Crime Commissioners Deny Hoover Influenced Final Wording Of Prohi Report

TYDINGS ASKS INQUIRY INTO GROUP'S WORK

Commission Denies Any Outside Influence In Final Decision

PRESIDENT SILENT

Praise and Condemnation Continue to Follow Opinion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—The Wickersham report with its varying conclusions for revision, repeal and retention of the 18th amendment churned up a new batch of controversy today and brought forth a resolution to inquire if the commission had been unduly influenced into changing its opinion at the last minute.

Meanwhile Senator Tydings of Maryland, a Democratic anti-prohibitionist, introduced a measure calling for a senate inquiry to determine how the commission arrived at its "conflicting conclusions" and whether advice was received from outside.

Reports that the president had intervened brought a 30-word statement of denial from Chairman Wickersham. Immediately afterward, he locked his doors to newspaper men.

Reports Denied

Late in the day, however, a two-paragraph statement was issued at the offices of the commission calling "wholly without foundation" statements that the president had caused the commission at the last moment to abandon some of its recommendations.

At no time has the president in any manner attempted to influence the recommendations of this commission," it said.

The statement said suggestions that the report had been changed

ANOTHER SLANT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 21. (AP)—Commenting today on the Wickersham commission's report, Gov. William H. Murray said:

"I haven't read it. I have a job down here in which I deal with prohibitionists as well as antis and I don't want to raise a question that will divide my forces.

"There are more fools on both sides of the prohibition question than any other before the American public.

"The raising of the issue of the 18th amendment just now seems to be with a view of detracting the attention of people on economic evils that can not be settled without concentration of the public's mind upon them."

Tulsa Co-ed Shot Twice On University Campus By Wife Of Former Employer

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 21. (AP)—A young woman student at the University of Tulsa was shot and dangerously wounded on the college campus today by the wife of her former employer.

Driving up behind Miss Charlcie Caudell, 28, as the young woman was parking her automobile, Mrs. Asbury Endacott, wife of a Tulsa architect, left her car and fired two shots from a pistol. A bullet entered Miss Caudell's right lung and the other entered her left side.

Miss Caudell was secretary to Endacott when he was city water commissioner. His term expired last spring.

Woman Arrested

Police arrested Mrs. Endacott. Officers who questioned her said she told them she had attempted repeatedly "to persuade Miss Caudell to leave my husband alone."

"I had purchased this pistol for protection against burglars," Mrs. Endacott was quoted as saying. "This morning I got to thinking about it all, and I decided to see her. I meant to ask her to leave my husband alone.

"I saw her parking her car and I parked nearby. I walked over toward her as she was alighting from her car. She saw me and grabbed an iron bar and I took my pistol and shot her."

Endacott had been living at a Tulsa hotel for several months. He visited his home almost daily, usually taking his three children to school.

County authorities said the filing of charges against Mrs. Endacott would be held up pending developments in Miss Caudell's condition.

Husband Silent

Shortly after reaching the hospital, Miss Caudell made her only statement.

"It was our trouble—it happened because of our trouble," she whispered before lapsing into unconsciousness.

Endacott was not found by newspaper men until late today.

"I have nothing to say," he told them. "I am not talking now."

Shortly before Endacott's term as water commissioner expired, Mrs. Endacott had an altercation with Miss Caudell. Entering her husband's office, Mrs. Endacott struck the young woman with a telephone after accusing her of stealing Endacott's affections.

"I'm sorry I shot her," Mrs. Endacott told reporters after she had been transferred to the county jail late today. "I'm glad she has a chance to live."

Siamese Twins Win Court Order Holding $35,000 in Receivership

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 21. (AP)—Daisy and Violet Hilton, Siamese twins, won their first victory today in their suit against Myer Myers, their former guardian, and his wife, when Judge W. W. McCrory, after a hearing in district court, issued a mandatory injunction, directing Myers to turn over $35,000 in bonds to Joe Freeman, receiver. The securities were held in Myers' name.

The order concerned only the plaintiffs' request for a receivership, preliminary to their suit for cancellation of a 10-year contract held by Myers, under which he was directing vaudeville appearances of the twins. Also, there was pending action on application for a permanent injunction to restrain Myers or his wife from interfering with them in any way.

The court ordered that Freeman arrange all contracts for the girls while the litigation is pending.

A receiver had been asked to take charge of more than $200,000 worth of property claimed by the Hiltons. They testified they had not been allowed to handle any of the money they earned by stage appearances. Violet stating she and her sister had not heard that Myers had been designated as their guardian until it was revealed in court. She said they had signed many papers not knowing what the documents were. She told the court they were afraid of Myers.

WEST TEXAS C.-C. LEADERS HERE TODAY

District No. 3 Heads To Draft 1931 Program At Meeting

BANDEEN ARRIVES

Oil Embargo, Drouth Relief And Taxes Scheduled For Discussion

Discussion of aims of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to make the organization's program of more use to the individual districts and communities is to be the chief matter to come before leaders of district No. 3 at a meeting to be held here Thursday, according to the announcement of officials Wednesday.

Quanah Man to Preside

Executives of the organization and of chamber of commerce officials from this section will gather in the director's room of the chamber of commerce and will be called to order at 10:30 o'clock by F. W. Kennerly of Quanah, district director.

The meeting is primarily for the organization of a program for 1931 and for the discussion of financial affairs. Following preliminary introductions, the meeting will be turned over to the directors of the district and to chamber of commerce secretaries and managers for a round table discussion of whatever matters that are submitted during the progress of the session.

D. A. Bandeen of Stamford, general manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, who arrived here Wednesday night to attend the meeting, stated the aims of the organization to form a program to deal more intimately with problems local to the various districts. "The executive board," he said, "is announcing a new principle to give each district the right to designate one activity of the organization's program." The purpose of such a plan, Mr. Bandeen said, is to bring the weight of the organization as a whole into matters of importance to sections of West Texas and which do not conflict problems of other sections.

Oil Embargo

Also major items of discussion will be the oil embargo, temporary drouth relief and installment tax matters. At the last convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, it was explained, a resolution was passed dedicating the organization to the policy of tariff on products interfering with products of West Texas. The 10 district secretaries were authorized to agitate for temporary drouth relief, a permanent plan whereby tax payments could be divided into installments, and for a program fighting for at least three agricultural experiment stations. However, it was further explained, the major undertaking of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, during the next four or

'Construction With Economy' Urged In Sterling's Legislative Message

New Governor Adheres Closely to Program Outlined in State Democratic Convention

AUSTIN, Jan. 21. (AP)—Ross S. Sterling, the new governor, today asked the legislature for full cooperation in steering the ship of state the next two years.

"I feel that we begin our labors with a spirit of concord as fine as has ever been witnessed at the launching of a new administration," Governor Sterling said. "I pray that it will continue until our work is finished."

In questions of state policy, the chief executive agreed with the declarations of the Democratic party in its convention at Galveston last September. In many instances, he quoted the exact language of the Democratic platform.

Building roads through taxes on traffic rather than property, law enforcement, public utility regulation, a tax on mineral resources—these were some of the more important things recommended by the former Houston capitalist.

Quotes Party

Governor Sterling, considered the father of a large state highway road bond plan, did not urge the adoption of the plan in so many words. He quoted the Democratic platform as follows:

"We advocate the speedy and economic distribution of a connected and correlated system of state highways as necessary to the development of Texas. The fairest and most just manner of raising funds to meet the cost of highway construction is by taxes imposed upon the traffic that uses and enjoys the roads. And we are committed to a policy of meeting the cost of state highway construction by traffic taxes. We urge the legislature to consider the problem of financing the construction and maintenance of designated highways to the end that the traffic alone shall be at the expense of such construction and maintenance,

SENATE PASSES FULL INTERIOR APPROPRIATION

Disputed Red Cross Funds Included In Measure

PUBLIC WORK HALTED

Wheeler Blocks Action On Funds Proposed For Construction

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—The blockade in the senate on the vital appropriation bills which must be passed before March 4 adjournment broke long enough tonight to permit passage of one of these measures—the interior department bill for $95,000,000.

However, an attempt to get action on the $120,000,000 urgent deficiency bill, carrying more than $20,000,000 for immediate public construction work, was blocked by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana. He said he wanted an opportunity to study the bill and would be ready tomorrow.

The interior bill, carrying the disputed $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund, was passed only after the senate went into night session to end four days of talk. This controversial Red Cross appropriation is now up to the house.

With the appropriation bills piling up in the senate, leaders are considering drastic measures to get them to passage. These bills must be passed if the extra session is to be avoided.

Two men robbed the Canyon bank of more than $13,000 after holding six persons, including Sheriff John Fry, captive inside the bank while they waited for the time lock to spring.

HOUSE HEARS ROSS STERLING

New Governor Presents Legislative Views

and that no part thereof shall come from ad valorem taxes on homes, farms, ranches or other real or personal property.

County Refunds

"Counties have contributed large sums of money, through the issuance of county and road district bonds to help pay the cost of construction of trunk roads, which constitute a part of the system of the state and federal designated highways. These routes of travel serve a state-wide need and are not intended as purely a local convenience. We are committed to a policy of refunding to these counties on a fair and just basis their contribution to the cost of such highway construction. If the counties of the state can build and maintain their nearly 200,000 miles of local and lateral roads, justice demands that the state with federal aid meet the cost of constructing and maintaining the 20,000 miles of state highway."

To this, Governor Sterling added the following observation:

"In this connection I may remark that the state highway commission has placed all possible road work under way during recent months in order to provide as much employment as it could, and has found this a good means of aiding the jobless. This might be kept in mind in your deliberations. Measures dealing with other phases of highway development and traffic regulation will come before you and should receive careful consideration."

Higher Pay

Governor Sterling said the new constitutional amendment authorizing a 120-day legislative session and higher pay for the law makers gave the present legislature a greater opportunity than was given any previous one.

"The enhanced per diem will tend to relieve the financial worries which I know have distracted the members of former legislatures," he said. "Under the new amendment I am hopeful that this legislature will produce the best-considered and most constructive program of enactments of all the 42 state assemblies of Texas history."

"We are all here for the same high purpose—to serve Texas," he began.

"We come at a momentous hour in the history of the state. There is a vast field of service for us all, an opportunity for noble achievement. Texas is in the midst of a great development, and at the threshold of an even greater. Ours is the mission and the responsibility of writing and administering laws to keep the government in step with the state's progress, to meet its changing needs, and to encourage better progress."

Governor Sterling referred to the "economic indisposition" of the country during recent months. He expressed the belief it was only temporary, but urged the construction of needed public works to hasten recovery. However, the legislature should not go beyond the bounds of economy, he suggested.

Too Many Laws

The governor reminded the legislature of the Jeffersonian principle that "those governed least are governed best." "With the continual flood of statutes from our state and national hoppers, it seems that the masses are becoming more restricted and less protected," the governor said, "while with some of the more favored classes it is the reverse."

Governor Sterling asked for modernization of the prison system, with levees to protect river bottom lands in the prison farms, if a survey should determine levees practicable. He explained that a merit system was being developed in the penal system by Lee Simmons, manager, and asked that this system be given the force of law, and used as the basis for paroles and furloughs, as well as for prison privileges.

The Democratic party, in its platform, rededicated itself to the impartial and strict enforcement of our prohibition as well as all other laws," Governor Sterling pointed out. He mentioned also that the platform demanded a state criminal identification bureau.

The governor asked that every Texas boy and girl, rural as well as city, be afforded an opportunity to get a high school education. He requested the legislature to fireproof state hospitals and relieve overcrowded conditions in those institutions. He declared for state parks.

Minimum Wage

The principle of giving municipal domestic and irrigation users of water priority over power companies was endorsed by the governor.

He quoted the Democratic platform to the effect that the burden of taxation already had fallen too heavy on the farms, homes and ranches and there should be a thorough revision. He asked for a minimum wage law and the application of the eight-hour law to public works.

"To these propositions (of the Democratic platform), I shall at this time only add the suggestion," he said, "that you bear in mind the growing need of soil conservation and reclamation and better agricultural conditions; of more facilities for the care of tubercuiars; of knitting more closely together the departmental work of the state government, by elimination of unnecessary function; and improvement of other—through full development and possible reinforcement of the new state auditor law, and generally through application of business principles and business economy."

Seventy Eight Bills Hit House Hopper

AUSTIN, Jan. 21. (AP)—Seventy-eight bills hit the house hopper today as legislators, after celebrating the inaugural of a new governor, went back to their work. A large number of proposals was introduced in the senate.

The legislature heard a message prepared for it by the new governor, Ross S. Sterling, who in the interests of time, had the message read rather than have the house go into joint session to hear him in person.

Arrival of Government to Open Way for Drouth Aid in Wichita

With arrival of all government forms for federal drouth relief applications expected here hourly, it was announced Wednesday by G. C. McGown, county farm agent, that a mass meeting of interested farmers and business men will be called at the earliest possible hour to set into motion machinery tentatively set up for the purpose.

Carter McGregor, vice president of the First National bank, will be key banker for this county, it was announced, and in that designated post will have charge of Wichita county's drouth relief organization.

