"SEEING SIGHTS"

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, June 22.—Bent on showing the country that Texans do not wear ten gallon hats or carry a pair of six shooters as a rule, Governor Dan Moody and a delegation of 125 other Texans arrived here on a special train today for a "good will" visit of two days.

The delegation spent the forenoon touring the city and later were luncheon guests of the Chicago Association of Commerce, the official host to the party. They were to see the White Sox-St. Louis baseball game this afternoon and tomorrow will be turned loose to see the city as they see fit. Governor Moody said the trip was purely a good will tour, to show the country that Texans are no different from their fellow citizens in other states and to spread the gospel of Texas industries. He declined to discuss any political questions and beyond saying in response to a question that the trip has no connection with anything political, merely grinned when interviewers pressed him for his views.

Many On Trip
The delegation came to Chicago from St. Louis and Kansas City. It includes several mayors, judges, lawyers, business men, publishers and educators. Among the latter are Dr. W. M. N. Spilman, president of the University of Texas, and Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of Baylor university, Waco. A. W. Pappert, manager of the Texas Daily Press league also is in the party.

Lindbergh Is
Asked To Texas

ST. LOUIS, June 22 (AP)—Before leaving here last night for Chicago, members of the "all Texas special" party had two opportunities to meet Colonel Charles Lindbergh, and the famous aviator received a personal invitation from Governor Moody to visit Texas.

Gives Him Texas Flag
Governor Moody and Colonel Lindbergh met first at a hotel luncheon at noon given for the Texas party. Lindbergh was at the hotel as an individual. Governor Moody presented to the aviator a silk Texas flag similar to the one given to Governor Baker of Missouri at Kansas City Monday, and then invited Lindbergh to visit the Lone Star State.

The second meeting was in the evening when nine members of the Texas group were invited to a dinner given for Lindbergh by the St. Louis industrial club.

Old Settlers Plan
Annual Celebration
Old Settlers' association members are to have an annual picnic this summer and the time and place will be selected next Tuesday afternoon at a meeting in the Court house. The constitution and by-laws of the association will be passed on at that time.

E. P. Egarth, president, called a meeting of members Tuesday evening in the office of George R. Bean and a committee was appointed to draw up the constitution. People who have lived in the country for more than 25 years are eligible to membership in the association, with their families, and are invited to attend the meeting Tuesday and the annual picnic, it was announced. Membership is not confined to Lubbock county and immediate vicinity.

Davis Will Attend
Sherman Convention
A. B. Davis, manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, will leave today for Sherman, where he will attend the annual convention of the Texas Commercial Executives association.

BAD WEATHER
AGAIN HALTS
BYRD'S JUMP

NEW YORK, June 22 (AP)—Contrary peaks of fickle weather off and about Nova Scotia indicated today the Byrd trans-Atlantic expedition can only talk about flying to Paris today and tomorrow. Early reports of unfavorable weather suggested that no start could be made today and probably not tomorrow.

James Kimball of the New York office of the weather bureau reported a storm and dense fog off the Nova Scotia coast and rain fall totaling 5.56 inches in 24 hours at Halifax.

The American is in a state of preparedness. All hands were ready and the mail was aboard waiting word of favorable weather.

FOUR DIE IN
BURNING HOMEBoston Residence Wrecked
By Blaze, And Residents
Trapped In Inferno

(By The Associated Press)
BOSTON, June 22.—Four deaths resulted from a fire which destroyed the four-story brick and stone residence of William J. Shearer, Jr., vice president of the Palm Furniture company, on Bay Street in the Back Bay district early today. The dead:

Janet Shearer, 19, daughter of Mr. Shearer.
Betty Howes, 16, daughter of Henry Howes of Boston.
Alice Scott, 22, house maid.
Helen McLaughlin, cook.

Mrs. Annie Dickson, a governess, was rescued by firemen while clinging to the coping of an adjoining house.

One Killed In Jump
The girls and the cook were burned to death. Alice Scott was killed when she jumped from a fourth story window to the pavement.

The fire started in the basement from an electric iron which had been left on a shelf. It was apparent that the fire had spread so rapidly that the women and girls had no chance of escape. Mr. Shearer had gone aboard his yacht Paprika last night for a cruise and Miss Howes, a friend, had come to spend the night with Miss Shearer.

MULLICAN TEST
WELL HOLDING
WIDE INTERESTSAND AT 430 FEET IS BELIEVED TO HOLD
10 OR 12 BARRELS

The Mulligan No. 1 oil and gas test, about ten miles west of Hale Center, is holding the interest of this vicinity of the state at the present, with drilling shut down for a test of an oil sand that was encountered at a depth of 430 feet.

Plans are now under way for a thorough test of the sand, which, in the opinion of those close to operators will produce probably ten or twelve barrels daily.

Casing has been set in the hole, with a six inch test casing inside the larger ten inch regular casing. The six inch pipe was lowered a day or two ago, resting on the sand, and Tuesday dropped into the sand about two feet, necessitating a collar support before the test could be carried on further. This has been ordered out of Amarillo, and as soon as it arrives the test will go on.

To Be Brought In Soon
Judge Clark M. Mulligan, part owner of the ten section tract on which the test is located, said today that the well is to be brought in one day this week, depending on the time of completion of the test of the sand.

In the meantime, plans are under way for the test, which will be carried out at about 1,400 feet, and according to Judge Mulligan, such of these sands will be thoroughly tested.

Expect Large Shallow Field
The test is under absolute control of owners of the tract, who have given to every strata that is in the least encouraging for oil, and these men explain that it is their belief that one of the largest shallow pools in this part of the state underlies the tract.

Thousands of interested citizens of this part of the state have visited the well during the past few days, Judge Mulligan said, and drillers report that they have been forced to fence off the rig to keep back the sightseers so that work might go on.

Many Traveling
Men Will Attend
City's Jubilee

"Save a Bean For Me" is the plea of several hundred traveling men who have returned to the city of Lubbock, have always been financed by the sale of tickets to Lubbock citizens and business firms who always buy tickets for themselves and for the visitors.

Indication points to the biggest attendance in the history of the affair and interest among local business men who have assisted in the planning and entertainment for this year's Jubilee is up to standard.

A parade Saturday afternoon will officially open the Jubilee. This will be followed by a ball game between Dr. V. V. Clark's business nine and Howard Pearson's Salesmen nine.

A big feed and meeting of the R. O. R. E. is scheduled for the evening, Saturday.

Of the seven slayers, three have escaped at various intervals and one was killed when he attempted to escape.

ADOPTION OF WASHINGTON
NAVAL PROPOSALS URGED
AT PRIVATE CONFERENCE

(By Associated Press)
GENEVA, June 22.—Hugh Simpson, chief American delegate held a private conversation with Admiral Viscount Saito and Viscount Ishii of Japan today on the problems raised by the big divergencies between the American, British and Japanese naval limitations projects.

W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the British admiralty, found himself unable to attend this first private meeting because of a session of the Dominion delegates, but he was to see Mr. Gibson during the afternoon and have a general talk.

Heads Rumania's
New Government

The Japanese delegates told Mr. Gibson that it was difficult to discuss limitation of auxiliary naval vessels in terms of ratio, but assured him that Japan earnestly desired to reach an agreement and believed one could be achieved if all the factors in the situations of the various nations were taken into consideration.

Report Is Denied
After the meeting, the leaders denied a report that Viscount Saito had flatly notified the American delegate that Japan was unable to accept the 3-5-3 ratio for auxiliaries.

While the leaders were tackling the broad political aspects of the American, British and Japanese proposals, the naval experts of the three delegations met to begin a technical study of the three plans in order to ascertain the exact purport of various phrases in them.

Rear Admiral Frank H. Scofield, first of the three American experts present, is director of the war plans division of the navy department, while Captain Adolphus Randall is commander of the submarine base at New London, Conn.

