Mondale: Lead not impossible to overcome

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Catching President Reagan in the final 10 days of the campaign will be tough but not impossible, Walter F. Mondale said today, denying a published report that his own campaign manager had told him Reagan's lead was insurmountable.

Asked about the report in today's Boston Globe, Mondale told reporters outside his hotel in Flint, Mich., "No, no, no, no."

"He said it was tough, and it is tough," Mondale said. But he added, "I think these polls are dead wrong. I think we've got an excellent chance of winning."

As Mondale began a long day of campaigning in the Midwest and West, Reagan was traveling to the suburbs of New York City to woo Jewish voters and wildlife lovers.

In remarks prepared for delivery to New York Jewish leaders, Reagan criticized the Democrats for failing to adopt — as the Republicans did — a resolution at their national convention last summer decrying anti-Semitism.

"In San Francisco this year, the Democratic Party could not find the moral courage or leadership to pass a similar resolution — and forgive me, but I think they owe you an explanation," he said.

The Democratic National Committee did pass such a resolution after the convention.

In Michigan, a feisty Mondale heatedly denied the Boston story about his meeting earlier this week in Milwaukee with campaign manager James Johnson.

Asked if he would admit it if Johnson had indeed told him the election was lost, he said, "I would, you bet." Then he took a step toward the questioner, shook his finger at him and said, "This election is serious, it's not fun and games."

One campaign aide, commenting on condition he not be named, said the campaign's own polls show the Reagan lead in the range of 14 percentage points, and other national polls have been giving basically the same message.

In the face of such information, Mondale urged voters on Thursday to "end this selfishness, this greed, this...caring only for yourself."

Polls' differences reflect more than sampling error

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — After the first presidential debate, Ronald Reagan led Walter Mondale by 25 percentage points in the voters' preferences. Or he was only 9 points ahead. Or his margin was 10 points — or 13 — or 20.

National polls on the presidential race this year have disagreed substantially on just what is happening among the voters, with those differences appearing in sharp relief after the Oct. 7 debate.

In the eight days starting Oct. 12, three national polls put the Reagan-Mondale margin around 10 points, but two said Reagan's edge was 25 points. One took a middling position.

The differences are not just an argument among academicians, even though all give Reagan a majority of the vote at this point. And the usual explanations for the differences don't seem to point to the problem this year, either.

"The entire meaning of this election shifts if you believe one set of numbers versus the other," says Gordon Black, a pollster from Rochester, N.Y., who conducts surveys for USA Today.

Polls by NBC News and by USA Today have portrayed huge margins for Reagan and the Republicans — suggesting, Black says, "one of the truly large landslides in the history of American politics with the potential to reshape the landscape."

But polls by the Gallup Organization, Louis Harris and the partnerships of ABC News with the Washington Post and CBS News with the New York Times are showing smaller Reagan margins, pointing toward a sizable re-election victory by an incumbent but not an historic result that sweeps the winning party into control of government at many levels.

"If you look at all the polls — except two — they showed a trend upwards for Mondale, with some suggestion of a slight deterioration for Reagan," said Jeffrey Alderman of ABC News.

"The four polls are less different than they are purported to be," added Andrew Kohut, president of the Gallup Organization. "I don't think they are enormous differences."

Judge indicts seven in 1981 assassination attempt on pope

ROME (AP) — A judge today indicted three Bulgarians and four Turks on charges of complicity in the attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II in 1981, and charged for the first time that a second gunman also shot the pope.

"We must believe without question that there was an international plot to kill the pope," Judge Ilario Martella said after submitting to court officials the results of a three-year investigation into the case.

Martella also issued a new indictment against jailed assailant Mehmet Ali Agca. Agca, 26, who is serving a life sentence for shooting and wounding the pope in St. Peter's Square on May 13, 1981, was indicted today on a charge of illegally bringing a pistol into Italy.

However, Martella said Oral Celik, a suspected member of a right-wing Turkish terrorist group, fired one of three shots that wounded John Paul. Celik is at large.

Witnesses, including American tourists, said Celik was standing next to Agca in St. Peter's Square. The judge said the testimony, ballistics tests and a study of the trajectory of the shots clearly showed a bullet that hit the pope on the finger and arm was fired by Celik. The bullet was never found.

Celik is being sought by Italian police, and he was one of the seven people indicted by Martella today in a 1,243-page document turned over to court officials.

A prosecutor who reviewed Martella's evidence earlier this year told The Associated Press in June that he was convinced Bulgaria, possibly with Soviet aid, masterminded the assassination attempt to stop social unrest in the pope's native Poland.

United Way Campaign Chairman Joseph I. O'Neill III announces an extension of the fund-raising campaign to reach the goal of $1.95 million. The campaign had raised $1.86 million by its scheduled end Thursday — 95.3 percent of its goal.

United Way extends fund-raising campaign

From Staff Reports

At the scheduled end of its fund-raising campaign, the United Way of Midland had raised $1.86 million, Campaign Chairman Joseph I. O'Neill III announced today.

But the United Way is still 4.7 percent short of its goal of $1.95 million, so the campaign will be extended, O'Neill said.

"Ninety-five point three percent will not do the job, so we are going to continue campaigning until we reach the goal of $1.95 million," he said.

O'Neill said he was disappointed the full amount wasn't reached by the scheduled end of the campaign, but expressed confidence that the United Way would reach its fund-raising goal within two weeks.

"We tried to conduct one of the shortest campaigns in Texas. There are 143 United Ways in Texas and of those only Fort Worth and San Angelo have finished their campaigns so far," he said.

"One point eight million dollars is a lot of money. We could quit now and call it a good job. But that would mean we couldn't admit Big Brothers/Big Sisters. It would mean we couldn't help the Girl Scouts start their latch key children's program. It would mean we couldn't fund the Council on Alcoholism's new education program. It would mean we couldn't fund the counseling program for families victimized by domestic violence."

Firms present plan for new Air Park

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

An outline of the work to determine a site for a new Air Park and a master plan for constructing it was presented Thursday afternoon by the two consulting firms during a public hearing in City Hall Council Chambers.

The five step program should end in May 1985 with the completed master plan being delivered to the Federal Aviation Adminstration for approval, according to Wayne San Felipo, project manager of Daniel, Mann, Johnson & Mendenhall (DMJM) of Houston. DMJM is the primary consulting firm on the project. The other firm hired for the environmental impact statement is Cress & Associates of Lexington, Ky., represented by Don Cress.

Felipo listed the five step program as:

— Looking at Air Park requirements and existing facilities, analyzing air traffic and forecasting the future.

-- Selecting a site that can handle an airport.

— Assessing the environment and the impact that an airport would have on the area.

— Drawing the geometry of the facility, such as where the runways should be located.

— Obtaining a financial plan as to what the facility should cost.

Four sites are being examined, said Felipo. The first is the site which the city has approved. This is northeast of the city and east of State Highway 349 with part of it in Midland County but the lion's share in Martin County.

A second site is west of Highway 349 with all of it in Martin County.

Craddick, Smith face off in representative race

ELECTION '84

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of an eight-part series looking at local contested races and the eight constitutional amendments. This first part deals with the race for State Representative in the 76th District.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

A water plan probably will be the most important piece of legislation that should be drawn up by the State Legislature in its next session, according to the two men seeking election to a seat on that body.

Tom Craddick, R-Midland, has represented the 76th District for 16 years and is looking to be re-elected. David Smith, D-Odessa, wants to unseat Craddick.

The two agree on the importance of a water plan for the state, although Smith claims it is Craddick's fault that such legislation hasn't been passed yet. They also acknowledge that the Legislature in the next session will have to scrutinize the budget and do some sharp cutting and may have to revise the education reform bill that was passed last summer.

The voters have been presented with several water packages over the years, but rejected them, said Craddick. Last session, he fought a Senate version of a water plan that he said "was delinquent in many areas of the state, including West Texas." The House and Senate couldn't agree on a compromise by the close of the session.

Since then, a Joint Water Committee has been formed to draft a water plan for the next session that begins in January. Craddick, who serves as vice chairman, said the group has held public hearings throughout the state to determine each area's specific problems and needs. A new proposal has been drafted, and he believes a bill will be passed this session.

HE ATTRIBUTED the failure of other water packages to the voters' misconceptions. "People thought they (water packages) would only benefit West Texas and wondered why they should pay for that. The drought now has made people realize the problem is all over the state. There's Abilene, Austin and Corpus Christi rationing water."

The draft addresses conservation measures by the public and the need for reservoirs to hold runoff water, he said.

Smith contends Craddick is taking an interest in a water bill only because he's been challenged on it in this race.

"Tom's had 16 years to get a water bill passed," said Smith, an Odessa attorney. "Last session he singlehandedly defeated the water package that would have helped the people of West Texas. Tom's biggest complaint about it was the bays and estuaries provision. I've gone over it and can't see how it affects it."

Smith suggested a water package should include programs for conservation and for research and development. A water trust fund would have helped area cities which have had to raise water rates this year, he contended, blaming Midland's water rate increase last February on inadequate facilities and Craddick's failure to get a water plan approved.

(DEPUTY CITY Manager Fred Poe said that water rate increase covered expansions to Paul Davis Well Field. When the City Council approved the increase in a Jan. 10 meeting, it was noted that declining water usage during a rainy year translated into fewer revenues for the department.)

Craddick argued that he wasn't the only person to oppose that package. Others also voiced complaints about it, including O.H. Ivie, executive director of Colorado River Municipal Water District, he said.

With a $1 billion deficit in revenues projected by State Comptroller Bob Bullock, Craddick said the Legislature will have to make numerous budget cuts. Several committee chairmen have started examining various agencies' budget requests and have identified $500-700 million in cuts.

"Hopefully, we'll be able to do enough cutting to avoid a tax increase in the spring," he said. "I'm opposed to a tax increase." If there is an increase, he expects it to be ⅞ of 1 percent on the sales tax. That tariff was increased by ⅛ of 1 percent in summer's special session.

Showers possible tonight, but weekend may be warm

From Staff and Wire Reports

While there is a 40 percent of thunderstorms and showers for tonight, the weekend could be a warm one for the area with projected temperatures in the low 70s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Lows are expected to be in the mid-40s with winds from the southwest at 5 to 15 mph.

Saturday's outlook calls for partly cloudy skies, temperatures in the low 70s and winds from the southwest at 5 to 15 mph.

The record high for this date was set in 1950 with 90 degrees. A record low of 33 degrees was set in 1932.

STATE

Flash flood watches covered a vast area of the eastern half of Texas, covering areas from the Red River to South Texas as heavy rains continued to drench much of the state.

Flooding remained at Houston early today where many people were forced from their homes, numerous roads were closed because of high water and a woman was missing and presumed to have drowned following a traffic accident. More than nine inches of rain fell on Houston Thursday.

Drizzle, rain and thundershowers were scattered early today across southern and central portions of Texas and isolated thunderstorms are being reported in Northeast Texas.

NATION

A blast of snow-laden cold air spread across the Northwest today and much of the rest of the nation had rain.

The National Weather Service said near-blizzard conditions were feared in central Montana.

Snow also was expected and travelers' advisories were posted for the Cascade Mountains of Washington State and the northern Cascades of Oregon. A winter storm watch was in effect for the mountains of western Montana and northern and central Idaho.

CAMPAIGN

"I believe in a government that helps," the Democratic presidential nominee said Thursday as he stumped through the industrial Midwest. "I believe in a government that cares. I believe in a president who feels, who knows, who tries, who's with you when you need it."

Reagan, he said, believes that Social Security and Medicare for the elderly mark "a step toward dictatorship."

"Let us be a community, a family where we care for one another," Mondale said. "Let us end this selfishness, this greed, this new championship of caring only for yourself."

Reagan was venturing out of the White House on a day trip to New Jersey, New York and Connecticut, speaking to Jewish voters and suburban New York City voters. He spent Thursday in the White House.

While in Connecticut he was planning to sign a wildlife perservation bill that would, among other things, create a refuge for threatened birds along that state's coast. The bill was one the administration had once opposed.

"This is another example of Ronald Reagan going out and showing himself to be an election-year environmentalist," said Adrienne Weissman, spokesman for the Sierra Club, which has endorsed Mondale.

Mondale was heading West today, stumping in Michigan, Iowa, Texas and California.

Mondale drew large, enthusiastic crowds on Thursday, and at one point was told by a supporter, "Keep your chin up."

"It's up," Mondale replied.

The running mates were out campaigning again, with Vice President George Bush in Ohio and Kentucky today after facing hostile questions about Reagan's economic policy in Syracuse, N.Y.

Democrat Geraldine Ferraro was in San Francisco and heading up the coast through Oregon and Washington, insisting she doesn't believe the polls.

"There are a lot of first-time voters out there who are not being polled," she said. "...The crowds are incredibly large. The people are there, and they're enthusiastic...I am convinced we are going to win."

Two polls released this week, a Harris Survey and an ABC News-Washington Post poll, have given Reagan leads of 14 and 12 points respectively. Both indicate the surge to Mondale that came after the first presidential debate was halted after their second debate last Sunday

POLLS

Given sampling errors of three or four percentage points, polls by these four groups have recently been all but indistinguishable. However, the latest Gallup survey, with a 20-point margin, was outside this range and closer to the NBC and USA Today surveys.

Reagan's level of support varied from 52 percent in the ABC-Post survey to 61 percent in the USA Today poll. Mondale's backing ran from 35 percent in the NBC survey to 44 percent in the Harris poll.

Some of the differences are certain to be only statistical whisps disappearing into the next wave of interviews.

But here are the results of the polls from that post-debate stretch:

Harris: Oct. 12-14; 1,393 likely voters: Reagan 53 percent, Mondale 44 percent, 9 percent margin.

ABC-Post: Oct. 18-20; 1,505 likely voters: Reagan 52 percent, Mondale 42 percent, 10 percent margin.

CBS-NY Times: Oct. 14-17; 1,253 probable electorate: Reagan 54 percent, Mondale 41 percent, 13 percent margin.

Gallup: Oct. 15-17; 1,029 registered voters: Reagan 58 percent, Mondale 38 percent, 20 percent margin.

NBC: Oct. 14-16; 1,556 likely voters; Reagan 60 percent, Mondale 35 percent, 25 percent margin.

USA Today: Oct. 14-18; 1,287 registered voters: Reagan 61 percent; Mondale 36 percent, 25 percent margin.

None of the usual reasons given for conflicting polls — timing, question wording, likely voters and the rest — seem to give the answers to the differences.

Black and Laurily Epstein, polling consultant to NBC News, said the differences probably arise in how each pollster "weights" the raw interviews to correct for procedural reasons and for deficiencies in the sample from theoretical perfection.

This mathematical procedure is arcane and absolutely necessary, some pollsters say. For example, men are often harder to reach by telephone, sometimes making an adjustment in the male-female numbers necessary to reflect the actual makeup of the population.

But most pollsters will not reveal the details of their weighting, considering it proprietary information. Without the polls' raw data and full information on the weighting processes, it is impossible to judge whether the polls are all starting out at the same point but ending up at different places because of weighting.

All the polls were conducted over a short period of time, although Kathleen Frankovic of CBS News said the day-to-day variations in some polling have been substantial.

"There is some volatility out there," she said.

Differences in the exact wordings of questions also can cause differences in results.

Congress probes possible CIA link to political killings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is looking beyond who wrote the CIA's Nicaraguan rebel manual to ask what the spy agency knows about alleged political killings blamed on U.S.-backed forces.

Staff investigators for both the House and Senate intelligence committees are examining whether the rebels actually executed Nicaraguan officials as one rebel leader asserted last week, according to Capitol Hill sources who spoke Thursday on condition they wouldn't be identified.

Initial reviews by the committee staffs had focused on who authorized production of the CIA manual, which advocates "selective use of violence" to "neutralize" officials of Nicaragua's leftist government. But the sources said the inquiries were moving into other questions.

"We don't want our people getting bogged down on who deleted which paragraph" of various versions of the manual, said one House Intelligence Committee official. He added that the committee wants information from the CIA on what it knows about repeated reports that anti-government rebels have attacked civilian targets and executed individual officials.

On Thursday, the Nicaraguan Embassy in Washington released a breakdown of civilians killed by rebel forces since 1981, alleging that 854 people have been "assassinated," including 329 government employees, 436 peasants on agricultural cooperatives, and 89 adult education teachers.

Most rebel leaders and the CIA have denied the Nicaraguan allegations. But Edgar Chamorro, propaganda chief for the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the largest rebel army, conceded last Saturday that it was the rebels' "practice" to execute captured officials deemed "criminals" by the local populace.

Red Cross: Iranians fired on Iraqi POWs

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Iranian guards killed six Iraqi prisoners of war and wounded at least 35 in a riot witnessed by Red Cross officials visiting a detention camp northeast of Tehran, according to Red Cross headquarters.

It was the first such incident documented during the 4-year-old Iran-Iraq war, and the statement issued Thursday by the International Committee of the Red Cross was a rare departure from its policy of strict confidentiality on reports about POW camps.

Earlier this year, the Red Cross accused Iran and Iraq of grave breaches of the Geneva conventions and of "flouting the fundamental principles" of humanitarian law.

That memorandum mentioned "serious accidents in some camps" in Iran and said "some of the Iraqi prisoners of war registered and visited on several occasions in the camps by Red Cross delegates have later been reported 'killed in action.'"

Red Cross spokesman Jean-Jacques Kurtz said Iran had informed him of the casualties that occurred in the Oct. 10 riot.

He said the shootings were witnessed by three Red Cross representatives who were visiting the camp when the riot broke out. The next day, he said, the Red Cross representatives visited wounded prisoners in hospitals.

He said that no weapons were used by the rioting prisoners and that he had no estimate of the number of prisoners in the camp.

Kurtz said the rioting occurred during the Red Cross representatives' first visit to the camp, which he said was about 50 miles from Iran's border with the Soviet Union. "The visit was interrupted after the incident," he said.

The Red Cross spokesman said he did not know how many POWs were interviewed by the Red Cross representatives. Under the Geneva convention, such interviews must be conducted without witnesses.

The Red Cross communicated with both governments after the shootings. Kurtz did not say what the communicatons were, but said there had been no response.

Iran had no official comment on the report.

Earlier, a report by the official Iraqi News Agency quoted Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz as saying Iranian guards "opened fire indiscriminately on Iraqi prisoners of war in the Korcan detention camp, killing some of them and injuring others."

The Iraqi News Agency reported from Baghdad that Aziz had written the secretary-general of the United Nations and leaders of other international organizations to inform them of the shootings.

When first asked for comment on the Iraqi report, Kurtz declined, citing the confidentiality of Red Cross reports. He acknowledged, however, that Red Cross representatives in Iran were encountering "some very serious difficulties."

