Reds Suffering Terrific Casualties

Railroad Men Leaving Jobs; New Talks Set

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Trainmen walked out in three key terminals today and President Truman called on his top labor adviser to make another effort to head off a nationwide railroad strike.

He ordered John R. Steelman, representatives of the railroads and unions together in another attempt to reach an agreement.

Charles G. Ross, presidential secretary, said Mr. Truman then will review the situation again before deciding what to do next.

"If this fails," a reporter asked, "isn't seizure the last resort?"

"You will have to draw your own conclusions," Ross said.

The president, Ross said, directed Steelman to make "further efforts this afternoon to bring the contending parties together to seek an agreement."

The country-wide dispute is over wages and hours. Today's strikes were called for five days. Trainmen said the idea is to call attention to the fact that the dispute has dragged on for almost a year and a half without a decision.

Here is where the men went out:

In Louisville — 250 switchmen on the Kentucky and Indiana Terminal Railroad left their jobs. All of the road's 1,200 employes were idled. A union official said the walkout was 100 percent effective.

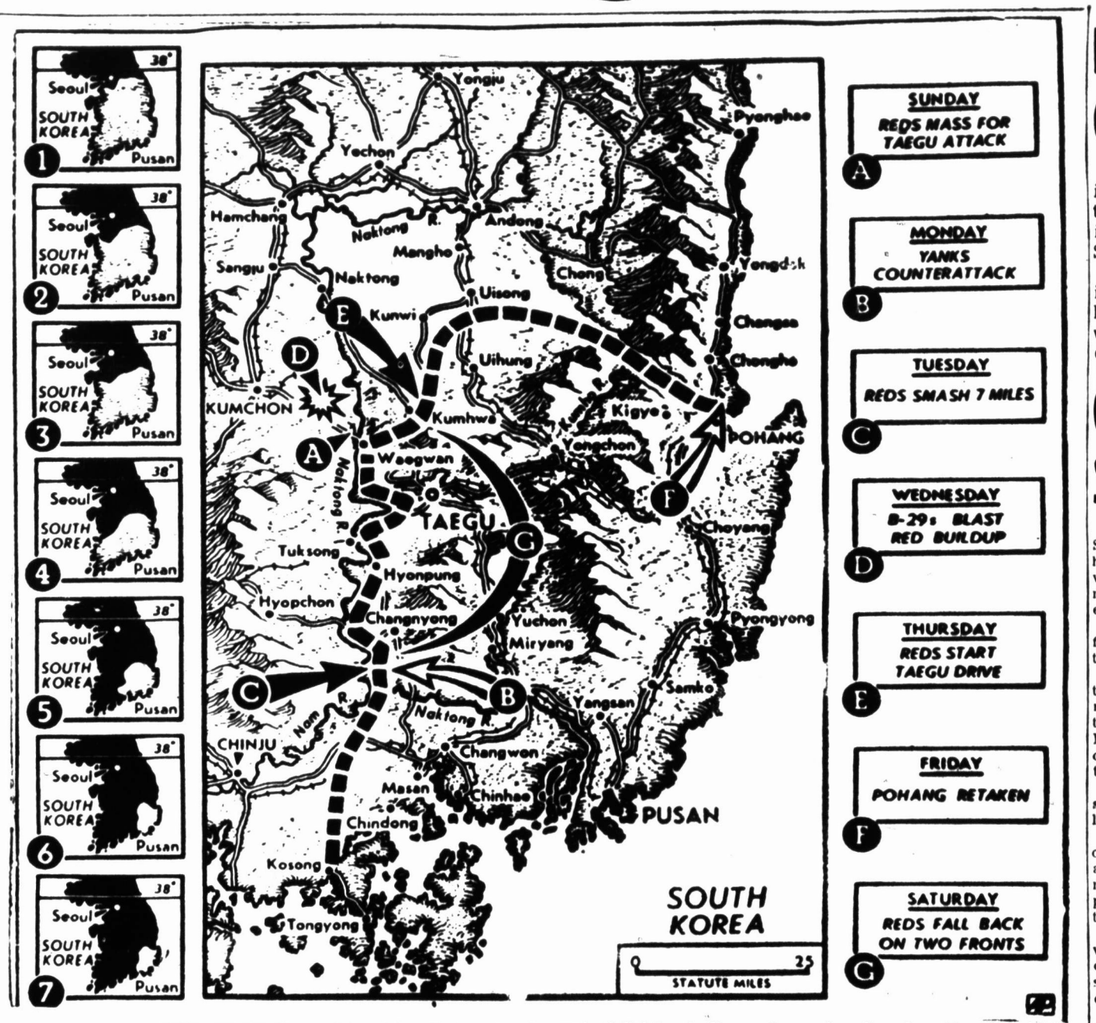

In St. Paul — 175 employes of the Minnesota Transfer Railway Company failed to report for the 6:30 a.m. (CST) shift. The road handles most of the switching of freight cars in and throughout Minneapolis and St. Paul. The line's 450 workers are affected by the strike.

In Cleveland — the River Terminal Railway, owned by Republic Steel, was shut down by 200 strikers. Employing some 400 workers, the line serves Republic's big steel plants. The steel company has laid off 1,500 of its 7,000 workers.

What action Mr. Truman would take, if any, isn't known.

Back from a weekend vacation, Mr. Truman met an associated Press reporter at the Blair

WEEK'S DEVELOPMENTS IN KOREA — Map shows high spots of a week of fighting in Korea, the week ending Aug. 19 — the eighth of the North Korean Invasion. The Reds made their first major thrust at Taegu aiming at the city from the north between Waegwan and Kunwi. The assault was opened the day after U. S. B-29s saturation-bombed Red troop concentrations northwest of Waegwan. Strip of insert maps at the left shows week to week penetration of the Communists. Desperate Invaders Under Orders to Finish August 31

TOKYO, Tuesday —(AP)— Communist casualties, totaling a minimum of 11,000 and possibly as high as 15,000 in three days, soared Monday as the North Korean Reds strove in desperation to crack the United Nations defense lines in South Korea.

Despite their punishing losses, mostly in dead, the Red invaders were continuing to mass men and to probe the lines on the central and southern fronts for the big push which Americans predict may be their last. They are under orders from their high command to wipe out the defense by Aug. 31.

At one point north of Taegu on the north central front the Reds made a tough two-mile gain before being halted by a brilliant night air-artillery cooperation. Today, however, General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters omitted its usual early-morning communique, saying the situation had not changed since.

Significantly, the North Korean communique, broadcast by the Pyongyang radio, dropped its usual "total success" theme and complained that the American South Korean forces "are heavily counterattacking on all sectors."

Tokyo headquarters put the total Red casualties on the entire front Friday and Saturday at 10,092.

This included only an unspecified part of the 3,500 casualties it listed as being inflicted on the enemy in the region north of Taegu alone.

In addition, frontline dispatches reported at least 1,350 enemy dead counted in a single action on the extreme southern front, and a South Korean spokesman reported 2,450 Red casualties inflicted by the South Koreans in recapturing a hill on the northeast flank of the front above Taegu.

South Korean naval forces reported they sank one Red troop and ammunition ship and damaged another off the south coast, causing heavy but undetermined casualties.

Even allowing for many duplications, the North Korean losses were terrific.

The allies yielded to a tank-led column in only one sector for a two-mile loss a dozen miles north of Taegu on the central front. But there the Reds were stopped by a flare-lit American artillery and plane attack by night. Five Red tanks were destroyed in the action.

The back of this most immediately threatening lunge at Taegu was believed broken by the unusual teaming up of planes with big guns at close quarters.

The night-flying fighter-bombers were guided to their targets by the bright glow of phosphorous shells poured among enemy troops by field artillery.

The other immediate threat appeared to be in the deep south where the Reds were building at Chinju for a new offensive aimed at Pusan, the main allied port on the southeastern tip of the peninsula.

In fighting over the weekend from tip to tip of the 120-mile long front, the Reds lost nearly 2,000 men in the South, 6,000 on the central front and the balance on the east coast line north of Pohang.

Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton reported from the southern front that Americans lost a key and bitterly disputed mountain position in a give and take battle two miles southwest of Hamam to 1,500 wildly charging Reds.

Fighting has raged around Haman since Saturday. The sector is defended by the U. S. 25th infantry division. It is 10 miles northwest of the south coast port of Masan, 27 airline miles west of Pusan.

Sustained air and artillery attacks halted the Red drive toward Taegu from a Communist column north of allied-recaptured Kumhwa. Two Red divisions have been identified in the push.

Controls Vote Set in Senate

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Senate faced a vote today on a home front mobilization bill which would give President Truman broad emergency powers over the nation's economy.

That it would pass was taken for granted; the exact form of the bill hung in the balance.

Included in the measure intended to curb inflation are credit restrictions and defense production features, plus authority for Mr. Truman to invoke wage-price controls and rationing at any time.

The House on Aug. 10 approved similar legislation overwhelmingly.

In advance of Senate balloting on a big stack of amendments and then on the bill itself, administration leaders predicted approval of a measure acceptable to the president.

They forecast that the Senate would beat down proposed changes which Mr. Truman has said fall in the category of "special privilege" amendments.

The CIO declared last night that amendments of that type already approved would cost consumers billions of dollars and transform the anti-inflation bill into one to guarantee profits.

Pending amendments, the CIO said, are even worse and would make the bill "a fake and a fraud upon the American people."

Senate Democratic chiefs gave their first attention to a pair of administration-opposed moves to write an anti-Communist program into the economic controls bill.

Booked ahead of the Senate session was a closed conference of all Democratic senators to chart strategy dealing with:

1. A rider amendment by Republican Senators Mundt (SD) and Ferguson (Mich) which would nail their Communist-control bill into the mobilization measure.

2. Another internal security bill, embracing the Mundt-Ferguson program and other anti-subversive features, which Senator McCarran (D-Nev) said he might

Third Wreck Victim Taken to Oklahoma

CANADIAN — (Special) — Miss Nan Matthews, who was critically injured in a highway crash near Canadian Thursday night, was flown to Oklahoma City for treatment Sunday afternoon.

Miss Matthews, suffering from a severe head wound, concussion and a broken leg, has been in an unconscious condition since the accident. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Matthews.

Donald Hodges and Bobby Kemp, in the car with Miss Matthews at the time of the accident, were removed to an Oklahoma City clinic Thursday night because of an insufficient number of surgeons in Canadian to treat their injuries. Both boys remained in serious condition, according to relatives contacted Sunday.

Burma Holds U.S. Doctor

RANGOON, Burma —(AP)— Dr. Gordon S. Seagrave, famed American doctor who has spent a lifetime caring for Burmese sick is being held on suspicion of aiding the Karen rebels, the Burma government has disclosed.

Officials said no charges have been placed against Seagrave, whose book "Burma Surgeon" made him known to millions. They said he will appear shortly before a Burmese court. He is being held in an undisclosed jail in Rangoon.

A Burmese government spokesman said Seagrave is suspected of aiding the Karen tribesmen, who have been fighting for two years to set up an independent state.

U.S. embassy officials said the 53-year-old surgeon's arrest was a "serious matter." An embassy spokesman said American officials had been permitted to visit the doctor in jail and found him "in good health and receiving good treatment."

Seagrave was arrested Friday at his mission hospital at Namkham, near the China - Burma border. He was flown to Rangoon the next day.

Slight Hope Held For End of U. N. Korean Deadlock

LAKE SUCCESS — (AP) — Security Council delegates try again today at another informal session to break their procedural blockade. Most of them have little hope of any success.

Soviet Delegate Jakob A. Malik, the council president until Sept., is expected to maintain his stand that no South Korean representative will be invited before the council unless North Korea also is represented.

Malik's refusal to rule formally on the council's previous invitation to the South Korean representative has deadlocked the group since soon after he ended the Russian boycott of council sessions to assume the presidency on Aug. 1.

Chief interest here centered not on today's private session but on tomorrow's public council meeting. Malik has announced he will speak at length in answer to the demand for unification of Korea under U. N. auspices, presented last Thursday by U. S. Delegate Warren Austin.

