Dawson County Centennial Board Prepares for Action

At a meeting of the Dawson county Texas Centennial Committee on October 27 several steps were taken more to the attention of the citizen to bring the Centennial question ship of this section of the State particularly to Dawson county. An educational or speaking committee, consisting of Mrs. Hardy Morgan, Carl Rountree, Mrs. Riley F. Nix, J. D. Dyer, Louis B. Reed, M. C. Lindsey and Mrs. E. R. Yates was named. Others will probably be added to the list as the Centennial inter-est develops. From this group speakers may be had for any occasion upon which a Centennial speaker may be desired or given opportunity to be heard. Mrs. Yates will work particularly in connection with the Centennial music and songs that will be used generally.

Mrs. R. R. Townsend was named chairman of a committee to bring before the people all historical points in Dawson county. Everyone having anything of interest in this respect should see Mrs. Townsend.

Mrs. M. C. Lindsey was chosen to work with Mrs. Forrest in selecting some county wide method of voting a Centennial flower a shrub, and a tree. Mrs. Hardy Morgan and Mrs. Rountree were chosen to conduct a county wide essay contest for high school students in which attractive prizes will be offered, the subject to be on some phase of the Centennial question. Each of these committees will have detailed announcements to make at a later date.

In the mean time everyone should be thinking along these lines, reading the many useful articles appearing in the press, clipping statistics, gathering useful information, and be cooperative fully. Definite decisions have been made to hold a Centennial celebration, so let's line up our part to put it over in a creditable way.

Tornadoes Defeat Post 33 to 0 Friday

Lamesa Golden Tornadoes their first conference game of the year and their sixth consecutive win for this year, when they defeated Post Antelopes here last Friday night by a score of 33 to 0.

This was also the Tornadoes fifth consecutive win as their last was on the opening game of the 1933 season when they were defeated by Snyder. So far this year Tornadoes have scored 199 points on their opponents 19.

Antelopes offered considerable more competition however than indicated by the score. They were first team this year to make a touchdown through the Lamesa line in an up five first downs during the evening, more than has been given by the opposition in any previous game. Outstanding players for Antelopes were Dale Hester fullback and L. G. Thet quarterback.

Joe Jordan scored three of the team touchdowns, while Eugene Bell and Joe Harrell accounted for the other two, Harrell making his recovery a blocked field goal. Dude Gaines kicked the three points after touchdowns from the line.

Downs were Lamesa 14 and Antelopes gained 243 yards. Hester made Post's 73. Lamesa completed one pass of three for a gain of 20 yards. Antelopes completed two of nine tries for a gain of 100 yards.

One of the quickest plays of the season, with few being assessed and few being called.

"Why... I never knew that before!"

Scarcely a day passes that we do not hear this or some similar expression of complete surprise when some feature of the Gas Radiant Heater is demonstrated. Many, for instance, are astonished at its amazing efficiency... how it utilizes and consumes every particle of gas; leaving not even the slightest trace of odor... how it sends an instant flood of glowing heat to the far corners of the room... how simply and easily it may be adjusted to whatever room temperature is desired at the moment.

There are styles and colors to suit any decorative scheme. See your gas appliance dealer.

FILL THOSE EMPTY SOCKETS

It is considered poor housekeeping to have torn shades or faded draperies, and it is just as bad to leave empty light sockets in ceiling and wall fixtures. Not only do these vacant sockets, or sockets filled with blackened and burned-out globes look bad, but the decreased amount of light detracts from the appearance of the room.

Reports From County Clubs

By Miss Madeline Cox
Home Demonstration Agent
Dawson County

20,000 Containers of Food Have Been Canned

Reports coming in from approximately one hundred of the three hundred and fifty home demonstration club women in the county stated that over 20,000 containers of food had been canned by these 100 women this year. Various means of trading articles of food have been reported in order to supply the family pantry. There is much canning yet to do in the county.

There are many fall gardens which are producing amply both for fresh use and canning.

No definite report has come from the cheese demonstration, but approximately 100 women have made about 850 pounds of cheese since the demonstration in August. The savings on home made cheese is probably greater than on anything else.