At the conclusion of the technical meeting, the communique was issued reading: "The technical committee established June 21 for resolution of the executive committee of the conference met today to exchange information with a view to elucidating in more detailed manner the respective proposals."

The representatives of the British delegation, at their meeting with Mr. Bridgeman discussed the general British attitude in light of the plans submitted to the conference. It is understood that Australia and New Zealand are especially anxious that nothing be done here to weaken the growing strength of the Singapore naval base. Australia is now building two 10,000 ton cruisers, which can be repaired in Sydney harbor, but in view of her remoteness from the mother country, she desires maintenance of Singapore as a protective base for the Australian fleet.

Naval Bases Not Discussed
Admiral Saito told the Associated Press yesterday that he had no intention of raising the Singapore question, and Admiral Jellicoe has assured the press that the question of naval bases is not on the agenda of the present conference.

Adoption Of
Plan Is Urged

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP)—The state department exerted itself today to make clear that the American proposals presented at the Geneva arms conference represented the best thought of the administration at this time, and that barring he usual concessions of compromise on detail, the plans should be maintained as the basis for any final agreement.

Veteran Film Actor
Near Death, Report
SAN FRANCISCO, June 22 (AP)—Increasing weakness and a rising temperature brought John Drew, veteran actor, near to death here today. His physician, Dr. Lawrence Hoffman, declared the determined fight which the actor is making against his illness is the only hope of recovery. Drew was seized with an attack of arthritis at Portland, Ore., recently and brought here for treatment.

DeAutremont To Be
Sentenced Friday

JACKSONVILLE, Ore., June 22 (AP)—A life sentence started Hugh DeAutremont in the face today as the result of his conviction of murder in connection with the Skikyou tunnel holdup and dynamiting near the California-Oregon line in October, 1925, in which four men were killed.

The jury made short work of a long case yesterday when it returned a verdict after one hour and 24 minutes of deliberation. Young DeAutremont smiled as he heard the verdict and announced it himself to fellow prisoners, including his twin brothers Ray and Roy, on being returned to jail.

No date has yet been set for the trial of Ray and Roy. Sentence on Hugh will be pronounced Friday.

HEAVY RAIN IS
SOUTH PLAINSGUAGE HERE SHOWS 1.22
INCHES WITH FALL
HEAVIER NORTH

A water tented sky which gave Lubbock a dusky darkness during the dawn hours of day started a downpour this morning at 8 o'clock and continued for almost two hours, dropping a precipitation which ranged from one to two inches throughout the county.

The government experiment station, three miles east of the city, registered a rain of 1.22 inch. In the northern portion of the county the rainfall was even heavier, it is estimated.

Rain Heavy South
A heavy wind which swept the rain south carried a good share of the water to Stanton, Tahoka, and Brownfield. In Amarillo it was raining till almost noon, accompanied by much hail, the bus terminal reports.

Rails, Crosbyton and Floyd county generally were beneath a good offering. Autoists from the west say the rain fell heavily all along the route to Clovis.

Much Benefit
Most of the cotton in Lubbock county and the South Plains has been planted, and with the heavy rains covering the soil the benefit of the precipitation of last week is increased. The surface of the soil following the planting had begun to crust, and today's moisture will promote a loosened soil which will aid the cotton's growth, farmers claim.

Hail which fell with the rain at Monrovia did considerable damage to crops, information from that town relates.

Traffic Halted
By Cloudburst

DEL RIO, Texas, June 22 (AP)—A cloud burst near San Benito, 140 miles west of here, washed out a stretch of Southern Pacific line railroad track and tied up three passenger trains at Del Rio today. Reports of officials here were that a half mile of track was out of commission and that a day or more would be required to repair the damage and to move trains.

Lockney Gets
Good Downpour

LOCKNEY, June 22.—Nine-tenths of one inch of rain fell in Lockney today greatly benefitting the cotton and grain crops that have been planted during the last ten days.

Brownwood Asks
Permit To Build
Big Dam Project

AUSTIN, June 22.—The city of Brownwood began a hard fight here today before the board of water engineers for right to build a water supply and irrigation dam nine miles above the city on Pecan Bayou, Colorado river tributary.

The Syndicate Power company of Dallas and rice growing interests of Colorado, Wharton and Matagorda counties are opposing the proposal at the hearing which nearly 200 are attending.

Wade On Stand
With only one witness, Homer D. Wade, West Texas chamber of commerce manager appearing up to this afternoon, small prospect remained that the hearing could be completed today. Wade defended Brownwood's right to supplement its present meager water supply and declared that irrigation is one of the prime needs now of the West Texas region affected.

Brownwood wants to dam Pecan Bayou just below the Jim Ned Creek intersection and impound 200,000 acre feet of water, with the ultimate view of impounding 500,000 feet. The power syndicate, which is planning construction of dams on the Colorado river below the bayou mouth, is claiming prior right to the Colorado and its tributaries.

The poppy was taken to China and the Orient by the Arabs, who were clever physicians. The misuse of opium is believed to have started in India.

PARIS, June 22 (AP)—The American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, boards the Ile de France at Havre today for his trip to the United States with a memorandum containing suggestions by the French government as to how negotiations may be opened for a pact to "out-law war" between the two countries.

Such a pact first broached by Foreign Minister Briand in his message to the American people through the Associated Press on April 8, on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the entry of the United States into the world war.

HUNGER CURE
FOLLOWS RIOT328 Convicts Barricaded In Coal Mine Hold 14 Guards
At Kansas Prison

(By The Associated Press)
LANING, Kansas, June 22.—State penitentiary authorities today ordered the "hunger cure" treatment for the 328 convicts who barricaded themselves in the prison coal mine shortly before noon yesterday as a protest against refusal of a cigarette issue.

14 Guards Are Held
While officials regret that the 14 guards held in the mine by the strikers would also suffer from hunger, they scouted fears of relatives that the guards would be injured or molested in any way.

A search of B cell house where 300 prisoners started a riot last night was made this morning while the men were at breakfast. No weapons of any sort were found. Discovery of several sharpened files in possession of leaders of the riot caused Deputy Warden R. H. Hudspeth to investigate the possibility of plans for further demonstrations.

Leaders Confined
Five more convicts identified as leaders of the riot, were ordered into solitary confinement on a bread and water diet along with nine others scheduled to this punishment last night.

As the mineurs neared the end of their first 24 hours of self imprisonment in the mine, Hudspeth gave no indication that overtures of any kind would be made to them. "They'll come out when they are hungry enough," he told guards.

Thomas Identified
J. E. Thomas, stabbed during the rioting today identified Jack Dawson, serving a one to five year sentence from Kansas City, Kansas, for burglary, and Richard Terry, sentenced in Waubesa county to 5 to 10 years for robbery, as his assailants.

Terry, whose real name is shown on prison records to be Ira Smith, Topeka, was one of the leaders in the mutiny at the prison mine last July.

Dawson's real name is Jack Schottok, Chicago, prison records show, and he has served terms in the Colorado penitentiary, the boy's reformatory at Iona, California, and Illinois boys reformatory.

HOLE SAWED IN BARRACKS FOR
JAIL DELIVERYGUARD STOPS OTHERS;
BLOOD HOUNDS USED
AND THREE CAUGHT

(By The Associated Press)
HUNTSVILLE, Texas, June 22.—In the second big prison escape from Texas prison farms within ten days thirty-five white convicts at the Ferguson farm about 25 miles north of here gained their liberty early today. Five were captured quickly, and possessed led by blood hounds by daylight were trailing the others through the heavy, gumbo mud which made progress difficult, prison officials also said that the rains which had swollen streams would make it more difficult for the escaped men to cross streams. The county is heavily wooded, flat and slow to drain after heavy rains.

The other escape was June 13, when 24 Mexican convicts broke out of Hills-ridge prison farm. Some of them remain at large.

