Europe marks anniversary of end of war

German president: Germans must accept past

By MICHAEL WEST
Associated Press

Forty years after it ended, Europe recalled the agony of World War II today. West Germany's president proclaimed Hitler's defeat a day of liberation, France welcomed President Reagan, the Soviets honored their war dead and Britain stressed reconciliation.

On May 8, 1945, the surrender of Nazi Germany was announced, and the war that began with the invasion of Poland on Sept. 1, 1939 was over. Europe celebrated the anniversary today with parades, religious services and other memorials.

President Richard von Weizsaecker told the West German Parliament that all Germans, whether or not they participated in Nazi war crimes, must accept the past.

"We have no reason to take part today in victory celebrations. But we have every reason to recognize May 8, 1945, as the end of an erring way in German history," he said.

"The eighth of May was a day of liberation. It freed us all from the system of National Socialist (Nazi) tyranny," von Weizsaecker said. "There was no zero hour. It was a chance for a new beginning, and we have used it as well as we could."

Weizsaecker said Germans must take responsibility for World War II and its results, including millions of deaths, postwar hardships, and a Europe divided between East and West.

A West German pollster said a "silent majority" of West Germans see nothing worth commemorating in public.

In a survey by the Allensbach Institute for Polling, 58 percent of the 2,000 people polled nationwide said they were surprised at the lengthy debate over how to commemorate the anniversary. German politicians argued for months about whether it was primarily a day of liberation or a day of defeat for the Germans.

Strasbourg, France, a city on the border with West Germany that has been in the middle of several wars between the two countries, greeted the anniversary in a festive mood, preparing for Reagan's arrival to address the European Parliament.

Store windows were decked with American and French flags and a U.S. flag flew from the main flagpole at city hall.

Forty years after the war, heavy traffic flows across the Rhine River bridge linking Strasbourg with West Germany. Shoppers and workers cross the border daily, and the ancient city is popular with German tourists.

Reagan hails Europe's 'liberation' from tyrants

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — President Reagan marked the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe today by asserting that the Soviet Union is undermining the world's nuclear stability by developing a mobile, land-based missile "clearly designed to strike first."

In a speech to the European Parliament in commemoration of V-E Day, Reagan hailed "the liberation of Europe from tyrants who had seized this continent and plunged it into a terrible war."

While warning of a dangerous new turn in a Soviet nuclear buildup, the president also sent Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev an anniversary message asking him to join in working to "overcome the differences between us" and make progress toward world peace and "eliminating nuclear weapons from the face of the earth."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Washington and Moscow previously had agreed to exchange V-E Day messages, but for unknown reasons, none had arrived from the Soviets.

"They said they would, and then they didn't," Speakes said, noting that Gorbachev had exchanges messages with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Reagan flew to Strasbourg from a two-day visit to Madrid, where the president and Spanish Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez were reported to have made little headway in resolving disputes over U.S. policy in Nicaragua and the future of U.S.-leased military bases in Spain.

After about four hours in France, Reagan was flying to Lisbon, Portugal, for the wrapup of a 10-day European tour that began in West Germany on May 1 for a seven-nation economic summit meeting. Reagan is to return to Washington on Friday.

While Reagan dined on truffled foie gras, poached turbot and fresh Alsation asparagus at the 18th century Chateau de Rohan with European Parliament officials, more than 1,000 demonstrators rallied in a city square and marched through the center of Strasbourg protesting the president's visit and U.S. policy in Central America. The marchers dispersed without trying to approach the Parliament building where Reagan spoke.

Two bombs exploded Tuesday night at a U.S.-financed Radio Free Europe transmitter tower 38 miles northeast of Lisbon, but no injuries were reported and damage was described as slight. An anonymous telephone caller said the "anti-capitalist and anti-militarist group" was responsible.

Parade honors Vietnam veterans

NEW YORK (AP) — Carried along by the cheers of a million onlookers and drowned in a sea of confetti, about 25,000 Vietnam veterans, most in combat fatigues, marched through a tumultuous ticker-tape homecoming from a war that ended a decade ago.

Signs lining the route that wound across the Brooklyn Bridge and through Wall Street on Tuesday summed up the crowd's feelings: "We should have said it sooner — we're proud of you," said one. "Thanks, so much," said another.

Later Tuesday, about 4,000 veterans capped the festivities with a party at the aircraft carrier Intrepid, permanently docked in the Hudson River.

"This was like a college reunion, only not as romantic," said Air Force veteran Ron Naismith as his comrades ate hot dogs, drank beer and listened to pop music of the Vietnam era.

Leaning from office windows, standing on fences and perching precariously on cars and trucks, throngs cheered and waved American flags as group after group of veterans from across the nation passed by.

"It's long overdue," said George Alvarado, 29, a former Marine from Brooklyn. "We took a big loss and never got any recognition."

Police estimated the crowd at 1 million, although some stretches of the route through Brooklyn and into Manhattan were thinly populated.

Yet even when sparse, the crowd's enthusiasm welled up as the veterans, led by retired Gen. William Westmoreland and 26 Medal of Honor recipients, strolled by or marched past in cadence. Although most vets wore fatigues, some appeared with neat rows of ribbons and medals pinned to business suits.

■ Women who served not overlooked — Page 2A

"It was really a thrill," Westmoreland, who headed American forces in Vietnam, said afterward.

Mayor Edward Koch pushed the wheelchair of Assemblyman John Behan, who lost his legs 20 years ago in Vietnam.

"It was a lousy war, but a heluva parade," Behan said. "The enthusiasm of the people was nice to see. They meant it when they said, 'Welcome home.'"

Spectators gave some of their loudest applause to a small group of women marching behind a yellow banner that said: "Women who served in Vietnam."

But for some, the experience was not entirely a happy one.

Angel Irlanda, a radio operator who served in Vietnam from 1967-69, shed tears for the comrades he left behind. "I'm happy in my heart for myself and all my buddies here today but sad about the many left behind. The sons and husbands who died."

Walking with a cane and waving both the American flag and the flag of his native Puerto Rico, Irlanda repeated over and over, tears glistening in his eyes, as he

Brown: Committee has 'hidden agenda'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

As the Midland County jail bond election nears, County Commissioner Win Brown is accusing his opposition, the Concerned Citizens Committee, of having a "hidden agenda" which he says possibly would increase county taxes by 40 to 50 percent.

"The hidden agenda is very obvious," Brown said. He identified it as another "bond issue" for a new jail and courthouse expansion. Brown claims that the "hidden agenda" would be quite costly and unnecessary if the position he supports prevails in Saturday's two-pronged election.

Businessman Bill Williams, spokesman for the Concerned Citizens Committee, said the group has no "hidden agenda." Further, he said nobody needs to "discuss hypothetical situations" which he said Brown is bringing up. Williams said Brown is just "making overtures" in projecting another bond issue and increased taxes. "He doesn't know that and neither do I. That's just something to confuse the people with," Williams said. "I wish I had a positive cure-all. It would be great. Unfortunately, nobody does."

The position Brown advocates — building of an $8.4 million jail apart from the courthouse — would increase taxes by about 15 percent.

In Saturday's election, he is campaigning for passage of Proposition No. 2 for the new jail, while the Concerned Citizens Committee is urging passage of Propositon No. 1 for renovation of the existing jail on the fifth floor of the downtown courthouse.

Proposition No. 1 calls for the issuance of not more than $3 million in tax bonds to renovate the 1973-built jail, to fund a study of county needs into the 21st century and to expand Culver Youth Home, a juvenile detention center. The jail's inmate population currently is limited to 85 by order of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

Proposition No. 2 proposes the issuance of not more than $9.9 million in bonds to build a two-tier jail initially to handle 225 inmates but with the facilities to handle 75 more

Farming not desirable job, poll indicates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans believe farmers work hard in a risky business and the government doesn't help them enough — and they wouldn't want their children to go into agriculture, a Gallup survey shows.

The poll of 1,507 people found the public regards farming about on par with the military in terms of desirability as a job for their children, and only ahead of truck driving in a list of 10 possible occupations.

About nine out of 10 say farming involves hard physical work, entails relatively high risk and requires good management skills. But just one-third believed the average farmer makes more money than they do.

Sixty-six percent said they believe the days of the family-owned farm are numbered, and that they eventually will be replaced by big agribusiness.

The survey was conducted by telephone in December and January, before much of the national publicity over the farm credit crisis this spring. Its results were released today by Agfocus, a non-profit group that grew out of the Western Governors Association and that is headed by Gov. Ted Schwinden of Montana. The poll had a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent or less, the association said.

Sanctions allow trade to go on for six months

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new economic sanctions against Nicaragua will permit existing trade between that country and the United States to continue for six months and would specifically exempt the rebels fighting the leftist Sandinista government, according to administration officials.

In House testimony Tuesday, Assistant Treasury Secretary John M. Walker Jr. appeared to soften the economic impact of the embargo President Reagan announced with tough rhetoric from Europe last week.

Walker said the administration will allow export contracts that were in effect prior to May 1 to be carried out through October.

Nicaragua exports mainly farm products such as bananas to the United States.

FARM

Among major disadvantages the public sees in farming, according to the poll, ar difficulty in making a living, 22 percent, and the uncertainties of weather in raising crops, 19 percent.

A factor heard frequently from farmers themselves — the low prices received for crops — was cited by 11 percent of the general public. Other frequently mentioned drawbacks were inflation in prices of fertilizer, fuel and other supplies, along with grueling work and long hours.

Despite their dismal view of farmers' incomes, people vastly overestimated income from farming. The median guess for what farmers make was $24,000 a year, about double the $11,749 reported by the Agriculture Department for net income in 1983.

JAIL

and with expansion plans to house up to 600 inmates in maximum security cells. It also calls for the expansion of Culver Youth Home. Proposition No. 2 indirectly "addresses" the courthouse overcrowdedness, Brown said.

Should Proposition No. 2 pass and the new jail and sheriff's offices were built, then the county systematically would convert the courthouse's fifth-floor jail and basement to courtroom and office space, Brown said.

WHILE VOTERS may be pondering how to vote this Saturday, 1,017 have cast absentee ballots. Absentee balloting ended at 5 p.m. Tuesday. The turnout represents almost 2 percent — 1.85 percent — of the 54,811 registered voters. In absentee balloting on a downtown courthouse-jail bond issue two years ago, only 440 voters — 1 percent of the then electorate of 43,646 — voted absentee. That $11.69 million issue failed by a 4-to-1 ratio, as only 9 percent of the electorate voted in that election. It failed by 3,025 to 844.

"They (Concerned Citizens) are not talking about 'the other bond issue,'" Brown said. "It's deceptive."

Brown reasoned that eventually the county will have to build a new jail and expand the already crowded courthouse under another bond issue if Proposition No. 2 is defeated.

"If Proposition 1 prevails," Brown said, "we have opened Pandora's box because there are so many directions they can go...(to) let out all the evils...I don't think the Midland people are stupid, but they have been led astray."

Williams' goals in the passage of Proposition No. 1 are to:

— Bring the jail "up to standards" set by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

— Expand or complete the present jail by installing cells in the undeveloped northwest guadrant of the jail.

— Carry out the study of Midland County needs for a courthouse, jail, library an other physical features into the future.

— Expand Culver Youth Home.

In lambasting the Concerned Citizens Committee, Brown also said that the Midland Chamber of Commerce had been victimized by the Committee's arguments.

"I THINK THE CHAMBER and all have been totally used on this one," Brown charged, "and they don't even know that they are the victims yet...They coerced the chamber into going for it, and now they are talking about a downtown complex."

Some members of the Concerned Citizens Committee have advocated keeping the jail in downtown and possibly reviewing the failed 1983 courthouse-jail proposal.

"I don't think the Chamber has been used by the Concerned Citizens Committee or by anyone else as far as that goes," responded Chamber President Jim Alsup.

"The Chamber had the Task Force (to probe into the jail issue), and we are following the recommendation of the Task Force," Alsup said.

The 11-member Task Force, which Williams served on, recommended renovation of the jail in the "most cost-effective manner"; the expansion of the juvenile detention center, and the study of Midland County's needs for the next 40 to 50 years. Banker Wayne Merritt chaired that committee, which also included Commissioners Durward Wright and Wally Craig, Howard "Rocky" Ford, attorneys John Hyde and Charles "Bro" Seltzer, Roger Robles, Jumper Davis, Betty Sumner, Margaret Purvis and Williams. Wright and Craig promoted the building of a new jail, although Craig sided with the Task Force recommendation. Wright did not.

"I think he (Brown) has misjudged the Chamber," Alsup said, "if he thinks we're being used."

Brown said the Concerned Citizens Committee is "telling us (commissioners) what we should be doing" and is saying "We won't support you" unless the commissioners side with the Concerned Citizens.

"It's blackmail," Brown said. "They are telling us how to run county government. We're elected to represent the people. We're a representative form of government, a republic."

Williams said he would not address Brown's blackmail accusation.

"Commissioner Brown has the right to believe anything he wants to believe," Williams said. "I should feel honored (if) I had the power to coerce the Chamber into making that decision."

REAGAN

In his Strasbourg speech, broadcast live in Europe and the United States, Reagan offered a mixture of reminiscences about World War II, praise for democracy and freedom, harsh criticism of the Soviet Union's military intentions and proposals for getting along with the Soviets.

Nowhere in his prepared remarks did the president mention that the United States and the Soviet Union were wartime allies.

As for the present, Reagan said the Soviets do not "share our view of what constitutes a stable nuclear balance.

"It has chosen instead to build nuclear forces clearly designed to strike first and thus to disarm their adversary," the president said.

He said the Soviets are moving toward deployment of a mobile, multiple-warhead nuclear missile that also has the potential "to avoid detection, monitoring or arms control verification."

"In doing this, the Soviet Union is undermining stability and the basis for mutual deterrence," Reagan said.

The president, meanwhile, repackaged a variety of previous proposals for lessening tensions between the superpowers. Robert McFarlane, the White House national security adviser, said the purpose was to "signal to the Soviet Union...that we can turn a new page here, and enter a period of reduced tension and enter a more favorable climate."

McFarlane said the combination of a strong deterrence to Soviet nuclear capabilities along with an initiative for problem-solving presents "a definitive framework for the conduct of U.S.-Soviet relations in the late 20th century."

Reagan told the parliament, a purely consultative body of elected representatives from the 10 European Common Market nations, that the United States is not seeking ever-greater nuclear strength.

"We cannot and should not seek to build our peace and freedom perpetually upon the basis of expanding nuclear arsenals," Reagan said.

But, he added, "in the short run, we have no alternative but to compete with the Soviet Union in this field, not in the pursuit of superiority, but merely of balance."

Reagan said the Soviets are working on a missile with multiple warheads that is expected to be placed on rails.

Defense experts have identified the missile as the SSX-24 and predicted that it will be deployed in 1987 or 1988.

McFarlane said development and deployment of such a weapon is "is an intolerable condition, a condition which presents the Soviet Union with an apparent first-strike capability."

The national security adviser said development of such a weapon is not important in terms of whether the Soviet Union would ever launch a first strike, but in a crisis "perceiving it from the American point of view would make us vulnerable to coercion and nuclear blackmail."

The administration-backed MX missile, a 10-warhead nuclear weapon called the "Peacekeeper" by Reagan, often has been criticized on similar grounds. Opponents have claimed the super-accurate MX, because it is to be housed in vulnerable Minuteman silos, will be perceived by Moscow as a first-strike weapon. Reagan's predecessor, Jimmy Carter, once proposed that the MX be put on a rail system.

Reagan said that if the Soviets refuse to reduce their arsenal and the United States is reluctant to increase the number of weapons, the best way to maintain balance is with a defensive system.

"Both for the short and long term I am confident that the West can maintain effective military deterrence," Reagan said.

He added that he believes peace can be maintained.

Reagan called for increased U.S.-Soviet military contact to avoid incidents like the March 24 shooting death of a U.S. military observer in East Germany and the Sept. 1, 1983, downin of a Korean Air Lines passenger plane by Soviet jet fighters in which 269 people were killed.

To that end, the president will recommend exchanging observers at military exercises, a direct communications link between military headquarters and a concrete commitment not to use force.

Administration officials acknowledged that all of the proposals have been broached with the Soviets either in public or through diplomatic channels.

GERMAN

French commemoration of the anniversary started Tuesday when Premier Laurent Fabius visited the schoolroom in Reims in eastern France where the Germans first signed their unconditional surrender May 7, 1945. They signed again in Berlin late the next day.

In Paris, 200 young Germans took part in a ceremony displaying the battle flags of all the French armed forces on the Champs Elysees.

In Britain, Queen Elizabeth II, her husband, Prince Philip, and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher led a congregation of 2,000 in a solemn service at Westminster Abbey.

"The cost was heavy in a war which engulfed Europe and extended far beyond it," Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie said, recalling the liberation of Holland, the bombing of Coventry and a memorial in Leningrad to 1 million people who died during the German siege.

The war "was not a panacea for every ill. But the victory which closed down Belsen, Buchenwald and Auschwitz is in itself sufficient cause for thanksgiving," he said.

The British domestic news agency Press Association said Mrs. Thatcher had asked that the service not be a formal state occasion because she was "concerned that the spirit of reconciliation with Germany must be uppermost in people's minds."

In London's Hyde Park, Jewish survivors of the Nazis held a service at the Holocaust Memorial.

Britons continued a series of street parties meant to evoke the jubilant atmosphere following Prime Minister Winston Churchill's announcement of the end of the war.

Mrs. Thatcher released the text of a letter from Soviet Communist Party leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Tuesday in which Gorbachev said the Soviets want to cooperate with Britain to prevent another war.

President Francois Mitterrand of France sent a message to Soviet leaders in which he hailed "the brotherhood of arms" which united the two nations in wartime.

In Moscow, Gorbachev led other members of the Politburo of the Communist Party in laying wreaths at Lenin's mausoleum and the tomb of the unknown soldier.

The main celebration of the victory that cost the Soviet Union 20 million lives will be Thursday, the anniversary of the day news of Germany's surrender reached the Soviet Union.

The Soviets will mark the day with a Red Square parade of war veterans, battle standards and vintage armor and artillery.

In Norway, which the Nazis occupied, 82-year-old King Olav attended a ceremony Tuesday at Lillehammer, where the Germans capitulated.

Under a decree issued by the president of Yugoslavia, 121 prisoners were granted a special amnesty, the Tanjug news agency reported.

Of those freed, 61 persons originally were sentenced to prison terms for political crimes, the news agency said.

Woman's contingent small, not overlooked

NEW YORK (AP) — First there were surprised looks, then proud smiles followed by wild cheering as the "Women who served in Vietnam" marched by.

Making up one of the smallest contingents at New York's ticker-tape parade Tuesday honoring Vietnam veterans were the nurses, clerks, USO and Red Cross workers marching behind their bright yellow banner with red and green stripes.

Small, yes, but not overlooked.

"You'll notice we're getting the loudest cheers today," said a smiling Sharon Vennel, 33, who spent a year in Vietnam as a decoder for the Army Security Agency.

Spectators along the parade route cheered and applauded as the group passed and women spectators, including female police officers, appeared to cheer the loudest.

As the group of almost 50 women neared the Manhattan side of the Brooklyn Bridge, a bedsheet banner on a nearby apartment building proclaimed: "Welcome home boys."

"Hey, we're here, too!" the women jeered good-naturedly, turning their own banner toward the building.

A man standing behind the welcome sign slapped his forehead and blew the group a kiss.

"We're the hidden, forgotten vets, but we're working on that" said Ms. Vennel, now a counselor with the New Jersey Vietnam Veterans Leadership Program.

People are always surprised to hear she's a Vietnam vet, she said.

"First they ask 'What were you doing there?' and then 'Why did you go?' I did it for my country," said Ms. Vennel, who was 18 when she went to Vietnam.

"This is wonderful! We wanted to march together as a unit," said Grace O'Brien, an Army nurse who served in Vietnam in 1966 and 1967.

"I think the veterans have really wanted desperately to be welcomed home," she said, walking across the Brooklyn Bridge carrying a small American flag.

Chris Peterson said she was the first psychiatric nurse to set foot in Vietnam when she landed there in 1966.

"It was kind of sad," said Ms. Pcterson, 41, who was dressed in battle fatigues.

"I didn't know what to expect," she said of Tuesday's parade. "It's nice but it brings back memories, old experiences. I feel sort of sad."

"It's hard to describe," said Staples Kute, who worked for the Red Cross as a case worker in Long Binh, Vietnam. She said much of her work in Vietnam involved "delivering messages from home."

Mayor Edward I. Koch and Archbishop John J. O'Connor greeted the women as they stepped off the bridge and at the group's urging, the two men embraced.

"We love you," shouted a man in battle fatigues as the women marched toward Broadway.

PARADE

marched: "Thank you, America, thank you."

Some of the veterans at the parade expressed bitterness that the recognition had come so late.

Jerry White, 35, of Manhattan, a former Marine who said he served in Vietnam for "13 months, 23 days and 6 hours," did not march, even though he was wearing a uniform adorned with sharpshooter and pistol medals. He said he came out of respect for those who died.

"I don't consider this a thank you, and it's not a parade. It's just a mob, it's more like a political convention or something. Ten years is too late for anything," he said.

"We came home and we had to pin on our own medals," said Julio Rivera of the Bronx, who was wounded several times during the war. "The people who greeted us were waving North Vietnam flags.

"A lot of us are in jails...A lot of us are drug addicts, but that's 'cause they treated us like we were nothing. This is 10 years late, but it opened up my heart that people know a little bit what we went through."

The parade was organized by the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Commission, which also is conducting a program to obtain jobs and job training for out of work veterans.

TRADE

Nicaraguan imports of products such as machinery may face additional limits, but generally will not be embargoed for six months, Walker said.

He also said U.S. banks would be permitted to make loans to Nicaraguan businesses. And although flights by the Nicaraguan government airline will be suspended, Americans still would be permitted to travel there by other means.

Walker, along with Assistant Secretary of State Langhorne Motley and Assistant Commerce Secretary Joseph F. Dennin, testified before two House Foreign affairs subcommittees on international trade and the Western Hemisphere.

Dennin said that while the embargo will apply "meaningful economic pressure" now, Nicaragua will find new markets for its products and new suppliers in the international market.

"In time," Dennin said, "Nicaragua will adjust to these changed circumstances and life will go on. The sanctions will probably not have been a crippling blow."

During the hearing, subcommittee chairman Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash., said the six-month delay in imposing much of the embargo "appears to take the sting out of the policy..."

Walker also disclosed that "certain classes of goods" will be exempted from the embargo, namely materials headed for the Contras seeking to overthrow the Managua government and "donated articles intended to relieve human suffering such as food, medicine and clothing."

The administration officials came under heavy fire from Democrats who said the embargo was improperly applied and was bad policy.

"This act of economic warfare once again tells the Sandinistas that we are not interested in reaching an agreement with them," said Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., chairman of a House panel on the Western Hemisphere.

Barnes said the embargo gives leverage to Marxist hard-liners in Managua and drives them into closer alliance with the Soviet Union.

Judge gives ex-Defense official, broker to four years in prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge today sentenced former deputy secretary of defense Paul Thayer and his friend, Dallas stockbroker Billy Bob Harris, to four years in prison for giving false information to the Securities and Exchange Commission during an investigation into their insider trading.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey also levied fines of $5,000 each on Thayer and Harris and ordered them to surrender to the U.S. Bureau of Prisons in Texas by 1 p.m. next Monday, if the fines were paid by 4 p.m.

Each man faced a maximum five-year sentence and a $5,000 fine on the one count of obstruction of justice to which they had pleaded guilty.

Attorneys for Thayer and Harris had requested that they be placed on probation and ordered to perform community service. The government asked Richey to sentence them to a term in prison though "not a substantial term."

Before ordering the prison terms, Richey said he made his decision on the sentence based on it acting as a deterrent to others who hold a public trust and "to maintain the integrity of the system of justice in the United States."

He said if he did not impose a prison sentence, "it would place the system in jeopardy and cause it to lose its integrity."

Thayer, 65, and Harris, 45, earlier agreed to pay the government more than $1 million to settle a civil suit stemming from the insider stock trading scheme.

Thayer, who resigned from the Pentagon in January 1984, and Harris pleaded guilty on March 4 to obstructing justice by giving false testimony in a scheme that netted Harris and seven associates $2 million in 1982.

The government had charged that Thayer, while chairman and chief executive officer of the LTV Corp. in Dallas and a member of the board of directors of both Anheuser-Busch Co. Inc. of St. Louis and Allied Corp. of Morristown, N.J., passed confidential non-public information to Harris, then a stockbroker in the Dallas office of A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc.

The settlement of the civil case was filed in Dallas by attorneys for the SEC and by the defendants in U.S. District Court here, a deputy court clerk said.

Under the agreement, Thayer will pay the government $555,000; Harris will pay $275,000 and Texas banker Gayle L. Schroder will pay $176,383.

Ms. Schroder was accused by the government of receiving insider information and also chaired banks that lent Thayer money to buy securities.

In the criminal case, U.S. Attorney Joseph E. DiGenova had recommended that Thayer and Harris be put behind bars to send a message to "every corporate board room and brokerage firm in the country...that these crimes will not be tolerated."

Attorneys for Thayer and Harris, bolstered by an extraordinary collection of letters, including one from former President Ford, urged that their clients not be sent to prison but be sentenced to community service.

The attorneys said Thayer committed the crimes not out of personal greed but "to provide a small nest egg" for his girlfriend, Sandra K. Ryno, 39, of Garland, Texas, who they said was "increasingly reluctant to take large gifts of cash" from Thayer.

DiGenova replied that Thayer was attempting to minimize his culpability in the scheme.

"The defendants did not steal bread because they were hungry," he said. "Surely a man worth as much as the defendant Thayer...could have figured out a way to solve his own personal dilemma of supporting his girlfriend in style."

Federal judge dismisses Spindletop suit

BEAUMONT (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed a lawsuit filed by two cousins who claim they own more than a $20 billion chunk of the Spindletop oil fortune.

U.S. District Judge Joe Fisher ruled Tuesday that the suit brought by James Clark of Cincinnati and Dan Profitt of Elsmere, Ky., was without merit because of a 70-year delay in filing the claim.

Clark and Profitt filed the suit last year on behalf of themselves and about 200 others who say they are heirs to Texas' first oil fortune.

Clark said he was not surprised by Fisher's decision.

"We're ready to appeal on it. I can't see letting a full chain of title go," said Clark, insisting there is no statute of limitations on undivided interest in mineral rights.

The cousins' claim is based on a 1911 deed, recorded in 1931, which they say gave a relative, James Meadors, certain mineral rights to lands that are part of the Spindletop oil field fortune.

The suit alleged that Amoco Productions, Mobil Oil Corp., Phillips Petroleum Co. and Texaco Inc. took oil, gas and other minerals from the property for their own use and refused to acknowledge the cousins' claims to the mineral rights.

In his ruling, Fisher agreed with the earlier recommendation of U.S. Magistrate Earl Hines, who cited legal doctrines dealing with unreasonable delays in filing the claim.

Could scrubby mesquite bloom as Cinderella of tree world?

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Ever since the first pioneers struggled to tame Texas, the scrubby mesquite tree has been here as a settler-nettler. Ranchers have burned it, uprooted it, chemically poisoned it and heartily cussed it.

But epithets are easing for the mesquite, a gnarled, moisture-greedy tree scattered throughout much of the Southwest.

The tree now has friends: Yuppies praise it for its cooking value, craftsmen marvel at the beauty and durability of its wood and poor countries hope to develop it for fuel.

And now, scientists are talking about how to reproduce the mesquite tree more efficiently, a notion that even 10 years ago would have been about as popular as breeding fleas for pets.

Texas A&I University even devoted a chunk of its recent week-long international symposium on arid-land trees to the mesquite and its promise for the future.

"The South had its peanut; Texas has its mesquite trees. It shows a lot of promise for both fuel and luxury-quality furniture," said Dr. Peter Felker, assistant research scientist with Texas A&I's Caesar Kleberg Wildlife Research Institute, which sponsored the symposium.

Research presented at the symposium included test-tube mesquite reproduction, nutrient deficiencies in the trees and how to grow a straighter, thornless tree more quickly.

The most popular use for the tree remains cooking, woodcrafts and furniture. The wood is strong and its beauty approaches that of mahogany, but its crooked limbs make mass production too costly.

Felker so loves the tree he had the cabinets, floors, doors and stairs of his new house made of it to the dismay of his builders. He shares his love of mesquites with Rozan Reed Williams and her husband, Ray, of Dallas.

The Williamses run a prosperous mesquite wood business, and Mrs. Williams is president of a mesquite education group, Los Amigos del Mesquite, to which Felker also professes membership.

Witnesses at hearings may have to fend for themselves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sometimes witnesses at congressional hearings are forced to fend for themselves. It isn't that members of Congress aren't listening; they just often have other priorities.

At a recent Senate Agriculture Committee session, Agriculture Undersecretary Frank Naylor was being questioned by Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., who was also presiding over the hearing.

An aide walked over and whispered something into her ear. She abruptly arose and said she had leave for an important telephone call.

"Just keep talking, I'll read the transcript," Mrs. Hawkins said.

Naylor talked for about five minutes — to an empty chair.

He finished his answer to the senator's question and still the chair was empty. He looked around. The clock on the wall ticked. And ticked.

To no one in particular, Naylor said: "Now we'll wait for the senator to return?"

After a long, awkward period of silence, Naylor was rescued by Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., who asked another question.

On the Senate side of the Capitol, Armed Services Committee Chairman Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., was presiding over a hearing at which Walter Stroessel, chairman of the Chemical Warfare Review Commission, was testifying.

Goldwater's attention was caught by a photographer on the side of the room who was toting a huge, sophisticated lens.

It was too much for Goldwater to resist. An avid photographer, Goldwater left his chair as Stoessel talked on. He walked over to the photographer and engaged him in a conversation — an animated one that competed with Stoessel's testimony.

"Where did you get that lens? How much did it cost?" Goldwater was overheard asking.

When Republicans stormed out of the House last week en masse to protest the seating of Democrat Frank McCloskey in a long-disputed Indiana election contest, their absence was a short one.

In the Congressional Record, the protest lasted less than a page — about 20 minutes. A headline in the Record, the official transcript of House proceedings, tersely notes: "Return of the Minority Following Symbolic Walkout."

Bitburg visit, budget shadows Reagan on European trip

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bitburg and the budget are shadowing Ronald Reagan as he makes his way through Europe a little more than 100 days after his second inauguration. Add Nicaragua and the slumping American economy and there could be a prescription for a disappointing White House term.

In the past, when trouble lurked about him, Reagan showed a remarkable talent for overcoming it, sometimes by taking a position at variance with his past statements and philosophy.

That's what he may have to do this time in the face of congressional resistance to the White House budget package. A compromise might require cutting defense outlays, which runs against the Reagan grain, taking a smaller slice out of social programs and even raising income taxes, despite his unwavering campaign promise that a boost would be considered only as a last resort.