Asparagus Well Suited to West Texas

Asparagus is a native plant of Europe and has been cultivated as a food plant for more than two thousand years. Asparagus is well suited to the climatic conditions of West Texas since the plants are well able to withstand considerable drought. Since it takes much time to secure a good asparagus growth, preparation should be made for it soon.

There is a ready market for both canned and fresh asparagus when prepared according to standardized processes. The rust-resistant Mary Washington variety of asparagus should be planted.

In establishing an asparagus bed, it is customary to use the one year old selected crowns from good seed. It is best to plant the crowns eighteen inches apart in deep furrows or trenches spaced about six feet apart. If the soil is not quite rich, quantities of well rotted stable manure should be mixed in the soil. The trenches should be gradually filled until the crowns are covered with 12 inches of soil.

Where the grower desires to grow his own seedlings, he should plant the seed in well prepared ground in a manner similar to that used in growing beans or peas. The seedlings will require about eleven months to reach transplanting size. The seed should be planted singly so as to allow a space of eight inches between the plants.

When the Klondike Home Demonstration Club, at their last meeting, had finished their study of books and magazines, they decided this could also be applied to our home club and community.

The program consisted of a round table discussion on "Let's Hold the Family Together with Good Books", "Household Helps from Magazines", was discussed by Mrs. A. L. Duff. "How farm papers help us make money," by Ruby Lee Latham. "Keep the children at home with good books," by Mrs. Buster Rhodes. At the conclusion of the program we enjoyed a Mother Goose rhyme contest.

Saturday morning, November 3, each member of the club is to meet with Mrs. W. C. McKenzie to begin work on our foundation patterns. Four yards of unbleached domestic, tape measure, paper of pins, needle, thimble and thread for basting is required. It was also decided that each one bring a dish for lunch.

Chicken sandwiches and hot chocolate were served to twenty-five members, five new members and one visitor.

Miss Cox will meet with us at 9 o'clock, Thursday, November 8. Every one is invited. —Reporter.

the earliest historic denizens of West Texas are to be attractions.

The era of Spanish exploration will be represented in a series of geographical displays showing routes of the explorers including that of Coronado, first to visit the Concho and Colorado rivers, of Mendoza in 1684 and of Vial and Maros. Reproduction of the temporary mission on the Concho and display of armor, weapons and accoutrements of Spanish soldiers and priests are planned.

To recall the frontier days, there are proposed a topographical display showing cordons of forts built across West Texas with a miniature reproduction of Fort Phantom Hill; a topographical display locating the principal engagements and peace conferences with Indians in this section and reproduction of a Concord coach and freight wagons to reinaugurate for the Centennial period mail service along the old Butterfield Trail between points to the northeast and southwest of Abilene.

The advent of the cattleman, the first permanent settler in West Texas will be commemorated with exhibits indicating the principal cattle trails and locations of early ranches, reproduction of a pioneer ranch headquarters and paraphernalia and features pertaining to phases of cattle industry.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Crawley have as their guests this week Mrs. Crawley's sisters, Mrs. S. D. Lyles and Mrs. John T. Davis and daughter Nixie Davis all of Throckmorton.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Planting cowpeas, terracing, and crop rotation enabled Byron Scott, Rains county farmer, to produce eight 600 pound bales of cotton on 12 acres even in a drought year, according to Roy King, farm demonstration agent, under whose guidance Mr. Scott carried on his soil rebuilding, moisture and conservation program.

Drouth may have affected some people's food supplies but the members of the Greenvine, Prairie Hill and Lafium home demonstration clubs in Washington county reported 9,165 containers of fruits and vegetables, fruit juices, meats, pickles, jams and jellies and preserves on their pantry shelves and fall vegetables yet to can.

As a part of their clothing work 250 home demonstration club women in Cherokee county report that they have made 165 foundation patterns and by them made 225 dresses and slips; built 25 new clothes closets and remodeled 100; made four sleeve pressing boards and two shoe racks.

Pooling and planting more than 100 acres of cabbage for carlot shipment, 114 members of the Galveston County Truck Growers Association are doing their bit to supply the country with green food this winter.

COMPTROLLER COMMENDS INSTITUTE OF BANKING

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The American Institute of Banking, said to be the most successful project of its kind in the field of applied adult education, has performed a valuable function in training bank clerks for "sound public service as well as personal success," J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, said here in a recent radio address. The institute is a section of the American Bankers Association.