Wives of missing crewmen sue Global Marine for $120 million

HOUSTON (AP) — The wives of two crewmen who died when an American tanker sank in the South China Sea are suing the ship's owner for $120 million.

Linda Reynolds and Nadine Thomas filed the suit in state district court Thursday alleging negligence by Houston-based Global Marine Inc. and several other companies led to their husbands' deaths.

The crewman, Russell Reynolds and Michael Thomas, were aboard the Glomar Java Sea on Oct. 25, 1983, when it sank during a typhoon.

Named as defendants in the suit are Global Marine Inc., Global Marine Deepwater Drilling Inc., Global Marine Development Inc., Atlantic Richfield Co., ARCO China Inc., Santa Fe International Corp. and Levingston Shipbuilding Co.

Officials for Global Marine have repeatedly denied any negligence in the incident, which was under an investigation by a marine board.

This is on the Scharbauer Ranch, said Felipo. Site three is north of site one and is on the Glass Ranch.

The fourth site is northeast of site one and is on the Holiday Ranch.

Cress said his firm will study the sites and provide some input into the decision on which place is selected. Once the site has been chosen, Cress & Associates will look at all the environmental factors.

Jon Mathiasen, assistant director of aviation/administration for the city of Midland, added that they have to prove to the FAA why that site was chosen and that it is the best site.

The next public hearing will be at 10 a.m. Nov. 8 in City Hall Council Chambers. Site evaluations will be reviewed.

Smith, who has worked in the attorney general's office under Mark White and Jim Mattox, said "there's a lot of money there that they don't need. Take the Department of Human Resources. Without sacrificing the quality of production, the fat can be trimmed."

LAST SUMMER'S education bill has upset a lot of school districts, said Craddick. "We'll see a large push to redo the education reform bill so it will be more workable," he said.

Smith mentioned the teacher salary portion of the bill and said it eliminated incentives for teachers once they establish seniority.

He disagreed with the proposal to give teachers tests after they have been in the system several years. "I realize we have some bad teachers but testing it not the answer. Maybe we should test them before we allow them into the system. And maybe have a professional review board. It works for the legal profession, weeds out those who shouldn't be in the profession," he said.

Smith charged that Craddick has been an ineffective representative for West Texas and hasn't been working with other area legislators to obtain the best legislation. "We can use the legislative process to the advantage of West Texas as a whole. Once you're working in a coalition, you can fight. West Texas has been given the back seat in the Legislature. If we could forge a coalition of representatives and senators we could go a long way toward working on the interests of the Permian Basin."

CRADDICK SAID he already is a member of the West Texas delegation that meets regularly to look at area issues. "With the dwindling number of rural legislators, it's up to West Texas legislators to get together and work on problems." He added that he has sponsored bills with State Sen. Bill Sims of San Angelo and State Rep. Jay Gibson of Odessa, both Democrats.

Craddick rejected the charge of ineffectiveness, saying that he's carried all the water legislation for the state and all bills that affect the Railroad Commission and strip mining.

The Legislature has been negligent in not working with industries, local governments and the private sector in building a favorable economic climate, according to Smith, who pointed specifically to Midland-Odessa and their primary industry of petroleum. Rockwell International, he said, considered Odessa as a site for an electronics assembly plant. Lubbock was chosen for its "quality of life and educational facilities available," he said.

Smith thinks he has a winnable campaign. But if he does lose, "I want Tom Craddick to know someone will be out there nipping at his heels all the time."

POPE

When asked by a reporter whether the Soviet Union was behind the indicted Bulgarians, Martella said: "I have not addressed that issue. It was not part of my job."

Bulgaria denies the allegations, saying they are part of a plot by Western intelligence agencies to smear the Soviet bloc.

Martella said the Bulgarians indicted were Sergei Ivanov Antonov, 36, former Rome station manager of the Bulgarian state airline and the only one of the three held in Italy; Todor Aivazov, 40, former cashier at the Bulgarian Embassy in Rome; and Maj. Zhelyo Kolev Vassilev, 42, former aide to the military attache at the Bulgarian Embassy in Rome.

The Turks named in the indictment were Celik, 25; Bekir Celenk, 49, a reputed head of the Turkish Mafia who is in custody in Bulgaria; and Omer Bagci, 38, and Musa Serdar Celebi, 32, both held in Italian prisons.

No trial date was set.

The indictment said the two Bulgarian Embassy employees had promised to provide a truck with a diplomatic seal to sneak Agca and Celik out of Italy, and that Antonov was waiting with a car outside St. Peter's Square to help Celik and Agca escape.

Even though the campaign fell short of its goal, O'Neill pointed out that his volunteers still raised more money than last year's campaign.

"I'm not going to stop working until my job is done. I hope to stand right here in two weeks and say we've made it."

Epic marks China's anniversary

PEKING (AP) — To celebrate its 35th anniversary, Communist China has produced a song-and-dance extravaganza with a cast of 1,000 and a zealous style reminiscent of the days of Mao Tse-tung.

Rehearsed for 14 months under the sponsorship of the Ministry of Culture, "Song of the Chinese Revolution" is a 2½-hour pageant in which dancers, singers, orchestral and choral forces trace a propagandist's view of Chinese history since 1840.

Chairman Mao, Premier Chou En-lai, Chu Teh, Liu Shaoqi and other Communist figures of the Communist past are portrayed by look-alikes, although China's current leader, Deng Xiaoping, is glimpsed only briefly in a film clip at the end.

SOLDIERS DASH across the stage waving red flags, the 1934-35 "Long March" and 1949 siege of Nanking are recreated, and a children's chorus sings "We are the Successors to the Communist Cause."

The biggest theatrical epic in Peking since "The East is Red" was staged in the Mao era in 1964, the spectacle also includes an anti-imperialist sequence in which "Down with the Great Powers" is sung to the tune of "Frere Jacques."

Foreign troops are portrayed burning down the emperor's summer palace in 1860 and looting Chinese treasures, causing an "unbearable humiliation, unstoppable rage."

The chorus booms "We are the Guerrilla Lads" as male dancers portray Red Army resistance to the Japanese in World War II.

An actor who closely resembles Mao proclaims the founding of the People's Republic on Oct. 1, 1949, as the stage becomes a replica of the landmark Tien An Men Gate in Peking.

"The Chinese people have now stood up," he says to a murmur of recognition from the audience. Mao died in 1976.

CHINA'S modernization under Deng features highly. A coloratura soprano sings "The Springtime of Science is Here" and "My Heart is Flying to the Mysteries of Space," to a backdrop of satellites. Another scene is set amid offshore oil pipelines.

The musical climax is an "Ode to the Motherland" in which a chorus of more than 300 rings the auditorium and a tenor earnestly bellows, "Seas of Petroleum Come Gushing Forth."

The show glosses over what now are viewed as Mao's mistakes, such as the famine-inducing 1958 "Great Leap Forward" and the convulsive 1966-76 "Cultural Revolution" from which China is still recovering.

The original synopsis called for depictions of the chaos of those 10 tumultuous years, but the producers opted for symbolism: whirling snow for tears and ballerinas in white, the Chinese color of mourning.

"It is utterly unnecessary to use bloody scenes to stimulate the audience, most of whom experienced these events," Culture Ministry official Zhao Hua told The Associated Press.

THERE IS ONLY a brief mention of the Lin Biao and Jiang Qing "cliques," now largely held responsible for the evils of the Cultural Revolution. Lin was a defense minister who plotted against Mao and Jiang is Mao's widow, now imprisoned in Peking.

The production owes its lineage to the iconoclastic operas Jiang once sanctioned to whip up revolutionary fervor. Among the eight works considered as models were "Taking Tiger Mountain by Stragegy," "Red Detachment of Women" and "The Red Lantern."

The same militant poses, ardent flag-waving and martial music abound in "Song of the Chinese Revolution," although the epic also has a soft edge, with ballet ensembles, Tibetan and other ethnic dances and a Mantovani-like orchestral backdrop.

The vice minister of culture, Zhou Weizhi, said on the premiere Sept. 28 that the production is a "vivid portrayal of our revolutionary tradition that will arouse strong patriotic feelings among young and old alike."

HE HOPED the show, involving the services of 1,400 poets, singers, dancers, technicians, designers and musicians, would "stimulate development in music and the performing arts."

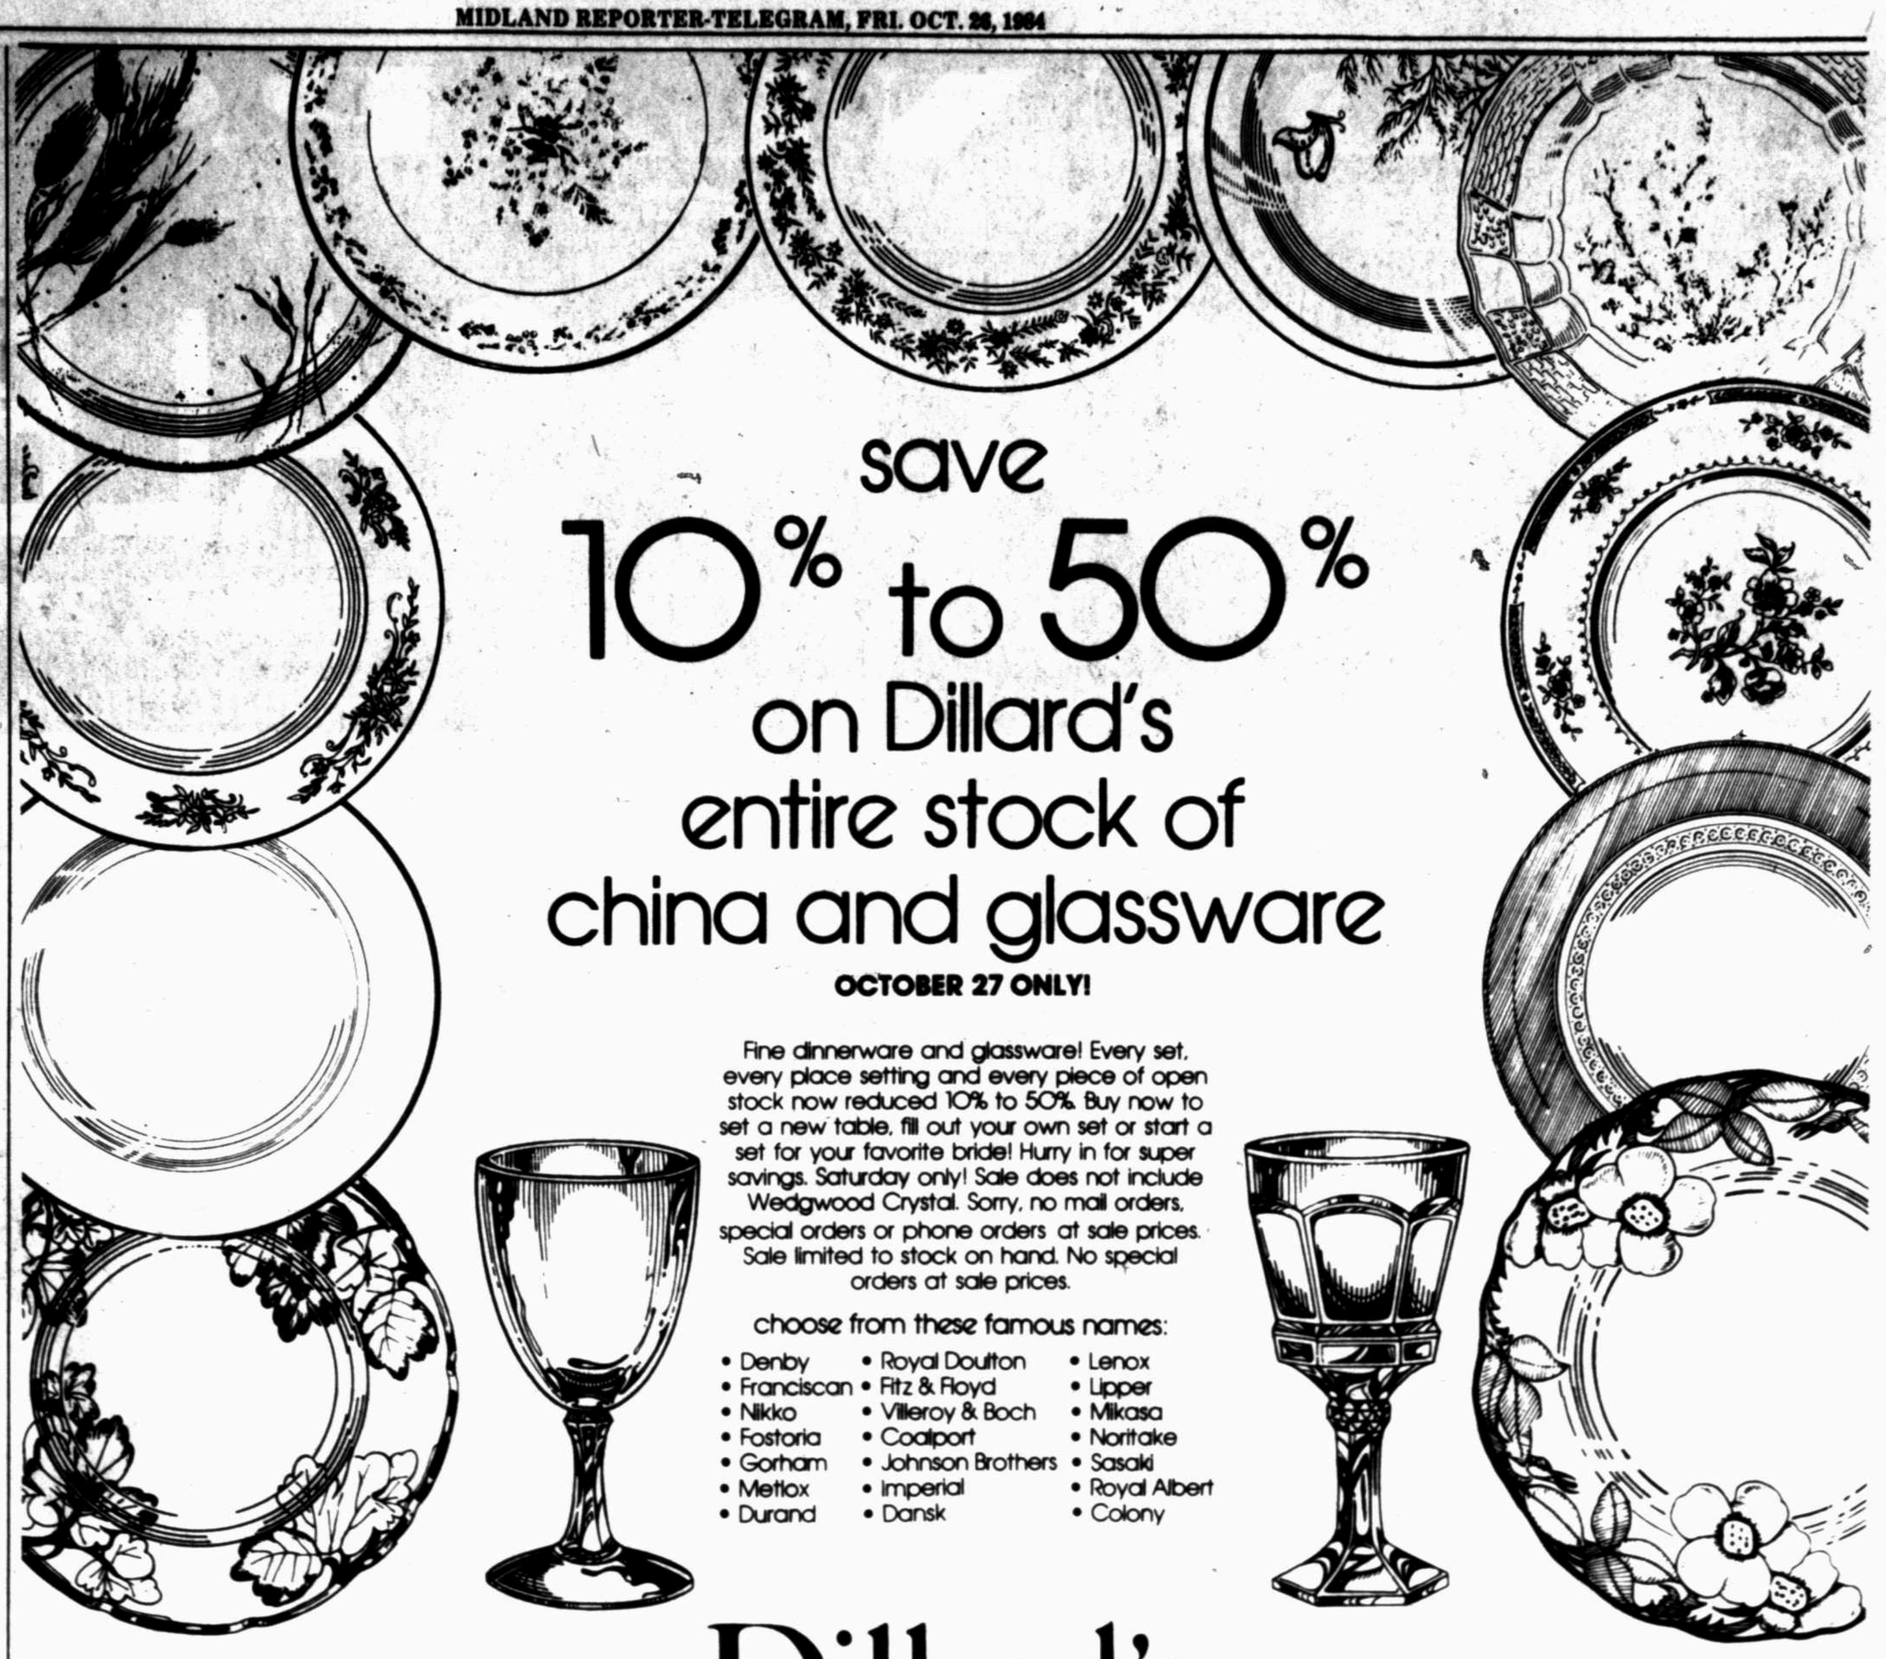

The presentation comes at a delicate time for Chinese artists, frightened by last year's campaign against "spiritual pollution" just as they were emerging from the Cultural Revolution's straitjacket.

As the reins started loosening again this year, with some realistic plays and Western imports such as Mozart's "The Magic Flute" and Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie," the government chose a full-throated propaganda platform to mark Oct. 1.

The inaugural presentation at the air-conditioned, 1,300-seat China Theater in northwest Peking benefits from computer-controlled stage and lighting facilities. The text is projected onto side screens in Chinese and English.

