Second Go-Round Events Begin Tonight At Eight

BY JOEL COMBS
Pampa News Staff Writer

The first go-around winners in the 11th annual Top o' Texas Rodeo were announced following last night's performance before a near-capacity crowd at Recreation Park.

Thrills and spills were a'plenty in the second performance of the rodeo which is keeping thousands "on the edge of their seats." Last night's show, which ended the first go-around, was a fast moving performance, partly because of the competition between the cowboys who were given some high marks to shoot at as a result of Wednesday's show.

Judy Reed of Petrolia, who took over as clown last night following the failure of Jake Mitchell of Dalhart to show up for the job, came through beautifully in his first official job as a rodeo clown.

In a bit of spectacular work on the side, cowboys saved Carroll Welch, a bareback bronc rider, from possible injury when his bronc fell on him while coming out of the chute, pinning his leg to the ground. Several of the cowboys rose to the occasion and immediately held the horse still, preventing him from rolling over his rider. They managed to get the horse back in the chute and Carroll rode him out again. He rode the horse till the whistle blew but failed to place in the first go-around.

The second go-round of the Top o' Texas World's Championship Amateur Rodeo will be wheeled off at 8 o'clock tonight in recreation park. Eleven events are slated for colorful performances.

When they turned that black Mexican bull out of chute four with a $100 certificate tied around his neck, cowboys scattered in a hurry. Not one made a real try for the money, choosing to try their luck on something they had paid to enter instead of gambling broken bones for the money.

The clown, Judy Reed, nearly got caught against the west fence, the bull putting a mean bruise and scratch on his leg as he was going over the fence.

The first go-around in the bareback bronc riding event was a closely-contested affair. Bobby Wedekin of Stamford came out on top with the highest report from the judges to win first place. Sydney Johnson of Snyder and Peeler Harming of Amarillo tied for second and third and Dewey Orms of Wichita Falls was fourth.

First and second money in the saddle bronc riding was split between Wes O'Neal of Palo Duro and Ed Harland of Texhoma. Third went to John Farris of Iowa Park and fourth was Jack Newsom of Guymon.

Disarm Move Up To Soviet

Ike's Proposal Outlined To Press

By DONALD J. GONZALES

WASHINGTON —UP— United States officials said Friday President Eisenhower's surprise offer to combine American and Soviet arms inspection plans leave it up to Russia to make the next move toward world disarmament.

Officials said the combination offer may be included in new formal U.S. disarmament proposals to be made to Russia and other major powers during the next 10 weeks.

President Eisenhower made public Thursday for the first time that he had told Russian leaders during the Geneva conference of his readiness to broaden his own military blueprints and aerial photo facilities with the Soviet Union.

He made the statement at his news conference a short time after Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin called the President's proposal not as realistic as the Soviet one.

Mr. Eisenhower said he had told Bulganin, during private chats at Geneva, that the United States would be willing to add Russia's May 10, 1955, inspection system proposal to his own plan.

The Russian plan would set up an international control agency to Check against dangerous concentration of troops and supplies at big ports, railway junctions, roads and airports.

"Speaking informally at Geneva, I said if they trusted that kind of an inspection system it was all right with us — we would adopt both," the President said, "and I proposed, let's take them both."

The President's words prompted some optimism that the Russians still might agree to wed the two proposals despite Bulganin's statement that the "effectiveness" of the President's proposal on blueprints and photos "would not be great."

"I don't understand that the premier (Bulganin) has closed the door, and I merely say we are ready to accept and examine any kind of system that looks fair to us and to both sides," Mr. Eisenhower said.

Bulganin Says Issue Still Open

MOSCOW —UP— Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin told the Russian parliament Friday that he has not slammed the door on President Eisenhower's proposal for mutual military inspections in the interests of peace.

He told the final session of the two-day parliamentary session that Russia is prepared to examine the American chief executive's plan, even though, as Bulganin said Eisenhower's plan for a mutual exchange of military and arms secrets and mutual aerial reconnaissance was unworkable.

Charges 'Error'

Friday the Soviet premier charged that certain newspapers, presumably western, had "erroneously" drawn the conclusion that this meant the Soviet Union would refuse flatly to even consider the American proposal.

'EL TORO' IS TOO TOUGH! NEW BULL TO CARRY MONEY

$100 or not, "El Toro" is just too tough!

That's the black Mexican Fighting Bull who has been running around the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena with money on his neck, just for the taking.

But there have been no takers.

"El Toro's" horns are too long and too sharp and he snorts too loud to make the cash on his neck look like "easy money."

So, "El Toro" is being retired, and a tough, but hornless Brahma bull will be in the arena tonight with $150 on his neck for the "Gold Rush."

11 Freed Airmen Flying To Tokyo In MacArthur's Plane

CLARK AIR FORCE BASE, P.I —UP— Eleven American airmen flying home from 2 1-2 years in Communist Chinese prison camps and jails left Friday for Tokyo in the former private plane of Gen. Douglas MacArthur with $70,000 in back pay jingling in their pockets.

The luxurious four-engined DC-4 "Bataan" left Clark Air Force Base at 12:15 p. m. (10:15 p. m. cst Thursday) and was expected to arrive at Tachikawa Air Base near Tokyo about 10 hours later. The fliers are to remain in Tokyo for two days before flying to the United States.

The departure from Clark Air Force base was delayed because the men, overjoyed at their first hours of freedom, stayed up late Thursday night. The Air Force had planned to fly them to Tokyo shortly after breakfast but all 11 overslept.

The Air Force indicated it still had not figured out a way to break the news to Airman Daniel C. Schmidt of Portland, Ore., that his 20-year-old wife had remarried after he was reported missing in the crash of their B-29 in January, 1953.

Officials said they will withhold news of the remarriage of his wife from Schmidt until he be-

Ex-PW Tells Of Struggle To Survive

By RICHARD ANDERSON

FORT LEWIS, Wash. —UP— The struggle of American prisoners of war in Korea for self preservation was detailed further Friday in the enemy collaboration trial of Lt. Jefferson D. Erwin of Blanchard, Okla.

Erwin, a 38-year-old career soldier, is accused of collaborating with the enemy during the early months of 1951 when he was at POW camp No. 5 in North Korea.

Thursday witnesses said self preservation was the uppermost through in the minds of prisoners of war at the camp.

Four witnesses testified Erwin was "wined and dined" along with other officers at the camp. One of the witnesses, Capt. Ralph A. Nardello of Fairlawn, N.J., said he was with Erwin when they feasted with the Chinese Reds on three separate occasions.

Elected by Officers

Nardello said he, Erwin and a third officer were members of the Communist sponsored peace committee — elected by officers in their compound.

"They served us steamed bread, rice, mushroom, scrambled eggs and saki," the captain said.

Under cross examination Nardello said he didn't want the job on the peace committee but took it in hopes he could be of service to his fellow prisoners by seeking better living conditions.

"Did Erwin ever tell you he wanted the job?" asked Defense Counsel Lt. Col. Leslie Dixon of Baton Rouge, La.

None Asked for Job

"No, sir," said Nardello.

"Did anyone on the committee?"

"No, sir."

Nardello said he appeared before a military board after he was repatriated to answer questions about his actions while a POW and that as far as he could tell now, he had been cleared.

Three other witnesses testified they heard Erwin make what they said were "sincere" statements not to the best interest of the United States before the officers at camp No. 5.

Erwin has denied the charges.

30 Killed In Flaming Air Crash In Missouri

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo. —UP— The families of 30 persons killed in the flaming crash of an American Airlines twin - engined Covair waited Friday for the bodies of the victims to be identified so they could claim them.

At the same time, officials of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and the airline poked among the ashes of the charred wreckage in an effort to learn what caused the plane to crash. All of the bodies were recovered.

The plane crashed Thursday while attempting an emergency landing with an engine in flames on the airstrip of this big Army installation. It lost its right wing and fell, a half mile short, into a ravine of hickory and tangled vines.

Few Seconds More

Capt. R. D. Sinex, Army public information officer, said the pilot, Capt. Hugh C. Barron of Macon, Ga., was making a perfect approach a few seconds more, Sinex said, and Barron would have made it.

Seconds before, the plane had post housing development where post housing development where the families of military personnel lived. Sinex said "hundreds" lived along the path and it fell three miles behind the housing area.

The plane, carrying 27 passengers and a crew of three, had just taken off a short time before from Springfield, Mo., where 21 of the passengers had gone aboard. The plane was en route from Tulsa to New York.

Shortly after taking off, Barron radioed the Springfield tower that his No. 2 (right) engine was on fire and he was unable to extinguish the blaze.

Hardly Recogizable

Sinex arrived at the scene about 20 minutes after the plane had crashed. He said the plane was "nothing but a bunch of ash and molten metal."

"It could hardly be recognized as a plane," he said.

Two or three of the passengers were thrown out 25 or 30 feet from the plane. The others for the most part were "just piled up," Sinex said.

He didn't clip off any trees or anything. The wing fell off. Then the plane just plunged into the ground. The area it covered wasn't any bigger than your living room.

"When I got there it was burning like hades. There wasn't anything we could do about going into the plane. When we finally did get things so we could bring fire trucks in, the fire had pretty well burned itself out," Sinex said.

Newsman Tells Of Crash Scene Horror

(Editor's note: Edward Sowers, publisher of the Rolla, Mo., Daily News, was one of the first civilians to reach the spot where the American Airlines plane with 30 persons aboard crashed and burned near Fort Leonard Wood Thursday.)

By EDWARD SOWERS

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo.— UP—I saw a scene of unbelievable horror in a mountain wood of ash and hickory on the Fort Leonard Wood military reservation Thursday night.

I saw the smoldering remains of a twin-engine American Airlines Convair. The debris rests at the bottom of a deep ravine.

