Highly Qualified Personnel On Staff At Community Clinic

Working through South Plains Health Provider Organization established in Olton Community Clinic, the area now has available three days each week, (Monday, Wednesday and Friday), Berta C. Lutherer, M.D.

Having begun her practice in the Clinic November, Dr. Lutherer comes to the city with excellent medical qualifications, for service in this capacity.

During alternate days of the week, when she is not in Community Clinic, the doctor serves as teacher in the department of Surgery (emergency medicine) at Texas Tech University School of Medicine. She is also Medical Consultant for Texas Rehabilitation Commission for District 19, and teaching assistant in the department of Internal Medicine at TTUSM.

Dr. Lutherer has been offered highly rated research positions, but prefers working with people in actual practice of medicine.

A political refugee from Cuba, the doctor came to the United States in 1962. In Cuba she was involved in the study of chemical engineering.

She has since been involved in research and in the study of physiology, pharmacology and ophtalmology in the University of Florida at Gainesville, Fla.; in the University of Pennsylvania, at Scheii Institute and Parkland Hospital of Ophtalmology; Family Practice at Texas Tech University School of Medicine; Hendric Memorial Hospital, Abilene; Medical Center Hospital, Odessa; Permian General Hospital, Andrews; and Stonewall Memorial Hospital, Aspermont.

Married, the doctor is wife of Loranz Otto Lutherer, M.D., PhD. a teacher at the Medical school at Tech. A native of Ohio, he has specialized in research, endocrinology and cardiovascular studies at Chagrin Falls, Ohio; Haverford College, Pa.; University of Iowa and Natick Army Institute, Boston.

If for any reason Dr. Lutherer can not be present in the city, during her appointed days her husband will fill the vacancy left by her absence.

During her days in Olton Clinic, 9 a.m. until 4 p.m., Dr. Lutherer has with her Nurse Practioner Kathy Allen.

As a Nurse Practitioner Ms. Allen sees patients. She is well trained through training as a Registered Nurse and graduate of Lubbock Methodist Hospital Nursing School and further, graduate of Nurse Practitioner School University of Texas at San Antonio.

In this capacity the Nurse Practitioner interviews patients, diagnoses illnesses and prescribes treatment.

With the Doctor also is a labratory technician, Dovie Hart.

Dr. Lutherer states that the clinic is fairly well equipped although certain items are needed.

The Clinic is able to offer almost all necessary tests, including x-rays, EKG tests, and blood sugar tests. Other laboratory tests are taken to Plainview to a lab there, and are available on the following list.

Immunizations are offered and allergy injections are given. The Clinic offers to keep in contact with doctors specializing in allergies and administer prescribed medication.

Since the city has no hospital facilities, the clinic staff makes referrals to nearby hospitals for any special needs.

Family Planning Program is also available at the Clinic. This includes testing for VD, pap smears, etc.

The Clinic is open five days each week and is staffed by Bonnie Watson, L.V.N., Virginia Perez, nurses aid, and Elma Salas, billing clerk. The telephone listing is 285-2916.

Bonnie Watson, L.V.N. received her training in Central Plains General Hospital, Plainview.

During the days in which the doctor and nurse practitioner are present, she admits patients, reads vital signs and helps with x-rays.

When the doctor is not available, she is limited to counseling clinic patients, administering immunizations, reading blood pressure and making referrals of more serious cases to other doctors or hospitals. She is also in charge of the vast amount of paper work in connection with Medicare and Medicaid.

She also carries out the feature of family planning and birth control, the only part of the clinic's service fully funded by the Government.

All employees of Olton Community Clinic are salaried by South Plains Health Provider Organization. However, the Olton clinic is not allowed to charge on a sliding scale. The Department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW) does not consider this necessary in Olton since such clinics are provided in nearby Plainview and Littlefield.

The Olton Clinic is a full pay establishment, but its charges are slightly lower than most clinics.

Olton citizens welcome the presence of a doctor and a Nurse Practioner in the Clinic three days each week, and hold the hope that the community may soon have a self-supportive clinic, with professional services five full days each week.

This can come about only when the Clinic receives wider usage and greater medical patronage.

LaGuan Riney Wins Contest With 'Promote Olton' Idea

LaGuan Riney is the winner of a recent contest sponsored by the Olton Chamber of Commerce. She receives $50 for submitting the best idea for "Ways to Promote Olton."