Saw Through Barracks

The prisoners who got away from the Ferguson farm today sawed a hole in the floor of their wooden barracks building. The barracks have bars placed on the inside, but once through those only wooden planks confine the prisoners. Each barrack is designed to accommodate about 150 prisoners. A night guard came upon the prisoners and they were dropping one by one through the hole, when 35 had passed through and prevented the others in the building from getting away. He aroused the guards and the chase started immediately. Four of the escaped men were convicted for murder.

One of the convicts, the prison records here showed was involved in a desperate escape about a year ago when Will Rader, a guard was shot and killed. He is Alvin Ireland, originally sentenced for bank robbery. In that delivery two men rode up to the guard in front of the barracks soon after midnight, shot and killed him, took his keys, called Ireland and Harve Ennis, and two other men out, unlocked the door and escaped. Ireland and Ennis were recaptured. The other two are at large.

Convicts Unarmed
The escape today was accomplished quietly and without violence. So far as state prison officials know the convicts were unarmed.

Telephone communication between Madisonville and the farm was interrupted either by wires being cut or storm conditions. News of the escape came when a messenger from the prison farm reached Madisonville and telephoned to the state prison here.

The three reported recaptured were:

Jack Allen, Titus county, charged with theft, serving two years.
John Reid, Young county, robbery with firearms, 38 years.
Alex Williams, Wise county, burglary, four years.

Two Unidentified
The 32 who were at large at last reports to the state prison, and their sentences were:

Theodore T. Whitehead, Bexar and Valverde, murder, life.
LeRoy Wright, Collier, forgery, 6 years.
Richard Wilson, Bexar, theft, four years.

O. C. Wells, Taylor and Tom Green, burglary, theft and murder, 15 years.

James Smith, Cook county, theft, five years.

E. A. Silas, Coryell, assault to murder, 15 years.

Jack Smith, Hunt, forgery, two years.

Hugh Spencer, Valverde, theft, two years.

Raymond Parker, Panola, burglary, 2 years.

Three of the four new buildings provided for in the recent appropriations for Texas Technological College will be built this summer and ready for occupancy in September, although no contracts have been let. College officials here announced.

Engineering Building
The engineering building, which will cost $240,000, will be erected in the center of the space between the textile and administration buildings. The temporary agricultural building will be erected near the stock judging pavilion with the green house at about the same place. The home economics house will be located beyond the cafeteria and facing the east side of the campus.

E. W. Providence, business manager, announced yesterday that construction would follow the final approval of the plans. The three smaller buildings will be rushed to completion while the engineering building will not be ready until the opening of the fall term of 1928.

Carry Spanish Motif
Each structure will carry the Spanish motif and embody the same lines as the present buildings. The home economics practice house will be built in residence style with the design similar to the home of President Paul W. Horn.

These four buildings together with equipment will entail an expenditure of $225,000 during the first year of the biennium. During the second year a science building at a cost of $225,000 will be built.

Twins Arrive In Oregon For Trial On Murder Count

(By The Associated Press)

PORTLAND, Ore., June 22.—Ray and Roy DeAutremont, 24, twins, unkempt, tired and bedraggled, woke up in an Oregon jail today, four years after a worldwide search had been launched for their capture, and after rewards totaling thousands of dollars had been offered for their conviction on a charge of complicity in connection with the Siskiyou tunnel train holdup and quadruple murder in October, 1922.

The prisoners, arrested recently in Steubenville, Ohio, arrived yesterday under heavy guard. Newspapermen heard details of the adventures and flight of the wanted pair from their own lips. On one thing they were silent: The train holdup matter of the actual criminals. Reporters had been asked by officers not to broach the question.

Glad To See Brother

"We will be glad to see Hugh, tonight glad, but we wish it were not under the present circumstances," Roy said, referring to their younger brother whose trial is in connection with the Siskiyou outrage is nearing an end at Jacksonville, Oregon. Hugh DeAutremont, 23, was arrested in the Philippine Islands where he was stationed as a private in the United States army, after he had successfully eluded capture for four years.

Both Ray and Roy spoke of their parents and declared they were also "very eager" to see them.

NEW YORK.—Honesty or inattention of p'ster-by permitted a handbag containing $4,000 in jewelry to stand unattended several hours on the curbing of a busy sidewalk here until an indubitably honest citizen picked it up and hiked to the nearest policeman.

CARDS DISLODGE SECOND PLACE CUBS IN DOUBLE VICTORY

YANKEES ALSO WIN DOUBLE TO TIGHTEN HOLD

GIANTS LOSE TO LOWLY BRAVES: "BIG TRAIN" DROPS ANOTHER

(By Associated Press)
St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees today had double headers to thank for boosting them upward two whole games in the chase for world baseball honors.

These two clubs who fought it out last year for the title and are going strong again this season were the only teams to win two games yesterday.

Cards Take Second

By downing the Chicago Cubs twice by 6-5 and 12-3 the champion Cardinals passed them in the National league standings and became the runner up club to the Pirates. By dropping a 7 to 6 decision to the Reds that league leading aggregation meanwhile lost a few precious points of its leadership margin.

Injury to Tommy Thevenow.

Socks Two Homers And An Opponent As Braves Defeat New York Giants

CATCHER FRANCES HOGAN

Not content with socking two home runs to beat the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday, Catcher Frances Hogan, biggest receiver in the majors' also socked Heinie Mueller, peppy New York outfielder, who promptly returned the compliment. Team-mates separated them.

Frank Cardinal shortstop, married the first bride of the day.

Sliding into second in the second game, Tommy suffered an ankle fracture which may keep him off the field all season. As though spurred to better baseball by the mishap his mates scored a one sided victory over the Chicago club.

That forced them to 13 innings in the first game.

Giants Lose to Braves

Even though back home in the east where the National league picking is supposed to be easier, the Giants lost to the Braves 7 to 5, their average falling to .500 for the season.

Two homers for the Boston catcher, Frank Hogan, former Somerville, Mass. school boy, spelled disaster for the McGraw men.

Pressing their metropolitan rivals the Giants closed the Robins in fourth place continued their rise by dropping the Phillies 7 to 3 as the arm of Dazzy Vance flashed its finest pitching.

Yanks Win Two

The Yanks' two victories, scored over the trailing Red Sox 7 to 3 and 7 to 1, showed them ahead farther than ever in the American league race. As the White Sox were idle and the Senators and Athletics split a double bill, none of their rivals gained.

Walter Johnson lost his third game in four starts when the Athletics took his measure 8 to 2 after his mates had won the first game.

5 to 4. Rube Walberg bested the Washington veterans this time, holding the foe to five hits while nine in costly bunches were made off Big Barney.

Wholesalers Take 4 To 1 Game From Auto-Barber Club

"Preacher" Taylor, Wholesaler and Hubber ace, was in regular form yesterday and the Wholesalers nine crated and shipped the Auto-Barber entry in the City league one game further down the line. The score was 4 to 1.

Stalaker, mechanic-shaver-hurler, did not work up to his usual form and yielded seven bingles to the league-pacing Taymen. Taylor was stiffer throughout, allowing but two safeties, both of which rebounded off the budgeon of Snyder, recruit of the losing team.

Score by innings:

Wholesalers.....101 02-4

Auto-Barbers.....100 00-1

Just The Gist And The Jest Of Sport

Sombody must have been feeding raw meat to the National league baseball players. Saturday "Oil" Smith, Pirate catcher, and "Dandy Dave" Bahner, Brave shortstop-manager, mixed it up on the Polo grounds at New York, via the scene of more fistbuffs, this time between Catcher Frances Hogan of Boston, and Outfielder Heinie Mueller of the Giants. The riot came after Hogan had poked Mueller off third base but team mates separated them before any big damage was done. Hogan, a rookie, is the biggest catcher in the majors. In addition to hitting Mueller, the hefty receiver hit two homers in the same game, his blows winning the tilt for the downtrodden Bostonians.