Admission is by invitation and some foreigners have been told that tickets, listing at 2 yuan (75 cents), are not available to them.

Thunderstorms push creeks, bayous over banks, flood home, roads

HOUSTON (AP) — Floodwaters began receding slowly today after heavy storms dumped more than 15 inches of rain on parts of Houston, pushing already-swollen creeks and bayous over their banks, flooding roads, stalling vehicles and forcing residents from waterlogged homes.

One woman was missing and feared drowned after the car she was driving Thursday collided with two other vehicles, then skidded down an embankment and into a muddy bayou, police said.

Jim Green, director of the area Flood Control District, said Thursday's deluge "will rate with one of the most severe storms we've had."

"It could be Saturday morning before we get completely out of trouble," added Flood Control District spokesman Bill Evans.

More than 250 people spent the night at a high school gymnasium, one of several emergency shelters set up by the Red Cross.

"When I left home, there was about two feet of water," Rodney Gay, a flood victim, said. "Start over. That's all we can do."

For the first time since Monday, Houston residents awoke today to blue skies and sunshine.

Weather officials had feared the downpour would continue for another day. But the rain stopped Thursday night and the storm system shifted west toward the Texas Hill Country.

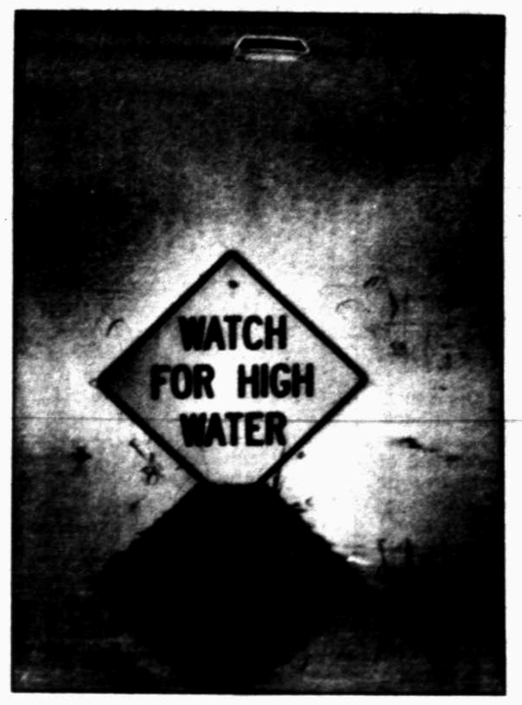

"The worst appears to be over. This may get us out of the woods," said Bob Fields of the National Weather Service's office in Houston.

Flood warnings, however, were extended through the morning because the water was slowly receding and drainage systems were filled, Fields said.

On Thursday high water, waist deep in places, forced residents in nothern sections of Houston to board fire department airboats, flatbed trucks or canoes and scurry to higher ground.

"We've got the furniture stacked and are moving it around of the water. We sweep it out one door and it comes in another door," said Pat Fusilier, who lives north of Houston.

Officially, 9.32 inches of rain had fell Thursday, the weather bureau said. At one reporting station northeast of the city, however, rain gauges measured 15.5 inches.

A sign north of Houston warns of high water and it told the truth. Thursday the Houston area was hit with some eight to nine inches of rain. Creeks and bayous were rising rapidly. Creeks in north Harris County were out of their banks.

AP Laserphoto

At least 100 homes were hit by the rising waters, said Ray Beall, director of disaster services for the Houston Red Cross Chapter.

"I've got three feet of water in front of my house on the street," said Joe Davis, who lives just north of Houston. "My garage is completely flooded. ... I've got about an inch under my kitchen door."

Professor wins award for research

HOUSTON (AP) — A chemistry professor at the University of California at Berkeley has been chosen as the ninth recipient of the Robert A. Welch Award, officials have announced.

Kenneth S. Pitzer will receive the award, which carries a $150,000 cash prize, on Nov. 5 for his work explaining variations in the predictability of the periodic table of the elements, officials said.

The foundation said Thursday that Pitzer discovered that the effects of relativity explain most of the departments from the otherwise strict rules of the periodic table.

Companies try to devise AIDS detection test

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An official of the Food and Drug Administration says a test to detect the often deadly ailment known as acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is "at best, months away."

Dr. John Petricciani, head of the FDA's blood products division, told the American Association of Blood Banks convention Wednesday that five companies racing to developthe test will finish major research project by the end of the year.

There currently is no definitive test to detect AIDS. Within months, the FDA expects to have a test that will indicate the presence of antibodies a patient's body produces to fight off the virus linked to AIDS, Petricciani said.

AIDS breaks down the body's immune defenses to a wide range of illnesses and is prevalent among homosexuals, Haitians, hemophiliacs, and sexual partners of those people.

Petricciani said after the companies each test 30,000 blood samples, the FDA will study many of the results to determine how well the test procedures work.

He said the proposed AIDS tests will face more months of study and review by a panel of experts before the FDA will approve a test.

Dr. Michael Osterholm, chief epidemiologist of the Minnesota health department, emphasized the importance of a highly reliable AIDS detection procedure.

Osterholm said an error rate of even 1 percent could mean thousands of people would be falsely suspected of carrying AIDS, which is spread mainly by intimate contact or contaminated blood products.

But people who get false positive test results could suffer all the discrimination AIDS victims face, Osterholm said. He and other speakers at the convention listed many examples of the nation's 6,400 AIDS victims losing housing or jobs because of public fear.

A comic book featuring the popular comic hero Spider-man is being issued in the fight against child abuse. The comic book was written to help children deal with the possibility of physical and sexual abuse happening to them.

AP Laserphoto

Comic tells children how to deal with abuse

NEW YORK (AP) — Even Spider-Man isn't immune from the terrors of child sexual abuse, and the superhero's creators hope his experience will help other children deal with similar problems.

In a new comic book, Spider-Man remembers when an older friend showed young Peter Parker "girlie" books and said, "Let's see if we can touch each other like the people in the magazine."

Parker, the web-slinging superhero's alter-ego, refused, but "was too frightened to leave."

Spider-Man remembers the incident and says, "I've never admitted it to myself before, but for years I've been haunted — ashamed of that part of my past...It wasn't until tonight...that I finally truly realized that what happened back then wasn't my fault."

At first, there was reluctance to "do something this bold with our premier superhero," said Pamela Rutt, a spokeswoman for Marvel Comics, which joined the National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse to produce the comic.

"We thought this particular cause was most appropriate for us because it so immediately affects our audience," Ms. Rutt said. "Kids can be armed with information that can help them prevent sex abuse and deal with sex abuse."

Distribution of the comics, written for 5- to 12-year-olds, will begin Monday, through the committee's 50 chapters. One million copies will be sold at cost to schools, churches and other organizations and individuals.

A single issue can be obtained for a $1 donation, said Anne Cohn, executive director of the national committee, a Chicago-based clearinghouse of child sexual abuse information and materials.

"We have been avalanched by people wanting individual copies," Ms. Cohn said in a telephone interview. "There was a one-line mention in the back of Ladies' Home Journal, and we got 6,000 requests as a result of that."

Spider-Man makes the revelation about his past after a neighbor boy is sexually assaulted by a female baby sitter. In a second story in the book, a young girl runs away from home after being sexually abused by her father.

The three situations — abuse by a baby sitter, an older friend, and a father — "are different experiences a child might have," Ms. Cohn said. "We know most child abuse occurs in the home or with someone who is close to the child."

It is estimated that 85 percent of people who sexually abuse children are male, and the female baby sitter was included because "we wanted to make sure people didn't feel this was a problem where only men were perpetrators," she said.

The comic book was created by Marvel's writers and cartoonists, using information provided by nine child sex abuse experts, Ms. Cohn said.

The last page of the book contains an epilogue providing information on how to report sexual abuse and where to get information about treatment.

The back cover tells children:

— Your body belongs to you, and you have a right to decide how and when anyone touches you.

— If somebody tries to touch you in ways that don't feel good or seem right, say no.

— If the first person you tell doesn't believe you, keep telling until you find someone who does.

— Remember, if this happens, it's not your fault.

The creators of the comic book hope the use of Spider-Man will "positively and dramatically destigmatize this for kids," Ms. Rutt said.

Shultz: U.S. should retaliate against terrorists

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz, warning of more terrorist attacks on U.S. interests in years ahead, is calling for "a broad public consensus" for quick military retaliation — even if it involves the loss of innocent lives.

"If we are going to respond or preempt effectively, our policies will have to have an element of unpredictability and surprise," Shultz said in a speech Thursday night at the Park Avenue Synagogue. "And the prerequisite for such a policy must be a broad public consensus on the moral and strategic necessity of action."

"The public must understand before the fact that there is potential for loss of life of some of our fighting men and the loss of life of some innocent people," he said.

Shultz has spoken out frequently on the need to combat terrorism, but had never before suggested the United States might have to respond at the cost of innocent lives. Shultz's statement differed from the point of view expressed by President Reagan in Sunday's presidential debate with Walter F. Mondale.

When asked why he hadn't ordered retaliation for terrorist bombings that have taken more than 250 American lives in Lebanon, Reagan said the United States would respond "only if we can put our finger on the people responsible and not endanger the lives of innocent civilians..."

Shultz, delivering the synagogue's annual Sherr lecture, also urged a broad program of intelligence gathering and political action to combat terrorism and praised the way Israel reacts to attacks.

"We will need the capability to act on a moment's notice," he said. "There will not be time for a renewed national debate after every terrorist attack."

"A great nation with global responsibilities cannot afford to be hamstrung by confusion and indecisiveness," Shultz said. "Fighting terrorism will not be a clean or pleasant contest, but we have no choice but to play it."

Shultz scoffed at those who equate terrorists with freedom fighters or legitimate revolutionaries, saying the latter do not blow up buses full of civilians, slaughter schoolchildren, assassinate innocent businessmen or hold civilians hostage.

Shultz forecast "more terrorism directed at our strategic interests around the world in the years ahead," and warned that the remaining weeks before the presidential election would be a time of "particular danger."

Doctor, psychologist say children were abused

CHICAGO (AP) — A doctor who says physicians "would gladly run away from" the issue of sexually abused children found conclusive evidence of abuse in youths from a Minnesota community where sex charges against 22 adults were dropped last week, a published report today says.

The article in the American Medical News also quoted a psychologist who said she was "completely convinced" all 11 of the children she examined in Scott County, Minn., had been sexually abused.

Authorities in Scott County, about 20 miles southwest of Minneapolis, had alleged that two sex rings abused 40 children.

Charges were brought against 25 people; one person pleaded guilty in a plea bargain agreement and two were acquitted before a prosecutor dropped remaining charges against 22 people on Oct. 15, saying cross-examination of the children would be a hardship.

Dr. Barry Bershow told the American Medical News, a weekly publication of the American Medical Association, that he found evidence of abuse in most of the 24 children he examined from Scott County.

"Medicine has a lot to learn about detecting the sexual abuse of children," Bershow said. "The state of the art is prehistoric and most physicians would not only rather not turn over the stone, they would gladly run away from it."

Ex-Vietnamese official says he's not head of crime ring

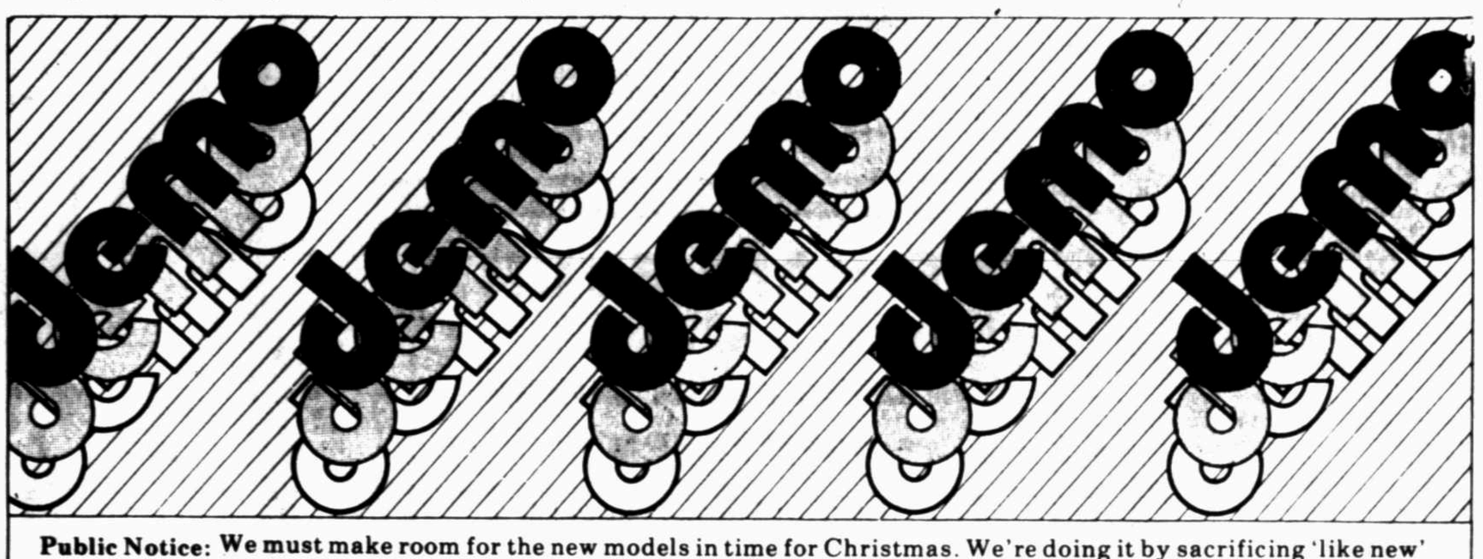

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Vietnamese Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky, described to the President's Commission on Organized Crime as head of a crime network, called the charge ridiculous and said, "I'm not involved in anything."

Ky said Thursday he had not been subpoenaed, but "if the commission wants me, I am ready."

A hooded witness who identified himself as an "assistant boss" in one of the gangs comprising the extortion, robbery and marijuana-smuggling network testified Thursday that among Vietnamese, "everyone knows" Ky heads it.

He said the ostensibly anti-communist organization committed crimes to raise money for "the jungle war in Vietnam." Below Ky, he said, are four or five former South Vietnamese generals who supervise 15 "state bosses" and a nationwide membership of about 1,000.

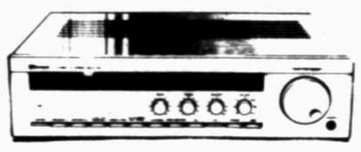

"Go to the police, sheriffs or FBI, they can tell you I'm not involved in anything," Ky told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

Japanese gangsters moving operations outside country

TOKYO (AP) — When he received a dagger during ceremonies attended by more than 300 men in black suits and white ties, Masahisa Takenaka became leader of the largest group of the Japanese gangsters known as the Yakuza.

Outside the ceremony hall in southern Tokushima City, more than 1,000 heavily armed police stood guard to ensure that the inauguration of the Yamaguchi-gumi's fourth supreme leader would proceed without incident.

As seen in this nationally televised event last summer, the Yakuza operate openly and brazenly in a society justly renowned for its lack of violent crime.

But all is not well for Japan's nearly 100,000 Yakuza. The Yamaguchi-gumi in effect split because of opposition to Takenaka's ascension, and police fear a bloody fight for turf between rival factions of the 12,000-member organization.

Police crackdowns have reduced members in organized crime from 184,000 two decades ago to 98,000 today. So far this year, about 48,000 Yakuza have been jailed at least temporarily after police raids, according to National Police Agency figures.

As one consequence, Japan's Yakuza are moving farther afield, and have set up shop in Southeast Asia, Hawaii and the continental United States, particularly California.

In New York on Wednesday, two hooded, unidentified Yakuza told the President's Commission on Organized Crime that they were involved in illegal gambling in the United States, and had ties with Mafia-financed gambling schemes.

AP Laserphoto

Masahisa Takenaka, left, escorted by a member of the Japanese gang Yakuza, enters a ceremonial hall in Tokushima City last July. At the ceremony, Takenaka was inaugurated as the leader of the largest Japanese gang, the Yamaguchi-gumi.

Yakuza are said to have originated as gambling gangs in the 18th century, during Japan's feudal period. The three syllables of "Yakuza" come from words for eight, nine and three, a total of 20 that signified "uselessness" in an old card game.

Yakuza gangs took on many of the values of their Samurai contemporaries: unquestioning loyalty to the "oyabun" or "godfather;" strong identity with the group; and understandings they would follow orders and not touch the wives of other members.

Some also adopted rituals of tattooing their bodies with dragons and other exotic designs and cutting off one little finger as a sign of fidelity. Like the Yamaguchi-gumi and the second-ranking Sumiyoshi-Rengokai, many set up headquarters not in Tokyo but in the commercial centers of Osaka and Kobe in western Japan.

Today the crested kimonos of the past have been replaced by double-breasted suits and pointed white shoes. Crewcuts or permanents, sun glasses and gaudy jewelry also have become standard.

The image of Yakuza as Japan's "Robin Hoods," probably false from the beginning, still lingers in the popular Yakuza genre of movies and television dramas, where the gangsters are lauded for their manliness, unswerving loyalty and kindness to the downtrodden.

But the realities are different. Police say Yakuza groups are deeply involved in the illegal trade in stimulant drugs, a growing problem in Japan which so far has avoided the ravages of drug abuse.

Polish government arrests two 'accomplices' in priest's abduction

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The government arrested two more suspects in the abduction of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, and Cardinal Jozef Glemp expressed fears that the priest, an outspoken Solidarity supporter, may be dead.

The two unidentified accomplices "cooperated" with an Interior Ministry police officer who was the first man arrested in the case, the official Polish news agency PAP said Thursday.

Communist authorities say charges will be filed against the Interior Ministry official, reported to be either a uniformed or plainclothes policeman based in Warsaw.

Popieluszko, 37, was kidnapped last Friday by a group of unidentified men, one of them wearing a police uniform, on a highway in northern Poland.

No one has claimed responsibility, but Solidarity figures have linked the abduction to a terrorist group they say is harassing members and supporters of the outlawed labor federation.

Popieluszko is one of the most popular priests in the Catholic clergy in Poland and an outspoken advocate of the ideals of Solidarity.

Glemp, the senior Roman Catholic official in Poland, demanded a full explanation of Popieluszko's disappearance from the government.

"We will demand that everything be explained, what is possible in human might, about the reasons, conditions and culprits of this shameful act," he said in a signed statement Thursday.

Without "any sign" of the priest since the kidnapping, "we are afraid that also in Poland a homicide could happen," he said.

