High-flying newlyweds

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Diane Olrick and Tony Jestis had a nice traditional church wedding, then celebrated by climbing into separate airplanes and flying off into the wild blue yonder.

At Saturday's ceremony at St. Peter's Cathedral in Belleville, the couple exchanged medals of Our Lady of Loretto, the patron of air travelers. Then, the newlywed pilots headed to St. Louis for an airborne wedding procession.

At St. Louis Downtown-Parks Airport, the bride flew off in a restored 1940 Waco UPF-7 while the groom followed in a Cessna 152. Pilot friends and several wedding guests completed the unusual procession in seven other small planes.

"The idea for the flyby just sort of evolved," said Ms. Olrick, 31, an air traffic controller and part-time flight instructor.

Early holiday Home will see improvements

A drive past the house at 100 N. Brown St. makes it easy to believe no one could live there.

Several nearby houses have been abandoned; a sign offering sales and repairs for lawn mowers hangs along a fence just south of this house, scheduled for renovation and repairs Saturday by Christmas in April volunteers.

But the house is not abandoned, a second glance reveals. A sturdy-looking rose climbs the porticulis — and behind the curtains in the southwest windows are a flourishing potted tree and an abundant ivy.

Her rambling house is home for Mrs. Mary Rawls. She has lived here for about 15 years, since a refurbished home — the remodeling was not yet complete — she and her husband had on the Andrews Highway burned. Another house on the Andrews Highway and one across the street from this one were also lost to fire.

She shares her home with her disabled son, Ricky. The house and lot were deeded to him, she said, because his inability to keep a job prevented him from earning a living and paying rent. He supplements their income — her Social Security widow's benefits — with his lawnmower business.

A cold woodstove backs up the gas heater in the living room. The promised repairs from Christmas in April's volunteers should help lower her heating bills, Mrs. Rawls believes.

"I'm so proud to have them fix my house, because I knew I never would be able to do anything more to it," she said. She suffers from phlebitis and from asthma.

A scattering of onion plants and a caged tomato, several hills of canteloupe and her roses constitute a garden, waiting for rain. She has made this place a home, added beauty and life as she could.

A goldfish pond lies beside the concrete steps into the yard. Its amber water teems with flashes of carrot-colored fish, and larger, darker forms can be seen among the tiny carp. It is her pride and joy; friends have promised lily pads, she said with obvious pleasure, to brighten the pond.

"Until my husband died, we always made our own way," she said. "He drove a truck for Steere Tank Lines for 21 years and made good money."

"We had everything paid for when he died — oh, maybe we owed a part of a doctor bill — but we never bought anything on credit."

In her face, in her voice, is her determination to go on making her way. "I tell everybody, keep going for as long as you can."

She refuses to let her losses make her despair, though she still grieves nightly.

Mrs. Rawls' husband died in October 1980. In October 1987, her oldest son Wesley died. Both suffered from cancer.

She lost her daughter Barbara and her

Investigators prove remains are Christie's Killer's search begins

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

The two-year search for Christie Proctor has ended, at the same time the search for her killer is beginning.

The remains of the former Big Spring resident, who was abducted near her north Dallas home more than two years ago, were discovered in a field north of Plano Thursday, according to published reports.

Christie, who was kidnapped just prior to her 10th birthday, was the daughter of former Big Spring resident Laura Proctor, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brooks.

Collin County Medical Examiner William Rohr positively identified the remains as Christie's early Saturday afternoon by comparing the skull with X-rays taken of her in 1978, the report stated.

Rohr, who could not be reached for comment this morning, made the identification with the assistance of a consulting anthropologist.

The cause of death was listed as undetermined homicidal violence.

The identification prompted police in Dallas and Plano to upgrade their investigation surrounding the disappearance of the 9-year-old girl from a kidnapping to a homicide.

A spokesman for the Plano Police Department said today that his department will be working in conjunction with the Dallas Police Department on the case.

"Dallas is still responsible for the kidnapping," he said. "It is probable that (Plano) will handle the homicide."

He added that homicide ruling was made on the basis of Christie's disappearance, and that it was impossible to determine from the remains how or when she died.

Further details as to the cause of death are pending a final autopsy report, which the Plano police had not received as of this morning, he added.

Christie's mother, who hoped for more than two years she would find her missing daughter, said Sunday she is convinced now that her daughter is dead.

"There is no chance anymore. There isn't any hope of getting my daughter back alive," Laura said Sunday after a meeting with the Collin County medical examiner's office to confirm the identification of her daughter.

Mrs. Proctor reviewed X-rays of her daughter and remains found in a field as well as a tennis shoe and other pieces of clothing found at the site.

"This is the toughest part, realizing I don't have a child to search for anymore. At least not my child,"

U.S. military reprisal destroys Iranian oil platforms

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer

MANAMA, Bahrain — The U.S. Navy today destroyed two offshore Iranian oil platforms, sank a defending Iranian patrol boat and bombed an Iranian war frigate. Iran attacked oil facilities off Sharjah and fired on at least two U.S. vessels.

The American attack on the Persian Gulf oil platforms came in retaliation for a mine explosion that tore a hole in an American frigate last week, injuring 10 crewmen.

Also today, Iran said the United States had entered the Iran-Iraq war, charging that U.S. helicopters supported an Iraqi land offensive in the Faw Peninsula. There was no immediate response from Washington.

The White House said three U.S. warships ships blasted each Iranian platform. No American casualties were reported in the U.S. attacks, and the Iranians fled prior to the shelling, the White House said.

Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci said an American helicopter also was fired upon during the raid but was not hit.

One U.S. warship fired missiles at two approaching Iranian jet fighters, but the fighters reversed course and it was unclear whether they were hit, Carlucci said.

He said an Iranian patrol boat fired on the U.S. cruiser Wainwright, which took part in the attack on one of the platforms.

The Wainwright was not hit. He said the U.S. frigate Simpson returned fire and sank the patrol boat.

About seven hours after the oil platform attack, the 310-foot Iranian frigate Sahand "was noticed closing rapidly upon three U.S. warships," said Dan Howard, the Pentagon's chief spokesman.

The Iranian warship then fired upon three U.S. aircraft on patrol in the Strait of Hormuz, the entrance to the gulf.

The aircraft, A-6 Intruders, "returned fire with two Harpoon missiles and a number of laser-guided bombs. Shortly thereafter, the USS Strauss, a destroyer, engaged the Sahand with an additional Harpoon," Howard said.

He said the Sahand was on fire and "the smoke is so heavy that it's difficult to do a further assessment at this point."

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the U.S. warships first struck the Sassan platform in the southern gulf at 9 a.m. (1:30 a.m. EDT). Twenty-three minutes later they attacked the Nasr platform at nearby Sirri Island, IRNA said.

An Iranian warship later shelled the Mubarak oilfield off Sharjah, an emirate in the southern gulf, shipping executives said.

Targeted in the attack were the Scanbay drilling rig, the 112,744-ton British tanker York Marine and a storage facility.

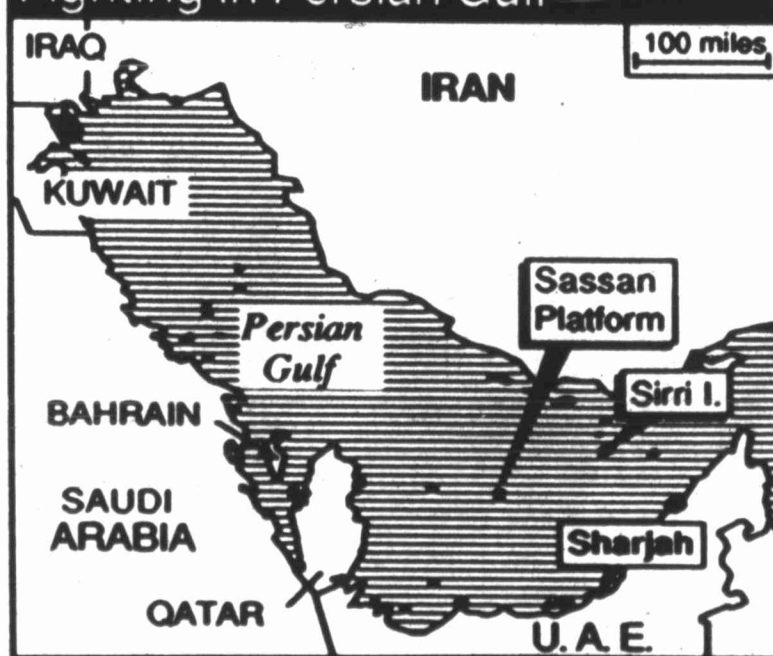

The executives, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the York Marine was set afire and that its crew had abandoned the vessel. The Scanbay reported it was under attack by four gunboats, they said.

The Iranians also fired on the press helicopter of the NBC television network, but did not harm the aircraft or its passengers, executives said.

The London-based Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit reported a U.S. tugboat, the Willi Tide, also was fired on off Sharjah but was not hit.

They said unidentified warplanes swooped low over the attacking Iranian boats, chasing them away from the tug.

Third Garcia slaying suspect held

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

A third suspect in the recent slaying of Odessa resident Manuel Garcia in Big Spring has been apprehended and is awaiting extradition to Texas, according to a police spokesman.

Robert Flores, 30, of Big Spring, was arrested Friday and is in custody at an undisclosed site north of Texas, Big Spring Police Lt. Juan Palacios said today.

Palacios declined to reveal where Flores is being held.

The local police department is in communication with officials from the northern state, in an attempt to smooth extradition details, Palacios noted.

Garcia's body was found beneath a mattress, boards and a washing machine shell in a west Big Spring sand pit April 7. An autopsy report indicated that he died from a blow to the head, and had sustained a gunshot wound to the head.

Two suspects who were arrested April 9 in connection with the Garcia slaying are still in police custody.

Ricardo Flores, 32, of Big Spring, and Leroy Alaniz, 30, of Odessa, are in police custody in lieu of bonds of $100,000 apiece, Palacios said.

Investigations into three other area shooting deaths are continuing, although officials reported no new developments today.