When the personnel of this county's central committee has been confirmed by the proposed mass meeting, it was said, that committee will formulate plans as to distribution of application blanks and accompanying forms, and for providing aid to applicants in filling out such forms.

Loans available under the federal drouth relief movement will be only for crop production purposes. Expenditure of such funds must be for seed, feed, fertilizer or fuel for crop-making machinery. County farm agents will not handle any seed, or any of the money involved in the plan, Mr. McGown emphasized.

Archer City, Olney, Graham, Bowie, Jacksboro, Buy First Rogers Tickets

Towns in Wichita Territory to Retain Proceeds of Sales For Relief Program Here

Out-of-town attendance to the Will Rogers matinee, to be held in Memorial auditorium Friday afternoon, Jan. 30, promises to be the largest ever accorded any entertainment ever held in Wichita Falls. Will Rogers is making his appearance here as a charity benefit.

Wednesday afternoon Wilburn Page, manager of the Junior chamber of commerce, and Fred L. Haskett, member of The Record News and Times editorial staff, visited Archer City, Olney, Graham, Jacksboro and Bowie, where they met with committees representing the chambers of commerce and Red Cross county organizations, who accepted an allotment of tickets for the entertainment.

The committees were informed that the proceeds of all tickets sold by the committee workers in their respective towns would go to their own organization, none being retained by the Wichita Falls committee. This decision by the Wichita Falls committee of John F. O'Donohoe, chairman, W. M. Priddy, Walter Cline, Dr. Everett Jones, J. L. Jackson Jr., Horrace Robbins, R. E. Shepherd and A. E. Kelly, was gratifying news to the Red Cross workers in the towns visited and they pledged their support and cooperation to bring large numbers of their citizens to the entertainment.

Pledges totaling 715 tickets at a cost of $1,665 were secured. Archer City pledged 100 tickets at a cost of $405; Olney, 80 tickets at $197.50; Graham, 225 tickets at $585; Jacksboro, 100 tickets at $177.50; Bowie, 210 tickets at $300. The tickets are selling at $20, $10, $5, $2.50, $1.50 and $1 each. The highest priced tickets are for seats on the stage.

Thursday morning Messrs. Page and Haskett will leave for Electra, Vernon, Chillicothe, Quanah, Childress, Crowell, Benjamin, Knox City and Seymour. Reservations from these towns and cities are expected to exceed $3,500, or total sales for the cities and towns outside of Wichita Falls of better than $5,000, and a total out-of-town attendance of over 2,000 people.

Great interest is being manifested in Will Rogers' appearance in Wichita Falls, and it is believed by the committee that the auditorium will be filled to capacity with receipts above $15,000, all of which will go to charity. Not one dollar of the ticket sales go to meet expenses of the entertainment, funds for this being supplied by the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and other civic agencies.

The fact that proceeds of tickets sold in the towns by the committees is retained for their own organizations is giving the leaders in Red Cross and charity work enthusiasm to sell more than the quota chosen.

Crime Report Causes Stir

after it was signed were "wholly false."

At the White House, it was said there would be no statement on the matter, either of denial or of affirmation.

The combined commission report, signed by 10 of the 11 members, set forth a draft of a suggested revision of the amendment with an "if" in front of it and a statement that the members were divided in opinion.

Six Favor Change

Six of the 11, however, said in their appended statements that they favored either revision or repeal and at least two referred to revision as if the full commission was understood by them to approve of it.

A silence as baffling as that which hid the long deliberations of the commission shut out any peep into the manner by which the conclusions were drawn up.

In Richmond, Henry W. Anderson, who presented a proposed substitute for the present system of prohibition, said the report as a whole "favors modification of the 18th amendment."

Judge William S. Kenyon, in St. Louis, issued a statement joining chairman Wickersham in denying that Mr. Hoover had influenced the commission in formulating its report.

Political Effect

Much discussion in Washington also centered around the political effect of the president's definite stand against repeal or revision.

Statements came from two prohibition organizations saying those favoring prohibition would "rally to the standard which the president has raised."

Senator Fess of Ohio, speaking as an individual and not as chairman of the Republican national committee, indicated he expected Mr. Hoover's stand on the Wickersham report to be his stand in the presidential campaign next year. He added, however, that he had not discussed the report with the president.

The same constructions were placed upon the president's message by a Democratic senator, Walsh of Massachusetts. Walsh is opposed to prohibition.

The house, standing on the edge of a controversy over increasing the personnel of the prohibition enforcement bureau, received a resolution from Representative Laguardia of New York, an anti-prohibitionist, calling for a congressional investigation "to give the public the whole story" of prohibition.

Gov. Ross S. Sterling's first appointees, Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum as secretary of state and Capt. W. W. Sterling as adjutant general are expected to be confirmed by the senate tomorrow afternoon. The senate adopted a house concurrent resolution calling on the United States congress to consider the Red river dam project near Denison.

JURY PONDERS DAISY'S CASE

Sensational Ten-Day Trial Is Concluded

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21. (UP)—The question of whether Daisy de Voe stole $16,000 from Clara Bow while confidante and secretary of the screen star rested tonight with five women and seven men jurors, who carried with them from the courtroom a plea for justice tempered with mercy and human understanding.

The jury received the case at 3:20 p. m., today, 10 days after the state began its attempt to show that the 26-year-old secretary "betrayed the confidence of an actress who trusted her, an artist who could not be bothered with business worries."

35 Ballots or More

The jury must take at least 35 ballots and more if a decision on each of the 35 counts of grand theft is not reached on the first ballot. Miss De Voe faces a sentence from one to 10 years in state's prison on each count, or a total of from 35 to 350 years if she should be convicted on all and Superior Judge Doran orders sentences to run consecutively.

In a stirring argument for the defense, Attorney Nathan Freedman brought his case to a close with an appeal that "this girl cries out to you to temper justice with mercy."

The calmness of nine days broke as Freedman spoke. Miss De Voe repeatedly dabbed her eyes with a filmy handkerchief.

She was described by Freedman as "a simple little hairdresser who for the first time felt thousands of dollars running through her fingers and, in that hectic, ever-moving life with Clara Bow, got her accounts so involved she could not untangle them."

Women Moved

He played upon the sympathies of the jurors and as the noon recess was called, two of the five women were visibly moved and wiped a tear or two away. He concentrated his argument, not upon the fact the money is missing, but upon the manner in which Clara Bow allegedly urged her secretary to make use of her funds.

"They were like sisters, these two," Freedman said softly. "They were everywhere together. Clara said, 'Daisy, what is mine is yours.'

"How could this little girl keep accounts straight, no matter how she tried? Can't you hear Clara say to Daisy de Voe, 'come on, baby, let's go places and do things.' And they would grab a couple of checks and away they would go. Please, I ask you, understand that as humans."

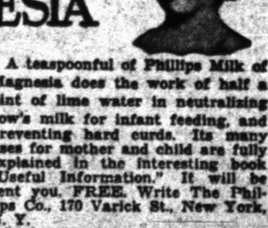

Aroused, Freedman rushed to the counsel table, snatched up his notes and ripped them apart as one would tear a check from a book.

"Like that," he cried, "they would take checks and start out. How could Daisy De Voe keep records? And because there are no stubs for those checks, the state asks that you of the jury put this young woman behind prison bars."

While he did not take up each of the 35 counts specifically, Freedman embraced them all in his argument by claiming Miss Bow often forced Miss De Voe to draw checks upon the Clara Bow special account to replenish the De Voe private account.

Elihu Root Staunchly Defends World Court Protocal in Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—Elihu Root told the senate foreign relations committee today that the revised protocol for American adherence to the world court preserved unimpaired the reservation stipulated by the senate five years ago.

For almost three hours, America's 86-year-old jurist and statesman explained and defended the revised protocol which he helped to draft at the suggestion of Calvin Coolidge to break the deadlock existing between this nation and other powers over the senate's reservations.

Before a crowd that overflowed the spacious committeeroom, Mr. Root concluded his analysis with a vigorous plea that America participate in the court as a contribution to the future peace of the world. He pounded the table and raised his voice to emphasize his plea.

After making an uninterrupted statement of more than two hours Mr. Root submitted to questions by doubtful committee members. He parried with his interrogators willingly and only once did the throng of women break the injunction of silence which Chairman Borah had imposed.

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, who said he has not determined his attitude on the modified world court protocol, led in the examination given Mr. Root, a former secretary of state and former member of the senate.

Reed expressed doubt that the revised protocol had not impaired the reservation of the senate that the world court should not render an advisory opinion in any controvery which the United States has, or claims to have, an interest without first receiving the consent of this government.

Mr. Root replied that under the new court rule the United States has an "absolute veto power" over advisory opinion affecting it. Reed said Mr. Root took a broader view, then, than that held by Secretary Stimson.

Borah, an outspoken foe of the court, inquired of Mr. Root "if there is any circumstance under which the court may render an advisory opinion affecting the United States without the consent of the United States?"

"I don't think so," was Mr. Root's reply.

"The senate's reservation stands unimpaired by the protocol?" asked Senator Johnson, Republican, California, another foe of the court.

"Yes sir," replied Mr. Root firmly.

COURT STUDIES CLARK RULING

18th Amendment Left Up To High Tribunal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—The life of constitutional prohibiton tonight was in the keeping of the supreme court.

Within a few weeks it is to hand down a ruling sustaining or invalidating the 18th amendment.

Today, it listened intently to arguments supporting and attacking the recent decision of Federal Judge William Clark of New Jersey holding the amendment was improperly ratified because submitted to the state legislatures rather than popular vote conventions.

For the government, Solicitor General Thacher contended the court already had settled the issues presented in favor of the validity of the amendment, and that it was within the discretion of congress to choose the mode of ratification.

Supporting the Clark decision, Julius Henry Cohen and Selde Bacon, New York attorneys, maintained it was mandatory that a proposed constitutional amendment subjecting individual rights to federal control be ratified by state conventions.

At the outset of the session, Chief Justice Hughes withdrew from the case. He said he had submitted a brief when prohibition was before the court a decade ago and felt this disqualified him.

Thacher's argument was based on a contention that the constitution clearly had given congress authority to determine the manner in which amendments should be ratified, whether by legislature or convention.

He insisted the court by repeated decisions, especially in the national prohibition cases of 1920, already had decided the discretion of congress in this particular could not be limited or abridged by interpretations of the intentions of the authors of the constitution.

Cohen and Bacon argued the liberties of the people were at stake and that if legislatures could legally abrogate their constitutional rights, then the government would degenerate into a despotic oligarchy.

They made frequent references to the opinions of John Marshall, famed chief justice of the early days of the republic, and to the writings of James Madison who had an important share in framing the constitution.

The one question asked by the court came from Associate Justice Sutherland. He inquired of Bacon whether it was contended the 18th amendment to be valid must be submitted to the direct vote of the people.

Bacon's reply was it should have gone to state conventions. When the constitution was written, he said, the people were not thinking of referenda.

and let the city employ the men instead of the contractor. And if a contractor must be hired that he be a citizen of Wichita Falls.

"We must all work together," Mr. Ballard reiterated in putting the resolutions before the group. He especially commended the merchants and industries of the city and praised them for their part in relieving the situation of destitute families.

One of the features of the meeting was the discussion of the irrigation tax which was levied on the tax payers in 1920. "It is probable," Mr. Ballard said, "that the tax might be unconstitutional." He received the approval of the assembly when he suggested carrying the matter to the highest courts.

Plans for a headquarters of the committee were started and the body voted to meet every Wednesday night to discuss the progress of the movement and discuss new problems. Not a single dissenting voice was heard as Jack Ballard was nominated and elected as the chairman of the committee which will submit the resolutions adopted to the city council Monday night.

Brief talks by different members of the committee were in order as the session neared an end. O. B. Kelley and Henry Ellis delivered short but effective speeches, the former stressing cooperation in the carrying out of the adopted plan. The latter speaker devoted a short part of his talk to praising the representative from this district to Washington for help to ex-service men and urging the audience to pay their poll tax and vote for "an honest sensible man in the 1932 election."

Fortune Halts Brick Layer's Work

Aged Man Will Walk to Gusher Scene

AVALON, Calif., Jan. 21. (US)—There is a certain brick which will never be laid—at least, not by Fred W. S. (Kid) King.

A telegraph messenger interrupted the brick layer today just as he had the brick poised. King read the message four times. Then he threw the brick as far as he could. Then he ran after it, jumped on it, and kicked the unoffending lump of clay squarely in the face.

Fully a hundred persons, attracted by the bricklayer's wild yells and erratic conduct, rushed to the scene. Bringing one foot back from over his head, King controlled himself long enough to thrust the telegram at them.

"You are rich. Just brought in a hundred thousand barrel gusher," the wire read.

King recently entrusted his $4,000 nest egg to a lifelong friend who was acquiring leases near the Oklahoma City gusher field.

"Are you going to quit your job?" King was asked, after he recovered his composure sufficiently to talk.

"I've already quit," the ex-bricklayer retorted. He will leave for Oklahoma tomorrow to watch other expected gushers "come in" on the property in which he "took a chance."

"Kid" King has been a professional walker all his life, and has participated in 289 walking races all over the world. He is 69 years old.

"No, I'm not going to buy a car—walking is plenty good enough for me," he declared.