Glemp asked that prayers be said for Popieluszko following all Masses in the Warsaw diocese and "for peace in the fatherland."

The Interior Ministry officer arrested Wednesday was identified as Grzegorz P., and officials said hair matching that of the missing priest was found in the trunk of a car driven by the official.

PAP and state-run television said the suspects would be presented to Popieluszko's driver, who escaped from the kidnappers and is the only witness to the abduction.

Papers: U.S. will send troops to El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — American forces would be sent into El Salvador as part of a military maneuvers in Central America planned for later this year and early 1985, according to published reports.

Several hundred U.S. troops are scheduled to participate in early December with Honduran and Salvadoran soldiers in a maneuver called King's Guard along the Honduran-Salvadoran border, the New York Times and Washington Post reported in today's editions.

The newspapers said the plan calls for some of the activities to take place in El Salvador.

A senior Pentagon official, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified, denied the reports Thursday night.

Bolivian president fasts to protest his innocence

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Hernan Siles Zuazo, Bolivia's 70-year-old president, has gone on a hunger strike to defend his honor against a congressional accusation that he sent an aide to negotiate with a wanted cocaine trafficker.

Siles said in a nationwide television address Thursday night that he would consume only water until Congress withdraws the accusation, which was contained in a resolution approved by a 70-61 vote the day before.

The president has twice before used hunger strikes in a political career that has spanned four decades. He said he had been forced to fast again by a "shameful alliance" in the opposition-controlled legislature that was trying to impugne his honesty and "sabotage" his presidency.

"I have decided to go on a hunger strike to restore honor to the presidency and a climate of peace and reflection to the country," Siles said. He said he would continue his normal work routine.

"The (congressional) resolution transgresses the most elemental sense of legality and justice by condemning the government for presumed acts, not proven ones," Siles said.

Cabinet officials and other supporters who gathered for his brief statement at the presidential palace showed obvious surprise at Siles' action and then broke into applause.

Grenada observes anniversary of invasion

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — One year after U.S. Marines and paratroopers stormed their Caribbean island, Grenadians gave thanks at church services and enjoyed an unofficial midweek holiday.

Most businesses closed Thursday in observance of the anniversary, and about 500 people gathered at the Roman Catholic cathedral for an ecumenical service.

There was no day off at a St. George's courtroom, where defense lawyers were arguing on behalf of 19 former government and army officials charged with staging a coup that led to the invasion. The attorneys contended that the court, created by the defendants' own left-wing government, lacks jurisdiction to try the case.

A year earlier, on Oct. 25, 1983, Grenadians huddled behind closed doors as the U.S. forces and their allies from seven Caribbean nations came ashore. During the next four days, 44 Grenadians, 24 Cubans and 20 Americans died.

Vicar General Cyril LaMontagne urged Grenadians not to forget the Americans who died in the invasion. "Theirs was the supreme sacrifice, the ultimate in love, for it is written, 'No greater love than this hath man that he give up his life for his friend.'"

Reynolds back at work

Burt Reynolds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds is back at work on a new movie after being sidelined for about four months by an inner ear infection, kidney stones and a jaw problem, a spokesman says.

Reynolds, 48, is "doing terrific," Dave Gershenson said Thursday. "Burt is back at work ... on 'Stick' and will begin reshooting some scenes for about a week beginning Nov. 7. He got sick while they were filming the final scenes and they have to be done over."

In "Stick," adapted from an Elmore Leonard novel, Reynolds plays a man who stumbles into a murder and drug operation upon his release after seven years in prison. The movie also stars Candice Bergen.

• • •

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Antony Hamilton, a 30-year-old Australian, will "become a major international star" by replacing the late Jon-Erik Hexum in the CBS series "Cover-Up," a 20th Century-Fox spokesman says.

Hamilton, playing opposite Jennifer O'Neill, will have a new name in the show, but still will play a government agent who poses as a model, Fox publicist Vince Panettiere said Thursday.

Hexum, 26, died Oct. 18, six days after he accidentally shot himself in the head with a blank charge in a prop gun.

Hamilton, a 6-foot-2 actor with sandy hair and blue-gray eyes, starred as Sampson in the ABC movie "Sampson and Delilah" last year.

• • •

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Baltimore Orioles pitcher Jim Palmer will be joining a new team as host of "The Sporting Life," public television's first-ever continuing series devoted to athletes, beginning next spring.

Profiles of Washington Redskins lineman George Starke, who also is a carpenter and reggae music producer; Jim "Catfish" Hunter, former major league pitcher and now gentleman farmer and Little League coach; and jockey Angel Cordero are among the first 10 half-hour segments.

The series, announced Thursday, will be financed by eight General Foods products and produced by WNET in New York.

• • •

LONDON (AP) — Barbara Cartland, 82-year-old queen of the historical romance, says she is amazed to discover that her novels sell best in France, the country that supposedly wrote the book on romance.

"I expected them as a nation to want sensuous and dirty books, but they want pure ones," said Ms. Cartland, author of 384 novels.

"The French know about two things: the art of food and the art of love," she said recently. "France is the only place where you can make love in the afternoon without people hammering on your door and asking, 'Are you ill?'"

• • •

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — Today is the beginning of "Ray Bradbury Days" in the hometown the science fiction author immortalized in his novel "Dandelion Wine" and other stories.

Bradbury will be given the key to the city and a bottle of dandelion wine and escorted from the local airport by flag bearers and a troupe of baton twirlers.

• • •

QUOGUE, N.Y. (AP) — Arthur Austin Whittemore, a concert pianist who gained fame as a member of the dual-piano team of Whittemore and Lowe, died Tuesday. He was 69.

After graduating from the University of Rochester in 1937, Whittemore formed a team with Jack Lowe. They made their debut at Town Hall in New York City in 1940.

• • •

BOLINAS, Calif. (AP) — Richard Brautigan, an author whose offbeat novels and poetry made him a hero of the '60s counterculture, was found dead Thursday. He was 49.

Brautigan was the author of such popular works as "Trout Fishing in America" and "The Pill Versus the Springhill Mine Disaster." Other works included "Confederate General From Big Sur," "In Watermelon Sugar," "Revenge of the Lawn" and "The Abortion: An Historical Romance."

'V' back on NBC as weekly series

NEW YORK (AP) — Like neighbors who overstay their welcome, the lizard-like visitors from the miniseries "V" are unfortunately back tonight as weekly pests in the NBC series "V."

Evidently, last season's "V: The Final Battle" wasn't really the last final battle.

There was some campy charm when these aliens with the human exteriors and the Lacoste interiors tried to take over the world in two high-rated miniseries in recent seasons, but the series takes on a woefully contrived appearance when America's survival is at stake each week.

Worse than bad science fiction, "V" is more like a limp, space-age spaghetti Western. Instead of white hats and black hats, the best way to tell the difference between good guys and bad guys is the length of their tongues and the texture of their skin.

Although the nation flocked to the theaters to see the "Stars Wars" trilogy, viewers know the difference between a spaceship that seems real and one that looks as if it came out of a cereal box.

That isn't to say that "V" won't be successful. Its target audience at 8 p.m. Eastern time is young viewers with wild-and-crazy imaginations who might be willing to trade in a souped-up General Lee on CBS' "Dukes of Hazzard" for a souped-up spaceship on "V."

NBC is counting on "V" to fill its Friday night black hole, into which every one of the network's Friday series was lost in space last season. None survived, and, already this season, NBC's 9 and 10 o'clock programs, "Hunter" and "Miami Vice," are performing better.

Now, with the debut of "V," NBC hopes its Friday night schedule will be boosted in the way "The Cosby Show," leading off Thursday nights, has vastly improved the fortunes of the follow-up "Family Ties" and "Cheers."

Nobody expects NBC to knock off CBS' dynamic duo of "Dallas" and "Falcon Crest," but a strong second-place showing could really solidify NBC in its surge into second place over ABC in the overall weekly ratings.

NBC is spending more on "V" — about $1 million per episode — than any other series, including "Hill Street Blues" with its large cast. The show's producer, Robert Singer, says he plans at least one dynamic special effect and shocker each week. Nothing stands out, though, in tonight's episode.

Another drawback is that viewers who missed the miniseries will be confused by the first episode, and that has nothing to do with any complexities of the plot, which is the closest thing to a Saturday morning cartoon there is in prime time.

It's now Liberation Day, one year after the freedom fighters defeated the earthling-eating invaders with red dust, which did to them what Kryptonite did to Superman. Diana, one of the alien leaders, is on trial for "genocide, crimes against humanity and cannibalism."

"That's a matter of taste," says Diana (Jane Badler).

While Diana has been in protective custody, all your favorite resistance fighters have been flourishing:

Newsman Mike Donovan (Marc Singer) is back playing street reporter after saving the world and resisting a cushy anchor job. "That's show biz; I'm a newsman," he says.

Elias (Michael Wright), another hero, now runs a disco, endorses the latest in galactic sneakers and is technical adviser on the movie, "Lizard Kill." (The best thing that can be said for "V" is that it never does take itself too seriously).

Dr. Julie Parrish (Faye Grant) is a scientific researcher for the corrupt corporate magnate Nathan Bates (Lane Smith), whose company, Science Frontiers, manufactures red dust.

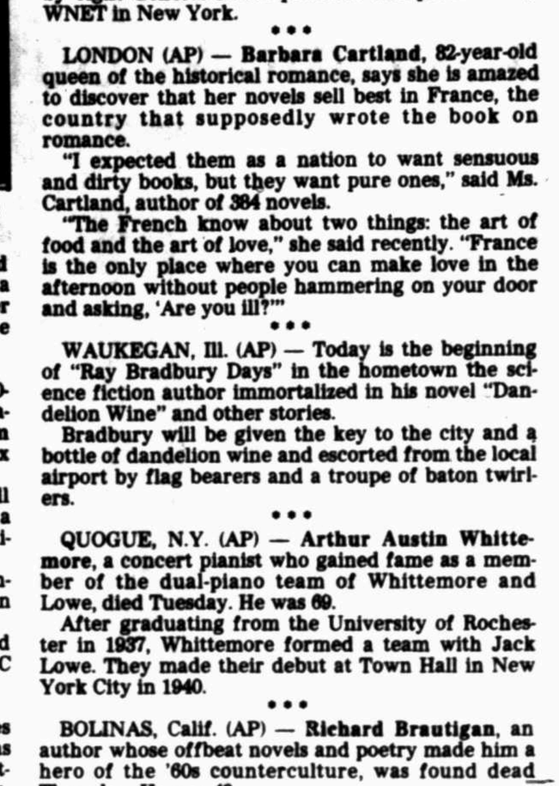

Bates helps Diana escape tonight because he believes he can profit from the aliens' scientific discoveries, such as their cancer cure.

Then there is Elizabeth (Jenny Beck), the offspring of a human mother and alien father. Her medication isn't working so well, and she seems to be undergoing a metamorphosis. She travels to a cave and sprouts a cocoon.

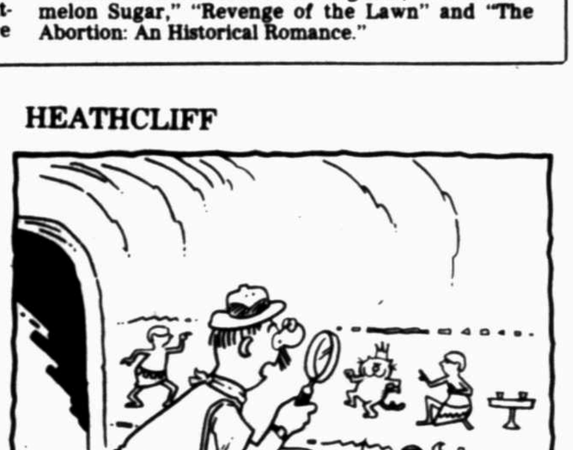

Another returning star from the miniseries is former ABC News anchor Howard K. Smith, who, beginning with the third episode, will open each program with a "Television Free America" newscast, reporting on the war between us and them.

For as long as this series is around, put your money on a standoff.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	6 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

Being too passive on defense gives away many a contract by allowing declarer time to develop suits. Being too active can sin in other ways, as this hand from the trials to select Canada's team for the current World Team Olympiad proves.

South's jump to four hearts on a hand with only one ace, no fit for partner's suit and some wasted values in clubs is open to question – three hearts seems sufficient. No fault can be attached to North for his leap to a slam that had no play – until West chose to lend a hand!

The opening lead of the king of diamonds was, to say the least, adventurous. Declarer, Joe Silver of Montreal, now had a chance. He won the first trick and crossed to the king of hearts, cashed the king-queen of clubs and got back to dummy with the queen of hearts to lead the ace of clubs. East would have done well to let declarer discard his spade on the ace of clubs, which would still have beaten the contract a trick, but he chose to ruff and declarer overruffed. Declarer now ran trumps to prepare for this four-card ending:

♠ Q J
◇ 10 7

♠ 10	♠ A K
♡ -	♡ -
◇ 8	◇ J 9
♣ 10 8	♣ -

♠ 8
♡ 3
◇ Q 6

When declarer now leads his last trump, East is forced to sluff a high spade, as does dummy. East is now thrown on lead with a spade and he has to lead away from his diamonds into declarer's combined tenace, giving declarer two more tricks in that suit and his slam.

However, East saw the ending coming and he sluffed his diamonds in the hope that his partner had started with king-queen. That was 12 tricks the easy way.

Leaving town?

With only slightly more than a week remaining before the Nov. 6th general election and political campaigning at full tilt, most people probably believe they've heard enough about elections for awhile.

Although the continuing campaigns may be getting a little old about now, prospective voters shouldn't lose interest just yet. The most important part is still to come.

Of course that part is the act of voters going to the polls to cast ballots for the candidates of their choice. Otherwise, all that which has preceded the election will have been in vain. The simple act of voting is what makes our political system so special.

All too frequently, though, events can occur that prevent voters from going to the polls on election day and when those events happen, voters lose their cherished privilege to participate in the process of electing their leaders. Fortunately, a procedure exists for voters who can anticipate events that may keep them from exercising their right to vote on Nov. 6th. It's called absentee voting.

That provision allows voters who recognize in advance that they will not be in the county of their residence on election day to cast ballots ahead of time. Absentee voting, which began Oct. 17th, is continuing through Nov. 2nd at the elections administrator's office at 709 W. Washington.

Since this is a presidential election year, local officials are predicting an unusually heavy turnout both for absentee balloting and at the polls on Nov. 6th. That appears to be an accurate prediction judging from the number of absentee voters. As of Wednesday 4,351 Midlanders already had cast ballots. By time all the ballots are in and tallied on election day, a record 54,600 voters could vote in Midland County, the officials predict.

Don't take a chance with your right to vote. If you're going to be out of town on Nov. 6th or unable to go to the polls for any other reason, vote absentee.

Strongest recovery

"This has been the strongest recovery in the post-war period."

These were the words of the Secretary of the United States Department of Commerce, Malcolm Baldrige, and he had sound reasons to say what he said. He was speaking on the occasion of the announcement by his agency that the Gross National Product, or the total of goods and services sold, had increased for the third consecutive quarter.

The GNP zoomed up 10.1 percent in the first quarter of 1984, and rolled on to a robust increment of 7.1 percent in the second quarter. This increase in the next three months was 2.7 percent, and while this obviously was a slower pace, the significant thing to bear in mind is that it was an upward and not a downward movement.

One of the reasons for the lower third-quarter increase in the GNP is that retail sales historically ease up in July, August and September, due to vacations and a lot of other factors. Secretary Baldrige took note of this in the following manner:

"Consumers took an extended summer lunch break during the third quarter," but he added that the slowdown "is already behind us" and predicted a rebound at a 4 percent rate in the fourth quarter. Furthermore, he foresees continued economic growth throghout 1985.

The Secretary's report of the steady expansion of the Gross National Product in 1984, and prospects for continued growth in 1985, are an appropriate way to usher in the third year of the recovery come November.

Another View:
No one-way street

Statements made by Soviet leader Konstantin Chernenko in a Washington Post interview don't necessarily mean that the Soviet Union wants serious arms talks with the United States, although that could be possible.

A more plausible explanation for Chernenko's remarks on U.S.-Soviet talks is that after spending billions of dollars to build a nuclear missile force bigger and more modern than that of the United States, the Soviet Union is afraid that U.S. space weapons technology could neutralize the Soviet advantage.

That could explain why Chernenko is again attempting to get the United States to call a moratorium on space weapons tests. The Soviets say a moratorium would be a sign that the United States is sincere about wanting to talk about arms reductions.

Chernenko said nothing to indicate that the Soviets would make a comparable gesture. The Reagan administration was quite right to respond that the United States doesn't feel it has to "pay a price" merely to get the Russians back to the negotiating table. It was the Soviets, not the United States, who broke off talks on strategic and tactical missiles a year ago.

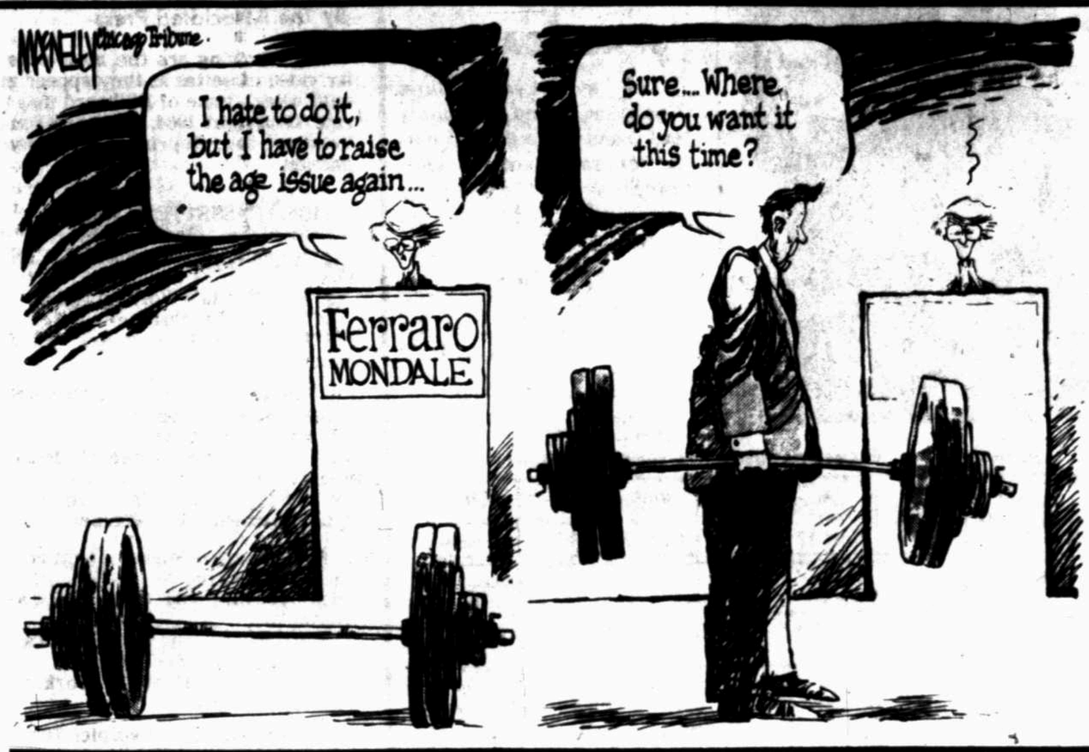

Compounding the distortions, Chernenko called on the United States to pledge not to be the first to use nuclear weapons. Every U.S. president beginning with Dwight Eisenhower has pledged not to use strategic nuclear weapons in a pre-emptive first strike. (The United States is a member of the NATO, which has plans calling for the use of tactical nuclear weapons to defend Western Europe if the Warsaw Pact nations attacked with their superior conventional forces.)

