15 Reds Killed In Air Crash

China Delegation Bound For Djakarta

SINGAPORE -- UP -- An Indian airliner carrying a Chinese Communist delegation to Indonesia crashed in flames in the South China Sea, killing 15 of the 18 persons reported aboard, the British Royal Air Force said Tuesday.

The RAF said there were three known survivors, all members of the crew of the Air India Constellation Kashmir Princess which was chartered by the Peiping government to fly eight government officials from Hong Kong to Djakarta.

A government spokesman in Hong Kong said he believed there were additional survivors. "Downed Planes Join Search" But more than a dozen planes from Singapore, Borneo and Indonesia searched the sea off North Borneo and found only charred bits of wreckage, lifejackets and scorched pieces of baggage drifting on the sea.

The RAF said the survivors were taken aboard the British naval frigate Dampier, one of many rescue craft that sped to the scene 200 miles northeast of Singapore when the American-built luxury plane sent a series of frantic distress messages Monday.

Rumors swept Hong Kong that anti-Communists had sabotaged the big plane during its 24-hour layover Sunday, but airline officials scoffed at the reports.

There also were rumors that some of the Chinese aboard were high officials traveling under assumed names. The passenger list identified one traveler as Li Ping, member of the Peiping delegation to the Geneva Conference who has written important policy statements for the Communist New China News agency.

Fleet Chief On Secret Mission

TAIPEI, Formosa -- UP -- Vice Adm. Alfred M. Fried, commander of the U. S. Seventh Fleet on patrol duty in the Formosa Strait, left Tuesday aboard his flagship, the cruiser Rochester, for an unknown destination.

Fried arrived at Keelung aboard the Rochester Sunday. He told correspondents that he felt "we are in pretty good shape" when asked about the situation in the potentially explosive Formosa area.

"Two boats living close to the situation for more than a year and not becoming more uneasy about our ability," he said. He added he was confident the U. S. fleet could handle "any situation."

Lynn Boyd, Commission Sworn Into Office Today

Lynn Boyd, Pampa lumber yard owner and former city commissioner, was sworn in today as mayor of Pampa by Outgoing Mayor Tom Rose.

Then Mayor Boyd swore in City Commissioners Gene Fatheree, Frank Dial, W. B. Neel and W. D. Varnon for another term -- and the 1955-57 Pampa City Commission was officially in office. City Tax Collector Aubrey Jones witnessed and notarized the taking and signing of the oaths.

The swearing-in ceremony came after the minutes of two previous commission meetings were read. Just before the ceremony, Rose thanked the city commissioners, officials and employees and the press and radio for their cooperation during his term of office.

After Rose swore in Mayor Boyd, he cracked: "I'm glad to turn over this chair to you -- it's broken and it'll pinch you." Boyd said he hoped he could do "partially as well as you have." Then Fatheree, speaking for the commission, presented Rose with an engraved pen-and-calendar desk set which was signed by the four commissioners. City Secy. Ed Vickers, City Atty. Bob Gordon, City Mgr. Fred Brook and City Director of Public Works James Cowan, Rose was visibly moved.

Among the spectators was former Pampa City Mgr. Steve Matthews, who is now city manager of Lubbock.

The new city commission then went to work. Its activity included (1) the holding of a public hearing on the zoning of the Jarvis Sone and Engler-Buckley Addition; (2) a discussion of parking along with recommendations of the Pampa Zoning Commission that the two new additions in the northwest part of town be zoned residential, semi-commercial and commercial. All will be residential but the lots that front on Hobart. The northmost six of them will be commercial. Gordon was instructed to draw up an ordinance for next week's meeting.

Brook told the commission he had talked with Paul West, Pampa theaters manager, and that West had told him the Crown Theater would not be opened in the immediate future. Brook figured that meant six to nine months. So the commission decided to install two parking meters in front of the theater on Cuyler, with the provision that if the theater is opened they will be taken down.

The new mayor asked about the disposition of the areas formerly used for city bus stops -- presently they are not metered. Brook and Cowan will look into the matter and have an ordinance prepared to be read next week. The one parking place near each corner will be left free to enable motorists to be able to drive safely.

A new city board of tax equalization will be named next week, the commission decided. On the city tax advisory board have been C. P. Pursley, H. E. Schwartz, Gene Lewis, A. C. Troop and George Scott. Customarily, three of the (See BOYD, Page 3)

Tornado Warnings Issued For Texas

By UNITED PRESS

Turbulent weather moved across North Central and East Texas Tuesday accompanied by high winds, rain and some hail.

The weather bureau lifted one tornado alert for a part of North Central Texas at 6 a. m., but issued a second for a section of East Texas at midmorning.

The second alert was for "scattered severe thunderstorms with one or two tornadoes expected in an area along and 40 miles either side of a line from Bryan, Tex., to Tyler, Tex., current to 1 p. m." Small craft warnings were issued for the Gulf Coast when the cool front that is generating the thunderstorms moves into that area Tuesday night.

Olefin, in the western end of North Central Texas, was hit by hail Monday night with crops sustaining the worst damage; some hail, too, was reported in Fort Worth, Ferris and a sprinkling in Dallas.

Few citizens in the North Central Texas area knew of a tornado alert that was in existence from 12 midnight to 6 a. m. It was with drawn at 6 a. m. but during the night, rain and some hail beat down on the area and wind velocity reached a peak of 57 miles per hour at Fort Worth.

Front Sets Off Showers The front at 8 a. m. lay west of the Fort Worth-Dallas area, in the vicinity of Mineral Wells. It set off thunderstorms ahead of it.

Behind the front there was some dust and cooler weather. San Angelo reported visibility of only one and one-half miles. Abilene had three-mile visibility and Midland five miles.

Rainfall amounts varied from 1.40 inches at Rosser and 1.16 at Ferris to .36 at Sherman. Other reports: Wills Point 1.05; Fort Worth .56; Dallas .35; Abilene .37; Mineral Wells .06; and San Angelo .02.

Overnight lows ranged from 36 degrees at Dalhart to 72 at Corpus Christi.

Showers Forecast The weather bureau said the outlook was for scattered thunder showers ahead of the front as it moves eastward Tuesday with cooler weather behind it.

The forecast calls for lows of 28 to 32 in the Panhandle and Upper South Plains Tuesday night; 32 to 42 through most of West Texas; 35 to 45 over North Central Texas; 40 to 45 in the north portion of East Texas.

Indo Truce Ends; Troops Mass Again

SAIGON, Indo-China -- UP -- The uneasy Easter truce between the government and rebellious warlords ran out Tuesday and French troops massed around this capital to prevent a new outbreak of street fighting.

The underground radio of the Binh Xuyen religious sect warned that American-backed Premier Ngo Dinh Diem will launch a "general attack" Tuesday night. The radio urged the 2 million civilians of Saigon to flee the capital before Diem's regular army attacks troops of the Binh Xuyen and Hoa Hao sects.

French troops immediately moved around the tense city with orders to wedge a solid protective screen between the two sides if they appeared inclined to break the precarious peace.

No exact hour was set for the expiration of the seven-day truce concluded under joint American and French pressure. There could be new hostilities at any time.

Adlai Urges Fight Line At Formosa

CHICAGO -- UP -- Adlai E. Stevenson has called on President Eisenhower and the nation to rally its allies for the defense of Formosa instead of risking a third world war over Quemoy and Matsu islands.

Stevenson, titular leader of the Democratic party and its 1952 presidential candidate, broke a four months' silence on major issues in a nationally-broadcast speech Monday night.

He voiced the "greatest misgivings" about defending Quemoy and Matsu and said that the issue had created "a greater peril" by dividing and weakening the allies of the free world.

The Eisenhower administration was accused of running its Far Eastern policy into a "dead end" through a policy of "bluster, saber rattling, and bluff."

Three-Point Program

Stevenson offered a three-point program as an alternative:

1. The United States should consult its friends and uncommitted nations to join in a declaration "condemning the use of force in the Formosa Strait" and vowing to resist any aggression there pending a final settlement.

2. Russia should be asked to say where it stands and what it wants on the Formosa issue.

3. The United Nations General Assembly should be asked to condemn any effort to alter the present status of Formosa and to seek a formula for the island's "permanent future."

If this is done, "I should think Quemoy and Matsu would have little importance to (the Chinese) Nationalists, let alone us," Stevenson said.

He noted that Quemoy and Matsu have always belonged to China and "lie almost as close to the coast of China as Staten Island does to New York."

"If we join in their defense we are at war, perhaps world war, without major allies and with most of public opinion in Asia and Europe against us," Stevenson said.

Spearman Murder Trial In Progress

SPEARMAN -- (Special) -- The second day of testimony resumed at 10 a. m. today in the murder trial of Carl Ed. Wilbanks charged with the ice-pick murder of his father, E. B. Wilbanks on the night of Feb. 19.

The stabbing took place in the family home following an argument which started while the family was viewing a television program.

An all-male jury was selected yesterday morning from a panel of 80 assembled in the 84th District Court here.

Jurors selected included eight farmers, Joe Novak, Reuben Te Beest, L. K. Garrett, Ralph Mathis, L. W. Ayers, Jr., L. L. Edge, Ralph Reynolds, and H. B. Parks; grain elevator operator, J. E. Copland; car dealer, A. E. Courty; grocery clerk, Al Tucker; truck driver, Russell Townsend.

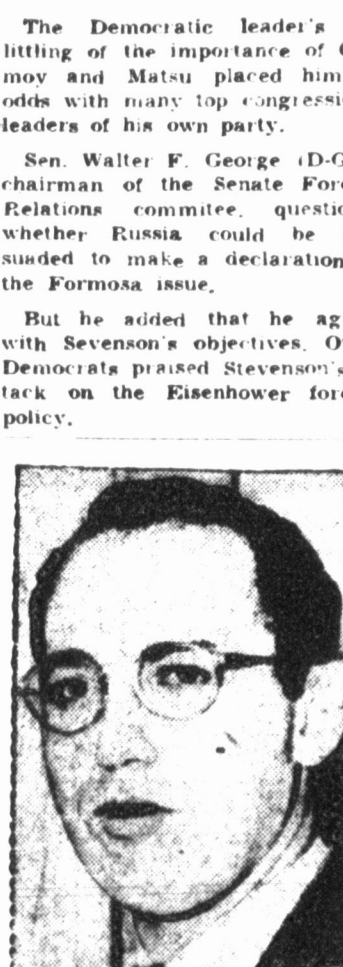

Wilbanks, 36, is represented by C. J. Humphries, of the firm Sanders, Scott, Sanders, and Smith, of Amarillo. District Attorney Bob Galloway and County Attorney Jimmy Linn, representing the State. The trial will be presided over by Dist. Judge Jack Allen.

Testimony began at 4 p. m. with the first witness, Sheriff J. B. Cook, being called by the defense which is pleading insanity. The Hansford County Sheriff was on the stand for an hour and 25 minutes.

Strikers Hit Texas Plant

FREEPORT, Tex. -- UP -- Some 170 maintenance electricians struck the Dow Chemical Co. plant here and at Velasco Tuesday and a company spokesman said "some" of Dow's 1,500 workers were refusing to cross picket lines.

Picket lines were thrown up around the two plants at 6 a. m. However, the spokesman said, "a handful of the workers to cross the picket lines had 'not hurt yet.' He said plants were in operation "to some extent."

Pampa Set For Vaccine

Parents Of 895 Children Give OK

Approximately 85.5 per cent of the children enrolled in the first and second grades in Pampa will be inoculated, at no charge, with the Salk Polio Vaccine immediately after County Health Officer, Dr. Joe Gates, gets word from Austin that the vaccine is available there.

Knox Kinard, Public Schools Superintendent, reported this morning that 895 letters of approval had been received from parents of the children. Kinard said that all but one child in each school had brought in letters at Carver, Holy Souls and Episcopal schools.

Gates said that the State Health Office had notified him that the vaccine would have to be picked up by the local offices and that tentative plans have been made for a Cabot plane to fly to Austin for this county's allotment as soon as it is available.

Gates said that in a meeting of the County Medical Society several doctors took the responsibility of giving the inoculations at the various schools the day after it is flown into Pampa.

The whole program has been set up and is awaiting the vaccine. The local nurses association will supply nurses; Highland General Hospital has prepared kits to be used in the inoculation, including needles, syringes, etc.; the schools will supply clerks and paper work.

The vaccine will be supplied free of charge to the students by the National Polio Foundation.