Austin at that time voiced only mild criticism of the Soviet Union's role in the Korean war. However a U. S. spokesman later said Austin would have a "haymaker" for the Russians this week.

"We're not going to let Malik get away with the charges he has made during the last 10 days," the spokesman said.

Arthur Andrus Dies of Illness

Arthur B. Andrus, 66, born Aug. 29, 1883, in Cherryvale, Kans., died in a local hospital at 8:05 p.m., Sunday, following an illness of three years.

Mr. Andrus had worked for several oil companies and lived in Bartlesville, Okla., for 30 years before coming to Pampa. He came to Pampa in 1933, and lived at the Phillips-Pampa camp south of town. Besides working for Phillips, he had also been employed by Warren-Bradshaw Drilling Co. and Moran Drilling Co.

Survivors include his wife, Lillian, Pampa; one son, Robert, Phillips-Bowers; daughter, Mrs. Frances Quackenbush, Lancaster, Pa.; sister, Mrs. Mable Waid, Cherryvale, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be in the Duenkel-Carmichael chapel at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, with Bob Bolton, minister of the Lefors Church of Christ, officiating.

Pallbearers include Fred Glass, C. H. Brickley, Bert Smith, Leon Brock, Bill Grainger and Jim Harrison. Honorary pallbearers will be employes of the Phillips Petroleum Co.

Following the services here, the body will be taken overland to Cherryvale where burial services will be held Wednesday.

Swift Rearmament Of West Is Sought

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Truman adminstration will drive on two fronts this week for a speed-up of western rearmament to meet any threat of Soviet aggression in Europe.

In mid-week, Secretary of State Acheson will appear before the Senate appropriations committee to press for immediate approval of an emergency $4,000,000,000 foreign arms aid fund to strengthen America's allies in Europe, the Middle East and the Far East.

Tomorrow, Acheson's deputy fresh from a conference with President Truman, will meet in London with representatives of the North Atlantic treaty nations to urge that they greatly expand their defense programs beyond proposals they have already laid out.

The United States is taking an extraordinarily firm position in its dealings with Britain, France and the other treaty powers because of what officials here conceive to be the dangers of a Soviet conquest of Western Europe.

Acheson is expected to stress this theme in his appearance before the Senate committe, urging that the United States especially should not lose the momentum in defense preparations which it picked up last month in meeting the Korean crisis.

State Department officials and the president himself have been generally restrained in their public statements on the position of the West, but one of their associates put aside his official cloak Saturday night to reflect their view that the U.S. and its friends must make a far greater effort than they are now making to shore up their defenses.

Wheeler Newsman Gets Service Call

SHAMROCK — Calvin Chick, popular young Erick, Okla., newspaperman, has been named editor of The Wheeler Times to succeed J. C. Howell, who has been called up for one year of military service in the U.S. Air Force.

Howell, who is president of the Panhandle Press Association, received orders last week to report for duty at San Antonio next Tuesday. He was an instructor in radar during the last world war.

Chick, the new Wheeler editor, has been employed by the Beckham County Democrat at Erick as advertising man and reporter since his graduation from Oklahoma A&M College. He is a veteran of the last war, is married and has one child.

Mr. and Mrs. Chick will move to Wheeler as soon as they find a house or apartment. He will be in charge of the Wheeler paper during Howell's military duty, or until Chick may be recalled to service by Uncle Sam.

Mrs. J. C. Howell will continue as society editor and bookkeeper of the Wheeler newspaper while her husband is in service. Richard Bradley will continue as foreman of the Wheeler printing plant.

Youth Hurt in Canadian Fire

By CARL ZYBACH
News Correspondent

CANADIAN — (Special) — A freakish fire at a Phillips 66 Service Station about 8 p.m. Saturday resulted in severe burns to Charles Cook and caused several thousand dollars damage to two new tractors in the path of the flaming stream of fuel.

Charles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cook, was filling a five-gallon can with gasoline when it suddenly flashed up, throwing the flaming liquid over the front of his clothing. Young Cook turned off the switch to the electrically operated pump before attempting to extinguish the fire in his clothing.

Relatives said Sunday that Charles is in serious condition in Hemphill Memorial Hospital, having suffered second degree burns over about 75 percent of his body.

The heat of the original spill fire caused some nearby barrels of fuel to erupt and run the flaming fuel under two new tractors parked on the lot.

Firemen were hampered by lack of foam equipment as well as by highway traffic and spectators.

Canadian has a new fire truck on order and delivery is expected in the near future. The new truck will be equipped to cope with fires of this kind.

Saturday night's fire was the first since July 3.

Additional Portion Of U. S. 60 Slated For Concrete Work

Henry O. Glasser, Enid, president of the U.S. 60 National Highway Association, has reported the issuance of a work order to the Southwest General Construction Co., Dallas, for the immediate construction of 7.52 miles of 34-foot, 8-inch concrete paving on U. S. 60.

The construction will extend from the Wyandotte, Okla., Indian reservation to the Missouri State line at Seneca. It will include prime dressed shoulders and will leave approximately 10.5 miles to complete the 18 - mile open gap from Seneca to the intersection with U.S. Highway 66, north of the Afton overpass on the Frisco Railroad.

The letting of the contract leaves about 23.5 miles yet to be improved on U.S. 60 in Oklahoma. The unpaved portion includes 13 miles between Vici and Arnett in western Oklahoma, and the 10.5 miles from Fairland to the intersection with U.S. 66 north of Afton.

Claud Gilmer Hurt In Auto Collision

FREDERICKSBURG, Texas — (AP) — Claud Gilmer, former speaker of the state house of representatives, and his wife were injured in a head-on collision last night near Comfort, 23 miles south of here.

Mrs. Gilmer received head injuries and was reported in a serious condition. Gilmer's condition was described as not serious.

The driver of the other car, Willie Ellis Griffin, 28, of San Antonio, and four passengers received minor injuries.

Presidential Statement on U.S. Objectives Demanded

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Republican pressure built up in Congress today for a statement by President Truman of over-all objectives in the Korean fighting and the cold war against communism elsewhere.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) told a reporter that Secretary of Defense Johnson will be asked to spell out to the Senate foreign relations committee in a closed meeting tomorrow the military objectives, so far as Europe is concerned.

But Smith said that more urgent, in his opinion, is a declaration of war and peace aims by the president that will let Congress know where the country is headed.

"We need a statement of over-all objectives, a blueprint from which we can work," Smith said.

Echoing that demand, Senator Millikin (R-Colo) declared that Congress is working in the dark when it is called upon to vote increased military appropriations, authority to clamp controls on the civilian economy and increased taxes.

"It is difficult to legislate intelligently when we don't know whether we are preparing for all-out war or not," he said. "We have no fixed objective toward which we could be working."

The complaint of Smith and Millikin was similar to that of House Republican Leader Joseph Martin, who said in a weekend speech at Oak Bluff, Mass., that the administration is operating on "a Saturday night to Saturday night" basis without clearly defined policies.

Martin called for new faces in Congress and injection of new

Auto Pioneer Still 'Critical'

LANSING, Mich. — (AP) — Automobile pioneer Ransom E. Olds was reported still "critically ill and weakening" at his home today.

Dr. T. I. Bauer said the 86-year-old industrialist was suffering from the complications of old age.

Olds founded the Reo Motor Car Co. and the Oldsmobile company, now a division of General Motors Corp., and he produced a practicable low-priced car ahead of the late Henry Ford.

Since leaving the automobile business he has had financial interests in hotels, apartment houses and office buildings.

Time for Moscow's Decision on What Will Happen After Korea Is Drawing Near

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Reporter

WASHINGTON — (AP) — What will Russia do when her North Korean satellite begins to lose the war?

Reverses for the Red Korean army will force a decision by the Soviets on whether to move openly into the Asiatic war or bide their time for another day when the stakes could be greater and the odds better.

The time for Moscow's decision apparently is coming nearer.

The swift and long advance of the North Korean army has ground down to at least a temporary halt. The build-up of strength by American forces, with more help from other United Nations members in the offing, is under way. An offensive to destroy the Korean Red military force is in prospect for the months just ahead. And it is then Russia will have to decide.

She will have to weigh the possible effect on other nations within the Soviet sphere of defeat for her Korean Communist state against the risks of taking a direct hand in war with the United States and United Nations.

Russia, for reasons of her own, may conclude the time to move isn't now but later when her military strength is even greater, meanwhile using the Korean situation as material for her peculiar propaganda technique.

Some officials at high level in Washington incline to the belief that Russia doesn't want to provoke a world war until later, when she is fully prepared.

The timetable they use in these guesses varies considerably—from two to five years.

The Soviets have an immense army — some estimates range around 4,000,000 which is equipped with superior tanks and excellent artillery. They have a large tactical air force for support of the ground army.

But the Russians may want more time to improve and augment weapons in the highly technical category.

Another two or three years may be needed for them to stockpile a larger number of atomic bombs.

They have the beginning of a long range bomber force for delivery of the bombs, but may need considerably more long range bombardment aviation.

They have begun a huge expansion of their submarine fleet. Although the Russian undersea fleet may number as many as 300 submarines, only a small portion of that fleet is believed

Over 1,000 Attend Services Opening Church Building

An estimated 1,000 persons attended the official opening of the new education building of the First Methodist Church Sunday. The ceremony was opened by a speech by the Rev. W. E. Hamilton, district superintendent of the Clarendon District.

Hamilton pointed out that such a building comes from a great need and when the need presents itself, a great adventure in faith begins.

"You have come into a reality this morning," he said, "one you may not have experienced before. If you stop here, your advance was for naught. You must go on and match yourself with God," he stated.

The minister concluded by saying the church members must be filled with the spirit that was in Christ, that they may dare pursue their purpose to the end.

Following the message, the congregation moved out of the church sanctuary, into the street and gathered around the southeast entrance of the new building, where the key was presented to Arthur Teed, superintendent of Sunday School, by Harley Bulls, choir director. Teed opened the door and members and visitors were conducted on a tour of the building.

The building is constructed in a square with a small patio in the center for open air exercises. The first floor has a small chapel which seats 116 persons, a comfortably furnished lounge and a completely furnished kitchen. There are about 12 classrooms on the first floor and several closets.

The second floor has about nine classrooms, several closets and two small kitchens. All rooms are furnished with chairs, tables and other equipment necessary in the Sunday School classes.

The children's rooms have drawing paper, pencils and books to be used in classtime projects. A general assembly room for the primary grades is provided for a short worship program before classes begin.

Plans for erecting the building began in 1949 when the Rev. H. Clyde Smith was pastor. Rev. Smith spoke at the 11 a. m. church service. Money for the project was raised largely by the Wells Organization, a professional fund raising group for the Methodist Church.

Dr. Orion W. Carter, pastor, stated that the institution is built on the new plan of a modern Sunday School with co-educational classes and a key teacher in each class and several assistants in the children's division.

Following the regular morning service led by Rev. Smith, now of Abilene, lunch was spread in the basement of the church.

At 2:30 p. m., the Rev. W. C. House, a former pastor, spoke at the formal opening of the chapel.

The new building will be used this week, beginning at 7:30 p. m. today, by Dr. Maldwin Edwards, Birmingham, England, who will conduct a Bible conference in the chapel. The conference will continue through Tuesday and Wednesday with both morning and evening services.

These estimates and hopes that Russia may not be ready for war now are predicated on "evaluation" made by the military-political intelligence system.

The danger is that the intelligence may be faulty, as it has been on some past occasions.

World War II did much to improve American intelligence machinery. Since then it has been coordinated, the operations of the three military intelligence units being meshed with activities of other government units like the state department — all under general direction of the Central Intelligence Agency.

One high official privately rates American intelligence as improving but not yet good. However, it is to be assumed that considerable information picked up by the intelligence services of other North Atlantic nations is pooled with ours in arriving at evaluations of Russian capabilities and intentions.

On the other hand, the already efficient operations of Russian counter-intelligence behind the Iron Curtain appear to have been greatly increased during the last few years of East - West tension.

There are reasons to believe the Soviets are locating and liquidating more and more sources of intelligence within Russia and the satellite nations, thinning the already slim trickle of information from those countries.