Mrs. Riney suggests that Olton merchants honor any ad from a newspaper in a surrounding town if the local business has the identical item for sale. She notes the necessity for a limited time for the "special".

Honorable mention as first runner-up went to Travis Hart who suggested Olton be advertised. His idea was that a contest be held to solicit the best design to represent Olton in a shoulder patch. Local groups such as the Lions Club, athletic teams, employee groups and others could wear these patches on jackets and thus advertise Olton on out of town trips.

Mrs. Gwen Turner received honorable mention second runner-up. She presented a suggestion that Olton Senior Citizens sponsor a Senior Citizens Fair, probably near the Christmas season. This would give older residents an opportunity to display their handiwork and hobbies. The items could be sold and give the senior citizens some additional income.

Judges for the contest, Mrs. Owen Norfleet and Garland DePrang, reported that judging was difficult because of the broad area to be considered.

'Outstanding' People

Nominate Someone

Oltonites are invited to nominate the persons they'd like to see named Man of the Year, Woman of the Year and Farmer of the Year.

Monday, Jan. 7 is the deadline for making nominations. Persons are asked to write the reasons why they believe their nominee is deserving of the honor. Letters should be enclosed in sealed envelopes and labeled for the proper category ("Man of the Year," etc).

Prerequisites for nomination are: a nominee MUST be a resident of the Olton area; MUST be active in community life and affairs of Olton other than church, business or profession; MUST have exhibited unselfish service to others and service of a continuing nature to the community; MUST be of good moral character.

In addition to these standards, a nominee for Farmer of the Year MUST productively implement progressive farming practices and MUST be active in community affairs.

Tribute will be paid to the trio at the annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet Monday, Feb. 18 in the school cafeteria. In addition, two students will also receive acclaim as the Outstanding Girl and Outstanding Boy of OHS. Their selections are made by faculty vote.

Program of the evening will feature home town talent - a sequel to last year's popularly accepted event.

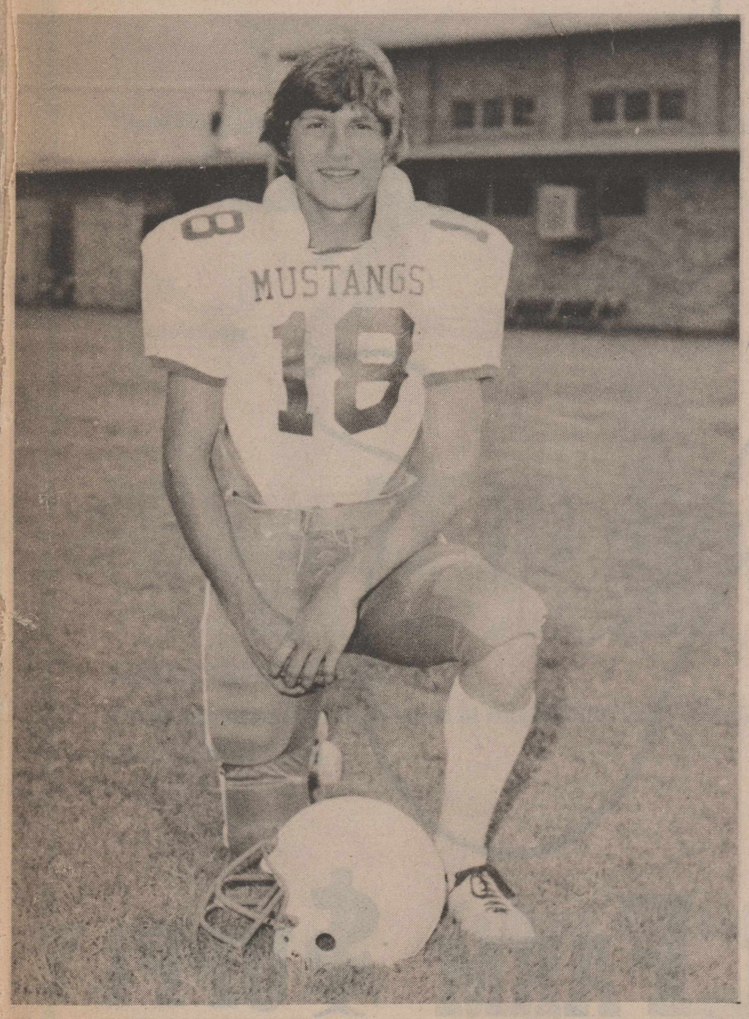

New Chamber officers and directions will be recognized.

