Development plan drawing opposition from area residents

Plans for a Lubbock developer to build an assisted living complex in the area of the Cedar Creek addition has drawn opposition from residents in that area.

Eight people spoke against the building of the complex in the 1600 block of Preston Trail during a planning and zoning commission meeting held on Sept. 4.

Presently, the 10-plus acre site is designated a R-1 residential zone and developer Burl Masters is seeking to have it rezoned to R-3, general residential special use planned development.

The planning and zoning commission voted last week to recommend that the city council deny the requested zone change when it meets in regular session at 6:30 this evening.

The request to build an assisted living complex consisting of duplexes and quadraplexes in the Cedar Creek area is the second proposal opposed by residents there. During the August city council meeting, several residents voiced opposition to a proposal by local contractor Keith Matthies to change the zoning in portions of the Royal Court Addition to build a similar project.

The city council voted in August against that proposed zone change.

The council will also consider one other zone change as Sterling Taylor Jr. has requested a change in the zoning for 2012 27th St. from C-2 commercial to R-2 limited multi-family residential district.

Ordinances to be considered tonight on second reading deal with setting water, sewer and landfill rates for the coming year, setting the tax rate and making appropriations for expenditures for the coming fiscal year.

The council will also consider on first reading an ordinance relating to plumbing permits and fees.

Also, an ordinance dealing with the amount of fines that the city may levy for violating city fire and safety codes, zoning codes, health and sanitation codes — including the dumping of trash — will be considered on first reading.

Council members will have several other matters to consider, including the awarding of the bank despository bid for the city for the coming year, amending the water treatment plant budget by $7,000 to add a monitoring system to the water line to the prison, and a proposal by Freese & Nichols to conduct a study on heavy industry utility rates.

Representatives of the Development Corporation of Snyder will meet with the council to discuss preliminary plans for additional Economic Development Administation and Texas Capital Fund grants relating to industrial park development.

Two requests from citizens will also be considered — one from a woman asking reimbursement of a $20 cleaning bill for items she says were stained by city water and one to relocate a city-owned dumpster at 2241 Sunset.

The council is also expected to go into executive session to discuss two separate lawsuits against the city involving city-owned vehicles involved in accidents.

TANK REMOVAL — Workers from Jack's Roadboring & Pipeline Construction lift the last of three gas tanks taken out of the ground at Gill's Fried Chicken located at the corner of College Avenue and 37th Street. The tank shown was later placed on a separate trailer due to its length and all the tanks were transported by B&W Pump located out of Big Spring. The tanks were reported to be in good shape and no leaks were found. They were left from the Gulf service station that went out of business in 1977. Gill's Fried Chicken, which has been in business for 19 years, will be open for regular hours today. (SDN Staff Photo)

Education linking WTC and Lorber

Training could begin as early as spring, director tells college trustees

Training of technicians and supervisory personnel for the location of Lortex Mills here may begin as early as spring, said Western Texas College's director of workforce education, who is currently in the process of mapping out the program.

John Gibson briefed the college board on progress of the project Monday. Gibson was among a group of Snyder delegates who recently visited Lorber Industries in Gardena, Calif. to discuss construction of a textile plant here.

Lorber Industries has announced that it will construct a spinning and weaving plant which will employ about 130 people, and, more recently, has committed to a wet-processing plant, contingent on successful grant applications. Ground-breaking is expected around Jan. 1, 1997 at SnTx Park I here.

Gibson will be going to Austin on Friday in an effort to secure monies for training through the Texas Workforce Commission's Skills Development Fund, as well as other funding sources. He is scheduled to meet with Bruce Schneider of Sen. Tom Haywood's office; Dan McNeil, deputy director of Smart Jobs; and Richard Hall, with Texas Workforce Commission workforce education, among others.

Gibson will take the information he learns there when he goes to California on Sept. 16-20 to visit with Michael Gruener, vice president of Lorber Industries.

"I think we're right on track," said Gibson, who added that training could begin as early as next spring. "Timing is very crucial. You don't want to have people trained and then have them sitting around waiting for the plant to open. You want it to all come together at the same time."

The training will likely be a two-fold process, Gibson told board members. The process will involve 15 trainees at a time with initial basic skills training and textiles orientation in Snyder, followed by a six-month apprenticeship on-the-job training in Gardena.

Lorber Industries plans on providing travel expenses to and from Texas to Los Angeles, as well as subsidized living quarters for trainees and interns, Gibson said.

"We're not talking about bringing in people from California, but training our people (Scurry Countains) and bringing them back," said Gibson.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A juvenile delinquent is one who has been given a free hand, but not in the right spot."

Think Rain!

Everybody thinks "they" should be tougher on criminal offenders.

