Two Methods For Poisoning Jack Rabbits Listed By County Agent

Following numerous complaints that jack rabbits are eating cotton stalks over the entire county, John O.
Stovall, county agent, today listed two methods for poisoning rabbits.

The first method listed was a poison mixture of strychnine and salt. To use this mixture properly, farmers should take a board two inches thick and bore holes almost through the board,

Politics Hold Wide Interest

Cook Knocks Out Pratt In Second Round Of Fight

All Other Fights Proved Slow Compared To Cook Fight

The fight card last Thursday night at the Texan Theatre featured a real thriller in the bout between J. N. Cook and Speedy (Blondy) Pratt. Despite the fact that the Williams-Theodore bout was scheduled as the headliner, Cookie danced in and knocked out his man early in the second round to steal the most thrilling bout on the ticket.

The fights started off with a two-round bout between J. L. Anderson, 165, and Dan Henard, 175. Both boys put up a good scrap. Henard was off his feet twice in the first round and Anderson went clear out of the ring in the second, catching on the rope with his right leg and averting the consequences of a bad fall. The fight was given to Anderson on a decision.

The second fight was a battle royal between four negroes, the name of the winner was never announced, but the boys put up a good battle and both contenders were so weak they were tottering after the first two were cleared from the ring. After slugging for eight minutes, one of the contenders, exhausted, climbed from the ring and forfeited the battle.

Young Chappel met Ray Prescott in the third bout. Prescott

Still And Beer Taken In Raids

Peace officers this week reported the capture of a still and 89 bottles of beer in two raids.

The still, which was operating in a sorghum mill east of town was said to have been in operation and three gallons of whiskey was taken in the raid.

Two negroes were held for possession of 89 bottles of home-brew.

but also said that the method would cause considerable trouble.

The second method is the use of poison grain, furnished by the commissioners at actual cost for the extermination of prairie dogs. He issued a warning in connection with the use of this grain, however, stating that it should not be placed at points where it could be reached by chickens, turkeys or other domestic fowls.

Bale Tags Available On Old Cotton

All farmers who still hold cotton ginned during the past season or in previous years should apply immediately for bale tags, according to John O. Stovall, county agent, today.

These bale tags may be had following an application for the same at the county agent's office and will be absolutely necessary when the owner starts to sell the cotton at future dates, since a tax will be applied on future cotton under the Bankhead Law.

The Man Who Has Helped Us (An Editorial)

In the normal course of events it is natural for people to have a reasonable right to expect help from a public official who has already helped them. Such an official has been tried and found willing and worthy to serve them. Because he has worked for them in the past, he can be expected to do more work in the future. Collingsworth County voters will remember this fact in considering the Governor's race.

Clint Small has remembered the people of Collingsworth County during his term of senator, not by words, but with deeds. He has worked for the welfare of the state as a whole just as he has worked for his entire home district, but the important thing to remember is that he also wanted to see this county receive its just deserts—something it never had before Clint Small went to Austin. His record through the years is one of consistent loyalty to the people who first gave him an elective office.

Only last year when the county was embarrassed over a way of finding money to pay for the right-of-way for the new highway through Collingsworth County, Clint Small secured $5,000 from the Highway Department to be used in paying for the right-of-way through this county. The proof of this can be obtained from Hunter Sims, the present county treasurer. In addition the work of Clint Small was responsible for the retirement of $33,600 of the old road bonds of the county. The proof of this can be obtained from any member of the Commissioner's Court

Next Meeting To Be Held At Aberdeen Friday Night, July 26

Following two highly successful candidate meetings at Dozier and Quail, county politics this week swung into full stride over the county, and an unusually large crowd is expected to attend the candidate speaking at Aberdeen Friday night, July 6.

Visiting In Fields

Many of the candidates are making a direct canvass of the county voters and visiting with the farmers of the county right in their fields. Others are making and have made house to house canvasses in Wellington.

Candidates are making a strong bid for their offices and perhaps the entire group is putting in more time with personal calls than in recent years.

With this issue of The Leader will be found pictures of candidates seeking offices in many of the county races. Next week the remainder of the candidates who have submitted their pictures will be published.

Sloan, Recently Elected M-K-T Head, To Have Complete Charge Of System

Matthew S. Sloan, who has been chairman of the board of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines since April, this week assumed complete charge of the railroad's operations as well as its policies, by accepting the dual position of chairman and president. He was named president upon his return to New York after spending two months in traveling over the system. Mr. Sloan told directors he had found the Katy in excellent physical condition, efficiently staffed and well-operated, and said he contemplated no changes in personnel.

According to Agent S. G. Henry, Mr. Sloan has announced to all Katy employees that he will devote his entire attention to the affairs of the railroad and that his chief aim will be to keep the Katy progressively active in the development of the Southwest and to maintain and improve its record for efficient service. He will leave New York immediately to take over his new duties and plans to spend a major portion of his time traveling through the four states served by the Katy.

"Mr. Sloan feels that only by knowing the territory it serves, and by enjoying close personal contact with the business people of the Katy served communities, can he successfully direct the company's activities," said Mr. Henry. For that reason he has said that his headquarters will be "on the line," which in railroad parlance means anywhere on the system. Immediately after his election as chairman Mr. Sloan made a very thorough inspection of the railroad and followed that with another intensive tour which took him to most of the larger Katy cities. He has declared that he is going to extend his get-acquainted tour to include the entire system, so it is likely that he will be in Wellington the near future.

