HUB CAP ENGRAVER AT WORK

Sheriff John Rainey, left, and Police Chief Troy Marsh heredemonstrate the hub-cap engraver they bought recently in an effort to cut down hub-cap thefts here. The idea was praised by FBI officers in a recent school for Plains law enforcement officers. The local officers adopted it from similar uses in marking industrial tools. It also has been used to mark hub caps in cities, but the practice is not general in smaller towns.

County Events Postponed Due to Cold Weather

The severe weather has caused the cancellation of several events originally scheduled for the latter part of last week and through this week.

The Chamber of Commerce Talent Show was postponed indefinitely and Dr. Chas. B. Jones, committee chairman, said a new date will be announced. This was originally to be held March 1.

The Chamber of Commerce banquet was reset for Thursday, Mar. 17, with Melvin Munn of Pampa as the speaker, N. M. Higdon, C-C manager, reported.

The domino tournament planned by Quail Friendship Club has been postponed to Friday, March 18, Mrs. Pat O'Hair, president, has announced.

The original date, March 11, conflicts with the Quail Baptist Revival, she said.

The tournament will be in the Quail homemaking cottage.

Governor Daniel Invited to C-C Banquet

Governor Price Daniel has been invited to attend the Collingsworth County Chamber of Commerce banquet on Thursday, March 17, as a special guest, Manager N. M. Higdon revealed this week.

Governor Daniel is due to be the principal speaker at the annual St. Patrick's Day banquet in Shamrock Wednesday night, March 16, and to speak again at the beginning of the parade St. Patrick's morning.

"We hope that Governor Daniel can make arrangements to remain in this area for the remainder of the day and attend our annual banquet that night," Higdon said.

Plans for the meeting were announced this week by Minister John Gay.

Well known to local members of Churches of Christ in the area, Min. Camp preached at one time for the San Jacinto congregation in Amarillo and has preached for the Church of Christ in Wellington.

"He is now preaching for a new congregation in Dallas, regarded as the fastest growing in Dallas, due much to his ability and consecration," Min. Gay said.

Mrs. Horace Small Prominent Young City Woman, Dies

Mrs. Horace Small, prominent Wellington woman and a member of families long influential in the county, died in an Amarillo hospital Saturday, Feb. 27, at 1:10 a.m. Her passing came as a shock to the community, for most of her friends were unaware that she was ill.

She entered the hospital nine days earlier, and her condition was considered serious from that time. In spite of her progressing illness, however, she continued to go about her usual affairs until only a few days before that.

Mrs. Small was the former Pauline Starr, the daughter of Paul Starr and the late Annie White Starr. Most of her life was spent here.

She was active in many phases of the town's life and her influence and friendship extended to those of all ages, in all walks of life.

Mrs. Small was born in Wellington October 23, 1917. She attended the Wellington schools and was graduated from Abilene Christian Academy, and later she attended West Texas State College at Canyon.

She was married to Horace Small here on June 22, 1937. They lived in Amarillo for six years, then returned to Wellington to make their home.

Mrs. Small was especially interested in children and young people and for about six years she was a sponsor of Ko Shari, high school girls club. In this capacity she guided many teen-age girls of the town into the ways of growing up gracefully, but she also directed their energies into community service, and through the years, Ko Shari has assisted in community drives and events.

For several years Mrs. Small was associated with The Fashion Shop, adding business experience to the other phases of her life. During the last year she had devoted her full time to her home.

Mrs. Small was a member of Bowie Street Church of Christ and active in its work.

She shared with her husband an interest in quarter horses, and flower growing was still another interest. She was deeply devoted to her friends and attracted the devotion of those around her.

Funeral services for Mrs. Small were conducted at Bowie Street Church of Christ Monday at 2:30 p.m. by Minister John Gay of that church and Minister G. B. Stanley of Olton, formerly of Wellington.

Despite the extreme cold, friends filled the large church to pay final tribute.

Pall bearers were L. C. Hill, Cliff Campbell, John Holton, Dudley McMillin, Johnny Crawford, Emory Hunter, Pete Nipper and Dr. J. M. Orr. Burial was in North Wellington cemetery under the direction of Kelso Funeral Home.

Mrs. Small is survived by her husband, her father, and one sister, Mrs. Earl Hunter of Wellington. There are a nephew and three nieces, Clifford Earl Hunter of Oklahoma City, Mrs. Mary Ann Cunningham of Port Lavaca, Mrs. Patricia Hall of Dallas and Mrs. Mary John Howington of Oak Harbor, Wash., and also two great nieces, Melanie Starr Cunningham and Rebecca Cunningham. She was preceded in death by her mother, a brother, John Starr, and a sister who died in infancy.

Three Buildings at High School Burglarized Sun.

Burglars entered three buildings at Wellington high school during the week end taking approximately $50 in money and checks, and drinking two bottles of pop.

This followed the burglary of the Dixie Maid, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Doc Turner on Feb. 25, in which $17 in cash and cigarettes were taken.

County and city law enforcement officers are investigating the burglaries jointly, headed by Sheriff John Rainey.

The school burglary is believed to have taken place Sunday night. Entered were the main high school building, the gymnasium and the vocational agriculture building. It was discovered Monday morning and officers were notified immediately by high school principal Mack Bush.

The money was taken from a filing cabinet in the vocational ag building, Police Chief Troy Marsh said. Entry was gained through the door, which is old and cracked, and the burglar was able to push through a crack in one panel, to reach inside and unlatch the door, according to Marsh.

Officers have not determined how the other two buildings were entered.

In the gymnasium, an attempt was made to open the pop machine but this failed, according to officers, and nothing else was bothered in that building.

After gaining entry into the main high school, the burglars entered several rooms, officers can not determine definitely how many and teachers desks were gone into.