"The first thing I'm going to do is spend $1,500 to try and save the eyesight of my blind brother, Albert, at Ionia, Mich. Then I'm going to start feeding men who are down on their luck and out of jobs—I've been plenty hungry myself sometimes."

Clay County Farm Women Preserve $20,876 Foodstuffs in 1930

Special to The Record News

HENRIETTA, Texas, Jan. 21.—A recent report made by the home demonstration agent of Clay county, Miss Audrey Hall, reveals that much progress has been made by the 4-H club women of this county the past year, despite the drouth and other obstacles that confronted them.

There were 12 women who did special poultry work with an income of $3,502.86, expense $1,640.45, a profit of $1,862.41. There were three new poultry houses built. In garden work, the club members endeavored to keep a variety of vegetables in gardens at all times of the year, since leafy vegetables are necessary in the diet of the individual. To further aid in having this part of the diet during the winter when products are not obtainable fresh from the garden, 17 members made hot beds. Mrs. Jack Thompson of the Neville community reports that she now has nine vegetables growing in her hot bed.

Besides the garden work, special home-improvement work has been sponspred and 259 shrubs have been set out by home owners over different parts of the county. Such shrubbery as lilac, salt cedar, Amur river privet, japonica, roses and yellow jasmine were used because of their hardiness under drouthy conditions. Other home improvement work consisted of four living room contests, with 31 club members adding furniture numbering 65 pieces. Several members went so far as to refinish woodwork, walls and floors, others had artificial lighting improved and several had natural lighting improved.

Reports from women show in foods preparation 9,850 quarts of canned fruits, 10,653 quarts of canned vegetables, 1,283 quarts of preserves, 3,394 quarts of jelly, 465 quarts of fruit juices, 3,107½ quarts of pickles and relishes, 4,090 quarts canned meats, 157 pounds dried fruits, 14,123 pounds dried vegetables, 38,550 lounds meat cured; all totaling a valuation of $20,876.17.

The home agent assisted in gaining this estimated valuation by making 1 home visits to about 200 homes, having 161 office and 39 telephone calls, spending 92½ days in office, and 194½ days in the field of work, sending 602 individual letters and 850 circular letters, distributing 225 bulletins, giving 242 methods demonstrations with 3,119 in attendance. She made a poultry tour with 26 members, sponsoring trips to C. I. A. short course at Denton with eight attending, and farmers' short course at College Station with the same number attending. Along with assisting with other contests which have been staged throughout the year, she drove her car 11,842 miles.

BULLETS SPEED GAS THIEVES

Burk Man Robbed on Road Near Wichita

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Jan. 21.—Electra police are looking for a bullet riddled automobile which Tuesday night raced away from an East Cleveland street filling station under the fire of the attendant. The operator opened a futile fire when the three occupants of the machine made a getaway with a full tank of gasoline, unpaid for. He reported that the trio offered him a check, giving him the name of an Electra man as recommendation. When he went to the telephone to check up on the claim, the car was started and disapeared in a rain of bullets.

The police department is also in quest of a car stolen from J. B. Maxey Tuesday afternoon. The machine, Dodge coach, was left parked on Bryan street while the family went to a picture show.

A third mystery lies in the torn screen found at the Cicero Smith Lumber company at its opening Wednesday morning. The screen had been torn away, but officials found everything inside undisturbed and believed the prowlers were frightened away before they could gain entrance.

GUNMEN TAKE BURK MAN'S MONEY

C. R. Ford, Burkburnett wholesale oil distributor, was held up and robbed of $57 directly in front of the Wichita Falls Municipal airport early Wednesday night, he told The Record News.

Mr. Ford said he was on his way to Burkburnett in an oil truck when he stopped near the airport to repair a tire. A sedan containing three or four men pulled up alongside the truck and one of the men asked if Mr. Ford needed help.

"No, but I'd like to borrow a pump," the Burk man replied.

"We don't have a pump but here's a darn good forty-five—get your hands up," the bandit commanded.

The gunman then took Mr. Ford's wallet containing the day's collections and the sedan sped away.

Questionnaires have been sent to officials of chambers of commerce in the district, asking for suggestions for activities of 1931. These probably will be discussed during the round table session.

Guests at Luncheon

Representatives will be the guests of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon Thursday noon. A short afternoon session probably will be required to finish business.

District directors, chamber of commerce presidents, secretaries, officials, and individuals interested are expected to attend from Childress, Hardeman, Wilbarger, Wichita, Clay, Cottle, Foard, Baylor, Archer, King, Knox, Stonewall, Haskell, Throckmorton and Young counties which compose the district.

Dr. Everett Jones, A. E. Kelly and Ed Howard have been named to officially represent the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce during the session. Three chamber of commerce members here are also directors of the West Texas organization and will attend the meeting. They are W. B. Hamilton, Walter Cline, and A. H. Britain.

An 80-foot spar from the historic battleship "Old Ironsides" will be the flag pole on a high school now being built at Topeka, Kan.

Frank Genn's Body to Rest At Seymour

The body of Frank Genn, 57, pioneer cattleman of this section was forwarded Wednesday by the Merkle Undertaking company to Seymour where funeral services are to be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Masonic lodge, of which he was a member, in charge. Burial is to be at Seymour.

The veteran cowman died at a hospital here early Tuesday night after having been crushed beneath the roller trucks of a house moving equipment being used to move a house from one section of the Herbert Griffin ranch to another. The accident occurred near the Diversion lake when Mr. Genn lost his footing on a muddy roadway and fell into the path of the rollers as the house was being moved down a hill.

Happy Mr. Capone
Charlie Chaplin
And Einstein
Science Triumphs

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Mr. Al Scarface Capone, king of the American underworld, languishing in his baronial halls in Florida, who buys up politicians, whose henchmen take gentlemen for "rides," who live on the fat of the land, would say that conditions have never been better. This is a great day for the millionaire or the racketeer. The law-abiding middle class, framed by stool pigeons and bribed policemen, imprisoned by grafting judges, may well wonder what it is all about.

In Hollywood, Charlie Chaplin, who endeared himself to the unthinking public by shuffling about in baggy trousers, a queer mustache, a small derby and a cane, entertains Mr. Einstein, deep thinker. The world's funniest man is the host of a man who is supposed to be the world's foremost savant because those who think they know what he is talking about are limited to 12.

It should not surprise you if the visit ended with Einstein's admission that Chaplin is a greater philosopher than himself. Chaplin might proclaim Einstein as the man possessed of the greatest sense of humor. The man who laughs is nearer to God than the man who weeps. A jest often contains more truth than an algebraic formula.

Read the little items of scientific news, unfortunately not found under big headlines. Think about them. For instance, at the Cincinnati university, Prof. George Sperti succeeds in segregating vitamin-giving rays of filtering ultra-violet radiation to the point where he gets rid of wave lengths which have no effect in the construction of vitamins.

This promises practical benefits to you by way of stocking up inexpensive foods, like milk with vitamin D, without, however, spoiling the taste of the original food. It would also serve to foil spoilage, as the professor finds that germs of fermentation, such as yeast molds, etc., yielded to his selective radiation process.

The remaking of the modern world is in the hands of the scientists. Industry, as well as the modern arts, takes its cue from the findings of science. Philosophy has been its handmaid for centuries. Religion, which should have hailed it as its best aide, and who fought it as its deadliest enemy, now seeks amity.

Science, philosophy and religion are slowly joining in a perfect triumvirate for the attainment of truth. Science will unveil the secrets of nature, philosophy will distill significance from them and religion will relate man back, from a haphazard phenomenon in a moment of time emerging on a grain of sand, to the farthest frontiers of the universe and to the Creator.

AUTHOR ILL

MONTEREY, Calif., Jan. 21. (INS)—Suffering from an infected hand, the result of a burn, Gouverneur Morris, author, was under treatment in a hospital here today. While his condition was reported to be serious, his physician stated the author was not in any danger.

Hambone's Meditations

Nine Metropolitan opera singers were laid up with influenza recently and the witty headline writer captioned the story: "Songbirds Have Flu."

"A man may be down but not out" is a saying which seems to apply most everywhere but in the ring.

It's a Bit Perplexing

THERE isn't anything very important about this somewhat nauseating court case in Los Angeles that involves Clara Bow. No matter how it comes out, the fate of the nation won't be affected greatly. There isn't any particular reason why anyone should get terribly excited about it.

Nevertheless, the thing is worth examining, if for no other reason than the fact that it sheds such a revealing light on the current American civilization. And if it is a bit perplexing—well, so are a lot of things in modern life.

The perplexity arises right at the outset. According to the wire dispatches from Los Angeles, this Miss Daisy Devoe was taken to court to answer to a charge of misappropriating certain funds belonging to Miss Bow. But unless you looked closely you'd never notice it. Almost from the beginning, we have had a long, exceedingly wearisome series of attacks on Miss Bow, Love letters have been read in court. Tall tales have been told about gay parties, cocktails, and the like. One would suppose, from the day-by-day accounts of proceedings, that it was Clara Bow who was on trial—accused, apparently, of moral turpitude.

The perplexity deepens as one goes on. Apparently Miss Devoe started out by trying to shake Clara down for upwards of $100,000, threatening to tell all that she knew if the money wasn't forthcoming. The young actress had the good sense and courage to tell the lady to go chase herself; and then the court proceeds to give Miss Devoe a chance to do all the damage she can by letting her spread all of these yarns of hers on the court record, in infinite detail.

The intellectual giants who control the movie world now proceed to make the perplexity deeper than ever by getting highly shocked at Clara. Her part in a forthcoming film is taken away from her, and it is darkly rumored that her whole film career is in danger. And why? Apparently because she had her former secretary arrested for embezzling her money.

Our American civilization provides that certain people shall be given great fame, great wealth and great public adulation because of their positions in moving pictures. Why should we get so worked up when it develops that one of these people has received many love letters, has had many boy friends and has occasionally acted without a great deal of discretion? What of it? Are we so hypocritical that we must pretend that all of this makes the actress an unfit person to appear on the screen?

It looks very much as if Clara Bow has simply had a lot of tough luck. She has been a good actress and she has provided some millions of people with a lot of entertainment. Why try to make her the goat now? Why sacrifice her to maintain Hollywood's theory that every movie actress is an innocent home-girl of 16?

Why Reformation Fails

IN CRITICIZING the methods followed in American reformatories and houses of correction, William N. Brenner, former chaplain of the Philadelphia county prisons, recently made some remarks that ought to be given publicity from one end of the country to the other.

"The terms 'reformatories' and 'houses of correction' are misnomers," says Brenner. "They accomplish anything but that which their names imply. These institutions are dens of contamination and stepping-stones to the penitentiary and the electric chair. Ex-convicts are returned to prison so rapidly that penal institutions cannot be built fast enough to accommodate them."

Brenner also points out that trainers of wild beasts do much better at "reforming" their charges than the state does in handling criminals, and suggests that this is because the animal trainers use more intelligence in the way they go about their work. If animals, he says, were locked in cells, fed and watered and then left to their own devices—as in the case with convicts—very little would be accomplished.

Those who oppose spending money on prison reform are invited to ponder on those remarks.

Politics Gets Lively Again

TRYING to keep abreast of all of the charges and counter-charges that fill the air at Washington is too much of a job for most of us. We read Mr. Smith's blast at Mr. Lucas, Mr. Lucas' reply, Mr. Raskob's assault on Mr. Kent, Mr. Kent's reply, Mr. Fess' wallop at Mr. Shouse—and the thing gets beyond us. It's very interesting, but keeping informed on all of it is a fulltime job. No one mortal can comprehend it all.

However, as an indication of an awakened interest in politics by the general public, it is all rather encouraging. Public apathy in regard to politics has been the curse of American life for more than a decade. If we can get back to the old condition in which men took their politics seriously, we may get that long-awaited realignment of the two major parties—and, as a consequence, a better and more responsive government.

A Widow With a Heart

A NEW YORK wire tells of a large single gift of $100,000 by Mrs. Edward H. Harkness of that city to the Red Cross toward its 10 million dollar drouth relief fund. Mrs. Harkness is the widow of a Standard Oil multimillionaire. She has been very generous with her cash gifts to the underdog of society. Her purse is ever open to the hungry and the needy. A shroud is a pocketless garment. When the soul takes flight it is useless to attempt to carry wealth beyond the grave to the other country. It just can't be done.

THE LOVELY LIAR : BY ROB EDEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Poppy Prior flees to New York to escape her critical mother, after she is jilted by Ted Allison, with whom she planned to run away. Poppy is arrested for the theft of a bracelet belonging to Celia Nixson, which she found on the train and considered only paste. Frightened by the grilling and afraid of her mother's reaction to the affair, Poppy lies to save herself but only becomes more entangled. As a friend of Celia, Kevin Wallace, writer, is present at the cross-questioning and takes a friendly interest in Poppy. When Poppy will not divulge the truth to him, Wallace gives her his card and assures her of his desire to help whenever he can. Poppy is confronted by prosecution and a probable prison term.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER VIII

Poppy put on the hideous wrapper-like apron. A washed out, faded blue affair that came way below her knees. No shape, no fit to it. Did she really have to wear this? All the time?