Election of Mr. Sloan as chairman and president places at the head of the Katy one of the country's most widely known and successful business executives. A native of Mobile, Ala., Mr. Sloan graduated from the Alabama Polytechnic as an electrical engineer and commenced his business career as a construction foreman. Two years ago, then only 51, he resigned the presidency of the billion dollar New York Edison Company which he had headed for several years. He accepted the Katy chairmanship in April because he had found inactivity boring and because, he said, the offer afforded an interesting opportunity to again engage in public service. He has been quoted as saying that there is no "mystery" to railroading, and as being certain that sound rules of business are applicable to the transportation industry as to any other field of endeavor.

Sen. Small Speaks At Mineral Wells

MINERAL WELLS, Tex.—Clint Small brought his candidacy for governor to Mineral Wells Wednesday, where he spoke before 5,000 gathered here for the annual Retail Merchants Picnic and Barbecue.

His trail this week led through central West Texas after opening Monday at Terrell. He spoke Tuesday night at Brady and Wednesday morning at Ranger. Thursday's schedule called for appearances at Strawn, Eastland and Rising Star during the day and Brownwood at night.

Friday, he will be at Hamilton, Hico and Stephenville and Saturday night he will wind up at Taylor, after speaking during the day at Lampasas and Georgetown.

Senator Small was introduced by W. O. Gross, Mineral Wells attorney, his friend since the two were classmates at college.

Small reviewed his progress during the past week and called on West Texans to swell his majorities above the totals he polled four years ago.

"We had a great homecoming celebration at Amarillo last week. County Chairmen of my campaign in a score of Panhandle counties told me I will carry my home section by a greater majority than I did four years ago, when I got seven out of every ten votes cast up there. South Plains folks turned out 4,500 strong Tuesday night at Lubbock, the best crowd of the race to date, and I am assured top heavy support there," Small said.

After an appearance at Big Spring, Senator Small went into the Abilene district where he made 13 speeches in 10 counties in two days.

Small's speeches this week have been featured by several condemnation of candidates who seek to gather in votes either by wild and impossible promises or by misrepresentation of facts.

He denounced candidates who promised old age pensions as though all the governor had to do to bring them about was to issue an executive order.

Lenore Albertsen of Palo Alto, Calif., has been selected as the most attractive co-ed to head the publication's ball to be held soon at Washington State College.

Every Conceivable Force WORKED TO TEAR THESE TIRES TO PIECES

But NOT ONE CORD LOOSENED! NOT ONE TREAD SEPARATED! Not one Blowout!

As thirty-three speed demons careened and slid around the steep banked curves of the hot brick track, tires shrieked and smoked . . . break-neck speeds, 150 miles and more down the straightaway—tremendous centrifugal force tugging to rip the tread from the body of the tire. In fact, every conceivable force worked to tear the tire to pieces, but not one cord loosened—not one tread separated—and not a single blowout. What amazing proof of Tire Strength—Safety—Quality and Dependability!

Every one of the thirty-three drivers at the Indianapolis 500-mile sweepstakes chose and bought Firestone High Speed Tires. The fact that not one of the 132 tires failed is your greatest guarantee of the Extra Safety—Strength—and Dependability built into Firestone Tires.

The New Firestone High Speed Tire for 1934 is Safety-Protected on the outside by a wider tread of flatter contour, deeper non-skid, more and tougher rubber, giving you more than 50% longer non-skid mileage—Safety-Protected on the inside by eight additional pounds of pure rubber absorbed by every 100 pounds of cords. This additional rubber surrounds every cotton fiber inside every cord in every ply. This is accomplished by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, which soaks the cords in liquid rubber, counteracting damaging frictional heat, the greatest enemy of tire life.

Greatest Guarantee of All

MAKE THIS TEST YOURSELF

Note how the rubber in a Firestone Tire clings to the high stretch Gum-Dipped cords. This greater adhesion and strength is made possible by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping.

Note how the rubber pulls away from cords that have not been Gum-Dipped. Regardless of the number of cord plies in tires not built with Gum-Dipped cords, friction will develop intense heat, and heat will separate the plies—very often causing blowouts. Only in Firestone Tires are friction and heat counteracted by Gum-Dipping.

Your Firestone Dealer is prepared to let you make, for yourself, the amazing test illustrated above.

Advance Plans To Buy 250,000 Bales Of Cotton

Will Be Manufactured Into Clothing And Ticking For Needy

WASHINGTON—Plans of the administration for purchase of 250,000 bales of cotton to be manufactured into clothing and ticking for relief of the needy were rapidly being whipped into shape last Thursday with indications that purchases will get under way shortly.

Whether the purchases are to be made on the open market or from the stocks held by the AAA either has not been decided or will not be divulged. Further details of the plan are hoped for Friday.

Congressional members of the cotton growing states meanwhile are highly elated over the intended action of Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and predict a rise in price that may bring cotton to around 15c a pound, which has not been touched in several years.

Original plans of cotton States Senators who have urgently requested the purchase of cotton by the Government to relieve the market of its burden of surplus and at the same time provide relief called for purchase of low grade cotton. It has been recognized that there is a large amount of such cotton on hand, probably around 2,000,000 bales, which can be used only in the manufacture of cheap materials for which there is but a small market. In all probability the purchases by the relief administrator will be largely of this class of cotton which would relieve the market to some extent.

Intended purchase of 250,000 bales by the relief administration is believed to be the first step in a program that may run up to a total of 750,000 bales or more.

Monkey Changes Tire On "Knee Action" Pontiac

Big 86-Pound Monkey Shows Natural Trend For Mechanical Work

"So simple that even a monkey can do it."