The two bottles of pop were drunk in the homemaking department.

The entry of these buildings constitutes three separate cases of burglary, Marsh said.

Entry into the Dixie Maid was gained by forcing open the back door with what appeared to officers to be a tire tool.

The burglary occurred some time after 11 p.m., when Mr. and Mrs. Turner closed for the night. It was discovered when they opened for business the following morning about 10 a.m., the officers reported.

Mr. Sherrill, born in Conway, Ark., March 20, 1889, formerly was a contractor, having constructed several large buildings in Little Rock, Ark. He had lived in southwestern Oklahoma since 1929.

Surviving are three nieces, Mrs. C. B. Mauldin, Paden, Okla.; Mrs. Ace Rice, Tempe, Ariz.; Mrs. Florence Groselove, Casa Grande, Ariz.; and three nephews, R. L. and R. W. Sherrill, both of Vinson, and C. B. Sherrill of Olton, Texas.

Rock Encampment Road for All-Weather Use

Rocking the PanFork Baptist Encampment road from Highway 83 east approximately three miles, was announced this week by Gene Jenkins, county road administrator. This will give an all-weather road to the Guy Bumpas corner, about a mile from the encampment site, he said.

Jenkins said that Bumpas donated the rock for the road base, and in addition to this, 500 loads of rock, 2,000 yards, was bought and donated by landowners in the area and the First Baptist Church, Wellington. This is the type of rock used for topping the road.

Buying the rock were Bumpas, 100 loads; Bob Glenn, 100 loads; Dan Henad, 100 loads; and First Baptist Church, 200 loads.

County labor will be used. Jenkins said that when this stretch of road is finished, it will be necessary for the road department to begin work on the disaster program, but it is hoped eventually to rock the remainder of the road to the encampment gate.

The PanFork Encampment is used principally during the summer months, and on a number of occasions major events have been rained out or hampered by wet weather, and roads in this tight-land section of the county become practically impassable during a prolonged wet spell.

City Election Deadline Friday; Three File

Friday, March 4, is the deadline for filing as a candidate for a place on the city council, Mrs. Jennie Holcomb, city secretary, announced this week.

Only three candidates have filed so far, for the three places, and these are the council members whose terms expire. They are Mrs. John Coleman, Jimmy Cochran, and Henry Sullivan.

The election will be held Saturday, April 2, and candidates must file 30 days before the election, Mrs. Holcomb reminded.

Statewide Increase in Crime Should Be Pondered Locally

This disturbing report comes from the Texas Department of Public Safety, telling of Texas increase in crime rate last year. Although we have escaped this increase here, it is still our concern, for no county and no community can miss its effect. It is something to be pondered thoughtfully. Here is the report:

Major crime in Texas during 1959 showed a marked increase according to figures released today by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

In a report from Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Texas DPS, aggravated assault gained the most with a 22 per cent increase over the year 1958. Crime in all categories increased 3.9 per cent over the previous year.

Of the remaining six major crimes—murder, rape, robbery, burglary, theft and auto theft—only robbery showed a decline. According to the estimates, there were 45,827 burglaries in 1959 as compared with 44,822 in 1958, an increase of 2.2 per cent. Offenses in the automobile theft category totaled 15,830 as compared with 15,402 in 1958.

The crime report showed that on each day of the year 1959 there were 125 burglaries, 43 automobiles stolen, 266 thefts other than automobiles, 32 aggravated assaults, 7 robberies, 3 rapes and 3 murders.

On a ten year basis crime in Texas percentagewise by far outgained population. During the last decade the population of our state increased 24.4 per cent while crime increased 73.2 per cent.

Of other information in the report, the department's Identification and Criminal Records Section received 72,434 sets of criminal fingerprints in 1959 compared with 110,531 last year—an increase of 52.29 per cent. In the year 1950 identifications were made on 35,649 fingerprints, while 66,961 were identified in 1959; this was an increase of 87.83 per cent.

As was true in all phases of law enforcement work, activities in the department's chemical laboratory showed tremendous gains. In 1950, 2,500 chemical examinations were completed, last year there were 10,179.

Official Wrangling Over Defense Now Becoming National Disgrace

The bickering and wrangling presently going on in official and congressional circles in Washington over the nation's defense spending and planning is becoming a national disgrace. President Eisenhower's military advisors on whom he says he depends are apparently at sixes and sevens and cannot agree either on what progress we have made or what we should do in the immediate future. And even among them there are individuals who change their tune from one week to another.

To make matters worse, the politicians are getting into the arena with their eyes on the elections this year. One side is trying to show that the lag in advanced weapons we are putatively believed to be suffering is due to the failure of administrations back in the 1940s to spend time and money on research. Another holds that these charges are untrue and that the picture of today is distorted. Strangely, all seem to agree that the sole solution is money and more money.

The President's budget for the ensuing fiscal year earmarks $41,000,000,000 for defense, more than half the entire budget. At this rate it is unlikely the Soviet is outspending the United States for defense. Until the major military leaders and Defense Department officials can get together on an efficient and co-ordinated program, keeping an eye to economy where it is possible, no amount of money will solve our ills.

As a side line of this controversy, we now are told that 8000 bridges and underpasses built on the interstate highway system supported by federal funds are of too low clearance to meet modern defense needs in the movement of missiles and other weapons. Yet the policy-making heads of the Bureau of Public Roads and military agencies conferred from 1957 to late 1959 on these plans. It is now proposed that billions more be spent on tearing down these underpasses and replacing them. Why cannot it occur to the great brains in the Defense Department that it would be immensely more practical to build the missiles of the future in such dimensions as will permit them to be moved through existing underpasses?