Detectives probing the March

29 shooting death of Fred Morales Jr., 39, are expected to meet today with Justice of the Peace William Shankles to review their investigation, Palacios said, adding that a ruling in the death may be forthcoming soon.

Morales was found on the 300 block of Trades Street early March 29, and was declared dead a few hours later at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, according to published reports.

The weapon believed used in the death — a .410-gauge shotgun — was found buried about 11 miles north of Big Spring a few days later.

A ruling as to whether the death was homicide or suicide is pending.

Farabee will keep his name on ballot

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Senator Ray Farabee, who has resigned, plans to keep his name on the November ballot so voters will have a chance to decide who is on that ballot in a special election this summer.

Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said Sunday he had decided not to remove his name from the ballot until Aug. 14, a day after the special election scheduled by Gov. Bill Clements, because he was concerned that there was a movement to ignore the results of the special election.

"Without such an election to act as a 'primary' (the Republican and Democratic) county chairs are forced to pick (a candidate) for the November general election ballot without any input from the voting public," Farabee said in a prepared statement.

Farabee resigned from his seat in early March to accept the position of vice chancellor and general counsel of the University of Texas System. His acceptance of the chancellorship meant a special election had to be scheduled to fill his unexpired term, which will end in January.

His wife, Helen, is among the candidates running for his vacated post.

If there is no candidate for the November election, party officials would have the responsibility of meeting and choosing a candidate, said Calvin Gamble, District 30 committeeman on the State Executive Committee.

Farabee will not run in the August election, but by keeping his name on the ballot he said he hopes to guarantee the chairmen will select the winner of the race as the candidate in November for the 30th District.

However, candidate Rep. Charles Fennell, D-Holliday, criticized Farabee's decision.

"Obviously the chancellor has changed his mind and has recalculated his position to best benefit his wife's candidacy," Fennell said.

Farabee said he planned to withdraw his name from the November ballot regardless of the special election's outcome.

Also running in the special election are Rep. Steve Carriker, D-Roby, and Republican Bobby Albert.

oldest grandson in 1986. He was killed in an auto accident in Odessa; she died of choking in her home.

Four of the five Rawls sons — Dean, Billy, David and Bobby — also live in Big Spring. Another, Harold, lives in Houston; during his illness, Mrs. Rawls remembers, she and her husband stayed with Harold during treatments for the cancer at M.D. Anderson Hospital.

Mrs. Rawls' house began as a two-room house she and her husband moved to its present lot. They built on as they could, she said, after the fire destroyed their Andrews Highway home and a family car.

"He was already sick, with his left kidney, then," she recalled, sitting in her sheetrocked, unpainted living room. The windows stand wide open for the faintest trace of breeze; her air conditioner has not been mounted in a window for the summer yet.

"I wanted to wait until after they (the Christmas in April volunteers) came and did their work."

Bob Noyes, who operates Bob's Custom Woodwork, will direct the repairs to Mrs. Rawls' house.

"He said they'd put a roof on it, and put on siding, and they'd do the interior," she said. "I was just so proud to have them fix the house, I wasn't about to do any suggesting about what needed to be done."

This home, the property of Mary Rawls and her son Ricky, is expected to be easier to heat in the winter thanks to planned work by Christmas in April volunteers Saturday.

Much does. Ceilings in the narrow kitchen and one bedroom have partly fallen in as a result of leaks in the roof. There are no interior doors; curtains screen the rooms. The outer walls are rough lumber, almost devoid of the coat of white paint.

The bathroom's fixtures are bare pipes, with outdoor faucet handles. Mrs. Rawls recalls that the first of the three rattlesnakes killed inside her house was found in the bathroom; the other two were in the kitchen.

"We never did find out where they came in," she said. "They were all about the same size, all had one rattle and a button. But they weren't all from the same bunch, because we found them different years."

Beyond it lies a room divided into two. The northern portion originally was a bedroom; now it serves as storage space, because the ceiling has collapsed.

Many of the windows in the addition rooms stand in walls that show bare studs from window-top to roofline; the passageway to Ricky's bedroom shows daylight between walls and roof, and around its doorways. Like the living room, the added bedroom's walls are unpainted sheetrock.

Mrs. Rawls' house is only one among the homes Christmas in April will repair for elderly or disabled residents during its April 24 workday; in preparation for the work, she has been packing her belongings with her family's help.

Work on the house should take only one day, according to the Christmas in April schedule, but she will need to vacate the house and remove her belongings from the work areas.

Officials investigating suspicious house fire

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Fire department officials are investigating the possibility of arson in a Northside fire that partially destroyed an unoccupied house Saturday afternoon.

Firefighters responded to a 2:40 p.m. call to find the house at 811 Ohio St. on fire, according to fire department records.

Five fire department units responded to the fire, which took about two hours to bring under control. About 750 gallons of water were used and no injuries were reported, the record stated.

The house is owned by Andrew and Helen Davis, the report added.

Burr Lea Settles Jr., arson investigator for the Big Spring fire department, said today he is investigating whether the blaze was intentionally set.

"The fire was incendiary in nature, which means it was set," Settles said. "It is unknown if it was an adult or kids that set it, though," he added, saying the investigation was not complete as of this morning.

Damage estimate to the house is unknown, but Settles noted that the house is structurally sound.

ding, and no arrests have been made, Palacios said.

Three suspects in the shooting death of long-time local radio personality C. Vance Kimble are in Howard County Sheriff's custody, and a fourth is awaiting extradition to Texas from an undisclosed Florida site.

Pamela Newton, Patrick Newton and Michael Hodnett are in custody in lieu of $100,000 bond apiece. They were arrested earlier this month in New Orleans in connection with the March 31 slaying of Kimble, 61.

The fourth suspect, Dennis Noggler, is awaiting extradition at the Florida city where he was apprehended last week, according to Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard.

A Big Spring police officer remains free on $90,000 bail after being charged with involuntary manslaughter in the shooting death of his wife April 12.

Dennis Dunn, 39, has been temporarily suspended without pay from the department, pending further investigation into the shooting death of his wife, Caryle, 25, according to Police Capt. Lonnie Smith.

The shooting occurred about 10:30 p.m. April 12. An autopsy performed by Dr. Robert Rember revealed that Mrs. Dunn died of a single gunshot wound to the chest.

The investigation into her death is being handled by the Midland office of the Texas Rangers, which refused comment on the matter today.

Royalty: Meet hijackers' demands

ALGIERS, Algeria — A member of Kuwait's royal family, held hostage aboard a jumbo jet, said today he wants his government to give in to the hijackers' demand and free 17 terrorists imprisoned in Kuwait.

The control tower at Algiers Houari Boumediene Airport asked in English that the statement be repeated. One of the hijackers then got on the radio and replied: "He doesn't want to talk."

DALLAS — Karl Woodill, 9, builds a sand canyon at a man-made beach in the west side of downtown Dallas Saturday. Three million pounds of sand were trucked in to create the beach as a fund raising event benefitting Dallas Parks and Recreation.

Slaying victims buried today

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Residents shaken by the grisly weekend stabbing deaths of three sisters and their brother are responding to the slayings with flowers and funds.

Funeral services were scheduled today at 2 p.m. for Jennifer 19; Shannon, 17; Martha, 15; and Ernest Mann, 11, at Mission Park Funeral Chapel, followed by a burial.

An official at the funeral home, who declined to give his name, said a large number of flowers have been sent and he has received many calls.

"People are calling to see what time the services are," the official said. He didn't know how many people would turn out for the services.

"We always expect a large crowd in these cases," he said.

Meanwhile, friends of the children's parents, Ernest and Rebecca Mann, have established two funds to defray the funeral expenses. The parents are facing $10,000 in costs.

The mutilated bodies of the four youths were found early Friday morning at the trailer home where they lived. Police have filed capital murder charges against Leo Narvaiz Jr., 20, and he was being held Sunday on $4.05 million in bonds at the Bexar County Jail.

Narvaiz, Shannon's former boyfriend, was released Sunday from Medical Center Hospital where he was being treated for cuts to his arms and stabs to the thigh.

Police have said they believe Narvaiz is the sole perpetrator in the slayings, but say they are analyzing the tape of the girl's frenzied call to 911 emergency to help search for further clues.

Narvaiz also has been assessed an $800 bond for a related terroristic threat charge.

That charge stems from a confrontation between Narvaiz and Ricky Moore, who was dating Shannon. Moore, 24, said Narvaiz repeatedly threatened to kill him and once threatened him with a knife.

Moore, who filed charges against Narvaiz, criticized police for not arresting Narvaiz after the two fought. But officials blamed a clogged justice system for the slowness in Narvaiz's arrest.

Father shoots children; killed in head-on collision

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A man who died in a car accident after shooting and injuring his daughter and nephews was distraught over a pending divorce, police said.

Three children were injured Sunday when Alfred Collins, 33, fired a semiautomatic weapon at the sleeping children.

Injured were Tiffany Collins, 12, and her cousin, Charles Collins, 8, who were treated at local hospitals Sunday and released. Howard Collins, 10, was in serious condition at Brooke Army Medical Center, said Capt. Kenneth Weber.

About an hour after the shootings, Collins, 33, died in a head-on collision on a rain-slick road, according to a Bexar County Sheriff's office report. The driver of the car he collided with was not seriously injured.

In the Sunday shooting, a police report said a .380-caliber semiautomatic pistol recovered from atop a stereo speaker had jammed and still had three rounds remaining.

Police said the two wounded boys were sleeping in the front bedroom of the three-bedroom trailer home. Tiffany was asleep in the back bedroom with Howard's sister, Kimberly Collins, 7, and a family friend.

"We were all in the bed asleep and he came in the room and he just started shooting," Charles said after he was released from hospital. He said he heard his uncle talking about some papers.

Divorce papers were filed Thursday at the Bexar County Courthouse, but Collins' mother delivered them to her son Friday evening, officials said.

Race is raised in hiring

CRANE (AP) — A girls' volleyball coach who is the only black faculty member at Crane High School says she fears her job is in jeopardy because of her race.

Last Thursday, the Crane County School Board tabled a decision to renew Marian Bennett's contract on a 3-3 vote with one board member absent.

"I've never been called in by the school board," Ms. Bennett said. "I've never had a written or oral reprimand of any kind."