The American economy is showing signs of a slowdown. Reagan counted on growth to cut the awesome $210 billion federal deficit. But the rate for the first quarter was only 1.3 percent, far below last year's rate of 6.8 percent. That could mean only a tiny increase in federal tax revenues.

But on Bitburg and Nicaragua the current presidential strategy apparently is to tough it out. The president intends to visit the German military cemetery on Sunday where 49 soldiers of the Waffen SS, the combat arm of Adolf Hitler's elite guard, are among the 2,000 buried soldiers.

And on Nicaragua, he has rebounded from congressional rejection of aid for the Contra rebels with an economic battle plan to squeeze the Sandinista government. A total trade embargo and other measures, including a cancelliation of landing rights for the Nicaraguan airline Aeronica, is Reagan's way of recovering from his setback on Capitol Hill.

In other words, on Bitburg and on Nicaragua the president is not retreating.

"In the end," said Secretary of State George Shultz the other day of critics of the cemetery visit, "they may wind up admiring the person who stood by his decision."

Henry A. Kissinger, who also supports the president on Bitburg, said "the president's record on the issue of the Holocaust victims is impeccable." With sympathy for the critics, the former secretary of state said cancellation "would do enormous damage to our foreign policy."

But the question arises: Has Reagan done damage to himself?

An overwhelming majority of both the House and Senate registered its opposition to his cemetery visit. Jewish and veterans' organizations urged him to call it off. So did some West Germans.

Reagan may be admired for standing fast. But his reputation for having the right instincts could slide.

Moral questions also surround the president's policy toward Nicaragua.

Girl says Reagan misrepresented views

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 13-year-old Jewish girl says she wants President Reagan to know that even though he misrepresented her views on his trip to the military cemetery in Bitburg, West Germany, she still respects him.

"This is turning into something I don't want it to, and I still respect him," Beth Flom said Tuesday, in reference to a telex she sent Reagan last month. "But it does bother me the way he referred to it."

Following his controversial visit Sunday to the cemetery, where 49 Nazi SS troopers lie among the graves of 2,000 German soldiers, Reagan delivered a speech citing Miss Flom's message as supporting his decision to lay a wreath there honoring "the future of Germany."

But the Marlboro Township, N.J. eighth-grader said that in the April 21 telex she sent Reagan, she made it clear she disapproved of his decision to visit Bitburg. She suggested that if he did make the visit, the wreath should be laid "in honor of the future of Germany."

"I guess I'm still stunned that he used it," she said in a telephone interview. "I'm thrilled that he used it. But I'm upset that he went."

During a speech at a U.S. air base in Bitburg following the wreath-laying, Reagan said, "One of the many who wrote me about this visit was a young woman who had recently been bat mitzvahed. She urged me to lay the wreath at Bitburg cemetery in honor of the future of Germany, and that is what we have done."

The president did not mention Miss Flom by name. But Dale Petroskey, a White House spokesman, said Tuesday that Reagan was referring to Miss Flom's telex.

Miss Flom said she believes Reagan used her comments out of context.

"All I can say is I don't think he said enough," she said. "I respect his decision to use it. But the way he used it out of context wasn't clear enough. The way it sounds, it could be taken that I urged him to go to Germany also. I didn't."

Petroskey said he interpreted the telex as saying: "We prefer you don't go, but if you do, we prefer you to lay the wreath in honor of the future of Germany." But he said he did not believe Reagan used her remarks out of context.

"He didn't do everything that Beth Flom wanted him to do," Petroskey said. "He didn't cancel his trip to the cemetery. But he's the president of the United States, and he has to make decisions on what he thinks is best. He did at least heed h erR eath in honor of the future of Germany."

Rioting continues; Eleven blacks killed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Hand-to-hand fighting between tribal groups outside the city killed eight blacks this morning, while soldiers and police swept through two riot-torn black townships in the south, police said.

The eight were killed as rival Zulu and Xhosa tribesmen battled after dawn in Tsakane, a black township east of Johannesburg, according to a police statement.

Police offered no explanation of what sparked the battle.

A mob of about 250 blacks stoned and burned two black men to death in the same area Tuesday night, and the body of another black man was discovered Tuesday near a male hostel in another part of the township, police said.

WORLD

The Star newspaper of Johannesburg reported the fighting today was between blacks who have permission to live in Tsakane and black men who live in single-sex hostels as migrant workers. The newspaper did not describe the fighting as tribal.

Quoting residents of Tsakane, The Star reported that hostel-dwellers terrorized the township overnight, roaming house to house to avenge the killing of two of their colleagues believed to have been assaulted by township residents.

It was not clear if the hostel-dwellers' revenge was for the two men stoned and burned Tuesday.

The Star reported hundreds of Tsakane residents fled their homes and spent the night in nearby fields.

The Zulu population center is in Natal Province, in eastern South Africa along the Indian Ocean coast. The region is one of the few parts of the country that has been relatively free of the anti-apartheid rioting that began in August.

Xhosas, from the eastern Cape Province south of Natal, have been rivals of the Zulus for centuries. In March, when police killed 20 blacks in a predominantly Xhosa-populated township, survivors complained Zulu policemen had been brought in from Natal.

A police spokesman, who cannot be identified under department policy, said the two men stoned by a mob Tuesday night were set on fire after they lost consciousness.

Gorbachev appeals to Thatcher

LONDON (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has asked Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to join him in fighting against the nuclear arms buildup, the militarization of space and another world war.

Gorbachev's message came in an exchange of letters with Mrs. Thatcher to mark the 40th anniversary of the defeat of Nazi Germany in World War II.

Mrs. Thatcher's office released copies of the letters to the media Tuesday night.

"The experience which the peoples of our countries lived through shows that war should be fought against before it breaks out," Gorbachev wrote.

"In order to prevent a new world war, a climate of trust and mutual understanding among peoples is urgently needed, as well as consistent efforts by all states aimed at stopping a dangerous build-up of nuclear arms, preventing the militarization of space, and removing the military threat hanging over the world," he said.

"The Soviet Union is prepared to cooperate with Great Britain — its former ally in the anti-Hitlerite coalition — in achieving these noble goals," he said.

Gorbachev said the people of the Soviet Union respect the gallantry of the British people who contributed to the victory.

Thousands trying to leave Nigeria before deadline

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Thousands of African aliens are flocking to the harbor, airport and truck depots seeking to flee Nigeria. The military government has ordered 700,000 aliens out of the country by Friday.

They trudged through the streets Tuesday carrying mattresses, cooking utensils, sacks and suitcases on their way out of Nigeria, to which they had come seeking haven from famine or jobs in an oil boom that has since collapsed.

Two ships were anchored in the harbor to pick up deportees. Those who could afford it went by plane.

The rest lined up for trucks provided by the Interior Ministry, which were massed at two depots in Ijora, the suburb of Lagos where many foreign Africans live.

Foreigners are considered a threat to Nigerians' jobs now that oil prices have slumped and the boom is gone.

Some officials of the military regime, which seized power Dec. 31, 1983, have called them a major cause of high crime rates in the cities.

It has been an orderly exodus compared with the chaos and violence when Nigeria kicked out 2 million aliens in 1983. Both the government and embassies of the aliens' home countries had pleaded for a peaceful departure.

About 300,000 of the deportees are reported to be Ghanaians and 100,000 are from Niger. The remainder come from Togo, Chad, Cameroon and Burkina Faso, formerly called Upper Volta.

Customs officials search departing aliens carefully to make sure they do not carry out more than the $22 worth of Nigerian currency allowed. They also cannot take food or detergents, which are scarce in this West African country.

The semi-official Nigerian News Agency said thousands of deportees were stranded at the border with Benin on Monday because that country had closed its frontier to aliens. The border was reported open on Tuesday, however, and Lagos radio said about 5,000 people were passing through the neighboring country on their way home.

There was no overall estimate of how many aliens had left since the expulsion order was announced April 15.

It is the first time since April last year that Nigeria has opened its frontiers. They have been closed in a crackdown on smuggling of Nigerian currency.

Algerian president arrives in Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Chadli Bendjedid of Algeria arrived Tuesday in Mexico, first stop on a three-nation Latin American trip, on Tuesday for talks with President Miguel de la Madrid.

Bendjedid, who is accompanied by his wife and several members of his cabinet, was received by Mexican government officials. The official welcome ceremony by de la Madrid was scheduled for Wednesday at the National Palace, on the huge Zocalo Plaza in downtown Mexico City.

The official program for the visit includes two rounds of private talks between the chiefs of state, in which they are expected to discuss oil, the main export f both countries, along with bilateral relations and issues of international interest.

America works!

This week is a special time in both Midland and the nation because small businesses are being heralded for their contributions to the American way of life. It's a worthy celebration, a celebration of success.

President Ronald Reagan, in proclaiming May 5-11 Small Business Week, noted that "the history of America is the history of a nation at work — a nation of farmers, manufacturers, and merchants joining together to build a better society. The dedication and commitment of these early citizens provided the foundation for a growing and prosperous America — an America built on individual initiative, a competitive spirit, and an intense pride in the achievements of a new nation."

The President is correct and nowhere in the United States are those qualities of individual initiative, competitive spirit and intense pride more apparent than in Midland where a city approaching 100,000 population thrives on that spirit of free enterprise. Here, in the heart of the Permian Basin oilfields, Midland's small businessmen and businesswomen show time and again that the only restriction to success is individual commitment.

Certainly there are tough times. Midland knows full well how fate can destroy a booming economy and throw many people out of work. But that's only a setback in the success story that is the Permian Basin. That success story is being written by small businesses and all the residents of this region are reaping the benefits.

Small business is worth saluting. It gives innumerable men and women in this area and throughout the nation the opportunity of a lifetime, an opportunity unfathomable in many nations around the globe. It is, of course, the opportunity to succeed in business, the opportunity to toil and to enjoy the fruits of one's own labor.

America is working — literally — and a major part of that fact is due to the 14 million small businesses being honored this week.

A national treasure

The National Gallery of Art in Washington is a national treasure. It was made so by the Mellon family of Pittsburgh.

The nation was reminded of this the other day when Paul Mellon resigned as a trustee of the gallery and as chairman of the board. His father, former Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon founded the institution in 1941, and it has developed into one of the great art institutes of the world.

Paul Mellon has been its devoted partron and administrator for nearly half a century. In the decade between 1968 and 1978 he presided as president over the construction of the East Building which has been widely acclaimed as a valuable addition. He and his sister, Alisa Mellon Bruce and the Mellon Foundation contributed $95 million for its construction. His contributions of paintings and sculptures and other works of art have been truly monumental.

The National Gallery of Art stands high today among the best known names in the world of galleries and museums.

Another View:

Never cry 'no'

The book "Never Cry Wolf," like the movie on which is is based, is a passionate paean to a creature that has been poisoned, shot, trapped and vilified. The U.S. Immigration Service is not proposing so drastic a fate for Farley Mowat, who wrote the book. But the agency's treatment of him is equally uncalled for.

The Immigration Service has barred the rambunctious Canadian author from visiting the United States because he is quoted as saying he once planned to shoot at American military aircraft. The real story, it turns out, is a bit more fanciful. Mowat says he and two friends jokingly threatened about 15 years ago to steal an atomic bomb that was allegedly stored in Newfoundland. Then, they'd submerge it in a remote lake and shoot at any U.S. planes that came searching for the bomb. Sort of like the old Peter Sellers move, "The Mouse That Roared."

The State Department was not amused. Thus, its denial of a visa for Mowat under a statute that bars foreign visitors "whose activities would be contrary to the public interest" or who have advocated communism or anarchy. Passed in 1952 during the hysteria of the McCarthy era, the McCarran-Walter Act has been used in the last few years to exclude visitors as various as Gabriel Garcia Marquez, the Nobel Prize-winning Colombian novelist; Roberto D'Aubuisson, the Salvadoran rightist; and Dario Fo, the Italian satirist and playwright.

Never mind that Americans holding similar views on the left or the right are free to espouse their ideologies at home, even to run for office. As long as they don't engage in illegal activity, they're protected by the First Amendment.

Shouldn't foreign visitors have the same protection? Of course they should. Sensibly, U.S. Rep. Barney Frank, R-Mass., proposes amendments to the McCarran-Walter Act that would repeal the broadbrush exclusionary provisions and test visa applicants on their behavior, not their political beliefs. That way Americans could sift and winnow divergent ideas for themselves, as the framers of the Constitution intended.

Recently, President Reagan saluted that tradition of free inquiry in a different context. "In an atmosphere of liberty," Reagan said in an eloquent speech to winners of the National Medal of Arts, "artists and patrons are free to think the unthinkable and create the audacious; they are free to make both horrendous mistakes and glorious celebrations."

Let the government now practice what the president (and the Constitution) preaches — and welcome the expression of Farley Mowat's unthinkable, audacious ideas, whatever they are.

Views from around the nation

ART BUCHWALD

Forgivance has its limits!

Since this is a period of reconciliation and the President is in a forgiving mood, I called one of his close associates and asked him, "Now that President Reagan has forgiven the Germans for what they did in World War II, do you think he might forgive the American air traffic controllers who went out on strike?"

Art Buchwald

"The President would never go that far. You have to remember what the air controllers did. When they walked out on their jobs they committed an atrocity against every man, woman and child in the United States."

"I know it was a despicable thing to do," I said. "But I thought after Bitburg, it would be the perfect time for the President to heal the wounds here at home."

"The President is the first person to let bygones be bygones, but to my knowledge he has never forgiven anyone who has gone out on an unauthorized strike."

"Okay. Forget the air controllers. Do you think in his present mood of reconciliation Mr. Reagan might forgive the mother in Chicago who chiseled on her welfare?"

"How could he forgive her?"

"Maybe the President could fly to Chicago and lay a wreath in front of the liquor store where he claims she bought a bottle of vodka with her food stamps."

"Too many people in this country have suffered because of that welfare mother in Chicago. It's one thing to forgive people you fought against during a war — it's another to turn the other cheek to those who cheat on their food stamps."

"I guess there is no way for the President to reconcile with the American farmers who went bankrupt due to bad management."

"By reconciling with the farmers at this time the President would be sending the wrong signal to the agricultural community. The Germans may have made some mistakes in World War II, but you could never accuse them of looking for a bailout from Washington when they couldn't sell their crops."

"I don't imagine that the President would be willing to make a gesture of reconciliation toward the congressmen who voted down aid for the contras fighting in Nicaragua."

"How can you compare what the people buried in the Bitburg cemetery did to left-wing spiteful legislators who exterminated Mr. Reagan's foreign policy in Central America?"

"My mistake. Since this is National Reconciliation Week I thought the President might want to forgive those who voted against him on Nicaragua, just so he could get his budget package through."

"Nicaragua is a moral issue, and Mr. Reagan will never compromise on a moral issue for political gain. That was the message of Bitburg."

"Is there any possibility the President would want to make peace with the big spenders in the Senate who for the past 40 years have driven this country into debt with their wild socialist schemes?"

"It's much too early to offer an olive branch to them. Although everyone who fought on the German side in World War II is no longer alive, there are many big spenders walking around scot-free who have never answered for their economic crimes. Someday they will have to face a higher judge than the President of the United States."

I asked, "Do you think it's too soon for the Reagan administration to bury the hatchet with those people in the media who have blown the Nazi thing way out of proportion to what it really is?"

"If you're asking the President to pardon them for what they have written about Bitburg, the answer is no. Their stories are too fresh in this administration's mind. Mr. Reagan still believes in 'collective guilt' where the journalists of this country are concerned."

Oman seeks touchy defense work

Jack Anderson

The prospect is so unnerving to security-minded U.S. experts that announcement of the contract has been held up for four months while the Pentagon, the CIA and the National Security Council investigate the matter.

Complicating the situation is the fear of offending the sultan, whom the Reagan administration has high hopes of converting into a loyal American ally similar to the late shah of Iran.

The contract in question is for the "caretaking" of three Omani facilities, which the United States has already spent more than $200 million improving. The facilities can be used by the U.S. Central Command (formerly the Rapid Deployment Force). One of the facilities will house highly sensitive communications and intelligence equipment.

Oman is the only state in the strategic Persian Gulf area that has agreed to let U.S. military forces use bases on its territory in a crisis.

Although the caretaking contract is ostensibly worth about $50 million, Pentagon sources told us it could well blossom into a $2 billion bonanza for the winning company. Aware of this, 14 U.S. firms — and one British company, Airwork Ltd. — sent representatives on a site visit in October 1983 and submitted preliminary bids on the project.

Three U.S. companies — Northrop, Bendix and EG & G Intertech — wound up on the "short list" of bidders after U.S. government reviews. Each firm spent $200,000 to $1 million on its bid.

That's when Sultan Qabus bin Said's whim of iron made itself felt.

The 44-year-old absolute ruler's British advisers — including his old Sandhurst buddy, Timothy Landon — made it clear to the Pentagon that they weren't happy about the exclusion of Airwork Ltd. from the contract.

Landon, who has made millions as the sultan's most influential adviser, and Eric Bennett, a British officer detached to serve as chief of the Omani air force, visited the Pentagon more than a year ago to solicit contracts for British firms in Oman, including Airwork.

U.S. officials were understandably reluctant to turn their sensitive equipment and a lucrative contract over to a British firm, which would somehow have to obtain U.S. "secret" clearance. But they were equally reluctant to antagonize the sultan or his British friends, who seemed to have the inside track with the monarch.

The touchy matter remained in limbo for months. Then on March 17, 1984, U.S. Ambassador John Countryman in Oman sent a secret cable to Washington disclosing that the Omani foreign minister had given him a diplomatic note requesting that Airwork be awarded the contract.

Another cable 10 days later reported that a Briton high in the Omani military had suggested — in an obvious effort to make the Airwork award more palatable — that the contract be given to a joint venture of the British firm and an American one, Vinnell Corp.

On April 2, Secretary of State George Shultz secretly cabled the U.S. ambassador that he accepted the Omani foreign minister's request as the authoritative view of the sultan. But still the contract award has been held up for the various investigations by U.S. agencies.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1973, militant Indians who had held the South Dakota hamlet of Wounded Knee for ten weeks surrendered.

Ten years ago: The former president of the International Olympic Committee, Avery Brundage, died in West Germany at the age of 87.

Five years ago: Philippine opposition leader Benigno Aquino was released after 7½ years of detention and allowed to fly to the United States for medical treatment.

One year ago: The Soviet Union announced it would not participate in the 1984 Los Angeles Summer Olympics, charging the United States did not intend to ensure athletes' security.

Men, beaten by vigilantes, held on suspicion of assault

GRANBURY (AP) — Two men, treated at a Granbury hospital after five self-proclaimed vigilantes beat them and dropped them off on a country road in front of a sheriff's home, have been taken into custody, police said.

The pair were jailed pending the filing of formal charges today, said Granbury Police Chief D.F. Steele. Police had investigated an anonymous caller's allegation of a sexual assault on a 12-year-old girl, a police dispatcher said.

"Based on our investigation, the two subjects are currently in custody pending the filing of charges of sexual assault on a minor," said Steele.

He said that police were also seeking information in the men's beating.

"We have identification on a couple of the men involved in the beating," said Steele. "But any successful arrest and prosecution depends on the cooperation of the two men (victims)...

"They didn't display a heckuva lot of interest in a police investigation of the assault," he said. "They said they'd handle it themselves.

Five assailants allegedly burst into the men's mobile home about 11:30 p.m. Sunday near the Lake Granbury marina, where the two resident aliens from Cuba worked, police reports said.

The pair told officers that the men dragged them, bound hand and foot, to a nearby boat ramp and beat them repeatedly with fists and a pistol butt.

Police said the victims told them they were put in a car trunk and driven about five miles out of town, where they were dumped in front of Hodd County Sheriff Edwin Tomlinson's house at about 2 a.m. Monday.

"I got a call from the dispatcher that vigilantes had dumped two men in front of my house," said Tomlinson. "I thought it was a joke. But then, there they were."

Chinese official cites Soviet threat

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — China would like to improve relations with the Soviet Union, but there are military obstacles to that goal, the Chinese ambassador to the United Nations says.

Ambassador Ling Qing, in a news conference Tuesday, said China feels the Soviet "military presence in the north and in Vietnam poses a serious threat to China's security."

"We are trying to improve our relationship with the Soviet Union," he said.

Ling, in San Antonio on a goodwill mission to the business community, said the world knows very little about new Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"He appears more mild and receptive to the Western world, but it's all appearance," he said.

Relations between China and Vietnam are worsening, Ling said, because of the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia.

On economic matters, Ling said China is keenly interested in importing from the United States high tech products and oil exploration machinery.

The ambassador said his country also wants to buy agricultural products.

Lone Star talent shines for Africa

IRVING (AP) — B.J. Thomas was "hooked on a feeling," Mean Joe Greene was fulfilling a secret desire to sing on camera and Steven Stills was battling his urge to return to his rod and reel.

And together with more than 100 actors, athletes and entertainers, they gathered in this Dallas suburb Tuesday night to record a Texas version of "We Are The World" to combat hunger in Texas and Africa.

"I guess every entertainer wanted to be involved with 'We Are The World,' but not all of us could be," Thomas said after the all-day taping sessions of "Here's My Love — Pass It Along."

"So I was more than happy to get involved when they called me about 'Texas-World Reunion'," said Thomas, a country gospel singer who hails from Houston. "I was just hooked on this feeling."

"We Are The World," performed by artists such as Michael Jackson and Bruce Springsteen, has raised millions of dollars for relief efforts in famine-plagued Africa.

Half the proceeds from Tuesday night's efforts will go to the North Texas Food Bank and the rest to Operation Texas, an organization committed to ending the famine in Africa, said Barbara Rice, one of the event's organizers.

The Texas video, filmed against a global backdrop under a starry sky, showcased Lone Star State talent including Billy Preston, Lee Horsely, Tony Dorsett, Mark Aguirre, Charley Pride, former Supreme Mary Wilson, the Texas Boys Choir and Roger Staubach.

And although they didn't stand together, even Danny White and Gary Hogeboom, who have been at odds for the starting quarterback spot on the Dallas Cowboys, joined in the effort.

"Any time somebody asks me to sing, you better believe I will," said Greene, a former Pittsburgh Steelers football player who now lives in Duncanville. "The last time I got a chance to do this was on a 1969 Steelers Christmas album."

The "spirit was willing but the flesh weak" as far as Stills, part of the former Crosby, Stills and Nash singing group, was concerned.

"This is a great idea to help fight hunger and I was all for it," said Stills, who was born in Dallas. "But the only trouble was getting my butt off my boat in Cabo San Lucas yesterday and onto a plane."

Athletes and entertainers sing together Tuesday in Irving as part of a Lone Star-based relief effort for starving people in Texas and Africa. Among those contributing to the effort are singer Steven Stills, with hat, former Dallas Cowboy Harvey Martin, center, and Dallas Maverick basketball player Mark Aguirre, right.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Crane, Upton, Reagan, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Borden and Dawson: Tonight partly cloudy with isolated thunderstorms. Mild with lows in lower 60s. Wind southeast 5 to 10 mph. Rain chances less than 20 percent. Thursday sunny and very warm with highs in mid 90s. Wind south 10 to 15 mph.

Slight chance of showers expected

From Staff and Wire Reports

Partly cloudy skies will bring a slight chance of thunderstorms to the Midland area tonight but forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport expect skies to clear by Thursday as sunny skies warm temperatures from tonight's low in the lower 60s to a high in the middle 90s. Winds will be from the southeast at five to 10 mph tonight increasing from the south Thursday at less than 15 mph.

Tuesday's high of 97 was three degrees below the record set in 1947. This morning's low was 24 degrees above the record set in 1984.

STATE

Heavy thunderstorms, accompanied by howling winds, hail and frequent lightning roared across a vast section of Texas early today.

Hail ranging from the size of peas to the size of baseballs peppered down as the thunderstorms roared across sections of the Concho Valley, High Plains and western sections of North Texas.

Baseball size hail was reported in Hale County, northwest of Lubbock. Ping pong ball size hail was reported in a severe thunderstorm that moved across Lubbock just after midnight.

Hail and high winds caused some damage, but no injuries at Lubbock, the National Weather Service said. Some glass was broken in an apartment complex at Lubbock and there was other damage.

Winds gusted to 63 mph when the storms moved Abilene before dawn.

Forecasters said the thunderstorm activity would be ending from west to east, starting in West Texas late tonight.

Elsewhere around the state, clear to partly cloudy skies and mild temperautres prevailed.

Forecasts called for a chance of scattered showers and thunderstorms over all of the state today and tonight.

NATION

Scattered thunderstorms, some packing baseball-sized hail, rumbled along a front from South Carolina to southwest Texas today while skies were fair over much of the rest of the nation.

Today's forecast called for showers and thundershowers scattered from Oregon across the intermountain region; showers and thunderstorms from Texas into the lower Mississippi Valley.

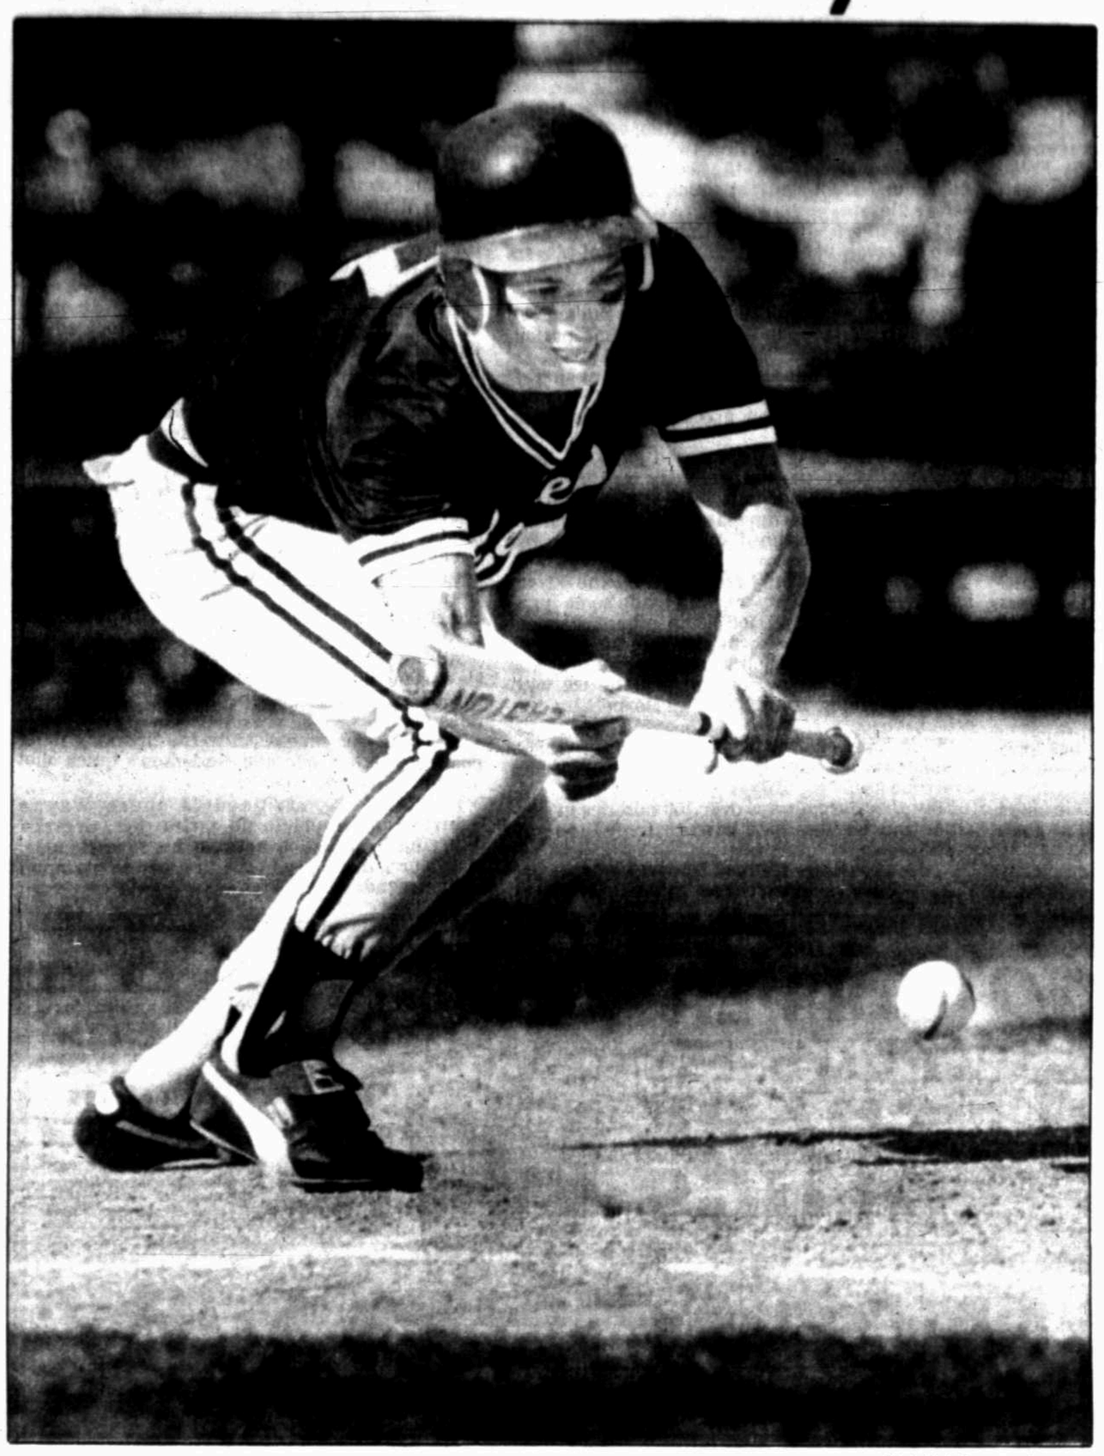
Plainsmen finally fire fatal bullet at Rebs



Cody Bell/Reporter-Telegram

Midland Lee's Cary Brown lays down a sacrifice bunt inches in front of his right foot Tuesday during Lee's 3-2 bi-district loss to Lubbock Monterey at Lowery Field.

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

LUBBOCK — As many times as the Midland Lee Rebels got in and out of trouble Tuesday, it was only a matter of time before a bullet they hoped to dodge caught them right between the eyes.

Despite a strong pitching performance by Mike Small and a basically strong defense, Lee suffered a 3-2 loss in the first game of the best-of-three bi-district playoff against Lubbock Monterey because the Plainsmen came through in the area the Rebels lacked: Clutch hitting.

For a long while, it looked as if the Plainsmen were going to go down to defeat because Lee kept coming up with the defensive plays needed to stiffle rallies. Double plays in the first and fifth innings stopped two Monterey rallies and Small's strikeout of James Goolsby with two out and the bases loaded saved the second.