Among the reasons to doubt Chernenko's sincerity was a report in Jane's Defense Weekly that said the Soviets may be trying to hide a new generation of intercontinental missiles among the medium-range SS-20s deployed in Eastern bloc countries. Jane's said the report, if correct, could mean that the Soviet Union is out of compliance with the SALT I treaty, which the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to observe although it has expired.

Chernenko can't have it both ways. It defies logic for the Soviets to continue their unprecedented military buildup while at the same time trying to plead that they are the aggrieved party and demanding a unilateral show of good faith from the United States.

The United States should do whatever it reasonably can to get the arms talks started again. But that goal could be elusive as long as the Soviet approach is concentrated on gaining the upper hand instead of finding a realistic formula to reduce tensions.

Agencies urge caution on talks

WASHINGTON — Though Soviet President Konstantin Chernenko has opened the door a crack, President Reagan is hesitant to enter his parlor and negotiate an arms-control agreement. Reagan suspects that the Kremlin's real purpose is to bolster Soviet military strength relative to the United States.

His suspicion is based on a recent National Intelligence Estimate submitted without dissent by all nine U.S. civilian and military intelligence agencies. The document, classified "secret," states succinctly:

Jack Anderson

"The Soviet Union considers the principal purposes of arms-control limitations to be those of enhancing its strategic position vis-a-vis that of the United States and reducing the risk of war."

The estimate continues: "The pursuit of strategic advantage outweighs considerations of cost, of controlling the arms race, or of the possible destabilizing effect of particular weapons."

In any discussion of disarmament and detente, the document declares, the Soviets "have sought to preserve the military advantages they already possess and to protect the military programs and options they intend to pursue."

One reason for this hard-line assessment, I'm told, is that Reagan appointees have gained the ascendancy in the various intelligence agencies. They may also be protecting their jobs by telling the president what they think he wants to hear.

But the intelligence analysts also have a wealth of evidence to support their concern about Soviet intentions: the Afghanistan aggression, the shooting down of the Korean airliner and the detection of Soviet violations of existing arms agreements.

Whatever the cause, there is little doubt that the Reagan administration has achieved a conservative tilt at least in the top echelons of the intelligence agencies — the levels where assessments are made and sent to the White House.

Here are other passages from the secret document, which was reviewed by my associate Dale Van Atta:

— Intelligence studies "affirm that arms-control negotiations are used to support other Soviet objectives, which include dividing the Western alliance and blocking their specific weapons or modernization programs."

— "An effective propaganda effort, directed from the highest levels of government, supports these objectives.

"Much of the propaganda is focused on encouraging complacency among the Western democracies and on exploiting the tendency in some part of the European political spectrum to equate the mere fact of visible diplomatic activity — for example, arms-control negotiations — with progress toward peace and thus, by implication, with a reduced need for a vigorous defense."

— "These attitudes persist despite the mounting evidence of questionable Soviet practices regarding compliance with treaty obligations."

Soviet propaganda, though it doesn't create the vociferous agitation against U.S. militarism, "at least helps to sustain it," according to the estimate.

STRICTLY PERSONAL: I continue to receive inquiries about the "intelligence failure" in Beirut before the bombing attacks on the U.S. Embassy and the Marine headquarters.

I reported 18 months ago that our code breakers had intercepted some alarming communications before the first car-bomb explosion rocked the U.S. Embassy. The intercepts gave clear indication that a Shiite Moslem group, fanatically loyal to Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini, was planning to bomb the Beirut embassy.

The embassy was struck on April 18, 1983. Two days later, the supersecret National Intelligence Daily, a document that is circulated to fewer than 100 high-level U.S. officials, acknowledged that advance warnings had been received. The document charged that the bomb attack was supervised by a high official in the Iranian Foreign Ministry, who gave final approval.

The intelligence community also had advance warning that the U.S. Marine headquarters would be a likely target. Yet no precautions were taken to stop the kamikaze who drove a truckload of explosives onto the base and blew up the Marine barracks on Oct. 23, 1983.

Then earlier this month, I reported that Iran's President Hojatollislam Khamenei flew into Lebanon's Bekaa Valley where the suicide bombers are stationed.

Again there were reliable intelligence warnings that the embassy annex was likely to be struck several days before the Sept. 20 bombing. Our intelligence agencies also knew that Khamenei had made a mysterious appearance in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley two weeks before the bombing. He flew to Baalbek where the suicide bombers are deployed.

We are having trouble, however, with our human intelligence in Lebanon. Time has marched on and the CIA hasn't caught up yet. When the Israelis kicked the Palestine Liberation Organization fighters out of Lebanon, some of the best U.S. informants were with them.

And the new terrorists — the ones who have carried out the anti-American bombings in Beirut — are Shiite Moslems. The militant groups are often clans or families, all known to each other and, therefore, virtually impossible to infiltrate. The CIA is working on the problem, but don't hold your breath.

Killing age issue buried Fritz

KANSAS CITY — President Reagan's deft touch in killing the age issue as the last visible impediment to beating Walter Mondale proved the efficacy of Secretary of State George Shultz's advice during last week's prepping session: "Follow your instinct, Mr. President."

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

While Reagan followed his instinct, Walter Mondale attempted the improbable: to portray himself as a more knowledgable and reliable nuclear commander in chief and a stronger leader than Ronald Reagan, a reversal of perceived roles that seemed highly unlikely to sway many voters at this late date.

Reagan's instinct was to turn the age issue on its head in a witty, unrehearsed disavowal of intent to use it in reverse against Mondale. Reagan pollster Richard Wirthlin's computerized focus group of representative voters shot back a stunningly favorable "trace," or reaction, that one Reagan campaign aide told us "went right off the charts."

That killed the last realistic prospect of a Mondale miracle on Nov. 6 and showed that non-politician Shultz, at least, understood that Reagan's instinct has infinitely more value than all those statistics stuffed into his head for the disastrous Oct. 7 debate.

It also exposed the deadly flaw in the latter stages of the Mondale campaign: tie Reagan's alleged recklessness on the nuclear war issue to ignorance and senility. That is a switch from earlier efforts that sought to endow Reagan with the dangerous warmongering proclivities of Attila the Hun. The charge of playing fast and loose with nuclear war remains; its rationale has switched to competence, a quality that Mondale claimed as his alone in his effort to supersede Reagan as the tough-minded commander in chief.

Mondale's intent to keep the pressure on this issue was dramatized at his post-debate rally in the Muehlebach Hotel. He ridiculed Reagan, accusing him of being stupid enough to believe that naval commanders could press the recall button for a submarine-launched, nuclear-tipped missile and that "it would back up."

Minutes later, Barry Carter, one of Mondale's principal debate briefers, carried the theme further. With a straight face, he told reporters that he was genuinely "frightened" by Reagan's alleged ignorance of weapons and warfare. Although that theme would now seem obsolete in view of Reagan's disposal of the age or senility issue, just as Reagan earlier disposed of the warmonger issue, Mondale has fashioned his campaign in a way that leaves him little else.

The early promise glimpsed by some Democratic politicians in the unprecedented tax-increase proposal Mondale unveiled in his acceptance speech proved too illusory. Such a burden has it become that Fritz Mondale seldom mentions his tax package anymore. Most Democratic congressional candidates have begged him to drop it.

His electrifying choice of Rep. Geraldine Ferraro has also failed to meet earlier expectations. Reagan praised running mate George Bush Sunday night; Mondale ignored Ferraro, a curious omission if he feels she is shoring up the Mondale-Ferraro ticket.

That leaves the nuclear-leadership theme, the very same issue, now dressed in different clothes, that Jimmy Carter used with utter futility against Reagan in 1980. White House chief of staff James A. Baker III warned the president all last week that he would be facing "a mean Mondale" here. He was proved correct. Mondale ridiculed Reagan's leadership, charging presidential culpability on the terrorist bombings in Lebanon, on CIA malfeasance in Nicaragua and on nuclear holocaust as a likely product of using the atmosphere for missile defense. Propping up the charges was alleged presidential ignorance and, behind that, the spectre of senility.

The White House alarm system had been turned on. Reagan used his regular Saturday radio broadcast for a preliminary rebuttal, quoting Mondale as having said after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in 1979: "It just baffles me why the Soviets these last few years behaved as they have. And why do they have to build up all those arms?"

But the coup de grace came here when the president followed his instinct and slew the dragon of age. When that happened, Mondale's last chance seemed to disappear.

LETTERS

Ads don't tell it all

I worked for Dallas Smith for several years and resigned my position as captain of the Criminal Division after serving in that capacity for two years.

A lot of Smith's campaign ads, and letters to the editor from his friends and supporters proclaiming how great thou art Dallas Smith just simply are not the total truth. These ads are very misleading. Dallas Smith has not cleaned up the prostitution, illegal gambling, and illegal sale of alcohol after hours.

Once again Smith and his supporters are insulting the intelligence of Midland residents. Yes, there is prostitution, illegal gambling, and illegal sale of alcohol after hours in Midland County. There is one place that Smith knows has been in operation since he took office. He did raid this place a few times but finally gave up.

There are other places that Smith knows about that have been involved in illegal activities over the last seven and a half years and he has not stopped them. During the time I worked for Dallas, and since I have lived in Midland (seven and a half years), I have never known of Dallas Smith having to challenge any people wanting to operate an XXX rated theater, strip shows, or pornographic shops. Midland did not have any of these places when Dallas Smith took office. This was primarily due to the efforts of Chief of Police Wayne Gideon and Sheriff Ed Darnell.

The fact that Midland is a cleaner place to live than some other cities is not because of Dallas Smith. It is because of all of the efforts of our policemen, deputies, highway patrolmen, Texas Rangers, DPS Intelligence and Narcotic agents and Alcoholic Beverage Commission agents. They are supported by numerous city and county officials.

The Republican voters along with many Democrats (who voted in the Republican primary for the first time), chose Gary Painter in the May primary as the Republican candidate. They placed Painter before all of the voters regardless of political affiliation as the best candidate for sheriff in the Nov. 6 election.

Please join me in voting for Gary Painter this Nov. 6.

Mothers-in-law special people

October 28th is Mother-in-Law Day. We are focusing special emphasis on this relationship this week.

We would like to ask: Is this relationship in your life healthy from exercise you have given it or have you neglected this important privilege? Chances are your mother-in-law has spent many hours of unselfish service in your home to keep things running smoothly year-after-year.

I like the example of one pastor who annually pays public tribute to the training his mother-in-law gave his wife, who is a great strength to him in his ministry. What a delightful change from the mother-in-law jokes!

Let us re-evaluate the worth of this person in our lives. As a rule they are eager to serve but here are some words of caution to them: Be not critical of the lifestyle, policies or persons in your children's homes. Be there only for loving service and fellowship. Be unbiased and you might gain some pointers and perchance a son or daughter.

If you are fortunate enough to still have your second mother, I suggest that you pay her tribute by expressing your appreciation in some way on her special day or any day. You'll be glad you did.

JP endorsement upsets reader

I am upset with the decision that the Midland Reporter-Telegram made by endorsing Charlie Sprayberry for Justice of the Peace. That is not a local opinion!

I feel that after watching Mr. Sprayberry's antics over the past four years it is indeed time for a change. I realize that everyone is entitled to make mistakes, but there is a definite difference in making a mistake and a bad decision.

I was very much amused by the political ad paid for by Dewey Lee in the Midland Reporter-Telegram after he was defeated in the May Republican primary. He stated, "Remember we can still make a change in November." Which in all essence states he felt electing the Democratic party into office was a better decision than to re-elect Mr. Sprayberry back into this position of Justice of the Peace.

In conclusion, my local opinion is that your decision in the Oct. 17 edition is invalid.

Steuben Glass celebrates gallery's anniversary

AP Laserphoto

Steuben Glass, America's best known art glass company, is celebrating the anniversary of the opening of its New York City showroom with a retrospective exhibit. A well-known example of Steuben's art is the Gazelle Bowl, left, created in 1935. At right is the first Steuben gift of state, the Merry-Go-Round, given by President Harry Truman to Princess Elizabeth of England for her wedding in 1947. Both pieces are displayed in the exhibit, which ends Saturday.

NEW YORK (AP) — When Arthur A. Houghton Jr. opened the Steuben Glass gallery during the Depression, he wanted it to be "as swank as could be."

Fifty years later, pieces made by America's best-known art glass company bring between $125 and $275,000.

The blown, molded, cut, engraved or polished glass figurines, commemorative bowls and other art objects have become popular among the rich and famous and as presidential gifts for foreign dignitaries.

"Steuben is used so often because it's a 100 percent American product...and we are very proud of that," said spokeswoman Chloe Zerwick.

The first such gift of state, the Merry-Go-Round Bowl, was presented by President Harry Truman to Princess Elizabeth of England for her wedding in 1947.

President Jimmy Carter commissioned matching pieces for Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat after the signing of the Camp David accords. As a wedding gift, President Reagan gave Lady Diana and Prince Charles of England a lavish bowl depicting the Crusades.

The company even keeps a registry of gifts given to heads of state so there won't be any embarrassing duplicates.

From simple to baroque, each piece is handmade and signed by craftsmen whose methods differ little from those of the 1600s. Steuben's 200 craftsmen make only about 50,000 pieces a year. If any flaw remains after final polishing, the piece is smashed. There are no factory seconds.

"We are not in the mass market," Ms. Zerwick said.

Steuben was founded in 1903 and is named for the upstate New York county where its factory is located. It originally produced colored Art Nouveau glass but began faltering by World War I and was acquired by Corning.

The industrial glass giant considered closing Steuben in 1933, during the Depression, but put Houghton in charge of the subsidiary, which under his leadership discontinued the colored glass and concentrated on turning a surplus of high-quality optical glass into the sought-after crystal.

Starting with a prestige location, adding a sales staff instructed to assist, rather than "sell," and advertising in upper-crust magazines such as The New Yorker, Houghton and his partners created demand for a new product.

Steuben celebrated the anniversary of its Fifth Avenue showroom with a retrospective exhibit, "50 Years on Fifth," which traces the company's design evolution from Art Deco to geometric abstracts. The exhibit closes Saturday.

Perhaps the best-known example of Steuben's art is the $18,500 Gazelle Bowl, created in 1935. It was the first to be decorated with an engraving wheel that, like a drill, cuts into the surface of the glass. Encircled by graceful, leaping animals, the bowl has been in production longer than any other item.

Museum curators who selected the 40 pieces in the show favor classic, functional designs such as a small olive dish decorated by a single swirling handle. In production since 1939, it costs $200.

The exhibit also includes samples of gifts of state and intricately engraved pieces, which more than any other style are the signature of the company, and modern pieces demonstrating the new emphasis on sculpture.

"Innerland," by Eric Hilton, consists of 25 engraved, sand-blasted, blown and decorated cubes laid in a square.

Exhibit traces development of Grandma Moses' painting

NEW YORK (AP) — An exhibition of paintings by one of America's best-loved artists, Anna Mary Robertson Moses, better known as Grandma Moses, is on view at the Museum of American Folk Art here, before beginning a six-city tour.

Titled "The World of Grandma Moses," it glows with the joyous vision of its remarkable subject, the self-taught artist whose public career as a painter began when she was over 80 and whose creative energy flowed out with scarcely diminished freshness the rest of her long life.

This is the first traveling exhibition since Grandma Moses' death in 1961 at age 101. It consists of more than 50 examples of her work, with her familiar, but never exactly repeated, themes of country life, centered on her native upstate New York: the bustling winters with their sleigh rides, the harvest and sugaring-off times, the summer activities amid verdant, rolling landscapes.

The approach of this exhibition is unusual for a folk artist. It includes source material and preliminary drawings never included in a museum show before, sheds light on her working methods and traces her development — for almost alone among 20th-century folk artists, Grandma Moses did show growth and change during those late 20 or so years of full-time painting.

Iraq credited with following moderate course

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President Reagan is re-elected, he is likely to restore relations with Iraq, which until 2½ years ago was on the U.S. terrorist list, but is now credited by many analysts with following a more moderate course.

The move, acknowledged privately by administration officials, carries potential advantages but also risks. It could increase U.S. influence in the Arab world, but it also might antagonize Iran and drive that bigger and more strategic country into the arms of the Soviet Union.

Would a restoration of U.S. diplomatic ties improve prospects for peace between the Arabs and Israel? No one knows for certain.

But Fred Axelgard, a Middle East specialist at the Center for Strategic and International Studies at Georgetown University, thinks it could bolster a new U.S. peace initiative should President Reagan win a second term.

Apart from being the most dramatic diplomatic step in years, he said, it would enhance U.S. credibility with Jordan, Egypt and Saudi Arabia and their backing for American peace efforts.

"It certainly would be quite a coup for the United States," said Shireen T. Hunter, deputy director of Middle East projects at the Georgetown center, of the prospect of renewed ties. "After all, Iraq was one of the most radical Arab governments. To have relations is a positive development. If nothing else, it would give the U.S. an opportunity to have a constant dialogue with the Iraqis and possibly moderate their views."

Along with most of the Arab countries, Iraq broke relations with the United States after Israel defeated Egypt, Jordan and Syria in the 1967 Six-Day War. The purpose was to register annoyance with Washington for its military and economic aid to Israel.

For the last four years, Iraq has been bogged down in a war with Iran. It now appears to be gaining the upper hand militarily. The Soviet Union and France are Iraq's principal weapons suppliers, while the United States maintains an officially neutral stance. In fact, last March, the administration accused Iraq of using chemical weapons against Iranian troops.

And yet, the Agriculture Department this month announced a $633 million package of credit guarantees for Iraq to buy American farm commodities with up to three years to repay. Bell Helicopter Textron Inc., of Fort Worth, is discussing the purchase of up to 45 civilian helicopters without objection from the State Department.