The outstanding misjudgment of Russian capabilities, of course, was the matter of the atomic bomb. The Soviets produced an atomic explosion at least two years earlier than was thought probable by western military and scientific intelligence experts.

Russian ability to produce aircraft, especially the complex, jet fighter versions, also proved to be far better than estimated. In some aircraft categories, it now is estimated that Russian production is more than 90 percent ahead of American production.

blood in the State Department and other executive agencies.

"We need men with common sense enough to know that Spain, for example, is essential to our security in Europe; that the hand of General MacArthur in Japan must be strengthened to the maximum and that Formosa, which President Truman only six months ago declared to be of no military importance, is vital to our position in Asia," Martin declared.

The president has ordered the Seventh Fleet to protect Formosa against invasion.

Smith said that Secretary Johnson will be questioned by the foreign relations committee about how the administration proposes to spend the $4,000,000,000 President Truman has asked as an addition to the $1,222,500,000 Congress already has authorized for foreign arms aid.

Chairman Connally (D - Tex) has said the committee wants to review this program, although arrangements are being made to short-cut procedure and speed congressional action on the money involved. Normally an authorization bill would be voted in advance of the actual funds.

Senator Wiley (R-Wis), a foreign relations panel member, told a reporter he thinks the disposition of military strength will influence future foreign policy greatly.

"To consider international problems intelligently, we have to know where the planes, bombs, and men are going to be available if there is an attack," he said. "Military strength has become the very essence of foreign policy now."

offer as a substitute for the GOP plan.

Administration leaders hoped to block approval of either plan with a promise to the Democrats that anti-Communist legislation, for which there is strong sentiment in the Senate, will be brought up for separate action later this session. An administration bill also would come into the picture at that time.

Senator Maybank (D-SC), floor manager of the economic controls bill, stood by his prediction that the Democratic majority would vote almost solidly against the two curb-the-Communists riders.

On the Republican side, Senators Morse (Ore) and Flanders (Vt) said the riders will get no support from them. They want anti-subversive legislation enacted in a separate bill.

On tap if their sponsors decide to call them all up for a vote were more than 40 proposed amendments to the home front mobilization bill. Others still could be offered.

The Senate agreed in advance to limit debate on each amendment to 10 minutes, but with rollcall votes interspersed there appeared to be little chance for a vote on the bill before nightfall.

One of the amendments, offered by Senator Capehart (R-Ind), would strike all authority for wage-price controls from the bill. A companion Capehart proposal would eliminate rationing powers.

Amphibious Jeep Sailors Are Safe

HALIFAX, N. S. — (AP) — The round-the-world jeepers, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Carlin, were reported safe in the Azores today.

Carlin, an Australian engineer, and his Boston-born wife left here July 19 in their amphibious jeep, the "Half-Safe." They had been unreported for more than a week. The Royal Canadian Air Force received a report yesterday that they had reached the Azores Saturday.

Making their third try to cross the Atlantic by jeep, the Carlins plan to try to girdle the globe if they complete the ocean voyage.

The Burmese spokesman said the government suspected Seagrave of aiding Kachin Rebel Chief Naw Seng to flee across the Chinese border, after an alleged attempt by Naw Seng to overthrow the Kachin state government.

Naw Seng's Kachin rebels and the Karens seized the central Burma city of Toungoo last year. Later they were overwhelmed by government forces. Naw Seng reportedly is now with the Chinese Communists.

Burma has been in the throes of civil war since it won its independence from the British in January, 1948. Much of the fighting has been between government forces and rebel tribesmen.

WEDDING PLANS

DearGrace Friend:

Your column is always interesting to me and I hope you will answer my questions too.

I plan to marry this fall and it will be my second marriage. I would like to drop my present married name intial and use my maiden initial as I am doing now. Would this be correct or should I use my first married name initial with my new name?

I plan to be married in a brown dress suit, not too tailored. Could you give me some ideas for color in the accessories such as blouses, hat, gloves and shoes?

I think I will get alligator pumps and bag to match if I can find what I want. Otherwise what would you suggest.

My corsage will be orchids. Should it match or harmonize?

Thanking you for your kind assistance.

I. E.

Dear I. E.

Of course use your maiden name as your middle initial when you remarry, thus—Mary Brown married Mr. Smith and is Mary Brown Smith. If she divorces Mr. Smith and marries Mr. Jones she will be Mary Brown Jones.

When you are ready to buy accessories for your brown suit consult fashion magazines for the smart colors for autumn accessories and choose those which are most becoming to you.

If you decide against the alligator shoes and bag, look for some brown suede ones. I think that they would be more dressy and more appropriate in any case.

As for your corsage—have it harmonize.

NEVER SIGN A LETTER "MRS."

Dear Madame:

Is it wrong for me to sign a letter "Mrs. Mary Smith?"

A friend tells me that I should not use "Mrs." when signing a letter. In that case how can I let people know that I am married?

Mrs. M. S.

Dear Mrs. M. S.

Your friend is right. Don't sign your name other than plain "Mary Smith."

If you wish you may write beneath your signature (Mrs. John Smith) or (Please reply to Mrs. John Smith).

The only time it is correct to sign your name "Mrs. John Smith" is when you are registering at a hotel.

Grand Chief Is Guest at Meeting Of Pythian Sisters

A guest at a meeting of the local Pythian Sisters was grand chief Zelma Rhodes of Fort Worth. Other out-of-town visitors at the meeting were district deputy Evelyn Hardion, Anne Myers, Lilian Gothhardt, Pansy Lee and Dorothy Wilbanks, all from Lubbock.

Gifts from the Temple were presented to grand chief Zelma Rhodes and district deputy Evelyn Hardion. Most excellent chief Beatrice Stone was in charge of the meeting.

Members present were Mary K. Burch, Syble Dudley, Dorothy Cox, Ila Neimeir, Pattye Hopkins, Lucille Turner, Oak Allee Whittle, Lucille Weatherred, Rudine Stinson, Ruth Herlocher, Eloise Braly and Mercy B. Marlow.

During a social period cake and ice cream were served.

"Heaven forbid," said Mr. C hastily and retired behind his newspaper, wondering why he had brought up the subject in the first place.

He retreated in good time, too, before Mrs. C had a chance to remind him that while he had had his bad experiences in the last war, he had some memorable adventures, too. Or at least he had, to hear him tell it whenever a bunch of men began to trade their war experiences.

WAR IS A DREARY BUSINESS

But Mrs. C had had nothing to lighten her years of sitting out the war. It was all just a long, dreary business of waiting, worrying, struggling, with no gay times, no real companionship, and after it was all over, no heroic or funny or romantic stories to tell.

And besides nobody looked on Mrs. C as a heroine. But for a little while, at least, Mr. C was a heroic figure.

Mrs. C didn't have to bring out all that in order to win her point. All she had to do was mention that she'd be glad to turn over their four little darlings to Mr. C and get in uniform herself. Mr. C is a brave man, but not quite brave enough to face the prospect of taking over his four young ones single-handed.

What's RIGHT?

You are giving a party in honor of some person you feel you must entertain for.

WRONG: When you invite the guests, admit that giving the party is just one of those things you "had" to do.

RIGHT: Try to give the impression that you are giving the party because you want to — not from a sense of duty or obligation.

You have an appointment at a beauty salon and the day before you find that you cannot make it.

WRONG: Wait until the last minute to break the appointment, holding it just in case you might be able to keep it after all.

RIGHT: Break the appointment right away so that the time can be given to someone else.

Designed for Gracious Living

The architects planned this 2 bedroom house for families interested in gracious, relaxed living. The spacious living-room 20' x 13' has a large brick fireplace with a built-in wood storage cabinet, an enormous curving bow window and a 10'4" x 5'6" television, radio, home-movie nook. One end of the 12' x 11'4" dining-room has a floor-to-ceiling glass wall which looks out on a picturesque dining-porch. The kitchen 13'8" x 11'4" has two picture windows and provides extreme comfort in its rounded breakfast corner and convenience in its work-saving layout of kitchen equipment. A center hall with a tile bathroom at one end provides access to the 17'6" x 13' master bedroom and other rooms. Other highlights in this house are a sundeck over the dining-porch, a storage room over the garage, expansion attic, nine closets and a full cellar, full-thick mineral wool insulation in walls and ceilings which saves one-third of the winter fuel bill and keeps house cool in summer. Exterior finish is stone, brick and wood shingles.

Most Open Porches Easily Converted Into Extra Rooms

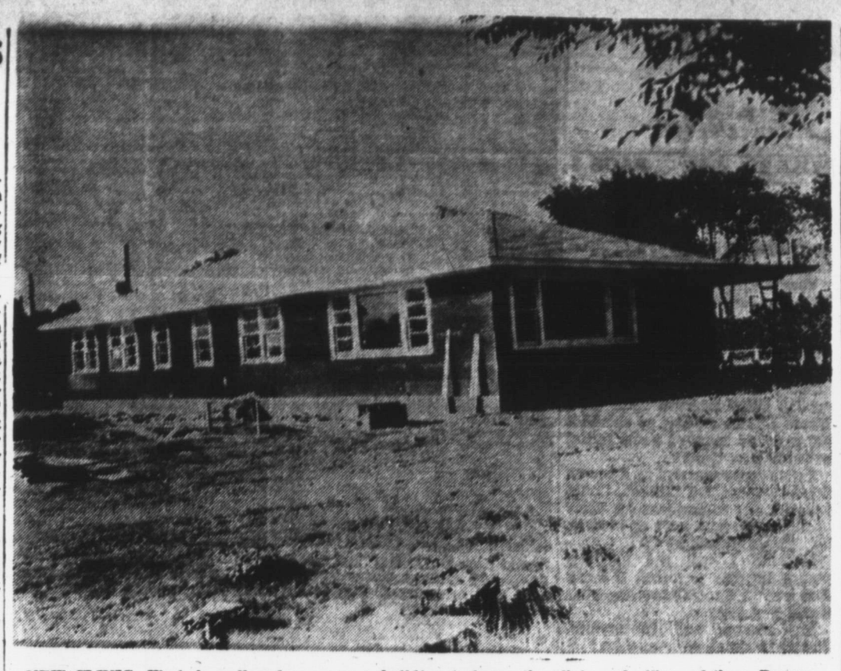

An open porch which has outgrown its usefulness can, with simple alterations and furnishings, become an extra sleeping room, a dining nook, a hobby room, or a sunny extension of the living-room.

To get full benefit of the winter sun, enclose the walls partially or entirely with glass. An easy way is to remove the porch railing and in its place build a framework to support casement windows fitted into the upper part. Cover the lower part of the wall with siding, and paint to match the house exterior. For extra warmth, finish the interior walls with plywood or composition board and fill the space between the two walls with insulating material.

If this new room is to be an extension of the living - room, sliding glass or paneled doors are decorative and will admit more light into the house.

Next, install outlets for lamps and radio and connect the room with the house heating system. A radiator can go under one window-wall. If the new room is to serve as an extra guest room, cover the radiators with a plain board top and set a chest of drawers at each side to give dressing-table space. Or you can flank the radiator with low bookcases or small tables if the new room is to be used as living- or hobby-room.

When converting the porch into a room, you will want to cover the floor and insulate it. The new flooring should be durable, easy to clean, and decorative enough so that it will be an integral part of the furnishings in both the new room and the adjoining one.

NEW CLINIC—Work is well underway on a building to house the clinic and offices of three Pampa doctors, W. Purviance, Julian Key and M. McDaniel. The clinic, located in the 800 block of West Francis, will cost about $30,000 and is expected to be ready for occupancy within approximately 60 days. (News Photo and Engraving)

No Drastic Curtailment of Home Building Is Forecast

The defense production program now under way will not require any such drastic curtailment of home building and other civilian construction as was put into effect during World War II, according to Lynn Boyd, Pampa building materials dealer and member of the public affairs committee of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association.

"Although the supply of steel, copper, lumber, and other strategic materials used in housing and other buildings will be lower than in the last few years, because of the allocations program, there should be enough of all materials to permit a considerable amount of private construction, including repair and modernization work, unless defense production is stepped considerably beyond the levels now being contemplated in Washington," Boyd said.