Here's how child molesters are dealt with in the Bayou State.

State law in Louisiana requires a public notice from those guilty of abusing children. The offender must pay for a classified ad which is published two times and listed under the heading of "Public Notice."

One particular ad read:

"I, Rodney P. Marcel Jr., have been convicted of Carnal Knowledge of a Juvenile. My address is 120 Rhett Place, Gray, La. 70359. A photo of the child molester is also a part of the ad.

It might be interesting to require the offender to write a letter of apology.

Texas law requires molesters to register with law enforcement officials in the city or county in which they reside. Once an offender registers, an ad must be published within 10 days. The Texas notice requires the person's age, gender and type of crime for which they were convicted. In Texas, names are not included.

A little light shed on all types of criminals — including juveniles — might work wonders.

The ideal meeting may be one that never takes place.

A Harvard Business School group has compiled a checklist on how to conduct a perfect meeting.

The study suggests that persons should inquire about the purpose or the goal of the meeting before attending. The Harvard business groups figures people might save as many as two hours a day by determining in advance if the meeting is really worthwhile.

The same study says that failure to attend a meeting can send a strong message.

We agree. The boss may send another strong message, something about downsizing.

New electronic advancements have added another good excuse for non-payment.

College board hears positive reports

Westerns Texas College trustees on Monday approved a contract with the West Texas Telecommunications Consortium and heard several positive reports concerning enrollment.

Only a few action items were on the agenda, and the board handled those quickly. They included accepting the retirement of maintenance director Leeon Pettitt, renaming former trustee Bill Wilson Jr. to the Scholarship Foundation board and approving financial information and previous minutes.

The only other one was the contract with the telecommunications consortium, a group of colleges, schools, hospitals and libraries working to bring the internet to rural areas. Creation of the consortium gives those entities the ability to apply for funds from the Telecommunications Infrastructure Fund.

Dr. Jim Palmer, director of distance learning for WTC, outlined the program for the board. He said the future of the project is uncertain because of litigation involving the funds and a reluctance by some schools to participate.

The board approved the project, and the $250 annual fee that goes along with it.

Dr. Palmer followed that action with the first of several positive enrollment-related reports. He noted that concurrent enrollment for the fall is 59 students.

Concurrent enrollment courses are upper-level courses available to high school students. In most cases, the students take the courses for both high school and college credit. Through WTC, there are 36 students in Hamlin taking either English or history, eight students in Crosbyton taking English and 15 students in Snyder taking sociology. Snyder ISD students receive only college credit, and not high school credit for their efforts.

In most cases, students get separate high school and college grades for the course.

The program is considered a good recruitment tool for WTC, a boost toward college for students, and an aid to parents who get some cost relief in paying for their child's college education.

Administrators believe the program will grow rapidly.

"I'm kind of excited about it...looking at the number of schools in this area and the potential of it all," said Dr. Palmer.

George Cormack, student services director, provided preliminary enrollment reports for the fall semester. Cormack said 1,060 students are enrolled, with 516 of those taking 12 hours or more. Registration continues through Wednesday.

Mike Thornton, dean of continuing education, briefly discussed restructuring of that program, which included forming the workforce education department. John Gibson, workforce education director, gave a report, as did Mark Bland, director of community services. Bland noted that the swimming pool and weight room were utilized extensively during the summer, both by non-revenue and revenue customers.

Thornton said student inmate enrollment for academic and vocation courses at Price Daniel, Wallace and French-Robertson units total 297 currently. He also said that WTC certified 264 correctional officers over the past

Pavlik wins week one in SDN contest

Week one of the Snyder Daily News football contest saw Roger Pavlik become the first winner with only one game picked wrong.

For his effort, Pavlik, of 2901 38th, picked up the $50 first prize.

The tie-breaker was used to decide second and third. Elida Chavez of 500 33rd picked closest to the actual combined score of the Snyder-Andrews encounter with 37 total points to take the $25 second prize and Dewayne Murdock of 3606 Irving will receive $15. Checks will be mailed to the winners.

One game was thrown out due to State being left off the Iowa State-Wyoming game.

A new contest begins today.

HISD board meets at 7:30

Hermleigh ISD trustees meet at 7:30 tonight to consider a waiver request for an algebra course, discuss board member training sessions and hear a report on school remodeling.

The only other items on the agenda are payment of bills and approval of previous minutes.

Family jeered at rites

NEW YORK (AP) — As family members mourned Nadine Lockwood inside a small Harlem church Monday, scores of others gathered outside to angrily denounce them for the death of the 4-year-old authorities said died of starvation.

"Murderer! Murderer!" shouted Monique Swain, 25, of Harlem, as Nadine's father and other family members were escorted out of the Baptist chapel and into a limousine.

