with great ballyhoo. But the search probably would be hopeless.

The epitaph was spoken one recent evening when Bernard M. Baruch, the financier, telephoned Senator Vandenberg of the Nye munitions committee and is said to have confessed:

"Well, that's about the last you're going to hear from the president's commission, I guess."

Baruch and Gen. Hugh Johnson, the committee's key men, had just endorsed the McSwain war mobilization bill before the House military affairs committee. The commission itself included many high government officials, especially those of the War and Navy departments.

It was widely considered a means of stopping further Nye committee revelations. It was charged with making a survey and recommendation as to war profits. But the Nye committee rebelled and the commission hasn't been heard of since its appointment.

Snare and a Delusion

Its ghost, however, seems to hover approvingly over the McSwain bill, which seems to be one of those administration measures often introduced to head off threatened legislation of more drastic nature.

The bill would permit the president to peg prices in wartime or on congressional declaration of a war emergency and to commandeer and control material resources and industry.

The Nye committee scoffs at the measure as a "blank check" which guarantees high war profits and seems to represent only some ideas Baruch and Johnson had after the last war.

Prices usually skyrocket in advance of war, it is pointed out, and the McSwain bill doesn't even pretend to curb peacetime profiteering by shipbuilders and munitions makers in collusion with navy and war departments.

The committee feels it has shown the army's GHQ to be at the du Pont offices in Delaware and the navy's to be wherever officers of the "big three" shipbuilders go into a huddle.

Won't Pull Punches

Friends of Baruch have secretly approached the Nye committee to urge that he be treated as a "friendly witness," anxious to help in their good work.

But the commission compared to handle gloves. It has a lot of facts to the attorney, with the warrant perjury, a shipbuilders' le probably will pre least three other nesses in the ship who are suspected the truth.

At the Theatres

PALACE

With two of the outstanding players on today's screen together with what Hollywood has termed "the season's perfect cast," the most distinguished drama of American family life of the year, Ursula Parrott's "There's Always Tomorrow," will open at the Palace theatre today.

It features Frank Morgan and Binnie Barnes, bringing the fascinating second wife of "Private Life of Henry VIII," to the screen in her first American film. She is now under long term contract to Universal.

In addition to Mr. Morgan and Miss Barnes, the cast includes Lois Wilson, as the wife, Louise Latimer, Universal's latest importation from Broadway, Elizabeth Young, who won distinction with Garbo in "Queen Christina," Robert Taylor, Alan Hale, Maurice Murphy, Dick Winslow, Helen Parrish and the noted New York comedienne, Margaret Hamilton.

The picture is one of the most wholesome of the year, deriving its sparkling, buoyant humor from the counterplay in a typical American home. The film reunites three of the memorable family of "Seed," Miss Wilson, Helen Parrish and Dick Winslow.

RITZ

An entertaining blend of drama and comedy on the subjects of office life and love, Paramount's "One Hour Late," comes today only to the Ritz Theatre, with Joe Morrison, Helen Twelveteens and Conrad Nagel in the leading featured roles.

The picture, which has its exciting climax in a stalled office elevator, tells the love story of two ordinary people, played by Morrison and Miss Twelveteens.

The picture, directed by Ralph Murphy, is a dramatic account of the comedy and heartbreak in store for two penniless youngsters

THE NOSEY GUY

Other counties in this neck of the woods are putting out trees along the highways for beautification purposes. Just what is being done in Hall County along this line? Work of filling the deep bar pits on each side of the pavement and cleaning off the right-of-way has been done. If trees are added, it would add much to the appearance of the "main streets" of the county, and impress the traveling public with the up-to-dateness of Hall County people.

While on the subject of tree planting, wouldn't it be nice to plant trees on the home premises and along the streets of Memphis? Shade and fruit trees planted now would get the right start, and in a few years furnish shade and fruit—of which no one can say, "We already have too much."

Then, it is not too soon to start making gardens and preparing for flowers. A home is not a home without trees, shrubbery, garden and flowers.

"We've learned that this depression is not so temporary. We know now that it is a fight to the finish. Those of us who have been looking around the corner so constantly for prosperity have about given up that practice, but that doesn't mean that prosperity won't come eventually.

"But we must have courage—we must have intestinal stamina. We need rain and I think we'll get it. What can you Rotarians do about it? Well, I hardly know. It wouldn't do any good to ask you to pray for rain because you don't pray for anything else."

The Harmonica Band, directed by Iris Bradshaw, entertained the club for ten or fifteen minutes immediately after lunch. A dozen boys between the ages of ten and fifteen, each "equipped" with a harmonica compose the organization. They rendered "Home Sweet Home," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Home on the Range," "Comin' Round the Mountain" and several other numbers. FORMER ESTELLINE GIRL 'CRASHES' MOVIE LOT AND IS INVITED TO RETURN

Special to The Democrat

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 19.—A former Texas girl, Miss Kathleen Wright of Estelline, now living in Los Angeles, surprised all directors and guards at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios by getting inside the studio lot and remaining over four hours without a pass. During that time, she talked with several directors about entering pictures, and one director, George Seitz, gave Miss Wright his promise to use her if possible in the next picture he produces, she says.

She also met and talked with Jean Harlow, who was having several scenes taken for her next picture. It was a cabaret scene where Miss Harlow did several dance numbers.

When the chief of the studio guards heard of Miss Wright's escapade, he had her brought to his office. He said that any girl with the ability to get inside the studio grounds without a pass, while pictures were being made—a feat never before accomplished—would be granted a pass if she would permit him to be her escort.

Miss Wright compromised with the chief of the guards and will visit the studio again soon.

Hitler and French Envoy Talk It Over

In the midst of their governmental bickering over Berlin's final acceptance of the Franco-British reciprocal peace treaty, Chancellor Hitler and Francois Poncet (right), French Ambassador, met under informal circumstances at a banquet in the German capital. They are shown in conversation so earnest that it seems like an impromptu diplomatic conference.