The only recognizable parts of the plane which carried 30 persons to their death were a wing tip and a twisted and charred motor.

When I arrived a group of two or three Army officers, several privates and officers of the State Highway Patrol were standing helplessly near the rubble. Drab brown blankets covered the remains of four persons tossed free of the plane.

Saw Decapitated Body

I saw a decapitated body and part of another. The other victims were trapped inside the plane, which was glowing red in the still woods.

A bulldozer had broken a trail through the deep woods to the crash site some three-quarters of a mile from the end of the fort's airport runway. The pilot was attempting a landing there, but he never made it. A wing and motor fell from the plane as he made his approach and was still burning some 200 yards from the craft's fuselage.

It was evident the plane had rocketed almost straight down into the ravine. It must have hit with tremendous force, for the body of the plane was totally unrecognizable. It was like looking on the burning of a trash heap. It seemed almost unfair to be witness to a funeral pyre.

Fire Truck Reached Plane

About three hours after the crash a fire truck succeeded in making its way to the plane and played streams of water on the wreckage.

Squads of Army privates stood nearby with picks and shovels ready to start prying apart the steaming metal and recover the charred remains of its passengers.

The coroner of Richland, Mo., Billy Hedges, arrived in a sports shirt. No one could find anything to do. Everyone was dead. Litters were opened to receive the remains. Flashlights were passed out in anticipation of a long night's work.

Chills ran up and down my back as I trudged out of the Ozark forest. I could hear the whippoorwills calling softly in the dusk. It was the requiem for the dead.

Urge To Travel Put Wakely On 'Stage'

By JIM DEAN
Pampa News Managing Editor

Jimmy Wakely got out of that cotton patch, but he didn't leave hard work behind when he entered the entertainment business.

It was on October 25, 1937, his mother's birthday, that the personable star of the Top o' Texas rodeo first entered the ranks of show business on a full time basis.

That was the date of his first radio show, a daily program over station WKY in Oklahoma City. Less than three years later, in June 1940, he was on his way to Hollywood to join Gene Autry on his first step into the "big time" of show business.

Now a youthful 41, Wakely will tell you he wanted to get into show business because it gave him an opportunity to travel. He tells the story of his childhood days when his family picked cotton on holidays because of the extra pay. He says he longed to be like the more fortunate folks who got to make trips on holidays while he was in the cotton patch making double pay-days.

Wakely has come a long way since those cotton patch days and a long way from the early morning radio show in Oklahoma City with his trio.

But long hours and hard work have not escaped him.

And though he appears to be the same "country boy" who once played the organ in church, he's actually become a smart operator in one of the most competitive businesses in the world today.

Besides being a star attraction in his own right, Wakely owns two music publishing companies, manages several recording stars, composes songs and writes musical scores for motion pictures.

One thing Wakely seems to have mastered to perfection is the ability to appeal to his audience as "one of the boys." His easy manner has quickly captivated his audiences in Pampa.

To use an expression he seems to like, "he's home," in Pampa.

Wakely tells his audiences that he believes an entertainer can be truthful and never have to worry about appearing before crowds.

So, he tells his real age, talks of church and faith and sings songs that are "down to earth."

And whether this is a sincere story or just the 'pitch' of a veteran entertainer must be left to the individual to determine. But one thing seems to be certain, the combination, so far as the masses are concerned, is clicking.

Wakely's "big time" career started after a two-year association with Gene Autry. He started playing bit parts with Universal Studios in Hollywood in 1942. By 1945, in January, he starred in his first "Western" entitled "Song of the Range."

In June 1945, he came to Pampa for the first time with his second picture "Springtime in Texas."

He quit making movies in 1949, concentrating on recordings and other enterprizes.

His most recent work includes writing musical scores for motion pictures.

Just before coming to Pampa for his current engagement, he finished writing the musical score for "Silver Star" and soon-to-be-released movie "A Man Alone."

From the Top o' Texas Rodeo, he goes to Jackson, Wyo. for a two-week engagement at the Wort Hotel. Then, after a few one-night stands, he goes to the State Fair in Lincoln, Neb. in September. Then it's to New York for some recordings, and he winds up his engagement session in Wichita, Kans. on Sept. 25.

Back to the West Coast, his radio program resumes over CBS on Oct. 8. It's a 30-minute program each Saturday which is heard only on the West Coast.

Coupled with all this activity, Wakely works in such tasks as seeking new music and-or talent to exploit.

For the youngsters hoping to get ahead in show business, Wakely offers this advice:

"Make good in the home town first."

He says that the big mistake most youngsters make is to travel to Hollywood and start knocking at the doors.

"It's a tough business," he explains "and there are thousands trying to get ahead."

And that would seem to be sound advice, because here's a fellow from Rosedale, Okla. who has made the grade, using that formula.

Congress Passes Polio Shot Bill

WASHINGTON —UP— Congress passed and sent to President Eisenhower Tuesday a bill authorizing the government to pay for free polio shots for an estimated one-third of the nation's eligible children and expectant mothers.

The House and Senate quickly approved a Senate-House conference committee's adjusted version of separate House and Senate bills.

The final bill allows the government to make $30 million worth of Salk anti-polio vaccine available to the states between now and Feb. 15. This was a compromise between a House bill providing an estimated $45 million and an "opened" Senate measure limited only by the amount Congress was willing to appropriate.

Swindler Gets 2-9 Year Term

WHEELER — (Special) — Glenn Scott Thornton, 35, alias "Pete Knight" who duped several Shamrock people of several hundred dollars in goods, services and cash, was sentenced to Huntsville State Prison for a term of two to nine years yesterday.

Judge Lewis M. Goodrich gave the sentence less than a half hour after Thornton had been indicted for forgery and passing a forged instrument by a Wheeler County grand jury.

Thornton entered a plea of guilty, and waived trail by jury, asking for immediate hearing, when notified of the indictment.

If no other charges are lodged, Sheriff Bus Dorman will take Thornton to Huntsville within the next few days.

Although this is the first prison term Thornton has drawn in Texas, he has previously been committed to the Wichita Falls hospital for the insane on two occasions. He has served a total of five years in penitentiaries in Colorado and Arizona on check charges.

A thrice-married father of three children, he escaped from a jail in Clifton, Ariz., three days before he unsuccessfully attempted to pass a check in Amarillo for a suit of clothes and other furnishings at a clothing store.

At 11:30 p.m. the same day, he showed up in Shamrock, told a sick mother-in-law story, woke a minister and clothier, secured over $120 in clothing, passed "Pete Knight" checks totalling $115, and sent a hearse on a useless trip to Dallas.

Wakely Sued For $50,000

Jimmy Wakely, named in a $50,000 damage suit today in Hollywood, for the alleged beating of an 18-year-old girl in his home, was bitter about the action this morning, denying it and calling it a "shakedown pure and simple."

Wakely said the affair took place in his office with his wife present as secretary. He said that he had talked with the district attorney in Los Angeles and that he (the D.A.) called the girl's story the "lousiest story he had ever seen."

The story came over the United Press wire this morning saying that Anita R. Hayes, of Beverly Hills, had filed a $50,000 damage suit against the famous TV, stage and screen singing star who is appearing nightly at the Top o' Texas Rodeo.

The story continued to say that the girl said she was "lawfully" at the Wakely home when he "physically assaulted her with force and violence."

Wakely, stating that he had seen the girl in his office, said, "Is she mixed up. She doesn't even know where I live."

He says that he and his wife were together in his office and that he was auditioning the girl but didn't hire her and she became angry.

U.S. Doubts Coffee Tale

WASHINGTON —UP— An Agriculture Department official appeared skeptical Wednesday of reports of heavy "freeze damage" to coffee trees in Brazil, the world's leading coffee - producing country.

"Trade reports direct from Rio de Janeiro says a 'cold wave' hit the southern Brazilian states of Parana and Sao Paulo and extended as far north as the capital," the official said. "The reports stressed a 'cold wave' and did not specify frost.

"We have asked further information from our agricultural attaches in Rio and Sao Paulo."

(News dispatches from Rio de Janeiro said Brazilian Agriculture Minister Bento Munhoz de Rocha had departed on a three-day tour of Sao Paulo and Parana states to investigate freeze damage to coffee trees. In New York coffee futures rose the daily limit of two cents a pound Monday and Tuesday on strength of the freeze reports).

The official said any freeze at this time in Brazil could hardly affect the supply of coffee for the 1955-56 marketing year which began July 1. The coffee bean harvest in Brazil starts in March and continues through April. Blooms on trees now are for the coffee crop for the marketing year starting July 1, 1956.

The seminar, to be held at the National College for Christian Workers, will deal with questions such as desegregation, the United Nations and the ecumenical movement — the trend toward increasing cooperation among churches around the world.

Among the speakers will be Mrs. Dorothy Dolbey, vice-mayor of Cincinnati, Ohio; Mrs. James D. Wyker, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, president of the United Church Women, a department of the National Council of Churches, and Bishop Gerald F. Ensley of the Des Moines, Iowa Episcopal area of the Methodist Church.

Personality Of Christ

Nothing in all history, has ever held such fascination for mankind as the personality of Jesus Christ. What manner of man was He who so captured the imagination of all who came to know Him as to hold them in willing lifetime servitude? That He must have had an irresistible personality is evident from the record.

He saw two brethren, Peter and Andrew casting a net into the sea and He called to them "Follow me, . . . And they straightway left their nets, and followed Him." (Mat. 4:19-20).

A little later he saw two other brethren, James and John. They were in a ship with Zebedee, their father, mending their nets. He He spoke to them, "And they immediately left the ship and their father, and followed Him." (Mat. 4:22).

These men did not ask for credentials and references. They did not inquire about where Jesus had been educated, what degrees He held, or what positions of responsibility He had filled. There was something so luminous and convincing about His personality as to make lesser things seem unimportant.