The whole picture in this dispute recalls the story of a Navy admiral who appeared before a congressional committee several years ago to protest a plan to integrate hospitals of the Army and Navy. His astonishing testimony was that the plan was impossible because the Army and Navy used different forms for their records. It's about time all this nonsense was brought to a halt.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where the government has told the folks who write cigarette advertisements they ought to quit using dirty words like "nicotine" and "tar" in same.

My tarred blood neighbor says likely Washington is afraid that harping on such items will make people think cigarettes are unhealthy, and if they quit smoking the treasury would lose near $2,000,000,000 a year which the tobacco tax brings in.

Says if a citizen gets cancer from smoking, this sacrifice on the tax altar ought to be recognized at least with a Purple Heart.

I see where the forty-seventh anniversary of the income tax came around last week and hardly anybody took any notice of same. My sentimental neighbor says it don't hardly seem right to let such an important date go by without some kind of celebration.

But says he did the best he could in his small way to commemorate the occasion, and even if there weren't any flags at half mast and the banks didn't close, he sent in his 1040, which closed his bank account.

I see where California's pet rapist, Book Writer Chessman, got de-toured from the gas chamber again the other day when our State Department heard some Uruguayan school kids wanted him preserved.

My foxy neighbor says this gives him an idea which he thinks we ought to try out while foreign loud-mouths have got Washington buffaloed.

Says 180 million Americans crying for succor hasn't done any good, but 100 or 200 students demonstrating for same in Peru would most likely get us a tax cut.

I see where moral indignation is being outpoured by commentators and a few lawmakers on account of some tricky farmers have split up their property so as to get all their kids on Soil Bank payola.

My scrupulous neighbor says this proves farmers are just as conscientious family providers as if they were in some high government office.

But says this tendency to farm out their paternal obligations to the taxpayers is liable to get mere farmers jailed for impersonating Congressmen.

I see where equipment is now on the market to furnish background music in stores, offices, homes, and any place else where quiet might cause thinking to set in.

Of course this is not a plumb new idea, as lots of cafes use non-stop juke boxes all the time to rack the customer's mind so he can't think about what he is eating.

Politicians may start chipping in to buy background music machines to put in voting places, but they will be wasting their money on account of most of us already vote without thinking.

I see where General Postmaster Summerfield is putting closed circuit television cameras at the peep holes in his postoffice mail room and wash room walls, where he watches employees steal mail.

Don't know if this is to keep from getting a pencil in his eye, or if he aims to put tape in these electronic eavesdroppers and sell it for TV programs.

He might cure the postal deficit this way, and give us more entertaining TV to watch while our mail service gets worse.

Quail Future Farmers Total Year's Earnings

Quail Future Farmers showed a profit of $4,528.79 on their projects for the year ending Jan. 1, Frank Kennedy, vocational agriculture instructor, revealed at the end of National FFA Week.

This is the figure reported to the state FFA office, and it includes only the regular vocational agriculture project program. Not all the projects were profitable, Kennedy points out. Some, the boys learned by experience, were not suitable, others were unprofitable due to circumstances over which the boys had no control, although they might make money another year. Still others did not show a profit simply because they were not completed at the end of the calendar year; for example, a heifer that has not produced a calf yet, but who had to be fed. That profit will show with the sale of a calf next year.

The boys project program included 11 beef steers, 12 beef cows, three beef heifers, one dairy cow, three dairy heifers, 34 barrows, 23 gilts, 15 sows, 51 acres of cotton, 30 acres of grain sorghum, 22 acres of small grain, 9 rabbits, 10 acres of guar, 25 acres of sudan pasture.

In addition to these, the boys carried out 31 improvement projects around their parents farms, such as constructing farm buildings, building fences, etc. They did 75 supplementary farm jobs, such as repairing buildings and equipment, the report showed.

The 27 Quail Future Farmers and their projects are:

James Bowen, two gilts; Freddy Boyce, one gilt and a dairy cow; Bobby Boyce, a gilt; Phillip Brown, a beef heifer and a dairy heifer; Herschel Burns, a gilt, three beef calves, 20 acres of cotton on which he made $1,058, 10 acres of grain sorghum, and four recently purchased beef steers.

Ronnie Colson, a gilt; John Cummings, nine rabbits; Jimmy Finley, a gilt, beef calf, 10 acres of cotton and a beef heifer; Teddy Gentry, two beef steers, three gilts and three barrows; Larry Gollighugh, one barrow; Julius Haralson, five gilts, six barrows and a sow.

In order to make the Dean's Honor Roll a student must be among the outstanding students at the College, and this is a well-merited honor for Miss Hughes. She attended and graduated from the Vidalia high school and was salutatorian of the VHS graduating class of 1958-59.

Since enrolling at Tech, Miss Hughes has been very active in campus activities and is one of the outstanding students in the college. Her father is Superintendent of the Fi-Ro Machine & Welding Company of Natchez, and Mr. and Mrs. Hughes own and operate a tourist motel here.

There's News in Women's Shoes

If you're thinking of new shoes for spring, you will have many styles and fabrics to choose from.

Keep your purpose in mind when you shop, suggest extension clothing specialists. Otherwise, the tempting array of styles and colors may lead you to buy on impulse, then regret it later.

Pointed toes predominate, but the most exciting news comes in the gently rounded toe. In general, toes are tapered but not needle-pointed. There are pumps and T-sandals with a light open look with cut-away sides and ramps. Heels are slender, high, oval and mid-high.

Patent leather is still a spring and summer favorite. A sensational new crack-resistant finish for patent leather has been developed. This improved leather has a deeper lustre and can be washed with soap and water without harmful effect. Shop for a shoe that is correct in fabric and color for the dress or suit you intend to wear it with.

Good fit is important for your health and for your disposition. When you buy shoes, have your foot measured for both length and width. Don't tell the clerk your size. Let him tell you. Test the shoe by standing and walking in them before you buy.

