Japanese Yen Jumps Up 5% In 1st Day Trading

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese yen jumped up 5.2 per cent Saturday in its first day as a floating currency seeking its own value according to supply and demand.

The upward revaluation meant that a U.S. dollar which bought 360 yen on Thursday now buys around 342.

The government took the unprecedented step of floating the yen to let it find its own level amid mounting international pressure following President Nixon's dollar defense policy announcement Aug. 15.

May Japanese reacted with gloom for the upward revaluation means the goods they make for export will be more expensive to foreign buyers—a heavy number of them Americans. Many feared a sharp drop in the purchase of Japanese goods abroad.

Japanese newspapers advised readers that a period of austerity will be forthcoming. They reasoned that an export decline will prolong the current economic slowdown, forcing many small firms out of business and cutting employment.

Goods bought abroad by Japanese will be less expensive than before. More than 70 per cent of the country's imports are raw materials, and it is considered doubtful that many companies will pass on their gains in this area to consumers in the form of price cuts.

Some businessmen, however, welcomed the floatation of the yen as a move beneficial to Japan in the long run. They said the action with an eventual revaluation of the yen will force inefficient enterprises out of business and streamline the economy for a rapid growth in future years.

The Japanese government began to assess the effect of floating and appeared to be trying to hold the upward revaluation at around 5 per cent.

The floating of the yen will be temporary and the government is expected to make a decision on the revaluation of the currency and set a new parity through international consultations.

The governor of the Bank of Japan, Tadashi Sasaki, said the central bank will make utmost efforts to insure orderly conduct of normal exchange transactions, indicating that the bank will intervene in the market as the need arises. He did not set any range of fluctuation for the bank to intervene.

Although it was generally agreed that the yen's real strength will not be assessed until it has floated on the market several more days, government leaders were reported by Japanese news media late Saturday as intending to offer an upward revaluation of 5.2 per cent in the forthcoming series of international meetings to discuss the proposed multilateral parity adjustments.

Wage Freeze Wins Support, Aide Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite built-in inequities and labor's highly publicized complaints, Americans generally appear to be going along voluntarily with President Nixon's 90-day freeze on wages, prices and rents, says the nation's top wage-price policeman.

George A. Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, which administers the freeze, told The Associated Press in an interview that so far he has received only 1,700 complaints of alleged violations and 40 requests for exemptions.

Furthermore, said Lincoln, some of the complaints proved unfounded and many actual violators already have promised OEP investigators to correct the situation voluntarily.

Lincoln, a member of the Cost of Living Council that is working on recommendations for what is to follow expiration of the freeze Nov. 13, said no options had been ruled out. He added that he personally favors something less stringent than the present blanket ban on wage, price or rent increases.

Questions and answers from the interview:
Q. Are people voluntarily complying with the freeze?
A. Hearteningly so, in my opinion, considering the baseness of the U.S. economy. We made a rundown Thursday of the complaints in the system. We have less than 2,000 complaints of violations, about 1,700.

About 1,000 of those are about price, a little less than 500 are about wages and salaries, a little over 200 about rents. All those complaints are being worked on.

Thus far in the reports to me a high proportion of the individuals we've talked to have just said they'll get in line. It's just persuasion.

We have one case where a motel owner raised the price of rent $2 a day. It just happened that my regional director was living in that motel. I'm reasonably sure that that will get settled.

Q. Have you recommended legal steps against any alleged violators?

A. The answer is no because no investigation has gotten so far in the process that such legal action would be warranted. After a certain amount of discussion the alleged violators are getting in line with the program. Some complaints were found to be erroneous.

Q. Persons who seek exemptions to the freeze are supposed to write the OEP. How many requests have you received and granted?

A. There have not been any exemptions granted so far. We have about 40 requests in the office currently. We have denied seven and I want to make clear that I took those seven cases to the council to discuss them before denying them.

Nixon Described As Having Confidence In Will Wilson

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon was described Saturday as having "great confidence" in assistant U.S. Atty. Gen. Will R. Wilson and the Justice Department's decision to keep him on the job despite Wilson's associations with a central figure in a Texas stock fraud case.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters the circumstances of Wilson's involvement with Frank W. Sharp, Houston, Tex., banker, have been explained by Wilson in a nine-page statement.

Ziegler said he had nothing to add to that, but he expressed Nixon's "great confidence in Mr. Wilson and the decision the Justice Department has made."

Nixon was not aware of the case until he read about it in the press, Ziegler said, and he added Nixon was not involved in any discussion of the details of the case.

post and repaying it in seven months. He also acknowledged borrowing a total of $297,999 from Sharp.

Wilson said there "absolutely no truth to insinuations that I am or have been involved in illegal activities as a result of this association."

Ziegler said Nixon was satisfied that there was no impropriety in the case.

Sharp pleaded guilty to two felony charges in return for immunity from prosecution on other charges in a Securities and Exchange Commission probe of stock fraud.

He also testified before a federal grand jury in Houston investigating what the SEC termed "systematic looting" of banks and insurance companies and stock manipulations.

Rep. Henry B. Gonzales, D-Tex., had demanded Wilson resign and the Justice Department investigate Wilson's connections with Sharp.

But after Wilson issued his statement of his financial position and dealings with Sharp, a Justice Department spokesman said Wilson had no intention of resigning and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell "is satisfied with his work."

S. Viet's Armed Forces On Alert For Balloting

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese headquarters reported Saturday at least seven persons were wounded and two Catholic priests kidnapped in 24 separate enemy attacks on the eve of elections for a new National Assembly.

South Vietnam's million-man army and 90,000 national police went on full standby alert for today's balloting.

The 100 per cent standby alert for South Vietnam's armed forces and national police was ordered to guard against the widely predicted surge in enemy attacks to disrupt today's elections.

The alert was also called to quell possible antigovernment rioting or demonstrations.

Security measures for the election are the heaviest in recent years.

All 220,000 American troops and the 65,000 other foreign forces on the allied side have been on an alert since Tuesday. The alert is so extensive that supply sergeants, clerks and similar administrative personnel have been temporarily assigned to street patrols and guard posts.

A communique said enemy troops launched 13 rocket and mortar shelling and 11 other attacks against government forces and civilians. In one of the assaults, a Viet Cong band broke into a hamlet in the central highlands and kidnapped two Catholic priests, wounded three other persons and burned down a home.

Two province capitals and another district town also were shelled, injuring four persons, the communique said.

On the country's northern frontier, North Vietnamese gunners resumed heavy shelling along the demilitarized zone with the biggest single bombardment in a week.

Over 70 Feared Dead In Greek Vessel Blaze

FAIR PLAY — Fairs are fun ... and work, say Jaycee members of the Pampa unit, preparing for tomorrow's gala opening of the Jaycee Community Fair. The event will continue through Sept. 6 at Recreation Park, east of Pampa. Larry Cantrell and Benny Kirksey are pictured assembling a booth for the fair which will include a carnival, special activities and a junior beauty pageant.

Tragedy Occurs Off South Italy

BRINDISI, Italy (AP) — A raging fire on a giant Greek ferryboat drove more than 1,000 persons overboard Saturday off southeast Italy. Between 70 and 95 were reported dead or missing after the tourist-packed vessel was abandoned.

Awakened at dawn, many panicked passengers leaped into the Adriatic Sea in their nightclothes. The fire began with an explosion of natural gas in the kitchen of the 11,232-ton Heleanna, called "the largest ferry in the world" by its owners.

The Italian navy reported 34 bodies were recovered and 37 persons were missing. The port authority at Brindisi had differing figures — 25 bodies found and 70 persons missing.

The Navy Ministry in Rome reported that navy and merchant ships and dozens of small fishing boats rescued 1,086 persons. The ministry said 330 persons were hospitalized, 64 with "rather serious" injuries. Most of the injured suffered burns or bone fractures.

Most of the passengers were said to be Italian, Greek, German, French or Swiss.

The ship owner and the Greek Merchant Marine declined to release a passenger list until names could be checked with survivors in Italy.

The empty ferry, smoke still rising from its charred decks, was towed Saturday night to the harbor of Brindisi.

Owner of the ferry is C.S. Efthymiades, known as Greece's "ferryboat king."

The ship, 11th gaff original, the captain, Dimitrios Antipas, sent an SOS at 6:20 a.m.

He was reported to have been the last man to abandon the ship, and was picked up by a Russian freighter.

Passengers and rescue workers described scenes of fear and panic as smoke and then flames poured from the stern. "The flames drove us into the water," said Michel Benoit of France, one of about 200 Frenchmen aboard. "The whole ship was burning. They didn't even put down the lifeboats. We just jumped in our life belts."

Maddalena Toscano of Milan said: "We were told of the fire about 6 a.m. They told us to stay calm. After about an hour and a half, we saw that the fire was spreading so we went overboard."

After she was in the water, she reported seeing a lifeboat turn over as it was being lowered, trapping a number of persons underneath. She said she did not know how many of those trapped got out.

15-Year-Old Girl In Custody After Holding Up Bank

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A 15-year-old girl accused of holding up the First National Bank Friday was in custody of juvenile authorities Saturday. The most serious charge that can be lodged against her is that of being a delinquent.

The FBI, which usually files bank robbery charges, declined to act.

The girl, brandishing what proved to be a toy pistol, got about $14,000 from the bank and walked out.

She went across the street to the Charles Schreiner Bank where she was picked up by officers. No one knew whether she was trying to deposit her loot at the rival bank or was trying to hold it up.

Authorities would not reveal the girl's name, and under law, records are not public after juvenile authorities take jurisdiction.

LBJ And Business Associate Split Up Their Joint Financial Holdings

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Post in a copyrighted story says former President Lyndon Johnson and his longtime friend and business associate, A. W. Moursund, have split up at least some of their joint financial holdings.

The Post said Saturday it had learned that Johnson and Moursund already have divided more than 13,000 acres of land in Texas and Oklahoma, 214 lots on Lake Lyndon B. Johnson in Llano County and the balance of Federal Land Bank loans that originally totaled $783,100.

Neither Johnson nor Moursund could be reached for comment. The post said some speculation was that the split is over Moursund's plan to open a new national bank at Round Mountain in Central Texas. The newspaper said other sources disputed this.

The Post quoted Moursund's brother, John S. Moursund, of Austin, as saying, "There's nothing adverse about it. It's just one of those things. A. W. and LBJ have been wanting to do this for a long time."

"They've split the blanket," the Post quoted one source close to Moursund, who was the chief trustee of the former president's holdings during his tenure in the White House. "They've agreed to disagree."

to Johnson scoffed at suggestions that there had been a pleasant parting of the ways. He said various other business associations of the former president and Moursund were continuing and that Moursund still advises Johnson on some business and legal matters.

"They are dividing up some but not all of the holdings they've had together, and it's a friendly division," the source said.

"Their financial and business objectives have become different. Mr. Moursund has long been the operating arm on the ranching properties, for instance. But Mr. Johnson for personal and family reasons is now much less interested in this kind of property."

No complete breakdown of Johnson's or Moursund's individual or joint holdings has ever been made public.

Through a maze of corporations, Johnson and his family are thought to hold stock in at least nine Texas banks; television interests in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma; an Austin cable television company; a radio station in Victoria; an Austin real estate firm; and property in Alabama and Texas.

Most close friends of Johnson and Moursund declined comment.

Mexico Not Haven Of Drug Users

MEXICO CITY (AP) — If your hair is long and you dress in hippie fashion and if you plan to come to Mexico where you might smoke "a joint or two" of marijuana—forget it! Chances are extremely good that instead of a peaceful reprieve from a "square" society and the "establishment," you'll experience an unforgettable nightmare as a result of Mexican legal procedures, justice and jail life.

County Solons To Convene Wednesday

Gray County Commissioners will convene at 10 a.m. Wednesday to consider a six-point agenda including discussion of a contract proposal for ambulance service between Gray County, Pampa and Metropolitan Ambulance of Amarillo.

Other discussion items announced include: report from the Airport Board by Ralph Prock; discussion of funds transfer and recommended by auditor; discussion of tax revaluation and equalization and announcement that all department heads should submit 1972 budget estimates to the county auditor.

Jury Postpones Decision On Probe Of Dismissed City Police Sergeant

A Grand Jury decision in investigation of circumstances that led to the dismissal of a Pampa Police officer was postponed again Friday when the jurors decided to consider the matter further in a meeting Sept. 24.

District Attorney Guy Hardin said jurors heard several witnesses when the jury met July 27.

More witnesses, including former police officer, Jim Woods, Police Chief Jim Conner and City Manager Mack Woford were asked to appear before the jury.

Sgt. Danny Honeycutt, 25, was dismissed from the department in early July on grounds of "conduct unbecoming an officer." The chief and city manager agreed that the dismissal was in order at that time, officials said.

The District Attorney said no indictment was returned for reasons of "a technical nature." Other cases heard by the jury resulted in four indictments, including one against Jerry Carver, former Pampa resident, and 1970 candidate for Gray County Treasurer. He was indicted on a charge of swindling by a worthless check.

Carver was indicted on evidence he allegedly presented the worthless check to the late

Robert Waddell on April 13, 1970. Mr. Waddell was fatally injured in a car accident two weeks ago.

Carver has been free on $100 bond since he was charged. Three Pampa teenagers were also indicted as acting together on the burglary of the Peppermint Lounge and Morgan's Barber Shop. The incident was recorded July 26 and items stolen during the break-in were later recovered by city and county officers. Charged were Louston L. Samuels, 18; Steve Glenn Young, 19; and Timothy Russey, 18, all of Pampa.

Russey and Samuels were freed Friday on $2,000 bond each. Young, already on probation for burglary has been confined to Gray County Jail pending acceptance of application to revoke probation.

Russey, Larry Weatherston, 18 and Wesley Gardner, 18, both residents of Clarendon, were indicted as acting together to burglarize Dyer Barbours on June 20.

The Clarendon youths were still jailed in Pampa Saturday in lieu of bond.

Wade Archibald, Pampa was charged with the sale of a dangerous drug in connection with a June 5 incident in Pampa where suspected LSD was allegedly sold to a Pampa police undercover agent.

Nixon Cruises Pacific Ocean

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon cruised Pacific Ocean waters off Catalina Island Saturday in a plush, borrowed 65-foot motor yacht.