Miss Rippe was watching her closely through small steel rimmed spectacles. As Poppy had taken off her clothes one by one, she had picked them up. Now they were all on her thin, scrawny arm. Poppy's suit, her hat, her blouse, her underclothes. She was reaching for the high heeled pumps on the floor and the thin stockings that lay beside them. Her knees cracked as she bent over.

Miss Rippe was the assistant matron of the Minnie Bascum Home for Girls to which Poppy had been committed for a year.

It all happened so quickly that Poppy was bewildered. This morning in the juvenile court, with Celia Nixson, Mr. Rogers, and the pawnbroker, Abrams, there. A quiet session, for which the girl was thankful. Held in the judge's chambers. The sentence which Poppy hadn't understood, and had protested. A year at the Minnie Bascum home. A year. What was it like?

She knew now. She knew and hated it already.

A year in this place. She'd go mad.

She'd told the judge she hadn't taken Miss Nixson's things. But he hadn't believed her evidently, or he wouldn't have sent her here. Mr. Rogers and Celia Nixson had both said they thought she was a thief. There was the pawnbroker talking . . . the judge pounding the same questions that yesterday in his office Mr. Rogers had asked. She answered them the same as she had yesterday.

Celia's triumphant look when the judge had told Poppy she had to go to the Minnie Bascum home for a year. Celia was glad!

The ride out here, with her thoughts for comfort. Mother and Grace. Anyway, they'd never know. They couldn't know. When she got out, she—well, what could she do when she got out?

Then the sight of the place. She knew it immediately when the car stopped.

You couldn't help knowing this was a—prison.

The Prison

"Is this the prison?" she had asked numbly, her lips cold, her hands burning.

"This isn't prison, Miss Prior," her escort from the juvenile court informed her. "This is a home for girls. Wayward girls."

Well, if it wasn't a prison, what was it? A high spiked iron fence all around, barbed wire threaded above the spikes. The fence enclosed a big lawn, well kept but treeless and shrubless. The home was in the center of the lawn, a big, institution-like building, not a vine crawling up the weathered gray stone to break the monotony of the hard surface. Windows set in neat, even rows. Windows sealed with bars. Four stories of them.

A prison! It was a prison. Otherwise why should the bars be there, why the high fence around the grounds?

The car stopped at the big gate and the driver got out and rang a bell. There was a wait, until a woman came out and opened it. She introduced herself to Poppy, Miss Rippe. The driver carried her suitcase into the porch and left it there. Miss Rippe managed it the rest of the way into the waiting room. There she left it, and piloted Poppy up a narrow flight of stairs, into a small, cell-like room where she was now. Ordered her to undress and produced this apron for her to wear.

The shoes she gave the girl didn't fit, neither did the black cotton stockings. But there was nothing for Poppy to do but put them on.

"Can't I keep my other clothes here?" Poppy asked as Miss Rippe picked up her pumps.

"No, we don't allow it. All the girls wear uniforms."

Poppy had passed two girls in the hall outside her room. Sullen-eyed girls, younger than she. They were dressed as she was now in ill-fitting aprons, black, low-heeled oxfords and black stockings. She wondered how many of them were in this home.

"This will be your room," Miss Rippe said as she started for the door.

Her room. She looked around again. Her first glance had been so quick, and she had been so shocked. Very small, hardly holding the two small cots, covered with dark blankets, and one tiny commode. No mirror above it. The walls bare. Neat, though, too neat. No chairs, and on the floor one rag rug. To be sure there were curtains on the window, clean, plain, white muslin curtains. The bars showed through them, long straight bars, close together.

Poppy shivered again.

Two cots. Did that mean she had a roommate?

"Do I have to stay here all the time?" Hours, days, a year alone in this barren place. . . .

"No." Miss Rippe's hand was on the knob of the door. "You'll find plenty of work to do. Our girls are kept busy all the time. Just now you're to stay here until I take these clothes downstairs and check them. When you're paroled out, you'll get them back. Wait here for me."

So Poppy sat down on one of the hard cots, and leaned against the yellowish-tan painted wall.

This—after her room in Ashland. This . . . cell. Would she ever see that room again? It was pretty. The furniture, bird's-eye maple shiny and golden, the curtains gay cretonne, with parrots clinging to tropical vines. The bedspread mother had made, matching the curtains. The pillow seat. The lamp on her dressing table. Three mirrors, one in the dresser, one in the dressing table and another full length on the closet door.

So they kept one busy here. Made

Why had she lied to her mother? Only for that lie that disastrous wedding announcement would never have been printed—and she would not be in prison!

LITTLE MISS NOBODY

The final installment of "Little Miss Nobody," was printed in The Record News Tuesday morning on page 11. A number of readers apparently overlooked the installment, probably because it was the shortest of the entire series. These readers may complete the story by referring to their Tuesday morning paper. A few extra copies of the issue are available at the Times Publishing company for those who do not have the Tuesday paper.

Q.—Where did O. Henry's story, "Gifts of the Magi," first appear? —E. D.

A.—It was first published in The New York World, Dec. 10, 1905. O. Henry wrote the story in lead pencil in two hours while an office boy from the paper waited for the copy. He never reread what he wrote and throwing each page to the boy as he finished it, remarked as the last page was reached: "There's a story that will fill the space."

Q.—Who donated Central park to New York City?—L. J. H.

A.—The land covered by Central park was not donated to the city of New York, but was purchased in 1856, the territory at that time being covered with shanties, bone-boiling establishments, piggeries and pools, and very undesirable and unsightly buildings. Three hundred dwellings were removed. The price averaged $7,500 an acre. The present site covers 843 acres which were purchased at a cost of approximately $6,348,950, only a fraction of the actual value of the land today.

Q.—What will take the wrinkles out of a diploma?—W. R.

A.—The wrinkles can be taken out of the diploma by moistening and allowing to dry under tension, as clamped in a frame. This will apply regardless of the material, whether it be genuine sheep skin or vegetable parchment.

Q.—Please give a list of rare woods.—W. S. G.

A.—A partial list follows: Amaranth, ebony, rosewood, sandal wood, snake wood, tulip wood, palisander, Australian blackwood, lignum vitae, near, Indian laurel, Australian walnut, silky oak, Ceylon satinwood, prima vera, Spanish cedar, carreta, olive, orangewood, madrone burl, and coco bolo.

Q.—When was the hourglass invented?—L. H. G.

A.—The hourglass was used as early as the eighth century A. D.

Q.—Is it not true that Plymouth rock has been reunited and that it is now an exhibition spot?—W. W.

A.—The secretary of the Pilgrim society says: "In 1774 the inhabitants of Plymouth decided to remove the rock to Town Square and establish a shrine of liberty. When they attempted to raise it, however, it broke into two parts, one of which was permitted to remain and the other carried to its destination. It remained there until 1834 when it was removed to the yard in front of Pilgrim hall, where it was surrounded by an iron fence. It so remained until 1880, when it was removed and placed on that part of the rock from which it had been separated 106 years before, and over which, meanwhile, an elaborate granite canopy had been erected. The rock may now be seen, in its original position, on the shore at Plymouth. The peristyle which now surrounds it was erected by the Society of Colonial Dames."

Q.—Is Sorolla, the artist, dead?—W. R.

A.—The Spanish artist, Sorolla, died in 1923. He was born in Valencia in 1862. His work is characterized by impressionism that is vigorous, colorful, and spontaneous in feeling. Besides many pictures such as "The Return of the Fishermen," Sorolla painted portraits of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain and portrait groups of peasants and other native people.

Q.—Please tell something about the new museum of the City of New York.—A. B.

A.—It has been erected at a cost of $1,500,000 on Fifth avenue. The building, designed by Joseph Freedlander, is in Georgian colonial style and the same style prevails throughout the interior. In the entrance hall is a circular staircase of solid marble, constructed without steel support. The museum will gradually be filled with exhibits depicting the city's history. Among these will be a gallery devoted to the history of retail selling, history of transportation, a history of the New York stage, models depicting the history of New York architecture and exhibits illustrating the growth of the telegraph, telephone, cable and postal departments. The Museum of the City of New York was incorporated July 21, 1923, to visualize by exhibits the development of New York City life from the earliest times.

Wednesday Club Programs Cover Interesting Topics

Racial characteristics, interesting facts about foreign countries, literature and the changing morals of the world were topics of study when Wednesday clubs met in regular session. Members of the 1922 Study club, who were guests of Mrs. W. H. Newell, continued their study of Italy with Mrs. Clyde Gibson directing the program.

Following the parliamentary drill, roll call was answered with interesting current events concerning Italy. Mrs. T. A. Bradley gave a detailed description of "Cathedrals and Churches of Rome" in a lovely talk, using prints and pictures as illustration. An unusually clever review of "The Cabala" was given by Mrs. Phil Lesh.

Members present were Mesdames T. A. Bradley, Clyde Gibson, Phil F. Lesh, W. H. Newell, J. M. Spoonts, H. T. Wood, Russell Perry, R. P. Brouthertin and one guest, Miss Quida Mae Spoonts.

McCutchen, A. M. Miller, A. D. Montgomery, R. M. Myers, S. S. Staley, L. R. Stringer, J. H. White and Miss Florence Sammons.

Junior Travel

"Panama—the Bridge of the World," was the topic of study for members of the Junior Travel who met at the Woman's Forum clubhouse. The motto for the day's program, "International understanding leaves small opportunity for disputes," indicated the thorough study given by members of the club to their assigned topics.

The program on Panama was introductory to the study of South America to be taken up by the club. Roll call was answered with interesting facts and Mrs. D. O. Johnson, leader, read a splendid paper on the Panama canal made more interesting because of her trip through the canal.

Mrs. J. A. McFall, who gave a paper on "Relations of the United States and South America," demonstrated her talk with a lineage chart she had prepared of the Anglo American and Latin American, giving the ancestry and characteristics of each race.

Members present were Mesdames O. T. Allen, E. A. Deaton, E. T. Duff, J. J. Fennessy, John Humphrey, Grover C. Johnson, D. O. Johnson, A. L. Lane, Thelbert Martin, J. A. McFall, Wayne Somerville, G. H. Watson and G. K. Wilson.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

When we reflect that in spite of all the hard places gone over in our life we have never seen a child really suffering for food, we reflect that in spite of any hardship, our lines have been laid in pleasant places.

We remember with pity a small, ragged boy crying to himself in a dark corner because he had lost his quarter and was afraid to go home without it; we remember how the sight of a young man in trouble always clutches at our heart, for as with any mother, the thought of our own sons comes into our mind.

We read in Tuesday dailies the story told by Robert Hill, the youngest of the Cisco "Santa Claus" bandits, who after living from 7 to 20 years of age in a reform school, is sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary.

And we read of the girls in Bedford reformatory, Westchester, framed by paid stool pigeons and illegally committed, who are now to be released.

There's an old saying that is never quite true, "Yesterday is as dead as Babylon." The ghosts of yesterday forever walk, though yesterday for that person who lived a clean day may sleep while he tries again today.

It is not sentiment, but sentimentality that is wasted on hardened criminals. A recent cartoon showed one of that species wondering aloud who the warden thought he was to be holding back "fan mail"

But the world in general doesn't count as hero that unfortunate who tries again after a fall. Records do not show many Jean val Jeans. We know one man in Memphis, Tenn., who won back to renown after a penitentiary sentence. He had the respect of every thinking citizen.

The average citizen is willing to lend a hand to a boy who is trying to make good after a reform school sentence. But he makes no "brother" of him. See his reaction if he is asked by that boy for the hand of his daughter in marriage.

And the average woman would feel a divine pity for a girl unjustly sent to any reform institution. But she would never wish a girl with such a shadow hanging over her to become mother of her son's children.

I wonder sometimes how the world would look at each of us if our private sins—the little hidden frailties of every human being—were aired before the public.

Preachers and teachers, doctors and lawyers, merchants and manufacturers, rich and poor, men and women—who is without sin?

Just A Touch Of Ice-Mint. PRESTO'
Corns Wither and Lift Out With Fingers. No Pain.

Corn sufferers gather round; get right up close and listen, here's good news for you.

The real genuine "Corn Killer" is here at last. No humbug. Ice-Mint 'the new discovery made from a Japanese product is said to surely and quickly end all foot misery. Think of it; only a touch or two of that cooling, soothing Ice-Mint and real foot joy is yours. No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying it or afterwards and it doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

It just makes a pair of tired, swollen, aching, burning feet glow with cooling comfort.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened callouses just shrivel right up and lift off so easy. It's wonderful.

Every foot sufferer can appreciate a treatment like this, especially women who wear high heel shoes and men who are obliged to stand on their feet all day.

Try it. Just ask in any Drug store for Ice-Mint and learn for yourself what solid foot comfort really is. There is nothing like it.—Adv.

It Takes Two To Make Happy Home, Says Dorothy Dix

Dear Miss Dix—I heard a man assert the other day that the woman either made the home or broke it, and that if the husband and wife did not get along it was the wife's fault, because she had failed somewhere. What do you think?—A. B. C.

Answer—Many men appear to have the naive belief that women are miracle workers who can make a happy home out of thin air, and who possess some occult power of charming even a surly beast of a husband into amiability and good nature. But this is a superstition that has no foundation in fact.