Leroy Dickerson, who has not been charged in his daughter's death, lowered and shook his head, saying nothing.

Nadine died last month, weighing 15½ pounds. Her mother, Carla Lockwood, who is in protective custody, did not attend Monday's service. She has been charged with the girl's murder.

Dickerson, who was estranged from his wife and did not live in the family's Manhattan apartment, requested only family and friends be allowed in the church.

About 150 others showed up and remained outside, many of them furious.

"How could you do that to a little girl?" one person yelled.

"That's terrible, just shameful," said another.

A woman who accompanied several of Dickerson's family members replied: "Mind your own business. You don't know the circumstances." She declined to give her name.

Lockwood was charged Friday with three counts of murder: that she intentionally killed Nadine, that she killed her with depraved indifference and that as an adult she recklessly killed a child under age 11.

Police says 'date rape' pill killed high school student

LA PORTE (AP) — A high school student who died mysteriously last month after visiting a dance club was killed by an illegal "date rape" drug that apparently was slipped into her soft drink, police said Monday.

Hillory Farias, 17, complained of a severe headache when she came home after midnight Aug. 4 from a night out with a couple of girlfriends. Her grandmother found her unconscious and not breathing in the morning.

Toxicology results Monday showed the presence of an illegal depressant, gamma y-hydroxybutyrate, in her body.

It is a "date rape" drug that is also known as GHB, Easy Lay and Liquid X, police said.

Authorities have now ruled the teen's death a homicide. She apparently overdosed on the drug but medical officials can't tell how much she ingested, said police Lt. Carl Crisp.

"There's nothing to indicate right now that she willingly took this drug," Crisp said. "This kid was a role-model type and to think that someone did this on purpose or as a joke is horrible."

So-called "date rape" drugs, which cause dizziness, drowsiness and memory loss, sometimes are used to incapacitate women so they can more easily be sexually assaulted.

GHB is an odorless, nearly tasteless drug that produces a high. It stimulates secretion of growth hormones and has been abused by bodybuilders.

The drug commonly is distributed as a tablet or white powder to be mixed with water. It sells for about $10 for a bottle-cap full.

Miss Farias, a member of her school's varsity volleyball team, had just returned last month from a volleyball camp. She went with her friends to a dance club for teen-agers, where she drank two soft drinks, police said.

Police were stumped by her death. Toxicology results showed no sign of alcohol or drug use.

But police later asked for specific medical tests for GHB based on her symptoms and because the drug has shown up in the area, Crisp said.

Police now will go back and talk to people who were at the club that night for any possible leads, Crisp said.

La Porte, a city of about 28,000 on Galveston Bay, is about 30 miles from downtown Houston.

"This is particularly touching to us because we still have a small-town atmosphere here," Crisp said.

Miss Farias would have been a senior at La Porte High School.

"She was a great girl," said friend Shala Holland. "Everybody loved her."

Family members say she did not drink or use drugs.

Top state officials want action taken on nursing homes

AUSTIN (AP) — Reports that the board charged with regulating nursing home directors has not disciplined anyone over the past three years despite hundreds of complaints drew angry reactions Monday from top state officials.

Gov. George W. Bush said the inaction by the Texas Board of Nursing Facility Administrators is unacceptable and the public may need to be better represented on the board.

"Gov. Bush is going to continue to look at this issue, and he believes things have to change," spokeswoman Karen Hughes said.

Advocates for the state's nearly 100,000 nursing home residents said the inaction can be traced to the dominance of administrators on the board.

Bush will examine the 1993 law that requires the board to be made up of six nursing home administrators and three public members, Ms. Hughes said. If changes are needed, she said, they could be accomplished during the upcoming legislative session, which starts in January.

Bush will also be able to replace two administrators whose terms expire in February.

Four of the nine members are Bush appointees. The others were appointed by his Democratic predecessor, Ann Richards.

A two-month investigation by the Austin American-Statesman found the administrators board has failed to discipline any of the state's 2,700 nursing home administrators in the past three years.

Since 1993, the board has received more than 500 complaints and referrals about problem nursing homes and the state has seized control of 23 nursing homes because conditions were so bad or care was so substandard that residents' lives were endangered.

Board members have dismissed most cases they investigated, even some involving questionable deaths of residents, the newspaper found.

The board's inaction has allowed administrators who preside over homes with deplorable conditions to move from job to job.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, who presides over the Texas Senate, said he is "offended" by the board's inaction.

"We have to get to the bottom of this and find out what we have to do to correct it," Bullock said.

"I can't believe there is any legislator who wouldn't want to correct this situation," Bullock said.

The lieutenant governor advised the administrators board chairman in a Monday phone call to conduct an emergency meeting "and start administering the law."

The board has been meeting quarterly.