The Bankers have come to life again and are once more making things merry in the City league. Judge Raley, handicapped by the loss of several of his early season stars, is busy recruiting and yesterday spring a new one on his opponent. Volney (Spanish) Hill, ex-Tech right hand surfer, took the hill for the Bankers and beat the Rix Undertakers handily. Raley will have his team in there fighting all year but percentage points indicate that the white collared lads from the financial institutions will have a tough time dislodging the Wholesalers from the top rung of the circuit ladder.

There is just one glaring mistake evident in the City league this year—one which can be seen now and which was not discernable before the playing season opened. That one error is the fact that league authorities made no reservations in the signing of players. All good ball players like to play with other good ball players and as a result Wholesalers have gathered a heavy percentage of their strength with the result that last season's champion team was a run away out of the league race unless something uncommon happens. Next year the number of semi-pros or ex-professionals signed to one club should be limited, thus evening up the strength of the teams and making a closer race.

The Cardinals won a double victory over the detained Cubs yesterday but paid a big price for the first one. Shortstop Tommy Thevenow, star of last year's world series, fractured his ankle sliding to second and may be out of the game for the remainder of the year.

"Snips" Torpencer, a star who has been on the bench for two years, will fill in for Tommy and while he may plug the hole to a nicety is not likely to be the smooth running cog that Thevenow has been.

Future Of Flying

THE public's grasp of flying has gone forward in a big leap in the last few weeks, and just such a public appreciation was needed to assure the future of aviation in this country.

Since the war a number of far-sighted experimenters have been making their predictions and spending we know not what sums in exploring the way for the inevitable
future of the air, but the lethargic
public, slow to catch on, has not become air-minded. Now is the chance.

Detroit, already in possession of the world's motor production capital, would like the air capital as well, and the Detroit movement to raise a fund of $50,000 which would go to the first plane to fly from Detroit to London with a load equal
to five passengers, is a sound
business offer to develop aviation
and put it on a paying business.

Up to the present, aviation has been a good bit in the class of grand opera: pretty and spectacular, but requiring fat subsidies. Flying will not develop on such a basis. It must backbone. It must be made to pay its own way. It cannot subsist on prizes
and charity.

The two trans-oceanic hops, successful as they were, do not mean that the day of regular service between Europe and America is at hand. The pilots had to wait for the most favorable weather. That they were not forced down in mid-ocean
is a blessing, but not all planes
could repeat the stunt with such success.

At the present time, the future
seems to lie in the multi-motored plane. With three planes, the full use of one or even two engines does not necessitate a landing in mid-ocean. One motor will permit the ship to carry on till relief in the form of a substantial ocean liner or sea-going tug can be reached. De-Pinedo's experiences near the Azores
prove this conclusively.

The need, therefore, as much as
for airplanes themselves, is for mid-
ocean emergency landing "fields."
Ingenious dreamers have suggested
any number of forms, that these fields may take: huge floating
doughnuts with sheltered, drifted
water in the holes or cruising aircraft carriers such as the navy now
has in the Langley. Between such stations, of course, a constant patrol would have to be maintained.

No summary of flying achievements would be complete without mentioning the airmail, which has been the foremost pioneer in this country. The acquisition of flying fields and the construction of beacons for night flying were necessary
before this service could be carried on.

The problem of securing landing
fields closer to business districts
will have to be solved, or transportation to flying fields will have to be quickened considerably, as there is now too much time lost in going
to and from the points of departure
and landing.

It is no pun, therefore, to say that
the future flying lies on the ground.
Flying accessories right down on the surface of the earth are working behind the achievements of ships in the air.

Gum Shoe Diplomats

AMERICAN diplomats and states-
men mixing in foreign affairs
have done much to spread the prestige of these United States, but the Gospel of Americanism, whatever
that it has been, has been propagated
by gum shoe salesmen.

Recent news that the first American soda fountain in Czechoslovakia had been opened in the city
of Prague was therefore important,
whether you believe it or not. Visit
any of the highways and byways on this globe, and you will find in
houses, igloos, and palm leaf huts,
surprisingly large numbers of American phonographs, sewing machines,
safety razors, jack knives, movies,
fountain pens, cosmetics, typewriters and patent medicines. Every one of these articles got there through the efforts of an American drum-
mer. They, as much as the diplomats, have put the United States in the forefront of world esteem.

The favorite old excuse about
the girls "not having a thing to wear" is almost legitimate these days.

THE PLAINSMAN

Twelve hundred blind persons are earning their living as musicians in France. Gosh, that's nothing. Look at the dumb ones who are doing it
in this country.

Oysters and clams contain about 100 times as much iodine as beef-steak, says a news item. Well, what
of it?

The United States has seemingly gone wild over special
"weeks." A survey of them shows that there are not enough weeks on
the calendar to take care of all of them in a year if they fell
consecutively and did not coincide. The Plainsman has never been able to register much excitement over these "weeks." I believe that there are too many observances of this day and that day,
this week and that week and that
the thing to do for the betterment
of the country is to disregard
some of them rather than add
any to the already too imposing
list.

As The Plainsman sees it one reason why prohibition isn't more of a success in the United States is due to the fact that too many men charged with its enforcement raid dry
and drink wet. Dry enforcement is just like anything else—a man must
be wrapped up in it—heart and soul
—if he is to make his work the success that it should be. You can't tell me for one minute that a man who likes to drink intoxicants, and who does drink intoxicants in spite of the fact that the law says there shall be no such liquors, will be as strict with those who make them
and sell them as a man who loathes
strong drink. It isn't human nature.

The Plainsman, like everyone else, has his personal views on
all important questions of the
day. But just because he has
these views is no reason for him
to force them on someone else
who might see the question from a certain point of view. That one thing—
a certain portion of the people
trying to force its beliefs upon
another portion—is the world's greatest fault, as The Plainsman
sees it. Too many of us are trying to mind someone's else business when our own business
needs more of our personal attention than it is getting.

Napoleon awarded a $2,500 prize
to Francois Appert, who, after nine
years of experimenting, invented
the process of preserving food in cans. Millions of present day hundreds would raise a much larger
prize if the invention could be entirely forgotten.

paper hanger 60 years old, who
has followed his trade for 45 years.
There is no record of his ever having the itch.

WASHINGTON LETTER

POLITICIANS JUMP ON
THE PRESIDENT FOR BEING
GRACIOUS TO LINDBERGH

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON, June 22.—One of the most astonishing things
about life in Washington is the fact that no man in public life can ever perform a gracious or meritorious act without hearing all the smarties brand it as inspired by politics. The trouble is, of course,
that more often than not the
smarties are dead right.

At any rate, it seems rather strange that this stuff couldn't have been kept out of the picture with Lindbergh's return and triumphal
reception.

Instead, many of the anti-administration folk long since began
to voice the suspicion that President Coolidge had finally decided to take care of Lindbergh's homecoming lest he be noised out of
some important publicity and national good will by Governor Al Smith of New York, who might otherwise have done the honors in company with Tammany's mayor,
little Jimmy Walker.

Somewhat, Calvin Coolidge's
reputation as a good politician
simply won't let his ill-wishers
keep off his neck whenever he speaks or so's.

On the other hand, one correspondent here wrote seriously the other day that no man in the United States was more excited
and thrilled over Lindbergh's return than the president. This was quite absurd, for Mr. Coolidge hasn't been genuinely excited over
anything whatever in recent years.

The fact that stands out here
now is that Mr. Coolidge has done
the correct thing by Lindbergh
and has done just what the country wanted him to do. More could hardly be asked.

The court action which threatens
to complicate the activities of the Federal Radio Commission was predicted by Congressman Sol Bloom of New York in a recent conversation. Bloom expressed the belief that the courts would decide broadcasting to be a matter for
state regulation and that the radio
law, based on the idea that broadcasting was interstate commerce,
would be cast out because in broadcasting there is no buying and selling. Bloom said he was in thorough sympathy with the commission's work, but feared that it had no right to interfere in broadcasting unless it was really interstate commerce.