That's why Jo Mendi, nationally famous chimpanzee of the Detroit Zoological Park was commissioned to do a tire-changing act with a knee-action Pontiac for the edification and benefit of Newsreel cameramen one day this week. Fox Movietone and Paramount Newsreel covered the event.

Jo, not unlike some of the stars of screen and film, had his "moments" which necessitated retaking several scenes.

Commencing his newsreel drama at the "Jo Mendi" theatre at the Zo where he entertains thousands of visitors daily, Jo climbed into the driver's seat of the Pontiac, waved to the cameramen, cut loose a veritable Joe Brown blast at an imaginary road hog and moved off down the road behind the wheel.

In the next scene Jo's troubles began. The directors of the film played a dirty trick on Jo by removing the valve stem from one of the front tires. (With no garage at hand it was up to Jo to change his own tire.)

After first looking over the situation, he brought out a screwdriver, and pried off the hub cap with all the speed of a trained mechanic. Next he dragged out the jack and after it had been placed under the axle for him, he cranked up the wheel like a veteran. Unscrewing the lugs which held the wheel in place was another of the acts in which Jo showed great alacrity. The big 86 pound monkey showed an uncanny bent for mechanics.

During the remainder of the scenes he became a little bit fed up with all of this monkey business and accompanied most of the "action" with loud and resonant Bronx cheers which the cameramen seemed to take as a personal affront, but which John Millen, director of the Zoo said was Jo's way of insisting that changing a tire is so simple that even a monkey can do it.

Changing a tire on a knee-action Pontiac is not the only feat of skill Jo does. He is a natural born mechanic according to Millen. In his big-time two-a-day act in the Jo Mendi theatre he roller skates and rides a bicycle. In fact, Jo usually doesn't ride in the Pontiac when he makes the rounds of the Zoo with the director. He likes to have his roller skates on when the two make their daily morning visit to the other animals in the zoo.

Pioneer San Angelo Man Sticks To Horse, Buggy As Mode Of Travel

SAN ANGELO, Tex.—When J. Johnson, 72-year-old San Angelo man, was eight years old he rode a mule up the trail from Coryell County to Dodge City, Kansas, helping move about 3,000 cattle to John Edwards. Johnson's wage was $15 a month.

Johnson moved to McCulloch County in 1876, where he was a cowboy on the open range, working for Jim Brown and James Doffelmayer, about the time fences came, and Johnson decided to move west.

He started for New Mexico with 450 head of cattle. When he reached Pontoon Draw, five miles west of Rankin, he encountered Tom Powell, who wanted him to help work some cattle. Powell sold Johnson two wells, now to be seen about four miles from Rankin on the McCamey road, for $500 on credit. Johnson remained there.

"I have seen roundups on the Pecos when there were so many cattle one could hardly see a man on horseback on the other side of the herd," Johnson said.

He recalled how C. B. Hudspeth founded the old Chinese Reservation Ranch, which included the site of the City of McCamey. Hudspeth gave it the name, because some one had said a Chinese could not live there.

After twelve years on the Pecos, Johnson sold his 1,000 head of cattle, a profitable venture, he said. Then he bought his present residence, three miles from San Angelo, and 1,400 acres of land. He also bought the Elk Horn wagon yard, which he still operates.

Mr. Johnson, 64 years a cowboy, drives a horse and buggy to San Angelo daily. He is among the last in the country to use a horse and buggy as his regular mode of travel.

Ruby Travis, 4-H club member of Catawba county, North Carolina, raised 102 turkeys from six hens and sold them for $220.

To Hang Marion Davies Portrait

VENICE, Italy.—A controversy over hanging a portrait of Marion Davies, actress, in the biennial art exhibition here appeared to have been settled last week, although officials concerned refrained from formal comment.

However, at least verbal approval has been given as a result of activities of Seymour Berkson, Paris correspondent for the Hearst publications, who came here when the picture was ordered removed because it is by a Polish, not an American artist. The picture was hung in the American pavilion at the exhibit.

THE IMMORTAL FIFTY-SIX

Fifty-six members of the Continental Congress signed the Declaration of Independence after its adoption of July 4, 1776, and of these daring patriots it has been said that "no one of the signers ever fell from the high estate to which that great act had elevated him."

Among the 56 were many of the notable figures of the early history of the United States. Two of them, Adams and Jefferson, reached the presidency. Benjamin Harrison became the father of one President and the great-grandfather of another. The bold signature of John Hancock, who signed first as President of the Congress, is the most conspicuous feature of the original document. Other exceptionally prominent signers were Benjamin Franklin, Robert Morris, Dr. Benjamin Rush, Samuel Adams, Richard Henry Lee and Charles Carroll. Carroll was the last survivor and lived 60 years after the adoption of the Declaration reaching the age of 95.

The signers included 34 lawyers, 13 farmers, nine merchants, five physicians, two mechanics, one clergyman, one mason and one surveyor. All except eight were born on American soil.

To the wisdom, courage and patriotism of these immortal 56, who declared our independence and made heroic sacrifices in its behalf, the existence of the nation is largely due. They will never be held in grateful remembrance.

MARRIAGE CUSTOMS

Modern brides, even though they have the promise to "obey" omitted from the marriage ritual, nevertheless submit to ceremonial customs which originally signified the woman's complete subjugation to her husband.

The method of obtaining a wife has passed through three distinct stages—capture, purchase and consent.

Originally the groom's attendants aided him in capturing his bride and making his get-away with her. Later on although the brides had consented to wed, they liked to pretend that they were being captured, and they and their bridesmaids fought a mock battle with the groom and his groomsmen, in which the latter were, of course, victorious.

A relic of marriage by purchase is seen in the custom of giving away the bride, and in that of throwing old shoes, the latter being an ancient symbol of the transfer of property.