"The latest information indicates that the partial war mobilization program now under way will require construction of relatively few large war plants and far fewer barracks and war housing developments than were put up during the second world war, because most of those facilities remain available for use in this emergency. Thus, the demand for building materials for defense purposes promises to be considerably less than it was then.

"The government is endeavoring to hold down construction of homes and other new buildings through tightening of mortgage credit terms but, as of now, there is every intention that a fairly large volume of new civilian building will continue.

"Officials in Washington have expressed the hope that it will not be necessary to set up any sort of permit system in connection with private building and are keeping close track of the trend in housing starts with an eye to tightening mortgage terms still further, if necessary, to keep the demand in line with the available supply of materials," he concluded.

Egyptian Monarch Loses Heavily at Gaming Tables

DEAUVILLE, France — (AP) — Egypt's vacationing King Farouk paid another visit to the gaming tables early today — and this time he lost heavily.

Previously the portly young monarch, who arrived last Thursday, won an estimated $60,000 at the Deauville casino's chemin de fer tables.

But early today, after a gala party in his honor at the casino, he spent two unsuccessful hours at the game. There was no estimate of his losses, but members of his bodyguard made several trips to the bank for more chips as the royal luck continued bad.

His guests at the elaborate dinner included the Aga Khan, Ismaili Moslem spiritual leader and father-in-law of Rita Hayworth; movie actress Esther Williams, and Joyce Mathews, former wife of comedian Milton Berle.

The French-Egyptian nightclub entertainment staged in Farouk's honor starred the young Egyptian dancer, Samia Gamal, a royal favorite brought here from Monte Carlo for the occasion.

At lunchtime yesterday Farouk drove 10 miles down the coast to Dives-Sur-Mer to entertain four of the players from whom he had won about $45,000 at the casino Saturday night. They included Porfirio Rubirosa, former husband of American tobacco heiress Doris Duke.

The king was reported to have ordered a large and valuable piece of jewelry sent from Paris for his inspection. There was no indication for whom it might be intended.

U.S. Housing Body Describes Average New Home Buyer

It was a one-family structure of five rooms with a floor area of 840 square feet. The property had a total value, by FHA values, of $8,502, of which the site accounted for $1,018. The average owner financed his purchase with a mortgage of $7,143 to be paid off in 23 years.

The average property was valued at just over twice the buyer's annual income.

Korea Desertions Blamed on Hunger

Tokyo — (AP) — North Korean troops are getting hungry. That's one reason increased numbers of Red soldiers have surrendered in recent days, an intelligence officer at General MacArthur's headquarters said.

There aren't many surrenders. But an increase is noted.

This, the intelligence officer said, shows the "continued disorganization of enemy supply routes by air strikes."

Both Mrs. Zachary Taylor and Mrs. Andrew Jackson were habitual pipe smokers, and Dolly Madison used snuff.

Ideal Roof Has 3 Primary Specifications for Quality

By HENRY J. WINGATE
Nationally-Known Architect and Engineer

Next to the foundation, the roof of a house is about as important as any other one part of the structure. The home-owner who has a first-class roof will have fewer repair problems, while a poor roof can be the source of continuing expense and trouble.

A roof has 3 primary specifications: (1) it must be absolutely wind - and - weather-tight; (2) it should be highly resistant to fire; and (3) it should be strong, adequately pitched and drained.

Roofing is available in a wide variety of materials, including abestos, asphalt, metal, slate and wood shingles, sheet metal, clay tile, tarred felt and gravel or roll roofing. Shingles or tiles are most generally used on a home. The other materials are largely confined to multi-family buildings, garages and commercial structures.

For strength, roof rafters should be no farther apart than 16 inches center to center. The roof covering is laid on sheathing nailed to the rafters. In the case of wood shingles, the sheathing boards are laid 2 inches or 3 inches apart to permit air circulation and retard rot in the shingles. For all other types of roof covering, the sheathing is laid tight, board to board.

More homes have wood shingles than any other roofing, but nowadays their use is banned in virtually all new construction in areas where building codes exist because they are not resistant to fire. A properly-laid wood shingle roof, however, will provide long and satisfactory service.

Clay tile and the asbestos, asphalt, metal and slate shingles are highly fire-resistant and long-lasting. On an old house, these materials are often laid successfully right over the old wood shingles.

Color of the roof can add to or detract from the appearance of the house. Hence this should be given consideration. In the colder sections of the country, a roof should have a steeper pitch than is usual in other areas, so that snow will not accumulate.

July Tops in Home Building

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government reported today that July was the best homebuilding month in history.

The bureau of labor statistics said tentative figures show 144,000 new non-farm dwelling units were started in July to bring the total for the first seven months of the year to almost 893,000.

By the end of July, the agency reported, new housing activity was 54 percent above the volume from January through July last year.

Sooner Drilling Holds to Average

TULSA — (AP) — Oklahoma oil field activity maintained an average completion and exploration rate during last week, early reports show.

According to the Tulsa World, there were 122 finals—slightly down from last week—and 108 new tests, a five well gain.

Other data: sixty-four oilers, two gassers and 56 dusters good for a daily initial output of crude, 5,522 barrels; gas, 17,574,000 cubic feet; and 376,488 total feet drilled.

Cats Take Fourth Straight, Beaumont Divides Twin Bill

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Fort Worth Cats took a deep breath yesterday and hung up their fourth straight victory to stretch their Texas League lead to two and one-half games.

The Cats defeated Oklahoma City 6-4, while second place Beaumont split a twin bill with Shreveport, taking the opener, 8-3, and dropping the nightcap, 0-2. Tulsa bounced back to blank Dallas, 1-0, after the Eagles took the first part of a doubleheader, 3-2. San Antonio smacked Houston, 8-4.

Dick Williams led Fort Worth's 10-hit attack on Al Aber with two singles and a double. Clarence Podbielan received the pitching victory although he was replaced by Carroll Beringer in the sixth.

Beaumont racked up four runs in the third frame of the first game to gain the edge on Shreveport. Rex Jones went the distance for his 12th win of the season, and Gale Pringle was charged with the loss.

Red Fahr allowed only six hits in hurling the whitewash for Shreveport in the second game. George Brown's homer tallied for the Sports in the fourth after a pair of singles had shoved across a run in the third.

Rudy Minarcin pitched a one-hitter for Tulsa in the nightcap and Walt Post homered for the victory margin. Lew Farotto's two-run single was the deciding blow for the Eagles in the first game as they scored three times in the final inning.

Rocky Ippolito hit a grand-slam homer in the eighth inning to give San Antonio its victory. Pete Mazar was charged with the loss and Wimpy Nardella was credited with the victory.

The clubs wind up their series tonight.

Hunting Season Has Dates Set By Commission

AUSTIN — (AP) — Duck and goose hunting will start in Texas, Nov. 3 and the season will probably extend for 45 days.

That decision was announced Saturday by Howard Dodgen, executive secretary of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission.

The game commission suggested to federal authorities, who have the last word on migratory waterfowl shooting seasons, that Texas be zoned for ducks, geese and other water birds. The fish and wildlife service rejected this plea.

The commission also suggested that if the zoning plan were not adopted, that the season open Nov. 10.

The Fish and Wildlife Service then gave the commission the choice of either Nov. 3 or Nov. 17 as the opener for the entire state.

Mat Champion Is Totally Blind After Car Wreck

TULSA, Okla. — (AP) — Leroy McGuirk, national junior heavyweight professional wrestling champion for 12 years, is totally blind, friends learned Sunday.

Dr. Jack Guyton, a Baltimore specialist, attempted to save McGuirk's one remaining eye by surgery Saturday. The operation, Guyton said, disclosed that it was beyond help. The Tulsa grappler lost his other eye in a childhood accident.

A minor traffic mishap near Little Rock, Ark., last February cost him his sight.

McGuirk, riding in an automobile with a fellow wrestler, crashed into the windshield when the brakes locked. His eyeglasses were shattered and pieces of the lens lodged in the good [illegible].

Clovis Salvages Finale; Lobos Are Here Tonight

Tenth Inning Smash Gives Pioneers Narrow 7-6 Win

CLOVIS —(AP)— Hitless in four previous trips, Ike Robbins smashed a tenth inning hit off Shortstop Johnny Jeandron's glove to drive in George Mendoza from second base and give the Clovis Pioneers a tensely fought 7-6 victory over the Pampa Oilers here Sunday afternoon.

Robbins connected after George Payte, third Oiler hurler, walked Mendoza and Ron George sacrificed. Tom Gallagher, after a shaky start, checked the league leaders with two runs and six hits over the last eight innings. Deck Woldt's triple followed by Jeandron's wind-blown homer were the only solid hits given up by Gallagher during this stretch. Tonight, at 8:15 the challenging Lamesa Lobos move into Oiler Park for a three-day stay that will be one of the more crucial stands of the season. It will be the last time that the two teams will meet in regular season play this year. Roy Parker, Oiler ace southpaw, is expected to start on the mound for the Oilers against an unannounced Lobo chunker in the weekly Ladies Night attraction.

Gallagher, who drove in the tying run with his second triple of the season in the sixth, opened the ninth with his second three-bagger of the game. After a hurried conference by the Pampa board of strategy, Payte issued free tickets to Charlie Bushong and Jess Jacinto to pack the sacks.

The bit of strategy succeeded. Frank Calo lifted a short fly to Dick Dawson in left and when Gallagher faked a dash for home, the Pampa leftfielder cut loose with a peg intercepted by Payte, Gallagher scampering back to third. However, Bushong had taken too long a lead off second and was doubled off. Pete Trabucco grounded to Jeandron forcing Jacinto for the final out.

When Jeandron lined a single to center opening the extra inning, it looked like the beginning of the end for Gallagher and the Pioneers. But Gallagher helped his own cause with the niftiest piece of fielding seen here this season, racing off the mound to take Joe Fortin's attempted sacrifice, pivoting and firing to Jacinto for the start of a snappy, possibly game-saving twin execution. Virgil Richardson flied deep to right to end Pampa's last chance.

Pampa started out on a sound note by tallying twice on Dawson's single, Woldt's sacrifice, Fortin's double and Richardson's single. Hits by Homer Matney, Jerry Squires and Dawson brought in two more runs in the second to put them ahead 4-0.

The Pioneers picked up two markers in their half of the second on Trabucco's triple, George Mendoza's single, another single by George and a fielder's choice. Clovis tied it up in the sixth on three hits and two walks to send the teams sparring for an opening down the stretch.

Earl Doud started for Pampa and was removed after Gallagher tripled in the deadlocking tally. Ed Hughes prevented any further damage at this point, but was lifted in the ninth after Gallagher slapped his second extra base hit, in favor of Payte. The latter was charged with the loss.

Weather Assists Pro Golfers in Eastern Tourney

BALTIMORE — (AP) — The top money winners in the $16,500 Eastern Open earned every penny of their take through cool and consistent shooting, but they'll have to give an assist to the weatherman.

A downpour drenched the 6,895-yard Mount Pleasant golf course Saturday night, transforming the extra large greens into soft, damp sponges that soaked up approach shots of yesterday's early threesomes.

The big change clearly threw some of the early starters off balance.

But by the time Lloyd Mangrum, Clayton Heafner, Pete Cooper and Cary Middlecoff teed off, a brisk wind and a bright sun had dried out the course to its natural condition.