CONNECTICUT APOLOGIZES

Passengers on the S. S. Maure-
tania, far at sea last Sunday, received the thrill of their lives when
an airplane swooped down out of the sky, circled their ship and headed on east. It was Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine on their way from New York to Germany. Three years ago this same Clarence Chamberlin swooped low
over the Yale Bowl and as a result
was told to keep out of Connecticut
air thereafter. The man whom Germany and the world are now
acclaiming for his high skill in flying an airplane from New York
almost to Berlin without stop, was then considered an "unfit pilot" by the Connecticut aviation authorities.

Chamberlin may be assured that while this state will still seek to prevent him from doing stunts over
the Yale Bowl, it will never again
refer to him in such disgraceful
terms. Connecticut must bow low and apologize.

Spectators at one of next fall's
football games would doubtless be
the authorities to overlook their
rules if Chamberlin would fly down
the Columbia and let them take a good look at him. We have an idea that any persons who were
frightened by his playful antics
three years ago, would have given
many times the price of a pair of football tickets to have been on the field the ship over at close range.

WATER VS. COSMETICS

A doctor, writing on The Care of the Face, says considerably more
stress on wholesome food and cleanliness than in external beauty applications. Here are some of his words about water:
"It is difficult to resist the temptation to break into a eulogy of water. No cosmetic ever devised
can compare with plain cold water
as a tonic, cleanser and beautifier
combined. The only drawback to water is its cheapness. If it could be obtained only in tiny, ornate flakes
at $10 an ounce it would sweep a vast amount of perfumed trash off
the toilet table."

But what's the use of giving such sound advice? Cosmetics must live, also, men and women don't like to have things made too easy
for them.—Asbury Park Press.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAWING and DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, June 22.—The megaphone wailer for the "seeing New York" has still tells the joke about
the windy corner and the lady's skirt as the wagon takes the sharp
turn in front of the Flatiron Building.

It seems the fashion among those who guide visitors about town to keep alive these most covered traditions—Today the Flatiron building
is a sort of old-fashioned, demure
cousin of the flaring skyscrapers
that rise all around it and the wind
that whisks about its sharp nose
is no more nor less than may be found on a hundred corners. As for a lady's skirt blowing in the wind,
such sights create scarce passing
attention in a day when eyes are educated to the knee-length apparel.

THE same guide, as his bus
whisks through the Bowery, clings
to the tales of gangsterism, street
fighting, blood and gore, while anyone with two eyes must see that this section is now dedicated to the scattered parade of 100 percent
bums, to barber colleges and cheap
gin blind pigs.

In no place in Manhattan is it easier to get a drink than on the Bowery—if you don't care what you drink. The bum who stops and asks you for a dime will, ten chances to one, sweep your nostrils with a breath that confesses heavy bibbling.

In the Bowery's lower reaches,
barber colleges hang their signs
where all may see—in the basement
you find a shave may be had for a
nickle and a haircut for 15 cents—
The prices range upward and downward and, in one second story place,
there is absolutely no charge. Here
you fall into the hands of barbers
freshment and take your own chances.

THE bus veers suddenly near
"five corners"—that spot in lower Manhattan where all the world
comes to a hub in America—and shoots into Chinatown. Again the megaphone artist bursts into a moss
covered monologue. He tells of secret passages, sinister shadows, of erie-things and menacing—that. Then he guides his passengers into a tour-made house, the price of
entry to which is fifty cents.
Thereafter the tour becomes one
catch-penny stunt after another,
until the tourist becomes convinced that the greatest menace is to his credulity and purse-strings.

THESE bus-talks, I am told, were written many a year ago when the tours first began and have been changed but slightly since.—They
are memorized by the megaphones,
many of whom are not long from Peoria and Kansas City.—They carry on the ancient folk-lore of the town and send the good folk back home with much that is old and bearded and little that is new.—But it is romantic.

4-H Club Leaders Will Discuss Ton Litter Contest

Leaders of the 4-H clubs of Lubbock county will meet in the office
of D. F. Eaton, county agent, Saturday at 2 o'clock when plans will be discussed for the ton litter contest and the Dallas News' cotton contest. It was announced this morning.

There will be ten nominations, to
be announced later, for the ton litter contest. Litters born not later than May 25 will be given a 180
days feeding period before entry
for competition in the pork judging.
Entrants for this contest will be discussed at the meeting Saturday.

Five completed records from this county must be turned in to the Dallas News by July 1 if Lubbock
county is to compete in the state
cotton contest. One thousand records are asked by the News for entrants in the competition. The purpose of the contest, as Mr. Eaton
explains, is to get an adequate idea
of the cost of cotton production for
this fall.

Jungle Breath

© 1927 by NEA Service

by Ben Lucien Burman

THIS HAS HAPPENED LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, is summoned to the little jungle bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, by his young friend, ILAK, who is concerned for the safety of his beautiful cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, owner of a coffee plantation and other property near Porto Verde.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of TONY ARBETTA, one of ELISE's friends, and the girl herself has received warnings to get out of the country.

Vilak believes GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and ferocious man, known to be an enemy of ELISE, may be involved some way in the deaths. Accordingly, he and Nunnally set out for Prentiss' house, which is guarded by barbed wire fences and a vicious dog. ELISE insists on joining them. Prentiss sets the dog on them and Vilak saves his companions' lives by chiseling them into unconsciousness.

The next day ELISE's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped. They suspect Prentiss. Vilak leads the pursuit and they follow a circuitous trail of horse tracks and finally come upon the child near a railroad camp.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

Vilak stood silently looking on, half amused, half thoughtful. ELISE turned to him, still holding the baby. "You're a dear," she murmured. "I thought it before, but I didn't know it before today. I said about you. I was a big. And when I cried and completely lost control of myself you said nothing, made one of the caustic, sarcastic remarks that you might have made, but instead set about finding Tinky. And found him. It's a long time since I broke down the way I did this afternoon. But Tinky has become a part of me somehow. She snuggled over and kissed Vilak impulsively.

"Here, here," he said sheepishly, taking out his cigarette case. "You certainly are upset. Have one of my strong cigarettes and quiet your nerves." He lit one. "I'd certainly like to know how Tinky got here. I have a theory, but our friend the civil engineer, who is coming up now, looks as if he might tell us a few facts." He turned to greet the newcomer, who came forward, his dark, pointed face aglow with pleasure.

"Good day, senhorita, amigos," he murmured, shaking hands cordially with the two men and bowing to the girl. "I see you the baby have been more in your arms. I am happy. Most happy."

"It is the senhorita who is happy," Vilak responded. "And I in her happiness to you."

The other gave a disparaging look of his small, well-knit shoulders. "It is nothing that I do. It is nothing."

"Where did you find him?" Vilak queried.

"Over there by the bushes," he pointed off to the patch of vegetation from which they had just come. "It is very strange. Most strange. We were working here, my men and I, spreading gravel along the track where the water has washed the earth away—we can not do much, but we do what we can—when we hear the noise of horses galloping up the road from which you have come. This is nothing. Often we hear the horses gallop. Many ride past this place. Is it not so?"

"The horses stop for a moment, then they gallop on again. And then we hear other horses gallop, but this also is nothing. This also we hear each hour. But soon also we hear something which is not nothing, something which we work in the wild places hear never in our wanderings, the weeping of a child. An Indian baby, I think, deserted by its mother. I go to the bushes to see. And there in the bushes I find it, a white baby, senhorita, a beautiful baby."

He took one of Vilak's cigarettes. "I know at once when I look that it has not been deserted. It is lost or perhaps it is stolen. I am a stranger here. Also are my men strangers. I look of one who passes on the road if he has ever before held the baby, if he perhaps knows the mother. 'Ah yes!' says he at once. 'Who in Porto Verde does not know? It is the nephew of the Senhorita Marberry.'"