The bridal veil is itself a sign of the woman's subjugation, and the wedding ring originally signified that she was bound to her lord and master.

Now tell all this to a present or prospective bride—and see if she cares.

DENTIST PAUL REVERE

Paul Revere is known to fame chiefly because of his historic ride from Boston to arouse the "minute men" on the night of April 18, 1775, before the engagement with the British at Lexington and Concord. But, aside from his notable exploit, he was an uncommonly active and versatile citizen.

He had taken part in the Boston Tea Party, and became a lieutenant-colonel during the Revolution, after serving as a lieutenant of artillery in the Crown Point expedition of 1756, during the French and Indian War.

In civil life he displayed a variety of talents which a recent biographer thinks entitles him to be known as America's first "jack of all trades." He was a goldsmith, a copper roller, a dentist, an engraver, a powder manufacturer, a maker of picture frames, a hardware merchant, and deplorable as it may seem, a seller of hard liquor.

Documents recently made public by his great-grandson include bills of lading showing that Paul Revere sold a consignment of rum at 60 cents a gallon, also gin at a proportionately low figure. This same great-grandson now heads a copper business which was founded by his distinguished ancestor, and still bears the name of Revere, in Boston.

But Revere's chief pride seems to have been in his dental skill, and he once sent a circular to prospective clients, which would be considered highly unethical today, in which among other things he said, referring to human teeth: "He fixes them in such a manner that they are not only an ornament, but a real use in speaking and eating."

Lonefellow immortalized Paul Revere's ride, but he didn't tell the whole story.

WOMAN IS PRIZE LIAR

Now comes a new kind of competition—the "biggest liar" contest. Not that competitive lying is new, but it is an innovation to award prizes for high and wide prevarication.

At one of these contests held in Collinsville, Ill., the first prize of $20 was won by a woman at that. And newspaper people particularly will appreciate that she was justly entitled to the honor.

The winner, Miss Ernestine C. Smith of the Columbia Star, told that in all her years of writing obituaries, wedding stories and other social items she had never deviated from the truth in the slightest degree.

And if anyone thinks that isn't a whooper, let him tell one.

John Anibite returned to a prison farm near Trenton, N. J., from which he had escaped saying city life was too lonesome.

The Story Of The Bible Told In Pictures

MURDER OF ABEL AND CURSE OF CAIN.—Cain was a tiller of the land, but Abel was a keeper of sheep. Both brought offerings to the Lord, Cain the fruit of the ground and Abel the firstlings of his flock, their sacrifices being shown in the right background of this picture. According to Gen. 4:4-5, the Lord approved of Abel's offering, but disapproved of Cain's offering. Jealousy sprang up in Cain's heart toward his brother Abel, and he rose up against Abel and killed him, the scene recorded in Gen. 4:8 being graphically portrayed in the left foreground of this picture. God cursed Cain and the Bible's first murderer became a wanderer upon the face of the earth. One of a series of Bible pictures by Merian, Seventeenth century engraver.

OUR PAST

By C. C. BISHOP

The lives of two great men make early Texas history: namely, Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin.

Mose Austin the father of Stephen F. Austin was attracted to the possibilities of Texas as a home for colonies. Mose Austin, the father of Stephen died before he could realize his hopes of colonization of Texas.

It was his dying request that his son complete his cherished undertaking.

The task was begun vigorously, too much so for Austin's strength. Strenuous service and imprisonment in Mexico undermined his health, but he did not abandon his task and lived to see his beloved Texas an independent nation.

Houston reached Texas to find Austin had preceded him by 11 years. They first met at San Felipe in 1833, at the second Texas convention.

Houston was of a pioneer stock that knew the Indians and their habits. This knowledge was in later years of untold value to the people of Texas.

Sam Houston had once lived with the Cherokee Indians and also had married one of the daughters of a Cherokee chief. He was living with her prior to the time he came to Texas.

Houston had served under Andrew Jackson in his frontier Indian wars. His military talents made him commander in chief of the Texas Army, and his spectacular triumph at San Jacinto over Santa Anna was the culmination of his military career.

Early Texas history is the story of one, then the other, of the two men, and then the two side by side, as they played their parts in the episodes of the Republic.

They were nearly of the same age and were drawn to Texas to engage in similar activities, but they were unlike in temperament and appearance.

Stephen F. Austin was small of stature, frail, and philosophical; Houston was a physical giant, the man of action, a natural frontiersman.

In the first election after independence was gained, Austin and Houston were rival candidates for the presidency.

Houston was elected, and later showed by his attitude and words that he felt the honor might well have gone to Austin. Austin, on the other hand, displayed some bitterness.

After annexation in 1845, Houston served as United Senator, and later as Governor, bitterly opposed secession. His last years were embittered by the discords attending the times.

Austin died while serving as secretary of state during the days of Texas Republic. His death was caused from exposure, due to the poorly equipped capitol building.

Today in the rotunda of the State Capitol at Austin stand side by side the marble statues of Austin and Houston. In the Hall of Fame of the National Capitol they stand similarly, strong men representing Texas among the Nation's great of all times.

Bible Is Lesson In Government

Text: 2 Chron. 15:112 The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 8.

The Bible repeatedly tells of punishment handed down by God to rulers of kingdoms who oppressed their people, and of rewards given good kings.

The text today takes up the kingdom of Israel and Judah, and reflects what has been true in the history of those two nations.

The Bible consistently represents good rule and righteous conduct as approved by God and as making for social welfare and blessedness among the people, and as consistently it represents evil rulers as departing from the ways and purposes of God and bringing judgment upon themselves and upon their people.