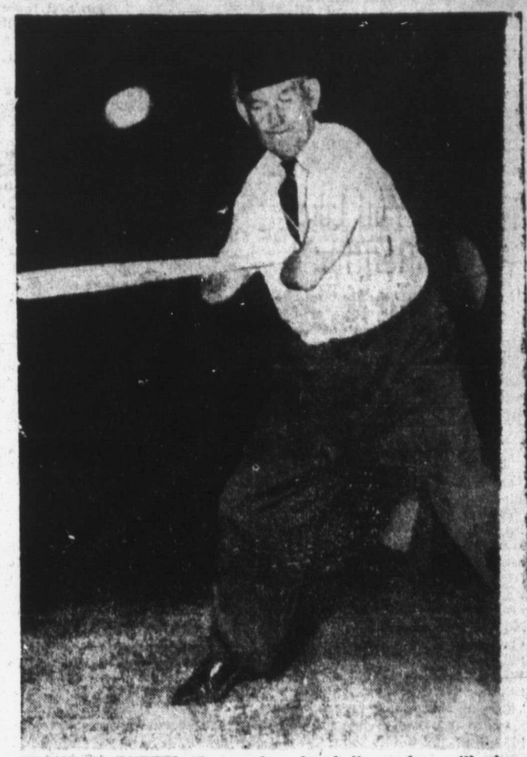

And they were the club-carrying tourists that more than paid their expenses here. Lanky Lloyd, from Niles, Ill., boomed out a three-under-par 69 and a 72-hole total of 279 to take the $2,600 top money, with Heafner, the mustachioed mountain from Charlotte, N.C., copping second place and $1,900 with 281.

Rudy Lorona had it in the clutch on a damp Sunday diamond and Ed Arthur received his second loss of the four game series. Timely and frequent hitting by Bob Leonhard and Earl Perry gave the Gassers the necessary punch. Each had three hits.

Jodie Beeler, a ball of fire the entire series, batted in three of Lamesa's five runs with two circuit clouts.

How Do You Like Walter Reuther?

"How do you like that guy Walter Reuther? You'll probably remember him as one of the top union bosses in the automotive industry that did his best (and successfully, too) to stymie the war production of the nation during the last war so that he and his union could get fat while soldiers were being killed.

Walter, you know, is head of the CIO Auto Workers union and has his headquarters in Detroit where they make automobiles and, incidently tanks and other weapons of war. Walter is not, as you might have guessed, a resident of Los Angeles or any other Southern California spot. Most of his time is spent in Detroit, New York or in Washington, D. C., where he carries a lot of slave voters in his union. And Washington, although you may not have heard of this before, is vote-conscious.

Well, do you know what Walter is up to now? This we have from an Associated Press dispatch, datelined Washington:

"President Walter P. Reuther of CIO's Auto Workers Union asked President Truman today to restore rent controls in Los Angeles."

In Detroit? No. Los Angeles. In Washington? No, Los Angeles.

And this is because, as the AP reports, Walter says that "war workers must have housing they can afford or the plane production program will suffer."

Reuther urged Mr. Truman to ignore the existing law and declare such action under his emergency powers as commander-in-chief of the armed forces. Of course it is not new for Mr. Reuther or President Truman, either one, to ignore the law if it happens to suit their fancy although both are quick to hide behind it if they are challenged.

But the CIO expert on economics in general and the housing situation in the Los Angeles area in particular has, as the AP points out, a union with "large membership in aircraft plants." And to do what he can to keep the union captives under his control he pretends to be assisting them when he actually is doing exactly the opposite.

Reuther's admission that the plane production program will suffer if the members of his union don't get exactly what they want is just about all that the soldiers will need to show them that the unions are interested only in the money and power that pours in and not in the nation's war effort. It certainly will be a great morale builder to the GI fighting in Korea to know that the "war workers must have the housing they can afford" so long as it is set at an arbitrary figure by some government bureaucrat who is interested in votes, not justice. While he is seeking out a new foxhole that he can "afford" it will be a great comfort to the GI to know that the aircraft workers are getting housing that they can "afford."

Well, that's Walter Reuther. How do you like him?

Fair Enough - Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

BOSTON — On Aug. 15, announcement was made that William O'Dwyer, the mayor of New York, the biggest city in the world, would quit the job and the moral responsibilities which he besought from the people only last fall. He is going to Mexico City as ambassador.

The same day, several papers published desperate speculations on the probable effect of the H-bomb on New York. This one would, in general terms, obliterate man and his works ranging from Newark to Stamford, population around ten million. A few days earlier, whole pages of the metropolitan papers were given over to contemplation of the atomic bomb and the potential massacre of people. The conclusion was that just one atomic bomb would cause the worst holocaust in human experience, with buildings toppled and burned, incalculable numbers of O'Dwyer's political pastorate reduced to ashes or worse in a few seconds, and streets choked with the sucked-out walls of skyscrapers and dwelling houses.

O'Dwyer, an immigrant who tended bar, became a cop and a judge and later a district attorney, finally achieved the rank of brigadier-general in the American Army during the second world war. Rank was inflated and cheapened like everything else good that the defiling hands of the spoilers touched. Fine soldiers who had earned their stars by years of patriotic service and the highest devotion to honor were reduced to a common level with sedentary sojourners in uniform in safe areas. When it was over and the Communist proteges of the new deal set up their seditious clamor against "the brass" it was difficult to discriminate between the political generals and the heroic young Ted Roosevelts. The honor and prestige of great and selfless patriots were discredited in the public mind.

On the same day that O'Dwyer's decision was announced, the following news item appeared in the New York press: "The city must be ready to care for 150,000 additional hospital cases immediately after an atomic bombing attack, hospitals commissioner Marcus D. Kogel warned yesterday."

One of the news stories of O'Dwyer's decision to quit said that "Edward J. Flynn, national committeeman from New York, asked the president for formal consideration of the mayor's desire to rid himself of the cares of New York's municipal housekeeping and to bask in the warmer clime of Mexico City."

Millions of other New Yorkers doubtless envy O'Dwyer, but proposals to disperse the population by sending people back where they came from or just arranging to get as many as possible out of town have not gone beyond the stage of desire. Dispersal of unquestionably the most important life-saving proposal, but the only actual dispersal thus far accomplished has been that of a microscopic few fortunate individuals who could pick up and go — to Mexico City, for example.

Governor Dewey was first to measure the apathy, apathy of bewilderment and noncomprehension, among the people of O'Dwyer's city, as the Korean war warmed up. Although the city is O'Dwyer's immediate responsibility and only a portion of Dewey's whole responsibility, Dewey instantly appraised the terrible potentialities and cried out in warning. He began to organize civil defense under General Lucius D. Clay, the hero of the Berlin air lift, but it is silently recognized that little can be done to minimize the first disaster. After the first one, lessons learned from the bomb's actual action in the peculiar properties of a vast city of high and low buildings and varied construction might be helpful.

The New York Times said editorially: "He (O'Dwyer) has done many good things for the city of New York. . .his concern for his health, which, although good recently, is certainly a major factor in his decision, will be understood by those who are familiar with the exhausting and nerve-wracking job—."

The streets of New York under O'Dwyer are a disgraceful and demoralizing menace to the civic confidence and self-respect of the millions who will not be able to accompany him to a more hygienic clime. They are filthy beyond belief, and especially on the parade streets this dejected condition has the psychological effect of undermining popular confidence in the power of the city government to perform even its routine peacetime housekeeping.

As the Times notes, O'Dwyer's health is "good." Nevertheless, he put himself away in a suite, not a single room or a cot in a corridor, at crowded Bellevue Hospital a few months ago, for a rest from his occasional labors, which have been largely political. This was between his frequent vacations. He is far healthier than millions who will stay right where they are.

The F. B. I.

BY DAVID BAXTER

In the old days of the W. P. A., although I had long since repudiated the Nude Eel, for some unknown reason I was asked to take charge of a technical assignment calling for specialized art training. In the evenings, the working day being over, I sometimes associated with some of my co-workers in a social way, which usually gets around to political discussions. As a confirmed isolationist it was natural that at times I should give my views of President Roosevelt—which were not too flattering. Consequently I had a call one day to report to the headquarters for an interview, and the interviewer turned out to be an Administration man who wanted to know all about my views and a few private cartoons I had drawn. He was very displeased with me, that was clear.

At first he seemed impersonal enough but as the questioning went on he asked my why I had accepted W. P. A. employment and my answer was because I enjoyed seeing my family eat. Then he said, "Well, you aren't showing much gratitude or loyalty to your employer, the President."

I didn't like that so I informed him that I had never been in F.D.R.'s employ but was employed by the people of the United States, who were paying my salary. It was their money, and not F.D.R.'s. Furthermore, unlike some of the veteran loafers on the payroll, I had worked hard to earn every cent paid me. My political opinions, expressed in private hours, were my own business and no citizen ever has been compelled to give any personal allegiance to any President as long as the citizen was loyal to the principles on which the U. S. Govt. was established. I doubt if many Nude-Eelers gave their personal loyalty to ex-President Hoover even if they were loyal to the U. S. Government. My interrogator didn't get very far with his accusations but he still insisted that the President was my employer, that I owed my job to him and that I would continue my "activities" at my own risk. Much I did.

Now there's the difference between a political investigator and an F.B.I. man. No agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation would ask you whether you were personally loyal to any certain President nor would he refer to that President as "Commander-in-Chief," not only of the armed forces but of the citizenry besides. An F.B.I. man would get down to the simple business of finding out whether you broke a federal law or not. If he asked you about people you knew it wouldn't be for the purpose of smearing you by spreading it over the newspapers, as political investigators do, but to determine what facts you held, if any.

The F.B.I. really does what it is supposed to do and serves the taxpayers fairly and impartially. It is a strictly legitimate governmental agency in police work and is probably the most necessary bureau. The politicians, of course, would like to use it to embarrass their opponents and have tried to many times, to no avail. J. Edgar Hoover has seen to that. His loss would be a national calamity because there is no assurance that his successor would be able to resist pressure and stand as rock-like against any and all political partisanship as Hoover has. A Republican Administration would naturally try to get the F.B.I. to slant its investigations against New Dealers while the Nude-Eel-Welfare State gang has repeatedly hoped to use the name of the F.B.I. in attacking their opponents. Through it all, Hoover and Co. have stuck strictly to their policy. Secrecy, no using the F.B.I. to smear unpopular individuals, and no arrests or publicity until solid facts and proof have first been gathered on which the bureau is sure that it can convict in any court. This careful protection of the rights of individuals is a shining jewel in the bureau's crown. In spite of the present war hysteria, suspicion and demands, no citizen, even holding to communist political opinion, is going to run afoul of the F.B.I. unless he clearly and provably violates federal law, or commits some overt act in an attempt to. Investigation by the bureau has prevented thousands of law violations which otherwise would have resulted in wholesale sabotage.

During the last war when you smeared anyone you didn't like by calling him a "Nazi" or "Fascist" instead of a "Communist," I had considerable experience with the F.B.I. Because of some biting articles I wrote on F.D.R. and the Nude-Eel and being known as an isolationist, it was natural that partisans should call me such names as "Fascist," etc. and place terrific pressure on the F.B.I. to do something about me. The false, rotten publicity these rascals got out by way of press and radio was a hundred times worse than the stuff they propagandized to ruin Lindbergh. One widely-read labor paper even declared that I had a Fascist headquarters and was the leader of a nation-wide treasonable underground organization. A group of jittery vigilantes read that, believed what they read, and were discussing a tar and feather party for me until a good friend of mine among them calmed them down and gave them the facts. I remember how apologetic some of them were later on when the whole truth came out.

Did the F.B.I. yield to all that pressure and hustle me off to the hoose-gow? They did not. They gave me as painstaking an investigation as you can imagine for over two years. I was probably under their surveilance day and night. I could certainly feel a lot of web-spinning going on all around me. But I was always frank with them, opened my papers to them, and cooperated fully, realizing that these men were serving me impartially with all other citizens. With real enemy agents about and the danger of sabotage imminent, these men were doing their duty. Far from fearing them, I appreciated them. They never arrested me, for I broke no law.

That is a good thing to remember when thinking about the F.B.I. or if you are ever called into contact with the bureau. If you an honest citizen you have nothing to fear and a great deal to be thankful for.

Jolly Game of Smoking Out Communists

National Whirligig

...news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Although President Truman has been eulogized and reelected as the national political champion of the "little fellows," "small business" and "liberals," he has turned over more business and dollars to those he assails during campaigns as "the selfish and privileged interests" than any chief executive except Franklin D. Roosevelt. He holds the record for a peacetime president, however.