Board chairman Michael Sims said he will have an emergency telephone conference with key board members, staff and the board's lawyer.

"I think I'm just learning the full responsibilities of the board," said Sims, a Waco nursing home administrator who was appointed by Richards in 1994.

Sims also has scheduled a Sept. 25-26 meeting of the board's complaints committee, which acts as the initial clearinghouse for complaints. It can either dismiss complaints or recommend disciplinary action, which ranges from license revocation to continuing education requirements.

911 abduction-slaying defendants sentenced

FORT WORTH (AP) — Three men have been given prison terms for their roles in the 1994 abduction-slaying of Arlington teen-ager Lisa Rene.

Miss Rene was abducted from her Arlington apartment by men who wore camouflage uniforms and claimed they were FBI agents. She was taken to Arkansas and held in a Pine Bluff hotel until she was killed.

The kidnappers took Miss Rene to a wildlife area where they beat her with a shovel when she fled rather than get into a grave they had dug for her. She was alive when they buried her, an autopsy revealed.

Steven Beckley, Demetrius Hall and Marvin Holloway were sentenced Monday by U.S. District Judge Terry Means.

They had pleaded guilty and testified against co-defendants Orlando Hall and Bruce Webster, who received the death penalty in separate trials. Demetrius Hall and Orlando Hall are brothers.

They said they abducted, tortured and sexually assaulted Miss Rene because her brothers ripped them off in a drug deal.

Beckley, 24, of Irving, was sentenced to 30 years in prison and received a tongue-lashing from Means, who said Beckley also deserved the death penalty and probably would have received it if he had gone to trial.

"Mr. Beckley, I can't imagine any more heinous crime than the one you participated in," Means said.

Means could have sentenced Beckley to life in prison without parole for the crime of kidnapping resulting in death.

Demetrius Hall, 20, of El Dorado, Ark., was sentenced to 25 years for conspiracy to commit kidnapping.

Betty Hall, the defendant's mother, begged the judge for mercy.

Did you see that piece in the paper last June mentioning that scientists think a massive meteor might collide with the Earth in 50,000 years? The article's next sentence was: There's no cause for immediate alarm.

At the bridge table, although the time period for 13 tricks is slightly less than 50,000 years (even for certain players I could name), often success in a deal requires looking into the future.

How would you plan the play in this four-heart contract after West leads the club king and East follows with the 10?

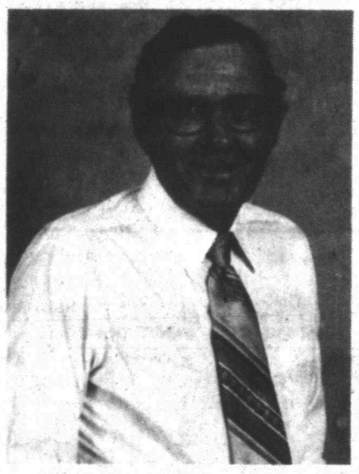

South saw that he had 10 tricks: three spades, four hearts, one diamond, one club and one diamond ruff in the dummy. However, there was a danger that he might first lose four tricks (one spade, one heart and two clubs) before he could rake in those 10 winners. Of course, all this supposed that both major-suit finesses were going to lose. But South half expected that.

Still, trying to reduce the risk of losing two club tricks, declarer ducked the first trick. Disaster! When West continued with the club jack, East ruffed. And a few moments later East took two more tricks with his major-suit kings, South taking both finesses.

After losing his fourth trick, South said, "How unlucky can I get! The clubs were 5-1 and both finesses wrong. If I just win the first trick, I get home, but that is wrong if the clubs are 4-2, which is at least three times more likely."

Much to South's surprise, North said, "You are quite right. I think you played correctly and were unlucky."

In the year ahead, you could be more fortunate with friendships than you have been for some time. The associations you initiate will be permanent and enduring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) More can be accomplished in a joint endeavor today if you work from behind the scenes. People who are uninvolved do not have to know your motives. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Personal ambitions can be achieved today if you work with procedures that have been successful. This will not be a good day to experiment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You can mix business with pleasure today. Associate with people whose cooperation is essential to your success. Something good could be the result.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you might be subject to several changes. If you go with the flow, you will profit. However, if you try to resist you might be disappointed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today, the best way to achieve personal goals will be to put your talent and experience at the disposal of others.

Mojo, North Mesquite knock heads Friday

DALLAS (AP) — North Mesquite vs. Odessa Permian, the matchup high school football fans have looked forward to all summer, officially will be a game between the state's two highest-ranked Class 5A teams.

The Stallions retained their No. 1 spot and the Panthers remained No. 2 when the first regular-season Associated Press high school football poll was released Monday.