Followed by the Coast Guard cutter U.S.S. Point Hobart and a press pool boat, the Kingfisher, the President enjoyed sunny, mid-70-degree weather and calm seas as he launched what was expected to be a weekend boating excursion.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said he had no indication how long the cruise would last.

Ziegler said he thought the President would do some reading aboard. Mrs. Nixon was remaining in Florida with a daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, who is ailing with a broken toe.

The President is scheduled to remain in California until Friday and the week ahead at the Western White House was expected to continue low-key with few official appointments.

New Miss Black America Selected

NEW YORK (AP) — Joyce Warner, a 20-year-old senior at Florida A&M University who believes people must learn to respect each other, is the new Miss Black America.

The psychology major from Tallahassee, Fla., who was Miss Black Florida, was speechless when her name was announced early today at Madison Square Garden. But as she made her way toward waiting cameramen, tears began to flow.

"I can't begin to express my appreciation to everyone," Miss Warner said. "I hope I can live up to the expectations. I will try to do my best."

The first runner-up was Cheryl Burt, 21, of Camden, N.J. Helen Arnold, 22, of Chicago was the second runner-up, and a Columbia S.C. resident, Mary Porterfield was third runner-up. Each represented her home state.

Miss Warner was a striking figure at 5-foot-10 inches in a long, flowing pink gown.

Interested in singing and dancing, Miss Warner chose to combine those talents with a reading entitled "My Soul's Anchored in the Lord" in her talent routine.

Texas Beauty Earns $58,000 in A Year As Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — In the past year, Phyllis George has appeared on network television and at the Miss Coon Rapids pageant. She helped open a Froug's Department Store in Tulsa; kicked off the United Fund campaign in Eatontown, N.J.; stayed overnight at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles and the Twillie Motel in burkburnet, Tex.; n Burlingame, Iowa, she had her life threatened.

And her bank account grew by $58,000.

A confusing year? Fifty girls who arrive here later next week think of it as a dream.

Miss George is Miss America 1971 and her 50 would-be successors are the state beauty queen, who'll be competing in the annual pageant here for the 1971 and her 50 would be successors will be crowned Sept. 11.

To get that crown they'll sweat through hours of rehearsals; smile through countless interviews, and one of them—if tradition holds—will burst into tears when her name is called and the $500 rhinestone crown is placed on her head.

YOUNG FARMER — Eight-year-old Dennis Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Graham, 2325 Mary Ellen, isn't a subscriber to any garden magazine and doesn't know a thing about "farming" as professionals do . . . but he still produced the best vegetable garden in town (in a flower bed). Part of his crop is this 2 1/2 inch long squash that tips the scales at seven pounds and three ounces. Another one is on the vine "and still growing," says Dennis. (Staff Photo)

SEC Probes Mutual Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating a mutual fund which lists Edward C. Nixon the President's brother, as a director, and the U.S. ambassador to the Netherlands, J. William Middendorf II, as vice president.

An SEC spokesman said Friday the investigation involves the Oceanographic Fund, a New York mutual fund in ocean resource development.

"We're looking into some matters involving the fund," the spokesman said, "but it must be emphasized that this does not necessarily involve any culpability."

Many SEC investigations "die aborning and nothing ever comes of them," he added.

The Washington Evening Star said the investigation involves transactions between the fund and the firm that gives its investment advice, management services and helps provide brokerage services—Middendorf, Colgate Management Co. Inc.

An unidentified director was quoted by the Star as saying purchases and sales of securities for the fund's portfolio were under investigation.

Another director, Richard H. Fleming, oceanography professor at the University of Washington, was quoted by the Star as saying the investigation "is only a minor problem and I'm certain it will be cleared up very shortly."

IN HOUSTON Over 45,000 Legion Members And Families To Attend Convention

HOUSTON (AP) — Secretary of State William Rogers will speak Tuesday at the national American Legion convention.

Although Rogers' business session address officially opens the convention, related committee meetings and other events have been under way since Thursday.

The convention, which runs through Sept. 2, is expected to attract about 45,000 Legion members, its auxiliary and families.

Some of the other speakers include James C. H. Shen, Ambassador from Nationalist China; Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander-in-chief of U.S. forces in the Pacific; astronaut Col. Thomas P. Stafford, Deputy director of flight crew operations; Shimon Peres, minister of communications for Israel; Richard F. Walsh, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees; and Robert E. Hampton, chairman of the Civil Service Commission.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 13-year-old girl is the national Hula Hoop champion, spinning her way to the crown after surviving local and regional competition with 800,000 participants. Sandra Gaylord of Los Angeles won the contest Thursday, earning a $1,000 savings bond.

Chaperones are with Miss America everywhere, every day. There are two of them, each of them earns about $6,000 yearly.

The chaperones mean no dates, but Miss George said she had little interest in dates after a busy day of appearances.

"Truthfully," she said, "I'd rather go back and go to sleep."

There were unpleasant times. She was in St. Louis ready to fly to Burlington, Iowa, for a local pageant when she learned there'd been a phone call in Iowa City threatening her.

She said she couldn't imagine why anyone would threaten her, but was nervous and frightened. She made the flight to Burlington because "you can't run from things like that."

Nothing happened.

"There were days when I thought, 'I wish I were home in bed,'" she recalled. But an audience could perk her up. "They bring out the ham in me."

Dallas Schools To Go Into Court On Busing Issue

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas schools are expected to go into federal court Monday and ask that they be allowed to revert to last year's pupil assignment plan because it can't find the vehicles to bus 7,000 pupils to implement desegregation.

School lawyers said they will ask U.S. District Judge William Taylor to reopen predominantly Negro Crozier Tech, Maddison, Ervin High and Anderson Junior High Schools, then permit all secondary pupils to attend the schools they attended last autumn.

Supt. Nolan Estes said he would exhaust every available means to comply with the busing plan, ordered by the court.

But Estes told trustees every avenue of approach had reached a dead end.

The district asked the Dallas Transit Authority to reroute 90 buses now used to transport pupils to neighborhood schools. The Transit Authority rejected the appeal.

Estes said state officials cannot supply the 105 needed buses until February and county school officials say they have no extra vehicles.

Estes told trustees his office had even explored the use of church buses but the buses don't measure up to safety standards.

Trustees said they would take their appeal all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

If granted, a stay order would mean there will be no school desegregation this fall unless so ordered by the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals now studying the Dallas case.

Estes said: "We're going to reorganize our schools for the fourth time this month, knowing full well the 5th Circuit Court may order another reorganization in late September."

He said schools will open Sept. 7 on time despite last minute adjustments if the stay is granted.

LONDON (AP) — Violent crime in London rose 4 per cent in the first six months of this year, Scotland Yard reported today.

New Facilities Boost Morale Of Harvester Football Squad

By RICKEY L. WRIGHT

Morale seems high for the Pampa Harvester football squad. Reasons seem to point to new facilities, a squad with potential, and good backing. Plastic covers on stadium seats will aid spectators who were hindered in the past by splinters. Construction of the covers began Aug. 16, "and will definitely be finished by the first home game," said Robert E. (Swede) Lee, head coach and Athletic Director. The stadium seats were part of the bond issue passed by the School Board of the Pampa Independent Schools.

The green and gold arched gateway before the ticket office at the south end of the stadium adds beauty to the grounds and more morale to the players. The arched gateway was a senior gift from the Class of '71 to function for the previous purposes.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the additions have boosted morale considerably among the players. We don't talk about such things much, but you can tell," said Swede Lee. "I know myself," he went on to add, "that it is a lot nicer to come into the football season and be able to concentrate on football instead of running sidewalks or building cabinets. It is really a nice place."

Up until Thursday this past week the boys have been lifting weights in the mornings before classes and working out in shorts. After school Friday they started in pads.

When asked how the team will do this season, Coach Lee replied, "I can't make any definite statement, but the boys have the potential and are physically capable of having a great year."

"In the Vernon scrimmage Sept. 3, they'll see some strange people, which will help. We'll play a lot of boys and take films for study."

Lee is not the only person who feels morale is up and has hopes for the team.

Marvin Bowman, assistant principal at Pampa High School, feels this way—"They have potential and better than average chance for district. I am interested because I coached a great number of these boys in the eighth and ninth grades at Lee Jr. High. At that time I predicted that when they would be seniors in high school they would have a fine team. My opinion hasn't changed. Pampa has a wonderful chance at district in basketball, baseball and track as well as in football."

Mrs. Alvin Ferguson, proud mother of "Little" Al Ferguson, who displayed great mobility in the previous year at defensive linebacker, says, "I can hardly wait 'til the Vernon scrimmage. Al seems real enthused and I have hopes in seeing him in a real good year. I won't miss a game, if I can help it."

Pat Casey, Treasurer for the "Pride of Pampa" Harvester Band, said he felt the additions not only helped morale of the football team, but also helped the band.

"When we play in the stadium the lines on the Randy Matson track helps the ranks of marchers keep in step, adding to the pride of Pampa," he also added, "We're small but high, and I think the Harvesters are the going team."

PHS and member of V.I.C.A. Danny Whitley, student of PHS and member of V.I.C.A. (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America) auto-mechanics division, said: "I really haven't had time to think about it, because of all the harassment at school about trivial things. I have heard, though, a lot of talk about going to state. A lot of people are personally down on the (jocks), but I realize they work hard and if they think they can do it, I'll be there to cheer them on."

Head Cheerleader at PHS, Beck Taylor said, "I think facilities have helped morale a lot. Though there have been perils, the guys seem enthused. I think they'll get district." Norman Wilschire, a lineman for the Harvesters said: "I think we have a real good team. I only hope no one important quits."

A senior student and tennis player at PHS said: "I think they'll go far, if they don't get the big head."

Tascosa was chosen to be first in the district and Pampa second," said Coach Lee. "There will be a bog rivalry when these two teams meet. Since Tascosa High and Palo Duro High play their only out-of-town game here, there is a large crowd expected. These schools, using a right stated in district rules that says any opponent can demand 50 per cent of the seats, have done so for these two home games."

Lee went on to say: "It would be advisable to purchase tickets in advance since after the student tickets are extracted from Pampa's remaining 50 per cent, only 1,200 seats will be available for adult sections."

Japan's Decision To Float Its Yen Represents Triumph For U.S. Plan

TOKYO (AP) — Japan, bowing to strong pressure from the United States, allowed the value of its yen to climb in foreign currency trading on Saturday.

The decision represents a major triumph for President Nixon in his campaign to strengthen U.S. trade by discouraging imports on the U.S. market and stimulating the sale of U.S. exports abroad.

Revaluation of the yen was the chief goal of Nixon's announcement on Aug. 15 suspending the dollar's tie to gold and imposing a 10 per cent surcharge on imports to the United States.

Finance Minister Mikio Miura announced Friday night the yen will be temporarily floated—allowed to find its own exchange rate according to supply and demand. Saturday's trading will mark the first time the yen has climbed above its 360-to-the-dollar parity set after World War I.

The yen's increased value will make Japan's many exports, such as textiles, automobiles and television sets, more expensive in U.S. stores. At the same time, it will make U.S. products cheaper in Japan.

The government, trying to prevent this blow to the booming Japanese export trade, had resisted for two weeks any change in the yen's value. It had bought about $4 billion to keep the yen from climbing.

Japan was the only major trading nation trying to maintain its official parity in the face of Nixon's save-the-dollar measures. Most European countries allowed their currencies to float almost immediately.

The governor of the Bank of Japan, Tadashi Sasaki, said the Japanese float will be allowed only within certain limits, with the central bank moving in to buy up dollars if the yen starts to climb too far. But he gave no indication at what point the bank might step in.

Private bankers estimated to allow a 5 per cent increase in the yen's value in relation to the dollar. There were no official forecasts.

The U.S. Treasury and White House hailed the Japanese decision "as a further step toward a more realistic realignment of international exchange rates which the President envisioned in his address to the nation."

European money dealers also welcomed the decision and expressed hope it would inject some clarity into the muddled world financial markets.

But traders continued to be wary, and only in Frankfurt did news of the Japanese move bring a rush to the yen. Japanese currency on sale there spurred 3 1/2 per cent, moving from 1.010 marks to 1.045 marks for 100 yen.

Christ United Methodist Church Will Come Into Existence Today

Christ United Methodist Church will come into being today. The new church is being created by a merger that is without precedent in the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church.

The merger is unprecedented because of the churches involved, one is Negro and the other is Anglo. Members of St. Luke's United Methodist Church and Wesley United Methodist Church, both in Levelland, voted August 8th to discontinue their separate churches in order to establish one, multi-racial congregation. The merger will be officially completed when the new church is organized at 11 a.m. this Sunday under the direction of Bishop Albie H. Carleton, presiding bishop of the Northwest Texas Conference. Dr. Marvin L. Boyd, Lubbock district superintendent and Dr. Ellis Langston, pastor of the two churches uniting by the act of merger. Dr. Langston, who will be the minister of the new church, has been serving both churches since June and had been th pastor of Wesley for two years prior to his concurrent appointment to St. Luke's.

Property belonging to the two churches is to be deeded to Christ United Methodist Church. The new congregation will then meet for morning worship in the building at 1704 College. The St. Luke's building will be renovated and used as a community service center.

Terms of the merger uniting the black and white churches were drawn up by a committee of ten persons—five from each congregation. New church officials will be elected after the service of worship is, "One Lord, one faith, one baptism - Now one people." Banners proclaiming "We are one in the Lord" and "They'll know we're Christians by our love" will mark the dawning of this new day of brotherhood in the life of the church. Representatives from both churches will declare in behalf of their own congregations the result of the vote taken and their desire to enter into the union. A covenant of unity and renewal for all members will be led by the bishop, Dr. Carleton will preach, and special music will be provided by an adult choir singing "O Happy Day" and "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee." The children's choir will sing,

Gaming Officials Demand A Better Hughes Pipeline

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — They are tired of chasing ghosts and relying on second-hand information, Nevada gaming officials say. They have demanded a better pipeline to reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes.

And until they get it, they made clear Thursday, no more Hughes Tool Co. executives will be licensed for gambling operations in Nevada.

In a decision endorsed at once by Gov. Mike O'Callaghan, the Nevada Gaming Commission voted unanimously to deny licensing for several top tool company officials.

Denial was a setback for plans to reshuffle Hughes' gaming hierarchy. It will have no effect on present operations of the seven casinos Hughes has in the state.

Chairman Jack Diehl said the commission—the state's top gaming control agency—will take no action on further applications until it learns exactly what Hughes wants.