Making a happy home is a two-handed job that it takes a man and woman working together to pull off. No woman alone and unaided and without any cooperation from her husband can any more make a happy home than he could build a skyscraper by himself.

Inasmuch as the home is a woman's province, her responsibility for it is greater than the man's and its welfare is more dependent on her than on him. She strikes its note of cheerfulness or of gloom. She makes it atmosphere of serenity or peace. She makes it a place of comfort and ease or of discomfort.

No home can be a happy home in which the woman at the head of it is peevish and fretful and complaining or nagging or melancholy or high-tempered. No home can be a happy home unless it is well kept, unless it is clean and orderly and has well-made beds and well-cooked food. No one can imagine a husband and children hastening joyfully to a home in which there is a shrew of a wife and mother, or to a home that is slovenly and dirty and where they will sit down to a meal that would kill an ostrich.

But, on the other hand, no woman, not even if she has the disposition of an angel and can cook like a French chef, no matter how kind and good and intelligent she may be, can make a happy home if there is a man who is a drunkard in it or if there is a surly grouch in it, or if the man at the head of it is a mean, grinding tyrant who makes cowering slaves of his wife and children.

All of us know homes where the wife and children live in terror of the man of the house and the very sound of his key in the lock hushes even the baby's prattle and sends the cat scurrying for the cellar. We know men who sit up in sulky silence in their homes, with never a pleasant word for anybody and whose very presence in a room sends the temperature down to zero.

We know men whose only home conversation consists in insults to the members of their families, and to say that any woman can make a happy home when she has such a killjoy on the hearth is foolish. No human being could do it.

There is not one of us who hasn't known some home that was a gloomy, miserable place in which nobody ever laughed and in which there was never any joy or pleasure and that was turned into a place of sunshine and mirth and good will by the death of the husband and father whose dark and brooding spirit had cast a pall over it.

It is equally ridiculous to say that when a husband and wife don't get along together it is always the wife's fault. Sometimes it is. Just as often it isn't. When it comes to being selfish and tactless and cantankerous, probably husbands and wives break fifty-fifty.

As a general thing wives make more effort to please their husbands than their husbands make to please them. Most wives try to adapt themselves to their husbands' ways and to learn how to gumshoe around their peculiarities and to generally handle them with gloves.

But very few men ever make any effort to try to manage their wives without friction. They don't bother to study their wives and find out how to work them. Even when they know how to soft-soap their Marias, they don't take the trouble to do it.

Of course, there are women so ill-tempered and so unreasonable and so overbearing and bossy that no man on earth could get along with them peaceably, but there are also men who have these same faults with whom not even a lady angel could live in peace. There are husbands to whom a wife cannot even say it is a pleasant day without starting something. There are husbands who have union cards in the Amalgamated Hammer Wielders, and who knock everything their wives do and say. There are men who work off on their wives and children all the nerves and temper they dare not show the outside world, and no woman can make a pet of one of these any more than she can a wild hyena.

No, no woman can make a happy home by herself, or get along with an ill-natured husband. If you will observe, you will find that in the really happy homes there is always a cheerful affectionate man who does his part in making a happy home, instead of shunting the whole job on his wife.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl 20 years old, a good-looking blonde. I smoke, drink, pet and go on wild parties, but cannot hold a boy friend. Why is this?—M. P. H.

Answer—You have said it, my dear. The reason that you cannot hold a man is simply because you smoke, drink, pet and go on wild parties. As long as you do that you will probably have plenty of dates, except a date for the altar.

Men like to go about with the girls who smoke, drink, pet and go on wild parties, because they are gay and amusing companions for an evening and give their escorts a good time, but that's all. They are just playthings. Dolls that serve their purpose and that men throw away when they lose their looks and get a little bedraggled with too much handling. Broken toys.

When a worthwhile man thinks about marriage, the kind of man who takes marriage seriously, and who expects to be faithful to his wife and support her and be a real husband to her, he also thinks seriously, and who expects to be faithful to his wife and support her and be a real husband to her, he also thinks seriously about the girl he wants for a wife and for the mother of his children.

And the qualities he looks for are not the ability to smoke one cigaret after another, or to drink more cocktails than any man in the crowd. Nor does the knowledge that her moral code is so elastic that it seems to have no drawstring to it at all appeal to him. That sort of girl is good enough to pass the time away with, but not for keeps. He doesn't want a dipsomaniac for a wife, nor does he desire to wear on his breast a flower that has been dragged in the dust by a hundred hands and off which other men have worn the bloom.

These are old-fashioned ideas, you say. True. But men are old-fashioned in their ideas about women. They will play with the playgirls and give them a jolly good time for a little while, but when they marry they want in their wives just exactly what their fathers wanted in theirs: Purity, cleanliness, sweetness, modesty, love, faithfulness, all the old standardized feminie virtues. They want a girl who believes in everything that is good, who believes in God and kneels down and says her prayers at night.

They don't want the smokers and the petters and the drunkards and the girls who come in bleary-eyed and maudlin at 3 o'clock in the morning.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl, 15 years old. I have always been told that my father was killed in the war while I was a baby and that the check that my mother gets every month is a pension from the government. Now I have found out that my father is alive, but that my mother has divorced him, and that the money on which we live is alimony. I do not want my mother to lie to me any more and I want to see my father. I want to know him. How can I find him?—BABS.

Answer—The simplest and most direct way is to go to your mother and tell her that you know the truth and ask her to tell you why she divorced your father and where he is. Then write to him and ask him if he wants to see you.

It is your right to know your father and I am sure that if you put the matter up to your mother she will understand your feeling.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Some Specialists In Excess Fat Make Thousands Thin
Since this new discovery

In old days, doctors were not often consulted in obesity. People simply assumed that excess fat meant too much food, too little exercise. They feared the doctor would prescribe starvation.

Now that has changed. Science has discovered that a scanty gland secretion is a great cause of excess fat. Doctors the world over know how to correct it. And some of them are telling thousands the way to normal figures.

The factor they use is employed in Marmola prescription tablets. A world-famous medical laboratory prepares them to fit the average case. Thus anyone can now deal with obesity in the right way at small cost. This way supplies a lacking factor which largely controls nutrition. It helps turn food into fuel and energy when too much goes to fat. No help in all medicine is more widely accepted today.

Marmola has been used for 24 years —millions of boxes of it. Users have told others about it, and the use has spread. Now you can see its results in every circle. Excess fat has been fast disappearing. Slender figures are everywhere the vogue.

Now excess fat is folly. It takes so little to correct it. No abnormal exercise or diet. Combat the gland cause. Think what the results will mean in beauty, health and vim.

All druggists supply Marmola at $1. A book in each box gives the formula and explains the reasons for results. It means doing what doctors do, instead of something harmful or absurd. Go start today.

Lions Hear Talk On Benefits Of Life Insurance

Benefits of life insurance were discussed briefly before members of the Lions club Wednesday noon by J. H. Allison in observance of "life insurance day" of national thrift week.

Mr. Allison styled his talk "Friend in Trouble," and pointed out that insurance, trust funds, and other forms of savings are the only friends who remain with a man in times of death, trouble, or other calamities.

New life insurance policies totaling $18,500,000,000 in face value were purchased by people of the United States during 1930, the speaker said.

A varied musical program arranged by Mrs. J. S. Pitman was given Wednesday. Miss Pauline Hatcher of Archer City presented a song and dance number, accompanied by Mrs. W. R. Doty. Paul Putty Jr., violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Paul Putty, played a solo, and Miss Mary Loevey gave a negro dialect reading.

The first inter-city Lions meeting of the year will be held at Electra on Feb. 20, according to an announcement by J. W. Lyle.

Business And Professional Women Give Clever Program

A program of unusual cleverness given by members of the Business and Professional Women's club at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday evening had as a leading feature an amusing skit, "Just Imagine Ten Years From Now," written and acted by four club members, Misses Mayme Kuhfuss, Cleo Bowers, Helen Nixon and Glenna Miller.

In a modern boudoir setting, a group of 1941 women gave their views about times and manners. A big game hunter, the defendant in a divorce case, the head of a big nutritive pill company and a radio announcer kept the audience highly amused. They covered the world with their gossip and at the close of the skit, the remainder of the program was "Broadcast by the Nutritive Pill Company." Each number was announced as given by a member of the club, though they were presented by local artists.

Jimmie Baker sang three popular numbers, "You Darling," "Three Little Words," and "I Don't Mind Walking in the Rain," with Mrs. Ruth Baker accompanying. Miss Thelma Norvell gave two exquisite violin numbers, "Roses of Picardy" and "Souvenir," with Miss Mildred Anderson at the piano.

The dinner table was a lovely setting for the delicious menu served. Tall green tapers in crystal holders were divided the length of the table by sprays of feathery ferns and the central bowl of crimson roses was surrounded with the same dainty green.

Covers were laid for nine guests, including Misses Lenora Shaw, Billie Ruth, Thelma Norvell, Mildred Anderson, and Aleena Alverson, Mesdames Ruth Baker, B. I. Hall, Clarice Hill and O. H. Gideon and Jimmie Baker. Members of the club present were Misses Mayme Kuhfuss, Cleo Bowers, Ida Catherine Walker, Winnie Maye Giddings, Lillian Pardew, Helen Nixon, Glenna Miller, Ethel Glasgow, Joella Terrill Butler, Lena Derspah and Maude Thomas and Mesdames G. Small Grain Ousts Cotton Acreage On Knox County Farm

Special to The Record News.

MUNDAY, Texas, Jan. 21.—Ross Bates, prominent farmer of the Hefne community, stated today that he was practically putting cotton on the taboo for 1931, and already he has planted 225 acres of his farm to wheat and announced that he would sow about 200 acres in oats. In addition Mr. Bates' son has sown about 125 acres of wheat.

"The small grain idea is not new with me," said Mr. Bates in commenting upon his program, "for I realized long ago that cotton and cotton alone would bring only poverty, and during all the years that I have farmed I have always planted a large acreage in small grain, and expect to continue that same program."

Texas Girl is Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition easily corrected.

Take the experience of Mrs. J. W. Nolen, 113 Ceanter St., Dallas, who says: "Nothing seemed to please Betty Jean. She was fretful, feverish, suffered a lot from colds. She was constipated.

"Our doctor advised California Fig Syrup so I got some for Betty Jean. It relieved her trouble promptly; made her bright and happy again. We have used it for three years."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headaches; to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments.

Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided; weak bowels and stomach are strengthened.

For your protection, the genuine always bears the name California.

Symptoms of Disease

In yesterday's article I attempted to paint a picture of perfect health. Without attempting to teach my readers to diagnose their own troublesI will in today's article describe certain conditions which indicate some deviation from the normal condition of perfect health. The reader may be suffering from some disorder.

If the scalp is scaley or the hair has lost its luster.

If the hearing or eyesight is imperfect.

If there are nosises in the ears.

If the eyelids are irritated or the whites of the eyes discolored by enlarged veins or yellow color.

If the gums around the teeth are inflamed or there are any dead teeth in the mouth which may have abscessed roots.

If the skin is sallow, pimply, too pale, dry or scaley.

If breathing is interfered with, either in the nose or from faulty chest expansion.

If when resting the respiration or breathing time is more than 18 times a minute, or the pulse faster than 72 times per minute; or if the pulse is not approximately four times the breathing rate.

If the body is at any place unduly covered with fat or if one is thin and emaciated.

If there is distress after eating, or too much gas and flatulence.

If the bowels move only once daily, or the stool is too liquid, too dry, or there is too much mucus.

If the urine is cloudy, scant, dark colored or too copious.

If there is not an urging appetite in the morning to eat breakfast and a strong desire for one or two meals during the day.

If the sleeping time is broken up by restlessness, dreams, nightmares or difficulty in breathing.

If upon awakening one is not eager for work and anxious to attack the problems of the day.

If upon awakening one is not eager for work and anxious to attack the problems of the day.

If one has spells of nervousness, irritability, desire to avoid people and is intolerant of his friends' views and actions.

The above symptoms are some which are present in different disorders. If you have any of these conditions of which you are conscious you should at once have a good diagnosis made of your case and find out the reasons for any such deviation from the normal. Do not wait for such symptoms to clear up by themselves.

Find out what bad habits you are practicing which produce such troubles which may not be diseases in themselves, but which may be warnings of disorders of a more serious nature which may be difficult to cure if neglected for too long.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

No Breakfast

Question—M. E. asks: "Is doing without breakfast injurious to health? If so, what effect will it have on body or mind?"

Answer—I believe that everyone should be hungry for breakfast. If you are not it is probably because the rest of your meals are not balanced properly. Perhaps you are eating too much at the evening meal. You should by all means go without your breakfast if you are not hungry, but try to balance your meals in such a way that you will be hungry in the morning after your 12-hour fast from the evening meal before. The best plan is to stop eating entirely until you are really hungry for simple, nourishing food.

Abscessed Teeth

Question—Constant Reader asks: "Can abscessed teeth be cured by diet or medicine? Dentists I have consulted do not want to treat my abscessed teeth as the old-time dentists would do, but wish to extract. They are good strong teeth in a prominent position in the mouth and I dislike very much to lose them."