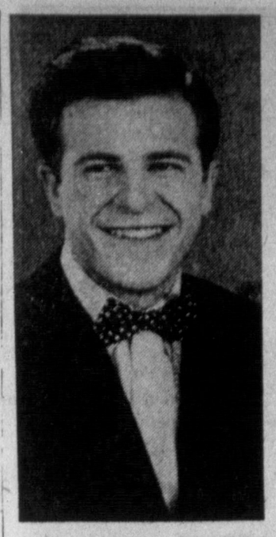

There was no discussion, no asking of questions or imposing of conditions; no requests for time to think it over, no question of wages, rewards, or fringe benefits; but under the fascination created by the personality of the Son of God, ". . . They straightway left their nets, and followed Him."

Jesus wrought the greatest revolution in the history of mankind. He changed being good from a duty, to a pleasure; he wrote the moral law into the human heart and caused it to be observed, not from fear of punishment, but because man felt that way inside.

Here was a man who proved that love was stronger than hate; that the desire to serve could be stronger than the desire for prestige, power or gain. Not that He disapproved of diligence, or success in business, for He approved of both; but He did not want men to ignore eternal values.

In tribute to Jesus Christ men toiled for centuries throughout the Middle Ages erecting great temples to honor Him. His personality inspired artists to their best efforts. The greatest music was composed and sung in His honor. Men and women whom the world recogized as Saints were those who succeeded best in their efforts to live lives similar to His. Men's hope of conquering poverty and achieving peace, center in Him.

WASHINGTON —UP— Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas Wednesday presented a posthumous medal of honor to a helicopter pilot who gallantly sacrificed his life to rescue a fellow pilot.

The medal, the nation's highest award, was accepted by the dead pilot's mother, Mrs. Beulah H. Koelsch of Los Angeles.

Her son, Lt. John K. Koelsch, died in a Korean prison camp four months after he made a valiant attempt to rescue a Marine pilot downed behind enemy lines.

Attending the ceremony, besides Koelsch's mother, were his brothers, Philip C. Koelsch of Houston and Peter H. Koelsch of Los Angeles.

Thoughts

I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.—John 16:28.

In this awfully stupendous manner at which Reason stands aghast, and Faith herself is half confounded, was the grace of God to man at length manifested.
—Richard Hurd.

Thou shalt make thee no molten gods.—Exodus 34:17.

Paganism worships creation instead of the Creator.
—William Cave.

In whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them.—II Cor. 4:4.

Christ came not to talk about a beautiful light, but to be that light — not to speculate about virtue, but to be virtue.—H. G. Taylor.

And if thy brother that dwelleth by thee by waxen poor, and be sold unto thee; thou shalt not compel him to serve as a bond servant:—Leviticus 25:39.

We are members of one great body. Nature planted in us a mutual love and fitted us for a social life. We must consider that we were born for the good of the whole.
—Seneca.

And thou shalt become an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword among all nations whither the Lord shall lead thee.—Deut. 28:37.

Example is the school of mankind, and they will learn at no other.—Burke.

Now be ye not stiffnecked, as your fathers were, but yield yourselves unto the Lord, and enter into his sanctuary, which he hath sanctified for ever; and serve the Lord your God, that the fierceness of his wrath may turn away from you.—II Chron. 30:8.

Religion is the tie that connects man with his Creator, and holds him to His throne.
—Daniel Webster.

Whereunto he called you by our gospel to the obtaining of the glory of your Lord Jesus Christ.
—II Thess. 2:14.

The main object of the gospel is to establish two principles — the corruption of nature, and the redemption by Jesus Christ.
—Pascal.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

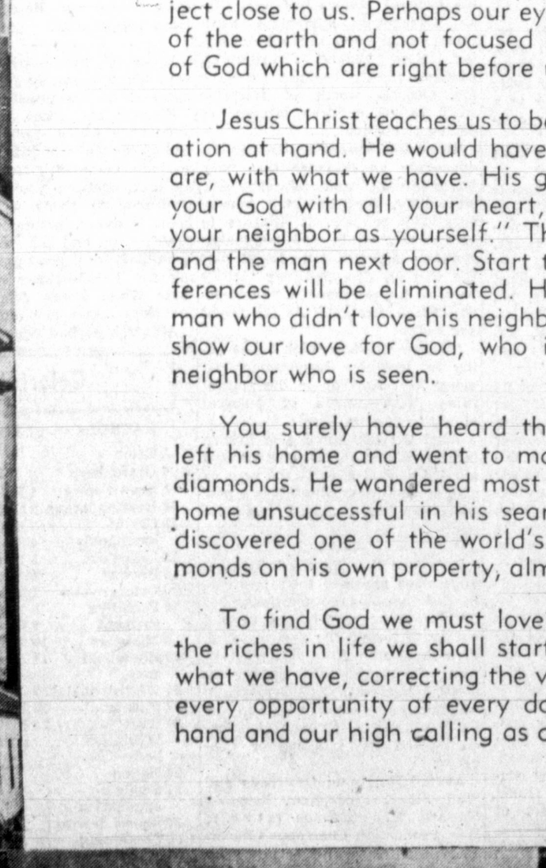

S. B. MALONE
Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ Later Day Saints
Pampa, Texas

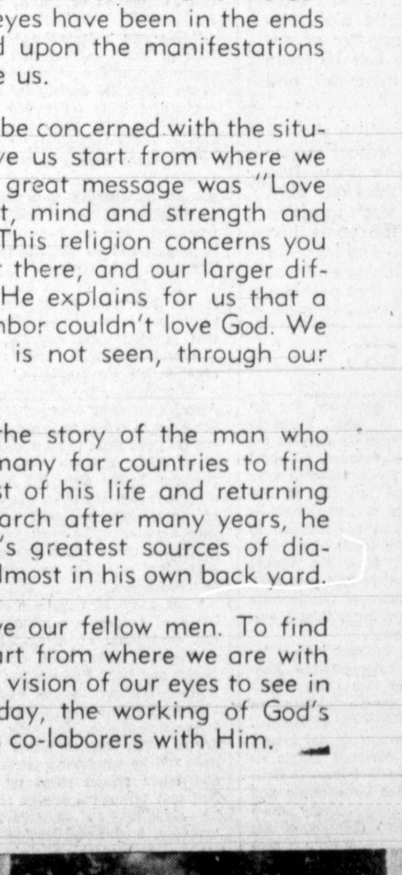

Soloman was a wise man concerned with things deeper than physical life. He put it this way: "Wisdom is before him that hath understanding; but the eyes of a fool are in the ends of the earth." Does his diagnosis of the difference between the wise man and the fool hold true today? Have some of us been blind to the object close to us. Perhaps our eyes have been in the ends of the earth and not focused upon the manifestations of God which are right before us.

Jesus Christ teaches us to be concerned with the situation at hand. He would have us start from where we are, with what we have. His great message was "Love your God with all your heart, mind and strength and your neighbor as yourself." This religion concerns you and the man next door. Start there, and our larger differences will be eliminated. He explains for us that a man who didn't love his neighbor couldn't love God. We show our love for God, who is not seen, through our neighbor who is seen.

You surely have heard the story of the man who left his home and went to many far countries to find diamonds. He wandered most of his life and returning home unsuccessful in his search after many years, he discovered one of the world's greatest sources of diamonds on his own property, almost in his own back yard.

To find God we must love our fellow men. To find the riches in life we shall start from where we are with what we have, correcting the vision of our eyes to see in every opportunity of every day, the working of God's hand and our high calling as co-laborers with Him.

The New Word

AUTOMATION is a new word which has become a part of the vocabulary of millions. It has made headlines and will make many more, for it stands for a process which, sooner or later, will cause vast changes in the arts of industry, with all that this implies.

It has been pointed out that automation is evolutionary, rather than revolutionary. It is just one more step — albeit a potentially tremendous one — in our technological progress, made possible by relatively recent and astonishing developments in electronics and other scientific fields.

What automation is has been well described in a leaflet the General Electric Company distributed to employes: "Mechanization of production has so far been confined all too largely to those operations which changed the shape of materials. Automation represents the broadened hope and effort which, over the last 15 years, has emphasized trying to extend the same sort of mechanization savings into the other and badly lagging manufacturing operations such as inspection, assembly, test, packaging and then linking one or more of these operations with materials handling equipment so that continuous automatic production in on or more of the areas will result."

The ultimate would be the pushbutton factory, in which raw materials came in one end and packaged finished goods, all ready for the consumer, came out the other — with practically no human labor being involved. We don't have the knowledge to do that on any major scale now. There is also another barrier in the way — and it's human, not mechanical.

The GE leaflet said of it: "Even if we did have the technical ability to create a push-button factory, the ultimate governor on our progress toward this goal would still be our free and unpredictable customer. In the end, the real problem will be that of finding the muscled or mental operations which the customer will let us keep standardized long enough — and let us repeat often enough — to liquidate the cost of equipment required to do those manual, skilled or mental operations automatically. The progress of automation — like all other forms of technological progress — is dependent on the customer's willingness to permit his wants to be standardized long enough to make that progress pay for itself. Ironically enough, however, the more the consumer's level of living is advanced by technology, the less he is willing to submit to the standardization that makes further advances possible."

Some fear that automation my create a great and permanent employment problem. Yet the historical fact is that all past technological advances — despite the temporary dislocations caused — have resulted in more employment, coupled with higher wages, shorter hours, better working conditions, and increased leisure. New demands and new purchasing power are created — and new jobs with them. To take one example, it could have been logically expected that the automatic dial telephone system would greatly reduce the number of operators employed. The truth is that in the last 10 years the number of operators in this country increased, and in a big way — by 79 per cent.