Stretch Spring Wardrobe $$$

Are you good at stretching clothing dollars? — Outfitting the family with spring and summer clothing represents quite an investment . . . Extension clothing specialists say that careful planning before you buy will pay off in savings and satisfaction.

Careful planning also is the secret of having a wardrobe of costumes or outfits that go well together instead of a collection of miscellaneous items that never seem quite right.

Begin by taking careful stock of clothes on hand. Make necessary alterations of clothes you plan to keep, bring them up to date or put them in first-class condition.

Then plan what clothes you will need to supplement what you have. Keep in mind your activities as you make this list. Each family member should have a part in planning. This makes for better understanding of what happens to clothing dollars and the family budget.

Other pointers for planning are given in the extension bulletin, "Clothing Dollars and Sense." Get a copy from your county home demonstration agent's office.

Ruth Hughes on Honor Roll

VIDALIA, La.—Named on the Dean's List or Dean's Honor Roll for the fall semester is Miss Ruth Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hughes of Vidalia and Natchez, who is a student at the School of Business Administration at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute at Ruston, La.

In order to make the Dean's Honor Roll a student must be among the outstanding students at the College, and this is a well-merited honor for Miss Hughes. She attended and graduated from the Vidalia high school and was salutatorian of the VHS graduating class of 1958-59.

Since enrolling at Tech, Miss Hughes has been very active in campus activities and is one of the outstanding students in the college. Her father is Superintendent of the Fi-Ro Machine & Welding Company of Natchez, and Mr. and Mrs. Hughes own and operate a tourist motel here.

Pie a la Mode Is a Kitchen 'Sure Thing'

Tempting in any season: apple pie dished up with strawberry ice cream.

BY DOROTHY MADDOX

Apple pie a la mode delights the small fry, grown-ups and senior citizens alike. For any season, here's a new and lighter version.

It is very simple to make. A pastry mix and coconut for the crust; ready-prepared apple sauce (can or jar) plus packaged lemon gelatin for the filling; and ice cream.

Apple Pie a la Mode (Serves eight)

One pastry stick, 1/4 cup shredded coconut, 1 package

lemon gelatin, 3/4 cup boiling water, 2 1/4 cups canned apple sauce, 1/4 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 pint strawberry ice cream, 1/4 cup toasted coconut.

Prepare pie crust from stick of pie crust mix according to directions on the package, but use 1/2 teaspoon more liquid. Mix in coconut. Roll out pastry on floured board or pastry cloth.

Fit into 9-inch pie plate. Flute, prick sides and bottom with fork. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 8 to 10 minutes. Cool. Dissolve lemon gelatin in boiling water. Add apple sauce and grated lemon rind; mix well. Chill until slightly thickened. Pour into baked pie shell.

Chill until firm. Just before serving, place ring of small ice cream balls around edge of filling and garnish each ball with toasted coconut.

Apple Ginger Dessert

Combine 1/4 cup chopped candied ginger with 2 cups canned apple sauce. Chill until very cold and serve with cream. Or use as a topping for vanilla ice cream.

The certificate was awarded under Texas' general sanitation law that municipal sewerage plants be under the supervision of an operator who has proved his knowledge of the job and its public health implications in a written examination and has been certified by the Texas State Department of Health.

Yates' newly won certificate will be valid for three years. After meeting certain other requirements he will be eligible to try for higher certification.

Grade C certification requires a minimum of one year of experience in sewerage plant operation, plus 40 credits earned by attendance at annual district and state water works short schools sponsored by the Texas State Department of Health, the engineering extension division of Texas A&M College, and the Texas Water and Sewage Works Association.

Overloaded Power Circuits Can Cause Trouble

COLLEGE STATION.—Electricity as a source of power is, in some ways, less hazardous than any other power source, but failure to take proper precautions in its use creates conditions which are certain to result in bodily harm or damage to property, or both.

Overloading an electrical circuit is an example of improper use. Not only is there a drop in efficiency as a result of an overloaded circuit, but it is unsafe, warns the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council. Overloading causes overheating of wires which, in turn, causes the wiring insulation to dry out, get brittle, and result in a possible fire hazard.

If the correct size fuse for the circuit is used it cannot be overloaded, because it will blow before the wiring gets too hot. The fuse is the "safety valve" of the electrical circuit, the Council explains.

In order to determine the correct size of fuse, a simple guide to follow is: No. 14 wire, which is about the size of a 3-penny finishing nail, requires a 15 amp. fuse; No. 12 wire, about the size of a 3-penny common nail, requires a 20 amp. fuse. In other words, the wire size determines the correct fuse size.

Observe the three Cs—caution, care, and common sense—to prevent overloaded electrical circuits, the Council adds.

Former Resident Has Heart Attack

Mr. and Mrs. Riley Dunson and Mrs. C. C. Taylor were called to Bovina Saturday to be with their brother, Bill Moore who suffered a heart attack. Mrs. Dunson said Monday that he was taken off the critical list but was still not out of danger.

Mr. Moore stayed here with his sisters when he worked as supervisor on the Salt Fork road.

Missionary Society Sews for School

Members of the Missionary Society of the Nazarene Church met Tuesday, Feb. 23, for an all day meeting at the church. A covered dish luncheon was served at noon.

During the day members sewed for one of the Bible schools sponsored by that church in Africa.

Mrs. Merritt James is chairman of the group and Mrs. George Scott is vice chairman.

Brother of Mrs. T. Hays Killed

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Hays were called to Houston by the death of her brother, Walter R. Jones, 21, who was accidentally shot to death Thursday night, Feb. 25.

Jones was killed by a pistol shot fired through an apartment wall while he ate supper.

