New Democratic Victories Stir President To Order G.O.P. To Redouble Fight

WHITE HOUSE GLOOMY AFTER MAINE DESERTS

Hoover Says Results Show Need for Increase In Party Efforts

CALLS FIGHT HARD

Sanders Tries to Assuage Shock by Citing G. O. P. Victory in 1880

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (US)—Surprised by the Democratic victories in Maine, President Hoover today ordered the Republican high command to redouble national campaign efforts.

Renewed energies are needed, the president said, so the American people "may fully understand" the Republican case.

The president's instructions were sent to Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, whose headquarters are in Chicago.

White House Gloomy

Mr. Hoover's telegram and Sanders' reply were given out late today at the White House, which had been steeped in gloom all day as reports constantly poured in of increasing Democratic majorities in the Maine state elections. The president said:

"The result of the election in Maine imposes need for renewed and stronger effort that the people may fully understand the issues at stake. We have known all along that, owing to the ravages of the world depression, our fight is a hard one; but we have a strong case and a right cause. Our task is to acquaint every man and woman in the country with the facts and issues which confront the nation.

"In periods of emergency and stress steadfast adherence to sound principles of government is indispensable to national security and a prerequisite to recovery in business, agriculture and employment.

"Adherence to these principles has served the country during the last 12 months from all manner of destructive panaceas. This adherence and the measures and policies we have adopted have preserved these principles and laid the foundation for recovery.

"Our chief concern now is that the work of reconstruction shall go

Toll of Boat Explosion Climbs as Bodies Found

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (US)—The total of lives lost when the steamship Observation sank last Friday after a boiler explosion was raised to 56 today, when 10 more bodies were recovered from the East river.

Two of the bodies were identified as Ray Johnson and John McIntyre, both of Queens. Neither had been reported among the list of missing, a fact that has given rise to the fear that still more victims may be unrecovered in the river.

Income Tax Lien Filed Against Rogers Hornsby

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13. (AP)—An income tax lien for $8,412 was filed in federal court today against Rogers Hornsby, recently ousted as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

The lien covers a tax claim for additional income in 1929 of $7,016.26. Penalties and interest bring the total claim to $8,412.

Examiners said they found money in the bank not listed in his tax return which they claim he did not explain at conferences with them. They said he paid the tax on his baseball income.

Poison Kills Adviser To Would-Be Suicides

BERLIN, Sept. 13. (UP)—Dr. Heinrich Dehmel, founder of the institute for advice to would-be suicides, killed himself by swallowing poison today. He was 42 years old.

'Baering' Down On The News

BY ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Got to hand Gene Tunney credit for grabbing Maine by the ears and holding on until it went Democratic.

Gene just finished a campaign tour in that state. He hopped from stump to stump swinging both hands. There was no heckling. Anything the champion said was endorsed by the majority.

Where did Tunney learn to be such a good talker? Why, arguing with his manager between rounds.

If you remember Gene's fights there were no smelling salts between rounds. There was no towel swinging or massaging. The boys just talked over Shakespeare and politics.

Then Gene would dash out and smack his opponent in the face with the contents of a public library. He used the same system in Maine which went Democratic for the first time in 18 years.

There are some incorrigible Republicans who claim Gene's Maine audiences were impressed by his footwork and his shadow boxing.

Looks like Gene is in line for a good job. The least he should get is the post of official knockdown timekeeper in Roosevelt's cabinet.

TRIO OFF ON OCEAN FLIGHT

Doctor to Make Scientific Study of Companions

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (US)—Dedicated to the cause of scientific research, the flying laboratory American Nurse, was roaring through the skies today on a non-stop flight to Rome.

A pilot, a doctor and a nurse were aboard, intent on studying each other's reactions during the prospective 30-hour flight.

At 7:16 a. m. today Pilot William Ulrich took the heavily loaded big white and yellow plane off the runway at Floyd Bennett field while Dr. Leon Pisculli and Miss Edna Newcomer settled themselves with professional calm.

Study Effects

Weather conditions were reported perfect, and the trio expected no trouble on their transatlantic hop.

Dr. Pisculli announced that his sole purpose in making the flight is to use the plane as a laboratory and his two co-passengers as subjects. He intends to study the effects of a long flight on the human body and he hopes to learn something of fatigue—its causes and perhaps its cure.

Miss Newcomer, trained nurse, will assist Dr. Pisculli in his work, acting as both subject and laboratory assistant, and in between times she will relieve Pilot Ulrich at the controls.

She plans to make a parachute jump as the plane is passing over Venice, to demonstrate the practicability of landing physicians and nurses in stricken areas during such catastrophes as floods or earthquakes, when landing a plane is impossible.

Heavily Laden

Spectators shivered in the early morning chill as the big plane, carrying 800 gallons of gasoline, roared down the runway. It seemed for a few minutes as if it would not be able to lift the great weight, but it finally lifted slowly from the ground and headed northeast for Cape Cod, disappearing in the blue morning mists.

Ulrich proposed to take the south-

Maine Victory Elevates Spirit of Party In Middle West

CONFERS IN MISSOURI

Roosevelt to Outline His Farm Relief Plans In Topeka Speech

By ROBERT BARRY
Correspondent En Route With Governor Roosevelt

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 13. (US)—The tide has definitely turned from Republican leadership and the Maine elections are a "forerunner of the faith of the country in the Democratic party and its representatives," Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt declared tonight in a telegram of congratulation to Louis Brann, Democratic victor in the Maine gubernatorial contest.

Addressing the governor-elect as "Dear Judge," Roosevelt, in a message sent from St. Louis, said:

"I cannot tell you how pleased I am to get the reports today of your marvelous victory in Maine. Considering the forecast by the Republicans, it must be a source of great satisfaction to you and your loyal supporters of all parties to have achieved this victory.

Tide Is Changed

"The tide in this country has definitely turned from the Republican leadership and your election yesterday is a forerunner of the faith of the country in the Democratic party and its representatives. With best wishes to you for a successful administration."

Roosevelt sent messages of congratulation to E. Carl Moran Jr., of Rockland, and John Utterback, of Bangor, Democratic winners of congressional seats, and one of regreat and appreciation for a "great fight" to Judge J. E. F. Connolly, of Portland.

The Republican debacle in Maine inspired a great jollification party of Missouri Democrats here.

Accused Bank Robber Wounded by Officers

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 13. (UP)—Jack Sullivan, 20, said by police to have confessed to the robbery of a bank in Olton, Texas, was critically wounded when he was captured by a sheriff's posse near here late today.

May Cuban, 20, of Gonzales, Texas, Sullivan's companion, was shot three times but her wounds were not critical. Sullivan was brought to a hospital here with three bullet holes in his body by Sheriff J. R. Crim, of Lamb county, Texas, and deputies Zeb Payne and Tom Mathews who shot him.

European Cartel to Buy Wheat From Farm Board

PARIS, Sept. 13. (AP)—A European grain cartel composed of French, English and American middlemen is ready to buy 50,000,000 bushels of wheat from the United States Farm board for distribution in Europe, officials of the organization said today. They added that the farm board is dickering with them to purchase larger amounts.

The International Commodities Trading corporation announced today the completion of arrangements by which the French government would exchange 1,000,000 bushels of farm board wheat for Indo-Chinese zinc.

Sunken Plane Found By Fishing Trawler's Net

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13. (INS)—Naval authorities were attempting today to identify the wreckage of a United States navy single-seated fighting monoplane, brought to the surface of the ocean 12 miles south of here by a fishing trawler's net.

The mystery plane had the letters "XY" painted on the tail surface. The plane, which had evidently been in the water about a year, appeared to be from an aircraft carrier, as the tail skid ended in a hook.

Flying Hutchinson Family Safe After Rescue In Fjord By British Steamer

ANGMAGSSALIK, Greenland, Sept. 13. (US)—Safe after two nights among the menacing ice floes of the Greenland coast, the flying Hutchinson family was landed safely here this afternoon by Capt. Thomas Watson of the British steam trawler Lord Talbot.

After all hope for their safety had been abandoned, Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchinson, their two little daughters, Kathryn and Janet Lee, and their crew of four were rescued by the Lord Talbot from Ikersuak fjord, where their plane had drifted after being forced down Sunday afternoon.

The refugees were put ashore at Finnsbu, a wireless station adjoining Angmagssalik, and after sending messages confirming their safety, proceeded here, where they were being sheltered tonight by the governor of Greenland.

The shivering little band of adventurers, who set out to make a transatlantic flight to London, was located by the Lord Talbot early today, after being lost on the desolate Greenland coast for more than 33 hours.

Huey Long's Man Holds Lead Over Sen. Broussard

(By The Associated Press)

Candidates for local, state and national offices were chosen in primaries in eight states yesterday with prohibition an issue in most of the contests.

Representative John Overton running for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Louisiana, with the support of Senator Huey Long, early took a two-to-one lead over Senator Edwin S. Broussard.

In Michigan two supporters of the drw laws who were defeated in 1930 held slight leads on the basis of early returns. Vermont voters gave a three-to-one lead to Representative Ernest W. Gibson, Republican, who favored resubmission, against a repealist opponent.

Senator E. D. Smith, who ran on the Democratic platform including its prohibition repeal plank, defeated former Senator Cole L. Blease in South Carolina's run-off primary for the Democratic nomination.

The first scattered returns in Washington's Republican primary gave Senator Wesley L. Jones, who sponsored the Jones "five and ten" enforcement law, a narrow lead over Adam Beeler, repeal candidate, for his party's nomination to the senate, but were too few to indicate the outcome.

Senator George H. Moses, prominent in national Republican politics, was renominated in New Hampshire. Fred H. Brown, public service commissioner, apparently was to be his Democratic opponent on face of early returns.

In Arizona Gov. George W. P. Hunt was trailing B. B. Moeur in early ballots in the Democratic gubernatorial race.

ERROR DELAYS NEW TAX LAW

Oversight Might Cost State Large Revenues

AUSTIN, Sept. 13. (UP)—Discovery that the special session of the Texas legislature has freed corporations and others of thousands of dollars of penalties on delinquent taxes in its hurried attempt to give relief to home and farm owners was made here today.

The error was in including all in the penalty and interest remission, while only ad valorem taxes were intended.

It was not discovered until the bill had been signed by the governor and filed in the office of the secretary of state.

An effort to correct the bill was made just before the house closed tonight when Representative Harry Graves of Williamson county and others offered a bill re-enacting the tax remission but applying it only to ad valorem taxes.

As the penalty remission does not become effective until the delinquent tax is paid, it is believed the corrective bill will prevent a large part of the loss. Several days will be required to pass the new act and until it is passed the remission is open to all who pay.

The error also is expected to delay adjournment of the session. The house voted to quit at noon Friday. If the senate agrees when it meets tomorrow, the rules regarding hours of closing action, would bar the tax correction bill.

Los Angeles Unemployed Ask to Stage Parade

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13. (US)—Request for permission to stage a "hunger march" in Los Angeles next Oct 3 threw city council into verbal pandemoninm for almost an hour today, the matter finally being referred to the police commission.

Presented by the unemployed council of Los Angeles and the Workers' Ex-Service league the request declared that the march would be orderly to the hall of records, where demand would be presented to the county supervisors for unemployment relief.

LEGION MEET TO VOTE FOR BONUS TODAY

14th Annual Convention Of War Vets Under Way In Portland, Ore.

BALLOT ON REPEAL

Proposal to Censure Hoover Doomed to Defeat, Is Leader's Forecast

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 13. (US)—A resolution favoring immediate payment of the bonus will be presented to American Legion delegates at the opening session of their 14th national convention here tomorrow morning.

Every indication points to an overwhelming vote for the resolution and no debate is expected.

"There will be no steamroller tactics," National Commander Henry L. Stevens declared after the resolutions committee had made its announcement late today. "I do not expect there will be any debate. However, the delegates will be free to debate the issue if they so desire."

Hoover Resolution

Possibilities of debate rested with Sam Reynolds of Nebraska. As an opponent of the bonus, he is expected to bring the resolution to the convention floor in the form of a minority report.

Whether or not the resolution censuring President Hoover for the administration's treatment of the bonus army at Washington will reach the convention floor was in doubt.

The resolution is in the hands of the policies committee, and those close to the inner workings of the legion predicted tonight it would be killed. The policies committee will also make its report Wednesday.

Although the day was officially dedicated to the legion's "big parade," those handling the delegated power of the legion worked feverishly to whip their forces into line.

Demand Repeal

The bonus question is considered certain of quick settlement on a resolution demanding immediate payment. A three to one margin was predicted tonight.

Reports from sources close to the inner workings of the huge military organization state that the legionnaires will turn thumbs down on the 18th amendment and demand its immediate repeal.

Nearly 900 of the 1,289 accredited delegates have lined up for repeal, authoritative sources declare. A third of the remainder have voted to uphold the amendment, with the others unreported.

Efforts to pass resolutions censuring President Hoover for employing troops to disperse the bonus army are certain of defeat, although those backing the resolutions claim substantial gains since the convention started yesterday. The censure resolution is certain to appear on the convention floor, the Pennsylvania delegation having passed a resolution yesterday recommending that their delegate member of the resolutions committee bring it out as a minority report should the majority of the committee turn it down.

Assassin Of Doumer Dies on Guillotine

PARIS, Sept. 14. (UP)—(Wednesday)—Paul Gorgouloff, half-mad Russian adventurer, died on the guillotine at Sante prison at dawn today for the assassination of President Paul Doumer of France.

The knife of the guillotine fell at dawn 6:03 a. m.

Gorgouloff's head fell into the basket and his body thumped into a zinc lined wicker casket. All happened so rapidly that the group of lawyers, officials and journalists permitted to witness the execution at close range scarcely saw it.

Many yards away from the guillotine which was at the doorway of Sante prison on the Boulevard d'Arago, stood thousands of the morbidly curious who had waited several hours throughout the night. They were not permitted nearer than the two ends of the boulevard.

Escaped Prisoners Hunted in Oklahoma

POTEAU, Okla., Sept. 13. (AP)—Eight escaped prisoners, including an accused murderer and a bank robbery suspect, were hunted in eastern Oklahoma hills today.

They escaped from the Poteau county jail last night after overpowering Jailer L. H. Gassaway. He was left locked in a cell.

Among the fugitives were Eskew Sikes of Spiro, charged with murder, and R. E. Sutton, charged with robbery of the Central National bank here Dec. 26.

Sterling Files Suit In Effort To Nullify Ferguson Nomination

Governor's Petition Claims 20,000 Illegal Votes Cast For Woman Nominee, and That Numerous Irregularities In Balloting Were Permitted at Polls

AUSTIN, Sept. 13. (UP)—Gov. Ross S. Sterling today filed a contest in 126th district court here against the nomination of Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson as Democratic candidate for governor, charging she received 20,000 illegal votes.

Mrs. Ferguson earlier today received the official nomination of the Democratic state convention at Lubbock, where the state Democratic committee certified she had a majority of 3,333 votes over Sterling on a canvass of the vote of the Aug. 27 run-off primary.

Claims Majority

The petition set forth that Sterling received a majority of the "legal" votes cast in the primary election and "was regularly elected" by a majority of the qualified votes but that he failed to receive the certification of nomination from the state Democratic committee.

Sam McCorkle, Mexia district attorney, brought the petition into court. It was signed by McCorkle, M. M. Crane, Dallas; C. S. Bradley, Mexia; S. J. Callaway, Fort Worth, and R. A. Stuart, Fort Worth, as attorneys for Sterling. The governor was in Lubbock at the state convention at the time of filing.

No date for the hearing has been set by Judge W. F. Robertson. Oral presentation of the petition to the court may be made tomorrow.

Grounds for the contest as set out were:

That at the run-off primary Aug. 27 many thousands of illegal votes were cast for Mrs. Ferguson and that many thousands of voters not qualified to vote were allowed to do so and that "upwards of 20,000 illegal votes" were cast and counted for Mrs. Ferguson, sufficient to keep her from receiving the nomination if thrown out.

That in the counties of "Gregg, Smith, Rusk, Upshur, Montgomery and others upwards of 3,000 votes" were allowed to be cast for Mrs. Ferguson by voters who did not reside in Texas.

That in Dallas, Tarrant, Harris and other counties upwards of 3,000 votes were cast out by election judges and not counted because they allegedly were defaced or mutilated in that the voter had crossed out portions of the ballot, while such ballots were not illegal or void.

That in "certain sections" of Texas "certain supporters and election officials" took thousands of transients from freight trains and the streets, although they were not citizens of Texas or the counties in which they voted, and were allowed to vote and their votes counted.

Out-of-State Voters

That in counties along the boundaries, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas residents were transported by trucks or other means and "induced and allowed" to vote.

That Ferguson supporters in "some sections" prepared unofficial ballots designated "out-of-state voters" and furnished them to non-residents.

That negroes were allowed to vote in many counties despite instructions from the state Democratic executive committee to the contrary and that such votes "in practically every instance" were against Sterling.

That "numerous and varied fraudulent votes" were cast and tabulated in "numerous sections" controlled by election judges favorable to Mrs. Ferguson.

That Mrs. Ferguson is not legally qualified to be a candidate because "at the time of her candidacy and now she is and was a married woman, the wife of James E. Ferguson who is now and has been a lawyer duly qualified to practice law in the state of Texas and the said Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson is therefore not qualified to take the oath of office of governor and was not legally entitled to submit her name to be voted upon at such primaries."

Court Overruled

This last provision is believed to be based on the Texas statute by which a wife and husband have an equal share in each other's earning and the constitutional provision against a governor receiving any salary, award, compensation, or promise of compensation from any person for any service rendered during the time of holding the governorship.

An effort to keep Mrs. Ferguson's name off the ballot on this last ground was made when she was elected before, but overruled by the courts.

Farm Produce Receipts Continue Small in Iowa

SIOUX CITY, Sept. 13. (US)—Receipts of farm produce in Sioux City continued far below normal today although the farm strike was effective on only a few highways.

Shippers and truckers still feared interference with their shipments and hesitated to send livestock and produce to market. The stock yards reported low receipts. The same was true in respect to poultry and eggs.

Valley Development Directors Decry High Prices Asked For Land In Area

Attention of the directors of the Wichita Valley Development association in session Tuesday afternoon at the chamber of commerce offices was focused on the wide variance between the amounts landowners are asking per acre for their land and the rendition per acre on the water improvement district tax rolls.

It was pointed out that many tracts are being held for $100 or more per acre, while at the same time the identical tracts are rendered for taxation as low as from $20 to $25 per acre. Members of the board were outspoken over the conditions as reported and the attitude of several landowners.

The board members at the last meeting considered the policies of the association in view of the lack of cooperation of landowners, and members were instructed to sound out the organization membership relative to continuance of their work.

The association has under consideration offers and many applications for land from prospective home owners and settlers in the area, but the price and terms post-

Ferguson Forces Capture Complete Control Of State Convention

'JIM' PENS PLATFORM

Wild Confusion Marks All Day Session of Party At Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Texas, Sept. 13. (AP)—Texas Democrats in state convention today gave their party nomination for governor to Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, who already had served the commonwealth as chief executive.