There is another important point on which the GE leaflet also touched. Young people go to school longer and old people live longer in retirement. Our population has been increasing at a far faster rate than our work force. So, the output of each worker and each machine will have to increase substantially over the years just to maintain our present living standards — and increase greatly if we are to improve those standards. Automation, to many minds, offers the means of solving that problem to the ultimate benefit of everyone.

THE NATION'S PRESS

MILWAUKEE BLACKLISTS ITS OWN PORT

(Chicago Tribune)

When the Milwaukee city council passed a resolution stating that it would not guarantee the unloading of shiploads of clay for the Kohler company, the shippers owning the cargoes announced that they would be diverted to other ports. As the shippers pointed out, neither they nor the shipowners could afford to have ships tied up because of the subservience of Milwaukee authorities to labor union bosses.

What these foolish aldermen did was to place their own city on a blacklist as a port of entry for foreign commerce. If their action is permitted to stand the bright hopes of Milwaukee for a substantial share of the water borne commerce generated by the St. Lawrence seaway will be dimmed. No shipowner, or shipper, is going to risk entering a port if he is on notice that any labor dispute in which a consignee of cargo becomes involved will also involve tying up ship and cargo for an indefinite period.

If any Milwaukeans doubt the harmful effect of labor wars on the waterfront they should read the recent report of Donald V. Lowe, chairman of the Port of New York authority. The nation's first port was plagued all last year by longshoremen's strikes arising from efforts, largely unsuccessful, to drive gangsters from control of the dock unions. A teamsters' strike also impaired cargo movements.

As a result New York, for the first time in 30 years, failed to handle 30 per cent or more of the nation's general cargoes. (General cargo is the more valuable type of exports and imports, as distinguished from ore, petroleum — and clay — that are handled in bulk.) Altho the ocean borne shipments to and from the United States increased in 1954 over 1953, New York's share of the tonnage was 9.8 per cent lower than it was the previous year.

There is no warrant in law for stopping the shipments to Kohler, where the CIO United Auto Workers have been conducting an unsuccessful strike for 15 months. The clay shipments do not belong to the Kohler company but to an eastern concern that imports British clay for use by ceramic and paper manufacturers. Every action proposed to stop delivery of the shipments would constitute a secondary boycott, illegal under the Taft-Hartley act.

Milwaukee's problem is not one of construing federal law, however. It is the far simpler one of local law enforcement. The city council bowed to CIO goons and AFL unions bent on unlawful acts. In so doing, it took money out of the pockets of all the decent citizens of Milwaukee who should hope to benefit from the development of the city's port.

Chicago also is in the midst of a port development. The lesson should not be lost on this city. If labor goons are permitted to tie up a port to serve their own selfish ends, it is a waste of money to build docks.

"Toward A Labor Government"

The Freeman magazine published an article under the heading of "Toward a Labor Government" written by Donald R. Richberg. Mr. Richberg was formerly General Counsel and Chairman of N. R. A. and is co-author of the Railway Labor Act and for years has been conspicuously identified with government administration policies. Any man who was chairman of the National Rehabilitation Act certainly does not believe in a definite limited government. Yet the article shows that he sees the great harm that comes from a labor government.

The fact of the matter is that we already have to a degree a labor government. We have this because of the Clayton Amendment to the Sherman - Anti Trust Law, passed in 1914, that gives organized labor a special privilege that the business man does not have and should not want. It gives them the right to conspire for a monopoly in labor. Other labor laws that are part of a labor government are the Norris-LaGuardia Act and the Wagner Act, and even the Taft - Hartley Law, that makes it a crime to tell a union man that you will not hire him because he is a union man. But it is not a crime to tell a non-union man that you will not hire him because he is not a union man. If that isn't discrimination in favor of organized labor and a complete violation of the principles on which this country was formed and a form of tyranny, then nothing violates the Declaration of Independence and nothing is tyrannical.

From here on I am quoting Donald R. Richberg on his ideas of what the A. F. of L. and C I. O. hope to do by getting more and more control of government:

"That it is the purpose of the leaders of organized labor to establish a socialist labor government of the United States was brought out in an argument made by the American Federation of Labor, in a case which I argued against it in the Supreme Court of the United States:

" 'The worker becomes a member of an economic society when he takes employment... The union is the organization or government of this society ... It has in a sense the powers and responsibilities of a government.'

"Obviously to govern such an economic society you must control its political machinery. This is well understood by our labor leaders, whose immediate program to increase their political power has two principal objectives:

"First, to unite all labor organizations either in one federation or at least in a concert of action to have laws enacted which favor union labor.

"Second, to repeal the state laws that forbid a union closed shop, and then to force employers everywhere to agree not to hire or to retain any employe who does not join a union, pay its dues, and submit to its discipline.

"There is nothing uncertain about this determination of union officials to acquire monopoly power over all industrial employments. Again I quote from the Supreme Court argument of the A. F. of L.:

" 'We can summarize the nature of union membership as a common condition of employment in an industrial society by again comparing it to citizenship in a political society. Both are compulsory union individuals.'

"The union leaders have a short answer to the argument that compulsory membership in a union is a violation of the fundamental freedoms which are constitutionally guaranteed to all Americans. The A. F. of L. argues:

" 'The liberty of the individual is not the right to license, but participation in a social organization founded upon equality, justice and law. The union is that organization for employes.'

"Accordingly, the liberty of an American worker does not include the right to refuse to join a union, but only the right to be a member of a union. However, even this peculiar liberty does not include a right to join any union the worker chooses because, under a union shop agreement, he must join the particular union which made the agreement with his employer — or lose his job.

"You may also note that all kinds of unions are included in the description of a 'social organization founded upon equality, justice and law.' Perhaps you may wonder whether various communist ruled unions merit such a flattering description. You may wonder whether unions which have been run by notorious extortioners and other unions ruled by violent and tyrannical bosses should be classified as exemplars of 'equality, justice and law.'

"Now, as a matter of plain fact, unions at best are simply organizations of men and women who by concerted action try to make a better living under better conditions. This is also the aim of many other organizations that make no claim to holy virtue and immunity from criticism. But there is a vast difference between voluntary organizations, whose members can resign if they don't like their policies or their management, and a closed shop union whose members are compelled to support union policies and union bosses or lose a chance to earn a living."

Ike Finds Way Of Reformer In Politics Is Difficult

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower alone is responsible for the Democrats' attempt to ride back into power on such issues, as Harold E Talbott's alleged favoritism to firms that spilled profits into his own pocket. Ike fixed the stage for the indictment by setting an unprecedently high standard of ethics for his official family in the 1952 campaign.

Nevertheless, as a factual examination of the Roosevelt-Truman code of honor reveals, there are both irony and hypocrisy in the current effort to depict the Talbott, Dixon-Yates and similar episodes as a "greater scandal than Teapot Dome," in which a Harding Cabinet member permitted himself to be bribed by an oil magnate.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson suffered a loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars when he was required to divest himself of his General Motors holdings. Other Eisenhower appointees have taken heavy losses in a rising market. Now, Talbott is criticized, perhaps rightly because he gave his $180,000 worth of Chrysler stock to his children instead of selling it outright.

These incidents are cited by the opposition as evidence that "big businessmen," and interests and philosophy, dominates the Administration's policies. It appears to be the Democrats' 1956 campaign strategy, although they forget that Ike won an overwhelming victory because he promised a "business-like Administration." As Ike might ask today:

"Where did they think I was going to look for businessmen — along Skid Row or in the smoke-filled back rooms of political clubs?"

What the opposition also forgets is that neither F.D.R. nor Truman applied a rigid code to the tycoons who served under them. It is a new wrinkle in American or Presidential politics.

It is true that Roosevelt-Truman appointees resigned their positions in their various corporations, but they were never required to pull out or to forfeit the profits which their firms may have derived from doing business with the government. Here is a list of Democratic millionaires whose relention of stock holding was never questioned by the White House or Congress:

Averell Harriman (railroads and Wall Street investment houses); Edward R. Stettinius (steel); War Production Chairman Charles E. Wilson (General Electric); William S. Knudsen (General Motors); Jesse H. Jones (oil, lumber, real estate, etc.); Henry L. Stimson; Louis A. Johnson and Henry Morgenthau.

Henry A. Wallace was not asked to abandon his interest in his hybrid corn ventures, although he formulated farm policies. And, of course, F.D.R. employed many more $1-a-year men from industry and business than are on the Washington scene today.

Eisenhower, through Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes and Sherman Adams, White House major domo, is accused of forcing the Federal Power Commission and Securities & Exchange Commission to give Dixon-Yates interests a preferred position in TVA power territory. Well, Presidential interference with supposedly independent agencies was "old stuff" during the New and Fair Deals.

Roosevelt forced the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to advance money to the Kaiser interests which Jones, then RFC chairman considered questionable. FDR wanted to smash the Mellons' alleged aluminum monopoly. Roosevelt forced Jones to buy a tremendous tract near his Hyde Park estate for fear that Father Devine, Negro revivalist, would become a Roosevelt neighbor.

Roosevelt forced Harold L. Ickes and Harry Hopkins to pour billions of PWA and WPA funds into areas where they would be politically helpful. He flooded New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania in order to make them Democratic. He succeeded, at least temporarily.

Roosevelt never tried to prevent his own family from "cleaning up" on his prestige.

Eleanor and Anna wrote for magazines which have a bread-and-butter stake in postal rates for second-class mail. "Jimmie," then an inexperienced youngster, sold insurance to firms with government business, netting a $500,000 profit. Anna and her late husband, John Boettiger, got financial backing for a newspaper because of their White House relations. The investors lost every nickel.

Although he had never met John A. Hartford, F.D.R. helped Elliott to obtain a $210,000 loan from the then president of the chain store. When Elliott could not repay, Jesse Jones settled it on the basis of 4 cents to the dollar, and from his personal funds.