"At once I send a man to ride swift to your friends, for I know great must be your agony. He returns. You are gone, he says, where your servants know not. But I know. You have gone to look for the child. It is not good for him to stay there in the damp bushes where there are mosquitoes which bite and snakes which kill. So I bring him here where I can watch. I get for him a blanket so that he will not be on the cold, wet ground. I have also nephews, senhorita. Still he is not happy. He cries always. English words, which I can not well understand. So I bring for him an orange. He eats. He is happy. At last I see you come. And he is very happy."

Vilak lit the other's cigarette, then his own. "Mighty decent of you. Mighty decent. Very few men would have been so thoughtful. I want to assure you that Senhorita Marberry and I are deeply grateful." He smoked thoughtfully. "You didn't have a chance to see the men who were on the horses?"

"No, senhor. It is too low here. We can not see the road." He looked at his cigarette interestedly. "Very excellent, these cigarettes. Your special brand, no doubt?"

"Exactly. Oriental. I'm glad to hear you say you like them. Senhorita Marberry doesn't approve. He glanced toward her smilingly. "Incidentally I haven't introduced you. My client, Senhorita Marberry, I present for all your good wishes Senhor—" He paused for

the name.
"D'Albentara. Carlos D'Albentara," the other responded graciously.
ELISE stepped forward and heartily shook his hand. "I shall never forget what you've done for me. If there's ever anything that I can do which might help you I'll feel very much hurt if you don't ask for it. I hope you'll come out and call on me."

He bowed. "You honor me, senhorita. You do me great honor." She glanced at the men shoveling gravel at the river's edge. "Do you think there is going to be a flood? The river seems to be getting higher all the time and I'm beginning to be worried about my property over at Villaga, about fifteen or twenty miles from here. It's always the first to get the water. I've got a good man over there, a chap named Wilson, who is very good, but he's been quite ill lately with fever and I hate to have him be compelled to do all the fearful work of an emergency such as a flood."

D'Albentara looked surprised. "Wilson, you say this is his name? Could it be perhaps that I know him? A little man, black hair, and large feet, who has once worked on this railroad as an engineer?"

"No. It's a different man altogether. The one that works for me is a blond and I brought him direct from the States—Do you think we'll have the flood?"

"That I wish I knew, senhorita. No one can say and perhaps afterward he'll be called a teller of false prophecies. But to me the river seems rising, always. And if it rises there can not but be a flood." The stunted Indian of the enormous nose who had brought them from the road came forward and, grunting a few guttural sentences to him, pointed off to a group of laborers sawing some trees. He turned to the visitors. "I must go back to my men, amigos," he murmured. It is to me a great pleasure to have made your friendship. A great pleasure. Goodby, senhorita, senhor."

"Don't forget to come to see me. Soon," ELISE called out blithely as they climbed to the road again. She jumped into her saddle, then took the baby which Vilak gently lifted to her. "Life's a queer thing," she said as the horses paced slowly toward the fazenda, and she leaned down and kissed the child again.

"At 2 o'clock I'm heartbroken at 5. I'm simply bubbling over with joy. I'm simply because this little bit of humanity we happen to call Tinky is with me. Oh, I know I make a fool of myself over him," she added with a half apologetic glance at Vilak. "But I do love him. Whatever my sardonic cousin pretends to think about the folly of human emotions in general, and the emotion of affection in particular. Some people can go through life with a poker face disposition. I can't."

Vilak gets himself a ring—in a very curious fashion, for it is a very curious ring.

"It is the senhorita who is happy," Vilak responded. "And I in her happiness to you."

The other gave a disparaging look of his small, well-knit shoulders. "It is nothing that I do. It is nothing."

"Where did you find him?" Vilak queried.

"Over there by the bushes," he pointed off to the patch of vegetation from which they had just come. "It is very strange. Most strange. We were working here, my men and I, spreading gravel along the track where the water has washed the earth away—we can not do much, but we do what we can—when we hear the noise of horses galloping up the road from which you have come. "The horses stop for a moment, then they gallop on again. And then we hear other horses gallop, but this also is nothing. This also we hear each hour. But soon also we hear something which is not nothing, something which we work in the wild places hear never in our wanderings, the weeping of a child. An Indian baby, I think, deserted by its mother. I go to the bushes to see. And there in the bushes I find it, a white baby, senhorita, a beautiful baby."

He took one of Vilak's cigarettes. "I know at once when I look that it has not been deserted. It is lost or perhaps it is stolen. I am a stranger here. Also are my men strangers. I look of one who passes on the road if he has ever before held the baby, if he perhaps knows the mother. 'Ah yes!' says he at once. 'Who in Porto Verde does not know? It is the nephew of the Senhorita Marberry.'"

"At once I send a man to ride swift to your friends, for I know great must be your agony. He returns. You are gone, he says, where your servants know not. But I know. You have gone to look for the child. It is not good for him to stay there in the damp bushes where there are mosquitoes which bite and snakes which kill. So I bring him here where I can watch. I get for him a blanket so that he will not be on the cold, wet ground. I have also nephews, senhorita. Still he is not happy. He cries always. English words, which I can not well understand. So I bring for him an orange. He eats. He is happy. At last I see you come. And he is very happy."

Vilak lit the other's cigarette, then his own. "Mighty decent of you. Mighty decent. Very few men would have been so thoughtful. I want to assure you that Senhorita Marberry and I are deeply grateful." He smoked thoughtfully. "You didn't have a chance to see the men who were on the horses?"

"No, senhor. It is too low here. We can not see the road." He looked at his cigarette interestedly. "Very excellent, these cigarettes. Your special brand, no doubt?"

"Exactly. Oriental. I'm glad to hear you say you like them. Senhorita Marberry doesn't approve. He glanced toward her smilingly. "Incidentally I haven't introduced you. My client, Senhorita Marberry, I present for all your good wishes Senhor—" He paused for

the name.
"D'Albentara. Carlos D'Albentara," the other responded graciously.
ELISE stepped forward and heartily shook his hand. "I shall never forget what you've done for me. If there's ever anything that I can do which might help you I'll feel very much hurt if you don't ask for it. I hope you'll come out and call on me."

He bowed. "You honor me, senhorita. You do me great honor." She glanced at the men shoveling gravel at the river's edge. "Do you think there is going to be a flood? The river seems to be getting higher all the time and I'm beginning to be worried about my property over at Villaga, about fifteen or twenty miles from here. It's always the first to get the water. I've got a good man over there, a chap named Wilson, who is very good, but he's been quite ill lately with fever and I hate to have him be compelled to do all the fearful work of an emergency such as a flood."

D'Albentara looked surprised. "Wilson, you say this is his name? Could it be perhaps that I know him? A little man, black hair, and large feet, who has once worked on this railroad as an engineer?"

"No. It's a different man altogether. The one that works for me is a blond and I brought him direct from the States—Do you think we'll have the flood?"

"That I wish I knew, senhorita. No one can say and perhaps afterward he'll be called a teller of false prophecies. But to me the river seems rising, always. And if it rises there can not but be a flood." The stunted Indian of the enormous nose who had brought them from the road came forward and, grunting a few guttural sentences to him, pointed off to a group of laborers sawing some trees. He turned to the visitors. "I must go back to my men, amigos," he murmured. It is to me a great pleasure to have made your friendship. A great pleasure. Goodby, senhorita, senhor."

"Don't forget to come to see me. Soon," ELISE called out blithely as they climbed to the road again. She jumped into her saddle, then took the baby which Vilak gently lifted to her. "Life's a queer thing," she said as the horses paced slowly toward the fazenda, and she leaned down and kissed the child again.

"At 2 o'clock I'm heartbroken at 5. I'm simply bubbling over with joy. I'm simply because this little bit of humanity we happen to call Tinky is with me. Oh, I know I make a fool of myself over him," she added with a half apologetic glance at Vilak. "But I do love him. Whatever my sardonic cousin pretends to think about the folly of human emotions in general, and the emotion of affection in particular. Some people can go through life with a poker face disposition. I can't."

Vilak gets himself a ring—in a very curious fashion, for it is a very curious ring.

"It is the senhorita who is happy," Vilak responded. "And I in her happiness to you."