In the broad course of history, the representation of the Bible is true. Sometimes we see a people crushed and broken where some heroic leader or ruler seeks to save his nation from the tyranny of a ruling or oppressive power; but a history of evil deeds and consequences is usually found back of the situations of distress and trouble in which nations are plunged.

God is on the side of the people. The plans and purposes of God are in harmony with all that makes for good government and human welfare.

Fortunately in the history of nations there have never been wanting true prophets of God and friends of the people who were ready to speak out against rulers, rebuking them when they did wrong and commending them when they sought to rule with justice and righteousness.

Here in our lesson we have one of these prophets, Azariah, the son of Obed. We do not know much about him as we do about some of the other prophets, but the lesson tells us a great deal.

He saw his land given over to idolatrous and evil practices, and he went to meet King Asa, telling him plainly what the conditions were and what was his duty; that God would be with him and give him strength if he was willing to do right.

He appealed to Asa to re-establish law and religion among the people and so save the inhabitants of the country from the conditions of insecurity and violence that confronted them on every hand.

Fortunately, Asa responded to the appeal of Azariah. He found new courage in his own heart, and he led the people into a new covenant of righteousness.

How much we need prophets like Azariah, and political leaders and civil authorities who will respond with courage and sincerity to a like appeal!

The description that Azariah gives of conditions in ancient Judah might almost stand for a portrayal of conditions in some parts of America today.

The masses of our people suffer from poverty and distress. In our cities, and even in rural places since the advent of the automobile and high-power fire-arms, life and property are insecure.

Desperate criminals who will stop at nothing in attaining their ends have resources of ingenuity, and escape denied them in days gone by. Even the arm of the law is not sufficient to cope with these modern evils.

We need an enlightened public conscience, with prophets who can express it and who have power to inspire leaders to a new sense of their duty and their responsibility for those whom they profess to serve.

It is the fact that such lesson though it was written so long ago, deals as specifically with problems of our own times that makes its study valuable. Let us see to it that its application is not neglected.

Sid Van Ulum, Houston newspaper man, defeated in a golf match, destroyed his clubs and gave his golf togs to the Salvation Army.

Answering a call from a grocery store, Policeman Henry Harder of Rock Island, Ill., responded and had to arrest his younger brother on a burglary charge.

Because he used abusive language to a telephone operator for getting him the wrong number, John McClellan of Waterville, Me., is serving 30 days on the rock pile.

William Glenn Volvia of Zion City, Ill., has gone on a diet of buttermilk and Brazil nuts, which he expects will enable him to live to be 100 years old.

Because her husband didn't tell her he had a wooden leg before marriage, Mrs. Helen Leto of New Orleans sought an annulment.

WELLINGTON People... Places... Philosophy

By Jimmie Gilbertine

Politics seem to be holding the center of all attractions at the present time, and they justly should because it is about time that the people stopped long enough to give possible consequences due consideration before they vote.

Baby Kissing Time Is Near

County politics, up to the past week, seem to have been going at a rather slow pace—or so it seems to me. Saturday I heard a farmer make a remark, however, which indicates that things are picking up and that the ladies will have someone to kiss their babies. The farmer said that the candidates were so thick in his part of the county that he could not even plow. If the candidates are going after votes that strong they may trample under all of the cotton and the efforts of the government to reduce the acreage may be wasted.

Evidently the situation must be just that bad, because I heard from Gordon Adams that he is doing a big part of his work at night.

Steals March On Candidates

Gordon may have been trying to steal a march on the candidates and then he may have been trying to get all of his cotton in; I don't know, but I do know that he has been working day and night. His cotton was hailed and washed out not long ago, so when he started planting again he just kept working by the moonlight. He said that he used the same team of oxen, too. The moon was so bright last week that it was just like day. Gordon says that he worked twice as hard at night during the day and much cooler.

will plow all night has my sincere good wishes for a bountiful crop. I have known for a long time that an old Model "T" Ford would run better at night, this is the first inclination I ever had that a horse would also run better.

An Appeal To Old Timers

I wish all of the old timers would write up an account of the early days in this county and bring them in for The Leader to publish in its anniversary edition. This edition is not just another publication of the paper, it is something which will live long after the old timers and after I am gone. It is history and now is the only time that such history can be secured. In a few years all of this historical data will be guesswork . . . and now the old timers can write the things just as they happened. Nothing is too small to go in the edition. I personally promise any old timer to stop what I am doing and help write their stories if they will bring them in; I know Deck will do the same thing. We want to get everything that was left out of the history in 1925.

Sure enough, Old Timers, think it over and if you do not care to write out the whole story, write down the notes or come in and tell us just how the things happened. Collingsworth County is rich in historical lore . . . things which might have seemed unimportant at the time will be good reading now. Please come in and tell us about those early days.

Good Crop Of Rabbits

Not long ago I went to Childress one morning at about 6:30 o'clock and saw more rabbits on the roadside than I have ever seen before in my entire life—and I have been reared in a rabbit country. Right along the pavement were enough rabbits to make 100 "Sealskin" coats. Here is certainly a good chance for people who own .22 calibre rifles to get some real sport. Frequently a complaint comes in that people shooting .22's around here in town, which is very dangerous. Here is a chance to kill two birds with one stone; sportsmen may realize the danger of shooting in town and at the same time do the farmers a real service.

In fact I used to shoot in my back-yard until I got to shooting rabbits and found out how much better sport the latter can become.