The convention adjourned at 6:15 p. m.

She was presented to the democracy in a demonstration of fervor and enthusiasm for the woman candidate who defeated Gov. R. S. Sterling, incumbent, in one of the state's closest primary elections, there being but 3,798 votes between them out of nearly one million ballots counted.

Governor Sterling filed a suit in Austin to contest Mrs. Ferguson's nomination almost simultaneously with her nomination. He maintained there were many law violations and irregularities in the primary which produced the nominee. He said he had obtained a majority of the legal votes cast.

Jim Receives Plaudits

James E. Ferguson, impeached governor-husband of the woman nominee, shared the convention's plaudits. He had not been able to be a candidate in his own name because of a constitutional provision that one impeached and removed from state office never again could accept official preferment.

Mrs. Ferguson was chosen governor in 1924 in a campaign in which she sought "vindication of the family name" from odium said to have been placed on it by the impeachment incident.

The Fergusons had implanted themselves firmly in the political saddle of Texas and their friends were here in a great throng to see that their feet were properly fitted into the stirrups.

Dan Boone Named

Governor Sterling was in town, too, but he never did come to the convention hall, where the Fergusons basked in a series of popularity incidents. The convention was thoroughly friendly to "Ma" and "Pa" Ferguson, and the Sterling forces were given a rebuke, when it declined to place on the new party executive committee Charles I. Francis of Wichita Falls, staunch friend of Sterling and supporter of his move to have the election contested. Dan Boone of Wichita Falls was named to succeed Francis.

Marcellus Foster of Houston, newspaper publisher, addressed the convention after he had been introduced as "the greatest journalist in the South."

Wright Morrow of Houston, spoken of as a possible candidate for governor in the first primary, also spoke to the delegates.

"It should not be necessary for me, a Democrat, to make the statement that the nominees of the Democratic party are my nominees," he said.

"I have never deviated from that duty of being a Democrat and supporting its nominees and I never shall shirk that duty."

Francis Opposed

D. D. Harrigan of San Antonio protested the election of Charles I. Francis of Wichita Falls, as executive committeeman from the 23rd district. Francis, as the choice of his district, was championed by Albert Sidney Johnson of Dallas.

Harrigan charged that Francis had been unfair in his work with the executive committee, especially in his attitude toward Mrs. Ferguson. He wanted to seat T. R. Boone in his stead.

An argument ensued on the floor in which many speakers participated while shouts of "throw him out" were heard from the floor.

McDonald pleaded with the crowds to be "Democrats and give both sides a hearing as the convention reached a state of complete disorder. There was as much confusion on the speaker's platform as in the assembly. It was several minutes before order was restored. Meanwhile, former State Senator Paul Page of Bastrop held the floor and refused to yield in the face of the opposition from the convention.

The convention accepted a report of the committee proposing nominations for executive committee with the exception of Francis.

Francis had been a loyal supporter of Gov. R. S. Sterling and sympathizer with his move to contest Mrs. Ferguson's nomination.

Permanent Chairman John H. Bickett of San Antonio spoke briefly.

"I can only say that I will give you the best in me," Bickett said. "This is the greatest uprising of democracy that has ever occurred in the history of our state. But the action of this convention is nothing unless you conduct yourselves at the polls in November in keeping with the traditions of your forefathers."

Denies Illegal Votes

Bickett described those protesting the nomination of Mrs. Ferguson as "Democrats who require an adjective and a name to describe them." He said the protest was a farce and an injustice.

"They know that no illegal votes were cast," Bickett said. "They were warned in the first primary. Why didn't they in the second primary, guard against what they claimed happened in the first primary."

Paving the way for the formal nomination of Mrs. Ferguson, Bickett charged the convention to bear in mind that "Texas must go down the line for the full Democratic ticket in November." Like other speakers during the day, he referred to John N. Garner, Democratic nominee for vice president.

"If you don't want four more years of Hooverism, you had better vote the straight ticket in November," he said.

The resolutions committee voted to adopt and recommend to the general convention the platform as outlined by Ferguson, modified only by an amendment offered by Senator W. K. Hopkins of Gonzales that the party pledge itself to a program of reducing government expenditures at least 25 per cent.

Consider Resolutions

A subcommittee took under consideration the resolutions that were offered from the floor. They included one that would change the method of nominating candidates, offering the choice of the preferential ballot or the old convention form which would submit two names to the people in one primary.

Mrs. Cecil Smith of Sherman was another woman Democrat to speak at the convention.

S. W. Adams, a Gladewater newspaper man, addressed the convention. Adams was a bitter critic of Governor Sterling in the campaign.

He said he was glad to look "in the faces of the most honest yeomanry that ever had gathered in Texas."

Mrs. Volney Taylor of Brownsville addressed the convention. Ed Hussion of Houston, and Luther Nickels of Dallas made addresses.

Committee Rosters

The permanent organization committee report was adopted, making officers as follows: John H. Bickett of San Antonio, chairman; vice chairmen, Mrs. John M. Loving of Austin, Frank S. Roberts and Frank Hammond, both of Houston; secretary, Eugene Smith of San Antonio; assistant secretaries, Miss Bertha Kuntz, Mrs. Sol Wolf and Miss Daisy May Humphrey; sergeant at arms, Lee Beaty of Lockhart; assistant sergeants at arms, Carlton Moore, J. H. Maddox, Geo. M. Defferari, Sam T. Johnson, W. O. Hall, T. W. Hillman, W. F. Sebastian.

Members of the new executive committee were J. I. Wheeler, Texarkana; R. Young, Gregg county; Summers Norman, Cherokee county; C. W. Howth, Jefferson county; L. A. Barnes, Cameron; W. T. Todd, Anderson county; Walter Jones, Wood county; J. K. Brim, Sulphur Springs; Rice Maxey, Sherman; Carl Arnold, Greenville; John Davis, Dallas; W. I. Hooks, Itasca; Harold Knop, Waco; C. M. Confusion Reigns

The convention was marked with confusion throughout, as men and women crammed the small convention hall and others surged around the doors, unable to get in.

The closeness of the vote and bitterness engendered between the candidates during the campaign influenced the unusual political interest.

The party adopted a brief platform, which pledged the candidates principally to "a very material reduction in taxes." It endorsed the "10-plank platform" on which Mrs. Ferguson made her successful candidacy.

Mrs. Ferguson was presented to the convention by Col. Alvin Owsley of Dallas, former national commander of the American Legion.

Keynoter

C. C. McDonald, Wichita Falls, "brought down the house" at the Lubbock Democratic convention with his keynote address. Mr. McDonald was temporary chairman of the convention.

The hall went into an outburst of cheering when Mrs. Ferguson stepped forward to speak to the delegates. The demonstration continued for a long period. James E. Ferguson and the gubernatorial couple's daughters, Mrs. George Nalle and Mrs. Stewart Watt, both of Austin, all were cheered as they rose to also cheer for "Ma."

Mrs. Ferguson said she would be the "governor of all the people."

"I appeal to every patriotic citizen regardless of his political affiliations to lay aside personal feelings and signify his willingness for general cooperation so necessary for the common good," she said. "Let me set the example by declaring here and now that I will welcome advice and counsel of every good citizen as to how best carry on the affairs of government whether you voted for me in the election or not.

"Let me say to the opposition that I not only need your help, but want it, and I crave opportunity to show that I am to be the governor of all the people.

"I congratulate this convention upon its courage to carry out the will of the great Democratic masses of our state."

She said her victory at the polls in November was "a foregone conclusion."

Expresses Confidence

Confidence in the outcome also was expressed by James E. Ferguson, who addressed the convention after his wife had made her speech. The throng shouted for "Jim, Jim." The demonstration when he took the floor was even more intensive than the one that was accorded the nominee.

"We had our fun in the campaign," Ferguson said. "They poured it on me and I poured it on them. They lost and we won. Some still want to fight about it, but I don't think that attitude will survive very long.

"It is the same old crowd that bolted in 1924 when my wife was the nominee. My wife will be elected governor of Texas and all hades cannot stop that. If they want to contest her nomination let them hop to it.

"The Democrats have recorded their verdict. The storm has passed and we now are looking to the future. I am not taking any notice of this claimed opposition in November. There always are some disgruntled ones who do not want to take their political medicine."

Francis Replaced

Francis was replaced on the executive committee by T. R. Boone of Wichita Falls. There was an uproar when the move to leave Francis off started. Many delegates tried to address the chairman. Some of them rushed to the stage, where former Senator Paul Page of Bastrop was trying to make himself heard to denunciate the Fergusons.

The Fergusons were sitting near Page and at one stage of the controversy Mrs. Ferguson showed a disposition to pour oil on the troubled waters, but she never did intervene.

Maury Hughes of Dallas was made chairman of the new state executive committee. C. C. McDonald of Wichita Falls was temporary chairman and keynoter. John H. Bickett Jr., of San Antonio was permanent chairman.

The convention called on the new executive committeemen, before they were nominated, to pledge themselves to support the nominees of the party "from governor to constable" and to stand behind the national party standard bearers.

Owsley told the convention that "Texas needs Jim Ferguson and Miriam; Texas will be true to them and they will be true to Texas."

"This is a great hour of satisfaction for those who followed them so long and so faithfully," Owsley said.

Brief Platform

The convention followed the example set by the national Democratic convention in Chicago in adopting a brief platform. Mrs. Ferguson's 10 planks constitute the bulk of the document, which was written by James E. Ferguson.

It evaded entirely the prohibition issue which had been expected to develop into one of the party's big fights.

Ferguson was invited to appear before the resolutions committee to outline a platform that would be favorable to the administration of his wife. When his recommendations had been read they met with such hearty approval from the committee that they were adopted as the party platform, with only three dissenting votes.

State Senator W. K. Hopkins succeeded in amending the platform with four words which pledged the party to a reduction of "at least one-fourth" in public expenditures.

Ferguson pleaded for party harmony, and especially urged the committee to stay off the liquor question.

"Please do not go on record as being opposed to the national platform's prohibition plank," Ferguson said. "I am as good an anti as the best, and it is my opinion that the national platform handles the matter to the satisfaction of all."

Allegiance to Founders

Briefly, the platform reaffirmed the allegiance and devotion of Texas Democrats to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson, endorsed the national platform and the national nominees, endorsed the majority vote of the people in the last Democratic primary," and especially Mrs. Ferguson, and her 10-plank platform, pledged the party to promote and aid agriculture and the rights of labor, and to materially reduce taxes and expenditures.

Mrs. Ferguson's 10 planks were those on which she and her husband campaigned for election.

The resolutions committee, in addition to the platform, adopted three resolutions, one of which rebuked the old executive committee for its action in charging illegal voting in the run-off primary and asking for a recount to determine "the true vote" cast.

Another endorsed a proposed amendment which would authorize legislative appropriation for the Texas centennial in 1936, and the third endorsed the cash payment of the soldiers bonus and memoralized Texas congressmen and senators to vote for such a measure.

The executive committee heard a resolution recommending amendment of the Terrell election laws, and a change in the method of nominating state officials. The resolution offered the choice of a preferrential ballot or the old convention form which would place two names on the ticket for one primary.

Hunter Introduced

During the recess for committee meetings, Tom F. Hunter, Wichita Falls oil man who ran third in the first primary, was ushered to the speaker's platform.

"The chair takes pleasure of introducing a true Democrat," said temporary Chairman McDonald.

The convention hall rocked with applause when Hunter announced that he had "always supported and always will support the nominee of the party from president down to precinct offices." "Your nominee is my nominee," he said.

"Whether I shall ever be acclaimed as a leader, I want the plain people of Texas to know that I will always be your warrior," Hunter said.

The convention was more orderly during Hunter's address than at any other time during the session. He discussed many of the problems that came under the fire of his oratory during his campaign in the first primary, including taxes, government expenditures and class legislation.

Charles C. McDonald of Wichita Falls, temporary chairman and keynoter, brought forth a burst of approval when he praised the national party presidential candidates.

McDonald was escorted to the platform by his fellow townsman, Charles I. Frances, and other members of the committee on organization and credentials.

There wasn't much room for Gov. R. S. Sterling's friends in the enthusiastic Ferguson convention. The governor, defeated by Mrs. Ferguson in a close race, was in town, but he did not come into the convention hall, although he announced yesterday he would "meet Jim Ferguson on the floor of the convention" and fight it out with him for the nomination. He claimed he had received a majority of the "legal votes cast."

Refers to Garner"

"More than two months ago there was a big convention of Democrats in session in Chicago," McDonald said. "When it appeared that the convention was deadlocked, there came a message from John Garner of Texas that he would release his delegates in the interest of harmony in the party. That man is going to be our next vice president.

"From the campaign just ended in behalf of honest government has emerged our leader here today. Against her were called the press, radio, big interests and 1,000 speakers. She won an undying and glorious victory.

"It is evident now that the votes were legally cast and those counting the ballots, including her political foes, have approved her nomination to you. She must, then, have been legally elected.

"By her side will be that great political figure whom people have come to love because of his many political enemies—the greatest of them all—James E. Ferguson." The crowd applauded wildly.

Reminded of Pledge

McDonald frequently referred to a paper on the desk before him. "During the campaign just ended the voters knew that either Mrs. Ferguson or Ross S. Sterling would be the nominee," McDonald continued. "They pledged themselves to support the nominee, knowing full well that one of these two would be the nominee. It is now their duty to carry out that pledge."

"Two years ago it was necessary for Mrs. Ferguson to go to the polls in November and vote for the man who defeated her in the primary. Like Alfred E. Smith, the present chief executive of Texas has seen the tables turned and now doesn't want to take the medicine.

"Texas Democracy has met here to spank him, hold his nose and make him take it.

"The rank and file of Sterling's supporters are not in sympathy with his actions. They are true Democrats and I must say that a man never had truer friends.

Pleads for Harmony

"Let us bury petty differences and strife. Let us get together to develop the resources of Texas and reap the benefits therefrom. It is truely the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party.

"Let me indulge the hope that the convention, as a party, will approve the choice of the people as expressed at the polls, adopt a strong platform and pledge ourselves to a program on which we can go forward to greater things."

Delegates in Great Numbers

Delegates had come in great numbers, most of them wearing Ferguson badges, evidently bent on seeing "Ma" and "Pa" Ferguson through this threat of contest. Word having sifted through the countryside that Mrs. Ferguson's nomination might be taken from her, the faithful gathered in great numbers.

The convention hall was small and dark. It was soon filled, packed to the walls. A great mass of humanity surged around all streets surrounding it. Delegates who did not come in early were out of luck. There wasn't any chance to get in after the building became filled. Once in it was difficult to get out.

The convention cheered, stamped and whistled when the woman victor over Governor Sterling came to the platform on the arm of her husband.

Colorful Demonstration

The din lasted for minutes. It was a colorful demonstration in the small and dark convention hall, packed with humanity.

Tom F. Hunter, who ran third in the first primary, came in alone and walked to the front for a seat. The convention was in such tumult that his appearance passed unnoticed. Many of his friends stopped him, however, to shake hands as he came down the aisle. Hunter announced yesterday that he probably would be a candidate for governor in 1934.

ed by landowners are proving unattractive and many prospective settlers are becoming discouraged and looking to other sections of the state in view of the situation.

One member of the board stated that city property of the small home owner is taxed on a basis of more than it will sell for, while acreage near the city in the irrigated valley is only taxed on about 25 per cent of the price the owner may expect to receive in a sale.

Drastic action is promised next year when valuations of the land for taxation are set.

The board discussed plans for showing a model of the irrigation canal system during the golden jubilee this month. The site for the display will be seclected later. The display also will offer various exhibits of irrigated valley products and of home economics work handled by the farm home clubs of the county.

Poling Fails In Search for Robins

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (UP)—Dr. Daniel A. Poling, the prohibitionist, left for New York by plane today without finding a trace of his old friend, the missing Col. Raymond Robins.

"I checked all clews personally and talked with the people who thought they saw him, but none of the descriptions were the same," said Dr. Poling. "All hospitals and lodging houses were checked. Now I have no clues at all.

"When I came here from Portland, Ore., I hoped and prayed that Robins was here. Now I am exceedingly disappointed."

Dr. Poling said reports from his New York associates indicated that his search also would be vain there, but that he intended to continue the hunt.

national commander of the legion turn into the home stretch.

Three candidates who hold the spotlight are George W. Malone of Carson City, Nev.; Frank N. Belgrano Jr. of California and Luis Johnson of West Virginia.

The first "break" in the race came today when the New York delegation voted in caucus to cast their 91 votes for Malone. The decision greatly enhances the Nevadan's position.

Some of the committees have been increased in number to handle the controversial issues.

The legislative committee, of which Harry W. Colmery of Kansas is chairman, increased the subcommittee considering the bonus resolution from five to nine, a majority of which favor payment. Sam Jones of Louisiana leads the opposition, while Ray Fields of Oklahoma and Congressman Wright Patman of Texas favor the resolution.

Anti-Hoover Tenor

The tenor of the convention has been branded by many observers as distinctly anti-Hoover. They pointed to the sentiment for the cash bonus, where the president has led the opposition. The trend towards outright repeal is another indication of opposition to the administration, they declared.

One Republican legionnaire, high in his party circles, admitted that the convention will smash the president if it can.

"It doesn't want to give him any weapons in the campaign. It may make a mistake by endorsing the cash bonus, but it certainly won't make the mistake of censuring him. A lot of people never liked the bonus march stuff and, besides, a direct shot at him might swing sympathy to the president. That's why this censure resolution is going to be beaten," he said. "Mr. Hoover's enemies will beat it."

Chicago will be recommended as the 1933 convention site, the time and place committee reported today. Miami has bid for the 1934 convention.

Stage Huge Parade

Crowds estimated at 400,000 viewed the legion's "big parade" today. Seventy-five bands, 30 drum corps and thousands of gaily uniformed veterans and their auxiliary companions staged a spectacle never before witnessed in the Pacific northwest.

The parade was estimated to be more than 10 miles long, and took four hours to file past the reviewing stand in the civic stadium.

Federal prohibition agents continued their efforts to keep Portland "dry" during the convention, registering their 11th raid today, according to announcement by W. K. Newell, Oregon federal prohibition commissioner. He admitted that his force had been augmented by several government dry crusaders from the state of Washington, but denied statements that reinforcements had been sent from the national capital.

Despite the efforts of the federal agents, legionnaires were not complaining of any alcoholic shortage, although there has been a noticeable lack of rowdyism. National legion officers have commented on the orderly conduct of the convention and complimented the "service committee" of 250 Oregon legionnaires, who constantly patrol hotels and rout out gamblers from lobbies and hallways.

forward steadily and that the forces mobilized to that end, and which are beginning to prove effective, shall continue. This transcends all personal and partisan considerations."

Sanders wired the president:

"The narrow margin of Democratic success in the Maine gubernatorial contest is plainly insufficient to insure that state to the Democratic presidential candidate eight weeks hence, and I firmly expect you to carry that state.

