HUTCHINSON ELECTION CARRIES

LINDBERGH WELCOMED HOME AS 'ILLUSTROUS CITIZEN AND ONE WHO SCORNED SELF ACCLAIM'

President Commends Refusal of Hero To Become Commercialized and Lauds Him As Conqueror of the Air.

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Lindbergh the Conqueror came back to his native shores today amid such welcome as few returning heroes had received before him.

From the moment the cruiser bringing him home came to her berth in the navy yards swarming thousands surged against the tightly drawn police lines joyously acclaiming the smiling pilot.

Keeping close to her schedule, the Memphis and her distinguished passenger came alongside the pier at 11 o'clock. Dressed in civilian clothes, Lindbergh stood on the bridge and surveyed the crowd without giving any sign. Then a cheer went up and the flier waved his hand in response.

The aviator was first greeted by his mother aboard the Memphis, then the trip to Washington monument was started, when the hero was welcomed by President Coolidge on behalf of the nation.

Secretary of War Davis handed the cross to the president, who pinned it—the first of its kind—to the lapel of the world's hero below the French Legion of Honor decoration.

The crowd cheered. When it had quieted, he said:

"At every meeting I attended in Europe they told me: 'You have seen the affection of the people of Europe for the people of America. On your return to your country take back our message' I thank you."

That was all.

Then President and Mrs. Coolidge took Lindbergh and his mother to be the White House guests while in Washington.

WASHINGTON, June11.—A batch of 52,000 telegrams addressed to Lindbergh in care of President Coolidge were delivered to the White House today in one load.

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Col. Charles Lindbergh was welcomed home today by President Coolidge as an "illustrous citizen of our Republic, a conqueror of the air, and a strengthener of the ties which bind us to our sister nations across the sea".

Concluding the brief address of welcome, the president bestowed upon the aviator the distinguished flying cross as a symbol of appreciation for what he is and what he has done.

Praising the young airman's conduct abroad where he was acclaimed by kings and rulers, the president declared "the absence of self acclaim and the refusal to become commercialized, which marked the conduct of this sincere and genuine exempler of fine and noble virtues, has endeared him to everyone."

"He has returned unspoiled," the

"Give me that money in your hip pocket" was the demand of a hijacker, Friday night about 11 o'clock to Arbie Miller, who with his brother, Earle, operates the Dixie service station on West Foster avenue.

Miller had just taken the money from the cash register, placed it in his pocket and climbed into his car to go home when a car containing three men drove into the station. They turned off the lights of their car and two of the men got out and walked over to Miller's car. Then one drew a pistol and turned a flashlight on him.

The men took the tire patch can containing the money and sorted about $20 in bills from the checks, which they returned to the owner. with the pistol still covering Miller, the men got into their car and drove toward Amarillo. In the excitement, Miller did not notice the make of the car, but said it was a high powered coupe or roadster.

The man who held the gun was tall and slim and his confederate was short and stout. Miller could not see the third man nor the car on account of the rays from the flashlight, which blinded him for a minute after the car had driven away.

Officers of the sheriff's department were soon on the scene, but no trace of the bandits could be found. The officers believe the men had their car parked across from the service station and had watched young Miller count the cash.

ROAD BUILDING PROGRAM WILL COVER COUNTY

Borger and Stinnett Give Issue Large Majorities

MAIN STREET TO BE PAVED

C. of C. and Clubs Get Out Big Vote in Oil Field

BORGER, June 11.—Passage of Hutchinson county's mammoth road building election, authorizing the isuance of $1,250,000 in bonds has been conceded tonight.

With only two small boxes to be heard from, the vote stands 753 for the issue and 163 against it. The small precincts, Holt and Spring Lake, would have to go unanimously against the issue with 200 votes to defeat it, and this is regarded as impossible.

By boxes, the vote is as follows:
Borger, 662 for and 38 against.
Stinnett, 59 for and 12 against.
Pantex, 15 for and 1 against.
Plemons, 8 for and 69 against.
Leib, 9 for and 46 against.

The issue was submitted to the people several months ago, and lacked the necessary two-thirds majority by 23 votes. Borger voted 233 to 3 for the bonds, and Stinnett 23 to 20 for them, but unfavorable votes in other parts of the county defeated the issue.

For yesterday's vote the Chamber of Commerce and other agencies made a determined effort to enlarge Borger's vote and obtain favorable action in the community about the city. It was estimated that Borger had about 1,000 citizens qualified to vote. Property owneds are becoming eligible to vote at the rate of about 50 a day, and their term of residence passes the required time.

The polls opened at 8 a. m. and remained open until 7 p. m. The American Legion, through Dr. H. H. Crosby, acting commander, went on record favoring the issue and sent out cars to bring people to the polling places. The Lions club discussed the project this week at its meeting, and its members as individuals worked in its interest.

The paving schedule was arranged to include Borger's Main street as a part of the state highway.

Mayor Reid commended the builders and operators for the wonderful expression of their faith in Pampa, and welcomed the many visitors.

Regular meals, family style, will be served hereafter and for the present the old building will be closed.

HOT WEATHER COLD FOODS

DENTON, Texas, June 11.—In hot weather cold foods are very welcome. Frozen salads and desserts are very refreshing at this time and furnish a nutritious as well as an appetizing food. These suggestions were prepared by an expert in the household department in the College of Industrial Arts. Ice cream is only one of the possibilities along this line. Frozen fruit juices are known as ices. Frozen milk with fruit juice as the flavor is called sherbet. Frozen cream is called ice cream. Ices and sherbets form a very pleasing variety and should be used more than most homes use them. This is an excellent way to use milk and fruit in the diet, and when given in this form it is very pleasing to every one. Chilled dessert such as baked custard, tapioca pudding, etc., can also replace the heavier desserts that are used in cold weather.

PARIS, June 11.—As the summer weather becomes a certainty these days, the grandes toilettes which make the Paris race courses famous for something other than races, appear. For French women go to the tracks as much to see the mode displayed as they do to see the horses run or to bet on the entries.

The most important dressmakers of Paris send mannequins attired in their newest race course models to the Auteuil and Longchamps courses. Earlier in the season sport clothes with appropriate wraps were worn, among them many serpent skin and serpent print fabrics. But dresses for the next races are of a summery style, and like the Ascot tracks of English society, run to lace and frills.

Salad Mixing Was Art 200 Years Ago

LONDON — Salad was "salet" when first it entered English homes more than two centuries ago. But it really wasn't much different from salads of today, although cooks of various lands prefer their own preparations.

John Evelyn laid down the law of salad exactly 220 years ago. An excerpt from the records of this famous dairist reads:

"Sallet is a pecular combination of certain crude and fresh herbs, such as usually are, or may be, eaten with acetous juice, oyl, salt, etc., to give them a grateful gust and vehicle."

Before Evelyn's time British cooks generally boiled their salad herbs. Evelyn drew a sharp distinction between hrbs should be cooked and those which should be eaten raw. He insisted that "sallet" should be mixed with the skill that a composer exerts in writing a symphony.

Montagne, Leading French Chef Remembers Good American Food

(By The Associated Press.)

PARIS—France's dictator of the dining table is Prosper Montagne of Paris. He is hailed by his country's chefs as their uncontested leader.