President Sadam Hussein disclosed two weeks ago he is ready to consider resuming normal relations with the United States. The official Iraqi news agency said in July that step would be taken when it was "in the interest of national and Pan-Arab causes."

Ever since the break, the United States has been willing to repair relations with all the Arab countries. "The conditions appear to be such that a restoration of relations might very well occur in the near future," a U.S. official, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said Wednesday.

Actually, American diplomats have been stationed in Baghdad since the 1967 break, operating out of the Indian Embassy, and Iraqis in the Belgian Embassy here. Signaling his interest in improving relations, Hussein has assigned Nizar Hamdoon, an influential Baathist, to Washington. He quickly moved into the former Iraqi ambassador's home.

For years, Iraq rivaled only Libya in its hostility to Israel. It sent troops into every war with the Jewish state although it was never attacked. And, until the Osirac reactor was leveled in 1981, Iraq may have been building an atomic bomb — probably intended, according to the Israeli government, for use against Israel.

And yet, only this week, Iraq abstained when Iran tried to deny Israel its credentials to the U.N. General Assembly. A separate Palestinian bureau in Baghdad has been disbanded. An ancient synagogue is being restored, according to Christine Helms, a Brookings Institution scholar who has just written a book on Iraq.

She credits Iraq with trying to pave the way for Egypt's re-admission to the Arab League, which has not happened yet, and for helping Egypt return to the Islamic Conference. "The Iraqis wish to be perceived as a more even-handed and moderate country," she said. "Reestablishing U.S. relations would help them look more moderate politically and send a signal to Moscow that despite Iraq's dependence on Moscow for arms 'we are our own keeper,'" scholar Helms said.

Even though Iran could use help, it has steered clear of the Soviet Union, which historically has sought to extend its influence to the oil-rich Persian Gulf country. The United States, meanwhile, has had virtually no contact with Tehran since Americans were taken hostage five years ago.

Robert E. Hunter, senior fellow at the Georgetown strategic center, says it's generally a good idea to have full diplomatic relations with most countries. And, he said, if Iraq lines up with Jordan and Egypt as a counterweight to Syria, "that's a good thing."

Eighty-year-old leads protests against Marcos

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — At 80, when a stroll at the end of the day may be all that's left in a man, Lorenzo M. Tanada steadies his wooden cane and slips on a gas mask to lead another protest march outside President Ferdinand E. Marcos' palace.

"I'm not good at compromises," says the lawyer and former senator who has become a symbol of Filipino resistance to Marcos' leadership since the assassination last year of opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

Called "Father of the Nation" by his followers, Tanada commands the respect of Cabinet ministers, armed forces generals and Supreme Court justices. But his allies are leftist students, laborers and thousands of ordinary Filipinos who have taken to the streets against Marcos.

In January 1963, Tanada lay in a hospital bed, half his body paralyzed by a stroke. Seventeen months later, he was leading a nationwide campaign to boycott the National Assembly elections.

Today, he is at the frontlines of increasingly militant marches against Marcos, braving police water cannons and truncheons, tear-gas bombs and sometimes even gunfire.

Tanada also heads movements that oppose U.S. military bases and an American-funded nuclear power plant in the Philippines. As a lawyer he defends political dissidents, factory workers, priests and Communists rebels. He also heads the opposition umbrella group called the Coalition of Organizations for the Restoration of Democracy (CORD).

"Before I die, I wish this nightmare will be over," he said of Marcos' 19 years in the presidency.

Magazine cartoonists picture him as a modern-day Don Quixote, a horseman charging windmills. Not once in the dozen years he has appeared at the Supreme Court to challenge Marcos' powers has he won a case.

"I'm used to lost battles," he has said. "There were many times when I knew the end would be defeat but if you've proven your stand, winning is secondary."

History, Tanada maintains, will judge Marcos harshly.

He says the Aquino assassination, which many Filipinos suspect was a military operation, has made it increasingly difficult for the opposition to plead for non-violence.

His son Renato and Renato's daughter Karen have gone underground, accused of involvement in 1980 terrorist bombings in Manila.

Tanaka predicts more and bigger protest demonstrations, of a scale and frequency, he says, that would make it difficult for Marcos to govern.

"I will not stop. If we are persistent enough, we will be victorious in the end."

He had his first taste of water cannon and tear gas Sept. 27 when riot police attacked 3,000 protesters he was leading on a march to the presidential palace. Soaking wet and shaking with anger at the soldiers, he nearly collapsed and had to be held up by his son Roberto, who was marching with him.

The following day, his doctor warned him against taking part in demonstrations again.

"You cannot help but think of death at my age," he said recently. "But these things do not affect me."

A citation given him last year by the Ateneo de Manila, a leading university, calls him "A Man for Others."

Receiving it, he spoke misty-eyed of the burden the award placed the recipient.

"Although he may not now have the time," he told his audience, "he pledges to try to become what the citation says he is...He will strive to be nearly that man."

Sixth-ranked Rebs host high-flying Eagles

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Abilene High's highly motivated band of Eagles come flying into Memorial Stadium at 8 p.m. today with lofty and desperate hopes of staying in the thick of the District 4-5A football race.

Waiting in the wings is Midland Lee's 6-1 and No. 6 state ranked Rebels, who know a slip here could jeopardize a return trip to the state playoffs.

Most Rebel fans feel the "real season" is behind them with the Permians, San Angelos and Coopers out of the way, but the task at hand may not be as easy as it looks.

Abilene High stands at 4-3 on the season and 2-2 in district play, but AHS has won two of its last three games and the feeling is that they should have won the third one.

THE EAGLES lost a 14-13 decision to San Angelo two weeks ago after a fumble with 1:19 left in the game stopped an Eagle bid at the San Angelo 15-yard line with two timeouts left. They had 280 yards rushing to San Angelo's 88.

If the Rebels have any notion of taking another night off, those facts should wake up the sleepy. And Abilene High is coming to town knowing that another loss will put them in the "next year" category and is approaching this game as such.

"This game means a bunch to us," said AHS boss Don Cumpton. "Our backs are to the wall, but we feel like we have a chance at the playoffs if we can win this one. We have to look at it that way, otherwise, you can forget the playoffs."

Abilene High started its road back to respectability after a sound thrashing to Odessa Permian in the district opener. At that point, Cumpton inserted John Bowser, and Odessa High transfer, into the quarterback slot. The result was a 15-13 win over Midland High with Bowser throwing a fourth down TD pass in the fourth quarter for the victory.

BOWSER CONCERNS Lee coach Jack Tayrien. "Bowser may not be the best quarterback in the league as far as technique is concerned, but he is a great athlete. He can scare you to death. He is a free-lancer and you can never really zero in on him. He can run and he can throw the ball a mile. He's not the type of passer that hits the receiver in full stride, but he gets the ball there. He can beat you."

The Eagles will also have tailback Guy Sims back in the lineup after missing last week's game against Odessa High. That adds more speed to the offensive attack.

But Lee, too, has momentum after a Permian loss two weeks ago. Lee pounded out a methodical 31-0 decision over Big Spring last week and will have fullback Randy Ellis back in the lineup after going through two weeks with an ankle injury. Ellis had back-to-back 187-yard nights in his first two district games and the return of that potential should put the Lee offense back on the right track.

But it is the speed of Lee running backs Walter Jones and Tyrone Thurman that concerns Cumpton. "Lee just has great speed. Their backfield is better than last year even without Isaac Garnett. Jones and Thurman are very fast, the quarterback Bergoon is a great ball handler and can run and Ellis has a lot of speed."

Akeem, Jordan draw scrutiny

Associated Press

No. 1 pick Akeem Olajuwon dominates the spotlight on the National Basketball Association season openers in a nationally televised debut for the Houston Rockets against the Dallas Mavericks Saturday.

He does not, however, have a monopoly on big expectations.

Olajuwon probably takes a back seat in that department to Chicago rookie Michael Jordan, who led the hapless Bulls to a 5-2 preseason record. Chicago hosts the Washington Bullets tonight in one of six season-opening games.

"He's already a superstar," Kansas City General Manager Joe Axelson said of Jordan, the former North Carolina and Olympic hero. "We were playing Chicago in an exhibition game in St. Louis. The crowd was about 5,500 and they were sitting on their hands until Jordan came on the floor. It was like somebody turned the lights on.

"The whole time Jordan was in there, there was a hum in the building."

Elsewhere tonight, Atlanta is at New Jersey, Cleveland at Philadelphia, Boston at Detroit, Utah at Seattle and Phoenix at Golden State.

Saturday night's games include Detroit at New York, Philadelphia at Atlanta, New Jersey at Cleveland, Washington at Indiana, Los Angeles Lakers at San Antonio, Portland at Kansas City, Chicago at Milwaukee, Golden State at Denver and the Los Angeles Clippers at Utah.

All the plaudits aside, Jordan said he does not expect to take the NBA by storm.

"It's not going to be the Michael Jordan show," he said. "I just want to be able to fit in and help the team. I've seen the success of the Cubs, the White Sox, the Bears ... I think it's going to be time for the Bulls now."

The Celtics-Pistons matchup pairs two strong teams with revamped starting lineups.

The Celtics, who won eight straight NBA titles from 1959 through 1966, were the last team to successfully defend a championship in 1969.

"In my mind, it's no mystery, no jinx as to why teams haven't repeated," Coach K.C. Jones said. "Other teams improve through the draft and through trades, and everybody guns at the team at the top. This year, in the East alone, Washington, Detroit, Philadelphia and New Jersey all have improved."

The 76ers, after posting a 65-17 record in 1982-83 and then winning 12 of 13 playoff games en route to the championship, are back this year hoping to prove last spring's first-round playoff loss to New Jersey was a fluke.

"It really didn't hit us until we were walking off the floor after that fifth game," said 76ers General Manager Pat Williams. "Then you realize you're dethroned, defrocked. You're just another ballclub. That's when the humiliation sets in."

"In 1982-83, we tasted the thrill of victory and last year we tasted the agony of defeat," Coach Billy Cunningham said. "The pain of losing last year will serve as a catalyst for this season."

The strong Philadelphia cast of Moses Malone, Julius Erving, Andrew Toney and Bobby Jones will be joined by two first-round draft choices, Charles Barkley and Leon Wood.

Cleveland is counting on a rookie center, Mel Turpin out of Kentucky.

"Turpin has all the tools to be a dominant player in this league," said George Karl of the Cavaliers, one of four teams with new coaches.

Karl and George Irvine of Indiana are NBA coaches for the first time, while Cotton Fitzsimmons at San Antonio and Jack McKinney at Kansas City are former Coach of the Year award winners with new jobs.

"Any team that has some of the players we have can win," said Fitzsimmons, who inherits veteran stars like Artis Gilmore, George Gervin, Mike Mitchell and Johnny Moore and a top rookie in Olympian Alvin Robertson. "They had a bad year and fell from grace."

Last season, Fitzsimmons was at Kansas City, which hired McKinney five days after Fitzsimmons joined the Spurs. McKinney was fired by Indiana after posting a 26-52 record.

"I'm not the least bit bothered by his record last year," Axelson said of McKinney. "I know he's an innovator and teacher."

Karl will be the youngest head coach in the league at 33, while Irvine is not much older at 36.

Rebel playoff hopes ended by 'Dog attack

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Yogi Berra was right, "It ain't over til it's over." That's a fact the Midland Lee Rebels found out the hard way Thursday night as they dropped their season finale to cross-town rival Midland High, 15-8, 14-16, 7-15.

After an easy victory in the first game, the Rebels, who needed a victory to keep mathematical hopes for a playoff berth alive, ran up a 14-8 lead in the second game before losing control. Twice Lee was serving at game point down the stretch and twice the Bulldog defense held.

The third and last time the Rebels got the ball, the game was tied at 14. Again Midland High refused to give up a point as Laura Martin spiked home a winner to return the ball to the Bulldog offense.

Frogs, 'Horns take SWC stage

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

What a hoopla homecoming for those wonderfully wacky Horned Frogs of Texas Christian Coach Jim Wacker!

Representatives from six bowls, the Bluebonnet, Fiesta, Sun, Liberty, Peach and Independence, will be on hand for the Saturday morning Southwest Conference joust with the Baylor Bears in Amon Carter Stadium in Fort Worth.

It will be televised at 11:30 a.m. over the SWC network.

And guess who else will be hanging out in Cowtown?

For one, an ABC news team was filming a piece on Wacker.

And Texas Christian graduate author Dan Jenkins, who filmed an interview about the school for the NBC Today Show, was going to stay around for the game.

The oddsmakers have even jumped on the bandwagon making the Horned Frogs a touchdown choice over the Bears.

The 5-1 Frogs are off to their best start in 26 years.

Some 30,000 fans are expected for the game. TCU is 2-1 in the SWC while Baylor is 2-4 overall and 2-2 in league play.

Another game under the red eye of television is No. 3-ranked Texas against No. 14-rated Southern Methodist in Austin at 2:50 p.m.

ABC-TV developed a lukewarm attitude toward the game after Houston upset SMU last week and will show the game in the Southwest area only. The network went with LSU-Notre Dame nationally.

Texas rated a seven-point choice over the Mustangs although the home team hasn't been victorious in this series since 1979.

In other SWC games, the league-leading Houston Cougars were field goal underdogs to Arkansas although the game is being played in the Astrodome; Texas A&M was a 17-point pick over the Rice Owls at College Station; and Texas Tech was a thin one-point nod over the Tulsa Hurricane in an intersectional tilt at Lubbock.

TCU has never been overly successful in homecoming games.

In fact, the Frogs have won only one game before the returning alumni in the last 12 years — a 24-17 victory over Texas Tech in 1980.

Overall, TCU is 20-32-5 before the old grads.

Baylor is 4-2-1 over TCU in Frog Homecoming games.

"The joy ride is over," said Wacker, who was rewarded Thursday with a new seven-year contract. "We don't have anything but a long winding road ahead, one tough conference game after another."

Wacker passed up a chance to sober up his troops by showing them last season's 56-21 rout by the Bears.

"I started to get the film out but then I started to get sick," Wacker joked.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said the Frogs are "in a good position for a fine season and a bowl game. They've got a lot of things going their way now. It will be a great challenge to stop them."

SMU has to overcome a 29-20 upset by Houston.

"The loss has put a lot of pressure on us to beat Texas," said SMU linebacker Jerry Ball. "If we lose, we don't win the Southwest Conference title. It's that simple."

Anthony Beverley, another SMU linebacker, said "I think we can come back and beat Texas. We just have correct the stupid things we did against Houston."

Board tries new ticket policy

In the wake of a new ticket selling policy adopted by the Midland school board Tuesday, Ed Nixon, Midland's assistant athletic director, claims that he is already getting calls from Midland Lee season ticket holders concerning tickets for the Nov. 9 meeting between Lee and Midland High.

On Tuesday, the board adopted a new policy for selling tickets to out-of-town games of both schools. Season ticket holders at both schools may now purchase one ticket per season ticket owned on Tuesday prior to the out-of-town game from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the ticket office at the northeast corner of Memorial Stadium.

The new policy was put into effect after Midland Lee boosters purchased the bulk of the Permian-Lee tickets, which was a sellout in Odessa two weeks ago.

Now, many Lee season ticket holders are wanting to know if they can get first crack at the remaining Lee-MHS tickets on the Tuesday prior to Nov. 9.

"We will treat the Midland High-Lee game as a home game and tickets will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis on Wednesday prior to the game," said Nixon. "Midland High is the home team and their season ticket holders already have tickets in hand. Lee is the visitor and we offered to sell an additional ticket to that game when we were selling season tickets. Over 1,000 Lee fans took the opportunity and around 700 didn't. Those fans will have to buy tickets on Wednesday like everyone else. Season ticket holders at both schools have had the chance to buy a ticket for that game."

So, that should draw the battle lines for the potential sellout at Memorial Stadium on Nov. 9. It was also publicized in the Reporter-Telegram that Lee fans would have the opportunity to buy the extra tickets for the MHS game with the season ticket package.

IT IS the feeling here that the board over-reacted a bit on its new policy. It really isn't necessary to give season ticket holders a Tuesday jump for most out-of-town games. The new policy should have just dealt with possible sellouts.

However, the move was in response to a critical situation and shows that the administration and board wanted to deal with the problem. Everyone may not be satisfied with the new policy, but at least, there are firm guidelines to follow in the future. That is a step in the right direction.

And now tonight's picks:

Midland Lee 24, Abilene High 10: The Eagles will be tough in this one because they really feel like they will have a great shot at the playoffs with the upset. The Rebels, however, know the mission at hand and are fullback healthy again.

Abilene Cooper 21, Midland High 14: This is an Air Force bombing run looking for a target. The Bulldogs could insure themselves a winning season with the upset.

Odessa Permian 28, San Angelo 7: Nearly everyone in the league is hoping this comes to pass. If Permian loses, the lower teams may be buried with three teams ahead of them with only one loss while Permian, Lee and San Angelo might face a three-way tie for first place and only two playoff berths available. My mathematics says that leaves a bitter pill for someone to swallow.

Odessa High 14, Big Spring 7: The battle for last place. This may be the last chance for either team to win a 4-5A game this year. There probably aren't two more teams in the league who will be any more pumped up.

MHS, Lee coaching changes have worked

When Midland High changed football coaches this year, it caused a lot more comment around town than the coaching change at Midland Lee.

Doug McCutchen was an unknown quality and he started talking about a veer offense and 4-3 defense, something the Bulldogs didn't know the first thing about. They were in the wishbone and I, among others, on offense and the eight-man line on defense the past four years. What the heck was a veer?

Jack Tayrien was just a new name after the words head coach. He was known in Midland from his assistant coaching days under Spike Dykes and he liked things the way they were at Midland Lee. His transition was that much easier.

FOR McCUTCHEN, it has been a phenomenal start. He taught the Bulldogs his new system and coached them to a 4-0 record. One of his most common statements this year is, "We have the people to work with, all we have to do is execute our plays."

He coached the Bulldogs to within one fourth-down pass play of a 5-0 record, losing late in the fourth quarter to Abilene High, and came back for a 5-1 mark with a victory over Odessa High.

Unfortunately, the last third of the football season is Midland High's toughest with three AP Top 10 ranked, or previously ranked, teams to face.

San Angelo, ranked in the Top 10 before losing to Midland Lee in the District 4-5A season opener, jumped out to a 7-0 lead in the second quarter, held it until halftime and lost most of it in the third quarter when the Bulldogs scored their only TD of the game. Two fourth quarter touchdowns insured the victory for San Angelo, dropping Midland High's record to 5-2.