"I was of course disappointed in the vote but not greatly disturbed. Since 1880 Maine has five times in presidential years elected a governor, state tickets and congressional delegation in September in opposite political faith to the president elected 60 days later. After the defeat of the Republican candidate for governor in Maine in September, 1880, the country rallied to the importance of national issues and returned President Garfield triumphantly in November, the state of Maine reversing its September position.

Has Confidence

"I have every confidence that history will repeat itself in November in Maine and that throughout the country the verdict of the people on national issues will be overwhelmingly in your favor."

The Maine result was admittedly a hard blow to the president's hopes. Republicans thought that their majorities would be reduced, but they did not anticipate that the usually rock-ribbed Republican Maine would elect a Democratic governor and two Democratic congressmen out of three.

Republican leaders were fearful of the effect of the Maine election on the rest of the country. This attitude was said to have prompted the president's instructions to Sanders.

The political proverb, "As Maine goes so goes the nation," which had been a byword at the White House, was taboo today. The president and his advisers were literally stunned and made no effort to conceal their amazement.

Curtis Disappointed

Vice President Curtis rushed to the White House to confer with the president. Afterwards he said:

"We are greatly disappointed, but it will only make us work the harder and we will win in Maine in November."

Secretary of the Treasury Mills and Postmaster General Brown, close political advisers to the president, also went into the conference. They said that they were unable to account for the upset and that the whole plan of political warfare would be changed and the president himself would lead the G. O. P. forces in the field.

Instead of making only two or three speeches outside of Washington, as originally planned, the president may decide to make a tour of the United States at the conclusion of the Roosevelt campaign and go over the ground covered by the Democratic nominee.

"I plan to examine their respiration, blood pressure and nervous reactions.

"This, I hope, will enable me to contribute something new to medical science.

"Aviation being a new science, there are comparatively few old fliers and there are as yet few statistics to prove or disprove whether aviators as a class fail faster than other persons.

"My observations should prove valuable in both selecting men for aviation training and conserving their health after they have entered the profession."

Accompanying the three adventurers on the flight is Dr. Pisculli's pet woodchuck, Tail Wind, who will act as a carbon monoxide "detector."

Miss Newcomer held the woodchuck as she entered the cabin of the ship.

Slim, dark and pretty, she was dressed in a blue jacket, white silk blouse, breeches and boots. She also had a small bag, explaining:

"I decided I'd better take a dress with me. It would be terrible if I were to be presented to the king—in breeches."

As food the fliers carried three roast chickens, two gallons of water, some "aviation biscuits," tomatoes, fruits, tea tablets and honey.

1933 TAX RATE LEFT AT 75C

Commissioners Decline To Alter First Figure

In a special session Tuesday morning, the county commissioners court declined to alter the 1933 county tax rate of 75 cents per $100 of valuation, as fixed 30 days ago, but made provision for utilizing the services of two more clerks in the tax collection department during the ensuing 60 days in an effort to stimulate payment of delinquent taxes.

Acting under the law which stipulated that the announced 1933 tax rate could be amended no later than this week, according to County Judge John P. Marrs, the court refused to lower the announced rate without further assurance of decreased needs or increased revenue for the ensuing year.

Review Suggestions

After reviewing the lengthy recommendations offered Monday afternoon in a public hearing by representatives of the Wichita Falls, Iowa Park, Electra, and Burkburnett chambers of commerce, the court deferred final action upon those proposals until next Monday. Definite response was made, however, to the recommendation which asked for especial stress on the collection of delinquent taxes, which now total about $400,000.

County Tax Collector Arthur C. Howard was authorized to employ immediately two additional deputies for no more than 60 days, at $100 per month each, to prosecute the collection of delinquent taxes. Their salaries are to be paid out of the fees of that office. It was indicated that the services of such added clerks may be approved for the entire remainder of this year, during which period payment of delinquent taxes may be made without penalty and interest heretofore imposed.

One Official Acquiesces

During the study made of the recommendations Tuesday morning, it was said, it developed that only one elected county officer expressed willingness to limit his annual income to $4,000, as urged by the committees which appeared before the court Monday.

Judge Marrs explained that since no amendment of the 1933 rate would be permitted under the law after this week, the court was compelled to maintain the rate announced Aug. 15 in order to protect the county's various funds during the ensuing year.

"If the legislature should vote relief from highway bonds, as contemplated," he said, "we shall find a way immediately to reflect that relief in the imposition of taxes in this county."

The opinions of the county attorney on various recommendations made to the court Monday are to be obtained by the commissioners before next Monday, it was said.

Decision Delayed In Extradition Plea For Accused Kidnaper Of Dallas Child

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 13. (INS)—Decision on extradition of Hubert J. Jenkins to Dallas, Texas, to face a charge of kidnaping his son was delayed, possibly until Wednesday, at conclusion of arguments before Gov. Ruby Laffoon here today.

The chief executive asked for legal citations bearing on the case. He listened two hours while attorneys debated.

Dexter Hamilton of Dallas represented former Mayor T. L. Bradford of that city, grandfather and former guardian of the child, Hubert Johnston Jenkins Jr., 9, who is heir to much of the Texan's $1,000,000 estate.

John S. Milliken of Louisville, representing the state of Texas, contended Jenkins was in that state at the time of the alleged kidnaping and therefore was extraditable.

The indictment was assailed by Jenkins' counsel, Joseph S. Lawton of Louisville, and Leslie W. Morris of Frankfort.

His wife accompanied Jenkins to the hearing but the boy remained at the Jenkins home at Louisville.

"Sure I like it. I don't want to go back to Texas. I miss 'Wobble' (the Bradford family chauffeur at Dallas) and my goat; but I want to stay here with Daddy!" he exclaimed as he played.

Uchida Holds Decision In Bank Espionage Case

TOKYO, Sept. 13. (AP)—It has been three days since United States Ambassador Grew asked Foreign Minister Uchida to exonerate the National City bank from charges of espionage growing out of photographs made for an advertising campaign but so far there has been no official action.

It is increasingly evident that Baron Uchida is in a difficult position because of the seeming impossibility of giving the bank public vindication without seeming to criticise the military quarters whence the accusations emanated.

Meantime some of the newspapers continue to make much of "American spy" stories.

Sunset News

Special to The Record News.

SUNSET, Texas, Sept. 13.—Several singing classes and communities were represented by leading singers at a song service held at Turkey Creek, west of Sunset, Sunday afternoon. Many classes and special songs were sung during the service.

A Sunday school has been organized at the Union Hill Baptist church, southeast of Sunset. The hour of meeting is at 10:30 o'clock each Sunday morning. Albert Swaim was elected as superintendent, with Emmett McFarlane as assistant. The Sunday school is starting with fine interest and good attendance.

A large number of the citizens of this vicinity attended the second Monday trades day at Bowie. For many years, most all of the communities in Montague county and many in surrounding counties are represented at Bowie on the second Monday of each month. Will Fain, residing in Sunset, states that he has attended almost every second Monday trades day at Bowie for 35 years. For more than 40 years people have been meeting there once a month to trade, buy and sell horses, mules, hogs, chickens, produce and many other things.

Representative Paul Finn, attending the special session of the Texas legislature, spent the week end at his home here and returned to Austin Monday morning. He stated that he expected the special session to adjourn at the close of this week.

Harvey and Howard Howk of Shelby, Ohio, are visiting here in the home of their brother, Homer Howk.

A daughter recently was born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson, and a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jim Swaim.

SEYMOUR MAN'S TRIAL IS SET

Temple Dickson to Face Jury Oct. 24

Trial of the case of Temple Dickson of Seymour, charged with murder in connection with the death of C. S. Punkett in that city June 23, has been set for Monday, Oct. 24, before Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court, District Attorney Sam B. Spence announced Tuesday.

Plunkett, a motor freight line operator, was allegedly killed as the result of a quarrel occasioned by a traffic accident. Dickson was a candidate for county attorney of Baylor county at the time of the killing. Jack Norwood faces a similar charge in the same case, and is to be tried in Paducah. The Dickson trial was assigned to Wichita Falls on a change of venue.

William Combest, district attorney in Baylor county, and B. Y. Cummings of this city, will assist Mr. Spence in prosecution of the case. Dickson will be represented by Bert King, John Davenport, and Ross Bell of Childress.

RITES TODAY FOR PIONEER

Services for Capt. Crawford At Graham at 3 o'Clock

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Sept. 13.—Funeral services for Capt. S. R. Crawford, 85, pioneer young county citizen who died in a Dallas hospital Monday night, will be held from the R. V. Tidwell home here Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Rev. J. D. Thorne, pastor of the Baptist church here, and the Rev. R. C. Edwards, pastor of the Methodist church, will officiate. Burial will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

In the more than half century Captain Crawford had resided in Young county his activities were varied. He was widely known for his political, business and civic enterprises.

A native of Ohio, he went to New Orleans in his youth and served as captain of a river steamboat for several years. He came to Young county in 1879 and entered the cattle business. He was president of the old Beckham National bank of Graham. Later he included the grain business in his enterprises. He served as a member of the state legislature from 1904 to 1908.

The only known survivor is a sister believed to live in Ohio. His wife died 20 years ago.

WICHITA FALLS SOCIETY AND CHURCH NEWS

MRS. L. N. CASON

Federated Society Board Holds September Meeting

Interesting reports of the work done during the summer, and plans for the fall and winter activities for the Federated Missionary society, were given at the annual September meeting of the executive board held at the First Southern Presbyterian church Tuesday morning.

The session was presided over by Mrs. S. E. Trevathan, the president, and was opened with a song, with Mrs. H. B. Patterson at the piano. Mrs. George T. Singleton gave the devotional.

Mrs. Jake Cohen, chairman of jail work, opened the reports and stated that there are now 50 boys and 18 girls in the juvenile department of the jail, and that 500 magazines and books have been distributed at the jail during the summer months.

Mrs. Q. B. Lee gave the financial report of the society and recommended on account of the crowded conditions, that an age limit of 12 years be observed and that no child be taken in the nursery who has an able-bodied father.

Mrs. Singleton, president of the First Southern Presbyterian Woman's auxiliary, gave a few words of greeting, and welcomed the board in behalf of the church, after which the county farm work report was given, in which it was stated that the churches will resume their services out there following the summer months, and that the next service will be in charge of the Highland Heights Christian church when communion will be offered.

Mrs. Harry Weeks, yard chairman, reported on the condition of the shrubs and trees at the nursery, and the superintendent's report showed 40 children from the nursery enrolled in the public schools, with one child at Reagon school for whom it is requested that some one be responsible for lunch as it is too far to return to the nursery at that hour. Any one interested is requested to call Mrs. Datson, the superintendent.

Story Telling Hour

Mrs. M. C. Batey, story hour chairman, spoke a few words of appreciation to women of the various churches who were responsible for the story hour at the nursery during the summer, and told of the children there making a newspaper which contained all sorts of items ranging from a card of appreciation to the Kiwanis club to a prediction of who the next president will be.

Mrs. John P. Marrs of the First Methodist church, extended an invitation from that church to the Federated Missionary society to hold its next quarterly meeting there.

Those present were Mesdames W. M. Mitchell, M. W. Hibbs, A. M. Maples, F. L. Randel, J. A. Kemp, A. C. Turner, E. H. Dickerson, J. W. Thomas, Ernest Owens, W. H. Weaver, J. Lem Keevil, C. Joline, J. N. Scott, A. W. Mount, Irvin J. Vogel, W. A. Goolsbee, Wayne Somerville, J. E. Montgomery, Charles Harr, H. A. Baker, W. H. Black, W. N. Ferrell, F. E. Warfield, J. R. Self, J. B. Allred, J. M. Tanner, George Fleming, Harry C. Weeks, Horrace Robbins, Clair H. Gannon, Carter McGregor, Leon Deaton, George T. Singleton, John P. Marrs, M. C. Batey, H. P. Ledford, J. R. McKinney and S. E. Trevathan.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Every time a circus comes to town we begin to repine because there is no longer a parade. From an outsider's viewpoint, the circus has done itself out of money by leaving off so fascinating a feature. We will stand correction, however, from the circus cashier's office.

When we were a girl in high school, Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers were regular visitors in the autumn. And the school board turned the school out so that pupils might not only see the afternoon circus (so much better than being out late at night), but might see the parade.

Every one saw the parade, and we do not believe it kept many people from also seeing the circus. If previous arrangements had not been made, the lure of the riding ladies and of the calliope, which was always the end of the parade, made small boys go out and find bottles or rags to sell, and small girls hurry home and pledge their work for a month in advance to secure the necessary funds.

But leaving out the public, what a wrong has been done the prouder performers, from a simple humanitarian standpoint. The last parade we saw had a negro band and the director was undoubtedly the most satisfied person we ever looked upon. How his glory has fallen.

When the big shows come, do youngsters still rise at break of day and haunt the grounds, to carry water to pay their way into the show? Or, has science developed some new manner of providing water for the elephants, and animals of that size.

There is no use weeping over days that are gone. We fear that even if the brightest sun of prosperity should again shine upon humanity, no circus parades would be shown, but the gentleman who said there was a sucker born every minute, lost many of those suckers when the parade stopped.

Just the other day, a gentleman much interested in the golden jubilee—and always interested in mementoes of the past, showed a girl of our acquaintance a mustache cup. She had never seen one, and told him so. He looked at her with amazement. "I bet you have never seen a buggy whip," he said. But he lost there. All men did not have to use mustache cups, but horses were driven for quite awhile after automobiles came in.

And speaking of automobiles, there comes to our mind the thought of even later inventions that are disturbing factors in many homes of this day, the radio. Monday morning as we sat listening to a national broadcast, a new announcer came on and said something like this: "We will present to you a speaker at Portland, Ore., who talks to you from the national conference of the American Legion. He is a man loved by all the soldiers who knew him and one of the best war correspondents known. We present Floyd G——" and before the speaker could get any further, a very young gentleman sitting some six feet from the radio, made one spring and began to twirl the dials.

There was no mistaking his preferences. The funny thing was that as he turned, the speaker's voice boomed out from nearly every station. We must suffer sometimes under the wheels of progress and probably that is why we suffer the loss of parades.

Cast of Characters In Chinese Romance

In reporting the cast who took part in the lovely Chinese romance recently presented at the Woman's Forum which was a feature of the elaborate program at the seated tea given by the Junior Forum Saturday afternoon, the parts were announced erroneously. Beatrice Hathorn interpreted the part of the lover; Margaret Staniforth, the part of the property man; Roberta Wolford, the father, and Mary Brown Basham, the incense bearer. The play was presented in costume, and was declared by all who were present, to have been an artistic achievement.

Today's Pattern

MAKE THIS MODEL AT HOME
The New Beltless Mode
Pattern 2270
By ANNE ADAMS

It is a well known fact that beltless frocks make one appear much taller and slimmer. The lines of the frock sketched are most interesting as they produce the slender hip illusion. The sleeve treatment is very new and really delightful and the bow at the neck is applied in a novel way. Satins and crepes are chic this season.

Pattern 2270 may be ordered only in sizes 16 to 20 and 34 to 44. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards 39-inch fabric and ¼-yard 39-inch contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be sure to state size wanted. Address all mail and orders to

Color Schemes For Homes Discussed By E. Post

By EMILY POST
Author of "Etiquette, the Blue Book of Social Usage."

In answer to many letters saying, "Please write an article on how to redecorate a room," it might be practical to consider the problem of one of my readers, whose thoughts are centered upon henna combined with either green or turquoise. She tells me that she has some good early American furniture but she must also keep a walnut desk and a large walnut radio cabinet, a loose-pillowed sofa upholstered in red and green wool brocade, an armchair upholstered in another red and green material. Other chairs can be re-upholstered, and both walls and woodwork are to be repainted. There are three windows close together (one big one, with a small one on either side). She would like to know how the draperies should be arranged on these windows, whether chintz may be used the year around, and whether cornices or rods with spear ends would look best.

The first thing to do for our "client" is to take note of the red and the green of her sofa and armchair. Since she has henna in mind, et us suppose that the red is of the red-yellow family to which henna, rust, copper and peach also belong.

Color Expert

The rule of safety in assembling color is to keep each hue within the boundaries of its immediate family. By which is meant that the colors ranging from pure red to orange belong to one family, and colors ranging from pure red to violet belong to another family. But tsese two families are enemies! Pure green ranging to yellow is one family; pure green ranging to blue is an enemy family. Each family of color, therefore, may not be put with an enemy family without creating discord—except by one whose knowledge and skill is such that he can literally turn discord into harmony. But it is certainly safe to say that "our client" is not a color expert. (If she were, she would be mixing paints and not asking my advice—or any one's).

So let us tell her that if the red of her materials is crimson, and the green inclined toward yellow—turquoise and henna will be impossible. But if the red is almost flame and the green almost blue, she can fill the room with greenish turquoise and apricot-copper-henna to her heart's content. Or if by "henna" she means "rust," then pure blue will be better than turquoise. A perfect color would be that of laundry bluing mixed with raw starch—a color that is more than any other suggestive of cold and distance and therefore counterbalancing to the hot and heavy closeness of rust.

And now whether she shall choose to paint her walls copper or green or blue depends upon whether her room is for a hot climate or a cold one—and also upon the size of the room. Copper will make the room hot and small. Moreover it is the hardest color in the world to get right, and when used on wall surface it must be right or it will be horrible. Turquoise or bluing blue on the other hand is equally safe. The only danger is that each exaggerates everything put in front of it, and she must of course paint her doors and woodwork the same color as the walls. By the way, since color on four walls often differs greatly from its effect on a sample, my own pet method of testing the color of a room before painting it is to paint the inside of a square hat-box as though it were a room. The sides are the walls, the bottom the floor, and the lid, left white, is the ceiling. With a penknife I cut approximately window openings, and on another side, cut a squarish-oval opening to fit my face. Then I put the lid on, look through the opening with my face pressed into it and the light coming in through the windows, and the model gives an exact impression of the room as it will be.

Chintzes All Year

Chintzes all the year around? Certainly! What would decorators do without them? Moreover, at the moment, chintzes with a coppery background and others printed on turquoise, dominate the market. Either background will give her a perfect room. It might be best—since it is much easier to mix paint than to find materials—to get materials first. She should choose whichever one looks best with the chair and sofa, and then try out wall paint in the hat-box model, with samples of the chintz and the colors of sofa and chair pinned against the wall paint.

As to hangings: she does not say whether the middle window is an arched one. If it is, then separate chintz curtains would better be hung at either side of each of the three windows. But if the windows are merely three in a row, a lambrequin of the chintz running across the three, and a single curtain falling at the outside edge of each little window, will be sufficient. I have a personal dislike for dust-catching draperies fussily shirred or pleated in the fashion of overskirts in the 1870's, but there is no rule against them. On the other hand, many varieties of lambrequins, and hold-backs made of wood, metal, glass, as well as of the curtain material, are in excellent taste. Spear-head curtain poles—more likely arrows than spears—made of carved wood and gilded are correctly colonial and suitable if you can find them or have them made by a wood carver. Do not, however, substitute metal bronze or polychrome effects that are all too often of strikingly bad design—and not colonial.