Ike is accused of displacing Roosevelt-Truman "liberals" on the alphabetical agencies with more conservatice men and women. But the opposition seems to forget — again — that Roosevelt tried to tamper with and defile politically the holy of holies — the Supreme Court of the United States.

Truman, of course, indulged in the same pecadilloes, but on a typically picayunish scale. He permitted White House officials and others to accept mink coats, deep freezes, and hams, provided they did not assume "graft" size by weighing more than 12 pounds. But a score of his Internal Revenue officials went to jail for fraud and corruption.

Ike is simply discovering that the way of the political reformer is hard.

The CRACKER BARREL

It is hard to see how we can talk of world peace and a better world as long as wholesale mass-murderers go unpunished. This goes for such Soviet mass-murderers as perpetrated the Massacre of 19,000 Polish officers in the Katyn Forest. And it also goes for such Nazis as Franz Rademacher, who has been accused of killing 4,900 Serbian Jews and to have supervised wholesale persecutions in Belgium, France and Holland. After a delay of four years, he was brought to trial in 1952 and given a shockingly light sentence by a German court which ruled that "no base motives" prompted his policies. He fled to Syria, pending an appeal. Now the German courts are seeking to get him back to face murder charges.

Nehru's Ambassador Horns In On US-Red China Talks

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

GENEVA — A skinny character with an oily smirk horned into the conference between our ambassador to Czecholovakia and the Red Chinese ambassador to Poland almost before they could hitch up their chairs in the palace of the United Nations and start talking about the release of American airmen and civilians from Chinese jails and in house arrest.

This fellow's name is Krishna Menon. He is the personal envoy of Jawaharlal Nehru, the prime minister of India, a friend of Soviet Russia and Soviet China and a panhandling professional nuisance and menace to the United States and the rest of western civilization. Why we pay him so much heed and respect is a proposition that runs into long-winded esoteric explanations, but a substantial body of opinion holds that we ought to have given the bum the back of our hand years ago. Noboday that friendly to our enemies can be a friend of ours.

This nuisance is the price we pay for letting Eleanor Roosevelt shoot off her mouth as the beloved mother figure of the United States and for sending that lantern-jawed Park Avenue advertising huckster, Chester Bowles, to India as our ambassador. Bowles served one hitch as governor of Connecticut and planted his old partner, Bill Benton, as United States senator. They both are entwined in Henry Luce's politico-advertising machine and the plot thickens when you remind yourself that Ike sent Luce's wife to Rome as the payoff for Luce's editorial ballyhoo in his magazines.

Joe McCarthy personally knocked Benton in the creek, which feat explains Luce's editorial compaigns against him, because Benton was Bowles' business partner in a big enterprise.

When Bowles was beaten for reelection Truman sent him to India and Bowles signified his ethical and political standards by fetching along Leigh Danenberg, the publisher of a weekly scandal sheet in Bridgeport, to publish his version of the best in American journalism. Thus we had to finance a publication in India to teach the Indians that Bowles, Eleanor, Truman and Danenberg were representative Americans. Danenberg, you may have read here, is an old bosom pal of V. M. Molotov's brother-in-law, Sam Carp, who lives in Bridgeport and organized a trading corporation to spend untold Soviet millions for American war material. However, he didn't have to spend much. Harry Hopkins and Averell Harriman forced it on them free.

This has been quite a detour, but you must know the background to develop the suspicions which you should always maintain toward Nehru, India and of course the Soviet satellites in the Orient. The American Consulate General in the Hotel Du Rhone was officially closed Monday in observance of a Swiss national holiday, but the back door was unlocked. Soon after I busted in, Menon came down the hall and several bright young reporters gave him a treatment. They included Joe Singer of INS, Gaston Coblentz and Joe Newman, of the New York Herald Tribune, and the UP man, who looked so much like my old roommate, Webb Miller, of the Zeppilien days in London, that he had to be Webb's son and he is.

It was a pleasure to watch them work. Menon has a bock beer complexion, wavy gray hair cut European style and a reputation which should not endear him as much to Americans as to Muscovities. It is idle to wonder whether he is partial to Russia and Red China. His Fuehrer and his government are and the motto of all ambassadors is whose bread I eat his song I sing.

Menon already had seen the Red Chinaman and now he was planning to see our man, U. Alexis Johnson. Young Mr. Newman gravely asked him a hypodermic question about perhaps seeing the British. Menon gave us the suave mandamus potatoes whereupon in my own subtle way I inquired, "Who invited you here?" After all, if he is going to pull up a chair and draw cards, it changes the equation from a drop dead or high spade proposition to something oleaginous and Oriental. Menon swung around and said that after all this was a free country and added that this was just a personal visit of his. When he tore himself away a few minutes later, it seemed to be the consensus that Nehru was lousing up Ike's two-handed project to make some politics for himself and Red China and might queer the whole show anyway. Nobody did invite this slipperey kibitzer and his interference is an ideal manifestation of the appreciation that we have been getting from Nehru all this time.

Hank Interviews Tregaskis After Return From Formosa

By HENRY McLEMORE

I just spent the weekend with Dick and Walton Tregaskis at their home in Costa Mesa, Calif.

Dick and Walton have just returned from six months in Formosa, studying what Formosa means to the United States and what the United States means to Formosa. Dick was an obvious column for me. He is one of the best reporters in the United States. He is a successful novelist. He is a thoughtful, conscientious observer of the world.

I could have tapped him for the information he spent money to learn so he could sell it to magazines, but I decided not to. I said to myself that I would talk to his wife, Walton Tregaskis, a real pretty South Carolina girl, who looked at Formosa with a clear and open eye. Walton, who had never seen that part of the world before, went into it with her big blue eyes open. She arrived in Formosa, let us say, as an average American wife, so I asked Walton the following questions:

1. Do you think that Chiang Kai shek is honest? By honest, I mean do you think Chiang Kai-shek has done his best to spend every dollar given him by America for China's best interests?

A. Yes, I believe Chiang is honest and sincere in his belief that his every work is for the benefit of Free China. I am not fully confident that he knows the true situation, though, because news is channelled in to him through his various aides. If some of these men are not honest, the picture Chiang gets may not be a true one.

2. How does your husband feel about Chiang Kai-shek? I ask you this because I assume that you believe your husband knows much more about the world situation than you do.

A. Rich always speaks for himself. I do not think being his wife gives me the liberty of speaking for him.

3. Do you think, Walton, that the United States should defend Formosa, even if the defense of Formosa results in a war with Russia?

A. Whether or not it will result in a war with Russia is hard to predict. My feelings on our commitment of defend Formosa itself are mixed — I would like to see Formosa defended by the United Nations because I believe an international police action is a better way to slow down or stop aggression.

4. You have just come from an area in which the first United Nations action was declared. By that, I mean Korea. Did or did not the United Nations fully answer the problem that faced it?

A. I think different nations would give different answers as to what fully answering the question would mean. Things are not so peaceful there now as some would like, though some sort of peace was achieved through the joint efforts of United Nations forces. Each of these nationalities had fought aggression before, and it struck me as commendable and heartening that each country should send men into this joint effort.

5. At the moment, just having been flown in by Military Air Transport Service (MATS), how would you rate, for niceness, the countries in the world?

A. I'm not sure what you mean by niceness. I guess I'd mean cleanliness, and would vote for the United States as being the nicest I've seen. Health becomes a prime factor in picking places to live on visit, and many beautiful countries and islands have been discarded by Rich and me because of sub-standard sanitary facilities. Other nice places would be discarded by us because of a colder climate than we like — both of us want to be near clear, warm beaches.

Pampa News Women's Editor

THERE ARE FEW BETTER WAYS to raise the ire of a normally devoted husband than for him to find soggy hosiery draped over his favorite towel bar or shower rail in the bathroom. Equally irritating are those other feminine "unmentionables" which frequently usurp remaining rods and bars in the average bathroom during overnight drying. And with summer approaching, the need for extra towels invariably strains meager hanging facilities even more.

THERE IS A HAPPY situation to that most vexing bathroom problem nowadays, housewives will be glad to learn. Insufficient holders unquestionably are the cause of most of this needless clutter.

It is easy to stretch what may appear to be an "unexpandable" bath. It can be done at little cost of both time and money. Simply put up some of the inexpensive new plastic holders on the wall nearest the tub. As decorative as they are functional, these colorful new accessories lend fresh sparkle to a bathroom. And what may be more important to a happy homelife, they provide plenty of hanging space in a surprisingly simple, orderly fashion.

Among the newest plastic creations available today, one kind is made to order for amateur carpenters who object to making holes in walls or otherwise marring them. These are a 10½-inch folding, three-arm hosiery holder and 12 and 18-inch towel holders which simply "stick" to any tile, plaster, or wood surface. No nails, screws or tools are required to make them adhere indefinitely. Because they are self-affixing, these plastic accessories are known as Selfix. You put them up by this simple application method:

Moisten the adhesive-coated wood backplates with water. Work the adhesive into a soft, gluey consistency. Then press the holder into the desired position on the wall and hold it firmly for two minutes. After it "sets" for 24 hours, the holder is ready for towels, hosiery, or other overnight washables.

The plastic three-arm holder and towel bars are merely two items in a wide variety of plastic accessories which have the same self-affixing quality. There are shelves, soap dish, hooks, tumbler and toothbrush holders, too. They are available in most leading variety stores and numerous chain and hardware stores in such popular colors as white, red, yellow, green, and black.

AS LONG AS 4000 YEARS ago, women worried over grey hair. But the ladies of ancient Egypt went to drastic measures, in order to arrive in "the other world" wearing the dark hair of youth. They requested their tresses be cut off after death, tied in a bundle, and placed beneath their feet in the mummy case. Legend has it that the shorn hair then returned to its former shade!