Around 20,000 fans are expected to cram into Mesquite Memorial Stadium on Friday night for the first 1-2 game in 5A since Aldine MacArthur and Willowridge opened the 1994 season against each other.

"This matchup is going to be great," North Mesquite coach Mark Elam said. "It's really going to be a fun game to coach in, play in or watch."

Neither team was really in jeopardy of moving in the poll after the way they opened the season last Friday night.

North Mesquite ran up 376 yards of offense and the defense was just as impressive in a 45-7 victory over Arlington. Using a similar strategy, Permian had three running backs each gain 100 yards and also had great defense in a 36-7 victory over El Paso Irvin.

The biggest change in the poll was atop 1A, where Windthorst eked past Granger to swap the top two spots.

Granger los. the No. 1 spot because it only beat Lexington 30-26, while Windthorst stepped up behind the strength of a 46-12 victory over Lindsay.

Elsewhere, defending 5A Division II runner-up Flower Mound Marcus moved into the poll at No. 10 in place of San Antonio Marshall, a tie by Stephenville dropped it from second to eighth in 4A.

Rangers squeak out win, 4-3

TORONTO (AP) — Texas Rangers manager Johnny Oates chalked this one up to artificial turf.

"On carpet if you don't hit it at them, you've got a chance to win," Oates said Monday night after the Rangers found just enough holes to squeak out a 4-3 come-from-behind win over the Toronto Blue Jays.

"Mickey (Tettleton) got the big double and the bullpen did the rest," Oates said.

SHS netters drop to Sweetwater; take care of Wylie

The Snyder High School tennis team won a dual match and lost one to tough competition Saturday.

The netters droped their first match to Sweetwater, a district foe a year ago, but came back to knock off a strong Abilene Wylie squad.

Sweetwater won 17 matches while the Tigers took 13. "Sweetwater was a lot tougher than I thought they would be, but there is no way we should of gotten beat the way we did," said tennis coach Chad Redwine. "It was a disappointing effort on our part."

According to the coach, highlight in the Sweetwater match was Laura Gonzales "who grounded out a poorly-called match, mainly line calls." Gonzales outlasted Daniel Howard, 7-6, 6-4.

Brett Gibson was also singled out. "Gibson is playing his best tennis ever and is turning into an extremely smart player," Redwine said.

The afternoon match with Wylie saw the Tigers look like a totally different team. "After a team meeting about Sweetwater, the kids rebounded well. It is great to beat any team out of Abilene which is the top tennis town in the state.

"The kids were hot, sticky, tired and sore, but hung in there and beat a very tough team," added Redwine.

For the Lady Tigers, they won 10 of 14 matches. Cailey Coffee, one of the Snyder co-captains, won a two-set match over Sunny Wu, 6-4, 6-4.

The other captain, Jamie Muarez, also took a two-set match away from Travis Adams, 6-4, 6-4.

The tennis team will take on Lubbock Monterey on the home courts today before opening district play Saturday with Lamesa at the junior high courts.

Packers blowout Eagles

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers aren't going to let these blowouts go to their heads.

"We made a lot of mistakes tonight," quarterback Brett Favre said after the Packers trounced the Philadelphia Eagles 39-13 on Monday night. "We could have scored 50 points, we really could have. But we stopped ourselves."

Favre overthrew his first five passes and saw four drives stall in Eagles territory, but he still managed to complete 17 of 31 passes for 261 yards and three touchdowns in the first Monday Night Football game at Lambeau Field in a decade.

Coupled with their rout of Tampa Bay last week, the Packers have outscored their opponents 73-16, their first-string defense has surrendered just one touchdown in the exhibition and regular seasons, and they've collected 10 takeaways — after getting just 16 all last season.

"The last two weeks, we've put our offense in a position to score," defensive end Reggie White said. "And they've put a lot of points on the board."

Favre, with seven touchdown passes and no interceptions, has shown that his offseason treatment for an addiction to painkillers hasn't cost him any of the things that made him the MVP last season.

But he swears he's not nearly satisfied.

"We need to go out this week and evaluate our practice and get better," Favre said.

Artist will paint mural at Snyder Junior High

Artist Brian Joseph is scheduled to visit the Snyder Junior High on Wednesday and Thursday to paint a mural and visit with students.

Joseph, a native of Trinidad, did not start painting until he was 33 years old, and he has never taken any art classes. From 1984-1990 he worked for the city of Austin but became disatisfied with his job and took up painting.

The majority of Joseph's works focus on a fictional world inhabited by "The Bydee People." Bydee is an acronym for Bringing You Delighful and Enlightening Experiences, and it is also a philosophy that promotes peace, love and happiness.

The "Bydee People" in Joseph's paintings are an imaginary clan who live inside seashells and celebrate the joy in everyday living.