Saturday night, Ms. Bennett said she received three anonymous calls telling her to get out of Crane, a town of 3,000 residents about 30 miles from Odessa.

Ms. Bennett was recruited to Crane three years ago after a 60-game winning streak and a string of seven district championship seasons by volleyball teams at Burges High School in El Paso.

Ms. Bennett, 34, earned a bachelor's degree in health and speech from Sul Ross State University in Alpine and is working on a master's degree in counseling at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin in Odessa.

The decision to review her contract individually came as the board voted automatic renewal of all other teaching contracts at the school, Ms. Bennett said. School board Chairman Charles Barrett said Sunday that he had no idea why three board members voted against renewing Ms. Bennett's teaching contract. He acknowledged the move came after the April 1 deadline mandated by Texas law for ratifying teachers' contracts.

"One thing is for sure," Barrett said. "We were wrong in what we did because it was late. It should have been done last month."

"As far as I can tell, she was already automatically hired," Barrett added, "but I didn't think of that Thursday night at the meeting."

Barrett called a special school board meeting tonight to clarify Ms. Bennett's situation.

Barrett said he was dismayed about the threatening calls Ms. Bennett said she received.

But he said he doubted race was the cause of Ms. Bennett's problems.

"Most people in Crane work in the oil fields," he told the El Paso Times. "There are black people that work with me in the oil fields and with everybody else, and I don't remember it ever being a problem in Crane."

Gas suspect in explosion

DUMAS (AP) — Authorities believe a pre-dawn house explosion that killed a couple and set off a blaze may have been caused by a gas leak.

Carroll Dean "C.D." Clark, 59, and his wife Virginia, 51, were killed in the explosion at 4:20 a.m. Sunday, said Capt. Larry White of the Dumas Fire Department.

Officials were still investigating Sunday night.

Clark died at the scene. Mrs. Clark died a short time later at Dumas Memorial Hospital from injuries she sustained in the blast, said Imogene Davis, Moore County justice of the peace.

The blast awakened neighbors, but no other homes or buildings were affected, White said. Firefighters spent half an hour extinguishing the blaze.

Clark was the Moore County road and bridge supervisor.

The couple is survived by three children and two grandchildren. Services for the couple were pending.

Voice really from rooftop

BALCH SPRINGS (AP) — A Baptist minister, eager to raise attendance at church, raised his voice from the rooftop.

With a hand on the Bible and an eye on gathering rain clouds, the Rev. John Chadwick preached his sermon on the roof of the Forest Lawn Baptist Church in this Dallas suburb Sunday.

"I don't think there was any danger," Chadwick said. "The Lord was with me."

Chadwick preached from the roof after the church's 40-odd members met his challenge to find 50 people to attend on April 10. When Chadwick became pastor of the 30-year-old church three years ago, there were eight members.

Chadwick, dressed in overalls and a cowboy hat, spoke for about 10 minutes on the roof. At one point, he stepped completely off his platform and straddled the roof's edge.

Texas train's Dow cargo worries Michigan officials

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — A 60-car train that carries hazardous chemicals from Texas through Michigan every week to Dow Chemical Co.'s headquarters here has some state officials worried.

The string of tankers has been dubbed the "Death Train" — not because of what it has done, but what it might do.

"We've called it the 'Death Train' or 'Bomb Train' for some time," Roger D. Young, a commissioner in the state Department of Transportation, said. "If one portion of that train were to have a problem, there could be a major explosion."

Dow calls the train a "unit train," since it hauls a single kind of material, like chemicals. A typical train holds about 32,000 gallons of liquids and gases.

The Detroit News reported Sunday that the train often carries chlorine, a gas that can be lethal if inhaled; phenol, a poison that can kill if breathed, swallowed or absorbed through the skin; butadiene, a highly flammable gas; styrene monomer, a flammable liquid; and hydrogen chloride, a non-flammable gas that can be fatal if inhaled or absorbed through the skin.

Along the train's route, some fire departments aren't prepared to handle a large chemical spill, Rich Powell, executive secretary of the Michigan Fire Fighters Training Council, said.

"There are fire departments in this state that have no idea how to handle hazardous material incidents," he said. "I would suspect that a lot of fire chiefs don't have any idea about what is being shipped through their communities."

One of them is Plymouth, where Fire Chief Al Matthews said he doesn't know what chemicals are aboard the train that rumbles through his town west of Detroit every Tuesday evening.

"We're not specially trained to handle hazardous materials, at least from a local fire department standpoint," he said.

Dow officials have said the train has an undeserved reputation.

"I hate to have people refer to the train as the 'Death Train,'" said Dow's Keith J. Bunting, manager of hazardous materials regulation. "It's people that don't know any better."

Opinion

Views of papers across the U.S.

This is a sampling of editorial opinion from across the country:

Ferraro's response rings hollow

It was, perhaps, a typical mother's response to a son's conviction on drug charges. She blamed herself, the police and prosecutors.

But this "typical mother" just happened to be a former assistant district attorney, member of Congress and vice presidential nominee: Geraldine Ferraro.

At a news conference outside the Vermont District Court in Rutland following her son John Zaccaro Jr.'s conviction for cocaine peddling, Ferraro did fault her son for drug "possession," but at the same time blamed "my candidacy for making my son a target."

She hinted that Vermont police "set up" her son because of her role as the Democratic vice presidential nominee in 1984.

Finally, Ferraro aimed her bitterest remarks at state prosecutor John Quinn for rejecting a plea bargain arrangement.

Ferraro's defensiveness about her son's drug-pushing may be understandable in a loyal parent.

But for someone who has served both as a lawmaker and a law enforcer her attempts to pin the blame on others had a hollow and self-serving ring.

Evening Express, Portland, Maine

Says Nixon hasn't really changed

Richard Nixon is at least consistent — he still believes that the presidency is an elected monarchy and all the president's vassals should be pardoned for any crimes committed in service to him.

If President Reagan pardons (John M.) Poindexter and (Oliver L.) North, he says to the country: "I am the president. I am above the law, and these men — acting on what they thought were my directives — are above the law also."

It's unfortunate that Nixon learned so little from his forced resignation in 1974.

Almost 14 years after his departure from the Oval Office, Nixon should understand by now the reason behind his fall from grace.

The Wichita (Kan.) Eagle-Beacon

We should copy foreign drug laws

There's an important lesson for Americans traveling abroad in the story of a 23-year-old Virginia free-lance photographer who was sentenced in Spain ... to six years and one day in prison, plus an $18,083 fine, on a drug-trafficking charge.

The photographer, who has been held without bail since he was arrested a year ago, says he is innocent, that he thought the suitcase he was transporting for a Washington, D.C., travel agency on a four-day assignment requiring a flight from Chile to Spain was filled with travel brochures, not cocaine.

Even if he were only an unwitting drug courier, the free-lancer's story underscores a message that the U.S. State Department says American tourists should take to heart: Travel abroad warrants caution.

In many countries, people caught with drugs in their possession, no matter how small the amount, can be assured of one thing: hefty penalties that will make them think two or three times before trying that again — when they finally get out, that is.

That is something this country should be emulating.

Reader against Bush for president

To the editor:

Can the people of Texas be duped into believing that George "Lapdog" Bush is a true-blue Texan and that he would really make a good president?

You better believe it when high-ranking Republicans and world leaders who have worked with George Bush for eight years tell you that he is a weak sister and in no way would make the kind of president this country needs at this time.

Good people of Texas, you had better check out Mr. Bush today.

Travesty of justice is our fault

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

We should be more careful.

To protect the rights of the accused, we have perverted the system our forefathers built to guarantee those same rights to everyone — life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

How? By letting federal judges take upon their shoulders and into their heads the sole responsibility — and by abdication, the sole right to decide — for enforcing the rights guaranteed by the constitution.

We have, by irresponsibility in the legislative and executive branches, turned over the lawmaking process to the judicial branch — and made a mockery of justice.

A prison is meant to contain prisoners, to protect society from criminals, then to rehabilitate or punish.

Federal judges have decreed — on behalf of the constitution's guarantees as they interpret them for convicted criminals — that prisons must meet certain standards set by those judges, or inmates cannot be kept in the jails.

As a direct result of those decisions in combination with the shortsightedness of legislatures unwilling to authorize funds to expand prisons, convicted criminals are being released into society so fast that it almost renders ludicrous our judicial process.

Criminals' rights outweigh those of the innocent — you and me, the potential victims. We are not safe; there are too many former inmates who roam the streets because they've served enough "good time" in prison — even though that time is a fraction of a jury's sentence.

What a term "good time" is. The convict spends "good time" with shelter, food, medical care, even recreation guaranteed.

How would I change the system? Florida decreed a return to the rules of the Old West, when your rights extended just as far as your willingness and ability to use a gun could carry them. That's extreme.

Should we take the other extreme, and remove all guns from the law-abiding citizenry?

No, I say. Never.

Instead, allow law-abiding citizens to keep and bear arms. But let them do so responsibly. Make sure they know the care and caution needed — indeed, require them to demonstrate that knowledge — in handling firearms, just as we require them to demonstrate ability to handle automobiles.

Pay for prisons big enough to hold all the criminals caught and convicted, then put them in jail and keep them there. Impose mandatory sentences for criminal convictions.

Unfair? Consider this: The convicted murderer has been judge, jury and executioner for his victim, and the murdered man or woman or child had no appeal system to turn to; no sympathetic jurist has yet decreed how commodious a coffin must be.

What of the innocent prisoner? If he can be proven innocent, rather than argue technicalities that don't throw doubt on his guilt, then the inmate unjustly convicted should be entitled to freedom and restoration of rights, to a clean record and fresh start.

That is why I find the death penalty unpalatable: You cannot resurrect a wrongfully executed criminal.

Our system is imperfect, but in our zeal to be fair we have weighted it wrongly. We have stacked the odds on the side of the unjust.

The fault is ours. We aren't willing to pay for our needs — whether in public schools or public services like police and firefighting, health services and court staffs — but we have so burdened our system, so skewed its purpose, that it must now watch out for those it's supposed to protect us from, and we have no one to look out for us but ourselves.

