COLOMBIAN TREATY MAY BE RATIFIED LATE WEDNESDAY

INDICATIONS ARE THAT PACT WILL RECEIVE WELL OVER TWO-THIRDS VOTE.

PAYMENT OF 25 MILLION TO COLOMBIA PROVIDED

Ratification Will Settle Controversy That Has Been Waged for 18 Years.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The senate is expected to ratify the Colombian treaty late today.

By a vote which, indications are, will be well over the required two-thirds, the senate will thus dispose of a controversy which has been waged with the Central American republic ever since the department of Panama revolted in 1903, and the administration of Theodore Roosevelt got from Panama the canal site.

Colombia charged the United States incited the revolution and then grabbed the Canal site.

The treaty to be approved today pays Colombia $25,000,000 in annual installments of $5,000,000, gives her and all rights and privileges in the Panama canal zone and paves the way for recognition of Panamanian independence by Colombia and for the fixing of the Panama-Columbia boundary.

VIGOROUS OPPOSITION TO RATIFICATION DEVELOPS

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Vigorous opposition to ratification of the Colombian treaty was voiced in the senate today by Senator Morris, republican, Nebraska. He referred to republican supporters of the pact as "rubber stamps" of the white house and declared that payment of $25,000,000 to obtain Colombia's good will would logically be followed by payments to the other nations of the world for their good will.

"If we pay Colombia $25,000,000, how long will she stay bought?" he demanded.

As the final day's debate got under way, Senator Poindexter, republican, Washington, offered several amendments to the treaty. One would reduce the cash payment from $25,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, attacked the treaty as "another instance of bungling" with Latin-American countries.

Senator Kenyon, republican, Iowa, declared the treaty was "blackmail," and said the American people would understand it.

"I want to hear no more of economy in this administration," he said. "Your economy in this congress has gone."

The proposed payment to Colombia, Senator Kenyon said, would be a "half-baked apology" and a "stigma" on the name of Mr. Roosevelt.

Answering opponents of ratification, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, said the pact was "part of a great national foreign policy" projected by President Harding "toward our neighbors in the southern and eastern hemispheres."

"I intend to support the president in this initial step therefore," he declared. "It is a matter of opinion as to whether this treaty is a reflection on Theodore Roosevelt and the United States and in my opinion such a reflection is not possible. I think it to the advantage of my country to heal an open sore which exists between the United States and the country which adjoins the Panama Canal. It is necessary to do that for national defense and for whatever advantage to our business that may be obtained."

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, said Mr. Lodge "has suggested in a nebulous way" that the treaty was a part of a large administration policy, adding: "Possibly if that policy were unfolded and I could find where admission by the United States of wrongdoing was necessary to the policy, I might be convinced."

AMENDMENTS TO TREATY ARE VOTED DOWN

WASHINGTON, April 20—An amendment to the Colombian treaty, offered by Senator Poindexter, republican, Washington, to restrict the rights of Colombia as to use of the Panama Canal, was voted down, 59 to 30, late today in the senate.

Another amendment by Senator Poindexter, withholding from Colombia the unlimited right to transport warships and munitions through the canal was voted down, 60 to 29.

REPORT TWO NEW WELLS IN THE DUNCAN FIELD

DUNCAN, OKLA., April 19.—The Magnolia Petroleum company in section 13-2-8 west, Monday night completed a well in the seventeen hundred foot sand which is estimated to be good for from three hundred to five hundred barrels.

The well made two flows over the derrick Monday night. It is located in the far southeast section of the Empire district.

The Gypsy well in 26-4-1 north, which extended the Parsons and Gant field a mile to the northwest, is increasing its flow and is good for 2400 barrels. The well is attracting even larger crowds to Duncan, hundreds pouring in on every train.

ONE BANDIT SHOT AND FIVE CAPTURED AT CLEVELAND, OHIO

CLEVELAND, April 20.—One bandit was shot and five were captured in a gun fight between the police and a band of seven men who attempted to hold up the plant of the Interstate Chemical Company here today.

Acting on advance notice that robbery was contemplated, a squad of city detectives were concealed in a closet when the bandits drove up in a motor truck and entered the company's office with drawn revolvers.

DECORATED BY PRESIDENT

Robert E. Cox of Belmont, Pa., a chief gunner in the navy, photographed at the white house after President Harding had personally decorated him with the highest award for valor—the Congressional Medal of Honor. The ceremony took place in the east room of the white house on the seventeenth anniversary of the day on which Cox saved the battleship Missouri from destruction. After an explosion in a turret had set fire to powder in the adjoining handling room, Cox flooded the after magazine of the Missouri at the risk of his own life. Thirty men were killed in the accident. Cox, as a warrant officer, was debarred from receiving the medal of honor by the law providing for its award only to enlisted men. Not until last February was special legislation enacted permitting an exception to be made in Cox's case.

KATY AND DENVER HEARD BY RAILROAD LABOR BOARD TODAY

CHICAGO, April 20.—Presentation of masses of statistics dealing with the cost of living and with wages paid in other industries was continued by the railroads today in the railroad labor board hearing into the requests of nearly 100 roads that wages of unskilled labor be reduced.

Representatives of railroads operating in the western half of the United States were the first witnesses, their evidence differing but little from that presented by eastern and far western roads in the first two days of the hearing.

Coupled with today's testimony, however, came statements from representatives of several roads which were applying for reductions for unskilled labor only, saying that they would follow the lead of some of the larger roads by asking for lower pay for skilled labor as soon as the present cases were settled.

The first question concerning possibility of lower freight rates if wages were reduced came when B. M. Jewell, representing the unions, interrupted W. C. Hurst, general manager of the Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis railroad.

"If granted a lower scale of wages would you reduce freight rates?" asked Mr. Jewell.

"I'm in favor of anything that will make both ends meet," answered Mr. Hurst. "If we have any reasonable amount left after paying expenses, I don't care what the rate is."

Representatives of the Gulf Coast Lines, Rock Island, Missouri, Kansas & Texas; Denver & Salt Lake, Los Angeles & Salt Lake, the Kansas City Southern, the Fort Worth & Denver, the Chicago & Western Indiana and the Chicago & Eastern Illinois also testified regarding wages.

PROTECTIVE TARIFF FOR SOUTHERN PRODUCTS PROMISED BY FORDNEY

WASHINGTON, April 20.—A protective tariff will be given all southern agricultural and manufactured products in the regular tariff bill, Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means committee stated today.

He made this promise to John H. Kirby of Texas, president of the Southern Tariff association, which appeared before the committee urging protection.

Southern interests appeared today before the house ways and means committee as tariff protectionists.

Representatives of the Southern Tariff association, despite the "traditional democratic doctrine" against high tariffs, asked protection in the regular tariff bill now being framed on both raw materials and manufactured products.

Meanwhile the Young emergency tariff bill marked time in its congressional course. Hearings before the senate finance committee were postponed until Thursday when more experts will give their views on the American valuations and anti-dumping sections of the Young bill. The committee is puzzled over these features and Senator Penrose, chairman, said amendments are certain. This will delay the bill a couple of weeks perhaps.

WILL OFFER PEACE RESOLUTION IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, April 20.—After a conference today with President Harding, Chairman Porter of the house foreign affairs committee announced that within a few days he would offer a peace resolution, similar in the main to that recently introduced in the senate today by Senator Knox. He added, however, that action on it probably would not be rushed.

Republican leaders expect the house to delay consideration of the resolution until the senate has acted, and it was predicted today it might be a month before the house voted on the proposal.

Mr. Porter hopes to draft a resolution more clearly defining American rights in relation to Austria-Hungary.

FARMERS WILL GO DIRECT TO HARDING FOR LOWER RATES

DECISION REACHED AFTER CONFERENCE WITH I. C. C. WHICH WAS NOT SATISFACTORY.

THREE DAY CONFERENCE OPENS AT WASHINGTON

Barrett Urges Joint Congressional Inquiry Into Agricultural Conditions.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Farmers from all parts of the United States meeting here today under the auspices of the national farmers union decided to take their fight for a reduction in freight rates direct to President Harding.

This decision was reached after spokesmen for the farmers had conferred with members of the interstate commerce commission to urge lower rates. The delegates apparently were dissatisfied with the outcome of this conference.

Members of the union from many states were present, headed by National Secretary Davis. They told the commission that besides reducing the loss now sustained by the farmers in the sale of their crops, a lowering of freight rates would be a big psychological factor in starting the marketing of farm products and a general price reduction in other lines.

Unable to market their own products, the farmers, the spokesmen said, are vitually on a buyers' strike.

Members of the commission asked for suggestions that would make possible reduction of freight rates in the face of high equipment and labor costs. Commissioner McChord declared railways had to stand $8,000,000 loss in operating during the last year and asked whether the solution of the present freight rate problem was not after all one for labor, capital, shippers and the steel industry to solve rather than the commission.

"Money, labor and equipment are all abnormally high," said he.

Mr. McChord asked Secretary Davis whether with cheap freight rates farmers could market their product at a profit.

"Possibly not," Mr. Davis replied, "but a freight rate reduction would be one factor and it would be foolish to reject any plan that would reduce the farmer's loss simply because it does not solve their whole problem."

Mr. Davis added that if decreases in freight rates would not increase the volume of business to the railways sufficiently to make a profit for them the farmers would rather pay railway deficit in the form of taxes than bear the entire burden of high freight rates as at present.

President MacSparten of the Pennsylvania Grange, declared that the present high labor costs resulted from efforts of railway executives during federal control to prove government ownership a failure. He cited alleged instances of extraordinary increases in the number of employes during the control period on little used properties "with the deliberate intention of running expenses as high as possible."

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Farmers from various sections of the country affiliated with the national farmers union gathered here today for a three days' conference to discuss various problems affecting their welfare. The meeting was called by Charles S. Barrett, president of the union, with a view to giving the farmers an opportunity to express their own views on domestic problems and pending or projected legislation. Speakers on the conference program include Secretary Wallace, to discuss co-operative marketing; Senator Calder, to present reasons why he thinks the farmers would get behind his coal regulation and housing bills, and Senators Capper, Lenroot and others.

In opening the conference Mr. Barrett urged the creation of a joint congressional committee to inquire into and suggest remedial measures for the agricultural situation. Declaring agriculture in America was going rapidly toward the habitat of "the halt, the lame and the blind," Mr. Barrett asserted "what agriculture wants is an opportunity to help itself."

"Money and credit" have been denied farmers despite the fact "that more money was available in 1920 than in any previous year," Mr. Barrett said, adding:

"It is a notorious fact also that agricultural organizations have not been afforded by the transportation systems of the country the facilities given corporations to distribute the products of the farm."

Mr. Barrett urged immediate enactment of "co-operative enabling laws" in a generous spirit and without nullifying reservations."

Charging that "some interests of this country are attempting to nullify or destroy the usefulness of the federal trade commission by legislation or in other ways," Mr. Barrett recommended selection of farmers committee to investigate the situation.

"I have asked congress," he said in conclusion, "to undertake the task of finding out what is wrong with agriculture and how wrongs, when they are discovered, can be righted."

Mr. Barrett reported to the conference that the Polish minister had informed him that he wished to buy seven million bushels of wheat, 3,000,000 bushels of rye and 300,000 bales of cotton for Poland. A committee was appointed to visit the minister and make arrangements for the sale.

Officials of the national farmers' union said the president probably would be asked to call a conference of shippers, labor representatives, the railroad labor board, interstate commerce commission, steel and other interests which furnish the railroads supplies and bankers.

SIMPLIFIED FORM FOR BANK CALL PLANNED

WASHINGTON, April 20.—A new and simplified form of bank call is being worked out by the comptroller of the currency, treasury officials said today. The old form on which the national banks were required to make the statutory returns as to conditions, officials explained, was found to be too involved and lengthy, and it is expected that the new form will be more standardized and but half as long as the present one.

Requests for information as to salaries of bank officials and employes, which was called for by former Comptroller John Skelton Williams, officials said, would probably not be included in the new bank call.

REDUCED RATES WILL BE ASKED ON CRUDE OIL

FORT WORTH, April 20.—Reduced rates on crude oil which have been put into effect from El Dorado, Ark., to Fort Worth, will be asked also for Wichita Falls, Burkburnett and other refinery points, it was announced here today by E. P. Byars of the West Texas chamber of commerce, following a conference with the Texas Oil Jobbers' association and Texas division of the Western Petroleum Refiners' association. The jobbers and refiners also declared in favor of a raise in the price of gasoline from 21 to 23 cents per gallon.

JAPANESE CABINET SEES NO REASON TO ALTER YAP POLICY

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, April 20.—The cabinet yesterday decided there was no reason to alter Japan's policy on the Yap mandate question because of the recent American note on the subject, according to the Nichi Nichi today. The decision of the ministry will be reported Friday at an extraordinary meeting of the diplomatic advisory council, the newspaper adds.

The foreign office said it could neither confirm nor deny the foregoing report.

The government deemed it wise not to make any statement or comment on the Yap question beyond what has been or will be published by mutual understanding between the Japanese and American governments, foreign office officials declared.

JUANITA MILLER PLANS FOR ROMANTIC WEDDING

OAKLAND, Cal., April 20.—Juanita Miller, daughter of the late Joaquin Miller, poet, today sat sewing eucalyptus caps on her bridal gown of burlap and told of her wedding plans.

Next Saturday night Juanita, gowned in the knee-length burlap bridal robe, will dance a wedding dance with Juan Miller, her husband, at what she terms a "pagan wedding festival." The bridegroom will wear a crimson cloak over white flannels.

Juan and Juanita were actually married last December but Juanita found that the cycle of her life dictated that she be wed beneath the lily light of the full April moon. So that is why on Saturday there will be another ceremony.

"I will dance a wedding dance invented for the occasion," and Juanita then told of the red and white garb of the groom.

"The combination of colors symbolizes the cycle which our marriage has completed. It is the union of material red and spiritual white.

"We will serve roast kid, grape juice and bread and butter."

Juanita's plans for married life after the "pagan festival" were admittedly rather vague.

"My husband hasn't a red cent," she said. "But we are going to work together. He is a photographer. But if that profession fails—why, Juan has a guitar which he plays and I can sing.

"We will become troubadours, singing for our supper."

LEGAL PURCHASERS WANTED FOR MILLION QUARTS OF LIQUOR AT $1 PER GALLON

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Nearly one million quarts of imported whiskey, gin and fancy brandies—purity certified by the government—now is begging for legal purchasers at one dollar a gallon, Chief Ashworth of the United States customs service said here here today.

The whiskey is for sale by the customs ser ice which seized it from border rum runners. Before offering it for sale the customs service had it tested and none is offered which is less than 89 proof, which means that it contains 40 per cent alcohol. This is fully up to the pre-war standard.

"Customs houses all over the country are overflowing with this seized liquor," said Ashworth. "Unless we find purchasers we shall have to destroy it. It is accumulating faster than we can store it. The customs officials are embarrassed by the quantities in which it is being seized.

"In trying to dispose of the liquor we circularized hospitals and druggists. But for some unexplained reason we found few purchasers."

To buy this liquor it is necessary to have a permit issued by the federal prohibition unit.

Hospitals, druggists, manufacturers of hair tonic and others who can show the need for liquor for non-beverage purposes are able to get permits to buy."

PARADE AND CHURCH SERVICE WEDNESDAY BY KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

GRAND COMMANDERY BEGINS BUSINESS SESSION EARLY IN AFTERNOON.

TEXAS TO SEND DIVISION TO NATIONAL GATHERING

Plans Being Laid for 1922 Encampment. 700 Templars March in Morning's Parade.

After nearly 24 hours of preliminary activities, the Grand Commandery of Texas Knights Templar settled down Wednesday afternoon to the business of the conclave. The first business session convened at 1:30 in the Masonic Temple.

It was preceded Wednesday morning by two notable features of the meeting here. First was the parade, in which about 700 Knights, in full uniform, with two bands, marched through the business district, and won the plaudits of a large crowd; afterwards, at the First Christian church, was the impressive devotional service.

A movement that promises to be of much interest to Knights Templar through the next 12 months started here Wednesday, when it became known that the officers of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of North America had requested Texas to send a full division of uniformed knights to the New Orleans encampment on April 26, 1922, and of those sent, Wichita Falls will be expected to send at least 75.

Wednesday afternoon's business session was to be followed by an automobile ride over the city at 4:30 p. m., while a garden party at the J. A. Kemp home at 7:30, and a reception by the Waco commandery at the Kemp at 9:30 were scheduled as later features. At 3 p. m. the visiting ladies were guests at a theatre party at the Olympic.

Practically all of the 500 visiting Knights and probably 200 local Templars participated in the parade Wednesday morning. Two bands, those of the Wichita Falls and Fort Worth commanderies, were in the procession, which was in four divisions; F. L. Booth as grand marshall, W. G. Bell, H. E. Crowley, W. G. Haag and Robert E. Nolen as division marshals, were in command.

A pretty feature of the parade was the work of the Fort Worth Commandery, which went through a number maneuvers as it marched, the detail taking at times the form of a cross, at other times a single file, and returning at intervals to the well known column of squads.

Every participant in the parade was in uniform and the spectacle of row after row of white-plumed, black-uniformed marchers, with swords, decorations and the insignia of their stations, was a memorable one and won much applause from the crowds as it passed.

The devotional service at the First Christian church started shortly after 11 p. m., most of the auditorium being occupied by the Knights. Anthems by the choir, and a vocal solo by R. E. Shepherd made up a pleasing musical program. On behalf of Wichita Falls, Commander C. R. Hartsook briefly extended welcome to the visiting knights, and Grand Commander J. B. Sawtell responded.

The service proper was ritualistic in form and was gone through with in a most impressive manner. It was concluded with a short sermon by Rev. N. F. Grafton of this city, who officiated as prelate.

Buffet luncheons were served in the basements of both the Christian and First M. E. church, south, during the noon hour, by the ladies of the respective congregations.

The number of visiting knights continued to grow Tuesday night and Wednesday with the arrival of each incoming train, and was expected to touch the 600 mark by Wednesday afternoon. Included in the number are not only representatives of every commandery in Texas, but several score of sir knights from Oklahoma commanderies, who took advantage of their nearness to Wichita Falls to attend the meeting.

On Tuesday afternoon was held the opening feature of the conclave, the competitive drill at the baseball park. Four teams went through an intricate series of maneuvers and movements with precision and accuracy that would have done credit to a crack army outfit.

The No. 1 team from Fort Worth Commandery won first place, scoring 24 points out of a possible 30; for second place, Fort Worth No. 2 and Waco entries tied, each with 21½ points, and the Dallas team was fourth, with 18 points. The Wichita Falls team, which did not compete, but which participated in the performance, was given a rating of 17 points.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker of New York, was among the early arrivals Wednesday morning. Mr. Walker is past grand commander of the Grand Commandery of the State of New York, also active 33 degree Mason for the State of New York. Mr. Walker was a nominee for the senate on the democratic ticket in the last election.

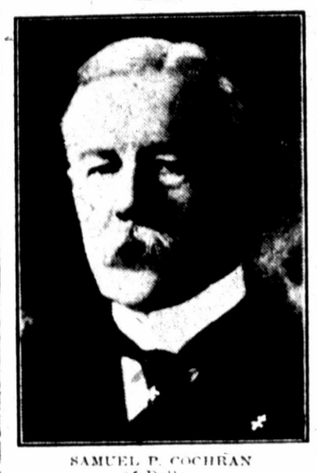

Major H. B. Stoddard of Bryan, past grand master of the grand encampment, Knight Templars of the United States of America is among those present, serving in this capacity in the year of 1889. He was past grand commander of the state in 1881, and served as major in the Confederate army. His services in the Masonic work exceed 50 years.

John L. Stephens, secretary of the Scottish Rite Bodies of Dallas, Texas, is among those present, also Z. T. Armstrong, editor of the Texas Freemason.

Practically the entire membership of the Vernon commandery was in Wichita Falls Wednesday for the conclave. Not only because the grand commandery meeting is so close to them, but also because a beloved Sir Knight of Vernon is to become grand commander, the Templars of that community are here in great force. In addition to numbers who were here Tuesday, a large crowd came down Wednesday morning in automobiles, and it was said there was scarcely a Sir Knight in Vernon who would not be here for at least one day of the conclave.

Among the numerous Oklahoma Templars attending are two past grand commanders from that state, J. Angus Gillis of Frederick, and C. S. Highsmith of Altus.

AMONG THE SIR KNIGHTS

SAMUEL P. COCHRAN of Dallas,
Ranking Mason of Texas.

THOUSANDS OF OIL LEASES IN OKLAHOMA MAY BE INVALIDATED

DUNCAN, OKLA., April 20.—Every lease for oil and gas taken in the state of Oklahoma by any oil company which also operates a pipe line department is invalid in the opinion of Cham Jones, judge of the district court of Stephens county. In support of his contention, judge Jones cites the act of the legislature in 1908 which expressly prohibits oil companies with pipe line departments taking such leases. He explains that in 1915 the legislature passed another act which said the school land board should not reject bids for any reason except those outlined in this act and the act did not prohibit such purchases.

"The contention of these companies has been that the act of 1915 by inference repealed the act of 1908," said Judge Jones. "I do not think it did, and if it repealed any of the acts it was only that portion which referred to the sale of school land."

Companies involved, if Judge Jones position should be sustained would be the Magnolia, the Sinclair, the Prarie, the Empire and the Standard oil companies. All of which operate pipe line departments. None of these companies even contend that their pipe line companies are anything except the property of the oil companies. Judge Jones said, "the companies simply take the position they are protected by the act of 1915. It would be easy to show in court that both branches are one and the same companies."

In the case of Price, against the Magnolia, decided Monday, Judge Jones held that the school land board had no right to withhold the quarter section of land in question from sale. The judge said Monday that the case was decided on this issue, but that it would also have been decided in favor of Price on the ground that the Magnolia has no right to make oil and gas leases, because of its pipe line department, had the issue reached this point.

He points out that the state, through the attorney general, can take action to invalidate all leases in the state made by these companies, and he suggests that Attorney General Freeling should be asked to take such action at once.

Should leases held by these companies be invalidated it would involve hundreds of millions of dollars in property in the state and practically force the big companies from the Oklahoma fields. Local independent operators fearing the encroachment of big companies, are preparing to urge the attorney general to act in conformance with Judge Jones' opinion of the law.

The court Monday evening appointed E. J. Kely of Waurika receiver for the Magnolia property in 23-8-8, involved in his decision of Monday. The receiver is instructed to take charge of and operate said lease and develop the same and to determine the expense incurred heretofore by plaintiff, the Magnolia and intervenor from the proceeds of the production of the oil and gas off said premises, and make account to the court for the same.

In this action, Price, a homesteader, sought to invalidate the Magnolia lease in section 33 on the ground that the school land board had refused to sell the land to him in accord with the legislative act. The ruling of the court sustained his contention. The case involves six producing oil wells and holdings and production worth hundreds of thousands of dollars.

OPPOSITION TO SALES TAX GROWS; CONGRESS LOOKING FOR SUBSTITUTE

WASHINGTON, April 20.—A substitute for the sales tax was being sought today by congressional committees handling revenue raising legislation.

Members of the committees admitted that with defeat of the sales tax certain and with pledges made that this congress will eliminate or reduce excess profits, income and other taxes, they are uncertain where the government is going to get its money.

As a consequence the taxpayers cannot know for about six months how much the government intends to take from them.