Joseph uses his art to emphasize the therapeutic benefits of "Bydee-ism." He has visited mental health organizations and rape crisis centers, and he has also worked with a number of schools in Texas. He paints murals inside schools to get kids involved in their own stories and characters by painting pictures of happiness.

Snyder Junior High School Principal Kellye Starnes said the mural is being funded from an activity fund.

Spaniards fear new 'War of the Worlds'

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Hundreds of panicked Spaniards flooded TV and radio switchboards with calls this weekend when a newscaster broke in with a report showing space aliens hovering over New York.

The purported news flashes that appeared Saturday and Sunday on the Telecinco network were in fact advertisements for the film "Independence Day," which opens in Spain on Friday.

The PubliEspana advertising firm figured viewers wouldn't be taken in by the spoof of Orson Welles' "The War of the Worlds" — the 1938 radio play that created a short but memorable panic in the United States.

"We wanted to do something different, cause some excitement, but certainly not fear," an advertising executive, Jose Luis Andarias, said Monday.

But plenty of Spaniards believed the film's scenes of a White House press conference about the invasion, and an announcer breaking away to shots of New Yorkers fleeing in the streets.

A text warning on the bottom of the TV screen said "advertisement," but "apparently people can't watch footage, listen and read at the same time," Andarias said.

Drug therapy eliminates tapeworms

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've read about tapeworms in medical books, yet have never discovered a way to get rid of them. Can you advise me?

DEAR READER: Parasites, such as tapeworms and roundworms, enter the human intestine through the mouth from soil or food that is contaminated with their eggs. The worms are easily eradicated from the body, once the type has been identified by appropriate stool-testing. Patients may not be aware that they have worms until they pass a mature worm in the stool.

Two common anti-worm drugs are Vermox and Mintezol; both are available by prescription.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm confused about how often the average patient should undergo flexible sigmoidoscopy.

DEAR READER: The flex sig (in medical shorthand) has, by and large, supplanted the older technique, called proctoscopy, which depended on a lighted, rigid instrument, introduced through the rectum, to identify colonic polyps.

The flex sig is far less uncomfortable — and less dangerous — because doctors use a flexible fiber-optic device.

During the office procedure, for which minimal preparation is required, physicians examine the lower colon for growths. This is basically a screening test for pre-malignant lesions.

Ordinarily, the colon is found to be free of polyps. Such benign growths are like warts that grow from the lining of the colon. However, these growths do not cause symptoms and may be a surprise to both patient and doctor.

If discovered, the polyps are biopsied during the flex sig. Then, depending on the pathology report, further investigation may be mandated: A full colonoscopy, again using a fiber-optic tube, should be performed.

In general, benign polyps discovered during routine flex-sig exams can be ignored (after their removal).

Because this is such an effective way to diagnose pre-cancerous polyps, most authorities recommend flex-sig exams every three or four years for both men and women over 50.

Obviously, if an excised polyp is pre-malignant — meaning that over time it could turn into a cancer — more frequent colon examinations are necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My MS was diagnosed in 1989 after a bad fall. Six months later my need for sleep had gone from seven hours per night to 10, plus an afternoon nap. After mentioning this to my neurologist, she prescribed 18.75 mg of Cylert per day. In about a month my fatigue was less and my night's sleep was down to about eight hours. Please check on Cylert for your own information the next time you write about MS.

DEAR READER: Cylert is a prescription stimulant that has been used to treat children with Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder. I was not aware that it can be used to overcome fatigue associated with multiple sclerosis. The drug can cause many side effects, the most serious being liver inflammation, convulsions, hallucinations, nausea and anemia.

In some cases, patients have experienced Tourette's syndrome, the uncontrollable urge to utter obscenities. The drug has a real potential for abuse and addiction. Therefore, Cylert should be prescribed and supervised only by a health professional familiar with its use.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Tourette's Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

Air Force Academy cadet waives extradition

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — An Air Force Academy cadet alleged to have killed a Texas teen in a love-triangle murder has waived extradition, and his lawyer says the man will plead innocent to any charges.

Cadet David Graham, 18, of Mansfield, Texas, was implicated in the December slaying of Adrianne Jones, 16. Already charged in the crime is Graham's fiance, Diane Zamora, 18, a plebe at the Naval Academy.

Miss Jones' body was found Dec. 4, near her hometown of Mansfield.

Ms. Zamora was arrested last Friday in Fort Worth, Texas, after signing what police said was a confession in the murder.

While Texas authorities said Graham had signed a confession, defense attorney Robert Swofford said he knew nothing of it.

Swofford told reporters Graham would plead innocent to any charges.

"Our hands are tied until he gets back to Texas. We can't begin our investigation of the case until he gets back there," Swofford said.