Fear of grey locks plagued Cleopatra's contemporaries into blending strange coloring solutions. According to Jeanette Husak, director of hair coloring research for the Rayette Beauty Institute, St. Paul, Minn., many women restored color to silvering heads with an ointment made of "the blood of a black calf, boiled in oil."

Another such antidote, faithfully recorded on papyrus found in the tombs near Cairo, suggest using "the fat of a black snake." A very popular coloring ointment was made from "the blood of a black bull's horn."

Today, Miss Husak points out, hair coloring has become a beauty science. New chemical discoveries make it possible for any lady to change the color of her coiffure at will, simply by visiting her beauty salon. Modern hairdressers have at their disposal professional hair coloring preparations which help to recondition the tresses as well as to alter their shade.

While the fashion for dyeing dull tresses may have begun 40 centuries ago, it has reached its height in the professional beauty methods of 1955. Today, coloring is used to lighten the hair and lift the morale. Many a dark-haired miss asks her hairdresser to put silver "wings" into her coiffure — just for the glamour of it!

With more than 200 possible "fashion shades" to choose from, modern women might nod their bright heads to the mummies in the museum. After all, they started it all!

Beauty Care on the Highway

Three hundred miles of highway, from morn till night, can take a lot of the sparkle out of your eyes—unless you follow carefully the "highway beauty care" routine. So, if you're going to make a long trip by car this summer, it will pay you to remember a few details that will help you arrive feeling and looking fresh.

1. Be sure to have cleansing cream on hand at all times. Apply liberally to the face and throat at each stop to keep the dirt from becoming imbedded.

2. Every evening after you remove the day's accumulation of grime from your face and hands, apply night cream to counteract the drawing effects of wind and sun.

3. Good sunglasses are a must. They make driving easier and safer and protect your eyes from scorching brightness, as well as against dust and grit, too.

4. A bottle of eye drops are handy after a full day's drive to restore eye freshness. Sunburn lotion, too—sooner or later you will sunburn the tip of your nose, the back of your neck or your left forearm.

5. Soap, shampoo, talcum and deodorant are "musts." But you needn't load yourself like an army mule. Replenish them along the road. Several cosmetics firms offer travel kits that contain the things you'll need and there's much less chance of breakage.

6. Wear comfortable shoes and clothes, and change into clean clothes often — they keep you feeling, as well as looking fresh.

7. Never eat heavy meals during the day — they make you drowsy. It's better to eat a short snack every few hours. Make breakfast and dinner the most substantial meals

8. Most important: Get a good night's sleep every night on the trip. It helps your appearance. It's a safety factor, too. Your reflexes will be quicker and you won't drowse at the wheel.

9. Carry twenty or thirty dollars in cash and the rest in American Express Travelers Cheques. Spend them most anywhere and, if you happen to lose them, you quickly get your money back. Saves worry.

Fifty guests called or sent gifts during the evening.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

No matter how excited you are about a recent trip or some other happy experience, don't do ALL the taking when you are with friends. They'll enjoy hearing about your adventure IF you don't hold forth too long.

Just give the highlights—not your whole itinerary.

THE DRIVE TO RAISE money for the support of professional baseball in Pampa through the giving away of a brand new station wagon isn't going so well, according to Deck Woldt, Oiler business manager.

"We've just barely sold enough to pay for the car," Woldt said, "and we've got a long way to go yet if we reach the $10,000 goal."

It is expected that the $1 donations, which will be good for one ticket for each donation for the station wagon drawing, will come in at a much faster pace as the time nears for the give-way date.

But the pace that has been set up until now is far from the expectations of the Pampa Oilers Community Baseball Association, which is giving the car away.

We might point out that your money won't be "going down the drain" if you don't win the car.

As you know, of course, there will be only one winner.

But, even if you don't win, you can rest assured that your $1 donations will be put to good use.

Your donations will help to keep Pampa in professional baseball, a valuable asset to our friendly city.

There were some 50 Pampa business men and fans who felt confident enough that the new car deal would go over with a bang that they went on a $10,000 note several weeks ago for the purpose of assuring the Oilers finishing out the current season.

A $10,000 goal thus was set on the new car gimmick so that three men will be repaid in full.

Being an Optimist, we still believe that the goal will be attained. The car will be given away exactly one month from today, Labor Day, Sept. 5.

If all you good Oiler fans will buy one ticket per week between now and the giveaway date, we'll reach the goal.

Remember, the more tickets you have in the "pot" the better your chances will be of winning.

THE MERCHANT'S ACTIVITIES Committee of the Chamber of Commerce is to be commended for its move in recommending that all local stores close at 5 p.m. today to allow their employees to attend the Oiler-Gold Sox game.

We sincerely hope that the business houses will respond to this move by the C of C.

NOTICE WHERE PUTT POWELL has bbseen ridiculing our predictions on the outcome of the various football conferences for this coming fall — especially District 1-AAA of which the new Amarillo high school, Palo Duro, is a member.

All I can say is that Putt doesn't have the "guts" to make his own predictions. He waits until he gets some "inside" dope on the grid conferences and them compares them with other scribes' predictions.

Maybe we did "boot" one when we rated Snyder last in District 1-but we didn't wait until the 1-AAA coaches convened in San Antonio this week to pick a favorite before making our prediction.

If Putt thinks he is an "expert" at predicting football races, we'll challenge him to a duel on ranking the teams in District 1-AAAA and the Southwest Conference.

We've already made our predictions and we'll be spotting the Putter a month or so of which he has had time to study the matter over.

Putt will have the advantage of looking over the report made at this week's coaching school in San Antonio where the coaches and sports scribes annually pick the favorites of each conference.

However, we believe we can spot Putt these advantages and still "out predict" him.

We'll even wager him a steak dinner on the matter.

It's your deal now, Putt.

Banks Four Shy Of Shortstop HR Mark

CHICAGO —UP— Twenty-four year-old Ernie Banks needs only four more home runs to become the greatest homer-hitting shortstop of all-time.

At the rate he's been slamming homers over the left field fence in Wrigley Field this week, the Chicago Cubs' sensational shortstop could break Vern Stephens old record any day.

Banks belted his 34th, 35th and 36th Thursday off three Pittsburgh pitchers to tie Duke Snider of the Brooklyn Dodgers for the major league lead. He needs only three more to tie Stephens' 1949 record of 39.

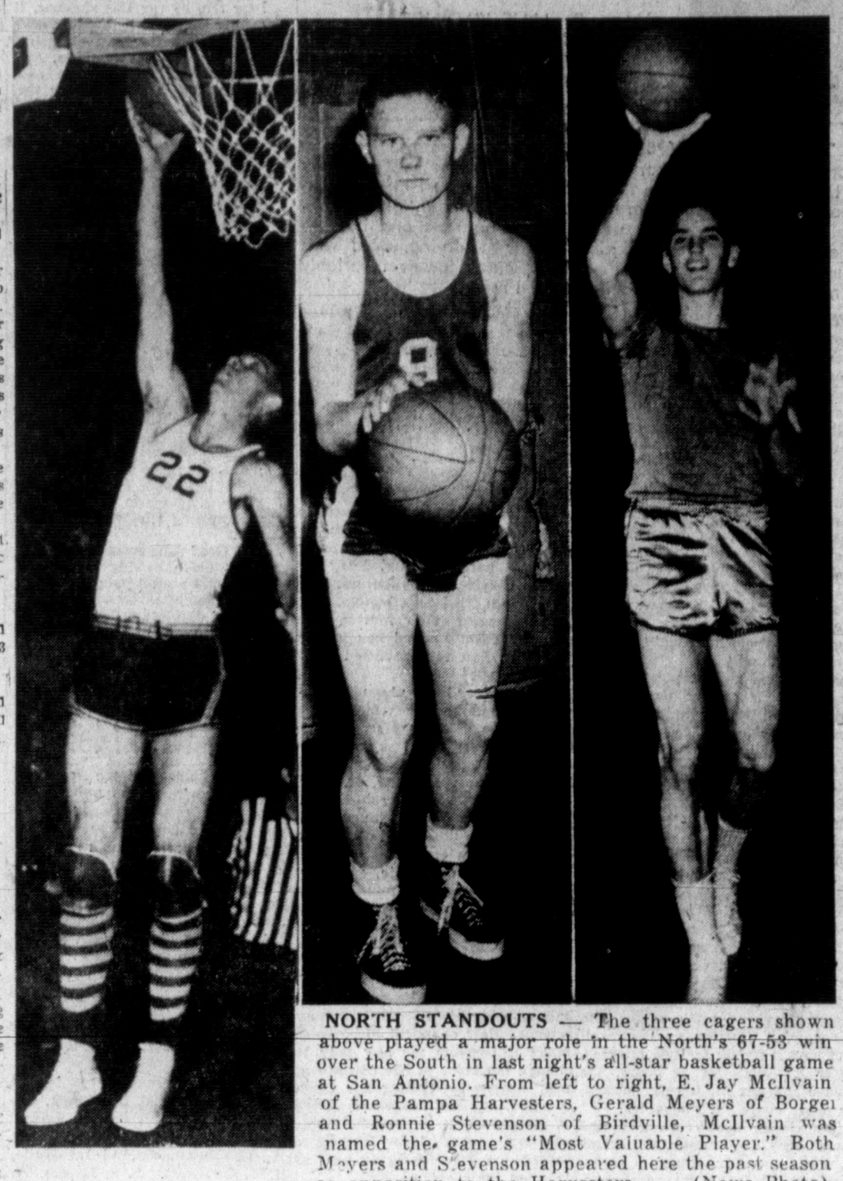

With less than two years of major league experience, Banks joined illustrious baseball greats Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig when he walloped his fourth grand slam homer of the season Tuesday. He has 43 games left in which to become the first player in history to hit five grand slammers in one season.

Banks claims he isn't even swinging for the fences.