Answer—It is sometimes possible to cure abscessed teeth through dieting and the proper local treatments. It takes quite a long time, is necessarily expensive, and requires following the strictest kind of diet. The old-time dentists left too many abscessed teeth in, and the newer ones take too many dead teeth out which are not abscessed. If x-ray pictures show your teeth to be abscessed, either cure the abscess or have the teeth extracted; don't let them remain in your mouth in their present condition.

Cost of Living Drops In American Cities

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—Costs of living in representative cities of the United States in December were estimated by the labor department today to have been 6.2 per cent lower than they were during the same month last year.

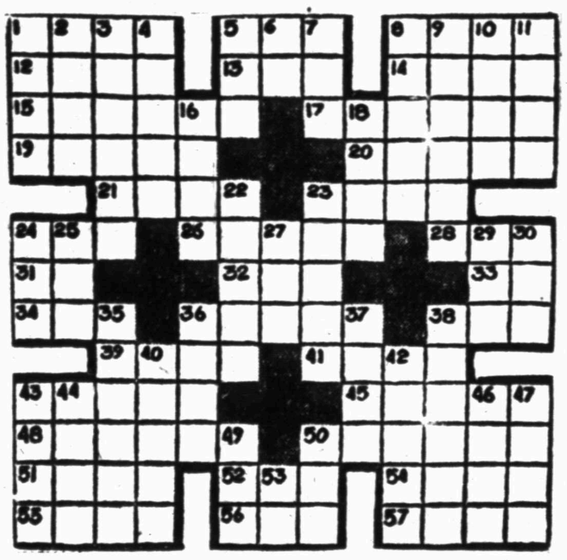

The composite calculation, dealing with all the items consumed by an average family, showed decreases in food prices were most notable, amounting to more than 7 per cent since last June, while house furnishings and clothing came down by about half that percentage.

Suspects Rounded Up After Fatal Blasts

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 21. (AP)—Police today continued their roundup of suspects in connection with the explosions which wrecked trains at three different stations at Buenos Aires yesterday. The explosions resulted in the death of three persons and the serious injury of 13 others.

The Railway Men's union passed resolutions condemning yesterday's outrages and expressing the conviction they were not connected with union activities.

FAST CHILDRESS BOBCATS SMOTHER COYOTE CAGERS, 43-29

PACK PASSERS SEEM LISTLESS

Boys From Up the Denver Are Far Superior

By JACK ALLEN

Outclassing the Coyotes in every department of play, the Childress Bobcats defeated the local quintet yesterday afternoon on the Coyote court by the decisive count of 43 to 29. The Coyote machine never got going and seemed listless during the whole game.

For the first few minutes the Pack displayed perfect teamwork, but they failed to lead the fighting Childress lads at the halftime. The score see-sawed during the first quarter, but the Bobcats spurted and forged to the front by a 26 to 12 margin at the end of the first half. Again in the second half the Pack threatened to overtake the speeding Cats, at one time trailing the visitors by only five points. After a momentary lapse of form the winners began hitting the basket with startling regularity and piled up an enormous lead. An effective passing combination and perfect teamwork kept the Coyotes bewildered.

Harold Reeves was the outstanding offensive performer for the losers with eight points. His passing was good and his two-pointers came at a time when they were most needed. Raymond Allen turned in his usual good offensive game, registering eight points and sharing high point honors with Reeves. Orion Janeway checked in with seven counters and was a power in breaking up enemy plays. Boyd was the power in the Childress attack. He gathered 16 points and was a shining light on the defense. R. Davis halved high score honors with Boyd, snaring eight sinks from the floor for 16 counters. Johnson turned in a sensational exhibition as standing guard for the winners.

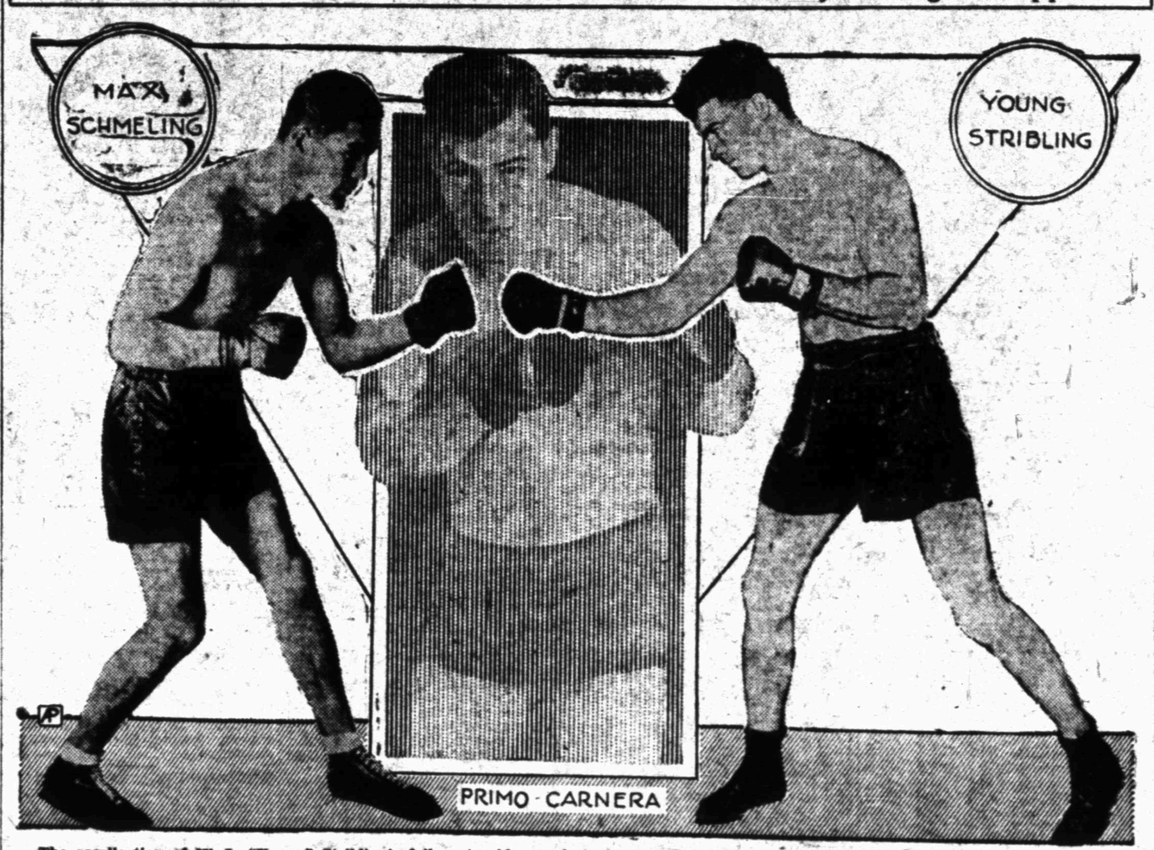

The defeat sends the chances of the Pack in the district tournament down to rock bottom, as Olney, champions of the district for the past two seasons, defeated the Bobcats by the topheavy count of 41 to 16. Following the game Saturday night at Electra with the Tigers, the Pack will prepare to meet the Bobcats in a return game at Childress some time in February.

Last Fight Dims Stribling's Title Chances; Carnera's Fate Likely to Hinge on Opponent

The recollection of W. L. "Young" Stribling's failure to ride rough shod over "Tuffy" Griffith in their Chicago fight has dampened somewhat the enthusiastic belief of his followers that he will lift the heavy weight title from Max Schmeling next June. Primo Carnera, Italian "Man-Mountain," signed to meet the winner, shapes up better against Schmeling than the Georgian, whom he has twice met in Europe.

By EDWARD J. NEIL

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Now that Young Bill Stribling and Max Schmeling have penned their agreements to fight somewhere in June for the heavyweight title, the boys who do pieces for the papers have been freed to start guessing who'll win.

If it wasn't for one bout—the last Willie fought and one of the best performances of his long career—Stribling would march into the ring some bright June evening with most of the wise money riding on his chances.

But his duel with Tuffy Griffith in Chicago, clean-cut victory though it was, stands out like a red light at a grade crossing to flag down over-enthusiasm.

Tuffy, loosely speaking, has a style that greatly resembled Schmeling's. He weaves and bobs and charges with both hands hooking wide. He should be a mark for a smart, lightning left-handed boxer of Stribling's type, the kind of gladiator who should stab that sort of warrior out of stride with his left and riddle his chin with straight short right hand smashes. The best punch in the Stribling armament is his whistling right cross.

Griffith, however, went into the Stribling battle and came out after 10 rounds minus the decision, but still all in one piece. Bill slugged Tuffy's lantern jaw, never famous for its ruggedness, and though he won decisively, he never could keep him from coming on. When the match was made they said Griffith would be lucky to last three rounds.

Schmeling crouches and weaves, but he is more of a counter puncher than Griffith; a smarter, a heavier hitter, and a bull for punishment. He has been out of action of a year since winning from Jack Sharkey on a foul in four rounds.

Stribling in the meantime has knocked out Otto Von Porat, Phil Scott, outpointed Arthur De Kuh and Griffith. The southerner is far more experienced and certainly as clever as the Sharkey who jabbed and boxed Der Maxie dizzy until he loosed the low one. Schmeling, however, has always wanted to fight Stribling. He believes Young Bill lacks courage.

While the German balks at thoughts of the giant Carnera, an almost impossible opponent for a man who fights from a crouch and therefore has only the Italian's cast iron body to work on, Stribling welcomes another shot at the man mountain who has been guaranteed a duel with the winner next September.

Stribling won from Carnera and lost to him, both times on fouls, abroad. He had the Italian goliath on the floor several times. For publication he declares Primo the most formidable man in the ring today.

Confidentially Bill believes he can name the punch and the round for the knockout of the big macaroni man.

HAWKS BEAT PETROLIA FIVE

Iowa Park Dribblers Win 17-16 Contest

Special to The Record News

IOWA PARK, Jan. 21.—Before one of the largest crowds of the season, the Iowa Park Hawks displayed their best type of basket ball of the year to down the Petrolia cagers, 17 to 16, on the Hawk court last night. The game was one of the best seen here this season and kept the spectators on edge with one sensational play after another.

Starting slowly, the birds gathered steam and swept through the Petrolia defense in a last minute spurt to capture the contest by the narrowest of margins. The count at the half was decidedly in the favor of the visitors, Petrolia leading, 9 to 5. Soon after the opening of the second half the Wichita county quintet tied the score and the rest of the game was a wild melee of freak shots, flying feet, and yells from the spectators.

Iowa Park is tied with three other teams in the county round robin tourney and is considered one of the foremost contenders for the county pennant. Petrolia is one of the best teams in Clay county.

Cobb, flashy Hawk forward, led the offensive of the winners with five baskets from the floor for 10 points, over half his team's total. Cowart turned in a great exhibition of passing and guarding which was one essential factor in the victory of the Green and White. Jeffries, Petrolia forward, was the big shot for the beaten team with three sinks from the floor and five points from the free throw line, for a total of 11 points. King played a jam-up game for the losers on the defensive part of the game. The visitors were especially deadly from the free throw line, sinking 10 gift shots.

Lee Chase, Buffalo, nosed out G. C. Kirkland, Miami, 3 and 2, and Jack Vilas, Chicago, eliminated Ken Berry, Miami, 8 and 7, in the other quarter-final matches.

Tomorrow's semi-finals will pit Day against Ryerson, and Chase against Vilas.

TEXAS OPEN ON 'UP AND UP'

Tourney Manager Decries Pre-Play Agreements

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

DALLAS, Jan. 21.—There will be no pre-arranged splitting of prize money in the Texas open golf tournament at San Antonio next week if Jack O'Brien, red-headed manager of the event, has anything to do with it. The boys, he declares, will fight it out fair and square and pocket exactly what they win.

It pained Mr. O'Brien to learn that George Von Elm, the well known businessman-golfer, and Johnny Golden, veteran professional, had agreed to split first and second prizes in the Agua Caliente tournament before they engaged in their 18-hole "playoff."

"There will be purse-splitting of that sort in the Texas open only over my cold and rigid corpse," O'Brien was quoted. Such an agreement, O'Brien declared, removes the sporting angle from a tournament and is unfair to the promoters and the merchants of a city who guarantee the purse. He felt it would greatly impair the reciepts, since sportsmen would stay away in great numbers if they felt such a play-off was cut-and-dried.

Just what steps he will take to prevent an "understanding" in the event of a play-off at San Antonio, Jack either was unable or unwilling to reveal. But he is dead set on doing something. First prize at San Antonio will be $1,500; second $750.

Most of the field that competes in the Alamo city is expected to drop down to Harlingen next week-end for that city's first annual open tournament. Prizes aggregating $3,600 have been posted. The 72-hole event will be played over Harlingen's new municipal course, completed only a year ago. It is said to be a sporty layout.

Championship Field Trials Disappointing

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Jan. 21. (AP)—June Dale Ladybird and Bell the Devil, pointers, showed to the best advantage in today's running of the national championship field trials. The day's races, however, were regarded as somewhat disappointing.