THEN CAME the disasterous sixth and seventh innings.

The Rebels, leading 1-0 since the top of the first when Dirk Bergoon collected a one-out double and eventually scored on Jimmy Phillips' ground out, lost their lead in the bottom of the sixth when their defense had a momentary lapse.

Doug Welch led off the frame with a single to left field and went to second on Brian Christiansen's sacrifice bunt. One out later, Small got Monterey pitcher Mike Eckles to hit a grounder to Bergoon at second base.

Bergoon, moving to his left, booted the grounder toward first (his second error of the game), chased it down and then threw wildly to home plate in an attempt to throw out Welch. Eckles went to second on Bergoon's third error but no further as Jimmy Webster grounded out to end the inning with a 1-1 score.

In the top of the seventh, it was Monterey's turn for a defensive lapse as Phillips led off with a hard-hit shot to Brent McClain. The third baseman couldn't handle the ball and Phillips was on base.

Chad Jordan came in as a pinch runner and was moved to second when Cary Brown laid down Lee's only successful sacrifice bunt of the game, which he managed to beatout, putting runners on the first two bags.

ONE OUT later, Donny Rivas came through for his first hit of the game, a single to left that scored Jordan, returning the lead to Lee, 2-1 lead.

Brown went to second on the hit and would likely have scored if the ball hadn't bounced back in Monterey's favor.

Paul Colwell followed Rivas' single with a shallow blooper that Monterey right fielder Troy Jones dived for but couldn't catch. However, the play was close enough to freeze Rivas halfway between first and second and keep Brown on second.

When the ball hit the ground, Brown went to third but Rivas was too far away to make it safely to second as Jones came up throwing, making the play to force Rivas and rob Colwell of a hit. Keith McDonald then hit a screaming line drive down the third base line and McClain was able to make the catch to end the inning.

McClain also made up for his error by starting off the Plainsmen rally in the bottom of the seventh, getting a leadoff single up the middle before leaving the game for pinch runner Kyle Guerry.

Guerry went to second on James Goolsby's sacrifice bunt and Small followed by walking Mike Gustafson, putting the winning run on first. Shane Sayler tied the game with a single to left to score Guerry and Welch won it with his single down the first base line to score Gustafson.

THE LOSS, Lee's seventh of the year against 20 wins, was hard for Coach Ernie Johnson to take.

"We got out-fundamentaled today," said Johnson. "If they would have been two or three runs down, it would have been a different situation (in the final two innings). We failed to get our sacrifice bunts down and got runners picked off base. After the two sac bunts that failed, we came up with hits that would have scored a run. I thought those things hurt us."

Cooper blanks Plainview

From Staff Reports

PLAINVIEW — Abilene Cooper pitcher Terry Suggs went the distance in two-hit style Tuesday, pitching the Cougars to a 6-0 bi-district playoff victory here over the Plainview Bulldogs.

Suggs had a no-hitter going through the first four innings and lost it when Bulldog Paul Forbes connected for a bloop single as leadoff hitter in the bottom of the fifth. The only other Plainview hit came in the seventh, a two-out single by William Ansley. Suggs also recorded 10 strikeouts in gaining the victory and a 14-1 season record.

It also took awhile for the Cooper attack to get untracked. The Cougars didn't notch a mark on the scoreboard until the fourth inning when they came up with four runs. After back-to-back leadoff singles by catcher Mike Hood and shortstop Nathan Jones, outfielder Doug Hadley punched a double, the game's only extra base hit, to give Cooper a 2-0 lead.

Hadley scored on a single by Dave Tollison and Tollison scored after stealing second, moving to third on a flyout and coming home on a Chad Englehart balk. The Cougars added solo runs in the sixth and seventh innings.

Englehart suffered the loss, falling to 9-3 on the year.

The victory was the 13th straight for the 24-1 Cougars, who last lost in the opening week of District 4-5A play to Midland Lee. Plainview is now 19-6 on the year.

On Friday, the Bulldogs will travel to Abilene for a 2 p.m. game at Cooper. If necessary, a second game will follow in the best two-out-of-three series.

San Antonio clips Midland with ninth inning homer

Dodgers' Jon Debus is good argument against DH rule

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Jon Debus is another good argument against the DH, the abomination visited upon baseball by the same malcreants who gave us nondescript multi-purpose stadiums, fraudulent grass and turned the game into an indoor summer sport.

Abner Doubleday never meant that someone who spent the entire game in the dugout should bat regularly, but that's what San Antonio's Debus was doing when he led off the ninth with a home run that beat the Midland Angels, 3-2, Tuesday night.

THAT SQUARES the Texas League series at 2-2 going into tonight's 7 p.m. Knothole Gang finale.

After three games in which the Dodgers and Angels made a shambles of one another's pitching staffs by scoring 56 runs, Tuesday's Bingo Night game was a pitchers' battle between San Antonio's Scott May and Midland's Doug McKenzie.

McKenzie was working on a no-hitter before giving up a single to Todd Gauntlett with two out in the fifth. May had a shutout until Daryl Sconiers doubled, Billie Merrifield singled in the game's first run and Tito Nanni's single made it 2-0 in the fourth. All of the hits came after two were out.

San Antonio tied it in the seventh when Debus singled and Gauntlett and Bill White doubled.

May departed after walking Dan Murphy and giving up a single to Reggie Montgomery in the eighth. So it was Dave Eichorn who benefited from Debus' homer to left, just to the left of the scoreboard in the ninth.

"He had been throwing me breaking balls all night and that's what I was looking for," said Debus, who not only shouldn't have been batting, according to orthodox baseball rules, but probably belongs in Albuquerque anyway.

"I was there part of 1983 and for the full season last year," said the Chicago native. "I've only been catching two and a half years, so I needed to be some place where I can catch regularly."

"I DIDN'T expect the homer to beat us. Not on a night when the wind wasn't blowing," said Midland Manager Joe Maddon, "But McKenzie pitched the kind of game we've been looking for. Their starter did well, too."

In the home ninth, Dave Heath singled to left with one out and Mark McLemore came off the bench to bat for Kevin Davis, lefthander against righthander. McLemore lined out to shortstop Cecil Espy, who was moving toward the bag as pinch runner Greg Key broke from first...easy, game-ending double play.

"It was a fast ball situation and ordinarily the second baseman will cover the bag on that play," said Maddon. "If he does, it's a hit."

McKenzie and May both pitched in the California League last year. May was 8-10 with seven complete games. McKenzie was 15-6 with six complete games. After shutting out Midland in San Antonio, May was named Texas League Pitcher of the Week.

"He's only 1-0," pointed out San Antonio's Gary LaRocque, "but he has had a couple of no decisions in which he has pitched us into the eighth or ninth inning, which is all you can ask."

The wonder of it is that the Dodgers ever found May in the first place. He pitched for Wisconsin-Stevens Point in college. "We'd play 12 conference games and maybe eight non-conference games," the righthander elaborates. "I'd get perhaps four starts a year. Actually, the Dodger scout was looking at a pitcher from Wisconsin-Oshkosh and thought I could pitch."

Gauntlett had two hits Monday and two again Tuesday, but it was his arm that saved the Dodgers Dave Heath singled with one out in the third and Kevin Davis hit his first of two doubles. Gauntlett picked Heath off third for the second out and May got Devon White on strikes to abort the threat.

HALO HOOPS — With lefty Bob Kipper out of action, Fred Wilborn, 9-5 at Redwood last year, will start for the Angels tonight against Brian Piper...Dan Murphy saw his consecutive game hit streak end at eight, but Merrifield extended his to eight...Asked what he would have done if pinch hitter McLemore had forced the game into extra innings, Maddon said, "I'd have put Mark Bonner at third and Merrifield at short. McLemore can hit but he can't make the turn on that knee."...

Midland takes to the road for 12 days and 10 games after tonight to play East Division teams Tulsa and Shreveport...

TERRY WILLIAMSON

Matson, Bullitt never existed

James Lary, a former Midland High standout in both the discus and shot put who now toils for Odessa College, is on a quest to set the "record" straight and I wish him luck.

Lary, who takes records seriously, was a little perplexed over the weekend when stories throughout West Texas stated that Darrell Davis' toss of 62-8¾ was a record effort at the Region I track meet in Lubbock. Lary says it isn't so, and the following is a note he dropped to the paper.

"As nice as it would be for Midland High's Darrell Davis to have broken the Region I 5A shot put record with a 62-8¾, he did not quite do that because the record is 64-11 by Randy Matson in 1963. Even if Matson did not have the record, Jerry Bullitt of El Paso Andress threw a 63-0 in 1980, so Darrell's mark is the third best in the Region I 5A shot put. Wish Darrell had broken the mark!!"

I REALLY don't know how to soften the blow to Lary, but Randy Matson and Jerry Bullitt never existed. They must be figments of some sports writer's imagination.

Matson and Bullitt are not real people as far as the Texas Tech women of the Health, Physical Edcuation and Recreation Department are concerned. It is this group that took over the Region I 5A meet in 1981 and it seems that they just wiped out all previous records prior to that time. This group is powerful because they can wipe names from the record books any time they please.

It seems the old records were lost when the Region I meet was given to the women, and as far as I know, there has been no effort to correct the situation.

It is in the field events where the records loss really hurts. Most of the running events were changed from yards to meters after 1980, so that made it possible to have a new set of records. Most of the running records are sound.

However, in the field events, the Region I qualifiers are still competing on a feet and inches basis, like always. There is a dire need to bring those old records into focus and there seems to be no movement in that direction.

IT'S REALLY disturbing because you feel like records can be changed at a mere whim. Golden efforts of the past can be lost forever, and in this case, have.

Lary's figures are correct, but Davis is listed as the shot put king by Region I officials. They could care less about the likes of Olympian Matson.

Davis' record is a bit tainted, to say the least, but officially, he owns the record.

Another snafu by Region I officials during last Friday's preliminaries caused a stir. Odessa Permian hurdler Gerry Guster was given a Region I record of 34.7 in the intermediate hurdles. It came out on the result sheets and noted as a record. That would have been a national high school mark in a race that Guster admitted, "I didn't run very well. I was really tight."

The time was really 37.4 seconds and was noted by the press as such since this writer cheated and looked over the shoulders of officials when the times were posted.

IT WAS then that a Tech official approached me and said, "Sir, you can't look at those times." I asked, "Why?" And the reply was, "I don't know, but you just can't look at them."

I thought results should be public knowledge, especially since the final sheets had errors in them.

Maybe its time for Class 5A to find a new home for its Region I competition. I, for one, would like to see Odessa or San Angelo take over the meet. Tech really doesn't seem to care anymore.

Kid Flyers skate over Nordiques

Edmonton sets playoff record

Stanley Cup Playoffs

Murray Craven and Joe Paterson were a couple of kids just trying to get started in the National Hockey League with the Detroit Red Wings. Then, suddenly, they were sent from an NHL also-ran to the Philadelphia Flyers, who developed into the best team in the league during the regular season.

That trade, on the day before the season began, was a fruitful one for the Flyers, who gave up veteran Darryl Sittler. Tuesday night, Craven and Paterson punctuated that as they led the Flyers to a 4-2 beating of the Quebec Nordiques to deadlock the best-of-seven Wales Conference final at one game apiece.

The semifinal series continues with games in Philadelphia on Tuesday and Sunday. The Flyers have won 19 straight games at the Spectrum since Feb. 2.

Craven had a goal and an assist and Paterson, who scored in the third period, banged bodies and frustrated the Nordiques all night. It was the first time that Craven, 20, and Paterson, 24, had scored in Stanley Cup play.

"I'd had so many chances I wondered if I'd ever get one," said Craven, who had been robbed a half-dozen times by Quebec goaie Mario Gosselin and also had hit a goalpost. "On Dave's (Poulin) goal, I probably shouldn't have tried to shoot because the puck was bouncing but I was anxious. I was feeling the pressure."

CRAVEN HAD two whacks at the puck midway through the first period with the Flyers shorthanded after Quebec defenseman Mario Marois' pass bounced off the endboards and out in front of the net. But Gosselin stopped the first one and the second went wide.

"I got it back at the side (of the net) and threw it to Dave."

Poulin poked the puck into an empty net for a 1-0 lead, then left the game with muscle spasms in his chest.

With Poulin and right wing Tim Kerr (strained knee) sidelined, the Flyers were missing 84 goals from their attack.

"We realized it. Before the game, we didn't say much about Tim being out," noted Paterson. "But the guys knew they had to pick it up. Then, during the game I looked around and saw Dave wasn't there and knew we had to pick it up even more. We're that kind of team. When somebody is missing, we make up for it by working harder."

The Flyers completely shut down the Nordiques, who couldn't find any skating or passing or shooting room for the first two periods. Craven broke through 2:18 into the second period with a blistering 40-foot slapshot which zipped past Gosselin's glove.

"I just shot it anywhere," Craven said. "I wasn't sure he saw it because there were a lot of players in front."

When Ilkka Sinisalo took a drop pass from Peter Zezel and slapped it past Gosselin's glove with only 21 seconds left in the middle period, the Flyers had the cushion they needed.

"We had the jump when we went out there," said Flyers defenseman Mark Howe. "We went out and skated and hit great and we used our heads."

The Nordiques got third-period goals by Jean-Francois Sauve on a power play and by Mark Kumpel with 19 seconds left, while Paterson intercepted a clearing pass by Quebec rookie Bruce Bell and scored on a backhander for Philly.

Quebec was not only frustrated by the Flyers but by referee Bob Myers, who made some questionable calls and missed some others. Particularly galling to the Nordiques was an incident late in the second period when Peter Stastny was cut by Ron Sutter's stick and left the ice with blood streaming from his face. No penalty was called.

"We've never won a game with him refereeing," said Stastny, the hero of Game 1 with an overtime goal. "It's always accidents to him.

"But there are always over 100 minutes in penalties and we lose. We have to forget the referee."

Oilers 7, Black Hawks 3

Jari Kurri scored three goals to lead the Edmonton Oilers to a record-breaking 7-3 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks.

The victory was Edmonton's 12th straight National Hockey League playoff win, breaking the record previously shared with the Montreal Canadiens and the Boston Bruins. The series resumes Thursday night for Game 3 in Chicago.

Kurri snapped a 1-1 tie in the first period, scored again at 8:26 of the third to give Edmonton a two-goal margin and got his third into an empty net.

Glenn Anderson, with two, one into an empty net, Paul Coffey and Larry Melnyk also scored for Edmonton.

Bob Murray in the first period and Darryl Sutter in the second gave Chicago 1-1 and 2-2 ties. Behn Wilson scored late in the third.

The Hawks were attempting to slow the Oilers down in the third period, hoping for a break.

But they sat back too much. The Edmonton offense, the most potent in the NHL, took advantage of a Chicago error eight minutes into the period to set up Kurri's second goal of the night.

The Hawks rebounded well from their 11-2 whipping in Game 1, using strong forechecking and a more physical game to keep the Oilers in check.

Defenseman Doug Wilson, playing in obvious pain with the groin injury he suffered in the Norris Division final, brought some stability to the Chicago defense.

The Hawks had the early scoring chances, actually beating goaltender Grant Fuhr about four minutes into the game. But defenseman Charlie Huddy was in the crease to make the save.

Anderson, physically involved with several Hawks, including goaltender Murray Bannerman, throughout the game, opened the scoring on a power play.

Mark Messier caught Anderson breaking in on goal off the left side and Anderson's quick shot went in under the cross bar.

Troy Murray, assigned to check Wayne Gretzky, continued to do a fine job. Gretzky didn't have a shot on net and his favorite sidekick, Kurri, had three in the first period but none in the second.

REBELS

Another area Johnson wasn't to pleased with was his team's five-hit performance against Eckles in what he thought was a well pitched game.

"Small pitched good, real well," said Johnson. "Both of them did, not overpowering but good. I thought we should have hit Eckles better than we did. We were chasing a lot of bad pitches and I thought we had better hitters than that."

Monterey coach Bobby Moegle was also impressed with the game's pitching, saying, "Small's as good a pitcher as we've seen in our league. We knew he was good and could offset Eckles. We knew we needed a couple of breaks to beat them and Lee gave us a couple."

Small, who had a couple of offensive problems, missing one sac-bunt and being thrown out when Rivas missed another, was disappointed by the defeat. "We should have won it, we played good enough to win," he said. "I had a good enough day pitching and we should have won. I started out bad and then started to settle down. I had a good defense behind me, I can't say I didn't. We lost, but I'm proud of them."

Now the series is coming to Midland for the if-necessary doubleheader Saturday at 1 p.m. at Angel Stadium. Moegle is expecting the series to go three.

"Lee is a quality club," said Moegle. "We've been rated in the Top 10 all year and we thought Lee should have been up there beside us. I expect this series to go three games and I expect to see Small and Eckles in Game 3."

For Game 2, Moegle is planning on throwing Brad Walker, 6-3, and then coming back with Eckles, 12-0, if needed.

For Lee, Johnson is thinking about starting George Matta, 9-2, and "probably Small and maybe (Mike) Rittenberry (5-2)," for the third game.

Triple Crown losing appeal

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Preakness Stakes has lost its built-in centerpiece, the Kentucky Derby winner, for the second time in four years, raising speculation about the future importance of the Triple Crown series.

Owner Dennis Diaz decided on Tuesday to keep Spend A Buck out of the May 18 Preakness at Pimlico Race Course, preferring instead to use an extra nine days of rest to prepare his charge for the potential big payoff of the $1 million Jersey Derby on May 27.

The defection of Spend A Buck marks the second time in four years, and the seventh in the last 35, that a Derby winner hasn't come back in the Preakness. In 1982, trainer Eddie Gregson held out stretch-running Gato del Sol, preferring to wait another three weeks for a start in the Belmont Stakes.

Winning the Triple Crown has generally been the goal of owners, trainers and jockeys for years, but the strain of winning the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont over a five-week period can take its toll. And now there are some alternatives, such as Garden State Park's $2 million Jersey Derby Challenge, and the multi-million dollar Breeder's Cup series in November.

FINANCIAL WIZARD Robert Brennan came up with the Challenge this year after rebuilding Garden State Park, which was destroyed by fire in 1977.

Not only did he schedule the Jersey Derby just nine days after the Preakness, but also offered a $1 million purse that includes $600,000 for the winner — more than the total purse of the Preakness.

Additionally, Garden State offered a $1 million bonus for any horse which won the Cherry Hill Mile, the Garden State Stakes or the Kentucky Derby, and then the Jersey Derby. The bonus was $2 million if the same horse won all four races.

Spend A Buck was an impressive winner of the first three, the last by a stunning 5½ lengths in 2:00 1-5, the third-fastest time in Kentucky Derby history.

Pimlico General Manager Chick Lang contended a Triple Crown championship would do much more to enhance the eventual stud value of Spend A Buck, but Diaz has downplayed Spend A Buck's breeding future in favor of the horse's racing present.

Lang vented his anger at losing the Derby winner against Brennan, contending he "has no regard for anybody, or anything."

"I can't compete with Brennan," Lang said. "I drive a Ford, cut my own grass, and bring a sandwich to work in a brown bag. But when I go to sleep, I rest, and when I look into the mirror to shave, I don't have to apologize to anybody. I don't feel guilty."

Brennan, however, said Diaz received no inducements to enter the Jersey Derby, and wasn't guaranteed to have the five opponents required by the track for a $1 million payoff.

"One thing that you can't do in horse racing is provide guarantees at any level," said Brennan. "The conditions are the conditions."

Although some experts have estimated Spend A Buck could be worth $40 million with a Triple Crown victory, Diaz said he is taking an equally attractive financial route.

"Don't you think we have some lead in our pencil and we can figure it out?" he said, adding that Spend A Buck will have a chance to challenge John Henry as thoroughbred racing's all-time money leader.

"We are tickled to death to have a shot at a $2.6 million payday," Diaz said.

"I've heard from people about tradition and tradition and tradition and you owe this to racing," he said. "But those are the same people telling you the Preakness is more lucrative."

LANG, WHOSE grandfather trained 1903 Kentucky Derby winner Judge Himes and whose father rode Reigh Count to victory in the 1928 Derby, said that as a traditionalist he would have preferred that Spend A Buck try to become the 12th Triple Crown champion.

"Actually, his defection will increase the size of the field for the Preakness," Lang said. "Many owners and trainers were hesitant about running their 3-year-olds against Spend A Buck, but now I'm sure we will have a bigger field."

The 1 3-16-mile Preakness, which will be held for the 110th time, is limited to 14 starters with the greatest career money earnings at the time of the race.

Skywalker, the sixth-place finisher in the Kentucky Derby, was withdrawn from the probable field Monday after he was discovered to have suffered a stress fracture of the lower left foreleg in the race at Churchill Downs.

Jones, Pace honored as Lee's top '84-85 athletes

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland Lee's Walter Jones and Megan Pace were named as the top Rebel athletes for 1984-85 Tuesday night during the annual Spring Sports Banquet while taking time out to bid farewell to 24-year head track coach Sam Volpe, who will be retiring at the end of the school year.

Jones and Pace headed the group of athletes who helped Lee stage one of its most impressive years in sports, which included playoff berths in both football and baseball and district championships in cross country, basketball and track.

Jones will be remembered as one of Lee's all-time great athletes. He was a three-year star in both football and track, setting a list of firsts that will challenge any who follow him.

Jones is the first Rebel to have back-to-back 1,000-yard rushing seasons in football, helping to vault Lee into the state playoffs two years in a row. Lee posted an 8-2 playoff mark in football. He also was the first District 4-5A performer to win four firsts in the district's annual track meet and earned 11 Region I berths over three years. He is the first Lee athlete to win three state berths in one year in track and will perform in Austin Saturday in that state meet. He also set four school records in track with 21.03 in the 200 meters, 10.30 in the 100, 24-0 in the long jump and anchoring Lee's sprint relay in 41.0.

Pace, too, leaves her mark on Lee sports history, becoming one of the most well-rounded Rebels. She was a three-year starter in volleyball, played basketball three years and had two years of track and cross country. She earned All-District honors in both basketball and volleyball.

In addition, Pace carries a 4.0 grade point average and was given a special award with Derek Westbrook and Craig Kamradt for scholastic acheivement. The award was presented in conjuction with the Army Reserve and Scholastic Coach Magazine. Kamradt also has a 4.0 grade point average while Westbrook owns a 3.8. Basketball's Brian Marczynski was also noted for his being picked to the All-State Academic basketball team with a 4.0 grade point.

Westbrook had another distinction of participating on three district championship teams in cross country, basketball and track.

The school also presented Coach Volpe with a special gift certificate, marking the end of a career that brought Lee five district track championships, two cross country titles and five state track champions to date.

The banquet honored all the sports at the school except football, which had its own banquet earlier this year. The Lee baseball team was unable to attend the banquet due to a playoff date in Lubbock against Monterey.

Volpe noted that he was especially pleased with this year's track team, which set six school records on the way to the district crown. He made special note of his 1600 relay team which posted a 3:12.5 at the Region I meet last Saturday, saying that was the fifth best time posted nationally this year and was third in the region competition, failing to earn a state berth.

Paul Stueckler introduced his district champion basketball team, winners of 35 games, naming junior Greg Johnson as the Fighting Heart award winner and Westbrook as the best defensive player. Marzynski was noted for his scoring honors and post-season honors of All-District, All-South Plains and All-Academic.

Diane White was noted for becoming the first Rebel girl to earn a state track berth, and she, too, is Austin bound Saturday for the state long jump. She was also All-District in basketball.

Shari Salkin and Bobby Gee were All-District performers in golf while Kelly Simmons and Alan Reed were named as the outstanding swimmers. The Lee girls placed third in the district tennis meet during a season that saw the Rebel netters win 15 individual titles along the way.

Denise Hatch was named as the outstanding performer in girls basketball on a team that tied for second in district with no starters and only three returning letterman back from a district championship team.

Ueberroth drug plan draws fire

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the baseball players union says he's not impressed with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's new plan to institute mandatory drug testing for all baseball personnel — except major league players.

"It's grandstanding," said Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, which must give its approval before Ueberroth's plan can be applied to big leaguers. He made the statement Tuesday night, hours after Ueberroth announced the program.

"We already have a joint drug program and it's working," said Fehr, who added that he believes Ueberroth's announcement is an attempt to pressure the union to agree to mandatory testing. "We've always felt that mandatory testing was demeaning."

UEBERROTH SAID he will ask that testing for major leaguers be included as part of the joint drug program administered by the Player Relations Committee and Players Association.

"We will include everyone from the owners on down," Ueberroth said in a statement released by his office. "This means it will include more than 3,000 minor-league players, the American and National Leagues, scouts, the major- league front office personnel ... everyone."

If approved, it would make baseball the only sport with mandatory drug testing. Ueberroth said he would outline details of the plan "in the very near future."

Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott said she was "100 percent" in favor of Ueberroth's plan.

"I guess if you ask everyone else to do it, you should be willing to do it yourself," she said. "A lot of companies do it, and they got the shock of their lives when they did."

"If that's what he (Ueberroth) wants to do, I will be pleased to submit to it and have all our people submit to it," said New York Mets President Fred Wilpon. "I suspect he wants everybody to show that we are an example too."

Mets' General Manager Frank Cashen said he had "no reservations about it.

"What he's trying to do is clean up the whole industry."

In contrast to Fehr, Bill Madlock, player representative of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said he expects there will eventually have to be some sort of drug testing program.

"I think the majority of players want it because the majority of players aren't drug users," Madlock said. "I wouldn't be surprised to see the Players Association agree to the tests, but I don't think it will be (in current negotiations) because some players don't want them.

"I know guys who are scared to death to have a bad year because they will be suspected of using drugs. That creates a lot of pressure on guys, pressure the public doesn't understand."

BASEBALL, LIKE other sports, has had its share of players involved with drugs in recent years.

A year-and-a-half ago, four then-members of the Kansas City Royals were sentenced to jail terms after drug convictions. The four — Willie Wilson, Willie Aikens, Jerry Martin and Vida Blue — were suspended by Ueberroth's predecessor, Bowie Kuhn, although the suspensions were eventually cut short by an arbitrator. Kuhn also suspended Steve Howe of the Los Angeles Dodgers, although Howe was never convicted of any offense.

A federal grand jury in Pittsburgh is currently investigating cocaine trafficking among National League players. A dozen players from nine National League teams have testified under immunity from prosecution.

An NBC News report Tuesday night said the federal investigation was being expanded to other cities, including Atlanta and St. Louis. Sam Reich, a lawyer who represents some unspecified players, told WPXI-TV, an NBC affiliate in Pittsburgh that in his opinion, "the allegfed activities are of a fairly moderate scale."

"In my opinion," Reich said, "it is unlikely any player would be a target of prosecution unless perjury has been committed."

Portland Trail Blazers, Utah Jazz fall from playoffs

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers and Earvin "Magic" Johnson have made believers of the Portland Trail Blazers.

"I still think they are the best," Portland Coach Jack Ramsay said Tuesday night after the Lakers defeated the Trail Blazers 139-120 to win their National Basketball Association series four games to one.

"This is a stronger Laker team than the one that won the league championship in '82," Ramsay added.

"I can't imagine anybody being better than Magic," said the Trail Blazers' Darnell Valentine. "He's the best, the consummate player."

Johnson, taking charge of the game, scored 34 points and had 19 assists and nine rebounds as the Lakers advanced to the Western Conference finals against Denver.

THE LAKERS' triumph over Portland came on the heels of Los Angeles' first loss in seven playoff games, a 115-107 setback Sunday in Portland.

In that contest, the Trail Blazers' trapping defense had forced 28 Laker turnovers, with Johnson scoring 31 points but also giving up the ball frequently.

NBA Playoffs

"I'd been sort of staying out of it, getting the other players involved," Johnson said of the Lakers' offense. "But I talked with Coach Riley and he told me to get more involved.

"I got involved; I got the points, but I also got the assists. I still kept everybody else involved," said Johnson, who suffered a mildly bruised thigh muscle in the third period but continued to play.

"We really wanted to end the series," he said.

"Magic drove the middle like a Mack truck," Riley said. "He charged up through there and forced a lot of fouls, got a lot of free throws (Johnson was nine of 16 from the line)."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 25 points, including 10 in the third period as the Lakers took command by building a 100-83 lead.

Bob McAdoo came off the bench to score 20, including a 16-foot jumper that put Los Angeles ahead 45-43 in the second quarter as they took the lead for good.

Reserve Jerome Kersey led the Portland scoring with 18 points. Clyde Drexler had 17 and Valentine 15.

"They're my pick to win it all," Portland's Kiki Vandeweghe, who had 14 points, said of the Lakers. "The Lakers have a very good team and we have nothing to be ashamed of by losing to them."

Looking ahead to Denver, Riley said, "It's going to be a shootout, a high-scoring series. I'm looking forward to it."

Abdul-Jabbar said, "Denver's real tough. They match up real well with us. They've got good athletes and they like to run, the same game we play."

"Playing against Portland the way they played the last two games should help us," added Lakers' guard Byron Scott. "That aggressive, physical type of play is what we need to deal with in the next series and the finals, if we make it."

Portland's Ramsay pretty much agreed with that observation, commenting, "They have to increase their physical play. If they get out of the West, they are going to get some very physical games against the East."

Nuggets 116, Jazz 104

All-Star forwards Alex English and Calvin Natt led the way as Denver bombed Utah 43-23 in the first quarter and coasted to victory in the fifth and final game of their series.

Natt scored 11 of his 21 points in the first five minutes of the game to boost the Nuggets into an 18-8 lead. English hit for 12 of his 30 points in the opening period.

Late in the second period, English's fast-break basket made it 69-39. Utah, which got 22 points from guard Rickey Green, whittled the lead to eight points with 2½ minutes left in the game, but never seriously threatened.

Denver will have to start the series against Los Angeles without injured point guard Lafayette Lever, but Coach Doug Moe believes the Nuggets have a chance.

"If I had to wager on the Lakers' series, I'd bet on LA, but that doesn't mean we can't beat them," Moe said. "If we play as aggressively as we have been, we'll have a chance. I've felt all along we were the team in the West with the best chance to beat them."

Celtics angry over Piston rally

More Sports, Pages 8-10B

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics are angry at themselves for letting Detroit climb out of a playoff hole. On Tuesday, the champions took that anger out on each other.

"The intensity level in practice today, the way guys were going at each other is as much as we've had in any playoff game, if not more," said Boston's M.L. Carr. "If we can carry over the toughness we had today... there's no doubt what will happen."

Boston, he said, would beat the Pistons Wednesday night when their National Basketball Association quarterfinal series returns here with the teams tied 2-2.

THE CELTICS blew out the Pistons by 34 points in the opener and grabbed a 2-0 lead before dropping a pair of games in Detroit. Now, the best-of-seven contest is reduced to a two-of-three struggle for survival.

"Everybody's pretty ticked off about the way it's transpired, letting them back from 2-0," said Celtics forward Kevin McHale. "They're ready to play some ball."