Diehl said the commission wants either a personal appearance by Hughes or a handwritten letter with Hughes' fingerprints on it.

Housing Promoters Show Concern Over SEC Decision On Projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — An impending Securities and Exchange Commission decision could ultimately force a major change in the burgeoning sale of shares in multifamily housing projects to investors looking for tax shelters.

Concern is mounting among housing promoters over the possibility they may have to make public for more information and use up more time in attracting investors.

Housing experts are uncertain what the effect might be on financing the housing market, particularly low and middle-income segments heavily backed by Federal Housing Administration programs.

The concept at issue is integration—not racial, but operational integration of several projects by one sponsor.

The case at issue involves Calprop Corp. of Los Angeles, developer of more than 20 garden apartment complexes in Southern California since 1961.

The SEC action, expected next week or soon after, would apply only to the Calprop case, but it will be the first SEC decision in this type of case and the housing industry is looking toward the ruling as a guideline to SEC thinking.

Action by the SEC staff in related Calprop matter indicates the regulatory agency is moving toward action against the practice of selling limited partnerships in apartment complexes, principally to investors looking for a way to lessen their tax on income from other sources.

Apartment are a favored tax shelter because tax rules permit much of the cost of the buildings to be depreciated in early years of the project, thus providing the investor with a large paper loss that is tax deductible, even though there is no actual cash lost.

Calprop maintains it could limit partnerships in each of its projects separately.

How Does 90-Day Wage-Price Freeze Affect You?

WASHINGTON (AP) — How does the 90-day wage-price-rent freeze affect you?

Two weeks after President Nixon's announcement, Americans are still asking questions about how the order will be applied.

The President's Cost of Living Council, which has final administrative word on application of the freeze, has issued

War Changes Appearance Of Suez Town

SUEZ, Egypt (AP) — A city of a quarter-of-a million people is a welcome sight after driving more than 75 miles through bleak, blinding sunbaked desert.

But, as one enters Suez for the first time, it becomes apparent something is wrong.

The buildings are there but one sees no women, no children, no street vendors, no

There are no panes in the countless window frames and most of the buildings have been torn by shell holes that seem to have hit every room.

This is Suez today, two miles from the Egyptian-Israeli front lines.

Once a bustling seaport town at the southern entrance of the Suez Canal, it was subject to intensive air and artillery attacks for many months in its own little, barely noticed war of 1969-70.

Where once 264,000 persons lived, worked and played, only some 3,000 civilian men and 42 women live today. The unlisted number of soldiers present fails to revise the image of a ghost city.

A government official explains that two of the women are wives, one of a newsstand dealer, and the other 40 are nurses at the local hospital. Wives and children of the civilians are allowed to visit, he adds.

From the ruins of the shell-torn French Consulate, one can see the blue green waters of the canal and an Israeli watch tower some 220 yards away. The enemy is clearly visible in the open-sided tower.

"This," a guide says needlessly, "is the front."

Barbed wire, mines and unseen fortifications of much greater danger go back many miles from each side of the front-line trenches. It is weakly hot.

"What is going to happen?" one is repeatedly asked, and asks in return.

Across the desert, between the canal and Cairo, Egypt's military forces, trained and equipped by the Russians, are on the alert. At the canal, an Egyptian soldier may be seen standing on an open balcony, fatless, studying the watching enemy through binoculars.

"Only Allah knows the answer," replies an army officer to the ever present questions of war.

People In The News

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronaut Alan B. Shepard is an admiral now.

Shepard, the first American in space and the fifth to walk on the moon, received his rear admiral's shoulder boards in ceremonies here Thursday.

The pioneer astronaut said that for the immediate future he will be staying with the civilian space agency in HOUSTON as head of the astronaut program. But, he added, "I will be coming to Washington to work part time with the Navy."

LIBERTY CORNER, N.J. (AP) — The Kienast quintuplets celebrated their 18 month "birthdays" Thursday with a special party.

About 200 persons turned out for the affair at the five-room home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kienast. A seven-room addition to the house is nearing completion.

The tots—Amy, Sara, William, Gordon, Abigail and Edward—born in that order on Feb. 24, 1970, munched on birthday cake on the front lawn before retiring to their familiar sandbox.

The party was sponsored by Ecology Corp. of America, a Paterson, N.J., manufacturer for which the Kienasts have endorsed a laundry detergent.

"It would be idiotic to turn this down," Kienast said of the endorsement. "There's a helluva lot of money for this. This will make a nice bank account for the children."

a series of guidelines intended to answer the most frequently asked questions.

Following is a composite of those policy rulings:

PRICES
Q. May price increases announced prior to Aug. 15 take effect in the future?

A. No. All prices, unless specifically exempted, are frozen according to terms of the order.

Q. Are rates charged by common carriers and public utilities included in the freeze?

A. Yes, whether regulated by government agencies or set independently.

Q. Are wholesale and retail prices included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. In cases where surcharges or other sales or excise taxes have been increased, is the ceiling for the price paid by the customer including these taxes raised by a like amount?

A. Yes. The price the customer pays is equal to the base price plus these taxes.

Q. How do you price new products?

A. Use the price of the most nearly comparable product sold by your closest comparable competitor.

Q. Should records be maintained for other than the specified base period... if another period is used to establish prices?

A. The order is interpreted to require this.

Q. How should imports be priced with the imposition of the temporary 10 per cent import surcharge?

A. The additional dollar and cents cost may be passed on each purchaser.

Q. Is there any price control over exports?

A. No.

Q. What is the price-freeze basing-point for national or regional retail chains?

A. Price ceilings are to be set on the basis of the normal procedures used in establishing market prices. Market price ceilings are to be established at no greater than the highest price at which substantial volume transactions were carried out by the firm's individual normal pricing areas, regardless of whether these pricing areas are national, regional, or individual stores.

Q. What is the selling price for a material if there have been dual price situations, i.e., a published price and a discounted price at which actual transactions were made?

A. Sales may be made at the highest price at which substantial volume of actual transactions were made during the 30-day period of time ending Aug. 14. If products have been selling at a discounted price and not at the published price during the base period, the maximum price would be the highest discounted price at which substantial transactions were made.

Q. How will a substantial volume of transactions be determined?

A. The ceiling price is the price at or above which 10 per cent of the actual transactions during the base period were made, except that in the case of increases in posted and effective prices during the base period, the base period itself will be considered to have begun at the time of the increase in posted and effective prices.

Q. Are motel, hotel, etc., rates included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. I want to sell something I own. I have no idea what its price was during the month prior to Aug. 15. What should I do?

A. Inquire locally as to what comparable items sold for during the period July 15-Aug. 15. Note down and retain these facts for your own records before selling.

Q. If farm prices of "raw agricultural products" are exempt, does this exemption of raw products follow through to retail?

A. Yes, if they move all the way in raw or unprocessed state. A head of lettuce is exempt from farm to housewife. Fresh eggs are not covered. Meat in the meat case is covered. Oranges aren't, but orange juice is. Fresh fish is, but frozen fish isn't.

Q. How do you distinguish raw and processed agricultural products?

A. Raw agricultural products include those products that retain the same physical form that they possessed when they left the farm gate. All other agricultural and food products would be considered processed and subject to the freeze. This would include all products canned, frozen, slaughtered, milled or processed in some other way that changes the physical form:

packaging would not be considered a processing activity.

Q. Does the wage-price freeze include Puerto Rico and the trust territories?

A. The U.S. customs zone is the boundary for the freeze. Puerto Rico is within the customs zone so it is included. The trust territories which are outside the customs zone are not included.

Q. Are prices in industries which are subject to government regulation frozen?

A. Yes. Agencies which regulate these industries may permit price decreases and change other aspects of the industry, but no price increases are allowed.

Q. Does the freeze on prices prevent lowering of prices?

A. No. On the contrary, it is hoped that this will occur.

General Telephone, Workers Sign Accord

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Workers completed ratification Friday of a three-year contract with General Telephone of the Southwest. But the time lag required for employee approval posed questions in view of President Nixon wage freeze.

Negotiators for the company and the Communications Workers of America announced Aug. 6 that they had reached agreement on the new contract.

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Two women were robbed of $32 in a cemetery Thursday night by a young boy who kissed them both on the cheek before leaving, police reported.

Increased wages and fringe benefits amount to about 16 per cent the first year for 5,200 workers.

Ratification by the communications workers was under way but not completed when Nixon announced the wage freeze Aug. 15.

The contract involves workers in Oklahoma, Arkansas, New Mexico, Louisiana and Texas. Officials of both the company and union said in a joint statement Friday they will work with proper agencies to determine the effect of the freeze on the agreement.

The contract will be signed formally in September.

The new contract includes wage increases, hospital insurance benefits and premium payment improvements, changes in the vacation plan and an eighth holiday.

Pampa Explorer Outlines Teenagers' Scouting Aims

By James E. Beistle Jr.
Exploring, Adobe Walls Council, is a program for high-school-age youth designed by the Exploring Division, BSA, to meet the needs, desires and concerns of the next generation of citizens. It achieves its purpose through a planned program of action that brings young people voluntarily into association with adults. These adults are carefully selected and trained, AND, by the example of their character, citizenship traits knowledge, and promotion of physical and mental fitness, they are a positive force in the lives of youth.

As an up-to-date approach to high-school-age young people, Exploring helps them find their present and future roles as individuals in society and in the world of work. These goals are fulfilled through the planned program of action in activities related to vocational, social, service, citizenship, outdoor, and personal fitness areas of experience in an organizational framework that is flexible and relevant to the immediate interest of young adults in any part of the nation or phase of society.

Exploring is used by established institutions including business, industrial, professional, service, and religious organizations. It seeks focal points of interest that will attract and hold young people and adults in common association, based on a self-imposed code of behavior and a national Explorer Code. For more information contact the Adobe Walls Scout Center.

Spanish-Speaking Group Makes Proposals To Better Conditions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church is still oriented toward the stereotype of "the Irish cop," a group of Mexican American and Puerto Rican Catholics said Friday.

They formed a 12-member ad hoc coalition for the Spanish speaking that proposes to: —Join the mainstream of the church into recognizing its largest minority, the Spanish speaking, with more concrete forms of help than in the past.

—Ask for $500,000 to create a Spanish-Speaking Crisis Center —a lobbying group which could underwrite trips to Washington for poor chicanos and boricuas (Puerto Ricans).

The members of the coalition had been attending a conference on migrant problems sponsored by the U.S. Catholic Conference when they broke off to seek their own goals.

Juan L. Soria, of Berkeley, Calif., chairman of the coalition, said the church has failed to speak up for the Spanish-speaking minority which, as he put it, composes one-fourth of its membership.

NEWLY INDEPENDENT Bahrain's Sheikh Issa Bin Saleman Al Khalifa is one of the world's richest rulers. His Persian Gulf Island, which has renounced its long dependence on Britain, has only 1 square miles and 200,000 people but an ocean of oil. The ministrate's annual oil income runs to $34 million.

"We are not visible on the East Coast," Soria said. "We come here to Washington and get pushed around, forgotten the next day."

"We have built an equity in the Catholic church for 400 years but the stereotype within the Catholic hierarchy is a gang of Irishmen sitting at the Bank America keeping away the Mexican-American, the Spanish-speaking, from the money," Soria said.

The coalition said it will sponsor a meeting Oct. 17 to decide how to persuade the Catholic bishops to give up $500,000 for the proposed center.

One route being debated is an appeal directly to chicano and boricua groups to withhold their church donations for a month and give them directly to the coalition.

28 Indicted On Charges Of Draft Raid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted 28 persons on charges of conspiring to burglarize a government building in connection with a raid Aug. 21 on the Camden, N.J., Draft Board office.

The indictment, which adds seven persons to the 21 arrested in connection with the incident, was returned by a grand jury in the U.S. District Court in Camden.

Twenty of the original 21 were arrested on the night of the incident. The 21st was taken into custody by FBI agents the next day.

The arrests were made at the same time as FBI agents in Buffalo, N.Y., arrested five persons in connection with a similar, but apparently unrelated, raid on the Buffalo Draft Board office.

At the time of the arrests, the FBI said several of the persons had been taught "in the act." The Justice Department disclosed it had acted on information from an informer who had infiltrated the alleged conspiracy.

White House Social Aides Recall Impressions About First Families

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

Should a guest at the White House suddenly feel faint, someone will quickly step to his side and help him to a chair.

Should an unescorted woman be left looking like a wallflower, someone will swirl her around the dance floor.

Should a guest get a bit too much into the spirit of things at a White House function, you can bet that someone will get him a cab, and see that he gets into it.

These are among official duties which fall to the White House social aides, 36 military officers, all young and single, stationed in the Washington area.

The detail is extra duty, but there's no shortage of candidates, even though the job carries no pay, and entails additional expenses.

Still the job is not without its compensations. The main lure, say former social aides, is the chance to mingle among the great and near-great at White House functions. And, while this administration no longer can offer any such incentive, there's always the case of Chuck Robb, who got into the White House as a social aide and departed as the husband of Lynda Bird Johnson.

Social aides are nominated by their respective services. Requirements include an impeccable military record, poise and personality. Those who pass these tests get a final screening by the White House social secretary.

Although the aides' role is purely a social one, the White House carefully guards their identities. No names are released, no interviews permitted.

However, half a dozen former aides willingly related details and anecdotes of their White House experiences, although only one of them would permit use of his name.

"There are remarkable differences between the administrations," said Navy Capt. George Watkins, a social aide during the Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon administrations.

"The Kennedys were very personable in the sense they would talk with us," Watkins said. "We didn't get that attention under the Johnsons, but the Kennedy social events were a lot stiffer. They had a lot of white-tie functions, there wasn't much consuming of alcoholic beverages, and parties didn't last past 11:30 at night. Under Johnson, we were like guests and had some damn good times."

Another officer who had the White House duty under the last three administrations said the Nixons are friendlier to the social aides.

"President and Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Johnson were very nice to us," he said, "but LBJ didn't show a lot of affection to anyone. He was a tremendous leader and got maximum work out of everyone. But the Nixons are the friendliest of any of the other first families."

Aides spend long hours standing in receiving lines at the President's elbow, advising him on such things as where to stand for official photographs, and prompting him on names of guests.

The former aides said Johnson had trouble hearing and instructed them to look directly at him when they spoke and enunciate clearly.

