Reagan officials resign, 'relieved'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today announced the resignation of his national security adviser as his attorney general disclosed that as much as $30 million in money collected from Iran for arms was transferred to forces in Central America, presumably Contra rebels.

Attorney General Edwin Meese III, ordered by Reagan to conduct an inquiry into the Iranian arms sale, said that investigation disclosed another White House official, Lt. Col. Oliver North, was responsible for diverting from $10 million to $30 million to the "forces in Central America."

National security adviser John Poindexter, a vice admiral in the Navy, asked for reassigment and North was "relieved" of his duties, Reagan announced before turning a White House briefing over to Meese.

North was a principal deputy to Poindexter.

Meese said Reagan had not yet picked Poindexter's successor, but would do so "as soon as possible."

Reagan declined to answer shouted questions from reporters trying to learn whether Secretary of State George Shultz' job was in jeopardy. But Meese, who spoke to reporters after Reagan left the podium, said Shultz would remain in his post.

In making his announcement, Reagan sought — once again — to lay to rest a political and diplomatic controversy that has mushroomed into one of the most damaging of his presidency. Shultz, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and the members of the Joint Chief of Staff all have made clear their opposition to the secret arms sale.

Reagan announced that he had asked Meese to review the secret arms sale and said today's announcement was the result of the inquiry's preliminary findings.

Meese told reporters that "we are still continuing our inquiry" into the operation.

Reagan, announcing the moves before Meese spoke, said "I was not fully informed on the nature of one" element of his secret policy.

He did not say what that element was.

Reagan was still making his statement when reporters interrupted him and asked whether he had made a mistake by approving the secret arms sale.

County profiled by audit

County commissioners approved during regular session Monday an outside audit for 1985 of county holdings. Monte West with the firm Anderson-West, CPAs, presented the report.

Since the county operates on a calendar year basis, the report given Monday reflected the status of county operations effective on Dec. 31, 1985, information almost one year old.

West listed the General Fund's assets and liabilities at just over $2.7 million with the close of the fiscal year. Most county operations, with the exception of the four commissioner road and bridge funds, receive monies through the General Fund.

In addition, the county maintains a separate fund for Cogdell Memorial Hospital. The report listed over $7.3 million in assets and liabilities for the institution. Some $497,648 in ad valorem tax monies helped support the facility in 1985.

West noted that buildings and equipment make up the majority of the hospital's assets.

The hospital reported an operating loss of some $282,252

Public forum slated for sex ed. tonight

The Snyder school board will meet in a called "public forum" Tuesday night to hear public comments and to consider adoption of a sex education study unit as part of health classes offered here next spring.

The goal of the course offering is to make students more aware of the liabilities of unwanted teenage pregnancy.

Tuesday's meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the junior high school auditorium. The board faces a single agenda item, the possible adoption of the curriculum.

Prior to any votes, however, they are expected to listen to comments local parents might wish to offer. Since last week, school patrons have been invited to the school administration building to preview course material scheduled to be presented with the course.

As planned, the material would be presented as a two-week unit taught in health classes offered at the fifth grade, seventh grade and high school-level.

It has been noted that parents would have the option of having their child removed from this portion of the health education class.

Emphasized throughout the study unit is the need for parent-child communication as part of the sex education process, school officials have noted.

Adoption of the study plan has

Burglary from 1980 said cleared

A 1980 burglary of the Linda Pickering residence at 2101 40th St. was charged to 17-year-old Roy Martinez Monday night.

He was arrested Monday morning and charged with burglarizing the Skinny's store on the East Highway Sunday night.

Police said that Martinez — who was 11 years old at the time of the house burglary — has indicated he and another individual were involved in the Pickering break-in. Following it, some $300 to $400 in cash was reported stolen.

Martinez remains in the Scurry County Jail in lieu of bond set at $5,000 in connection with the Skinny's incident.

Year-old cases gain 4 suspects

Miguel Martinez, 19, of 1100 28th St. and three other suspects, all juveniles at the time of the alleged offenses, were arrested Monday.

They are charged with the burglary of the Robert Viator residence at 3901 Eastridge Dr., an incident reported on Nov. 30, 1985.

Police say information developed during the investigation of an unrelated case led them to the four suspects.

Martinez and the three others are accused of taking stereo speakers and other items from the East Snyder residence.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If health food folks want to work on something really revolutionary, they ought to try whole wheat Ding Dongs."

Sunday, our family was seated near a table in the restaurant occupied by Charles and Glenna Jones.

Jones is owner of Munden's Pharmacy, and the family attends First Baptist Church where Ken Branam is pastor.

Glenna agreed with a recent comment we made about the difficulty of getting the last word on Branam. It did, however, occur recently.

Branam was at high school during career day and was visiting with Joe Dan Jones, owner of Classic Paint and Body Shop and one of the career day guest speakers.

The subject soon turned to Joe's mother, Glenna, which caused the preacher to ask, "What good could come from your mother?"

Charles Jones was talking about the many changes in the pharmacy business. There's been a lot of new drugs come on the market since he graduated from pharmacy school, and it requires a continual effort to stay current.