"We can't continue to play like this and win the championship," added Boston's Cedric Maxwell. "If we're going to win the championship we're going to have to play with enthusiasm.

"Sometimes we turn it on and turn it off, and I think it caught up with us in Detroit. We really didn't think they'd play that well and we had the games under control until Tyler and Vinnie got hot."

Terry Tyler poured in 16 points in the fourth quarter of Detroit's 125-117 victory in Game 3, and Vinnie Johnson scored 22 in the final period of Game 4 to rally the Pistons from an 11-point deficit to a 102-99 victory.

"It won't happen" Wednesday night, Carr claimed.

Tyler and Johnson have led Detroit's substitutes who have dominated Boston's benchwarmers. Detroit's second-stringers have outscored Boston's 155-89 in the series, and Tyler and Johnson have combined for 110.

"I think it's going to come down to the benches the rest of the way," said Tyler. "After the grind of an 82-game season, bench play is important in the playoffs."

Boston Coach K.C. Jones said he didn't know if he would use his substitutes more than the 32 minutes they played in Sunday's fourth game when they scored just 13 points. Detroit got 80 minutes and 58 points from its bench Sunday.

"I may and I may not," said Jones. "It depends on what I see out there."

"I don't think there's going to be much time for a lot of guys on the bench but if they do get to play and if they give us production we're going to be tough to beat," said Boston's Larry Bird.

BIRD SAID the Celtics also need to go to their fastbreak more and improve their defense.

In last year's Eastern Conference semifinals, Boston won two games at home, then lost two in New York. But the Celtics won Game 5 here and took the series in seven games.

They also won the fifth game of the finals at home against Los Angeles to take a 3-2 lead en route to their 15th NBA title.

Boston has returned home tied 2-2 in 14 series since 1962 and won the fifth game each time.

"We've been through tough series before but this is going to bring the best out of us," said Bird, who had just two points in the fourth quarters while the last two games were on the line.

"They say Bird looks tired," said Detroit Coach Chuck Daly. "But he has a way of rising when they need him."

Bulls' Jordan expected to be flop in NBA

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Chicago Bulls rookie Michael Jordan said Tuesday he thought he would be "a flop" when he arrived in the National Basketball Association because people expected more from him than he would be able to deliver.

Jordan, speaking at a news conference, said he got advice to overcome his fears from North Carolina basketball Coach Dean Smith. Jordan provided the winning basket in 1982 to give Smith his first national collegiate championship.

"I thought I would go in and be a flop," said Jordan, who forfeited his final year of eligibility at North Carolina to join the Bulls. "Everyone was expecting so much. I experienced this before."

The 6-foot-6 Jordan said Smith told him to relax and play up to his capability.

"He's helped me get through times like that. I learned how to play my natural game," he said. "He said to treat it like something you really enjoy and not to treat it like a job."

Once he relaxed, Jordan produced more than 29 points per game and helped guide the Bulls into the NBA playoffs. He said some people felt Smith kept him from playing the type of game that he showed the pros.

"I feel that as I went through college, Coach Smith taught me a lot of things that other coaches couldn't," Jordan said. "Once I got on this level, I just started putting everything together and I started to blossom. I want to give him a lot of credit."

Jordan also talked about his nationally popular "Air Jordan" basketball shoes. Manufactured by Nike, the original design was banned by NBA officials. After talks with attorneys and the NBA, Jordan was allowed to wear a modified version of his shoe which showed more white than red and black. He said the league didn't know he was wearing what turned out to be his own line of shoes.

"I was only fined a couple of games. From that point, Nike, me and the NBA designed a shoe that was really unique, but was acceptable to the NBA," Jordan said. "I never thought the marketing and the PR and all that came along with an NBA contract."

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: New business developments will soon have you riding high. Let well-meaning friends and relatives know that they must not interfere in your personal affairs. September should bring excellent investment news. Someone special enters your life. A change in lifestyle or eating habits improves your physical fitness. College-bound students find fresh success. Do not let something precious slip away while you focus on career interests. Home life deserves top priority. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Batting star Tony Gwynn, actress-photographer Candice Bergen, actor Albert Finney, "60 Minutes"' Mike Wallace, Cincinnati Reds pitcher John Stuper, slugger Ron Jackson, tennis' Pancho Gonzales, actress Glenda Jackson.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): To make the most progress today, work at a steady pace. An old bond is broken, but all you feel is relief. Call a good friend and issue an invitation. Curb spending.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The financial information you obtain now will benefit you in the near future. Grown offspring can be a source of irritation. Choose romantic partners with greater care. Curb extravagance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Sign contracts and agreements only after reading the fine print. You would be wise to adopt a wait-and-see attitude where a financial matter is concerned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Curb a tendency to spend too much time daydreaming and you will enjoy greater success. Domestic harmony prevails if you avoid discussing controversial topics at family gatherings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Work at a steady pace and you can accomplish a lot today. Give your subordinates more freedom to make decisions. Team efforts should be highly successful. Romance flourishes when you are considerate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Business plans could come to a screeching halt. Look for ways around an unexpected obstacle. Influential friends play a major role in a financial success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Financial losses are possible unless you start acting in a more conservative manner. Refuse to work on a commission basis unless guaranteed a minimum return. Romance is more satisfying than in the past.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A business or romantic partner plays a significant role in your affairs. Be careful not to underestimate someone's contributions to a successful project. Pay bills promptly to protect credit rating.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Seek the company of someone who understands you and what you are helping to achieve. Your business opportunities will be greater once you gain more expertise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Profits rise when you and a business partner learn to cooperate with each other. Take a positive approach to a tough personal problem. Stroking someone's ego will work wonders!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Know your own mind and stick to your plans. Your most valuable business commodity is your experience. Recognize its financial worth to others and demand a fair wage.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do not panic if a message goes astray. A face-to-face meeting straightens everything out. A friend or relative shares welcome news. Be realistic about a personal relationship that is going nowhere.

TAKE YOUR TRICKS

North-South vulnerable. West deals.

	NORTH ♠ Q 7 ♡ J 10 7 2 ◇ 9 7 6 ♣ 10 8 3 2
WEST ♠ K 10 6 5 4 ♡ A Q 5 ◇ 8 ♣ A 7 5 4		EAST ♠ 9 3 2 ♡ 9 6 4 3 ◇ 10 4 3 ♣ K 9 6
	SOUTH ♠ A J 8 ♡ K 8 ◇ A K Q J 5 2 ♣ Q J

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	3 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

When you don't have a sure way to fulfill your contract, it is often sound policy to run a long suit. The defenders might find it difficult to discard. French internationalist and writer Jean Paul Meyer spotted this hand at the recent Spring North American Championships in Montreal.

Sitting South was world champion Peter Weichsel of Miami. His decision to bid three no trump was an eminently practical solution to a difficult bidding problem.

West led his fourth-best spade, won by dummy's queen. Since declarer had eight tricks and this was the only time he was likely to be in dummy, there was a temptation to try for the contract via a finesse for the queen of hearts. Weichsel spurned this in favor of an end play. He ran his diamonds to reduce the hand to this position:

♠ K 10		♠ 9 3
♡ A Q		♡ 9 6
◇ —		◇ —
	♠ A J ♡ K 8 ◇ — ♣ Q J

Now declarer simply exited with a club, and the defenders were left without resource. Assume that West wins the ace of clubs and exits with a club to East's king. (The same position arises if West allows East to win the first club.) If East returns a spade, declarer rises with the ace and throws West in with the king of spades. West can take the ace of hearts, but he must present declarer with the fulfilling trick by leading a heart to the king.

It is no better if East returns a heart. West can take his two heart tricks, but he must then lead away from his king of spades into declarer's ace-jack tenace for the ninth trick.

Note that West must keep both heart honors. If he does not, declarer simply plays a heart to set up his ninth trick right away.

Schroeder's hemorrhage may be caused by diabetes, doctors say

William Schroeder

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Doctors said the hemorrhaging that sent artificial heart patient William Schroeder back to a hospital occurred in the left side of the brain and may have been caused by his diabetes, his family physician said.

The 53-year-old Schroeder, the world's longest-lived implant patient, was in critical but stable condition Tuesday evening at Humana Hospital Audubon, said Donna Hazle, the hospital's director of public relations.

A CAT scan, a series of computer-enhanced X-rays, showed Tuesday that the bleeding had stopped, Ms. Hazle said.

Schroeder was admitted Monday, one month after his release, after tests revealed he had suffered a brain hemorrhage.

Dr. William C. DeVries, the implant surgeon, and Schroeder's other doctors did not immediately want to disclose details of Schroeder's condition, including where the bleeding occurred and the possible causes, Humana Inc. spokesman Bob Irvine said.

But Dr. J.P. Salb, Schroeder's hometown physician who talked with DeVries after Schroeder was readmitted, said the hemorrhage occurred in the left side of the brain, which controls the right side of the body.

Doctors were considering several explanations for the hemorrhage, including that blood vessels in Schroeder's brain might have been weakened by his diabetes, Salb said.

Schroeder has been plagued by setbacks since receiving the Jarvik-7 mechanical pump Nov. 25. After the strokes in December, he suffered mild seizures, fever and a flu-like illness early this year.

He had been living in an apartment across the street from the hospital since April 6.

Schroeder was described as being alert and responsive to verbal commands Tuesday, and it was not known whether he had suffered another stroke in conjunction with the hemorrhaging.

"He is able to move hands, arms — we're not seeing some of the classic stroke symptoms," said Irvine.

Salb said Schroeder seemed to be aware of people in the room around him. Schroeder's family visited him several times on Tuesday.

"Margaret (Schroeder) said that when she was in there he squeezed her hand when she talked to him," Salb said.

PEKING (AP) — An exhibit of 220 classic creations of French designer Yves Saint Laurent didn't fit too well with idea of style in the minds of Chinese design students, textile workers and officials who viewed the show.

"Chinese do not like sexy clothes," Wang Meng, head of the Chinese Writers' Association, said Tuesday of outfits ranging from a 1959 low-cut red cocktail dress with a bubble skirt to a 1985 brown leopard coat.

Said Peking textile factory manager An Jing, "I do not understand the styles."

The exhibit, at Peking's gold-roofed Palace of Fine Arts, was the first of its kind in China.

Once confined to sexless, baggy blue and gray tunics and slacks, Chinese now are encouraged to be more clothes-conscious. Fashion shows are held regularly in big city department stores.

At least one viewer, the wife of Communist Party leader Hu Yaobang, was appreciative. "It is beautiful," said Li Zhao, as she eyed a 1987 black silk crepe afternoon dress.

Li Zhao, who wore a matronly looking tan jacket with wide lapels, matching tan slacks and a light colored neckerchief, accepted an autographed black and gray striped kerchief from the 48-year-old fashion designer.

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — "God loves us all and we should also love each other," Mother Teresa said as she arrived here for a 24-hour visit, during which she was scheduled to meet with President Lt. Gen. H.M. Ershad.

The 74-year-old Nobel Peace Prize winner told reporters on her arrival from Calcutta, India, for her second visit to Bangladesh, "Our love for the distressed and helpless people should be demonstrated in action."

The nobel laureate, whose Missionaries of Charity has six centers in Bangladesh, is scheduled to meet today with Ershad.

Stacy Keach

LONDON (AP) — Actor Stacy Keach plans to marry Polish-born actress Malgosia Tomassi when he finishes a jail sentence for cocaine smuggling, his publicity agents said.

Keach, 43, who played a tough-guy detective in the television series "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer," was sentenced Dec. 7 to nine months in prison after he was arrested at London's Heathrow Airport in April 1984 with 1.3 ounces of the drug.

A statement released Tuesday by publicity agents Rogers and Cowan said Keach expected to marry 28-year-old Miss Tomassi in June. The actor hopes to be released early for good behavior.

Keach and his wife, actress Jill Donohue, have been separated for a year, and he is in the middle of divorce proceedings against her, the statement said.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Garrison Keillor, host of public radio's "Prairie Home Companion," said he planned to stay in Minnesota even if funding to repair the theater the show had to vacate is not approved by the Legislature.

"I'm 42 years old and I've lived in Minnesota all my life," Keillor said Tuesday. "There's no reason for me to go anywhere else."

Keillor's statement contradicted reports that he was considering moving the show out of Minnesota if the theater was not repaired and came a day after a Senate subcommittee approved a $200,000 appropriation for the repair job.

Prairie Home was forced to move out of St. Paul World Theater, its home for nearly a decade, after the roof began falling in on customers last year. The show is now broadcast from the Orpheum Theater.

In March, Minnesota Public Radio announced a $3.3 million fund-raising campaign for renovations, but only $450,000 had been raised, said Alison Circle, the network's public information coordinator.

The ambitious renovation project would include reconstructing the original plasterwork, installing gas lights and building theater boxes.

Players galore at Nelson

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Gary Player is bringing something different with him to the Byron Nelson Golf Classic this week.

His son.

During practice rounds this week, Player and his 23-year-old son, Wayne, walked the fairways together at the Las Colinas Sports Club. Tournament action begins Thursday.

While the elder Player has been on the PGA Tour since 1957 and won the Masters and British Open three times each, the PGA twice and the U.S. Open once, Wayne Player hasn't really come close.

He is at the Byron Nelson because he received one of the eight tournament exemptions.

His father says that's just fine.

"It's a real thrill, a thrill to have him here," Gary Player told the Dallas Times Herald. "I don't get to play with him that often. It's wonderful for father-son relationships, and I've always believed in doing things with all my children."

The Players also worked together last week at the Tallahassee Open. Gary Player shot an 18-under 270 to finish tied for second one stroke back. Wayne Player missed the cut by one stroke.

The elder Player, 49, was leading the tournament going into the final round when he shot a 4-under 68. But Jeff Sluman shot his third round of 65, edging Player and Kenny Knox by a stroke.

Wayne Player has played this year on the South African tour. His last time out in South Africa, he was tied for fourth with nine holes to go "before playing badly" and finishing 13th, he said.

"I've been playing and practicing a lot," he said.

But in spite of growing up with a father whose golf earnings are nearing the $2 million mark, Wayne Player is the only one of six children to dabble in the sport. And he insists dad did not encourage him to pick up the clubs.

"I don't know why I started to play ... I don't know," Wayne Player said.

After he did, he discovered how difficult the challenge could be.

Giants win 'worst' battle

Carter sinks Braves with slam

Associated Press

When the Pittsburgh Pirates opened the season with good pitching but little hitting, Manager Chuck Tanner figured things had to change. He was right.

"Now we're hitting fairly well and the pitching hasn't been good," Tanner lamented after the Pirates dropped a 5-3 decision to the San Francisco Giants in a game matching the National League's two worst teams. The Pirates fell to 8-16, last in the NL East, while the victory pulled the Giants, 10-15, within 1½ games of fifth place in the West.

The Pirates and Giants brought up the rear of their respective divisions a year ago and each is showing signs of doing so again. But Tanner, for one, isn't about to panic.

"I'm not discouraged ... I'm encouraged," Tanner said. "I think we've been playing better the last week."

As for Tuesday's game, Tanner added, "we had runners in scoring position but we didn't get the big hits when we needed them."

THE GIANTS struck for three runs in the third inning off Pittsburgh starter Lee Tunnell, 0-3, and never looked back. Dan Gladden tripled in the first run and scored the second on a wild pitch. Gary Rajsich capped the inning with a two-out single after walks to Jeff Leonard and Chili Davis.

Jose Uribe singled and stole second in the Giants fourth and came home on a throwing error by Pittsburgh third baseman Jim Morrison. Davis doubled and Rajsich singled him in to give the Giants a 5-1 edge in the fifth.

"We were struggling for runs early in the year, so when you get an early lead, it makes a difference," said Giants starter Jim Gott, 2-0, who was touched for five hits and two earned runs in seven innings. "I still believe we have a great hitting club and the batters are starting to come around now. That's a big help to the pitchers."

Mets 5, Braves 3

Pinch-hitter Mookie Wilson started the Mets' winning rally by drawing a leadoff walk from Atlanta reliever Zane Smith, 2-2. Wally Backman, attempting to sacrifice, was safe at first as Wilson went to second on a throwing error by Smith. Howard Johnson, whose homer in the seventh had tied the game 1-1, sacrificed the runners ahead.

In came Atlanta relief ace Bruce Sutter, who loaded the bases by intentionally walking Keith Hernandez. That set the stage for and injured Gary Carter, who slammed an eighth inning grand slam.

"Sometimes when you hurt in so many places, you just have to concentrate on the ball," said Carter, who put one of Sutter's famous split-finger fastballs into the left-field seats.

Claudell Washington homered for Atlanta in the fifth, and the Braves threatened in the ninth against the Mets' stopper, Jesse Orosco. Atlanta got runs on singles by Brad Komminsk and Rafael Ramirez and loaded the bases for Dale Murphy, the major-league home run and RBI leader. But Orosco fanned Murphy and then got Paul Zuvella to pop out to end the game and secure the victory for Ron Darling, 2-1.

National League

Astros 3, Expos 1

Bob Knepper, 3-0, worked 5⅓ innings before a one-hour, 46-minute rain delay interrupted the action, and Bill Dawley took care of things for the Astros when the weather cleared. Temperatures plunged to 44 degrees late in the game and the accompanying wind pushed the chill factor below freezing at Montreal.

Jerry Mumphrey, Bill Doran and Jerry Bailey had run-scoring singles for the Astros. Montreal's only run came when play resumed in the sixth — Terry Francona's single was misplayed in left by Cruz, allowing Hubie Brooks to score from first.

Padres 12, Cardinals 2

Kevin McReynolds had a two-run single and Carmelo Martinez a two-run double in the first inning as San Diego scored early and often against St. Louis starter Bob Forsch, 2-2. Terry Kennedy singled in two runs in the fourth and capped a three-run uprising with another two-run single in the sixth.

Dave Dravecky, 1-2, won his first game after suffering shutout losses in his first two decisions.

Cubs 4, Dodgers 2

Davey Lopes, a former Dodger, tied the game 1-1 with a sacrifice fly in the second inning, walked and scored a run in the fifth and singled in an insurance run in the sixth as the Cubs kept pace with the Mets atop the NL East. Dick Ruthven, 1-1, got the win with relief help from Ray Fontenot and Lee Smith, who earned his seventh save. Tom Brennan, 1-1, was the loser.

Reds 2, Phillies 0

Mario Soto, 5-2, and relievers John Franco and Ted Power combined on a five-hitter, but player-manager Pete Rose said third baseman Nick Esasky deserved a share of the credit.

"If it hadn't been for Esasky's great play, we'd still be playing," Rose said.

The Phillies had the potential tying runs on base when Mike Schmidt lashed what looked like a sure double down the third-base line. Esasky flagged down the drive to prevent a score, and Soto pitched out of the inning by getting a force at the plate and then making Glenn Wilson one of his six strikeout victims.

Kevin Gross, 2-3, was tagged for runs in the first on a triple by Ron Oester and in the fifth when Eddie Milner scored on a single by Cesar Cedeno.

Gerulaitis upset by Czech Vajda

NEW YORK (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis won the Tournament of Champions in 1980 and was runner-up in 1983.

This year, though, the 30-year-old right-hander didn't get past the first round, falling to Czechoslovakia's Marian Vajda 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 in Tuesday's play.

"I never saw him before," Gerulaitis said of his 20-year-old foe, "but I'm not surprised by anybody. Everybody plays good."

Top-seeded John McEnroe, seeking his third straight title on the clay courts at the famed West Side Tennis Club, was one of those who played "good" Tuesday, solving the windy conditions to crush Vince Van Patten 6-4, 6-0.

Other seeded players posting victories Tuesday included No. 3 Aaron Krickstein, No. 4 Henrik Sundstrom of Sweden, No. 5 Johan Kriek, No. 7 Brad Gilbert, No. 8 David Pate, No. 9 Terry Moor, No. 11 Victor Pecci of Paraguay, No. 14 Marty Davis, No. 15 Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland and No. 16 Horacio de la Pena of Argentina.

Also advancing into the second round were Yannick Noah of France and Jim Gurfein, both of whom had to capture qualifying tournaments on Monday to grab spots in the 64-player draw in this Nabisco Grand Prix tournament.

Noah easily crushed Josef Cihak of Czechoslovakia 6-2, 6-4, while Gurfein stopped Italy's Luca Bottazzi 7-6, 6-1.

"I thought I'd win all along, but it's not the first time I've lost in the first round," Gerulaitis said. "It's back to the drawing board, I guess."

Vajda, a first-year pro who qualified for this champions-only event when he won a $25,000 tournament in Neunkirchen, West Germany, said he was "shaky when I started and I thought it was not my day."

"But I started to work at it, play my game, keep the ball over the net, go for it. This is my biggest victory."

It wasn't McEnroe's biggest victory — but neither was it his easiest. The bubbling, smiling Van Patten played McEnroe on even terms through the first set before the world's top-ranked player got his game into gear.

"It was windy," McEnroe said when asked why he struggled in the early going. "I guess I wasn't ready for the conditions. I never felt in the groove. I can't remember the last time I played outdoors — maybe the first time in six months."

When he made the adjustments, though, it was simply a matter of time before McEnroe advanced into the second round, where he will face another young Czech, Jaro Navratil.

Krickstein, back on his favorite surface — clay — had no problems subduing Hans-Pedter Kandler of Austria 6-1, 6-1, and Sundstrom stopped fellow Swede Jonas Svensson 6-4, 6-2.

Kriek had his problems — both with his opponent and his own game — before ousting Christophe Roger-Vasselin of France 7-6, 6-2.

In the closest match of the day, Pate outlasted Romania's Florin Segarceanu 7-5, 2-6, 7-6, taking the third-set tiebreaker 8-6.

Murphy hits terrible slump

Average slides to meager .379

By MALCOLM MORAN
New York Times News Service

ATLANTA — The grimace said that Dale Murphy did not have a very good weekend. He isn't going very well these days.

His average has dropped to its lowest point this season, all the way down to .379. If not for a hard infield grounder that was belatedly ruled a hit on Sunday — a decision Murphy considered more than generous — he would actually enter the Atlanta Braves' game against the Mets at Shea Stadium Tuesday night with a one-game non hitting streak.

For someone who has had at least one hit in 20 of his team's 23 games, that kind of performance has to be considered both a terrible slump, and in these parts, press-stopping news.

THE HEADLINE would have been set alongside others that described rare events in a career that has had almost everything but controversy:

"MURPHY THROWS HELMET"

"MURPHY PUNISHES WATER COOLER"

"MURPHY ENDORSES MILK"

"I'm pretty bland," Murphy said after a television interview he admitted was particularly boring. But at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium and throughout the National League, his performance this spring has created a demand for new superlatives.

Years before high school students discovered the word "hot" to describe the latest craze, the word represented a hitter with an unusually high rate of recent success. Murphy's rate has been so high that an accurate description depends on the teen-agers and the jargon of today:

Murphy has not been merely hot. He has been radioactive.

His .379 average, his 10 home runs and his 32 runs batted in put him far ahead of other National League hitters. That does not include a significant number of outs that have been rockets, and more than several fly balls that have fallen just short of the fence. Luke Appling has said Murphy could hit 70 home runs this year. Pete Rose has said he could drive home 200 runs.

Seventy home runs?

Two hundred runs batted in?

"When you're hitting well, you're not really thinking too much," Murphy said. "With any athlete, you can't force things and you can't calculate things. You've just got to go out and play.

"When you don't hit good, it's usually because you're thinking too much about everything else except that ball. And when you're hitting good, you're not really thinking about anything. You're just able to concentrate."

He paused for a moment. "I don't know," he said. "You don't really even have to concentrate. You're not trying to concentrate. You don't have to work at it. It's kind of weird."

DALE MURPHY is not really sure what is going on. Not that that matters.

His start has been the opposite of the one last year, when the daily questions of the possibility of a third straight most valuable player award, and a poor beginning, created uncertainties that compounded his frustration. He experienced his worst slump in three seasons. His average was below .200 for the first three weeks, and did not reach .250 until June. Murphy eventually equalled or exceeded season highs in doubles, triples and homers, but the real value was the experience of a stressful spring.

"It comes with time in the game," he said. "Experiencing ups and downs. I never really experienced very many ups until '82 and '83, and then I won mvp. awards." He put his right hand over his head, palm down. He had suddenly arrived at a new level. He laughed at the giddy memory.

"I never expected that," he said. "And then I started '84 kind of down,. I've been kind of up and down, up and down, up and down. But I think with time in the game, being able to play, you learn more about yourself. How to talk to yourself, I guess."

The conversations have not hurt.

"You get to a point where you start figuring out the mistakes you make," he said. "You get into a situation, and you tell yourself in the years past, you kept making that mistake over. Maybe now it dawns on you after 8 years, 'O.K. now, you've handled this wrong for a while. Remember.' That's why it takes so long to learn how to play the game."

MURPHY HAS advanced from a catcher and first baseman whose every throw was an adventure into an outfielder who has won three Gold Glove awards for defensive excellence. Seven full seasons with the Braves have provided a foundation to deal with the demands of being a two-time most valuable player, and the time to file away all those little mistakes. At the age of 29, he has not yet been forced to face the day they all must eventually face, when the discovery is made that the skills have begun to erode.

If the elements of Murphy's career were placed on a graph, the knowledge line would still be rising while the ability line has not yet started to drop. At some point, the two lines form the peak, the one great year that will stand out forever; Ted Williams's 1941, Mickey Mantle's 1956; the type of year that Joe Torre, the former Atlanta manager, described as the time you are especially careful not to slip in the shower.

Murphy cannot say if this feels like that year. "There's too many games left," he said. His laugh said that judgment can occur only after 139 more games over 22 more weeks, perhaps not for years. But as Murphy's spring turns to summer and then to fall, this could grow into a season that is cast in bronze on Cooperstown walls.

Martin blasts Metrodome

Disappearing balls haunt Yanks

Associated Press

As far as Manager Billy Martin and the New York Yankees are concerned, the Minnesota Twins can take their Metrodome and go home.

"It's a little league ballpark," Martin said. "What a joke."

What frustrated Martin most was not that his Yankees lost to the Minnesota Twins 8-6 Tuesday night. What peeved him was how his team lost.

"We went out there last night and hit balls up to the ceiling, but that didn't work," Martin said.

The Yankees lost several flyballs in the Metrodome's white ceiling and lights and misjudged a few others in falling to the Twins.

"It's like a magic trick," said Yankees shortstop Bobby Meacham, who lost track of a couple of balls that fell for hits. "I said I wasn't going to take my eye off it. I didn't and it still disappeared on me."

Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner said he understood other teams' complaints about the Metrodome, but "was not too sorry."

"We have to live with it everyday," he said.

The Yankees probably knew they were in trouble from the start. After taking a 2-0 lead in their half of the first inning, weird things began to happen when the Twins came to bat.

Kirby Puckett led off with a bunt single. Mickey Hatcher hit a popup to center that fell between four New York fielders for another single. Kent Hrbek hit a weak grounder to first baseman Don Mattingly, but it turned into a bases-loading single when pitcher Ed Whitson couldn't cover first fast enough.

Tom Brunansky followed with a sacrifice fly, and with two outs Roy Smalley hit a drive to deep right field that Dave Winfield had trouble gauging. The ball fell for a two-run double that put Minnesota ahead 3-2.

Hatcher doubled home another run and Hrbek stroked an RBI single as the Twins knocked out Whitson, 1-4, in the second. Minnesota finished with 15 hits.

Frank Viola, 5-2, became the AL's first five-game winner. He gave up eight hits — six of them doubles — and departed after seven innings because of a tender elbow.

Red Sox 6, Angels 4

Tony Armas cracked his seventh home run of the season and also singled to drive in three runs as Boston won in Fenway Park.

Jim Rice stroked three straight singles and Mike Easler knocked in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

Roger Clemens, 3-3, went seven-plus innings for the victory. Bob Stanley, who allowed RBI singles to Jerry Narron and Rob Wilfong in the eighth, got his fifth save.

Armas' two-run homer in the fifth knocked out California starter Kirk McCaskill, 0-2.

Blue Jays 10, A's 1

Ernie Whitt drilled a two-run homer and George Bell fueled Toronto's six-run sixth inning with a two-run single.

Willie Upshaw broke an 0-for-20 slump with an RBI single in the fifth to give the host Blue Jays a 4-0 lead before they finished off Oakland in the sixth.

American League

Dave Stieb, 2-3, went seven innings for the victory. Loser Don Sutton, 2-3, was knocked out in the sixth.

White Sox 7, Indians 4

Ron Kittle snapped out of his slump with a home run while Chicago starter Floyd Bannister and relievers Tom Seaver and Bob James combined to strike out 14 Cleveland batters.

Kittle had struck out six straight times before launching his first home run of the season, a solo shot in the second inning. Greg Walker clubbed a two-run homer in the fifth to break a 4-4 tie in Cleveland.

The Indians had gotten off to a good start when Brook Jacoby hit a grand-slam home run in the first inning. But that was all Cleveland could manage off Bannister, 1-3, who struck out nine in 6⅓ innings, Seaver — who was pitching in his 600th career game, but for just the ninth time in relief -- and James, who fanned four in the final two innings to get his third save.

Brewers 5, Mariners 2

Ben Oglivie homered and drove in three runs to support the five-hit pitching of Moose Haas.

Oglivie's two-run homer gave host Milwaukee a 5-1 lead in the sixth. Oglivie also had an RBI single in the second.

Haas, 2-2, struck out seven during his second complete game of the season.

Seattle scored once in the fifth, but ran itself out of a potential big inning in the process. With one out, Ivan Calderon reached first on a walk and Jim Presley followed with a single to right. Bob Kearney doubled to right-center to drive home Calderon, but the Brewers pulled off a double play on the hit when Presley was caught off third and Kearney was tagged out in a rundown between second and third.

Orioles 4, Royals 2

Baltimore rookies Ken Dixon and Larry Sheets were too much for the Royals in Kansas City.

Dixon, 3-0, became the only AL rookie pitcher to win his third game. He allowed just four hits over eight innings, but came out after surrendering a leadoff walk in the ninth. Tippy Martinez relieved Dixon, and then Sammy Stewart took over and got the final two outs for his fifth save.

Sheets hit a two-run homer, his fourth of the season, in the fourth inning to give the Orioles a 3-1 lead.

The loss was the fifth straight for Kansas City. Baltimore has won 10 of its last 12 games.

Tigers 10, Rangers 1

The World Series champion Detroit Tigers looked ferocious in clawing host Texas.

Larry Herndon and Nelson Simmons hit home runs on consecutive pitches in the fourth inning, and Lance Parrish and Lou Whitaker also homered. Kirk Gibson helped spark the offense with four of Detroit's 15 hits; he also drove in three runs and scored three times.

Jack Morris, 4-3, went seven innings for the victory. Rangers starter Dickie Noles, 2-2, lasted only 3⅔ innings.