"I guess I'm hitting more homers because I'm using a lighter bat," Banks said. "I'm swinging a 31 ounce bat this year. Last year I used a 34-ouncer."

He found he could swing it faster.

Locals Drop Finale At Plainview, 8-4

BY BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

Professional baseball fans in Pampa today are hoping their slumping Oilers will "come to life" in time to capture the four-game series with the Amarillo Gold Sox that starts this afternoon at Oiler Park.

Today's game, as well as Saturday's game, will begin at 5:05 p.m. The early starting times were set to allow fans to attend both the ball game and the Top O' Texas Rodeo.

The Oilers ended their series at Plainview last night on a dismal note, losing to the second division Ponies, 8-4. The locals thus divided the series with the Ponies, the Oilers having won the opener Wednesday night, 10-9.

Manager Grover Seitz' lads have dropped eight of their last nine games that has dropped the team to third place in the standings, 1½ games back of leading Albuquerque.

Seitz will call on Buddy Woods to take the bill in today's series opener with Amarillo. Woods, who holds a 1-1 record with the Gold Sox, will be gunning for his ninth victory.

Amarillo is sure to go with its ace, Marshall Bridges, in the opener. Bridges owns a 13-1 record.

The Gold Sox apparently have been saving Bridges for the Oilers as the Negro lefthander passed up his regular turn during the past week. Bridges hasn't pitched since he defeated the Oilers last Saturday.

The two teams will wind up their four-game series with a doubleheader Sunday following single games today and tomorrow.

The Oilers, in last night's game, led Plainview, 4-3, until the seventh when starting pitcher Fred Jackson lost his control.

Jackson committed the "unpardonable" sin in baseball, that of walking the opposing pitcher and it was this walk that led to his defeat.

With one away in the seventh, Jackson walked Ken Harrington, Pony relief pitcher, and then got the next batsman, John McCabe, for the second out. But the young lefthander followed by issuing a free pass to Doug Lewis, which spelled finis for him.

Tommy Harrison came on but he only fanned the blaze as Don Stokes singled to score Harrington with the tieing run and Frank Green doubled to score Lewis and Stokes and for all practical purposes that was the ball game.

Ex-Oiler Jim Lemons started for the Ponies but was shelled from the mound in the fourth and Harrington took over and finished. Harrington had lost the series opener but evened matters by winning in relief last night.

Two of Pampa's runs came on Paul Halter's 23rd homer of the season in the fourth.

Catcher I. B. Palmer blasted two homers for the Ponies.

McIlvain Leads North To All-Star Win; Named MVP

By ED FITE

SAN ANTONIO —UP— A spirited second-half drive anchored around a 10-point scoring spree by the game's most valuable player, Jay McIlvain of Pampa, gave the North a well-deserved 67 to 53 victory over the South in the 10th annual all-star schoolboy basketball game Thursday night.

It was an upset, since the South had been a slight favorite, but for better than half the game the North's erratic shooting, lack of rebound ability and an apparent derth of aggressiveness had tabbed it as an almost certain loser.

Then, trailing 31 to 24 early in the second half, the victors started their winning drive ad pulled into a 10 point lead that they kept the rest of the way.

Not Whole Show

McIlvain wasn't the whole show by any means, despite his vital 13 points. Ronnie Stevenson, the tall center from Birdville, kicked in with the night's best scoring total, 16 points; John Fite of Atlanta added a dozen points and some fine floor play and guard Gerald Myers of Borger teamed with Fite on the latter score to ignite the winning spark.

Until that time, the game's two tallest players, 6-8 Earl Lankford of Galena Park and W. A. Preston of Houston Milby, had controlled the backboards and kept the North at bay. Both went out on fouls late in the game, but the North's winning drive was made with both of them in there.

McIlvain, who received 17 of the 21 votes cast for the player award, played most of the second half under a four-foul threat and finally did bow out by that route to the plaudits of a sweltering crowd of around 3,000.

Preston Is Second Highest

Preston was second high scorer with 14 points, followed by McIlvain's 13 and 12 by Fite and Neil Swisher of Victoria, one of the South's better stars.

The North hit 37.2 per cent of its field goal efforts, while the South got no better than 30 per cent. The North hit 29 of 46 free shots to 17 out of 38 for the South.

Stevenson, who brought a 31-point scoring average into the game, was cold in the first half and hit only two of eight foul shots, but they were enough to help him to the scoring honors. He is headed for Texas Christian, McIlvain for Rice.

North Favored In Grid Tilt Tonight

SAN ANTONIO —UP— North and South all star schoolboy football teams who have been battling for 20 years to a deadlock in their series clash Friday night at Alamo Stadium with the North a slight favorite to get out in front.

The rival coaches, Darrell Royal of Mississippi State for the North and George Sauer of Baylor for the South, have been drilling their select squads since Monday—the North in the split-T and the South in the conventional T.

The short drill period won't lend itself to polish football, but both teams are loaded with great running backs and passers and the coaches themselves look for a fairly high scoring contest.

Continued hot weather has kept advance ticket sales at a minimum, but officials expect at least 7,500 fans for the season's first football game and said the crowd might swell to 12,000.

The probable starting lineup.

NORTH

Ends — Don Smith, Phillips and Don Usry, Cleburne.

Tackles—Jerry Cramer, Breckenridge, and Gary McElroy, San Angelo.

Guards—Kenneth Schrum, Midland, and James Jolly, McClean.

Center—Bob Harrison, Stamford.

Backs—James Monroe, Texarkana; Luther Hall, Dallas Sunset; Jim Millerman, Abilene; Larry Hickman, Kilgore.

SOUTH

Ends—David Harris, San Antonio Edison, and Larry Roach, Victoria.

Tackles—Robert Spain, Pasadena, and A. A. Crews, Nederland.

Guards—Winston Laffeur, Port Neches, and Charles Horton, Waco.

World's Mat Title Match Set Here Monday Cancelled

The World's Champion Junior Heavyweight match scheduled here Monday has been cancelled, according to the Shriner Club, sponsors of the match.

The Shriners learned yesterday that Gentleman Ed Francis, who was to put his title on the line here against Frank Faketty, injured his shoulder in a match in Little Rock, Ark., early this week and will be unable to appear here Monday.

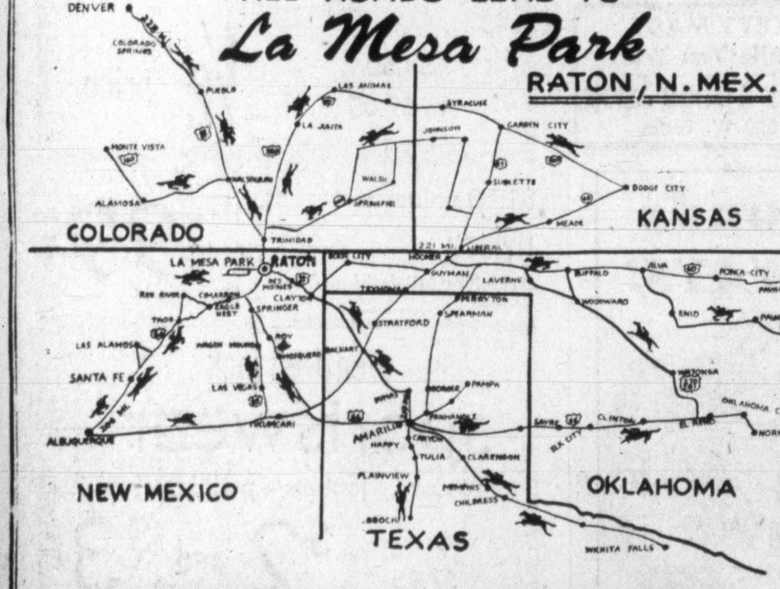

The exact extent of his injury wasn't revealed but it is believed he'll be out of action several weeks.

Francis will appear in Pampa when and if he recovers from the injury.

Monday's card will go on, neverthless, with Dory Detton, who once held the crown that Francis now holds, filling in for the champion against Faketty Monday.

Monday's matches have been switched back to the Top O' Texas Sportsman's Club Arena. The title match had been scheduled for Recreation Park.

Shrine officials have announced that tickets already sold to the title match will be good for Monday's card.

Chisox Lose But Hold Slim Lead

By UNITED PRESS

If the Yankees don't snap out of it, that hot five-team pennant race in the American League will be reduced to four and the once proud Bronx Bombers will be in the second division.

They have fallen apart since July 4 when they went into that traditional pennant yardstick date leading the league by 6 1-2 games for their biggest margin of the year.

Since then they have won 11 games and lost 18. Now look at what the other pennant hopefuls have done over the same period. Boston has traveled at the fastest pace with 20 wins and nine losses, Cleveland is almost as hot at 20-11 and Chicago, on top by two percentage points, is 20-12. Detroit's pace is 19-13.

During their prolonged slump the Yankees were 0-3 against the Tigers, 2-3 against the Indians, 2-4 against the Red Sox. Even the second division teams hold no terror. The Yankees are 0-1 with Baltimore and 4-4 with Kansas City in that stretch, holding an advantage over only one club, Washington at 3-1.

Yankees Drop to Third

The Indians dropped the Yankees to third place with a 6-3 triumph Thursday on a three run homer by Vic Wertz, while the rambunctious Red Sox climbed to within two games of the top with another victory over Chicago 7-3. Detroit missed an opportunity to gain by dropping a 9-6 slug session with Washington while Ed Lopat won his first game for Baltimore 8-1, an eight-hitter.

Ernie Banks, Chicago's incredible shortstop led a home run spree in the National, getting three for a total of 36 in an 11-10 win over the Pirates in which there were eight route clouts. The Dodgers and Braves each had three homers in another 11-10 triumph, Brooklyn putting over five runs in the ninth to win and go 15 1-2 games in front. Cincinnati topped the Phils 4-3 and the Cardinals defeated the Giants 3-0.