Montagne started as a poet. He still is a poet, but his meter is extended. His lyric sauces and epic dishes are the pride of the gourmets of Paris.

Montagne's small restaurant is the center of Paris looks more like a studio of an artist or writer than a commercial eating place. One goes there, not to order a meal, but "to dine with Monsieur Montagne."

He hails from Carcassonne, a medieval city in the south of France. Caught scribbling poetry in his attic bedroom, he was packed off to a school for cook's apprentices at Monte Carlo. There he awoke to the realization that a man could be an artist in sauces and spices.

During the war he helped maintain the morale of the poilus by assuring them good, hot food right up in the front line. November, 1918, found him in Chicago working out a system whereby meat wrapped in gelatine and cloth could be transported to Europe without losing any of its savor—thus effecting a double economy in the use of tin and in wear and tear on the soldierly appetite. The armistice robbed Montagne of his glory just as he had perfected his scheme.

Edward VII of England, Leopold II of Belgium, the dethroned King Manuel of Portugal and the Prince of Monaco are a few of the royal patrons her has served.

"American cooking has a great future before it," he says. "There is nothing in Europe to rival the steaks of Chicago, the Blue Point oysters of New York or the marvelous usages you make of corn. Believe me. I ate well when I was in the States."

However, the great chef shakes his head ruefully at the American dislike of garlic. For he is from southern France, where that pungent herb is essential to any cooking worthy of the name.

Carson County Has Better Wheat Than Formerly Estimated

PANHANDLE, June 11. —The Carson county wheat crop is turning out better than was at first expected. B. M. Hill, manager of the U. S. Shrader Grain company estimates the crop at 10 bushels to the acre.

The best yields are reported to be in the south part of the county and in the east between White Deer and Pampa. There are fields in those localities that will make 15 or 20 bushels to the acre, it is said. The crops close around Panhandle are almost a complete failure. Harvesting is getting under way in the county and throughout the Panhandle, reports indicate. The crop last year averaged about 30 bushels to the acre in this county. Approximately 500 cars of wheat was shipped from Panhandle. The acreage this year is larger than usual.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: Peter Delivered from Prison.

Scripture lesson: Acts 12:1-17.

5. Peter therefore was kept in the prison: but prayer was made earnestly of the church unto God for him.

6. And when Herod was about to bring him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers ,bound with two chains, and guards before the door kept the prison.

7. And behold, an angel of the Lord stood beside him, and a light shined in the cell; and he smote Peter on the side, and awoke him saying, Rise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands.

8. And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandles. And he did so. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee and follow me.

9 And he went out, and followed; and he knew not if it was true which was done by the angel, but thought he saw a vision.

10. And when they were past the first and the second guard, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth into the city; which opened to them of its own accord; and they went out, and passed on through one street; and straightway the angel departed from him.

11. And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a truth, that the Lord hath sent forth his angel and delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

12. And when he had considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary the mother of John whose surname was Mark; where many were gathered together and were praying.

13. And when he knocked at the door of the gate, a maid came to answer, named Rhoda.

14. And when she knew Peter's voice, she opened not the gate for joy, but ran in, and told that Peter stood before the gate.

Time: James executed, spring of A. D. 44. Peter imprisoned a few weeks later. Herod died early in the summer of the same year.

Place: Peter was probably imprisoned in the Tower of Antonia, adjoining the temple area in Jerusalem.

Golden Text: Many are the afflictions of the rightous: But Jehova delivereth him out of them all. Ps. 12:-1-17.

Introduction

'No record of human life is so full of dramatic situations as the Bible, because none is written with such insight into the eternal laws which govern it; and not even in the Bible itself is there a more dramatic situation that that which is set before us with the simplicity of perfect art in this chapter. The none too stable throne of Herod needed the prop of popularity; and popularity is almost always cheaply purchased by the persecution of the unpopular, by throwing a victim to perjudice and hate. And so, as we are told with tragic brevity, he 'killed James, the brother of John, with the sword,."

Herod The King v 1

This was the Herod known as Herod Agrippa I. He was the grandson of Herod the Great, and at this time had become king of Judea, his territory being as extensive as that of his grandfather. He was shrewd, tactful, far-seeing, ambitious, and entirely unscrupulous in advancing his selfish schemes.

James the Martyred Apostle v2

The first martyr among the Twelve Apostles, was the brother of the beloved John who outlived all the other apostles. The two were called Boanerges, Sons of Thunder, because of their fery zeal and burning eloquence. It is probable that the two were first cousins of Jesus. It was James, who (with John) sought Christ's promise that he should sit with him on his throne, and who boastfully declared that he could drink Christ's cup of sorrows (Mark 10:35-41). Little did he know in what terrible way he would be called upon to make good that boast.

It was the passover, and Herod intended to crown the feast with this signal proof of his zeal for the Jewish faith, the execution of the Christian leader. That Peter might be kept safely through the passover, he put him in charge of four quaternions of soldiers, a quaternion consisting of four soldiers. The four watches of the night and the four watches of the day, consisting of approximately three hours each, were assigned to these quaternions in turn, each quaternion thus being on guard twice during the twenty-four hours.

Earnest and United Prayer v 5

"What could the church do for the endangered apostle? They could pray. Thus they stirred themselves to take hold of God's strength; they invoked an aid far superior to that of mortal king. It is very probable that the execution of James followed so soon after his arrest that the opportunity for intercession was not afforded, since we have no mention of the church praying for him. But in Peter's case, God meant to deliver his servant, and therefore he gave the church time for prayer. Not only so, but he poured upon them the spirit of grace and of supplication.

Peter in Prison Securely Guarded v 6

"The same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains." Probably after the Roman fashion, he was chained to each soldier, so that he could not move to escape without waking them both. Peter had got out of jail once before in a mysterious fashion, and his enemies did not intend that it should happen again. "How well may Peter sleep when God is watching over his bed and preparing his awakening? How well may he sleep, be it in outward calm or storm, among friends or foes, who sleeps thus on the pillow of trust in God, whose resting-place is under the shadow of the Almighty!"

Peter Delivered By an Angel v 7

"And he smote Peter on the side, and wake him, saying, Rise up quickly." Peter was evidently sound asleep, not timidly half-awake. He enjoyed the deep slumber of a healthy, outdoor man, with a clear conscience and a profound trust. "And his chains fell off from his hands." Evidently his guards were wrapped in a stupor caused by the angel, or else they were motionless with terror, "as dead men", like the soldiers on guard at Christ's tomb when the angel appeared (Matt. 28:4). "And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me." The garment was the outer cloak; Peter had been sleeping in his inner garment, the tunic. The apostle's instinct would have let him to flee without his cloak, but he would need it in his coming journey.

Seeming Impossibilities Overcome v 16

"They came unto the iron gate that leadeth into the city." Probably a heavy wooden door plated with iron. The prison would seem to have been at the outer edge of Jerusalem, but still within the city, which would correspond to the Castle of Antonia. "How often we come to the iron gate. A difficulty intervenes, so formidable, so strange, so intractable that it seems to turn past experiences of grace into futility. But he who has delivered us in six troubles will deliver us in seven. The iron gate is not like an iron wall, and a gate is meant to let us out as well as to let is in." "Which opened to them of its own accord. Not, of course, that the door was endowed with human volition, but that it was opened by some supernatural asency unseen by Peter.