We should be more careful.

How members of cabinet see George Bush's record

By JACK ANDERSON
and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Before Super Tuesday, George Bush had few admitted fans among the men and women who have shared the Reagan Cabinet with him. Now, it is not surprising that the Cabinet members, all Republicans, have nice things to say about the man who has the nomination in his grasp.

But when our associate Dale Van Atta surveyed 33 current and former Cabinet members in mid-February, the majority politely dodged the request to assess Bush, or they criticized him off the record.

When we asked for "examples of policy decisions or actions in which the opinion or work of Mr. Bush made a difference over the past seven years," only five accepted our invitation.

Two of the five — Secretary of State George Shultz and former White House chief of staff and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan — spoke up only after Bush had the nomination sewn.

The No. 2 man at the State Department, John Whitehead, spoke for Shultz. He said Shultz was "an admirer" and that Bush undertook "substantive policy trips" for the president. He conducted sensitive discussions, "working hard and doing his homework well" for these missions.

An aide to Donald Regan said his boss appreciated Bush's input and was high on the efforts of a Bush-led 1982 task force on immigration, drug and economic problems in south Florida.

Meanwhile, Washington is waiting for Regan's book on his White House years, due out in several weeks, to see how he deals with Bush. A source who has read the manuscript says Regan is evenhanded about Bush, though his book will do nothing to dispel the notion of Bush as an outsider.

That is a reputation Bush himself has nurtured in his protestations of innocence regarding his role in the crucial decisions about the Iran-Contra arms deals.

The two men willing to put themselves firmly in Bush's camp before Super Tuesday were former Secretary of Energy James B. Edwards and former Secretary of Education Terrell H. Bell.

Edwards told us: "I think George Bush, and I sincerely mean this, will make one of the finest presidents this country has seen."

He praised Bush's "leadership in the area of reducing the amount of regulations that we had" when Bush served in 1981 as chairman of the Presidential Task Force on Regulatory Relief.

But former Secretary of State Alexander Haig has been highly critical of Bush's role with that very task force. During the heat of his own presidential campaign last December, Haig charged that Bush took two and a half years to produce a 126-page report. Haig said, "It's a big, thick report. But it's not as big or thick as the regulations that remain on the books, untouched to this day."

Bell praised Bush for the same task force. In a typed, two-page letter, Bell wrote us that the task force had provided recommendations for his department "concerning administration of student financial aid programs and guaranteed student loans."

According to Bell, Bush "had a deep and genuine interest in providing access to higher education to needy students."

Bell wrote, "I believe that George Bush will be an excellent president ... He is a very intelligent, personable and dedicated leader. He is a man of the highest moral principles and his family members all reflect the fact that he is a family man and a dedicated father."

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Samuel R. Pierce, Jr., was more measured in his response. But he pointed to a record that demonstrated that Bush "has been a very effective vice president who has contributed substantially to the development and execution of administration policy."

Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng said, "Bush has been a splendid vice president and a key member of the Reagan team." But Lyng cautioned that he did not "intend to indicate a personal preference among the candidates. It is my intention to support the Republican nominee strongly."

Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci had his press spokesman, J. Daniel Howard, write a letter: "Mr. Carlucci believes that it would be inappropriate for any sitting secretary of defense to take part in the ongoing political debate. Please be assured that his reluctance to answer your questions in no way should reflect upon his opinion of the vice president. On the contrary, Secretary Carlucci holds the vice president in the highest regard."

U.N. Ambassador Vernon Walters responded through a letter from Rose Sue Bernstein, his press spokeswoman: "The ambassador is a personal friend of the vice president, for whom he has great respect. He does not think it appropriate for him to answer the questions you have posed in your letter."

Finally, former Secretary of Health and Human Services Richard S. Schweiker said he didn't want to respond because he is currently president of a life insurance trade association that doesn't support candidates.

Schweiker told us, "However, I certainly will say that I enjoyed serving in President Reagan's Cabinet with Vice President Bush and have always found him to be a man of keen intellect and strong loyalty who is dedicated to serving the people of the United States."

Six steps to stop smoking

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Since I wrote recently of my successful effort in quitting smoking, I have had many letters and calls.

They fit into two categories:

• One group said, "You lying sleazebag. You didn't quit smoking."

• The other group wanted to know, "How on earth did a weak individual such as yourself find the self-control to quit smoking?"

I will address the first group by saying, "Yes, I did quit smoking. I still want a cigarette. I dream about cigarettes, and if anybody comes out with a cigarette that won't kill me, I'll start smoking them again."

I want to answer the second group by replying, "Even the weakest individuals, such as me, can quit smoking, too, if they follow my step-by-step stop-smoking plan, which is absolutely free, doesn't involve chewing any gum, or taking any shots or medicine or getting hypnotized."

Here is how to quit smoking, my way:

• STEP 1: Get aboard some type of public conveyance that doesn't allow smoking and light up a cigarette. When nonsmokers begin to harass you, ignore them and keep on smoking.

Nonsmokers are violent,

revenge-bent people. At some point, one of these people will come over to you, take your cigarette out of your mouth, crush it on the floor and hit you somewhere in the region of your head.

Also realize it won't be that much longer until nonsmokers will begin shooting smokers in the streets. Now you're on the way to being smoke-free.

• STEP 2: Soon, the stitches are out, and your bruises are healed, but you're getting the urge to smoke again.

Buy a pack of cigarettes, take one out of the pack and light it. Now, instead of putting the unlit end in your mouth, do it the other way. It will take those blisters on your tongue weeks to heal and during that period, you won't want a cigarette.

• STEP 3: The next time you get the urge to smoke, go buy a pack of Larks. I'm not even certain they make Larks anymore, so if you can't find a pack try smoking a piece of shag carpet instead — it's about the same thing.

• STEP 4: Invite Surgeon General Koop over for dinner. After eating, light up a cigarette and explain how much casual sex you've been having lately, and how you think condoms are a silly waste of time. The surgeon general will begin screaming at you and breaking up your furniture. This man is serious about cigarettes and condoms.

• STEP 5: Recall that John Wayne smoked; and cigarettes got him when 8 zillion Japanese couldn't.

• STEP 6: The final step. Before going to bed one evening, open a beer and drink half of it.

Then, light a cigarette and smoke it and throw the butt into the half-empty beer can. In fact smoke a couple more cigarettes and put them out in the beer can.

Let it sit overnight.

The next morning before you do anything else, find the can and take a big swallow of the warm beer with the soggy cigarettes in it.

If you still want to smoke after that, then there's nothing I, or anybody else, can do for you, Pilgrim.

Spill forces evacuation

SAUGET, Ill. (AP) — An overfilled railroad tank car dumped hundreds of gallons of a toxic chemical, forming a gaseous cloud that sent some 200 people to the hospital with eye irritations and breathing difficulties, officials say.

The spill at a Monsanto Co. plant about 12:15 p.m. Sunday forced the evacuation of hundreds of East St. Louis families as the chemical cloud drifted over the southern part of that city, just north of the plant, authorities said.

Monsanto officials said the spill occurred when a railroad tank car being loaded with phosphorous trichloride was overfilled, spilling 250 to 300 gallons of the chemical. The chemical turns to hydrochloric acid when it hits the air.

People suffering from eye or respiratory problems were treated at St. Mary's Hospital but none was admitted, said Rose Lusk, a nursing supervisor. Among those treated were seven firefighters.

Emergency crews sprayed the chemical cloud with water for about an hour before it dissipated. Residents were allowed to return to their homes about 3 p.m.

Paper reports problem

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — An ultra-secret multi-satellite program intended to help coordinate the nation's nuclear weapons appears to be facing serious problems, including budget overruns and technical obstacles, a newspaper reported.

The San Jose Mercury News said the 5-year-old MILSTAR program at Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. is supposed to be tough enough to survive an all-out war, smart enough to run itself for six months at a time and sophisticated enough to link just about every ship, plane and battlefield unit with a nuclear weapon.