Like most businesses, computers have also had their impact. Charles says the introduction of computers into his business probably "saves half a pharmacist and half a wife."

Glenna, however, has more confidence in the "half wife" than the computer. In the first couple of months with the computer, Glenna had to drive more than 300 miles to have the unit repaired.

"He's had me more than 30 years without a major breakdown."

Marge Anderson, a new grandmother and wife of junior high principal Charles Anderson, has learned a valuable secret to successful airline travel.

Anderson took his wife to the Lubbock airport Saturday for a flight to Dallas to visit their new granddaughter. Marge was so excited she told everyone--including the clerk at the ticket counter about getting to visit the grandbaby.

When the flight was called, Marge was allowed to board first--along with young children, the infirmed and the handicapped.

"We take care of excited grandmothers," explained the flight attendant.

Co-op has loan for updates

The Lone Wolf Electric Cooperative, which serves a portion of Scurry County as well as Mitchell, Nolan, Fisher, Borden and Howard Counties, has received a low-interest loan of $875,000 for extensive upgrading of the system.

The loan is being provided by funds through the Rural Electrification Administration of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

The loan's approval was announced Monday by U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm.

The loan is to be used to extend service to an additional 1,750 customers for Lone Wolf, according to a release from Gramm's Washington office.

The rural co-op provides service to some 750 meters in Scurry County, a spokesman said.

Ask Us

Q. — Is 37th St. between College Ave. and East Highway a two-lane or a four-lane highway and, if it's a two-lane, why isn't the shoulder stripped?

A. — This portion of 37th St. is actually a farm-to-market road (FM 1605) maintained by the state and designed for two-lane traffic. Regarding the stripe, highway department officials in Abilene note that due to the heavy traffic flow along the highway, they are now considering such a stripe to mark where the shoulder begins.

Store break-in

Tuesday morning, police were investigating the burglary of a 25th St. convenience store discovered early in the morning.

Glenda Moree, owner of The Grocery Store at 1000 25th St., called police at 7:29 a.m. She said she had discovered the break-in when she went in to open for business.

According to police, entry to the store was apparently gained by breaking out a back window.

An undetermined amount of money in the form of coins was said missing from the store.

Government probes claims about cancer-causing agents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists are looking into the possibility that drinkers of alcoholic beverages face a cancer risk from a chemical present in many wines and whiskeys, a top federal health official says.

However, there will be no immediate drastic action, such as yanking such beverages off the market as demanded by a consumer advocacy group on Monday, said Frank Young, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration.

"We're responding at a thorough and rapid rate; I don't think we're going to do anything more than we are now," he said in response to a petition by the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

A spokeswoman for the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States said the chemical — ethyl carbamate, or urethane — has been shown to be associated with cancer in rats but not in humans.

The spokeswoman, Janet Flynn, accused the consumer group of "fright-mongering" and said her council had been able to find no health risks associated with low levels of the chemical detected. However, she also said the council was working to eliminate or reduce the chemical.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest, joined by the National Council on Alcoholism, said it had filed a formal petition urging the FDA "to inform the public of the risk and to take regulatory action to reduce the hazard" of urethane in wine and whiskey.

The groups noted that the Canadian government set limits nearly a year ago on urethane levels in wines and distilled spirits, and they called on U.S. officials to recall immediately all alcoholic beverages in this nation that exceed the Canadian limits.

The center said in a news release that tests on beverages in this country had shown urethane levels above the Canadian limits in 13 of 81 wines, nine of 20 sherries, 11 of 36 bourbons and 19 of 42 brandies.

However, Young said it was far from clear what the significance of the chemical was in foods using fermentation processes, including bread, yogurt and others as well as in alcoholic beverages.

Since the Canadian action, Young said in a telephone interview, U.S. scientists have been vigorously looking into the matter but "have not been able to come to grips with" the problem of what level of the chemical, if any, might affect health.

Mob boss accused of rigging Presser's election to teamsters

NEW YORK (AP) — Convicted Mafia boss Anthony Salerno and 15 alleged associates in the Genovese crime family arranged for Jackie Presser's selection as president of the Teamsters union, a new indictment charges.

Salerno, convicted last week of sitting on the American Mafia's ruling "commission," tried "to exercise control and influence over the decisions of Jackie Presser as general president" of the union, the indictment charges.

The 39-count federal indictment unsealed Monday supersedes an earlier indictment against the defendants to include additional charges of construction bid-rigging, loansharking and fraudulent intervention in Presser's election.

The indictment charges that Salerno, 75, of Rhinebeck, and three of his co-defendants "selected Jackie Presser as their candidate" to fill the unexpired term of former Teamsters President Roy L. Williams.

The earlier version of the indictment, handed up March 21, accused them of helping to elect and control Williams as Teamsters president.

The four allegedly influenced Teamsters officials in New York and elsewhere to support Presser's selection by the Teamsters' General Executive Board.

In addition to Salerno, the others charged in that count were reputed Genovese capo Vincent Cafaro of New York and two men with reputed links to Cleveland's Mafia family, John Tronolone of Miami Beach, Fla., and Milton Rockman of Cleveland.