Spanish Tea Room Opens for Season

Wichita Falls' women and their friends will be interested to know that the Spanish tea room at the Woman's Forum clubhouse has been opened for the fall and winter season and that lunch will be served there every day. The dining room is open to the public, and Mrs. Ernest Kirksey, hostess at the clubhouse, announces that the meals will be served at a nominal price. Dinners in the evening will be served by special arrangement, but luncheon will be prepared every day for the public patronage.

Earlier Shipments of Citrus Is Authorized

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—Citrus growers of the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas were authorized today by the department of agriculture to begin shipments Sept. 15, instead of Sept. 30, in modification of the government's Mexican fruit worm quarantine regulations.

Under the quarantine, Texas was enforcing a host-free period in Cameron, Hidalgo and Willacy counties as part of the program of eradication.

Lee A. Strong, chief of the plant quarantine bureau, said that since no specimens of fruit worm have been taken in Texas for three months and growers have carried out vigorrous supression measures, termination of the host-free period earlier this year would involve no risk of spreading.

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

I CAN'T

When you tell a child to do something about the house and he comes back saying, "I can't do that" before you lose patience with him and order him back on the job investigate to find out why he thinks he can't. He may be right.

"Jimmy, you can wash the garage floor this morning."

"Oh, all right. When I do that can I go out to play on the lot? I promised the fellows to meet them early. We gotta practice."

"First do that job. You don't want your father to come home and find the place all messed up. It's worse than ever I saw it. How it gets like that is more than I can see."

"Then can I go, Mom?"

"Yes, yes. After you wash that garage and make it look like something."

In a few minutes there was a wail from the garage. "Ma, I can't turn on the water."

"Nonsense. Of course you can. Put your mind to it and I think you can turn a faucet."

"I did turn it. I can't do it, Ma."

"Now stop fussing. You have to wash that floor before you go out this day. You can take just as long as you like about it but you're going to do it. You ought to be ashamed of yourself. Trying to get out of every little thing you're asked to do. I should think that you'd be glad to help a little. Glad to show your father that you were good for something. Stop yelling and go to work. You may just as well for I'm not going to say another word."

Jimmie was silent for a time and then he began to dance about and stamp his feet and rage like a wild man. "I can't, I tell you. I can't make the old thing work. I'm not trying to get out of it. I don't care how long I have to stay in. I can't do it."

"I'll come out to you, young man, and see whether or not you are going to do a simple job without waking the neighborhood."

"I wish you would come. You gotta come. I can't do it."

Mother dropped her work and strode grimly to the garage. She turned the faucet to open it, or tried to and found that it wouldn't move. Then she turned it to close it and closed it tight. Again she opened it wide but no water came. An amazed expression crept over her face. "Why, there isn't any water. What can be the matter?"

"There I told you I couldn't turn it on."

"What you should have told me was that there was no water."

"There is plenty water. It's running in the kitchen, and in the bathroom, isn't it?"

"Mr. Hutting turned off the water last night, ma'am, when he was fixing the faucet and I guess he forgot to turn it on again," called Nora.

Maybe he is right when he says he can't. Better look first and insist afterward. If it is a messy job give him a start on it. If it is hard, give him a lift and a word of encouragement now and then. Usually when he says he can't, he can't.

JACKSON GINS 1,000 BALES

Cotton Season Well Under Way in Altus Area

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Sept. 13.—Cotton ginning in Jackson county is well under way, with approximately 1,000 bales ginned thus far this season.

Picking in all sections has been started and with the close of several schools in the county for a short recess, the number of bales to be handled during the coming week is expected to far surpass that of the previous week.

Altus led the county in the number of bales ginned to date with 328 having been handled to the present time.

Victory is second in the report of ginning, 165 bales having been handled at that point, 155 of which were handled during the past week. The ginning at that point is expected to show a large increase this week with the close of school there on Friday for a short recess for students to assist in the cotton fields.

Eldorado gins reported having handled 104 bales to Saturday night; 49 bales were ginned at Duke and 45 at Blair.

Reports from other points in the county were more than enough to complete the 1,000 mark.

Strict low middling to middling is the grade of cotton being received for the most part in Altus. Ginners are reporting an unusually large number of farmers are having their cotton snapped.

While some of the schools will remain in session for two additional weeks before recessing, most of those to recess will allow students to assist in the fields at the close of the coming week. Some of the schools will not recess for the farm work.

Ronald Colman Files Libel Suit

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13. (AP)—A $2,000,000 damage action was filed today against Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., motion picture concern, by Ronald C. Colman, film actor, who charged the company with issuing written statements which he construed as reflecting on his character and ability as an actor.

Colman asserted the statements pictured him as being "drunk and dissipated."

The suit alleged the film company had been endeavoring to obtain agreements from Colman to perform acts which he said he was not obligated to perform.

One of the statements was set forth as being "He feels that he looks better for pictures when moderately dissipated than when completely fit."

The actor said he had demanded a retraction but had been refused.

Vernon Legion Post Installs New Officers

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 13.—Howard P. Hudgins was installed commander of the Albert E. Robinson post American Legion, at a joint meeting of more than 50 legionnaires and members of the auxiliary at the Legion hall here Monday night. Commander Hudgins succeeded R. M. Fielder. John A. Storey, former service officer of the Vernon post and judge advocate of the state organization, was in charge of the installation of officers.

Following the installation services, new officers for the auxiliary were elected and a watermelon banquet was served.

Other legion officers installed Monday night included W. Cicero Albright, vice commander, succeeding E. O. Youngblood; John E. Hardin, adjutant; M. C. Culbertson, service officer; C. P. McDonald, secretary; E. S. Norwood, tresurer; and T. J. Bridges, sergeant at arms, succeeding F. M. Smith.

'Lie Detector' Inventor Says Machine Never Errs

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (UP)—Dr. John A. Larson, inventor of the "lie detector," today revealed his belief that no person should ever be declared guilty or innocent on the mere finding of his machine.

Discussing his invention and his book, "Lying and Its Detection," published today, Larson said exhaustive study showed the lie detector never made a mistake.

"But because of human errors in interpreting the findings of the machine," Larson said, "it cannot be used alone and without other evidence."

$250,000 Bath

A quarter of a million seems a lot of money to pay for a bath, especially when some one else took it, but that is the bill Ben C. Kohlmeier faces unless Los Angeles courts decide otherwise. For the bath was taken by Mrs. Myrtle Manon Morris, above, "Miss Florida" in a beauty contest, with Kohlmeier assisting, according to witnesses, and her husband wants the $250,000 for alienation of the beauty's affections.

O. U. Fraternities Pledge 191 as Period Closes

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 13. (UP)—University of Oklahoma fraternities pinned their colors on 191 pledges today as the first rush period closed. At least 50 more are expected to become neophytes before the fall period ends Thursday.

The list of pledges was announced by 19 social fraternities. Fifteen sororities will announce first pledges tonight.

The fall term will start officially tomorrow when the freshman period opens. Upper classmen will register Friday and Saturday. Classes open Monday.

ALTUS PLANS 4-H CLUB FAIR

Farm Boys, Girls and Women to Show Products

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Sept. 13.—Exhibits at the Jackson county 4-H club and Farm Women's club fair which will be held Friday and Saturday in Altus at the national guard armory are expected to exceed exhibits of former years in both quantity and quality on a number of articles, according to announcement by W. B. Forrester, county farm agent, and Miss Edith Huffer, county home demonstration agent, who are sponsoring the fair.

Several hundred boys, girls and women will enter articles to compete for the approximately $500 in cash prizes which will be offered as premiums on winning products.

Cattle Show

Exhibits must be brought to the building not later than 10 a. m. Friday and may be removed at 4:30 p. m. Saturday.

The winning exhibits in various departments will be sent immediately to Oklahoma City where they will be entered in the state fair.

Ten of 12 exhibits in beef cattle are expected to be shown in the basement of the armory during the fair. Fifteen to 20 dairy cattle, approximately 15 pigs and several sheep in addition to a large number of varieties of chickens are expected to be on display in the livestock divisions.

Four-H club girls will exhibit articles in sewing, canning and home improvement.

Crop Exhibits

Boys will show exhibits on crops grown in Jackson county.

Tables showing the exhibits will be arranged in the center of the hall and merchants advertising booths showing merchandise from the different stores will be arranged around the wall.

Arrangements have been made for a number of merchants to present a style show showing the newest fashions for fall and winter wear Saturday night. No charge will be made for admission to the style show.

Huge Fund Available For Rivers and Harbors

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (UP)—The war department today made available $41,577,260 provided in the recent relief act for flood control on the Mississippi river and river and harbor improvement work throughout the United States.

Of this amount, $15,500,000 will be expanded on flood control work and $26,077,260 for port and waterway improvement.

Largest of the flood control allotments was $6,500,000 for the Memphis district of the Mississippi river. Lock and dam construction on the Allegheny river in Pennsylvania will move forward under the impetus of a $4,000,000 allocation.

SYRUP OF Thedford's BLACK-DRAUGHT

The famous laxative that meets every family need

THERE are many laxatives. One may cost too much for you. Another the children may not like. You may think one is too powerful. A milder one may not act as quickly, as surely as you want. But thousands and thousands know that Thedford's Black-Draught meets every reasonable demand for an economical, effective laxative.

Whether you use the Powder or Syrup is a matter of taste, or economy. Many families keep both always at hand. Both contain the same active ingredients that stimulate natural intestinal action. Both are purely vegetable, safe for all the family.

Your druggist sells Powder and Syrup at economy prices. Get one or both today and see for yourself why Thedford's Black-Draught has been the "first remedy" of thousands for 92 years.

MIDWEST HAILS GOV. ROOSEVELT

Glowing Reports Given Demo Nominee

events "way down east." About 250 Democrats greeted him.

All had enthusiastic comment on the significance of Maine.

Roosevelt crossed the Mississippi on his fact-finding venture into the West just after sundown, remaining in St. Louis only a few minutes before coming here for the state convention. He made no speech.

His train whistled merrily today through three midland commonwealths which have been graveyards of Democratic presidential hopes in the past.

In all of them—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois—he heard the same thing:

"Maine in September is a conservative prophet of November."

W. W. Durbin, former Democratic state chairman, told the governor at Bellefontaine this afternoon:

"On the basis of the Maine figures, Roosevelt will carry Ohio by 350,000."

Indianan Confident

R. Earl Peters, Indiana state chairman, who boarded the train at Indianapolis, was no less confident of carrying his state. He claimed the easy election of the gubernatorial ticket and predicted the retirement from public life of the hoosier warwick, Senator James E. Watson.

As the Roosevelt campaign train swept through south-central Illinois early tonight, that normally Republican territory gave similar assurances that it is ready to vote for "a new deal in politics."

On Chicago and Cook county will depend the size of the Democratic majority, it was asserted.

A militant, confident democracy greeted Governor Roosevelt in St. Louis. After a brief stop he proceeded to Jefferson City where the Democratic state convention was in session. A special stop of approximately three hours was arranged so that the convention delegates might come to the train to hail him and hear impromptu remarks by him in return. The state was for former Senator James A. Reed at the Chicago convention but Reed himself has led in according Roosevelt united support.

Sees Champ Clark

Col. Bennett Champ Clark, nominee for United States senator, headed the state leaders receiving Roosevelt. The gubernatorial nominee, Francis Wilson, was unable to be present due to a recent injury to his back.

Behind his smiling, "Maine's all to the good," Governor Roosevelt scarcely concealed his elation over what he believed was concrete evidence of the accuracy of his original analysis of the underlying political philosophy of 1932.

The hide-bound Republicans of 'way down east had confirmed him in his view the country demands a change, a "new deal." The slogan of his acceptance speech at Chicago impressed him today as having been conservative prophecy.

Speaks Today

The Roosevelt train, greeted by friendly crowds wherever railroad operating stops were made, was to reach Topeka, Kan., tomorrow morning for the nominee's first set speech of the journey. It will relate to farm relief and is viewed as one of the most important of the whole trip.

The governor was at work even before he was out of bed today.

Seated on the side of the bed in his car he held conferences with Pennsylvania and Ohio Democrats, for over an hour before the train reached Cleveland this morning.

Congressman Martin L. Sweeney of Cleveland was among those the Democratic nominee received while still in pajamas. James Lavery of Erie, Pa., was another to participate in a bedside conference.

During a brief stop at Indianapolis Roosevelt went to the platform to greet a throng which had crashed the station gates.

Some one yelled:
"How about Maine?"
Roosevelt shouted back:
"Maine's all right."
Another yelled:
"How about Indiana?"
The nominee countered:
"Well, how about it?"
The crowd chorused:
"Indiana's all right."

Rites Today for Veteran Who Tested Yellow Fever

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13. (US)—Military funeral rites for William Olson, 58, one of the volunteers who years ago submitted themselves to the ravages of yellow fever to test the theory of a young army surgeon, will be held here tomorrow.

Olson died Saturday night at the government hospital in Sawtelle of a pulmonary ailment.

In an army hospital in Cuba at the close of the last century, Olson and seven other American soldiers submitted themselves to the dread "yellow jack" to test the theory through which Dr. Walter Reed was to find a way to conquer the disease.

Baldness Falling Hair

Here's a Successful Treatment

Mr. R. C. (name on request) is the owner of a modern barber shop at 329 W. George St., Pottsville, Pa. About 6 months ago he started to use JAPANESE OIL, the antiseptic liniment, for treating baldness, falling hair and dandruff. He was so successful that his shop is now sought by those who wish to correct hair and scalp troubles.

You can obtain this same treatment at any druggist.

Simply ask for a bottle of JAPANESE OIL, the antiseptic liniment. Then rub it into your scalp every night before retiring.

Itching is relieved instantly, dandruff goes after a few applications, and if your hair roots are not dead, falling hair should stop and new hair grow in on the thin and bald spots within 60 to 90 days.

JAPANESE OIL, the antiseptic medicine for the hair and scalp, costs $1 at any Renfro Drug Store or other good druggists.—Adv.

SHRINERS SEE FIGHT CARD

National Reports Read In Business Session

Maskat temple nobles were guests at a boxing and wrestling card Tuesday night at Whitey Govro's arena with the feature match a negro free-for-all with five entries.

The party was arranged by a committee including Eli Morgan, J. T. Yeargin, Louis Ulrich, "Babe Ruth," Ray Wilhite and Kindel Paulk. Glenn Groves was referee.

The Shrine business meeting preceding the party was featured by imperial council reports. Imperial Treasurer James G. Burger's report was read revealing the national organization has $446,759.36 on hand, a gain of $86,722.39 over the previous annual report.

Mr. Burger's report on the Shrine hospitals for crippled children revealed a cash balance of $1,174,203.38 in addition to trust funds aggregating $2,000,000. Interest on the trust funds and donations by members support the 11 hospitals and four mobile units which handled 20,000 patients in the past year.

Chief Rabban C. A. Rogers was named chairman of a special financial committee to work on funding the temple debt of $8,000 which has been cut from $80,000 in the last few years.

Recorder Al Ellis announced a baseball game between teams headed by Frank Collier and J. T. Yeargin as a feature of the temple picnic at fairway No. 7 in Weeks park on Sept. 22.

Burk Amateur Radio Operators Organize

The amateur radio operators of Burkburnett completed the organization of a technical club for station W5COX Tuesday afternoon. The officers elected were Leonard Beard, president; John Blackston, vice president; and T. J. Stanzel, secretary-treasurer. The club, which will meet every Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, will attempt to promote an interest in radio and seek to promote community welfare.

Several members have federal license as operators.

The club plans to hold open house daily for those interested in radio operation, at the clubhouse at 405 East Main. The members of the newly organized club are George Counter Jr., Robert Lancy, Donald McCullough, Roy Jackson, S. Vance, Freeman Garland, Alfred Logan, Ed Gilbert, C. P. Logan, Leonard Beard, John Blackston, and T. J. Stanzel.

'Bill' Sterling to Judge Rodeo Contests Here

Gen W. W. (Bill) Sterling of the Texas rangers has accepted the invitation of the golden jubilee association to referee rodeo events during the three-day party here, Sept. 26-28, it was announced Tuesday night. General Sterling will bring his well-known paint pony for the occasion, often heralded as "the best horse in the world."

Ranger Capt. Tom Hickman also has tentatively accepted an invitation to referee in the rodeo events. General Sterling in his acceptance declared "although he had not seen Promotor Leonard Stroud since a rodeo in Laredo in 1926, he regarded him as the world's best all-round cowboy and promotor."

Water District Bondholders End Conferences Without Agreement

Negotiations between directors of the Wichita valley water improvement districts and representatives of bondholding concerns were terminated Tuesday without announcement of definite action. The discussions had been held with the idea of reaching an agreement on the water districts' organizations.

A second conference, attended by district officials and three of the eight bondholders' representatives, at the Kemp hotel Tuesday morning, was given to discussion of the various phases of the situation brought about by defaulted payments of principal and interest of the district No. 1 bonds, of which $4,008,000 is outstanding.

The Tuesday session was attended by James H. Windsor and L. J. Kelleher of the Equitable Life Insurance company of Des Moines, Iowa, and John S. Corley of the Bankers Life Insurance company of Des Moines, and President H. A. Gray Jr., Manager G. A. Remington and Attorney A. H. Britain of district No. 1.

The visting group left town Tuesday afternoon without outlining any particular plans and without requesting another meeting of the full board.

The bondholders' representatives suggested a moratorium of a few years with a slight reduction in the rate of interest, but the matter was passed without discussion.

The district officials offered a definite plan for consideration involving a refunding proposition extending the time of payment to 40 years, instead of the present period of from 1932 to 1960; a cut of 50 per cent in the rate of interest to three per cent annually from six per cent, now payable semiannually; and a moratorium of five years, providing the amount of principal is allowed to remain as at present.

W. D. Cline to Speak To Dallas Rotarians

Walter D. Cline of Wichita Falls will deliver the principal address Wednesday at the annual homecoming program of the Dallas Rotary club in that city. He plans to leave early Wednesday morning and expects to return here that night after conferences both in Dallas and Fort Worth during the afternoon on arrangements for the 50th anniversary association party, Sept. 26-28, of which he is president.

Mr. Cline will confer with Gen. John A. Hulen of the Fort Worth and Denver railway at Fort Worth on plans for the party. Mr. Cline is past district Rotary governor, past director and first vice president of the international service organization.

OFFICERS PLAN FALL CONCLAVE

T-O Association to Entertain Veterans

Several hundred members of the North Texas and Southern Oklahoma Peace Officers association will be hosts to former rangers and law enforcement officers of the Wichita area in years past at the fall convention of the organization Sept. 26-27, during the golden jubilee association.