Judge Myers Without Whiskers

Judge P. W. Myers has had his chin whiskers shaved off. I hardly knew the judge. In fact, when I first saw him sauntering around I thought that he was some "jelly-bean" fooling around in the courthouse on some pretense—and really over there to sponoon with some of the secretaries. Sure enough, it turned out to be Judge Myers with an African Jungle hat and a pair of white breeches. Whiskers or no whiskers, the judge is a fine man and although I hope I never am brought before his court, I think a lot of him. He has already told me to plead guilty if I ever appear in his court—which I will.

I hear that the Kiwanis and Legion are planning another bunch of baseball games. They are going to play regular old baseball this time. Mickey Kendrick is sure working to get up a team. Anyway, it will be a lot of fun and the money goes for the good cause of promoting Boy Scouts and Junior Police.

Texas Insurance Companies Must Invest Percentage

Seventy-Five Per Cent Of Reserves On Life Insurance Invested In State

DALLAS, Texas—New and interesting facts regarding the business of the legal reserve life insurance companies of Texas, the part they play in the economic and social life of the Lone Star State, and some illuminating reasons for the tremendous popularity of the State laws which place them on a basis of equality with other insurance companies of the nation, are developed in a survey which has been completed here recently by the information committee of the Texas Life Convention.

In 1907, the Texas Legislature passed a law which has since been popularly known as the "Robertson Insurance Law." It requires all insurance companies operating in Texas to invest 75 percent of the reserves of life insurance written in this state in Texas securities.

Under the protection of this law, the drain of millions of dollars annually paid by Texas life insurance policy-holders, which went outside the state to the financial centers of the East was halted, this money was retained in Texas and the infant Texas life insurance industry was born.

Despite repeated efforts made at almost every session of the Legislature for 27 years to repeal or amend the Robertson Insurance Law, the legislators, reflecting the firm insistence of the people of the State have refused to tamper with it. The survey just completed gives a graphic picture of the development made by the Texas companies, and their contribution to the economic scheme of the State.

The Texas legal reserve life companies employ 10,000 persons, the study shows who in turn support 34,000 dependents living within Texas. To these workers they paid $8,000,000 in 1933 and all of this sum must be classified as spendable income which goes immediately into general circulation and is turned over many times in the tills of merchants of Texas.

Additional sums paid out in Texas from the reservoir of insurance premium accumulated by the Texas legal reserve companies and put back immediately to work in Texas include a total paid out by these companies since their organization of $175,000,000 in the form of death claims, surrender values, endowments and annuities. This sum is increasing each year, and in 1933 totaled $20,000,000 the survey shows.

Whale Will Be Displayed Here

What is said to be one of the finest collections of sea monsters and odd fish in America will be brought to Wellington Thursday, and shown near the Jack Gibson Station.

The unusual showing is strictly educational and affords a type of show seldom seen in an inland city. The display includes a 19-foot whale, an octopus, a shark, a crucifixion fish, a 1,000 pound turtle, an Australian crocodile, a Chinese mummy said to be 2,000 years old, and a large variety of small fish.

All Boy Scouts of Collingsworth County, ministers and school teachers, are invited to be the guests of the managers during the exhibition. They will be admitted by showing means of identification, such as Boy Scout registration cards, etc., or they may come in troops or group formations to see the exhibit.

Make Your Own Soap At Home

By ANNIE MAE DONAGHEY, Home Demonstration Agent

The depression may help us to give up a portion of our pride and be more conservative by utilizing all left overs, even the burnt-rancid grease.

For good results in making soap it is best to clarify the fat by melting, straining, then frying small pieces of potatoes in it. It is a very good plan to clarify as it accumulates then store in clean well covered cans. In case the greases should be rancid it may be purified by boiling it with a solution of five parts of water to one part of vinegar. After the grease has cooled then clean grease may be skimmed.

Some people mold their soap in the same container that it is made in but it is much better to pour it into wooden or pasteboard boxes lined with a damp cloth. Then when the soap is ready to cut a fine wire or string is much more successful than a knife.

The soap should dry out well before it is used, while the soap is drying out it should be packed with plenty of open spaces.

Recipe:
1 pound soda lye dissolved in 3 qts. water.
7 pounds melted (but not heated) fat.

The fat should be melted to a liquid then strained through 2 or three thicknesses of cheese cloth. Mix the lye and water and stir to dissolve lumps when cooled and the melted (but not heated) fat. Add fat slowly in a fine stream and stir continually until mixture is thick and light colored. Pour in shallow pasteboard boxes to mold. When cold cut into squares.

We find that when soap is hard and crumbly there has been too much lye used for the amount of fat, so it is necessary to be accurate in your measurements in order to make good soap.

Ideas Advanced On Fall Garden

COLLEGE STATION.—With gardens cut short in a wide-spread drought it is of unusual importance this summer to plow up garden plot and keep them in good tilth in anticipation of rains which will make fall gardens possible, garden demonstrators throughout the State are being told by J. F. Rosborough extension horticulturist at Texas A and M College. If weeds are kept down the garden land kept in good condition to catch and hold moisture, it should be fairly easy to get good early fall garden stuff he thinks.

Granting rains come, fall gardens may be planted in early August in South Texas and in late August in all the rest of Texas. The most dependable early fall garden plantings are onion sets, Swiss chard, Irish potatoes, pinto beans and radishes.

A method of saving much of the tomato fertilizer applied this past spring is offered by Mr. Rosborough. About 500 to 600 pounds of fertilizer were applied per acre on the average, he says, and 30 per cent to 40 per cent of this remains available in the ground. If the land is not planted fall and winter rains will leach out the fertilizer and it will all be lost. He suggests that farmers plow up and destroy the dried tomato vines to clean the land and prevent disease and insect infestation, and when rain come plant in early fall to adapted crops. The surest truck crops are Irish potatoes, beans, and fall roasting ears. If rains come very early, sweet potatoes will make a good crop.