Mrs. Rufe Jordan, who was sent by the local Polio group to Ft. Worth to observe the organization used by their schools and medical authorities in setting up the inoculation, said that Pampa had the best organization and was the best prepared to do the job she had seen.

Gates pointed out that major pharmaceutical firms which manufacture the vaccine probably could not make it available to physicians for private use before May 1st.

If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it. Lowly Hardware.

'Brilliant Victory' Claimed In Long Battle With Polio

ANN ARBOR, Mich. -- (UP) -- The Salk anti-polio vaccine is 80 to 90 per cent effective, Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., reported Tuesday in his long-awaited evaluation of last spring's mass test on 1.8 million children.

Francis said the vaccine was safe, effective, and potent. He specified that among patients with bulbar polio, which is the killing and crippling type, it had produced "an extremely successful effect."

A medical abstract of the 113-page report was prepared by Dr. Robert Kohns, Francis' deputy director of the vaccine evaluation program.

Francis' report on the vaccine perfected by Dr. Jonas Salk marked a brilliant victory in mankind's long battle against diseases.

"In strong statistical language, the historic trial of the vaccine and its subsequent analysis was revealed," the medical abstract read. "There can be no doubt now that children can be inoculated successfully against polio. There can be no doubt that humanity can pull itself up by its own bootstraps and protect its children from the insidious invasion of ultra-microscopic disease."

There was only one death from polio among the children who were vaccinated last spring. That child died after a tonsillectomy was performed two days after receiving the second polio vaccination in a series of three.

Already Prevalent

Polio already was prevalent in the area.

The one fatality among the vaccinated children occurred in one of the 33 states in which second grade pupils were vaccinated and first and third grade pupils were the "observed" controls.

In 11 states, some children were vaccinated with the vaccine and some were vaccinated with an inert substance called placebo.

Among the children in placebo states, there were four fatalities.

In the 33 observed control states, there were 11 deaths from polio among children who did not receive the vaccine. But there were no fatalities among those who did beyond the single child who came down after the second vaccination and the tonsillectomy.

These circumstances demonstrated that the viruses already were incubating in the child before any vaccine was administered.

1,013 Cases Reported

Breaking the report down statistically, there were 1,013 cases of polio among the 1,820,916 children who either were vaccinated or served as placebo or observed controls.

In the placebo states, 428 cases of polio developed among the 749,236 children involved.

Among the 1,080,680 children who took part in the observed control states, there were 585 cases.

For all of the 45 states, 33 of the 50,000 children who got the vaccine, were paralyzed.

But there were 115 paralytic cases among the unvaccinated children.

The report emphasized the absolute safety of the vaccine.

Only 4 per cent of the vaccinated children had reactions, which were described as minor.

Austria Treaty Talks Begin

MOSCOW -- UP -- Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab opened talks with Soviet Premier Nikolai Belogin and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov Tuesday in hope of winning a treaty for his divided country.

Raab and his delegates who flew to Moscow Monday from Vienna called on the new Soviet premier an hour after a 10 a. m. conference with Molotov.

Informed sources said Tuesday's discussions between the Austrians and the Soviet government officials who invited them to Moscow were concentrated on drafting a program for the discussions on a treaty that has been bogged down for 10 years.

An Austrian embassy spokesman announced the two meetings between Raab and the Soviet leaders.

Few further details were available on the first official contact between the premier who replaced Georgi Malenkov and the Austrian chancellor who flew to Moscow in hopes of winning new four-power discussions on a treaty for his nation.

Salk Says Only 2 Shots Necessary

ANN ARBOR, Mich. -- UP -- Dr. Jonas E. Salk said Tuesday only two inoculations of his polio vaccine, instead of three, will be needed to give the majority of children immunity during the 1955 polio season.

His announcement meant that some 13 million more children would be able to receive the vaccine by June 1.

Salk, 40-year-old University of Pittsburgh researcher who developed the vaccine, said the third shot or booster shot--should not be given until at least seven months after the second inoculation.

Local health officials throughout the nation had been basing their plans for immunizing children on the three-shot plan used in last year's mass test. Salk's announcement means more "initial" inoculations than planned will be possible before the so-called polio season.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis ordered 27 million cubic centimeters of the vaccine before the evaluation of last spring's mass Salk inoculation was completed.

Six Snowbound Children Saved

CHEYENNE, Wyo. -- UP -- Six children were rescued from a snowbound bus Tuesday as the second spring blizzard within a week swirls across portions of the Great Plains State, marooning scores of motorists, blocking highways and isolating communities.

The children, who had been trapped aboard the bus since Monday afternoon when they were caught in the storm's fury en route home from their classes, were taken to safety by two Union Pacific railroad section hands. None of the six suffered any ill effects. The driver of their bus stayed with his stranded vehicle.

The storm virtually isolated this capital city of Wyoming. Early Tuesday it was whipping across a big area of southeastern Wyoming, northeastern Colorado and southwestern Nebraska.

As in the storm a week ago that set a record for April blizzards in the Eastern Rockies and upper Great Plains, this one was expected to cause heavy losses in livestock and some suffering. But stockmen generally hailed the storm as a boon to their drought-depleted ranges and wheatlands.

REPORT RED AIR BUILDUP

Do the Communists have enough air strength to launch an attack this spring on Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu? Some experts say no, but reports from Formosa indicate a Red attempt to gain air superiority in the area by building a string of jet bases from Shanghai southward along the railroad to Nanchang. But those bases, the reports say, will not be completed for two years. Above Newsmap illustrates how the proposed bases could help the Reds gain the air power they need for a major move against Chiang Kai-shek's forces. Present jet bases are located at Shanghai, Ningpo and Canton. Barracks are reportedly being built to house some 200,000 Soviet troops expected in June, according to the Chinatone News Agency.

New Orleans Woman Sues State Of Texas

HOUSTON—UP—A New Orleans woman sued the state of Texas Monday to collect on $46,000 worth of bonds one of her ancestors bought during the Civil War, and she said she'd like to have interest, too, from Jan. 1, 1865 to date.

The compounded interest would bring the alleged value of the bond authorized by the Texas legislature in April 8, 1861 under the Texas Confederate constitution, to some $45 million.

Most Parents OK Polio Vaccine

PERRYTON — (Special) — The Salk polio vaccine, which has proved to be an outstanding success in the prevention of polio, will be made available to children of the Perryton area sometime in April.

Under the program provided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and administered through the State Health Department, children of the first and second grades may be inoculated with the Salk vaccine free.

Letters were sent to parents of all children in the first and second grades at Perryton Elementary, and 253 were returned with requests for the vaccine.

It will be given to these first and second grades at school through arrangements made with Dr. G. L. Kengle, county health officer.

It will be sometime after April 12 before the date for the Salk inoculation will be known here.

Ex Cop Shoots House Breaker

HOUSTON—UP—A former Dallas policeman shot and killed a 25-year-old man Sunday night when he found the man cutting a window screen at his home.

The victim was identified as Richard E. Thompson, 25.

The former officer, Walter W. Wheeler, 58, said he and his wife had just retired when his front doorbell rang. He answered it but found no one. Passing through the house, he said, he saw a man's outlines at a rear kitchen window.

Wheeler got his service gun and slipped around the house. He fired once.

Police said Thompson was wearing socks on his hands, had a knife in his hand and had cut the window screen in two places.

Justice of the Peace Dave F. Thompson ruled the death justifiable homicide.

'No-Contest' In Mat Bout

Dory Funk and Prof. Roy Shire broke even in two falls last night and then the bout was called "no contest" in the third and deciding fall when the two men failed to obey orders of the referee.

A near-free-for-all resulted in the final fall. The trouble started when Shire tossed Funk into the ropes that snapped the top ropes of the ring. Funk, who became enraged, took the ring post and began hitting Shire on the head.

This brought in the two men's "seconds," Bobby Wallace for Shire and Cowboy Carlson for Funk. All mixed it up in the ring several minutes after the bout was called no contest.

In the all-gal match, Ethel Johnson won in two straight falls from husky Babe Wingo.

Dr. P. D. O'Brien, of Big Spring, who is leading a revival this week at the First Baptist Church, was the guest speaker this noon for the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce.

His revival services are being given at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. each day this week at the church. The revival is part of a nationwide simultaneous Baptist revival.

Dr. O'Brien spoke at the annual Pampa Harvester basketball banquet and will visit other civic clubs during the week, JayCees President J. C. Hopkins said today.

Plans for the annual JayCees teenage safe driving road-e-o scheduled the afternoon of May 5 in Pampa, were also discussed at the luncheon meeting.

advisory board are named to the equalization board.

DeMolay Day will be April 26, the day when members of the organization will "take over the city." The commission named the date upon the request of E. E. Sheltamer, civic director for the group. DeMolay boys become the city officers for the day, under the supervision of the regular officers-holders. Mayor Boyd will sign a proclamation.

In other action, the commission passed an emergency measure the ordinance required on the sale of the $200,000 water improvement bond issue passed Feb. 26 by Pampa voters. First National Bank, Pampa, and First Southwest Co., Dallas, bidding together, got the bid.

Late this morning, the bids on a host of different items like pipe, couplings, valves and fire hydrants were being opened and read before the commission. Brook said that action would probably not be taken till this afternoon. Other agenda items to be handled by the commission today were the setting of a date for a city commission public hearing on the zoning commission recommendation to acquire the Overton Heights Addition residential and the discussion of a spring clean-up campaign.

The commission also okayed $19,072.67 in city bills and $488.63 in library bills. The city bills included the cost of drilling the city's two water test holes.

Elks Install New Officers Tonight

Robert E. Lea, who takes office this evening as Exalted Ruler of the Pampa Elks Lodge, follows in the footsteps of his father, who is here from Denver to be on hand for the ceremony.

V. E. Lea, retired grain dealer, assumed the high office in an Elks Lodge in Fairbury, Neb., in 1929. His son, like his father, occupied just about all the chairs in the same lodge. He was three months short of repeating his father's performance when he moved.

Lea, who replaces Quentin Williams, as Exalted Ruler, is a member of the advertising staff of the Pampa Daily News. He makes his home with his wife, Emma Catherine and their three children at 1000 Huff Road.

Lea will be installed at a dinner at the Elks Lodge before an expected crowd of some 100 persons, while his parents and wife look on.

Heading the installation delegation will be D. Earl McCroskey, immediate past president of the Oklahoma Elks Association.

Officers who will also be installed at the meeting are Leroy McBride, Leading Knight; F. V. Davis, Loyal Knight; Kenneth Huey, Lecturing Knight; A. B. McAfee, secretary; Joe Tooley, treasurer; E. J. Pafford, trustee; Jim Dean, Esquire; Bill McComas, Inner Guard; Johnny White, chaplain, and Coy Palmer, organist.

Assisting in the ceremonies will be several members of the Amarillo lodge, headed by Pede Powell, known as "Mr. Elk of Texas."

The dinner begins at 7 p.m., followed by the installation at 8 p.m.

Four Plead Guilty To DWI

Four defendants in driving while intoxicated cases pleaded guilty Monday afternoon in county court and were fined by Judge Bruce Parker $100 and costs and sentenced to three days in jail. Two others pleaded not guilty.

Pleading guilty were Willie L. Walker, 24, of 504 N. Sumner, James Donley Clemmons, 43, of Selling, Okla., Bill A. Cowan, 52, of Mobeetie, and Karl Kulhman, 45, of Friona.

The judgement in the Walker case was deferred until next Monday. Walker drove his 1949 Mercury into the front of Jim's Package Store, 835 S. Cuyler, early Sunday morning. The judgement was held over until the damages were ascertained. Estimated damage to the store was put at $3,500.

Robert V. Barnett, 37, of 1501 Williston, and Infant S. Cates, 74, of 618 N. Carr, pleaded not guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated. Bond in both cases was set at $500.

Barnett was picked up by the police Saturday night in the 1400 block on N. Hobart. Cates was apprehended by Pampa officers late Sunday in the 200 block on Ford.

County Court To Sign Leases

The Gray County Commissioners Court will be called into special session later this week to sign leases allotted to the Gulf Oil Corp. on some 700 acres of Gray County school land in Gaines County, according to Judge Bruce Parker.

Three drafts totaling some $25,000 accompanied the leases on the land. Parker said the funds would be used to purchase federal savings bonds to be added to the county permanent school fund. An additional $10,000 worth of bonds will be purchased from funds received from recently matured bonds.