Police said a .22 calibre bullet struck him in the chest. They released on his own recognizance a neighbor, Bobby Jackson, 23, who told officers in a written statement, that his pistol discharged while he was placing it back in its holster during a "fast draw" practice.

Jones only recently was released from the Navy.

McDaniels to Spring Training

Lindy McDaniel left recently for St. Petersburg, Fla., to warm up in spring training with the St. Louis Cardinals, in preparation for his fifth season with that club.

Von McDaniel was due to leave for camp in the immediate future.

Scouts for several ball clubs are keeping an eye out for the third McDaniel brother, Kerry Don, better known as Butch, currently pitching for the Arnett high school team.

Superintendent Ross Cox received a long distance call from a scout of the Detroit Tigers, who is planning to come to Arnett to see Butch in action.

Cox is credited with calling the attention of the Cardinal scouts to the two older McDaniel brothers during their high school careers at Arnett.

During the fall and winter, Lindy and his family were at Dodson, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Newell McDaniel live, while Von attended the fall semester of Southwestern State College, Weatherford, Okla.

Mrs. Eva Cornelius is spending two months with relatives on the West Coast. At Alto Loma, Calif., she is visiting her son, Manson Cornelius, and from there she will go to Oregon to visit her daughter.

Cotton Fertilizer

Results of On-the-Farm Tests Tabulated for Three-County Area

An investment of $4.76 per acre for fertilizer increased the per acre income $54.08 in one of the cotton fertilizer tests carried out this year in the Northwest Texas Research Demonstration program in this county.

Dwaine Scott, farm demonstration assistant, has compiled the results of this year's tests in the three-county area, and these are being made available.

The program, as in the past, was carried out through the co-operation of the Extension Service and Texas Experiment Station. It covers three counties, Collingsworth, Wheeler and Hall, with the county agents working with the program.

The cotton fertilizer experiment was on the N. E. Childers farm at Marella, using western Stormproof cotton, planted June 3 and pulled by hand November 23. All yields have been worked out on the per-acre basis, and there were six plots using varying rates of fertilizer, plus a check plot which was not fertilized.

On the top yielding plot, which produced at the rate of 400 pounds of lint per acre, 30-31-0 fertilizer was used, put on at the rate of 45 pounds of triple superphosphate before planting and 35 pounds of anhydrous ammonia at squaring time. The gross income per acre was $128.80, and net income of $91.86, with $4.76 being spent for fertilizer and $32.18 for harvesting.

There was a net income of $86.32 on the 389 pounds of lint cotton grown on plot 2. The fertilizer used was 32-32-0, put on at the rate of 215 pounds of 15-15-0 and costing $7.63. The gross income was $125.25, and harvest cost was $31.30.

On the third plot, the yield was 302 pounds per acre, with a net income of $66.61. This was obtained by using 20-20-10 as the fertilizer, made up of 200 pounds of 10-10-5 before planting, and three to four inches under the seed. The gross earnings were $97.24, and expenses were $6.40 for fertilizer and $24.32 for harvesting.

Plot 4 yielded 275 pounds of cotton per acre, for a net profit of $61.77. The fertilizer, 20-20-0, was made up of 100 pounds of 16-20-0, plus 10 pounds of ammonium nitrate put on together before planting. The gross income was $88.55, and expenses were $4.68 for fertilizer and $22.10 for harvesting.

The yield was 270 pounds of lint per acre, with a profit of $62.89 on plot 5. Sixty pounds of ammonium nitrate was used as fertilizer, at a cost of $2.38. The gross income was $86.94 and the harvesting cost $22.67.

On the last plot, where 13-13-0 was used to fertilize, the gross income was $82.42, and the net $60.28. Costs were $1.50 for fertilizer and $20.59 harvesting.

Only 150 pounds of cotton was gathered from the check plot, giving a gross income of $49.80 and harvest cost of $12.02, and net income of $37.78.

"These results compare favorably with those of the fertilizer test program of the Chillicothe Experiment Station's 5-year program, even during the dry years," County Agent Bob Lynch said.

"This test was on deep sand, and the results would not have been the same on tighter land.

"We started with a soil test, and I think a soil test is where a person should start when they plan a fertilizer program, for the rates of fertilizer are based on this test. "If a person has a limited amount of operating capital, our tests show, and borne out by Chillicothe, that the best investment is in nitrogen fertilizer, for $1.50 worth of fertilizer got 100 pounds increase in cotton," Lynch continued.

Courtesy Has Important Role in Traffic

AUSTIN.—"I cannot think of any activity in which common courtesy plays a more important role than it does in traffic."

This statement was made recently by J. O. Musick, general manager of the Texas Safety Association, as he discussed safety in driving.

"It never ceases to amaze me," Musick said, "how frequently serious accidents could have been avoided if only the driver had exercised the same degree of courtesy in driving that he uses in other dealings with his fellow man."

"Few persons will barge ahead of their neighbor in going through a door, still fewer will bowl their guests out of the way in order to get to a comfortable chair. Yet, these same kinds of discourtesies and more are common on our streets and highways."

The safety expert cited the following six courteous driving actions that "... will do much to increase the degree of safety for every motorist."

1. Use hand or light signals before making a turn or changing lanes of traffic. Don't be secretive about what you intend to do, because sudden, unexpected moves can easily lead to rumpled fenders or worse.

2. Just as you need to signal before turning, so, too, you should warn the car behind you before stopping. Tap your brakes several times before stopping, the flashing tail light will alert others.

3. When in doubt ... yield. Don't worry about who has the right-of-way, if there is any question about it, let the other fellow go first. Remember, it is easier to prevent an accident than to report one.

4. Yield, also, for pedestrians. They may be wrong, but they don't deserve to die for their mistake. Too, just as often as not the pedestrian will have the right of way—if you doubt this, just ask one of your lawyer friends.