Asked if Graham showed any remorse, Swofford replied, "Remorse for what ... He has done nothing wrong."

Godparent plays minor role

DEAR ABBY: I need to know what is required of godparents. I have two godchildren. My problem is, even though I make myself available at all times (birthdays, school illnesses, any time the parents need a break, etc.), I am not being utilized.

In both cases we stood before God in a church service and made vows to be accessible to the children, and I have been. I have spoken to both sets of parents and made it perfectly clear that I want to be in each child's life, yet whenever the parents need any assistance with their children, they turn to grandma and grandpa. I have gifts of toys and clothing that my godchildren have outgrown by now, so after many calls went unreturned, I've given up trying.

I am concerned that years from now, when the kids are in their late teens, the parents will seek me out for help with money for college and cars. Please help.

AN M.D. IN D.C.

DEAR M.D.: While in theory a godparent is responsible for the spiritual guidance of a child in accordance with his or her family's religion, in practice the obligation may be no more than that of any close friend of the family.

Contrary to what some might assume, there is no requirement to provide financial assistance. However, a godparent does customarily give a birthday and possibly a Christmas gift until the godchild is grown. You need not worry about future financial obligations to the children, but you should ask the parents what their expectations were when they asked you to assume this solemn and significant role.

DEAR ABBY: Please inform potential employers and the general public that not all ex-convicts are lifelong criminals who should never again be trusted.

I would like to hear from your millions of readers how they would answer my question: By taking away most of my constitutional rights and severely limiting my employment opportunities for the rest of my life, how is that going to protect society or give me an incentive to go straight?

My debt (for armed robbery) was paid 22 years ago.

ROY S., SPARKS, NEV.

DEAR MR. S.: My experts tell me that convicted felons receive due process under the law, and all their rights are returned to them when their sentences have been served and paroles are complete.

However, two privileges are withheld: the privilege of owning a gun and the privilege of voting.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter about the child who was referred to by the nurse as "the little boy in the wheelchair." That reminded me of the time I was in the hospital for a liver biopsy. Over my head, the nurses kept referring to me as "the liver." They referred to the next patient as "the knee." I heard a nurse say, "We'll do the knee after the liver."

I asked them, out of curiosity, why they refer to people like that, and they explained, "We see so many people in one day it would be confusing to refer to people by their names. It helps keep things straight by naming the part of the body scheduled to be worked on." I looked up at them and said, "It's a good thing I'm not in here for hemorrhoids!"

Monroe is dead at age 84

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bill Monroe, with his huge mutton-chop sideburns and white cowboy hat, lived much of his 84 years as an icon and with a credit few people can claim.

He created his own genre of music — bluegrass — and influenced scores of musicians, from country stars to Elvis and the Beatles.

Monroe died at a suburban Nashville hospice Monday, five months after suffering a stroke.

The Father of Bluegrass combined fast-picking mandolin, banjo and guitar with a "high lonesome" singing style to create the distinctly American sound.

"No one can ever question that Bill Monroe changed music forever with his vision and his genius," singer Emmylou Harris said. "But he also inspired our lives with a relentless dedication to his work, and the unwavering integrity of always following his true voice."

Monroe influenced bluegrass legends like Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs, as well as newer stars such as Ricky Skaggs and Alison Krauss, to name just a few.

Monroe's music "influenced the Delmore Brothers, The Blue Sky Boys, The Everly Brothers," Skaggs said. "The Everly Brothers influenced the Beatles and the Beatles influenced everybody.

"There's probably nobody really on the face of the Earth that ever influenced more music than Bill Monroe," he said.

Bluegrass, which took hold in the 1940s, relies heavily on banjos, mandolins, acoustic guitars and fiddles, with lightning-fast picking and a yodeling vocal style. It gets its name from Monroe's band, the Blue Grass Boys, and the grass of his native Kentucky.

Elvis Presley recorded Monroe's "Blue Moon of Kentucky" in 1954 on his way to stardom. Monroe's other records include "Kentucky Waltz," "Mule Skinner Blues," "Pike County Breakdown" and "A Letter From My Darling."

Monroe headlined around the world as a singer, songwriter and instrumentalist and was honored at the White House. He sold more than 50 million records and remained active in his 80s, despite bouts with cancer, pneumonia and heart trouble.

"I love to play music and hear it," he told The Associated Press in 1989. "I love to put the sounds and notes in there that I want to hear. I want to do the best I can for my friends and fans sitting out there in the audience."

Musicians who flourished under his personal tutelage include bluegrass giants Vassar Clements, Jimmy Martin, Carter Stanley, Byron Berline, Peter Rowan and Del McCoury.