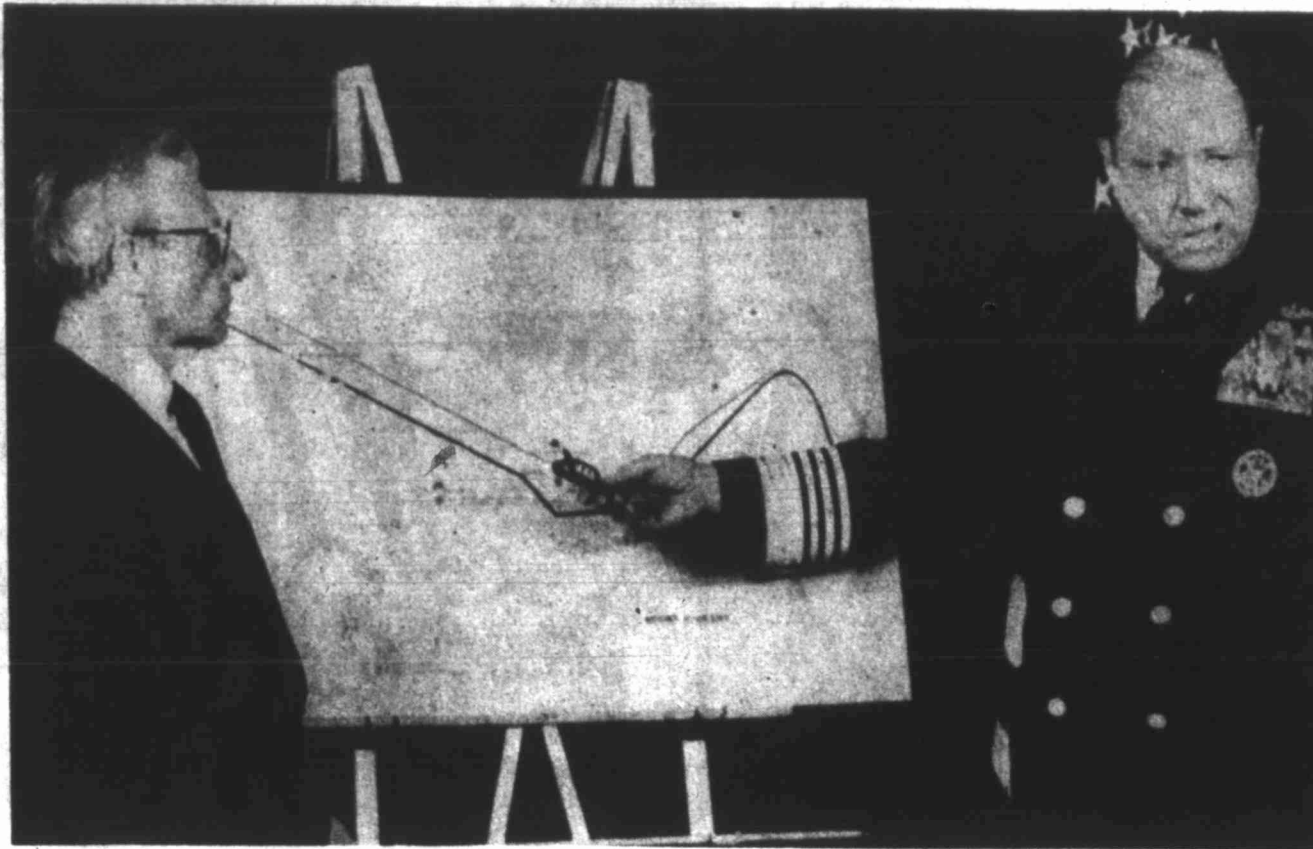

Circus performer dies

HALEAH, Fla. (AP) — A trapeze artist slipped during a solo performance 17 feet above ground and plunged headfirst to her death as 900 spectators watched in horror, witnesses said.

Belinda Amandis, 31, of Sarasota, who was so proficient she once performed while suspended from a helicopter, died instantly Sunday night at the Circus USA show, authorities said.

"When it happened everybody looked around at each other like 'This is some kind of trick — part of the act right?'" said Terry Koenig, 40, who was with his wife and two children.

"At the second she fell, everybody was silent," said Koenig's wife, Annie. "Then we realized what had happened."

Persian Gulf U.S. Navy attacks platforms

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — U.S. Navy warships attacked and destroyed two Iranian offshore platforms in the Persian Gulf early this morning, in the process confronting and sinking an Iranian patrol boat, Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci said today.

An American helicopter also was fired upon during the gulf attacks, but was not hit, added Carlucci and Adm. William Crowe, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

One U.S. warship fired missiles at two approaching Iranian jet fighters, but the fighters reversed course and it was unclear whether they were hit, the two said. There were no reports of American injuries or fatalities, Carlucci said. Iranian casualties were unknown, he added.

Carlucci and Crowe appeared at a Pentagon briefing about seven hours after the start of the military mission, which was ordered by President Reagan on Sunday night in retaliation for the mine strike that almost sank the frigate Samuel B. Roberts last week.

Carlucci said today there was no doubt the mine field in which the Roberts became entrapped had been laid recently by Iran. Mines discovered in the area carry the same type of serial numbers as those captured last year aboard an Iranian mine-laying ship, Carlucci said.

"The government of Iran fully knew and understood the potential consequences of its action (in laying the mine field)," Carlucci declared.

"We regard the mission ordered by the president as having been accomplished. We hope that Iran will draw the appropriate lesson from this and cease its attacks on peaceful international shipping in the gulf. We stand prepared to defend this shipping, U.S. shipping, as we have been in the past."

According to Carlucci and Crowe, today's operation began around 1 a.m. EDT with two groups of Navy warships attacking two oil platforms in the central Persian Gulf.

Both of the platforms were ultimately destroyed — one by naval gunfire and the other by planted explosives, the two said.

But in the process of attacking one of the platforms, the so-called Sassan platform, the U.S. ships came under fire from a machine gun on the facility, Crowe said.

World

Protestors disrupt event

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) — About 50 masked anti-Israeli demonstrators tried to disrupt a tree planting ceremony marking the 40th anniversary of the Jewish state's founding and this city's role in the Zionist movement.

The protesters on Sunday shouted pro-Palestinian slogans, set off firecrackers and waved a Palestinian flag during a speech on a city square by Israel's ambassador to Switzerland, Moshe Rivlin.

Police dispersed the protesters after several minutes.

The ceremony included the planting of 40 cedars donated by Israel to the city of Basel, host of the first Zionist World Congress in 1897.

Man carried to court

JERUSALEM (AP) — John Demjanjuk was carried into court feet first by six police officers today to hear the verdict in his Nazi war crimes trial after he said he was unable to enter on his own, apparently due to a back injury.

The 68-year-old former Ohio autoworker, his legs flailing slightly and his head upright, was taken to a holding cell next to the courtroom, from where he listened to the opening of today's session.

Demjanjuk's defense team and family said he should lie flat on his back because of a back injury.

Presiding Judge Dov Levine responded: "The medical opinion submitted to us clarifies that the accused is capable of sitting in the courtroom ... but we will comply with the request of the defense."

Reading excerpts of the 450-page judgment could take many hours, and observers said it could go into a second day. Levine recessed for a lunch break after 3½ hours.

During the break, defense attorneys said based on what they had heard so far, they were pessimistic about the verdict. "There seems to be an emphasis on the credibility of shaky witnesses," said defense attorney John Gill.

Higgins death reported

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins has been killed by his pro-Iranian Shiite Muslim captors in south Lebanon, a Christian-controlled radio station reported today.

The Beirut-based Voice of Lebanon of President Amin Gemayel's rightist Phalange Party, said Higgins was "killed and buried by his captors" in the southern Lebanese village of Siddiqine.

The Voice of Lebanon has a record of frequent inaccuracies on hostage affairs in Lebanon. Its Higgins report could not be independently verified.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as the result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate.

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Appointments may be made by calling 394-4389 in Coahoma and 263-1132 in Big Spring.

The American Cancer Society has established guidelines for mammography in asymptomatic women. (Women who have no symptoms of disease). Those guidelines have been adopted by the American Academy of Family Physicians, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and The American College of Radiology. Those guidelines are:

- I. 35-40 years of age — One baseline mammogram.
- II. 40-50 years of age — A mammogram every 1-2 years depending on breast type and risk factor.
- III. 50 years of age and over — An annual physical examination and annual mammogram.
- IV. Asymptomatic women under 50 years of age with significant high risk factors should be examined at appropriate intervals. These risk factors include previous breast cancer and family history of cancer. V. A symptomatic woman should have a mammogram at any age when she experiences a mass, nipple discharge, skin changes or unexplained breast pain.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation (usually comparable to dental x-rays) and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination.

The charge for the screening mammogram is $50.00. The Unit accepts cash, check, Visa, MasterCard and American Express.

Benefit Bachelor auction raises $21,500

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

If it's entertainment you want, entertainment you'll get — but you'll have to wait until next year if you didn't attend the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Benefit Bachelor Auction at the Midland Hilton Saturday night.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Midland Inc. hosted its Second Annual Benefit Bachelor Auction, when 33 of the Permian Basin's bachelors were auctioned to raise money for the Midland agency.

As guests sipped champagne and sampled hors d'oeuvres, the musical group Nuvo Baroque entertained with Top 40 and jazz tunes during the preview party.

The bidding began at 7 p.m., with Janet Storie, KTPX-TV, and Skip Baldwin, KMID-TV, as masters of ceremonies. Serving as auctioneer was Dennis Black, who began bids at $50.

Big Spring resident Elaine Connell, who attended the event with Black said, "I think it's a great idea. They ought to auction women."

As the bachelors entered the roomful of screaming women, they modeled and showed themselves off to the estimated 400 to 450 guests, each one hoping to raise more money than the next.

The bidding got off to a good start when the first bachelor auctioned — Robert McCommon, 33, a senior landman for Forest Oil Corp., whose date package included a weekend in Ruidoso, N.M. — went for $400.

Bids for the bachelors ranged from $75 to $1,650. This year's auction raised more money than last year's event. "We're really pleased and very excited about the money we raised," said Linda Macias, executive director for the Midland agency.

The agency exceeded its goal of $20,000, when the bidders spent a total of $21,500 on the bachelors of their choice. "We raised $19,200 last year," Macias said.

Skip Baldwin, a sportscaster for KMID-TV, brought in the most money. Several women bid on the emcee, but Kimberley Young, Midland, was finally successful with a bid of $1,650.

Young, who explained her reasons for bidding so much on Baldwin was, "I saw he had a great date package." and "He's a highly visible person."

Macias said she was especially surprised at the amount of money raised "since it was the day after taxes."

Plans for next year's auction will be underway soon. "I hope next year we can get more Big Spring people to come. We'd like some Big Spring bachelors to participate," Macias said.

Girl feels stuck with guy who hits her

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter from the 19-year-old girl who signed herself "Second Thoughts in Moline, Ill." Abby, I could have written that letter myself. I'm also 19, have gone with a guy for nearly three years and we plan to be married soon, but I, too, have second thoughts for the same reasons. He's jealous, doesn't trust me, accuses me of going out with other guys, and we fight a lot about stupid things. I like people and enjoy having friends, but he always wants to be with me alone. Lately he has cursed me, accused me of going out on him and has hit me. Then he cries, begs me to give him another chance and swears he'll never do it again, but he does.

My friends tell me I'll be sorry if I marry him, but, Abby, I truly love him. Can you tell me why women go right on loving guys who treat them like dogs?

SECOND THOUGHTS

Dear Abby

IN TEXAS

DEAR SECOND THOUGHTS: First, what's to "love" about a guy who treats you like a dog? And what's to love about a guy who doesn't trust you? Many human emotions are involved in what we call "love." First, there's a strong sexual attraction, there's pity ("I hate to hurt him"), and security ("finding another guy may not be easy").

Also, there's the addiction factor. Being with someone exclusively can become a habit. My advice to you is to have second, third and fourth thoughts. Then say goodbye. It's a major mistake to marry a man who is physically abusive. He will only get worse.

DEAR READERS: Here's a powerful message that I think deserves a national audience:

"Every father is diminished when his daughter is denied a fair chance. Every son is a victim when his mother is denied fair pay. But when we lower barriers, open doors, and free women to reach wherever their dreams will take them — our talents are multiplied, and our country is stronger."