"It will be at least September before the taxation legislation will go through," said Senator Penrose, chairman of the senate finance committee.

Opposition to the sales tax, which started when Republican Leader Mondell of the house, backed by powers of his party and a flock of democrats, declared against it, was strengthened today by announcement from Senator McCormick of Illinois that at least twenty and perhaps as many as thirty-five republican senators would fight it.

MISSOURI PATRONAGE ROW BEFORE HARDING

WASHINGTON, April 20.—A federal patronage row in Missouri took a committee of republicans from the Missouri delegation to the white house today to urge President Harding to consider the republican state committee rather than Jake Babler of St. Louis, national committeeman, in making Missouri appointments. Resolutions adopted by the delegation endorsing action of the state convention on the point were handed to Mr. Harding.

TRANSFER GERMAN GOLD IS DECLARED AN IMPOSSIBILITY

PRESIDENT OF REICHSBANK SAYS TO MEET ALLIED DEMAND WOULD CAUSE COLLAPSE.

REPORTED GERMANY WILL MAKE NEW PROPOSITION

International Loan of Ten Billion Gold Marks Will Be Asked, According to Temps.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 20.—While the German cabinet has not yet indicated the nature of its reply to the reparations commission's demand that the German gold reserve be transferred to some point in the occupied zone, President Havenstein of the Reichsbank and the financial writers summarily reject the proposition.

They take the ground that the gold is not only the property of a private bank, but that its removal from Berlin under the conditions named would bring on collapse of German currency at home and abroad, and would promptly result in an advance of all commodities to fabulous prices.

President Havenstein declares that serious consideration of the proposition would be a mere waste of time, and doubts whether any government could be found in Germany which would accede to he entente's demand.

"The impossible is impossible, that is all there is to it," said Herr Havenstein.

The Norddeutsche Allegemeine Zeitung, owned by Hugo Stinnes, expresses suspicion that the French are the driving forces behind the new demand. It says that once the gold reserve is outside the confines of the Reichsbank's vaults and placed under entente control in the occupied zone, it will no longer remain as an active asset of the bank, as its ultimate seizure would then become a simple matter.

This newspaper estimates the volume of German currency held abroad at 20,000,000,000 marks, and that foreign demands on Germany of all kind total 95,000,000,000 marks.

The value of the present gold reserve of 1,030,000,000 marks is computed as representing 18 per cent of Germany's current issue and its disappearance from the bank's assets, the newspaper asserts, would not only result in the instant visitation of the foreign creditors' claims, but also have a catastrophic effect upon German exports and imports, especially with regard to the purchases of raw products.

GERMANY WILL MAKE NEW PROPOSITION WEDNESDAY

PARIS, April 19.—The Temps today publishes a dispatch under a Cologne date line giving what purports to be a proposition which the newspaper says Germany will make to the allies Wednesday or Thursday.

According to the Temps Germany proposes to pay to the allies 3,000,000,000 gold marks during ten years, and also yearly payments equal to one-fifth of the value of German exports to allied countries during the preceding year.

To realize a part of the above indemnities, says the dispatch, Germany proposes to issue an international loan of 10,000,000,000 gold marks, upon which she is prepared to pay interest up to five per cent. The loan would be guaranteed by railroad earnings and also by participation up to twenty per cent in German private industries. Germany then would be ready to discuss the total of its debt to the allies, according to the dispatch.

Germany will also offer reparations in kind, saying German contractors and labor would undertake to reconstruct a certain percentage of the work in northern France and also that German industry would supply French owners whose property was destroyed with materials which would be paid for by bonds which the government of Germany would deliver to French owners.

The Temps in commenting on the dispatch says:

"Certin is convinced that the propositions will be rejected by the allies but insists on presenting them publicly, hoping that a certain part of opinion abroad will consider them sufficient to bring pressure to bear on the allies not to occupy the Ruhr region."

NEW CUSTOMS CONTROL IN OCCUPIED TERRITORY

BERLIN, April 20.—A special dispatch from Essen today says the new customs control set up by the allies in the occupied zone for the collection of duties under the penalties plan became effective at midnight last night. Passenger trains are being detained 10 minutes for the inspection of the passengers and their baggage.

FRED ABSOLON ENTERS PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

RICHMOND, TEXAS, April 20.—A plea of not guilty was entered yesterday before the court in the case of Fred Absolon, charged with murder in connection with the slaying of R. L. Kirby in the Blue Ridge bank on February 15. Only one juror had been selected this morning. He is F. L. Addicks of Cottonwood, farmer, 26 years old.

NEFF IS URGED TO SUBMIT SPECIAL TAX ON GASOLINE

AUSTIN, April 20.—Governor Neff was today urged by Senator I. E. Clark, Fayette county, to submit to the special legislature the proposition of imposing a tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline, to be collected from motorists at filling stations, and to be used for building and maintaining public highways.

Clark said the governor displayed a favorable attitude toward such a law, although he did not commit himself to two cents. Heretofore a tax of one cent a gallon has been suggested. According to Clark, the governor expects to call the special summer legislative session July 20.

LIBEL ON CITY NOT TO BE ALLOWED TO PASS UNCHALLENGED

WICHITA FALLS IS PAINTED IN "RAGTOWN" COLORS IN STORY IN HEARST MAGAZINE.

EMPHATIC PROTEST SENT BY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Picture of "Wichita Falls" One That Would Not Be Flattering to An Overnight Old Field Town.

Headed by a picture of a cluster of shacks, huts and derricks that would be a libel on Bridgetown, but which is all too plainly labelled Wichita Falls, one Rex Beach, fictionist extraordinary, has a story starting in the current number of Hearst's Magazine that is causing Wichitans some indignation not entirely unmixed with amusement.

The story is entitled "Flowing Gold" and centers around Wichita Falls, Dallas and Ranger, all three of which communities are slandered rather impartially.

The crowning insult, however, is that handed to Wichita Falls. The picture that is only too plainly intended to represent the main street of this city would do Burkburnett a very great injustice and would be far from complimentary to any of the built-overnight communities in the oil field itself.

Wichita Falls is not going to let the libel pass unchallenged, and a vigorous protest sent Wednesday morning by C. E. Carter, publicity manager of the chamber of commerce, will be followed by such other action as is deemed appropriate.

It is stated that Mr. Beach spent but a few days here last summer, and there are sentences in his story that show a rather laughable unfamiliarity with the oil business. The story as a whole paints Wichita Falls as being fully as uncouth and uncivilized as the hateful picture indicates.

Following is the letter sent Wednesday to the publishers of Hearsts':

"Dear Sir: When a man's temper reaches the boiling point he should, perhaps, count 100 before expressing himself. But I have little time for mathematics this morning, and must therefore express a heated opinion of Rex Beach's new novel, 'Flowing Gold,' opening in the May number of Hearst's.

"No greater insult to a progressive, modern American city than this story ever was typed. No more untruthful presentation of any community than Armand Both's picturization of Wichita Falls ever was sketched. The imaginations of these two men, unsupported by a single fact, not alone have hurt this city wherever Hearst's is circulated but have reflected immeasurable discredit upon the magazine among its many readers here.

"No man with an ounce of sense and even a superficial knowledge of the development of the oil industry in the Southwest would picture Wichita Falls as a city of disreputable appearing wooden shacks, their monotony broken by towering oil derricks. There has never been a single oil derrick in the city of Wichita Falls. The nearest derrick, a lonely wildcat test, is three miles outside the city limits while to find such a cluster of derricks as Both sketches it is necessary to travel fifteen miles to the northwest.

Wichita Falls is a city of more than 40,000 population. It has six banks with deposits approximately of $20,000,000; twelve-story modern office buildings of brick and tile and terra-cotta; splendid hotels, including one of the finest in the entire southwest representing an investment of $1,500,000; it has paved streets, modern ornamental street lights—in short every convenience and comfort possessed by any progressive American city. As I write this there are more than 800 Masons in convention in this city attending a grand conclave of the Knights Templar—and I think you will agree with me that Masonic bodies do not usually select a ragtown for their conventions.

"Beach would be wise, I feel sure, to confine his literary outbreaks to descriptions of the Yukon country with which, it is alleged, he is familiar. Civilization, it seems, is a closed book to him. It is bad enough when he and his illustrator deliberately malign a good American city; it is even worse when an author of his reputation weaves into a new novel such impossibilities as occur in 'Flowing Gold.'

"Calvin Gray so impresses the manager of the Ajax Hotel on first acquaintance that the latter offers to cash his check. Calvin Gray's personality no doubt is wonderful—but have you ever known a big hotel manager of the type described? Calvin Gray so impresses the hotel cigar stand girl that she sends a box of cigars to his suite, and he signs for them—doesn't Beach know that in modern hotels the cigar stand is a separate concession, and the president of the United States couldn't sign for tobacco? A prominent jeweler of Dallas is flattered by Gray's offer to take thousands of dollars worth of diamonds to a prospective customer in Ranger—do you think during the oil boom days in Texas, when crooks from the North and East flooded Texas cities, that any jeweler was ever this simple? Calvin Gray, posing as a hotel clerk, calls the city editor of a Dallas newspaper on the telephone and persuades that gullible person to send a reporter to the hotel to interview 'the famous Calvin Gray' even though the city editor never had heard of him; I have spent twelve years working for newspapers in various cities of the United States, including even Mr. Hearst's more or less well known New York Evening Journal, but I have yet to meet the city editor as silly as this man.

"And so on, ad infinitum. The name of Rex Beach may be potent in magazine circles. I doubt it not. He has sold a 'new novel' because his name is Rex Beach—but how Beach himself must be chuckling as he thinks of the gullibility of the editor of Hearst's who accepted this high-priced display of ignorance!"

SHOPS WILL CLOSE FOLLOWING REFUSAL TO ACCEPT WAGE REDUCTIONS

DALLAS, April 20.—Texas and Pacific railway shops at Marshall, Big Springs and Fort Worth will close the latter part of this week, according to orders by J. L. Lancaster, receiver for the road.

The shops take care of overhauling and heavy construction and employ about 1,200 men. Officials declared the retrenchment comes as a result of need for "further retrenchment" by the road.

Representatives of about 14,000 employes of the T. & P. yesterday handed officials of the railroad a formal refusal to accept wage reductions. The employes represented included all classes.

OFFICERS USE AIRPLANES TO DETECT LAW BREAKERS

DUNCAN, OKLA., April 20.—Airplanes are now being used by local police officers in searching for law violators.

Monday afternoon Officer Jack Moran employed a plane and flew over the suburbs of the city. He spotted two poker games, and when he got back to the station secured a high-powered automobile to visit the games.

Game No. 1 was raided in due form and the offenders taken into custody, but before the gang could be delivered to the jail, those sitting in the second game had gotten a tip and when Moran reached the spot the game had flown.

MEMBER INQUEST JURY SHOT BY CONSTABULARY

DUBLIN, April 20.—Timothy Sullivan, a prominent sinn feiner, was shot and killed by the constabulary this evening. He was called on to halt, but ran into a house in Douglas street and was shot as he was endeavoring to escape through the back of the house.

Sullivan was a juror at the inquest held over the body of the late Lord Mayor McCurtain, which rendered a verdict of wilful murder against Premier Lloyd George, Viscount French, lord lieutenant of Ireland; Ian MacPherson, former chief secretary for Ireland, and others.

DEAN PROHIBITION LAW IS AGAIN UPHELD

AUSTIN, April 20.—The Dean prohibition law was again held constitutional by the court of crfminal appeals today when an application for a writ of habeas corpus was denied Leopoul Garcia, who is seeking release from the penitentiary. Garcia was sentenced to one year from Williamson county for transportation of intoxicating liquors.

It is claimed in the application that the Dean law is unconstitutional in that the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution overrules it. It is also claimed that Garcia's rights as a citizen of the United States are being trampled upon by confinement under the Dean law. The application points out that the eighteenth amendment does not apply such drastic punishment as the Dean law and insofar as every citizen of Texas is likewise a citizen of the United States, the application of the Dean law in place of the federal statute is trodding upon the rights of the citizen of the nation. All claims were overruled by the court and Garcia's attempt to be released is lost.

3 DISTRICT JUDGES WILL HEAR ELECTION CONTEST SUIT MAY 2

JUDGE ED NAPIER OF 78th DISTRICT COURT ASKS OTHERS TO SIT WITH HIM.

ACTION IS APPROVED BY MEMBERS OF LOCAL BAR

Alleged Irregularities in City Election Will Be Thrashed Out in Open Court.

Judge Ed. Napier of the 78th district court has asked Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th and Judge Finley Weldon of the 30th district court to sit with him on the bench on May 2 when the case of George Hodgins vs. W. G. Bralley will be called for trial. The two district judges have consented to sit with Judge Napier.

The suit was filed in the 78th district court Monday afternoon by Attorney B. D. Sartin, counsel for the plaintiff. The action of Judge Napier in asking the other judges to sit with him on the case has received the hearty approval of various members of the local bar association.

Setting of the case for trial was made Wednesday morning by Judge Napier after he had received the promise of the other judges to sit with him on the case.

The contended irregularities and illegalities at the court house box will be thrashed out at the trial, and it is believed by those interested in the case that the city hall box will also be brought into the suit in view of the answer made by Mr. Bralley to the statement of Mr. Hodgins' intention which was served on the former on April 12.

REPEAL OF LAW BASIS FOR DISMISSING CASE

AUSTIN, April 20.—The repeal of the minimum wage law by the thirty-seventh legislature was the base for dismissing the case of J. Poye, convicted in Harris county for alleged violation of this law. The case was ordered dismissed by the court of criminal appeals today.

The legislature repealed the old law and passed a new one to replace it but Governor Neff killed the legislation by vetoing the new minimum wage bill and approving the repeal of the old one.

PRIEST ARRESTED FOR PRAYER FOR KING CHARLES

KOSSICE, CZECHO - SLOVAKIA, April 19.—A Catholic priest named Fulop, presiding over a parish in a nearby village, has been arrested because, it is alleged, he recited a prayer for former King Charles during high mass last Sunday. The priest is said to have told the police that he read the prayer through absent mindedness, as he was urging an old breviary which dated back to the monarchial days.

APPEALS COURT AFFIRMS SENTENCE IN SWINDLING CASE

AUSTIN, April 20.—The ten-year-sentence of John Gerber, convicted in the Tarrant county court of being an accomplice in the Norfleet $45,000 swindling case, was affirmed by the court of criminal appeals today. J. F. Norfleet of Hale county was swindled out of the money by several men claiming to be representatives of the Dallas and Fort Worth cotton exchanges. Gerber was apprehended in California through the aid of one S. N. Cathey, who had noticed the Norfleet case in the papers.

TRAIN HITS AUTO; THREE KILLED AT CHILLICOTHE

CHILLICOTHE, TEXAS, April 20.—Three members of the J. S. Mudd family were killed Tuesday afternoon when a north bound Fort Worth and Denver City passenger train crashed into a touring car near here.

The automobile, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mudd and W. S. Mudd, was hurled to one side when the collision occurred and the occupants thrown out. Mr. and Mrs. Mudd were instantly killed and W. S. Mudd died of his injuries shortly after the accident.

FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES THREATENED IN GREECE

ATHENS, April 19.—The exchange market was in a state of palnc this morning, the drachma selling at almost sixteen to the dollar. It is understood that the government will make a large issue of paper money to relieve the financial stringency and to cover the cost of the military campaign in Anatolia, this issue to be covered by a loan of 500,000,000 drachmas from the national bank.

BANK BUILDING AT BYERS BURNS WITH LOSS OF $40,000

BYERS, TEXAS, April 20.—Fire starting after an explosion in the Auto Supply House early today destroyed the First National bank here as well as the supply house. Loss is estimated at $40,000.

Two buildings were destroyed. The bank owned its own building and George Byers owned the building occupied by the automobile accessory business. This business was owned by R. V. Morton of Wichita Falls.

The explosion occured shortly after three o'clock Wednesday morning and those who rushed to the scene found the buildings, both brick structures in flames. It is believed by some that the explosion resulted from an effort to rob the bank although there is no other evidence to support this theory. There was a tailor shop in the rear of the bank but it is not believed the explosion was from gasoline. One wall of the bank building was blown out by the explosion.

The ruins had not cooled sufficiently at noon to permit an examination of the bank vault but it is believed it was untouched.

The bank was transacting its usual business today in George Byers' office.

HEAVY MOVEMENT TEXAS CATTLE TO NORTHERN RANGES

FORT WORTH, April 20.—Heavy movement of Texas cattle to northern pastures was announced today in the weekly report from range inspectors to the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' associations. Complaints of damage to grass and weeds by the belated cold waves were contained in the reports. Shipments to market remain light.

A Banquet That Was Almost a Tragedy

"Three years ago at a banquet I was stricken with acute indigestion. Two doctors worked over me for an hour before I came to. I had had severe colic attacks before, but nothing like that. No doctors or medicine gave me permanent help until a friend, who was at the banquet, advised me to take a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which I did with wonderful results." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. NATIONAL COTTON MARKETING AGENCY TO BE CREATED

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., April 20.—The bulk of the coming cotton crop of the United States will be marketed by a national sales agency, owned and controlled by the cotton growers.

This was assured when representatives of eight cotton growers' co-operative societies at a meeting here decided to adopt a plan calling for organization of such an agency. The new organization is to be known as the American Cotton Growers' Exchange.

Those who approved the pact were Charles Morgan and W. S. Stevens, of the Pima Cotton Growers association, Arizona; Bradford Knopp, M. T. Payne, L. W. Osborne, H. T. Brown, Conway Scott and Henry Stroup for the Arkansas Cotton Growers association; O. E. Tate and Victor Victor for the Georgia Cotton Growers association; C. O. Moser, manager of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Growers Co-operative Marketing association; Aaron Sapiro for North Carolina; Carl Williams, C. L. Stealey, Walter Colbert and George Bishop for the Oklahoma Cotton Growers association.

Headquarters of the new organization is to be at Dallas, Texas.

Under the terms of the pact the exchange will inspect, grade, classify, transport and sell the crops of its member associations direct to the spinners, if possible. The affairs of the exchange are to be administered by one trustee from each state organization, which ratifies the plan.

Carl Williams of the Oklahoma association, which called the conference, said the eight associations represented 81 per cent of the cotton grown in the United States. If the South Carolina organization also adopts the plan 84 per cent will then be controlled by the national sales body, Williams said.

TO CONFER OVER TRANSFER OF ROWAN TO ABILENE

DALLAS, April 20.—The question of date for the transfer of Albert L. Rowan, convicted conspirator in the $2,000,000 postoffice robbery at Dallas January 14, to Abilene, on change of venue for trial on a charge of murder, will be taken up at a conference today between District Judge Pippen and District Attorney Hughes.

A message received by Dallas officers yesterday from District Attorney Cunningham of Abilene said "please have Rowan sent here at once." Judge Pippen said today he did not "want to send Rowan to a jail that is not as safe as the one here."

Rowan's trial at Abilene for killing Postal Clerk G. W. Street is set for early in May.

BACKING CAR RUNS OVER AND KILLS YOUNG GIRL

FORT WORTH, April 30.—Maurine Davis, 15,-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Davis, was killed late Tuesday afternoon when a car being taken out of a private garage was backed accidentally over her. The child's father was in the car, which was being driven by Elmer Mosely.

UNIONS POINT OUT WASTES ON RAILROADS AGGREGATING NEAR A BILLION DOLLARS ANNUALLY

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Wastes amounting to a billion dollars annually were laid to managerial inefficiency on American railroads in a detailed exhibit placed before the railroad labor board today as part of union labor's fight against a reduction of wages. Recoverable wastes were estimated by the employes at $578,500,000 a year and other wastes, impossible of estimation, would equal that amount, it was declared.

The employes point to alleged wastes in the present railroad administrations and maintain that if those deficiencies and defaults in management were redressed and repaired there would remain no reason for attempting to reduce wages. As a method of correcting wasteful methods and increasing the efficiency of employes, the exhibit advocated co-operative effort between management and workers and added that this co-operation could best be obtained through the medium of uniform agreements reached by collective bargaining.

Recoverable and easily estimated wastes were divided by the exhibit under nine heads having to do largely with construction and care of locomotives and shop machinery, cost accounting and labor turnover.

The wastes which the unions said could not be estimated in terms of money included a variety of subjects ranging from defective train equipment and tracks through allegations of incompetent and extravagant management.

In the last class emphasis was laid upon publicity and advertising and on what the unions thought were unnecessary legal expenses. Such expenditures, it was claimed, have served to increase and have been charged wrongfully to operating costs.

It was also charged that much of the defective equipment which the managements of the road are using as an argument for the need of decreased wage costs, could have been avoided if the roads had declared less liberal dividends and use a proper proportion of their earnings to establish replacements funds.

Tabulation of Wastes.

The following tabulation represents those wastes estimated by the unions' witnesses and for which authorities are quoted, giving specifications and explanations as set forth in the body of the exhibit.

"1.—Modernizing locomotives. Gross reparable deficiencies in the tractive power of the railways is pointed out and it is shown that by systematic application to the locomotives of demonstrated improvemens such as superheaters, brick arches, mechanical stokers and feed water heaters, there would result an actual saving of at least $272,500,000.

"2.—Locomotive operation. The magnitude of the railways' coal bill is considered and certain of the larger wastes calculated, and it is concluded that by use of better methods of coal purchase, coal inspection, careful receipts and efficient firing of the locomotives an annual saving could be effected of at least $50,000,000.

"3.—Shop Organization Improvements. The sad and almost incredible inadequacy and out-of-date equipment of the railway shops is reviewed, the defenseless wastes considered and it is conservatively estimated that by a proper shop organization an annual saving could be effected of at least $17,000,000.

"4.—Power Plant Fuel Saving. The obsolete and wasteful condition of the power plants in the railway shops is considered and it is estimated that in this field the possible savings of fuel would by itself amount to an annual total of $10,000,000.

"5.—Water Consumption Savings. The railroad's expenditure in maintenance of way and structure is reviewed, the necessary wastes noted, and it is estimated that easily attainable savings in the consumption of water alone would amount annually to $12,600,000.

"6.—Service of Supply Savings. The expenditure of the railways for supplies has been inquired into and the avoidable losses surveyed, and it is estimated that the wastes and abuses amount annually to not less than $75,000,000.

"7.—Shop cost accounting savings. Attention has been given to the matter of uniform railroad statistics and the use of efficient methods of cost accounting only, an annual saving would be feasible to the amount of $10,900,000.

"8.—Labor turnover savings. The industrial losses due to unnecessary labor turnover and to inadequate training of personnel has been reviewed, and it is estimated that the avoidable wastes incident to labor turnover alone amounts to more than $40,000,000.

"9.—Los and damage savings. Inquiry has been made into the amount of the annual loss and damage account of the railways, and into the preventable causes of such losses, and it is estimated that an annual savings might be effected to the amount of $90,000,000.

"Total—It will be noted that the avoidable wastes here listed are but partially represented in the accompanying money estimates, nevertheless, the sum of these incomplete figures represent an annual unnecessary waste of $578,500,000."

Other Wastes.

Further alleged large-scale wastes, losses and inefficiencies in the equipment and operation of the railways, difficult of approximate estimate in dollars and cents, are given in the exhibits as follows:

"1.—Wastes due to remediable defects in car equipment.

"1.—Wastes due to defective power equipment.