Pardee's Gamblers back on USFL track

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — It would be hard to find two teams in more contrasting positions than the Houston Gamblers and the Portland Breakers.

The Gamblers are rolling along again with three straight victories, the latest a 45-7 flattening of the Breakers Monday night.

The triumph left the Gamblers alone in first place in the Western Conference of the United States Football League at 8-3, a half-game ahead of the Oakland Invaders.

"We've been struggling for four or five weeks trying to put a complete game together," said Houston Coach Jack Pardee. "There's no doubt in my mind this was the best game we've played all year."

Portland, on the other hand, lost its fourth in a row and dropped to 3-8. The Breakers continued to struggle on offense.

"We just evidently aren't as good as I thought we'd be," said Portland Coach Dick Coury. "We just don't have anyone on offense that's a real threat, that has any quickness."

Portland managed just 212 total yards compared with 512 for the Gamblers. Starting quarterback Doug Woodward completed three of 15 passes for 49 before being benched at halftime with the Gamblers leading 31-7. His replacement, Matt Robinson, didn't do any better, completing four of 19 for 50 yards.

Many of the incompletions weren't the fault of the quarterbacks.

"One of our main problems were our missed passes and dropped balls," Coury said. "They've just got to start catching the balls. It's something I can't do anything about during the game."

The Breakers don't have much time to regroup. They play at Birmingham Saturday.

"We've just got to stick together and have a lot of pride in what we're doing," Coury said.

Bass tournament winner disqualified

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — An apparent winner of a bass tournament was disqualified over the weekend, becoming the first person ever known to be arrested in Louisiana on felony charges growing out of a fish story, state officials say.

At a tournament near Ferriday, Alva W. Anding of Baton Rouge was arrested and charged with theft by fraud. Authorities said his 15.1-pound string of bass included fish that were caught earlier.

An official of the Louisiana Bass Casters Association got a report that five bass were staked out on the lake prior to the tournament.

He checked and found four fish in a wire basket tied off to a cypress tree, and another one on a stringer attached to it, said Emmett Bonner, an agent with the Louisiana epartment of Wildlife and Fisheries.

The night before the tournament, officials went out on Lake St. John and marked the bass by cutting the tip off the second spine on the dorsal fin of each fish, then returned them to the water, Bonner said.

Midland girls prove boon to UMSU golf program

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

LAS CRUCES — As far as the women's golf team is concerned, the school could almost be called New Mexico State University of Midland.

At least, Midland is where four of the team's 11 golfers are from, three of which contributed this weekend to NMSU's surprising second place finish in the High Country Athletic Conference women's golf tournament.

NMSU junior Janice Littlefield and senior teammate Ann Coombes came through with record-breaking or tying performances in the final two rounds of play, but it wasn't enough for the title as Brigham Young University used a made-for-Hollywood script to edge out NMSU by one stroke.

In the script, Littlefield, who carded 74-70-72-216 to end in a three-way tie for medalist honors, was playing the final round with BYU's Linda Bridge and University of New Mexico's Caroline Caeggy, the two golfers who matched her 216 score.

On the 54th and final hole of the tournament, Littlefield and Caeggy two-putted for pars while Bridge sank a 24-foot birdie putt to give the Lady Cougars the crown with a team score of 890 to NMSU's 891. New Mexico finished at 901.

Littlefield's round of 70 tied the conference record for the lowest second round score while Coombes tied the course record and broke the HCAC's final round mark with a 69 on the Par 74 course.

"Ann went out and shot the best round of her college career," said NMSU coach Paul Brilliant, whose last name is appropriate to the way his team has grown during the three years of its existance. "Taking second is like a dream come true. Nobody ever thought that would happen. We sure woke them up."

NMSU went into the tournament as the 27th ranked team in the nation, defeating No. 8 New Mexico and only losing the HCAC title to No. 13 rated BYU.

Because of their end-of-the-year performances, Brilliant believes Littlefield and Coombes might get a chance to extend their year.

"Janice might have a chance," said Brilliant. "She's kind of in the grey area now but she might get a bid to the NCAA tournament. Ann might be there also."

The third Midland golfer to contribute to NMSU's success story this weekend was Penny Sutcliffe, who shot 79-79-78-236. Sutcliffe, Littlefield and Kelly Mobley, who didn't play on the five-woman tournament squad, are the three Midlanders who will be back for another season.

"They'll probably be the heart of the team next year," said Brilliant.

LITTLEFIELD AND Sutcliffe were as excited about the team's HCAC tournament play as their coach and are equally as hopeful about 1986.

"Actually, when I started out, I didn't know if I'd be ready to play or not," said Littlefield. "I was working on school. But, everything came together in the last couple of weeks before the tournament. I was always around two-under and thought I might be ready to play. I have a lot of high hopes for 1986."

"I think we did real well," said Sutcliffe. "Our goal was to reach second place but I didn't think it would be that easy. I thought New Mexico would bee the team to beat but this wasn't their tournament. BYU was a surprise though.

"This was a most exciting finish, you couldn't ask for a better finish," said Sutcliffe. "(MHS girls golf coach) Mary Baird would be proud."

Brilliant is giving a lot of credit to his team's success to Hogan Park Municipal Golf Course pro Rex Worrell, saying, "I'd like to thank Rex Worrell for calling me about Ann and Janice. They were the first two I recruited when we started our program. I didn't have a big budget to work with and those two were diamonds in the rough.

"Ann came over with some experience and then Janice came in," said Brilliant. "They helped build the program. All the Midland girls have worked real hard and I'm real proud of them."

Brilliant pointed out that the hard work has vastly improved Littlefield's and Coombes' game. In her first year, Coombes averaged 82.4 and improved to 74.8 in '85. Littlefield, who was also named to the HCAC All-Conference team, made a jump from 82.2 her first year to 73.8 in '85.

"I've gotten to where I don't play against them anymore," said Brilliant.

Guerrero sets Indy lap record

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Colombia's Roberto Guerrero, new owner of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's unofficial one-lap record, says his standard might not last long.

Guerrero, who circled the Indianapolis 500 track at more than 212 mph Tuesday, thinks his March-Cosworth car can go even faster.

"The car is a dream. It was really working well all day," said Guerrero, the 5-foot-7, 136-pound second-year driver who finished second to 500 champion Rick Mears last year.

"The car is so good. I'm not working as hard as I did to do 207 last year. I'm confident there's more left in it," he said.

Guerrero, 26, topped the old standard with a hot 212.765 clocking around the 2½-mile oval during Tuesday's practice session for the May 26 race. After a trip to his pit area, Guerrero then was caught at 212.816 on the electric eye.

EARLIER, THE pride of Medelin, Colombia, gave the Cotter Racing team some anxious moments when he brushed the wall on the fourth turn.

"I got a little excited and the rear wheel just leaned against it (the wall)," said Guerrero, who continued into the pits after producing the yellow caution light. "I was on a good lap and I got a little too greedy."

He realizes that isn't a good move with the unforgiving walls in the four turns ready to greet the driver who gets too daring.

"I've learned a lot in one year about this track. Last year everything was new to me. I was in a new type of racing and I was a rookie here," said Guerrero, a former Formula One driver. "The one thing a driver has to realize is there is no room for error here. There was no room for error at 200 either."

Guerrero's car was one of 23 timed at better than 200 Tuesday as the teams continued to work toward Saturday's first qualifying session. Despite efforts to slow the cars down by rule changes, the first four days of practice have demonstrated the official track record, which can only be set during the race or in qualifying, is in danger.

THE ONE-LAP time of 210.689 and four-lap average of 210.029 were set in qualifications last year by Tom Sneva. Mario Andretti, winner of the season's first race at Long Beach and the reigning Indy-car champion, recorded the previous fastest practice speed in Indy history last year at 212.414.

Bobby Rahal, who has established himself as a solid contender for the pole this month with several laps in excess of 210, duplicated the time attained last year by Andretti late Tuesday.

Six drivers have now had at least one lap at 210 or higher and nine others have gone over 209 since practice began on Saturday. There were 23 cars above 200 — a mark which was reached in qualifying for the first time in 1977 by Sneva — on Tuesday.

The list included Howdy Holmes at 211.267 in the Lola-Cosworth entered as his back-up, Danny Ongais at 211.218 in his March-Cosworth and Sneva at 209.996.

Two-time winners Gordon Johncock and Mears also began finding the elusive speed they hope will produce another triumph here.

Johncock's quick lap of the month was 210.871. Mears, seeking to start his first race since being seriously injured during practice last September in Canada, showed no sign of a problem with a 209.382 in the March-Cosworth on only his seventh lap of the day. Just before the track closed, Mears had a hot lap of 211.168.

"I have absolutely no problem when I'm in the car," said Mears, who underwent extensive surgery to repair damage to both feet. "I have trouble walking but feel 100 percent normal in the car."

Danny Sullivan and Al Unser, teammates of Mears for owner Roger Penske, were among the drivers improving their times Tuesday. Sullivan, new to the Penske team this year, recorded a quick lap of 209.302 in a Cosworth-powered March. Unser, seeking to join veteran A.J.Foyt as the only four-time winner here, posted a 209.399 in another March-Cosworth.

Johnny Rutherford, also a three-time Indy champion, moved the top time of his March-Cosworth to 209.497.

The new arrivals in this month's 200 club, which now has 27 drivers, included Foyt, who checked in with a 201.072. Chet Fillip, who never attempted a qualification run here last year after making the race the previous two years, became a member with a 201.612 in a Lola-Cosworth.

Michael Andretti, who finished fifth as an Indy rookie last May, drove the March-Cosworth entered as his back-up car at 204.452.

Scott Brayton improved to 207.516 in the Buick-March designated as his back-up car.

Mario Andretti had his day cut short by a mechanical problems.

'We're losing valuable time in getting ready because our engines haven't been working. It's something strange," said Andretti, seeking his 20th Indy start.

Andretti's top time this year in his new Cosworth-powered Lola was a 209.643 reached Monday afternoon.

Paul Jr. holds emotions

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — John Paul Jr. won't talk about his legal problems, but he says the fact that Sherman Armstrong was willing to give him a job driving an Indianapolis 500 race car has been a big comfort.

"I've been able to get hold of my emotions," said Paul. "Now all I want to do is to prove to everyone I can do the job."

Paul, 25, is free under $125,000 bond and is scheduled to stand trial on federal charges June 3 at Jacksonville, Fla. He is accused of racketeering and conspiracy in an alleged marijuana smuggling ring. He was the former driver of Midland's VDS team.

HIS FATHER, former race driver John Paul Sr., was arrested in Switzerland in January, more than a year after he jumped bail while free on a charge of trying to kill a witness in a drug investigation.

"I wasn't actively looking on my own," Paul Jr. said of the ride that developed with Armstrong. "But a friend managed to put in a word for me with Sherman. I'm very pleased with it. It's a good opportunity for me."

Paul, who came to Indianapolis as a rookie driver two years ago, crashed during practice in both 1983 and 1984 and still is looking for his first Indy start. He got the ride with Armstrong after Willy T. Ribbs, the first black driver to enter the 500, decided not to attempt to qualify.

"The key is just keeping your head and concentrating on the job," said Paul, a native of Muncie, Ind., who now lives in West Palm Beach, Fla. "You have to put it all behind you and concentrate on doing the job properly."

When he took the car intended for Ribbs, Paul inherited a new March-Cosworth racer and chief mechanic George Bignotti, who has been crew chief for a record seven Indy winners.

"This is the first opportunity I've had to drive a state-of-the-art car. The chances of getting in the race this time are excellent," said Paul, whose only victory in 12 Indy car starts was in the 1983 Michigan 500. "I'm the only rookie (at Indianapolis) who has ever won a 500-mile race. So I know what it takes to run 500 miles."

RIBBS, WHO said he wasn't ready to run at Indianapolis after one day in the Rookie Orientation Program last week, "did the smart thing" by pulling out, said Paul.

"I've been there. I came here with very little experience, and I had a very difficult time with my rookie test. Willy should try someplace else first. I don't care how good you are or how brave you are, this is Indy."

Paul, who began racing sports cars in 1979, made his Indy car debut in 1982, finishing 21st at Elkhart Lake.

Eagles take tough stand

Want draft picks to snub USFL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Owner Norman Braman of the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League reiterated Tuesday that he would not negotiate with second-round draft pick Randall Cunningham as long as the Nevada-Las Vegas quarterback is dealing with the Tampa Bay Bandits of the United States Football League.

"That was my position last week, it's my position this week and it's going to be my position next week," said Braman, a Miami auto dealer who took over the Eagles last month from Leonard Tose.

Cunningham's agent, Jim Steiner, revealed after the April 30 National Football League draft that Cunningham had signed an agreement giving Bandits' owner John Bassett the right to match any offer from the Eagles.

"I will only consider negotiating only if we are assured beyond any question that no contract, no understanding, is in effect," said Braman, adding that he probably "would demand a letter signed by the agent, signed by Randall Cunningham, to that effect."

STEINER HAS said that Cunningham signed the agreement — reported to offer close to $2 million over four years — as insurance in case he was chosen late in the NFL draft.

Braman said he understood that reasoning, but said, "I think there was an obligation on Randall Cunningham's part to inform us of an agreement."

"Randall Cunningham was here the day after the draft," Braman said. "I had breakfast with him in the morning, the subject didn't come up. He didn't volunteer it.

"Look, we all choose our own destiny and we're all big boys. If Randall Cunningham has made his decision, or if Mr. Steiner made the decision for Randall Cunningham, that's their decision."

The Philadelphia Inquirer reported that a source close to the situation said the agreement with Bassett expires May 15, freeing the Eagles to talk with Cunningham.

But a Philadelphia Daily News reporter said Steiner told him Tuesday that the May 15 deadline worked the other way, putting terms of the Bassett agreement in effect and making Cunningham a member of the USFL club.

"Naturally, I'd like to play for the Eagles," Cunningham said Monday. "They're a good organization and I've got nothing against them or the Bandits. But they (the Eagles) have to come to terms that are acceptable to me, my family and my agent."

BRAMAN SAID, "Nothing would make me happier than to see this resolved favorably."

"I don't want Cunningham to bow down and genuflect," Braman said. "... I just feel that as far as Randall Cunningham is concerned in my book it's not the same, regardless of what happened, as it was last Tuesday when we drafted him. He's got to show something and demonstrate a better test of character than what I've seen."

Judges' decisions set back no-pass, no-play ruling

From Staff and Wire Reports

Two Texas judges, including one in Odessa, have handed down more temporary setbacks to the state's controversial no-pass, no-play rule and scheduled hearings to consider making them permanent.

State District Judge Eugene Chambers extended a temporary restraining order against the rule in three Harris County school districts and set a hearing on the matter for May 15.

He extended the ban for the Spring Branch, Alief and Cypress-Fairbanks independent school districts after a Monday hearing.

Meanwhile in Odessa, officials said Tuesday that a 16-year-old Permian High School student will suit up for spring football drills after a court slapped a temporary restraining order on school administrators.

The rule, which bars students from extracurricular activities if they flunk one or more classes, is part of the package of education reforms approved by the Legislature last summer.

Anthony Sheppard, attorney for the Spring Branch and Alief school districts, has attacked the rule on constitutional grounds. He says it denies students protections guaranteed in the U.S. Constitution of due process and equal protection.

One provision which Sheppard questions allows high school principals to waive the rule for students in accelerated or honors classes.

"It is unconstitutional to endow an official with the unbridled power to make a decision like that. For whatever reason, a principal can waive the rule. He becomes judge, jury and executive," Sheppard said.

In Odessa, Ricky Cronk, along with five other underclassmen, was declared ineligible for spring practice at the school known for its football prowess because he failed a class during the last six-week grading period, Permian Principal Charles Broughton said Tuesday.

But Cronk, who Broughton said failed introductory algebra, will participate in practices this week after State District Judge Joe Connally Monday issued a temporary restraining order against Ector County Independent School District.

Another hearing is scheduled Friday.

Connally's order was the second issued in less than a week regarding a Permian sophomore football player who has failed a class, and is one of several court actions taken by parents and others across Texas who oppose the

On Thursday, Connally issued a temporary restraining order allowing 16-year-old Terry Bryant to participate in the Permian High School spring drills.

Meanwhile, the state school board chairman said in a speech Monday in Odessa that Texas should help local school districts saddled with lawsuits over the state-mandated reforms.

Bill Holm, Ector County Independent School District superintendent, said such litigation is a financial burden.

"We're going to have to spend who knows how much money defending the school district," Holms said, asking State School Board Chairman Jon Brumley if the state should not be responsible for defending a state-enacted rule.

"I think (we) should," Brumley said.

Brumley said when he returns to Austin, he will talk to other state education officials about whether state Attorney General Jim Mattox should defend cases such as those in Odessa.

'Singing Cowboy' honors rancher

By DAVID LEE FORREST
Staff Writer

The "Singing Cowboy" rode into town Tuesday to honor one of Midland's pioneering ranchers.

Rex Allen, the star of musical Westerns of the 1950s, attended a special program honoring local cattleman Foy Proctor last night.

The reception in the Midland Hilton was sponsored by the Midland Centennial Commission and attended by many of Proctor's friends and associates, who were described by one participant, retired Midland newspaper editor Bill Collyns, as "the Midland area chapter of the Foy Proctor Fan Club."

Allen has been a long-time member of that mythical fan club; Proctor has known the cowboy performer since he was a little boy. Rex's father, Horace Allen, worked on Proctor's 3-Links Ranch near Wilcox, Ariz.

"My dad built cow tanks for him a long time ago," said Allen.

When Rex was young, Proctor, along with other ranchers in the area, contributed to a fund to pay for medical treatment to correct the cowboy's crossed eyes.

Allen, who was born on Dec. 31, 1922, in Wilcox, went on to appear in vaudeville, sing on the radio and perform in a traveling rodeo show before becoming a popular actor-singer in Westerns such as "Arizona Cowboy" and "The Old Overland Trail" during the 1950s.

He also starred in a television series entitled "Frontier Doctor" and his rich Western voice is still very often heard narrating radio and television programs.

Allen, age 63, said, "This is the first time in my life I finally felt old enough to call him 'Foy.' My dad called him Foy, but to us kids he was always 'Mr. Proctor.'

"Aren't I old enough to call you 'Foy?'"

"Plenty," 89-year-old Proctor replied.

Allen narrated a slide show about Proctor, originally shown at the Ranching Heritage Center in Lubbock last September when Proctor received the National Golden Spur Award, a top ranching honor given annually for "significant lifetime contributions to the industry."

Proctor, born on a ranch between Ballinger and Abilene Sept. 28, 1895, moved to Midland in 1907. He entered the cattle trading business when he was 18 and began ranching on his own near Seminole in 1917.

By the 1930s Proctor was one of the most important cattle traders in the region.

Proctor bought his first ranch, the 3-Links Ranch, in 1937. In 1947, he leased the 160,000-acre C-Ranch north of Midland, which he has operated ever since.

Three years later he purchased the Magdalena Ranch in New Mexico. Proctor then bought the 95 square miles — most of which had once been part of the famed XIT Ranch — in the Panhandle, near Channing, which became the Foy Proctor Ranch.

He managed his three-state ranching empire until he sold the 3-Links in 1965 and the Magdalena in 1966.

Proctor also found time to serve as school board president for five years, city councilman, president of Citizens Savings and Loan Association, director of the First National Bank of Midland and Midland National Bank, Midland Memorial Hospital board member and was the first president of the Midland Fair Association.

Proctor was modest about the accolades heaped upon him Tuesday night.

"I think the stories about me have been exaggerated some," he said, "but that's all right."

Although Proctor is barely a decade short of being as old as Midland, Allen said he and Proctor have already made plans to get together in the year 2000 to "smoke a cigar and a drink a dipper of 'battery acid.'"

"I'd like you to just keep up your enthusiasm and forget about all those damn birthdays," the silver screen cowboy told the rancher.

Man back in jail after dismissal of warrant denied

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

A 32-year-old Midland man wanted in Pennsylvania on charges of stealing more than $80,000 in federal funds spent Tuesday night in county jail after his attorney's attempts to dismiss a governor's warrant were denied.

Shabbir Ahmad Syed, 32, was arrested April 8 on the governor's warrant for extradition purposes but was released on a $100,000 bond posted by local friends and business associates after he was first arrested March 3.

The Midland accountant is alleged to have misappropriated $82,742 from the Greater Pittsburgh Business Development Corp. while he was controller. He left the corporation, which provided federal funds to small and minority-owned businesses, and moved to Midland in November 1982.

Auditors and the Allegheny County District Attorney's Office claim $80,000 of the missing $773,997 have been directly linked to Syed.

After 238th State District Court Judge Vann Culp Tuesday afternoon denied the habeas corpus relief sought by Syed's attorney, Edward Shelby, a notice of appeal was given.

Had he not appealed, two Allegheny County sheriff's deputies in Midland would have returned to Pittsburgh Tuesday night with him.

Although a bond posted after an arrest is usually good as an appeal bond, Culp expressed reservations about the bondsman's liability in this case. A Bail Bonds Licensing Act, which went into effect March 21, contradicts the fugitive bond requirements specified in the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure, according to prosecutor Tom Morgan, administrative assistant district attorney.

"It does bother me that this hearing happened after the bond (expiration) date," Culp said. "I'm going to remand Mr. Syed to jail until we can resolve those matters of law. I'm not going to permit him to be released not knowing if the existing bond is still in effect."

This morning, however, Culp ruled that Syed would have to post a new $100,000 bond. He remained in custody at press time.

Shelby had filed a writ of habeas corpus charging that his client was not properly identified in the governor's warrant and that there was no supporting evidence in the papers sent from Austin. He pointed out that in Texas, a person must be indicted and indictments must contain "the instrument that was used," such as a copy of the checks Syed is alleged to have written.

"There is nothing before the court to show this is a crime in Texas; there's nothing to show that a crime there (in Pennsylvania) is a crime here," Shelby argued.

Fifth graders learn about handicaps

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

A blindfolded Lisa Wollard learns to accept and understand the handicapping conditions people face in society as she participates in "Acceptance Through Understanding," a program designed for fifth grade students at Bowie Elementary School.

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

They have eyes that can't see, ears that can't hear, legs that can't walk, tongues that can't speak or minds that can't think.

They are handicapped.

Yet, they too, have a right to be accepted and understood.

But where does it begin?

It begins with the entire fifth grade class at Bowie Elementary School which is learning to accept and understand how it feels to be blind, deaf or learning disabled through a series of simulations in which the students themselves play the part.

The course, entitled Acceptance Through Understanding, is designed to enlighten and provide elementary school students with a basic understanding of the problems handicapped persons face in society.

The brainchild of Elayne Schmidt, instructor of the orthopedically handicapped at the Midland Cerebral Palsy Center, Acceptance Through Understanding focuses in on emotions that result from role playing.

The program is divided into five segments with students playing the parts of persons who are blind, deaf, physically handicapped, learning disabled or have speech impedements.

Corrie Black tries to master handwriting techniques with a simulated physical disability.

Reagan's cemetery visit supported by many Midlanders

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Today is the fortieth anniversary of V-E Day, when Nazi Germany surrended to U.S., British and Russian troops, ending World War II in Europe. To help commemorate the occasion, President Reagan made a controversial visit Sunday to a cemetery where several thousand German soldiers who died in the war are buried, among them 49 members of the Waffen SS.

American veterans groups and Jewish groups have protested the visit. They are particularly outraged by the presence of the SS graves, since this was the elite group of killers who perpetrated many of the worst Nazi crimes, including running the death camps and executing American prisoners of war. But Reagan, who hadn't known about the SS graves when the visit was planned, decided to go ahead with the visit, and 10 of the 12 Midlanders polled Tuesday on the issue agreed with his decision.

"I think he should have gone ahead," said Blanca Ramirez, 909 N. Fort Worth St., a supervisor, and Tim Mariott, 906 Canyon Drive, a Lee High School student, agreed it was the right move "because we should still be friends with them (the Germans)."

Jan Niehouse, 601 Brooks Drive, said his first reaction "was that he shouldn't have gone. But in retrospect, I think he did the right thing."

"All the cemeteries in Germany have SS troops buried there," the minister said. "He wasn't going to pay homage to them."

Blanca Ramirez — Tim Mariott — Jan Niehouse — Max Beasley

Max Beasley, 500 W. Tennessee, a mobile-home salesman, supported Reagan's decision because he thinks "we've pretty much backed off enough" in the face of pressure from other countries.

"I really can't blame the Jewish groups for feeling the way they do," he said. "But somebody's got to bury the ax."

J.C. Davidson, 2802 W. Shandon, a geophysicist, agrees with Reagan's decision, even though he is a World War II veteran who served in the Pacific.

"I sort of feel the feelings all veterans feel, but the president carried through (on his promise to West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl), which I think he had to after he made the commitment."

"I just think it would look bad if he backed down under pressure," agreed James Rasnick, 4706 Springmeadow St., a builder. Though he thinks the original decision to visit the cemetery may have been a mistake, "it's been blown way out of proportion."

Not all Midlanders agreed with Reagan, though. Clifton McMillan, 502 S. Adams St., a domestic employee, said the visit wasn't a good idea — "We have enough trouble already" — and Robert Jones, 3101 W. Illinois Ave., thought Reagan "should have changed his mind."

"It's caused too much dissension here," said the teacher. Had Reagan visited another cemetery with no SS graves, "The gesture would have been there without enflaming people here."

But "at some point we have to kind of bury the past," said Darol Ramoy, 2000 Shell Ave., a petroleum engineer. "If you're going to take that position, then Yankees shouldn't visit a Rebel cemetery."

"We can forget the past," said Preston Ross, 3413 Humble Ave., a real-estate appraiser who fought in Korea. "Wars are terrible regardless of what side you're on."

DEATHS

Lillian S. Knaur

Graveside services for Lillian S. Knaur, 85, of Mesquite, formerly of Midland, will be at 10 a.m. Friday in Fairview Cemetery in Denison. Mrs. Knaur died Tuesday at a Mesquite nursing home.

While residing in Midland, Mrs. Knaur was a former piano and organ teacher, past president of the Music Teachers Association and a member of the Midland Woman's Club and the Midland Flower Club.

Survivors include one daughter, Marilyn Wallace of Mesquite; one son, John S. Knaur, also of Mesquite; six grandchildren and one great-granchild.

James C. Phillips

Services for James C. Phillips of Midland were to be at 11:30 a.m. today in the Ellis Chapel.

Pallbearers were to be Robert J. Carr, Robert Younger, J.C. Ward, Roscoe Jarmon, J.W. Holt and Bill Pickering.

Phillips died Sunday.

Bruce W. Roberson

Services for retired Lt. Col. Bruce W. Roberson of Midland will be at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Ellis chapel with the Rev. Dr. Joseph H. Schley of St. Nicholas Episcopal Church officiating. Graveside services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery in San Antonio under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Roberson died at his home Tuesday.

He was born Jan. 24, 1913, in San Antonio, where he was reared. He attended Texas A&M and served in the National Guard prior to enlisting in the U.S. Army during World War II. He was commissioned to 2nd Lt. shortly thereafter.

During the war he was stationed in England, France and Germany. He was a career officer in the Army, serving in the Pentagon, New Orleans, Japan, Virginia and later in Austin. He retired in 1960.

He returned to college and obtained a masters degree in accounting from the University of Texas in 1965. He then became employed as an assistant professor at the University of South Florida in Tampa. He was an instructor for the next 14 years, retiring in 1976. He returned to Austin in 1979 and then moved to Midland in 1984.

Survivors include his wife, Anna Roberson of Midland; a daughter, Pam Pate of Midland; a sister, Mrs. LaNelle Shockey of San Antonio; and two grandchildren.

Lewis R. Forgus

BIG SPRING — Lewis R. Forgus, 81, of Big Spring, died Monday in a Big Spring nursing home.

Services were to be at 2 p.m. today at Nalley, Pickle and Welch Rosewood Chapel. Burial was to be at Mount Olive Cemetery.

Forgus was retired from the Big Spring Tractor Company since 1966. He had lived in the Big Spring area since 1928.

Donald Lee Miller

Donald Lee Miller of Midland died Tuesday night at a local hospital.

Services are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

Gold Rolex watches stolen from jewelry store

From Staff Reports

Three gold Rolex watches were reported stolen Tuesday morning from a Midland Park Mall jewelry store, according to reports filed with city police.

Kelly Hawk, manager of Corrigan's Jewelry Store, said a man and woman entered the store at 11:20 a.m. and took the watches. Total loss was placed at $25,060.

Fedrico Duran, 503 W. Cowden, told police someone had burglarized an unoccupied house at 611 S. Carver sometime since April 15. Taken were a window air-conditioning unit, washer, evaporative cooler, garden tools and equipment and wood. Total loss was placed at $1,646, reports said.

Tommy Cason of Mineral Wells reported the theft of about $765 in items from a 1981 Chevrolet Z-28. The car, according to reports, had broken down and was parked in the lot at Village Manor, 2628 W. Louisiana, when the offense occurred. Cason said he had it towed to Mineral Wells in March, but didn't realize parts were missing until Tuesday, when he started to repair it.

More than $600 of criminal mischief was reported at a vacant house at 1802 Ward. According to reports, Jim Worley of Euless said the house was burglarized between April 30 and 10 a.m. Tuesday. Damaged were carpet, a chandelier, countertop, lamp, wooden fence, carport and the patio roof.

The tailgate of a pickup parked in the lot at Rogers Ford Sales Inc. was reported stolen between 6 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Monday. Jerry Lee of the company said the $478 tailgate was stolen from a 1985 Ford pickup.

Lala Galan, 1000 N. Lamesa, told police she discovered Tuesday morning that $420 in cash kept hidden under a rug was missing from her residence. The theft is believed to have occurred Friday night, reports said.

In reports filed with the sheriff's office, Steve Hill, vice president of BLS Equipment on Cotton Flat Road at County Road 114, reported two wrist pin bearings valued at $500 each were stolen from behind the used oil field equipment company shop. Reports indicate someone climbed over the fence and stole the items sometime between April 19 and Tuesday.

A vacant house on County Road 121, half a mile east of Cotton Flat Road, was destroyed by fire early this morning, according to reports filed with the fire department.

Nine firefighters responded at 5 a.m. to the blaze, which they fought for an hour and a half with 2,000 gallons of water. The cause or source of the fire had not been determined as of this morning, according to reports.

Odessan hospitalized after auto accident

From Staff Reports

An Odessa man was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital after an automobile accident this morning on Interstate 20 about two miles west of the Warfield Truck Terminal.

Bill Raynor, 26, was treated in the emergency room for a fractured leg and lacerations to the arm, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

The Department of Public Safety was notified of the accident at 7:27 a.m., according to sketchy reports. It was not known by press time whether another vehicle was involved but a DPS spokesman said only one wrecker was called to the scene.

A 9-year-old girl struck by a car Monday afternoon while crossing Andrews Highway remained in critical condition this morning, "but she's much better," according to a spokeswoman at MMH.