The homer by Wertz came after Gene Woodling singled and Al Rosen walked Ray Narleski picked up his seventh victory without a loss in relief of rookie Herb Score. Mickey Mantle's ninth inning homer was the only run Narleski yielded.

Jack Jensen batted in four runs with a triple, single, and sacrifice fly as Boston made it two out of three over Chicago.

Four Singles, Walk Win

After Detroit tied the score at 6-6 with three runs in the eighth on Ray Boone's two run triple and Jim Delsing's scoring fly, Washington laid down a barrage of four singles and a walk for three runs and the win margin.

Lopat walked no one and missed a shutout only on Joe Astroth's homer in his first game for Baltimore.

Banks drove in seven runs with his three homers which tied him with Duke Snider for the major league lead. Ed Miksis also homered for Chicago and Dale Long, Dick Groat, Frank Thomas and Gene Freeze hit Pittsburgh homers.

Cincinnati won its eighth game in the last nine and handed Phils their sixth defeat in the last seven when Bob Thurman singled home the winning run in the eighth. Wally Post homered for Clincy and Del Ennis and Jim Greengrass hit Philadelphia round trippers.

Tom Poholsky became the second pitcher to shutout the Giants this season, holding them to four hits, striking out four and walking only one.

Thursday's Star

Ernie Banks of the Cubs who hit three homers and tied Duke Snider of Brooklyn for the major league lead with 36 in Chicago's 11-10 victory over Pittsburgh.

TUMMY ACHE—Danny Joe Perez let everybody at New York's St. Nicholas Arena and the television audience know he was hurt when sour-pussed Gene Poirier landed a hard right under his heart. The punch helped the Niagara Falls welterweight win a unanimous 10-round decision.

Doctor Orders Dave Williams To Quit Game

ROCHESTER, Minn. —UP— Davey Williams, New York Giant second baseman, will quit baseball on the advice of doctors at the Mayo Clinic here, it appeared Friday.

The 27-year-old infielder, suffering from spinal arthritis and a possible slipped disc has been advised to retire because of the possibility of serious complications, it was learned Thursday night.

Williams, under treatment here reached immediately for comment. But Sid Hartman, columnist for the Minneapolis Morning Tribune, had donned his uniform for "the last time."

Hartman said Williams told him the news "came as a real blow," but as something of a "relief" as well. He quoted Williams as saying he played last year only by "taking pills" to deaden the pain.

Pony Tourneys Widespread

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 5 — Baseball tournaments in cities far apart as San Bernardino, Calif., provide over a hundred youngsters of 13 and 14 years an opportunity to take part in a event which is rapidly becoming one of the highlights of the diamond season.

This is the annual P-O-N-Y League World Series, which begins here on August 18 and continues through August 23.

P-O-N-Y League, designed to provide supervised baseball for the graduates of the popular Little League program, has enjoyed a tremendous growth in its four years of existence. Begun in 1951 as a local program, it has mushroomed until today 2729 teams are enrolled in the United States and Canada.

In this country, eight regions have been established, with the regions further divided by their directors into districts. Teams enter district tournaments with the winners progressing to regional play and then to the World Series.

Regional tournaments are being held at Defiance, Ohio; North Charleston, S.C.; Corpus Christi, Texas; Naperville, Ill.; Greensboro, N.C.; and San Bernardino, Calif. In two regions, Pennsylvania, and New York-New England, the final games will be played on the home fields of one of the finalists.

Wilson Arthur Weaver and Katherine Lou Weaver, Defendants herein, are the only living children of Vera Lucille Weaver, and each of them is still living and each owns a remainder interest — whether vested, contingent or both — in and to the above described property, under the terms of said Will.

This action is brought against the Defendants named herein, not only as individuals in their individual capacities, but also as representatives of all of the contingent remaindermen or possible future interest holders, born or unborn, under, through or by virtue of said Will of Bessie Stevens, Deceased, hereinabove referred to.

It is necessary for the conservation, preservation and protection of the said property and of all of the present and contingent or future interests therein that said land be leased for the production of oil, gas and other minerals. It is to the best interest of the Plaintiff and all of the Defendants and all of the owners of the remaining fifteen-sixteenth (15/16th) mineral interest in and to the Northeast One-fourth (NE 1/4th) of Section 12, Block 3, I. & G. N. RR Co. Surveys, Gray County, Texas, including any persons who may hereafter come into being and who would in such event have an interest in said land under, through or by virtue of said Will of Bessie Stevens, Deceased, that the said land be leased for oil, gas and other mineral development; and the leasing of said land for oil, gas and other mineral development and the safe and proper investment of the proceeds will inure to the benefit and advantage of the persons entitled thereto.

The nature of the proceeding is fully shown by Plaintiff's Original Petition on file in this cause, and a true copy of same will be furnished to any Defendant by J. B. Maguire, Jr., Attorney for Plaintiff, P. O. Box 957, Pampa, Texas, immediately upon request.

The officer executing this process shall properly execute the same according to law, and make due return as the law directs. If this citation is not served within 90 days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

Issued and given under my hand and the seal of said Court at office in Pampa, Texas, this 21st day of July, 1955.

Japan Not Eager For Defense By Atomic Weapons Of U. S.

By CHARLES M McCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

Japan does not look forward with any eagerness to the possibility that the United States might defend it with atomic weapons if it is attacked.

In fact Premier Ichiro Hatoyama is faced with a political crisis partly because the United States is sending atomic weapons to Okinawa and Japan itself.

Unless Hatoyama can effect a merger of his own Japan Democratic party with the liberals he may be overthrown when parliament meets in December.

There was a sensation in Tokyo when it was made known last week that the United States had sent a battery of atomic cannon to Okinawa and planned to send atomic rocket launchers to Japan.

Wrong Time

The announctment could have been better timed.

First Hatoyama was trying to push through a dying session of parliament two important defense bills. One was to set up a national defense council to plan Japan's rearmament. The other was to set up a council to revise the 1947 constitution which forbids Japan to arm.

Secondly, Japanese people were painfully aware that the 10th anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima falls on this Saturday Aug. 6.

As the result of the announcement the Socialists in the upper house of parliament were able to talk the two measures to death.

Hatoyama can call a special session before December in an attempt to get the two measures approved. But he would be risking a disastrous defeat.

Hatoyama, like his predecessor Shigeru Yoshida is loyally keeping Japan allied with the United States.

But while the Japanese people approve that alignment they are noticeably unenthusiastic over the prospect of rearmament.

They know they must rearm. A nation of about 87 million people can not remain defenseless — or in the long run, neutral.

But most Japanese people are facing the rearmament program reluctantly.

Especially they want nothing more to do with atomic weapons. They had their share at Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Quite naturally they figure also that if the United States used atomic weapons based on Japanese territory including atom-bomb-carrying plants an enemy based on the Communist ruled Asiatic mainland might us atomic weapons against Japan.

The present plan is for Japan to complete its defense program by 1960. It calls for an army, navy and air force totaling 259,000 men. Then, the last United States troops will be pulled out, and Japanese people will breathe easier.

Red Ag Chief May Visit Texas

WASHINGTON —UP— Vladimir Matskevich, first deputy minister of agriculture of the Soviet Union, may visit cotton areas near Texas A&M College later this week.

Matskevich is leader of the group of Russian farmers now touring U.S. farms. He returned to Washington Wednesday to arrange further visits to Canada and Mexico.

Plans were also made to have Matskevich and the group visit Texas, including a 90-minute stopover in Houston enroute to Texas A&M at College Station, and possibly a visit to the King ranch.

However, plans were changed Wednesday afternoon and a Russian spokesman said the deputy minister would not be able to leave before Friday. He said a new Texas itinerary would be set up.

Border Patrol Emergency Force Created

WASHINGTON —UP— The U.S. Border Patrol has recruited 400 men into a highly mobile emergency task force ready to go into action anywhere "on very short notice."

Einar Wahl, acting chief of the patrol, said Wednesday formation of the force began more than six months ago and the emergency unit now is at its planned full strength.

He said recruitment for the force will be continued, however, so that it can be maintained at all times at a power of 400.

Wahl was questioned about published reports that the patrol has set up a 200-man "Army" in the Southwest. He said that all told there are twice that many specially trained field men "part in Texas and part in California" who are in a position "to get going in a hurry."

"This is not in any sense a small army," he said. "The men are equipped with nothing more than the usual small arms."

Wahl confirmed, however, that the unit has jeeps, airplanes, trucks and automobiles. He said that although stationed in the Southwest, all or part of the force could be moved quickly for trouble shooting work along the Canadian border or at any other place within the United States.

Wahl was asked about a statement by Rep. Robert Mollohan (D-W. Va.) that the U. S. Immigration Service had drawn up plans for a "barrier of bayonets" along U.S. borders to be manned by 8,000 volunteers. He declined comment directly but said the patrol "won't need any more than 400 men for its emergency work."

Anderson Gets Medal

WASHINGTON —UP— President Eisenhower Wednesday awarded the medal of freedom to Robert B. Anderson, retiring deputy secretary of defense, "for exceptionally meritorious service in furtherance of the security of the United States."

Anderson's citation praises him for "a brilliant performance" as secretary of the Navy from January, 1953, to March, 1954, and for "sound judgment and keen foresight", as deputy defense secretary since March, 1954.

Anderson's citation priases him having you here and we'll look forward to having you back sometime," Mr. Eisenhower told Anderson as he presented the medal at a White House ceremony.

Anderson, 45, is a Texas Democrat who supported Mr. Eisenhower for election in 1952. His resignation takes effect Friday. He has not announced his future plans. He was manager of the 500,000 acre Waggoner ranch in Texas before coming here in 1953.