Now the Bulldogs have Abilene Cooper, a team noted for its ability to pass — short as well as long.

In all of Midland High's successes and failures, the defense has kept them alive.

No team has been able to knock them out of any ball game. The defense has been hit a time or two, but was still standing at the final bell. They even threw a few punches of their own and have answered the call admirably.

Still, at 5-2, the Bulldogs need a win tonight at P.E. Shotwell Stadium if they have any hopes for a playoff berth. The toughest part of their schedule starts next week when they travel to Ratliff Stadium to take on unbeaten and No. 1 ranked Odessa Permian. Then follows Midland Lee. The Rebels are probably still mad about missing the playoffs two years ago because of an MHS upset.

Win or lose Doug, you've done a fine job. Nobody is complaining.

SINCE THE offensive and defensive strategy at Midland Lee is still basically the same, Tayrien's biggest problem this year was filling the shoes of all those departed seniors.

Not coming into the Lee program blind, Tayrien knew from the start where to begin looking. Still, in preseason polls it was supposed to be a down year for the Rebels, finishing third or fourth in the 4-5A race. Sports writers questioned aware of that lost group of seniors, shook their heads and said, "not this year."

Well, we were wrong. It now seems that Lee is the second best team in the district, coming out of three games against teams ranked in the AP Top 10, with a 2-1 record. People in Temple are still wondering what hit them. San Angelo knows. It was a fullback. Lee just got wet against Permian.

If the Panthers continue their unbeaten ways, Midland Lee can coast into the playoffs for a second straight year. Abilene High might give them some kind of battle tonight, but for next week, Odessa High is a severely bruised horse, already broken to bit and rein.

Midland High, with all that improvement over last year, will probably be Lee's toughest game of the final three. History shows that 'Dogs like to bite Rebs whenever possible. That's because Rebs have been known to kick 'Dogs.

Tayrien, too has done an outstanding job in his first year as Lee head coach. People are already asking when will Lee and Permian meet in the playoffs. The key word there is when. The word 'if' is rarely heard. Lee wants a second shot at Permian.

I, for one, agree with them. I'm already looking forward to the quarterfinals. Sorry to the others, but I think you've got the second best group of guns in the league.

Mounties seek rare PSU win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Penn State holds the NCAA record for most consecutive non-losing seasons. The Nittany Lions have not finished under .500 since 1938 and will by trying to extend their mark to 46 years in a row Saturday when they visit West Virginia.

Over the years, West Virginia has been a major contributor to Penn State's success. The Mountaineers have not defeated the Nittany Lions since 1955, managing only a 14-14 tie in 1958 and losing all the others.

So it comes as something of a surprise that West Virginia is a 2-point favorite. The reasons, of course, are WVU's 6-1 record to Penn State's 5-2, the home field advantage and the Mountaineers' 21-20 victory over previously unbeaten Boston College last week.

"We've never played well against them since we've become a good team," says WVU Coach Don Nehlen. "When we were a bad team, we played well against them because they thought we were lousy. Now they know we're good and it's a different ballgame. We have to take Penn State's best shot.

"But we're not afraid to line up against anybody. Anybody we line up against we believe we're good enough to beat, and that includes Doug Flutie and Penn State."

The Mountaineers got a measure of revenge against Boston College — B.C. was voted the top team in the East a year ago despite losing to WVU — and Penn State just might be looking ahead to B.C. One of college football's longest stretches of futility may come to an end . . . West Virginia 21-14.

Last week's prediction record was 44 right and 11 wrong for a percentage of .800; for the season, 281-97-9—.743. Against the spread, last week's score was 20-16-1—.556; on the year, 112-107-4—.511.

No. 14 Southern Methodist at No. 3 Texas (favored by 7): Asked whether SMU's players were looking past Houston when they lost last week, Texas Coach Fred Akers said he "can't even tell when ours are looking ahead, much less theirs." The Longhorns are looking ahead to the Cotton Bowl . . . Texas 20-13.

Arizona at No. 1 Washington (by 7½): The Huskies have had two poor offensive outings in a row but their defense has allowed only 8.1 points a game, tops in the country . . . Washington 24-14.

No. 2 Oklahoma (by 23) at Kansas: Quarterback Danny Bradley has a sprained ankle and torn ligaments in his hand, but the Sooners should have learned their lesson in last week's close call against Iowa State. And if they haven't, the defense will bail them out . . . Oklahoma 28-14.

Kansas State at No. 4 Nebraska (by 31): Cornhusker Coach Tom Osborne says K-State "almost always comes up with something different" on defense. But the Wildcats allowed 42 points against TCU, 49 to South Carolina and 61 to Missouri . . . Nebraska 49-14.

Brigham Young (by 18) at New Mexico: The Cougars have had two scares in a row. New Mexico was 4-0 in September, 0-3 in October . . . BYU 38-14.

No. 6 Ohio State (by 8) at Wisconsin: The Buckeyes have flirted with danger the last four games and it cost them against Purdue . . . Ohio State . . . 27-14.

Notre Dame at No. 7 LSU (by 10): Washington's Don James thinks LSU may be the best team in the country. Meanwhile, Notre Dame has gone downhill since Gerry Faust debuted with a 27-9 victory over the Tigers in 1981. Maybe a road trip is what the Irish need. Upset Special of the Week . . . Notre Dame 24-17.

East Carolina at No. 9 South Carolina (by 19): "Taking Georgia, Pitt and Notre Dame in one year is exciting," says S.C. Coach Joe Morrison. This is no time to stumble . . . South Carolina 35-14.

Colorado at No. 10 Oklahoma State (by 30): "Colorado got my players' attention" by leading Nebraska after three periods last week, says Coach Pat Jones of . . . Oklahoma State 31-10.

Rutgers at No. 11 Boston College (by 14): Rutgers catches the Eagles between West Virginia and Penn State, but Flutie & Co. should be smarting after suffering their first loss . . . Boston College 34-14.

No. 12 Auburn (by 12) at Mississippi State: The Tigers could be looking ahead to Florida, but MSU has lost four of its last five . . . Auburn 28-14.

No. 13 Georgia (by 5½) at Kentucky: Georgia fans reportedly got bored during Vince "Point A Minute" Dooley's 62-35 rout of Vanderbilt. Second Upset Special . . . Kentucky 21-20.

No. 17 Iowa (by 18) at Indiana: The Hoosiers' 12-game losing streak is the nation's longest and this won't help . . . Iowa 28-7.

California at No. 20 Southern California (by 11): The Trojans have been winning close, the Bears have been losing close . . . Southern Cal 24-12.

Army at Syracuse (by 6½): Third Upset Special . . . Army 16-13.

Cougars rip New Mexico

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico's nickel defense and one was no match for Brigham Young's latest golden arm.

Quarterback Robbie Bosco, the newest model in the long line of Brigham Young passing wizards, threw three touchdown passes and teamed with bullish fullback Lakei Heimuli to lead the unbeaten and fifth-ranked Cougars to a 48-0 Western Athletic Conference football victory over New Mexico Thursday night.

Bosco promptly solved the Lobos' unorthodox defense to extend BYU's winning streak to 19, longest in major college football. BYU also has won 19 straight conference games.

"They sort of out-classed us," said an understating New Mexico Coach Joe Lee Dunn. "We're not in the same league with them."

The Lobos employed up to six defensive backs, at times setting up with only one down lineman, to try and stop Bosco, who has thrown for more than 2,600 yards and 23 touchdowns this season.

But nothing worked as Bosco methodically and patiently picked apart the Lobo defense. He completed 19 of 29 passes for 227 yards and connected with wide receiver Glen Kozlowski on scoring strikes of seven, 10 and three yards.

"New Mexico's changing defense didn't bother us," Bosco said. "We called the plays that worked in those defensive situations and after we adjusted we were OK."

Riding a pro-style offense, BYU has won the WAC eight straight years and appears unstoppable in its bid for a ninth conference title. The Cougars are 8-0 overall and 5-0 in the WAC.

New Mexico, losing its fourth straight in league play, dropped to 4-4 overall and 1-4 in the WAC.

New Mexico, riddled by injuries the last four weeks, killed what few scoring opportunities it had with seven turnovers.

The Lobos also lost their second quarterback in three weeks when senior Todd Williamson suffered a broken bone in his throwing hand in the first half.

Frogs' Wacker gets seven-year deal

Associated Press

FOOTBALL - Texas Christian football Coach Jim Wacker says his new seven-year contract with the Horned Frogs was a pleasant midseason surprise.

"It is fun to have a situation now where we can lock in and build the best team in the Southwest Conference," said Wacker, who turned the beleaguered Horned Frogs into a winning team this year.

University officials, who made the announcement Thursday, said a salary increase is included in the new contract. Officials did not disclose monetary terms.

Wacker's original four-year pact was signed in December 1982 and had two years remaining, Tucker said.

Wacker propelled his team from last year's dismal 1-8-2 record to a 5-1 mark this season. Wacker joined TCU after coaching at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos...

The Pittsburgh Maulers, who lost 15 of 18 games and more than $6 million in their first United States Football League season, officially went out of business.

Although the Maulers have disbanded "effective immediately," according to president Paul Martha, there are rumored merger talks between owner Edward J. DeBartolo and the Philadelphia Stars...

TENNIS - Top-seeded Rod Laver and Mal Anderson moved into the semifinals of the Mutual Benefit Grand Masters Tennis Tournament with easy victories in Salt Lake City.

Laver had little trouble Thursday night defeating India's Raman Krishnan 6-3, 6-2, while Anderson eliminated fellow Australian Roy Emerson 6-2, 6-4.

Laver, of Solvang, Calif., and Anderson will meet in one semifinal tonight while the the other semifinal features Australians second-seeded Ken Rosewall and Fred Stolle...

Andrea Temesvari of Hungary disposed of Britain's Virginia Wade 6-3, 7-6 in the second round of the annual international meet at the Royal Albert Hall in London.

Andres Gomez of Ecuador and Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smid, the two top seeds, advanced to the quarterfinals with tough second-round victories in the $200,000 Seiko Super Tennis Tournament in Hong Kong.

VOLLEYBALL

Amy Hubbard dropped back to serve. The Rebel defense came up with the ball and set it up for Michelle Lance. Lance's attempt to kill the ball with a spike went long and Midland High had game-point. The Rebels sent Hubbard's second serve back over the net. The Bulldogs set it up and Martin spiked it home for the 16-14 win.

In the third game, the Rebels looked liked they'd shaken off the previous loss as they jumped out to a 7-0 lead. It was the last bit of offense Lee would see. The Bulldogs counterd with shutout defense while scoring 15 unanswered points to win the match.

The loss ended any hope the Rebels had of claiming a playoff berth. Instead of possibly tying second place Abilene Cooper, the Rebels and Bulldogs finished the season in a three-way tie for third place, along with Big Spring, at 8-6.

As it turned out, a win over Midland High would have made no difference in the playoff race as Cooper defeated a surprisingly game Abilene High, 14-16, 15-2, 15-2.

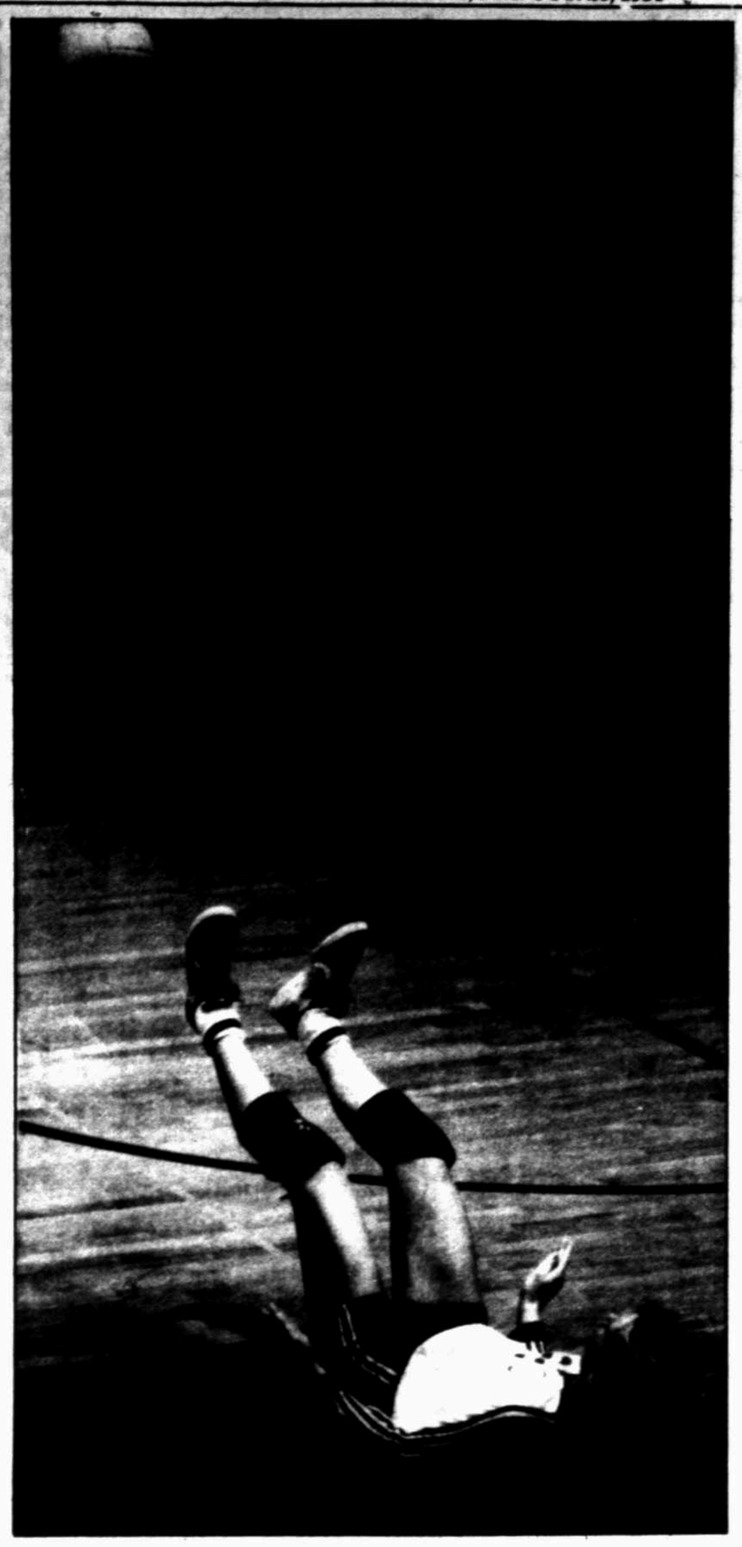

"We played hard but just didn't get that one last point," said Lee's Megan Pace of the second game loss. "That got us down and then they chiped away at us. We started adding mistakes on mistakes."

"I don't know where they got it from at the end but they found it," said MHS coach Sonja Pittman about the come back."

Midland High's Denise Lanz, who was awarded the game ball, gave a possible answer. "It must be our determination. Deep down I think we didn't want to lose, like any other team doesn't like to lose," she said. "We wanted to end our season on a good note. We didn't want to lose to Lee."

FOR THE seniors on the two teams, the match was the final one of their high school careers.

"I'm kind of sad that it's over after being here three years," said Lanz, who was a member of the District championship team her sophomore year. "This was the last game. It's kind of sad."

Landrum survives start to post early Pensacola lead

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — It was not a particularly good start to the day for Ralph Landrum.

He woke up Thursday with his right eye almost swollen shut. "I guess it had gotten irritated and I rubbed it too much," he said.

When he got to the course for the start of the $300,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament, his caddy was missing. "I just grabbed one out of the bullpen," he said.

Then he made a bogey-6 from the middle of the fairway on the second hole he played.

But Landrum, enjoying what he called "pot luck — the hole just got in the way a lot" scattered nine birdies across his card, one-putted 10 times, and compiled the best score of his two-year PGA Tour career, an 8-under-par 63. It staked him to a three-stroke lead after the first round.

"The difference was that I made a lot of putts (including a couple from 12-15 feet to save pars). Maybe I made a lot of putts because I couldn't see very well out of the right eye. I'll go home and rub it some more tonight. Maybe stick a fork in it," he said.

Mark O'Meara stuck three shots in the water on the way to a scrambling, struggling 77 that virtually ended his hopes of obtaining any of golf's three major seasonal honors in this, the last official event on the 10-month PGA Tour.

His poor opening round all but assured the absent Cal Peete of the Vardon Trophy, which goes to the man with the low-stroke average on the Tour. O'Meara, the only man with a chance to catch him, would have to shoot three rounds of 63.

And, O'Meara, needing a sixth place finish here to overtake Tom Watson as the year's leading money-winner, is in danger of missing the cut for the final two rounds.

No. 1-ranked Permian also No. 1 in 4-5A statistics

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Odessa Permian, ranked No. 1 in the state and off to a perfect 7-0 mark in 1984, is also beginning to dominate the District 4-5A statistical leaders.

In the Panthers' 27-9 victory over Abilene Cooper last Friday, work horse fullback Dal Watson took over as the league's rushing leader with a 153-yard effort against the Cougars.

Watson now has 725 yards after that effort and dislodged Cooper running back Wayne Tollison as the loop's top runner. Watson is averaging 6.1 yards per carry and has scored 12 touchdowns for 72 points on the year.

In fact, Tollison, who has 702 yards after seven games, fell to third in the league as San Angelo's C.L. Bowman came up with a big 152-yard effort against Midland High last week.

Bowman moved into second in the rushing race with 711 yards and scored three touchdowns to tie Watson for the league's scoring lead.

Midland Lee's Walter Jones (657) and Tyrone Thurman (578) follow the above threesome with Jones just off the 1,000-yard pace projected for 10 games.

Permian also ranks as the best in the league in team offense and team defense. That has proven to be a tough combination to beat. Permian is averaging an amazing 411.7 yards per game and giving up only an average of 149.3 to its opponents.

Cooper, averaging 355.1 per game, ranks second offensively while Lee's 337.7 mark is third. Midland High ranks fifth with 266 per game, just behind San Angelo's 288.

San Angelo, however, ranks second in team defense, giving up only 186.9 per outing and Lee is again third with 204.9. Midland High is fourth with 210.1.

Cooper quarterback Doug Hadley contiunes to be 4-5A's top aerial artist, completing 80 of 171 passes for 1,368. That's 534 yards more than Permian's Alton Holloway, who ranks second. Hadley is also the league's total offense leader, producing just over 204 yards per game, running and passing.

Permian's Watson is the best all-around threat with 828 yards in both rushing and receiving. Cooper's Anderson is the league's best receiver, catching 26 passes for 448 yards.