That is the amazing, off-the record conclusion from a compilation of his grants and expenditures to "big business, big industry and big agriculture" since V-J Day. It includes payments and loans which have been handed out under the agricultural parity-price program, the Marshall Plan, national defense, routine government expenditures and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

With the emergency national defense and foreign rearmament outlays scheduled for fiscal 1951, a financial burden which may last for many years, it is estimated that the Truman Administration will have spent more than $200,000,000,000 for the benefit of the upper bracketeers of American agriculture, business, industry, finance, transportation etc.

PROFITS — It is true that these vast outpourings of money "trickle down" to the advantage of small farmers, the average workingman, small business men, service trade employes, professional men and the people in general. But a tremendous amount of Truman dollars are siphoned off at the top, which explains why the profits of corporations after taxes break all records.

Ironically, President Truman has not been able to achieve similar successes for the masses who vote for him and regard him as their hero. In his five years in office, he has not fulfilled a single pledge of his so-called "fair deal," and he has virtually abandoned that domestic program because of the foreign crisis.

He has not been able to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act. He has not been able to put over national health insurance or federal aid to education. The Brannan Plan is dead. Any FEPC system is out for the Korean duration. Even his scheme for development of public power is crippled. Save for social security expansion, which both parties favored, he has done nothing for the "little fellows."

OPENED — President Truman's organized labor friends begin to appreciate the oddities of this situation, although they make a slightly different approach and answer. In asking why Republicans criticize these lending and financing processes, the American Federation of Labor's political organ recently asked:

Do business men like the RFC program? They sure do. That includes Republican National Committee Chairman Guy ("The Fair Deal is Socialism") Gabrielson. He is president of Carthage Hydrocol Inc. of New York, which is in the natural gas business. "Carthage Hydrocol has received three loans totalling $18,500,000 from the RFC. . .So, you see, business men talk a good game against the 'welfare state,' But between innings they dip their mitts into the federal treasury."

The labor editors do not add that "business men" could not "dip their mitts into the federal treasury," if President Truman had not opened it to them.

BENEFIT — The records show that the majority of commodity subsidies in the postwar years have gone to well-to-do farmers, not to the small growers. The latter get the benefit of government-fixed parity prices, but the government checks have largely been paid to owners of vast acres, with payments ranging from $25,000 to more than $500,000.

The Marshall Plan, foreign rearmament and national defense preparations have benefited the "big fellows." In fact, the money has flowed to many of the firms formerly or now under anti-trust indictment because of their bigness — the du Ponts, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, General Electric, Alcoa. Without them, we could never win a war.

Other industries which profit from the economic and military support of Western Europe, as well as the past and proposed national defense program, are aircraft, chemicals, transportation, textiles, food, shoes, medicinal, rubber etc.

In fact, although the Marshall Plan and the new national defense program are dictated by unhappy events abroad, they will underwrite domestic production, employment and "prosperity," stave off a depression, and, possibly, help the Truman administration politically. It is a major White House consideration.

AVERAGE — A confidential analysis of RFC loans for 1949 suggests that the administration has been more solicitous of "big business" than of the "little fellows." It must be remembered, too, that 1949 was a year of so-called peak production and prosperity, when firms should not have been too dependent on Uncle Sam.

Nevertheless in that year 4,500 loans to heavy and light industries, to service trade enterprises, to professional men, to finance, real estate, insurance and what-have-you ventures averaged $140,000. It is no corner or hide-in-the-alley outfit which can command that average amount of loan.

Indeed it is probable that a true balance would show that the majority of the loans ranged above $1,000,000. A more detailed breakdown shows what a Santa Claus this "little fellow" and "liberal" administration has been to its campaign-time enemies. Here is a list of the average loans to certain industries for 1949:

Iron and steel, $447,141; autos and equipment, $1,307,000; finance, insurance, and real estate, $800,000; food, $1,100,000; lumber, $1,300,000; oil, coal and gas, $619,000; textiles, $257,000; paper, $237,000, rubber, $111,000. And remember, these are only averages!

The Nation's Press

By BRUCE W. ROCHE

(University of Texas journalism student, winner of the 1950 Clarence E. Gilmore Safety Contest Award.)

Every day, Texas newspapers run stories telling of death and destruction on highways throughout the state and nation.

About 32,000 people were killed on the nation's highways in 1949, and the average yearly total clings close to that figure. Imagine the Cotton Bowl stadium packed to capacity with spectators to see the yearly football game. Kill half of that crowd, and the dead in number would equal the number executed yearly on the nation's streets and highways.

In April of 1947, the nation was shocked by the Texas City disaster which killed 500 people. Yet, a disaster of similar proportions occurs on the nation's highways with the passage of every five days.

Of special significance in the figures presented above is the number of deaths caused by drivers from 15 to 24 years of age. Persons in this age group are more accident prone than those of other ages, says the Department of Public Safety. Young drivers are thoughtless, careless, irreponsible, and inexperienced. Teenicide drivers — as they are called — kill about 7,500 people — including many of themselves — every year. This represents 25 percent of the nation's yearly auto deaths and exceeds the death toll of the Johnstown flood, the San Francisco fire, and the sinking of the Titanic combined.

The Texas problem is as serious as the nation's. Of 1,957 traffic deaths recorded in the Lone Star State in 1949, 529 occurred with drivers from 15 to 24 at the wheel. Thus, 27 percent of the deaths were caused by the young-driver group.

With the cooperation of the schools, parents, and peace officers, deaths caused by young drivers could be greatly reduced. For one thing, schools could require that the student take a driver-education course. Second, state laws pertaining to the young driver could be tightened. Finally, unless the young person is taught courtesy of the road at home and unless his parents set a good example for him, any other attempt to make a better driver of him will be nullified.

Young drivers can be taught road safety.

The Doctor Says

WRITTEN FOR NEA
By EDWIN J. JORDAN, MD.

Leprosy has never been a serious problem in the United States, although the disease is fairly common in other parts of the world including China, India, Africa, and parts of Russia, Spain, Portugal and the Scandinavian countries. In the United States there have never been more than 500 cases of the disease reported at any one time and the six leprosariums house only about 950.

Leprosy, or Hansen's disease, as some prefer to call it, should not cause any particular fear in spite of the ancient superstitions. Furthermore, it is time to change the attitude toward those who have leprosy and stop considering them outcasts from society as was the case during the middle ages.

In recent years a hopeful outlook with regard to treatment has developed. This is principally because of the work of the United States Public Health Service at the Federal Hospital for patients with leprosy at Carville, La. Several drugs, technically known as sulfones, have been developed which seem to have a real value in the treatment of leprosy. This is good news indeed.

The danger of becoming infected by ordinary contact with a patient with leprosy is slight. This disease cannot be easily acquired and it is spread exceedingly slowly—in fact, there is some question even of this—from person to person only by close contact over a long period of time.

NEW HOPE FOR VICTIMS

Isolation from others after diagnosis is made is generally recommended but the contagiousness is so slight that the states of New York and Vermont do not even require that the disease be reported and Massachusetts does not have any restrictions concerning isolation of patients.

New hope has therefore entered the outlook for the victims of leprosy. Sure and complete cure will almost certainly come and when it does, the recovered victims of this disease should be taken back into society without fear. Alarm about leprosy has been given too much prominence because of the hysterical attitude of our ancestors of the middle ages. This is not justified by the present day facts.

HOLLYWOOD.—(NEA)— Jack Carson's role of a movie cowboy, opposite Ginger Rogers, in "Illegal Bride," will have some of Hollywood's western heroes squirming. It's a broad satire of the "they-went-thataway" set with doubles performing Jack's riding and singing. When someone calls him "Dragalong," Jack replies:

Milton Berle is steaming over rumors that the postponement of his second picture for Warners has something to do with empty movie houses that played his first, "Always Leave Them Laughing." Holding Ann Miller's paw at the Nat King Cole opening at the Mocambo, Milton told me:

"Look, so far my picture has grossed $1,640,000 in the United States alone. I have 25 per cent and I ought to know what's going on."

Fox ordered Jeff Chandler to shave his chest for his native role in "Bird of Paradise" and now they've outfitted him with a wig. "My own hair," he explains, "doesn't blow in the wind."

Jeff joins the bare-chested set in a sarong. "I show more of my body and less of my mind," he says.

O. PERKINS, NOT O'BRIEN

Thanks to H. C. Potter and others for jogging my memory to preserve the memory of the late Osgood Perkins. Perkins, not Pat O'Brien, created the managing editor role on Broadway in "The Front Page." . . . Marilyn Maxwell is mulling an offer to do a Broadway musical version of the old Maggie Sullivan movie, "The Good Fairy." . . . Charles Boyer is all smiles over his latest, "The First Legion," in which he plays a Jesuit priest. No more "great lover" roles, he says. . . . Burt Lancaster and Harold Hecht are huddling on a follow up to "Flame and the Arrow." Not necessarily a sequel, but another swashbuckler. Hecht has a sea story in mind.

Collier Young and Ida Lupino are un-separated again and living together at Malibu Beach. . . Dr. Michael Gurdin, the plastic surgeon who reconstructed Frances Gifford's face following an auto crash, just beautified Gloria Grahame's nose.

The grapevine rumors persist that Warners paid Shirley Temple a wad of greenbacks to settle the one picture commitment they had with her. Somewhere in the lovely neighborhood of $70,000, I hear. . . . "Hollywood Reel," my TV feature newsreel about movietown with Coy Watson, returns to the video waves in September.

MGM's billboards for "The Duchess of Idaho" do not carry Mel Torme's name but his cash register magic has two other major studios talking contract. . . . The torch Bob Stack is carrying for Irene Wrightsman could light up the night shots on Kirk Douglas' new picture. Kirk is her current steady.

THE PAYMENTS

Errol Flynn is laughing up his well-tailored sleeve at the rumors of a bust-up in his romance with Princess Ghika. The marriage, he says will take place when he wiggles out of those big alimony payments to Lili Damita.

Washington.....by Peter Edson

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Korean fighting has developed some brand new gimmicks in the employment of air power. They are the results of expediency. Necessity being the mother of invention, pilots, group commanders and even ground force commanders handicapped by lack of troops, artillery and tank killers have had to employ airplanes in ways for which they were never intended.

One of the many surprises of the North Korean effectiveness has been the manner in which Red commanders have been able to make night attacks and still have control of their forces in the morning. To break up these maneuverings in total darkness, it has been necessary to do considerable night flying, for both reconnaissance and attack.

To spot troop movements and targets, U. S. planes have had to fly low over roads, then turn on their landing lights and strafe whatever might be revealed by this illumination.

Two-place P-50 fighters have been usd for front line reconnaissance. Practically all the armament has been taken out of these planes to give them greater maneuverability and range. The planes fly over the battle area. The observer in the second seat locates targets, then by radio calls in the fighter planes. By voice control, the tactical planes are guided to targets to do their stuff.

FIRST TIME

The stock of the jet planes—F-80's — has risen considerably for use in tactical air support of ground troops. Being fast, they can get to the front in a hurry on an emergency call. Also, they can fly more missions per day, though their time in the air on each sortie is limited.

The story is told of one jet pilot who stayed too long over the front and exhausted both his ammunition and gasoline. Being unable to get back to his base, he made a belly landing in a rice paddy. It was the first time on record that such a thing had been done safely.

Then the pilot got South Koreans to come into the field and by main strength and awkwardness lift his plane out of the muck so he could lower his wheels. They pulled him onto a road, brought gas and saw him take off. That was another first.

Reports that the jets fly too fast for accurate shooting give Air Force commanders the heebie-jeebies. They say pilots who are poor marksmen or miss their targets use this as their alibi.

Pilots have ben detailed to advanced ground force command posts to spot targets. Again using radio voice control, they talk in the fighter pilots for attacks on enemy strong points.

In the early days of the Korean fighting, General MacArthur had to throw his troops in piecemeal, as fast as they could be moved over from Japan. This is always considered risky, but time gave no alternative.

OIL REFINERIES HIT

Then because there was not enough artillery available, the Air Force was called on to take its place, as best it could. Using airplanes to bomb foxholes is not efficient. It is expensive. There were even reports of B-29's being used to bomb advanced positions. But in this emergency it has been regarded as effective.

Main disadvantage of such misuse of heavy bombers was that it prevented them from doing their normal job of blasting production and supply centers and main lines of communication.