Who wrote those words? Betty Friedman? Gloria Steinem? Lily Tomlin?

None of the above. Give up? Try Geraldine Ferraro.

KU coach may sue university

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — An attorney for University of Kentucky assistant basketball coach Dwane Casey says he may sue the school and Emery Worldwide air freight if the controversy over an alleged recruiting violation adversely affects his client.

The Los Angeles Daily News reported last week that Casey sent a package to the father of Kentucky recruit Chris Mills on March 30 that popped open during handling. Several Emery employees in the company's Los Angeles office said they saw $1,000 in $50 bills inside the package, along with a videotape.

Mills, his father, Claud Mills, and Casey have all said there was no money involved in the shipment of the tape.

"Dwane won't become a scapegoat or a sacrificial lamb just because UK got embarrassed by its last investigation," Joe B. Campbell said Sunday in a telephone interview with the Louisville Courier-Journal from his Bowling Green home. "I've made that very clear to UK. I have absolutely no reservations about suing them if we don't think Dwane receives justice."

The NCAA reprimanded Kentucky on March 3 for its handling of the investigation of previous allegations that a number of basketball players had received money and other gifts while attending the school. That probe resulted in no NCAA sanctions.

Campbell said he thought that reprimand would put more pressure on the current university investigators to take very strong action this time, perhaps at Casey's expense.

University President David Roselle has hired James Park Jr., a former Kentucky Court of Appeals judge, to find out whether the air-freight package contained the cash. Park said he was given open-ended authority to investigate university athletics and recruitment policies, according to a report in Sunday's Daily News.

He was also ordered to investigate whether the school is otherwise complying with NCAA rules, Park said.

Roselle has said the university's intent "is to find out everything that has happened."

Park said he was hired by the University of Kentucky Athletic Association, rather than the university itself, and will report his findings to association officials.

Roselle is chairman of the association, which oversees athletic programs but is separate from the university administration.

Campbell said he was going to mail a letter today to Emery Worldwide attorney Mike Bartley at the company's headquarters in Wilton, Conn. In the letter, Campbell asks the company to:

—Identify by name and address all Emery employees who had access to the package Casey sent.

—Provide personnel files on all those employees.

—Ask those employees to take a lie-detector test. Campbell said that Casey and Claud Mills were both willing to take the test to prove they had no knowledge of the money.

—Identify all employees who handled the three letters of intent that Casey sent Mills in November through Emery Worldwide.

Campbell said that Casey had to send three letters of intent to Mills — rather than the usual one — because two of the letters weren't delivered to the Mills home.

It's a big Deal at HC

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

After a banner freshman year, Randy Deal had a hard act to follow this season. But the slugging catcher has been nothing short of sensational, ending all speculation about the dreaded "sophomore jinx."

Last year Deal compiled All-American stats batting in the cleanup spot for the Hawks. Clean up he did, driving in 78 runs while hitting 15 home runs — both ranking among the national leaders.

His .418 batting average made it difficult to see how pollsters could keep him off the National Junior College All-American Team.

This season Deal is leading the nation in RBI's with 58, despite missing a handful of games with minor ailments. Deal's 16 home runs puts him second in the national standings, and his .336 batting average is one of the tops on the team.

But the sport-spoken lad from Denver hardly talks like he's having a good season.

"I would like to have a higher batting average than I do," said Deal. "I've got more home runs this year but I've got more strikeouts too. I've got to cut down on the strikeouts."

One reason Deal has more strikeouts this season is because word is out that he murders fast ball pitching. A few weeks ago he had a mild slump because he wasn't hitting the curve ball.

"Everybody's going to throw him the duce (curveball) said Howard College assistant Greg Henry. "He's got a quick bat. He has to see it come out of the pitcher's hand."

Norman gives sick youth thrill by winning Heritage Classic

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Jamie Hutton did not tell Greg Norman what club to use or how he should play any hole on the Harbour Town Golf Links.

The 17-year-old youth who has leukemia was content to clap and smile while following Norman the last two rounds of the Heritage Classic. That was enough for Norman, who took home his first victory on the American tour in two years on Sunday.

"He's got the inspiration and courage that very few individuals in the world would have," Norman said after rallying from four strokes back on the final day to win. "He gave me plenty of pointers in different ways."

"Every time I played today and looked over, he gave me a nice smile," Norman said while the teenager sat at his feet in the interview room. "Every time I made a putt, I saw him clapping and very excited. That pumped me up pretty good."

Norman gave the Madison, Wis. native the trophy he received for the victory, saying he wanted him to put it in his hospital room "to remember this day."

Hutton, wearing a photographer's armband and carrying a camera, walked the entire 18 holes inside the gallery ropes both Saturday and Sunday with Norman, who at times would touse the teen-agers' hair after finishing a hole.

Hutton, who has had Crohn's Disease, a chronic inflammation of the intestinal tract since he was 7, wrote Norman last year — before he knew he had leukemia — in hopes of getting to meet the Australian and spend the day with him.

Then he went into for a checkup last month and found out he had leukemia. From there, Thursday's Child, a charitable group that grants wishes for sick youngsters, helped get the two together.

They sat on Norman's bag and watched as Frost, the last man on the course and the only one with a chance to catch Norman on the final hole, missed a 20-foot birdie putt that would have forced a playoff.

"I thought the putt at 18 had a chance, but it broke a different way than I thought," Frost said. "That's just the way it goes."

After Frost missed, Hutton grinned broadly and shook hands with a smiling Norman.

The victory was worth $126,000 from the total purse of $700,000 and pushed Norman's earnings on the American tour to $353,100 for the year. He won three Australian titles earlier this season.

Frost, who has recorded six runner-up finishes without a victory in four seasons on the American tour, had a final-round 70, while Morgan, who hasn't finished lower than eighth this season after undergoing shoulder surgery last year, birdied the last hole for a 68.

Third-round leader Fred Couples simply couldn't get anything going in the final round. He had a closing 73 and finished fourth at 274.

Red Devils brace for second round playoffs

By The Associated Press
The New Jersey Devils will be reaching for new heights and the Boston Bruins trying to bury an old jinx as the second round of the Stanley Cup playoffs opens tonight.

After winning their first-ever playoff series with a six-game victory over the New York Islanders, the Devils set their sights on the Patrick Division championship in their second-round series with the Washington Capitals.

NHL

The Bruins, meanwhile, face Montreal in the Adams Division final in the resumption of a venerable playoff rivalry heavily dominated by the Canadiens. Last year, the Canadiens swept the Bruins in the Adams semifinals to extend their mastery over Boston to 18 straight series' triumphs.

The last time the Bruins won a playoff series over the Canadiens was a semifinal triumph in 1943 when the NHL was a six-team league. They have only beaten the Canadiens twice in 22 playoff matchups.

Second-round play continues Tuesday night with opening games in the Smythe finals between Edmonton and Calgary and the Norris between Detroit and St. Louis.

Playing in their first playoffs since moving to New Jersey in 1982, the Devils in some ways remind the Capitals of themselves six years ago.

The Capitals won the season series 5-2, but Burke, the late-arriving Olympic goaltender from Canada, didn't play in the earlier games. He has been one of the biggest reasons for the Devils' recent success.

The Bruins are determined to change things this year and the Canadiens think they have the ability to do so. Montreal had a slight edge in the season series, 4-3-1.

The Bruins face a Montreal team weakened by injuries to key players. With left wing Mats Naslund and center Shayne Corson out with knee injuries and left wing Bob Gainey doubtful because of a bruised ankle, Canadiens Coach Jean Perron has shown concern.

The Edmonton-Calgary series features one of the NHL's most explosive and emotional rivalries. But so far, both sides have kept the pre-game talk to a minimum.

World champs having road woes

BY The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Lakers and Boston Celtics have been the only two NBA teams to hit the road with any success this season.

Lately, the road has been hitting back.

The Lakers, who've had their troubles away from The Forum for the last month, dropped their fifth straight road game by losing to Houston 127-119.

The Celtics, who along with the Lakers are the only two NBA teams over .500 away from home this season, lost their second road game in three days, falling to Washington 98-92.

Rockets 127, Lakers 119
Los Angeles may have caught the Rockets at a bad time. Two nights earlier, Houston blew a 20-point lead in a 132-125 loss to Denver.

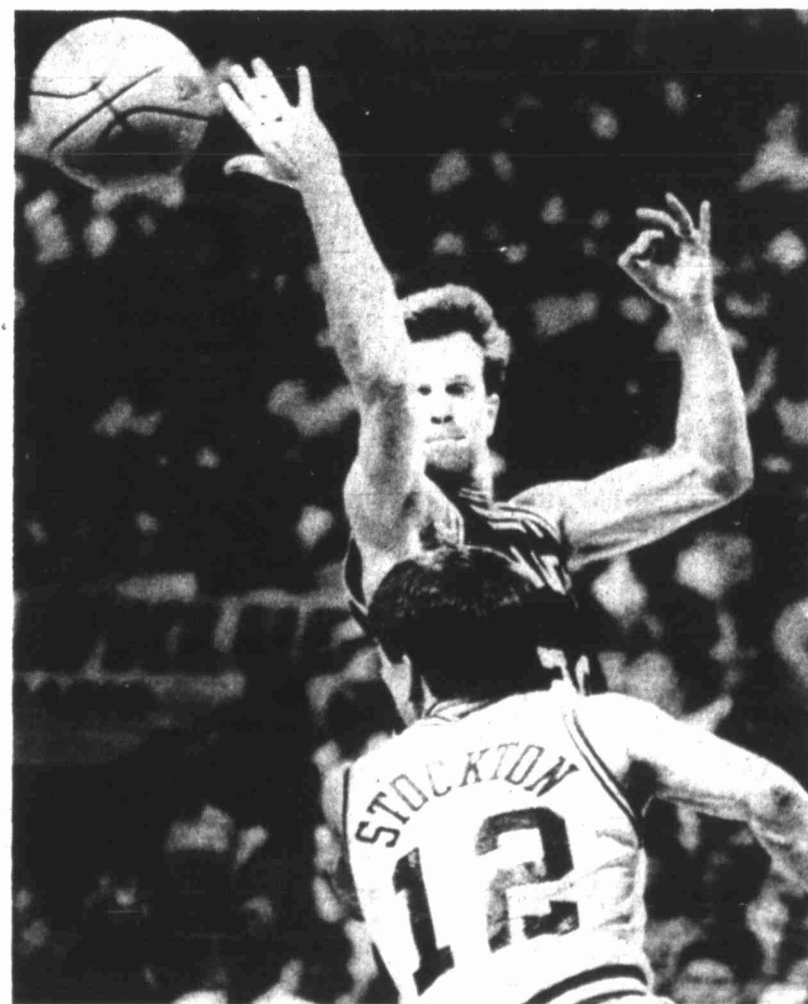

"We had a challenge with this team," said center Akeem Olajuwon, who led Houston with 38 points before fouling out. "We were mentally prepared, and you have to be prepared for every game."