A federal grand jury in Cleveland indicted Presser in May on embezzlement and racketeering charges for an alleged ghost employee scheme.

Williams was forced to resign in 1982 after his conviction for conspiracy to bribe a U.S. senator, for which he is serving a 10-year prison sentence. In November, Williams testified at a racketeering trial in Kansas City, Mo., that he took monthly payoffs from a reputed crime boss.

The superseding indictment, handed up Sept. 19, was not unsealed until the jury returned its verdict in the commission trial.

In that case, Salerno, the heads of the Lucchese and Colombo organized crime families and five lesser-ranking mobsters were convicted Wednesday of operating the U.S. Mafia's "board of directors."

The March 21 indictment also charged Salerno and the others with conducting the affairs of the Genovese family through racketeering, controlling the city's concrete industry and rigging bids that resulted in millions of dollars in overcharges on construction projects.

Dear Abby

Heart Says Aye, Head Says Nay to Irishman's Blarney

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old single woman, attractive, successful (real estate) and, like most people who write to you, I have a problem. I have fallen in love with a charming, handsome 29-year-old man who my friends tell me is feeding me a line.

He came here from Ireland, his visa expired and now he is an illegal alien. My friends say he's only using me so he can remain in the States and bring his girlfriend over from Ireland.

He told me about the girl back home, but says he really loves me and will break off with her when he can tell her in person because he doesn't want to hurt her. Abby, I have been in love before, but never like this. We have a wonderful time together, and the chemistry between us is perfect.

Now for the bad part: He has borrowed money from me — yet unpaid; I've caught him in several small lies; he drinks more than he should; and he has a bad temper. I know all his faults, but I am drawn to him like a giant magnet. I need an objective opinion. Half of me says, "Follow your heart," and the other half says, "Forget him."

What do you say?

IN LOVE IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR IN LOVE: Listen to the half with the brains in it and forget him. What you call "love" is a temporary emotional condition brought on by a physical reaction to a biological urge.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My supposed sister-in-law and I are having an argument about our relationship. We are married to brothers. She says she is not related to me.

Last Christmas she gave my husband a beautiful woolen scarf, which I thought was wonderful, but, to my distress, there was no gift for me, even though I had given her one. She says she is not related to me but she is a sister-in-law to my husband. I say we are sisters-in-law. What do you say?

SISTERLESS OUT EAST

DEAR SISTERLESS: The big issue is not whether your brother-in-law's wife is your sister-in-law; it's her rude insistence that she is not related to you when you claim her as your sister-in-law.

I don't know how they figure relationships "out East," but "out West," where I come from, my husband's relatives are mine, and mine are his.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: One more comment about introducing children as "step," "half," "own" or "adopted": Charles, my husband's son from a previous marriage, came to live with us. Three days after Charles moved in, my own son trooped through the living room with an entourage of his peers to join Charles and me, who were talking. Son paused long enough to make the proper introductions, identifying Charles as his "brother."

As his friends moved on toward the den, I held my son back briefly, explaining that Charles was his "stepbrother." He quickly shushed me with, "Look, Ma, if somebody's going to live in your house and share your parents, he's your brother — unless, of course, it's a girl, in which case she's your sister!"

DONNA JONES,
STONE MOUNTAIN, GA.

DEAR DONNA: From the mouths of babes ...

CONFIDENTIAL TO FAITHFUL READER IN NORWICH, CONN.: Your letter is filled with "they say." Pray, who are "they" who pass along this gossip? Ask those "they-sayers" to tell you who "they" are, and if they cannot tell you, then you tell them you cannot accept as truth what "they say."

Shuttle disaster gives Soviets chance of 'Star Wars' lead

LONDON (AP) — The Challenger shuttle disaster and the subsequent halt in all U.S. satellite launching have given the Soviets a chance to build up a lead in their own "Star Wars" research, says the editor of Jane's Weapon Systems.

It is an opportunity that Moscow is likely to seize, writes Bernard Blake.

He says anyone who thinks the Soviets lack a Strategic Defense Initiative program comparable with that of the United States should think again.

SDI, commonly called Star Wars, is a space-based defense system for the future which would use satellites and laser beams to knock out nuclear missiles.

Blake's assessment came in his editor's foreword to the 1986-87 edition of the 1,127-page book published today. The authoritative reference work is compiled by the London-based, privately owned Jane's Publishing Co. Ltd. and is used by defenses forces around the world.

Blake writes, "It is an undoubted fact that for the next few years the Soviet Union will have the edge over the United States in research into space-related activities.

"The failure of the three main U.S. launch vehicles, Shuttle, Titan and Delta, inside a three-month period has cast a very dark cloud over the whole American space activity."

Where nice guys finish first

By James Jacoby

In last year's popular book by Frank Stewart, "A Christmas Stocking," the chapter "The Man from Out of Town" involves Sammy, a gentle old man who has none of the bad manners that sometimes afflict competitive bridge players. Why shouldn't he be nice, since it eventually becomes apparent that he is none other than old St. Nick, in civilian attire.