Singers Needed

Volunteers are needed to organize a community choir to perform patriotic selections at the annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet, Monday, Feb. 18.

Richard Hayden, director, has called an organizational meeting Wednesday, Jan. 9 at 6 p.m. Rehearsals will begin at a later date.

Anyone who enjoys singing and would like to be a part of this group is invited to attend.

ALL SOUTH PLAINS HONORS went to Vance Stroebel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Stroebel. The Mustang standout was named as defensive back to the elite squad chosen annually by the Lubbock Avalanche Journal. The OHS Senior earlier had been unanimously named All-District Safety.

Others contributing to the fund which benefits Olton Cemetery Association were Mrs. Helen Bohner, Mrs. Rena Dennis, Mrs. Barbara Irvin Maser and Mr. and Mrs. W.M. Smith Sr.

Monies contributed in lieu of mailing season greetings to local friends totaled $1892.50, according to Olton Cemetery Association treasurer, Mrs. Earl McClain.

Contributions may be left at Olton State Bank with Mrs. McClain.

Rites Pending For Mrs. Green

Services were pending with Parsons Funeral Home at presstime for Mrs. Ella Green.

A former resident of Olton, Mrs. Green had been living in Irving.

'History' Book Nearly Ready

Persons who have purchased "Olton Area History" have only a short while longer to await the arrival of the keepsake books.

The completed books had been promised "by the end of the year" by the Dallas based printing company but there was insufficient time to correct errors and make the needed changes. An announcement will be made of the expected arrival as soon as that information is received.

Only 75 "extra" copies of the book were ordered from the printer and some of that number have already been sold. When that supply is sold, there will be no additional copies available for purchase. Persons who want copies and have not yet made their purchase should do so immediately.

EDITORIAL

A new year, a new decade, and a chance to make a fresh start. Heaven knows we need it. But let's not delude ourselves into believing we can escape our problems by making a clean break with the past; that we can, in the words of America's famous poet, Robert Frost, ". . . get away from earth awhile And then come back to it and begin over . . ."

We cannot. What's done is done. Now we must live with the legacy of our past, and of our mistakes, of which we have made quite a few. Those mistakes will weigh heavily upon us during the 1980's -- a decade that already promises to be difficult, if not dangerous.

We should be confronting the new challenges with a dynamic economy; instead, we risk falling into the same trap of great athletes who live off yesterday's glories, laugh at tomorrow, refuse to train and carouse into the wee hours each morning. When the moment of truth arrives, the old heros can no longer deliver. They have grown too flabby to compete, perhaps too satisfied to even care.

America need not go that route, but the risk is real is we continue abusing our economy as we have. Actually, abuse is probably too mild a description for policies that have led to: A quadrupling of the federal budget since 1962 . . . a doubling of the national debt in just the past eight years . . . a budget that involves spending more than $1 million a minute in 1980 . . . regulations that have multiplied out of control . . . a trade balance that has been in the red for 42 straight months . . . a tax system that discourages incentives, personal savings, risk-taking and investment, while encouraging idleness, consumption and mediocrity, and that combines with inflation to provide windfall revenues to the governments by automatically pushing more and more Americans into steeper tax brackets . . . and, of course, a double-digit rate of inflation that is destroying the value of our currency and lowering our standard of living.

Ironically, these policies are always promoted under the guise of "helping" people of modest means and of extending their "rights." But look what's happened to our rights in terms of individual freedom. In 1980, the average American will have to work the equivalent of nearly five months just to pay his taxes. The average person's share of the national debt and other obligations already run up by the federal government has now reached $46,000.

There is one hopeful sign emerging from this mess: The growing consensus that fog-bound thinking in Washington, D.C., is, in fact, the principal source of our economic problems. Unfortunately, many politicians know what they are doing is wrong, but they cannot help themselves. They suffer from Potomac Fever, from an addiction to the power that comes from being able to solicit votes by spending other peoples money.