For instance, there were two main oil refineries in Korea. One was at Wosan in North Korea, the other, larger one near Seoul, the South Korean capital. It is only recently that these two strategic targets have been thoroughly bombed out.

Results of these bombings have not begun to show yet. They are expected to show soon in more enemy tanks and trucks stalled for lack of gas.

When attacked, North Korean tanks and trucks have been effectively concealed by crashing through mud and thatched walls of flimsy houses. Only way to smoke them out for destruction have been told by radio to take villages.

The South Korean government has sanctioned this practice, rough though it is. The people have been told by radiot o take to the hills on the approach of North Korean forces. The villages are deserted. That the Korean people accept this order is indicated by reports from U. S. pilots. Whenever they fly over, the people come out into clearings and wave to them.

Pilots say it was just like that in France during the last war. The people came out and by signals guided the pilots in to attack the Nazis, and drive them out.

Gaston-Johnson Company Invades Europe

Meads Bakery Continues To Gain in Popularity

Have you ever tried to follow one of those white trucks with the "It's Fresherized" sign on it while it makes a delivery trip around Pampa? Don't do it! It's a Mead Bakery truck getting your fresh supply of Mead's Fine Bread to your grocer's. Following one of those trucks for half a day would wear out the average person. But it would be a good study in efficiency for anyone. They don't violate any speed laws, but they get a lot of bread delivered in a pretty short time.

Regardless of the praises that might be sung for the employes of Mead's Bakery, the lads of the local branch of the establishment are doing a fine job of perpetuating the Mead name on the local grocery scene. Wherever you go, you'll find a clean-cut Mead's driver-salesman stocking your grocer's shelves with the fine products of the Mead's Bakeries. The success of the Mead Brothers and their outstanding bakeries has rested squarely on the shoulders of the local men who do so much to popularize the product of the company. The Mead Brothers are the first to give the credit for their success to the men who meet the public every day.

Oscar Cox, Bill Lam and the rest of Mead's Pampa crew are an outstanding group of local representatives. These men not only serve the grocery stores in Pampa; it is their job to provide Mead's Fine Breads to a large number of the towns surrounding Pampa. In spite of the large area these men are required to cover, you'll never find a stale loaf of Mead's Fine Breads on your grocer's shelves.

In times such as these, everyone is inclined to do a bit of worrying. Worry takes a large toll of energy and leaves a lot of people with a more-than-usual tired feeling. A good cure for such conditions is an additional slice of bread at every meal. Make this a rule at your next meal — also, make it a point to use Mead's Fine Breads and help get new energy in a hurry.

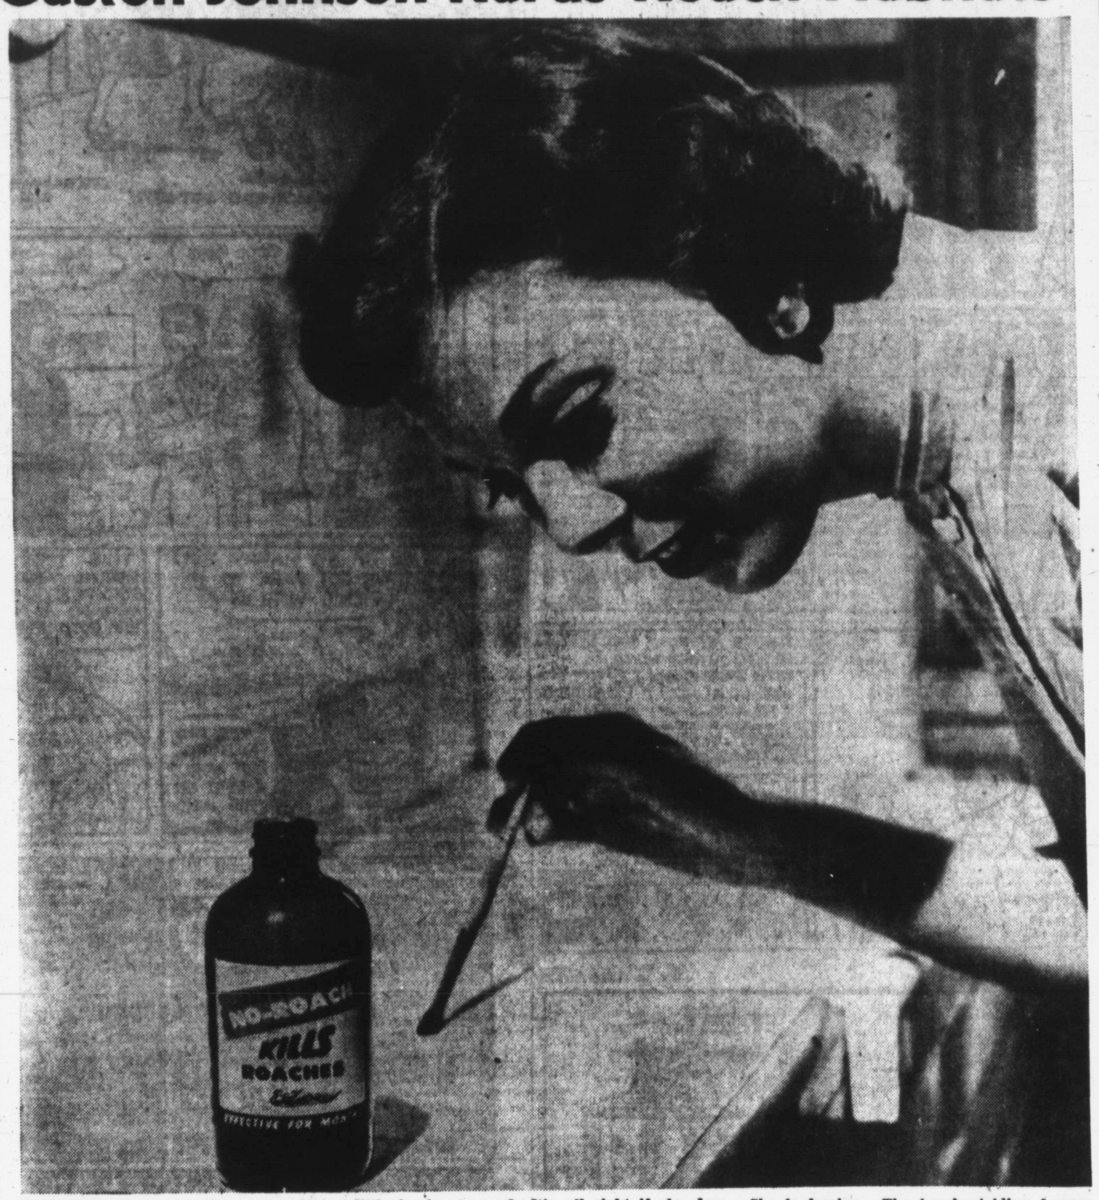

Shamrock Waves Fall Warning

That venerable guardian of things automotive in Pampa is waving his annual fall warning to his customers. Charley Ford isn't trying to rush seasons for you. He's one of those boys who believes in the old adage that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Better listen to him.

That high-priced car of yours has taken on new importance since the old "wars and rumors of wars" bug is upon us once again. Whether the nation is on the verge of another skirmish, or if it's all a false alarm it will pay you to let Charley and his gang give your car the once-over. A thorough checkup at required intervals is a lot cheaper than extensive repairs. It's surprising what a little grease and oil will do to prevent costly headaches when the latter are least expected.

The weather is getting cool enough to make a prelimnary check toward servicing your car for fall driving. Drop in at 400 W. Foster and let Charley Ford go to work.

European Climes Subject to Attack As Gaston-Johnson Raids Roach Habitats

DOES THE little gal in the picture look a little foreign to you? It's all right if she does. She is foreign. The brush-wielding femme fatale is one of those enterprising Frenchwomen who knows a good thing when she sees it. The good thing is a bottle of Gaston-Johnston's NO-ROACH, recently introduced to the people of France.

Word from the fighting front, from unimpeachable sources, has it that the Gaston-Johnson people are feverishly engaged in cleaning up some of the scenes of battle of World War II. Gaston-Johnston operatives have made a substantial beachhead in various European territories and report successful actions wherever they have landed. Seems, according to Gaston-Johnston representatives, that Europe is plagued with a pesky pest related, by direct line, to our American Cockroach. As a result the Gaston-Johnston people have established a supply line to New York and Dallas and are rapidly overcoming the Roach tribe in some of Europes' brighter cities.

The common roach is one commodity even "Uncle Joe" won't get into a dispute over. No one in his right mind is much interested in perpetuating a colony of this slimy insect gentry. The pests seem to have an affinity for kitchens, especially those equipped with gleaming white fixtures and appliances. The perplexing part of the roach tradition is that you don't necessarily have to see the darned things to be the proud owner of a crowd of them. They'll be as likely to have their kitchen holiday while you sleep as they will to do so at any other time. You can't be too careful about taking steps to prevent them or discontinuing their nocturnal jaunts across your sink, bread box and table.

Because everything grows big in Texas it behooves the Texan to take larger steps in his battle to rid his immediate area of big roaches.

These roaches are a lot like lovers. They prefer dark, cozy nooks. Unlike the lovers, however, they prefer the kitchen to the parlor. When you come upon them, they're just as startled and annoyed as sweethearts at an interrupted kiss. Roaches start scurrying — you start stamping, trying to kill them in as large number as possible. That's a silly pastime.

Imagine yourself, a gracious adult, waltzing around the kitchen attempting to stamp out the life of an innocent roach. It's even worse if your husband works nights. You'll be mighty lonesome and want some company at times. It'll be human company, though—not a gang of unwelcome visitors like roaches in your kitchen! What if they do eat up your cake, nibble at your fruit, pick up cracker crumbs—that's no sign you've got to bid them stay!

When you're plagued with roaches, there's nothing worse for your morale than meeting folks who claim they've never seen the pesky things. Well, everybody has had roaches at one time or another—or practically everybody. There is no stigma attached to belonging to the group. But there is cause for eyebrow lifting if you don't do something about your troubles.

With the No-Roach experts busied with stemming the tide of roaches in the lands across the sea, it's up to you to do something about cleaning up your own establishment. Don't leave it to your kitchen help. They've got enough headaches without stopping to worry about ridding the kitchen of the pests.

It's unnecessary to do any prolonged worrying about the roach and his kith and kin. All you've got to do is provide yourself with a cheap paint brush, buy one of the three convenient and economical sizes of Gaston-Johnston's NO-ROACH and go to work.

Johnston's NO-ROACH is a colorless coating, which is simply brushed on surfaces frequented by roaches, ants and waterbugs. It is invisible, stainless, odorless and sanitary. The colorless coating kills these crawling insects, and remains effective for months. The residue will remain powerful enough to kill any strays foolish enough to ignore the warning of their dead compadres.

So, you see, Gaston-Johnston didn't forget you. Even if they did go packing off to Europe, they left a product so well perfected that anyone can use it. Open a bottle, wet your brush, brush it on; goodbye roaches.

Rinehart-Dosier Spring Surprise of The Year

If you want to witness some excitement in the field of appliance sales in Pampa, keep your eye peeled for the next move from the proprietors of the Pampa Maytag. They have a habit of rolling along in tranquil mood until they have lulled their associates into dreamless sleep. Then, like the bolt from the blue, they pull a shenanigan out of the hat and leave the populace wondering what is going to happen next.

Those gentlemen from Pampa Maytag have done it again. Not being content to set the town afire with some nifty didoes in merchandising, they come up with the surprise of the year. Although their purchase of T. M. Brooks' appliance house is no longer hot news, it is still quite a topic of conversation. It isn't often that two young business men, almost completely new to their field, write such a success story as has been penned by these enterprising young chaps.

Now that the dust has settled over the rapid-fire transaction of buying out the appliance division of Brooks Electric, the boys have settled down to providing Pampans with the finest possible service to be had in the appliance field. With two fine stores to serve prospective customers the boys can double the excellent services they offered at the old Pampa Maytag establishment.

Now known as Rinehart-Dosier stores No. 1 and No. 2 the firm will feature all of its old lines of merchandise, Maytag, Crosley, Gibson, etc., in addition to a full line of Zenith and General Electric appliances.