New Citizens In Amarillo For Tests

Three of the four Pampa Lions Club Americanization class members who have been in the United States long enough to qualify for citizenship were in Amarillo today for their naturalization examinations.

Mrs. Martin Lantau, 2106 Hamilton, and Mrs. Eva Maria Cash, southwest of Pampa reported at 10:30 a.m. today in the Amarillo post office. And Mrs. Donald L. Bissell, 1341 N. Starweather, reported at 3 p.m. today.

Mrs. B. D. Brister, 1133 Neel Rd., the fourth class member is still in the process of acquiring two witnesses who will swear that they have seen her in the area for a three-year period. She has already taken and passed her naturalization test. But her case is comprised the Americanization lived in Pampa, then moved away, then returned — a "split" residence.

These four and a dozen others complicated by the fact that she class which met for a year under the leadership of Homer Craig, a Lion who thought up the idea of the class and put it into practice. Various persons in the community took turns instructing the class in the American way of life.

These naturalization tests in Amarillo are the culmination of their work. The others in the class have not been residents of the United States long enough to qualify for citizenship.

The American Legion, Post 334, Pampa, is having a barbecue in connection with their regular meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m.

The barbecue, which will be venison and elk meat, is being held to emphasize the current membership drive the group is working on.

W. C. (Bill) Thompson, Commander of the Pampa post, said that all veterans are invited to attend the meeting and that Korean veterans are also eligible to join. He said that the principal speaker for the evening would be Paul Spillman, who is commander of the 18th district.

Blizzard Hits Three States In Freak Winter Outbreak

By UNITED PRESS

Winter howled back into the Northern Plains Tuesday with a surprise April blizzard which piled up more than a foot of wet snow and marooned scores of motorists amid fast-piling drifts.

The freak storm hit Wyoming, Colorado and Nebraska without warning Monday night and was going strong Tuesday.

A school bus containing two children and the driver was missing somewhere in the snowy wastes along the Wyoming-Colorado line. At Kendall, Neb., zero visibility and impassable drifts forced a snow plow to give up its attempt to rescue uncounted scores of marooned drivers.

The strange wintry outbreak was accompanied by wild winds which hit Oklahoma and Texas with gusts up to 89 miles per hour.

Billowing Dust Clouds
The near-tornado winds clawed at the earth and sent up billowing dust clouds. Windows cracked and a roof was ripped off at Oklahoma City and sheets of hail the size of marbles peppered Olney, Tex.

More high winds swept the Los Angeles, Calif., area. A 69-year-old man broke his hip when a 50-mile-per-hour wind swept him off his feet and a crane toppled in a six-block area.

The Northern Plains blizzard was really a repeat performance. Only last week the area's worst blizzard in history tied up practically all of Wyoming and Montana.

The U. S. Weather Bureau, pointing out that spring is almost a month old, said hopefully that this may be the last big snow storm of the season. Farmers weren't too worried, even though many were snow-bound, because wet snow blanket was sure to help their wind-damaged crops.

Grim Rescue Business
Meanwhile, rescue crews kept to the grim business of bringing the storm's victims to safety.

In Wyoming's Laramie county a search party was to set out early Tuesday to look for a school bus which disappeared in a blowing wall of snow on its run from Spear, Wyo., to Gleason, Colo.

The bus had just unloaded a number of children at Spear and was traveling on a snow-drifted road with two youngsters and the driver aboard when it was last seen. It was hoped the children and driver had found refuge in a ranch house.

Six other marooned school buses were located in Wyoming and Colorado by midnight Monday night.

One of them, containing 16 high school seniors, had crashed head-on with a car on ice-coated U. S. 81 south of the Wyoming-Colorado line. The seriously injured motorist stayed with the bus driver and students for four hours before a truck happened by and rescued them.

Wire Group Gets Okay
The Pampa Adequate Wiring Bureau Monday received an okay on its charter from the National Adequate Wiring Bureau and is now officially affiliated with the nationwide organization.

Joe Gidden, local bureau secretary, announced, too, that the first structure — at 1919 N. Russell — had been inspected and approved under the bureau's setup.

From now on, Gidden said, it will mainly be a matter of committee work. The purpose of the new group is to insure adequate wiring in housing "from blue print to purchase," Gidden said.

Pampa News Women's Editor

IF APPAREL AND BEHAVIOR PATTERNS are interrelated, as an increasing number of educators believe, then today's youngster will be better behaved because he is learning to be better dressed. The trend toward better dress in the sensitive teen-age realm actually began several years ago with the influx of high-style fashions which many adults have characterized as loud, too sharp and in bad taste, notes Daily News Record, a Fairchild trade publication covering the men's and boys' clothing industries.

WHETHER OR NOT the peg pants, the link-buttoned "long roll" suit, the extreme wide-spread collar shirt, the motorcycle jacket and its gaudy predecessor, the fluorescent jacket, were in good taste was not considered to be the important question. What really mattered was that our nation's carefree youth, previously so disinterested in any and all aspects of their attire, had begun the switch from the ragamuffin attitude to one of definite and strong preference for specific styles—even though these styles have proved unsavory to a great many parents.

Now fashion, as any woman knows, is a constantly changing scene and so, gradually, the flashy characters of yesterday are evolving into conservative charcoal-flannel-clad gentlemen of today. True, the dark suit is enhanced by a really high-colored pink shirt, but the collar on the shirt is rounded or buttoned-down — it is no longer so widespread as to veer out to meet the shoulder blades. What mother of an irrepressible youngster would have believed, five years ago, that this self-same youth would today be demanding French-cuffed shirts with large, ornamental cuff links and long, lean neckties or slim bows with a neat black-and-pink striped motif? Daily News Record has the word of merchants all over the country that these are the items in heavy demand by teen-age boys today.

But the story doesn't begin and end with a teen-ager. Daily News Record also finds that manufacturers are making, and the stores selling, more charcoal flannel suits for the little boy (age 6) than any other kind and that there are more elegant pink shirts sold for the juniors with ready-made ties and matching cuff links than any other style of haberdashery. Nor does the story begin and end with the newly re-created attire for church and social function. What about school? An increasing number of schools in major cities in the east and midwest are banning the blue jean for classroom wear and as a result, the boys are beginning to take pride in their new tweed or corduroy sport coats and solid flannel slacks; in their smart boxy finger-length popovers or the more dramatic poplin or gabardine trench coats.

THIS DOESN'T MEAN that the handy dungarees are out of the picture. It is still almost a uniform for the students in the south and, after-school, it is strongly in evidence everywhere. The news is, however, that now the trend is to wear these dungarees looking clean and spruce with crisp and colorful sports shirts — and this, too, is a far cry from the sloppy Joe look that was so popular several years back.

A new addition to the casual wash-pants picture is the army twill or, as it is more familiarly known, the chino slacks. First this came mostly in khaki or silver gray, but now it is becoming increasingly popular in black, blue, green and other colors, with matching zippered jacket.

The idea of combining garments by color and usage to mix or match is another new trend for boys from two years to young manhood. Boys now happily select a pair of summer slacks with a matching jacket and combine these with a contrasting shirt, polo shirt, swim-play trunks and even a pair of walking shorts and a beach jacket. Some of these may be in a solid color; others in a spaced or all-over pattern in which the background color picks up the tone of the solid color garments.

While many of our boys are still in the "sharp" stage (some wear bright green, yellow, purple or pink corduroy slacks with absolutely straight faces) and others have not even graduated from the jeans-and-dirty-shirt period (because trends do not develop with equal speed in all sections of the country) the future is, nevertheless, practically upon them.

Within two years even the "sharpest" youth will be sporting a charcoal gray (or brown or green) suit in a two-or three-button model; or a brilliant tweedy sports coat with smoky dark pants, and light pastel linen-type pants with dark linen-like jacket for summer. He will demand a rounded collar shirt, in broadcloth or even flannel, or he might want a button-down style. He will be wearing a neat, narrow striped tie (or a solid color one with a single embroidered motif) and perhaps even a hat.

It is hard to believe. But the transition, once it has started — and the boys' wear trade knows that it has — will inevitably continue, spreading slowly, perhaps, but surely throughout our enormous group-conscious boy population.

RUTH MILLET

As her husband's job responsibilities have increased and as he has taken on more and more time-consuming community activities, his wife has shouldered more and more of his home responsibilities.

"Now," she says, "my husband occupies the position of a star boarder. And he feels just as free to criticize the way things are run around our house as a star boarder would, too."

"He knows, and is quick to point out, just what I ought to do about the yard. He is highly critical if he ever finds that I have let the basement or garage go too long without a cleaning and straightening-up session. If any small household repair isn't promptly taken care of, he wants to know why I haven't done something about it."

"Even the children are my responsibility. He can see their faults but it never occurs to him that he is as much responsible as I am for guiding them and helping them when they need help."

"I know that I am to blame for having let him get out from under all responsibility — except the financial one — for his home and family. But what I want to know is, what do I do now?"

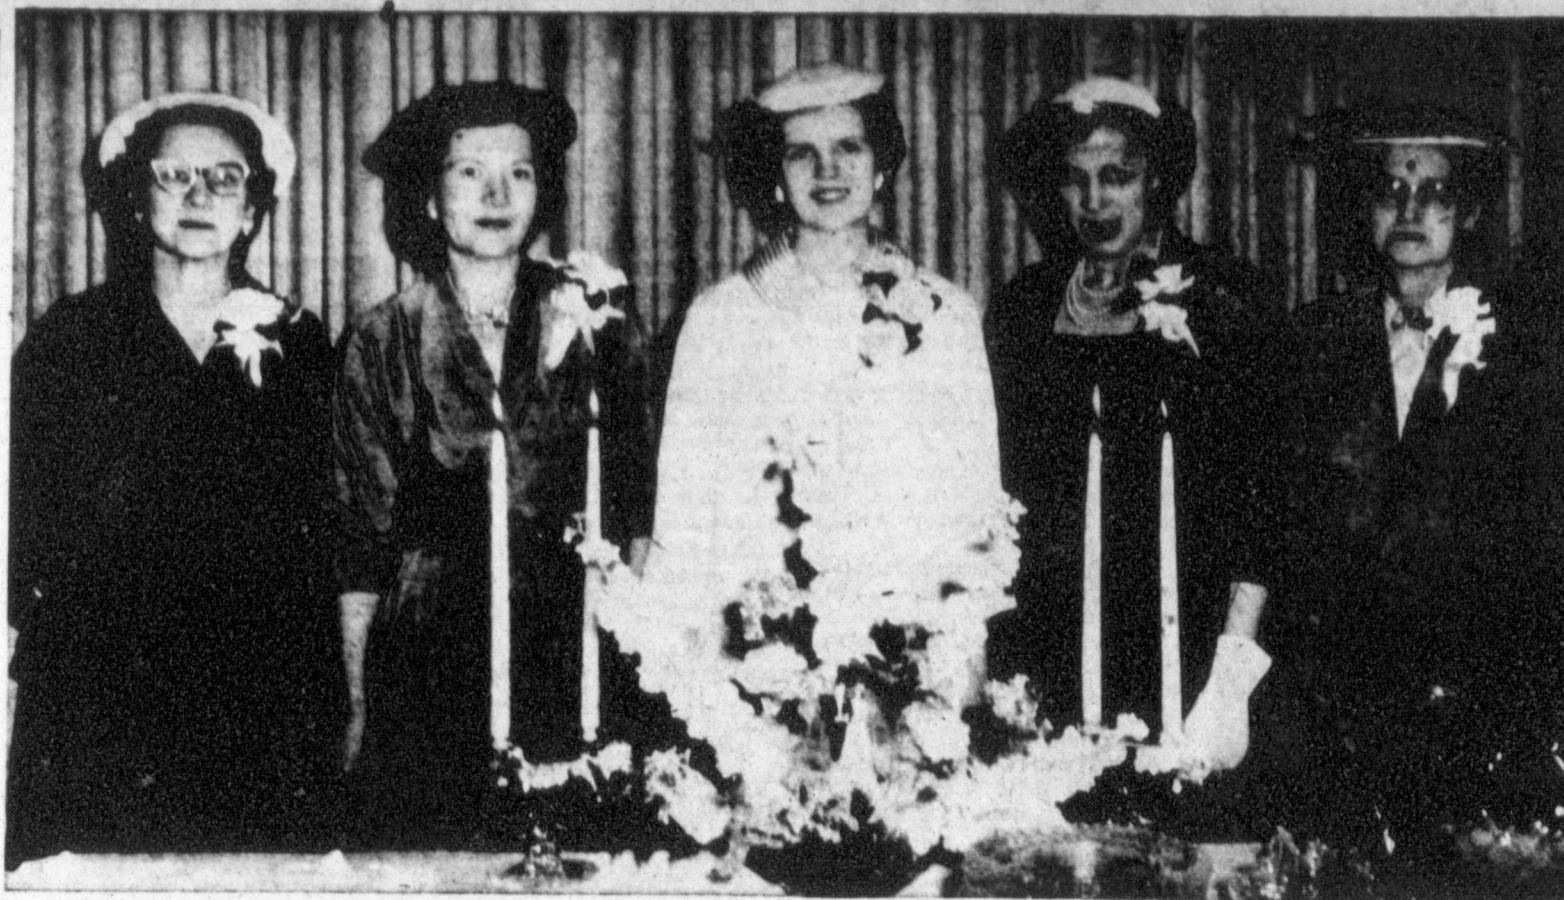

You give him back his responsibilities — one by one. It is easier to relieve a man of his responsibilities than to hand them back to him. But it can be done.