The other gave a disparaging look of his small, well-knit shoulders. "It is nothing that I do. It is nothing."

"Where did you find him?" Vilak queried.

"Over there by the bushes," he pointed off to the patch of vegetation from which they had just come. "It is very strange. Most strange. We were working here, my men and I, spreading gravel along the track where the water has washed the earth away—we can not do much, but we do what we can—when we hear the noise of horses galloping up the road from which you have come. This is nothing. Often we hear the horses gallop. Many ride past this place. Is it not so?"

"The horses stop for a moment, then they gallop on again. And then we hear other horses gallop, but this also is nothing. This also we hear each hour. But soon also we hear something which is not nothing, something which we work in the wild places hear never in our wanderings, the weeping of a child. An Indian baby, I think, deserted by its mother. I go to the bushes to see. And there in the bushes I find it, a white baby, senhorita, a beautiful baby."

"He's an outhaw dog," declared Benton. "Only one man was ever able to handle that savage brute." "How do you happen to know so much about him?" asked Jack. "Why, I—I don't know," stammered the chauffeur. "I—just heard it." But Lockwill wasn't satisfied. Later, he told his mother: "I don't fancy your chauffeur." "But he came with good references," she answered.

Jack was frolicking with Thor on the lawn that afternoon when the troopers, Cameron and Hardy, came riding back to Ivor's Lane. The dog vanished at once.

"That looked like Malone's dog," said Cameron. "Maybe he was," admitted the boy. "but he's my dog now. I found him homeless, and I shall keep him."

"Then you'd better take out a license for him," returned Cameron, dismounting and tightening his saddle girth. "He knows troopers by sight, and he takes to cover when he sees one. We're still after Dugan. If we can find his daughter, we'll find him." He stepped forward as he spoke and placed his hand on Jack's shoulder. With a roar, Thor reappeared and shot toward them.

Residences For City In 1925 And 1926 Total 1,200

Approximately 3200 residences were built in Lubbock during the years 1925 and 1926 combined, according to figures in the office of G. C. Merrill, city building inspector.

Of the number about 50 were built for two-family residences, and the valuations reveal that the greater percentage of the structures were of brick or tile. The average cost of each house is about $3,500 or $4,000, while the records show that many $10,000 and $15,000 buildings were erected.

About 1,000 of the residences were built by owners for their own occupancy. This building era was epitomized by the opening of Texas Tech.

Permits for this year, from January to June, both business and residence, totaled a valuation of almost $500,000.

Hemmed In By High Waters

HOUSTON, June 22 (AP)—Hemmed in by the swollen waters of the Trinity river, 35 long term convicts who escaped from their bunk house on the Ferguson state farm near Madisonville, Texas, at midnight Tuesday were reported surrounded this morning in the river bottoms by practically the entire male population of Madison county, together with guards from two prison farms.

Save Way Out

Sawing a hole in the side of a building in which they were housed, the fleeing men made their way to the lone highway that runs near the farm. Headed in a northeasterly direction, a quickly gathered force of guards impeded their progress at the lone ferry on the Trinity in that section. Turning south along the river bank, closely pursued by men and dogs, the convicts, bunched together, impeded by thick mud that is practically impassable to anything but a caterpillar tractor, haven't a chance to escape capture, prison officials reported.

So far as can be learned, no one was injured in the break. Earlier reports that automobiles had been commandeered and horses stolen were denied emphatically by the officers.

The soil in the Madisonville country is described as "black waxy" due to its color and its adhesive properties. It is asserted that when wet a man's foot will double, quadruple, octuple, in size and go on with each step. Prison officials declare that the soil is wet at this time.

All Telephone Wires Are Cut

MADISONVILLE, Texas, June 22 (AP)—Thirty five white convicts at the Ferguson state prison farm, 17 miles from here, sawed their way out of their sleeping quarters in a wooden barracks building during the night and escaped, according to a messenger from the prison farm who came here to telephone the news to the state prison at Huntsville, they apparently had cut the wires into Madisonville. The men were unarmed, he reported and added that the prison delivery was so quietly accomplished that it was not known until a guard in making his rounds discovered it.

Three Of 35 Are Recaptured

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, June 22 (AP)—Three of the 35 convicts who escaped from the Ferguson state prison farm at Madisonville during the night were recaptured early today, it was said at the state prison this morning. The convicts were being trailed by dogs, the prison authorities reported. They said they anticipated little difficulty in recapturing the remainder who were believed to be in the vicinity of the heavily wooded Trinity river bottom where recent heavy rains it was believed would slow down their progress.

153 Men In Barracks

The report of the prison break to the authorities at the penitentiary here said that 153 men were housed in the wooden building. The guard who discovered their attempt to get away came upon the men as they were leaving through a hole which prison officials understood they had sawed in the floor. The amazed guard came on the men as they were leaving one by one and halted the remainder with his weapon. They docilely submitted, according to this report. Other guards were aroused and five packs of dogs were placed on the trail of the men who were by this time making for the nearby woods. In accordance with custom, citizens turned out to assist in the search for the absconders and about forty of them, the prison authorities said, took up the trail.

At the prison here it was first major prison escape accomplished at the farm.

Cabinet Completed In Bratiano Regime

BUCHAREST, June 22 (AP)—Ion Bratiano, leader of the liberal party, today formed a cabinet to succeed that of Prince Sighiristea, resigned. Mr. Bratiano becomes premier and foreign minister, while his brother, Vintila, takes the portfolio of finance.

'We'll Dry Up All Canada,' Says Ontario's Pussyfoot

This is the last of four articles by Roy J. Gibbons, NEA Service Writer.

By ROY J. GIBBONS
NEA Service Writer

TORONTO, Ont., June 22.—Ontario's dry leader is Rev. Ben H. Spence here. He is a pastor of the United Church of Canada and represents half a dozen Canadian and international prohibition organizations. He is known as Canada's Pussyfoot.

After many years of battle to keep Ontario dry, Spence has seen all his work undone and the dry cause lost. Yet he is not chagrined or even mildly disappointed, he says.

He regards the present government liquor control law, which makes it possible to legally buy beer and liquor in Ontario, as "just a passing phase."

Under Spence's leadership the dry are grinding for a new fight "along a three-line front."

"Though beaten in Ontario after 11 years of dry victory, they plan to go out and make the whole of Canada arid."

They will center their attack on a Dominion prohibition amendment to embrace the entire country.

U. S. Law as Model

Spence wants a law similar to the prohibition law in the United States. Provincial prohibition, he says, that is done the demand will cease, he said.

"Many folks do not understand our situation here. We have had to fight against many handicaps. They cannot succeed in Canada unless cemented by Dominion statute forbidding the manufacture of intoxicants."

"All we will have to do is cut off the booze supply in Canada. When principal of these has been lack of unity in our law."

"In provinces that were dry by provincial enactment booze has been manufactured under Dominion license and the province could do nothing about it."

"Wherever you have supply there is going to be consumption. And in Ontario, although supposed to be dry, have had illegal consumption through leakage aided by Dominion law."

"The wets may laugh for a little while. But our time is coming. When it does come again it will come to stay."

"If you in the United States had your government you could make prohibition in your country a real thing."

"And if we in Canada had your

Rev. Ben H. Spence

prohibition law we could do a lot more with it than you are doing."

Three-fold Fight

The new fight that the drys under leadership of Rev. Spence plan to wage will be conducted along three-fold.

SHOULD A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN
Sacrifice herself on the altar of her father's selfishness?
This question is answered in a drama as intense as life itself... a drama as fraught with poignant romance.

The cast is headed by a great screen star. The story is by two outstanding dramatists. The direction was in the hands of a master, who has captured the quaint charm of France.

ethical propaganda and legislative lines.

"This time we are going after the entire problem and as a unit instead of splitting our forces into provincial ranks as heretofore," Spence said.

"I am neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet. I cannot say how long the present wet phase will last, but it will not be for long. Prohibition is bound to triumph."