Police Chief Dick Morris has joined Sheriff Perry Browning, association president, and M-K-T Officer H. G. Ellis, secretary, in issuing invitations mailed out Tuesday night. The peace officers will make their headquarters at the Kemp hotel for the two-day gathering and all pioneer officers will receive honorary membership cards when they register at the hotel.

Pisol teams from Oklahoma City, Amarillo, Abilene, Lubbock, Fort Worth, Dallas, San Antonio and Wichita Falls will compete for honors at the meet. The association cup is held by the local team. The peace officers program has been worked out not to conflict with the major jubilee activities and the public is invited to witness the pistol shoots.

Pistol contest for pioneer officers and women will also be held and a cup will be offered for the best individual score as well as numerous other prizes, arranged by the chamber of commerce and the association.

The Wichita Falls team will include Jess Leverett, W. E. Wyatt, H. Grady, Joe Moore and Harry King.

NEW NAVY FIGHTER

BALTIMORE.—The navy's newest single-place fighting plane is being constructed here. The plane, known as the XF8-J, will cost $96,000, and is to be especially constructed for diving. It will carry two machine guns. If successful, the navy will let a contract for 28 of the planes.

which carried the eight members of the Hutchinson party was a complete wreck, but parts of it were salvaged and taken aboard the Lord Talbot, first vessel to answer Hutchinson's SOS Sunday afternoon, sighted flares around midnight last night and, picking her way among the treacherous icebergs, at last found the flying family, unharmed, some 15 miles south of the position given in the first distress calls.

Captain Watson, assured of the safety of the little band, waited for daylight before attempting to take them aboard.

Then members of his crew brought the Hutchinsons and their companions aboard the trawler in lifeboats and the Lord Talbot proceeded to Angmagssalik where the adventurers were put ashore this afternoon.

The following wireless from Mr. Hutchinson was received here this afternoon:

"Plane lost. Every one safe. Two nights in open rough sea swamped plane. Can make New York Sept. 30."

Smokestack Painter's Condition Is Critical

Abie Bean, 26, of New Jersey continued in a critical condition at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital Tuesday night and attendants reported he was growing weaker. Bean suffered three fractures about his head Sunday night when he fell 100 feet from the top of a Continental Refining company smokestack.

A Washington Bystander

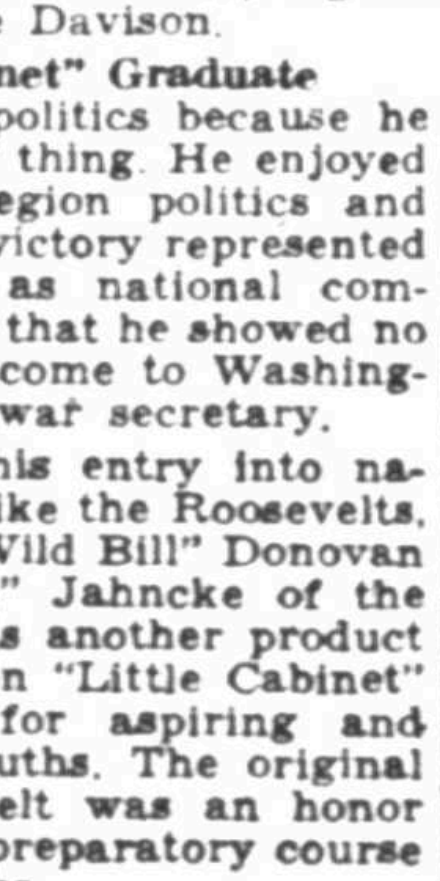
WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Resignation of "Jack" Hanford MacNider as minister to Canada hardly could have surprised any one who knew him during his American Legion or Washington days.



HANFORD MacNIDER

That he could have stood by on the diplomatic sidelines while a presidential campaign was fought out at home would not have been in keeping with his zest for games ranging from war to politics.

For in a way MacNider is a midwestern counterpart of those now famous New Yorkers of the younger political generation the two Roosevelts, Franklin and Theodore II, Ogden Mills and Trubee Davison.

"Little Cabinet" Graduate

He went into politics because he liked that sort of thing. He enjoyed his American Legion politics and the fruits of his victory represented by his election as national commander, so much that he showed no unwillingness to come to Washington as assistant war secretary.

That marked his entry into national politics. Like the Roosevelts, Mills, Davison, "Wild Bill" Donovan and "Commodore" Jahncke of the navy, MacNider is another product of the Washington "Little Cabinet" training school for aspiring and faithful party youths. The original Theodore Roosevelt was an honor graduate of that preparatory course in national politics.

It is quite conceivable that the private affairs of Mr. MacNider needed closer personal attention these troubled times than he has been able to give them form Ottawa. Still, the airplane has enabled him to keep in touch with them by frequent visits.

Nor has he seemed more worried about personal finances than have been any of the other former or present little cabineteers mentioned.

Taking it all in all, the outstanding indicated reason for MacNider's abandonment of diplomacy seems to be his anxiety to get into the campaign. And he has a tough assignment if it is true that he is to be relied upon by the Republican management to keep legion and veteran contacts generally lined up in Hoover interest.

A Hard Task Ahead

That is going to be difficult, judging by the wave of bonus payment sentiment sweeping veteran organizations. The experience of Davison, MacNider's former little cabinet colleague, before the New York Legion gathering is an illustration.

Clearly "Jack" MacNider will have little time for farming in Iowa if he is to be chief administration contact man with veterans up to election.

Experiment Station Sets Sept. 11-17 as 'Visit Week'

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Sept. 13.—The week of Sept. 11-17 has been designated as "visiting week" at the government agricultural experiment station in the southeastern part of Hardeman county, taking the place of the annual "field day" which has heretofore been the custom.

J. Roy Quinby, superintendent, stated the change was made because in one day it was not possible for farmers to thoroughly inspect the entire plant, and that during this week they may come and go at their leisure and convenience.

Experiments are conducted at this station which are of particular benefit to the farmers of the Panhandle and West Texas. Crops adapted to this climate and soils are developed and this knowledge and data is at all times available to those desiring it, according to county agents and government officials, either by personal visits to the station, or by writing Mr. Quinby, whose address is Chillicothe.

New York's New Mayor

IT IS beginning to look very much as if New York had got itself a a real mayor, for a change, when it moved Joseph V. McKee into the place vacated by Jimmy Walker.

By knocking $2,000,000 off city salaries almost before he had got his new chair warm and by indicating that economy and efficiency were actually going to be sought after at city hall, Mr. McKee gave New York a real surprise—and, at the same time, gave all of the rest of us a little object lesson.

Those of us who don't live in New York have no very direct concern with the oddities of New York politics. But the whole New York mayoralty situation has become of national importance simply because it illustrates so perfectly the sort of thing that happens at one time or another to practically every other city.

During boom times New York could afford to have almost any kind of city government. Characteristically, it blew itself to a third-rate variety with a mayor who was exceedingly charming but slightly expensive. For a long time this seemed to be just what the doctor had ordered.

But an expensive and inefficient city government doesn't look quite as attractive when times are bad as when they are good. Jimmy Walker made his exit without provoking any more public mourning than could be conveniently handled. Joseph McKee, starting out as if he meant to give the city that rarity in American municipal politics, an honest and business-like administration, evoked resounding cheers.

All of which, perhaps, means that there is hope for us yet. It is possible, in other words, for the voters actually to become enthusiastic about an officeholder who is a hard worker instead of a showman. Government without frills can appeal to the voter, after all.

New York may yet, of course, toss Mr. McKee out of the window. The gentleman may stay on the job and backslide. But so far the situation is encouraging to those who would like to see a revival of good government.

As Maine Goes—

AS MAINE goes in September so goes the nation in November, is a saying which has often given comfort and confidence to the Republicans. Democrats in other campaign years have had little comfort from results in Maine and have attempted to discount the results in the state election in that state as having political significance.

Now Maine has elected a Democratic governor, won two out of three congressional seats and elected Democratic local officials and members of the legislature in counties and districts that have not voted Democratic in 70 years. Democrats will point to the Maine results as having great significance and it will now be the turn of Republicans to argue that only local issues and candidates were involved.

Whether or not the Maine results are portentous as to what the state will do in the national election in November, they do have the effect of bringing cheer to the Democrats, and, coming as they do as the Democratic candidate for the presidency is starting an extensive campaign tour, they give his tour a spirited and enthusiastic start.

Don't Waste Foodstuff

ALONG about this time every year fruits and vegetables reach the markets in such profusion that the ordinary householder can easily accumulate far more of them than he can use.

But this is no year in which any sort of foodstuff can be wasted—not with thousands of people in every city wondering where their next meal is coming from.

In many places a "can the surplus" drive has begun. By this program committees are chosen to see to it that canned fruits and vegetables, contributed from homes where there are sufficient funds to get plenty of food, are made available to the unemployed.

It is an extremely good idea, one that deserves to be copied everywhere.

"Stench Bomb" Throwers

THE senate of Texas has voted to amend the present law against "stench bomb" throwing to raise the act from a misdemeanor to a felony, punishable by five years' imprisonment, or a fine of $1,000, or both.

The adoption of the amendment indicates the contempt in which such acts are held. The "stench bomb" thrower is a low and mean creature.

The amendment may not be enacted into law, but the fact that the senate of Texas by a vote of 29 to 0 voted to make such an offense a felony reflects the contempt which all decent citizens feel toward those who commit such acts.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

It must be a little difficult to be a somebody, at that . . . I mean like Jimmy Walker or Rudy Vallee . . . To different groups they are idols, and that is achievement . . . They scale the heights until their ill-wishers can't stand it anymore—and so there is nothing much to do but oblige the antagonizers and come down . . . Now comes Mr. McKee to govern the town and the gazettes embrace him affectionately . . . And they publish his photographs as well as his tribe's likenesses . . . And the comments are sugary, and his attributes are sung . . . That's because he hasn't accomplished much yet . . . Wonder how long it will take before he becomes important enough to aggravate others? . . . I mean others with power? . . . All of whom will proceed to grease his ladder . . . There will be dozens who will be annoyed because of favors Mr. McKee might not give—and then his slumbers will be restless and he will despise the luck that elevated him . . . Vallee's latest pebble-chucker is typical of the crowd that envies men who are favored by the fates . . . His heckler prepared a tame book about Rudy, and the movie version of its also proved to be feeble . . . But as I witnessed the screen show aimed to belittle Vallee all I kept thinking of was that Rudy was unquestionably important in the community and that his name-caller probably would never be considered good enough copy to have a book done about him! . . . And when I read that Jimmy might find it strange not to be called "Mayor" anymore, I disagreed . . . For almost everywhere he was and still is affectionately known as Jimmy, and even Lindbergh isn't known as Charlie.

Fascinating tale that one about the dentist . . . The man was riding on his horse in the park and fell . . . And after a long siege in the ailing room they decided he had lost his reason and confined him in an asylum . . . Where he would brood about his infant child whose face was marred by a birth-mark . . . And so one night he escaped and dashed fos his home in the suburbs where he took his baby and locked the door against his wife and all others . . . And when the police finally arrived and broke into the room they discovered the father using an electric needle on the child's face—erasing the ugly mark slowly and artfully . . . And they didn't disturb him until he had completed the delicate job . . . And then they took him back to his cage, where he felt better because he knew that his girl child would not be handicapped anymore . . . Then—months later, it was argued that any one who could perform such an operation successfully wasn't insane—and his release was effected . . . But the man was hardly normal—for shortly after, he fouled his dentist pals while visiting their offices and thefted their precious metals . . . Well, I'm glad I've finally heard a plausible version of how the term "hoofer" originated . . . It appears that in the old minstrel days when those members of the troupe had to parade through the towns they played—they would moan: "I'm on the hoof tomorrow" . . . Hence "hoofer."

Master Brown, the prolific lyric-juggler and showman, prepares more sound philosophy in his songs than any other lyric lad I know . . . Not only does his wordage pack a punch but invariably it contains uncommon sense . . . Frinstance in his "Bowl-o'-Cherries" number the pepigram I liked best was: "The sweet things in life to you are just loaned—so how can you lose what you've never owned?" . . . And in "Birth of the Blues" my pet lines were: "Then from a jail came the wail of a down-hearted frail" . . . And the late Will D. Cobb was masterful at that sort of stuff . . . "Sunbonnet Sue, Sunbonnet Sue," he penned, "sunshine and roses run second to you" . . . An entire story in so few words . . . Billy Rose is another whose lyrics rate a warm spot with me. "I'll never know," he jingled, "what makes the grass so tall; I'll never know what makes the rain to fall—I only know there ain't no love at all—without a song!" . . . Other passages that tell so much in a line include: "When our love was new and each kiss an inspiration"—from "Star Dust" . . . Cole Porter's "Love for Sale" packed this grand phrase: "Old love, new love—every kind but true love!" . . . And the most compelling of them all was Joe Howard's, "I wonder if she ever tells him of me. I wonder who's kissing her now?"

Cute crack at that when Lou Gehrig smacked those homers so the trailing Yankees could win . . . And a wag said: "Hmm, the Gehrig Gaieties" . . . And that bit of slang from the racketrack bookie, who when asked how he wound up the Saratoga season, said: "I got a Mexican draw" . . . Meaning, he added, that he "got away with his life," which seldom happens below the border . . . Wonder if 42nd street will soon return to normalcy as they seem to believe? . . . Probably will now that the Lyric theater is seeking a legit musical and will snub the two-bit movie shows . . . "Forward March" is due at the Selwyn . . . "Clear All Wires" goes into the Times Sq. temple . . . "Humpty-Dumpty" will tenant at the Apollo . . . The Harris theater will also house a big-timer and the New Amsterdam probably will get the Jack Buchanan piece . . . I'm glad . . . The odor of the one-time fascinating street kept me away from it for nearly a year and "42nd St. and Broadway" didn't mean anything glamorous anymore . . . Gotta hand it to Master Jessel . . . Throughout his adult career it was his misfortune to have failure after failure . . . Every flicker, every show and almost anything with which he was associated turned sour . . . And in spite of that jinx he now splits a weekly wage of $11,000 . . . Amusing if true. I mean the talk that Mickey Mouse, the star, will soon have a rival . . . Who will have a Joosh dialect . . . And will be known as "Mockey Mouse."

Wonder which one of the "Forward March" cast will shine the night of the premiere? . . . The authors of the attraction decorated other unknowns in their previous pieces with such delightful stage stuff that before the final asbestos fell one of them crashed the Broadway heavens . . . Zelma O'Neal certainly wasn't sock material until "Good News" unfolded . . . And in "Follow Thru" Jack Haley was still an unknown quantity until that show was seen here.

"Shoot!" we yelled simultaneously. Sylvia hesitated.

A tragic love story from the lonely "bush" country of Australia.—The stockman's wife, who fell in love with the outlaw, "Cockatoo Pete."—The startling sequel of a romance which developed from a robbery.

INSTALLMENT V

Many years ago I was staying on a cattle station in northern Australia. Land there is measured in square miles. There are no fences. Twelve acres go to a cow and the boundary riders, out on a three months' circuit, meet no one on their trek.

It was the branding season and every man was at work on the young heifers and bullocks in the crushes—or corrals, as they are called in America—a half day's journey from the house.

There was a Chinese cook on the premises and a couple of non-descripts who did odd jobs, but on the morning I am writing about these men had been sent on errands. One was to intercept the monthly post rider at a point 20 miles away. The other was to inspect an artesian well which was rumored to be running dry.

"D'you two girls mind being left alone?" asked my host. He was a large man of solid worth, but his dullness was beyond description. "There's three months' pay in the house," he added, his hand on his wife's shoulder. "So you'll have to keep your eyes skinned."

We laughed. In northern Australia, the whole world and everybody's outlook on life is summarized in the one word, "sheep." Nobody has time to eat or sleep or wash enough, because shearing, branding and lambing claim all their attention. The heroes of the Blue Gum country are the ringers who can do their hundred fleeces a day and who, after a season's hard labor, toss the cheques which represent their entire worldly wealth on to the nearest bar, with instructions to the barman to let them know when the money's exhausted.

In those days there was also a picturesque person called "Cockatoo Pete," whose name was used to frighten the children straying too far among the blue gum trees. Of this wandering rapscallion, the most amazing stories were told, but nobody really believed them. He was supposed to have acquired his nickname in unpleasant fashion, for, one day, noticing a cockatoo's nest in the fork of a branch above him, he stood upright on his saddle and tried to pull it down. But his horse moved on, his arm caught in the fork and he was left suspended by one wrist. Failing to free himself or to break the branch, he attempted to cut off his hand. Legend had it that he sawed to the bone before his horse happened to wander back or some other miracle happened. "You can see the scar on his wrist," was the way the story always finished, and if you asked, "Why didn't he bleed to death?" the bushrangers always replied, "It'd take more'n that to kill Cockatoo Pete."

It was, perhaps, in deference to such tales, recounted the previous night for my benefit, that Sylvia remarked, "I've got a revolver some where, I believe. Don't you worry."

"I'd back you against any man," ruminated her husband, "but if Pete pays you a visit, give him all he wants and let him go."

It was a staple joke and we duly acknowledged it.

Then we turned our attention to more serious matters for the week's wash awaited us under the gum trees.

"You're putting in too much blue," said my hostess as we leaned over the tub in an atmosphere of sweat and soapsuds; and then the incredible happened. A man appeared from nowhere. He was long and lean and so far as could be seen for dust rather good-looking. He rode an excellent waler from which he did not dismount until he'd taken a look round the deserted premises. Then he approached us. "I guess you're alone," he said, "and I don't want to make no trouble for ladies. You have the key?"

He looked at Sylvia.

She nodded and somehow we found ourselves walking into the house, Pete—we took it for granted it was him—bringing up the rear. It was all quite commonplace, even dull. I remember thinking that if one had to be robbed, it should be to the accompaniment of thrills!

In the living room, Sylvia hesitated, while Pete regarded us with a certain amusement. Then she went across to the desk.

"It's here," she said, and opening a drawer, took something out. In a second she had the thief covered. "Put up your hands. I've learned to shoot."

With a grin Pete obeyed. Obviously he considered the situation temporary.

"Go out and get help," Sylvia ordered me without turning her head, and I remembered that the nondescripts would soon be returning. The man made no objection to my departure. He was leaning against the wall, lithe as an animal and dangerous in more senses than one. I thought of the unromantic redfaced bulk of my host and of Pete's sunburned hardness as I hurried across the paddock.

After what seemed a century and was perhaps 10 minutes, two riders came into view. I had just enough sense to make them dismount out of hearing and to order a stealthy approach while I choked out my story. Voices sounded in the living room. Their tones were so normal that one would have imagined a friendly conversation, but when we reached the porch, the situation appeared to be unchanged. Pete and Sylvia were watching each other with curious tensity. Our footsteps rang on the wood. Pete turned his head and down came his hands.

"Shoot," we yelled simultaneously.

Sylvia hesitated. A revolver swung up in front of her and she ducked—unnecessarily—as a shot went over her head.

"Fire, you idiot!" I screamed.