One said Johnson fired him three times because he wasn't moving guests through the receiving line fast enough to suit the President. "He told me, 'Get out of here. I can take care of this.' But of course, he couldn't, and soon I'd be back on the job."

Presidential whims, however, are the least of the social aides' burdens. Much more sensitive situations arise in dealing with the guests, particularly those who take one more drink than they can handle on the road home, or those determined to cart away concrete evidence that they made the White House scene.

"At a state dinner, you inevitably wind up with someone who drinks too much," said a former Army lieutenant who worked under Johnson and Nixon.

"Sometimes they'd arrive on an empty stomach, be a little nervous and have a drink or two," he said. "Often they'd forget their name while going through the receiving line. If they were really tipsy, we'd call a taxi to save them any embarrassment the next day."

Nor do they want to be caught pilfering. This is a rare occurrence, said the former aides, but it does happen.

Every once in awhile, they said someone would slip a piece of the 1817 silverware into a pocketbook. Aides were instructed to be as discreet as possible and say something like, "May I help you with that spoon? It belongs to the American people, you know." Then they'd offer the guests a souvenir matchbook that reads "The President's House."

Protocol poses its share of problems, too. Social aides are expected to know the names and rank of all White House guests.

One former aide recalled the time that a new recruit on the White House detail mistook President Kennedy's motor for the wife of a Cabinet secretary, and so introduced her to the President as she passed through the receiving line. "Mother!" quipped Kennedy in mock surprise. "I didn't know!"

The Kennedys always laughed off such incidents, said the former aide, and so do the Nixons. On the other hand, he said, "President Johnson didn't take mistakes lightly."

Broyle's Razorbacks Racing To Be Ready

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas coach Frank Broyles said Saturday his green defense has ability but warns "it's in a race to be ready for the first game Sept. 11."

Broyles told touring Southwest conference football writers the 1971 version of the Razorback defense will resemble the 1959 and 1960 Arkansas squads.

"The scheme of our defense has been altered," he said. "We will not be as strong as our last three teams. We will have the quickness and agility of teams in the past, but we will not be as strong physically."

He said the defense is improving, but that he is still "concerned with the defensive secondary."

Broyles said Arkansas will play much more zone defense this year. The Razorbacks played a man-for-man defense about half the time last season.

Offensively, Broyles said, "We will pass more often than last year." He said the Razorbacks will up their passing percentage versus the run from 25 to 35 per cent passing.

The Razorbacks, under the quarterbacking of junior Joe Ferguson, will run mostly from the I formation. Broyles said Ferguson will use drop back and play-action passes from the formation and Arkansas also will run the triple-option.

"We have outstanding ability at the special skill positions," Broyles said. "We have people capable of making the big play. We have a chance to be explosive."

"But the offensive success depends on whether the defense has a good year. You can't score unless you have the ball," Broyles said he didn't like the term "rebuilding" to apply to this year's Arkansas team, which plays California at Little Rock in the Hogs' first game.

"I like 'rebuilding' more than I do 'rebuilding,'" Broyles said. "I believe we have the ability to have a good football team."

A Perspective Look At The Harvester Football Schedule

Reserve your seats for the Harvester Palo Duro and Harvester Tascosa games early as both games only have 1250-1300 seats available to the public.

The stadium seats 5,000 people and both Tascosa and a Palo Duro have claimed 2,500 tickets for their fans. 1200 tickets are reserved for the student body and faculty leaving 1250 to 1300 for general admission.

Both games should be edge of the seat affairs as Tascosa is expected to win the District 3-AAAA title and Pampa is picked second.

Both teams are evenly matched with Pampa having a small weight advantage on the field. Last year District 3-AAAA was a toss up affair with the first place position going into two and three way ties several times.

This year Pampa has more experience and is looking forward to one of their best seasons ever.

Pampa's first game of the season will be a home stand against Hereford a 4-AAAA school; in it's second season.

The Sept. 10 Hereford game will be followed by a road game by the Harvesters to Odessa. The southern powerhouse of -AAAA football.

Sept. 24 the Harvesters will return home for an 8 p.m. game against the Perryton Rangers. The Rangers are still building as many of their top players were lost due to graduation last year.

October will be the month of revenge for the fighting Harvesters as they meet top ranked Lawton Oct. 1 on home ground. Last year the Pampa team traveled to Okie Country and were defeated by a recalled touchdown. This year should be a different story as once again graduation took it's toll from the powerful Oklahoma team.

October 8 the Harvesters will go to the stomping grounds of the West Texas State University Buffaloes to meet Canyon High School.

October 15 marks the beginning of a long road to the District 3-AAAA crown as Pampa travels to Amarillo to take on Caprock High School. Caprock is considered the pre-season cellar dwellers but are capable of handing out some stiff surprises to any of their competition.

October 22 the weather gets cooler but the Harvesters should be getting hotter as they take on pre-season pics, the Tascosa Rebels on home territory. This game could be the District decider as both teams are capable of a runaway.

The Borger Bulldogs will be breathing down the Harvesters necks October 29 but with a stout heart and barring injuries the Harvesters should be able to muzzle the Bulldogs.

November brings another capacity crowd to Pampa as the Harvesters meet Palo Duro Nov. 5 in Harvester Stadium. Palo Duro could be called the "sleeper" in District 3-AAA as they have many unproven

Top O' Texas Opens Friday, Sept. 3

The Top O' Texas Invitational Golf Tournament is only a week away and the roster has been full since Aug. 11.

Some top names in golf have already entered the annual event and included are defending To-T champion John Sheppardson and Texas State Amateur Champ Bill Holstead. Sheppardson hails from San Angelo and Holstead from Wichita Falls.

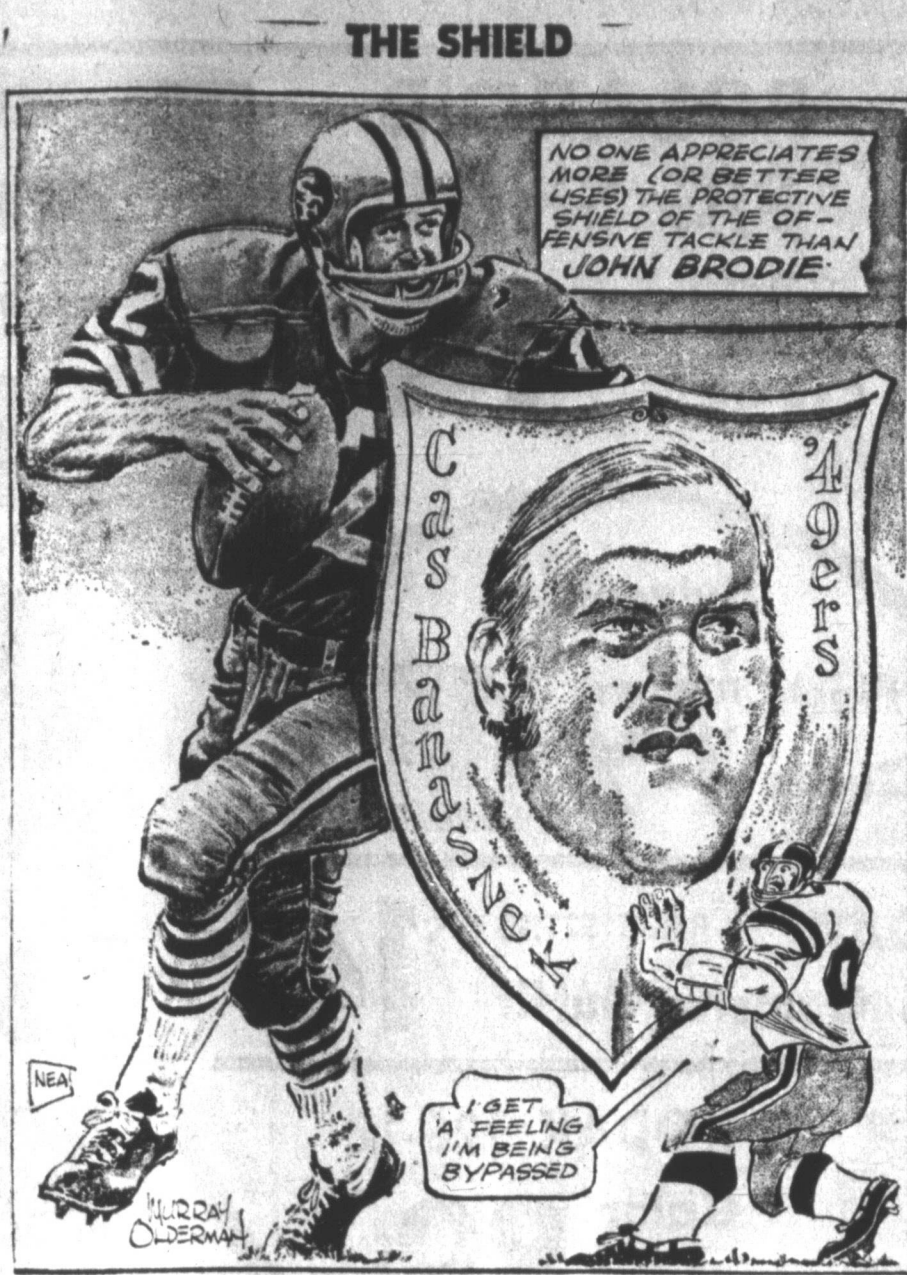

Others in the tournament are: Jim Whittaker, Lubbock number one man on Texas Tech's Golf Team;

Jack Haynes, Jr. of Abilene who had the distinction of being Orville Moody's caddy this summer. Haynes should be in the top end as Moody was sure to have given him several useful pointers.

Dick Adams and Loyd Hughes of Dallas, Dick Weston of Plainview Scott Steiger of Odessa are just a few more top notch amateurs entered.

John Farquhar and Gary Boeka will be playing if they fail to make the National Amateur Cut this Friday.

Max Hickey, the first amateur to ever qualify from Pampa for the National Amateur Tournament is in hopes he will not be able to play in the Top O' Texas Invitational because of making the National Amateur finals. Hickey qualified in rounds earlier at Amarillo.

Bruce Crampton Upsets Palmer In Pinehurst

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Apologetic Australian Bruce Crampton upset Arnold Palmer 69-72 Saturday and eliminated the last of the glamor names in the quarter-finals of the United States Professional Match Play golf championship.

"There seem to be a lot of sad faces around here," the 35-year-old Crampton said at a press conference after knocking out the popular Palmer.

"I'm real sorry, fellows," "It's like I was in a snow bank," Palmer said while packing up for the trip home to Latrobe, Pa. "I just kept spinning my wheels."

Crampton, winner of the Western Open this season and nine other tour events in a 15 year career, went into the afternoon semifinals against non-winner DeWitt Weaver, a 71-72 victor over Lou Graham.

The other semifinal matched upset-makers Ken Still and Phil Rodgers, each seeking their first title of the season. Rodgers took a 70-73 decision over Canadian George Knudson while Still birdied the second extra hole to beat Tom Weiskopf after each had shot a one-under-par 71 on the 6,973-yard per 72 Country Club of North Carolina course.

Semifinal winners advance to an 18-hole showdown Sunday for the $35,000 first prize in this unique event that calls for head-to-head competition, with scoring based on total strokes over 18 holes.

"I thought I played reasonably well for the four rounds," said Palmer, who was 11 under par for 72 holes and, at 277, had the best total stroke score at that stage.

"I had a bunch of putts that went in and out of the hole on the front nine and that really hurt me."

Palmer, along with the other quarter-final losers, picked up $5,000 from the total purse of $200,000. That pushed his total earnings for the year to $194,887, the best money season ever in his fabled career.

He now ranks third on the current money list behind Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino. Nicklaus, along with South African Gary Player, was eliminated in the first round here. Trevino and Billy Casper, each with health problems, did not compete in this five-day event.

"He one-putted five holes in a row," Palmer said of the curly-haired Crampton. "He missed the green on the first four holes on the back nine and I'm standing there thinking, 'no, no, no. Now we go.'"

"But he gets it up and down every time. That really ut the old jammer on me."

"I just scrambled when I had to," Crampton said.

He birdied the second hole from 20 feet and got a two-stroke swing on the 153-yard, par three third when he scored from 10 feet and Palmer bogeyed the hole, missing the green to the left.

Fat Can Be Costly To Pro Players

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Brewer manager Dave Bristol said Friday he will fine team members $100 per pound for reporting overweight to spring training next year.

"In other words, it will be $100 a pound for fat meat," Bristol was quoted as saying.

The Milwaukee manager said he is worried about President Nixon's wage freeze resulting in conflicts between players that could delay the start of spring training and leave his players flabby for the new season.

Bristol said conditioning during the off-season will be especially important "because they may be pushed back a week."

Jim Begano; Mountain Goat On Motorcycle

RATON, N.M. — There's a fellow named Jim Begano roaming the Mountains around Trinidad, Colo., who already is a bike riding legend.

Begano's exploits on two-wheelers are almost unbelievable and the opportunity to watch Colorado's "super rider" in action would alone be worth the trip to Raton for the first annual world series and super bowl of trail bikes, Sept. 4-6, presented by the national trail bike association.

Begano usually rides one of the hybrid trail bikes the Colorado Mountain men refer to as "hotshots". They're actually mini-bikes equipped with 25 horsepower engines, no pegs, no footbrakes, massive tires utilizing large tractor cleats and a centrifugal clutch. They can go almost anywhere, and Begano goes with them.

Favorite pastime of the talented Begano is riding up the side of a sheer cliff which prompted one dazed Amarillo rider to comment: "I've just seen a miracle."

For practice, Begano rides atop a gas line which goes over the mountains. When he asked the gas company for permission to do so, officials just chuckled. "We'll give you all the permission in the world," they said. "But you couldn't get over it on all fours much less on a bike." Begano has ridden it every day since, just to keep in shape.

Begano's efforts will be just one of the attracting at the labor day event, the first sanctioned by the newly formed national trail bike association.

More than $25,000 in prizes, including round trip plane tickets to Paris, London and Rome, will be given away during the three-day meet. Tickets are currently available at a reduced rate of $14 for adults and $2 for children under 14. Reservations may be made by writing to Bike Fun, Inc., Box 9005, Amarillo, Texas, 79010.