Mary, the Mother of Mark v 12

"He came to the house of Mary the mother of John whose surname was Mark." This was the writer of the Second Gospel, the young man who was Paul's attendant in his first missionary journey and who afterward became Peter's associate, writing his Gospel at Peter's dictation. Mary, his mother, was sister to the apostle, Barnabas, Pauls co-laborer in his lrst voyage. Mary and Barnabas seem to have been people of meang, and Mary's house in Jerusalem appears to have meen the chief gathering-place of the Christians, probably furnishing the upper room for the Last Supper.

An Unexpected Answer to Prayer vs. 14-15

"And they said unto her, Thou art mad." As we would say, "You're crazy!" "God answers to our prayers ought not to surprise us into incredulity. These momentous occurrences ought to be daily commonplaces in our lives. The responses of the Almighty should be grand familiarities. Why should we suppose the herald of the Almighty to be mad? God is good! God is faithful! It is the most natural of all things that the prison gates should open and the apostle be free." "And they said, It is his angel." The Jews believed that a guardian was assigned to watch every person; we get hints of this comforting belief in Heb. 1:14 and in Christ's words concerning little children and their angels. (Matt. 18-10.)

James the Brother of Jesus v 17

"And he said, Tell these things unto James and to the brethren." This James is, of course, not the apostle, the brother of John, who had suffered death by martyrdom. It is James, the oldest of our Lord's brothers, who was converted probably by seeing the risen Christ, and who became the head of the church in Jerusalem. He wrote the Epistle of James, whose earnest words concerning the power of prayer may have been inspired by this very occurrence. (See James 1:5,6; 5:16. He and the other brethren were absent from Jerusalem at the time or were in another prayer meeting.

The Terrible End of Herod

"In the short chapter before us, there is an account of the Angel of the Lord coming twice. once to deliver Peter, then to smite Herod." Balked in his design to curry favor with the Jews by slaying Peter, Herod went to the Roman capital, Caesarea, on the coast, where he assumed great splendor, sitting on his throne clad in gorgeous silver attire, making a pompous oration to the people, and hailed by the obsequious throng as a god and not a man. As a punishment God sent upon him a painful and loathsome malady by which, as Josephus records, he was carried off after five days of horrible torture.

"Fervent persevering prayers
Are faith's assured resource;
Brazen gates and iron bars
In vain withstand their force.
Peter when in prison cast.
Though by soldiers kept with care,
Though the doors were bolted fast,
Was soon released by prayer."
—John Newton.

FORWARD, PAMPA, SAYS CITY COUNCIL

Action of the city council assures Pampa of the possibility of carrying to completion a public improvement program vitally necessary in a city of this size.

The city engineer and council are to be commended for providing for a city-wide proposal which will be adequate for the present population, and, when necessary, may be extended and enlarged as the community grows.

By investing along the lines of sound engineering principles, the entire city can be connected with the sewer, whereas, under the present system, the elevation automatically isolates much of the city.

By including the warrant refunding in one bond issue, the city may make a good saving and simplicity procedure for the future.

The significant thing about the election proposal is that the bond issue will not raise the tax rate in Pampa. It will merely invest wisely the income which the growth of the city has brought to the citizenship. Pampa has enjoyed a phenomenal development, and while this has imposed difficulties, the expansion automatically cares for itself as the election notice will set forth.

The council also has found it possible to handle additional paving without waiting for a bond issue, and the paving crews will continue their important work. Pampa is prepared to take the longest step possible toward city betterment.

IN THE NEWS

Jim Ferguson, chief of Texas told-you-so-artists, says some cutting things about the special session of the Legislature. With Moody casting reflections upon that body and the people's representatives resenting it, Ferguson's opinion is of interest.

Said Jim: "In the closing hour it is remarkable to see a crowd, which heretofore has had everything its own way, to fall out among themselves and begin to call each other all kinds of names and even offer to throw the boxing mitt into the ring when they should be singing songs and wishing each other fond good byes as has been the custom of former Legislatures."

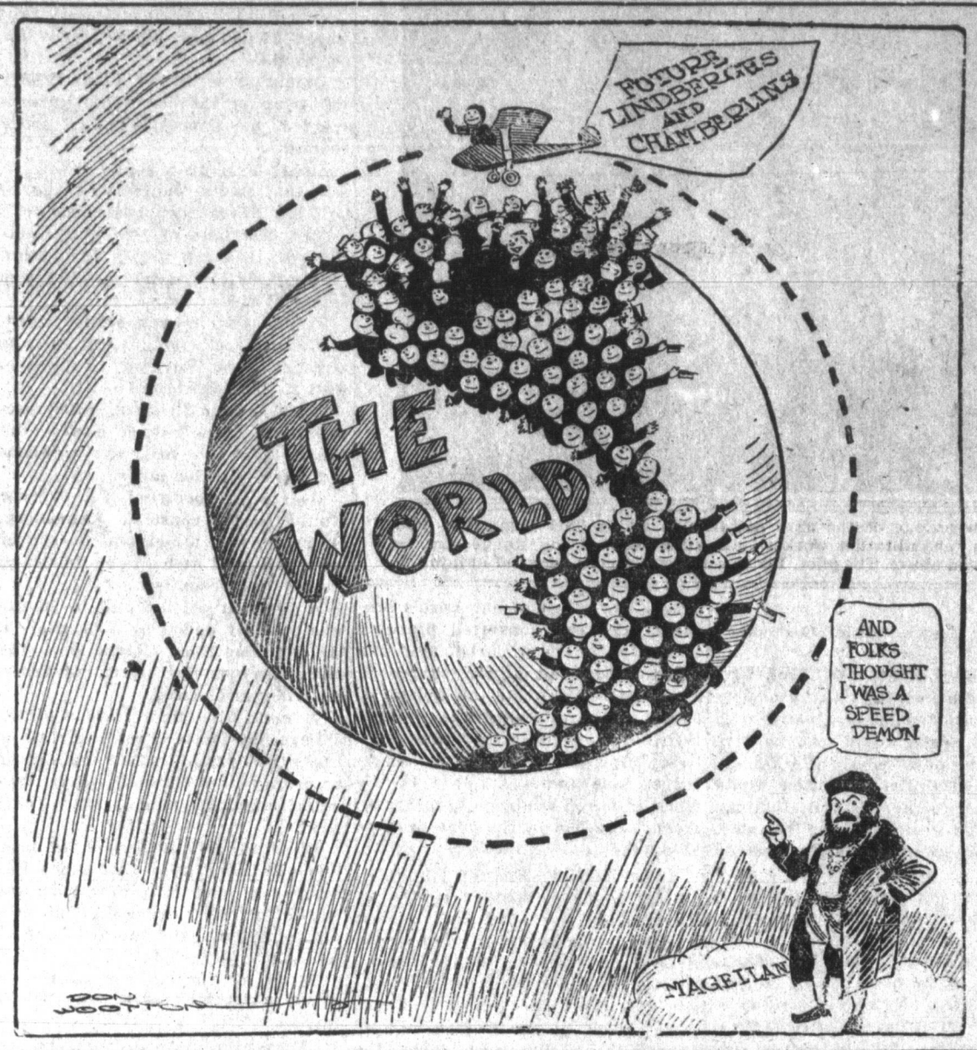

Yea, verily, but it is not in the nature of things to have harmony at the Texas capitol. It is possible to have harmony in opposite camps, but not in a single one. There is much sarcasm, and some truth, in Ferguson's biting close:

"I really do not think there has been so much cause for all this trouble between political brethren, and I attribute its occurence to the fact that there are so many conflicting ambitions among the members of the Legislature. It really pains me to see them back-biting each other and venting their political spleen upon anybody who appears to get in their way.