Start with the yard. Say, "Jim, I can't take care of the yard any longer. What do you think we ought to do about it, hire a yard man, or can you manage it, yourself?" Simply put the question to him and then be quiet, so he will have to answer.

When you get one situation straightened out, move on to the next, using always the same technique. "What do you want to do about it?"

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Amy's mother needed brown sugar that had not been delivered in her grocery order. So she asked her child to go to the store and get it. Then she went upstairs to install freshly-washed mats and curtains in the bathroom.

When she returned to the kitchen, Amy was still there. Before her on the table stood a half-empty milk bottle amidst a litter of cracker crumbs. Against it was propped an open picture magazine.

"I asked you to go to the store for me," her mother said. "For heaven's sake, can't I even have time to eat when I come home from school?" she demanded.

"You are not eating — you are reading," her mother said. "Please put your magazine away and go to the store."

Her daughter didn't obey. "I'm supposed to read this magazine article for school," she said. "It's for natural history homework. Don't you want me to pass natural history this term? How can I do my homework if you . . ."

Her mother walked over to the table to look straight into the angry, 11-year-old eyes. "You do not want to go to the store for me," she said. "Why don't you tell me so?"

For a moment there was only the sound of the kitchen clock ticking. Then Amy's mother kissed the top of her head. "Now go to the store," she said. "After this, tell me the truth when you don't want what I want. It's your right not to want to. Remember this always."

In our relationships with children, we should declare this right as often as possible to them. An excuse-finding child is one who is very uncertain of her rights.

Somehow, we've given her the impression that she must not frankly express resentment of any demand we make on her.

If we examine ourselves, we may find that we also fear to resist others' demands on us. We have some conscientious prejudice against saying to them, "No, I don't want to do that for you."

Living with it has convinced the child that awful things will happen to her if she doesn't willingly give anything she's asked for.

So, when she resents giving it, she serves her resentment up to us garnished with excuses that she hopes will appeal to our self-sacrificial conscience.

Skelly Schafer Club Shown Party Movie
SKELLYTOWN — (Special) — Mrs. L. F. Karlin and Mrs. LeRoy Allen were hostesses for the Skelly Schafer club meeting recently in the clubhouse at the Schafer camp.

NEA Food and Markets Editor
Our friend of fine recipes, Mabel Stegner, has convinced us fruit-ed spareribs deserve our attention. We think you will agree.

Fruited Spareribs
(2 to 4 servings)
Three pounds spareribs, 1 tablespoon kitchen bouquet, 1 tablespoon fat, 1 seedless orange, 1 lemon, 1 medium onion, 2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 cup orange juice, 1/4 cup catsup, 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco.

Have meat dealer crack spareribs. Cut between each rib to make ribs about 3 inches long. Place in mixing bowl and sprinkle with kitchen bouquet. Stir to coat ribs evenly. Melt fat in large frying pan or Dutch oven. Add ribs and brown well over moderate heat.

Meanwhile thinly slice the orange, lemon and onion. Arrange the browned ribs in even layer in shallow baking dish, about 9 x 11 inches. Sprinkle with salt, then arrange orange, lemon and onion slices in even layer over the ribs.

Combine orange juice, catsup and Tabasco and pour over the ribs. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees F., until ribs are tender and done, about 1 1/2 hours, basting with pan juices after 1 hour. When ready to serve, lift out onto hot serving dish, discarding fruit.

Next, Pearl Byrd Foster, New York restaurant manager, gave us her personal recipe for apple pie.

Apple Dream Pie
One 9-inch pie tin lined with your favorite pie pastry, 6 Rome Beauty apples — pare and thinly slice, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Add lemon rind and lemon juice to apples, toss gently.

Brush pastry generously with melted butter or margarine and arrange apples in layers, right up to the top.

Blend together 1 cup heavy cream, 2 egg yolks beaten lightly, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

Mix well 1 cup light brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon cornstarch. Stir into egg yolk mixture and pour over apples. Blend 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1 teaspoon granulated sugar and dust top apples.

Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) 15 minutes, reduce temperature to medium (375 degrees F.) and bake 30 minutes longer until apples are tender and a rich golden color. Let stand 1/2 hour before cutting. Serve warm.

BAOBY

Some babies cling longer to the evening bottle, some to the morning one. When you're weaning him to the cup, don't expect him to take to it equally eagerly at each meal. Play along with his preferences.

All of a sudden, Baby starts a habit of yawning when he's laid down to be diapered. Have a rattle or stuffed animal to give him before you lay him down. Funny noises or whistling may soothe him during this task.

Get Baby outdoors, however cold the weather. If he can nap while you stride about doing shopping, so much the better. But a steam-heated house all the time will soon sap his appetite and his interest in things about him.

Next meeting will be April 21, in the home of Mrs. Bill Cox, 733 Deane Drive.

Refreshments of doughnuts, coffee and punch were served during the social period. Present were Mmes. W. C. Epperson, Derrell Hogsett, Bill Cox, Worth Nelson, Louis Epps and Eugene Turner.

Area Arts Group Plans Dinner Meet

The area arts group will meet for dinner and a program at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the Amarillo Country Club, according to Mrs. Raymond Harrah Sr., president. The executive board will meet at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Featured speaker will be Eddie Melin of Amarillo, board member of the Amarillo Symphony and owner of the Cooper-Melin book store. Art works of students of the University of Texas, Colorado University, and the University of Oklahoma will be exhibited. The invocations will be given by Rev. Smythe Lindsey of Amarillo.

Special music will be presented by the Chamber Music Quartet of the Amarillo Symphony.

The event is open to anyone interested in the Arts. Reservations plus a remittance of $2.50 must be received by Mrs. H. E. Erlanson, 2500 Julian Boulevard, Amarillo, by noon Thursday.

Sewing Program Given At Meeting Of Goodwill Club

The Goodwill Home Demonstration Club met recently in the home of Mrs. A. P. Coombes, 1212 E. Frederic.

A sewing demonstration was given by Miss Helen Dunlap, county HD agent. She showed the women how to attach the bodice of a dress to the skirt by the Bishop method, sewing a strip of selvedge to the skirt waist for reinforcement. She also demonstrated how to finish a neckline for a collarless blouse.

Next meeting will be April 21, in the home of Mrs. Bill Cox, 733 Deane Drive.

Refreshments of doughnuts, coffee and punch were served during the social period. Present were Mmes. W. C. Epperson, Derrell Hogsett, Bill Cox, Worth Nelson, Louis Epps and Eugene Turner.

TV Beating Movies To Punch In Showing New Best Sellers

BY ALINE BOBBY
HOLLYWOOD — UP — Television is beating movies to the punch by signing best-selling novels before they wind up as films or plays.

Television eats up stories relentlessly, but producer Martin Manulis of CBS-TV's "Climax!", a live dramatic program, has discovered new territory in new books.

A best-seller, J. P. Marquand's "Sincerely, Willis Wayde," will be made into a teleplay before going to the movies and Broadway.

Independent movie producer Henry Ginsberg bought the movie rights, but Marquand sold the story to TV on the theory it could be a story "test" for stars to watch.

Marquand thought the telecast might interest a star in the film as it would show how the book could be successfully dramatized, Manulis explained.

"We don't think it will hurt the movie. The American public is so used to seeing the same material in all media. They read a novel, see the play and go to the movie."

The next new book Manulis hopes to trap is "The Life of Laurette Taylor" which the late actress daughter has barely finished writing.

"Climax!" is trying to get away from its original formula of murder stories into a more general field. Last week it brought Claude Colbert back to her hit movie, "Private Worlds." The week before Rory Calhoun did "Champion," adapted, Manulis insists, from the original Ring Lardner story and not from the Kirk Douglas movie.

For future programs Ernest Hemingway's "Farewell to Arms" is already set, a major victory on the battlefield on TV producers grabbing from stories.

Stars are anxious now to appear on such live dramatic shows as "Climax!" In fact, actors are beating on Manulis' door for the "Sincerely, Willis Wayde" telecast because the thespian who wins that role would be first in line for the movie.

The producer thinks live TV dramas are here to stay, despite inroads by Hollywood filmed stories for TV.

"The filmed shows are shot quickly and you just don't get vitality in them," he says. "Actors act better in live shows. The best in them just doesn't rise in a filmed show."

"And I don't think audiences mind the fluffs on live dramas. It gives them the feeling they're getting in on something when a stage-hand wanders by."

High Court Overrules Gas Limits

WASHINGTON — UP — The Supreme Court Monday threw out an Oklahoma minimum price regulation on processed natural gas sold for immediate shipment out of state.

In a brief 7-to-1 opinion, the court said such regulation is exclusively the business of the Federal Power Commission.

Justice William O. Douglas dissented. He recalled that the court's decision last year that such a regulation cannot be imposed by a state. But he noted this decision has not been followed by enactment of a federal law. He said the state should be allowed to regulate the price until a federal law is passed.

The majority, however, reversed an Oklahoma Supreme Court decision of a year ago upholding the minimum price.

The state had set a minimum price of 8.22 cents per thousand cubic feet on gas from the Guymon Hugoton field. The state court said this was done to eliminate waste and for conservation purposes and therefore was within the state's power.

The Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America appealed. It contended the action interfered with interstate commerce and that the regulation as stated for out-of-state shipment was under the authority of the FPC not the state.

Natural bought its gas from the Panoma Corp. in Texas county, Okla. The processed gas became the property of the firm when it entered pipelines transmitting it to out-of-state markets.

The company charged that the price regulation was the "drastic effect of transferring from the pockets of consumers of gas to those of a few producers millions of dollars annually."

The Oklahoma Corporation Commission in 1952 hiked the minimum price of natural gas from seven cents to 9.8 cents and for the first time included processed gas as well as raw natural gas. Processed, or residue gas is natural gas with liquid hydrocarbons such as gasoline, butane and propane removed. The Natural Gas Pipeline Co. ships to markets in Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois and Indiana.

Deserter Added To FBI List

WASHINGTON — UP — An Army deserter and bad check artist, described as a plague to U. S. and Canadian police, was added Monday to the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives.

The criminal, Daniel William O'Connor, 26, already was on Canada's list of "most wanted" on charges of attempting to murder a Royal Canadian police officer.

The FBI said O'Connor deserted the United States Army on May 6, 1946, while stationed at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Two years later, O'Connor received a two-year sentence at Windsor, Ontario, for breaking into a hotel room.

The FBI said the deserter re-entered the United States in the spring of 1953 driving an automobile rented in Canada. O'Connor victimized merchants throughout North Dakota, Montana and Oregon with his bogus check activities.

O'Connor also is under indictment for transporting a stolen car interstate. This charge was returned by federal grand jury at Butte, Mont., on Nov. 9, 1954, following his check writing spree through the northwestern area.

O'Connor was described as a barrel-chested, muscular individual who has worked as a lifeguard, wrestler and truck driver and whose hobby is weight lifting. The FBI said he probably is armed.

O'Connor replaced Garland William Daniels on the FBI's most wanted list. Daniels, an escaped federal prisoner, was caught at Los Angeles, Calif., March 29.

The railway travel time between Oslo and Hamburg will be cut from 24 to 18 hours starting May 22.