Several revolvers went off. Nobody was seriously hurt. The nondescripts acted after the manner of their kind. Pete treated them as ninepins and was away before they had recovered. A bullet in the postbearer's leg disorganized pursuit.

"Why in—why the—" exploded his justly incensed companion, "didn't you plug him full of it?"

The girl looked at her revolver. "It wasn't loaded," she said.

Later, when all the fuss was over, I had occasion to open the drawer into which Sylvia had dropped the Colt. I examined the breach. Every chamber was loaded. That made me think and during the subsequent weeks my hostess' behaviour added to my suspicions. She was hardly ever at the station. As soon as the men were out of sight, she'd saddle a horse and be off, without explanation, and she didn't return till sunset.

Then, one day when I'd decided to take a breather myself, I came upon two horses tethered outside of a boundary rider's hut. I recognized them both and that evening I tackled Sylvia. "What d'you think you're doing? The man's an outlaw with a price on his head. It's madness for him to stay here. All you'll do for him is gaol! And what are you going to get out of it?"

I expected denials and protests. I got neither. Sylvia, ashen fair so that she looked 19 instead of 23, stared out of the window. "I love him," she said, and her stillness was more arresting than her avowal.

"You can't," I stammered. "It's impossible." But as I spoke I remembered Pete, brown, reckless, gay, and so sure of himself. What had those two said to each other while I labored across the paddocks? What spark had been lit by their melodramatic encounter?

In the Blue Gum country the law is measured by a man's strength and wit. If he can't look after his own property, somebody else is likely to do it for him. I thought of my host immersed in sheepdip and the price of wool. What in heaven's name had induced the girl to marry him. A family dependent on her, I guessed, and the station owner represented security. Well, in that line, Pete had nothing to offer. I returned to the charge, but Sylvia defeated me with a sentence. "If he wants me, if he'll let me, I shall go to him—altogether, I mean."

She sat there in a blue cotton frock on a solid, prosperous porch with all the evidences of respectability and a reliabel bank balance around her and discounted them. "It's my whole life. George hardly knows I exist. I mean nothing to him at all. He can get a more efficient housekeeper. I shall get old and wrinkled and dry—the sun does it quickly enough up here—and I'll never have lived at all. It's no use your talking. I'm not afraid—I'm going to take Pete if I can get him."

Still she didn't move, not even her hands, small, well-shaped and roughened by housework, but in her eyes something was trapped. I realized that it was no good arguing. The girl of 23 had disappeared and a woman in love for the first time had taken her place.

After that it seemed impossible that the husband could remain blind, but the only thing which upset him was the illness of a horse, or the temperature of his weekly bath. Once he spoke of Cockatoo Pete. "Uncommon clever the fellow is at hiding. He's done murder more than once. . . ."

"It's a lie," said Sylvia, but her husband continued:

"The police'll get him some day, or he'll be lynched before they have a chance."

Sylvia's eyes were hidden. She looked at her plate, on which her food was untasted. And at that moment I made up my mind I'd speak to Pete myself. I lay awake all one night planning how I could find him and what I would say. But he saved me the trouble.

While I was leaning over the paddock gate, contemplating some distinctly cerulean sheets, I saw two of them approaching and my heart did something odd. They must be mad. The nondescripts were probably about the yards. Under the gum trees the man and the woman drifted into each other's arms as if it were inevitable, and I couldn't watch that embrace. It meant too much.

Staring in the opposite direction, I began to realize what I was up against. Of course, it couldn't last, but for the moment it was stronger than anything I could put forward.

Some time later, Sylvia passed me. Her face was expressionless. I thought she must be ill, for she looked as if she didn't know where she was going, but I daren't miss my chance of a word with Pete. I reached him, breathless, as he was mounting his waler, and with a hand on the saddle-flap stumbled into the middle of my often rehearsed speech. "What would you do with her? She'd be hiding all her life—it isn't fair."

"You don't have to tell me that," said the man, and looking up, I wondered why I'd ever thought him good-looking. The recklessness had gone out of his face. It was drawn and bitter. "I guess I know it. I'm outside the fence, and I'm hitting the trail right now. You've nothing to worry about."

The waler fidgetted and I noticed the man's hands on the reins. A scar cut deep into one wrist.

For a moment we looked at each

Thousands of government experts are working constantly for the benefit of all citizens of the United States. They will work directly for you if you will use our Washington bureau. This newspaper employs Mr. Haskin to act as an agent for its readers. He will take your matter to the proper authority. State your inquiry briefly, write clearly, and, enclosing three cents, carefully wrapped, for return postage for a personal letter in reply. Address The Record News Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—Who was Emily Faithfull?—F. R. T.

A.—She was an English philanthropist (1835-1895), who took a great interest in the conditions of working women and in 1860 set up in London a printing establishment for women. Subsequently she was appointed printer and publisher in ordinary to Queen Victoria. In the Victoria magazine she earnestly advocated the claims of women to remunerative employment.

Q.—How many of the cars manufactured are Chevrolets?—E. M. B.

A.—Of a total of 655,764 new cars registered during the first six months of the year, 215,811 were Chevrolets.

Q.—How long have paints and finishes been applied with spray machines?—W. C.

A.—The spray painting machine was used to an unimportant extent from 1870 to 1923; but it was only with the introduction of pyroxylin lacquer into the furniture and automobile finishing field, in 1923, that it found extensive application. Since that date the improvement of the device has progressed rapidly and its adaptation to other fields has steadily spread. It has been found equally serviceable for the application of paint and varnish, and its use with these has constantly expanded.

Q.—How did the Four Marx Brothers get their names?—F. L. M.

A.—There were five brothers, Chico, Harpo, Groucho, Gummo, and Zeppo. The first four named were billed as the Four Marx Brothers in 1913. In 1915 Art Fischer, the monologist, gave them their nicknames. Chico was so called because of his fondness for chicken; Harpo because he played the harp; Grouch because of his serious countenance; and Gummo because he always wore rubbers. Gummo retired, and when another brother took his place they called him Zeppo after a circus freak seen in childhood. The real names of the brothers are Julious (Groucho), Arthur (Harpo), Leonard (Chico), Herbert (Zeppo). Milton (Gummo) is now in business.

Q.—What were the receipts of the Olympic games?—N. A.

A.—Unofficial estimates on the closing day were that gate receipts amounted to $2,000,000 and that paid attendance would total close to 1,000,000.

Q.—How old is the cross as a religious symbol?—A. M.

A.—Its use as a Christian religious symbol is probably the most modern adaptation. For thousands of years before the Christian era the cross was of religious significance among widely separated peoples and in different ages. Its origin is lost in antiquity.

Q.—Where does the Mohawk trail begin and end?—L. B.

A.—The Mohawk trail starts at Boston and ends at Albany, N. Y.

Q.—Where is there a monument to wheat?—A. C. R.

A.—At Winnipeg a monolith has been erected on the site of the mill where the first shipment of wheat from western Canada was assembled. The monolith is a 12-ton granite boulder appropriately inscribed to commemorate the shipment which left Winnipeg on Oct. 21, 1876.

Q.—Who was the first person to be killed in the air service?—W. D.

A.—The first fatality in the army air corps was that of First Lieut. Thomas E. Selfridge, a passenger, in a Wright biplane. He was killed Sept. 17, 1908, at Fort Myer, Va., in a crash.

Q.—Please describe the habits of the Iquitos.—E. M.

A.—This tribe of South American Indians is divided into many branches, some on the river Tigre, others on the Nanay. Missionary efforts have failed and they remain savages, worshiping figures carved in the shape of birds and beasts. They brew the Indian fermented liquor chicha better than any of the neighboring tribes, flavoring it with the shoots of some plant which has the effect of an opiate.

Q.—What temperature should a slow oven be? A hot oven?—M. N.

A.—A slow oven means one with a temperature of from 250 to 300 degrees Fahrenheit, a moderate oven one of from 300 to 350 degrees, and a hot oven is from 400 to 450 degrees.

Q.—Are Roosevelt and Hoover Masons?—R. W.

A.—President Hoover is not a Mason. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is a Mason.

A Booklet About Correct Shades and Kinds Of Clothing

Look over an average crowd of several hundred people and see how few of them wear becoming clothes. Hats of fantastic shapes and colors and weird combinations in dresses, suits and accessories seem to be the rule rather than the exception, and the wonder grows that such habiliments were ever produced and ever found purchasers. The only explanation is that a surprisingly large number of people do not study the problem of what is most suitable to them in colors, fabrics and so forth.

Send for a copy of the booklet, What to Wear, and inform yourself as to the fundamentals of being well and effectively garbed.

FISCHER'S 142 WINS MEDAL IN NATIONAL AMATEUR TOURNEY

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

The Backfield

Whatever fate awaits Wichita Falls' football team this year, it is almost a certainty the team will have one of the most colorful backfields in years.

Coach Ted Jefferies has a wealth of backfield candidates. Any combination he might choose to put on the field would be aggressive, hustling, and fighting, even if some of the lads were lacking in experience.

Three veterans almost sure to make their appearance in the opening game of the season are Cleo Creecy, Burns McKinney and "Dub" Hawthorne. The latter, incidentally, is far from being a "dub" and it is hard to see where he gets the nickname. This lad is quite likely to be one of the mainstays of the 1932 Coyote backfield.

As for Cleo Creecy, he is one of the most inspiring backfield candidates a coach could desire. He is so full of energy, pluck, fight, aggressiveness, and a hundred and one other qualities that a line charger must have, that it is difficult to conceive of him failing to make the team. Last year he was the pride and joy of Assistant Coach Charlie Lindsey, who took Creecy under his wing and for long hours at a time gave him personal directions in blocking. Cleo would fail to do the thing right the first time, maybe, but he would come back with a great snort the second time and make the incredulous Lindsey sit up and take notice. The result of Creecy's will to learn, and Lindsey's patient teaching, are clearly evident this year. Whether young Creecy will tote the leather to any great extent is a question, but he is sure to be in there clearing a path for Fleetfoot McKinney or some of the others. Creecy also is responding quickly to Coach Jefferies' instructions in tackling. We are going to see some hard tackling this year, mates. Jefferies believes in hitting 'em low and hard. If the tackler can jar the ball toter's jaw tooth loose, so much the better. Creecy is right up with Preston Thompson, A. G. Fletcher, R. J. Byrd and the little Napoleon, J. Z. Powell, when it comes to tackling. But the thing that sets Creecy aside from all others is his almost audacious hustle and fire. He has made us admire him immensely and it is up to him to keep up the fight.

No less colorful a figure is Powell. Coach Jefferies didn't have to watch but one or two drills in side-stepping, blocking and tackling to realize that this chunky youngster, now in his second year as a Packman, was probably the best of the whole crew. Also, he has the same drive, aggressiveness and energy that characterize Creecy. He probably has more confidence in himself than Creecy has, for his experience has been greater. While Powell was in active service practically all of last year, Creecy, in the main, was champing at the bit on the sidelines. We hope to see both of them in there this year.

Powell gives every indication of being a much better quarterback this year. He demonstrated last year that he was one of the best blockers in the district. He was not all that could be desired as a safety man. That, possibly, was his greatest fault. But out of the welter of experience gained last year Powell learned a lot, and his shortcomings in this respect ought to be eliminated this year.

In addition, Powell has grown in "football stature" to the extent that he has a better grasp of the problems confronting a field general. He can be expected this year to use the right plays at the right time, to see more clearly the opposition's weakness, and to see it quicker, than he did last year. It is almost a certainty that Powell will carry the ball but little. He is too valuable as a blocker.

Burns McKinney is a vastly improved player, as is Hawthorne. Each is a speed demon and each is endowed with the fighting spirit. Behind the blocking of Powell and Creecy, and a line that promises to tower over six feet and average around 170 pounds, they should lug the hide to many a touchdown. Ah, what rosy dreams! Here we have dern near won the district already!

Of course there are other backfield men—and how! Jefferies has more than five schools would ordinarily need, including three giants, Preston Thompson, Weldon Beck, and Olin Burnett, and A. J. Byrd, and a flock of others. If the four mentioned above fail to deliver, there will be replacements aplenty.

In any event, the Coyotes are assured of a hustling, fighting backfield, every man of which can deliver the goods. This will be in contrast to former Coyote teams of recent years, when "Scrapiron" Withrow was forced to carry the burden. The tradition established by the hefty Withrow will be carried on—colorfully, and, we hope, effectively.

SCORE EQUALS OLD RECORD

Moreland Qualifies With Card of 149

By ALAN GOULD

FIVE FARMS COURSE, BALTIMORE Country Club, Sept. 13. (AP)—The highly-prized qualifying medal for the United States amateur championship was captured today by a 20-year-old college star, Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati and the University of Michigan, with a record-equaling tally of 69-73—142 for 36 holes.

Exhibiting little if any tendency to wilt under the strain of the most spectacular scoring pace in the 36-year history of the national tournament, Fischer's performance featured the almost complete domination of the proceedings by youth's biggest golfing parade.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS

BALTIMORE COUNTRY Club, Md., Sept. 13. (UP)—Pairings for tomorrow's first round matches of the U. S. amateur golf championship, in order of position in the match play brackets follow:

Gene Vinson vs. M. P. Warner.
Perry Hall vs. Chick Evans.
E. A. McClure vs. W. C. Chapin.
Eddie Held vs. Jesse Guilford.
Play-off winner vs. Ross Somerville.
Jack Westland vs. Johnny Lehman.
William O. Blaney vs. Francis Brown.
Emmett Spicer Jr., vs. Gus Moreland.
Lawson Little vs. John Fischer.
Robert Grant vs. William Crossley.
Sidney Noyes vs. Chris Brinke.
Francis Ouimet vs. George Voigt.
Maurice McCarthy vs. John Parker.
Eric McRuvie vs. Charles Yates.
John Goodman vs. Chandler Egan.
Charles Seaver vs. John Robbins.

Leads by Two Strokes

Qualifying for the first time, Fischer, who holds the national intercollegiate championship, beat his nearest rival, Johnny Goodman of Omaha, by two strokes. He was in front all the way. But for three narrowly missed putts on his round today he would have blasted a new qualifying standard instead of doing well enough to equal the mark of 142 first set by D. Clarke Corkran of Baltimore in 1924 at Merion, Pa., and duplicated twice by Bobby Jones, in 1927 and 1930.

Goodman's brilliant 72-72—144, where a single losing tussle with a bunker on the 16th hole cost him two strokes and a tie with his Ohio rival, was just good enough to give the Nebraskan second place. He finished one stroke in front of 19-year-old Wilfred Crossley, Harvard freshman and Perry E. Hall, wealthy Philadelphia banker, tennis star by preference and golfer only by request.

Shoot Same Scores

Crossley and Hall, two of the qualifying play's biggest sensations, posted identical scores of 73-72—145, as they, too, made the grade for the first time.

In the wildest of all hunts for the 32 qualifying places by a field of 154 players, it took 152 or better, another record, to get into the battle for match play, which starts tomorrow with two 18-hole rounds for the survivors. The best previous mark was 155.

Thirty-three were left after today's exciting events. Two of these, Willie Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., youngest of a noted golfing clan, and John Brawner Jr., Washington business man, each with 152, tied for the 32nd place and will play off at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

Ouimet Gets 151

The defending champion, Francis Ouimet of Boston, qualified with 78-73—151, only a stroke to spare. The popular American Walker cup captain, on the ragged edge from the start, shot the last seven holes in one under par to keep himself in the battle. Big Jesse Guilford, former national champion, did the final six holes in one under par to post another 151.

The oldest of the old guard, Chandler Egan of Del Monte, Calif., champion in 1904-05, and Chick Evans of Chicago, titleholder last in 1920, came through with grand rallies to qualify easily at a time when they were supposed to be through. Evans shot 149 and Egan 151. Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston of St. Paul, both former champions, were eliminated.

Britishers Routed

The British forces were routed. Eric McRuvie, 22-year-old Scotsman, alone survived among eight overseas invaders, and joined Ross Somerville, the Canadian champion, as the sole remaining foreign threats.

The home guard also experienced a series of stunning setbacks. Two of the American Walker cup stars, Don Moe of Oregon and Billy Howell of Virginia, successful partners at Brookline, were eliminated by wide margins. Moe finished with 157 and Howell with 161. Along with them went the sensational George T. Dunlap Jr., of New York, a hero of the Walker cup competition who blew up with a 42 on the last nine and finished just above the qualifying limit with 153.

Moreland Shoots 149

In the 149 Bracket, with such campaigners as Gus Moreland of Dallas and Chick Evans, was 19-year-old Charley Yates, Georgia state champion, competing in his first national tournament. Yates with a 72 the first day, played cooly to get a safe 77 and continue his bid for fame. A stroke back of him, at 150, was Gene Vinson, young Mississippi champion.

YANKS CINCH LEAGUE TITLE

Leaders Beat Indians, 9-3, For 100th Victory

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13. (AP)—The New York Yankees reached the end of their long march toward the 1932 American league championship today when they defeated the Indians, 9-3, to make their triumph a mathematical certainty.

The victory was their 100th of the season against 43 defeats so far. Even if they lose all their remaining games and the second place Philadelphia Athletics take all the 12 they have left, the pennant still will belong to New York. The A's have won 87 games and can do no better than 99 victories.

George Pipgras, veteran righthander, had the honor of pitching the deciding game although he had not lasted a full game against Cleveland since 1928 and he came through in good style despite the "jinx." He pitched the full game, giving only eight hits, and never was in danger.

The Yanks piled up 16 blows off Clint Brown and Sarge Connally, every one of them getting at least one hit, and put the game away in the sixth inning with a four run outburst that gave them a 7-1 margin. Score:

HERD ARRIVES AT BEAUMONT

'Breaks' May Decide 1932 Winner, Says Baker

BEAUMONT, Sept. 13. (AP)—Opening a titular struggle to decide the Texas league champions of 1932, the Dallas Steers and Beaumont Exporters will clash in the first game of the playoff series tomorrow at 3:30 o'clock. The right to meet Chattanooga's Lookouts in the Dixie series a week hence will go to the club winning three games of what may be a five-game set-to.

Both clubs were camped here on the eve of battle, the Steers under the direction of Manager Hap Morse having arrived at 9 o'clock via Houston. The visiting contingent including players, club officials and scribes numbers 30.

This morning Manager Del Baker put his first half champions through their final work, after which the turf of Stuart stadium was carefully manicured for the all important series. Though his team is somewhat crippled, the peppery Beaumont pilot expects his charges to give the Steers a terrific scuffle.

"In my opinion," said Baker, "the championship will go to the club getting the breaks."

The local pilot was non-committal on his starting pitcher but it is generally accepted here that Izzy Goldstein will be the one to oppose George Murray in the starter. Each is believed to have a so-called jinx over the enemy club.

Jurors Dismissed In Cisco Case

EASTLAND, Texas, Sept. 13. (AP)—Jurors in Cisco's suit for reinstatement in the 1932 high school football race were discharged late this afternoon after two days of deliberation had failed to bring a verdict. The vote was reported to have been 10 to 2 against the plaintiff.