National Housing Act Will Result In Better Homes

Government Insures On 20 Per Cent Of Cost Of Improvements

WASHINGTON—One of the outstanding features of the national housing act, passed by Congress during the closing hours of the session, will enable a home owner to modernize his living quarters and spread the cost over a long period of time. President Roosevelt is yet to approve the act, classed as a leading proposal in the new deal program. Under its terms also at least $1,000,000,000 can be loaned for building new homes at a cost and under conditions which the average citizen can meet.

Another feature is long-term financing of some mortgages now classed as short-term paper running from three to five years. This has been one of the greatest fears confronting the home owner-borrower. The long term feature contemplates twenty-year paper, which will not require renewal during depression periods, and therefore will not become a frozen commodity subject to the fear of investors.

Federal relief already extends to home owners, through operation of the Home Owners Corporation, designed to meet critical individual situations where foreclosure was imminent.

Inquiries Numerous
Hundreds of inquiries are coming daily from all sections of the country to ascertain the procedure under the new law. By far the largest proportion of these inquiries deal with the question of giving homes modern equipments and conveniences, long desired but impossible because of lack of finances. Complete outline of the new governmental set-up will not be available until approval of the act and the appointment of the housing administrator who will direct the Government's part in the program.

Generally speaking, however, the home owner who wants to add a bathroom, or replace the old tin tub with a modern one with modern plumbing or wants to either rebuild the front porch or extend it around the dwelling may do so through private lending agencies. The proposed improvements would be looked over by the local committee for approval, which will facilitate a commitment to the lending agency, with selection of a contractor to do the work.

The home owner executes a note payable in installments, which, indorsed by the contractor, may be rediscouted at the national mortgage organization. Government insurance is given up to 20 percent of the face of the note, which in cases of renovation is limited to $2,000 per home, the exact amount being apportioned to the work done and the total value of the property. In the absence of details of administration it might be said that a house work $500 or $600 could not receive $2,000 in improvements.

Banks, building and loan companies, insurance corporations, finance mortgage companies, named among the lending agencies, may lend up to a total of $1,000,000,000 with Government insurance up to a maximum of 20 percent. Therefore the maximum the Government could lose would be $200,000,000. An insurance fund to this amount is being established.

By no means, however, does the Government expect to lose this amount in insurance. Only those home owners of proved character and capacity to pay will be eligible to obtain these loans. Liquidation will be on the installment basis.

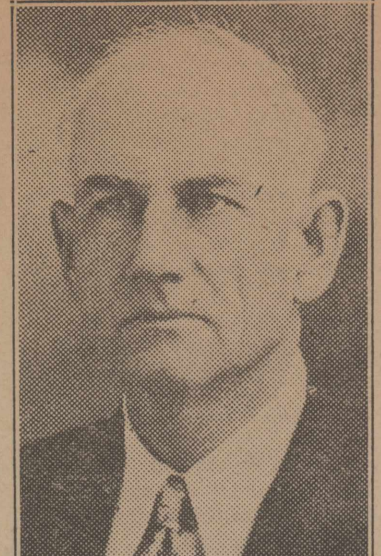

In connection with the legislation its supporters pointed out that experience of installment sales organizations and private business show that losses through default of installment purchase contracts by customers of all types average only a small percentage of the total volume of business transacted.

"Since private agencies furnish the entire capital loaned," said the report, "and are finally obligated for 80 percent of the losses which may be incurred, it is obvious they are not going to be lax in granting credit merely because the Government is insuring 20 percent of their transaction."

Other considerations, such as increasing the value of the property through better facilities, will aid in retirement of the debt, the sponsor declared, all of which constitute a valuable step in the national housing program.

One of the large considerations under the angle of the act alone, it is declared, is the employment of labor in every community where housing operations are carried out.

For Commissioner, Precinct 1

E. C. Scott and J. D. Hill, who are candidates for Commissioner of Precinct 1. Mr. Hill is a candidate for re-election. N. C. Tominson is also a candidate for this office.

First 1934 Bale Of Cotton Ginned

McALLEN, Texas, June 18—Francisco Lovano, La Grulla community farmer, Saturday claimed the first bale of cotton for 1934.

The bale was ginned and hurried to the Exporter's Compress company and Houston. Officials told Bill Braden, ginner of the first bale at his Alto Bonito gin, that a heavy price would be paid for the cotton.

The bale weighed 500 pounds and graded strict middling. Lovano has 160 acres and predicts from one-half to three-quarters of a bale from each acre.

$83,000,000.00 working for a Greater Texas

LIFE INSURANCE FUNDS are reservoirs of thrift which feed the streams of progress. The funds of Texas legal reserve life insurance companies play an important part in the progress of Texas, through financing community development projects and home ownership.

At the close of 1933 these companies had $83,000,000.00 working for a greater Texas . . . invested in loans on farms and city property, in state, county and municipal bonds, in home office buildings and real estate.

This $83,000,000.00 is money in motion, constantly increasing, and parts of it constantly being paid back and reinvested. Every Texan shares the benefits of these investments. Not only are needed improvements made possible, but the money is put into circulation . . . spent for raw materials and labor.

In 1933 these companies put into circulation an additional $30,000,000.00 . . . in payrolls, taxes, purchases and payments to policyholders and beneficiaries.

When you show a preference for insurance in a Texas legal reserve life company you join hands with these companies and their 1,200,000 other policyholders in making Texas a better state in which to live and make a living.