"3.—Wastes through inefficient handling of tractive power.

"4.—Wastes due to inadequate engine terminals.

"5.—Wastes due to defective maintenance of way. The American Railway Engineering Association, discussing losses through lack of standardization, states that 'over 50 different sections of rail are achieved. If the two great elements of railroad operation, management and workers, are to be forever at loggerheads, each pulling against the other, each mistrusting and condemning the other, each trying to wring concessions which the other is reluctant to grant, the outlook for eliminating the many wastes revealed in the foregoing pages is dark indeed.

"The inescapable condition of bringing about co-operation is found in the principle of collective bargaining. Jointly the two interests should agree on wages, hours and working conditions, these agreements should be consistently uniform and national in scope in order to allay sectional discontent. A spirit of co-operation for efficient service is absolutely dependent upon the conviction in the mind of the individual worker that his interests have been properly considered and safeguarded. Such consideration can be achieved only through scientific, uniform agreements, secured as a result of and safeguarded by collective bargaining. Coincident with such agreements must go the provision of opportunity for and the deliberate encouragement of the worker himself to assist the management in working out standards of increased efficiency."

PREMIERS MAY DISCUSS YAP MISUNDERSTANDING

LONDON, April 20.—The Daily Telegraph discussing the week-end meeting of Mr. Lloyd-George and M. Briand, says "the premiers may be able to find time to exchange views on other topics, one of which is the unfortunate misunderstanding regarding Yap."

"The supreme council will have to find a way out that will satisfy America's mandatory," continues the paper. "The Japanese naturally think that the supreme council ought to stand by its own decisions but they have no inducement to drift into a serious quarrel with the United States over this fragment of rock and sand in the eastern seas.

"France, with no direct interest in the matter and in strong sympathy with President Harding's attack on the League of Nations, will throw her weight on the side of the western republic. We shall probably use our influence with Japan and a satisfactory solution may be expected."

The paper further disclaims any British desire to use the Mesopotamia mandate to the detriment of the United States.

"We are not anxious to monopolize the world's oil supply, the most of which is still in North America," says the Telegraph, "nor shall we unfairly use the opportunities offered to us by our exceptional relations with the peoples of the Euphrates basin."

HAYS CALLS CONFERENCE POSTAL WORKERS UNION

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Postmaster General Hays today announced he had called a conference of the presidents and other officers of the seven unions connected with the postal service. The conference will meet tomorrow to discuss establishment of a welfare service for the postal system.

Hays made it plain that it was part of his plan to "humanize the postal service." The appointment of a welfare director for the department may be one of the results of the conference.

WHEN SCIENCE ENTERS THE MODERN KITCHEN

FORMER LUXURIES ARE OFTEN FOUND TO BE NECESSITIES

Science in industry has turned waste heaps into by-products; science in the sickroom has changed countless invalids to hale and hearty citizens; science in the office has cut down office forces and speeded up business operations. It is nothing unusual then that when science enters the kitchen some unusual results should be forthcoming.

Not the least result of the application of scientific research to food problems has been the recent discovery of Dr. McCollum of Johns Hopkins University that many foods hitherto considered entirely adequate to keep life in healthy bodies and promote the growth necessary to repair the wasting processes of life, do not contain the one vital element capable of doing these things.

He has given the name "vitamines" to this property of a few foods and has shown that it exists in a very considerable measure in butter-fat and the yolk of eggs. Butter-fat thus becomes a necessity of a well-balanced food program for every home. Offering as it does the calory content of foods many times its cost and in addition this invaluable property of promoting growth and health in children and adults, good creamery butter is one of the most important foods that the housekeeper must purchase and use.

CREAM PUFFS
(Eight Small Ones)

½ cup flour
¼ cup Mistletoe Butter
½ cup boiling water
2 eggs

Add Mistletoe Butter to the water and when dissolved and boiling add the flour all at once and stir vigorously. Remove from the fire, cool, then add the eggs, whole, and beat until very stiff. Drop this dough by spoonfuls on a buttered baking pan, two inches apart, and bake slowly in a moderate oven. They will rise to a point and be hollow inside. With a sharp knife open at one side and fill with a special filling or whipped cream.

BUTTER BRITTLES

¾ cup Mistletoe Butter
1 egg
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup sugar
3 cups flour
¼ cup milk

Cream butter, sugar and eggs. Sift flour and baking powder and add to this, alternately, with the milk. Season with lemon or vanilla, roll thin, sprinkle with sugar and bake very slowly until dried out—but browned. When cold they should be very brittle.

SCOTCH GREEN BEANS

String and snap young, tender beans. Cook in boiling water twenty minutes, or until tender. Drain. Add to each quart of cooked beans four tablespoons Mistletoe Butter and four tablespoons milk. Simmer for a few minutes, season with salt and serve.

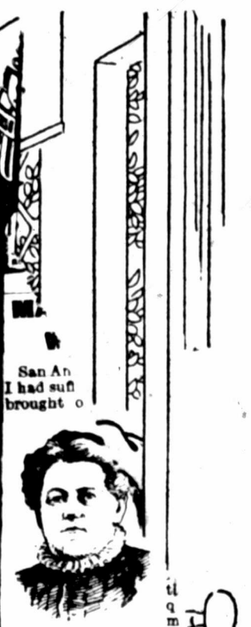

VINEGARETTE CAULIFLOWER

1 quart cauliflower blossoms (small sections)
½ cup Mistletoe Butter
2 tablespoons vinegar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Break the heads of cauliflower in small sections. Cook until tender, drain. Add Mistletoe Butter and vinegar, with nutmeg and salt to taste. Stir and steam ten minutes. Serve hot.

EMPHATIC PROTEST SENT BY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Picture of "Wichita Falls" One That Would Not Be Flattering to An Overnight Old Field Town.

Headed by a picture of a cluster of shacks, huts and derricks that would be a libel on Bridgetown, but which is all too plainly labelled Wichita Falls, one Rex Beach, fictionist extraordinary, has a story starting in the current number of Hearst's Magazine that is causing Wichitans some indignation not entirely unmixed with amusement.

The story is entitled "Flowing Gold" and centers around Wichita Falls, Dallas and Ranger, all three of which communities are slandered rather impartially.

The crowning insult, however, is that handed to Wichita Falls. The picture that is only too plainly intended to represent the main street of this city would do Burkburnett a very great injustice and would be far from complimentary to any of the built-overnight communities in the oil field itself.

Wichita Falls is not going to let the libel pass unchallenged, and a vigorous protest sent Wednesday morning by C. F. Carter, publicity manager of the chamber of commerce, will be followed by such other action as is deemed appropriate.

It is stated that Mr. Beach spent but a few days here last summer, and there are sentences in his story that show a rather laughable unfamiliarity with the oil business. The story as a whole paints Wichita Falls as being fully as uncouth and uncivilized as the hateful picture indicates.

Following is the letter sent Wednesday to the publishers of Hearsts':

"Dear Sir: When a man's temper reaches the boiling point he should, perhaps, count 100 before expressing himself. But I have little time for mathematics this morning, and must therefore express a heated opinion of Rex Beach's new novel, 'Flowing Gold,' opening in the May number of Hearst's.

"No greater insult to a progressive, modern American city than this story ever was typed. No more untruthful presentation of any community than Armand Both's picturization of Wichita Falls ever was sketched. The imaginations of these two men, unsupported by a single fact, not alone have hurt this city, wherever Hearst's is circulated but have reflected immeasurable discredit upon the magazine among its many readers here.

"No man with an ounce of sense and even a superficial knowledge of the development of the oil industry in the Southwest would picture Wichita Falls as a city of disreputable appearing wooden shacks, their monotony broken by towering oil derricks. There has never been a single oil derrick in the city of Wichita Falls. The nearest derrick, a lonely wildcat test, is three miles outside the city limits, while to find such a cluster of derricks as Both sketches it is necessary to travel fifteen miles to the northwest.

Wichita Falls is a city of more than 40,000 population. It has six banks with deposits approximately of $30,000,000; twelve-story modern office buildings of brick and tile and terra-cotta; splendid hotels, including one of the finest in the entire southwest representing an investment of $1,500,000; it has paved streets, modern ornamental street lights—in short every convenience and comfort possessed by any progressive American city. As I write this there are more than 800 Masons in convention in this city attending a grand conclave of the Knights Templar—and I think you will agree with me that Masonic bodies do not usually select a ragtown for their conventions.

"Beach would be wise, I feel sure, to confine his literary outbreaks to descriptions of the Yukon country with which, it is alleged, he is familiar. Civilization, it seems, is a closed book to him. It is bad enough when he and his illustrator deliberately malign a good American city; it is even worse when an author of his reputation weaves into a new novel such impossibilities as occur in 'Flowing Gold.'

"Calvin Gray so impresses the manager of the Ajax Hotel on first acquaintance that the latter offers to cash his check. Calvin Gray's personality no doubt is wonderful—but have you ever known a big hotel manager of the type described? Calvin Gray so impresses the hotel cigar stand girl that she sends a box of cigars to his suite, and he signs for them—doesn't Beach know that in modern hotels the cigar stand is a separate concession, and the president of the United States couldn't sign for tobacco? A prominent jeweler of Dallas is flattered by Gray's offer to take thousands of dollars worth of diamonds to a prospective customer in Ranger—do you think during the oil boom days in Texas, when crooks from the North and East flooded Texas cities, that any jeweler was ever this simple? Calvin Gray, posing as a hotel clerk, calls the city editor of a Dallas newspaper on the telephone and persuades that gullible person to send a reporter to the hotel to interview 'the famous Calvin Gray' even though the city editor never had heard of him; I have spent twelve years working for newspapers in various cities of the United States, including even Mr. Hearst's more or less well known New York Evening Journal, but I have yet to meet the city editor as silly as this man.

"And so on, ad infinitum. The name of Rex Beach may be potent in magazine circles. I doubt it not. He has sold a 'new novel' because his name is Rex Beach—but how Beach himself must be chuckling as he thinks of the gullibility of the editor of Hearst's who accepted this high-priced display of ignorance!"

SHOPS WILL CLOSE FOLLOWING REFUSAL TO ACCEPT WAGE REDUCTIONS

DALLAS, April 20.—Texas and Pacific railway shops at Marshall, Big Springs and Fort Worth will close the latter part of this week, according to orders by J. L. Lancaster, receiver for the road.

The shops take care of overhauling and heavy construction and employ about 1,200 men. Officials declared the retrenchment comes as a result of need for "further retrenchment" by the road.

Representatives of about 14,000 employes of the T. & P. yesterday handed officials of the railroad a formal refusal to accept wage reductions. The employes represented included all classes.

OFFICERS USE AIRPLANES TO DETECT LAW BREAKERS

DUNCAN, OKLA., April 20.—Airplanes are now being used by local police officers in searching for law violators.

Monday afternoon Officer Jack Moran employed a plane and flew over the suburbs of the city. He spotted two poker games, and when he got back to the station secured a high-powered automobile to visit the games.

Game No. 1 was raided in due form and the offenders taken into custody, but before the gang could be delivered to the jail, those sitting in the second game had gotten a tip and when Moran reached the spot the game had flown.

MEMBER INQUEST JURY SHOT BY CONSTABULARY

DUBLIN, April 20.—Timothy Sullivan, a prominent sinn feiner, was shot and killed by the constabulary this evening. He was called on to halt, but ran into a house in Douglas street and was shot as he was endeavoring to escape through the back of the house.

Sullivan was a juror at the inquest held over the body of the late Lord Mayor McCurtain, which rendered a verdict of willful murder against Premier Lloyd George, Viscount French, lord lieutenant of Ireland; Ian MacPherson, former chief secretary for Ireland, and others.

DEAN PROHIBITION LAW IS AGAIN UPHELD

AUSTIN, April 20.—The Dean prohibition law was again held constitutional by the court of criminal appeals today when an application for a writ of habeas corpus was denied Leopoul Garcia, who is seeking release from the penitentiary. Garcia was sentenced to one year from Williamson county for transportation of intoxicating liquors.

It is claimed in the application that the Dean law is unconstitutional in that the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution overrules it. It is also claimed that Garcia's rights as a citizen of the United States are being trampled upon by confinement under the Dean law. The application points out that the eighteenth amendment does not apply such drastic punishment as the Dean law and insofar as every citizen of Texas is likewise a citizen of the United States, the application of the Dean law in place of the federal statute is trodding upon the rights of the citizen of the nation. All claims were overruled by the court and Garcia's attempt to be released is lost.

A Banquet That Was Almost a Tragedy

"Three years ago at a banquet I was stricken with acute indigestion. Two doctors worked over me for an hour before I came to. I had had severe colic attacks before, but nothing like that. No doctors or medicine gave me permanent help until a friend, who was at the banquet, advised me to take a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which I did with wonderful results." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. 3 DISTRICT JUDGES WILL HEAR ELECTION CONTEST SUIT MAY 2

JUDGE ED NAPIER OF 78th DISTRICT COURT ASKS OTHERS TO SIT WITH HIM.

Judge Ed. Napier of the 78th district court has asked Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th and Judge Finley Weldon of the 30th district court to sit with him on the bench on May 2 when the case of George Hodgins vs. W. G. Bralley will be called for trial. The two district judges have consented to sit with Judge Napier.

The suit was filed in the 78th district court Monday afternoon by Attorney B. D. Sartin, counsel for the plaintiff. The action of Judge Napier in asking the other judges to sit with him on the case has received the hearty approval of various members of the local bar association.

Setting of the case for trial was made Wednesday morning by Judge Napier after he had received the promise of the other judges to sit with him on the case.

The contended irregularities and illegalities at the court house box will be thrashed out at the trial, and it is believed by those interested in the case that the city hall box will also be brought into the suit in view of the answer made by Mr. Bralley to the statement of Mr. Hodgins' intention which was served on the former on April 12.

REPEAL OF LAW BASIS FOR DISMISSING CASE

AUSTIN, April 20.—The repeal of the minimum wage law by the thirty-seventh legislature was the base for dismissing the case of J. Poye, convicted in Harris county for alleged violation of this law. The case was ordered dismissed by the court of criminal appeals today.

The legislature repealed the old law and passed a new one to replace it but Governor Neff killed the legislation by vetoing the new minimum wage bill and approving the repeal of the old one.

PRIEST ARRESTED FOR PRAYER FOR KING CHARLES

KOSSICE, CZECHO-SLOVAKIA, April 19.—A Catholic priest named Fulop, presiding over a parish in a nearby village, has been arrested because, it is alleged, he recited a prayer for former King Charles during high mass last Sunday. The priest is said to have told the police that he read the prayer through absent mindedness, as he was urging an old breviary which dated back to the monarchial days.

APPEALS COURT AFFIRMS SENTENCE IN SWINDLING CASE

AUSTIN, April 20.—The ten-year-sentence of John Gerber, convicted in the Tarrant county court of being an accomplice in the Norfleet $45,000 swindling case, was affirmed by the court of criminal appeals today. J. F. Norfleet of Hale county was swindled out of the money by several men claiming to be representatives of the Dallas and Fort Worth cotton exchanges. Gerber was apprehended in California through the aid of one S. N. Cathey, who had noticed the Norfleet case in the papers.

TRAIN HITS AUTO; THREE KILLED AT CHILLICOTHE

CHILLICOTHE, TEXAS, April 20.—Three members of the J. S. Mudd family were killed Tuesday afternoon when a north bound Fort Worth and Denver City passenger train crashed into a touring car near here.

The automobile, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mudd and W. S. Mudd, was hurled to one side when the collision occurred and the occupants thrown out. Mr. and Mrs. Mudd were instantly killed and W. S. Mudd died of his injuries shortly after the accident.

FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES THREATENED IN GREECE

ATHENS, April 19.—The exchange market was in a state of panic this morning, the drachma selling at almost sixteen to the dollar. It is understood that the government will make a large issue of paper money to relieve the financial stringency and to cover the cost of the military campaign in Anatolia, this issue to be covered by a loan of 500,000,000 drachmas from the national bank.

BANK BUILDING AT BYERS BURNS WITH LOSS OF $40,000

BYERS, TEXAS, April 20.—Fire starting after an explosion in the Auto Supply House early today destroyed the First National bank here as well as the supply house. Loss is estimated at $40,000.

Two buildings were destroyed. The bank owned its own building and George Byers owned the building occupied by the automobile accessory business. This business was owned by R. V. Morton of Wichita Falls.

The explosion occured shortly after three o'clock Wednesday morning and those who rushed to the scene found the buildings, both brick structures in flames. It is believed by some that the explosion resulted from an effort to rob the bank although there is no other evidence to support this theory. There was a tailor shop in the rear of the bank but it is not believed the explosion was from gasoline. One wall of the bank building was blown out by the explosion.

The ruins had not cooled sufficiently at noon to permit an examination of the bank vault but it is believed it was untouched.

The bank was transacting its usual business today in George Byers' office.

HEAVY MOVEMENT TEXAS CATTLE TO NORTHERN RANGES

FORT WORTH, April 20.—Heavy movement of Texas cattle to northern pastures was announced today in the weekly report from range inspectors to the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' associations. Complaints of damage to grass and weeds by the belated cold waves were contained in the reports. Shipments to market remain light.

NATIONAL COTTON MARKETING AGENCY TO BE CREATED

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., April 20.—The bulk of the coming cotton crop of the United States will be marketed by a national sales agency, owned and controlled by the cotton growers.

This was assured when representatives of eight cotton growers' co-operative societies at a meeting here decided to adopt a plan calling for organization of such an agency. The new organization is to be known as the American Cotton Growers' Exchange.

Those who approved the pact were Charles Morgan and W. S. Stevens, of the Pima Cotton Growers association, Arizona; Bradford Knopp, M. T. Payne, L. W. Osborne, H. T. Brown, Conway Scott and Henry Stroup for the Arkansas Cotton Growers association; O. E. Tate and Victor Victor for the Georgia Cotton Growers association; C. O. Moser, manager of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Growers Co-operative Marketing association; Aaron Sapiro for North Carolina; Carl Williams, C. L. Stealey, Walter Colbert and George Bishop for the Oklahoma Cotton Growers association.

Headquarters of the new organization is to be at Dallas, Texas.

Under the terms of the pact the exchange will inspect, grade, classify, transport and sell the crops of its member associations direct to the spinners, if possible. The affairs of the exchange are to be administered by one trustee from each state organization, which ratifies the plan.

Carl Williams of the Oklahoma association, which called the conference, said the eight associations represented 67 per cent of the cotton grown in the United States. If the South Carolina organization also adopts the plan 84 per cent will then be controlled by the national sales body, Williams said.

TO CONFER OVER TRANSFER OF ROWAN TO ABILENE

DALLAS, April 20.—The question of date for the transfer of Albert L. Rowan, convicted conspirator in the $2,000,000 postoffice robbery at Dallas January 14, to Abilene, on change of venue for trial on a charge of murder, will be taken up at a conference today between District Judge Pippen and District Attorney Hughes.

A message received by Dallas officers yesterday from District Attorney Cunningham of Abilene said "please have Rowan sent here at once." Judge Pippen said today he did not "want to send Rowan to a jail that is not as safe as the one here."

Rowan's trial at Abilene for killing Postal Clerk G. W. Street is set for early in May.

BACKING CAR RUNS OVER AND KILLS YOUNG GIRL

FORT WORTH, April 20.—Maurine Davis, 15-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Davis, was killed late Tuesday afternoon when a car being taken out of a private garage was backed accidentally over her. The child's father was in the car, which was being driven by Elmer Mosely.

UNIONS POINT OUT WASTES ON RAILROADS AGGREGATING NEAR A BILLION DOLLARS ANNUALLY

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Wastes amounting to a billion dollars annually were laid to managerial inefficiency on American railroads in a detailed exhibit placed before the railroad labor board today as part of union labor's fight against a reduction of wages. Recoverable wastes were estimated by the employes at $578,500,000 a year and other wastes, impossible of estimation, would equal that amount, it was declared.

The employes point to alleged wastes in the present railroad administrations and maintain that if those deficiencies and defaults in management were redressed and repaired there would remain no reason for attempting to reduce wages. As a method of correcting wasteful methods and increasing the efficiency of employes, the exhibit advocated co-operative effort between management and workers and added that this co-operation could best be obtained through the medium of uniform agreements reached by collective bargaining.

Recoverable and easily estimated wastes were divided by the exhibit under nine heads having to do largely with construction and care of locomotives and shop machinery, cost accounting and labor turnover.

The wastes which the unions said could not be estimated in terms of money included a variety of subjects ranging from defective train equipment and tracks through allegations of incompetent and extravagant management.

In the last-class emphasis was laid upon publicity and advertising and on what the unions thought were unnecessary legal expenses. Such expenditures, it was claimed, have served to increase and have been charged wrongfully to operating costs.

It was also charged that much of the defective equipment which the managements of the road are using as an argument for the need of decreased wage costs, could have been avoided if the roads had declared less liberal dividends and use a proper proportion of their earnings to establish replacements funds.

Tabulation of Wastes.

The following tabulation represents those wastes estimated by the unions' witnesses and for which authorities are quoted, giving specifications and explanations as set forth in the body of the exhibit.

"1.—Modernizing Locomotives. Gross reparable deficiencies in the tractive power of the railways is pointed out and it is shown that by systematic application to the locomotives of demonstrated improvemens such as superheaters, brick arches, mechanical stokers and feed water heaters, there would result an actual saving of at least $272,500,000.

"2.—Locomotive operation. The magnitude of the railways' coal bill is considered and certain of the larger wastes calculated, and it is concluded that by use of better methods of coal purchase, coal inspection, careful receipts and efficient firing of the locomotives an annual saving could be effected of at least $50,000,000.

"3.—Shop Organization Improvements. The sad and almost incredible inadequacy and out-of-date equipment of the railway shops is reviewed, the defenseless wastes considered and it is conservatively estimated that by a proper shop organization an annual saving could be effected of at least $17,000,000.

"4.—Power Plant Fuel Saving. The obsolete and wasteful condition of the power plants in the railway shops is considered and it is estimated that in this field the possible savings of fuel would by itself amount to an annual total of $10,000,000.

"5.—Water Consumption Savings. The railroad's expenditure in maintenance of way and structure is reviewed, the necessary wastes noted, and it is estimated that easily attainable savings in the consumption of water alone would amount annually to $12,600,000.

"6.—Service of Supply Savings. The expenditure of the railways for supplies has been inquired into and the avoidable losses surveyed, and it is estimated that the wastes and abuses amount annually to not less than $75,000,000.

"7.—Shop cost accounting savings. Attention has been given to the matter of uniform railroad statistics and the use of efficient methods of cost accounting only, an annual saving would be feasible to the amount of $10,900,000.

"8.—Labor turnover savings. The industrial losses due to unnecessary labor turnover and to inadequate training of personnel has been reviewed, and it is estimated that the avoidable wastes incident to labor turnover alone amounts to more than $40,000,000.

"9.—Los and damage savings. Inquiry has been made into the amount of the annual loss and damage account of the railways, and into the preventable causes of such losses, and it is estimated that an annual savings might be effected to the amount of $90,000,000.

"Total—It will be noted that the avoidable wastes here listed are but partially represented in the accompanying money estimates, nevertheless, the sum of these incomplete figures represent an annual unnecessary waste of $578,500,000."

Other Wastes.