Monroe was elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1970 and won the National Medal of the Arts in 1995. He played at the Grand Ole Opry throughout his career.

Born Sept. 13, 1911, William Smith Monroe was a timid child whose early musical influences were his older brothers, his Uncle Pendleton Vandiver (immortalized in the tune "Uncle Pen"), and local blues musicians.

Fran's damage worse than 1989's Hugo

N. Car. Gov. Jim Hunt: 'Hurricane worst disaster we've had this century'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Beside felled trees, in flooded towns and over Red Cross meals, the comparisons keep coming: Was Hurricane Fran worse than Bertha's visit in July? Of course. Worse than 1989's Hugo? Definitely.

Worse for North Carolina, even, than the legendary storm called Hazel? No question, says Gov. Jim Hunt, who remembers being sent home from school the day Hazel passed through — Oct. 15, 1954 — when he was 17.

"This is the worst disaster we've had in this century," Hunt said Monday, the day he gave nonessential state workers the rest of the week off if needed to help clean up their homes and communities.

"Everybody has been hurt by it," he said. "This is going to require extraordinary things."

Though there were no immediate overall damage estimates, recovery will be Herculean and protracted. Aid, human and financial, is pouring into North Carolina, which was hit hardest by the hurricane.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency has already taken 3,700 applications for aid, the agency's director, James Lee Witt, said today. FEMA expected to have checks to people within seven to 10 days, he said as he meet with state and local officials.

Fran rolled through late last week, walloping the Carolina coast before turning inland and dissipating into heavy rain. Some 1.7 million businesses and homes lost electricity and up to 390,000 customers remained without power today.

At least 30 people died, 17 in North Carolina, and a 17-year-old boy remained missing three days after going swimming in a swollen Raleigh creek. By contrast, 1989's Hugo killed at least four people in North Carolina and 40 U.S. residents in all, with South Carolina the hardest-hit state. Hazel in 1954 killed 19 North Carolinians on a rampage that claimed about 350 lives from Haiti to the mid-Atlantic states.

Bertha caused $179 million in agricultural damage, and state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Fran could be worse.

Hortense pounds Puerto Rico

BOQUERON, Puerto Rico (AP) — Hurricane Hortense pounded Puerto Rico with 15 inches of torrential rain today, blacking out much of the island, sending rivers over their banks and washing away cars. Two people were killed.

A 2-year-old boy died in a mudslide in the southwestern community of Guanica from a storm that meterologists say may dump more precipitation on the island than ever recorded. The body of a second storm-related fatality, a 50-year-old woman, was found in a car in the nearby town of Lares.

Gov. Pedro Rossello said 90 percent of Puerto Rico's 3.6 million people were without electricity and potable water and that he would ask Washington to declare the island a disaster area so it could receive emergency federal assistance.

"This is likely to be the major heavy rain-producer we've ever had," Ron Block of the U.S. National Weather Service said this morning in San Juan. "Virtually everything is at a standstill. We've had unofficial reports of vehicles washing away. ... Everything is effectively closed."

The eye of the Atlantic season's fifth hurricane crossed over southwestern Puerto Rico before dawn today with 80 mph winds, and headed across the Mona Passage at 12 mph toward the eastern tip of the Dominican Republic. Little to no strengthening of the storm was expected today.

The storm, which has hurricane-force winds extending outward about 60 miles, is expected to strike a glancing blow to northeastern Dominican Republic about midday, then head in a west-northwesterly direction toward the Turks and Caicos and southernmost Bahamas.

It will be at least a day before it's known how close the hurricane might come to the U.S. East Coast, though forecasters say the storm has a 10 percent chance of striking Palm Beach, Fla., sometime Thursday. Meterologists say the storm would more likely target the Northeast later this week.

Perot to announce veep on TV tonight

DALLAS (AP) — Ross Perot turns to his favorite campaign forum tonight — a paid-for television advertisement — to announce his running mate.

Then the No. 2 pick plans to appear on CNN's "Larry King Live" to meet the voting public, including the Reform Party faithful who number more than 1 million, according to figures from the new party that Perot built.

Without revealing the name of his vice presidential choice, Perot promised Monday that the person "has the background, experience and the qualifications" to serve.

At least three politicians have declined to share his ticket and Perot's two running mate "stand-ins" on East and West coast state ballots say they haven't been asked.

The 30-minute infomercial in which Perot plans to announce his running mate is scheduled to air on CBS at 8 p.m. EDT, 8 p.m. PDT and 7 p.m. central and mountain time, according to the Perot campaign.

Excerpts of Perot's infomercial released Monday night show the Texan touting his ideas to balance the national budget and overhaul the federal income tax system with voters approving the changes by national referendum.

"The owners of the country — the people — would have the final approval of any future tax increases" he promised.