WIDOW QUESTIONED

Mrs. Mary Clark, widow of wealthy oil man, William P. Clark, is questioned by Fort Worth Asst. District Atty. Randall Riley, in death of her husband who was shot to death May 22, 1953 in his 23-room mansion. An ex-convict, Harry Huggins, told police Mrs. Clark hired him and two other ex-convicts to murder her husband during a robbery, offering them $10,000 for the slaying. (NEA Telephoto)

Nautilus Back To Sea

GROTON, Conn.—UP—The atomic submarine Nautilus went back to sea Monday, but the Navy refused to say where she was heading or for what reason.
The Nautilus has completed builders' trials and last week made several runs for the benefit of the Navy Survey Board, which will decide whether the nuclear-powered craft is acceptable to become a ship of the line.
A Navy spokesman said Monday's trip was of a "classified" nature. He refused to say how long the Nautilus would be out.
Unofficially it was reported the trip was a shakedown cruise that might take the atomic vessel thousands of miles. The Nautilus is capable of traveling around the world at top speed without resurfacing.

South Texas Crime, Disease Rate Declines

WASHINGTON—UP—Crime and disease rates in South Texas and California have dropped since the roundup of Mexican wetbacks began last June.
In testimony before a House Appropriations subcommittee a month ago, and released Monday, Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing (ret.), commissioner of immigration, said 250,000 of the illegal migrant workers were arrested and deported to Mexico in the last six months of 1954.
"A year ago the border patrol was faced with the disheartening task of apprehending and expelling more than 3,000 wetbacks each day many of them repeaters. Apprehensions are now running slightly less than 300 daily," he said.
Smuggling, burglaries and other crimes by aliens have dropped proportionately, Swing said, and disease and infant mortality rates also are down.
Swing said border reports show that almost half of the wetbacks are women, children and teenagers "crossing in densely populated areas for petty thievery, and scavenging and bringing over communicable diseases."

Senale Restaurant Loses Menus In Tourist Season

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON—UP—What's new in Washington:
During the tourist season, the Senale restaurant loses a lot of menus. Everybody wants a copy of the famed bean soup, which sells for 20 cents a piping hot bowl.
For those who came in late the recipe for eight people is: Two pounds of small navy beans washed and run through hot water until the beans are white. Put on the fire with four quarts of water and then add one and a half pounds of smoked ham hocks. Boil slowly about three hours in a covered pot. Braise one onion chopped in a little butter and when light brown put in bean soup. Then add a little pepper. Do not add salt until ready to serve. At the Senale restaurant you can get a generous helping of corn bread for a nickel extra, and nobody much cares if you take along the menu.
The Republican Policy committee came up with a "highlight" on the release of the Yalta papers and attached a footnote, which said: "Note. Neither the members of the GOP Policy committee nor other Republican senators are responsible for the statements herein contained, except as are willing to endorse and make their own."
"Bargain" shuttle service is being offered by one of the big bus lines for sight-seers. The buses leave every 15 minutes from downtown spots and take in the Capitol, the Washington monument, the Jefferson and Lincoln memorials, the tidal basin, Smithsonian, the White House and other places. Cost per head is 35 cents. If the tourist stays with the mob. If he wants to stray, he is given a check and can get back aboard the next bus for another two-bits. It costs $3 to $10 on other tours, according to whether you go by cab or on a conducted bus. And the cab and conducted bus people likely don't like the new bargain deal.

Find a person in the capital any time of the year who doesn't have a Brownie or an expensive camera with him and I'll show you a native of the town. The shutter fans mostly are visitors.
Well, the greater national capital committee is sponsoring a photo contest for the best shots of the famed cherry blossoms. The pictures must be taken before April 15 and submitted by April 25.
Along the Potomac River there are four drawbridges. And from now on they will have less up and down work to do. The American Oil Co. is using flatter barges to carry its refined gasoline on its way. The barges go under the bridges without any lifting.

Security Membership

In the plethora of suggestions for solving the Asiatic muddle created by the United Nations and our own faltering policies, comes now the south-paw senator from Minnesota, Hubert H. Humphrey, with an idea.

With a strange avoidance of logic, Mr. Humphrey concludes that our problems in the Orient stem from the fact that Nationalist China occupies a seat in the U. N. His suggestion is that we oust Nationalist China from her position on the Security Council and invite India to have the chair.

How this could strengthen American prestige at home, abroad, or in that miscegenation of bed-fellows misnamed the United Nations, is not explained.

Since Nationalist China is the only real friend we have in the Security Council — despite our treatment of her she has remained steadfast — it would be interesting to see what would develop if Socialist India got in the saddle along with Socialist Britain, Socialist France and Communist Russia.

Humphrey's bold bid has a resemblance to logic in only one place. That is at the point where Hubert concludes that if America suggested the switch, Russia would undoubtedly turn down the suggestion, thereby straining relations with India, who wouldn't like to be turned down. We take leave to doubt the efficacy of such a move.

Russia has opposed virtually all our suggestions, but she is just contrary enough to see through this one and go along with the idea. Then, imagine Humphrey's embarrassment.

Besides, we come to a moot point with respect to the United Nations itself. As a direct result of our membership in this welter of one-worlders we now behold the spectacle of this great nation, dedicated to individual liberty and the dignity of man, stooping to gutter-snipe tactics in international affairs. Like any rube at poker we are caught stupidly signaling our aces and bluffing our way toward World Government, which Humphrey and others of his port-sided politics don't dare reveal to the American people.

This nation is no better than the principles to which it holds. The progress we have made in the past has been based squarely on the stern and uncompromising nature of our hardy pioneers who refused to trifle with iniquity. America's towering stature in a world of compromise, disillusion and hate has begun to shrink. Instead of minding our own business we are, through international chicanery, attempting to maneuver other nations according to our own ideas.

Our greatness is long overdue for a resurrection. We look forward to the day when someone in Congress might suggest that we stop trying to please our enemies and instead try to understand and be worthy of our friends.

Hank Goes Out On Limb And Picks 'Em Once Again

By HENRY McEMORE

In preparing my predictions for the 1955 major league baseball season I was careful to avoid the pitfalls into which I fell about this time a year ago.

In reading my 1954 forecast I apared no expense. I visited Cooperstown and spent a night in the Hall of Fame communing with the busts of the immortals. I rented a sizable yacht for a day in order to be able to ask Casey Stengel his advice by ship-to-shore radio-telephone. I wired all the grounds keepers and bat boys for inside tips, and laid out a sizable chunk of cash to have a phrenologist read the bumps on an official Spalding baseball.

I corresponded with each of the 24 managers, paid for an extra-long-range weather forecast (hot, muggy days can upset a team with a weak catching staff, just as moderate to fresh winds from northwest can bring out the weakness in a centerfielder), passed out autographs of Commissioner Ford Frick in my album, slept on a pillow stuffed with rabbits' feet, seen horoscopes, and played catch with my wife.

So what happened? I selected the St. Louis Cardinals to win the National League pennant in the National, and the Pittsburgh Pirates to win the World Series. In the opening game of the Orioles and Pirates that they were going to be the champions of their leagues. When they lost to the Yankees, I was a notch in the shattering defeat of the players' confidence in the bums.

In 1954 I predicted correctly one of the 1954 season's players out on an even when the Yankees beat the Orioles in the first game of the season. I was wrong on the Yankees, and I was wrong on the Orioles. I was wrong on the Yankees, and I was wrong on the Orioles.

Orioles got on base three times in a row, thanks to being hit twice by the pitcher and a base on balls.

My 1955 predictions, which you will see in a minute, didn't cost me a penny, and they won't cost you a penny unless you bet on them. I studiously avoided reading about what the rookies did in spring training, because if there is anything that makes a flash in the pan look like the Eternal Light that thing is a rookie's performance under the palms of Florida and California.

I don't know what players have some arms, some heads, or have developed spurs on their heels so they have to walk like cockroaches. For all I know about the trades and swaps and purchases, Harold Stassen may be the new manager of the Braves and Willie Mays may have been traded by the Giants for a new awning for the bullpen and an ambidextrous relief pitcher.

This makes my mind a clean slate, so to speak, and my selections are bound to be without prejudice, bias, or common sense. But the fan's mind, come October, is a clean slate insofar as knowing what predictions writers made back in April, so it all balances out.

In the American I like New York, Cleveland, Chicago, Boston, Washington, Baltimore, Kansas City (if that's where the A's went), and Detroit.

In the National I like Willie Mays (if the Giants didn't trade him for that awning), Brooklyn, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Robin Roberts, Cincinnati, Chicago, and Pittsburgh.

Wouldn't it be a miracle if they finished that way? A miracle? I'd say about twice as miraculous as winning the Irish Sweepstakes without buying a ticket.

The Ethics Of The Labor Unions Annual Wage

As we read about the CIO making an assessment to accumulate a $25,000,000 defense fund to force an annual wage, it becomes an appropriate time to analyze what labor unions do to the character of their members.

Character Destroying Institution Readers of this column know that I have had in the past much to say about how labor unions keep wage levels down because they have never added any new wealth and have prevented billions of dollars of wealth from being created.

There is a very definite reason why labor unions keep wage levels down. That reason is that labor unions weaken the character of their members. Their objective is to relieve the individual worker from being responsible or dependable. Their objective also is to relieve the group from being responsible or dependable. Labor unions insist that they shall not make a binding contract that holds both parties equally responsible. All labor unions want is an option. They want it so their workers can work if they want to but are under no obligation to work. Now, however, they are showing their real lack of character. They want the employer to guarantee an annual wage, and they guarantee nothing.

This kind of an act makes the worker a second-rate citizen. It makes him different from his employer. It sets him apart from the rest of mankind. He wants an option for which he gives nothing in return. He places himself as being incapable of being self-reliant and responsible. It is hard to think of anything that does more harm to an individual than to get it into his head that he is a second-rate citizen—that he need not be responsible and that other people need be responsible.

The worker who is responsible and wants no special privilege and insists that he does not want to be employed unless he and the employer both believe they have a greater benefit by the contract than any other contract they can make is a citizen who can hold his head high, retain his self-respect and the dignity that belongs to man, and look the whole world in the face. He is then on a par with everyone. He needs take a back seat to no one. He is rendering a service that is wanted, a voluntary market. He knows he is adding to the wealth of the world and benefiting not only himself, but his employer and every other worker in the world.

But the union member cannot take this position. Especially can he not take it when he is asking for a guaranteed annual wage that would require an employer to pay him for doing nothing an amount equal to half of his established seniority wage. In other words, if he has been employed for four years and his employer cannot sell his product, the employer will be obliged to pay him for two years for doing nothing. How can any man have his self-respect and demand being paid for nothing? Of course, the labor unions by their feather-bedding and by their seniority have so degraded the character of their leaders that they do not even recognize that they are breaking down the morale and the dignity of the individual.

Free Men Always Win

It is because the open shop or the non-union shop can have free men that, everything else being equal, they can always serve their customers better than the union shop that destroys the self-reliance and the dignity of the workers and makes them subservient to the union bosses. Employers who believe in the competitive system and the free market and see that labor unions degrade the character of the workers always get the best men. They get the men with dignity and the men with self-reliance and self-respect, and an organization of this kind where the men enjoy their work and can use their consciences always can get better team work than where the men are under the whim of the majority — where there is no conscience used.

As a little evidence of the above, I remember a conscientious, Christian foreman who I had told me that he bowed his head in shame that he had to belong to the Printers' Union that did the things that the Printers' Union did. The Printers' Union, like all other unions, insists on seniority and that the individual must not use his conscience and make an individual contract, but he must deaden his conscience and comply with the will of the majority of the union labor leaders who have grabbed control of the unions.

While the material loss to society due to labor union is stupendous and keeps the standard of living down, the worst part of labor unions is that they weaken the character and the self-respect of the workers and the dignity of man.

The columns are open to any believer in labor unions to answer the above, provided he will answer questions on the subject without evasion.

Only Dixie Feels Deeply On School Segregation

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Authentic spokesmen for the South have warned the White House and the Supreme Court directly and indirectly that any attempt to enforce school desegregation will be resisted to the stubborn and bitter end.

From all evidence available, even a slow and evolutionary process will sharpen rather than solve racial conflicts, possibly resulting in sporadic violence.

Despite these friendly warnings, the Eisenhower Administration approaches the final phases of this critical problem as if it were a routine matter. The Supreme Court, a Roosevelt Truman body that originally decreed against segregation, thinks that it can implement its decision by gentle, legal means. So, perhaps, its predecessors felt about the fateful Dred Scott decision.

Unfortunately, public opinion outside the South has been lulled into a similar complacency, although it is entirely erroneous. Where more immediate and international crises have not forced newspapers and magazines to neglect or play down the controversy, some have given an erroneous impression of the South's reaction.