Further alleged large-scale wastes, losses and inefficiencies in the equipment and operation of the railways, difficult of approximate estimate in dollars and cents, are given in the exhibits as follows:

"1.—Wastes due to remediable defects in car equipment.

"1.—Wastes due to defective power equipment.

"3.—Wastes through inefficient handling of tractive power.

"4.—Wastes due to inadequate engine terminals.

"5.—Wastes due to defective maintenance of way. The American Railway Engineering Association, discussing losses through lack of standardization, states that 'over 50 different sections of rail are achieved. If the two great elements of railroad operation, management and workers, are to be forever at loggerheads, each pulling against the other, each mistrusting and condemning the other, each trying to wring concessions which the other is reluctant to grant, the outlook for eliminating the many wastes revealed in the foregoing pages is dark indeed.

"The inescapable condition of bringing about co-operation is found in the principle of collective bargaining. Jointly the two interests should agree on wages, hours and working conditions, these agreements should be consistently uniform and national in scope in order to allay sectional discontent. A spirit of co-operation for efficient service is absolutely dependent upon the conviction in the mind of the individual worker that his interests have been properly considered and safeguarded. Such consideration can be achieved only through scientific, uniform agreements, secured as a result of and safeguarded by collective bargaining. Coincident with such agreements must go the provision of opportunity for and the deliberate encouragement of the worker himself to assist the management in working out standards of increased efficiency."

PREMIERS MAY DISCUSS YAP MISUNDERSTANDING

LONDON, April 20.—The Daily Telegraph discussing the week-end meeting of Mr. Lloyd-George and M. Briand, says "the premiers may be able to find time to exchange views on other topics, one of which is the unfortunate misunderstanding regarding Yap."

"The supreme council will have to find a way out that will satisfy America's mandatory," continues the paper. "The Japanese naturally think that the supreme council ought to stand by its own decisions but they have no inducement to drift into a serious quarrel with the United States over this fragment of rock and sand in the eastern seas.

"France, with no direct interest in the matter and in strong sympathy with President Harding's attack on the League of Nations, will throw her weight on the side of the western republic. We shall probably use our influence with Japan and a satisfactory solution may be expected."

The paper further disclaims any British desire to use the Mesopotamia mandate to the detriment of the United States.

"We are not anxious to monopolize the world's oil supply, the most of which is still in North America," says the Telegraph, "nor shall we unfairly use the opportunities offered to us by our exceptional relations with the peoples of the Euphrates basin."

HAYS CALLS CONFERENCE POSTAL WORKERS UNION

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Postmaster General Hays today announced he had called a conference of the presidents and other officers of the seven unions connected with the postal service. The conference will meet tomorrow to discuss establishment of a welfare service for the postal system.

Hays made it plain that it was part of his plan to "humanize the postal service." The appointment of a welfare director for the department may be one of the results of the conference.

35-YEAR SENTENCE FOR WALLACE SMITH AFFIRMED

WHEN SCIENCE ENTERS THE MODERN KITCHEN

FORMER LUXURIES ARE OFTEN FOUND TO BE NECESSITIES

Science in industry has turned waste heaps into by-products; science in the sickroom has changed countless invalids to hale and hearty citizens; science in the office has cut down office forces and speeded up business operations. It is nothing unusual then that when science enters the kitchen some unusual results should be forthcoming.

Not the least result of the application of scientific research to food problems has been the recent discovery of Dr. McCollum of Johns Hopkins University that many foods hitherto considered entirely adequate to keep life in healthy bodies and promote the growth necessary to repair the wasting processes of life, do not contain the one vital element capable of doing these things.

He has given the name "vitamines" to this property of a few foods and has shown that it exists in a very considerable measure in butter-fat and the yolk of eggs. Butter-fat thus becomes a necessity of a well-balanced food program for every home. Offering as it does the calory content of foods many times its cost and in addition this invaluable property of promoting growth and health in children and adults, good creamery butter is one of the most important foods that the housekeeper must purchase and use.

Beautiful Service For Chapman-Kiel Marriage Tuesday

William Cloud Chapman and Miss Gussie Kiel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kiel, were united in marriage Tuesday night at the Floral Heights Methodist church, Rev. W. L. Tittle performing the ceremony.

The wedding solemnization was one of the most beautiful that has ever been witnessed in Wichita Falls. The new church, which lends itself to most effective decoration, was a veritable bower of smilax and roses. Four slender white arches, twined in smilax and tied with white satin, marked the pathway of the bridal party down the left central aisle, which ended at a graceful smilax covered gateway. Inside the gate at the center the wedding bower was erected, smilax covered and hung with the beautiful white rose wedding bell. The rostrum railing was draped in white and covered with the evergreen, as was the pulpit, and masses of pink roses added to the beauty of the bridal background.

The church auditorium was crowded with friends of the two young people, whose marriage culminated, for the bride, one of the happiest and most attractive series of pre-nuptial entertainments it has been the fortune of a Wichita Falls bride-elect to be favored with for some months.

Before the entrance of the bridal party Mrs. E. L. Fulton, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. F. R. Collard, sang "O, Promise Me," and a moment after the close of the solo the processional music began—Lohengrin's wedding march. Entering to the strains of the music the little flower girls came, Mary C. Boone and Ona Belle Britain, strewing the white pathway with rose petals from silver arm baskets. The two little girls passed through the double gateway and held it open for the remainder of the bridal party then entering. Miss Mary Colquitt and Miss Florence Brown, bridesmaids, preceded the matron of honor, Mrs. Mark Moore, sister of the bride, and Miss Katherine Brothers, maid of honor, preceded the bride. The groomsmen, Julian McFall, and Dr. O. B. Kiel, best man, entered with the groom from the vestry room, accompanying him to the gateway to await the bride. Miss Kiel entered with her brother, Mr. T. R. Boone, immediately preceded by the little ring bearer, Pauline Jane Art. Rev. Mr. Tittle came in from the vestry room and awaited the bridal pair in the wedding bower, before which the remainder of the party grouped themselves for the ceremony. During the wedding service Mrs. Collard played the Spring Song very softly at the organ.

Reception at T. R. Boone's.

At the conclusion of the service the wedding party proceeded again down the aisle to the music of the Mendelssohn recessional, and a little later formed a house party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Boone for the reception of the bride. Between seventy-five and a hundred guests, among the close friends of the family, offered congratulations and enjoyed the very beautiful affair in the home. The wedding gifts were arranged for inspection on several tables in the living room, and were particularly handsome. Small tables were reserved for the pretty gifts with which Mrs. Chapman's friends showered her at several parties given in her honor before the wedding, and all were very much admired.

Punch was served during the evening from a bowl presided over by Mesdames George Eamich and Julian McFall, and the bride's cake, which centered the dining table, was cut and served with brick ice cream, moulded with pink hearts. Sweet peas and baskets of roses made the reception rooms very lovely, and the bridal party was augmented, for the house party, by Mesdames George Henderson, Leslie Humphrey, E. T. Duff, A. H. Britain, R. B. Randolph, Eamich and McFall and Luther Hoffman, and Miss Lalla Boone. Mrs. Henderson presided over the bride's book, which was her own gift to the bride-elect before the wedding.

The costumes of the wedding party were especially lovely. The bridesmaid group carried out the colors selected by the bride for her announcement party—pink, lavendar and pale blue, with bridal white for the bride and matron of honor. Mrs. Moore wore white georgette and carried an arm bouquet of pink Premier roses, and the little ring bearer, Pauline Jane Art, wore white lace over white silk. Miss Colquitt wore pale pink taffet with taffeta roses and silver trimming, a pink picture hat and silver slippers and stockings. Miss Brown wore the lavender, with silver accessories and a lavender picture hat. The maid of honor, Miss Brothers, wore pale blue taffeta rosies and silver touches and accessories and a black lace picture hat with tinted flowers in pale blue. The bridesmaids and maid of honor all carried beautiful arm bouquets of pink Columbia roses.

The bride was very lovely in white chantilly lace and taffeta, her veil caught with valley lillies. She carried an exquisite bridal bouquet of white roses, with the valley lilies showered to the hem of her dress.

The little flower girls wore taffeta and tulle frocks, Mary C. Boone in pale blue and Ona Belle Britain in pink. Mrs. Collard wore a handsome lavender taffeta, and Mrs. Fulton wore white lace and pink taffeta, with a pink rose covered hat.

Leave For New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman left after the reception at Mrs. Boone's for a two weeks' honeymoon visit in New Orleans. They will be at home to their friends in April at 1611 Buchanan street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Chapman left Tuesday night for New Orleans, where they will spend two weeks before returning here to make their home at 1611 Buchanan street.

When I had let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and had went out to milk the cow and her dotter, my father come out to the barn and looked to see how much I had fed each of them and the horse, and then he looked the horse all over and felt of his legs, and I bet if I had lost one of the hairs off of him or fed him a stalk of hay too much I would of got licked. That is the kind of a father I have got.

When we was eating breakfast my ant grabbed the last pancake right out from under my father's nose, so he did not have anything to do but to talk for a while and he asted my mother if we had better not take down the heater in the dining room, and she said not to be cause we would have some cold weather yet, and I was glad she said that because when my father says "we" he means me.

I am good enough to take down the heater and to exercise the horse and milk the dummed brutes but I am not good enough to wear long pants. I wish I was a girl. I bet girls do not have anything to worry them about.

When school was out we all went out to the pasture to see if the grass has started to grow yet but it hasn't. A cow would have to have a bill like a crane to get the grass there is out there. Then we went over in the woods to go to Mud Turtle pond, and we found a hole in the ground between a couple of trees that was full of water, and there was a whole lot of frog eggs in it.

When the bunch had all gone on I got a handful of frog eggs and hollered "Nibs!" and then I let go of them just before he turned around so that they got to him as soon as he turned and he did not see them in time to dodge, and his eyes was full and he hollered for someone to lead him to some water so Banty took hold of his arm and led him back to the hole full of frog eggs and he took up a double handful of them to wash his face with. The bunch rolled over on the ground they was laughing so hard.

Nibs wiped his eyes on his sleeve and went over to the creek and washed, and then kept going. That is what he got for keeping us out on the raft in the mud so long. I am like an Indien and an elephant put together for not forgetting the fella that does me dirt. Nibs' mouth was so wide open when they hit him that I bet he will have pollywogs on the brain. It was pretty slick of Banty too. I would not of thought of that.

Jonesy says that if the weather gets any warmer she is going to sprinkle Bunt with assafetty so he will smell better. I guess that is some kind of perfume. Bunt's father works in the stink factory and Bunt wears his old clothes.

LATEST STYLE

By LENORE

Crystal beads on black satin are very much the mode. The popular Renee of Paris uses them in diamond-shaped motifs to emphasize the hem of a very pleasing dinner dress, the silhouette of which is straight and the girdle placed a shade below the waistline.

A folded underlay of black chiffon protects the points of the skirt, a border of the beads ornaments the girdle, and a brilliant note of color is introduced in the king blue vest, visible to the extent of several inches in the shapely "V" neck.

Even for an older matron, nothing can be more conservative or in better taste—unless perhaps she prefer to substitute a combination of jet and steel beads, which is also smart.

MRS. P. P. LANGFORD HOSTESS IN HONOR OF MRS. L. T. HYATT

Mrs. P. P. Langford was hostess to the Ladies Aid society of the First Christian church Monday afternoon in honor of the birthday anniversary of her mother, Mrs. L. T. Hyatt, a faithful and much beloved member of the society.

The Langford home was beautifully decorated with carnations and roses, carrying out a colour scheme of pink and white, and more than a hundred guests assembled to wish Mrs. Hyatt many happy returns of the day, and to enjoy the pretty hospitality in which the hostess was assisted by her sister, Mrs. W. J. Donald.

The devotional was conducted by Mrs. William Danforth, and was followed by a short business session, after which, opening an informal entertainment program, Mrs. W. L. Parker sang a solo. Mrs. Parker was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. E. Shepherd. Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin paid a beautiful tribute to the honoree, expressing for her the love and appreciation of the society, and presenting her at the close with a pink tulle tied bouquet of calla lilies and snap-dragons. Mrs. Porter Oakes gave a reading which was written by Mr. Oakes in special compliment to the honoree, and which is given at the close of this report. Late in the afternoon the hostesses served a refreshment plate of brick ice cream of pink and white with maccaroons. Punch was served in the dining room.

The party Monday continued a custom established by Mrs. Langford some years ago for honoring Mrs. Hyatt's birthday, and the occasion is always a feature in the Aid society year.

The verses written to Mrs. Hyatt by Mr. Oakes, which were much complimented and appreciated, follow:

The voyage of life is a dangerous trip
Without mother love to guide the ship,
For its course is a deep unchartered sea
And from babyhood beach
The rough waves reach
To the distant shores of Eternity.

The sea of life is treacherous too,
With troubled waters 'neath skies of blue
And the ship of the soul is hard to sail
When the storm waves leap
O'er the perilous deep
And many there are who sink and fail.

But mother love is a sailing chart
That is written plain in each man's heart
And those who follow that chart aright,
With its course secure
To help endure
Will reach their haven and win their fight.

For mother's word is a compass true
Telling us when and what to do
And a mother's love is an anchor strong
That will never slip
That will hold the ship
And keep us safe from all sin and wrong.

And happy is he who can sail aright
With a mother's eyes as his beacon light
And a mother's arms as a haven of rest
And a mother's tears
To soften the years
And comfort awaiting on a mother's breast.

For storms may rage and waves may toss,
And life be threatened with ruin and loss
Yet a mother's love so freely given
And a mother's prayers
Will banish cares
And lead his soul straight home to Heaven.

OKLAHOMAN IS AFTER BYERS' ROPING TITLE IN COMING ROUND-UP

Montana Jack Ray, the wizard of the lariat from Bliss, Okla., arrived in the city Tuesday for the round-up, which will take place at the ball park April 28, 29 and 30.

"I came here for the express purpose of winning the title from Chester Byers," said Ray. "I would not say that Byers has refused to meet me but in some manner he never seems to be present at the contests I enter and this time I have waited until he entered and then sent in my entry. I am in the best roping form of my life and will have no excuses when the round-up is over if I fail to win, but I am confident that I will be the world's champion fancy roper when this contest is over." Ray also pulls the stunt of spinning three ropes at one time, one being attached to a wire around his body.

Leonard Stroud, Tommy Kirnan, Bob Calen and Little Joe Hetzer are also entrants in the fancy hoping event, which is expected to be one of the largest fields and greatest roping experts ever seen in one contes' in this section of the country.

The advance sale of season boxes opened at Miller's drug store, Kemp hotel cigar stand and the City National Bank cigar stand Tuesday, and the rush around these places show that this season's round-up will attract a much larger patronage than last year.

FLAGRANT VIOLATIONS OF FEATURE EXCISE TAX LAW SAYS REVENUE COLLECTOR

The attention of the public in general and of auto dealers in particular is called to a statement issued recently by Scott Reed, collector of internal revenue for the second reserve district of Texas. Flagrant violations of section 900 of the revenue act of 1918, which relates to the excise tax, has resulted in the following from the collector:

"The law and regulations governing this tax permit the manufacturer to reimbure himself for the amount of the tax, subject to certain restrictions, viz. by quoting the selling price of such articles and the tax on same in separate and exact amount, and where invoices or bills are rendered, by segregating these amounts on such invoices or bills to show plainly what portion of the total amount is charged for the article sold and what portion represents the tax.

"It has been noted that in many cases misrepresentations have been made by the dealers and wholesalers who do not qualify as manufacturers, that the taxes imposed by the 1918 revenue act apply to the price at which the manufactured goods are sold by such dealers and wholesalers and their customers have been required to pay these charges, thinking they represented the actual amount of tax collected and paid over to the government.

"Dealers who are guilty of such practice, not only are unfair to their patrons, but violate section 1319 of the revenue act of 1918, which imposes very severe penalties for such offenses. The regulations do not prohibit a dealer or wholesaler from reimbursing himself for the actual amount of the tax paid by the manufacturer to the government, but subjects himself to heavy penalties by collecting any amount represented to be a tax, in excess of the original amount of tax imposed on and paid over by the manufacturer.

"Persons and firms who have been guilty as outlined, should discontinue the practice at once, as deputy collectors are instructed to make detailed reports of all such cases that come under their observation, and prescribed penalties will be invariably assessed against all violators.

"This statement is given that the public may know that there is no direct sales tax on automobiles and accessories, but there is an excise tax on sales by the manufacturer and should be returned and paid by the manufacturer. This does not preclude manufacturers and dealers from inflating the list and sales prices on such articles to an amount that will cover the tax."

ALAMO MOTHERS COUNCIL WILL MEET DEMAND FOR WEEKLY CHILDREN'S PLAY

The Home and School Council of Mothers of the Alamo school will present a weekly, instead of a bi-weekly, morning matinee for the children of Wichita at the Strand theater, according to an announcement Wednesday afternoon from Mrs. L. R. Buchanan, president of the council.

Saturday morning's matinee at the Strand, when hundreds of children who came to "Cinderella" were turned away, crystallized the sentiment among the council mothers for the weekly matinee, and arrangments have been closed with a Dallas film company for the pictures. For Saturday of this week, however, the council, in co-operation with the Strand management, will present the "Last of the Mohicans," a picture running Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week at that house. This decision was reached when a committee from the council saw the picture and decided on it as specially suitable for the children's movie.

Two performances will be given each Saturday morning, beginning at 9:30, and the first picture to be presented from the Dallas film company, will be "The Heart of the Jungle." This is a record of Rainey's explorations in middle Africa and is said to be an exceptional picture.

DOWNTOW PAVING TO BE WATERPROOFED

Wooden Blocks to Be Treated by New Method, and Covered with Stone Coating.

The street department will start shortly on a course of treatment for the downtown wooden block paving, in the hope that this paving can be rendered waterproof and less "bulgy" in wet weather.

It is understood that this is the last chance of the wooden blocks to make good, and if the new treatment is not successful they will in all probability be removed and something more satisfactory put in.

The blocks will be treated with a water-proofing preparation, applied hot, and will then be covered with a thin coating of finely crushed stone as a wearing surface. Material and equipment for the treatment arrived this week, and the work will start in a day or two, the weather permitting.

Paving on Brook avenue was resumed Wednesday after being held up several days owing to lack of crushed rock; arrival of a delayed shipment made it possible to resume operations.

Work on the Austin avenue storm sewer is held up temporarily by a minor accident to some of the contractor's equipment.

HARDING ACCEUTS TWO INVITATIONS TO SPEAK

WASHINGTON, April 20.—President Harding's intention to make frequent trips from Washington for speeches in various parts of the country, was disclosed today by definite acceptance of two engagements and the word that he has others under consideration. While Harding at present contemplates no long trips such as former President Wilson made on several occasions, he does wish to get in touch with the people whenever he can get away from the press of business at the white house.

The two dates which Harding accepted today call for his appearance in Birmingham some time in the fall and a speech in New York City May 23. The Birmingham date will be on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of that city and in New York Harding will speak at a dinner commemorating the 125th anniversary of the founding of the New York commercial.

Another trip will be made on April 27, when the president will go to Hampton Roads on the Mayflower to review the fleet.

Other dates which the president is considering include the American Legion convention in Kansas City some time in September.

A delegation of veterans who served in the Rainbow Division in France was among those received by the president today.

JURY OF WOMEN LIKELY FOR TRIAL MRS. ORTHWEIN

CHICAGO, April 20.—A jury of women may be called to try Mrs. Cora Isabelle Orthwein, former St. Louis woman, for the murder of Herbert Zeigler, formerly manager of an automobile agency, Lloyd Heth, assistant state's attorney, said today, while appearing before Judge Francis Wilson to have a date set for the trial.

Judge Wilson set May 16 for the case with the understanding the attorneys for both sides would then agree on a definite date for opening of the trial.

Mr. Heth said he would confer with Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, when he returned to Chicago, and if the state's attorneys had no objections he would ask formally for a jury of women.

Mrs. Orthwein, divorced from Jack O'Connor, formerly manager of the St. Louis Browns and also a part owner, shot Zeigler in her apartment several months ago. He said he broke down the door when he failed to gain entrance with a key he carried.

VALUE OF HOTEL TO COMMUNITY SHOWN

H. J. Forester Is Principal Speaker at Wednesday's Luncheon of Ad Club.

The hotel is the spare room of the city, the place where its reputation for hospitality is made or unmade, and the best sort of city-building is that which strives first to see that suitable accommodations are provided for the traveling public. This was the theme of H. J. Foerster, Kemp hotel caterer, in a talk before the weekly luncheon of the Wichita Falls Ad club Wednesday.

"A good hotel may cost a community a great deal, but it can never be as expensive as is the lack of a good hotel," Mr. Foerster said. Pointing out the value to a city of having the good will of the traveling public, Mr. Foerster spoke also of the value of a hotel within the city itself in the way of providing a place for social and business gatherings and being a means to greater democracy.

Mr. Foerster's talk was the principal feature of the weekly luncheon. The club voted to recommend to all advertisers that Frank Kell's suggested move for "100,000 in 1930" be incorporated in a catch-line or slogan to appear regularly in advertising copy.

F. L. Duffy and Mrs. Weissmiller won the attendance prizes, the same being tickets for the performance of the Swiss Bell Ringers Thursday night, under auspices of the American legion.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY HONORING AMERICAN DEAD

CHERBOURG, FRANCE, April 20.—An impressive ceremony took place here today in honor of 2,800 American soldiers whose bodies have been assembled and are waiting transportation to the United States. Patriotic services saluted the caskets and a battalion of marines rendered honors. The president of the French war veterans lauded the heroism of the American soldier in an address. The American commander of the base responded fittingly.

NORTH TEXAS BUILDING IS TRADED FOR RANCH

DALLAS, April 20.—The six-story North Texas building here, known as Dallas' first skyscraper, has been traded for the 20,600-acre Green Valley ranch of R. W. O'Keefe of Plainview by the trustees of the J. R. Wilson estate, it was announced today.

The North Texas building is assessable for $200,000 and no "boot" was given on either side, it was said. The ranch is between Hereford and Canyon in the Panhandle. O'Keefe plans to move to Dallas. The new owners will stock the ranch with steers.

ANOTHER BEREAVEMENT IN FAMILY OF R. M. WALKER

Robert P. Walker, two months old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Walker, died at the family residence, 3001 Grant street, at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning. Death was due to natural causes.

The body will be shipped by the Merkle and Lunn Undertaking company late Wednesday afternoon to Bonita, Texas, for burial.

This is the second death in the Walker family in less than a month, an eight year old daughter having been killed on March 31 when a swing in which she was playing broke, allowing a heavy timber to crush her skull.

POKER GAME IN HOTEL IS RAIDED BY OFFICERS

A nice, friendly little game of draw poker which was in progress at a local hotel Wednesday noon was rudely interrupted when Chief Detective W. A. Boyd and Poundman J. O. Colvin swooped down on the house and captured the double quartet involved.

The entire eight were white. They were taken to the city hall where all plead guilty to gaming and paid fines of $15 each. This is the first poker game of any size broken up by the officers in several weeks.

STRANGERS IN NORTH TEXAS DON'T UNDERSTAND SENTIMENT OF THE STATE

AUSTIN, April 20.—"Texas one and indivisible," was the keynote of opening addresses at the opening session of the thirteenth annual convention of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas here today.