In today's hand, Sammy gets to the grand slam in no-trump. On the opening heart lead, declarer takes East's queen with his ace and starts running clubs. East is so excited to be defending such an ambitious contract that he plays the 10 of diamonds as a signal even before following to the first club. But Sammy does not take advantage of the revoke by playing the jack of diamonds and letting it ride. (The Rules state that the diamond 10, an exposed card, would have to be played at the first opportunity.) Instead he just plays out all his clubs, discarding all the red cards from dummy, even the diamond ace. East must now reduce to five cards, and since he cannot throw a spade, he must let go one of his red kings. When that happens, Sammy simply plays the jack of that suit, and East is now squeezed once again, between the spades and the other red king.

This book by Frank Stewart makes a nice Christmas present. At $8, including postage, it's a bargain. Send to Stocking, P.O. Box 18099, Memphis, TN 38181.

The flavor and texture contrast between the creamy eggnog layer and the tangy cranberry layer makes each bite of this salad a delightful surprise.

EGGNOG HOLIDAY SALAD

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
8-ounce can crushed pineapple (juice pack)
3 tablespoons lime juice
1½ cups dairy eggnog
½ cup finely chopped celery
1½ cups cranberry juice cocktail or apple juice
3-ounce package raspberry-flavored gelatin
1 4-ounce jar cranberry-orange relish

In a small saucepan combine unflavored gelatin, undrained pineapple and lime juice; let stand 5 minutes. Cook and stir over medium heat until gelatin dissolves. Cool to room temperature. Stir in eggnog. Chill until partially set. Fold in celery; turn into a 12 by 7½ by 2-inch pan. Chill until almost firm.

Heat cranberry juice to boiling; stir in raspberry gelatin until dissolved. Chill until partially set. Fold in relish. Carefully spoon on top of eggnog mixture. Chill until firm. Cut into squares to serve. Makes 12 servings.

Beta Sigma Phi chapter learns new tax provisions

Micky Baird, president, conducted the business meeting. Jacalyn Lowrance read the minutes of the previous meeting and Dena Ellis gave the treasurer's report.

The Christmas party was set for Dec. 6 at the home of Mona Bryan and the progress of the traditional Christmas wrapping and ribbon sales was discussed. Following the sharing of "happy moments," the business portion of the meeting was adjourned.

Bryan presented the program, "Figuring How You'll Fare Under the New Tax Reform." Using several possible income situations, she compared the amount of taxes that would be paid in 1986 to what Uncle Sam will be claiming in April 1987, when part of the new law goes into effect, and in April 1988, when almost all the provisions will be in effect.

Using the aspects that affect most taxpayers, Bryan used different examples to illustrate whether an individual would owe the IRS more or less under the new law. An explanation was given of the deductions and tax credits that will be eliminated and tax breaks that will still exist to cut the tax bill.

Hostesses for the evening were Gay Idom and Twila Polk who served cobbler, coffee, and tea. Wandy Early won the hostess gift.

Chronic cough should be checked

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — About five months ago I developed a chronic cough. Also, out of the blue, I noticed heavy sinus drainage and occasional trouble with my voice. Chest X-rays revealed nothing irregular, so the physican lost interest in my case. Is this something I should be concerned about?

DEAR READER — You seem to have a cough that is due to sinus drainage or mucus in your throat (postnasal drip). This could be due to sinus infection or an allergy. You have a right to be concerned, although the situation is probably not serious. In addition, I'd be concerned about why your doctor lost interest in you. Chronic cough is worth investigating, so I advise you to seek out a new doctor who is more concerned about your health.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a problem with swelling on each side of my neck (where it used to be hollow, above my collarbones), and also in front, below my Adam's apple. Is this fluid or air? I'm 81 and in fairly good health.

DEAR READER — The areas above your collarbones, the supraclavicular fossae, are filled with many structures, including lymph glands, blood vessels, muscles, nerves and fat. When these areas lose their concave appearance, the usual explanation is that the person has put on weight. However, tissues other than fat can cause swelling. For example, lymph glands can enlarge — for a variety of reasons — and cause the appearance you describe. See your doctor to find out why your neck has swelled. Air or fluid are unlikely possibilities, but you need an examination to determine the cause.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Our family doctor listens to our hearts and lungs when we are fully clothed. He feels for edema in our ankles through our winter boots. Three of us have congestive heart failure. What's your opinion of his technique?

DEAR READER — Your doctor is missing a lot. The methods you describe are more suited to a ritual than to good medical practice. I doubt your physician is so perceptive that he can diagnose ailments like congestive heart failure through winter clothes. Find a doctor who is at least willing to raise your shirt, lower your socks or see you in your skivvies.

More families, children on food lines

By Lawrence Kilman
Associated Press Writer

In Nashville, they came for jobs they couldn't handle. In Phoenix, they were drawn by stories of Sunbelt prosperity. In Kansas City, they went from the farm to the food line.

They are the new poor, these newly unemployed, and they are seeking help in increasing numbers this Thanksgiving.

More and more, they include women and children, whole families.