F. D. Wright, leading counsel for the plaintiff, announced that plans were not complete for further action by Cisco. Judge George L. Davenport may be asked to decide the case, or a second trial may be held.

Time has become an important element with Cisco, which is to have a team whether or not the school is readmitted to the league. An "outlaw" schedule has been arranged, but Coach Wilson Elkins is now debating the advisability of opening it Friday night with Decatur Baptist college. If taken back into the league, new rules of that organization would not permit Cisco to play a game of any kind until the last week-end of September.

Yale Grid Candidates Hear Coaches Talk

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 13. (US)—Seventy of the 85 Yale football candidates asked to report for early practice tonight dined at the "Y" club, organizing the training table for the season. Later the squad in Linsly hall listened to talks by Coaches Mal Stevens, Adam Walsh, Charley Comerford, Albie Comerford, Albie Booth and Capt. John Wilbur.

Dr. Stevens predicted that Chicago would bring here in three weeks a stronger eleven than Yale faced in Chicago last year, that Brown university, the following week-end, would present a strong fighting eleven, and that every Yale player knew what must be faced in the Army and Dartmouth games, which will next come in quick succession.

Ruth Cheered at News Of Yankees' Success

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (UP)—Babe Ruth learned that his New York Yankees had clinched the American league pennant today from a radio report in his apartment.

"Of course he had been expecting the Yankees to take the pennant," Mrs. Ruth said tonight. "But the news that they actually had completed their season's campaign cheered him visibly."

Mrs. Ruth said the Babe was recovering rapidly from his symptoms of appendicitis, and she expected him to leave his bed tomorrow. He will remain in the apartment for several days.

Coyotes Test Battery Of Plays In First Dummy Scrimmage Of Season

In the first systematic dummy scrimmage of the season, the Wichita Falls High school Coyotes yesterday ran through an assortment of about 15 plays under the guidance of Head Coach Ted Jefferies and his staff of assistants.

Scattering more experienced players here and there on the various teams, the squad was divided into four complete units for the signal drill, which occupied most of the afternoon.

A "first string" team composed of Rice at center, Foster and Rogers at guards, Leroy McBride and Bob Decker at tackles, Brandon and Capt. Ed Greenwood at ends, with Powell, Cleo Creecy, Jasper McBride, and Burns McKinney in the backfield, set the pace for the other three teams during the afternoon. The three remaining units reeled off the various plays after the "first string" team had turned the trick, with the result every member of the squad was given a chance to become more familiar with the intricate battery of plays the Jefferies system will produce this fall.

The workout started with a spirited relay race, and prolonged drill in passing and kicking. These warming up exercises led up to the dummy scrimmage.

A promising addition to the squad yesterday was Howard Clark, one of the many fine prospects that have come to the Coyote squad via A. D. Beck's Reagan Junior High school teams. Clark is a hefty tackle. Yesterday he paired up with W. D. Tollett at the tackle positions on one of the teams engaged in the scrimmage.

The work of Charles Hurd at end, which has been noticed favorably by coaches, continued to impress Mentor Jefferies. Hurd, a speedy fellow from last year's aggregation, promises to give the veterans Brandon and Captain Greenwood a battle this year. Another end who shows promise is Bob Williamson, a B squad backfielder last year who now aspires to a wing position. Hurd and Williamson paired together yesterday and did some creditable work.

Kicking and Passing Stressed by Lions

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 13.—Candidates for the 1932 Lion football team were sent through a stiff two-hour workout Tuesday afternoon at the City park here in a session featuring kicking, passing and group work. Head Coach W. C. Weir indicated that no outstanding shifts in positions of some of the players would likely occur before the latter part of this week or early next week.

The complete list of candidates reporting to date:

Capt. H. A. Thompson, 1931 Capt. T. M. Watson, Edwin Garner, Paris Grogan, Ed Miller, Don Donahue, Guy Wheeler, Kermit Ammons, Billy Baskerville, Harrold Wilson, Grady Foster, Cullen Cribbs, J. B. Davis, Buster Barton, Wayne Smith and Reed Smith, backs; and Tarleton Jones, Billy Reed, Odis Maney, Henry Galloway, Roy Jones, E. C. Thomas, Frederick Stewart, Jim Caldwell, R. S. Parr, J. C. Armstrong, Paul Taylor, Henry Ben Hopson, Howard Withers, J. R. Goldstein, Harold Brewer, Quanah Parker, Cecil Sloan, Joe Kressenberg, Weldon Dicus, Howard Lissman, Jim White, Leonard Liles, J. B. Huff, David Nowlin, Forest Orr, Billy Lofland, Joe Donges and Earl Doyle, linemen.

Thompson, Watson, T. Jones, Reed, Maney and Galloway are letter men.

Kemp Hotel Wins Extra-Inning Battle

Larry Schwamb proved to be the hero of the day Friday afternoon on Debus field when he starred in a relief pitching role and gained a 7 to 6 victory for his Kemp Hotel nine of the Merchants playground baseball league over the Panhandle Refining company in an eight-inning battle. It was the first extra inning game of the season. Leonard Voltz started on the mound for Kemp hotel and was trailing, 6 to 0, at the end of the fifth inning when Schwamb went to the hill. The entry of the popular skipper into the game after a long idleness due to an operation recently, added much spirit to the club and while Schwamb pitched three innings of scoreless ball his club hammered Chambers, Panhandle tosser, for seven runs to nose out in the extra inning of play.

Ligosky And Orth On Card Friday

Wrestling fans of Wichita Falls are promised one of the most colorful battles of the year with the meeting Friday night of Russian George Ligosky and Paul Orth on the main event of the weekly necktwisting entertainment in Govro arena. Both of these men are well known for their love of the rough and tumble style of wrestling.

The semifinal this week will bring back two more old favorites in Pat O'Brien, the pride of Waco's Irish settlements, and Silent Condell, the cagy deaf and dumb Scotchman from Dallas.

Wichita Millers Beat Mack Taylors, 8 to 1

Homer Lewis let the Mack Taylor Drug company team down with only one run Tuesday afternoon on Jalonic street diamond while the Wichita Mill were pecking away at Bill Morton for an 8 to 1 victory. Lewis pitched great ball for the flour makers and was never in danger of losing his lead. The game was a play-off game of one of the many rainouts of last week and shoved the Wichita Mill into a tie with Holt Hotel and higher into the thick of the fight for the leadership.

Score:	R.	H.	E.
Wichita Mill	8	16	2
Mack Taylor	1	6	3

Lewis and Smith; Morton and Edwards.

BEATY LANDS VERNON POST

Former Coyote, College Star on Faculty

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 13.—Announcement of the addition to the junior high school faculty here of Curtis Beaty, former Wichita Falls High school, Junior college, and Texas university football star, was made Tuesday by Supt. W. T. Lofland. Beaty was named to replace R. B. Harris of Denton who Monday accepted a position in a high school in Dallas.

While Beaty's appointment is at present temporary, it is likely that he will be given a permanent position on the junior high school faculty.

Beaty has been head coach of football at Mission High school the past two years. His last year as a member of the Wichita Falls High school football team was in 1923, when he was a star tackle on the eleven that defeated Vernon's crack organization here Thanksgiving day, 12-6, in one of the hardest fought contests ever played between the two ancient rivals. The 1923 Coyote club later went to the state semifinals, losing to Abilene for the highest mark ever obtained by a grid team in this district in the state race.

After graduating from high school, Beaty entered Wichita Falls Junior college where he performed at the fullback position for two years. He then entered Texas university at Austin in 1926, and after playing a year on the freshman team, lettered his last three years at guard. He received a broken leg on the opening day of Texas' Thanksgiving day battle with A. & M., his last year.

While not definitely assigned to the post, Beaty will probably take charge of the junior high school football squad. The Vernon senior high school at present has three mentors, Head Coach W. C. Weir, former A. & M. backfield luminary; Ralph Binnion, former backfield star at Trinity university; and Bob Dickinson, end on the Southern Methodist university team of last year which copped the Southwest conference championship.

Tennis Star Disappoints Crowd by Wearing Pants

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 11. (US)—St. Louis tennis fans were disappointed this afternoon in not seeing the famous "shorts" of W. H. "Bunny" Austin, British tennis ace, but they did see a fancy brand of net play as the English Davis cup team appeared in an elaborated exhibit.

Austin, who startled the tennis gallery at Forest Hills last week, appearing in "shorts," today, playing in conventional long pants, battled his teammate Fred Perry in a three-set single match which was the feature of the program.

After Perry had won the first set, six four and Austin the second, seven five and the third set was deadlocked at eight eight, the two decided by mutual consent to end the contest so that the doubles could be played.

In two double exhibitions Edward Avory and John Olif of the British cup team also displayed their wares with local stars joining in the play.

UTILITY PROBE IS NEAR CLOSE

Trade Commission Renews Investigation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—The trade commission's far-flung investigation of public utility companies, begun four years ago at the direction of the senate, was resumed today with examination of the financial affairs of 14 associated gas and electric company concerns in New York and Pennsylvania.

Nearing the end of its long and complicated task, the commission determined to speed the hearings and examinations as much as possible in an effort to report to the senate before the end of the present fiscal year next June 30.

The inquiry was ordered by a senate resolution adopted Feb. 15, 1928. It directed the commission to determine if there were any financial practices of public utility companies which demanded the enactment of legislation.

Beginning its hearing less than two months later, the commission has amassed a bulging record of 24,467 pages along with a huge mass of exhibits. It has proved to be the most far reaching inquiry conducted during its 18 years of existence.

No report has been made thus far on any of the individual companies examined.

Sapulpa Man Heads Elks of Oklahoma

PAWHUSKA, Okla., Sept. 13. (UP)—Ralph K. Robtertson, Sapulpa was elected president of the Oklahoma Elks lodge this afternoon at the closing session of the state convention here.

El Reno was selected as the 1933 convention city.

Louis Pfotemhauer, Oklahoma City, was re-elected for the seventh time as state secretary.

The convention closes tonight with a dance climaxing three days of festivities, speeches and business sessions.

Where There Ain't No Ten Commandments

other. "Good luck," I said, "and, oh well, thank you."

Pete hesitated. An oath which was new to me, slipped out and then, "I'm darned fond of her. It's hell"; and he went off between the trees.

For a week Sylvia was speechless. Her husband thought she had fever. Then, one night, at some unearthly hour, she said, "He wouldn't take me. I'd have gone to the ends of the earth."

I tried to comfort her, but she pushed me away. "He wanted me and I, oh, I loved him from the very first moment, but he said it wasn't a straight deal . . ." There was a pause. "And that's the man you call an outlaw," said Sylvia.

The story, of course, should end here, but alas, it didn't.

I left the station without hearing anything more of Pete, except the girl's repeated asseverations, "He's going to work. He promised me. He'll make good, I know it, but oh, what use is it all, if I never see him again?"

As the Ford started stationwards—a little matter of 250 miles—I caught sight of the station house and was oppressed by its isolation. Then I looked at the gum trees and the arid plains, rolling, mile upon mile of them, to a limitless horizon, and I was stirred.

Some years later I was back in Australia and staying in a two-roomed Noah's ark house with a galvanized iron roof and a veranda set among sheds and railed in paddocks. My host was known throughout the north as "the Beetle" for all his features were squashed into horny flatness. He had a nice wide smile. His partner was so thin and dry that he looked as if he'd been passed through a mangle.

At the end of a week the two of them decided they'd ride into the nearest township and "blue" a month's pay.

Before leaving, the Beetle approached me diffidently. It appeared that the barman always sent him home with a last bottle of whisky in his pocket so that when they arrived at the station, it was unlikely he would remember that the only bedroom was occupied. He would be sure to make blindly for his usual couch. As there was no key would I mind wedging an axe under the door?

I promised.

The following night I was awakened by a terrific crash in the sitting room, so I went out to investigate. There were three men and the stranger was in the last stages of despair.

"He would mix his drinks," explained my host, "and now he wants to be a suicide."

"Who is he?" I asked.

"He's been workin' for a year or two with a squatter, but by the looks of him, the life don't exactly suit him," returned the Beetle. "He's pretty quiet about his antecedents."

My host stumbled over the word and added with dignity, "Not that he need be. No questions asked up here."

It was then that I noticed the scar which ate into the stranger's wrist. "Pete!" I exclaimed, and a gleam came into the sodden face, seamed by excess and exposure.

The Beetle blundered out to make coffee. His partner went on to the veranda to put up a third camp bed. I turned my back on the other because I remembered Sylvia's passionate "He'll make good, I know it," and in that moment, he whipped out a knife.

His attempt at cutting his throat was not effective, but it was incredibly messy. While we were bandaging him I thought his head would fall off backwards.

As soon as we'd laid him on a bed, the Beetle procured a fresh horse and set off, quite amiably to fetch the nearest doctor, 50 miles away. I thought it was waste of energy for we couldn't stop the bleeding.

The partner and I sat on two very hard chairs. In a few minutes the former was asleep. "How abominably callous," I thought, and almost immediately followed his example!

Dawn woke me. The "suicide" was gone.

Indignantly, we searched the house. The partner opined that the man had been foxing.

"Don't be an idiot," I said. "We saw the cut," but my companion was not very certain what he had seen.

We were in the middle of a furious argument when news came that a stranger had been found in the creek. According to the excited messenger, his head was only held on by a bandage and he'd contrived to drown himself in two feet of water.

Oh yes, the story ought to have ended with that heroic parting under the blue gum trees, for though "there's lots of bad in the best of us," even more true is it that "there's a hell of a lot of good in the worst of us."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE EAR OF THE TYRANT DENYS—Denys the Tyrant of Syracuse became ruler of Sicily through violence and conspiracy in the fourth century B. C. Being in constant and morbid fear of assassination he disgraced his rule by acts of unspeakable cruelty. The subterranean prisons of Latomie, near Syracuse, in Sicily, were presently filled with the king's prisoners. The prison was so constructed that the feeblest sound would echo from the ingeniously fashioned vaults of the edifice. In the outer extremity of the prison the tyrant constructed an ear-shaped niche for a listening post. The acoustics of the niche were such that any sound coming from the casemates of the prison would be magnified in it 50 times. Denys was thus enabled to hear every word whispered by the unfortunate prisoners, and acting upon the information so gathered soon gained the reputation of omniscience. I visited the Ear of Denys during my trip to Syracuse last year. The acoustics of this sinister spot are still as effective as ever.

A FEATHERED HONEY GUIDE—On observing a man, the Great Honey Guide of Africa will flutter forward until he is certain that he has attracted human attention. The bird will then proceed in a certain direction, hopping from branch to branch, until it has pointed out the presence of a bees' nest. The bird, which feeds upon young bees, does this curious guiding for a selfish motive. After the honey is removed it attacks the young bees which have been exposed by human interference.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (AP)—Cotton declined further today, losing about $1.50 per bale from the previous close which carried the list down more than $10 a bale from the extreme high of the season maded uring late in August. Price changes were feverish at times, the market early in the afternoon rallying about $1 a bale from the early low point. Sentiment seemed influenced by the action of the stock market. December sold down to 7½ cents during the morning, rallied to 7.69 and again eased, closing at 7.51, a net decline of 29 points. The general market closed 28 to 31 points net lower.

Sentiment was more divided. Some authorities ventured the opinion that the liquidating movement had about run its course and that future developments would depend a good deal on the attitude of southern sellers. Some attention was given to the report of the storm off the Louisiana coast but comparatively few crop complaints were received.

Cotton reacted again toward the close under increased hedge selling and renewed liquidation futures closing barely steady, 28@31 lower. Oct. 7.33; Dec. 7.51@7.53; Jan. 7.56; March 7.71; May 7.82@7.84; July 7.93@7.94; spot quiet; middling 7.40.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13. (AP)—Cotton was again quite active today and prices fluctuated broadly. A decline during the morning of 29 to 30 points was nearly recovered later, but the market weakened again at the end owing to hedge selling and a closing reaction in stocks. The close was barely steady at net declines for the day of 26 to 30 points.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 4 to 5 penny points down.

Port receipts 39,773, for week 91,568, for season 746,991, last season 510,228. Exports 21,658, for week 91,296, for season 765,673, last season 391,449. Port stock 3,322,562, last year 2,848,349. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 83,539, last year 32,963. Spot sales at southern markets 37,957, last year 34,423.

Futures closed barely steady at net declines of 26 to 30 points.

Liverpool Cotton

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 13. (INS)—There was a fair demand for spot cotton at the opening today with prices easier. Receipts totaled 4,000 bales, including 3,300 American bales.

At midday middling fair was quoted at 7.10d, strictly good middling 6.65d, good middling 6.40d, strictly middling 6.20d, middling 6.10d, strictly low middling 6.00d, low middling 5.90d, strictly good ordinary 5.10d, and good ordinary 5.40d.

Futures opened steady with October at 5.88d, December 5.87d, January 5.87d, March 5.91d, May 5.94d, and July 5.98d.

CHICAGO COTTON

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (AP)—Cotton declined $1.50 per bale on active liquidation. The market broke sharply during early business when stock and grain markets declined. A partial recovery followed on trade buying but prices eased again in the afternoon. The close on the board of trade was barely steady, 21@36 points net lower. The opening was 13@19 points down on cables that were about 12 points lower than due. A sinking spell followed with December trading down to 7.61 or 28 points net lower and 215 points below the recent high level. A rally of $1.00 per bale followed, but the market eased again just before the close. The weather was generally favorable over the belt, which was without precipitation of consequence.

Democratic Victory In Maine Blamed For Heavy Wave Of Selling On Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (US)—Five million shares of stock were traded in today during a further severe price slump which was followed by partial recovery before the close.

Bullish speculators who only a short while back were certain that the upturn would last indefinitely either sold voluntarily in haste or were sold out by their brokers for lack of margin.

It was a highly emotional session. The price decline was hardly out of keeping with the spectacular advance which, regardless of the longer term prospects, had been carried on at a pace and with attendant excitement which brewed its own temporary disaster.

That the Maine election outcome should be interpreted by the more nervous bulls as an occasion for wild selling was secondary in its genuine importance to their indisputable danger created within the market itself by the fantastic price inflation over so short a time.

The correction, if that's all it amounts to, was true to expectations of those who had kept level heads during the bull exuberance; it was vicious, measuring the results of just two days.

Commodities generally were inclined to follow stocks, but were much less violent in their fluctuations.

The American Legion convention will vote tomorrow on approving the immediate payment of the bonus, and this undoubtedly has been a factor in a good deal of the previous profit-taking, especially last week.

Some of the declines were rather violent, especially in the very type of low-priced issues which had been the great favorites of the previous whoopee. Some of these lower priced issues—and many of them are also lower grade—lost 50 per cent of their price in two sessions, or from the highs of last week to the lows today.

A recovery set in toward the afternoon, stimulated by the announcement that the eastern railroad managers had attained "considerable progress" in their efforts to work out the merger tangle. This statement was considered the most promising since the meetings commenced.