Farmers with a penchant for figures are startled to find that some years the hired man had the better job. Much of the trend toward labor saving devices may be attributed to this cause.

The significant point in the matter is that, in the face of rising living cost, the farm, even with big single crops, does not produce large enough income. Machinery costs much, and hogs, cows, chickens and other sources of income help to pay the installments, for which the one-crop system is ill adjusted.

It Won't Be Long Now

PRESS FORUM

Illuminating figures are quoted by an expert speaking before a gathering of experts having to do with one of the most important factors in our daily life. Scientific methods of purification of water supply have saved the lives of 600,000 persons in the United States. This information was imparted Wednesday by Abel Wolman, chief sanitary engineer of the state of Maryland, speaking before the American Waterworks association convention in Chicago.

An inkling of the results achieved by science in this respect is conveyed by comparison of the typhoid deaths since 1900. At the beginning of the century the death rate from this disease, which is principally due to affected water supply, was 40 per 100,000. In 1927 the rate had fallen to 5 per 100,000. Strict milk inspection and police control of known typhoid carriers also helped.

The science of bacteriology has saved many millions of lives in the world and has prolonged the lives of all of us. This is something to remember when misguided sentimentalists protest against laboratory experiments involving the use of live animals. For the whole germ theory upon which bacteriology is based humanity owes a debt to the scientists who discovered and developed it through vivisection and other animal experiments.—Star-Telegram.

Judge John W. Turner has not much respect for the fellow who doesn't like the Panhandle. John has lived here for 40 years because he likes the country and suggests that the fellow who doesn't like it can easily get away. We had a rather bad wind one Sunday a month ago. In fact, it looked like New Mexico was moving over in great chunks. John says that while we were having a little wind and dust that day, nine states were having cyclones. Panhandle folks had to claw the dust out of their eyes, but nearly a score of people were killed in other sections, and on the same day while people were being drowned in Mississippi valley states, others were frozen in the northwest. John says that in 40 years he has lived here, he has never seen any family which was willing to try that could not make a comfortable living. Of course there have been lean years, but what country is there on the fact of the globe which can raise as much wheat as there is in prospect for this year with less than two inches of rainfall since last fall. When you get discouraged with the Panhandle, it is refreshing to talk with some of the old timers like John Turner who really love the Panhandle.—Canyon News.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer.

Those who remember Lindbergh as a little fellow here recall that he was fully convinced of the saying that children should be seen and not heard.

The boy is older now, but he can be depended upon not to speak unless he is spoken to.

A lovely lady who knows Lindbergh and also knows John Coolidge, son of the President, says there is a certain similarity of modest bearing and honest countenance between the two boys which cannot fail to be noted by the Coolidges. This more or less intangible resemblance, she says, was even more marked in the case of Calvin Coolidge Jr., who died.

Everybody has heard stories of prohibition enforcers who have refused huge bribes. Here's a bigger and better one about the retiring boss enforcer, General Lincoln C. Andrews, which ought to be true, considering its source.

Not long after Andrews assumed office, a prominent gent called upon him, and after some hemming and hawing, pointed out that if a certain regulation could be interpreted in the right way, it would mean a great deal to his interests and might well mean something worth while to Andrews.

Andrews began to kid the gentleman. He pointed out that if he were to follow this suggestion he could not remain long in office afterward, that he probably would have to leave the country, and that it would require quite a little money to support himself, wife and children in the manner to which they had been accustomed.

The visitor returned several days later, according to the story, and made an offer which would have meant something in the millions for Andrews. The general exploded and the prominent gent did not tarry long.

Grand Jury Strikes at "Home Brew" Evil in County

18 INDICTMENT BILLS FOUND

Attorney Is Asked To Require Depository Reports

Recommendations that officers make every effort to stamp out the 'home brew" evil in Gray county, and that the county attorney remedy the negligence of the commissioners in not requiring the county depository to make proper reports and give bond, are major points in the final report of the grand jury, submitted yesterday to Judge N. P. Willis.

School trustees complained that funds due from the state are being withheld on acount of the failure to submit certain reports.

General law enforcement conditions are said to be good.

The report:

To the Honorable Newton P. Willis, Judge of the 84th Judicial District Court of Gray County, Texas:

We, the Grand Jury of the 84th Judicial district court of Gray county, Texas, duly convened for the June term of said Court beg to submit to your honor the following final report:

We have returned eighteen true bills of indictment in felony cases to your court, among them being violation of the prohibition laws, forgery, robbery with fire arms, burglary, and other miscellaneous offences of felony grade. In passing upon these matters, we have extended our best efforts to arrive at the true facts in each case, and at all times have strived to return bills of indictment where the evidence warranted same. It has not been our intention or desire to place the stigma of indictment gainst the record of any person unless, from the evidence presented to us, we conscientiously felt that the laws of this State had been violated.

At the time we were empaneled the Honorable Clint C. Small was presiding over your court and in his opening instruction to us he mentioned, among the many law violations that of the prohibition law, be it manufacturing, sale or possession of which is commonly known as "home brew". In every case of this connection presented to us. we have endeavored to cooperate with our officers in returning bills of indictment against law offenders of this line where, from the evidence presented, we believe a conviction could be had. Though we realize that it is more difficult to obtain convictions in these cases we especially suggest and recommend that our law enforcement officials use all lawful means and methods to stamp out this particular character of law violation.

We wish to comment and we heartily approve of the manner in which our sheriff, E. S. Graves ,and his department has handled his office We realize he has been exceedingly efficient and the good work he and his deputies have performed reveals to us the paramount reason for law enforcement in this county.

We find much complaint from school trustees of different districts over the county to the effect that funds due the common school districts are being withheld by the state because of the fact that the county depository has not made out certain reports required by law and has not made a proper bond, we further find that our county commissioners have been negligent in not requiring this report and bond, and we suggest that our county attorney make a careful investigation of this matter and take such steps as are necessary to bring about a proper and hastey remedy in regard to the school and county funds.

Rumors have reached us relative to county and city peace officers accepting money from law violators to give them immunity from the law. All these rumors seem to be unfounded.

We wish to thank you and the Honorable Clint C. Small for the cooperation and assistance you have rendered us during our recent session.