"While imparting useful knowledge, it has improved the morale of banking personnel and has stimulated in its members an intelligent interest in national and international monetary problems," Mr. O'Connor said. "Its courses cover a wide field in banking. Among the subjects, one finds Bank Organization and Operation, Commercial Law, Negotiable Instruments Law, and Economics, in the Pre-Standard Division; followed by such subjects as Money and Banking, Credit Management, Financial Statement Analysis and Bank Management, in the Standard Division.

"Each and every subject is one which is necessary to a knowledge of banking. However, the institute does not stop here, but encourages graduate study in Corporation Finance, Trust Service, Farm Credit Administration and Business Forecasting. Again it emphasizes in special courses the importance of the less technical but highly beneficial study of Constructive Customer Relations, Banking Fundamentals and Public Speaking. No comment is necessary on these courses: their value is at once apparent."

BOOKLET ON FARM CREDIT

A booklet has been published by the Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association, on "Factors Affecting Farm Credit," for the purpose of furthering on a national scale the taking of farm inventories and the making of credit statements as sponsored by the commission in cooperation with the state colleges of agriculture and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The goal is better relationships between farmers and their banks.

The booklet is devoted to the types of loans generally required by farmers, the need for farm credit, how it can be obtained, when it is safe to borrow, what principles to follow to establish credit in advance of needs, and how both the lender and borrower are interested in a sound, productive farm credit.

FIRST CHOICE OF EXHIBIT SPACE AT AUTOMOBILE SHOW GOES TO CHEVROLET

First choice of exhibit space at the 1935 New York automobile show, awarded annually to the motor car manufacturer with the largest dollar volume sales, again went to Chevrolet this year. The drawing for the 1935 automobile show represents the eighth consecutive year in which Chevrolet has won the coveted first choice of space at the Grand Central Palace.

The system of giving the pick of the show positions to the exhibitor having the largest sales was established when the shows were under the management of the N. A. C. C. now the Automobile Manufacturers Association. The management of the 1935 show, the first to be held under the direction of the Automobile Merchants Association of New York, continued the system as the fairest basis on which to allot spaces.

Lamesa Hi-Life

The Golden Tornadoes will play this week's football game away from home, being scheduled with the Tahoka Bulldogs at their home field. Tahoka has shown considerable improvement this year over the past few seasons and many persons among the student body regret that this game also will not be played here.

The Band and Pep Squad are practicing to perform at the Slaton Tiger-Golden Tornado game which will be played at Slaton this year. Each organization is cooperating with the other that an excellent showing may be made.

The Golden Tornadoes found the opposition much tougher against Post than in 1933, but were able to win 33 to 0. Last year they won 50 to 0. The Antelopes could not muster up enough strength in the pinches to make a tally, although they did make five first downs.

The game was "laid on ice" for Lamesa early in the first quarter by a scoring play and each quarter thereafter saw the Tornadoes add to their score.

Lamesa and Slaton are now tied in conference honors, with Slaton having won two more games than Lamesa. Slaton has three victories to her credit, Lamesa has one, and each has yet to be defeated in conference play.

Our school motto is now "On to Slaton, November 12th."

Monday night of this week, the band and pep squad put on their program. It consisted of several stunts by members, an acrobatic dance by Ada Ballew, songs by Mary Frances Barpard, band concert, a play, pep squad chorus, the original German band, Our Gang Comedy, harmonica quartet, songs by Clyde Moore, and a three round blindfolded boxing match.

Rev. Thomas Massie pastor of the First Christian Church, gave an excellent address in assembly Wednesday morning. He made many very interesting remarks on "The Use of the Tongue."

The student body had the opportunity of listening, Thursday morning, to one of the most experienced and intelligent men in the United States. This man was "Uncle Bud" Robinson. He has just recently returned from the Holy Land and had many interesting things to tell. These and his well developed gift of speech made his address both interesting and inspiring.

Rev. Atterbury of Abilene visited in assembly Thursday morning in company of Rev. Dennis and "Uncle Bud" Robinson.