That is why the great economic challenge of the 1980's -- our ability to restore real economic growth and make headway against the growing problems of inflation, recession, taxation, regulation and energy shortages -- will ultimately be determined by the willingness of individual Americans to engage in decisive political action. The election of 1980 offers an ideal time to begin, and there are a number of things you can do.

You can learn about the issues. Read accounts in your local newspaper and in national magazines. Check with groups you may belong to for information. Then take a position and communicate it to your elected representatives. Should you find your representatives favor more government and higher taxes, be sure to tell them you will vote against them, and might even work against them in future elections.

Speak out for your beliefs to others as well. Let your friends, neighbors, local media and elected representatives at all levels know that we all have a common stake in slowing the growth of government. Your voice will be even stronger if you join a sympathetic group active in politics. It could be a trade or industry group, a local chamber, a Political Action Committee, the political party of your choice, or a particular candidate you admire.

Ultimately, of course you could become a candidate yourself. Whatever you do, and however you do it, why not make up your mind that this year, you will take a stand and make a difference? Why not ensure that you never have to hear your children ask:

"Why didn't you tell us?", or even worse . . .

"Why didn't you care?"

New Tax Changes Benefit Older Taxpaying Americans

New tax law changes mean good news for older Americans. One of the concerns of everyone is whether or not he or she is required to file a return. Single people 65 and over do not have to file a tax return unless their gross income for 1979, excluding Social Security and Railroad Retirement payments and public assistance, was $4,300 or more. That figure goes up to $6,400 for a couple with one spouse 65 and over and $7,400 for a couple with both spouses 65 and over. Of course, even if you are not required to file, if you had tax withheld, you should file to get any refund you may have coming.

In addition to the higher filing requirement, the "Tax Credit for the Elderly" provides another tax benefit for some older taxpayers with some taxable income and a tax liability. There are limitations, however; persons who receive the maximum Social Security payments, for example, would not be eligible.

A further benefit is the once-in-a-lifetime $100,000 exclusion of the gain on the sale of a personal residence. Taxpayers who are at least 55 before they sell their residence which they owned and lived in at least 3 of the 5 years prior to the sale can exclude $100,000 of the gain realized.

There are several free publications available which detail tax benefits for older Americans. Use the order form in your tax package, or contact IRS and ask for Publication 523, "Tax Information on Selling or Buying Your Home," Publication 524, "Credit for the Elderly, "Publication 554, "Tax Benefits for Older Americans" and Publication 575, "Pension and Annuity Income."

TODAY'S LOGIC

By James W. Phelps

Freedom Isle Part I

Let your imagination soar and let's build an island of freedom.

What would you want on your island?

A minimum of government regulating your life?

Little or no taxation?

Money that was backed by gold and/or silver?

No pollution?

An abundance of electrical energy provided by the ocean tides or the sun?

This series of columns is a blueprint for such an island.

I have let my imagination soar. I ask you to join me on a journey into the future.

And, if you enjoy this trip, pick one of my projects and research it. Send me your research including all the ideas you can come up with.

Together we may be able to build an Island of Freedom.

Where Shall We Build?

Let us pick a spot in the ocean where the temperature is ideal.

Not too close to Cuba or other unfriendly people.

Preferably at least 400 miles from any other land. That way we can claim 200 miles of ocean in all directions without interfering with any other nation's claim to their 200 miles.

We need a spot where the ocean is not too deep.

Perhaps we could dredge enough sand from the bottom so that we could build our own island.

Or perhaps we could sink concrete piers to the bottom of the ocean to support concrete slabs on which we could build an island.

Or perhaps we could build a floating city and simply anchor it in place.

Industry

What kinds of industries would support our people?

Fishing is one that comes first to mind.

We would have exclusive fishing rights in our coastal waters for a 200 mile radius.

As a floating city we could catch the fish that swam under our city.

Mining the ocean is another great possibility. Vast deposits of minerals are there for the taking.

Faces

In the memory of many people, children grew up in caring neighborhoods. The sense of community ran strong. Children churned ice cream on the back porch next door and played safely under the corner street light watched by the friendly eyes of neighbors talking quietly of a summer's night. That children "belonged" to a particular family was recognized but this did not diminish a shared responsibility for their safety, their well being, or even for their proper conduct. Neighbors reinforced a parent's insistence that their child sit up straight, not talk with their mouth full, say "Yes, Sir", and "Yes, Ma'am", and always tell the truth.