Mrs. Rebecca H. Fisher, state president, in her annual report pleaded for "the Texas of her youth more than four score and ten years ago," and asked that the "Texas flag be allowed to float forever over the south lands of Texas, fanned by the gulf breeze, over the east lands of Texas where the sighing of the pines make melody, over western plains of Texas, the home of the famed Texas cowboy, and over the northern part of Texas where the great wealth producing oil fields are bringing strangers to the state, who do not understand what Texas one and indivisible means to the pioneers."

DEATH MAKES TENTH FROM MELISSA CYCLONE

McKINNEY, TEXAS, April 20.—Elen Corma, 22-year-old Mexican, died here last night from injuries received in a tornado which practically demolished Melissa a week ago today. Her death brought the list of fatalities from the storm up to ten.

CONGRESSMEN FROM WEST ORGANIZE TO SOLVE JAP ISSUE

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Senators and representatives from eleven far western states perfected an organization today with a view to finding a common ground upon which they can work to solve the question of Japanese immigration.

Senator Johnson, republican, California, was made chairman of the organization and directed to appoint an executive committee composed of one senator and one representative from each of the eleven states—California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma and Colorado.

Senator Johnson announced that he would appoint the executive committee at an early date and begin efforts to unite other states with the work. He added that the problem was one of mutual interest demanding immediate attention.

The organization of senators and representatives was formed at a conference caled by the California delegation at which Senator Johnson and V. S. McClatchy of Sacramento, representing the Japanese Exclusion League of California, were the principal speakers. Mr. McClatchy declared that unless the Japanese were excluded they ultimately would swamp the white races.

In the house today Representative Baker, democrat, California, proposed an amendment to the constitution providing that no child "hereafter born in the United States of foreign parentage shall be eligible to citizenship in the United States unless both parents are eligible to become citizens of the United States."

SUMMERLIN MAKES PRELIMINARY REPORT

WASHINGTON, April 20.—George T. Summerlin, American charge d'affaires at Mexico City, who was summoned home recently to give Secretary Hughes first hand information about conditions in Mexico, arrived here today and made a preliminary report to the state department.

Official reports at the department indicate increasing disorder economically in Mexico, but they do not show that the many small uprisings which have been reported have assumed a dangerous aspect.

General Murguia, who is in revolt in northern Mexico, according to these reports has not succeeded in gathering any considerable force and similar lack of success has met the efforts of Lucio Blanco and Candido Aguilar, army officers under the Carranza administration, who have refused to give their allegiance to the present government.

STUDENTS COMPETE IN TICKET SALE FOR UNIVERSITY MINSTREL

If you do not buy a ticket to the University club's minstrel, to be given next week, it will be because you are just naturally hard-boiled, for there is small chance that you will not be asked to buy one.

Fourteen teams of ticket salesmen from the senior and junior high schools are to start out Wednesday afternoon in an effort to sell 5,000 tickets to the home talent affair. The team that wins will be tendered a banquet at the Kemp, by the University club. Incidentally, the minstrel is for the benefit of school athletics, so that the students have a double incentive.

The teams are commanded by fourteen women of the city, and these have aroused much enthusiasm and competitive spirit among the students, who are determined to canvass the city thoroughly.

City Briefs

Five special cars carrying Knights Templar were handled by local railroads Tuesday and Wednesday. A special car from Waco and one from Stamford came in Tuesday, while three from Fort Worth arrived early Wednesday.

A man giving the name of Jack Lawson was arrested Tuesday evening by Special Agent Fat Garrity of the M. K. & T. railroad on charges of theft of interstate commerce shipments from freight cars of the railway company. He was locked up in the city jail to await transfer to federal officials.

Dr. and Mrs. E. M. Hughes returned Tuesday from Mineral Wells, where they spent two weeks.

Construction crews started work on the new street car track bend at Ninth and Brook streets Tuesday, and passengers living in Floral Heights and the factory district are now compelled to change cars at Brook.

A representative of the United States Bureau of Mines is in Wichita Falls testing aviation gasoline refined by the Panhandle company, which has a contract with the government for supplying 700,000 gallons.

Report cards in the city schools were given out Tuesday.

Henry Wampler, deputy collector at the head of the local internal revenue office, is back at work after an absence of several days caused by a severe cold.

Nobody stole a car in broad daylight on Indiana avenue Tuesday morning. The machine which S. E. Wright reported as having been taken was that of O. C. Lloyd, who had loaned it to Mr. Wright, and who merely took possession of it again when he saw it downtown Tuesday. Search for the "missing" machine ended when Mr. Lloyd notified officers that it was in his possession.

The executive board of the women's B. M. & E. convention of Texas is in session this week at St. John's Baptist church. The sessions will close Sunday afternoon with a mass meeting at the Wichita theater at which Rev. E. Arlington Wilson, Ph.D., D.D., will speak on "World Wide Peace," says an announcement.

The baptismal service at the First Baptist church will take place next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, instead of Friday as previously reported. Approximately 150 who were converted during the services conducted by Dr. F. F. Brown will be baptised.

EXPRESSES THANKS TO LOCAL CITIZENS ON EVE OF RETIRING

Attorney R. E. Taylor, who has served the Wichita Falls division of the northern division of Texas of the United States district court as district attorney for the past years, expresses his thanks to the citizens of Wichita county for the help they have given him and the courtesies extended during his term of office.

Mr. Taylor stated Wednesday just before leaving for a business trip to Dallas that he was extremely grateful to local people and that at any time he would be glad to help any of them if they needed him.

He stated that he would retire from his present position on May 1, when his successor, Henry Zweifel, will assume his duties. Mr. Taylor has opened offices at Fort Worth.

THOMAS M'DANIEL MARRIES MISS BASHAM TUESDAY NOON

Thomas M. McDaniel Jr. and Miss Thelma Basham, both members of prominent local families, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents Tuesday afternoon, Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker performing the ceremony.

The wedding was very quietly solemnized, only the immediate families of the young people being present. Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel left shortly afterward for a visit in the southern part of the state. They will be at home at 2606 Ninth street when they return.

MEXICO'S CREDIT BETTER THAN OTHER COUNTRIES

CHICAGO, April 20.—Revolution-torn Mexico's credit is better that that of any foreign nation.

This was the opinion today of Paul W. Kunning, foreign trade expert and adviser of the Chicago Association of commerce. Kunning bases his information on investigations of credit men of commercial and industrial institutions of the mid-west.

"Mexico is in a better position to pay than any other country," said Kunning. "Mexican business men are buying heavily. Textiles, mining and railroad machinery are the principal articles desired. The food drying industry is being rapidly developed in Mexico."

Development of railroad facilities is bringing about better marketing conditions, Kunning said.

MOROSCO CHARGED WITH HAVING 92 BOTTLES LIQUOR

NEW YORK, April 20.—Oliver Morosco, theatrical man, was arraigned today in a Brooklyn court on a charge of violating the Volstead act by possessing 92 bottles of liquor bottled after the act became effective. He was held under $1,000 bail for the May term of court.

COUNTY CLERK DOESN'T SELL DOG TAGS NOR DOES FIRE CHIEF ISSUE MARRIAGE LICENSES—THIS TELLS

Have you any business with the city or county?

All subjects of a character in which residents of the municipality or the county would be interested in at any time are listed below in alphabetical order.

The police have been called on for burial permits; the county sheriff has been called upon to issue a marriage license; Chief of Police Huff has been asked to furnish information as to rates on parcel post; the fire chief has been asked as to the disposition of garbage; and an enthusiastic movie fan even went so far as to call for the county clerk to find out the name of the picture at a certain theater.

The latter illustration may have been a mistake in telephone number, but it merely serves to illustrate that a large number of residents of the city and county do not know where to call for information wanted.

Sooner or later this list will come in handy. Save it, and when you want information relating to some civic matter, don't waste your own time and that of a busy public official by plying him with a lot of questions which he knows nothing about.

STATEMENT CONDEMNS DUBLIN CASTLE REVIEW

DUBLIN, April 19.—The Dail Eireann today issued a lengthly statement denying and condemning the weekly review of the general situation in Ireland issued by Dublin Castle April 15, which outlined the number of casualties, ambuscades, attacks on police barracks, assassinations and murders of civilians attributed to sinn feiners.

"The inaccuracy of the official communique," says the statement, "is obvious even to those least acquainted with Irish conditions. It does not mention the war in Ireland, waged with merciless barbarity by the crown forces. It passed over in silence the destruction of all kinds of property by the crown forces which caused the gravest economic loss and suffering to the whole people.

"It ignores pogroms and persecutions of Catholics and republicans, organized in the Belfast district, which have caused immense suffering and loss; murders by the crown forces (345 to date), promiscuous shootings and outrages, daily interference with trade, terrorism employed against republican, merchants and shopkeepers and thousands of arrests and imprisonments—these Dublin Castle also deliberately ignores."

Then follows an analysis of figures cited by the Irish office dealing with unemployment and the assertion that "the gravity of the unemployment in Ireland is deliberately concealed." Under the heading "estimate of total distress" the Dail Eireann gives a tabulation of the cases of unemployment, distress and poverty in Ireland with a grand total of 751,339. Then after further denying the government statements, the communique concluded:

"Ireland is suffering heavily in her war of defense against the aggressions of the British government. No perversion of facts like these contained in the Castle communique will avail to obscure the truth."

: : By ANNE RITTENHOUSE : :

The Double Shoulder Strap Has Been Devised Not Only for Novelty of Appearance But to Simplify the Problem of Keeping One's Bodice in Place.

THERE is always some fly in the ointment of every mode.

Even in the clothes that we wear today, which are undoubtedly the most comfortable, most easily worn clothes that have been devised for civilized women to wear since the days of classic Greece, there are here and there difficulties to keep them from being ideal.

Nothing surely in the wardrobe of any woman is more irritating than the shoulder strap of a sleeveless evening frock. Sometimes one almost wishes that some ingenious person would add some sort of cement to the list of permissible cosmetics. Then at least we should be freed of the necessity of squaring our shoulders in order to keep errant straps in place.

A French Solution.

French women have apparently solved the problem of the shoulder strap to their own satisfaction by wearing the bodice below tight enough under the arms to keep it in place regardless of the shoulder strap. Consequently there is no drag or strain on the strap and it takes care of itself. But most American women find this extremely tight bodice uncomfortable.

The double shoulder strap is another French invention. Besides keeping the bodice firmly placed it gives the slope shouldered effect that seems to be quite in the picture with the new clothes.

This double shoulder strap was brought out in the winter. You may have thought of it as merely a variation for the sake of novelty. But the fact is that it was the result of a definite effort to make the sleeveless evening bodice more easily worn.

Capucine and Black.

You find that detail in evening frocks of various descriptions, as it lends itself as well to the draped type of frock as to the gown with bouffant hips and is quite as becoming to the older woman.

This is one of the outstanding features of the gown sketched today. The long full skirt that reaches well to the ankles is the other. The bodice is of black taffeta with a large black taffeta flower at the left side. Apparently there is no more inclination to give up focussing the trimming on the left hip this season than there was last. The skirt is made of layer upon layer of capucine red tulle.

The skirt and shoulder drapery are of rose-colored crepe de chine while the bodice is of flesh-colored tulle and pearls.

Lyrics of Life

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE CLOUD THAT HIDES THE SUN.

Each cloud that hides the sun
  Turns some of earth to gray,
And each unkindness done,
  Each word unkind we say,
A shadow throws across a face
And makes the world a poorer place.

Each haughty look we show,
  Each sudden word of wrath,
Is like a drift of snow
  Across some pilgrim's path,
And makes this life a journey here
That has a little less of cheer.

But, in the dark of night,
  The goal how near or far,
The faintest candle light
  Is like a blazing star—
May be the one, the certain, beam
To bring the dreamer to his dream.

"What's In a Name?"

LILLIAN

LILLIAN is one of the charming flower names which are so popular in the English language. Like all flower names, it is somewhat difficult to trace, but it is known that the name was a favorite with Italian ladies as early as the fourteenth century, because of its romantic allusion.

Curiously enough, Lillian is not derived from Lily as is popularly supposed, though it is called by etymologists a "flower name." The concensus of opinion seems to be that it has the same origin as Cecelia, though the connection seems a trifle difficult to perceive. However, Coeler Vivenna, an Etruscan general, who named the Coelian hill and gens, is the root from which a number of names containing the syllable "lia" is derived.

There was a Liliola Gonzaga in Italy in 1340, and she is considered the first instance of the name. Lilies was another form, which is still in popular use. Lilias Ruthven appears in Scotland in 1557. She was probably so called from the old romantic poem of Rosvel and Lillian, which was a great favorite in Scotland. The Lillian of this ballad is the Queen of Naples. The English adopted the name as it stood and claim that it comes from Lily, using it as such. The Scotch have always preferred Lilias or Lillias, but America adopted both Lilias and Lillian.

"Airy, fairy Lilian,
  Flitting fairy Lilian,
When I ask her if she loves me,
Clasps her tiny hands above me,
  Laughing all she can;
She'll not tell me if she loves me,
  Cruel little Lilian.

So innocent arch, so cunning-simple.
From beneath her gathered wimple,
  Glancing from black-beaded eyes,
Till the lightning laughters dimple
  The baby-roses in her cheeks;
  Then away she flies."

Lillian's jewel is the lovely lapis lazuli, the Oriental gem as blue as the sea with tiny gold flecks like bits of sunshine. It has the power to cure melancholy and is also believed to have medicinal value in allaying intermittent fever. To dream of it means faithful love. Lillian's flower is most fittingly the morning glory, the fairy bloom which scarcely survives the dew that vanishes before the sun's rays. Her lucky day is Thursday and 2 is her

DOROTHY DIX'S TALKS

By DOROTHY DIX
THE WORLD'S HIGHEST PAID WOMAN WRITER

A MAN says:

"We all admit that the man is a cad whose attentions to a girl are without intentions, who takes up her time and monopolizes her society without ever asking her to marry him. But what about the girl who plays with the heart of an honest man who is in love with her, who lets him fetch and carry for her, who encourages him to spend his money on her, and who keeps him dangling on, year after year, while she waits for a better catch to come along?"

She also is a cad, but the feminine cheat in the game of hearts is never quite so despicable as the male, because the cards are all stacked against her, and that makes some small excuse for her taking what advantage she can.

No man can realize how terribly the matrimonial odds are against a woman, because convention does not permit her to frankly seek her mate. She can't go out in the open, and pick out a man she likes, and ask him to be her husband. She's got to do the thing stealthily, and by hook or crook, and often by resorting to tactics that are repugnant to her, and this has made her feel that anything is fair in love, and the war of the sexes.

Now one of the things that nearly all women know is that men are like sheep; they follow the leader about a woman. They admire the women that other men admire. They go to see the girl that other men go to see. They want to marry the girl that other men want to marry. That is the reason a girl is either a belle or a wall flower, for to her that hath beaux other beaux shall be added even more abundantly, and from her that hath not, shall be taken away even the one solitary one that she hath. It is this predilection of men for worshipping in a crowd that makes women bind every man they can to them, in order to have a come-on for the man they really want. And sometimes it inflicts a cruel fate on the belle.

I am not urging this as justification for a girl playing with an honest heart, but after all, self-preservation is the first law of nature.

Certainly a woman is selfish to the core, and has a lump of ice in her bosom instead of a heart, when she turns a man's devotion into press agency for herself, and capitalizes his love for revenue.

Yet we have all seen that kind of thing done scores of times. We have seen a splendid man break his alabaster box at the feet of some greedy and grasping girl who had not soul enough even to savor the incense that was offered her. Still less did she have conscience enough and sympathy enough to stop his sacrifice of the best he had to give.

She had no intention of marrying the man, yet she let him waste on her all the treasure of his youth and romance, all of his power to love purely and passionately and deeply, any woman, because it flattered her vanity to be so adored, and to have one more in her string of admirers.

Also, he could be reckoned as a gilt-edged asset in the way of presents, and theatre tickets, and rides, and as an ever-present help in times of trouble about getting to and from places, when no other cavalier was available. And for this small gain, innumerable women have robbed men of their peace and happiness, and their faith in the whole feminine sex.

Of course, the woman may say that she told the man that she didn't love him and wouldn't marry him, but while her lips said "no," her eyes said "yes," and she framed her refusal in such a way that hope still lived on, and in this way she kept the man hanging on, spending his time and money upon her, and wasting the treasure of his affection upon her until she was ready to marry someone else.

There is no more despicable thing, no crueler thing, than for men and women to play with the hearts of those who love them, yet in common fairness to these philanderers we must admit that sometimes the harm they do is unintentional.

Love is a thing over which we have no control. We cannot make ourselves love any more than we can make ourselves cease from loving. Nor can we heat up a lukewarm affection into a burning, sizzling passion. And this is equally true of men and women.

We change, God knows how and why, but suddenly we realize that a footstep that thrilled us thrills us no more, that the little ways of an individual allure us no more, that we are bored to tears at the presence of one of whose society we had thought we could never weary.

We have fallen out of love as inexplicably as we fell in love, and we know not why in either case. The man or woman we loved has not been changed. It is we who have changed, and we can no more go back to that other self that loved and admired, and was satisfied, than we can go back into the cradle again.

A false sense of honor, and a misguided pity and tenderness, have made thousands of men and women go on and marry the women and men that they had outgrown, and ceased to love, because they felt that in such cases the fault was theirs, and that they should be the sacrifice. So men, with death in their hearts, come back and lead to the altar the girls they got engaged to before they went forth to seek their fortunes in the wide world, and women make bleak marriages with the patient suitors who have been courting them for years and years, and whom they have not the sourage to refuse at last.

Never was there a more mistaken ideal of beauty. Never a crueler kindness. No human being can do another a greater wrong than to marry him or her for pity. It is only in fiction that a Sentimental Tommy can camouflage his feelings, and hide his weariness well enough to deceive the wife or husband of his or her bosom into thinking that skimmed milk affection is the cream of devotion.

So a man or woman is justified in feigning in the love game whenever they find out they have ceased to hold trumps. It is better to be called a quitter than to be an unloving husband or wife. ut it's a great game this game of hearts, if you don't weaken.

Something To Think About

Fighting and Retreating

—By F. A. WALKER—

A GOOD many battles have been lost because the commanding general in learning how to fight, neglected to learn how to retreat.

In the battle of life it is quite as necessary to know how to extricate yourself from a difficulty as it is to know the principles of getting ahead.

The man who continues to attempt what has proved impossible of accomplishment may have admirable courage but very poor judgment.

The one thing that a good general does when he is retreating is to KEEP FIGHTING.

If you keep fighting hard enough the retreat itself may be the means of eventual victory.

A young man who has chosen the wrong occupation, who has undertaken a job for which he is not fitted, will gain in the end if he retreats and gets into a new and better position.

Most of us are best fitted for ONE thing.

If we try to be more than that or other than that we sacrifice results, and results are the only things that count.

There are very few Michael Angelos who can be equal successes as sculptors and painters and architects.

It is only once in ages that there is a man like Leonardo Da Vinci, who was perhaps the wisest man that ever lived. He attained eminence as an artist whose masterpieces "The Last Supper" and "Mona Lisa," have been reproduced more than any other two pictures ever painted.

He was a great engineer, a wonderful inventor, a musician of merit, a botanist, a chemist, an astronomer, a geologist, an explorer and geographer and on all of these subjects he was a voluminous and entertaining writer.

He was one general in a million—he never had occasion to retreat.

Conduct your retreat in an orderly manner.

Cyrus The Great, who won many victories to have his head cut off by the woman, Queen Tomyris, to whom he lost the last battle he fought, said of retreating: "When an army must retreat, let the retreat be managed in the safest manner and not in the quickest."

Don't be in a hurry about changing your work.

Don't be impetuous and throwing down your tools, or your books or whatever you work with, walk out with a "to hell with that job."

Conduct your retreat in a safe sane way fighting as you go, fighting to find the right thing and the right place where you will be worth most to yourself and therefore most to everybody else.

The one thing is to be sure you are doing something. Either go ahead or retreat.

Don't try to be a stand-still soldier.

There is often quoted a truism that a rolling stone gathers no moss. But moss is not a very valuable asset and nobody need count himself a great failure if he dies without ever having possessed any.

A well-polished diamond is the most valuable of the mineral family, and the value comes to that only after a good deal of rough contact with things harder than itself which shape and brighten it.

Go ahead all the time if you can. But if you cannot go any further ahead on the line you have chosen don't be afraid to "back up" and try another road to success.

WHEN COFFEE IS POOR.

THERE are several things that ought to be considered in remedying the fault of poor coffee before the price of the coffee. In fact, there are comparatively few persons who can tell the difference between a cup of very expensive coffee and a cup from less expensive product providing it is perfectly made.

One of the most usual reasons for poor coffee is the simple matter of a lack of cleanliness. And this often occurs in households where perfect cleanliness is cherished. Coffee pots need more than an ordinary washing. The metal of coffee pots becomes so affected by long use that special care is needed to make them sweet and free from taste.

Electric percolators are often not as well cleaned as they might be because they cannot be put directly in a dishpan of soap and water. An excellent way to clean them is to scour out the inside with some sort of scouting soap. Then fill three-quarters full of warm water to which you have added about a tablespoon of powdered borax. Then connect the cord with the electric current and proceed as if you were making coffee allowing the water to boil through the coffee pot for five minutes or more. Now pour this out, scald out with boiling water, dry thoroughly with a clean dishcloth and set the opened pot in the air with the sunshine beating down upon it. This is a good method to use in cleaning any coffee pot and can be employed to advantage every three or four weeks.

Sometimes the fault is that the coffee you use is not properly ground for the sort of pot you use. If it is too finely powdered it will make cloudy coffee save in pots where it is filtered through a fine cloth. For an ordinary coffee pot the coffee should be ground, but not so finely as is necessary for a percolator.

Another thing to remember is that coffee should be kept in a container that can be covered tight. The best plan is to buy your coffee in the bean, grinding it fresh for every day's need.

To-Day's Lucky Jewel Color Flower

SARD.

TODAY'S talismanic stone is the sard, which is especially lucky for women. If set in a design in which the grapevine and ivy are interwoven, it is sure to exercise its powers for good, according to an ancient belief.

Today's natal stone is the opal, which the ancients believed endowed its wearer with a changeable temperament and attractive personality.

Violet is today's color. It exerts a soothing influence on its wearer, and should be worn by those who are nervous or extremely emotional.

The flower for today is the scarlet geranium, potent in dispelling sorrow.

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS; WHAT THEY MEAN

DID YOU DREAM OF CARPETS?

TO dream that one is in a garret is accounted by the most authoritative mystic dream interpreters to be a most highly favorable omen. And most of the oracles think it is just as favorable an omen to dream of merely seeing a garret. Some of the oracles say that one who dreams of being in an attic will soon arrive at fortune if he has not already so arrived. Should he now be a person of wealth, then the dream of being in an attic denotes that he will have much comfort and will be advanced to a position of responsibility in public life should he accept a public career. It is also said by many that this dream of an attic, or garret, means not only the success and advancement of the dreamer, but of some person in whom he takes an interest.

An O. HENRY Story

THE CACTUS

By O. HENRY.

THE most notable thing about Time is that it is so purely relative. A large amount of reminiscence is, by common consent, conceded to the drowning man; and it is not past belief that one may review an entire courtship while removing one's gloves.

That is what Trysdale was doing standing by a table in his bachelor apartments. On the table stood a singular-looking green plant in a red earthern jar. The plant was one of the species of cacti, and was provided with long, tentacular leaves that perpetually swayed with the slightest breeze with a peculiar beckoning motion.