NCRA Championships Scheduled For Amarillo

A prestigious lineup of over 100 top super modified race cars from all over the southwest will converge on Amarillo, Texas, Labor Day weekend for the running of the NCRA Southwestern Championship super modified auto race worth more than $8,000 in prize money.

The greatest number of big name drivers and track champions ever assembled are already committed to the event, including the current NCRA point leader and Tulsa, Okla. champion, Emmett Hahn, along with former national modified champions Harold Leep, Grady Wade, Dale Reed and Walt McWhorter, all of Wichita, Kan., and Herb Copeland of Dodge City, Kan. Also Oklahoma City's champion driver Aaron Madden, Dallas champion Shady McWhorter, Little Rock's Johnny Suggs,

Other events have been held at Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Wichita and Hutchinson, Kan., and still others are slated for Muskogee, Lawton and Enid, Okla. and Dallas, Tex.

River Opening Decision Soon

A decision on the opening of the Canadian River to hunting (other than for migratory waterfowl) is being awaited by members of the Canadian River Sportsmen's Association.

A special meeting was called by the board of directors to discuss the possibilities of the reopening by the Parks and Wildlife Commission.

At the meeting, CRSA Treasurer Charlie Sam presented the following letter:

The board of directors of the Canadian River Sportsmen's association met at the home of the Club President G. B. Phelps, in a special meeting on August 27, 1971. The following information was released in lieu of a general meeting of the membership.

Information from Attorney General Crawford Martin has been received by the Canadian River Sportsmen's Association that the Attorney General's opinion is under study and will be released by 15 Sept. 1971 regarding Parks and Wildlife decision of 4 June 1971, NO HUNTING on state owned riverbeds and railroad right of ways, except for migratory waterfowl.

After careful study and research by CRSA attorney's of this Parks and Wildlife decision, we, firmly believe that this organization and the people of Texas will be given a fair deal and that the P&W's commission decision on 28 Sept. 1971 or before will be favorable to the sportsmen.

This organization is also very much aware of the time and effort Governor Smith and others have put in on this important matter, to insure the people of Texas receive a fair, just, and impartial hearing on this decision.

Ice Capades To Give 4-Day Show At Area Civic Center Coliseum

You don't have to be a small child to enjoy the wondrous world of ICE CAPADES, which opens Thursday, Sept. 2, and runs through Monday, Sept. 6, at the Civic Center Coliseum in Amarillo. The entire spectacular is fast-paced, colorful, and has an abundance of humor and skating wizardry.

The first half of this year's production brings to the ice vivid images of the circus...past, present and future! And, there's an original fairytale set in a Russian peasant village. The second-half is devoted entirely to a trip thru the galaxies, with Ice Capades' spinning the wheel of the Zodiac and turning the spotlight on the 12 varied astrological signs.

A kaleidoscope of new, but perhaps familiar faces weave their own special magic throughout the productions and in solo spots. "The Bouncing Ball of the Ice" — Freddie Trenkler — is back to don his famous tramp costume for a fling as the "Now Clown" of the circus. Later, the pixie faced star takes part in the astrological goings-on by delivering "A Message to Virgo". And, delivering a "bit of a laugh" himself is British comic Terry Head. The tiny, ex-hockey player has a chance to prove his notorious gift of gab when he makes the scene as Ice Capades' "Yodeling Capricorn."

Hans Mueller and his lovely partner, Pepe, slip and slide over the ice as a dashing duo from the Argentine Pampas and as a somewhat incompatible pair, "Cancer and Pisces". And one of the most popular ice acts, Dave Pitts and his skating chimp, Spanky, complete the all-new line-up of comedy stars. Skating champions include Roy and Sandi Wagelein.

Trial Delayed For Ex-Mayor Of Edinburg

HOUSTON (AP) — A spokesman at the U. S. Attorney's office said it would be at least another six months before a trial date is set for former Edinburg Mayor Joe E. Davis.

Davis, 46, was indicted last December by a Houston federal grand jury and accused of mail fraud in connection with his dealings concerning cattle purchases using money from Agricultural Livestock Finance Corp. of Houston.

Davis is free on $100,000 bond. The spokesman at the U. S. attorney's office said the trial has been delayed because of the heavy docket in U. S. Dist. Judge Allen Hannay's court.

Kuchiki, as a fiery Samurai warrior and as the "Sportsman of the Year"; lovely Tina Noyes, playing a bride in the "Legend of Frozen Time"; Grand Prix Winner Billy Chapel, as a wild panther and a dashing gambler; Swedish Champion Gisela Head, as "That Sexy Animal Tamer" and the astrological sign of Leo; Peter Gordon and Barbara Wilson as the "love couple and new comer Benita Cave, as Ice Capades' Circus Seeker.

Tickets are on sale at the Civic Center and Sears — Sunset Center. There are three evening performances at 8 p.m. and four matinees, Sat., Sun. and Mon., at 2 p.m. and Sunday, at 6 p.m. Prices are $2.50, $3, $3.50, and $4, with special Youth and Scout prices.

Texas Auto Comm. Run Into Flak Over Rule

AUSTIN (AP) — The new Texas Motor Vehicle Commission ran into heavy flak today over a proposed rule that would endanger any car dealership established since April 7.

A lawyer for a Volkswagen dealership set up in competition with one owned by a commission member threatened a lawsuit if the rule takes effect.

YOUTH SENTENCED
FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — An 18-year-old youth was sentenced to sit on a sty fence and watch pigs to see if he could distinguish them from policemen. But he couldn't find a pigpen, so he was fined $100 instead.

Dennis Shipman drew the sentence Wednesday on a disorderly conduct charge in Fairfax County Court after county policeman James R. Race testified that Shipman twice sang "Old McDonald Had a Farm" as he entered a grocery store. The word pig was "emphasized in a loud voice," the officer said.

The rule would define "new dealership" as a franchise granted by an auto manufacturer or distributor on or after April 7.

That's the date Gov. Preston Smith signed the bill creating the commission. Without a commission license, no dealer can do business after Dec. 1.

Under the new law, the commission has the power to deny a license to establish a new dealership if it finds that existing dealers in that particular make are "adequately represented."

Conrad Werkenkith, representing Barton-Grubbs Volkswagen of Corpus Christi, which opened in July in competition with McKenzie Volkswagen, owned by Commission Member Jack McKenzie.

"From my client's point of view, it (the rule) is an attempt to disfranchise an established dealer," Werkenkith said.

August Wedding Bells Are Ringing

AUGUST BRIDES

August is fast replacing June as the month for weddings, as many young women of Pampa, leaving girlhood behind, step down the aisle and enter the world of "the married woman."

Mothers look harried, seem breathless, and may shed a few tears, but all goes well on the "day" as the young people pledge their nuptial vows before settings of flowers and candles, with traditional wedding music setting the mood.

As the "season of brides," the summer months, draw to a close, the wedding gowns are being packed away, the wedding bouquets are being "pressed" and a portion of the wedding cake is put in the freezer for that all-important first anniversary. But most important of all, the bridal couples are busy settling in "at home."

Pictured here are four of Pampa's August brides. Descriptions of the weddings are located on the following pages.

MRS. ROBERT EARL SEALEY
... nee Linda Catherine Dorman

Karen Joyce Jordan, Jack Stephens Repeat Vows In Double-Ring Service

Miss Karen Joyce Jordan was united in marriage with Jack Allen Stephens in a double-ring ceremony in the First Christian Church of Pampa, Guy V. Caskey of Kingston, Jamaica, officiated for the ceremony held August 14 at 7 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.R. Jordan, 1907 Evergreen. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Stephens of Benoni, South Africa, formerly of Broken Arrow, Oklahoma.

Candles and emerald provided the background for the service. A massive arrangement of shocking pink gladioli and pink chrysanthemums decorated the altar and highlighted a white candle of memories. Spiral candelabra, entwined with garlands of greenery backed the altar and tree-candelabra surrounded the wedding party. Tall Grecian pedestals held arrangements of shocking pink gladioli and chrysanthemums. Three-branched candelabra with garlands of smiley foliage lighted the bride aisle.

DEAR ABBY: Our 21-year-old daughter is living at home again after three unsuccessful tries at apartment living. She works, but pays us no rent. She's been dating a young man for a short period of time and goes out with him once a week. She stays all night at his apartment, comes home in the morning and changes her clothes and goes to work. This is upsetting my husband and me. We've told her so, but she says she is doing no wrong because she "loves" him. She also says she has to live her own life, and if we don't get off her back she will move out, and we'll never see her again. We are afraid that in this direction she has taken will hurt her. How can we love her if he sees her only once a week, and then just for a sleep-over date? If his relationship doesn't lead to marriage, and she thinks she "loves" another one, and another one, and still another, what kind of person will she become?

Abby, it's so hard for us to accept this and be quiet, yet we don't want to lose our daughter. What should we do?

DISTRAUGHT PARENTS
DEAR PARENTS—Tell her that as long as she lives under your roof she'll have to abide by your rules, which do not include sleeping out. If she wants to move, you can't stop her, but I doubt if she will because she's not financially able to back it alone.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can ask somebody who writes up the stuff for the obituary column to help you with this question: In a recent obituary notice was the following: "Mr. — was survived by his widow, who was his fifth wife." Now I really don't see why that had to go into the paper, do you? The man wasn't a celebrity or anything. He was just a common ordinary citizen. Besides, he was 95 years old, which averages out 19 years for each wife, so what is so special about that?

BURNED UP
DEAR BURNED: Each newspaper has its own policy. But I don't see why that and to go into the paper either.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who cuts me down every chance she gets. Like yesterday she came over here and said, "What are you cooking? It

POLLY'S POINTERS Margarine Tub Makes Hoops For Embroidering

DEAR POLLY—I could not find my embroidery hoops when I needed them so I made my own from an empty margarine tub. With shears I cut out a circle at the bottom, another out of the top center and had a wonderful pair of hoops that I covered with adhesive-backed plastic tape just in case there were any rough edges.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I like to crochet but have trouble with the ruffles on dollies as I cannot get them to stand up. I have asked friends how to do this but their answers are very indefinite. Starch does not do the trick nor does so I hope some reader has an answer to my problem.

BLACK AND GOLD

Make a gold necklace to go with that basic black dress. Take about 3/4 yard of gold lace. A variety of designs are available at fabric stores. Choose one that is simple and the width that you desire. Then all you do is gather the lace on a gold cord and you have a unique and elegant necklace.

PEASANT LOOK

If you go for the peasant look — go all the way. Never wear elaborate hairdos with a peasant outfit. Concentrate on the whole look. That means giving special attention to shoes, bags and jewelry to fit in with the rest of the down-home look.

Gals, don't throw away any of those left-over vinyl ties when your new floor is put in. Cut a vinyl tie into four pieces and you have ideal coasters, says flooring experts at Goodyear. Vinyl does not absorb liquid, and it cleans easily with a wipe of the cloth. New colors and patterns make good looking coasters, and you cut the vinyl with household scissors, Goodyear says.

DEAR POLLY—In regards to Mrs. G.H.S.'s complaint about a bad manners over the telephone, I feel the caller himself or herself can do a lot toward getting a mannerly response. One need not say rudely, "Who is this?" if the caller has first said, politely "This is Mary Doe calling." I, too, am sometimes annoyed by impolite phone calls where the caller quickly begins reciting a message so as not to give the listener a chance to talk. Tiquette books tell us conversation is a two-way thing like tennis, back and forth. I have wondered if I would seem too rude if I said to certain callers who ask whether or not I own my own home or rent it: "If I answer these personal questions for you will you also tell me your personal affairs?" In order to be polite, must we give such information to a perfect stranger? If not, what is a polite way not to do so?

Lament Proclaimed For Summer Novel

By BETTY CANARY

Once upon a time there were books called "light fiction." Others were called "summer novels" or books to lie in the hammock and dream with. There's no doubt the publishers have had Think Tank-type meetings and have come to the conclusion that readers are above all that now.

Can't not going to argue about the fact that life is different now—that we're living in a time of rapid changes, I'm not going to argue about the fact that principles and morals and deep thinking are year-round fare and not subjects suited only to discussions before a roaring fireplace while the snow piles high against the eaves.

But still, I lament the passing of summer novels, the kind that were light in content and easily put down while you had a game of tennis, or fixed dinner, the kind where Laura always got through nurses' training and, in the last chapter, captured the brilliant intern.

There comes a time when one is sated with the type of work acclaimed as "an acerbic novel penned with incisive cleverness" or "symbolistic verse prophetic in its comparison of the transcendental egotist and the passionate romantic."

Confronted all year with obsessive essays and urgent realism, ah, how I pine for a simple little story about Edna, a poor little egg-candler from southern Illinois who dreamed of becoming a princess.

One could stay with Edna for awhile, then leave her without guilt long enough to drive the children to the swimming pool or even take a nap.

And flights of fancy came easily while reading her story. If she could do it, so could you. After all, Edna didn't have as much going for her as you did, but she achieved her particular pinnacle of success. She may not have made it to N-maco, but she did become Watermelon Princess of DuBois County. And all because she saved a portion of her egg-candler money each week to pay for modeling lessons.

There's another thing. Edna caused you to feel twinges of remorse and spurred you on to bigger and better efforts. You started thinking about how you once wanted to become a missionary and you wondered whatever happened to the dreams, and why you had let them go in order to devote all your time to dry-skin care. She did NOT make you feel you should go out and crucify yourself on a downtown corner.

True there are cycles in stories and reading habits, but I doubt that Edna will ever return to us. Alas, she has been relegated to that Great Outdated Library in the sky, along with the Hardy Boys and Frank Merriwell. I wonder if they ever see Nanook of the North.

Help!

Editor's note: As a public service feature, the Pampa Daily News, has begun a column entitled, "Help." It is designed to notify Pampans and area residents of individuals or non-profit organizations needing volunteer aid with public service projects. The column will appear in the women's section of Sunday editions of the News when there is material to put in the column. Anyone needing items published in this column may contact Jane Kadingo, women's editor, at 669-2525 before 3 p.m. each Wednesday.

By JANE KADINGO

Anyone interested in staying young... anyone interested in the challenge of guiding young girls toward the highest ideals of womanhood... is needed as a leader of a Scout troop of girls of Junior High School age.

Leadership of this age means guiding the girls in learning to plan their own activities, in learning to be self-reliant and in living up to the Girl Scout ideals of character and usefulness.