5. Dim your lights. All of us have experienced the aggravation of meeting an oncoming car (or having one behind us) in which the driver refused to dim his lights. This is not only discourteous, but extremely dangerous.

6. Be especially patient when in heavy traffic. Weaving in and out and tooting your horn only jangles the nerves of other motorists. You may get by with such action for a while, but it is inevitable that sooner or later you will lose all the time you ever saved, in a single accident.

"Most discourteous acts are violations of the law," Musick pointed out, "but just as importantly, it is a moral law that we are responsible for his safety as well as our own."

Mrs. Joe Lindsey and children, Vickie and Roger Carol, of Hereford are here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Warrick. They will remain about a week.

George Roberts

Rolla Farmer Leads in Wildlife Care

Nature has a way of taking care of her own wildlife, but man can supplement this with help of his own.

As the farmer who has done the most in conserving wildlife, and who has gone about promoting the idea of wildlife propagation, George L. Roberts was chosen by Salt Fork Soil Conservation District No. 133 as its nominee in that division of the Save the Soil and Save Texas Awards Program.

Mr. Roberts' program is simple but it is effective. He believes any farmer or rancher can carry it out with the same successful results he has had.

Quail are the major game bird in Salt Fork SCD.

"It takes just three things to raise quail," Roberts says, "food, water and shelter—those are the main things."

"If it gets dry and hot, water them. If I think it is a little too far for my quail to go for water, I put some under a bush. None has to go over a quarter of a mile, and they are fed around where I water if they need feed."

Mr. Roberts splits old tires in half for troughs, so he has no expense involved.

"Always plant some extra cover," he urges. He plants wheat in sorghum alnum for fine cover as well as food. Since this is a soil building crop, he picks a time to plow it under when quail are not depending on it for food.

In addition he has 40 acres of sorghum alnum he left standing for the quail.

Other crops also provide feed for his birds, 75 acres of cane and along with German millet and red ripper peas. Quail like all of them.

The quail get water at 5 ponds, in addition to that he puts out for them.

Roberts lives in a stock farming area bordering on a ranching section of Salt Fork SCD, so predators are more common than in the more heavily populated parts. With dogs and gun, he keeps down bobcats, skunks and stray house cats. He is firm in his opinion that one of man's favorite pets is also one of the quail's worst enemies.

As for chaparral—

"We've had lots of arguments about that. You learn a little more every year, but I believe chaparral kill lots of young birds and break up lots of nests."

Mr. Roberts has carried on a restocking program for several years, hatching young birds each year. He started with 12 Bobwhites and 12 blue quail.

He does not release his young birds until spring, although the state game department usually releases them in the fall, he says.

Mr. Roberts believes that this forces the birds to go through the hardest part of the winter on their own when predators are hungriest and on the prowl. He prefers to release his in the spring, taking care of them until about the time they start laying there are fewer losses, he says.

"I think that is the most important thing in restocking quail," he commented recently.

Mr. Roberts has brought in pheasants and released them.

"Pheasants do good, except we need more people in the business. They scatter badly, and one man can't stock a whole county," he declared.

Although there are a few deer in Salt Fork SCD, none are found in the southwestern part, where Mr. Roberts lives. Both blue quail and bobwhites are found.

Mr. Roberts has been interested in improving wildlife conditions since he bought his farm in 1939. At that time, he estimates there were not more than six quail on his section and a half of land. At the end of the quail season this winter, he believes at least 1,000 birds were left.

The Quail Game Association, of which Mr. Roberts was one of the organizers and a present director, is credited by sportsmen and others as being one of the most effective in the area.

AFGHAN BOOTEES—Christina Simpson takes good care of her pet's tender tootsies with this pair of warm knitted bootees. The Afghan hound, Achmed of Chetmill, is competing in the London dog show.

"I just started talking among my neighbors and other farmers," he recalls. This association controls hunting through the issuance of permits by the individual landowners and encourages the propagation of game birds by means of increased cover and food.

Mr. Roberts has been a co-operator of Salt Fork SCD since 1951 and his overall conservation program is as well-rounded as is his program of wildlife conservation. But few men have lived in Salt Fork SCD who have worked as enthusiastically or as consistently for the improvement of the district's wildlife population as has George L. Roberts.

County Savings Bond Sales $7,737 During January

"Savings bond sales for January 1960 totaled $7,737," John Forbis, chairman of Collingsworth County Savings Bonds Committee reported today. "Our county has reached 6% of its 1960 goal of $130,000."

Sales in Texas for January were $16,587,766, which is 10% of the state goal.

Activity Light in Gas Field

Only two gas well completions were reported recently through the Pampa office of the Railroad Commission. These were:

EVERYONE RESPONSIBLE FOR SOIL CONSERVATION, SANFORD SAYS

Printed here is the essay which Bob Sanford of Wellington high school entered in the Annual Save the Soil and Save Texas essay contest. It was one of the county winners.

Conservation—Who Is Responsible?

Everyone sees the need for conservation. Why not do something about it? Early settlers cared little about conserving the natural resources. The land was cropped year after year, using up the fertility.

As Americans, we must pledge to defend from waste, to work for wise use and good management of our resources, which include soil, forests, wildlife and water.

Conservation is the concern of everyone, everywhere. The banker, the businessman, and the farmer have something to do with conservation. So do radio, television and newspapers in helping sell a conservation program.

Every farmer, every Future Farmer has an opportunity to take part in advancing the cause of conservation. He can achieve this by improving the productivity of his soils and wildlife.

Every man is entrusted with the management of his own land. Whether he be landowner, tenant, or a laborer in the field, he is using God's land. The land was put here not just to fill the needs of one generation, but to last for generations to come. Those lovers of their native land will work toward this goal. We can make a start by building up the fertility of our soils and improving our health by raising the nutritional values of foods grown on more fertile soil.