Three HD Clubs Hold Meetings

Instructions Listed For Women Who Expect To Attend Short Course

Miss Danaghey, Home Demonstration Agent, met with three clubs last week.

Wednesday, June 27, the Buck Creek Girls Club met at the home of Mrs. Lacey.

Thursday June 28, the Prairie View Girls Club met at the school building.

Thursday afternoon, the Nicholson Girls Club met at Mrs. Willie Knoll's home.

Miss Danaghey stated that this is a completion of a year's program of work, and as a result we find that more wardrobes are being carefully planned to provide for adequate storage.

The following instructions were this week issued for ladies who expect to attend the Short Course at A. and M. from July 30 to August 3:

Those home demonstration club women who plan to do laboratory work in fabric glove making will need to bring from 5-8 to 1-1 1/4 yards of material (pique, gingham, crash, linen, organdy, or any other cotton fabric) depending upon the style of gloves they wish to make.

For the laboratory work in rose propagation, each woman should bring a sharp budding knife or a picket knife.

For laboratory work on rugs and mats, each woman will need to bring the following material:

A mat design stamped on burr-iron, osnaburg, or material suitable for a foundation.

Have this mat foundation stretched and securely fastened in a frame ready to hook. The frame may be a very simple one made of four light wood strips fastened together.

A colonial hand hook or crochet needle for work on the mat. She may also use an automatic needle also, if she has one and wishes to practice with it.

Quilted material (such as carded hose and underwear) dyed in the colors she wishes to use in the mat. It would be well to have a generous amount of material for practice in combining colors.

For the work on making cheese, and killing poultry, the women will need to have a good heavy apron, and old shoes.

No special equipment will be needed for any of the other laboratory work, since the necessary materials can be secured at the demonstration.

or from the county judge. By these two acts, performed only last year, Clint Small saved the taxpayers of Collingsworth County $38,600 in principal and a similar amount in interest if it had been allowed to accrue.

Roy Horn Gives Report On Kiwanis International Meeting At Toronto

Reporting on the Kiwanis International meeting at Toronto, Canada, June 10, Roy Horn, representative of the local club, Friday outlined before the members a brief sketch of the activities and happenings at the session.

"Every state in the union was represented as well as every province in Canada," Mr. Horn said. "There was naturally a large crowd present—and possibly the most striking thing of the entire convention was the fact that this huge mass of persons were each planning and working in order that the clubs in their communities might render a sacrificial service for the promotion of their own community welfare; among the different discussions were improvement of social work for undernourished children, Boy Scouts and many other things."

Mr. Horn states that one of the most interesting glimpses of the entire convention was a toast of peace at the International hour. The toast was drunk from a mixture consisting of water from each of the states in the United States and each of the provinces of the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. Horn also pointed out the talk made by Angus McDonald, former University of Toronto student and low school instructor. Mr. McDonald was also a former Premier to Nova Scotia. Another interesting speaker was Hon. Vincent Massey, former Canadian Ambassador to the United States.

One of the principal topics of the conference was the problem of peace, and Mr. Horn said that the fact was brought out that the United States spent 666.4 per cent of every tax dollar to maintain peace, money being spent in the form of past war debts, for armaments, navies, etc., and for guns and other machines to be used in time of warfare.

We see no reason why we should, at this time, recommend to the Texas State Board of Review a further re-examination and re-analysis for your county. Very truly yours, V. A. Cobb."

"No instructions have been received to date as to how the matter is to be handled," Mr. Stovall said. "A meeting will be held in Lubbock Friday, July 6, with all county agents and their assistants present. Instructions as to how this cotton will be handled will probably be given at this meeting. Local farmers will be notified through the columns of the local paper and through local committeemen as to what procedure will be taken toward securing bale tags on the cotton."

"Bale tags on cotton already produced are now available, however, and all persons holding old cotton should apply for these tags at the county agent's office," Mr. Stovall said.

was easily the head man in the bout and dished out plenty punishment in the first round. As the round closed Prescott was awarded the fight on a technical knockout.

Freeman Moore met Richard Carter in the fourth bout on the card. This was one of the most evenly matched and fastest fights on the whole ticket. Carter, 141, and Moore, 131, both showed plenty of speed and proved themselves to be cagy boxers as well as disclosing plenty of power in their punches. Both boys also took plenty of punishment in the second round. The fight slowed down considerably in the third and final round. Judges gave the first two rounds to Moore and declared the fight to be a draw.

The fight between Gene Glenn, 149, and John Templeton, 149, was a draw. The first round went to Glenn as the latter looked to have a little more wind, but Templeton was game and gave a good account of himself. Both were out on their feet in the second round, but a few well placed punches gave Templeton this round and caused the fight to be a draw.

Pratt, 137, was introduced as a preliminary fighter over the south and former Navy Boxer. He met Cook, 142, and lasted barely more than a round. Cook showered Pratt with so many blows in such a short time that the fans were on the verge of appealing to the humane society. Pratt was down and took an eight count when the bell closed the first round. In the second stanza, Cook stepped in, landed a one-two, and they began rubbing Pratt with cold water trying to revive him. Pratt was game, however, and challenged Cook for a return bout here in two weeks.

The main bout, between Red Williams, 164, and Kid Theodore, negro, 158, was called a draw. Williams certainly was a disappointment to the crowd, however, and most of the fans were of the opinion that the bout should have gone to Kid Theodore. Williams was slow and his punches lacked power. He was in poor condition. He was also troubled when a cut was opened over his eye. Williams took plenty of punishment, but stayed the six rounds, which was declared by the referee, John Pritchard, to be a draw.