"What's changing is the kind of people we're seeing," said the Rev. Kenneth Fox, director of the Open Door Mission in Rochester, N.Y. "Women in crisis, teenagers, the elderly, it's not the typical person everyone thinks."

Across the country, organizations are preparing Thanksgiving meals for armies of the homeless, the lonely, the poor. In the farm and oil belts, organizers are preparing for more people than they've seen before.

In Kansas City, Mo., the Rev. Maurice Vanderberg, director of the City Union Mission, said people from farms and rural towns are increasingly among the homeless.

"I think it has to do with the farm economy," said Vanderberg. "Farms don't require the manpower they used to."

And in New Orleans, "the typical person we're working with now, compared to maybe a year or two years ago, are the new unemployed," said Jess L. Duncan of the Salvation Army.

"The trend we see is the number of intact families thrown into homelessness," said Mike Moreau of New Orleans' Traveler's Aid. "Three or four years ago, that wasn't a problem."

In Tennessee, where construction and new auto plants are drawing the hopeful, Nashville's Union Rescue Mission is catering to a larger and younger clientele.

"A lot of people across the country are hearing that Nashville is on a building boom and they're coming here for the jobs, and they're not skilled right for the jobs," said the Rev. Richard Kritsch of the mission.

Social agencies in Phoenix, Ariz., are also finding that migration to the Sunbelt has its downside.

"People are coming to Phoenix for the weather," said Teresa Coury-Davia of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, which is preparing 2,500 dinners, up from 1,500 last year. "It's all over the newspapers that Arizona is the place with a lot of jobs."

But many people arrive and find they are not qualified for the work available, she said.

Elsewhere, traditional Thanksgiving generosity will feed thousands.

In Los Angeles, 3,000 people are expected at the Union Rescue Mission, including a growing number of women and children.

Consumer groups seek enforcement of speed limit law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two consumer groups, saying the federal government hasn't been tough enough on states that let motorists exceed the 55 mph speed limit, are suing to force the withholding of some federal highway money.

The lawsuit by the Center for Auto Safety and Public Citizen called on the court to order the Transportation Department to withhold highway funds immediately from Arizona and Vermont, both of which have been found to have too many speeders for two years running.

The lawsuit also accused the department of not moving quickly enough to determine whether others states such as Maryland, New Hampshire and Rhode Island are violating federal regulations requiring that at least half of a state's motorists comply with the speed limit.

Arizona and Vermont did not meet the federal requirement in 1984 or 1985. Maryland failed in 1984, but its 1985 figures are in dispute, although the federal government contends the state was in violation that year as well. New Hampshire and Rhode Island flunked the federal tests in 1985.

Employment case okays agreement

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox said Monday that an agreed judgment was reached against a San Antonio employment agency that was sued for alleged misrepresentations about the availability of jobs.

"This is only one of a number of similar lawsuits and investigations we have going on about the problem of out-of-work persons being falsely led to believe they can get jobs by putting down their own money when they can least afford to," Mattox said.

In documents filed in state district court in San Antonio, the Texas Homes and Jobs Inc. agency agreed to pay restitution of $90 each to 97 consumers, Mattox said. The agency also will pay $500 to the state for investigative costs.

In its lawsuit, the state had alleged that the company made misrepresentations to consumers by obtaining lists of job openings from newspapers and other public sources, "then implying that for certain fees paid in advance, the job could be guaranteed," Mattox's office said in a statement.

SHS teams entertain Wolves at coliseum

Snyder's Tigers look for a few wins as they entertain Colorado City in four games at Scurry County Coliseum this evening.

Play is scheduled to get underway with a junior varsity girls game at 3:30 p.m. A JV boys game will follow at 5 p.m.

Snyder varsity girls take the court at 6:30, followed by the varsity boys at approximately 8 p.m.

Snyder JV girls are 2-0 on the season and the boys are 1-1, but neither Tiger varsity squad has come up with a victory yet. Both have come close. Snyder boys, 0-2, lost in overtime to Abilene Cooper, 53-47, while the girls, 0-3, dropped a 39-37 decision to Hereford in their last outing.

Tickets for the games are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Tonight's contests will be the final home games until mid-December for both Snyder varsity squads. The girls won't play again at home until Dec. 16, when they entertain Fort Stockton in their third District 2-4A contest of the season. The boys will be on the road until Dec. 19 when they host Pecos. It will be their second 2-4A game.

Lose to Cisco, 67-54...

Dusters suffer first defeat

"Some of these girls haven't been on winning teams before and I guess they don't realize when you are 10-0 everybody is trying to beat you. Plus, everybody tries to beat Western Texas anyway. Hopefully this will teach us to learn that we have to be mentally ready to play every game if we expect to win," said Chadwick, following the Dusters' 67-54 loss to Cisco Junior College here Monday night.

It was WTC's first loss of the season and leaves the squad at 10-1 as it prepares for the Thanksgiving Classic this Friday and Saturday in Scurry County Coliseum.

"I felt like it would be our biggest test because Cisco has a good team. I was very dissapointed we weren't ready to play," said the coach. "I don't know what it was. If I knew, I could make a living selling it to other coaches."