Magic Johnson had 19 points, 10 rebounds and 12 assists for his 12th triple-double this season and the 95th of his career.

Bullets 98, Celtics 92

The Celtics, who were burned in Cleveland Friday night, overcame an 11-point deficit in the final period, only to be outscored 7-0 in the final 1:55.

Jim Paxson's jumper gave Boston a 92-91 lead. But Jeff

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — San Antonio Spurs' guard Jon Sundvold passes the ball behind his head to a waiting teammate in Saturday night's game against the Utah Jazz. Utah won the game 107-82.

Malone put the Bullets back in front and Darrell Walker then stole the ball from Robert Parish and drove for a layup and a 95-92 lead.

Walker, who has played little since a December ankle injury, has made key plays in two victories in the past week.

Moses Malone had 24 points for Washington and Jeff Malone 23. Larry Bird topped five Boston starters in double figures with 23 points as the Celtics' bench produced only 11 points.

Bulls 105, Bucks 97

Chicago rode a 44-point effort by Michael Jordan to its fifth straight victory while handing the slumping Bucks their fourth straight loss and ninth in 11 games.

Nuggets 133, Mavericks 122
The Nuggets, the NBA's hottest team, got 31 points from Alex English and a triple-double by Fat Lever to win for the 14th time in their last 15 games.

Lever had 25 points, 19 rebounds and 13 assists for his 11th triple-double as seven Nuggets scored in double figures.

Jay Vincent had all 20 of his points in the second half as the first-place Nuggets moved 1½ games ahead of the Mavericks in the Midwest Division and tied a club record with their 52nd victory.

Trail Blazers 122, Kings 112
Portland reached the 50-win mark for only the second time in franchise history as Clyde Drexler scored 27 points and led a third-quarter rally.

Braves end skid at ten

By The Associated Press
After being rocked by losing 10 straight games, the Atlanta Braves are ready to roll.

Zane Smith pitched a four-hitter and Damaso Garcia broke a 1-for-37 slump with his first NL home run as Atlanta ended a record losing streak with a 3-1 victory over Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium on Sunday.

The Braves lost 7-4 to Los Angeles on Saturday to set an NL record with 10 straight losses at the start of a season. The major league record is 13 by Washington in 1904 and Detroit in 1920. The Baltimore Orioles are one away from that mark.

Smith, 1-2, struck out five and walked one. The only run off the left-hander came in the third inning, when Rick Dempsey walked and later scored from second on a single by Steve Sax.

Garcia, who missed the entire 1987 season with torn ligaments in his left knee, hit a two-run homer off Don Sutton, 0-2, with one out in the sixth to put the Braves ahead. The homer scored Albert Hall, who had singled.

The Braves made it 3-1 in the eighth when Hall walked and scored on Dion James' triple.

Astros 5, Reds 3
Nolan Ryan allowed seven hits in eight innings and broke a tie with a two-run single as Houston beat Cincinnati at the Astrodome.

Ryan, who has not pitched a complete game since April 25, 1986, struck out nine.

With the score tied 2-2 in the second, and runners on second and third, Ryan poked a single off shortstop Barry Larkin's glove into center to score both runners. Ryan later scored the third run of the inning on Danny Jackson's second balk of the inning.

Mets 3, Cardinals 2
Rookie Kevin Elster broke a 4-for-34 slump with a two-out single in the bottom of the ninth to score Mookie Wilson from third base as New York beat St. Louis for its sixth straight victory.

The Mets tied the score in the eighth on run-scoring singles by Darryl Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds and then went on to complete their first three-game sweep of St. Louis at Shea Stadium since July 1984. The Cardinals fell to 0-5 on the road.

Expos 5, Phillies 2
Andres Galarraga snapped a fifth-inning tie with a two-run homer as Montreal sent visiting Philadelphia to its seventh straight loss.

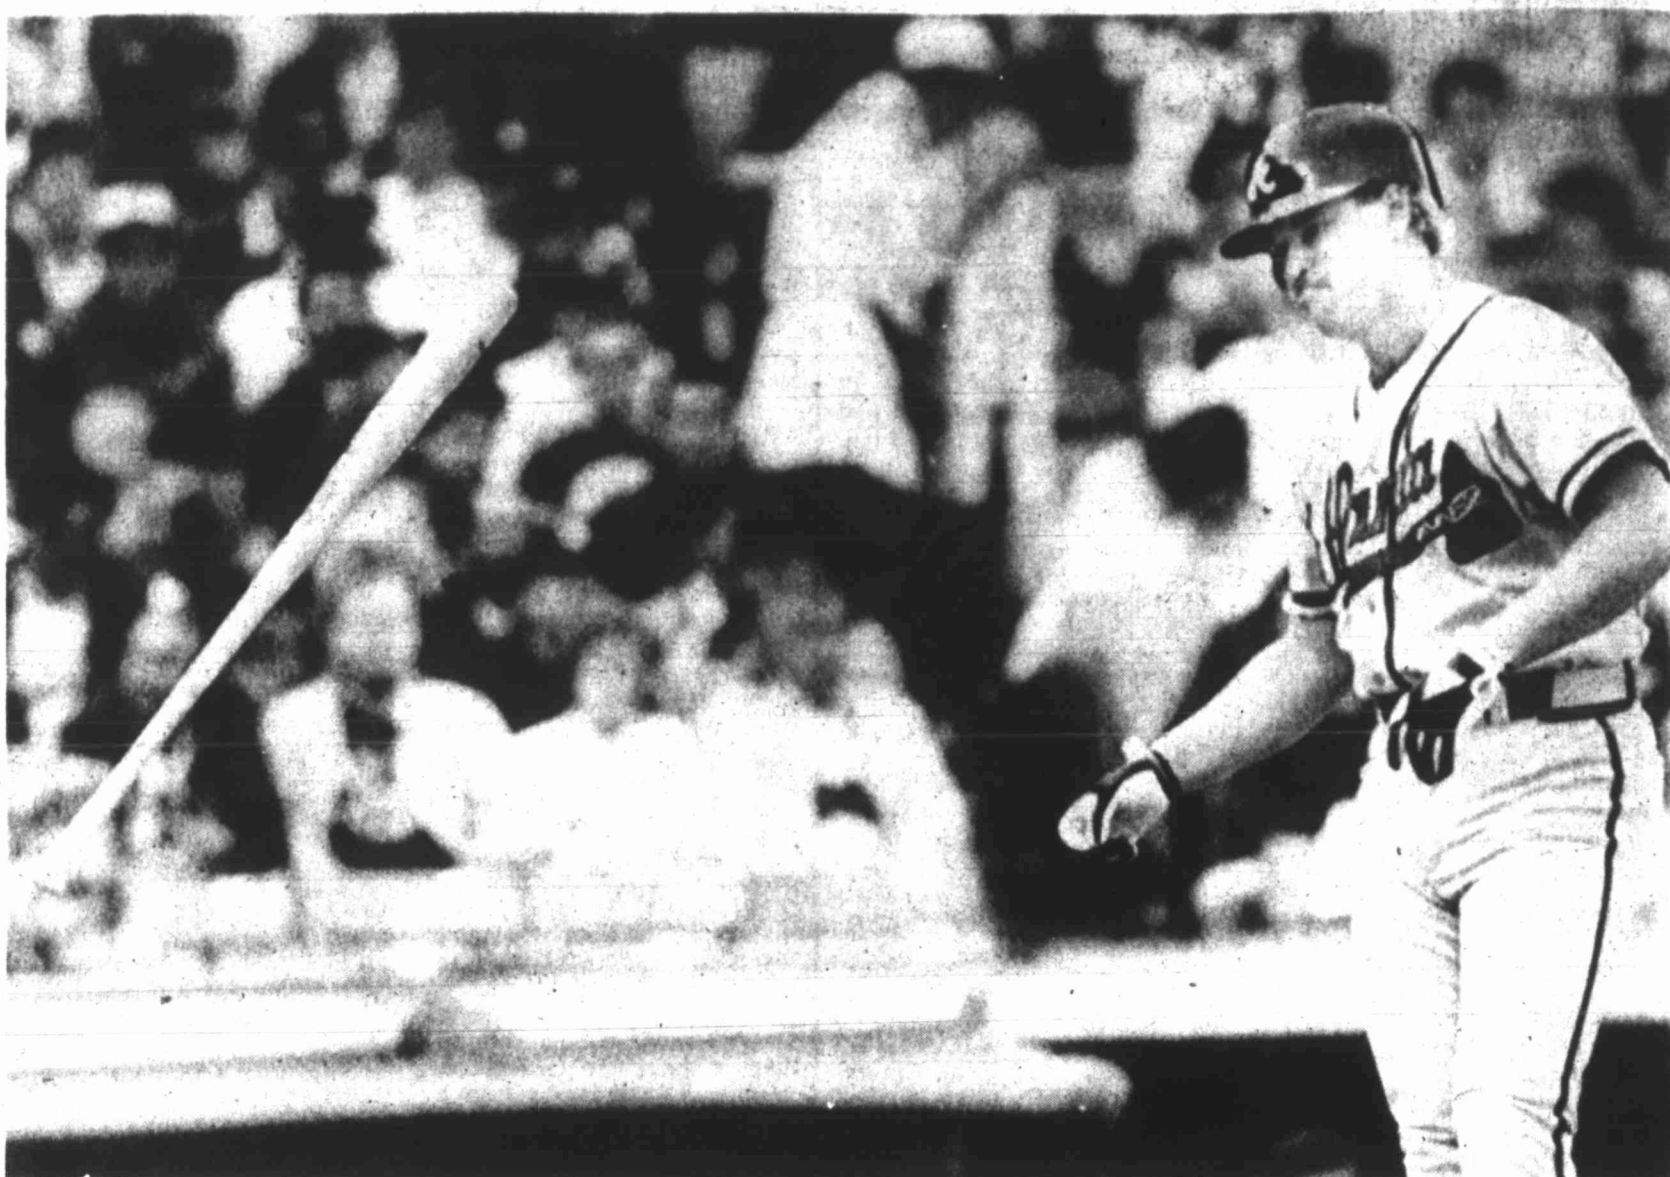

With the score tied 2-2, Herm Winningham led off the fifth with a single against reliever Bill Dawley, and two outs later, Galarraga hit his second home run of the season.