Actually, the market had witnessed the completion, at least for the time being, of nervous and necessitious liquidation. Many margin accounts were wiped out in the rapid decline. The public speculators were hurt most severely in the lower-priced class of stock, wherein pool activity had boomed prices and created a feeling of complete security for the trade. The two-day performance on the downside emphasized the role played by pure manipulation and bullish puff.

Powerful interests who had commenced last week to sell the market short were covering during today's break. These speculators recognized the dangerous conditions brought about by a straight-upward advance which in so many issues lacked the support of fundamentals.

As a result, the short account probably increased at one stage recently to the largest aggregate in some months.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (AP)—Wheat regained poise late today, and helped by rallies in stocks and cotton, recovered in full from sharp early downturns.

Reports that a European cartel was negotiating for the purchase of 50,000,000 bushels of wheat from the United States farm board were a late bullish factor. There was a noticeable increase of buying toward the last on the part of houses with connections east.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ¼c higher, corn unchanged to ⅛c down, oats ⅛c off to ⅛c advance, and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 10c.

Corn and oats established new low price records for the season, but rallied with wheat. There were corn export bids at the seaboard and some overseas business in oats.

Provisions averaged firmer, responsive to hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, Dec. 53¼@⅝, 55½@⅝; May 58⅝@⅞, 60⅝. Corn, Dec. 29⅝@30, 30⅝; May 34⅝@35⅝.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (US)—The Canadian wheat movement is the only important market factor both here and abroad at present. Although there has been sufficient buying to absorb the hedges which have been transferred here, it has been done on a scale down. With world stocks exhausted any unfavorable developments in the southern hemisphere would greatly stimulate demand for our wheat, but in the absence of such developments the trade appears willing to permit dominion farmers to monopolize the market at bottom prices.

Cash demand for corn is showing a little improvement and it is said there are some inquiries for export, with ourp rices not far from a workable basis. Country offerings are smaller than they have been running but an impression prevails that holders will offer freely again on any upturn. Present prices are low and the feeding ration is very profitable.

Small world shipments of wheat and flour the past week had little effect as millers filled orders for immediate needs in Canada last week, it is said. Extremely small quantities are afloat so that very little unsold wheat will be availale for millers who are in need of prompt deliveries.

It is now believed Italy has harvested a large crop which will exceed the average, and that foreign imports this year will not be large.

Why Prolong the Depression For Yourself?

This New Plan Brings 25% To 100% More Profit to Your Cattle

If you own good quality Grass Fat or Feeder Cattle you have the best depression proof investment in America today. Don't prolong the depression for yourself, by sacrificing them now at 1932 prices.

Place them under the Bowles plan of Contract Share-Feeding and sell them as Corn Fed Cattle at 25% to 100% higher prices, at a total cost of 40c per cwt.

We have an organization of Supervisors blanketing the best of the Corn Belt. They are the most successful Feeders in the country, such men as:

J. W. (Bill) Frasier, Ene Tolan, E. P. Hull, John Hubley, all International Grand Championship winners 20 times out of a possible 30; Henry Hortenstine, Wayland Hopley, McKenna Brothers and George Prescott, winners of many International Show awards; Ralph McElrath, (Iowa), O. M. (Bean) Lyons, (Indiana) and Leslie L. Lemon (Missouri), the largest and most successful cattle feeders in their respective states, and many others.

We will place your cattle under the personal supervision of such men as these, assuring you of the greatest possible gain in weight. You make no investment—you don't even have to pay the freight until they sell.

Don't cheat yourself out of the increased value of Corn Fed Fat Prices by selling now. Prices of $8, $9 and $10 for Corn Fat Cattle are a practical certainty for late 1932 and the year 1933, and we think they can even work higher. Investigate! Write, or mail the coupon below. Your bank will gladly cooperate under the Bowles plan.

Bowles National Supervising Service,
212 Exchange Bldg., U. S. Yards, Chicago

Without any obligation, please send me complete information about the Bowles Plan for Contract Share-Feeding, and the cattle contract to be used.

PARADE ENTRY LIST ARRANGED

Jubilee Plans Show Rapid Progress

Rapid progress in arranging a colorful parade for the second of three such events during the golden jubilee was reported Tuesday by Chairman Kindel Paulk of the Junior chamber of commerce floats committee. Five merchants were signed to sponsor entries in the parade, which will be staged on Sept. 27, and seven entries were tentatively arranged by Mr. Paulk's committee.

The decorated floats will be arranged by a Chicago display company and will offer a historical review of the Wichita area. Classifications included in the assured entries are ice, lumber, grain, tire dealers, and electric dealers.

No Passes

The jubilee executive committee Tuesday afternoon announced that no free list is planned and that no passes for jubilee events will be issued. The rodeo and historical pageant will be the featured events for which gate charges will be made. The museum exhibits, style show, and speakers' appearances will be free to the public.

The historical pageant of the golden jubilee under general direction of R. E. Shepherd will be staged at Athletic park. The pageant was planned for the new Coyote football stadium, but the change was made when it was found the baseball park would seat about 3,000 more people than the stadium.

Mr. Shepherd said all of his 21 committees working on episodes for the pageant were completing their work rapidly and daily rehearsals will be started early next week. The staging of several scenes involving cowboys, horses, Indians, troops, ox teams and other features of the pageant will be aided by the change in location. Mr. Shepherd expects to secure services of 40 Comanche Indians, descendants of the tribes which ranged this area in the early days, for parts in the pageant.

Vice Chairman Arthur Howard of the pioneer reception committee has announced a mass meeting of local pioneers at 3 p. m. Friday at the courthouse to plan for entertaining early day residents of this section.

More than 80 pioneers who resided here 50 years ago or longer have been registered and will be honor guests of the jubilee association. Badges for the honor guests have been selected with a covered wagon design on a gold half-dollar-size medal. The back of the medal will be inscribed, "from one pioneer to another."

As the committee was faced with a shortage in funds a pioneer resident of Wichita Falls, now residing here, contributed $150 cash at the meeting for the badges. The donor requested his name be withheld, stating the pleasure of contributing the fund was sufficient.

The medals will be held by a gold ribbon, topped by a name plate. The ribbon will be inscribed "honor guest" with "50" beneath the words.

Fiddle bands and an early day organ will be furnished at the hospitality house in the 900 block on Scott avenue for the pioneers' entertainment. Only badge wearers will be admitted and registrations will be completed at the house during the jubilee.

SECOND PEACH CROP

Another specimen of the newest trend in the fruit industry was reported Tuesday by Mrs. Mary Marciniak, 1200 North Eighth. Mrs. Marciniak reports a peach tree at her home which is bearing a second crop of fruit. The latest crop has a sweeter taste and is more numerous than the first fruiting, which developed larger peaches.

District Convention Of Christian Churches Opens At 9:30 A. M. Today

Noted Speakers to Address Sessions With Delegates Coming From Surrounding Counties

The Highland Heights Christian church of Wichita Falls will be host to hundreds of delegates and visitors from throughout the Wichita area Wednesday when the annual convention of Christian churches of district No. 12 convenes at 9:30 a. m. Dr. H. T. Wood, First Christian church pastor, is president of the district.

A group of nationally known out-of-town speakers has been secured for the occasion and the convention theme of "The Kingdom First" will be followed in the program.

The group of visiting speakers will include Miss Florence Carmiachael of Indianapolis, Ind., Mrs. Berta McMasters of Fort Worth, Charles Marion Ross of Fort Worth, the Rev. Patrick Henry, Texas Christian Missionary society secretary; and President E. M. Waits of Texas Christian university at Fort Worth, and Judge C. E. Coombes of Stamford.

Miss Carmichael Speaker

Miss Carmichael will be the principal speaker Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. A song service in charge of Mrs. Joe Crouch of this city will open the program at 9:30 o'clock. Mrs. Frank Creighton of Wichita Falls will be in charge of the devotional and the initial address will be delivered at 9:50 by Bedford Smith of Olney on "The Kingdom First in the Christian's Everyday Life." O. T. Moline of Graham will speak at 10:20 o'clock on "The Kingdom First in Evangelism."

Mrs. Henry Truly of Wichita Falls will offer special music at 10:50 a. m.

Ben Parker of Breckenridge will close the morning program with an address on "The Unchanging Elements of the Kingdom" at 11:30 o'clock and J. Wilburn of Electra will offer the adjournment prayer.

Four addresses will be presented during the afternoon with Mrs. Wayne Holmes of Wichita Falls offering the opening song service and R. E. Austin of Seymour will offer the invocation at 1:30 o'clock. Mrs. Holmes will present special music at 2:50 p. m. The addresses include "How to Become a Citizen of the Kingdom" by C. A. Chasteen of Quanah at 1:40 o'clock; "The Kingdom First in Religious Education," by Charles M. Ross of Fort Worth at 2:20 p. m.; "The Kingdom First in Women's Work," by Mrs. Berta McMasters of Fort Worth at 3 p. m.; and "The Kingdom First in Preaching" by P. J. Merrill of Henrietta at 3:30 o'clock. P. B. Curd of Wichita Falls will offer the adjournment prayer.

Special Conferences

A series of conferences on children's work, women's, young people's and adult work will start at 4:15 p. m.

Judge Coombes will be the featured speaker at a dinner at 6 o'clock at the church with Dr. R. B. Wolford of Wichita Falls as toastmaster. R. E. Shepherd will direct the song service. Judge Coombes will discuss "The Kingdom First in Stewardship."

The evening service will open at 7:30 p. m. with Mr. Shepherd in charge of the song period and J. N. Sherrill offering the invocation. Committee reports at 8:15 o'clock will be preceded by an address on "Texas Missions" by the host pastor, the Rev. J. E. Montgomery. The closing convention address will be delivered on "Christian Education" by President Waits and J. G. Steele of Wichita Falls will offer the benediction.

WRESTLING TOURNAMENT

Attractions arranged for the golden jubilee party in Wichita Falls, Sept. 26-28, include a wrestling tournament under direction of Whitey Govro. The bouts will be staged at a downtown arena and will be presented each evening of the jubilee with the mat artists competing on a percentage basis for the world's junior middleweight title.

GOES FOR PRISONERS

Sheriff Perry Browning left Tuesday for Franklin, Texas, from which point he plans to return Irvin Upshaw and Miss Harriett Bowman, indicted here last week for alleged automobile theft. Mr. Browning is expected to return Wednesday night.

WICHITANS BUY RANCH IN KNOX

J. R. Craig Properties to Be Stocked With Cattle

Acquisition by the Featherston Investment corporation of this city of the old J. R. Craig ranch in Knox county by outright purchase was announced here Tuesday by the new owners.

The Featherston Investment corporation is owned by Charles H., Solon R., and W. B. Featherston, and Mrs. Mary E. Bradford. The tract which they have just bought consists of 11,270 acres, located about four miles west of Truscott, in the northwestern part of Knox county. It is one of the best known ranches in that section of the state, having been established approximately 50 years ago by the late J. R. Craig, who remained in active charge of its successful operation constantly until his death a few years ago.

The tract is divided into 14 different pastures, and has but 150 acres in cultivation. Equipped with numerous water tanks, windmills, and excellent fences, it is one of the best improved ranches in that part of the state.

According to C. H. Featherston, president of the purchasing concern, the Craig ranch will be stocked immediately with about 800 head of selected Hereford stock, and will be devoted to cattle raising.

Nightwatchman Guards Historical Exhibits

A nightwatchman began his duties at the historical exhibits building of the golden jubilee, 815 Eighth, Tuesday night and will remain on the job until all property exhibited is returned, Chairman Lester Jones said. All show cases have been equipped with padlocks for further protection of the displays and every necessary precaution has been taken in handling the exhibits.

An added feature of the exhibit will be Indian handicraft displays in the center display windows of the building. The work is shown by the Wichita State Bank and Trust company and has been secured from the Baker Hotels Travel service at Dallas by Mr. Jones.

SEEK DRAFT HORSES

A request for 16 draft horses for use in the military parade of the golden jubilee on Sept. 28 was issued Tuesday by Maj. J. H. Fletcher of the Texas national guard units in Wichita Falls. The horses are needed for the one day and will be sent for and returned.

THRILLED

Thousands See Gentry Brothers Circus In Wichita

Thousands of youthful Wichitans were thrilled Monday and Tuesday by the Gentry Brothers dog and pony show which brought a clean exhibition of trained animals to the city. The attraction turned away hundreds Monday night. The show offered a top string of trained ponies, augumented by goats, razorback hogs, monkeys and dogs.

The Gentry Brothers management cooperated with Wichita Falls business men furnishing 1,000 guest tickets for the performances for distribution through the retail houses of the city. Absence of sideshow snake displays and gambling devices was noted by Wichitans.

Daughters Of Nile Leader Here Oct. 18

Mrs. Pearl McClellan, supreme queen of the Daughters of the Nile, will visit Wichita Falls Oct. 18 on a trip of inspection and the Shrine Luncheon club program on that date will be sponsored by the organization honoring the visitor.

The luncheon at the Wichita club Tuesday honored Arthur Kelly and Leslie Swan and was a ladies' day program. Mr. Kelly is president of the Shrine Recorders Association of North America and Mr. Swan is a past president. Al Ellis, Maskat temple recorder, is secretary of the national association.

Entertainment Tuesday included presentation of "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet" as the official golden jubilee song. Chairman R. E. Shepherd of the pageant committee introduced the selection with Mrs. Shepherd at the piano. Mary Jane Payne offered a tap dance, accompanied by Miss Pauline Fulcher.

Childress Water Polo Team Enters Tourney

The Childress, Texas, water polo team of the fire department in charge of Capt. R. E. Hughes will enter the golden jubilee tournament for fire departments here Sept. 26-28. The entry of the Childress team was received Tuesday by Chief J. L. McClure of Wichita Falls.

Representatives of all towns entering the water polo tournament are scheduled to meet at the Memorial auditorium Friday night at 8 o'clock for completion of arrangements and practice games on Sixth street north of the auditorium. The public is invited to attend the practice sessions.

DEATHS

MRS. MARY PADGETT

Mrs. Mary Padgett, 52, of Burkburnett died at a local hospital at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night after a brief illness. The body was taken in charge by the Owens-Brumley Funeral home of Burkburnett pending completion of funeral arrangements. The husband, J. C. Padgett, survives. The family has resided at Burkburnett for 12 years, after moving from Clovis, N. M.

MRS. LILLIE MAE SANDERS

Funeral services for Mrs. Lillie Mae Sanders, 56, of Lubbock were held in that city Tuesday. She died at a local hospital Monday and the body was forwarded to Lubbock by the Hines mortuary. A son, W. D. Sanders, survives.

Seven Saloons 'But Very Few Drunks'

Stories Of The Wichita Area Pioneers

Says Vernon Woman Of Wichita In '85

Mrs. Emma Sampson Cole of Vernon has resided in the Wichita area since 1885, coming to this city on March 21, for a period of eight months. She is a native of Indiana and came here from Illinois. The family moved to Hardeman county, settling a section of school land and remaining 18 years.

Mrs. Cole recalls seven saloons, "but very few drunks," on the streets of Wichita Falls during her residence here. Her family filed on a claim in Comanche county—now Tillman county—Oklahoma in 1902 and she resided near Frederick, Okla., until she moved in 1923. She states there were many exciting experiences on the frontier along with the hardships, but the people were law abiding and were the cream of the country. Hospitality was the best, she writes.

VIC STAMPFLI HEADED VOLUNTEER

Victor E. Stampfli, 1820 Lucile, boasts a residence of 32 years in Wichita Falls, arriving in 1897 to make a permanent home in the city. Mr. Stampfli is a native of St. Louis and resided in Colorado Springs before moving here. He first visited the city in 1890.

Mr. Stampfli served as one of the early chiefs of the Wichita Falls fire department, and joined the volunteer body while operating the Cream bakery, which he ran for 25 years. While he was department chief and T. B. Noble was mayor the first motor fire engine was purchased. Mr. Stampfli has been prominent in local politics, is a charter member of the chamber of commerce and active in Masonic work, assisting in organization of the Order of Eastern Star here.

Mrs. Stampfli is a native Texan and came to Wichita Falls in 1896 from her birthplace, Ladonia. She has been active in the Baptist church work and held high offices in the Eastern Star.

BOW AND ARROW USED TO KILL ANTELOPE

W. Daniel of Wichita Falls came to the Wichita area as a lad of 8 years, his father settling at Nestorville—now Burkburnett. The elder Daniel assisted in the organization of the school district here that is now listed as Colonel Specht's Colony.

The Daniel family were witnesses of an episode of the wild life of the area a year after their arrival when a small band of Indians roamed North Wichita county in search of food and killed two antelope with bows and arrows within 300 yards of the Daniel home.

COUNTY COURT LEVIES FINES

Eight Persons Convicted Of Misdemeanors

Eight convictions on misdemeanor charges were registered Tuesday before Judge Irvin J. Vogel in the county court at law, three of them coming by jury action and five on pleas of guilty, according to County Attorney Louis V. Abernathy.

Convicted on a charge of having stolen more than $5 from the cash register of the Wichita Paint and Paper company, a youth was given 60 days in jail plus a $25 fine. The jury heard evidence in the case Monday afternoon.

A local man charged with having diverted gas from the Municipal Gas company's lines without permission was convicted by a jury and fined $25 plus costs. He was said to have connected the gas lines in the absence of a meter, to have placed a chair over the connection, and to have kept on the chair a savage dog to prevent tampering with the gas service.

A negro, tried before a jury, was fined $25 and costs for affray. Convictions on pleas of guilty were as follows: Shooting gun across public highway, $1 and costs; drunkenness, $10 and costs; using narcotics, $5 and costs; two for joy-riding, $5 each plus costs.

Daughter Is Born To Mr. and Mrs. J. McLarry

A daughter was born at the Wichita General hospital Tuesday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Jess McLarry, 1213 Fillmore. The newcomer, weighing six pounds and 15 ounces, was named Mary Fauncein. Both Mrs. McLarry and the child were reported to be doing nicely. Mr. McLarry is auditor for The Times Publishing company.

ENROLLMENT IN SCHOOL GAINS

City Scholastic Still Below Last Year's Total

Enrollment in the Wichita Falls public schools and Junior college totaled 7,718 in reports to Supt. H. D. Fillers Tuesday afternoon, revealing an increase of 206 over Monday's registration but 636 under the pupils listed on the second day of the 1931-32 session.

Additional pupils were reported from all buildings with the greatest percentage of gain in the high school and college classes. The college enrollment was boosted to 186, a gain of 32 over Monday's report and a gain of 15 over the second day a year ago.

Senior high registration listed 1,250 pupils and Zundelowitz 572, with 694 at Reagan Junior high.

The enrollment will be increased during the first two months of school with pupils now in cotton fields entering late and other additions. The enrollment was in line with estimates made by Mr. Fillers last June in formation of the reorganization economy plan for the system and registrations at several schools tallied with estimates of the superintendent. The maximum class enrollment is being held at 38 pupils per teacher.