There are 40 girls of this age who do not have leaders. What can be more important than providing a climate for these girls where high ideals of honesty, dependability, service, and citizenship are "in" and something to strive for, not to be scoffed at. The girls are willing. The Quivira Girl Scout Council needs adults who are willing. Those who have never tried it don't know how much fun they are missing.

The only requirements are a love for and an interest in young people, plus good health. If more people would take an interest in the young people of Pampa, there might not be as great a need for the suicide prevention program and Genesis House.

Anyone interested may contact Miss Celia Fowler, Girl Scout executive, and Mrs. Whiteley, field director, at the Girl Scout office, city hall, 669-6062.

The medieval look for fall is achieved via a short leather tunic over ribbed tights, fittingly accessorized with a swash buckling Maltese cross earring. Button earrings and a hinged bracelet complete the picture.

Cathy Dorman Repeats Vows In Home Marriage Service

A double-ring ceremony at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 21, united Miss Linda Catherine Dorman of Pampa and Robert Earl Sealey of Dallas in marriage. Nat Lunsford officiated for the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E.F. Dorman, 2207 Lynn.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Sealey of Dallas.

BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a Victorian gown of candlelight lutesong and Venice lace. The bodice was styled with a Victorian neckline banded with Venice lace interwoven with lavender ribbon and was accented with side-front panel of Venice lace and lavender ribbon. The puffed sleeves and natural waistline were banded with the lace and lavender ribbon, also. The floor-length skirt of lutesong was fashioned with side panels of the same Venice lace and lavender ribbon. At her throat, she wore a cameo pin, a gift from her mother.

Her fingertip veil of nylon illusion fell from a headpiece of Venice lace interwoven with lavender ribbon. She carried a cascade bouquet of miniature fuchsia and orchid carnations, centered with a lavender cattleya orchid.

For something old and something borrowed she carried a handkerchief belonging to Mrs. Roy Chisum. For something blue, she wore a blue garter and placed a sixpence in her shoe.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Christina Pitezel of Tulsa, Okla., served as maid of honor. She wore an orchid, sleeveless, street-length dress styled with a round neckline, flared skirt and accented at the waist with the same Venice lace interwoven with lavender ribbon as the bridal gown. Her shoes were lavender and she carried a nosegay of pink asters with orchid streamers.

Jack Seitz of Dallas was best man and Randy Dorman, brother of the bride, served as usher and candlelighter.

CEREMONY

The couple was married before a setting of arrangements of orchid gladioli, lavender asters and lavender statice, with hand-carved wooden Spanish candelabra at each side.

Mrs. Jack Edwards, pianist, played the "Wedding March," the theme from "Love Story," and the theme from "Romeo and Juliet."

RECEPTION

A reception was held following the ceremony in the bride's home. The table was covered with a cloth of hand-made lace, made by the bride's grandmother, over lavender. It was decorated with an arrangement of orchid gladioli, lavender asters, lavender statice and lavender tapers.

The three-tiered wedding cake, topped with love birds, was decorated with small green leaves.

Mrs. Martin Reeves of Pampa presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. Norman Cox of Amarillo, cousin of the bride, served the cake. Guests were registered by Miss Beth Beard of Pampa.

For the wedding trip to Amarillo, the bride wore a navy-blue dress of knit jersey, accented at the neck with a multi-colored scarf. Her accessories were white and her corsage was the lavender cattleya orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will be at home at 2959 Pentagon Parkway in Dallas.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride attended Frank Phillips Junior College and the Dallas Fashion Merchandise College. She is presently employed as an assistant buyer for Titches of Dallas.

The bridegroom, a 1966 graduate of South Oakcliff High School, Dallas, attended the University of Texas at Arlington. He is presently employed as a menswear buyer for E.M. Kahn's in Dallas.

PRE-NUPITAL EVENTS

Pre-nuptial events included a shower given by Mrs. Norman Cox of Amarillo in the home of Mrs. Lawrence Blandford of Amarillo.

OUT-OF-TOWN-GUESTS

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Semrad of Clarendon, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. James Semrad of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Don Dorman of Vega; Mrs. Calvin Dorman of Mangum, Okla.; Mrs. Norman Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Blandford, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Holbert and Mrs. Larry Brown, all of Amarillo; and Don B. Nelson of Tulsa, Okla.

Wives Must Know About Inheritance

A wife's ignorance of the family's financial situation can lead to serious complications in the event of her husband's death, according to Frank T. Rea, president of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

He advises wives to look into arrangements made for their future, citing statistics showing that, on the average, women live five years longer than men; and also that most wives are younger than their husbands.

"These facts," Mr. Rea says, "support the point that a woman, likely to outlive her husband, should acquaint herself with family finances and prospects for survivors in the event of the breadwinner's death."

He poses some questions a wife can ask herself to test her knowledge about a situation she is likely some day to face:

Should your husband die, where would you look for his will, stock certificates, insurance policies and other valuable papers?

Do you have a list of his holdings? What about employee benefits or pension plans at his place of employment? Would you be eligible for social security benefits?

In what banks does he have deposits? How would you gain access to safe deposit boxes?

Would the mortgage on your home have to be paid or is it covered by mortgage insurance?

Who is his lawyer, his stock broker, his insurance man and his accountant?

Mr. Rea advises wives who can't answer such questions to ask their husbands for the information. His advice to men is that, while it is admirable to make adequate provision for one's family, it is imperative that the wife be informed of these arrangements. Otherwise, much of the benefit of the financial planning may be lost.

Decorative Lights Add Home Glamour

Architects and builders have seen the light, and home buyers are responding favorably according to an industry spokesman.

New technology and design have made residential lighting - indoor and outdoor, decorative and functional - a glamour feature for new homes in the '70s, says E. Herbert Bladh, group vice president of Scovill's building products operations at a meeting of industry distributors.

"Architects and builders are coming to realize that the only permanent interior decoration installations that they can supply are the lighting fixtures," he said. "They are getting strong reactions from home buyers to the good taste or lack of it in the period or contemporary chandeliers, sconces and other lighting fixtures that come with the house."

Your Horoscope

SUNDAY, AUG. 15
Your birthday today: There's a lot of good news in the direct approach to life and all its challenges. In limitations in the coming year. Whatever skills you have with the used, and you will have to develop more to come with what comes to you to do. Little of your mission can be passed off to others to attend, and it is unlikely that you can take anything for a long time to come. Today's natives often are reserved, self-sufficient, paying little attention to advice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Any effort to arbitrate or adjust others' differences only gets you involved and over your depth. Go ahead with an individual project.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take your share in the community's traditional rituals. Make the rounds of old friends, returning favors and loans. The general drift is favorable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Conversation promises to fill your day. Among the amenities a few good exchanges guide you well.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Home life and its enjoyment requires important deeds and some sacrifice of outside promotions or displays.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): You must come up with more answers this Sunday, and you may have to share confidences to get a full enough perspective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Step up an demand what you're entitled to enjoy. Where you encounter conflict, make sure you're in possession of the whole story before you proceed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Everybody has a few rough edges and is bound to find them down a little encountering those of other. Choose the old standbys you get along best with for a rather social Sunday.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): People you don't know well are quite curious. Go along and learn more about them and their reasons.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Plan a nearly solitary day-catch up on neglected correspondence. Clear up your immediate surroundings; spend your time in thought for the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can't pursue all the lively alternatives open now. Select the more conservative, better organized ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You think you're just being factual when you're causing new problems for others, and ultimately yourself. There's a special need to push toward goals beyond present possibilities.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Initiative finally passes into your hands. You can persuade most people to see at least part of the story your way.

MONDAY, Aug. 16
Your birthday today: Opens a drama of your inner involvement toward higher spiritual expression. Limitations must be transcended or simply accepted as irrelevant to the greater reality. Today's natives are reserved, seldom follow advice, usually ultraconservative in some matters while being wide open on other issues.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Big questions answer themselves as you go. It's the steady encounter with little ones that wears you down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A romantic flavor comes into your experience with hints of exotic, hard-to-believe glamor. Be deep your age up a schedule.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Temptation is to rationalize or change the discussion when a good answer is needed. Find out the facts and present them where you are asked.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Being devious or subtle only creates misunderstanding of what you want and where you're working toward it. Be forthright, despite rebuffs, and go on.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): Gather together all who can share your way of life and who are free and willing to collaborate. You may even build a new working group while having fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You might reasonably begin a vacation—or you may find that just getting back to work may be a relief from the past week's weekend. Close out things rather than make extra trips.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Bring together old friends for reunion, companions, perhaps the establishment of a working crew. There's good news to share as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Simplify your career activity where you can; drop sideline activities particularly if they no longer pay well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Go directly to the point, deal with people whose views clash with yours, come to some line of agreement. Mutual self-respect is the only feasible course.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Partisan attitudes have a way of involving you as devil's advocate, defending ideas you don't really enjoy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your general approach to one you love is none too delicate now. Find a symbolic form of declaration to go with your words.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Working conditions should be left alone for the moment. Changes need more preparation, can be made later with better prospects.

New Face Of America

The traumatic experience many are having as a result of the federal government's new China position makes this an excellent time to re-examine the face of America and to speculate about its future.

It could be that American history will some day be studied in terms of "Before China" and "After China."

However we suggest that Nixon's China move is not such a radical departure as it first seemed. A more thoughtful review of America's recent history seems to indicate the embracing of Communist China as a respected member of the community of nations is a logical progression of "political America."

One of our associates wrote recently that Americans would be receiving a "conditioning" for the total acceptance of Red China. This has proven to be true, and it is surprising only in that the leap from a mere visit to Chou En-lai to Nixon's support of Red China's U.N. membership came sooner than expected.

How could a politician dare make such an abrupt about face to clasp an enemy to his bosom while the guns still snuff out lives of his soldiers; while the enemy's "hate America" propaganda still blazes throughout the world; while that same enemy builds its military and influence bases in an ever widening circle throughout the so-called free world?

It is not enough to state, as some newspapers have, that Nixon's policy is simply an acceptance of the reality that the government of Communist China represents 750 million people and therefore it is proper to admit that they exist, and therefore admit that government to fellowship.

There never has been evidence that the American people were not aware that Communist China exists.

Rapists, murderers and thieves also exist, and society is aware of them.

It has been suggested that Red China's membership in the U.N. was assured even without the U.S. support, therefore it was politically expedient for the President to "join 'em." Further it has been pointed out that Nixon's move is designed to bring peace in Southeast Asia, that our Prisoners of War may be released and therefore the China move is correct and proper.

All of these may seem to be valid explanations of political expedience, yet we cannot concede they alone are sufficient cause to lead a President to dare to repudiate American principles; to suggest that American lives were not lost fighting communism in Korea and are not being lost in Vietnam.

The President had to believe that Americans themselves in numbers sufficient to assure his reelection already have rejected the old American ideals. It is not an abrupt development, America did not overnight become a nation of people who would accept Red China. So when did our nation change?

The more perceptive student of history will mark the decline of the American experiment perhaps at the point of the income tax law or at some point at which political government obtained unlimited financing.

Scholars will establish that a society begins to disintegrate when its political leaders wrest from the people the power of the purse. A case is merely symptomatic.

So America has slowly changed from a nation of self-reliant, rugged individualists to a land where increasing numbers of confused, directionless cyphers seem eager to sign a declaration of dependence; dependence upon subsidy, upon drugs and other escapes.

The seed for this destruction, of course can be traced to the schools and the church both of which failed to teach the value of morality. But something had to get these institutions off track, and we suspect it came from those who felt the need to apologize for America's wealth.

Under the freedom America enjoyed, it was possible for great fortunes to be amassed, and in the process greater numbers of people enjoyed a higher standard of living than the world had ever known.

But someone got the idea that to be so successful was sinful. We suspect this idea may have come from those who inherited their wealth from fathers or grandfathers. It surely could not have come from someone who understands the value of economic freedom.

So the deed is done the conditioning process is complete and the decline is inevitable. Whatever the deeds of politicians, such as Mr. Nixon's China move, the overwhelming majority of Americans will accept them in sheep-like silence.

Except for a few of us.

Question Box

QUESTION — Freedom Newspapers always complains that tax-supported schools and colleges, which force people to pay for them whether they want them or not, are unjust. Can you give an example of how this is unjust since most people believe that the tax-supported schools benefit society as a whole and the poor people in particular, by making it possible for all children to get an education?

ANSWER — We could give many examples of how the system of tax-supported schools and colleges is unjust.

Suppose there is a widow with four children to be raised and educated, and further suppose that after the medical cost had been paid, her husband's insurance was just enough to pay off the mortgage on their home, but not enough to provide an income for the family. So the widow must go to work. She sees that the tax-supported schools often do a poor job in educating, and besides, with no father in the household, she wants her children to have benefit of moral and religious training so she sends her children to the school maintained by her church, whether it be Catholic, Lutheran, Baptist or whatever.

Now, she pays taxes on her home, and they go up every year, to pay for schools she is not using and believes would be harmful to her children. Not only that, since property taxes do not fully cover the cost of the school system, the state raises funds in many other ways and most of these are hidden in the price of everything people buy. These hidden taxes alone amount to from a third to half of the price of every single thing sold. If this widow's income is only average, then most of what she earns must be spent on necessities—food, clothing, utilities, transportation to her work, medical needs, etc. All these things cost her more than they should because of the hidden taxes—to help pay for schools she does not want to use. These hidden taxes also are part of the costs of operating the school she does choose, and so she pays more for that than she needs to, also. And these high costs of necessities prevent her from accumulating savings or from having any little luxuries.

But among the children who are using those tax-supported schools which she helps pay for are children whose parents are more fortunate, financially, and who could well afford the full burden of their own children's schooling, even at the tax-inflated prices. So the widow must deprive herself and her children of many things to help support those who are already far better off than she is. Is this justice?

Beyond that, in later years, her sons may not be able to go to college and prepare themselves for better opportunities, or they may choose not to do so in order to keep from putting a heavier burden on their mother. But then they, as they become earners, also are taxed to support the schools, and their mother continues to be taxed, to send other people's children to college when her own were unable to attend. Is this justice?

The same circumstances can apply to a family whose principal wage earner is disabled and no longer earning, and to those families whose earning capacities are low. And even if they do not own property, they are taxed, since they must live somewhere and they pay rent, and the rent includes the tax the property owner must pay. If the property owner cannot get enough rent for his property to cover the cost of upkeep, which includes taxes, it is not profitable for him to keep the property. So the taxes to support the schools, as do all taxes, ultimately fall heaviest on those who can least afford the burden. Freedom Newspapers does not believe that this is justice.