Trysdale's friend, the brother of the bride, stood at a sideboard complaining at being allowed to drink alone. Both men were in evening dress. White favors like stars upon their coats shone through the gloom of the apartment.

As he slowly unbuttoned his gloves, there passed through Trysdale's mind a swift, scarifying retrospect of the last few hours. It seemed that in his nostrils was still the scent of the flowers that had been banked in odorous masses about the church, and in his ears the low-pitched hum of a thousand well-bred voices, the rustle of crisp garments, and, most insistently recurring, the drawling words of the minister irrevocably binding her to another.

From this last, hopeless point of view he still strove, as if it had become a habit of his mind, to reach some conjecture as to why and how he had lost her. Shaken rudely by the uncompromising fact, he had suddenly found himself confronted by a thing he had never before faced—his own innermost, unmitigated, and unbedecked self. He saw all the garbs of pretence and egoism that he had worn now turn to rags of folly. He had shuddered at the thought that to others, before now, the garments of his soul must have appeared sorry and threadbare. Vanity and conceit! These were the joints in his armour. And how free from either she had always been—But why—

As she had slowly moved up the aisle toward the altar he had felt an unworthy, sullen exultation that had served to support him. He had told himself that her paleness was from thoughts of another than the man to whom she was about to give herself. But even that poor consolation had been wrenched from him. For, when he saw that swift, limpid, upward look that she gave the man when he took her hand, he knew himself to be forgotten. Once that same look had been raised to him, and he had gauged its meaning. Indeed, his conceit had crumbled; its last prop was gone. Why had it ended thus? There had been no quarrel between them, nothing—

For the thousandth time he remarshalled in his mind the events of those last few days before the tide had so suddenly turned.

She had always insisted upon placing him upon a pedestal, and he had accepted her homage with royal grandeur. It had been a very sweet incense that she had burned before him; so modest (he told himself), so childlike and worshipful, and (he would once have sworn) so sincere. She had invested him with an almost supernatural number of high attributes and excellencies and talents, and he had absorbed the oblation as a desert drinks the rain that can coax from it no promise of blossom or fruit.

As Trysdale grimly wrenched apart the seam of his last glove, the crowning instance of his fatuous and tardily mourned egoism came vividly back to him.

The scene was the night when he had asked her to come up on his pedestal with him and share his greatness. He could not, now, for the pain of it, allow his mind to dwell upon the memory of her convincing beauty that night—the careless wave of her hair, the tenderness and virginal charm of her looks and words. But they had been enough, and they had brought him to speak. During their conversation she had said:

"And Captain Carruthers tells me that you speak the Spanish language like a native. Why have you hidden this accomplishment from me? Is there anything you do not know?"

Now, Carruthers was an idiot. No doubt he (Trysdale) had been guilty (he sometimes did such things) of airing at the club some old, canting Castilian proverb dug from the hotch-potch at the back of dictionaries. Carruthers, who was one of his incontinent admirers, was the very man to have magnified this exhibition of doubtful erudition.

But, alas! the incense of her admiration had been so sweet and flattering. He allowed the imputation to pass without denial. Without protest, he allowed her to twine about his brow this spurious bay of Spanish scholarship. He let it grace his conquering head, and, among its soft convolutions, he did not feel the prick of the thorn that was to pierce him later.

How glad, how shy, how tremulous she was! How she fluttered like a snared bird when he laid his mightiness at her feet! He could have sworn, and he could swear now, that unmistakable consent was in her eyes, but, coyly, she would give him no direct answer. "I will send you my answer tomorrow," she said; and he, the indulgent, confident victor, smilingly granted the delay.

She had always insisted upon placing him upon a pedestal and he had accepted her homage with royal grandeur.

The next day he waited, impatient, in his rooms for the word. At noon her groom came to the door and left the strange cactus in the red earthen jar. There was no note, no message, merely a tag upon the plant bearing a barbarous foreign or botanical name. He waited until night, but her answer did not come. His large pride and hurt vanity kept him from seeking her. Two evenings later they met at a dinner. Their greetings were conventional, but she looked at him, breathless, wondering, eager. He was courteous, adamant, waiting her explanation. With womanly swiftness she took her cue from his manner, and turned to snow and ice. Thus, and wider from this on, they had drifted apart. Where was his fault? Who had been to blame? Humbled now, he sought the answer amid the ruins of his self-conceit. If—

The voice of the other man in the room, querulously intruding upon his thoughts, aroused him.

"I say, Trysdale, what the deuce is the matter with you? You look unhappy as if you yourself had been married instead of having acted merely as an accomplice. Look at me, another accessory, come two thousand miles on a garlicky, cockroachy banana steamer all the way from South America to connive at the sacrifice—please to observe how lightly my guilt rests upon my shoulders. Only little sister, I had, too, and now she's gone. Come now! take something to ease your conscience."

"I won't drink just now, thanks," said Trysdale.

"Your brandy," resumed the other, coming over and joining him, "is abominable. Run down to see me some time at Punta Redonda, and try some of our stuff that old Garcia smuggles in. It's worth the trip. Hallo! here's an old acquaintance. Wherever did you rake up this cactus, Trysdale?"

"A present," said Trysdale, "from a friend. Know the species?"

"Very well. It's a tropical concern. See hundreds of 'em around Punta every day. Here's the name on this tag tied to it. Know any Spanish, Trysdale?"

"No," said Trysdale, with the bitter wraith of a smile—"is it Spanish?"

"Yes. The natives imagine the leaves are reaching out and beckoning to you. They call it by this name—Ventomarme. Name means in English 'Come and take me.'"

As Trysdale grimly wrenched apart the seam of his last glove, the crowning instance of his fatuous and tardily mourned egoism came vividly back to him.

The scene was the night when he had asked her to come up on his pedestal with him and share his greatness. He could not, now, for the pain of it, allow his mind to dwell upon the memory of her convincing beauty that night—the careless wave of her hair, the tenderness and virginal charm of her looks and words. AMBASSADOR GEORGE HARVEY.

President Harding has paid a political debt to Colonel George Harvey by appointing him ambassador to Great Britain. This post is the most important in the diplomatic service and there is a feeling that a diplomat of experience and dignity should have been chosen for the place. George Harvey is a brilliant writer and a bitter critic and there can be no doubt that his bitter, brilliant criticisms of the administration were a big contribution to republican success last November, but many friends of the administration regret that Mr. Harding did not reward him with some honor less important and one calling for less dignity and experience.

Paying political rewards with appointments is a practice that is, perhaps, unavoidable but which brings regret to every administration. President Wilson had to pay political rewards to some men and the results were unhappy. For instance he rewarded William J. Bryan with appointment as secretary of state. The result was unfortunate, to say the least. Even as a political writer, Harvey has appeared intemperate, and some of the very elements of his brilliance are poor qualities for a diplomat.

The Outlook recalls some of the great American ambassadors to Great Britain—the three Adamses, Lowell, Bancroft, Bayard, Hay, Page Choate and John W. Davis and says:

"We regret that President Harding could not have added to this illustrious group an ambassador who would have contributed to his high office less brilliant pugnacity and more of the diplomatic qualities of his predecessors than even Colonel Harvey's friends believe that he possesses. * * * It is a commendable quality in a president to wish to pay his political debts fairly and even generously. But it is a pity that Mr. Harding could not have paid his debt to Colonel Harvey in a somewhat less precious coin than the ambassadorship to Great Britain."

THE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

It has been sometimes said of Wichita Falls that she is less advanced, musically speaking, than are many community that she surpasses in other particulars; The Times is not qualified to judge such matters, but it does believe that in the organization of a Symphony Orchestra, such as recently performer so successfull, this city has set a musical mark for other communities to shoot at. We have the word of persons experienced in such matters that the orchestra is one in which a much larger city might take pride, and certainly it would seem to be an organization that merits the encouragement and active support of every Wichitan.

Next fall the orchestra is to be reorganized and will be placed. it is hoped, on a substantial and permanent basis that will make it an attractive factor in the city's entertainments. What has been done already has been merely to show Wichitans who appreciate music what can be done if adequate support is given. Both the Musicians' Club, which fostered the undertaking, and Prof. Ernest Katz himself, deserve unstinted praise for their efforts to give Wichita Falls some really metropolitan music.

It is a movement deserving the hearty backing of every Wichitan who wants to see this city progress in other than material ways; and it is not by any means without its material value, at that.

That the prohibition wave is not subsiding is indicated in the fact that the province of Ontario in Canada has just voted to go dry by a majority of more than 100,000. Bone dry prohibition too was the proposition voted on. By a majority vote the people of Ontario voted to prohibit the manufacture of intoxicants and to prohibit the importation of intoxicants into that province. Many had believed that Canada would be one of the last strong holds of the wets. The fact that a Canadian province has voted dry makes Pussyfoot Johnson's prediction that he would see world-wide prohibition within his lifetime seem more possible.

The Sales Tax Proposal Dead.

(Dallas News)

As Mr. Harding would probably say, the sales tax is "dead." To be sure, Senator Smoot's sales tax bill is alive, even to the degree, as the dispatches report, that it will be the subject of "hearings" by the senate finance committee this week. But the proceeding would better be called a wake, evidently. For the same day's dispatches report Mr. Mondell as saying that no sales tax will be levied.

Mr. Mondell is the republican floor leader in the house. One of the duties of the leader is to find out which way his followers want to go and start out boldly in that direction. Without saying so, what Mr. Mondell means is that by a canvass of the house he has found more votes against than for a sales tax bill. He speaks as a prophet inspired by the whispered will of the majority.

But the will of the majority in congress merely effects the more powerful will of the majority outside congress. There can be no doubt that the sales tax idea has achieved a remarkable degree of unpopularity among "the common people." The propaganda conducted in its behalf disclosed that fact. It not only disclosed it, but contributed no little to its magnitude. Among the opponents of the sales tax idea there are tens of thousands who were innocent both of opinion and knowledge as to the character and nature of a sales tax until the propaganda in its behalf got well under way.

The liability of a propaganda is under, as instanced in this case, of awakening an opposition capable of wrecking its project ought to soften the prejudice which that method of mobilizing public opinion suffers.

Being awakened, public opinion saw in the proposal to levy a sales tax a scheme to shift some of the burden of taxation from the shoulders of the wealthy to those of the unwealthy. This suspicion was made the more credible by the circumstance that the proposal to levy a sales tax was found in company with the proposal to repeal the excess profits tax.

It was a suspicious circumstance, it must be admitted. But suspicious circumstances do not always afford a conclusive proof of guilt.

They didn't in this case, assuredly. For the notion that the levy of sales tax and the repeal of the excess profits tax would effect a shift in the burden of taxation was made up largely out of the assumption that the excess profits tax is paid by those from whom the government collects it.

That, to a considerable extent, is rather a verdant idea. There is better reason for thinking that far the greater part of the revenue which the government gets from the excess profits tax comes originally from just those pockets into which a sales tax would put its hand, and not more greedily. Pretty much, an excess profits tax is, indirectly, a sales tax.

But we know, from abundant experience, that, in a tax, it is popularly counted a virtue, rather than a vice, if it does its work clandestinely. The knowledge of being taxed hurts worse than the operation. Public opinion is but faithful to one of its fondest delusions if it expresses a preference for the heavier muict, made indirectly, to the lighter one, made directly.

It adds something to the irony of the matter that, in decreeing a rejection of the sales tax, public opinion seems to have fancied it was decreeing a retention of the excess profits tax. In reality the two were associated only in the popular suspicion that they were dependent parts of a scheme to relieve wealth and tax poverty. The repeal of the excess profits tax was not made contingent on the levy of a sales tax. The excess profits tax is doomed by the fact that it is productive of more mischief to industry than revenue to the government.

The sales tax is a consumption tax. That attribute is the cause of its unpopularity. But, rightly considered, it would recommend it. If adjusted in a way to make it discriminate properly between the necessaries and the unnecessaries to well-being, it would not only make just exactions, but have a tendency to shift capital and labor from unessential to essential employments, and so work a social benefit.

It is a curious perversity of mind which moves men to denounce a consumption tax when the alternative is a production tax.

WHY?—

Do people touch glasses before drinking?

(Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

This custom, which was far more prevalent in the days before the enactment of the eighteenth amendment than it is at the present time, had its origin in the same idea of safety which led men to shake hands with the right hand—as an assurance that they were concealing no weapon—and to raise the helmet to women or others whom they respected. In the days when duelling was at its height, it was customary for the combatants to pause for a moment before taking their position and drink a glass of wine supplied by the seconds. In order to make certain that this wine had not been tampered with, one glass was filled to the brim and then half of its contents was emptied into the glass of the adversary, so that if any attempt had been made to poison either of the duelists, each of them would be equally affected.

The practice, reminiscent of the days of the Borgias, passed out along with the custom of the duel, but the habit of touching glasses or holding them up as if preparatory to touching them, remained as a silent reminder of the time when no man dared trust anyone but went always armed and prepared for trouble.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

The Town of Used to Be.

I used to think I'd like to go
To the town I used to know
As a little bare-foot lad,
Tanned of cheek an' always glad
But it's been so long since I
Told the good old friends good-bye
An' set out for wealth an' fame
That it cannot be the same,
An' maybe I'd better not Spoil the picture that I've got.

Bill's been back, an' he tells me
Town's not what it used to be;
That old Barker's grocery store
Isn't open any more,
An' most folks we knew are gone,
Moved away or traveled on
To a brighter realm than this,
An' the girls we used to kiss
An' go courtin' with, somehow
Don't seem half so pretty now.

Folks have told me that the farm
Where I lived has lost its charm
An' they've paved the dustry street
Which was velvet to our feet,
An' it's now a thoroughfare
With the hum of motors there;
Wouldn't want to lose the joy
That I've treasured from a boy—
Guess I'd better keep always
Memories of those happier days.

I'm afraid of going back
Memory still keeps the track
To those favorite haunts of mine
Like a painted canvas fine,
An' the old spots live with me
Just the way they used to be;
An' to see them now would seem
Much like shattering a dream,
So the town shall live with me
Just the way it used to be.

HOW JACKIES FOUGHT U-BOATS WITH MOTHER GOOSE RHYMES

ARTICLE 7

"Quack! Quack! Quack!"

I can imagine Herr Teufelsdorff, of the German intelligence department, solemnly setting down the strange words.

"Hey, diddle-de-diddle,
The cat and the fiddle."

That must have been as puzzling as

"Ride-a-cock-horse to Banbury cross," "Little Jack Horner sat in his corner," "Jack and Jill went up the hill," and similar extraordinary statements picked out of the air by listening Germans, and sent to Berlin for translation and for study by their code specialists.

What did the herr professors make of them?

What did they make of such seemingly meaningless combinations of words as "corn-mush" and "high-low-jack"?

Doubtless there were profound consultations. I can vision the research carried into libraries, where all available "Amerikana," was ransacked for a clew to the mystery. Mother Goose no doubt, was discovered as the source of the rhymes, and her history was studied for some possible explanation of their use. I can imagine heated debates between retund and rubicund literati as to the occult significance of these quotations from the nursery songs of the United States. I can imagine erudite and alobrate theories advanced.

Germans Were Dazed.

The reference to the breakfast menu of the American people and to one of their popular indoor sports must have been hopelessly bewildering.

The Teuton mind never could understand the American mind. It was perplexed, baffled, dazed by our thought process, and the more it tried to explain or interpret them the more mystified it become.

So far as I know it never guessed the meaning of our Mother Goose messages, which sang over the North Sea and out on the Atlantic in wireless vibrations.

For that matter, the British were puzzled at first when they picked up the queer words and phrases and snatches of rhyme. It sounded as if the inmates of a lunatic asylum had somehow got hold of a wireless apparatus and were calling "Quack! Quack! Quack!" and "Corn meal mush" to a war-crazed world.

"Red-white-blue" was one of the phrases which had a sound of possible sense to to British ears, but when it was amplified to "Quack' Red-white-blue'" even their smartest code experts were at a loss to interpret it.

British naval officers at Plymouth were much concerned about these inexplicable sayings which floated through the atmosphere and sounded in their radiophones.

Fear New German Trick.

Was somebody "spoofing them," and the war and the world in general? Or was it some new German trick? Some scheme of the enemy to distract attention to set the British puzzling over a meaningless mystery while he pulled off some plot against them?

They were relieved when explanations were made. They smiled, and even chuckled politely, when they were told that these quaint contributions to the aerial communications of the war zone were merely the issuings of orders and exchanges of compliments among the perkly little American submarine chasers which had lately arrived from across the Atlantic.

A saucy, high-spirited, devil-may-care lot they were, and they came sapering into the zone of danger and death with laughter and song.

I doubt if you will find in all the annals of the war a better picture of American psychology—the psychology of American youth in the face of peril and under the high obligation of duty. Nor will you find anything which illustrates better why Germany lost the war and the allies and America won it; why our hurriedly trained armies played the mischief with the morale and fighting front of the enemy's super-trained, disciplined and experienced troops.

Had Faith and Hope.

The child-hearted attitude toward life which could go to war talking the language of the nursery, using homely phrases and the songs of the cradle to conceal the serious messages of life and death and tragic action which compose the communications of war, was the attitude of faith and hope and cheerful comradship which endured all denials and plains without murmur, and faced all perils without flinching.

In those days of hardship; in those days when men endured long vigil, whipped by wind and spray; in those days when sudden death lurked beneath the wave and every gob kissed his sweetheart's picture good-by at least once in twenty-four hours, you can imagine how it helped in the grimness and seriousness and deadly oppressiveness of the job to have the comic relief which came when your sub-chaser scudded through the seas calling "Quack' Quack! Quack! High-low-Jack!" from its wireless; or when some bit of nursery lore sounded in your radiophone, such as a reference to "Mary's little lamb," conveying information that the enemy would have given all the beer in Munich to get.

This new code, the words of which were familiar to every American, had the great advantage of being easily remembered by those for whose use it had been devised; and of being utterly undecipherable by the enemy.

System Worked Well.

Numbers may be confused and are hard to keep in mind, but a line, a verse, a combination of words closely associated in familiar lingo cling to the memory. The submarine chasers did not have distinctive names, like the destroyers, but were desighated by numbers—S. C. 121, S. C. 38, S. C. 252 and so on. Wireless telegraphy takes numbers accurately, but those who use the wireless telephone at sea have the same trouble in distinguishing numbers and letters as do people using the telephone on land. So, instead of numbers and letters words were used to designate submarine chasers when telephoning into the ether.

The commander of one group named his boat in jingles or phrases. Three boats constituted a submarine-hunting unit. One set was known as "red-white-blue," another as "corn-meal-mush" and a third as "high-low-Jack."

"Quack Quack! Quack" meant "operate at once."

It became an amusement with the men to make parodies on Mother Goose and other well-known rhymes. Most of these parodies had to do with the risky job on which they were engaged. Here is one of them, paraphrasing "The Spider and the Fly:"

"Won't you come into my area?" said the chaser to the sub;
"I'll treat you just as kindly as I would a tiger cub;
I will listen to your motors, I will catch you without fail
And then I promise I will put some salt upon your tail."

Alphabet in Words.

The use of words instead of letters for the navy flag signals was followed by the subchasers generally. Those down at Corfu, for instance, guarding the barrage across the Straits of Otranto, and chasing Austrian U-boats, had a word for every letter in the alphabet.

The alphabet ran thus: Able, boy, cast, dog, easy, fox, George, have, Item, jig, king, love, Mike, Nan, obue, pup, quack, rot, sail, tars, unit, vice, watch, X-ray, yoke, zed.

"Able-boy" was the code to "Take hunt formation—distance 500 yards."

Almost any necessary order or information could be transmitted by radiphone by means of this code. Here is a typical instance of how it worked when a submarine was heard:

Listener of Boat No. 1 reports: "Submarine, 90 degrees."

Executive Officer: "Submarine, 123 degrees."

Executive reports: " (number of wing boat) turbine 112 degrees."

Executive reports: 3 (number of other wing boat) submarine 130 degrees."

Captain orders: "Course 123 degrees."

Executive to listeners: "Up-tube."

Start Hunt for U-Boat.

At the order "Up-tube," the listening tube is raised from its position beneath the vessel; the signal-boy beside the mast hoists the cone, the position of which shows the other boats what the engine of this subchaser is doing; the steersman puts the wheel over, and the vessel heads for the estimated locality of the U-boat. All this is done in a moment or two.

If the submarine is not located, the captain orders, "Stop'" the executive orders "Down tube!" The tube, which extends through the bottom of the chaser, is lowered, and the listener strives again to hear the sound of the U-boat.

We built over 400 of these little subchasers—110-foot wooden boats. We let the French navy have 50. They all gave a good account of themselves, crossing the ocean under their own power and weathering storms which made heavy going for the big liners.

They served in our coast patrol and operated in foreign waters from bases at Queenstown, Plymouth, Brest, Gibraltar and Corfu.

There were thirty-six based on Corfu whose chief duty it was to guard the entrance to the Adriatic in order to prevent the escape of enemy subs into the Mediterranean, the most dangerous stretch of the long water line of communications which the allies had to use.

They were part of the Otranta barrage, consisting of mines and three lines of patrol vessels—the first two composed of British destroyers and the third of American subchasers. The Austrians say that barrage accounted for at least six U-boats.

Good Work at Durazzo

Our subchasers distinguished themselves particularly in their participation in the attack on the Austrian naval base at Durazzo October 2, 1918. A dozen of them escorted the British and Italian men-of-war, braving the fire of the forts and attacking the U-boats under a rain of shells. They emerged from the conflict unscathed.

The following dispatch from the admiral in command of the British Adriatic naval force, with which they operated, gave me a thrill:

"I am most gratified for the valuable service rendered by twelve submarine chasers, under Capt. C. P. Nelson, U. S. N., and Lieutenant-Commander P. D. Eastedo, U. S. N., whom I took the liberty of employing in an operation against Durazzo on October 2.

"They screened heavy ships during the bombardments under enemy fire, also apparently destroyed definitely one submarine, which torpedoed H. M. S. Weymouth, and damaged, probably destroyed another submarine. During the return voyage they assisted in screening H. M. S. Weymouth and in escorting enemy hospital ship which was being brought in for examination. Their conduct throughout was beyond praise. They all returned safely without casualties. They thoroughly enjoyed themselves."

Relates Thrilling Experience.

The most thrilling experience belongs probably to S. C. 28, one of the fifty we turned over to France. Alexis Puluhen commanded the S. C. 28. It was manned by French sailors. In a storm on the night of Jan. 16, 1918, it disappeared. Its sister ships weathered the gale, but it was missing when the sky cleared.

On Feb 18, a month and two days later, we heard from it at the Azores, crew and commander safe and well.

Puluhen tells a story of danger and hardship. Their engines broke down Drifting helplessly in the white-capped sea they kept watch for some friendly craft. Two steamers were sighted that same night and signaled, but to no avail. The S. C. 28 was leaking and the pumps had to be kept going constantly. Next day they saw the mast of a vessel in the distance, and fired a salvo, but the vessel fled.

They tried to start the engines, but had no lubricating oil. They used all the salad oil and butter. It was no use. The dynamo burned out. The radio would not work. They took the boat's linen and made sales of it—a fore-and-aft mainsail, a staysail and a "leg-of-mutton" sail at the small foremast. The crew was put on the smallest rations, drinking water was doled out. So catching a breeze, they sailed east. They were able to make about four miles an hour.