Mr. King's classes in Band and Orchestra have moved to the third floor in room number 303, for their recitation periods. These classes meet daily as is required of credit courses.

Three dozen folding chairs have been purchased for the relief of the seating demand in the school and to provide needed seats for the auditorium stage.

The Junior program was postponed in order that "Uncle Bud" Robinson might address the student body

A Few Services Offered by C. of C.

Here are a few services that any person in Dawson county can have, by asking, of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce:

Write a letter; get information on most anything; road and highway directions; free official highway maps of any state in the U. S.; draw up petitions, card of thanks, announcements, article for newspaper, letters of endorsement, affidavits; school information on schools of Dawson county; location and address of persons; City Directory Service; Trades Day information; Markets and Buyers Guides; train and bus schedules; gas, light and water rates; Dawson county farm survey (1930 Federal); History and development of Lamesa and Dawson county; rainfall past 20 years month by month; cotton production since 1920; information concerning any organization in Lamesa and Dawson county; daily newspaper publicity service; personal service (confidential); contact and proper introductions; hear customers grievances against merchants; hear merchants problems; deliver death messages; furnish data and information for programs; furnish speakers for school and community programs.

Ask your Chamber of Commerce; it will serve those who cuss it in the same manner of good grace as it does those who do not.

DON'T GRUMBLE

It's all right to cuss something if you know why you are cussing it and you have a good reason to cuss it. But just to be a constant grumbler with no reason on earth is like an old sore that all the good treatment applied has failed to heal. Good constructive criticism is always appreciated by sensible people, but when a batch of aching comes from some one who is anything but an example himself and is meant to tear down in place of build up, it cannot be welcomed.

One can get into such a rut of grumbling that he will criticize his best friend, or some organization that would do all it could to help him—just because some how he has mismanaged or has actually caused his own present unfavorable condition. Just like the rattler released from a trap where he would have died and as soon as he could well get his breath, bit his benefactor, just so some people do not appreciate the help they get from their friends. They take it for granted that they are due all help they get, and soon forget the good turn done them and are ready to sit back and help turn the spotlight on any fault or error the friend might make.

Some how we believe the world would be better off if God in His good graces and mercy would take such people unto Himself for a good working over. Wouldn't it be a fine place to live where there are no such people. But think what a place heaven would be if all the grumblers were there.

TEXAS CORN-HOG REFERENDUM SHOWS LARGE AFFIRMATIVE VOTE

College Station, Oct. 28.—Texas corn-hog contract signers voted more than ten to one in favor of a corn-hog program for 1935 and more than three to one in favor of a one-contract per farm program for 1936 according to the final figures in the Texas referendum compiled by E. M. Regenbrecht, Extension swine husbandman. The actual vote was 16,343 in favor of the 1935 program and 1,577 against it, while 13,106 favored the one-contract per farm and 4,956 opposed it.

Of the non-signers, 787 voted in favor of the 1935 program and 266 voted against it. This was nearly 3 to one. On question two 736 non-signers voted for it, and 327 voted against it.

In direct contrast with the Texas vote of approval is the vote recorded in Kansas. Fifty-nine counties there favored a 1935 program, but it was vetoed by a heavy negative vote in the eastern one-third of the state. Final results showed 17,429 signers voting in favor of it while 19,985 voted against it. Among the non-signers voting in approximately one-half of the counties, the count was 1,117 for and 4,130 against the program. It is estimated that not more than 30 per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots in the referendum.

The proposed one-contract-per-farm program was refused by a margin of 23,629 to 11,607 among signers, and 4,008 to 408 among non-signers.

The band played in assembly Friday morning.

Taxes to Raise Money For Centennial

Austin, Oct. 26. (Special)—Definitive proposals of the Texas Centennial Commission for financing the celebrations in 1936 at San Antonio, Houston, Goliad, Brenham, Nacogdoches, Huntsville, Gonzales, Galveston, Dallas and other cities are embodied in an omnibus occupation tax measure and a revised franchise tax bill introduced in the house. The bills provide that the taxes shall be in effect from January 1 1935 until December 31, 1936, although it is expected that amendments will be offered to terminate them when the sum agreed upon as an appropriation for the Centennial has been raised.