Without elaborating in detail, we desire to state that lawlessness is reduced to a minimum in Gray county. We know full well that there will always be law violation in every community, and the time will never come when the law will be enforced as to every person everywhere. Our county is now in the center of a great oil field. We are a fast and rapid community; naturally there will be a great influx of inhabitants, and with such there will be a lawless element. From our investigations during the last 5 days we feel convinced our officers have done their duty, that the county is in the hands of safe, sane, honest, and courageous officials, and that law violators will be apprehended and brought before the bar of justice as great a per cent as humanly possible.

With this report we request your Honor to discharge us finally for the term.

Respectfully submitted,
I. B. Hughey, foreman.

DEFRAY EDUCATION COST BY CARRYING CASKETS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal. (AP)—Professional pallbearing is the latest way of earning money adopted by Stanford students. Discovering that Palo Alto undertakers frequently had to furnish pallbearers for funerals of persons without nearby friends, a few enterprising undergraduates applied for and got steady jobs.

Pay is good, being $2.50 a trip to the hearse from the undertaking rooms. Work is easy, seldom consisting of more than carrying the casket out to the hearse, and the hours are short, usually ten minutes for a funeral.

Occasional singing is required and for this an additional dollar is added to the pay check.

Rules are few, consisting chiefly of "Don't smile while carrying the casket." It is seldom a trip to the cemetery is required, but if it is required extra pay is added.

N. Y. Giants and Pirates Have Most Big-Ten Sluggers

HITTING SHOWS EVEN TREND

New Faces Appear Among Leaders In American

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP)—The New York Giants and Pittsburgh have almost a monoply of the list of ten leading hitters now. The stickworth of Freddie Lindstrom, young Giant third sacker, moved him up to the top to complete the four man wrecking crew of McGraw and match the four Pirates who have been hovering around the leadership for several weeks. In averages compiled today, including games of Wednesday, McGraw has Farrell, Harper, Hornsby and Lindstrom, and Donnie Bush has Harris, Paul Waner, Wright and Traynor in eight of the first ten places.

Frankie Frisch sticks to seventh place not so very far behind the keystone artist New York got in exchange for him, Rogers Hornsby. Hendrick of Brooklyn rounds out the list.

Harris was the only one of the group to show any discernable gain in his stick percentage this week, and he jumped way into the .400 class with a mark of .437, the only National Leaguer above the .300's. Frisch is tied exactly with Hornsby in hits, 64 apiece, but the Rajah's total bases, boosted by ten home runs are well above the Cardinal second baseman.

Wilson Heavy Hitter

Only "Hack" Wilson of the Chicago Cubs leads Hornsby in homers. Wilson's homer which won Wednesday's game was his 11th. Old Cy Williams of the Phillies is tied with Hornsby at 10.

Frisch gained one stolen base this week on the fleet Kiki Cuyler of Pittsburgh who still leads with 15, one more than Frankie.

Besides having the week's leading clouter, the Pirates have the present leading pitcher in Lee Meadows who, specs and all, has turned in eight victories and only one defeat. Jess Haines of the Cardinals also have eight wins but three and four defeats respectively.

Dazzy Vance is off for another record with 65 strikeout victims already this year. The ten leading hitters in the National League are, Harris, Pittsburgh, .437; Farell, New York .394; Harper, New York, .390; Hornsby, New York, .386; P. Waner, Pittsburgh, .364; Wright Pittsburgh, .359; Frisch, St. Louis, .354; Traynor, Pittsburgh, .351; Lindstrom, New York, .351; Hendrick, Brooklyn, .343.

Some New Faces

The first six hitters in the American league this week are the same familiar faces, and then comes Bud Clancy, who made his Broadway debut in a major league uniform Tuesday. It has evidently inspired him to spring about 30 point upward in his batting percentages, to put him in seventh place on the heels of Ty Cobb. Clancy, breaking in at first base this year with the Chicago White Sox, has averaged two hits per game this week.

Clancy's spurt forced Ken Williams of the St. Louis Browns out of the first ten, a gathering he has adorned for a long long time. He lost thirteen points this week, in his batting.

The two pupils of the two famous master batters, Ruth and Cobb, both are doing better than their teachers. Lou Gehrig, the Babe's home-run protege leads the old master in batting and total bases by a wide margin, though he still has a bit to learn about the trick of clouting them into the bleachers.

Cobb's protege, Al Simmons, keeps a few jumps ahead of the Georgian though Al lost four points and Ty gained them.

Ruth's eighteen homers up to Thursday had helped him to get around to the counting station 53 times, a little better than once each game. Gehrig has tallied 48 times.

Simmons, "Goose" Goslin of Washington and Hunnefield of the White Sox are in a tie now for stolen bases with eight each.

Ted Lyons and Alphonse Thomas of Chicago are way in the lead in victories among American league pitchers, with ten wins apiece. Lyons had lost twice and Thomas three times. Wake Hoyt of the Yankees is nearest them in victories with eight.

Bob Fothergill, Detroits big boy slugger, is still in his slump, losing seven more points this week. A month ago he sported a .427, and now he has but .356, just barely enough to keep inside the first ten.

Back at Top

One week's absence from the batting leadership of the American Association was more than plenty for DeWitt Lebourveau, of Toledo, and now he is back at the top again, passing Reb Russell of Indianapolis and Lear of Milwaukee who were giving the Association Bambino a great race.

A new slugger has leaped into prominence in the Association, outfielder Kirkman of Columbus, rushing from .343 to .407 this week to tie Russell for third place. Kirkman banged the apple safely eleven times in the last six games, in averages compiled today including Wednesday's games. Lebourveau in the same time registered thirteen safe blows.

Another newcomer in the first ten is Pat Duncan, Minneapolis outfielder, who gained from .327 to .359.

The home run leaders of the Association failed to connect this week, Kelly and Earl Smith of the Minneapolis Millers still holding their positions with ten and nine respectively.

Hauser of Kansas City, the former first baseman of the Athletics, is crowding the batting leaders with a ten point gain and is out in front of the sprinters in base thefts with 11.

Eight to One

For pitching honors, Eddleman of the Milwaukee Brewers is still in the lead, having added another victory to his string to make eight scalps with but one setback. His nearest rivals are Speece of Indianapolis with a 5 and 1 count and Milstead of Toledo with 6 and 2.

Leading hitters of the American Association in more than twenty games are: Lebourveau, Toledo, .424; Lear, Milwaukee, .413; Russell, Indianapolis, .407; Kirkman, Columbus, .407; McGowan, Kansas City, .385; Grimes, Toledo, .378; Orwoll, Malwaukee, .369; Heving, Toledo, .363; Duncan, Minneapolis, .359; Pick, Kansas City, .358.

A newcomer in the Western league who was once with New York and Boston in the National league, Bill Cunningham of Des Moines, is leading the circuit in hitting today with a mark of .500 for his ten games. In his 34 times at bat he has hit safely 17 times, including seven doubles and one triple. He outshines the mighty Casey of Tulsa for the time being, who has but a mere .429 mark for 39 games.

True to his name, though, Casey is close to the leadership in homers, with sixteen, one less than his teammate Munson. Munson struck a bad slump this week, falling off twenty points, though two of his blows were circuit drives, putting him just one behind Babe Ruth's present mark.

Blaeholder Beaten

Blaeholder, the Tulsa flinger who ran up a string of twelve consecutive victories on the hill, was at last beaten for the first time this season by Oklahoma City.