Ladybird, entered by F. H. Lahey of Boston, found the most birds—three bevies and a single. Bell the Devil from the Rumson Farm kennels of Rumson, N. J., had two bevies to her credit and a point on a single. After the first hour of the three-hour heat both ran well.

The setters Arbu Betty, owned by Robert Herndon of Detroit and Maradoc Dan, owned by F. B. Howe-ver of Buffalo, N. Y., ran as the other brace today. Maradoc Dan started well and handled his birds nicely but tired and finished his heat in a trot. The work of his bracemate was not considered as impressive as was anticipated.

The Methodist five recently won the first half championship of the Sunday school league, in Wichita Falls.

Contrary to past games, the winners started like a whirlwind and kept up the terrific pace until the K. P.'s were thoroughly tired. Rawls hit the basket from any angle and continued his uncanny scoring sprees by gathering 27 points. Coyal Francis, flashy center was second in the scoring column for the winners with 14 points. L. Selfridge was the best marksman for the vanquished with an even dozen points.

THURNBLAD IN CUE VICTORY

Chicago Favorite Adds To His Prestige

CHICAGO, Jan. 21. (AP)—Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago, a long shot in pre-tournament calculations, stroked his way to the front of the eight player field in the world's championship three cushion struggle today by chalking up his second straight victory.

Thurnblad, northern sectional titleholder, started yesterday by defeating Tiff Denton, former champion from Kansas City, and followed through today by winning a hard fought match from D. J. Jacobs of St. Louis, southern champion, 50 to 42, in 54 innings. His victories put him one up on Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia and Allen Hall of Chicago, who captured their opening matches yesterday.

Denton climbed into fifth place by winning his second match today from Frank Scoville of Buffalo, eastern champion, 50 to 41, in 60 innings. Scoville, who startling the tournament by upsetting Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., the defending champion, now has lost two matches in a row and landed in sixth place.

'Average Player' to Profit Most By New Ball, U. S. G. A. Head Says

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—From the window on the 23rd floor, we could see the sleet beating down on the smoky peaks and the chimney pots of mid-town Manhattan. Cold, miserable weather without but within the discussion turned to golf, the warmth of talk about playing under the palms—and the new ball.

"What's all the shooting for, about this new ball?" inquired stocky, genial and practical-minded Herbert Hartley Ramsay, one-time captain of the Andover golf team, one-time manager of the Yale football team, now president of the United States Golf association.

Golfers Complaining

He referred to the new, lighter and larger golf ball, standardized this year by the U. S. G. A.—the sphere that is 1.55 ounces in weight, 1.68 inches in diameter as contrasted with the old regulation ball measuring 1.62 inches and weighing 1.62 ounces.

"Somehow or other," continued Ramsay, "many golfers have the idea this new ball has just been brought out of a hat as a trick to make things harder for them. I hear complaints that it cuts off too much distance. I hear it won't putt and does tricks.

"The fact is that the new golf ball adopted by the U. S. G. A. is the result of nearly seven years of exhaustive, disinterested study and development.

"It does not handicap the long or the medium or the short hitter. It gives better lies through the fairway, it is, on the whole, easier to handle around the greens.

Started in 1922

"We started to work on this ball in 1923; the year after the 1.62 size was standardized, for the sake of having a uniform ball. Up to that time there was no standard.

"Over a year ago we decided to adopt the new ball, anyway, but served a year's notice so as to allow sufficient time for the manufacturers to make the switch.

"I feel sure that complaints will vanish as soon as the great army of the golfing clan gets to know and appreciate the new ball. It won't cure a hook or a slice or do anything miraculous. It still will be necessary to hit the ball properly to get results but the new size will be found to have many advantages over the old.

"I have been interested in the showing of the professionals since the first of the year. A few complained at first that they lost some distance. They have changed their tune. If you have noticed, the scores at such tournaments as the Los Angeles and Agua Caliente opens have shown about the usual proportions of sub-par performances. In short, the results, so far as the stars are concerned, will be about the same; so far as the average player is concerned, much better."

Vernon Promises Aid to Jobless

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Jan. 21.—Unemployed men and women in Vernon were promised the help of the business and civic leaders in the city in a brief mass meeting held at the courthouse Wednesday night.

George H. Wilson Jr., principal speaker, declared that a joint executive committee appointed Monday is making progress in its campaign for jobs and for emergency relief, but emphasized the fact that the benefits of the work would go only to citizens of Vernon. He declared that transients would not be considered in the committee's program, and discouraged any influx of job-seekers from other places.

The committee is seeking the donation of one day's pay a month from men and women with jobs in an effort to supply the needs of family men without employment. At the same time every effort is being made to find part-time and emergency jobs to tide over the emergency.

F. T. HUNTER TO BECOME PRO

Tilden's Former Partner Deserts Amateurs

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—Francis T. Hunter, former doubles partner of William T. Tilden, member of the United States Davis cup team and second ranking tennis player in the United States for the past two years, decided today to follow his friend and partner into the professional tennis ranks.

Hunter announced today he would make his debut as a professional along with Tilden in Madison Square garden Feb. 18. No arrangements have been made for a match for Hunter on the day when Tilden will play Karel Koseluh, famous Czecho-Slovakian professional. He will not be able to accompany Tilden on his professional tour, but will play in the East whenever his other interests permit. Hunter is engaged in the publishing business in New Rochelle, N. Y.

A veteran player, famed for his powerful drives, Hunter never has been able to scale the peak of national championship. On two occasions he was runner up, carrying the colors of the United States against Henri Cochet of France in 1928 and losing to Tilden in the 1929 finals. He was placed second in the national rankings in both years.

Milwaukee to Become Famous Again, Says Art

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 21. (AP)—His modesty, Art Shires, former big league first baseman, came to Milwaukee today to talk contract with President Lou Nahin of the local American association club. He joined Nahin in hoping he will "go over" with the Milwaukee team. They will confer tomorrow morning. Nahin tonight said Shires will be offered the largest salary in his experience with Milwaukee baseball.

Shires' principal statement along his usual line of self-effacement, was to the effect that the old signs about one of Milwaukee's principal products may now be replaced by "Art Shires, the man who made Milwaukee famous."

Bobby Jones And Jimmy Johnston Even on Homeland

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 21. (AP)—Bobby Jones, the four-way golf champion and Jimmy Johnston, former amateur champion, are great home state boosters. For years they have vied with each other—and right now the match is all square.

When Bobby was in Minnesota for the national open at Interlachen last summer, Jimmy undertook to prove what he had said about Minnesota as a great fishing state. One bright morning he got Bobby into a boat on Lake Minnetonka, assuring him plenty of black bass would be caught.

Bobby got a splendid sunburn on his neck, and during the tournament it was so sore he could scarcely turn his head. Two fish, a small bass and a pickerel, was the total catch.

Last week Jimmy went to Atlanta. Bobby prevailed on him to stay one day longer than he had intended for a quail shoot, assuring him plenty of quail would be shot.

The bag was two quail.

"And that," said Jimmy, "makes us all even."

DON'T BE A "GIM'ME"

There is a certain type of shopper who still buys in a lazy and careless fashion though the type is fast disappearing. This is the shopper who has not learned to buy by name but is still content to buy the unknown and the unadvertised. For instance, many people used to go into a drug store and say "Gim'me some aspirin." Now thousands have learned to ask for a box of "St. Joseph's" Pure Aspirin because they know its guaranteed purity and that it is neither sensible nor necessary to pay more than 10c for a box of one dozen pure aspirin tablets.

Don't be a "gim'me." When you want aspirin, be safe, sensible, and economical. Put down your dime and ask by name for a box of "St. Joseph's" Pure Aspirin. It's as pure as money can buy.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—Cotton was higher today on a continuance of trade buying and covering promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and accompanied by reports that the trade was showing more disposition to fix prices. After selling up to 10.37 at the start, March reacted to 10.28 under realizing combined with some Southern selling, but steadied up again, closing at 10.31 compared with 10.26 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net advances of 4 to 10 points, except for old January which advanced to 10.45 on a few transactions and closed at 10.46 or 26 points net higher.

Business was somewhat less active than yesterday but in better volume than it was Monday with spurts of activity during the early and later trading. Some of the early buying may have been promoted by reports that Japanese spinners were receiving increased orders owing to the labor situation in Lancashire, which some of the local traders were inclined to couple with yesterday's reports of Japanese buying in the futures market here.

Liverpool cables said there had been covering and continental buying with a shortage of contracts in that market. Advices reaching the cotton goods market in Manchester from China and India were said to be discouraging but a sustained demand was reported for yarns made from Egyptian cotton. Exports today 12,232, making 4,359,956 so far this season. Port receipts 13,695. U. S. port stock, 4,062,661.

Futures closed steady, 4 to 26 points higher; spot steady; middling, 10.45.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21. (AP)—There was a spurt of fair activity in the cotton market during early trading here today due to favorable Liverpool cables and the execution of overnight buying orders resulting from the late advance yesterday.

Prices advanced 9 to 11 points during the first hour. Later trading quieted down and prices eased off under pressure of realizing and profit taking and before noon the early advance was cut down 6 to 8 points. Trading became very quiet in the early afternoon but prices remained within the earlier range.

Advices from the textile trade were somewhat more favorable. The market firmed up some in the late trading and became more active with ring scalpers covering gains, 5 to 6 points, the general market showing net gains for the day of 5 to 9 points. The early gains in Liverpool were attributed to a sharp advance in Egyptian.

Liverpool came in 3 to 5 penny points better than due and the private cables stated shorts covered and the continent bought developing a scarcity of contracts. Manchester reported that India and China advices were discouraging. First trades here showed gains of 9 points and May advanced a couple of points additional after the start at 10.62 while March remained unchanged at 10.36.

Later in the morning the market eased off gradually under profit taking and trading quieted down. By early afternoon March had eased off to 10.30 and May to 10.54 down 6 to 8 points from the highs but still 3 points above the previous close.

The market had a fresh spurt of activity in the late trading and prices rallied, March closing at 10.32 and May at 10.58 or 6 to 7 points net higher while October closed at 11.00 up 9 points net.

Definite Trend Fails to Develop Despite Pressure Against Leaders

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Jan 21. (US)—At no time during today's session on the stock exchange was a definite trend discernible, notwithstanding obvious pressure against the leading industrial issues. Upon casual glance at the final net changes, it appeared that net losses predominated, yet it is a fact that the railroad stocks as a group not only advanced more than a point on the average but actually achieved the highest price level of the new year.

The result of course was extreme irregularity and considerable confusion over interpreting the significance of the day's fluctuations. Volume gave little assistance in this respect since it expanded only slightly above previous dull markets. If anything, developments of the day were of unfavorable nature. Some cheer might be obtained from the performance of the bond market, which witnessed new high prices for various highest-grade issues, indicating some return of investment confidence.

The most unpleasant development of the day was the revised estimate of the Steel corporation's earnings for the final quarter of 1930, which were placed at no better than 40 cents a share. Previous estimates had run as high as $1 for that period.

The prospect of the premier industrial organization having failed by over 75 per cent to cover its dividend requirements was hardly pleasing even to a market which is gradually hardening itself to disappointment in income statements.

Then, too, the weekly steel trade review failed to provide comfort in its report of less than seasonal demand for the industry's products. These factors proved too adverse not to influence the market at least somewhat, and most of the active and leading industrial shares were placed under pressure. The bulls were inclined, however, to claim some cheer from the fact that the recession was only of moderate extent.

Extension of the decline, which among the industrials averaged little over a point, was probably halted by renewed gyrations in Auburn motors. Whether this stock is responding almost exclusively to its own technical position, which some assert approaches a near-corner, or whether it is being utilized for general market influence is difficult to ascertain.

But the fact remains that this stock has frequently of late been called upon for spectacular upturn at periods when the general list was inclined to sluggishness.

The latest estimate of the 1930 earnings of Kodak indicates better than $9 a share, according to Rochester advices. There has been some replacement of stock sold at materially higher prices, not so much on expectation of an early turn in conditions affecting the company but rather encouraged by new developments. It is said that the company's new fast film is four times faster than the films now in use and some other new development is said to be pending.

Hudson Motors sold off, its action indicating nervousness over the current dividend of $3. The stock obviously is selling at a price which discounts a lower dividend, but it is likely that long-pull buying will develop on setbacks from current levels, in view of the company's competent management and its past record.

Apropos recent rumors of price-cutting by leading can makers, and reports of heavy carry-over by canners, following telegram to this column, from President Barthold, of California Packing corporation, is interesting.

"Canners find it necessary to carry large stocks due to a change of buying methods. It is too early to estimate Can, Case, etc., requirements until crops are set; probably March or April. Most canned foods now are on a low selling basis and I do not anticipate any lower prices. Should lighter crops prevail than last year, it may be necessary to advance prices."

DRY GOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—Cotton goods were quiet today, more business is developing in fine cottons and rayon goods, for converting. Rayon producers reported a steadily increasing demand from knitters and weavers. Silk was sharply higher at Yokohama but prices here did not follow. Silk goods were selling more freely to the cutting trades. Business on coatings and men's spring wear was better although lots taken are small.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 21. (AP)—Free selling developed on rallies in grains today, and advances failed to hold well. The selling was associated with stock market fickleness that largely counter-balanced price effects of abnormal rains in Argentina and of wheat crop uncertainties both in this country and India. Rains in southern Argentina were reported almost three times normal.