It is the farmer's responsibility to save the soil, the banker's responsibility to help promote new ideas, and our responsibility is to put and keep our soils in such a condition that they will maintain a self-supporting agriculture, capable of feeding and clothing our ever-increasing population.

There is no better description of our great land than the first verse of "America the Beautiful." If it were not for conservation, our purple mountain majesties would not look down upon amber waves of grain and fruited plain.

Gov. Daniel to Be in Shamrock

Texas Governor Price Daniel has accepted an invitation to be guest speaker at the St. Patrick's Kick-off Banquet to be held at the National Guard Armory in Shamrock Wednesday evening, March 16.

The governor will address the annual banquet on the eve of the Irish Festival, and the following morning will be introduced on the sound stage, corner of Main and Second streets, to the thousands of St. Patrick's Day visitors.

It will be the first time a governor has visited the Irish Celebration. His acceptance touched off a move to invite the governors of neighboring states to attend and participate in the March 17 festivities along with him. The governors of seven states: Missouri, Oklahoma, Colorado, Kansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, and Arkansas, have been invited. Governors who attend from other states will select Miss Irish Rose. Some will participate in other ways.

Mrs. Cameron Beam and Mr. and Mrs. James Sullivan attended the gift show and furniture market in Dallas last week.

Cameron Beam attended a managers' meeting in Abilene on Friday and Saturday.

Rockettes Lose Bi-District to Anson 45-39

The Wellington Rockettes lost their bi-district game to the Anson Tigerettes by six points, 45 to 39, at Vernon Tuesday night, March 1.

Supt. Bennett Goodloe described the game as "really a good one."

The Rockettes tied their opponents twice and led them once, then in the last quarter Anson made two shots that gave them most of their lead.

A complete story of the game will be carried next week.

Although roads were icy, the trip to Vernon was made without incident for the Wellington delegation. Car trouble developed for Coach E. W. Clement, however, and he had to remain in Quannah overnight.

Choice B Cotton Sign-up Reported

Through Feb. 19, farm operators in Collingsworth County had elected the Choice B program for the 1960 upland cotton crop on seven farms, Millard P. Brown, office manager of the Collingsworth County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office has announced.

This is the first report on the Choice B sign-up for the 1960 upland cotton crop. Preliminary reports will continue to be made at approximately two week intervals until the March 16 deadline for electing the Choice B program. The final report will be made after the sign-up is complete.

In Collingsworth county, the Choice B elections registered thus far have increased cotton allotments for these farms by 189.9 acres. The Collingsworth county Choice B allotment, before any increases resulting from Choice B elections totals 62,984.1 acres.

Brown explained that the Choice B allotment for a farm is 40 per cent larger than the farm's Choice A allotment, but the crop raised on it will be eligible for price support averaging 23.18 cents per pound compared with the Choice A average support of 28.97 cents. Notice of both allotments and of the support available under each choice has previously been furnished to all cotton farm operators in the county.

A similar program was in effect for the 1959 upland cotton crop. If a farm operator does not notify the County ASC office by March 16 that he wishes to elect the farm's Choice B allotment, the Choice A allotment will automatically apply on the farm for 1960.

Red Fakery Exposed

Lloyd Mallan, noted American science writer who spent three months in Russia investigating the scientific progress of the Soviets, believes they are far, far behind the United States in missile and air power development, in space medicine and other fields of scientific research. This is contrary to the belief of key officials of our government, including President Eisenhower. Who is right and who is wrong about this important question?

After careful reading of Mr. Mallan's book—Russia and The Big Red Lie—and an examination of other available information, one fact seems to stand out and it is this: All of the information which seems to confirm the latest reported achievements of Russia, particularly the Moon shots, either comes directly from the Communists themselves or is based on information released by them. In other words, no scientist or tracking station in the free world can make the unqualified statement that Luniks I, II and III actually were launched and did what the Russians claim they did. On the other hand, a great mass of evidence seems to indicate that most of the Russian claims are false.

Annual Meeting of Memphis PCA Saturday

Local stockholders of the Memphis Production Credit Association will attend the annual stockholders meeting at Memphis Saturday, March 5, according to Herbert Bearden, manager of the Wellington office.

The guest speaker will be Dr. Virgil P. Lee, former president of the Production Credit Corporation, Houston, and a leader in the field of agricultural credit. He was active during the organizational of PCA in Texas.

Officers will give reports and directors will be elected.

A barbecue luncheon will be served to all attending, Bearden said.

A large number of local farmers and ranchers are stockholders in the Memphis PCA, Bearden said, and two men, L. M. Bartlett and J. C. Emmert are directors.

Gary W. Duncan Critically Ill

Gary Wayne Duncan, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Duncan of Highland, has been critically ill in the hospital at Sweetwater.

He is reported to be improving at this time, however he will remain in the hospital for several more days.

Members of the family here who have been at his bedside are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomason and Vivian, and Mrs. A. L. Duncan.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Duncan are former Wellington residents, and she will be remembered as the former Renee Thomason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomason, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Duncan. He is now ag instructor of Highland high school.

Science Club Visits Hospital

The Wellington Junior High Science Club visited St. Joseph's Hospital for its recent meeting.

Sister Mary Rupert, administrator, described the hospital organization and took the group on a tour of the hospital.

Refreshments were served by members of the Hospital Auxiliary.

Program arrangements were directed by Beverly Singley and Almeta Owens.

Twenty-one members and their sponsor, Mrs. Jack Davis, attended.

Boys Rancher Has Prize Hogs

Bobby South, formerly of Alanreed, and now making his home at Cal Farley's famous Boys Ranch near Amarillo, recently had the great thrill of showing his registered Berkshire hogs at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas.