Pascual Perez, 2-1, pitched seven innings, allowing four hits. Andy McGaffigan worked the final two innings to get his first save.

Pirates 12, Cubs 7
Andy Van Slyke hit two homers, R.J. Reynolds had four hits and Bobby Bonilla drove in three runs as Pittsburgh outlasted Chicago on a windy day at Wrigley Field.

The victory was the sixth in seven games for the Pirates who held onto their share of first place with the Mets in the NL East.

the seventh to extend his career-high hitting streak to 11 games.

Giants 9, Padres 4
San Francisco failed to execute a hit-and-run play but took the lead when San Diego rookie catcher

Mark Parent made a throwing error allowing Candy Maldonado to score the go-ahead run in the eighth.

Trailing 4-3, Will Clark led off the eighth with a double off Andy Hawkins, bringing on Lance McCullers, 0-2. Maldonado then hit a grounder to second baseman Tim Flannery, who tried to get Clark at third, but his throw was too late.

After Jeffrey Leonard singled to tie the score, the Giants attempted a hit-and-run with Chris Speier batting. Speier swung and missed and Parent's throw got by third baseman Chris Brown allowing Maldonado to score.

Orioles move closer to setting record for losing

By The Associated Press
Losing 12 in a row is one thing, Orioles Manager Frank Robinson says. Winning none is something else.

American

League

Baltimore moved within one loss of the major league record for season-opening failures Sunday, bowing 4-1 to the Cleveland Indians.

The Indians, meanwhile, have won five in a row and are off to their best start since 1966.

Indians 4, Orioles 1
With one more loss, the Orioles would tie the major league record of 13 to start a season by the 1904 Washington Senators and 1920 Tigers. The start already is the worst in Orioles history, and the losing streak is only two short of the franchise record of 14.

Mel Hall and Brook Jacoby had three hits apiece for the Indians, and John Farrell allowed four hits in 8 1/3 innings before getting one-hit relief help from Dan Schatzeder.

Red Sox 15, Rangers 2
Mike Greenwell had the most productive day of his career, driving in six runs with a homer, two singles and a groundout as the Red Sox broke out of a slump. Boston had 20 hits, the most in a game since last Aug. 18, and the Red Sox had not scored that many runs since last June 10 in Baltimore.

Bruce Hurst pitched a four-hitter, striking out eight in his first complete game of the season.

Rick Cerone, acquired as a free agent Thursday after being released by the Yankees, had four hits.

Brewers 6, Yankees 3
Joey Meyer came into the game without a major league hit and left it with a homer, double and single in Milwaukee's victory over the Yankees. Robin Yount and Rob Deer also homered for the Brewers, and Ted Higuera allowed three runs on seven hits over 8 1/3 innings.

Tigers 8, Royals 6
Chet Lemon had two hits, extending his hitting streak to all 10 of the Tigers' games, drove in two runs and scored twice in Detroit's victory over Kansas City.

Jeff Robinson allowed three runs on four hits — three of them solo homers — in 6 2/3 innings. Jamie Quirk had one homer and George Brett two.

Blue Jays 2, Twins 0
Mike Flanagan worked seven innings, giving up five hits and relying on Tom Henke to finish the shutout for Toronto. Kelly Gruber scored one of Toronto's runs and drove in the other.

White Sox 7, Athletics 6

Lance Johnson doubled home two runs in Chicago's decisive four-run fourth inning, leading the White Sox to a sweep of their three-game series with Oakland. The White Sox scored what turned out to be the winning run in the ninth on a single by Donnie Hill and three walks by Eric Plunk.

Angels 7, Mariners 4
Chili Davis drove in three runs with a pair of hits, backing the strong seven innings of Kirk McCaskill as the Angels won in Seattle.

Moore leads Runnels netters

SWEETWATER — Danene Moore was the top player for the Runnels tennis team as she finished second singles competition at the Sweetwater junior high tennis tournament Saturday.

Moore got to the finals by upsetting the number one seed 8-3 in the third round.

In other Runnels girls action, the doubles team of E.D. Barnett and Jana Haney won their first round match 9-7, but was defeated in the second round.

Paige Griffen led the Goliad team, making it to the singles semifinals before bowing out to the number two seed.

Deal

Deal has broke out his slump and he says it was "all mental." "I'm seeing a lot more curveballs this year. I was getting out in front and not waiting on the pitch," he said.

Coach Henry says Deal has the potential to be a future big leaguer and says Deal was a real steal from major colleges.

"Coming out of Colorado he really didn't get that much exposure. Coach Griffin (Bill Griffin, Howard head coach) saw him in a summer league in Colorado. He liked the way he swung the bat so he offered him a scholarship."

Deal said he had a couple of offers from Colorado schools, but was glad to get away. "It's too cold for baseball in Colorado," he said.

Henry says Deal fills the mold of a power-hitting catcher-first baseman.

"He's got the bat to light up the scoreboard. His stats speak for themselves. He's had two good years here. He can adjust to any pitch and he's hit some balls as far as I've seen anybody hit," Henry said.

So he can hit the ball, but what about his defense?

"I think my defense has been real consistent this season," said the Howard catcher. "There really hasn't been many people trying to steal this season. I wish they would try to steal more. But if I stay on that line of consistency, I'll be all right."

What about the future for the 6-1, 190-pounder?

"If I get drafted, I would definitely be considering going pro. It depends on the money situation. I've got some scholarship offers and I like Texas Tech," Deal said.

Another thing Deal has in mind is leading the Hawks to the Region V championship over defending champion McLennan Community College. Howard holds a three game lead over MCC. The Hawks 38-9 record gives them a number 14 ranking in the nation.

"We've had a lot of freshmen come in, get their feet wet the first couple of games; they have been coming through every since."

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

TUESDAY,
APRIL 19, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Keep important ideas under wraps until just the right moment. Fall is probably the best time to obtain financial backing. Play your cards carefully. Luck will be with you as long as you do what you know to be right. If your skills could be enhanced, think about returning to school. Friends who never have anything encouraging to say are best avoided. A new relationship deepens slowly but surely.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Dudley Moore, actor Hugh O'Brian, tennis' Sue Barker, actress Jayne Mansfield, coach Jack Pardee, designer Paloma Picasso.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be willing to make adjustments and you will be able to clinch a deal. You benefit from a shift in currency values. A sensuous member of the opposite sex intrigues you. Go slow. Public relations improve.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Organization can make a big difference in everything you do now. Get more mileage out of your computer skills. Financial progress may not be as swift as you would like. Be patient.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A change of residency could work to your advantage. Be flexible. Cut ties that are not in your best interest. Cover your bets before heading into business negotiations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stay alert when using public transportation. A romantic relationship improves when you and partner are more open with each other. You are tempted to take a big chance. Look before you leap.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Use your winning smile frequently in an interview or sales situation. A parent-child relationship benefits from independent counsel. Do not be too proud to say "I am sorry." A conciliatory approach works miracles!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Use your time constructively. Make certain you know what is expected of you at work. Self-improvement activities lead to career progress. Cement a new friendship or alliance. Romance looks promising.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finances require experts' advice. Take advantage of an older person's offer of assistance. Chances are there are no strings attached. The mail brings interesting news. Let go of old restrictions. Success beckons.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A good time to start a new career or change jobs. Disagreements over finances should be kept to a minimum. Trust your instincts on meeting an attractive person for the first time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be a leader, not a follower. Assert your independence without hurting a loved one's feelings. Ask assistance from partner if in doubt. Completing old projects will boost profits. Buckle down to work. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Rely on inspiration to carry you through the day. You may need to lower your expectations of someone. Body language provides the answer to a puzzling question. Pay close attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Traditional values are a source of strength. Readjust your schedule to accommodate loved one's needs. Showing a willingness to compromise will help mend a breach. Romance should have you walking on air!

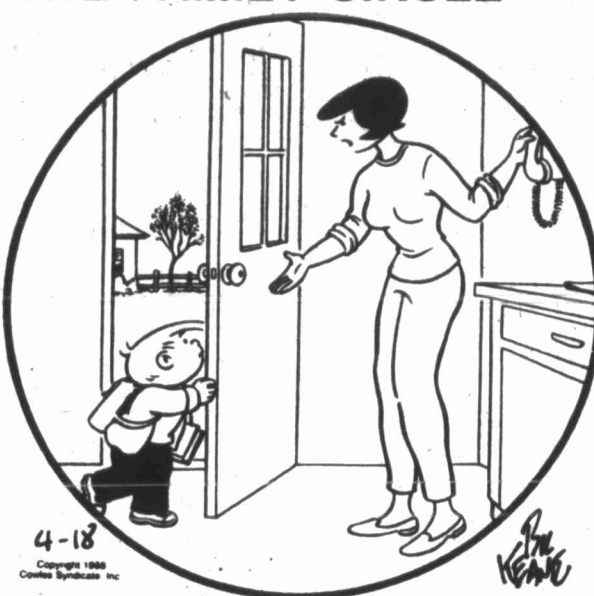

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Family pressures ease, allowing you to zero in on work. Consider getting additional training if it will help your career. Try to stick around people who appreciate you and share your ambitions.