The tax-supported schools are immoral because they are founded on coercion and they are unjust because those who pay the dearest price for them do not receive value commensurate with what they pay schools and politicians and keep from knowing this.

The people who founded and those who believe in tax-supported schools did not intend that this injustice should occur. They just do not see far enough to see all the effects of what seemed to be a good and humanitarian idea.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Rev. Olson wants to know the most striking psychological events in the Old Testament. Mull over the 3 that are cited below. For they insured man an inventive brain; the ethical system called Christianity, and the unique concept of God as being a loving Father instead of a sadistic deity!

CASE R-548: Rev. Olson makes psychology his hobby. "Dr. Crane," he said, as we had dinner following my address from his Sunday pulpit, "you have said you derived most of your Applied Psychology from the Bible."

"What would you rate as some of the major psychological events in the Old Testament?"

BIBY PSYCHOLOGY
(1) Eve's being persuaded by the serpent's sales psychology to eat the forbidden fruit. Adam then invented mankind's most widely used psychological gadget, namely, buck-passing.

For when God demanded to know if Adam had tasted the forbidden apple, Adam passed the buck and said his wife gave it to him.

Moreover, this event in the Garden of Eden took man out of his mentally sterile "zoo" and forced him to think for himself.

Prior to that fruit-eating episode, man was merely a "kept" animal in a unique menagerie.

Thereafter, he had to become a scientist, as well as an inventor, a physician as well as a psychologist, and evolve such splendid altruistic organizations as the Boy Scouts, Red Cross, Salvation Army and our many hospitals.

(2) Abraham's generous act in letting his nephew, Lot, take first choice of the land. Greedy Lot grabbed the lush valleys with the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, thus pushing Abraham into the hills.

But religion thrives in the hills where men are not puffed up by their own skyscraper buildings and populous streets. It is still the villages, small towns and countryside that form the Bible Belt in America and serve as the backbone of churches.

Alas, 73 percent of our population now reside in urban areas!

If Abraham had lived in cities, Christianity would probably never have arisen on this planet.

God sent his prophets, such as Samuel, Elisha and Isaiah, to convince human beings that he was a loving, ever-forgiving father; not a Herod or Pharaoh who took delight in killing babies.

But none of the prophets ever fully got the point. Certainly, they never put it across to their people.

As a last grand gamble, therefore, God must have decided to reciprocate Abraham's sacrifice of his only son.

And Calvary is thus unique in all ethical history, for it marks the first and only time that deity ever sacrificed to win the affection of us puny mortals!

Without exception, all previous sacrifices had been a one-way street, with mankind trying to win favor of their cruel gods.

At Calvary, God reversed the process to prove his extensive affection for us human children!

H. L. Hunt Writes

CASTRO'S SISTER HITS REDS

You won't see or hear much about it via the national news media but Juanita Castro, sister of Cuba's Red Fidel, recently blasted her brother for intrigues which made avowed Marxist Salvador Allende the boss of Chile (with only 36 per cent of the popular vote). Allende had only a 29,000 vote margin over the leading anti-communist candidate, so it would be surprising if the Reds had allowed their man to lose when only 29,000 votes had to be stolen.

Castro's sister learned the hard way about Fidel by 1961 and fled from her brother's "Cuban paradise" in 1964, finding asylum in Mexico. She since has followed Cuban events closely and spoken out strongly, but U.S. networks have found no time for her facts while favoring so many pro-Castro, pro-Hanoi kooks eager to defame patriotism or anyone who would stand up to the Reds.

At a public gathering in Tulsa, Okla., Juanita again accused Fidel, so she should have received major coverage from all TV networks. She also pointed out the complicity of silly officials in our government who allowed State Department underlings to mislead them about Castro. It was this U.S. weakness, she charges, which permitted Castro to seize power and still permits him to remain and export subversion to every nation in the hemisphere.

Most-chilling thing in the lounge bar of the hotel is the check for a party of 10.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Dear Dr. Lamb—Could you please tell me if it's normal to skip a period? It's been six weeks since my last one and it usually comes around every five weeks. My boy friend and I almost had relations but stopped. I was taking diet pills for two weeks and stopped the week I was due, in case this had anything to do with it. I have been nervous and uptight because of work.

If it makes any difference, I'm 18 years old. My boy friend thinks we should get married now, but I say it's nothing and we should wait until next year like we planned. I'm a little nervous because he wants to get married and he's scaring me. I don't feel nauseous or anything and I don't have morning sickness. So could it be from the diet pills and my nerves?

Dear Reader — Unless you go to a doctor and find out a little earlier, time will answer your question anyway. If you have a five-week cycle and it's been six weeks since your last period, you are about one week overdue. Many things besides pregnancy can cause a woman to miss a period. Nervousness, dieting and various illnesses are all factors. People seem to expect the reproductive system to function perfectly all the time, demanding more of it than any other organ system (probably because society is uptight about sex). We accept readily that the stomach may not always work perfectly or other organs can have off periods, but not the sex organs.

The reproductive system is very complex. The monthly cycle is the end point of a series of hormonal actions in the body, even dependent upon the small pituitary gland underneath the brain. The mind, and therefore the emotions, can markedly affect the endocrine glands throughout the body and that includes the sex glands. That is why, when you become stimulated by some new, exciting person, your body seems to turn on. The old sex drive suddenly shifts into high gear. You see, the pituitary, or master gland of the body, is directly connected to the brain and markedly influenced by its actions. It is little wonder when a girl misses a period or has one early. The remarkable thing is how well it works.

For early pregnancy, I know of no substitute for an examination, usually a laboratory test, to determine whether or not you are pregnant. For such an important question, it seems like a reasonable course of action.

It might be well to stress, however, that activities that lead to the male having an orgasm at the vaginal opening can result in rare cases in pregnancy. Some think, despite such activities, a girl is still a virgin unless the hymen membrane is ruptured. This depends on your definition of a virgin. Webster's definition varies from an "unmarried woman" to an "absolutely chaste young woman."

Bicycles, Fad Or New Future

By PAUL HARVEY

If you try to order a popular make bicycle these days, you will have to wait weeks, or maybe months, for delivery. What's this all about?

Because the world goes in circles, historians say that observing Europe you can foresee what the United States will be.

That seems to mean that we are in for a multiplicity of political parties, more apartments, fewer houses, barricaded display windows, smaller lawns, smaller cars — and more bicycles.

Bike makers turned out 5 million last year, will turn out 7.5 million this year. Some sell for as much as $500.

Yet they have not begun to satisfy the increasing demand. It's not a children's toy any more. Five years ago 5 percent of all bikes were sold to adults; today 20 percent.

New York's Mayor Lindsay and Chicago's Mayor Daley, themselves riding bikes for transportation, exercise or recreation, have designated "bike routes" in the big cities.

New York Congressman Koch is asking Congress to allocate federal money to build bicycle paths alongside highways, as Britain already does.

The bike rider, on our congested city streets, may whizz past long lines of stopped cars — but the evolution is not being accomplished without friction. Some cab drivers swear at him. Some motorists purposely brush him aside, some strafe him with spitballs. And there is even the instinctive antipathy of stray dogs.

If and when the bike rider gets where he's going, there's no place to park or, where there is, the parking fee may be $1 a day.

Thievery runs high; in Chicago 1,000 bikes a month are reported stolen. And supply and demand what it is, stolen bikes are easy to peddle. (That pun was not intentional.)

On the sunshine side of the ledger, if the United States should mount a tide of bikes, comparable to that which floods the streets of Paris, the benefits are shared. What's good exercise for the ruler reduces road-logging car traffic — and no vehicle pollutes less than a bike.

Weather remains a factor for the open air commuter but Old World bike riders have learned to adapt to that with customized rain gear.

Many Americans say they have taken up bike riding for health's sake or to lose weight. For the lazy jogger, it is better than nothing.

Olympic athlete Bob Richardson, who rode a bicycle from coast to coast to publicize a breakfast cereal, insists that future highway and city planning should accommodate the inevitable increase of bicycle traffic.

As is, most turnpikes are off-limits and most side roads are neglected.

Evolution sets its own pace. It is a timely time for transportation that takes less space, costs less money, is more healthful.

And if Europe is what we will be, we're all going to be having less and enjoying it more.

CAPITOL EYE

Nixon Ignores Agnew

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is more distressed than ever these days over the fact that President Nixon and his advisers leave him out of just about everything important they do.

Agnew is not a man of immense ego, but he does have his pride. And people who know him say he has been continuously offended by President's neglect of him. Says a friend:

"When he isn't told in advance of decisions like the President going to China, the Vice President takes it as proof that Nixon and his top men put him down as a clown who isn't worth telling anything to."

That's the core of it, right there — Agnew's feeling that they think he is some kind of dumbbell.

There is a practical side to it, of course it might be considered vital for the Vice President to be warped into key decisions in the event something should happen to the President. It might also be thought simply useful for a man representing Nixon as foreign capitals and around the national speech-making circuit.

The President's announcement of intent to visit Peking came while Agnew was on his recent trip around the world. Airborne the morning after Nixon spoke, the Vice President was in visible anguish. Reporters saw him pacing in his cabin.

He also had been kept in the dark on some of the President's earlier overtures to Peking. Irritated over these repeated affronts, Agnew has developed a "don't give a damn" attitude which leads him to spout his own view of things wherever he pleases. Obviously, he finds ample opportunity, since he often disagrees with Nixon's policies and actions.

What it amounts to, again, is the Vice President in effect saying to himself that if they in the White House are not going to care about him, he's not going to care about them.

One friend adds, incidentally, that he doubts Nixon and Agnew ever have any substantial private conversations, though they cross paths at official and social gatherings.

Given this terrible estrangement, and it can't be described as anything less, the question of Agnew's future takes on new force.

There are some informed private judgments that the President would like to have Agnew off the Republican ticket in 1972. When soundings show quite generally around the nation (even in conservative places like Texas) that he is viewed as a drag, Nixon's course would seem clear.

The trouble is, there is no nice way to do it. Dumping vice presidents is not a common practice since for a president it represents a kind of self-criticism. The easier thing, naturally, is to have Agnew stay where he is, but that's been talked of openly so much, it will inevitably be treaded merely as a "dumping device."

Yet the odds do favor separation of the estranged parties in 1972.

"Mrs. Nixon, if I can be of any assistance in promoting your husband's 'legacy of parks' program, don't hesitate to call upon me!"

PRESIDENTS ACTION WILL HELP FARMERS

WASHINGTON, — "American Farmers stand to benefit from the actions announced by the President to combat inflation, to spur the competitiveness of the U.S. economy, and to improve our foreign trade and monetary position," Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin said tonight.

"Farmers will benefit by the actions taken to fight inflation. The cost-price squeeze is the number one problem facing American farmers. Therefore, we strongly welcome the actions taken."

"Secondly, the steps announced to spur investment in equipment and to reduce taxes are designed to bolster our own domestic economy and make jobs. These will provide stronger markets for our own products."

"Finally, the action taken to impose a temporary surcharge on imports and the withdrawal of gold support from the dollar are comparable to what other countries have done in similar situations and, as anyone concerned with agriculture knows, the use of variable levies by some countries to protect agricultural systems constitutes permanent border protection which should be of far greater concern to the world than temporary surcharges."

"I hope that as our friends abroad digest this series of actions they will recognize that the President is saying that all of us need to find better solutions to our trade and international monetary problems. Obviously, American agriculture could make a much stronger contribution than it already has to our balance-of-payments problem if other countries of the world would admit more of our farm goods."

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Marie K. Jackson, who wrote to Joseph Valachi when the Cosa Nostra informer was in prison and later arranged his funeral, was made the beneficiary of his will, probate proceedings disclosed Thursday.

The exact amount of Valachi's estate was not revealed. Valachi died April 3 in a federal prison at El Paso, Tex. He gained national attention in 1963 when he testified before a U.S. Senate subcommittee about the Cosa Nostra's underworld network.

Agriculturally Speaking

On Aug. 5, 1971 a Symposium on grazing small grains was held at the Bushland Experiment Station.

The information presented at this meeting was the best I've seen from any experiment station. The stocker calf, feedlot - small grain pasture industry in the Southern Great Plains region will stand to benefit to the tune of millions of dollars if they will capitalize on the ideas presented in this booklet that summarized the results of three years of research information.

In a nut shell here are answers you have been wanting. Will Barley, Elbon Rye, Tascosa Wheat, DeKalb 9290, and DeKalb 9190 were consistently high forage yields for pasture.

Triticale 6TA208, and Graze Grain 70 (a Triticale variety) were consistently low yields in forage production. Graze Grain 70 produced only thousand and fifty-one pounds of air-dry forage in 1970-71 growing season. DeKalb 9290 wheat produced seven thousand five hundred thirty-two pounds in the same trial. Will Barley produced seven thousand four hundred twenty-five pounds and Elbon Rye produced six thousand nine hundred forty-six pounds. Tascosa produced six thousand seven hundred and nine pounds.

Triumph was the lowest of the wheats in total forage production.

From this I would recommend planting Tascosa for dryland production. There has been little difference in grain yields of most of the common varieties. Wheat has as much value for pasture as for grain.

How late can you graze? Where wheat wasn't grazed, the production of grain was thirty-eight bushels. Grazed from Nov. 12 to March 1, yield was forty-five bushels; March 20 - fifty-three, April 10 - forty-eight; and May 1 - seventeen.

From this I'd say April 10 looks like an optimum cut-off date. The grain yield dropped only four and one-half bushels and twenty extra days of grazing were obtained. This is the time of year that a steer will put on two pounds a day. In many cases carrying capacity will exceed one steer per acre. The value of the wheat pasture estimated at seventy cents a day per acre would be about fourteen dollars. The extra four and one-half bushels of grain would be worth about seven dollars. This would be a good trade don't you think?

SEEDING RATE

Where wheat was not watered, there was little difference in the total forage production off a forty-five pound seeding rate as compared to a ninety pound seeding rate. With three fall irrigations the ninety pound seeding rate yielded a third more grazing than the forty-five pound rate of seeding. Most of the gain was in fall grazing. There was little difference in spring forage production of the two seeding rates.