Gets Help at Last.

They sailed for a month. They saw other ships, but no ship dared to let them get near. Doubtless they were feared as some new trick of the treacherous enemy. Soon after dawn on Feb. 18, Puluhen sighted land. About noon he recognized it as Fayal, and hoisted the signal "YP"—"I need a tug." A tug came out and towed him into Horta.

The S. C. 28, after undergoing repairs took up its journey, and a little later, but far better late than never, assumed its place with the other American-built chasers patrolling the French coast. What better tribute could there be to the seaworthiness of these little boats, or the heroism and resource of the men who manned them?

THREE PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM YOUNG COUNTY JAIL

GRAHAM, TEXAS, April 19.—After fattening up and sleeping for several days, life for three men confined in the jail became monotonous last night and they rose from their beds, yawned two or three times, knocked an opening in the wall of the building and walked off free men. The prisoners were confined in the run around of the jail. In making their escape the men used a heavy iron bar to loosen the cement around a section of the stone wall. After making a hole large enough to permit them to crawl out, the prisoners manufactured a ladder out of their blankets and slid to the ground and freedom. No trace of the men has been found by the sheriff's department.

Gives Tanlac Credit For Splendid Health

T. J. PARKER
4246 Juneau Street, Seattle, Wash.

"I used to think all the Tanlac testimonials were exaggerated, but I have felt thankful a thousand times I ever believed in it strong enough to give the medicine a trial," said T. J. Parker, well-known salesman for Gately's Clothing Store, residing at 4246 Juneau St., Seattle, Wash.

"Several yeras ago I commenced having periodic spells of sickness and a few months ago I had an attack that I thought would finish me. When I did finally get up, I was scarcely able to go. I had no appetite and what little I forced myself to eat caused so much gas on my stomach I could hardly get my breath.

"At night I was often so bloated I couldn't breathe while lying down and just had to sit up and struggle for air. At times I had cramps so bad I could hardly endure it.

"My liver was sluggish and sometimes I got so dizzy I would nearly fall. I felt tired and miserable all the time, couldn't even sleep and for days at a time I wasn't able to go to work.

"Well, a friend of mine finally got me to try Tanlac and it certainly has done a good job for me. My appetite is fine now and although I am eating just anything I want and as much as I please, my stomach never gives me the least trouble. I have picked up in weight, my strength has come back to me, and I am now enjoying the best of health.

"All the men at the store know Tanlac put me back on my feet, and I am glad to give this statement for what it may be worth to others."

PHIL CLAIBORN GETS A 2 YEAR SENTENCE IN FEDERAL PRISON

ANOTHER ORDERED EXAMINED BEFORE PASSING SENTENCE

John DeLamar Sentenced to Three and a Half Years in Leavenworth.

Phil Claiborn entered a plea of guilty to the charge of counterfeiting before Judge James C. Wilson in United States District Court Wednesday morning and was sentenced to serve two years in the federal prison at Leavensworth.

While pleading for mercy he stated that he had been sent up once before on a similar charge in 1909, but asked for leniency on the ground that he had settled down immediately after getting out of the penitentiary and endeavored to live right. He stated he lost his wife just a year ago.

J. C. Crim pleaded guilty to the charge of manufacturing whiskey, but Judge Wilson deferred passing sentence, ordering that the defendant pass a physical examination for tuberculosis.

John DeLamar also entered a plea of guilty to the theft of automobiles and transporting them into Oklahoma. He was sentenced to serve three and a half years at Leavensworth.

Testimony was offered to the court that he was the man who had employed the two young men who were sentenced on Tuesday to transport the stolen cars to him at Hollis, Okla. It was shown that he gave $50 to the boys for delivering each and every car.

Before passing sentence the judge administered a stern lecture to the defendant with reference to the theft of automobiles and the employment of young men for such work.

WELL IN 1330-FOOT SAND STARTS FLOW

Texhoma Test on Taylor Tract Definitely Establishes Itself as Producer.

Existence of a second, and shallower, producing sand in the Archer county field was proven Tuesday afternoon when the Texhoma Company's No. 1 Taylor, north of the same company's discovery well on the Gose, started flowing.

The well began flowing early Tuesday afternoon and while no report has been received Wednesday afternoon of its 24-hour performance it was expected to make about 200 barrels, according to W. B. Hamilton, general manager of the company. The well is five feet deep in the sand at a depth of 1,330 feet, or 270 feet shallower than the original well on the Gose tract.

The company will start another well shortly on the Gose tract offsetting its test on the Taylor. The same 1300-foot sand was encountered in the No. 1 Gose and has been picked up, as previously reported, in the Lee Bass and Couch-Winfrey tests, which are now setting casing.

Another substantial deal was closed Tuesday for Archer acreage, when the Godley Oil company paid $450 an acre for an 80-acre tract northeast of the Taylor well; the payment is $300 in cash and $150 in oil, a total consideration of $36,000.

VAGRANTS AND BROOM STICK MELEE FIGURE IN CITY COURT SESSION WEDNESDAY MORNING

Vagrants are still being rounded up by the police department, a quartet of the offenders being incarcerated in the city bastile Tuesday night. Several drunks and a few traffic violators were the only others to fall into the clutches of the law.

In the Wednesday session of the city police court main interest centered around the case of a negro waiter at the Kemp hotel who had a white employe arrested for hitting him with a broom stick. It developed that the white man, a watchman, used the club when the black ignored orders to keep out of a kitchen. Judge Ogle dismissed both plaintiff and defendant with orders to behave more properly in the future.

Adventure of the Dying Detective

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Copyright, 1921, by Harper & Bros. Published by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The story so far:

Mrs. Hudson, the landlady of Sherlock Holmes, went one day for help to Dr. Watson, saying Sherlock Holmes was dying. For three days he had been sinking. He would have no doctor, but finally agreed to see Watson. When Watson reached him he was in a very bad way, but would not let Watson touch him. He said he was suffering from a strange coolie disease from Sumatra, about which London doctors knew nothing. Holmes condemned Watson's limited knowledge.

Dr. Watson was hurt. Seeing this, Holmes assured him that he only meant that Watson knew nothing of the obscure Eastern disease from which he suffered which he had caught while working among some coolies at the docks. When Watson insisted he would call a doctor, Holmes sprang to the door and locked it. He staggered back to bed, saying that at the end of two hours, at six o'clock he would let Watson go for help. Watson, while walking about, picked up a small black and white ivory box. Holmes gave a dreadful cry to Watson to put it down. He seemed feverish and delirious. At six he asked him to go fetch Mr. Culverson Smith, who knew about the treatment of the disease, but to return ahead of him.

PART THREE.

To tell the truth, my desire to fetch a doctor had somewhat weakened, for poor Holmes was so obviously delirous that it seemed dangerous to leave him. However, he was as eager now to consult the person named as he had been obstinate in refusing.

"I never heard the name," said I.

"Possibly not, my good Watson. It may surprise you to know that the man upon earth who is best versed in this disease is not a medical man but a planter. Mr. Culverton Smith is a well-known resident of Sumatra, now visiting London. An outbreak of the disease upon his plantation, which was far distant from medical aid, caused him to study it himself with some rather far-reaching consequences. He is a very methodical person and I did not desire you to start before 6 because I was well aware that you would not find him in his study. If you could persuade him to come here and give us the benefit of his unique experience of this disease, the investigation of which has been his dearest hobby, I cannot doubt that he could help me."

I give Holmes' remarks as a consecutive whole, and will not attempt to indicate how they were interrupted by gaspings for breath and those clutchings of his hands which indicated the pain from which he was suffering.

His appearance had changed for the worse during the few hours that I had been with him. Those hectic spots were more pronounced, the eyes shone more brightly out of darker hollows, and a cold sweat glimmered upon his brow. He still retained, however, the jaunty gallantry of his speech. To the last gasp he would always be the master.

"You will tell him exactly how you have left me," said he. "You will convey the very impression which is in your own mind: a dying man—a dying and delirious man. Indeed, I cannot think why the whole bed of the ocean is not one solid mass of oysters, so prolific the creatures seem. Ah, I am wandering! What was I saying, Watson?"

"My directions for Mr. Culverton Smith."

"Ah, yes. I remember. My life depends upon it." Plead with him, Watson. There is no good feeling between us. His nephew, Watson—I had suspicions of foul play and I allowed him to see it. The boy died horribly. He has a grudge against me. You will soften him, Watson. Beg him, pray him, get him here by any means. He can save me—only he."

"I will bring him in a cab if I have to carry him down to it."

"You will do nothing of the sort. You will persuade him to come. And then you will return in front of him. Make any excuse so as not to come with him. Don't forget, Watson. You won't fail me. You never did fail me. No doubt there are natural enemies which limit the increase of the creatures. You and I, Watson, we have done our part. Shall the world then be overrun by oysters? No, no, horrible! You'll convey all that is in your mind."

I left him full of the image of this magnificent intellect, babbling like a foolish child. He had handed me the key, and with a happy thought I took it with me lest he should lock himself in. Mrs. Hudson was waiting, trembling and weeping in the passage. Behind me, as I passed from the flat, I heard Holmes' high, thin voice in some delirious chant. Below, as I stood whistling for a cab, a man came on me through the fog.

"How is Mr. Holmes, sir?" he asked.

It was an old acquaintance, Inspector Morton of Scotland Yard, dressed in unofficial tweeds.

"He is very ill," I answered.

He looked at me in a most singular fashion. Had it not been so fiendish, I could have imagined that the gleam of the fanlight showed exultation in his face.

"I had heard some rumor of it," said he. The cab had driven up, and I left him.

Lower Burke street proved to be a line of fine houses lying in the vague borderland between Notting Hill and Kensington. The particular one at which my cabman pulled up had an air of smug and demure respectability in its old-fashioned iron railings, its massive folding door, and its shining brass work. All was in keeping with a solemn butler, who appeared framed in the pink radiance of a tinted electric light behind him.

"Yes, Mr. Culverton Smith is in, Dr. Watson! Very good, sir, I will take up your card."

My humble name and title did not appear to impress Mr. Culverton Smith. Through the half-open door I heard a high, petulant, penetrating voice.

"Who is this person? What does he want? Dear me, Staples, how often have I said that I am not to be disturbed in my hours of study!"

There came a gentle flow of soothing explanation from the butler.

"Well, I won't see him, Staples. I can't have my work interrupted like this. I am not at home. Say so. Tell him to come in the morning if he really must see me."

Again the gentle murmur.

"Well, well, give him that message. He can come in the morning, or he can stay away. My work must not be hindered."

I thought of Holmes tossing upon the bed of sickness, and counting the minutes perhaps until I should bring help to him. It was not a time to stand upon ceremony. His life depended upon my promptness. Before the apologetic butler had delivered his message I had pushed past him and was in the room.

With a shrill cry of anger a man rose from a reclining chair beside the fire. I saw a great yellow face, coarse-grained, menacing gray eyes, which glared at me from under tufted and sandy brows. A high, bald head had a small velvet smoking cap poised coquettish upon one side of its pink curve. The skull was of enormous capacity, and yet as I looked down I saw to my amazement that the figure of the man was small and frail, twisted in the shoulders and hack like one who has suffered from rickets in his childhood.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE FILED TUESDAY AGAINST DRIVER OF ACCIDENT CAR

Charges of reckless driving were filed Tuesday afternoon in the city police station against Miss Jack Wells, driver of the automobile which late Monday made a dramatic dash down Scott street and put three machines out of commission before being brought to a stop. The charges were filed by Patrolman Ogle, who was an eye witness to the affair, and were also instigated by the White Trucking company and the Dosch Electric company, both concerns having suffered some expense in repairing the damage caused to their autos.

City Attorney Mann intimated Wednesday morning that charges of speeding would also be filed in connection with the case, which will be called for trial Thursday morning.

Spudders Fight Gamely But Cannot Overcome Shreveport's Big Lead

By PAUL W. LARKIN

Although they looked like anything but pennant contenders the Shreveport Gassers made their 1921 debut in Wichita Falls yesterday and won an exciting baseball game from the defenseless Spudders 10 to 9. As has been the case in the two preceding games that were lost Salm's charges were forced to go out and try to win a contest solely on their slugging ability. They made a noble effort by pounding out 14 hits and chasing the nine runners across the platter, but the eight run lead that was spotted for the visitors by the time the fifth chapter was completed was too much and their game struggle went for naught.

When Danny Clark toed the dish in the sixth chapter, his mates were no less than eight markers to the bad. But the boys were out there fighting yesterday and they pounded out six runs by terrific hitting in this inning and came within an ace of pulling out on top in the final canto. The tying and winning runs were on the sacks when the final man was retired, but the one remaining punch that was needed was found lacking.

Sewell Still Off Form.

Jim Sewell tried his luck again yesterday, but evidently the days aren't warm enough for the veteran yet. He lasted only three rounds and the visitors got to him in these periods for seven safe thumps and a half a dozen runs. Especially in the third did the visitors treat him in a manner that should be brought to the attention of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Ruth, who relieved Jim, did a bit better. It took him two ruonds to get settled and accustomed to his surroundings, but after that he turned in the niftiest bit of hurling that has been witnessed at the park this year. It was three up and three down for the Gassers in the last four innings, and they didn't get anything that resembled a base hit.

Ledbetter, the Gasser hurler, who made a reputation for himself in the game he worked against the Panthers, was Smith's selection. The big fellow was at his best during the first two rounds, but after that it was only a question of time until he would be battered to the showers. The big crash came in the sixth when he was bombarded for six smashing drives that netted six tallies and put the locals only two away.

Verbout relieved him and was lucky to get away with a win. He was wild and was accorded wretched support. Especially in the ninth did his guardian angel stick close by his side.

After the third chapter the contest was played under protest. Billy Smith took exception to Umpire Daly's ruling on a fly which he (Smith) thought should be ruled an infield fly. There wasn't a chance, however, and Daly's ruling was correct.

Two circuit blows were made during the course of the matinee. Eibel parked it over the left field fence on the fly and Buddy Tanner did it on the hop. Buddy's drive went over Bowman's head in deep left and bounced over the barrier.

The visitors performed like a bunch of bushers in the field. Six errors were chalked up against them, some for wild heaves and some for old fashioned boots. The entire infield was as nervous as a June bride in the ninth and came near kicking the game away, but Holohan managed to kneel in front of Works' drive, block the ball, and finally got his man at first.

Gassers Get Quick Start.

The visitors hopped right into the run column in the opening stanza, and waited until two men were out before so doing. Clark fumbled Storey's bounder and the latter was safe. He died a moment later attempting to steal and Bowman took a third strike. Ewoldt smacked a hard double to right center and scored on Jackson's safe crash to left. Eibel fanned.

The Spudders were unable to hit the ball out of the infield in either the first or second and the visitors were helpless in their portion of the second.

Things were far different in the third and Sewell was belted to all corners of the lot. Ledbetter started him on the road to destruction by beating out a hit to Tanner in deep short. Storey put him on second with a slam to left and both men tallied when Buddy Tanner heaved Bowman's slow roller to the clubhouse. Bowman romped all the way to third and counted when Jackson dumped a Texas leaguer in center. Eibel's belt over the left field barrier was responsible for the next and last two runs scored in this canto.

Only One For Spudders.

The Spudders should have had a million in this stanza, but one run was all that resulted from a brace of safe clouts and the same number of errors. Hartford's throw of Works' roller drew Eibel off the bag and the elongated first sacker was safe. Kitchens forced him at second. Ruth was sent in to hit for Sewell and he responded with a safety to center that put "Kitch" on second. Eibel made a desperate attempt to get Rothfuss' fly in short right, but the ball got away from him and the blow went for a hit. The runners held their bags, thinking Eibel might get the ball, but headed for home when they saw it get away from him. When he recovered it he threw it a few rods over second base, and Kitchens crossed the plate while Ruth scampered to third and Rothfuss halted at second. Neither Tanner nor McDonald could come through with the much needed hit and the runners were left stranded.

Ruth was a trifle wild when he entered the box and passed Henry for a starter. Ledbetter's sacrifice put him on second, and he scored on Storey's double to left. After Bowman had drawn a pass Ewoldt scored Storey with a single to left and Bowman took second. Ewoldt and Bowman worked a successful double steal, but their efforts were wasted when Eibel grounded to Tanner.

The Spudders started to clout Ledbetter in this session, but they failed to get the breaks again and could push only one marker across on three hits and an error. Clark got a lucky hit when his grounder took a bad hop over Holohan's shoulder. Miller's safe thump sent him to second. He went to third when McElwee hit into a double play, Hartford to Holohan to Eibel, and counted when Works slapped a one-base hit to left. The ball went through Storey's legs and Works scooted to third only to die there while Kitchens was fanning.

The Gassers kept up their fusillade in the fifth and chased their last two counters across. Three successive doubles spilled the beans. With one away, Hartford doubled over Rothfuss' head. Henry doubled in the same section of the field and Ledbetter's smash to right went for a couple of stations when McElwee fell down chasing the pill.

Visitors Finally Stopped.

From this juncture until the end of the game "Babe" had the Louisianans eating out of the palm of his hands and not one of his opponents reached first.

But while the Gassers were resting on their laurels the Salmites started to work and they cut loose with a vengeance in the sixth. The bombardment was started by Danny Clark who drove one to the center field boundary line for two sacks. Miller slammed one through Hartford and Danny went as far as third, scoring on McElwee's blow. Works hit safely through the pitcher's box, filling the bags. Kitchens hit weakly to Ledbetter and was an easy out at first, though Miller counted. Ruth biffed one to center, scoring McElwee and Works. After Rothfuss had fanned Tanner socked one to deep left that hopped over the fence and the last two runs of the inning were in. Jackson dropped McDonald's fly and the latter stole second, but Danny couldn't duplicate the feat he performed earlier in the inning and Tex was left on the middle station.

Fall One Run Short.

Verbout relieved Ledbetter in the next inning and got away lucky until the ninth. "Lady Luck" deserted him for a while then and one run was pushed across. Tanner opened with a bang through Hartford for one blow. When the ball was returned Eibel dropped it between first and second and Buddy scooted to second. He went to third on McDonald's infield out. Hartford stuck his mitt out for Clark's hard smash and made a lucky stop that retired Danny, though Tanner scored. Hartford wasn't as fortunate with Miller's drive and he kicked it away, giving Miller a life. The fans' hopes were raised to the "nth" degree when McElwee slapped a safe one to right, bu tthey died when Holohan blocked Works' drive and got his man at first.

WHO'LL WIN?

NEW YORK, April 20.—William A. Brady, former boxing manager, theatrical producer and erstwhile partner of Tex Rickard:

"Carpentier will win in three or four rounds. Dempsey was slow against Brennan and isn't the fighter he used to be. Carpentier is the greatest boxer since Jim Corbett, a powerful hitter and the quickest thinker in the ring today. Dempsey has never defeated a first class man and he'll find Carpentier the best."

MAJOR LEAGUE BITS

Yesterday's hero: Meusel. The Philly outfielder biffed a homer in the eighth and Brooklyn lost the fifth straight game, 3 to 2.

Phil Douglas had a sore arm, but he worked out some of the kinks, the Boston Braves beating him 9 to 1. O'Neil was banished for talking too much.

Cleveland scored nine runs in the seventh off the recruit Bolling, and beat Detroit 12 to 3.

The Pirates got 19 hits off two Cub pitchers and won, 14 to 2.

Sam Rice got a home run, two doubles and a single, helping the Senators cut down the Athletics, 14 to 6.

Marquard was outpitched by May and the Cardinals beat the Reds 6 to 1.

THE YELLOW TERROR —By Wood Cowan

The only thing yellow about this fighter is his skin, for George Washington Lee is a full-blooded Chinaman. There is not a drop of Occidental blood flowing in his veins. But for all of that, he is a true American and mighty proud of it.

It looks strange to see a Chinaman playing a "white man's game"—and playing it well, for George Washington Lee gave Midget Smith (by many considered a second Terry Govern) the fight of his life.

Lee hails from Los Angeles and is a bantam weight who will prove the real "Yellow Peril" to many an aspiring youngster in that division.

PANTHERS 10, MARINES 2

DALLAS, April 19.—Three Dallas pitchers failed to check Fort Worth batsmen today, and the Panthers annexed the first game on the local grounds, 10 to 2. SPORT SHOTS by Paul W. Larkin

Realising that he needed a pitcher who was ready to step into the box now and win a few games, Skipper Salm got in touch with Barney Dreyfuss in a hurry, and as a result a new hurler is now on his way from the Pittsburgh club. Hollingsworth is the youngster's cognomen. Salm tried to land him while Barney was in town, but the Pirate management wanted to look him over a bit longer before cutting him loose. Walter saw him work in Hot Springs and fell for his work right off the bat. He will add a world of strength to the present wabbly staff and should be here within a few days.

We don't mind the boys losing one when they fight for it as they did yesterday. That was a battle worth going a long way to see.

About the best thing the fans can do is pray for a few real hot days so these hurlers of ours can get their old soupers in working order.

The boys have scored 27 runs in four days. That should be enough to win five or six ball games. The offensive power is there and the defense will be soon.

Frank Hudspeth has been released to Abilene for a little more seasoning. The youngster didn't show as much stuff here this year as he did during the closing weeks of the 1920 campaign. He should have no difficulty in winning in the West Texas loop and may be recalled before the season is over.

The "infield fly" rule is one of the most bothersome in the national pastime, but Billy Smith did not have much cause for his protest yesterday. Had the Spudders won the game and the protest been acted upon, the chances are the game would have stood as it was played.

Under the provisions of Rule 51, Section 8, "If, before two hands are out, while first and second or first, second and third bases are occupied, the batter hit a fair fly ball, other than a line drive, that can be handled by an infielder, the batsman is out. In such case the umpire shall, as soon as the ball be hit, declare it an infield or outfield hit." Umpire Daly figured that the ball could not be handled by an infielder and Eibel showed that when he was unable to get Rothfuss' hit. Had Eibel been able to field the ball and then dropped it, it would have been different. As it was, he could not field it and Rothfuss was rightly given credit for a hit.

Floyd Kroh had the honor of being the first Spudder to be parked this year. Arbiter Kane chased him late in the game when the big left hander expressed his sentiments a bit too freely.

Both sides were a bit suspicious of the agate yesterday. Miller, in particular, must have thought Ledbetter was putting a little something on the horse hide that should not have been there. He wanted to give it the once-over a couple of times. A Shreveport player had his doubts on one occasion, too. All the balls remained in play, however.

That excursion biff of Babe Ruth's the other day was the 104th such blow made by him in his big league experience, the seventh year of which is just beginning. No player in the majors save Gavvy Cravath has ever made as many. Cravath registered 119 circuit clouts, but it took him 10 years of active service to reach the figures.

SPORT BRIEFS

CINCINNATI, April 20.—President John A. Heydler of the National league, here on his first "swing around the circuit," said that the game had received the greatest start in its history and that it remained with the managers and the players to finish it as well as it began.

He said the new rules announced by Commissioner Landis in regard to the holdouts would go into effect next Saturday.

MASSILON, OHIO, April 20.—Gene Paulette, former first baseman of the Philadelphia Nations, who was placed in the ineligible list of organized baseball by Commissioner Landis several weeks ago, has been released by a semi-professional team here. Paulette's release, it is said, followed protests from semi-professional clubs throughout the country against his playing here so long as Judge Landis' decision is in force.