The champion base stealer of all leagues seems to be Joe Rabbitt of Omaha, who has scored 21 thefts so far this year, about double the best major league effort.

Fred Luderus, the Oklahoma City manager and pinch hitter, tops the league in batting for the ten games in which he has sauntered to the plate for a relief role, getting five hits in nine times at bat, and one sacrifice.

Day of Wichita is closest to Blaeholder in games won but his nine victories on the mound are shadowed by five defeats.

PAMPA GRAYS—THE LINE-UP WHICH BEAT TEXANS

Here is the line-up of the Pampa Grays as they appeared in early season form, and when Big Clarke, "Lefty" Martin and the rest of the gang were the talk of Panhandle sport fans.

SPORT TALK

Ed Gober has been in Amarillo the past two days in search of a pitcher to bolster the Grays. If the local team had a reliable pitcher it would be hard to beat.

The Grays will play in Wheeler and the Oilers will go to McLean today for what they hope to be a pair of wins. These small towns are regular baseball boosters and have good teams.

The Texans are sure on the toboggan and it is going to take more than a good pitcher to halt the slide. Also, the fans will have to quit riding Handley and one other member of the team or there is sure to be happenings in Amarillo.

Have you noticed what Shreveport has been doing in the past two weeks? Took Dallas, Fort Worth, now San Antonio, into camp and are still going strong. Wichita Falls will have to watch out for the team that was in the cellar,

There were two 12-inning ball games in the American league Friday, with a total of 50 players in the line-ups. Baseball certainly isn't what it used to be when you stop to consider that there have been from 10 to 30 errors in one league when eight games were played.

Diarrhea, or scours, the most common disease of calves, is the result of disturbance of the digestive organs and may be caused by irregular feeding, overfeeding, sudden change of feed, spoiled feed dirty milk, milk fed at uneven temperatures, dirty milk pains or feed boxes, and damp, dirty stables. As soon is scours is discovered, the affected calf should be separated from the others and the pen disinfected. Feed should be immediately reduced to at least one-half and steps taken to eliminate the above named conditions.

TENNIS FRENCH

CANNES, France (AP)—A few French tennis high-brows here are trying to purge the game, which they say is essentially French, of foreign terminology. If they succeed it will be necessary for Americans competing in tennis matches on the Continent to carry pocket dictionaries with euphonic spellings as did the American Expeditionary Forces.

Claude Anet, Suzanne Lenglen's biographer, who has already published a rudimentary tennis dictionary, wants such words as lob, drive, and smash given their respective French terms of "chandelle," "coup droit" and "coupe ecrase." He also wants the word "court" pronounced in the French fashion. Simplified pronunciations which Americans might have to practice would be:

Drive—coo drwa
Lob—shan-dell
Smash—coo e-ecrass-say
Court—cooer.

LACOSTE KEEPS LEDGER

PARIS (AP)—"Tilden played an entirely different game from any he has ever shown in his previous matches against me," said Rene Lacoste, France's premier tennis player and American Champion, after the battle at Saint Cloud, which Big Bill won 6-4, 7-5.

"I have no excuses. Tilden is certainly in magnificent form for so early in the year," Lacoste continued.

The Frenchman has reduced tennis to a scientific business. He keeps a sort of "ledger" in which every tennis player of importance has an account. On the credit side are noted the player's strong points best strokes, while the debit shows his weak spots in his defense. Friends of Lacoste say he added a long entry in the credit side of Tilden's account after their match in May.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP

LUBBOCK, June 11.—The Fort Worth Star-Telegram scholarship for the best all-round athlete in Texas Technological college has been awarded to Ransom Walker of Mission. It carries a cash award of $250. Walker was a star half back on the Tech football team, made his letter in basketball and also in track, in which he was an outstanding performer. He was high man with 20 points in the Great Plains track meet at Canyon last year and was only one fourth point behind the winner this year.

Texans Beaten By Indian Hurler

AMARILLO, June 11. — Lahaie, French Canadian hurler, tamed the Texans here yesterday while Achenbach and Swartz were having a hard time with the Indians and Oklahoma City won, 12 to 5.

Swansboro's hitting and Smith's fielding stood out as good home efforts, but weak hitting and three errors kept the home team far behind the procession of runs. The local infield let through several ground balls, in contrast to the more spectacular work of the Indians.

Handley, showing up at third, was ridden again by the fans, and he had an unlucky day of it. With criticism forcing Manager Kelly to his wits end, the Texans are expected to do their best to break into the win column again.

Why Americans Are Athletic And Athletics White Elephants

PHILADELPHIA—Why do they call Connie Mack's Philadelphia Americans the Athletics?

Briefly, the answer to the first question is that the name Athletics is an old and honored name in the Quaker City. As for the white elephant—blame that on John McGraw of the New York Giants.

The famous baseball team of the '70's and '80's, which crossed bats with the renowned Cincinnati Reds and the old St. Louis Browns, was the Athletics. The Athletic baseball club brought the first professional pennant to Philadelphia when it won the championship race in the old American Association in 1883. More that 25 years ago, when the present American League invaded the east and Connie Mack established a club here, the suggestion was made to call the new organization the Athletics. This could not be done, since the charter of the old club was still in existence, but baseball writers called the new team the Athletics and the name stuck.

In those feverish days of the organization of the American League in the east, when partizanship was bitter between the followers of the National League and those of the invading American League, John McGraw, in a caustic interview, said that the American League had a white elephant on its hands in establishing a club in the Quaker City. The Athletics jumped into popularity and prosperity by winning the league pennant the second year. Enthusiastic sport writers picked up the name White Eelephant and the ponderous animal was officially adopted by the club.

BELOIT, Wis,, June 11. (AP) — From the sands of the Sahara, Beloit college scientists seek to wrest the secret of the birthplace of mankind.

It is the conviction of Dr. George L. Collie, professor of anthropology at Beloit and lifelong student of the origin of man, that in the great desert of Africa lies the answer to the age-long riddle: Where did man first appear upon the earth?

Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, New York explorer, who once studied under Dr. Collie, is equally convinced that man sprung from the Gobi desert of Mongolia, and teacher and pupil are engaged in a friendly contest to find the birthplace of humankind, one believing the goal is in Africa, the other hoping to find it in Asia.

Collie and Dr. Alonzo W. Pond, his young assistant, started their quest with five months of research in the Sahara in 1925, traveling 2,500 miles by motor and camel, studying the Tuaregs, veiled nomads of the central desert, and discovering stone implements of an age more than 300,000 years gone by.

A skull of a child believed to have lived 60,000 years before the time of Christ, found at Mechta, supports the hypothesis that man originated in the great desert. It is now in the hands of Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, University of Chicago anthropoligist, for classification.

Meanwhile the quest goes on, afield and in the laboratory.

While Dr. Pond works at Beloit, trying to piece together the story of prehistoric man from 4,000 specimens lately brought back from Africa, Dr. Collie is scanning the caves of southern France.

He seeks evidence to prove his theory that men who lived 600 centuries ago came from Africa to Europe over land which linked the continents by a direct route. From this Aurignacian age the Beloit museum has a necklace, one of the earliest pieces of jewelry in existence.