Chadwick added, "We just didn't play very well. I don't think. We shot the ball poorly and didn't play good defense. It's very difficult to win in Cisco's Gym. I think they've won 21 in a row there. But our kids looked lackluster. We didn't run the offense well. We just didn't go ready to play."

Lisa Thompson led Western with 18 points. Brenda Welch scored 17 and Dee Ann Marr added 9.

Cisco, 6-5, was led by Michelle Henry's 15 points. Neannia Nix scored 14 and Tia Rosser chipped in 11.

"One positive point was Lisa Thompson. She played super and she's probably the only girl that I could say that about," noted Chadwick.

Cisco JC clips Western, 89-85

CISCO -- Western Texas College needs some floor leadership and some defense, according to Coach Phil Spradling, who bemoaned his Westerners' 89-85 loss to Cisco here Monday night.

"We were ahead most of the game but made some mistakes and got down by 10 at halftime. We're not playing any defense at all. When you give up 55 points by halftime you can't expect to win," said Spradling.

The Westerners rallied and went back in front, but sagged when sophomore guard Alvin Lee fouled out with about four minutes to play.

"When he fouled out, nobody took over and wanted to shoot the ball at the last. They were all looking for Alvin. Somebody else has got to take the initiative and take control when that happens," noted the coach.

Johnny Hudson's free throws with 17 seconds left helped seal the win for the Wranglers, who are 3-5 on the season. Western drops to 3-4.

Lee and freshman post Harvey Marshman scored 24 points each for WTC. Kevin Kendrick and Amos Jones found double figures with 14 and 12 points respectively, while Terry Ridgeway added 9.

Western will enter the Odessa Classic this weekend. The Westerners receive a first-round bye, and will take the court at 8 p.m. Friday to face a winner between Waco's TSTI and Odessa.

TCU accepts resignations of two defensive coaches

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Texas Christian University has accepted the resignations of two defensive coaches at the end of a 3-8 season and only two days after the team was humiliated by Texas A&M, 74-10.

School officials said Jim Dawson, who was in charge of the defensive secondary, and Tom Perry, who coached the outside linebackers, submitted their resignations to head coach Jim Wacker Monday.

"There comes a time when change has to be made," Wacker told the Dallas Morning News. "We had just not played as well defensively as we felt we should have. And we felt it was best to try something else.

Texas Christian finished last in the Southwest Conference this year in defense, giving up 376 points and allowing an average of 445 yards per game.

"I have no problem with the credibility of our program," Windegger said. "And I have absolutely no problem with Jim Wacker."

Wacker said that despite having back-to-back 3-8 seasons, he felts no pressure from TCU officials to make any coaching changes.

"You have to look at your program each year and see where it is," Wacker said. "I think you owe it to yourself and to your kids."

Both Dawson and Perry had been assistants to Wacker for the past eight seasons, including four at Southwest Texas State where Wacker coached before coming to TCU in 1983.

"They're both fine coaches," Wacker said of Dawson and Perry. "I'm sure they'll find a spot quickly."

Wacker said he hopes to fill the posts soon because Dawson was in charge of recruiting in the Houston area and Perry concentrated on the Austin area.

"We want experienced college coaches," Wacker said.

Dolphins burn Jets

MIAMI (AP) - The Miami Dolphins and New York Jets didn't really switch uniforms Monday night in the Orange Bowl. It just seemed that way.

While the least productive rushing offense in the NFL ran for 189 yards on 36 carries against the league's best rushing defense, the 27th-ranked defense held the fourth-best offense to three points - and the Dolphins, now 6-6, trampled the AFC East-leading Jets 45-3.

The Dolphins, who had been plagued by ill-timed penalties and turnovers all season, also benefitted from several costly penalties and four turnovers by the Jets, who had avoided those kinds of miscues while winning 10 of their first 11 games.

The personality tranformation started early, as a strong rush forced Jets quarterback Ken O'Brien, the most proficient passer in the league, to throw wildly on a third-and-3 play on their first possession. Then, on the Dolphins sixth offensive play, halfback Lorenzo Hampton burst up the middle for a 54-yard touchdown, the longest Miami run since 1980.

The tone had been set, and the Jets couldn't do anything to alter it.

Hampton finished with 148 yards and two touchdowns on 19 carries, the first 100-yard rushing performance by a Miami player in 41 games.

Meanwhile, the Miami defense allowed only 280 total yards, with just 89 coming on the ground. In two games against the Dolphins last year, Jets running back Freeman McNeil ran for 280 yards by himself.

Worrell named NL top rookie

ST. LOUIS (AP) -- St. Louis Cardinals reliever Todd Worrell was a near-unanimous choice as National League Rookie of the Year.

The right-hander, who received 24 of 25 first-place votes and 118 points, had a league-leading 36 saves in 47 opportunities.

San Francisco Giants second baseman Rob Thompson drew the other first-place voted and 46 points. New York Mets utilityman Kevin Mitchell was third with 22 points.