Whether you approach the town from the East or West, you'll be pretty red around the ears if you admit you can't find a Rinehart-Dosier store. Don't forget the locations of the new company: No. 1 is located in the old Pampa Maytag Store, No. 2 is in the building occupied by Brooks Electric. Your old Pampa Maytag friends will serve you at either location.

New Liquid Kills Roaches, Ants!

Scientists recommend that you control roaches, ants, and waterbugs the modern way—with Johnston's NO-ROACH. Brushed just where you want it (not a messy spray), the colorless coating kills these pests. Effective for months—it's odorless, stainless and invisible. 8 oz. 89c; Pint 1.69; Quart 2.98. Available at Crétney Drug.

Evans Ready to Renew Finishes

"Better check the finish of that automobile of yours," says Aubrey Evans of Pampa Lubricating Company. It has been two weeks since the Top o' Texas Rodeo and Horse Show took attention from the every day needs of Mr. and Mrs. Pampa. It's about time to get back in the groove and check up on the neglected items of business and car care.

Even the best finish job will deteriorate when it gets the full brunt of dust and dirt created by an influx of visiting traffic in the town. You may have found little time to think of such things during the 'big week'. Now that the celebration is over, you are in a position to let the old bus loose for a complete wash, wax and polish job.

Don't wait another day. Tomorrow morning would be a good time to drive in to Pampa Lubricating Company and make arrangements to have that paint job covered with a first - class wax and polish finish.

A Pittsburgh reader writes as follows: "Both sides needed 120 and after a few rounds of play, my partner proceeded to meld joker-queen-queen and deuce-jack-jack. The meld was of course ten points short, and the cards become penalty cards.

"He discarded one of the queens. My hand consisted of four aces, three sevens, three fives and a black three, and my next draw was a joker. I promptly melded my joker with the four aces. At his turn to play, my partner added his joker to my aces, melded the deuce and two jacks and discarded the remaining queen.

"If instead of melding his deuce with the jacks he had added both wild cards to my aces, we would have had a canasta and I could have melded out at my next turn. As it happened, I kept drawing and discarding odd cards, and eventually gave away an enormous discard pile.

"Before I could go out, the opponents scored 3000 points while if he had made the canasta right away, we would have set them back on the hand. Didn't he make a bad play when he failed to make the canasta for me?"

I regret to have to state that my correspondent was the one at fault in the hand described above. He had a simple method of telling his partner to make the canasta rather than to meld one of his wild cards with the two jacks. All he had to do was to meld one of his small sets of three at the same time he melded the aces.

Then, if his partner was on his toes, he would have said to himself, "My partner didn't have to meld those three little cards. Four aces and a joker count 130, which is more than enough count. He is showing me that he is playing for out. Therefore, it is my duty to help him and the way to help him is to make the canasta."

Hence the canasta would have been made and the hand ended immediately.

Of course, I make some charge against the partner. When the ace meld was made, his correct play was to add the joker, discard his remaining queen and leave the deuce and the two jacks as penalty cards for one more t[rick]. You see there is no requirement that penalty cards must be melded at the first opportunity.

First Lieutenant Clarance E. Shillings, Pampa, was graduated last week from the Air Force communications school at Scott Air Force Base, Illinois, it was announced by the base commander, Brigadier General John F. McBlain.

Lt. Shillings will assume command of a communications squadron or group engaged in the operation and maintenance of the world wide network of radio and fixed wire facilities so vital in completion of the Air Force mission.

Lt. Shillings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar C. Shillings, 408 North Wells, served with the Airways & Air Communications Service in Puerto Rico for over three years and with the 8th Air Force in England for three months.

Prior to entering the Scott communications school, Lt. Shillings served at Biggs Air Force Base, Texas.

Reds Are Charged With Disturbance

TOKYO — (AP) — An intelligence officer at General MacArthur's headquarters was explaining to correspondents today that he was puzzled about the location of one Red division — the seventh.

He said he would place the division definitely on the south coast, except for one fact:

"We have 19 or 20 prisoners from that division in jail at Pohang."

Pohang is on the east coast at the opposite end of the 120-mile battle line.

'Did you say they are in the Pohang jail?" asked a correspondent. "Why?"

"For disturbing the peace," snapped the officer.

83-Year-Old Man Cuts New Teeth

WATERTOWN, N. Y. — (AP) — An 83-year-old man who says he never has been to a dentist claims he's growing his third set of teeth.

William Schweiter of Perch River said he had only four of his second set of teeth left when he first noticed the third set edging through.

Schweiter's daughter, Mrs. Mary B. Phillips, said "father is uncomfortable, but pleased about the whole thing."

New York State Employment Rises

NEW YORK — (AP) — Jobs in New York state have increased more than 100,000 since the start of the Korean war, the state department of labor says.

Some persons have been hired for direct war work, the department reported, but most have been absorbed by civilian concerns stockpiling goods against the future.

Claims for jobless pay dropped from 415,500 on June 5 to 312,000 on Aug. 6. That brought the number of unemployed to the lowest total since November, 1948.

CARBON KILL

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc. — by Julius Long

THE STORY: Frank Phajol, a commercial diamond dealer, asks Del Dorsam of Tucson, a private detective, to be his bodyguard during the delivery of 25,000 carats of commercial diamonds to Copper City which Mike Dominico, a big driller, has promised to buy. Knowing Phajol's reputation for handling stolen "carbon," Dorsam is reluctant until he sees Phajol's beautiful daughter, Pat. "Won't it be dangerous to take her along?" the detective asks. "You're in, then!" asks Phajol. Dorsam smiles at his own unconscious admission and nods his head.

I HADN'T realized it, but I was in on Phajol's deal the moment I had learned that Pat was coming along. If he decided not to permit her to join us, I was stuck, but still I felt duty-bound to object.

"She's got to go, Del." It was a matter-of-fact statement. It did not invite inquiry. Well, that was that. I was hooked into something dubious, and there was no way out of it now. I crossed to the phone to call my office.

"Don't tell your girl nothing. Just say you won't be around," Phajol said sharply.

That's about what I did tell Miss Roberts, my office girl. She was also the office girl of the insurance man with whom we shared the same reception room. Times were that bad with me.

"I'm going over to the garage and get my car," said Phajol. "There is a small matter I want to attend to, but I will make it by noon. Pat will pick up the diamonds at the desk. You will wait in the lobby and escort her out to my car when I arrive."

I nodded. Phajol pulled on his coat. He looked uncomfortable in it, as I must have looked. I had to wear one on account of the automatic in my shoulder-holster. I marveled that Phajol was carrying no gun. Perhaps he had left one in his car.

We parted in the lobby. I took a seat in a large chair where I could observe the two elevators. I had not been there more than a few minutes when a boy paged me.

"You are wanted in 813," he said. Phajol had given me my orders.

Pat was not the serene gal I had seen a while before. She looked worried to the point of desperation.

"Close the door!" she said. I did this. She walked to the center of the room as if she feared being overheard. I followed her.

"Right after you left I had a phone call," she told me. Her brown eyes drilled my own. "It was Pete Gremcheck. Do you know him?"

"I know of him. I've seen him a couple of times. He's a diamond salesmen for Maekling of New York."

"He asked for dad. When I told him he had gone out, he gave me a message. It was: 'Don't try to sell Dominico! If you do, Fred Maekling is going to find out what happened to his 20,000 carats!'"

FRED MAEKLING was the owner of Maekling, Inc., one of the largest importers of commercial diamonds. It was bad. If Maekling was missing 20,000 carats, Phajol had better have an explanation for his own diamonds.

"Can your father prove where he got his stones?" I remembered his offer to show me a bill.

She looked both worried and evasive. "He didn't steal them, and he didn't buy them from anybody who stole from Maekling! Gremcheck is trying to scare us! Well, he won't get away with it!"

"I hope not. But why did you get me up here? Why didn't you reach your father?"

"After Gremcheck hung up I looked out the window and saw dad climbing into his car across the street."

"But I thought he was going to pick it up at a garage."

"He's really going to pick up a gun. He's afraid to carry one, you know. Dad was in prison once."

Pat went on: "Lots of people know it. That's why it was so easy to discredit him when he started selling commercial diamonds. People believed the whispering campaign Pete Gremcheck started because of dad's background. Dad's never been able to live it down. Actually he's been scrupulously honest. He's always avoided anything tainted with illegality. He's afraid to own a gun because his trouble involved a gun. You may as well know. It was armed robbery of a jewelry store."

I was really knocked over. Lou Bryer had definitely held out on me. He had been my main source of information about Phajol and he would have known about the jewelry store episode. No wonder everybody had believed Phajol's stones were hot.

"You believe it, too, don't you?" Pat's eyes were fixed contemptuously upon me.

"I don't know what to believe. Why would Gremcheck make that phone call if he didn't know what he was talking about?"

HER eyes narrowed. "Why would he make it at all if he did? If he had any proof that dad had diamonds stolen from Maekling, he'd keep silent and trap him trying to sell them. It has to be a bluff. Gremcheck's always hated dad. He's trying to keep him from taking away one of his best customers."

I shrugged. "I hope that's all there is to it." I asked: "Why will it take your father till noon to pick up a gun?"

"I don't know. He's hidden it somewhere. He has a phobia about being picked up with a gun on him."

I was puzzled. This was Arizona, not New York. There is no Sullivan law out here. The right to bear arms has never been abridged. A man has to have a hunting license if he carries a hunting rifle, but a pistol or revolver can hardly be called one. Well, maybe some peculiar quirk in Phajol's psychology accounted for his attitude. Or maybe he was covering up some other errand.

Poor Memory Is Wife's Fault

ATLANTA — (AP) — A slightly tipsy man telephoned Captain Jimmy Brown at police headquarters and reported his car missing.

"What's the license number?" asked the captain. "And the model and make?"

"Well," the gent hiccuped, "it's a late model car and I don't remember the license plate number. I mean I'll have to look for it. I'll call you back."

Minutes later a woman called the captain.

"My husband just phoned you about a stolen car," she said softly.

"Yes ma'am," Brown answered politely, "you have the license number?"

"No," she whispered, "I hid the car and don't want him to find it."

Red Cross Issues Appeal for Blood

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Red Cross says large amounts of blood are needed to meet needs of fighting men in Korea and the expanded armed forces.

The organization, official procurement agency for blood for the services, called on all Americans for blood donations. It said Korean needs have been supplied so far by volunteer military and civilian donors stationed in Japan.

The Red Cross said shipments will be flown regularly to the Far East, and that any excess over immediate needs in combat zones will be utilized "for stockpiling plasma and other derivatives for military use."

COLUMBUS, Ohio — (AP) — A train-automobile collision wiped out an entire family of four last night.

The sheriff's office identified the dead as Melvin Curtis Mangold, 25, of near Circleville, Ohio; his wife, Rose Rebecca, 23; a son, Rickey Linn, 2, and a 1-year-old daughter, Brenda. Deputies said an eastbound Norfolk and Western passenger train struck and demolished their automobile just south of Columbus.

Legion's Stand on Preparedness Wins Praise by McNutt

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (AP) — The American Legion's new national headquarters building was dedicated yesterday with praise from a former Legion commander Paul V. McNutt, for the Legion's stand on preparedness.

McNutt, war manpower commissioner during World War Two, described the Legion as "for 30 years a voice crying in the wilderness."

As flags of the United States and United Nations waved above, he told an outdoor audience:

"Americans love freedom with such a passion that they instinctively resent any move which smacks of regimentation.

"If I am any judge of their temper at the moment it would seem that after mature consideration rather than emotional judgement, they are ready to submit themselves to such controls as are necessary during, but only during, the period of national danger."

McNutt restated the Legion's advocacy of universal military training and mobilization of all resources. He continued:

"All freedom-loving nations and peoples look to us. We are ready to support and befriend our allies and to cooperate with movements designed to isolate totalitarianism and tyranny."

The $2,500,000 structure, built by the state of Indiana, was presented by Governor Schricker to George N. Craig of Brazil, Ind., Legion national commander.