Erika Hurrera, 2928 Louisiana Ave., suffered head injuries when she ran between cars in the northwest-bound lanes at the intersection of Louisiana Avenue, police reports said. The child was struck by a car driven by Cristina Mary Destefano as Ms. Destefano slowed for a red light. The child was thrown into the air and hit her head on the hood of the car before falling to the ground, reports said.

A 25-year-old stabbing victim this morning was upgraded from critical to serious condition at MMH, reports said. Robert Arredondo, 1106 E. Hickory, was stabbed several times in the neck and back early Monday morning at his house, reportedly by a neighbor during a fight.

According to reports, the 22-year-old suspect called police to the scene of the stabbing incident where he told them Arredondo had struck him in the face with a beer can, knocking him to the ground.

The suspect said when he looked up, Arredondo was standing over him with a knife, and he pulled a pocketknife and, in self-defense, stabbed Arredondo, according to reports.

The man said he then went home and changed clothes. A bloody shirt was located in his bedroom, reports said, and a lock-blade knife was found in a dresser drawer.

The suspect had not been formally arraigned this morning.

Hance switch could hurt legislation

AUSTIN (AP) — The first fallout from Kent Hance's switch from the Democratic to Republican parties has come from Democratic state lawmakers who say it may jeopardize oil industry legislation Hance has been hired to promote.

"His involvement in this piece of legislation could adversely affect it. His decision, after he indicated he would not switch parties, has a great deal to say about his credibility," said Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi.

Hance announced last week he was changing parties. As little as two weeks earlier, he had said a switch was "not in the cards."

House gives preliminary OK to solid waste disposal bill

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The House gave preliminary approval Tuesday to legislation by Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, increasing penalties for violation of the Texas Solid Waste Disposal Act.

The bill was approved after a brief explanation by Craddick, who said the changes are required to keep the state in compliance with federal requirements. Such compliance is required in order to continue delegation to Texas of the Federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act program, and to avoid a dual state-federal permitting system.

HB 1306 provides that disposal of hazardous wastes without a permit, or falsifying records on hazardous wastes, could be punishable by a fine of up to $25,000 or 180 days in jail for a first offense, or up to $50,000 and one year in jail for subsequent offenses.

Offenses involving knowingly exposing other persons to death or serious injury through violation of the act could result in a fine of up to $250,000 and five years in jail, or both. Companies could be fined up to $1 million.

The bill faces a final vote, expected today, before going to the Senate. There was no apparent opposition to the bill.

DISABLED

"You may have met handicapped people in your school or community. You probably looked at them and wondered what was wrong with them," Ms. Schmidt told the youngsters. "Perhaps the person had a hearing problem and wore a hearing aid or perhaps the person had trouble talking clearly. Maybe this person was blind or used a wheelchair or crutches.

"Some people are handicapped in ways you cannot see right away. These people have learning disabilities and have trouble with their lessons in school," she added. "Today, through some very special experiences you will feel what it is like to be one of these people."

A special experience it was, according to Bowie Principal Larry Wilkinson, who helped to organize the project.

"We began in April to help these kids accept and prepare themselves for the eventual mainstreaming of handicapped children into the school next fall. It's a beautiful program. We hope to do the same with the second graders next year," he said.

But for the time being, fifth graders Damion Cole and Kerry Rife and others will be relied upon to pass along their knowledge to fellow classmates.

"It's hard," said Cole, as he attempted to write his name with all but two fingers bandaged. "They probably feel sad and left out. We shouldn't make fun of them. We should help them."

A blindfolded Corrie Black said, "You have to help them and you have to help them help themselves," as she tried to pour water from a milk carton into a paper cup. "There's nothing really wrong with them except they're different. They're people too."

Terrace West center to close temporarily for renovation

From Staff Reports

Terrace West Nursing Center, 2901 W. Ohio, has announced that it will temporarily close its facility May 16 to reorganize and renovate the services and facilities.

Jan Chermak, vice president of professional services, reported the parent company, Hillhaven Corp. of Tacoma, Wash., said this action is being taken as a result of a "complete evaluation by the company of the facility's operations which was prompted by recent survey reports issued by the Texas Department of Health. The facility's management indicated it has made arrangements for assisting families in selecting alternative facilities and will provide all necessary counseling and administrative assistance to assure a smooth and comfortable transition for its residents."

Ms. Chermak said the nursing center has about 120 residents, who were notified Tuesday of the move. "We're working with the families now" to find places to take Terrace West's residents.

She said the manangement did a revaluation of the facility's operations and decided to do some renovating and restructuring. The nursing center is expected to be reopened in 30 to 60 days, she said.

SYED

Morgan disagreed: "The only thing that counts is that (the governor's warrants show) there was a judicial finding that there is a cause. Both states of Texas and Pennsylvania have crimes of theft. This says it is a Felony III theft, we know it's a theft and we know it's a felony theft."

Morgan said that because a governor's warrant had been introduced, the defense had the burden of proving the laws were different. Shelby, however, maintained the burden to prove the laws are the same rests with the prosecution.

"This information came from Pennsylvania and unless there is evidence to the contrary, this court must presume the law of Pennsylvania is the same as the law of Texas," Morgan said.

"If we're going to go under Texas law, we have to indict him," Shelby said.

Culp, after denying the habeas corpus, then denied Morgan's request to double the $100,000 bond.

"He's been extradited to stand trial on felony theft and his possibility of escape is more likely," Morgan said.

A decision about Culp's ruling is expected to be handed down by the Court of Appeals within three months.

Groups face off over income tax

AUSTIN (AP) — Big oil lined up against the Moral Majority when a House committee reviewed a proposed constitutional ban on Texas income taxes.

Both sides agreed income taxes are bad. But oil company witnesses said they might someday be needed.

Fred Mason, Texas director of the Moral Majority, told the House Ways and Means Committee Tuesday that an income tax "would be a burden the people are not able to bear."

Mason testified in favor of proposed amendments that would include bans on corporate and personal income taxes. Under current law, the Legislature could impose such taxes.

Also testifying for the proposed amendment were officials from Citizens for America, the Texas Association of Concerned Taxpayers, Freedom Council of America and the Concerned Women of America.

If the constitutional amendments are approved by lawmakers and the voters, it would take another constitutional amendment to allow income taxes.

The committee took no vote on the proposed amendments.

Rep. Kae Patrick, R-San Antonio and sponsor of one of the proposals, said Texas never will need income taxes.

"We have plenty of tax mechanisms now available for Texas to raise revenues," he said.

But witneeses for Exxon, Gulf, Amoco and a business group said they were not so sure.

Beard contest sprouts several new categories

From Staff Reports

With the growing response of the beard contest for Midland's Centennial, several categories have been added when the judging is held in July.

The additional categories include best media, best elected official and public servant, oldest person and youngest person.

Original list of categories included longest, blackest, whitest, curliest, most like Robert E. Lee, most like Abraham Lincoln and ugliest.

Any man choosing not to grow his beard will have to obtain a permit from any member of the Southside Lions Club. The permit cost is a $10 donation. Any male who attends a Centennial event and does not have a beard or a permit will be assessed a fine of a "suitable contribution." Any male attending one of the Centennial-Fest activities without the beard or permit will have to spend 15 minutes in the Centennial jail.

In addition, the Centennial Commission is welcoming any groups or business to challenge another for a new category, such as bankers, lawyers or teachers.

For further information or to obtain a permit, contact a member of the Southside Lions Club or call Bill Stone at 697-3115.

Lee High student awarded Gold Medal on Latin exam

From Staff Reports

Sheila Hundley

Sheila Hundley, a sophomore Latin student at Lee High School, recently was awarded the Gold Medal for high score on the National Latin Exam.

Miss Hundley, 15, a first-year Latin student, is an honor student who maintains a 4.4 grade-point average. She is a member of the Junior Classical League.

Across the United States, 57,000 public and private high school and junior high school students entered the contest. Miss Hundley was the only Midland student to be awarded the Gold Medal. Approximately 200 Midland students took the test, which covers grammar, etymology, Roman culture and translation-comprehension.

In West Texas Latin competition, Miss Hundley placed first in Decathlon, first in Reading Comprehension and second in Certamen Team. In addition, she received two awards for excellence in Sight Reading and Poetry Recitation.

She won second place in the Junior Varsity Cross-Country District Race.

Miss Hundley is daughter of Mrs. Dolores Hundley of Midland.

Bicycle Safety Day sponsored

From Staff Reports

The ClayDesta Plaza Optimists Club, Peyton's Bikes, Coca-Cola Bottling Company and the Midland Police Department will sponsor a Bicycle Safety Day for youth of all ages from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday at the ClayDesta National Bank parking lot, Big Spring Street and Wadley.

Activities include free bicycle inspections, adjustments, license engraving and installation of identification tags and reflectors. In addition, representatives of the Midland Police Department will conduct a "safe driving test" and award licenses to all participants.

A drawing for prizes is scheduled for 2:15 p.m. following the inspection of all bicycles.

Ensemble offers free park concert

From Staff Reports

Midland mothers will get a chance to hear some big band jazz at 3 p.m Sunday when the Midland College Community Jazz Ensemble performs in Dennis the Menace Park, South Garfield and Indiana streets, from the stage of the Showmobile.

The free concert is being co-sponsored by the Midland Parks and Recreation Department and will last about 1½ hours. Dr. Don Grant, Midland College music coordinator and director of the Jazz Ensemble, will serve as conductor.

This band has been working together from one to four years. "There are about 20 in the group and they are all folks from Midland who enjoy playing and performing. Everyone is invited to attend," said Grant.

MIDLAND CRIME STOPPERS 694-TIPS

Crime Stoppers will pay a cash reward for information leading to the arrest of fugitives. In Midland, call 694-TIPS. In Odessa, call 333-TIPS. All callers can remain anonymous.

'Optimum use' water bill passes Senate

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A bill to "ensure optimum use of all water resources" in the state by clarifying the definition of unappropriated water under state law has passed the Texas Senate, despite opposition from a coastal senator who said it overrides a decision by the Texas Supreme Court regarding the Stacy Dam project.

SB 1144, by Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, states that water "considered not appropriated" by the state water agency is subject to new appropriation, which Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said could adversely affect the water rights of current permit holders.

Under a decision handed down by the Supreme Court last year, the term "unappropriated water" means "the amount of water remaining after taking into account all existing uncancelled permits and filings valued at their recorded levels."

Montford told his Senate colleagues that if the Supreme Court decision stands, there will not be any more reservoirs built in Texas, except in the Trinity River Basin, because of the amount of water which has already been appropriated.

"The purpose (of the bill) is to restore workable policy (in state law)," Montford said.

But Truan said the Montford bill would prejudice holders of older water rights permits, who may not be using all the water they are allowed to use but may need to at a later date. "The bill sets bad public policy by proposing to take away the water rights of municipalities and others who hold water rights," Truan said after the bill's passage. "That doesn't mean they're not going to need it (water) in the future."

Truan offered an amendment to SB 1144 delaying implementation of the measure until voters approve a statewide water plan expected to be passed by the Legislature this month, but it was easily defeated on a motion by Montford.

Montford said he would have accepted the amendment if Truan agreed to enthusiastically support the water plan, which will provide $980 million in state bonds for water development projects if approved by voters.

"That's the name of the game — give and take," Montford told Truan about his amendment.

"You want the whole hog," Truan said.

Although Truan served with Montford on the 10-member House-Senate conference committee which approved the proposed water plan last week.

'Populist farm bill' introduced on Hill

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A "populist farm bill" featuring mandatory supply management that its sponsors claim would increase farm income while reducing the cost of federal farm programs was introduced today in both houses of Congress.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, at a press conference announcing the legislation, called it a "country-fresh, commonsense approach to farm policy" that will win support from most of the Texas delegation.

As outlined at the news conference, these are key provisions of the bill introduced by 11 Democrats:

— Mandatory production management, subject to a vote by producers, aimed at balancing agricultural supply and demand. A minimum 15 percent set-aside would be required of all farmers.

— A federal price floor, or loan rate, at cost of production.

— A progressive scale of production allotments intended to be a disincentive to conglomerate and tax-loss farming ventures.

— Mandatory soil and water conservation practices, including a plan to retire 30 million acres of the most fragile land for 10 years and a strong "sodbuster" provision to prevent new, untilled land from being row-cropped.

— Debt restructuring by government lenders for "good farmers," including a temporary moratorium on foreclosures.

— A revitalized Food for Peace program to give emergency food to hungry people through multilateral aid efforts coupled with development of food production within hungry nations.

— A self-help crop insurance program, requiring all producers to contribute a small percentage of annual production of storable commodities into a "farmer disaster reserve" which farmers could draw on in times of natural disaster.

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, chief Senate sponsor, said, "My bill addresses the real problem in agriculture — declining net farm income — by bringing supply in line with demand."

Harkin distributed a list of five to 60 farm groups around the country he said are supporting the bill, including the American Agriculture Movement and the Sierra Club.

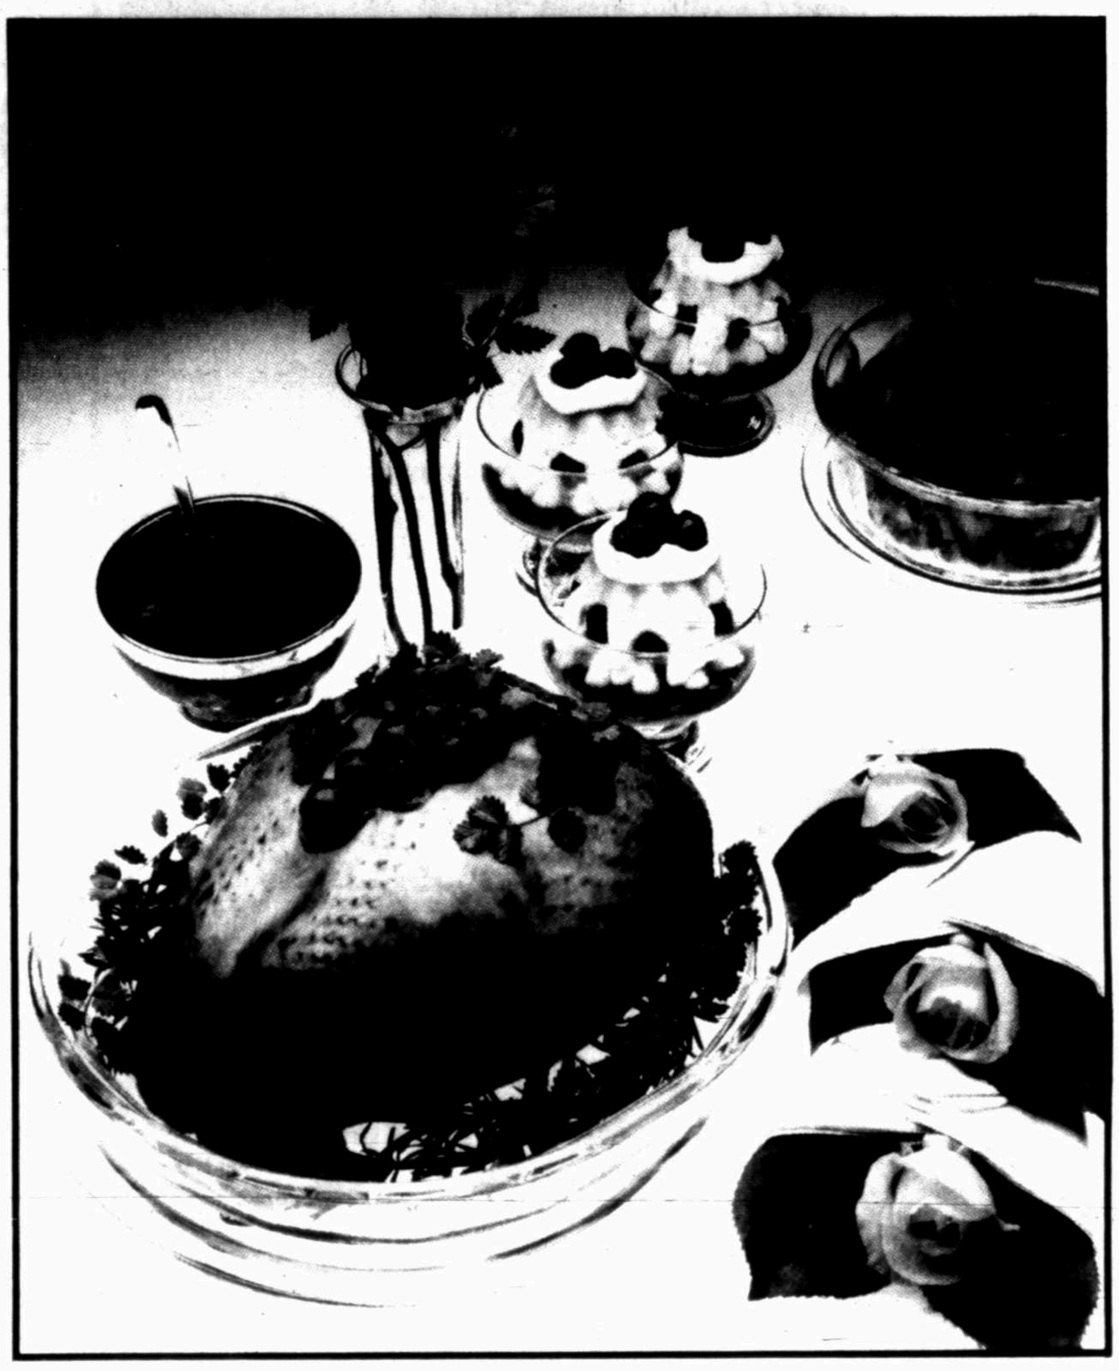
Simply Prepared Simply Sensational!



Festive occasions have a new flair. They are both simple and sensational, a style appropriate for today's active host or hostess. In fact, the contemporary cook frequently looks for easy-to-prepare foods that offer a touch of distinction.

With this menu, simplicity takes on an elegant air. The familiar ingredients are found in most kitchens or are readily available. Yet these entertaining ideas, enhanced by the serving pieces and fresh roses, create a presentation ideal for most any event — birthdays, graduations, anniversaries, bridal showers and other special occasions throughout the year, such as Mother's Day, Valentine's Day ...

Cherry pie filling goes beyond dessert in this menu. As a sauce tinged with the sweetness of pineapple juice and the spiciness of brown mustard, it adds a subtle yet distinct flavor to turkey breast.

For dessert, it's Cherry Shortcake Supreme — alternating layers of cherry filling, white cake and whipped cream. The delicate cake, easily prepared with a white pudding cake mix, can be baked in advance to save last-minute preparation time.

Or, try Cherry Cream Delight. Cherry pie filling spiced with orange peel makes a perfect topping for this delectable ice cream pie in a chocolate crumb crust.

To complete the menu, include your favorite green vegetable, such as fresh broccoli or green beans. The vegetables can be steamed atop the stove or in the microwave. With just a hint of seasoning, such as an herb butter, steamed fresh vegetables add interesting texture and flavor to the meal. New potatoes, baked until tender and then sprinkled with dill, along with a crispy salad and croissants provide the finishing touch.

With the addition of fresh roses, the table setting itself becomes regal in appearance. True, most people prefer red roses. But no matter what the shade or the quantity, roses are colorful, easy to arrange and provide unlimited opportunities for an innovative decor.

With this buffet, preparation for the menu and the table setting is minimal, leaving plenty of time to enjoy the celebration and the food itself.

MENU

Green Salad — Croissants
Dilled New Potatoes — Green Vegetable
Turkey Breast with Piquant Cherry Sauce
Cherry Shortcake Supreme or Cherry Cream Delight

CHERRY SHORTCAKE SUPREME

SHORTCAKE:
- 1 white cake mix with pudding in mix
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup plain yogurt
- 1/3 cup vegetable oil
- 1/4 cup water

Generously grease and flour 10 to 12 French tart forms or use 10 to 12 6-ounce Pyrex custard cups. Mix all ingredients in large mixing bowl at low speed until moistened. Beat 2 minutes at highest speed. Bake in 350° oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until cake springs back when touched lightly in center. Cool 5 minutes on cake rack; turn out.

CREAMY FILLING:
- 2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- 1 tablespoon powdered sugar
- 1 cup whipping cream, whipped, or 2 cups prepared whipped topping

Blend cream cheese, milk, extract and powdered sugar until smooth. Fold in whipped cream.

CHERRY LAYER:
- 2 cans (21 ounces each) cherry pie filling
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- 1 teaspoon almond extract

Stir orange rind and extract into cherry pie filling.

Split shortcakes in half horizontally. Layer ingredients into serving dishes; beginning and ending with cherry layer.

THE LANGUAGE OF ROSES

Roses have a language of their own and there are colors for every occasion. Use this guide from America's Rose Growers to convey the appropriate message.

- The red rose symbolizes love, respect and courage.
- The pink rose carries the message, "You're gentle and graceful."
- Deep pink says, "Thank you."
- Light pink conveys admiration.
- The white rose has three meanings: Innocence and purity, "I'm worthy of you," and "You're heavenly."
- Red and white roses together symbolize unity or an engagement.
- Yellow roses signify joy, gladness.
- A bouquet of roses in full bloom means gratitude.
- A single rose in full bloom means "I love you" or "I still love you."

CHERRIES OVER ALL

Looking for intriguing ways to use cherry pie filling? Just think — "cherries over all" — and try these suggestions.

*Heat cherry pie filling and use as a quick and flavorful topping over waffles or pancakes. For a special brunch, top a Belgian waffle with vanilla ice cream, warm cherry pie filling, whipped cream and nuts.

*Spoon cherry pie filling over pound cake, cheesecake or ice cream. Use right out of the can or mix with bits of grated orange peel, chopped nuts or fresh fruits.

*Prepare distinctive sauces by combining cherry pie filling with: spices — cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon, ginger, curry powder; fruits — chunky applesauce, mandarin oranges, whole cranberry sauce; or nuts — almonds, pecans, pinenuts, or walnuts.

*Use these sauces over meats, such as pork, lamb, veal chops, roasts, and ham slices; or over poultry, such as chicken, turkey breast, Cornish game hens and duckling.

*Create a refreshing and light meal with cherry soup. Combine one can (21 ounces) cherry pie filling, 2-1/2 cups plain yogurt, 2-1/2 cups milk and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Serve chilled with a salad and crusty bread.

*Layer cherry pie filling with eight ounces of plain yogurt or sour cream for a refreshing parfait. Sprinkle with coconut.

*Cut calories one-third by using "lite" cherry pie filling in any of these recipes.

TURKEY BREAST WITH PIQUANT CHERRY SAUCE

- 1 5- or 6-pound breast of turkey
- 1 can (21 ounces) cherry pie filling
- 1/2 cup pineapple juice
- 2 tablespoons mild brown mustard

Conventional directions: Place thawed turkey breast, breast-side-up, in 3-quart Corning Clear Elegance baking dish. Season turkey breast as usual. Bake in 325° oven for 2-1/2 to 3 hours or until meat thermometer registers 170° in the thickest part, not touching bone. Let stand, tented with foil, for 15 minutes before slicing.

Microwave directions: Place thawed turkey breast, breast-side-down, in 3-quart Corning Clear Elegance baking dish. Season turkey breast as usual. Cover loosely with wax paper. Microwave on high power for 10 minutes. Rotate dish one-fourth turn. Microwave on medium (50% power) for 15 minutes. Turn turkey breast over; microwave with breast-side-up on medium (50% power) for 15 minutes. Rotate dish one-fourth turn. Microwave on medium (50% power) for 15 to 30 minutes or until meat thermometer registers 170° in thickest part, not touching bone. Let stand, tented with foil, 15 minutes before slicing.

Combine cherry pie filling, pineapple juice and brown mustard. Heat to warm, do not boil. Serve over sliced turkey.

CHOCOLATE CRUMB CRUST:
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1-1/2 cups chocolate cookie crumbs (about 16 cookies)

Conventional directions: Melt butter; add cookie crumbs, stir to mix well. Press into bottom and against sides of 9-inch pie plate. Cool. A ready-made chocolate crust may also be used.

Microwave directions: Place butter in 9-inch glass pie plate. Microwave on high power 30 seconds or until melted. Add cookie crumbs; mix well. Press into bottom and against sides of plate. Cool.

ICE CREAM LAYER:
- 1 pint chocolate ice cream
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream

Allow ice cream to soften. Stir until smooth. Spread chocolate ice cream in chocolate crust. Spread vanilla ice cream over chocolate ice cream layer. Freeze until firm, about 3 hours.

CHERRY TOPPING:
- 1 can (21 ounces) cherry pie filling
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind

Combine ingredients in small bowl. Cover and refrigerate until serving time.

At serving time, set pie onto warm dampened towel. Cut pie into wedges; lift onto serving plate. Spread cherry topping onto each slice. Top with a dollop of whipped cream, if desired.

CARE OF ROSES

Proper care of roses can double or even triple their life. America's Rose Growers emphasize that roses are very thirsty so make sure they are always in water. Roses in napkins (as shown here) should be placed in a water-filled tube available from most florists. Other tips to remember are:

- If roses come from the florist already arranged in sponge-like foam, immediately add enough barely warm water to soak the foam, and add more water every day to keep it soaked.
- If roses are delivered loose in a box, keep them in a cool place until they can be arranged.
- To arrange roses, gather a sharp knife or scissors and a vase or other attractive container. Fill each vase with barely warm water, using the floral preservative that came with the roses.
- With a knife or scissors, cut about an inch off the bottom of each rose, while holding the end of the stem under water. Put the rose into the vase immediately, without letting the cut end of the stem dry out.
- At night, keep roses out of drafts and in a cool dark place.
- When a rose in an arrangement begins to hang its head, it can be revived. Recut the stem under barely warm water and lay the entire rose in barely warm water in a sink or tub. In several hours, the rose will revive and can be returned to the arrangement.

Tomato Chicken makes dinner entree for four

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

DINNER FOR FOUR
Tomato Chicken & Rice
Green Peas & Salad
Fruit & Beverage

TOMATO CHICKEN
3¼-pound chicken, cut up
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons light brown sugar
2 medium onions, chopped medium fine
16-ounce can sliced stewed tomatoes
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
Bay leaf

In a large skillet in the butter and sugar, brown chicken. Add onion and cook until transparent. Stir in tomatoes, vinegar, salt, pepper, thyme and bay leaf. Cover and simmer 30 to 40 minutes or until tender. Remove chicken and keep hot. Skim excess fat from sauce. Reduce sauce, if you like, by boiling gently; pour over chicken. Makes 4 servings.

Cream cheese, sesame seeds mixed together

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

SESAME DIP

Beat together until blended 4 ounces softened cream cheese, ¼ cup sour cream, ¼ cup plain yogurt and 1 teaspoon sugar; turn into a small serving bowl, then cover and chill.

Spread 1 or 2 tablespoons of sesame seeds over the bottom of a small skillet; stir constantly over moderate heat until lightly toasted; cool.

At serving time, sprinkle sesame seeds over cream cheese mixture. Serve as a dip with strawberries, sliced pears and pineapple spears.

Pork important in American diet

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

The United States is a nation of meat eaters, with present consumption about 190 pounds annually, not counting the poultry we eat.

It is estimated that more than 70 pounds of this is pork, the most versatile meat to grace our dinner table. This is quite a bit when you consider that back in 1525, the only swine in this country were the 13 beasts that explorer Hernando de Soto brought with him from Europe.

Today, there are close to 60 million of the animals on our pig farms.

Only about one third of this meat is sold fresh. A good deal is cured by smoking or salting for making hams and bacon. Most of the rest is turned into processed products, such as the sausages which abound in this land.

Among the best known sausages, next to the omnipresent hot dog, are English country sausages in link and patty, garlicky Polish kielbasa and Spanish chorizos, spiced up with dried hot red-pepper flakes.

Bacon, a standby on most American breakfast tables, accounts for a lot of pork. Many don't realize that bacon has many uses, such as grilling with bread and fresh pork on skewers, and in stews.

Bacon is also a key ingredient in sandwiches, such as the classic club with turkey and tomato. It is also a popular accompaniment to calf's liver.

Most of our pigs are bred on farms in the Midwest and grow to about 200 pounds before being shipped off. Their best known offshoot is probably the rosy Virginia ham, seasoned with oak, apple and hickory smoke. These hams rank with such world leaders as Westphalian ham from Germany and Italy's prosciutto.

Here's a recipe for bacon in a potato-apple stew that originated in Switzerland.

POTATO-APPLE STEW
2 tablespoons honey
8 ounces dried apples, diced, soaked in water a few hours and drained
10 ounces slab bacon
1 pound medium potatoes, peeled and quartered
Salt to taste
Butter

Warm honey in saucepan over low fire. Add apples and bacon, cover with cold water and cook gently, covered, about an hour. Add potatoes and salt to taste and continue cooking until potatoes are soft — about 30 minutes. Add a little butter, cut bacon into small pieces and return to pan. Shake pan to mix all ingredients well. Serves 4. Good with chilled beer.

Chicken pie topped with cheese pastry

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

SUNDAY SUPPER
Chicken Pie & Salad
Fruit Cup & Beverage

ALL-CHICKEN PIE
Cheese Pastry, recipe follows
3¾ to 4-pound chicken
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 cups milk
1 chicken bouillon cube
Salt and pepper to taste

Make up Cheese Pastry. Steam chicken until tender; skin, bone and cube (1 inch) — there should be about 1 quart.

In a medium saucepan make a white sauce of butter, flour and milk, dissolving bouillon cube in it. Stir chicken into sauce; add salt and pepper; keep hot.

On a pastry cloth with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out pastry to an 11- by 7-inch rectangle.

Turn hot chicken mixture into a 10 by 6 by 1¾-inch baking dish. Top with pastry, sealing its edges to dish. Cut 12 one-inch vents in pastry and slightly open each.

Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until pastry is golden — 25 to 30 minutes.

Makes 6 servings.

CHEESE PASTRY

Into 1 cup all-purpose flour cut a ¼-pound stick of butter until size of small peas. Stir in 2 ounces shredded (medium fine) extra-sharp cheddar cheese. Gradually sprinkle with water (about 2 tablespoons) and press into a ball.

Wrap in saran and chill thoroughly before using.

Meat slices easier

Associated Press

Meat slices more easily if it's partially frozen, according to Family Circle magazine. Remember this the next time you're planning to cut beef into julienne strips or thin slices for stir-fried Oriental dishes.

DEAR ABBY

Letter inspires woman to quit smoking

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: On April 5, I read a letter in your column in the Rocky Mountain News that did something for me that nothing else was able to do. It made me decide to quit smoking.

It was written by a woman signed "Grieving in Gulfport," whose beloved younger sister had died from lung cancer. Her doctor bluntly stated, "Cigarettes killed her."

"Grieving's" final paragraphs hit me like a thunderbolt: "Abby, why do advertisers make cigarette ads so attractive? Instead, they should run a before and after picture of a once-beautiful woman vomiting and bald from radiation therapy.