Canseco AL best

NEW YORK (AP) - Oakland A's outfielder Jose Canseco, who hit 33 homers and drove in 117 runs, was named Rookie of the Year in the American League today, beating Wally Joyner of the California Angels in a close vote.

County wreck causes injuries to two horses

Two wrecks were reported on Scurry County highways Monday, one causing injuries to two horses and a second briefly blocking one lane of traffic.

The horses were hurt in a mishap reported at 11:20 p.m. just south of west 37th St. on County Road 333.

According to Department of Public Safety accident reports, Chuck W. Smith of Townsend, Del. was driving a 1985 Ford pickup pulling a stock trailer northbound on 333 when he lost control of the rig.

Two horses in the trailer reportedly sustained minor injuries and were taken to a local veterinarian for treatment.

The other accident occurred on U.S. Hwy. 84 at Inadale at 4:45 a.m. Tuesday.

Involved in it was a 1980 Kenworth tractor-trailer rig driven by Eddie Lewis Smith of Los Angeles, Calif.

According to highway patrol reports, Smith was northbound on 84 when he lost control of the rig, causing it to jacknife and block the northbound traffic lanes.

Alaska oil plan draws mixture of reactions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department's draft plan for development of Alaska's oil-rich, environmentally sensitive Coastal Plain faces outright hostility in the House and a wait-and-see attitude in the Senate.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee, will sponsor legislation banning development there and declaring the 1.5 million acre tract along the Arctic Ocean a federal wilderness area, an aide says.

The aide, who spoke only on condition of anonymity, said Udall plans to reintroduce a 1986 bill that garnered 61 co-sponsors and which would be initially handled by his committee.

When he submitted the bill last June, Udall said that "intensive oil and gas activities could seriously affect this internationally important wildlife treasure."

On the Senate side, Bennett Johnston, D-La., says any formal proposal to open the Coastal Plain to oil and natural gas development will be viewed with "the greatest care and caution" by the Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

"The stakes are great, both for the environment and for the energy needs of this country," said Johnston, who becomes committee chairman in January. "There will, therefore, be no rush to judgment but a thorough, cool-headed, dispassionate review of the facts before we recommend legislation to the Senate."

An Interior Department study released Monday has drawn fire from environmental groups and support from the American Petroleum Institute, which said tapping the Coastal Plain's resources "is in the nation's economic and energy security interest."

The study, mandated by Congress in 1980, said, "The area is clearly the most outstanding oil and gas frontier remaining in the United States and could contribute substantially to our domestic energy supplies."

But it also warned that "oil and gas development will result in widespread, long-term changes in wildlife habitat, wilderness environment and native community activities."

Interior Assistant Secretary William Horn told a news conference that "we think we can kind of have it both ways. ... You have here the potential for supergiant oil fields. ... We see substantial economic and substantial national security benefits."

The study said geologic tests indicate that as many as 9.2 billion barrels of oil could be recovered from the Coastal Plain, which abuts the 18 million acre Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

This production level would rival the nearby Prudhoe Bay fields that account for about 20 percent of the nation's production and would represent about 589 days supply at current consumption levels.

The Fish and Wildlife Service study was forwarded to Interior Secretary Donald Hodel, who plans to make a formal recommendation to Congress early next year following a public comment period and hearings in Alaska and Washington.

Oil prices leave OPEC short billions

HOUSTON (AP) — The oil price collapse will cause members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to earn up to $50 billion less in 1986 than in 1985, according to a recently released world oil study.

The loss, however, is helping to motivate the OPEC nations meeting next month in Geneva to push prices up to $18 a barrel, instead of the $15 it has been averaging, officials said.

Oil prices in the next six to 12 months probably will experience $2-$4 swings around the $15 range, according to World Oil Trends, a report released Monday by Arthur Andersen & Co. and Cambridge Energy Research Associates.

The study said that even if key OPEC members were to retreat from their year-old "market share" strategy, establishing criteria and a durable system for production management would still be a difficult task.

"In short, there's no obvious recipe for stability" in the oil industry, Daniel Yergin, president of Cambridge Energy, said from Washington. The price risks will continue to impact the industry along with the more familiar geological and political risks, he said.

Richard Adkerson, managing director of Arthur Andersen's Oil and Gas Industry Services Program, said companies in the industry will continue to analyze costs to help cope with the unpredicatable conditions.

"The industry will live with it as we've seen in the past," said Adkerson, adding that not all companies will be able to survive.

Depressed oil prices have led to sharp declines in oil exploration and development, particulary in North America where demand for oil is increasing, he said.

U.S. net oil imports were 30 percent higher in the first nine months of 1986 than in the same period the year before, and the current situation points to continuing increases in such imports, according to the report.

In addition, the report noted that companies have dramatically reduced investments in North American oil and gas projects.

Major companies are allocating a greater portion of their capital budgets to other regions of the world because of lower per-barrel costs of exploration, development and production, the report said.

The report also indicates the industry will have to brave more intense market competition.

"The volatility is not likely to be changed in the near term," Adkerson said. "It seems we're clearly talking about the next year."

Yergin said oil companies will see the "same kinds of heavy pressures" during the coming year.