"National prohibition. That is the only solution."

"You in the United States discovered it first. Canada will not be far behind you."

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

BIG RECEPTION ARRANGED FOR TEXAS WOMEN

SALT LAKE CITY PLANS ENTERTAINMENT FOR TEXAS VISITORS

Announcement of the Texas Farm Bureau Special train which leaves Dallas July 9 for California where Texas women will study co-operative marketing methods, has been met with plans in Salt Lake City for entertaining the delegates of the Lone Star state when the special arrives in that city July 11.

Mrs. C. Z. Fine, of the Posey community will represent Lubbock County on this trip, and Mrs. F. F. Revere, also of Lubbock County, will be a delegate for Crosby, Lamb and Dawson counties.

Elaborate Plans Made
The Utah State Farm Bureau Association, the Utah Poultry Producers and members of the extension service of that state co-operating in making elaborate plans for entertaining the Texas women. Governor George H. Dern will receive the delegation in the State House and personally conduct a tour of the Capitol building, where a grand collection of historic relics are on display.

Program Includes Tour
Part of the afternoon's program will be spent in bathing in the Great Salt Lake. An automobile trip through the rich agricultural country adjoining the city will close the day. In Davis County, where truck farming is plentiful, members of the special will be provided with fruit.

Other cities throughout the route are making arrangements to welcome the Texas women.

Rotarians Hear Good Program In Luncheon Today

A well balanced program, consisting of musical numbers, three readings and several short talks by both local and out-of-town visitors, was roundly applauded at noon today when members of the Lubbock Rotary club gathered together at Hotel Lubbock for their regular weekly luncheon.

With Joe Nislar in charge of the program Harold Rhea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rhea of this city, sang first, "Poor Papa" and, as an encore, "Grit Your Teeth and Wash Your Hands." He was accompanied at the piano by Miss Louise Jennings, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Walter P. Jennings.

Miss Pressley Reads
Miss Kate Pressley next entertained with three readings, Kipling's "On The Road To Mandalay," "A Boy's Essay On A Goose," and "Don't Kick" were her presentations. Miss Pressley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pressley, of Lubbock.

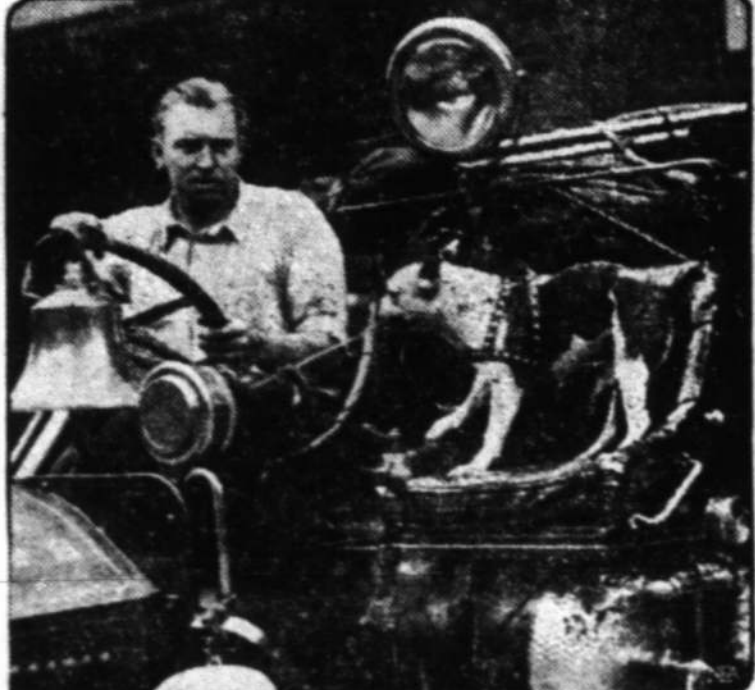

A quartet, composed of D. D. Rodrick, baritone; L. M. Brooks, bass; Harry Blocker, first tenor; and Paul Carlock, second tenor, next sang three groups. Included in the quartet's presentation were "My Wild Irish Rose," "Bell Them Bells," "My Old Kentucky Home," "I Want A Girl," "Consumptive Mary Brown," and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Visitors Talk
Hon. George Key of Oklahoma City, chairman of the Democratic party's central committee in the Sooner state and a visiting Rotarian, Tom Rose, Pampa Rotarian; Dr. R. E. Carter, of the faculty of the University of Indiana and a member of the summer school faculty of Texas Tech; Dr. W. T. Read, Tech faculty member; W. C. Ryland, of Lubbock Kivarian and Secretary J. C. Nelson, of the Texas College Y. M. C. A., made short talks following the musical program. Rev. Walter P. Jennings, president of the club, was in the chair.

Wrightstone Coming Into His Own Under Tutelage Of McInnis; He'll Make Real Star Yet, Evans Thinks

By BILLY EVANS
ONE of the surprising features of the 1927 campaign in the majors to date has been the fine showing of the Philadelphia Nationals. Conceded last place by all the experts to the Phillies, led by "Stuffy" McInnis, have insisted on making it tough for all clubs.

No one has been more instrumental in the unexpected form of the Phillies than one Russell Guy Wrightstone, who, prior to this year, had done nothing in particular to keep Babe Ruth out of the headlines.

Wrightstone plays first base for the Phillies and he is doing a mighty good job of it. His fielding has been a la George Sisler and his batting quite praiseworthy. Which means he has arrived as a sure-enough big leaguer after seven years of plugging.

It has taken that time for Wrightstone to find himself. Perhaps the appointment of McInnis as manager of the Philadelphia Nationals was just the break he needed to get somewhere in the big show.

Back in 1920 when the Phillies were floundering about in the cellar, with little money to spend for recruits, Wrightstone was dug up from the semi-pro ranks around Harrisburg, Pa., and cost the management car fare only, a matter of not over 10 bucks.

Wrightstone came to the majors as a third sacker and in his first season played 76 games at that position. Since that time he has done practically everything on the ball club except pitch or catch.

LINDY PLANS CAPITAL TRIP

To Confer With Government Officials On Matters Of Aviation Future

(By The Associated Press)
ST. LOUIS, June 22.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh planned to hop off today for Dayton on the first leg of a flight to Washington, where he is to confer with high government officials on matters germane to the development of aviation.

Colonel Lindbergh planned to leave today from Scott field in an army observation plane piloted by Major Thomas G. Lanphier, commander of the first pursuit group, Selfridge field.

Comment Withheld
Efforts to obtain a statement from either the flying colonel or his principal backer in the New York-to-Paris flight, Harry H. Hall, regarding the details of the Washington conference were futile, as neither would make any comment on the aviator's plans. It is understood, however, that Colonel Lindbergh will meet with heads of the army, navy and commerce departments the latter part of this week to discuss aviation and the flier's plans for the future.

Colonel Lindbergh expects to arrive at Dayton late today, where he will be the over night guest of Odville Wright, dean of the airplane manufacturing industry, before proceeding to the national capital. A reception has been planned by the city of Dayton in his honor.

Plans To Return Home
The trans-Atlantic flier intends to return home after the conference in Washington to resume his work for the advancement of aviation, provided the government does not decide to use him in some other line of aviation work.

Colonel Lindbergh already has been offered the presidency of a proposed $1,000,000 airplane manufacturing company here.

The most famous queen bee of all time was valued at $1,000. Her daughter sold for $200.

The game that McInnis, as you watch Wrightstone in action, you can see many of the McInnis tricks of the trade crop out. McInnis seems to have been able to impart to Wrightstone the very dope he needed to round him out into a finished player.

While Wrightstone is no youngster being 32 years of age, it looks very much as if the Phillies won't have to worry about a first baseman for a number of years.

Wrightstone is just shy of 6 feet, weighs about 180 pounds, bats left and throws right handed and has a swat average of exactly .300 covering his seven years in the majors, spent with a tallender.