For many communities this is now gone. The sense of community has been worn thin by automobiles, airplanes, television sets, residential mobility, packaged food, working mothers in one-parent homes and a cancerous committment to self gratification as the principal purpose of life.

The traditional responsibilities of the family are quickly being taken over by resources external to the family unit. Nursing homes are built to care for our elderly and laws are passed discouraging their care by their own families. Parents are encouraged to allow day care centers to care for young children without exploring other more nurturing possibilties such as neighborhood cooperatives. Mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed persons are too often thought of as "better off" in an institution. Detention centers and correctional institutions for delinquent youth are built to house kids who without family support may find the institution a way of life. Laws are being proposed that would further weaken the family and given the responsibility for child rearing to legislative mandate.

Is this the case in our own community? We still appear to be small enough to have a sense of community. We appear to be concerned about our neighbors. We easily know many people who live here

MR. & MRS. MICHAEL MORGAN

Miss Dennis, Mr. Morgan Wed In Holiday Ceremony

In an intimate holiday ceremony, Dec. 22, in the home of her great-aunt, Mrs. A.D. Melton, Miss Tina Len Dennis became the bride of Michael Don Morgan. Vows of the double ring ceremony were directed by the Rev. Olin Cosby, pastor of First United Methodist Church, and the Rev. Tim Mobe.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Dennis of Lubbock, former residents of this city. Morgan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Morgan of Cumby.

Christmas decor throughout the home featured pink and green with touches of burgundy.

A pink lighted and trimmed Christmas tree served as background for the exchange of wedding vows.

Traditional nuptial selections were presented by Mrs. Enid Givens at the organ.

Clad in burgundy tuxedo with white shirt, the groom was accompanied by Kerry Miller of Dallas. Serving as best man he wore burgundy tuxedo with pink shirt.

Entering through the foyer, the groom carried burgundy rose buds which he presented to Mrs. Melton, to the bride's mother, his own mother, and to the bride's grandmother and to his own grandmother, before taking his position before the Christmas tree.

The bride, on the arm of her father, descended the stairs and joined the wedding party near the tree. She wore a white organza and Chantilly lace gown by Mori Lee. The moulded bodice of Chantilly lace featured a Queen Anne neckline and was sprinkled with seed pearls. The Chantilly lace Bishop sleeves were gathered to a wide lace cuff. The Empire waistline fell to a natural waistline in the back with a self fabric bow in center back.

The three tiered skirt swept to a chapel length train. Each tier was edged with a wide row of Chantilly lace. Her finger-tip veil of white net, also edged in matching Chantilly lace, fell from a Juliet capulet re-embroidered with seed pearls.

For 'something old' the bride wore a gold wedding band having belonged to her maternal grandmother Hatley. 'Borrowed' was her mother's White Bible, which she had carried at her own wedding. 'New' was her attire, and she wore the traditional 'blue' garter.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Stacy Adams of Lubbock. She was gowned in pink quina knit with old fashioned lace trim. Guests were seated by Glen Fowler of Levelland.

Following the ceremony, the young couple was honored with a reception held in the home. The bride's table, was laid with a white cloth of net and lace with pink underlay. The table's edge was outlined with intricate loops of seed pearls attached to the full gathered ruffle which fell to floor length.

Centering the table, lay the bride's bouquet, a cascade arrangement of pink roses and white carnations tied with satin streamers tied in love knots.

The traditional tiered wedding cake was topped with miniature white doves and wedding bells. Frosted in white the cake was touched with pink roses. Burgundy reception punch was cooled with dolphins of ice and served from a silver bowl. Hot spiced cider and coffee were served from a silver service. Crystal and silver completed the appointments. Presiding at the table were Judy Knox, Stacey Huguley and Kim Fowler.

Mothers of both the bride and the groom wore corsages of pink and white carnations. Each of the grandmothers and Mrs. Melton wore corsages of white orchids.

For travel on a short wedding trip the bride and groom wore matching burgundy velvet jackets. The bride completed her attire with burgundy pants and mauve blouse. She added an orchid corsage.

Formerly enrolled in Olton schools, the bride has been attending Lubbock-Cooper High School and plans to complete her secondary schooling in her new home. Morgan is a graduate of Cumby High School. The newlyweds will make their home in Cumby.