A national weekly of vast circulation is largely responsible for this failure to recognize the seriousness of this domestic crisis. It recently published an article which said that the South would not resist this revolution in its social and education system. Excerpts were reprinted and distributed widely.

It now develops that the author, although a white woman, is a member of the National Association for the Protection of the Colored People. Southern members of Congress insist that she misrepresented the majority viewpoint below the Mason and Dixon line. A score of southern editors and writers, according to the M.C.'s, have offered to write a rebuttal article, but the magazine editors reply that they do not "engage in controversy."

For various reasons, leading southerners on Capitol Hill have refrained bluntly from discussing the matter. They prefer to wait upon whatever method the White House, Supreme Court and Department of Justice adopt for actual execution of the school desegregation order. They also wait upon their respective states' action.

Thus, the South has no national or recognized spokesman to publicize the grave dangers confronting the country. But almost every newspaper in that section declares flatly and repeatedly that there may be peril, including violence, over the proposed overturn of their educational institutions. As in every section, there are hotspots in Dixie.

The silence and misunderstanding over what may lie ahead are ominous, in the opinion of southern leaders, whose voices are like those crying in the wilderness insofar as the rest of the country is concerned.

Like so many reforms, it is predicted that this will harm rather than help the colored people in their search for equal educational advantages. The tremendous strides they have achieved during the Roosevelt-Truman Regime, which changed them from Republicans to Democrats, may be slowed down for years.

Under the "separate but equal" Supreme Court decision of years ago, the South has spent hundreds of millions on new schools for Negroes. In South Carolina, site of Fort Sumter, ex-Governor James F. Byrnes inaugurated a $100,000 building program. In some areas, schools for Negroes have more modern architecture and equipment than older structures reserved for white children.

Different states, of course, will resort to different tactics in the final stages. Several Legislatures have enacted legislation which will virtually transform the present public school system into a private affair, thus permitting prohibition of race mingling.

For the courts to overthrow this substitute setup will require years of litigation more bitter and divisive than this country has seen or suffered from in modern times. The Supreme Court's words fell on deaf and angry ears in Dixie!

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

We can be proud of the progress which has been made in helping children who are handicapped from disease or injury. It seems incredible that so little attention was formerly paid to youngsters who were crippled and had serious diseases interfering with their health and activity but fortunately this is no longer the case. Not only can more be done by medical or surgical means for youngsters who are handicapped in many instances, but also much greater efforts are being made to help these youngsters to lead as nearly normal lives as possible.

Among other signs of progress is the greater recognition of the fact that handicapped youngsters need play just as much as those who are not. Numerous voluntary organizations as well as agencies of local and federal government have recognized this situation and are taking active steps to remedy the deficiencies. One way in which this is done is to provide the possibilities for summer camping for more and more handicapped youngsters.

CAMPING IN THE summer has been one of the great delights of many children for years. Now, the camping experience for handicapped children (adjusted to the particular needs of the youngster) is available for many. The special camps are not exclusively the privilege of the rich. Through the generosity of many public-spirited citizens it is often possible to send children who need it to some of these camps under scholarships or partial scholarships. For example, the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, (11 South LaSalle Street, Chicago 3, Illinois) in cooperation with the American Camping Association (343 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois) serves as the clearing house for the supply of information on camps for crippled children which are located in many parts of the continent.

Americans Unconcerned On Confessed 'Celebrities'

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I have been trying to understand the popular attitude in our confused and bothered country toward "celebrities" who continue to thrive notwithstanding disclosures about them and confessions by them. By standards which public opinion enforced a few years ago, these persons would have been widely ostracized.

Grover Bergdoll, the "slacker," was held in loathing by most Americans of even perfunctory patriotism. He had refused to serve in the First World War. He was the descendant of a long line of Germans who were, for all we could say to the contrary, as good as typical Americans. He refused to fight against his own blood. He rejected propaganda depicting France as an attractive, feminine nation, fully set upon by a shaggy brute. This was a version which many Americans have since revised. Bergdoll had great courage and determination. But we damned him utterly because he did not believe as we did and refused to go to a war to preserve the British Empire against the challenge of Wilhelm, who was planting his flag on much unclaimed real estate. Like George V, across the North Sea, he had proclaimed himself "emperor," with as little justification.

Whatever the merits of Bergdoll's case, he is historic as a slacker.

I am perplexed by other particular cases which were disclosed after our Second World War. One was a Hollywood actor. By the acknowledged theatrical standards he is a genius. Since V-J Day he has, oddly, enjoyed the favor of the present British Empire and other members of the royal circle. This man's conduct was flagrant. When he was called up he gave an impression of great nervousness. After some time, thanks to the intervention of influential persons who had a financial stake in his career, he was excused and his file was withdrawn or destroyed. General Hershey, the director of the draft, said this fellow appeared so much afraid that it was deemed wise to rid of him lest he cause panic among others in battle. That was his bureau's policy and would continue to be unless large numbers of draftees should pretend to be afraid, even though they were not, in order to escape danger. This man was so timorous that even the U.S.O. was forbidden to send him anywhere overseas as an entertainer.

Yet, he has gone on and on to wealth and acclaim.

At gala premises on Broadway, prominent Americans elbow and scuffle to be photographed with him. There is another type of case. Soon after Pearl Harbor he, this one proudly flaunted in theatrical hangouts a 1-A card and said he would be glad to fight against Nazi-Fascism. But a year or so later the news was published that he was eating his heart out because a doctor had disqualified him. He never went overseas even to entertain. He was a quarrelsome individual and sometimes he overbid his hand. In Chicago, a young roughneck reporter from back of the yards, lately home from war in the Pacific, offended this temperamental star, who threatened to bat his ears off. The young roughneck said, "Where? When?" and tried to pull him out of a transport plane. Later it developed that the great artist had given a large donation to a democratic campaign fund. He is to this day a great celebrity notwithstanding a scandalous life.

Ed Sullivan, who wears tires of telling of a close call he had in the First World War, when he almost enlisted in the Marines, has a remarkably soft spot for this type of underprivileged person. He tried to rescue Paul Draper from boycott and oblivion after Draper and Larry Adler had put to legal persecution a young matron of Greenwich, Conn., who had so they said, accused them of being pro-Communist. They immediately slapped an attachment on her home and small bank account. Her distress was indeed pathetic. But Sullivan took it upon himself to try to rehabilitate Draper by using him on a radio program. The effort did not succeed. Incidentally, Draper and Adler were content with a hung jury and withdrew their suit.

Another time, Sullivan said Frank Sinatra was "for" the underprivileged and implied that whoever refused to admire him was hostile to children of "minorities."

This indorsement was expressed in the face of Sinatra's connection with a debauch in Havana with Lucky Luciano and other FBI characters all involved in narcotics, prostitution or "syndicate" gambling. It was long after he had backed with money as underworld blameworthy who started a filthy weekly in Hollywood and finally went to prison for a long term.

Again, Sullivan passionately defended Josephine Baker, an elderly kooch dancer who had kicked up disorder in the Stork Club by prearranged design. This woman is now barred from the United States for many utterances hostile to this country and our people. Sullivan saluted her as a great artist and brave fighter for American principles.

Only a few days ago he wrote a sentimental but erroneous column about a movie director who was a Communist but quit. Sullivan said this brave decision had proved that Hollywood was cordial to enemies of Communism. His facts were faulty, for this heap of his had run with the party for years when that was the stylish and profitable course. He did quit but the names were old stuff, already notorious. So he did nothing to earn Sullivan's applause. And Communism is still stylish in Hollywood under false names.

As far as I know, Sullivan has not yet knighted James Roosevelt but he may get around to it on the Ford program. The bald eagle of the dynasty is an excellent example of the public apathy toward violations of old standards. His letter blackening the reputations of a dozen married women needs no retelling now. It elected him to Congress. Of itself, the letter is only incidental to the fact that nowadays nothing nauseating makes Americans sick.

The Nation's Press

HELPING A PILOT

(Omaha World-Herald)

Last week the British Minister of Health, Iain MacLeod, reported to the House of Commons on the effects of hydrogen and atomic bomb explosions. He said that in the opinion of scientists the radiation from test explosions was not dangerous. He quoted one internationally respected scientist as saying that "the personally was a good deal more worried about crossing the road than about the present levels of irradiation."

Britishers, press and public alike, seem to have accepted the reassurance of their Government. But look what is going on in the United States:

The Atomic Energy Commission, which should be in a position to know, has said what the British Government is saying, that there is no danger. But certain other scientists are raising doubts. By the oddest of coincidences the doubts arise with the current campaign of the New York Daily Worker and other Communist mouthpieces to stop the bomb tests.

Obviously a well-planned and most vigorous campaign is being waged by the Kremlin to frighten Americans so that they will abandon their bomb tests. Nothing is mentioned, of course, about Russian tests.

One might suppose that the American press, radio and television would be acutely aware of this red activity. Yet the clarity-loving scientists are given a great deal of time and space in the news, and relatively little to being said about the AEC position.

For example, last Wednesday night on John Cameron Swayze's NBC television news show, Dr. Linus Pauling was given a nationwide audience for his talk about alleged dangers to the earth's atmosphere resulting from the test explosions. He talked on gases and mutations, and the probability of an increase in abnormal births if the tests are continued. Pauling's words were enough to scare the daylights out of young wives and mothers.

And who is Linus Pauling? A California Institute of Technology professor who has been associated with countless Red fronts and who has a consistent record of backing the Kremlin line, though he denies he is a communist.

Reflection

...with JAMES C. McWHIRTER, President, National Association

Users, according to THE WALL STREET JOURNAL, are the result of mountain - climbing over mole-hills.

Worry, some has said, is the interest we pay on troubles that never happen.

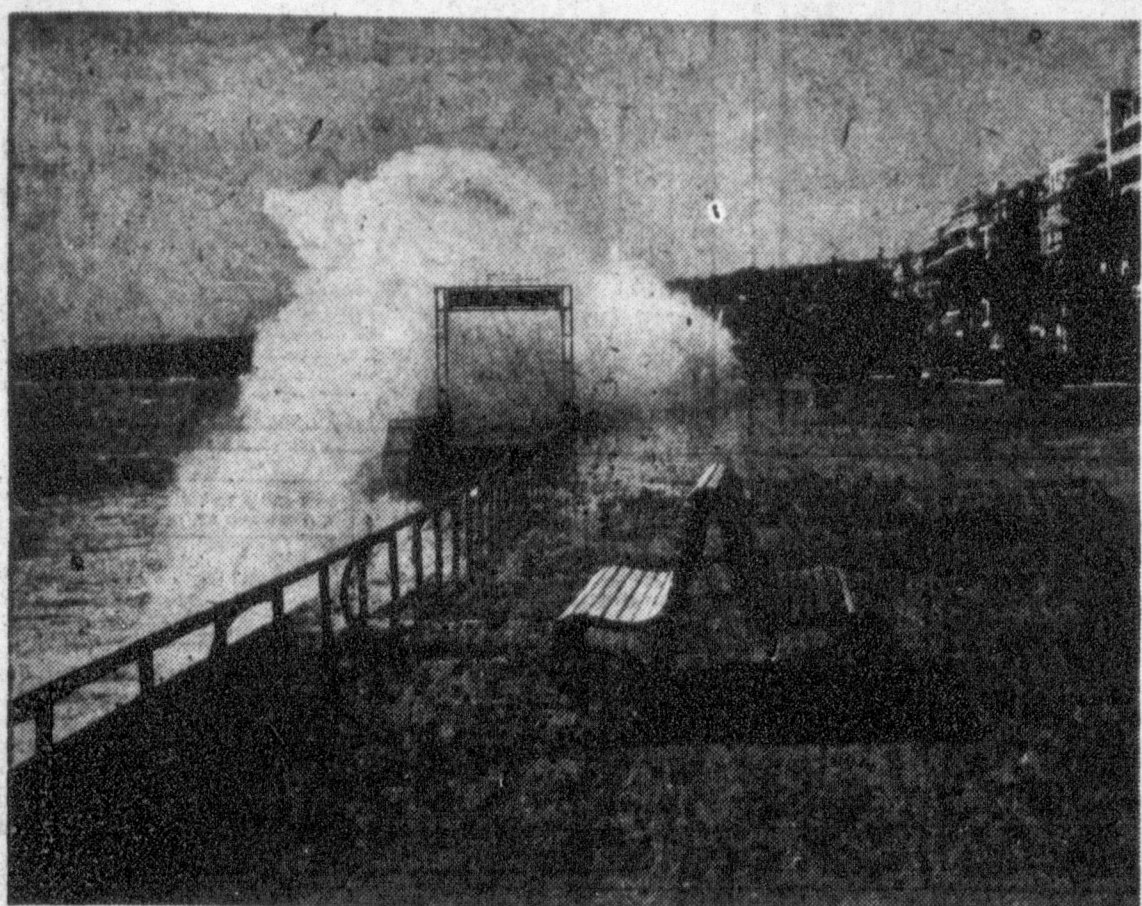

Nearly two thousand years ago Jesus admonished us: "Do not ... be anxious about tomorrow," and, on another occasion, "Are not two sparrows sold for a half-penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground without your Father. The very hairs on your head are all numbered. Cease to be afraid! You are of greater value than many sparrows" (both passages from Montgomery translation).