Bobby has always been interested in livestock and in addition to his regular class studies in the Boys Ranch school, he is studying vocational agriculture and animal husbandry and is a member of the Ranch FFA chapter.

As part of his vocational training, Bobby is responsible for raising at least one animal. He wanted to raise a calf as well as hogs but lack of space and facilities at the present time and the large number of boys in the livestock program prevented him from doing so.

Bobby shows much promise in his chosen vocation and he hopes some day to have a farm or ranch of his own.

entific research. This is contrary to the belief of key officials of our government, including President Eisenhower. Who is right and who is wrong about this important question?

After careful reading of Mr. Mallan's book—Russia and The Big Red Lie—and an examination of other available information, one fact seems to stand out and it is this: All of the information which seems to confirm the latest reported achievements of Russia, particularly the Moon shots, either comes directly from the Communists themselves or is based on information released by them. In other words, no scientist or tracking station in the free world can make the unqualified statement that Luniks I, II and III actually were launched and did what the Russians claim they did. On the other hand, a great mass of evidence seems to indicate that most of the Russian claims are false.

Important Question

Because of their importance to the world, the true facts about the Soviet's scientific progress should be obtained and given to the American people. We can't afford to just accept, without absolute proof, the continuing reports of sensational scientific achievement by Soviet Russia. Mr. Mallan in the USSR found evidence which forced him to conclude that the Communists are from 20 to 50 years behind the United States in really important scientific technology. He found the Soviets have been crudely copying American scientific developments—our electronic equipment, our pace-setting commercial and military aircraft, our automobiles. But even their copies are of now outmoded American equipment.

He found, and he printed in his book, examples of how the Communists have faked photographs and drawings of American equipment in an attempt to "further the myth" of Soviet superiority. In fact, while in Russia, Mr. Mallan found a photograph in the Russian science publication Znanie-Sila which he himself had made in the U. S. White Sands Proving Ground in New Mexico—a photo of a radar-optical tracking device. The Communists were using it as a photograph of one of their own scientific developments—a blatant deception!

Faking Always

When I read Mr. Mallan's report on this faking, it reminded me of the tall, gleaming white buildings along Stalinallee in Soviet East Berlin. They too are fakes. For nearly a mile, the 12-story white brick fronts form a splendid-looking avenue. But when you walk around behind them you find they are false fronts, exactly like a movie set. Many have floors and rooms but they are constructed cheaply and the sandy concrete is crumbling and cracking.

Stretching out behind them are the pitiful crumbling slum dwellings which characterize nearly the whole of Communist East Berlin. Communism has been built upon fakery and deception.

Mr. Mallan, recognized in America as one of the world's top science journalists, says that the Russians have no modern guidance equipment for space vehicles comparable to ours in the U.S. He believes their vaunted rocket thrust power comes not from a single missile but from several strapped together in a bundle.

Soviets Inferior?

He accepts the Russians' sputniks as real but says they were merely thrown up into space by clustered, multiple rocket power—and all in the same general orbit and without guidance equipment. He says the U.S. could have done this long before the Soviets did. Even President Eisenhower, when the first sputnik was launched, said the U.S. could do it. But because Russia claimed to have done it with a single missile, the U.S. has stuck to single rocket projection.

Lloyd Mallan went to Russia believing in their scientific superiority. But in everything he investigated, he found them extremely inferior. Khrushchev, for instance, has boasted that the Communist education system was far ahead of the American system—and many have accepted this. "I examined the Soviet education close-up," says Mr. Mallan. "It doesn't begin to match what we have in America . . . Certainly Soviet schools are mass-producing technically-trained youngsters—maybe more of them than our schools are. But few of these Soviet graduates are true engineers. They're textbook mechanics. They've been taught to tinker, not to create."

This whole question of Confirmation of Russian Claims should be investigated by Congress, carefully, thoroughly and with competent assistance.

FFA Creed Points to Self Reliance

I believe in the future of farming, with a faith born not of words but of deeds—achievements won by the present and past generations of farmers; in the promise of better days through better ways, even as the better things we now enjoy have come up to us from the struggles of former years.

I believe that to live and work on a good farm is pleasant as well as challenging; for I know the joys and discomforts of farm life and hold an inborn fondness for those associations which, even in hours of discouragement, I cannot deny.

I believe in leadership from ourselves and respect from others. I believe in my own ability to work efficiently and think clearly, with such knowledge and skill as I can secure, and in the ability of organized farmers to serve our own and the public interest in marketing the product of our toil. I believe we can safeguard those rights against practices and policies that are unfair.

I believe in less dependence on begging and more power in bargaining; in the life abundant and enough honest wealth to help make it so—for others as well as myself; in less need for charity and more of it when needed; in being happy myself and playing square with those whose happiness depends upon me.

I believe that rural America can and will hold true to the best traditions in our national life and that I can exert an influence in my home and community which will stand solid for my part in that inspiring task.

Church Turns Attention to City Planning

Emphasizing the great changes in the pattern of health, education and welfare services in the United States during the past 25 years, Dean John McDowell, of Boston University's School of Social Work, notes that a more recently recognized need is for professional help in the development of effective community life.

"Increasingly, city and regional planning agencies are recognizing that people must be planned with as well as planned for," said Dean McDowell. "Millions of people feel like unwilling victims to change over which they think they have little or no control, but Americans everywhere can become participants in changing American cities."

"City planners are coming more and more to recognize that people must be involved in making plans if they are expected to make use of the results. In these days of very complicated social organization, the commandment 'Love thy neighbor as thyself' may be obeyed not only through giving a cup of cold water to a thirsty one, but through participating in a citizens committee workshop with a redevelopment project, or in a committee of a health and welfare council. The cup of water now is given through the institutions and agencies which you support with your contributions of money and time."