"I know this letter is too long for your column, but if it makes just one person reach into her purse (or his pocket) and throw away that pack of cigarettes, it will be worth it."

Abby, please tell "Grieving" that her letter made this 42-year-old, four-pack-a-day woman reach into her purse and throw her cigarettes in the trash! I've taken an oath to never smoke again.

Too bad she didn't sign her name. She deserves to be thanked publicly. — FREE IN DENVER

DEAR FREE: She did sign her name, but requested that her letter be signed "Grieving in Gulfport" if published.

However, I telephoned her to tell her what a terrific impact her letter had made, and asked if I could reveal her identity.

She said, "If you think it will help just one person, go ahead."

So, orchids to you, Dorothy Sosebee in Gulfport, Miss.!

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you for advice, but here I am.

My world is in chaos, and for the first time in my life I am considering suicide. I am the mother of two beautiful twin boys who are 2 years old. I often wonder if they'd be better off without me. I'm 22.

Six months ago I left my husband to live with a married man I thought I loved. I destroyed two families because of my selfishness, and now I'm miserable. I realize that I do not love this older married man.

I want my old life back, but I know my husband and his family will never forgive me for what I have done. Please help me. — ASHAMED IN AMHERST

DEAR ASHAMED: You really want to live or you wouldn't have written to me. You can be helped, and I want to help you, but it's not possible unless you tell me how to reach you.

Please call your telephone operator and ask for your local suicide prevention office. Then phone that office and tell the people there that Abby told you to call. Do this immediately, and let me hear from you at once. I care.

DEAR ABBY: You told "No Way Out," the married man who wants out of an affair he had going with a female employee, immediately to confess everything to his wife so the other woman cannot blackmail him.

This violates the first principle in such matters: Always lie.

The man should either suffer silently, or if it becomes truly intolerable, fire the woman. If she informs the wife of the affair, explain that it's motivated by revenge and untrue. When she presents his wife with his sales slips for expensive gifts to her, explain that they were for prizes for an employee incentive contest. When she presents airline tickets and hotel bills, explain that they were on business trips and had to share a room because of the company's austerity program — and nothing happened. When she presents the wife with pictures of him and her in the ultimate embrace, he should assure his wife that the employee was shaking uncontrollably from malaria-induced chills, and he threw himself on her to warm her up.

Abby, your penchant to recommend confession dooms a lot of marriages. Please be more cautious. — EX-MARINE AND EAGLE SCOUT, OMAHA

Ham gives flavor to variety of meals

By MARY WENDT
Hearst News Service

Ham is the king of leftovers. After a holiday meal, scraps of this versatile meat flavor soups, omelets, casseroles, sandwiches, quiches and salads.

In addition to traditional accompaniments — eggs, beans or Swiss cheese — ham has a natural affinty for peas, corn, broccoli, cauliflower, mushrooms and pasta. And the best thing about ham is that a little can go a long way. Just a cup or two is all that's necessary for any number of dishes.

While boneless hams may seem the easiest for slicing and serving, a leftover ham bone to use in navy bean soup or black beans and rice is a bonus.

This traditional omelet is from "Pirate's Pantry, Treasured Recipes of Southwest Louisiana," by the Junior League of Lake Charles, Inc.:

HAM AND MUSHROOM OMELETS

Basin omelet recipe:
6 eggs, whipped
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Mix eggs, baking powder, salt and pepper together. Melt butter in the pan, coating the sides and bottom. Pour in the egg mixture and cook over medium heat. When edges begin to set slightly, add desired filling in a straight line from one side to the other. Let omelet cook slowly until edges firm.

With a spatula, lift one side over filling to the center. Center omelet in pan and flip center over side that is still open. (Flip right side over center, then center over left side.) Cook until set. Slide out on a warmed platter and garnish with extra filling. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Ham and mushroom filling:
1½ cups ham, diced
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, chopped
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup Swiss cheese, shredded

Saute ham and mushrooms in butter. Add cheese. Use as a filling in above omelet recipe.

Here's a quick and easy menu idea from "The Joy of Pasta," by Joe Famularo and Louise Imperiale:

EGG AND SPINACH PASTAS WITH HAM, MUSHROOMS AND CREAM

¾ pound fresh mushrooms
¼ pound butter
¼ cup finely chopped shallots
6 ounces unsmoked ham cut into julienne strips
1 cup heavy cream
salt
freshly ground pepper
½ cup fresh or frozen peas, cooked
¾ pound fresh egg fettuccine
½ pound fresh spinach fettucine
½ to 1 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Wipe the mushrooms clean and trim stems. Cut into ¼-inch cubes and set aside.

In a large skillet, melt 4 tablespoons of the butter and saute the shallots over medium heat until they have turned pale gold. Turn up the heat and add the mushrooms. Cook the mushrooms until they absorb the butter, then lower the heat. Add 1 teaspoon salt and mill in some pepper, tossing the mushrooms in the skillet with a wooden spoon or by shaking the pan. The mushrooms will render juice quickly; at this point, turn the heat up high again and cook the mushrooms for 3 minutes. Stir frequently.

Reduce the heat, add the ham and cook for only 1 minute. Add half the heavy cream all at once and cook just long enough for the cream to thicken slightly. Taste and add salt and pepper to taste. Remove from the heat.

In a large saucepan, melt the remaining 4 tablespoons of butter and add the remaining cream. Turn on the heat low. When the butter is melted and amalgamated with cream, remove from heat.

Cook the 2 pastas in separate pots. Start the spinach fettucine first as it cooks faster. Drain well and transfer spinach noodles in the pan with the butter and cream. Drain the egg noodles and transfer them to the same pan.

Turn the heat to low and toss the noodles, coating them with the cream mixture.

Add the peas, then half the mushroom sauce, mixing it well with the pasta. Add ⅓ cup of the cheese and quickly mix it with the pasta. Remove from heat and transfer to a bowl. Pour in the remaining sauce and serve with additional cheese.

This ham and corn pie, a good flavor combination from the Pennsylvania Dutch country, is from Betty's Groff's "Country Goodness Cookbook":

HAM AND CORN PIE

2 cups precooked ham, diced
4 cups fresh corn kernels
4 eggs, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons flour
⅓ cup melted butter
Pastry for a large baking dish or 2 pie pans

Combine ham, corn, eggs, salt, sugar, pepper, flour and butter. Pour into a pastry-lined pan and cover with top crust. Slit the top crust to let the steam escape. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 1 hour and 15 minutes.

These biscuits from "Cooking with Michael Field" make a good accompaniment for scrambled eggs. Or serve them with a hearty vegetable soup.

HAM AND BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

The dough:
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
4 tablespoons chilled, unsalted butter, cut into bits
½ cup finely chopped lean ham
¾ cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon butter (room temperature)
2 tablespoons flour (approximately)

Preheat the oven to 425 degrees.

Sift the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, dry mustard and cayenne pepper together in a 4-quart bowl.

Add 4 tablespoons of chilled butter and, with a pastry blender, cut the butter bits into the flour with small chopping motions until the mixture looks like coarse meal. With a spoon, stir in the chopped ham and buttermilk. Stir only until the mixture is evenly moistened and can be gathered into a ball.

With a pastry brush, coat the surface of a 17x14-inch baking sheet with the softened butter.

Lightly flour a pastry cloth and the rolling pin. Roll the dough out about ½-inch thick. With a 2-inch cookie cutter, cut out as many rounds as you can and place them about 1 inch apart on the baking sheet. Gently gather the remaining dough into a ball, roll it out and cut more rounds, repeating until all the dough has been used. You should have about 20 biscuits when you are finished.

Bake the biscuits for 18 to 20 minutes, or until they are golden brown and crusty and have almost doubled in size. Serve them at once.

Pancakes topped with caviar

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Some of the interesting recipes in my collection are those that professional culinary friends have obtained from other good cooks.

For example, a home economist friend of mine adapted a recipe for Spinach Pancakes with Salmon Caviar from one that a Swedish Countess contributed to a gourmet gala.

SPINACH PANCAKES AND SALMON CAVIAR

10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach
1 large egg
½ cup half-and-half or light cream
⅓ cup all-purpose flour
Pinch each white pepper and nutmeg
⅓ cup minced scallion
¼ cup (about) hot melted butter
Two 2-ounce jars salmon caviar, drained
1½ cups sour cream

Bring ⅛ cup water to a boil. Add spinach and cook until it can be stirred smooth. Drain, stirring, in a sieve. Puree in an electric blender or food processor. Measure ½ cup.

Beat egg; gradually beat in half-and-half, then flour, pepper and nutmeg. Stir in drained spinach and 2 tablespoons of the minced scallions.

Heat a pancake grill; film with a little melted butter. Drop spinach batter by tablespoonfuls and flatten each with the back of a spoon to make a pancake about 3 inches wide. Cook briefly until set but not brown so pancakes are tender and a pretty green color; turn and cook the second side. Allow 3 pancakes per serving. Top each with some of the hot melted butter, salmon caviar, sour cream and remaining minced scallion.

Dollar edges up

LONDON (AP) — The dollar edged up in quiet trading early today a day after a sharp setback that dealers attributed to technical factors. Gold prices were little changed.

Dealers said that lacking any important news on interest rates or the health of the U.S. economy, the markets were likely to keep the currency within a narrow range.

On Tuesday the dollar lost 5½ pfennigs against the West German mark and nearly three cents against the British pound.

Dealers could only cite technical factors in explaining the selloff, which terminated a three-day rally. That rally had recouped nearly half the ground the dollar lost in a six-week plunge from record levels reached in February.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell to a closing 252.75 yen from Tuesday's 254.15. Later, in London, it was quoted at 253.05 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Tuesday:

–2.6785 Swiss francs, up from 2.6780.

–3.6085 Dutch guilders, up from 3.5825.

–2,027.00 Italian lire, up from 2,020.00.

–1.3815 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3807.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $314.00 an ounce, compared with late Tuesday's $314.50. At midmorning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $313.35.

In Zurich, the bid noon price was $313.75, up from $313.50 late Tuesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold rose $2.45 to close at a bid $314.30.

In New York Tuesday, gold rose $6 to close at $314.90.

Panel looks into mishandling of oil overcharges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel is investigating a White House official's contact with federal regulators who filed a complaint against an oil company partly owned by his family.

House Energy Committee Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., said Tuesday that for several months his subcommittee on oversight and investigations has been looking into the handling of millions of dollars in alleged oil product overcharges by Anchor Gasoline Corp. of Tulsa, Okla., and a subsidiary, Canal Refining Co. of Church Point, La.

Deputy White House Budget Director Joseph R. Wright Jr. has acknowledged calling the Department of Energy's top regulator on Sept. 23, 1982, nine days after the department filed a formal complaint seeking $7.6 million in alleged overcharges plus $8.5 million in interest from Anchor. Wright's family owns 20 percent of Anchor's stock.

The alleged overcharges stem from the 1973-81 period when there were government price controls on oil and petroleum products. President Reagan removed those controls almost immediately after taking office.

"The allegations regarding Joseph Wright Jr. and the officials of DOE are extremely serious and are being thoroughly investigated by the subcommittee," Dingell said. "We've interviewed many witnesses. ... The investigation ... probably will result in hearings ... in the near future."

Wright was quoted by The Wall Street Journal in its editions Tuesday as saying his 1982 call to Rayburn Hanzlik, head of the department's Economic Regulatory Administration, was to complain about bureaucratic delays in handling the Anchor case.

"I can remember saying, 'Ray, I want to make sure that you understand that I am not asking for any special treatment," Wright told the Journal. He was quoted further as saying that he was "just setting up a meeting" between Hanzlik and Anchor officials.

Shortly after that meeting, according to the newspaper, the complaint against Anchor was put on hold and was not reactivated until last Jan. 7, when one of Hanzlik's aides was questioned about it by the Energy Department's inspector general's office.

Hanzlik is quoted by the Journal as saying that Wright's call "did not have a scintilla of effect on the way the case was dealt with."

"A 120-second phone call is not what I would consider a fix," Hanzlik said. Nonetheless, he added, "I would prefer that he hadn't done it because it raises questions. Now there's an appearance problem. It was not good judgment."

El Chico Corp. President Gilbert Cuellar Jr. shows visitors the newly remodeled Midland El Chico restaurant. He says all of the chain's restaurants will be remodeled this year.

El Chico Corp. takes on new image

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business-Oil Editor

El Chico is getting a new look at both the local store level and the corporate level says the firm's president, Gilbert Cuellar, Jr., a member of the well-known family which helped pioneer Tex-Mex cuisine in the U.S.

Following extensive remodeling, the Midland El Chico restaurant, located at No.45 Plaza Center, reopened with a gala affair Tuesday, assisted by an entourage of corporate officers, which included the head of the Dallas-based firm.

According to the 29-year-old executive, the remodeling of the Midland store is part of an ongoing program which is expected to include every store in the chain by the end of the year. He also said the remodeling was a key factor in the renewed vitality of the restaurant chain.

The Cuellar family entered the Mexican food business in 1926 when Adelaida "Mama" Cuellar set up a tamale stand at the Kaufman, Texas County Fair in 1926. Later "Mama's boy's," that is Gilbert Sr. and his brothers, would found a family restaurant in Dallas in 1940, that would become the incubator for the multi-million dollar El Chico Corp., which would be sold and then repurchased by the family.

The dramatic turnaround of the Tex-Mex food chain, which includes 72 units in 10 states, has put the firm in the limelight of the restaurant industry, and has become one of the better-known business success stories in the Southwest.

Sold to baking giant, Campbell-Taggart, in 1977, the chain was repurchased by Gilbert Cuellar, Sr. and Gilbert, Jr. in 1982 for $12.6 million, following a decade of lackluster performance. Now the firm has entered a dramatic growth period which is its first since 1979, and the value of the corporation is estimated to be worth almost four times the price paid to Campbell-Taggart. Campbell-Taggart was forced to divest itself of the chain, when it was acquired by Anhauser-Busche.

Turnaround growth has been solid. Net sales for the firm increased by 20 percent to $77 million in 1984, and is expected to reach $90-95 million in 1985 and 1986. Income on the $77 million was up 17.5 percent over the previous year, while net income of $3.6 million was up 20 percent.

"We want to become the biggest full-service Mexican restaurant chain in the nation," said Gilbert Cuellar, Jr., "but we will not grow too fast. We intend to maintain our present manageable growth rate."

Cuellar recognizes that the company "lost some ground" while it was in the hands of a corporate giant, but says the firm is working hard to regain it. "Campbell-Taggart created the slogan that it was not the same old enchilada, but they found that the people wanted the same old enchilada."

To make up lost ground El Chico instituted a four-point strategy which included: — A $600,000 remodeling effort to affect a more plesant dining atmosphere;

— Controlled expansion through a $6.9 million development program and franchising;

— New marketing concepts to improve overall customer perception, — Strict food quality control and thorough management and employee training;

"The most important thing in a Mexican restaurant is consistency," said Cuellar, "and the only thing that can give consistency is your management and employees."

Franchising is one of the methods the firm has selected for growth, but even in this field, usually selected for fast growth, El Chico is in no hurry.

"Having a million dollars to spend will not get you an El Chico franchise," said Cuellar. "We are very selective in who we franchise, and we will only franchise one store at a time. We don't allow for franchised multi-units. We provide a lot of support for our franchises and we will only franchise as many as we can support."

Currently there are only 15 franchised units in the chain with five more expected to be added in 1985. While all the franchises are profitable, El Chico franchise fees remain comparatively low.

"We only charge a $25,000 fee, a four percent royalty and a one percent marketing fee," said the youthful president, who restores vintage Jaguars in his spare time.

While 1984 saw El Chico concentrating on remodeling, management taining and other measures to increase profitability, this year the expanding firm will focus on marketing, alloting three precent of its gross sales to advertising and marketing. Full-color newspaper inserts will be a prime advertising vehicle, with TV being used in areas where unit concentration allows it to be effective.

Cuellar says the firm plans to stay within its present boundries for expansion and would not try to move into the Northeast. "I had rather be down here with all the competition than up there with all the uncertainties," he said.

Hispanic Chamber votes to support Proposition One

By MELLA McEWEN
Business-Oil Writer

At the regular monthly meeting of the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce last night, members voted to support Proposition One on the upcoming bond election on the jail issue and to oppose Proposition Two.

Roger Robles, president of the chamber's board of directors, said he had served on the jail task force and the task force had recommended solving the immediate problems to keep the jail open, and then do a long-term study to solve the problems once and for all.

Several members also expressed concern that the new jail recommended in Proposition Two, planned for the east side of Midland, would harm the group's efforts in bringing in businesses and other development to the area.

In other action, members also voted to support the Texans for Blue Law Repeal, the state-wide group trying to repeal the Texas blue laws. However, it was noted that most supporters of blue law repeal were large corporations like Sears, Zales, and the Southland Corp., which owns the Seven-Eleven chain, and not smaller companies as represented by the chamber.

Other discussions at the meeting involved the chamber's plans for developing Midland's east side. According to a report, both the Midland City Council and County Commissioners and the Midland Chamber of Commerce support this plan. Letters have been sent to community leaders asking for their help in fund-raising and in bringing business to the area.

At the meeting, a letter from Judge Bill Ahders enclosing a resolution passed by both the Midland Chamber of Commerce and County Commissioners supporting the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce was read.

The chamber also discussed positive role models for school-age hispanics, though there was debate on what age group to target. The project, initiated by an elementary school principal and chamber president Robles, involves using members of the chamber to encourage hispanic children that they can be successful as well. Concern has been expressed by members of the chamber as well as other hispanic groups, such as LULAC, over the drop-out rate among hispanic teen-agers.

Also discussed was the chamber's booth for the upcoming centennial festival, where the group plans to sell computer portraits and balloons.

After all reports and discussions, the group heard a talk from Dr. Michael Williams, vice president and manager of the Funds Management/Investments Division of RepublicBank First National Midland. He received his bachelor's in economics and math at Austin College and his master's and doctorate in economics from Southern Methodist University. He talked, and answered a number of questions on "The Basics of Investing Your Dollar."

API Sour Crude tees off Thursday

The American Petroleum Institute (API) Sour Crude Open will tee off at 8 a.m. Thursday and Friday at Mission Dorado Country Club.

The annual golf tournament is a traditional affair in the Permian Basin and is expected to draw 328 players this year from throughout the area.

On Thursday, 164 players will play in the tournament and the remaining number will play the next day. Players should check in at the desk 30 minutes before tee off time.

Proceeds from the tournament will go toward the API scholarship fund.

Landmen's seminar focuses on New Mexico regulations

Two Midland lawyers, Conrad Coffield and William Burford, presented an afternoon seminar Tuesdayon New Mexico land regulations for the Permian Basin Landmen's Association at the Midland Center.

Both men work for the law firm of Hinkle, Cox, Eaton, Coffield and Hensley, and work in oil and gas matters.

According to Dave Leaverton, president of the association, the group tries to have an educational program, and New Mexico land regulations was chosen because many members were concerned with that area.

Leaverton said that, to his knowledge, this was the group's first luncheon meeting. He termed it an experiment, and a successful one. He noted that about 180 to 200 people were expected, and that 235 attended.

Coffield, moved to Midland to open an office for the Hinkle firm and is the senior partner at the Midland office. He spoke on compulsory pooling. Compulsory pooling, or forced pooling, is a situation where the state can force a neighboring lease holder to join a drilling program.

Burford has been associated with the Hinkle firm since graduating from the University of Texas law school in 1978. He spoke to the landmen on ingress, egress and surface use, covering the rights of a leaseholder in access to and from the lease, the use of the surface, and surface damage payments.

Rigs didn't sell at FDIC auction

From Staff Reports

Four deep drilling rigs listed in a foreclosure auction, at Odessa, Tuesday failed to sell at anticipated prices and were purchased by the Midland office of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., according to a spokesman for the FDIC.

Listed for auction were two Mid-Continent 914EC, rigs with 1,400 horsepower electric drawworks and 142-foot Dreco masts, and two Mid-Continent U-712-EA rigs with 1,200 horsepower electric drawworks and 142-foot masts. All of the rigs were capable of drilling to depths of 20,000 feet and below.

All four of the rigs were complete and ready to drill with Triplex mud pumps, blow out preventors, rams, drill pipe, drill collars, generators, diesels and mud tanks and even hand tools.

Only six bidders showed for the auction and the highest bid for the four-rig package was approximately $1.7 million or ten cents on the dollar of the cost to build and equip the rigs. The FDIC had hoped for a bid in excess of $3.4 million for the four rigs or a comprable price for any one of the rigs.

With the placing of the undisclosed protective bid, FDIC now becomes the owner of the rigs and will sell them at a later date either by auction or private sale, according to FDIC.

CHAMBER NOTES

Chamber urges Midlanders to vote for Proposition One

By SUSAN ATCHISON

Susan Atchison

The Chamber of Commerce encourages all Midlanders to vote in the Midland County jail bond election on May 11. At a special meeting last week, the Chamber's board of directors voted unanimously to endorse and support Proposition One on the election ballot.

In adopting a position supporting Proposition One, the Chamber's board cited several important factors for voter consideration: (1) certain expenditures included in Proposition One will have to be addressed regardless of any action concerning the jail question, i.e. roof and plumbing repairs and the Culver Youth Home, (2) it is anticipated that expenses associated with Proposition One can be held to less than $3 million, and (3) passage of Proposition One will permit minimum renovations of the jail facility and a comprehensive space needs study for the county.

Tickets for Gourmet Midland — a celebration of Midland's culinary arts — are still available for sale at the Chamber office, 109 N. Main. They are $15 per person or $25 per couple. Special blocks are available to large companies. Scheduled for Saturday, May 11 from 6 to 9 p.m., the event promises to provide a "cornucopia of foods for your sampling delight," as Midland Center is transformed into the atmosphere of a sidewalk cafe.

"This is a perfect way to begin an evening," Shawna K. Rust, Gourmet Midland chairman, said. "We are encouraging people to attend this festival of foods before going to the symphony or theatre on Saturday night."

•••

The Chamber will have another very popular "Business After Hours" mixer on Thursday, May 16 from 5-7 p.m. Mixer sponsors, American Airlines, Muse Air, Frontier Airlines and Southwest Airlines, will be giving away complimentary airline tickets as door prizes. To be held in the ClayDesta Bank atrium, the mixer is open to Chamber members only. Your business card admits you. Call the Chamber office, 683-3381, for reservations.

The Communications Department of the Chamber now has available a new brochure entitled "Midland: The Plain Facts of the Matter." It includes pertinent information on Midland's location, climate, demographics, economy, transportation, medical services and education. It also includes helpful phone numbers for residents new to the city. These brochures are available free of charge at the Chamber office.

The Education Committee of the Chamber is currently soliciting support from local companies to help send teachers from Midland to the UT-Austin Free Enterprise Teacher Intern Practicum. The cost per teacher is $2,200. Donations may be made, and further information obtained, by calling Alison Peeler at 683-3381.

•••

The Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with the Midland Arts Assembly, provides a 24-hour hotline to arts and activities happening in Midland. The Chamber encourages all Midlanders to call the line, 683-6048, weekly to be informed on what activities the city has to offer.

•••

Recent ribbon cuttings include the Fire Fighting Museum and Trinity Towers Manor Park. Ground was broken for the Lakeview Center office building at Mission Dorado. Upcoming ribbon cuttings include El Chico and Computerland. The Chamber will also host a cocktail hour and dinner for the visiting New Mexico Amigos at the Midland Petroleum Club.

Susan Atchison is communications manager of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

MidCon plans to reorganize

LOMBARD, Ill. — MidCon Corp. announced it has initiated a reorganization of its exploration and production functions under MCN Exploration, the parent company of Harper Oil Co. and Texoma Production Co., its two oil and gas units.

In the coming months, various major functions — exploration, production, engineering, marketing, accounting and general administration — will be consolidated under a unified management to be located in Houston.

William L. Radar, president of MCN Exploration and Harper Oil, will relocate to Houston.

Harper Oil handles exploration and production in the Rockies and the Mid-Continent, while Texoma manages those activities onshore and offshore in the Gulf of Mexico. Operating offices will continue to be maintained in Houston, Denver, Oklahoma City and Midland.

HNG bid Texas' highest

AUSTIN (AP) — A $8.3 million bonus bid from Houston Natural Gas set a record as the single highest bid in the state's semi-annual oil and gas lease sale, the General Land Office says.

The bid came in the April 2 lease sale of state land dedicated to funding public education, the land office said Tuesday.

The land office said the April 2 sale added $23.2 million to the Permanent School Fund, which now totals over $4.5 billion in deposits.

In addition to producing the highest bid for a single tract, the April sale also produced the highest per-acre bonus in history — $283.08, the land office said.

Houston Natural Gas, bidding through affiliate HNG Oil Co., was the sole bidder for the 1,440-acre northeast corner of Tract 448 in the Gulf of Mexico.

The company's high bid of $4,380 per acre topped the previous record bid by Houston Oil and Minerals, which was $4.1 million.

Commission levies penalties

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission levied administrative penalties totaling more than $17,000 on five Texas oil operators this week for violations of Commission well plugging rules.

Fines totaling $6,000 were assessed to Farrel G. Butler, Jr. of Pearland for failure to plug wells on the Massey Walker and Gertrude Leider leases in Brazoria County. A well on the lease has been inactive for more than three years. Commission rules require well operators to bring back into production or properly plug wells which haven't been operated in more than 90 days. Butler failed to appear at a Commission hearing called to investigate the status of the wells.

Crescent Exploration Co. of Austin was fined $500 for violating Commission plugging rules on the Arthur Praesel lease in Burleson County. The well was inactive from June 20, 1984 until properly plugged Dec. 4, 1984.

A $4,000 penalty was assessed to S. M. Production Co., Inc. of Houston for failure to plug two wells on the Dooley Estate Lease in Harris County. Both wells have been inactive for several years and remain unplugged.

E. P. Thompson of Humble was also assessed $4,000 in administrative penalties for failing to plug two wells on the E. P. Thompson Higgins lease in Harris County. The wells have been inactive and unplugged since June 1984.

John White and Ann White of Caldwell, doing business as Maude—W—Oil Co., were fined $3,000 for an unplugged well on the Brod lease in Burleson County. That well has remained unplugged and inactive since September 1983.

WTGS schedules monthly meeting

The West Texas Geological Society will hold their monthly meeting Thursday at the Ranchland Hills Country Club beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The cost of the dinner will be $12.50 and reservations should be made by calling 683-1573.

The program for the evening meeting will be "The Spiral Dance", a new C.D.R.I. film on Big Bend National Park.

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Strawn discovery flows 33 Mmcf

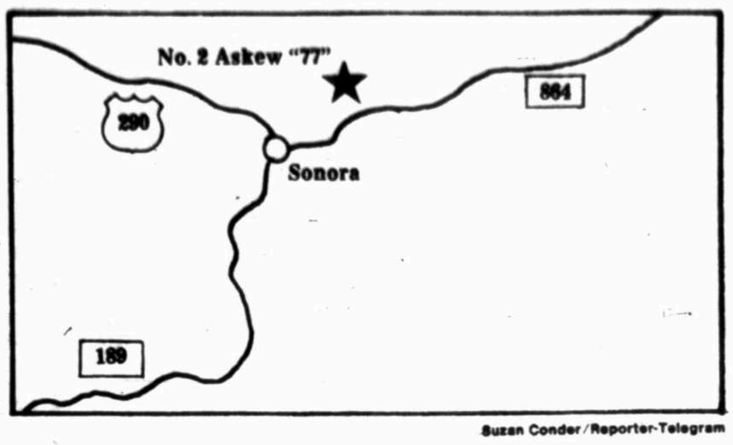
From Staff Reports

DIAMOND SHAMROCK EXPLORATION CO., Amarillo, completed the No. 2 Askew "77", a prolific Strawn gas discovery in Sutton County, for a calculated absolute open flow of 33 Mmcfd with a condensate gravity of 60 degrees and a gas-liquid ratio of 1,259,000:1. The well is flowing from the Strawn perforations 5,528 to 5,240 ft., which had been acidized with 1,500 gallons of acid.

Drilled to a total depth of 6,000 ft., casing set was 5 1/2 inches at TD.

On ground elevation of 2,366 ft., formation tops include the Canyon at 4,103 ft., Canyon A at 4,230, Canyon B at 4,510, Canyon C at 4,923, Canyon D at 5,312, Strawn Detrital at 5,518, and Strawn Lime at 5,542 ft.

The discovery is located 1,100 ft. from south and west lines of Section 77, Block 9, TW&NG survey, eight miles northeast of Sonora. Production is also two miles northeast of Canyon production in the Sawyer field.



Suzan Conder/Reporter-Telegram

Leonard plugback

Leonard production in the Saint Lawrence field of Glasscock County has been extended with recompletion of EXXON CORP. No. 2 Lela Pieper to pump 121 barrels of 50.1 gravity crude, 90 Mcfd and no water. Gas-oil ratio is 744:1. Exxon perforated the Leonard interval 5,366 to 5,406 ft., acidized with 504 gallons of acid and fractured with 4,000 gallons and 82,000 lbs.

Original total depth was 10,200 ft., plugged back to 10,115 ft. A 4 1/2 inch liner was hung 7,412 to 10,195 ft.

On a ground elevation of 2,702 ft., formation tops include the Brushy Canyon at 4,490 ft., Leonard at 5,366, Wolfcamp at 7,922, and Strawn at 9,961 ft. Top of the pay is 5,366 ft.

The well wa originally completed as a Strawn producer in the Saint Lawrence field.

Location is 660 ft. from east and 1,540 ft. from north lines of Section 35, Block 35, T-4-S, T&P survey, eight miles southwest of Garden City.

Dry hole reported

GULF OIL CORP. drilled and abandoned the No.325-E Crier-McElroy, Upton County wildcat, at a depth of 12,650 ft. The dry hole was located 660 ft. from south and 1,980 ft. from east lines of Section 190, Block F, CCSD&RGNG survey.

Glasscock field gains Strawn producer

The Arlis field of Glasscock County gained another Strawn producer with completionof B&G ENERGY CORP., Midland, No. 1 Le Petit Pois, flowing 13 barrels of 62 gravity crude, 275 Mcfd and no water on a 9/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 500 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 21,153:1. The well is flowing from the Strawn interval 10,062 to 10,204 ft., which had been acidized with 20,000 gallons of 20 percent NeFe acid.

Permitted as a 10,400 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 10,274 ft. and plugged back to 10,234 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 10,274 ft.

On ground elevation of 2,616 ft., formation tops include the Yates at 2 088 ft., San Andres at 3,621, Clearfork at 5,895, Wichita Albany at 7,895, Wolfcamp at 8,586, and the Strawn at 10,060 ft. Top of the pay is 10,062 ft.

Location is 1,300 ft. from east and 1,500 ft. from south lines of Section 36, Block 36, T-3-S, T&P survey, 11 miles northwest of Garden City.