John Massfield once wrote: "His face is filled with broken commandments." And he might have added that broken commandments affect us inwardly even more than outwardly.

We cannot break God's commandments without sooner or later being called to account. This is the one thing we need to fear—that we take our way instead of God's way, that we follow our inclinations instead of God's admonitions. And one of God's most frequently repeated admonitions is: "Fear not ... be of good courage." Why do we so habitually disobey Him?

PICTURE NEWS

AROUND THE WORLD

CUTTING UP—That Old Devil Sea showed some of her fury to landlubbers along the normally calm shores of the French Riviera, at Nice. The famed promenade there is deserted by bathers and strollers as a storm brings huge waves and stones ashore.

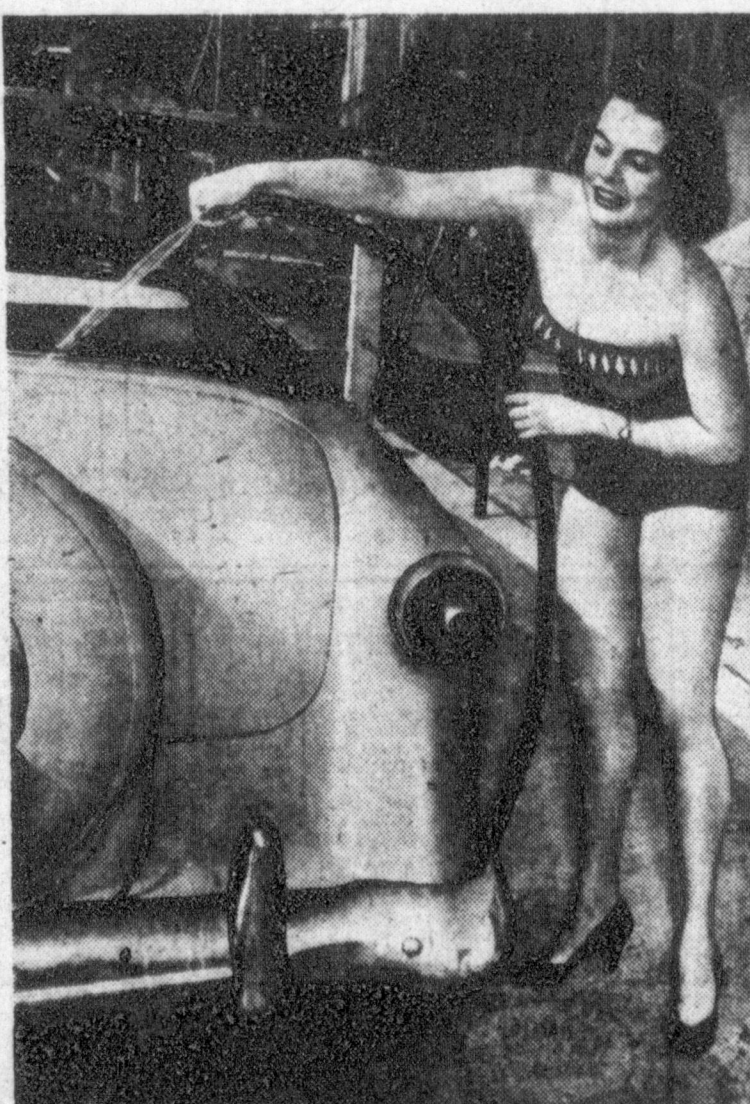

IT'S THE SEA AIR—When young Tracy Jones arrived by ship in San Francisco, he was just too sleepy to do anything but catnap amid the luggage on deck. Born in Nanking, China, Tracy is the son of an American Methodist minister just returned from the Far East to take up duties in New York.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER—Two boys, one French and one American, are gazing at an engraving which shows the Statue of Liberty on exhibition in Paris before it was sent to the U. S. and erected on Bedloe's Island. The work of sculptor Frederic Auguste Bartholdi, the enduring symbol of Franco-American friendship was dedicated in his presence on October 28, 1886, by President Grover Cleveland. The engraving is in the U. S. Embassy in Paris.

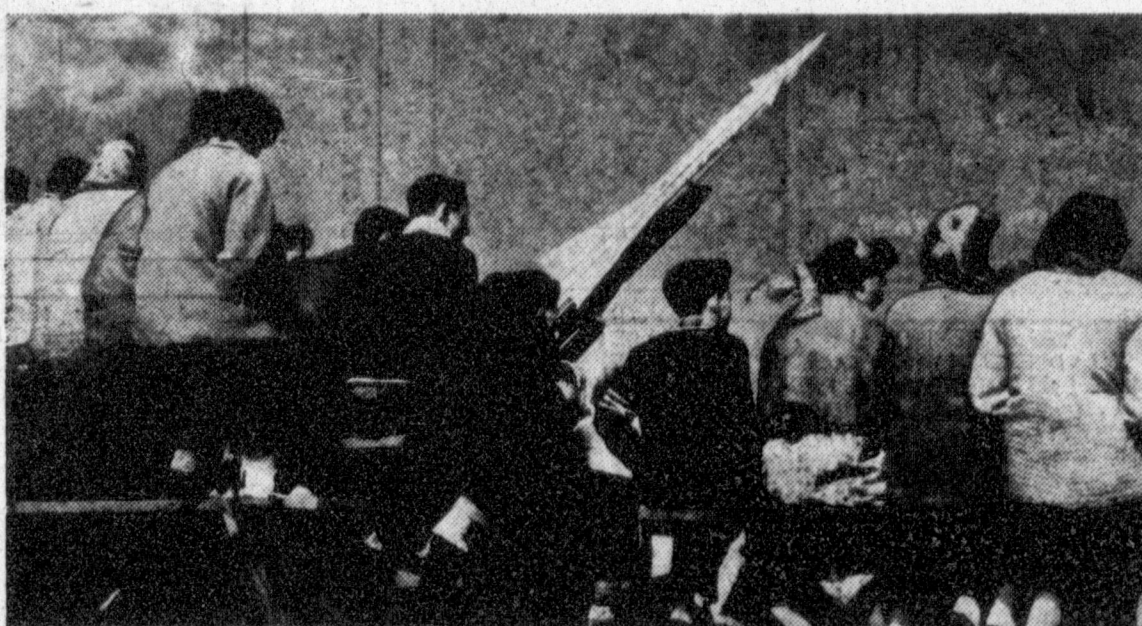

COINING A FAVORITE—Coin discs of matching satin, scattered from neckline to hem, lend a dress-up air to a simple sheath of ice blue linen. A narrow band of satin piping and two slender self bows accent the dropped waistline of the slim dress which is finished with a scoop neckline.

SPRING CLEANING—Actress Myrna Hansen, who was "Miss U. S. A." in the 1953 Miss Universe contest, used some good weather in Hollywood to get outside and wash her car. Myrna is a former Chicago girl, and the five-foot-seven brunette is doing very well for herself in the film capital.

10-MINUTE BREAK—During rehearsal of "Inherit the Wind," in New York, actor Paul Muni, right, and producer-director Herman Shumlin had a conference. Muni is playing the role of Clarence Darrow in the play about the famous Scopes evolution trial which took place in Dayton, Tenn., in 1925.

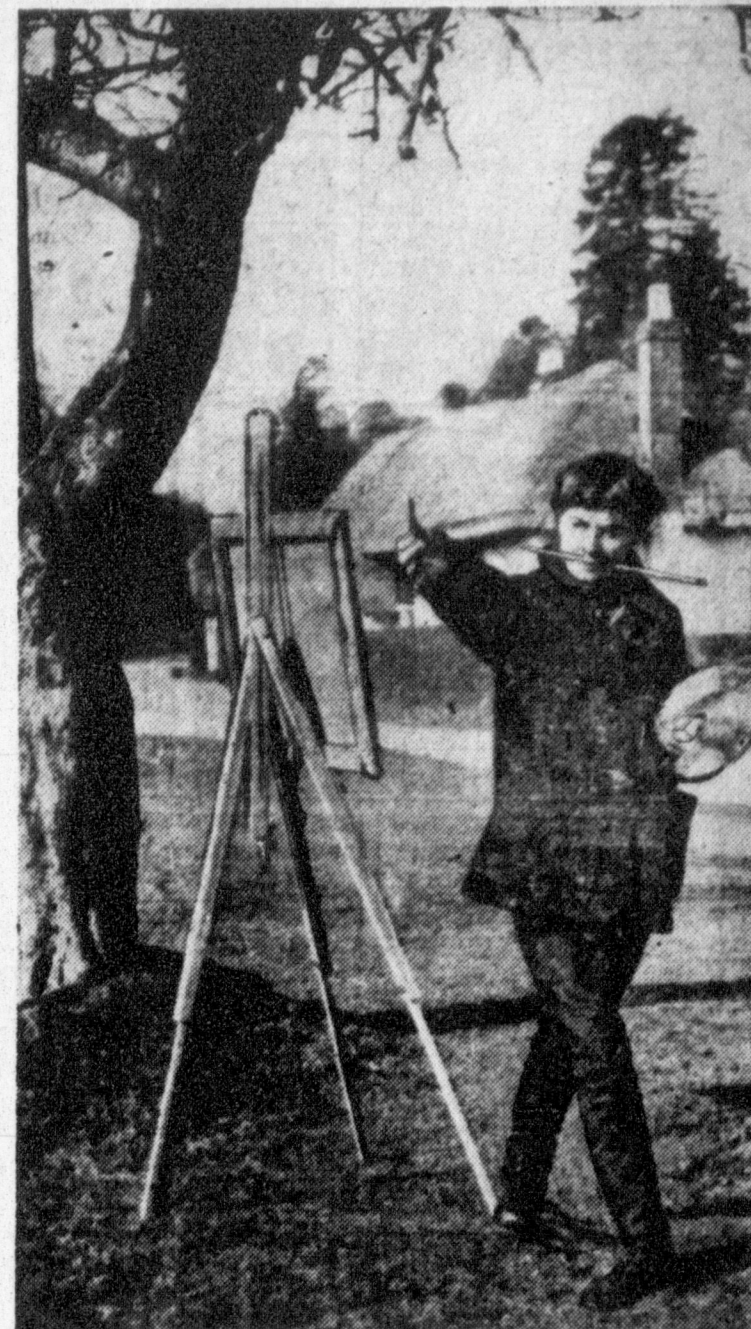

EDUCATION PROBLEM—Some high school students in Washington, D. C., sat in bleacher seats to watch a demonstration of a Nike missile launching rack. The Nike wasn't fired and later the pupils saw how the 601st Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion's 90 and 120-millimeter guns are worked. The outdoor class was held as an experiment.

ALL KIDDING ASIDE—Mama goat demanded a recount when she delivered quadruplets in York Springs, Pa., but resigned herself to handling a jackpot litter. Her owner, George Lay, claims it's the biggest litter he has seen in 12 years of goat-raising.

HERE SHE IS!—During a rehearsal for a radio show at the CBS studios in New York, dancing star Mae Murray showed the audience some of her skill. The lovely favorite of silent films still has what it takes.

RULE OF THUMB—Art student Avril Rowe takes a perspective on the English countryside for a painting in Southampton. The young student is completing her fourth year at the Southern College of Art and has gained admittance to London's famous Slade School of Art. Only 60 pupils a year are accepted there from about 2000 applicants from all over the world. Her hobbies include Egyptology, psychology and visits to Italy.

HATCHING TIME—This 11-foot python at a zoo in Munich, Germany, made reptile history by laying 30 eggs, something that hadn't happened in any German zoo for the last 20 years. Python eggs are the size of goose eggs, but they have weaker shells. They need from two to three months of hatching before the little ones appear. When they do arrive, they'll be two feet long as they crawl out of the shells.