The franchise tax bill merely rewrites the existing statute and increases the amount by 20 per cent. There are modifications for companies now paying intangible assets taxes, which would be required to pay a franchise tax equal to one-tenth of the sum now proposed to be levied. Franchise taxes are levied on domestic and foreign corporations on the basis of that proportion of outstanding capital stock, surplus and undivided profits, plus outstanding bonds, notes and debentures, in the relation that the gross receipts from the Texas business bear to the total gross receipts of the corporation. The rate usually is 60c on the $1,000 for each $1,000 up to $1,000,000 and 30 cents on each $1,000 where the total is more than $1,000,000.

Gross receipts from electric energy, natural gas, artificial gas, telephone, telegraph, wireless and express companies would be assessed 1 per cent under the terms of the other bill. Other rates in the schedule are: an additional tax of 1-4 cent a barrel on the production of crude oil; 1-4 cent a gallon on cereal beverages; 5 cents a gallon on grape juice; 2 cents a gallon on fruit juices still drinks and mineral waters and 2 1-2 cents a gallon on fountain syrups.

Levies are provided on marble and slot machines of $25 for ten machines, $50 for twenty machines, and $10 for each additional ten machines operated by one person or concern. This would be in addition to an occupation tax of $2.50 on each machine taking a 5 cent coin and $1 on each machine taking a 1 cent piece.

Other levies proposed are: 50c a barrel on beer; 5 per cent of the amount wagered by every person on horse racing wagers; 1 cent on each 10c charged for admission to horse racing, wrestling, boxing, dance halls, motorcycle and automobile races, skating rinks and similar amusements; 1 cent on each 10 cents over 50 cents charged for admission to theatres, football, baseball and tennis.

All the proposed taxes would be in addition to existing levies except as relates to coin-operated machines for which the bill amends the existing provisions, but provides that there shall be no waiver of taxes now claimed but protested by the operators.

"3. Give all publicity possible to the request that all present owners of feed surpluses report these surpluses to the Federal Livestock Feed Agency, Kansas City.

"4. In reporting such feed surpluses which are available for sale the owners thereof should clearly state the quantity, the quality, and the approximate selling price for all kinds of feed available."

dead.

"I swear, Sparrow," said Smoky, huskily.

"You can trust me, too," added Jim.

"Wal, that's why I feel Hank must have done for the girl, too."

"Robbed Herrick!" exclaimed Slegum, incredulously. "Was there a fight?"

"Yes. But Hank might have avoided it. He drove the man crazy. Fellers, Hays'd steal coppers off a dead man's eyes—shore. But what he said he wanted was the girl fer ransom. Yet he picked a fight with Herrick an' beat him with a gun."

"Sparrow, how come you didn't tell us before?" asked Smoky, sternly.

"I'm beholden to Hank. But I will say that if I'd knowed his game I'd never have gone with him. After it was too late—wal, I stuck. An' I'd kept it secret. But I feel in my bones I'm done fer. So I'm squealin', an' I'm doin' it because Hays double-crossed you all."

"Reckon I'd have done the same. If Hank had a hold on me," conceded Smoky, generously. "Suppose you take a nip of whisky and tell us what happened."

"I'm hot enough without liquor. But I'll tell you. . . Gimme some more water."

After a moment Latimer drew a breath and resumed: "Hank kicked me because he had a hold on me. . . After you fellers left that night Hank went out an' got another horse. He had a saddle hid somewhere. We took them horses up the bench back of the house an' tied them. Then we went down toward the house."

"Ahh. He'd had this deal in mind all the time," said Smoky, nodding his head.

"Yes. Before we got to the house he told me he meant to hold Herrick up fer what money he had on hand—then steal the girl fer ransom. I opened my trap to kick again the girl part of it, anyway, but he cussed me somethin' fierce. I seen then he was floor. Next Hank ordered me to go out an' round to the girl's window. It was bright moonlight, but I didn't locate that window quick. An' at that I was guided to it by the girl's voice. . . Gimme another drink."

Latimer quenched his inordinate thirst again, while Jim and Smoky exchanged thoughtful glances over him.