Devonian re-opener flows 75 barrels

Devonian production in the Kiva field of Martin County was re-opened with completion of HERITAGE RESOURCES, INC., Midland, No. 1-3 Scharbauer to flow 75 barrels of 50.83 gravity crude, 350 Mcfd and 30 barrels of water on a 30/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 250 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 4,667:1. The well is flowing from the Devonian zone 11,690 to 11,746 ft., which had been acidized with 7,000 gallons of acid.

Scheduled as a 13,200 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 13,020 ft., and plugged back to 11,999 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 12,000 ft.

On ground elevationof 2,836 ft., formation tops include the Strawn at 10,410 ft., Atoka at 11,050, Woodford at 11,580, Devonian at 11,685, and the Ellenburger at 12,875 ft. Top of the pay is 11,690 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from north and west lines of Section 3, Block 39, T-1-S, T&P survey, six miles north of Midland.

Valve may have been responsible for salmonella outbreak, experts say

CHICAGO (AP) — A valve used to make routine cleaning of pipes easier at a suburban dairy may have allowed the nation's largest salmonella outbreak, according to health experts.

A preliminary report released Tuesday said the valve, part of an unusual piping system at Hillfarm Dairy, may have permitted small quantities of tainted raw milk to be drawn into pasteurized skim and whole milk while they were being blended.

Milk processed at Hillfarm and sold at 217 stores was suspected early as the source of the outbreak that has afflicted people in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota.

By Tuesday, 16,113 cases of salmonella had been reported in six states, all but 1,503 of them confirmed.

At most dairies, low-fat milk is produced by blending skim and whole milk before pasteurization, but the low-fat milk blamed for the outbreak was produced by Hillfarm's method of mixing components after pasteurization.

Experts speculated that uneven pressure during the mixing process could have created enough of a vacuum to suck raw milk through the suspect valve.

The valve is considered illegal because "you cannot have any connection between the raw and pasteurized sides of a dairy," said Illinois Inspector General Jeremy Margolis.

Spokesmen for Jewel Companies Inc., owner of the dairy, disagreed, saying the valve had been inspected many times since its installation in 1970 and was pointed out to federal inspectors only last month.

Jewel said the valve was normally opened twice a week to make flushing the entire dairy system quicker and more efficient.

Ironically, such routine cleaning may have washed away any chance to determine the exact source of the contamination, said Jerome J. Kozak, chief of the Food and Drug Administration's milk safety branch.

The ability to identify the source of the outbreak "was severely hampered by the extreme desire of the company to keep a clean dairy," Kozak said.

He noted, however, that if the dairy allowed the milk to remain in the pipes, it probably "would have stagnated and caused some exaggerated conditions. It's a dilemma," he said.

Daily cleaning operations, required by law, took place routinely after the the facility was shut down voluntarily April 9.

The report also said threaded caps, which fit both raw and pasteurized milk pipes, could have become contaminated through use with raw milk, then switched over to the pasteurized milk pipes, it said.

Meanwhile, a Circuit Court judge on Tuesday found the Jewel grocery store chain in violation of his April 4 order that it preserve milk tainted with salmonella and that it keep a record of what was done to milk returned to the dairy.

Judge William R. Quinlan did not impose a penalty but instructed attorneys representing salmonella victims who sued to return to court June 18 to suggest possible sanctions against Jewel.

House cuts spending for 'Star Wars'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee, following earlier Senate committee action, has taken a big bite out of President Reagan's "Star Wars" spending request, virtually assuring that the president will not get the money he wants next year for the futuristic missile defense program.

The House Armed Services Committee voted Tuesday to cut Reagan's 1986 spending request for Star Wars — known formally as the Stratetic Defense Initiative — by nearly 33 percent, from $3.7 billion to $2.5 billion, according to congressional sources who spoke only on condition they not be identified.

That followed a previous vote in the Senate Armed Services Committee to trim SDI spending back to $3.4 billion.

Any differences between the defense bills passed by the two chambers will be reconciled later. But Reagan's full request is unlikely to be approved since both committees have approved lesser amounts and any conference committee will start with a total lower than the Reagan request.

Star Wars spending will cost $1.4 billion in the current fiscal year.

Tuesday's decision came as the House panel began crafting a Pentagon authorization bill for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The committee is trying to draft a bill that provides a "freeze" on defense spending in inflation-adjusted spending. The measure includes a 4 percent increase over last year, but that amount is expected to only cover inflation.

The Senate has already tentatively approved a defense freeze. President Reagan originally had sought a 5.9 percent defense spending hike, to a total of $322.2 billion.

Critics of the SDI argue the goal of an impenetrable shield against nuclear missiles is technologically impossible and will only waste money while breaking existing defense treaties.

The House panel on Tuesday defeated several proposals to modify SDI spending levels for 1986 before approving the $2.5 billion figure on a voice vote, the congressional sources said.

Rep. Jim Courter, R-N.J., also lost a voice vote on his proposal to allow the Pentagon, rather than Congress.

NATION IN BRIEF

Man ordered under 24-hour surveillance

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Under terms of $1 million bail, a man accused of slaying eight people on an Alaska fishing boat must be in the presence of a family member or one of his lawyers 24 hours a day, his mother said.

John Kenneth Peel, 24, returned home Monday to await trial on charges of murdering the family and crew of the boat's owner in Craig, Alaska, in 1982. The property bond was posted by family and friends.

His mother, Marilyn, said bail conditions prohibit her son from leaving Whatcom County, 80 miles north of Seattle. Trial is scheduled for January.

Army to keep helicopters

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — The Army said it would keep all 62 of its CH-47 Delta helicopters grounded until a defective transmission part could be replaced.

The announcement Monday by Army officials at Fort Campbell that the cargo helicopters would be grounded came after one of the aircraft exploded in Honduras on April 21.

Army spokesman Lt. Col. Miguel Monteverde said it was uncertain how long it might take to repair the CH-47 fleet, 37 of which are based at Fort Campbell.

Diabetic involved in mishap

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A diabetic driver jailed for an accident that killed three people may have been careless with his diet and insulin intake the morning of the accident, his probation report says.

Riverside Superior Court Judge Howard M. Dabney on Monday sentenced John Washington, 55, to three months in jail and three years' probation on three counts of vehicular manslaughter.

Dabney's car hit two others while he suffered an apparent insulin reaction April 14, 1984, as he drove onto Interstate 15 about 60 miles southeast of Los Angeles, according to the report.

June 24 parole date set

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A parole date of June 24 was set for one of the three men convicted of the 1965 assassination of black activist Malcolm X, an official of the state Parole Board said.

A three-member hearing panel took the action Monday in the case of Muhammad Abdul Aziz, who has served a few months more than his minimum 20-year sentence, Edward Elwin, executive director of the board, said Tuesday.

Worker causes damages

CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. (AP) — No disciplinary action has been taken against a worker who accidentally dropped a wrench in a Florida Power Corp. coal-fired plant, causing a short circuit and $5 million in damage, a company spokesman said.

"Our primary emphasis right now is getting the plant back on line," company spokesman John Jendro said Monday.

The wrench hit a battery pack, causing a short-circuit in a control panel at one of four Crystal River coal-fired plants, Jendro said. Without power, the plant's primary cooling system overheated, he said.

The coal plant will be out of service until August at the earliest, Jendro said.

Mayor Koch 'delighted'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward Koch says he's "delighted" with a state appeals court ruling that he has the authority to bar discrimination against homosexuals in hiring by companies that do business with the city.

The 3-1 decision Tuesday overturned a ruling last October striking down an executive order requiring agencies and firms having city contracts to sign an agreement that they would not discriminate against homosexuals in hiring.

Saccharin gets new lease on life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saccharin, the artifical sweetener which last month lost the special protection that kept it from being banned as unsafe, has won another reprieve from the Senate, and the House is expected to add its approval shortly.

The Senate on Tuesday night voted 94-1 to extend for two more years the special exemption that allows saccharin to be used by consumers despite evidence linking it to bladder cancer. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., voted against, but did not explain his vote.

In adopting the extension, the Senate rejected a proposal that would have put new restrictions on the competing sweetener aspartame, sold under the trade name NutraSweet.

Following heavy lobbying by the soft drink industry, the Senate defeated 67-28 an amendment that would have required soft drink bottlers to tell consumers how much aspartame is contained in their diet sodas.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who offered the amendment, credited the defeat to industry lobbying, predicting defeat even before the vote.

"My guess is that the lobbyists have done their job and done it well," he said a few minutes before the vote.

Saccharin, man's oldest sugar substitute, has been used since the 1890s. It came under attack by the Food and Drug Administration in 1977 after laboratory rats fed large quantities of the sweetener showed increased rates of bladder cancer.

An FDA proposal to ban saccharin met public outrage, particularly from diabetics and others who needed to avoid sugar and had nowhere else to turn. Congress responded by temporarily forbidding the FDA from acting against saccharin.

The ban was extended periodically, but the most recent extension expired April 22. The new bill will extend it to May 1, 1987.

The extension was not controversial. While studies of the sweetener are still under way, FDA Commissioner Dr. Frank Young testified last month that data collected since 1977 "does not raise our level of concern over saccharin. ... The actual risk, if any, of saccharin to humans still appears to be slight."

The bill now goes to the House, where it also is expected to be noncontroversial. Michael Apatoff, an aide to Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., the House sponsor, said the House is expected to accept the Senate version and send the measure directly to the White House.

More controversial was the labeling requirement for aspartame, the newest sweetener approved by FDA. Some scientists charged the FDA acted hastily and ignored serious safety questions about the substance.

Metzenbaum's proposal would have required that soft drinks, within 18 months, carry labels saying how much aspartame is contained in each serving. But it was the subject of heavy lobbying.

The National Soft Drink Association said its objections were procedural — that the saccharin bill was an inappropriate place to enact such a requirement.

But the Calorie Control Council, a trade association for makers of diet foods, said the proposal was premature and unnecessary. And G.D. Searle and Co., which manufactures NutraSweet, said it was opposed to singling out its product.

"We're not against labeling if they want to label all the ingredients in food," Searle spokesman William Greener Jr. saud. "But it's unfair and illogical to single out one ingredient."

Metzenbaum professed bewilderment over the opposition.

"What have they got to hide?" he said. "All we are asking is how much aspartame is in the soft drink. It's no big deal."

Supersonic jet diverted to Boston

BOSTON (AP) — A British Airways Supersonic Concorde made an emergency landing in Boston when one of its four engines developed problems, according to the Massachusetts Port Authority.

MPA spokesman Nick Lamberti said the plane was bound from London to John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York when it was diverted Tuesday night to Logan International Airport.

"It landed at 6:42 and had no problems in landing," Lamberti said.

He said Boston airport officials were notified about a half hour earlier that the plane was coming in. He said Boston was about 30 minutes closer than the New York airport.

Italian communists hope to outvote Christian Democrats in elections

ROME (AP) — The Communist Party hopes to repeat as Italy's largest vote-getter Sunday in nationwide local elections that could decide the fate of the solidly pro-American government in Rome.

Apathy has so far marked the campaign for the municipal and regional offices.

Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti, four times premier, drew only 65 people at a recent Christian Democrat rally in central Rome.

Even the Communists are debating whether to hold their traditional election-eve rally in the capital because of fears it would compare poorly with last June's funeral for party leader Enrico Berlinguer, which drew millions.

A wave of sympathy for Berlinguer carried over in elections less than a week later for the European Parliament and vaulted the Communist Party ahead of the Christian Democrats for the first time since World War II, with a 33.3 percent to 30 percent advantage.

Another big Communist win, while having no direct effect on Parliament, would strain the five-party, national government coalition led by Premier Bettino Craxi, a Socialist.

Craxi said in a recent television interview that "neither the majority nor the government could stand a defeat."

The vote could also affect the outcome of a nationwide referendum in June seeking to repeal government imposed limits on the indexation of wages based on economic indicators. Communist-backed labor unions are leading the fight.

Furthermore, Parliament is scheduled in July to elect a new president of Italy, a prestigious post but one that has little to do with the everyday workings of government.

Communist Party Secretary Alessandro Natta has said his party may back 86-year-old President Sandro Pertini, a Socialist, for another seven-year term or, if it does well in elections, put up a Communist — a move sure to cause a stalemate since a two-thirds majority of both houses of Parliament is required to elect the president.

In nine months in office, the 67-year-old Natta has shunned large rallies, relaxed some internal party discipline, and hewed closely to the Eurocommunist policies of Berlinguer, his mentor.

At a recent news conference, he reiterated that the Communists recognize "Italy is in the NATO alliance and the European Common Market" and repeated his opposition to a Moscow-dominated Communist international party.

"In Afghanistan, we condemn (the Soviet intervention)," he said. "But we tell the Russians: You did well to reopen the Geneva talks (on disarmament), and we applaud the new (Soviet) moratorium on installations of strategic missiles."

At the same time Natta accused President Reagan of interfering in Italian politics by recently giving an interview to European newspaper correspondents in which he said he hoped Italian would not cast their votes for the largest Marxist party in the West.

Natta replied: "Reagan missed a good opportunity. He should mind his own business. He should look after freedom, justice and equality in his own country instead of worrying about Italians."

A recent poll indicated that a large number of Italians believe the Communists won't repeat their 1984 "sorpasso" (overtaking) of the Christian Democrats.

MARKNO, an Italian polling company, said 45 percent of a nationwide sample believe the Christian Democrats would return as Italy's largest party, while only 30 percent thought the Communists could do it again.

One of Natta's biggest headaches this year has been a series of indictments on charges of graft, embezzlement and other crimes against at least three dozen Communist officials in regional and municipal governments.

In Turin, Italy's automobile capital and the nation's fourth-largest city, a Communist-led administration has been forced to resign after 10 years in office.

The Communists' image as "the party of clean hands" has also been tarnished in such places as the "the red belt" around Bologna, where a scandal over building licenses has damaged its reputation as a showcase for Communist administration.

Natta acknowledges the scandals but says their severity doesn't compare with the Christian Democrats, whom he links to multimillion-dollar contracts by Mafia-backed construction firms in southern Italy.

The Communist leader refuses to commit himself on his strategy should the the party overtake the Christian Democrats.

"We do not demand a revolution of democratic ideals," Natta said, "and we won't automatically demand early parliamentary elections if we pass the Christian Democrats again. That is a scarecrow that the Christian Democrats are waving.

Soviet V-E day elicits pride, patriotism

MOSCOW (AP) — It is called The Great Patriotic War and the pride in the Soviet victory over the Nazi war machine in World War II is a deep-seated, time-resistant emotion here.

"There wasn't a family that didn't suffer," Soviets often say. "Twenty million died."

The phrases have been repeated in literature and at virtually every public event in the four decades since V-E Day in 1945, rising in crescendo in the months leading up to the 40th anniversary — May 9, the day the news of victory reached Moscow.

The words bespeak a deep emotion wrought by huge personal losses and kept alive for a new generation.

The war hit harder here than in Nazi-occupied France, or blitzed Britain. In Byelorussia, it killed one in every four people.

As evacuees fled east to Siberia and industry moved behind the Ural Mountains, the war engulfed the vast country.

Svetlana Alexiyevich, author of a collection of memoirs of women war veterans, was born four years after V-E Day, but she feels the scars of the war.

In her native Byelorussia, she said in an interview with The Associated Press, lilac and apple trees growing wild are the only reminder of the once carefully tended orchards in villages razed by the Nazis.

At her sister's recent wedding, her relatives were outnumbered by the groom's family from the Ukraine, where the war hit less hard. The reminder that many were missing because they died in the war brought tears to what would otherwise be a happy gathering.

"We are not a militaristic country," Ms. Alexiyevich said. "But among us there was not a single person, even a child, who was not touched by the war. ... The war went through everybody."

"Let's not talk about the country in the political aspect," she added. "Let's imagine it is families on holidays. Everybody gets together, and sees many are missing, not because they died and got old, but because of the war.

"My father's eyes sometimes get sad," she continued. "He remembers that he doesn't have two brothers, that they would have had families. My mother cries still that her mother died, perhaps she would have lived to be 80 and seen her granddchildren."

The powerful memories help reinforce patriotism.

Ms. Alexiyevich recounted how a woman in wartime Stalingrad (now Volgograd) tended two wounded soldiers — one Soviet, the other German — and stopped them from killing each other.

"The basis of our victory is that we were people," she concluded. "Maybe the Germans were better soldiers and had better arms, but we were better people, which is why we beat them."

Some Soviets talk about the war as a time of hope in their lives, especially since it followed the horrors of collectivization and Josef Stalin's purges.

"We were all united with the state," said a veteran in his 70s. "Death was near, but people were not afraid. People thought that life would be better after the war."

Despite heavy exposure to war movies and veterans' memoirs, young Soviets reared in better living conditions and more secure society than that of 40 years ago often find the war hard to imagine.

Yet Ms. Alexiyevich's book, "War Has No Woman's Face," based on interviews with 700 women veterans over five years, has been popular with young and old since appearing in 1983.

Asked why, she said the young are interested in the personal, emotional accounts the book provides.

"The time has passed when we have to know the war as knowledge about medals, fronts, and battles," she said. "I wanted a book about feelings, conveying what was experienced by that generation as a spiritual experience, which we always need, whether there is a war or not."

A play based on the book recently premiered at Moscow's Taganka Theater, parading the fear, nostalgia and pride associated here with the war.

One woman character in the play confronts young people. "What do you believe in?" she demands. "You wear a cross around your neck (as has become fashionable for some younger Soviets) but what do you believe in? We believed."

Another character recalls entering a bakery after the war and taking bread without paying for it.

"We had no money in the war," the character muses. "You saw bread, you took it. Oh, I knew how to fight in the war. But afterwards ..."

She had forgotten ordinary things.

U.N. allocates $12 million for Vietnam refugees

PEKING (AP) — The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said today that his agency will spend another $12 million in 1986-1988 to help China absorb 280,000 refugees from Vietnam.

Here to sign the agreement, meet Chinese leaders and tour refugee camps, Poul Hartling told a press conference that China is unlikely to accept any more refugees from Southeast Asia.

"I do not expect them to take more and I don't think we will ask them to take more," he said.

When China's relations with Vietnam worsened in the mid-1970s, ethnic Chinese in northern Vietnam streamed across the border seeking asylum. Most arrived by 1979 when the communist neighbors fought a border war.

The Vietnamese — and 4,000 refugees from Laos — are living on about 200 Chinese-run state farms in five southern provinces where they make up 10 to 30 percent of the work force.

Hartling said the United Nations has provided $51 million in resettlement aid since 1978, while the Chinese government has spent about $600 million.

Only the United States has received more refugees than China, Hartling said, praising Peking's efforts.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviet professor applies for political asylum

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A Soviet assistant professor has applied for political asylum in Stockholm after defecting via Finland, police said.

Yuri Nagzodsky was reported Tuesday to have taken a ferry from Finland to Stockholm, where he applied for asylum on Monday. He became the ninth Soviet citizen in two years to defect via Finland, which borders the Soviet Union.

There was no immediate word on what work Nagzodsky did or where he lived in the Soviet Union. Swedish police said Tuesday that he had not yet been questioned.

Doctors go on strike

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — About 3,000 government doctors have gone on a 72-hour protest strike, leaving 500 public hospitals and clinics without the services of physicians.

The Dominican Medical Association on Tuesday threatened to extend the strike if military doctors were brought in to replace the strikers.

The doctors want a 100 percent increase in their current average pay of 350 pesos a month and better working conditions. The peso formerly was at par with the dollar, but has been devalued and the monthly salary now is equivalent to about $100.

Dr. Diego Hurtado, acting deputy health minister, said the National Health Council broke off negotiations with the doctors when they refused to cancel the strike.

Coal miners killed in blast

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — At least eight coal miners were killed in an underground explosion and 17 workers were trapped in the mine, the state-run CTK news agency reported.

The accident occurred Tuesday in the Doubrava mine in the Ostrava-Karvina district, Czechoslovakia's major coal-mining area, about 225 miles northeast of Prague.

CTK's English-language report said eight miners sustained minor injuries and one was hospitalized.

Israeli trade pact OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S-Israeli agreement to drop mutual trade barriers within 10 years is well on the road to swift congressional approval.

"It is a historic moment for both countries, especially for Israel," Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., said Tuesday as the House passed 422-0 the first pact under which the United States and another nation have agreed to abolish trade restrictions.

In the Senate, the Finance Committee sent the measure to the floor with a favorable recommendation earlier Tuesday.

But the Senate committee, at the urging of Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Max Baucus, D-Mont., agreed to make clear in a report accompanying the bill that it should not be viewed as a precedent for dropping trade barriers with Mexico, Canada and other nations.

Military maneuvers set

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Australia and New Zealand will hold major military maneuvers this year, replacing exercises that been scheduled to include the United States, says Defense Minister Frank O'Flynn.

The United States has withdrawn from joint military exercises involving New Zealand because of that country's ban on all nuclear-powered or nuclear-armed ships from its territorial waters.

O'Flynn said Tuesday the New Zealand-Australian maneuvers, codenamed Tasman Warrior, will be conducted immediately after the U.S.-Australian naval operation called Coral Sea ends in October.

The future of ANZUS, the 34-year-old defense treaty between the United States, Australia and New Zealand, has been jeopardized by New Zealand's anti-nuclear stand.

Girls on spirited mission for governor

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Armed with a Ouija board and other ghost-busting tools, three girls staked out the 200-year-old governor's mansion in hopes of confronting a lost child and a former slave dealer said to haunt the eerie estate.

In the welcome light of morning, they weren't sure today what they'd encountered. But something caused their camera and tape recorder to fail.

Gov. Michael Castle, who invited the girls, says he's a believer, having already encountered the unknown at Woodburn, which he moved into last January.

First there was the large hallway on the second floor where "this window kept opening and the burglar alarm kept going off all night," about six or eight weeks ago, Castle said.

On his inauguration day, Jan. 15, the house was full of well-wishers and apparently an unseen little girl. "Three women sensed something tugging at their dresses, but they didn't see anyone," he said.

Information is scant on the slave trader, but he's obviously not something one wants skulking around the mansion.

While the governor hasn't fled Woodburn for safer quarters, he did grant the request of the three girls who were intrigued enough by the odd goings-on to spend the night there.

Holly Forbis, 12, Taryn Morrow, 12, and Faith Truman, 11, arrived at Woodburn on Tuesday night prepared to keep an all-night vigil. The sixth-graders had packed all the essentials for scaring up a few poltergeists.

"If there are spirits and you have a Ouija board, they have to come to it...If you see them (ghosts), you get the tape recorder and then scream."

— Taryn Morrow, 'ghostbuster'

They figured a stuffed dog would draw the attention of the little girl. A glass of wine on top o the grandfather clock was for the ghost that empties decanters and wine glasses in the mansion.

Although the girls didn't see any ghosts before falling asleep at 1:30 this morning, they were trying to find a logical explanation why their equipment went awry, according to their teacher, Connie Malin, who also spent the night.

By 11 p.m., their camera, which had been in perfect working order, wouldn't focus.

"The pictures were clear on the monitor, but you couldn't focus through the lens," Mrs. Malin said.

And when the girls filmed themselves with the objects they brought along, they appeared transparent on the monitor, while the props were normal, she said.

"All human beings were transparent. You could see right through them and the tape recorder stopped working," she said.

Apparently no ghosts were attracted to a Ouija board that Faith brought along.

Asked what she would do if she saw a ghost, Taryn replied calmly: "If you see them, you get the tape recorder and then scream."

The governor admitted he was already wary of ghosts since vacationing in central Maine and hearing of a ghost who for some unexplained reason is missing two fingers.

"I've been concerned that three-fingered Willy might follow me here," he said of the Maine ghoul.

The girls are students in the talented and gifted program at Warner Elementary School in northern Delaware. Mrs. Malin said students are encouraged to take on projects that either are "incredibly creative or solved a real-life problem."

Hitchcock bludgeons 'Lace II' in Nielsen ratings

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — "Lace II" was the latest victim of miniseries malaise, succumbing to viewer indifference and the wiles of the master of mischief, the late Alfred Hitchcock.

Still capable of shocking audiences, Hitchcock's "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" on NBC came up with another surprise ending and bludgeoned ABC's trashy "Lace II" in the A.C. Nielsen ratings released Tuesday.

The "Hitchcock" stories, remakes of the 20- and 30-year-old classics with the original Hitchcock introductions, ranked seventh for the week, averaging an 18.0 rating. Meanwhile, "Lace II," a sequel to last year's top-rated miniseries, placed 23rd for its first installment, with a 15.3 rating.

"We thought 'Lace II' would be very successful," said Michael Eisenberg, CBS' director of audience measurement. "It must be a big disappointment for ABC, but our concern is what this portends for miniseries, which have not done well this season."

Only NBC's two-part "Fatal Vision" attracted more than 40 percent of the viewing audience.

"CBS had forecast that "Lace II," which had half the audience of "Lace" in 1984, would reach that 40-share figure, meaning 40 percent of the sets watching TV on Sunday night. "Lace" ended up with a 24 share to 28 for "Hitchcock."

The performance of "Lace II" went up slightly, but not significantly, for its final night Monday, according to Nielsen overnight ratings of 10 major cities.

The strong Sunday night performance and the characteristic No. 1 ranking from "The Cosby Show" paced NBC to a prime-time victory for the week of April 29-May 5.

NBC, winning its second straight week since the end of the regular season, averaged a 14.6 rating to season-leader CBS' 13.8 and ABC's 12.6. Third-rated ABC had no shows in the Top 10 last week. Its best finisher was "Who's the Boss?" — in 18th place.

A rating measures the percentage of the nation's 84.9 million TV homes tuned to a network.

ABC was so confident in "Lace II" that it pulled the miniseries from April in order to bolster the network's May sweeps, the period when ratings for local stations are measured to determine future ad rates.

Even before its successful showing, "Alfred Hitchcock" had been scheduled as a companion series to Steven Spielberg's "Amazing Stories" next season on Sunday night.

As has been routine since January, "The Cosby Show" ranked No. 1, with a 25.5 rating, and its follow-up comedy, "Family Ties," was second at 21.9. CBS' "Dallas" was third, NBC's "Cheers" fourth and CBS' "Newhart" fifth.

CBS' "Falcon Crest" was sixth, followed by "Hitchcock," CBS' "60 Minutes," CBS' "Knots Landing," and NBC's "The A-Team."

"The Jeffersons," canceled on Tuesday by CBS when the network announced its 1985-86 schedule, was the week's lowest-rated series, ranking 67th, with a 7.1 rating. Two other CBS cancellations were "The Lucie Arnaz Show," which ranked 66th, and "Cover Up," which was 62nd and tied with ABC's "Eye to Eye." ABC's "Street Hawk" was 64th, and NBC's "Silver Spoons," which will be back next season, was 65th.

NBC's movie "Adam," about a missing child, was on for the third time in 18 months and ranked 28th, faring much better than CBS' made-for-TV movie last Wednesday about boxer Boom Boom Mancini, "Heart of a Champion," which was 52nd.

On Tuesday, CBS announced that its low-rated "Wednesday Night Movie" would move to Saturday next season.

Reporters who refuse to testify in Belushi case may be charged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge is threatening to cite for contempt of court two reporters who refused to testify in the John Belushi murder case on grounds they are constitutionally protected from divulging confidential sources.

Christopher Van Ness, a free-lance writer, and Anthony Brenna, a National Enquirer reporter, were called by prosecutors Tuesday to give testimony in the preliminary hearing of singer Cathy Evelyn Smith. Ms. Smith is charged with murder in Belushi's 1982 death from a drug overdose.

On 43 separate occasions Tuesday, Van Ness declined to answer prosecutors questions. Brenna also repeatedly declined to testify.

Brenna admitted he wrote the story in the Enquirer's June 29, 1982, edition headlined: "Hollywood Drug Queen Confesses — I Killed John Belushi."

The story, reputedly based on a tape-recorded interview with Ms. Smith, led to the filing of murder charges against her because she allegedly said she injected the comedian with a mixture of cocaine and heroin.

Municipal Court Judge Brian Crahan granted lawyers for Van Ness and Brenna time to file briefs on reporters' privileges under the First Amendment and the California Shield Law and set a hearing for June 6 for the defendants to explain why they shouldn't be cited for contempt.

Brenna refused to discuss his newsgathering efforts or contact he may have had with Ms. Smith.

Van Ness, who has said he tape-recorded an interview with Ms. Smith in which she acknowledged supplying and administering drugs to the late comedian, refused to verify his previous statements.

Belushi, star of the "Saturday Night Live" television show and such films as "Animal House" and "The Blues Brothers," was found dead March 5, 1982, in a bungalow at the Chateau Marmont Hotel in West Hollywood. The coroner ruled he died from an overdose of cocaine and heroin.

Deputy District Attorney Michael Montagna argued Van Ness had waived his reporter's privilege to remain silent about sources when he appeared before the grand jury that indicted Ms. Smith.

Van Ness' attorney, Clinton Bailey, told reporters: "We have claimed the privilege regarding source and materials. She (Ms. Smith) is potentially a source. We're protecting the newsman's shield."

The court proceeding marked the opening of Ms. Smith's preliminary hearing to determine if there is enough evidence for her to stand trial, but the judge indicated it would be recessed for more than a month while the issue of a newsman's constitutional guarantees is litigated.

Stadium victim of wrecking ball

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Roosevelt Stadium, where Jackie Robinson began knocking down Major League baseball's color barrier, fell victim to time as a wrecker's ball began demolishing the ballpark to make way for new housing.

The 25,000-seat stadium opened in 1937. Football and baseball teams vied on its turf, fighters waged battles in rings before thousands of spectators. There were also rock concerts, automobile races and performances by championship bands.

But perhaps no event was as important as the day Robinson competed here as a member of the Montreal Royals, a farm team of the then-Brooklyn Dodgers. It started him down that final road to becoming the first black to play in the modern Major Leagues.

"He went four-for-five and hit a home run. He scored four runs, knocked in four more and stole two bases," recalled former Mayor Thomas Smith. "He did everything but take the stadium with him.

"It may be hard for some people to understand, but I feel like I am losing a part of my family," said Smith as he watched on Tuesday as a giant tractor armed with a claw rip down the center field wall in chunks.

About a dozen other men stared from the sidewalk as the demolition began, a lost expression sometimes crossing their faces.

"I was there the day Robinson played," said one, Fred Trenton, 68, of Jersey City. "The reception was good. I think everybody treated it as a novelty though. Nobody was sure how he was going to make out."

Lakewood Apartments

Dear Dad,
I'm so excited about my new apartment. It's a beautiful place called Lakewood. I know you're concerned so let me tell you that it's very safe & secure. I've got great neighbors & Sandy the activities director, is introducing me to a lot of new people, just like me and Dad, you won't believe this; I got to decorate my own apartment. Just like you & Mom did when you bought your home.
Please visit soon.
Dad, you'd love