Washington Trip Offered In Youth Speech Contest

An all expense paid trip to Washington, D.C. will be awarded to two young people from this area by Swisher Electric Cooperative according to Lyle Robinson, manager of the cooperative.

Robinson said winners of a speech contest will be awarded the 12-day trip which begins June 6. All high school youth that will be 16 before June and not 18 before September are eligible to enter the contest.

Contest entrants will be required to give a 5-8 minute talk on the theme "Why a rural electric cooperative?" Resource materials that may be helpful to contestants are available from the high school and the cooperative office in Tulia, according to Mike Ferguson who is in charge of the contest.

The talks are judged on the basis of knowledge of subject, speaking ability, poise, and appearance. Speeches must be submitted in writing prior to the contest. Deadline for submitting speech papers and entry forms is Thursday, February 7.

A preliminary judging of the speech contestants will be held Saturday, February 16 where 10 finalists will be selected. The final contest will be February 21.

This is the fifteenth year that Swisher Electric Cooperative has sponsored this contest. Winners last year were Judy Nelson and Keith Davenport. Davenport said one of the many highlights of the trip was the bus trip to and from Washington.

As participants in the Youth Tour, local contest winners will travel with other Texas winners and chaperones by bus to Washington. They will spend 5-6 days in Washington visiting places of historical interest, visiting members of Congress, and getting a first hand view of their government in action.

Approximately 1,000 Youth Tour participants from across the nation will meet during the week for a special program coordinated by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association. The program will feature congressional leaders and high government officials. A visit to the White House and a fun-filled banquet will highlight the day's events.

Mrs. Butler spent Christmas day in the Meriwether home in Plainview.

RECENT VISITOR

Visiting recently in the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Leona Martin, has been Miss Rhonda Martin of Portales. She was returning from Temple where she had visited with Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Robertson and Keith and Kayla Martin.

I thought our Christmas program was a big success this year. I congratulate the lucky people who won the gift certificates and the color T.V.

To all the unlucky ones who missed getting a prize (including me!) better luck next year. Even at that, I feel like I am a winner just getting to watch the kids scramble for the colored balls Santa tossed out of his plane as he flew over Olton. That alone was worth the price of admission!

I especially want to thank the merchants who made it all possible. In case you've forgotten, they are: Country Boy Fertilizer, Farmers Pump Co., Food Commodity Inc., Frontier Savings Association, Givens Texaco, Halls Lumber Co., Olton Auto Supply, Olton Butane, Olton Coop Gin, Olton Farm Supply, Olton Feedyard, P.C.A., Thompson Chevrolet, Thompson Implement, Toro Grain Co., V.A.L.I. Inc., Goen Irrigation, Frito-Lay, Anita's Kountry Kitchen, Bizzell's, Carmen's, Duncan's, Howell's Flowers, Leon's Grocery, Olton Drug, Masso's, Mini Mall, Country Lad, Northside Gift Shop, Olton Enterprise, Olton State Bank, Pott's Agency, White Auto and J.C. Jones Dry Goods.

I would like to give special recognition to Garland DePrang who not only provided the plane and pilot who flew Santa over town but contributed half of the silver dollars given away.

If you really appreciated our Christmas program and would like to see it go on next year, why don't you take a moment to thank those merchants you do business with. I'm sure they would appreciate your thoughtfulness and it could make a difference in how they react when I approach them for a contribution next year.

So far I have received just one nomination for the person of the year awards. Surely, each of you who reads this column must know one person worthy of this award.

Please get busy because we only have a short time to make this decision and we really do want your opinion. If your nomination arrives too late to be considered by this year's committee, I promise to keep it on file for next year's committee.

Our judges have finally reached a conclusion in our contest for ideas to promote Olton. I am sorry this took so long, but a combination of events caused the long delay.

I was disappointed that there were not more entries as I am sure many of you have good ideas that would benefit our town. Please let me know any time you think or hear of a worthwhile idea.

Corn Growers Vote Feb. 27

Texas corn growers in seven Plains counties will have the opportunity to vote February 27 on ½-cent-per-bushel assessments to be used for improving research, promotion, education, and marketing of their product.

Counties included in the referendum are Bailey, Castro, Deaf Smith, Hale, Lamb, Parmer and Swisher, according to Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown. Under the Commodity Referendum Law, the Texas Department of Agriculture certifies the referendum and subsequent election of board members.