"Wal, where was I? . . . When I straddled that window sill I seen the girl sitting up in bed, white as the sheets about her. Hank had a gun pointed at her head, an' he was sayin' if she yelled, he'd shoot. Then he told me to look around fer money an' jewels. I started that, keepin' an eye on them. The room was as moonlight as outdoors. Hank told her to git up an' dress for ridin'. She refused, an' he yanked her clean out of bed. 'Gurl,' he said, 'yore brother is hawg-tied down in the livin' room, an' if you don't do-as I tell you, I'll kill him. . . I'm taking you away fer ransom, an' when he pays up you can come home. So long's you're quiet we won't hurt you. . . At that she got up an' ran into a closet. I heard her sobbin'. He made her put on ridin' clothes an' pack what else she wanted. Meanwhile I found a heap of gold things an' diamonds, an' a package of money, still with the Wells-Fargo paper on it. These I stuffed in my pockets, an' I shore was a walkin' gold mine."

"How much was there?" asked Smoky, curiously, when Latimer paused to catch his breath.

"I'll come to that. . . We went out the window, an' Hank hustled her into the woods, with me follerin'. Soon we come to the horses, an' Hank put the girl up on the gray. He blindfolded her an' told me to see she didn't git away. The girl talked a blue streak, but she wasn't so scared, except when we heard a shot, then someone runnin' on hard ground. Hank come back pronto, pantin' like a lassoed bull. He said he'd run plump into Progar an' another of Heeseman's outfit."

"Miss Herrick," he says, "them fellers was bent on robbin' your brother—mebbe killin' him. I shot Progar, but the other got away. . . He tied the bundle on his horse, an' leadin' the girl's horse he rode up the mountain. We rode the rest of the night, stoppin' to rest at daylight. Hyar I turned the money an' trinkets over to Hank. He counted the money Herrick had turned over—somethin' more'n sixteen thousand—but he never opened the Wells-Fargo package I'd found in the girl's trunk. . . That's all, fellers. We rode till noon, meetin' you as agreed in the cedars."

"What was in that Wells-Fargo package?" asked Smoky, after a long pause.

"Money. Hundred-dollar bills. I tore a corner of the paper off. It was a thick an' heavy package."

"Ahh. So Hank went south with that an' the jewelry?"

"Yes. When he made the divvy hyar he give me his share of that sixteen thousand. It's hyar in my coat. You an' Jim air welcome to it. 'Cause where I'm goin'—I won't need any."

"Sparrow, it was a long story fer a sick man—an' hard to tell," said Smoky, feelingly. "Jim an' me will respect your confidence. An' if you pull through—as I hope you do—we'll never squeak. . . But, pard, don't be surprised at what comes off."

Five days later Sparrowhawk Latimer died during the night, after a short interval of improvement which gave his comrades renewed hope. He passed away alone, evidently in agony, to judge from his distorted face.

"Wal, I don't know but that Sparrow's better off," remarked Smoky, with pathos.

They buried him in his tarpaulin on the spot, and divided his effects among them by drawing lots.

"What'd you do with the money you found on him?" queried Hays.

"We didn't find none. Sparrow gave it to me an' Jim some days ago," replied Smoky.

"Reckon you better divide it."

"Ump-umm," rejoined Smoky, nonchalantly, his beady little eyes on the chief.

"Why not?"

"Wal, Sparrow wanted us to have it, not I reckon, because we took care of him when you forgot, but jest because he cottoned to us."

"Smoky, tell Hays the other reason," spoke up Jim.

"That'll wait, Jim. No hurry. An' I'm not so shore Sparrow wanted us to tell."

Hank Hays turned livid.

"Ahh. Mebbe you'd both be wise to stay shet up," he said and left.

"Fellers," said Brad Lincoln, turning to the others, "I've had a hunch all along there was a hitch in this deal. Air you with me in demandin' a showdown from Smoky an' Jim?"

"We shore air," rejoined Bridges, and Mac and Happy Jack expressed like loyalty.

"Smoky, you're square. If there's anythin', we want to know."

"Mebbe we can slick it over," replied Smoky, smoothly. "If we win all the boss' money—an' he'll shore be easy now with that gurl on his mind—I reckon there won't be any sense in tellin' at all. Eh, Jim?"

"I don't make any rash promises, Smoky," returned Jim. "I admire you a lot, Smoky, but I'm thinking you run this into the ground, in all justice these men ought to be told something."