A BIT DIFFERENT—The grim front of West Berlin's Tegel Strafanstalt prison gives no indication of the comfortable, home-like atmosphere enjoyed by its 300 inmates, left. Except for bars on the windows, the well-lighted cells look almost like college dormitory rooms. Prisoners have thick mattresses on their beds, are provided with lockers for personal belongings, and may keep books, flowers, and hobby equipment in their rooms, which are complete with sinks and toilets, right. Other comforts for the prisoners include tile showers, a well-equipped first aid station, and electric kitchen. Except for freedom outside the walls, this prison lacks little in the comforts which make a place called home.

OWWWW! THIS IS AWFUL! LISTEN TO IT! DON'T YOU EVER HAVE IT TURNED UP? IT SOUNDS LIKE THIS! IT'S A VERY GOOD PLAN! MY FATHER SAID IT TO ME WHEN I GRADUATED. YOU'D THINK HE WAS FIDELITY! HE SOUNDS EVEN WORSE WHEN HE'S ON ONE THAT IS TUNED. HE HASN'T COMPLAINED ABOUT THE DRINKS—AND THAT ONE HE SPILLED IN THE PIANO HASN'T HELPED ANY, EITHER. WHEN GHE GRADUATED? BOY! THAT MUST BE AN ANTIQUE HARPISCHORD. HE KNOWS THE ONLY REASON HE GOT INVITED WAS TO DO HIS STUFF.

Gnashings

By ED NASH
Pampa News Staff Writer

THREE DAYS and a few hours away in the Big Moment. . . No, it's nothing to do with romance. Or when a young man's fancy lightly turns to what the girls have been thinking about all winter. . . It affects all Pampans, all Gray Counties, all Americans. All of them, anyhow, who earn a living. . . For the Big Moment is the instant you drop your 1954 U.S. Income Tax Return into the mail. With a request for a refund, if you're lucky. With a check, if you're not. . . By that time, you will have read through the manuscript the government sends, will have read through it again, and again, trying to decipher what are meant by such items as "adjusted gross income," "net operating loss deduction" and "exclusion and credit for dividends received from qualifying domestic (U.S.) corporations." . . . Then, weak from mental exhaustion, you, like as not, will throw in some numbers, grunt at what you owe and spend off. . . It's gotta be done by midnight Friday, or the tariff will be even higher. . . Could it be any higher, you ask? . . . Just be late and see.

THESE FARMERS, through the years, have developed a sense of humor that is as dry as the air gets sometimes. . . And the same goes for their youngsters, too. Whether they realize it sometimes or not. . . David Miller, a county 4-H Club member and a member of the winning land judging team in Plainview last week, called up Jerry Mobly, the assistant county agent, beforehand and wanted to know if the land judging contest was still on. Why? Jerry wanted to know. . . Well, said David, taking a long look outside at the flying dust, "We don't have to go out in the fields to judge the land. All we have to do is judge it as it comes by."

EVERYBODY, more than usual, has been talking about the weather the last few days. . . Jeany Stroup, a resident of some years in Pampa, was no exception. . . She observed the fluctuating weather in these parts for some time now. And what she said just about the hits the nail on the head or, so you might say, puts the dust-and-dirt in the proper perspective: "These dust storms have put Pampa on the map — keep on, though, and they'll take Pampa off the map."

THERE AREN'T any Boston baked beans, brown bread or cod-fish in Pampa's eateries. Not so far as Gnashings has been able to find, anyhow. . . But there are some pretty fair dishes, nevertheless, for those forced to eat out 21 times a week. . . The clam chowder at Jesse Mayes' Pennant Club, a Friday specialty, is the closest thing to the Hub of New England's famed sea food dishes there is in the Panhandle. . . The chicken fried rice and egg foo yung at Joe Yee's Empire Cafe do the Chinese proud. . . The soup, especially green pea and chicken and vegetable, at Owens Cafe is tops. . . Bill and Mildred Perkins serve some of the best breakfast steaks in the Southwest at their Courthouse Cafe. Gnashings is sure. . . And there's always the freshly cooked vegetables at the O and Z, and lots of 'em. . . These are not all the good dishes in town, that's for sure. These just came to mind first. And no particular order intended. . . One thing is puzzling, though. Why

Farmers Repay Millions in Loans

WASHINGTON — UP — The Farm Credit Administration announced Sunday night that farmer borrowers last year repaid $174 million in principal and interest on federal land bank loans obtained through national farm loans associations.

The 1953 repayments on principal and interest amounted to $161 million. The total of farmers' land bank loans on Jan. 1 was $1.3 billion. In 1954, farmers obtained $9,500 loans for a total of $306 million. This was the largest amount of loans floated by farmers in any year since 1934.

The repayments in 1954 were $109 million for matured principal and interest; $16 million on principal made ahead of maturity to shorten the term of the loan; and $39 million for loans paid in full prior to maturity.

Long to Fight Union
NEW YORK — UP — T. top executive of Ford Motor Co. hinted Sunday the firm is prepared to fight union demands for a guaranteed annual wage. Ford Chairman Ernest R. Breech said Ford's management is not only "vitality" in promoting stabilizing employment, but has done everything in its power to achieve that goal.

HST Became President 10 Years Ago

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — UP — Former President Harry S. Truman said Tuesday on the tenth anniversary of his succession to the presidency, that he would "have been much happier" to have gone back to the Senate.

Tanned and apparently fully recovered from a major operation last June, Mr. Truman was nattily attired in a blue suit and dark necktie as he sat at his large desk and read a brief statement before television cameras.

"Tuesday, April 12, 1945, was a very sad day for me and my whole family, as well as all the members of Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet and staff," said Mr. Truman.

"I remember very distinctly the ceremony at which the Chief Justice Harlan Stone swore me in. It was a very solemn occasion and was a very great surprise to me because I had hoped that Mr. Roosevelt was well on the road to recovery," he said. "He told me when he left for Warm Springs, Ga., that he had a cold and would soon whip it and be back in the White House."

Mr. Truman said the history of the period from April 12, 1945, to Jan. 20, 1953, would be explained by him more completely and thoroughly as soon as he can finish the book "I am now working on."

"I would have been much happier if I could have served out the term as vice president and probably have gone back to the Senate from the great state of Missouri," he said.

"Since I left the White House I have endeavored to enter into the life at home here as I followed it before 1933 when I went to the Senate," said the former chief executive.

"Coming back home has been a most pleasant experience and a most happy one. I expect to continue the program which I have started and I hope eventually, due to the experience I have had, to be able to add something to the information of the young people who are now coming of age."

Mr. Truman has been busy since leaving the White House with a project for a Truman Library on a site in Independence, his home town, which will contain his presidential documents, and writing his memoirs.

Name Makes Difference In Man's Life

By WILLARD LEWIS
BATESVILLE, Ark. — UP — Would movie villain Boris Karloff be half so frightful if he were named Charles Edwin Pratt?

Not at all, which is probably why Charles Edwin Pratt changed his name to Boris Karloff.

Name-changing, and names in general, has become a studios' hobby for an Arkansas college professor whose name is—and always was—Bertram L. Hughes. Though he teaches Shakespeare during working hours, Hughes is convinced a rose by any other name would not smell as sweet.

"A person's name can cast a tremendous influence on his life," Hughes said in an interview. "It can mean the difference between great success and mediocrity or even failure."

We are not ready to say whether being named Bertram L. Hughes has had a good or bad influence on his own career as news editor and analyst, farmer, salesman, public relations director, postal clerk and English professor.

"People have been changing their names or manipulating them from time immemorial," Hughes said. For example:

Hyram S. Grant became a general on Ulysses S. Grant, Thomas W. Wilson became president as Woodrow Wilson; Lewis Wendell Willkie dropped his first name for his professional career that led to presidential candidacy, and Leslie Towne and Isaac Edwin Leopold became famous entertainers as Bob Hope and Ed Wynn, respectively.

21 Groups Added To Subversives

WASHINGTON — UP — Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. added 21 organizations Monday to the controversial subversive list which is used as a guidepost in loyalty programs.

The new additions brought to 303 the number of groups placed on the subversive roll since it was started in 1947. Only one group has been removed since then.

Brownell, since taking office, has added 83 organizations to the subversive list. The attorney general can petition the Subversive Activities Control Board to test his allegations. Brownell has asked the SACB to rule on the status of 12 of the groups which he has placed on the list.

The subversive list has come under attack from many quarters in recent months. A chief critic has been former Sen. Harry P. Cain (R-Wash.), a member of the SACB. The groups added to the list Monday and their headquarters are:

Benjamin Davis Freedom Committee, New York; Civil Liberties Sponsoring Committee of Pittsburgh, Crafton, Pa.; Comité Pro Derechos Cidiles, Santurce, Puerto Rico; Committee to Abolish Discrimination in Maryland, Baltimore, Md.; Committee to Defend the Rights and Freedom of Pittsburgh's Political Prisoners, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Congress of the Unemployed, Pittsburgh; East Bay Peace Committee, Oakland, Calif.; Guardian Club, San Antonio, Tex.; Independent party, Seattle, Wash.; Johnson - Forest group, Detroit, Mich.; League for Common Sense, Salt Lake City, Utah; Michigan Council for Peace, Detroit; National committee to Win Amnesty for Smith Act Victims, New York; People's Program, Seattle, Wash.; People's Rights party, New York; Pittsburgh Arts Club, Pittsburgh, Mich.; Provisional Committee on Latin American Affairs, New York; Queensbridge Tenants League, Long Island City, N.Y.; Syracuse Women for Peace, Syracuse, N.Y.; Trade Union Committee for Peace, San Francisco, Calif.; and the United Defense Council of Southern California, Elsinore, Calif.

Ag Department To Discontinue Tips On Clothes, Appliances

By GAYLORD F. GODWIN
WASHINGTON — UP — The Agriculture Department said Tuesday it is going to stop putting out tips to homemakers on such things as clothes and household appliances.

From now on, the Department's research service is going to concentrate on ways to improve America's diet.

"There is no thought of discontinuing research in homemaking altogether," said the Service's director, Byron T. Shaw. "But I believe it is more important to do research on what the human body needs and what foods we eat." Shaw said dropping the tips on clothes and appliances will save taxpayers $146,000. He said all of this will be switched before July to research and the issuance of pamphlets on "Human Nutritional Requirements" and "Nutritional requirement of Foods We Eat."

Discards Listed
Among the things being discarded are pamphlets and tests on refrigerators, stoves, washing machines, dryers, home freezers, and clothes. Also a publication entitled "tools for Food Preparation and Dishwashing."

Many pamphlets were printed during the 1952 political campaign when President Eisenhower, then a candidate, called it a "symbol of shameful wasting of tax funds."

After Mr. Eisenhower became president, the Department reprinted 15,000 copies. Shaw said this was routine since the supply had run out.

"There was a bit of hysteria in the Department when the reprint was made," he said. "I talked to some of my superiors about it, but no one ordered me to discontinue it. I doubt if the White House ever got into the matter."

Supply Now Exhausted
But the supply now is exhausted again and the research director said he has decided against making another reprint. He will use the money and time on other things.

"It is obvious," Shaw said, "that a government agency cannot tell a consumer just what makes of household equipment to buy. It is up to a private research outfit to do that. The government agency can only generalize and tell the consumer what characteristics in an item to look for."

He said pamphlets on selection, care, and use of clothing would be discontinued "because I question how much people are guided by our bulletins on how to buy a man's suit, a boy's shirt, or a woman's dress."

He did not close the door on re-issuance of all bulletins in which research has stopped. For example, he said a pamphlet on "Stain Removal from Fabrics" will be revised, brought up to date, and re-issued because of demand.

Some to Be Re-Issued
Shaw also said pamphlets may be re-issued in some cases where research has been stopped if "there continues to be a strong demand" and the information is timely. Among these are:

Window Curtains — Planning and Selection; How to Tailor a Woman's Suit; Pressure Cambray — Use and Care; Child's Self-Help Overall; Preventing and Removing Mildew — Home Methods; Home Freezers — Their Selection, and Use; Cotton Shirts for Men and Boys; Coat Making at Home; ABC's of Mending; Carpet and Rug Repair; Fitting Dresses; Pattern Alteration.

Shaw said changes in research subjects are made constantly. This occurs "when we find that some problems are more important than others," he said. "We cut out the low priority items, and put the time and money saved on subjects of high priority."