The scientific quest has been financed largely by Frank G. Logan, Chicago capitalist and patron of the arts and scientists. He established at Beloit the chair of anthrology which Dr. Collie fills, and made possible the explorations in the dessert.

MOODY CONSIDERS MONEY BILLS CARRYING $47,000.00 AND HAS 90 OTHER MINOR ONES TO SIGN

Governor Saw Pet Administration Measure Fail For Lack of Time or Through Disagreement—Few Laws Outstanding.

AUSTIN, June 11.—"Money bills" carrying some $47,700,000, and about 90 others, mostly of minor and local nature, await action of Gov. Dan Moody, who characterized the special legislative session just closed as "negative" and gave notice that a second special session will be called in an effort to "carry out party pledges."

The amount of legislation was considered liberal for a 30-day special session, whose heaviest work was on the appropriations for the two years beginning September 1. Governor Moody, at first determined not to "open the flood gates," yielded later to requests of various members and submitted bills they wanted. thus unwittingly aiding defeat of administration measures by crowding the calenders, it developed later.

One hundred eleven of the 273 bills introduced were finally passed by both houses and sent to the governor. Of the 141 House bills introduced, 66 got through both branches of the legislature, and 45 Senate bills of the 126 introduced did the same.

Disagreement Develops.

Outright opposition and disagreement, however, figured prominently in the set-back of the Moody legislative program featuring the special session. Civil service, prison and highway legislation urged by Governor Moody as part of the Democratic platform were defeated. None of the administration bills on these subjects were killed by direct vote, but opponents gained more strength in delay maneuvers during the closing rush of the session than they could have mastered in straight showdowns.

Besides the appropriation bills, few measures of general consequence were finally passed. Probably the main exception was the "white primary" bill introduced by Representative Smith of Tyler, to give parties an implied right to bar negroes from primary voting, as denied in a United States supre court ruling.

Killing rather than passing of bills was the general rule. The administration favored bill by Senator Wood to establish a higher board of education to eliminate duplications in college work and coordinate it, was killed in the House. Senator Wood predicted that this subject will be an issue in the next campaign.

A House committee smothered the "Baumes model" bill to provide compound sentencing of habitual criminals. Bills to provide continued district court sessions to expedite work, making joint felony cases severances discretionary related offenses, were passed in the House but failed to get action in the Senate.

Administration forces, however, claimed a victory in killing Senator Fairchild's bill to give $3,000,000 to lateral road building on the same principal as rural school aid. Seven million dollars was first proposed and then cut by amendment, opponents claiming that such a measure would disrupt the working plan of the highway department, which, together with the governor, disapproved the bill.

Oil Bill Dies.

The bill to enact stricter regulations designed to better conserve oil and gas died on the calender.

The House killed Senator Witt's bill to put school book buying in the hands of individual counties with a $2 per capita apportionment based on the school rolls.

Caught in what proponents claimed was an opposition of misunderstanding, the "butcher bill" was sidetracked into death on the calendar. The cattle raisers association urged the measure as a means of curbing theft of cattle by truck operators selling to small butchers. The bill would have held butchers to strict account for the source of their slaughter stuff.

The Brown House bill to regulate establishment of junior colleges was talked to death in the Senate by Senator Floyd of Paris.

Civil Service Killed.

Civil service in a bill prepared by Representatives Stevenson, Kemble and Williamson passed by the House easily but was killed when the Senate adjourned 18 to 13 last Saturday during debate on it. A vote greater than passage strength would have been required to call it up in the last two days. Subordinate state employes would have been chosen on merits determined in examinations conducted by the state board of control.

Governor Moody, pointing out that civil service was advocated by the state Democratic convention to eliminate the "spoils system" of political appointments, made it one of the main subjects of his special session call.

The administration highway bill was passed by the Senate but lost out in the House when an attempt to take it up on first reading ran over into the forbidden period prior to the session close when no bill on first reading can be considered. But for Senate wrangles in which the Stuart nine-commissioner highway bill and the administration bill were aligned against each other, the letter may have gotten to the House in time for passage.

For Bigger Commission.

Facing formidable opposition, the Stuart bill, which proposed one commissioner from each of nine highway districts, never got to a final vote. Oppenents claim it reflected on the present three commissioners. Proponents claimed state road administration would be brought closer to the people.

The administration bill sought only a definition of policy committing the highway commission to first consideration of cardinal highways and providing for designation of 5,000 miles of such.

The same deadlock that killed the relocation feature of the prison reorganization bill passed by the regular session proved fatal to a renewed attempt to provide concentration of the scattered prison system. Representative Satterwhite carried the House with his plan to subject the "key" sales and purchase transactions of the new prison board to legislative approval. In the Senate, Senator Wood, declaring the board needs a free hand if any constructive reform of the system is to be accomplished, offered the governor's plan to give the board power in sales transactions. In the ensuing deadlock, both propositions were tabled.

Bloc Lacks Power.

Activities of the House "economy bloc" enlivened the earlier part of the session when some 40 or 50 members considering appropriations committee figures too high, organized to slash the money bills. The bloc failed to exert much influence. It lost adherents as budgets of institutions in some of the bloc members' home districts got under House fire, and the faction as a whole lost identity after about two weeks. One reason was that the economy faction reached a better understanding with the appropriations committee, which was pressed by unprecedented demands from various state institutions and departments.

The bogey of "appropriations beyond revenue" disturbed the situation for the first few days, but as finally agreed on by both houses, the total appropriations are well within the expectant revenue. Senator Wood, chairman of the Senate finance committee, estimates that the proposed expenditures can be taken care of by a 30-cent ad valorem tax rate the first year of the coming biennium and a 27 cent rate the second year, averaging 1 cent less than the Ferguson administration, when the first year was 35, the second 23.

Rural Aid Passes.

The usual $3,000,000 two-year rural school aid voted with an additional $100,000 a year to pay tuition of rural school students. Such fund was authorized under a bill passed at the regular session.

Supplemental school aid was fixed at $1,000,000 available for the second year only, after the $2,500,000 originally proposed by the House was found to be far in excess of the sum needed to provide $15 per capita apportionment.

The next session probably will be called in September, after the people have voted on four proposed constitutional amendments.

Following are the itemized appropriatons for each year:

Other Funds.

Out of the above appropriations the following funds do not come out of the general revenue: Board of Managers, State railroad $31,409.85; State Highway department, $1,556,680.00; Game, Fish and Oyster commission, $161,500.00; Totaling, $1,749,589.85; deducting this amount from the above total leaves $45,980,195.45 appropriated by the first called session which is to be charged against the general revenue.

Some of the above listed appropriation bills are chargeable against the state funds prior to the beginning of the next fiscal year, such as emergencies, deficiencies, claims and accounts, mileage and per diem. The following amount is chargeable against state funds for the next biennium: beginning Sept. 1, 1927 and ending Aug. 31, 1929, $46,210,743.88. From this amount is to be deducted the state highway appropriation and the game, fish and oyster commission appropriation, leaving net appropriation out of the general revenue for the ensuing biennium of $44,592,563.88.

An average of 200 cubic feet of wood is used yearly by every man, woman and child in the United States the records of the forest service show.