"I say cards. You fellers can't keep it forever," rejoined Lincoln, darkly. From that hour dated the grim and passionate gambling in which they all participated. With one man on lookout duty the others spent most of the daylight hours sitting at Happy

When she came in wearing the royal robe with a huge bouquet of asparagus and autumn leaves, using a rake as a sceptre. Then Mrs. Eugene Yates read "When the Frost is on the Pumpkin", and Mrs. Fayne Wilkes concluded the program by singing "Shine on Harvest Moon", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Rupert Austin. Miniature Cornucopias overflowing with fruits and vegetables, were used as favors. While delicious pumpkin pie topped with whipped cream and coffee were served, Master Weldon Bryant sang much to the delight of all.

Real Estate Bears Too Much Tax Burden

"With a $12,000,000 treasury deficit this state is facing a financial crisis. The present legislative session is being urged to appropriate many millions more. Add to this the ever mounting relief burden and surely every citizen must realize that something must be done to equalize oppressive tax burdens.

Real estate and other tangible property simply cannot bear any further increases of the tax load. Not only that but the existing tax burden on real estate must be materially reduced.

While real estate and tangible property represent only half of the wealth of the state it bears 97 per cent of the tax burden. The other half such as stocks, bonds, money, notes, mortgages and other wealth only three per cent. This is decidedly unfair. The man who owns only a small equity in his home pays taxes on the full value while the mortgage holder pays no taxes at all.

This grave injustice in our tax system can be righted on November 6th if the oppressed tax payers will vote for the constitutional amendment that appears first on the ballot. Amendment No. 1 authorizes a classification of property for tax purposes and will enable the legislature to add millions to the tax rolls and will relieve real estate from a heavy burden.

Amendment No. 1 should not be confused with Amendment No. 3 on the ballot which seeks to place a per capita limit upon the state revenue. This would be ruinous to our schools. Every friend of the public schools should vote against this amendment.

The moneyed interests and designing politicians are trying to confuse either with the slogan "swat them all" or with absurd statement that manner affect the $3,000 homestead Amendment No. 1 might in some exemption. The men who fostered the Homestead exemption are the ones who are working in behalf of Amendment No. 1.

Fulfilling a campaign promise to talk frankly with the people about the problems of government, the party nominee for governor, James V. Allred, urges the citizens of this great state to think seriously before voting in the election Nov. 6th against Amendment No. 1.

Our real estate in Dawson county is over burdened with taxation while the big loan companies in the East that hold the mortgages on our land pay no taxes at all. I sincerely hope that you will give this some thought.

S. Richardson.

Miss Ruth McCormick of Lubbock spent the past week end here visiting her parents.

Miss Beth Pratt underwent an operation at a local hospital Monday. She is reported doing nicely.

Mrs. R. E. Echols and Mrs. Mike Key were Lubbock visitors Monday.

INCREASED OPPOSITION TO TAX AMENDMENT

San Antonio Oct. 29.—Increased interest in the proposed constitutional amendment which seeks to place a constitutional restriction on the power of the State to levy, collect, and spend taxes is evidenced in a report King, chairman of the Citizens Committee here by Col. M. J. E. committee on the Amendment. Active opposition to the amendment is developing in every section of the state the statement from Mrs. King's office said.

"The small taxpayers of Texas and those organizations and associations which have in mind the interest of the common people are awaking to the danger of this amendment and are realizing that its inevitable effect is to shift the tax burden from the large corporate interests on to the local tax payers who are already overburdened," Mrs. King said. It was stated that the amendment would limit the amount of taxes that could be imposed on special interests and would so reduce the revenue of the state that appropriations for state aid to rural and public schools would have to be slashed and the cost of maintaining the schools put almost entirely on the local communities.

Numerous organizations are now fighting the amendment, Mrs. King said, including the State Federation of Labor, the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, the Texas State Teachers Association and others. The State Democratic Convention recently adopted resolutions urging that the amendment be defeated.

James V. Allred, Democratic nominee for Governor, announced his opposition to the amendment last week. Tom Hunter of Wichita Falls, a candidate for Governor in the last Democratic primary, has issued a statement denouncing the proposed amendment.