LONDON, April 20.—Miss Alexia Stirling, American champion, and Miss Cecil Leitch and Miss Elsie Gram Suttie, leading British women golfers, scored 72 each in opening play at Ranelagh.

PARIS, April 20.—Georges Carpentier will sail for America May 7.

BELIEVE CARL MORRIS IN BETTER SHAPE THAN EVER

SAPULPA, OKLA., April 20.—That Carl Morris, heavyweight who fights Farmer Lodge, giant Minnesotan, in Tulsa on April 26, still has his old time punch was demonstrated to fistic fans at Payne hall here yesterday when the former white hope began his daily workout indoors. Morris met Jack Thompson, burly negro heavyweight, and Jimmie Miller, Chicago fighter, in four fast rounds, each before a large crowd of spectators. After treatment to which Morris has had applied to his back, many fight followers believe that he is in better condition than ever.

THIS TIME LAST YEAR.

Cravath, Philadelphia, hit homer off Benton in eighth with two on, beating Giants, 3 to 0.

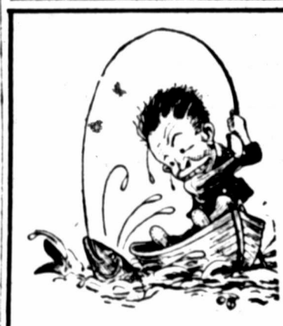

Cleveland and Detroit used 31 players in a three-hour game, Cleveland winning, 1 to 10.

Walker knocked two home runs and Dugan one for Athletics.

Gibbons Kayoes Flynn.

NEWARK, N. J., April 20.—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul, knocked out Porky Flynn in the eleventh round of a scheduled 12-round bout here last night. Flynn was badly beaten and had to be carried to his corner.

The SPORTLIGHT By Grantland Rice

ON THE DAY OF BATTLE

There is one Unknown, Not-To-Be-Figured Quantity in sport. It is frequently the decisive factor, yet it receives no advance comment and is rarely noted after the contest.

This factor is concerned only with the day of battle, as we will try to explain by leading examples just what we mean.

When Dempsey fought Brennan the former complained that, although in good condition, he "could not get going" that night; that he was unable to force himself to a winning clip; that for some unknown reason he was not at his best. Dempsey could not say wether it was physical or mental—or a combination of both. All that he knew was "that it wasn't his night"—that he wasn't quite there.

This is one example of the point we hope to make. Then there is the case of Walter Hagen. When the British open started, Hagen, for no apparent reason, suddenly found himself unable to get going. He was wild off the tees and his general play was ragged. He lacked every element of control. Yet a few days later, in the French open, he finished out in front of both Duncan and Mitchell who had left him far behind at Deal. In 1914, at Midlothian, Hagen "had the touch" on the day the championship started. He won. In 1915, at Baltusrol, although in just as good physical condition, Hagen lacked the touch on the day of battle and finished far out.

Some years ago, on a certain Monday, we saw Christy Mathewson beat the Cubs, who were then a machine of power. Matty stopped them abruptly. Five days later we saw St. Louis, a much weaker club, drive him from the box. What had happened? He was in just as good condition when he met St. Louis as he was when he met Chicago. Matty himself didn't know the answer. "I simply couldn't get going," he said. "I was trying just as hard and I was in just as good shape. My arm felt just as well. But I guess it wasn't my day. Why? I don't know. These things happen in baseball often."

We have seen the same thing happen to horses. On Monday a certain racehorse romps to victory against a field of class. On Friday of the same week he is beaten by a much cheaper lot, failing to run his race by several lengths. The same jockey may be up, riding just as well in defeat as he rode to victory. But it wasn't the horse's day. He wasn't quite there.

Almost every entry in competitive sport, young or old, has come upon this unexplainable slump. It isn't to be explained by physical condition, for frequently it may come when one is feeling at his best. One may have trained perfectly—and yet there are certain days when it is impossible to get going. For this mysterious cause men have lost boxing championships and football games, golf and tennis matches, short sprints and distance runs, ball games and rowing races. The day of battle comes and suddenly one discovers that a cog has mysteriously slipped. It isn't a matter of staleness or stage fright. It is a sudden lack of co-ordination for no given reason—just an off day for no understandable cause. For a man may be feeling badly and still play up to form. This happened frequently, Ouimet, sick with fever at Oakmont, played far better than he did when feeling extremely fit at the Engineers.

Staleness, stage fright, nervousness, lack of condition, are not hard to see. They have all lost many a contest. But this mysterious "off day," which has also lost many a contest, continues to baffle all scientific treatment. All the player knows is that he hasn't the touch, the feel the co-ordination. But he doesn't know why. He can dig up no reason for any such depressing assault. He may feel wonderfully well. He may not be nervous in the slightest degree. He may be giving his best. He may have trained exactly right. But suddenly he discovers that he is out of gear, that he can't get going, that it isn't his day.

This mystic upset has struck at every contender. It has hit Dempsey, Willard, Cobb, Speaker, Ruth, Tilden, Johnston, Hagen, Evans, Ouimet, Paddock, Stecher and on down the line through every dub and duffer and unclassified performer. There is a feeling that brain and muscle and nerve are not working together, that they are pulling from opposite directions. The needed touch has suddenly vanished. And all the struggling and striving and rugged endeavor in the universe won't bring it back. By tomorrow everything may be all right again. But tomorrow may be too late.

So it is just as well to know that the machinery of the human system embracing the physical, the mental and the nerve alignment, is not yet an open book. Not by many uncut pages. For if as smart a man as Mathewson, or Cobb, or Tilden, or Johnston can't explain the "off day" feeling, it is still beyond the mass. This "off day" feeling may play a vital part in more than one big championship this season. But it will be too deeply hidden to be uncovered. It will sound too much like an alibi to be framed in print. Since it is still beyond the limited range of human understanding it will still remain a mystery, as other causes are offered for an astonishing upset or an unlooked for reversal of form.

LOCAL WOMAN'S GOLF TITLE TO MRS. COUPER

Defeats Mrs. Weldon Two Up for Championship of Wichita Golf Club.

Defeating Mrs. H. F. Weldon two up Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Fred T. Couper won the Art cup for the ladies' match and gained the title of woman's champion for the local club.

Play in the men's two tournaments is progressing slowly, but will probably reach the semi-finals by the end of the week.

The first playing on the temporary course was done Tuesday afternoon, under a special dispensation to try it out. W. E. Norton and Tom Cochran made the round and found much to be delighted over; all of the holes in the temporary greens have not been put in as yet, so that no score could be kept. The temporary course will be opened Saturday, by which time everything is expected to be ready.

FORMER PUG ARRESTED FOR BIG MAIL ROBBERY

CHICAGO, April 20.—Julius Levy, former prize fighter and said to have a long criminal record, was under arrest today, suspected of having participated in the $256,000 Dearborn Street station mail robbery.

Five mail truck drivers positively identified Levy as the driver of the bandit automobile.

Levy denied complicity in the holdup when questioned by police.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The new International league baseball season opens today. Newark, N. J., which dropped from the league in 1919, has returned, replacing the Akron, Ohio, club.

HAVANA, April 20.—The chess championship score here stood today: Emanuel Lasker won none, lost three, drawn ten; Jose Capablanca won three, lost none, drawn ten. The thirteenth game was drawn at the 23rd move. It was the fastest game of the series.

Golfers, Beware Too Much "Pep"

ST. LOUIS, MO., April 20.—The golf spine is the newest of income producers for the doctors, according to Dr. Homer E. Bailey, principal speaker last night at a meeting of the St. Louis Osteopathic Association. It is a result, he said of putting too much pep into the game.

There are two forms of the trouble, the doctor said. One results from swinging too hard at the ball while the player is standing in an upright position. The other results from a swing while the player is leaning forward. In the first instance there is a dislocation of the vertebrae at the base of the neck, and in the other at the small of the back. Proper adjustment of the dislocation quickly relieves the trouble.

WHITE SOX MUHLER REFUSES TO REPORT

CALGARY, ALBERTA, April 20.—Milton Steengraffe, former Calgary pitcher, recently awarded to the Chicago White Sox by a ruling given by Federal Judge Landis, is not satisfied with the decision and does not intend to report to Chicago, according to Manager Joe Devine of Calgary, who is with the club training in the south.

FORMER JOCKEY CLUB PRESIDENT SENTENCED FOR ASSAULT

HAVANA, April 20.—H. D. ("Chrley") Brown, former president of the Cuban-American Jockey club and manager of the Oriental Park hippodrome at Marianao, a suburb of Havana, was last night sentenced to one year and eight months in prison on the charge of having last year made an assault with intent to kill on Alberto Piedra. Brown now is in the United States under bond.

No, this is not the cheer leader at a college contest. The new high commissioner is a rabid fan and never misses a game if his duties permit him to be on hand.

TWO POLICEMEN SHOT DEAD IN COUNTY SLIGO

DUBLIN, April 20.—Policemen Kelly and Hetherington were taken from a train last evening near Ballysodare, County Sligo, and shot to death. The reports of the shooting say it has caused consternation in Sligo, where the murdered men have been stationed for some years.

The police this morning ordered all the premises closed until further notice.

NEW YORK, April 20.—In a handicap match, Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world's wrestling champion, failed to throw C. J. Carpenter of Augusta, Ga., a Princeton student, in twenty minutes last night before the International Sporting Club.

Jim Londas and Renato Cardini wrestled one hour to a draw.

"HOME RUN" BAKER IS STILL WARMING BENCH

His Case Used to Establish Precedent for Landis—Not a Gambling Case.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The case of Frank Baker is causing the Trappe farmer and his friends a lot of concern.

In some manner unknown to the club owners, Baker's name got on the list of ineligibles that Ban Johnson turned over to the high commissioner.

Baker was asked to give a full account of his activities last summer when he played with independent clubs.

Because there was little about them to make a lasting impression, the old Athletic star could not give the names of all the players who had been on the opposing teams. He resented the demand for an account of his activities until Miller Huggins assured him that it was just a part of the new regime of baseball.

The statement has been in the hands of Judge Landis for several weeks. Baker was concerned lest his name be mixed in gambling or crooked baseball, but he has been assured that his case is just one of formality that will establish a precedent for Judge Landis.

TIMES DAILY MARKETS

COTTON MARKET.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, April 20.—There was further liquidation of near months at the opening of the cotton market today, but offerings of May were readily enough absorbed at a discount of about sixty points as compared with July, and after opening five points lower to three points higher, the market was steadier on the relatively steady showing of Liverpool and reports of a better feeling in Wall street. Prospects for an unfavorable weekly report on weather conditions in the south were also a factor on the rally from 11.70 to 11.77 for May and from 12.20 to 12.37 for July, or about five to eight points above last night's close. Private cables reported a quiet market in Loverpool with more offering from the south but with prices sustained by an improving spot demand.

The market showed more strength during the early afternoon owing to the absense of any important selling pressure from the south, a little more trade buying and covering by early sellers. July sold up to 12.54 with active months generally showing net advances of 20 to 26 points around two o'clock.

The unfavorable weekly government report indicating that weather had been too wet and cold for cotton, led to a flurry of covering later. May advanced to 11.83 and July to 12.44, or 11 to 15 points above last night's closing. Otherwise no buying of consequence developed and the market was very quiet around midday, although prices held steady within 3 or 4 points of the best. Southern selling here was less active than yesterday.

Cotton futures closed steady.

New York Spots.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Spot cotton quiet; middling, 12.15.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, April 20.—Small advances were made in cotton in the first half hour of business today, the active months rising 11 to 12 points on expectations of unfavorable weekly crop reports from the government. May rose to 11.45. Some buying was induced by a better Liverpool market than expected and fresh attempts to settle the British coal strike.

The appearance of a new cold wave to the west of the cotton region and the generally unfavorable tone of the weekly review of conditions over the belt by the government, stimulated a further demand and at 11 o'clock prices were 18 points higher than the close of yesterday with May at 11.51.

Reports of a better export demand for spots at some points in Texas kept the advance going and at 1:30 prices were 19 to 30 points up with May at 11.62. The contract ring was not excited on this trading and the market wore a more normal look than for a long time.

Cotton futures closed steady at net advances of 29 to 30 points.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Chicago Grain.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Descents to new low price records for the season continued in the wheat market today. Favorable crop reports had a bearish influence. Opening prices, which varied from the same as yesterday's finish to ¼c advance, with May $1.21¾ to $1.22¼ and July $1.03 to $1.03¾ were followed by a material setback all around and then something of a rally.

Later, a sharp upturn resulted from scattered reports of domestic crop deterioration and from advices that because of drought the yield of wheat in the Punjab, the most important wheat section of India, would be cut down half. The close was strong, 2¼c to 4c net higher, with May $1.25¾ to $1.26¼ and July $1.05¾ to $1.06¼.

Further export business gave firmness to the corn market. After opening ¼c to ⅜c higher, including July at 59¾ to 60c, the market eased down temporarily but then rallied above the initial range in some cases.

The market was also strengthened by prediction that as the season progressed a tremendous form consumption of corn would be revealed. The close was strong, 2¼ to 3¼c net higher, with July 62¼ to 62½c.

Oats were governed by the action of corn, starting ⅛c off to ¼c up, July 37⅜ to 37½c, and after a slight sag scored gains all around.

Lower quotations on hogs tended to pull down provisions.

LIVESTOCK.

Fort Worth Livestock.

FORT WORTH, April 20.—Although cattle receipts were moderate today, being 1,500, supply was above trade demands and during the morning the trade was demoralized. All kinds had to be peddled and stockers were without buyers. Steers were quoted 25 to 35 cents lower, cows remained about steady, bulls were lower and yearlings 50 cents. Calves steady, with yesterday's 75c to $1 decline. Some fancy light calves sold at $.75, but $8.25 to $8.50 was considered a good price for desirable calves.

Hogs also were lower. The decline on a run of 1,200 head being mostly 25c, although some stuff was only 15c down. A shipper paid $7.90 and packers paid $7.75@7.80. Most of the supply cleared at $7.25 to $7.75. Pig prices were steady.

Sheep receipts were the most voluminous of the year, around 6,000 head being offered. Thirty carloads of lambs were sacoth but sheep cleared in line with yesterday's ten-cent higher close. Good wethers brought $5.60.

Cattle: Beeves, $5.00@7.50; stockers, $5.00@6.00; cows, $2.00@6.50; canners, $1.00@2.00; heifers, $4.00@7.50; bulls, $2.00@4.00; calves, $2.00@8.50; yearlings, $4.00@7.50.

Hogs, 11,000; uneven; mostly 25c lower; best, $8.30; bulk of sales, $7.50@8.25; pigs steady, best, $9.00.

Sheep, 10,000; strong to 25c higher; choice shorn Texas wethers, $6.90; lambs steady to 25c lower; wooled lambs, $10.75.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Oils asserted their recent leadership at the irregular opening of today's stock market, favorite issues soon advancing from large fractions to almost two points. Pullman, which was especially heavy last week in connection with unfavorable dividend rumors, rose 1¾ points and Utah Copper, Famous Players, Corn Products and several of the rails were among the firm shares. Manhattan Elevated was conspicously weak, falling six points in connection with reports that its 7 per cent guarantee may be cancelled in the prospective organization of the local traction lines.

Selling of Mexican Petroleum, which reacted about 2½ points from its top price of the morning, gave the market a general setback at midday, although call money rates were easier. Aside from a few obscure specialties, the list including rails and steels, was inclined to sag.

PLAN FACTORY HERE FOR MANUFACTURING NEW COTTON DEVICE

DALLAS MEN ORGANIZE $200,000 COMPANY TO DEVELOP IMPORTANT INVENTION.

ELIMINATES LOW GRADE AND BOLLIE STAPLE, CLAIM

Indorsement of Proposition Is Given by Chamber of Commerce After Committee Makes Inquiry.

A factory for the manufacture of a machine to clean raw cotton to eliminate "bollie" staple is to be established in Wichita Falls in the near future, if plans of the organizers materialize. A $200,000 company is being formed here to develop and market the patent held by J. L. Cassell of Winnsboro, Texas.

The matter has been carefully investigated by the chamber of commerce industries committee, of which Frank Kell is chairman, and has been approved by both that committee and the directors. Mr. Kell and W. F. Shelton and J. L. Dashner, experienced gin men of this city, to go to Winnsboro, where one of the machines has been in operation and investigate its capabilities; both gave it as their opinion that the machne has numerous advantages over present devices of similar nature.

H. Howard, H. T. Hatton and W. H. Wilmot of Dallas, experienced cotton machinery men, are back of the plan for a factory here. They are considering tentative sites for the plant at present.

The machine is expected to be used in cotton gins for the purpose of cleaning cotton before it goes to the gin proper. By means of roller and suction attachments it eliminates all foreign matter from the cotton, and when bollies are to be handled, it breaks the hulls, sucks out all "pin trash" and dirt and delivers the staple to the gin in much better condition, it is claimed, than is at present possible. It is claimed for the machine that it handles cotton in such a way as to raise the grade consistently and that it overcomes the objections to bollie cotton which have practically kept that grade off the market.

"If this machine had been in use last year, 500,000 bales of bollie cotton, that can't be sold, could have been eliminated," Mr. Howard said.

Those who have investigated the machine also report favorably upon such features as stability, amount of power required, simplicity of construction and the like, and consider that the machine meets every reasonable requirement.

The machine will probably sell at about $800. Mr. Howard says that when one gin in a community buys the machine, the others will be forced to, in order to compete.

This city was chosen as the factory site because of the superior facilities it affords as a manufacturing point, Mr. Howard said.

AMERICAN LEGION HAS MEETING TUESDAY NIGHT; SHOW PLANS CONSIDERED

Plans for making a big success of the Swiss Bell-Ringers' show Thursday night were considered Tuesday night at a meeting of Pat Carrigan post of the American legion. Committees reported a big demand for tickets, and there were indications that a capacity crowd will attend the performance. The show is given for the benefit of the building fund of the legion.

Another meeting was called for next Tuesday night, at which plans for the wind-up of the pending membership drive will be considered. When this drive is finished, it is expected to take definite steps for a building that will accommodate club rooms and a permanent meeting place.

TWO MORE TESTS PLANNED IN MONTAGUE COUNTY

NOCONA, TEXAS, April 19.—The Gulf-Phillips test on the Bouldin farm out near Spanish Fort has shut down to standardize a little below 1,900 feet. This is the first test on the Texas side in this locality to reach this depth with a rotary. This well is drilling for a deep test, and is believed is in condition to go to 3,500 feet or deeper.

The Pure Oil company well on lot 36 of Kaufman county school lands is working below 1,100 feet in cavy formation, lime, sand and blue shale alternating. This test is drilling with cable tools, and started with a 20-inch hole. It is the intention here also to make a deep test. Conditions at both these wells may be considered favorable.

A deal is on and it is believed the contract soon will be let for a test well about seven miles northwest of Nocona. This is considered an excellent location, one the geologists gave favorable notations.

And it may be added that some kind of a deal is pretty certain to be put over for a test well out near the Nocona Oil company test which had such favorable showings of oil and gas. Old Montague may yet smear up the oil map.

COUNCIL POSTPONES ITS ACTION ON BUDGETS TO REGULAR MEETING MONDAY

Submission of annual reports and budgets for the new municipal year was postponed until next Monday, when the city council met in adjourned session Wednesday. Several of the councilmen had asked for more time; and as Commissioner Bralley had a parade on his hands, Commissioner Shepherd was in charge of the Templar registration, and the mayor had his hands full with one commandery matter after another, so it was decided to call it off until Monday.

EXPECT DEVELOPMENT IN WILBARGER COUNTY

VERNON, TEXAS, April 20.—Definite developments on the Triangle well south of town are expected Wednesday, according to advices issued from the office of the company late Tuesday. Tuesday was spent in making final preparations for drilling in. Casing is on its seat and the packer was put in place Monday evening. In order to preclude all water trouble the packer will be allowed to set 24 hours. There will be no attempt to drill in until it is certain all water has been cut off from above. There was a gas showing yesterday when the casing was set.

The drill will be sent a short distance into the sand probably Wednesday forenoon and then all water will be bailed from the hole. If developments ensue they will probably be about 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon, it is thought. Officials of the company are not displaying overconfidence but are endeavoring to exert the utmost caution in having arrangements as nearly perfect as possible. There will be no last minute carelessness due to over-eagerness, they assert.

The H. and F. well will also make a bid for public interest within the next two days. The drill has now reached a depth of 1,980 feet, and every inch of progress is being thoroughly tested. The H. and F. is now in the neighborhood of the depth reached in the Triangle, Pyramid and Sigler number 1 holes, and momentary developments may be expected.

Possibilities for a third well this week in the Sigler field were awakened Tuesday morning by the apparent success of Pyramid drillers in striking again the hole made during the first sidetracking undertaking. The first sidetrack had to be abandoned by Pyramid drillers due to misplacement of the whip stock and the second hole was started some distance above the opening made and drilled to connect with the earlier sidetrack. The first sidetrack was taken down to the original sand and for that reason, if there is positive assurance that it has been connected with, drillers will commence setting casing this afternoon. In the event that casing can be set immediately, the sand may be drilled into by Thursday. Five and three-sixteenths-inch casing will be put into the hole.

APPEARANCE BOND SET AT $2,000 IN THEFT CASE

Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn set the appearance bond of A. J. Bundy at $2,000. Bundy is charged with theft over $50 and his preliminary hearing has been set down for May 4, 1921. H. B. Scott, a deputy sheriff, filed the complaint against the defendant.

NEWSPAPER STUNT FEATURES VAUDEVILLE BILL OPENING AT THE WICHITA TONIGHT

Those who want to see how a modern city newspaper gets out a sporting edition will have such an opportunity at the Wichita theater tonight when Billy Arlington, well known vaudeville comedian, appears as headliner in a skit entitled "Mistakes Will Happen." Arlington is one of the best of the higher class actors now appearing in vaudeville, and he has won a nation wide reputation as "the highbrow hobo." His present act is a take-off on newspaper life, and shows all the comical sides of the work in splendid fashion. He is supported by Elinore Arlington, C. I. Taylor and E. F. Hennessey.

Following close on the heels of the Arlington act is Edith Clasper and her boys in "Love Steps," a dancing act of of more than ordinary merit. Miss Clasper is recognized as one of the leading exponents of terpischore and with the elaborate stage settings and handsome costuming she gives an excellent performance.

"Lot O' Pep," offered by Murphy and White, was a favorite in this city last year, and they are coming back tonight bigger and better than ever. They have a good assortment of songs and jokes which they know how to put over in a forceful fashion.

Emily Darrel in "Late for Rehearsals," and Reo and Helman in an acrobatic performance close the program. Both of these acts are reported to be knockouts and will lend the needed variety to the bill. Th usual round of news reels and topics of the day films will be shown preceding the major attractions.

"San Jacinto Day"
—Thursday April 21st

and on that day this bank, in keeping with other Texas banking institutions, will be closed to honor the event.

It is quite fitting that we should so honor it, for April 21, 1835, is indeed a day worthy of remembrance. History's account of General Houston's victory in defeating Santa Anna and assuring the independence of the Lone Star Republic is one to thrill the heart of every loyal Texan.

To the brave and gallant men of those early perilous times we owe the freedom of Texas, and we honor them today with hearts filled with love and faith and gratitude.