The Mid-West Exploration company is plugging 3 wells in Wheeler county, the numbers 2, 3 and 4 Laycock. They have fallen in production to a point where they will not be profitable to operate.

Deputies Find Liquor in Room

Thirty-one pints of bonded liquor were taken by the sheriff's department in a raid Saturday evening.

The liquor, officers said, was found in the room of Robert Barrington, who made $750 bond.

The bottles were packed in a trunk, which is said to have been filled from the contents of a travelers' trunk of an automobile used in transporting.

LINDBERGH—

president said. "He has brought home his fame unsullied."

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—With the worlds as his chess board Charles A. Lindbergh surpassed even Wonderland's Alice at the game by moving from pawn to King's row in three jumps.

And, like the chess queens who move any distance in any direction, the aviator returns to his starting point aboard a warship, unhampered even by the customs red tape which annoys ordinary mortals, to be the guest of President Coolidge and the Nation.

The first jump of the obscure air mail carrier was from San Diego to St. Louis. He made the 1,550 mile trip in the record time of 14 hours and five minutes, and landed on the inside pages of newspapers whose attention was concentrated on the Mississippi flood and the more elaborate preparations of other proposed New York to Paris expeditions.

The second jump, from St. Louis to New York, also broke a speed record. He made this 950 mile trip in little more than seven hours and landed on the first pages of the newspapers.

The last and hardest jump, 3,600 miles mostly oversea from New York to Paris, he made in the amazing time of 3 hours and 29 minutes. He landed on top of the world.

A New York clipping bureau cut 300,000 news articles—nearly four times as many as for the death of President Wilson—on the feat of the youth who set out for Paris with letters of introduction so he would not be unknown. Kings, president and premiers vied with uncontrollable throngs of their subjects and fellow citizens to do him honor.

When he landed at Le Bourget flying field, fearful that he would not be recognized, his first words were, "I am Charles Lindbergh."

Then he had to be rescued from a mob of thousands that fought for a glimpse of him.

With his temporary home at the American embassy, he was wined and dined by President Doumergue, Marshal Foch, "Papa" Joffre, and other French notables. Police had to force a way for him whenever he emerged from the embassey. He endeared himself to the French people by his first official act when he visited the mother of Charles Nungesser, for whom France was mourning.

Medals were showered on him. France gave him the cross of the Legion of Honor, England the Royal Air Force Cross; Belgium the Order of Leopold; the Aero Club of France its gold medal and the Swedish Aero Club its gold plaque. His own country decided promptly to bestow the Distinguished Flying Cross, the first to be struck; New York State offered him its medal of valor; a movement was started to have Congress give him the Congressional Medal of Honor when it convenes.

France broke all precedents to accord him the honors of royalty. The American flag was raised at the foreign office, an honor shown ordinarily to visiting sovereigns. He was received on the floor of the Senate Chamber, given a municipal reception, kissed on both cheeks by President Doumergue and others, and songs about him were sold on the streets like newspapers.

From Paris he went to Belgium where King Albert not only received him in state, and decorated him, but returned his call. Then he went to England where the King received him, and he was entertained by the Prince of Wales.

The youth who set out in a $13,000 plane on a $20,000 expedition partly financed by $2,000 of his savings, won nearly $100,000 in prizes, of which $25,000 was the Orteig prize for the first plane to cross the Atlantic. He was offered millions—one motion picture offer alone was for a million—to go into the movies or vaudeville. He rejected or postponed a decision on all offers.

"We are not actors," he said of himself and plane. "I am an aviator and expect to keep on flying. I think I can get my old job."

Postmaster General New in Washington said to this: "He can have anything in the shop."

New York and Washington were rivals for the honor of being first to entertain him on his return. Washington won when the President invited him to return on the cruiser Memphis. And of the flight that brought honors, even Orville Wright declares there was only one chance in three of success. But Lindbergh was more confident, giving all credit to his machine, equipped with a Wright whirlwind motor, and an earth inductor compass which he claims made navigation easy.

U. S. LIBRARY RECEIVES RARE GIFT FROM CHINA

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the largest collections of Chinese literature outside the Orient has been presented to the Library of Congress by Dr. Phillip T. Y. Sze, through his father, Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, the Chinese minister.

The collection comprises the 13 Chinese classics in 120 volumes recently published in China by Soa-Tseng Sze, brother of the minister. Among this is "Yi King" or Book of Changes. perhaps the oldest written classic still read, being ascribed to Fu Hsi, who lived about 2,800 B. C., and wrote his masterpiece some 2,000 years before Homer composed the "Illiad."

Young Dr. Sze, who received much of his education in Washington and began his professional career there, is head of a large hospital in China. He has general supervision of young Chinese sent to the United States to study through operation of the Boxer indemnity remission fund.

Budget Director Calls For Further Economy Practices

(Special to The News.)

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Estimating that governmental expenditures for the current fiscal year would be kept under $3,000,000,000, Director Lord of the Budget Bureau Friday called on department heads and bureau chiefs to continue efforts to curtail expenses during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

"The last estimate for the current year, made within a few days," he said at the semi-annual budget meeting, "promises a surplus of $598,974,254, to which you have made generous contribution with an expenditure brought down and held down to $2,975,235,050, which is $73,000,000 less than we spent in 1924, and $25,000,000 less than our $3,000,000,000 limit. This has been effected. not only by curtailment of expenditures, but by stubbornly holding the line and preventing increases. And this year we have had to provide additional millions for new needs arising from conditions not susceptible of administrative control."

Describing the work of the Budget Bureau, Director Lord asserted:

"Waves of new expenditure as a result of new legislation and continued legitimate growth and development of federal business have swept over the economy boat and threatened to sink it, but steady, constant throwing over of waste and continued stopping of leaks have kept it afloat, notwithstanding accumulating expenditures at times have gained slightly. And we are still bailing and plugging leaks."

AT THE REX

If advance opinions count for anything, Johnny Hines' new First National Picture, "All Aboard," produced by C. C. Burr, which comes to the Rex theatre Monday, should be the funniest comedy of the season. Following its advance showing in the outlying theatres of Hollywood during its try-out stages, "All Aboard" was hailed by film critics as the Yankee Doodle comedian's outstanding picture. Audiences were said to be kept in gales of laughter from the opening reel to the final fade-out.

"All Aboard" is an adaptation of the story by Matt Taylor, who contributed "Stepping Along" to the comedian for his last vehicle. In brief, it depicts Johnnie as a forgetful young man who works as a shoe salesman and eventually loses his job because of his continual absent-mindedness. Fortune smiles upon him, however, and he finds another position as a tour conductor with the responsible duties of taking a party of tourists across the Atlantic and into the Algerian desert.

The tour is declared to be a hilarious laugh cruise from start to finish, with a number of thrills thrown in for good measure when Johnny rescues the girl from an amorous sheik. More thrills come in the shiek's stronghold, when the comedian finds himself face to face with a huge lion. Indeed, animals play a big part in the comedian's picture, including his famous parot, Loretta, a herd of camels, donkeys, sheep, goats, and so on.

Johnny Hines marked his return to the Wets Coast for a picture production after an absence of a few years by assembling a veritable galaxy of comedians to surround him in his comedy. Edna Murphy has the leading feminine role.