Wheat closed irregular, at ¼ cent decline to ½@⅝c advance, corn unchanged to ⅝c up, oats unchanged to ¼@⅜c higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Late setbacks in securities had a noticeable bearish influence on cereals, as grain traders had been taking their cue largely from earlier upturns of stocks. At times, a notable strengthening factor as to wheat was announcement that for the last six weeks nine inches of rain had fallen in southern Argentina, compared with a normal of 3.6 inches. And that delay to Argentine wheat shipments was threatened.

Provisions averaged higher with cereals despite a late downturn in hog values.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Jan. 21. (AP)—Trade was dull on the cash grain market today with little demand for any variety. Continued good weather has effectually stopped the need for feed grains temporarily. PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Jan. 21. (US)—While in the present dull trade little attention is being paid to reports, advices from the Southwest are growing more positive in their assertion that lack of moisture in sections of the winter wheat belt is becoming of a serious nature.

A better shipping demand for corn the past two days, combined with light arrivals, has resulted in a firmer tone in the spot trading.

Tightening up of the cash situation in corn has not as yet transferred its boosting effects on prices to the futures market, where sentiment continues predominantly bearish.

Country offerings of corn continue very light, and most of the moderate daily arrivals continue to come from other terminals. Shipping sales of 100,000 bushels are the largest we have had in a single day for some time.

EAST TEXAS TO HAVE OUTLETS

Pipe Line Companies to Build Carriers

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 21.—Several outlets for the oil to be produced in the new East Texas field are to be provided at once.

The Humble Pipe Line company, ally of the Humble Oil and Refining company, which has bought out Ed Bateman, who has found the largest well so far, is now surveying for its artery.

Freeman W. Burford of Tulsa, president of the Burford Oil company of Tulsa, has organized the Rusk County Pipe Line company and is now on the job assisting in the construction of that line from the Joinerville pool to the tracks of the International and Great Northern railway, a Missouri Pacific subsidiary.

C. F. Kulp is general manager with headquarters at Tyler for the Rusk County Pipe Line company, and it has contracted to buy 1,000,000 barrels of oil from the Deep Rock Oil company and other new wells there for a reported price of 50 cents a barrel. The oil can be moved by tank cars to various refineries in Texas, Louisiana or to gulf coast ports for tanker movement.

Reports that a refinery would be built by the Burford interests is denied, although they have been importuned by Tyler business men to build such a plant.

The Humble line will go from the Bateman leases to the 21-acre Owings farm, where a pump station and storage plant will be built, and thence to Marshall. It will be an extension of the Boggy Creek line.

The Associated Press reports two other pipelines entering the area. The Petroleum Marketing corporation has been formed. The H. L. Hunt company and the Inland Waterways company have also been formed to build pipe lines into the Henderson district.

Dr. Brinkley Has Sold Noted Radio Station

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (UP)—Radio station KFKB, owned by Dr. J. R. Brinkley, Milford, Kan., has been sold conditionally to the Kansas Farmers and Bankers Insurance company.

The sale was negotiated with the provision that the Federal Radio commission must first approve transfer of Brinkley's license to the insurance company.

The radio commission denied Brinkley a renewal of license recently, charging he violated radio laws by broadcasting a "medical question box," which was alleged to include discussions of goat glands and other "objectionable" subjects.

COTTON VISTA CALLED TRAGIC

Shippers' Report Assails Federal Activity

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21. (AP)—The economics committee of the American Cotton Shippers association, concluding three days of executive sessions here, today described the outlook for American cotton as "tragic" and directed blame at "the agricultural marketing experiment of the government."

In a statement issued at the end of the conference, J. W. Garrow, chairman of the committee, said:

"Not more than 160,000 producers out of more than 2,000,000 who raise only about 15 per cent of the American cotton crop, are functioning through the federal marketing experiment. Nevertheless, the unbalancing effect on the market for American cotton by the government's experiment, has profoundly, acutely, affected the outlets and interfered with the normal flow of cotton from the farms into consumer's hands. The result is not merely a gloomy outlook, but a tragic outlook for American grown cotton."

Statistics Cited

The statement cited statistics showing a decline in American cotton consumption, and said the meeting here had been held "in the hope of devising ways and means by which the dormant trade-buying power can be revitalized and made to function again."

"The difficulties will be greatly reduced if the federal government retires from all participation in and control of cotton merchandising machinery," one of the conclusions of the statement said.

The statement referred to "the general trade fear of the strange powers over business conferred by the agriculture marketing act," and said:

"The committee finds that American cotton has actually become unpopular among the overseas trade. Some years ago, overseas merchants and consumers were compelled to accept United States government standards. Then an arbitration system which America's customers did not like was put into effect. Now the United States agricultural marketing act attempts to hold values above a competitive level have upset trade calculations generally.

Buyers Afraid

"Meanwhile, American merchants fearing a repetition of the government's manipulation of the hedge market, and American spinners, still smarting under their losses resulting from the attempted stabilization of raw cotton, but not of the products of raw cotton, fear to purchase raw cotton in a normal way.

"For these reasons, and others, American producers are rapidly losing their normal market outlets."

The Lovely Liar

the girls work. What kind of work? Cleaning their rooms, Poppy supposed. This room was spotless. . .

And these clothes. She was glad there was no mirror to permit her to see herself. She'd probably have heart failure.

She looked at the commode, which was covered with a plain white towel. On the towel a brush and comb lay, nothing else. Then she noticed another door and walked over to investigate. It was a closet, and held only two more aprons such as she was now wearing.

Perhaps she was to have the room alone, even if it did have two cots. There were no visible signs of other occupancy. The brush and comb, and aprons might be for her. What about the drawers in the commode? She opened two of them and found in the upper one a few pieces of carefully folded underwear. Nothing else.

Poppy was sitting on the cot again when Miss Rippe returned, empty-handed.

"Am I to be alone here?" the girl asked.

"No, Ellen Webb has the room, too. She's been here about six months now. We always have two girls to a room."

"Not in this room! Only a brush and comb, a few pieces of underwear and two aprons! How could one live like this?"

The Lecture

"I'm putting you on kitchen duty to begin with," Miss Rippe continued. "We usually start the girls that way. Everything here is done by the girls. Meals, washing, sewing, ironing, cleaning. It's a wonderful institution."

Poppy smiled bitterly. A wonderful institution. The bars, the fence, the uniforms. . .

Miss Rippe, so efficient in her plain black dress. Sateen, it was, and shiny at the back. A knot of iron gray hair twisted at the nape of her neck. Yellowish-gray skin, yellowish-gray lips.

"We try to train our girls here. Make them forget their mistakes. Send them out into the world again knowing how to make a decent living, feeling a responsibility for society. The rules are simple. The girls get up at six, do their tasks in their rooms, in the halls, in the kitchen. At nine they go to the schoolrooms for the remainder of the morning. Lunch at twelve. There is work again in the afternoon. Dinner is at five-thirty, a recreation hour from seven until eight. Bed at eight. It's very easy when you get used to it.

"All the girls have comfortable, clean rooms much like this one. Once a month each girl can have a visitor, preferably one of the family. But only one visitor a month. They may write one letter a week. This letter is, of course, read by me." Miss Rippe spoke firmly. Poppy felt as if she were listening to a lecture.

"How many girls are here?"

"You make sixty-four. That is capacity. Have you any preference as to what profession you'd like to take up? We ask all the girls when they enter."

"Do you have stenography?"

"Yes. You'd like to take that up?"

"Yes."

"All right, you may start in the morning. The home has five regular teachers. If you'll come with me now, I'll explain your duties in the kitchen."

And Poppy followed her out into the hall wearily.

A year in this place. She couldn't stand it, when she had done nothing to deserve it. That was all. She couldn't stand it. . . .

There must be some way—to get away—

STATE: Joe Cook in "Rain or Shine" with Louise Fazenda and William Collier Jr. Short subjects and sound news.

MAJESTIC: "The Part-Time Wife," with Edmund Lowe and Leila Hyams. Short subjects and sound news.

STRAND: Richard Barthelmess, Mary Astor and Robert Edeson in "The Lash." Cartoon, Charlie Chase comedy and sound news.

GEM: Gary Cooper, Betty Compson, Kay Johnson and Harry Green in "The Spoilers." Comedy.

Edmund Lowe and Leila Hyams and Tommy Clifford (with his nobly-proportioned Shepper-Newfounder) are a great combination in "Part-Time Wife" but there are moments which border on the silly rather than the amusing.

Perhaps the explanation may be found in the fact that Leo McCarey the director, is the same one who directs Laurel and Hardy comedies. There is a Laurel and Hardy touch now and then—funny in some moods to some people but not as artistically humorous as the more restrained type of acting which both Lowe and Miss Hyams can do so well.

Tommy Clifford is an adorable cupid of a caddy. His Irish spunk in telling Edmund Lowe to get another caddy is one of the real moments in the play. Tommy is the same little Irishman who was so delightful in "Song O' My Heart."

Ken Maynard, with his horse, Tarzan, and his dog, "Skippy," and incidentally, Mrs. Maynard, will arrive in Wichita Falls at noon Sunday for his schedule of three shows a day at the Majestic for three days. All the children already know all about it.

Maynard announces that he does not smoke, swear or drink—in any of his pictures. "I realize that the majority of western film patrons are children," says the famous cowboy actor. "I want to set good examples for youth."

He will sing cowboy songs and putting Tarzan and Skippy through their act at the Majestic while one of his pictures, "Sons of the Saddle" will be shown at the State theater.

Financing of Auto Repairs Increases

Material stimulation of business and a marked tendency on the part of the general public toward more careful economy than in the past are seen by business analysts in the extension of automobile financing to the repair and rebuilding of cars.

Information released by the National Association of Finance Companies indicates that a great many finance concerns throughout the country already have perfected departments in which funds are made available to persons who wish to recondition their automobiles rather than buy new ones. It is thought to have occasioned a noticeable increase in garage business generally, and to have kept more automobiles in good road condition.

Questioned as to the condition in this section of the country, Solon R. Featherston, general manager of the R-F Finance corporation, stated that the local company has been carrying on such a department for several months, and that its activities have reached to a large portion of West Texas. More than half of such paper now being handled, he said, comes from responsible garages who have done work for acceptable owners of automobiles. Such business now is in excess of that on purchase of new automobiles, it was said.

'FLYING HIGH' SPEEDY SHOW

Musical Theme Carried Out In Revue Style

"Flying High," the musical comedy which George White is bringing to Wichita Falls for one performance only at the Memorial auditorium on Jan. 28, which is Wednesday evening, is a scenic experiment for this type entertainment. In two acts and 14 scenes, it has the continuity of a musical comedy book, but the color, scenic change and speed of a revue.

"My first adventure along this line," declares Mr. White, "was in 'Manhattan Mary' which worked out so well that I decided to go a step further with 'Flying High.' In my estimation, musical comedies have been several steps behind our present day revues. That they have not kept pace with the times either from a scenic or costume standpoint is regrettable, but that they have failed to live up to the fast pace of the modern revue is almost deadly.

"'Flying High,' therefore, represents what I think is a new standard in musical comedies, and will result in more glorious and peppier musical comedies for the future than have obtained in the past."

Robert Davis accepted his sentence to two years' imprisonment.

Value of Vocational Education Told By Rosamond in Luncheon Talk

Fundamental differences between vocational education and the plan now predominant in preparatory schools were pointed out to members of the Optimist club Wednesday noon by William S. Rosamond, director of vocational education in this city's public schools.

Stating that 56 per cent of the junior high and senior high population of Wichita Falls is out of school, Mr. Rosamond declared that their preparatory work had been designed to fit them for college, although they had never intended going to college. They are in need today, he said, because those few years of training were not used to prepare them for work of some kind.

Boys and girls will be grouped into three classes in the future, Mr. Rosamond said, those who will quit in junior high, those who will quit during senior high, and those who will continue into college. The present education system, he stated, is designed for the third group only. Efforts will be made to guide members of the first two groups into work in which they belong.

B. D. Sartin, Solon R. Featherston and J. B. Allred were appointed as a committee to confer with Mr. Rosamond and determine what the Optimist club can do in furthering vocational guidance here.

Speaking in connection with "Thrift Week," J. C. Mytinger emphasized the value of life insurance, which he said is "more practical and far-reaching in its benefits than anything else."

Short talks were made by Rev. Alvin F. White of Blackwell, Okla., formerly chaplain of the Optimist club, and B. D. Sartin, who expressed regret at the resignation of Frank B. Creighton, scout executive.

Entertainment at Wednesday's luncheon was furnished by Misses Charlotte Maer and Joyce Ford in a skit which included singing, reading and dancing. They were accompanied by Mrs. Lucille Brooks Huff.

Richard Batson, J. R. Tucker, Jack Knight, and Carvell Benson, members of the Junior Optimist club who graduated from Reagan Junior high at mid-term, were guests of honor, and were presented with automatic pencils by Max Junker, president. Carvell Benson responded for the group.

Wednesday's program was in charge of Don McCune.