"We can't count on any kind of quick return," Yergin said. "Since revenue is their number one concern, they realize the value of selling a little less oil at $18 per barrel than at $12."

Meanwhile, industrial countries importing oil have benefited from depressed oil prices, with savings for 1986 estimated at $80 billion, the study said.

Judge orders halt to deportations

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A federal judge Monday ordered the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to halt deportations of illegal aliens who may be eligible for immigration amnesty.

The order by U.S. District Judge Lawrence Karlton affects aliens nationwide who may be eligible for permanent legal residency under the amnesty provisions of the immigration reform bill signed earlier this month by President Reagan.

"This isn't going to save the world. It's going to address some of the problems (of the immigration law)," Karlton said as he issued his order.

Specifically, the temporary restraining order is intended to protect the immigration amnesty rights of illegal aliens who left the country voluntarily without being informed of their potential amnesty rights after Reagan signed the immigration bill Nov. 6.

The bill provided that illegal aliens in the country at that time would be eligible for amnesty from deportation if they met certain work and residency minimums, but the amnesty would not apply to those who entered the country illegally after passage of the act.

Karlton also ordered the INS to either positively determine the amnesty rights of each individual alien arrested in the United States, or post signs in English and Spanish at each INS center advising aliens of their amnesty rights.

The amnesty provisions of the new immigration bill provide temporary legal status to aliens who can prove they have lived in the United States continuously since Jan. 1, 1982 or before. Those granted temporary status would then be eligible to apply for permanent legal alien status and, eventually, citizenship.

The amnesty provisions are considerably more liberal for agricultural workers, who would have to prove only that they worked 90 days in the fields of the United States during the 12 months prior to May 1, 1986.

Karlton delayed for five days the portion of his order prohibiting further deportations, in order to give the INS time to get instructions to all of its offices and agents.

Other portions of the order require that the signs be posted within 10 days and that INS guidelines for implementing the new immigration law be published within 10 days in the Federal Register.

INS attorneys had argued that they didn't have the manpower or resources to undertake the kind of notification program sought by attorneys representing various aliens rights groups.

But Karlton agreed with the California Rural Legal Assistance attorneys representing the alien rights groups that aliens who left voluntarily to avoid formal deportation proceedings should not lose their rights to legal residency because they weren't informed of the amnesty law.

"It will make for administrative problems," Karlton said of his order. "Nonetheless, when one compares the hardships, they tip very strongly in favor of the plaintiffs," he added.

Karlton said he did not believe he could issue his order at this time in the form of a permanent injunction because there had not been a court reporter present to make a record of all of the arguments raised in support of his action. Instead, he issued it as a temporary restraining order and set a Dec. 18 hearing to determine whether to make the order permanent.

The order is a followup action to a suit filed 10 days earlier in Karlton's court by the CRLA, the National Center for Immigrants' Rights and others seeking to require the INS to publish guidelines for implementing the new immigration law.

Because the INS issued its guidelines just a few hours before the first hearing on the suit, Karlton stayed any action on that suit, leaving open the issues.

Welfare overhaul proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — State welfare officials are proposing a major overhaul of public assistance to encourage family stability and employment so that recipients can escape the cycle of poverty and dependence.

A state-by-state family living standard to replace Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Food Stamps and low-income energy assistance was suggested in a report released Monday by state officials.

The recommendations are based on the assumption that "the best human service program is a job and the best human services department is a family," said Michael Petit, Maine's welfare commissioner.

All recipients, except single mothers with children under age 3, would be required to get jobs or enter training programs to help them learn skills that could lead to employment.

Single mothers would be required to finish school or participate in job training as part of their bargain with welfare officials.

Child care would be provided to all eligible single mothers because "the need for day care is the most important barrier between a single mother and work," Petit said.

for fiscal 1985 — down from the $725,000 loss listed in 1984. West noted that the loss is due primarily to funds which must be set aside to cover depreciation costs.

These are monies set aside for both building maintenance and equipment replacement.

Cogdell Memorial Clinic funds were listed at some $707,193.

The report also listed assets and liabilities for the special revenue fund at slightly more than $1 million. The Board of County Development, juvenile and adult probation and revenue sharing monies are held in this fund.

Hermleigh Water Works, which supplies water to Hermleigh residents, recorded $29,440 in assets and liabilities with the trust and agency funds at just over $821,000.

The county no longer maintains a debt service fund balance since all long-term debts have been retired.

In other action, commissioners released $300,000 in securities from the Republic National Bank of Dallas. The funds were to be deposited with the West Texas State Bank, which serves as the depository for county funds.

Court members also authorized $955 for annual dues to the Texas Association of Counties.

RE: Extension of FM1611 from FM1607 to State Highway 350 at FM2763 -- Scurry County in Abilene District

Dear Mr. Burnett:

Please include this letter of opposition in the packet which will be forwarded to Austin for final determination of this above mentioned project's destiny.

I do not think that this road should be built because of Scurry County's faltering economy. We are locally "over-extended".

In addition, routes already exist that are able to handle the amount of traffic that we now have.

A rejection of this proposal would be a help to Scurry County.

Thank you.