SET ASIDE ACRES 1971

A requirement has been placed in the rules that determine eligible set aside acres for 1971. You should take a close look to see how this would affect you. The rule states, "The set aside acreage must be cropland that could be planted to a crop in 1972." If you have had your set aside acres isolated and fenced and planted to permanent grass cover it appears this would have to be broken out and prepared for cropland. Check this out with Evelyn Mason before you break any land out.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) —

A 15-month-old girl has died from swallowing a handful of a nonphosphate laundry detergent, the director of the local Poison Information Center said today.

Arthur F. Blank said that in 14 years with the poison center he could not recall another infant death from ingestion of laundry detergent. He said federal authorities were notified promptly.

The child, who lived in Putnam, Conn., died Aug 15. Blank declined to give her name or the name of the detergent involved.

Blank said the high alkalinity of the nonphosphate detergents makes them dangerous to children.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX RYALS

Six water officials from Gray and arson Counties visited the California Water Project during the last week. The Gray-Carson counties group joined 68 other water officials for the five-day tour of the largest water project ever attempted. The tour was sponsored by Water, Inc. and the state making the tour included six state legislators from Oklahoma and six state legislators from Texas.

Periodically this column will carry the highlights of the California Water Project. In our column today, we will give some background information on the California State Water Project which is now approximately 98 per cent completed.

The State Water Project is an amazing venture. It is the first statewide water resources development in the United States, and the largest single water development in the world to be financed at one time. It is also the first water project to be built with recreation and fish and wildlife enhancement as a primary purpose.

California is a land of contrast in topography, climate, and population distribution. From its lowest point, 282 feet below sea level in Death Valley, one has to travel only 85 miles to reach the State's highest point, Mount Whitney, towering 14,495 feet above sea level. The State's rainfall ranges from more than 100 inches per year in the mountainous northwest corner to about 2 inches per year in the desert areas of the southeast.

More than 70 percent of the State's water supply originates north of the latitude of San Francisco Bay; however, 83 percent of the people in California live in metropolitan areas from San Francisco to the Mexican border.

The State Water Project was conceived, planned, and is being constructed to correct this imbalance and to provide, throughout its 600-mile route, a firm supply of good quality water, a guaranteed source of clean hydroelectric power, recreational sites readily available to urban areas and the enhancement of fish and wildlife habitats for all Californians through wise water management and conservation.

The Project was authorized for construction by the State Legislature in 1959 (the Burns-Porter Act) on the basis of studies which had been conducted since 1945. The Burns-Porter Act, and the financing and construction of the State Water Project, were approved by the voters of the State in the General Election of 1960.

Construction, operation, and maintenance costs of the State Water Project allocated to water and power supply are repaid, with interest, by the Project's water users and power users. No general taxes are involved. Project costs allocated to flood control are repaid by the Federal Government. Project costs allocated to recreation and fish and wildlife enhancement are repaid under the provisions of the Davis-Doherty Act, which reserves $5 million of tideland oil monies for this purpose each year. These purposes were considered by the Legislature to be directly beneficial to all Californians and therefore to be repaid by all Californians as beneficiaries.

ASCS Office Named Center For Information

All residents of Gray county may obtain answers to questions on operation and interpretation of the Presidential order of Aug. 15 on prices, rents, wages and salaries from Gray County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office, according to Evelyn Mason, County Executive Director, Gray County ASCS.

County ASCS offices throughout the United States have been chosen as information centers to answer questions from all citizens on President Nixon's Executive Order which is designated to stem inflation and strengthen the national economy.

The Gray County ASCS office is receiving official answers to questions concerning the President's action, and any person in Gray county who wants or needs precise information should get in touch with the County Office, Miss Mason said.

The Gray County ASCS office is located 1 1/2 miles east of Pampa in the Courthouse Annex. The mailing address is Box 1821, Pampa, Texas, 79065. In charge of the office is Miss Evelyn Mason, County Executive Director. The office has a staff of 5 persons. These are Elizabeth Flynn, Willie Rawls, Glorice Jones and Amos Harris.

Our and all ASCS offices throughout the nation, will function as information centers in all locations outside of highly urbanized areas, Miss Mason said.

4-H Corner

The Gray County 4-H Council decided to have a County 4-H party sometime during the fall during a recent meeting Mary Margaret Spearman was appointed chairman of this committee. Plans for the 1971 County awards Program to be held on Saturday, Nov. 6, were discussed. 4-H Clubs in charge of the program are Lefors, entertainment; Sundowners; speaker; 4-H Council and the horse Club, decorating; Grandview and Lucky Star, foods; and Top O' Texas, clean-up.

It's time to start thinking about Tri-State Fair again. Any 4-H member who would like may enter articles in the Junior divisions of the textile and culinary departments. We have one fair catalogue in the office if you would like to check it to see what you can enter.

The entries are due at the exhibit building in Amarillo at different times. The canned goods and textiles may be entered on September 16 and 17 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. The baked goods may be entered between 8 a.m. and 12 noon on Sat. Sept. 18.

Agents will be attending a Tri-District meeting in Lubbock on September 15, 16, and 17 so we will be unable to take the canned goods and textiles to Amarillo on the 16 and 17, so each club will have to make arrangements to get these to Amarillo.

Normal function of ASCS county offices is to administer farm action programs of the U.S. Department of Agriculture on the local level. County offices will continue to serve in that capacity without interruption.

Franchises Shaken by Hard Times

By Mervyn C. Paulson
Pamphlet, N.Y.

As a nation, we have been hit hard by the economic recession. The result is a widespread feeling of pessimism and a loss of confidence in the future. This is reflected in the fact that many franchises are being sold at a loss.

One of the most common reasons for the sale of franchises is the lack of capital. Many franchisees are unable to raise the money needed to keep their businesses afloat. This is often due to the fact that the economy is in a state of recession and many businesses are struggling to survive.

Another common reason for the sale of franchises is the lack of experience. Many franchisees are inexperienced and are unable to manage their businesses effectively. This is often due to the fact that they have not received the proper training and support from the franchisor.

There are many other reasons why franchises are being sold at a loss. However, the fact remains that the economic recession has had a significant impact on the franchise industry. This is a warning sign for the future and it is important that we take steps to prevent a similar situation from occurring again.

One of the ways to prevent a similar situation from occurring again is to ensure that franchisees are properly trained and supported. This can be done by providing them with the necessary capital and experience to manage their businesses effectively.

Another way to prevent a similar situation from occurring again is to ensure that franchisees are properly screened. This can be done by requiring them to provide a detailed financial statement and a plan of action before they are allowed to join the franchise.

The Return Of The Missile Gap

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This series of articles is based on a diplomatic, military, political and economic analysis at the White House, State Department, Defense Department, Agency for International Development, National Science Foundation, Library of Congress and other governmental sources.)

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It is an international contest being held today to determine which of the superpowers had the most defensive muscle. The United States would win — but not by much.

But if the same contest were held a decade hence, the outcome might be the same.

This clear consensus is the result of a private survey made by this correspondent in the course of a six-month study of the American and Soviet military establishments.

Don't be surprised if the old "missile gap" returns to the headlines, because many military strategists have begun to worry about it again.

The facts, at the moment, are these:

1. American missiles are more accurate than the Soviet varieties and are more in-vulnerable to enemy attack. 2. American naval power is superior to the Soviet Union's, mainly because the U.S. Navy has had years of first-hand war experience. The Soviet navy has had no actual battle testing in 25 years.

3. The U.S. Army has also stood the test of battle for many years, a plus factor, but has also been demoralized because of Vietnam, a minus factor.

4. The Soviet trend line is moving up at a steady rate in missile building, submarine and ship construction and in military space experiment. "Growth rate in numbers and, in some cases, technology, has been greater than the U.S. rate," American strategists point out. That the development of military technology in the Soviet Union and the accompanying research are moving ahead rapidly for comfort.

In most situations, however, the Soviet Union is doing no more than catching up to the American position. No one yet knows where they will go when they do catch up, and by the time this is learned the state of the intelligence arms being what it is, it could be too late to react.

But what makes many observers skeptical about this sort of information is that the country has been through the "missile gap" exercise before. For example, in the 1950s, it was argued in very high places that there would soon be a bomber gap. Indications were that the Soviet Union had embarked on large-scale bomber construction.

So the U.S. government ordered a hurry-up multimillion dollar bomber program to combat the impending threat. Except that the Soviet Union did not build the bombers. They did build missiles.

In 1960, Sen. Stuart Symington "leaked" information that the Soviet Union would soon surpass the United States in intercontinental missiles and the "missile gap" was born.

Again, the United States crashed into a missile-building program. But the "missile gap" never developed, if it ever actually existed in the first place.

And there was Sputnik. The Russians not only scored a clear space beat but also an education and propaganda triumph. The tiny satellite demonstrated that the Soviet Union could do what the Americans had not yet done. The "moon race" began, and the Americans rushed to catch up — at cost not yet calculated.

Once again, we are being warned of a "missile gap" in the form of a new Soviet first-strike capability, the S-9 ICBM and a possible improvement which may be off the drawing boards.

Obviously, it is no wonder that man are skeptical of dire warnings about an impending missile gap, especially when enunciated at budget times.

As Herbert Scoville, former CIA deputy director told the Senate Armed Services Committee, "In essentially all cases the threat to the U.S. deterrent is less than was estimated in 1960 and the United States already has programs in being, or available for rapid deployment if required, which can insure the maintenance of a secure deterrent for the foreseeable future."

If one follows the odds, then, it's likely there will again be no "missile gap."

But the question remains: Can the U.S. government follow the odds when so much is at stake? Some men remain cautious.

If this government overreacts by building armaments which turn out to be unnecessary, the American long-term defense posture is seriously weakened. By spending billions — on "today's" weapons, there is less to spend on long-term research and development.

If, on the other hand, the warnings are finally correct, the security of the country is seriously weakened.

It is a dilemma which this country is now facing.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Justices of the peace now can get more job education.

Texas A&M University's Engineering Extension Service has received a $153,679 grant from the Texas Criminal Justice Council to conduct 10 educational short courses for justices of the peace, H. D. Bearden, director of the service, reports.

Bearden said the funds will be directed through the extension service's police training division and will cover all expenses for 40-hour courses in Lubbock, Arlington, Longview, College Station and San Antonio.

The Center has reorganized the Dolphin Swim Club during the last year for the purpose of entering again into competitive swimming. The Dolphins are presently meeting each open day at 6:00 p.m. to workout and would invite any boy or girl who is interested and knows how to swim to join the club.

Swimmers are needed in all age groups to complete relay teams so that we can have relay representation at all of the meets. All interested swimmers are urged to contact George Smith at the Youth Center, Jackie Marlar at 665-1965, and come out for practice. All that is required is the ability to swim and the desire to compete.

MEMBERSHIPS—The Center being a non-profit non-taxable organization sustains operating capital from donations and a membership usage plan. The membership plans are priced economically low so that every family in Pampa can afford to participate. The Center has never raised its prices since it opened in 1961 and this is hard to do considering the cost of living rise. In this light that is why we need the help of all Pampans to participate and support us.

The Center offers two types of memberships for participating. The limited membership in our regular membership for the use of the gym, recreation hall and swimming pool. This does not allow you use of the new health facility. This membership for an individual is only $5 for six months or $8 per year. The family plan is only $12 for six months or $20 per year.

Radio & TV

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The faces are etched by living, creased by age, weathered by exposure, mellowed by experience.

These are the faces that will be seen on television in the fall. They are not new faces, but they are comfortable and familiar.

As never before, television is relying on actors with an audience identification built up over years in the movies and on the tube.

"These are faces you can live with. They've got strength and compassion," said David Victor, who is producing three series for ABC. "These are very appealing character stars with wonderful faces."

Victor said, "I think Raymond Burr is a wonderful TV hero. That face and eyes—you know here is a man you can talk to. Robert Young has strength and compassion. And Anthony Quinn is virile and romantic. When you find these people who can stand up to television's closeups, you've found a star. These are acting faces."

One of the most interesting faces on television this year is that of Academy Award winner George Kennedy, a burly man with an appealing mixture of Irish brawn and Irish heart who stars in NBC's "Sarge." That mixture will come in handy because he plays a policeman turned priest.

"Some time in the last 20 years that boy-meets-girl thing became very tiring," Kennedy said during a lunch break. "People wanted to see average guys. They wanted more reality. It goes back to Humphrey Bogart and Spencer Tracy. Somewhere along the line they demanded more of that and less pretty-boy-meets-pretty-girl, and they also demanded something more than looks from the pretty boy. He'd better be able to act."

The 6-foot-4, 230-pound Kennedy was wearing a black priest's shirt with the collar removed. His neck was bulging, and you wondered how he got the collar around it.

"It's fine to be a character actor," he said. "It's even finer to be recognized, but to reach the stage where people are tearing your clothes off is too much. I started out as a character actor, and I want to keep it that way."

For amusement, he watches old movies on television. He said, "I like the old-time actors like Walter Houston and Ted Ward. Even back when MGM had its big stable of stars, much of the substance was made up by the secondary roles. The guts of the pictures came out of those people. Finally, people said, let's have more guts and less frou-frou."

Lawyer Files Suit Challenging Portion Of Texas Voting Law

SHERMAN, Tex. (AP) — A lawyer filed suit Friday challenging the portion of the Texas voting law requiring unmarried persons under 21 years of age to register for balloting in their parents' place of residence.

The suit was filed in federal court here and named Wesley Ownby and Steve Muncy as the plaintiffs. The lawyer filing the case is David R. Richards. The plaintiffs are students at North Texas State University in Denton.

The new law regulating voting and registration by persons 18 to 21 years old has aroused dispute among college students who contend that they should be allowed to determine their place of residence.

Voting registrars previously considered students living in dormitories to have the same home address as their parents, but those residing in apartments and housing off the campus were considered citizens of the city where the school was located.

Sen. Mike McKool of Dallas, who wrote the registration bill, said that he was opposed to the residence provision.

McKool said that provision was placed in the bill by House conferees after fear was expressed that persons in the 18 to 21 year age group in colleges or on military bases would form a voting block and dominate local politics.

"This provision is discriminatory against young people, and in my opinion is unconstitutional. The 26th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution guarantees these young people under 21 the right to vote and they should be able to establish their residence in the same manner as those over 21," said McKool.

Muncy's parents now live in New Mexico. Thus under Texas law he is disenfranchised from voting anywhere in Texas.

Both of these plaintiffs are life-long residents of Denton County said McKool.