The Department also works with the organization on various projects.

Brown stated that if approved by producers, the assessments will be collected at the first point of sale. A six-person commodity producers board will administer proceeds of the assessments.

The county courthouse will serve as the voting place. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. Absentee ballots may be obtained from the county agent or the Texas Corn Growers Association (105 East Bedford, Dimmitt, Texas 79027). Absentee ballots must be mailed in the self-addressed envelope before midnight February 24.

Any person in the seven counties engaged in the business of producing corn for commercial purposes is eligible to vote, including owners of farms and their tenants and sharecroppers, if such persons would be required to pay the proposed assessment.

Consider Tree Characteristics In Home Landscaping

When selecting trees for the home landscape this fall and winter, a whole host of characteristics must be considered.

Among tree characteristics that affect their desirability are these:

--Longevity: Long-lived trees are much more desirable than short-lived ones. Among long-lived trees are honeylocust, pecan, oaks, red maple, Sabinal maple, cedar elm and Southern magnolia.

--Resistance to breakage: Trees with strong wood that are most resistant to breakage include crabapple, beech, blackgum, pecan, oaks, honeylocust and Sabinal maple.

--Freedom from insect and disease problems: Trees with little disease or insect problems include ailanthus, coffeetree, ginkgo, maples, oaks and tallow.

--Autumn color: Those with outstanding fall color include blackgum, sweetgum, Texas oak, sumac, tallow, Sabinal maple and Chinese pistachio.

--Attractive or fragrant flowers or fruit: Trees with an outstanding display of flowers or fruit include redbud, flowering peach, flowering crab, flowering dogwood, magnolia and crepemyrtle.

--Handsome or unusual bark color or pattern: Among trees with handsome or distinctive bark are cork oak, Japanese crepemyrtle, eucalyptus, sycamore, Texas madrone and Chinese parasoltree.

--Cleanliness: Those that are clean and require little cleaning up include basswood, beech, oaks and Sabinal maple.

--Distinctive form: Trees with distinctive form include willow oak, pines, deodar cedar, American elm, Bolleana poplar, Lombardy poplar, weeping willow and sweetgum.

--Distinctive foliage color: Trees with distinctive leaf color add variety and interest to the landscape and include Sunburst honeylocust, silver poplar, fraser photinia, Texas madrone, Japanese maple, Russian-olive and purpleleaf plum.

--Interesting or unusual leaf shape: Those with unusual leaf shapes include ailanthus, buckeye, honeylocust, Texas oak, sumac, sassafras, coffeetree, Chinese parasoltree, ginkgo, sweetgum, tulip-poplar and loquat.

--Distinctive and handsome bud, twig or branch arrangement, shape or color: During winter months, some trees are attractive due to unusual patterns of buds, twigs or branches, including beech, blackgum, coffeetree, dogwood, sassafras, bur oak, corkscrew willow, ginkgo and Southern magnolia.

--Surficial root system: Trees with root systems near the surface are more subject to damage and cause lawn problems. These include cottonwood, silver poplar, weeping willow and tallow.

--Thorniness: Thorny trees are a safety hazard and include Russian-olive, huisache, black locust, mesquite, hawthorn, honeylocust, osage-orange and trifoliate orange.

Incompatible root system: Some trees have roots that enter and clog water pipes, drain pipes and waste pipes. These include red maple, silver maple, pecan, sycamore, cottonwoods, poplars and willows.

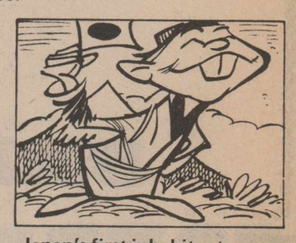

--Suckering root system: Some trees send up sprouts from roots, which is undesirable. These include flowering crab, Lombardy poplar, tallow, jujube, ailanthus, Bolleana poplar, silver poplar, sassafras and persimmon.

--Toxic properties or offensive odors: A few trees have properties toxic to humans or have offensive odors, such as poison sumac and the female ginkgo.

When selecting a tree for landscaping, look at the sum of its many parts -- roots, bark, trunk, branches, twigs, buds, flowers, leaves and fruit. Then decide how the characteristics of each part will add to or detract from the desirability of the tree.