Watson won hands down in his rushing showdown with Tollison last weekend, but now has another showdown tonight with San Angelo's Bowman. Just 14 yards separates the two runners.

Watson will also be in a punting showdown with San Angelo's Brian Ross tonight. Ross is averaging 40.6 per kick this year to lead league punters while Watson stands at 36.7 for second place.

MHS sophs notch 15-14 win over Rebs

From Staff Reports

Midland High's sophomore Bullpups overcame a rain-soaked field and an intense rivalry Thursday to post a 15-14 win over the Lee Rebel sophomore football team.

Anthony Adkisson scored the first TD for MHS on a 75-yard gallop on the game's second play. Tommy Yorkman's two-point conversion pass from Jaime Madrid gave the Bulldogs an 8-0 lead.

Coach Randy Quisenberry's Pups clinched their win when Madrid connected with Ricky Duran on a 25-yard pass for the final MHS score, and Richard Triplett added the point-after.

Both teams had a scoreless secnd half.

Terry Stewart answered for Lee in the first quarter on a four-yard run. Reb Stacey Long hit Jack Chase for the two-point conversion that gave Lee an 8-8 tie.

The Rebs, under coach Larry Tate, have eked out only one win this season.

In the second period, Javier Falcone had a 6-yard run to complete the Rebel scoring, and a two-point pass fell incomplete.

MIDLAND HIGH'S Junior Varsity postponed their date with Abilene Cooper until Saturday at 1 p.m. The sloppy turf played a major role in the decision, and both teams hope for better weather and less travel problems tomorrow. According to MHS sophomore coach Rick Sample, "We wanted to give the field a chance to dry out a little."

The Midland Lee Junior Varsity also is playing Saturday with a road game at Abilene Cooper.

REBELS

SO, HOW does Cumpton plan to pull what would be an upset of major proportions?

"Well, we would like to keep the ball from them. The longer we keep the speed off the field, the better off we will be. Anytime you give Lee the ball, they are a threat to score on you from anywhere on the field.

"We have to keep turnovers down in this game. Turnovers have killed us this year and the San Angelo game is just an example. You just can't give the ball to Lee and expect to stay in the game."

Rain has plagued both teams' preparation for this game and Lee fans remember the last time Lee played in the rain, a 28-13 loss to Permian. However, most forget that Lee pounded San Angelo, 49-20, on a wet night in a game played on grass. It was a night that Ellis exploded.

"Randy (Ellis) makes a big difference to our offense. You need that fullback when you can't get outside," said Tayrien. "He should be around 85 percent by game time."

Tayrien would like his Rebels to come out and answer the bell quickly in this one as any coach would.

"I think our kids are ready to play. We've had some good workouts early in the week. We were really flat all week against Big Spring, but maybe the Permian thing is out of the way now and we can concentrate on playing football. We better be ready because Abilene High will be ready to play. I'm sure they are thinking that they have real playoff hopes if they beat us.

"The Eagles will want this one and we should to. We have playoff hopes also."

BOTH CUMPTON and Tayrien are hoping that Permian defeats San Angelo tonight. An upset by San Angelo would throw the league into a frenzy, one that would probably destroy any hopes of Abilene High gaining the playoffs and could toss Lee into fighting for a three-way tie for first place even with a victory over Abilene High. Lee, especially, doesn't like the idea of a coin flip to decide two playoff teams.

But that's a matter that isn't in the hands of Eagles and Rebels. And 4-5A business at hand is enough to worry about. Other scores will have to wait until Saturday morning.

Badgers, Greenwood need OT

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

With the high school playoffs looming only a few weeks in the distance, the district races naturally tend to intensify.

In District 8-AA, the war is really getting fast and furious. With three weeks of play remaining, all six teams have a mathematical shot at post-season gold. Only Eldorado has escaped the upset bug, and they top the 8-AA with a 2-0 record.

And only Stanton has been unable to break through at 0-2. Everyone else is 1-1, and even the Buffs could create some excitement in the district before the season ends.

But tonight the eyes and ears of the district coaches will focus on the doings in Greenwood, where the 6-1 Rangers host the 6-1 McCamey Badgers.

Both schools were stunned by their first seasonal loss in district openers on the road, Greenwood losing 25-14 at Wall and McCamey falling 15-14 to Reagan County.

The road has been inhospitable in the 8-AA. In six district games, no team has traveled and won on Friday. And the Badgers will have to contend with the road as well as Roger Smith, Chad Longley and Terry O'Steen. The trio of backfield stars for Greenwood have netted at least 98 percent of the ink involving the surprising Rangers, but they've had help from a defensive unit that has notched five goose eggs in seven games.

For McCamey, tailback Rodney Terry and TE-DT James Kennedy have spearheaded the Badger attack. Terry is only a sophomore. Kennedy, a 6-7 senior, anchors a defensive unit that has allowed only three more points on the year than Greenwood's. His size and talent have dented enemy backfields, and how well the Rangers can block Kennedy tonight will determine their success.

If any team is capable of ending the home-field dominance that happens in this district, McCamey is that team. But the Badgers don't have all the weapons. It is a game with tremendous importance. It is your basic big game.

And big games almost always turn out the way no one expects. Therefore, since opinion is so divided, let the game stand. We see a 14-14 tie.

ELSEWHERE IN the district, Stanton visits Reagan County, while front-running Eldorado hosts Wall. The Buffs are 0-2 in the district after 8-0 and 15-0 losses to Eldorado and Greenwood. The road beckons for the Buffs, and that's bad news. Reagan County also took a 21-0 loss a year ago from Stanton, and both teams are improved. Both teams are also desperate for a win. Stanton's loss last week puts them in a critical must-win situation.

The Owls, meanwhile, lost to Eldorado a week ago after whipping McCamey in the opener. They also need a win badly, and because they have the home field luxury, they rate the advantage over Stanton, 20-18.

Lamesa brings its' act home for an encore performance of the "Killer Fleas" defense. The Golden Tor's tiny defense doesn't register failure, and they haven't failed often in a 5-1 campaign. Lamesa's needs one more win this year to double its' win production of 1981-83. They have a golden chance with Lakeview, currently 0-6 on the year. Last season the Chiefs were playoff entries, and beat Lamesa 25-0. The Tors should return the favor, 14-0.

Andrews suffered a major setback in chasing Lamesa, Monahans and Sweetwater by getting blasted by the Sweetwater boys 33-6. The Mustangs visit Fort Stockton, and they are also in the District 2-4A hunt with a 5-1 seasonal showing. The Mustangs are still a year away, and will have a crabby bus trip home, 28-14.

District 7-A Rankin got a rude start a week ago in a 30-0 loss to Iraan. The Red Devils visit Grandfalls this week, and both teams are hoping to improve losing records. Grandfalls didn't have any fun last week either, losing to second-rated Wink, 52-0. This game won't have anybody shut out, but Grandfalls should prevail 26-14.

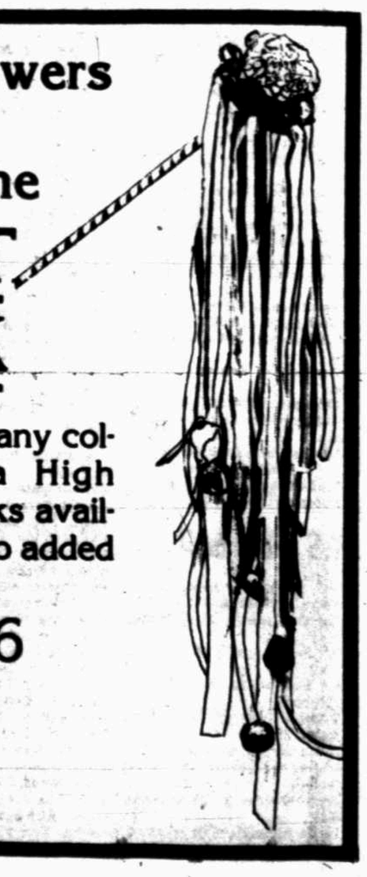

Crane had an unbeaten regular season in 1983, but that mark is long forgotten with the 1984 Cranes, who are 1-6 and out of contention. They go to Ozona, another team that has had a rough year at 1-6. This game could end in a tie, but the thinking here is that Crane coach Rockey White is too talented to lose after the year he has had. Give Crane a slight edge, 7-6.

Is Landry tough enough?

I'm not sure Tom Landry is tough enough to be coach of the Dallas Cowboys.

For one thing, he replaced Gary Hogeboom as starting quarterback with Danny White.

Hogeboom last week injured his wrist as New Orleans raced to a 27-6 lead against the Dallas Cowboys. In fact, it was on an interception returned for a touchdown that Hogey hurt himself.

Hogeboom admitted in workouts this week that he wasn't throwing as well as he had been throwing before the injury. Fact of the matter is, he hadn't been throwing very well before the injury either.

BUT THAT isn't the reason Landry is starting White Sunday against Indianapolis. He says he thinks White, after helping bring the Cowboys from the abyss of defeat to victory against the Saints Sunday, deserves the opportunity to start.

Danny engineered one important drive against New Orleans during that comeback. Two of the touchdowns, however, were ribbon-wrapped from the defense, a blocked kick and a sacking of a Snake.

It always has been thus with the Cowboys, as far back as Meredith's day. Defense is expected to set the table for the offense and if they can cash-in directly so much the better.

Even Roger Staubach was the beneficiary of an aggressive, dominating, make-things-happen defense. It's no mystery the philosophy of most winning coaches is to start building from the defense up. If you can hold 'em scoreless, at least, you've got a tie.

So Danny, with the help of the defense, got the Cowboys into the win column Sunday night. Even White's teammates, who allegedly have been Gary Hogeboom fans since the football strike of a couple of years back, seemed genuinely glad for Danny.

THAT still, doesn't alter the fact that when Landry switched to Hogeboom at the season's start, it was a no-lose situation, regardless of what his gut feelings may have been or even if it was contrary to his true evaluation of the quarterbacks.

With an 8-8 rebuilding season predicted by pro football pundits, the Cowboys supposedly weren't going anywhere anyway. White was under fire from players and fans, supposedly, and lacked the enthusiastic backing a quarterback really needs to get the job done.

If Hogeboom came in and transformed the Cowboys into an instant winner again, it would be a wonderful gamble, maybe not wholeheartedly endorsed, that paid off magnificently.

If it didn't pay off, he still had White and when he came back it would be with the blessing of fans and teammates.

So, after Sunday's win, White gets the job and it makes you wonder if Landry is really tough enough, sadistic enough, harbors sufficient hostility in his craw to be the Cowboys' coach. Is he too forgiving, too soon?

Frankly, I thought Landry was made of sterner stuff. I figured, White wouldn't start until someone representing "the team" came slithering into his office on his belly and begged for Landry to put White in the lineup.

That may have been what happened.

I still wouldn't have given in. I'd have held out until a player slithered into my office and whined, "Either play Danny or trade me."

Rematches dot NFL schedules

By DAVE GOLDDBERG
AP Sports Writer

An enduring cliche of coachdom is that it's tougher to beat a team the second time around than the first. Last week, there were seven rematches in the National Football League ...

... and the team that won the first game won four of the seven.

There are six more rematches this weekend, the big one at the Los Angeles Coliseum where the Raiders try to avenge their only loss of the season to the Denver Broncos, and try to break a tie with the Broncos at the top of the AFC West.

The cliche is supposed to hold — the Raiders are favored by six.

The Raiders may finally be finding a passing offense — their wide receivers caught their first three TD passes of the season against San Diego last week. But it's a lot easier to throw TD passes against San Diego than against a Denver defense that's already scored six touchdowns. ...

BRONCOS

San Francisco (minus 3½) at RAMS.

Bill Walsh is worried about his defense, which surrendered 350 yards to Houston's Warren Moon last week. Jeff Kemp won't come close to that — the Rams use the pass only as a change of pace from Eric Dickerson's running. But Dickerson and the multipurpose Henry Ellard may be enough ...

RAMS

N.Y. Jets (plus 3) at NEW ENGLAND.

Rematch No.2 — the Pats won the first at Giants Stadium. There's a bit of turmoil in Foxboro, where defensive coordinator Rod Rust was axed by Coach Ron Meyer after New England gave up 44 points to the Dolphins last week — and Meyer was axed the next day. Score one for the cliche ...

JETS

Buffalo (plus 18) at MIAMI.

That's 18, as in two touchdowns, a field goal and a rouge — Buffalo is, after all, just across the border from Canada. The Bills kept the margin to four points in Buffalo, but this is Miami. And this is Dan Marino ...

DOLPHINS

Seattle (plus 1½) at SAN DIEGO (Monday night)

It was 31-17 Seahawks in the Kingdome and the Chargers had Kellen Winslow for that one....

SEAHAWKS

Washington (minus 6) at NEW YORK GIANTS.

Rematch No.5. The first one was 30-14 'Skins, but it was a lot closer than that. The score could be the same and it won't be that close ...

Freshman steals prep grid show

Associated Press

San Antonio Highlands Coach Dan Brodbeck is glad he overcame his concerns about playing a freshman on the varsity.

Otherwise, he would not have been rewarded with quarterback Brian Miller's performance last week in a 49-7 victory over San Antonio Lanier.

Miller completed four touchdown passes and ran for two more last week. He has 870 yards rushing in six games after missing the season opener because of Brodbeck's reluctance to play a freshman quarterback.

Miller earns Associated Press Schoolboy Honor roll mention along with two other runners, Leo Benavides of Laredo Cigarroa and Rogelio Gonzalez of Ben Bolt.

"He (Miller) has great acceleration once he spots an opening," Brodbeck said. "In the open feld, he's instinctive and has all the right kind of moves. He also has better than average power."

Miller's touchdown runs were for 57 and 36 yards.

Gonzalez powered Ben Bolt to a 40-15 victory over Mirando City with a four-touchdown, 288-yard rushing performance on 25 carries. Gonzalez scored on runs of 40, 15, 55 and 70 yards and doubled up on defense with 14 solo tackles, a fumble recovery and an interception.

Benavides got 174 of his 228 yards in the second half and scored on a 20-yard run to spark a 16-0 victory over Laredo Martin after a scoreless tie at the half.

It was the first district victory for the Toros, in their second year of varsity competition but it took an inspirational performance by Cigarroa Coach Bill Murphy to pull the upset.

Murphy had promised if the score was tied at the half that he would return after the half dressed as "Toro Man," the team's mascot.

True to his word, Murphy donned a blue cape, put on a shirt bearing a blue "T" and strapped on a decorated helmet.

Appearing after the game in normal dress, Murphy was asked the whereabouts of Toro Man.

"Toro Man went back into the phone booth until he's needed the next time," Murphy said.

In other outstanding individual performances:

— San Angelo Central running back C.L. Bowman rushed 152 yards on 22 carries and scored all three of his team's touchdowns on runs of four one and 43 yards in a 21-6 victory over Midland High.

Habs nip Buffalo, 3-2

Associated Press

It wasn't particularly artistic but it was effective enough, and the Montreal Canadiens will take it.

The Canadiens got two somewhat tainted goals Thursday night, which along with a patented Guy Lafleur slapshot was enough to lift them over the Buffalo Sabres 3-2. That allowed Montreal to snap a 12-game National Hockey League losing streak against Buffalo.

Larry Robinson banked a snapshot off Sabre defenseman Mike Ramsey for the game-winner with 4:26 remaining. Earlier, Ryan Walter had a wrist shot by Chris Chelios from the blue line bank in off his skate.

Lafleur's goal brought the Canadiens into a tie after they had fallen behind 2-0 on a pair of Mal Davis goals. It also brought 15,569 fans out of their seats with shouts of "Guy, Guy."

"That's the kind of goal I get as compared to the kind Guy gets," said Walter. "They're (the Sabres) a tenacious team and for us to come back from a two-goal deficit to win is a good indication of the type of team this is."

"We'd been asking ourselves what we had to do to beat these guys for the past three years," added Robinson, who has three game-winning goals in Montreal's five victories.

The last time Montreal beat Buffalo was March 20, 1983. The streak included three straight defeats in the first round of the 1983 playoffs, when goalie Bob Sauve recorded two shutouts.

But Sauve didn't have fortune on his side this time.

"We got the right bounces," said Robinson.

NHL Roundup

Rangers 11, Devils 2

The teams were tied 2-2 approaching the midpoint of the game. Then the Rangers exploded for nine unanswered goals, including five in 7:41 of the second period.

Anders Hedberg scored three goals and added three assists to match his NHL career high for points in one night. Rookie Tomas Sandstrom, like Hedberg a native of Sweden, added two goals and defenseman Ron Greschner had a goal and three assists for the visiting Rangers.

"We can't score like this all the time," Hedberg said after the Rangers upped their output in the last three games to 23 goals. "We created our own breaks by moving the puck up ice, not laterally. By doing that, we will beat teams."

Flyers 7, Blues 2

Tim Kerr virtually beat the Blues singlehandedly, scoring four goals as the host Flyers cruised over St. Louis. Three of his four goals came within 2:27 of the third period, setting a team record.

"The only other time I scored four goals in a game came when I was in the juniors," he said. "Everything seemed to fall into place."

Coach Mike Keenan praised Kerr, comparing him with the elite scorers of the NHL. Since Kerr scored 54 goals last year and already has 10 this season, Keenan seems to have a point.

"When you have a player with the explosiveness of a Tim Kerr, we should be able to continue to score consistently," said Keenan. "There is no doubt in my mind that he is one of the most dangerous scoring threats in the league."

Flames 5, Capitals 3

Calgary got power-play goals from Colin Patterson, Paul Reinhart and Kent Nilsson, while Ed Beers and Carey Wilson also connected. Patterson added a pair of assists. Mike Gartner had two goals for the visiting Capitals, who allowed 44 shots.

Chris Evert-Lloyd, left, and Jimmy Connors exchange smiles as they walk onto the court at the $400,000 World Mixed Doubles Tennis Championships in Houston.

Lloyd-Connors take World Doubles win

HOUSTON (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd and Jimmy Connors, a pair of noted singles players who don't take their doubles too seriously, provided comedy and good tennis in outlasting the brother-sister team of Pablo and Laura Arraya in the $400,000 World Mixed Doubles Championships.

Connors and Lloyd joked and laughed through much of the match but they got serious enough to score a 7-5, 6-4 first-round victory Thursday night that included an 11-minute, 10-deuce final game that featured three match points.

Lloyd-Connors, top-seeded and defending champions, aren't regulars on the doubles circuit and don't plan to start.

"If I'd played doubles all all the time, I'd have been burned out years ago," Lloyd said. "I've never abandoned doubles, I just play every four or five tounaments."

Connors did abandon doubles.

"I played with Nasty (Ilie Nastase) and I couldn't afford it after awhile because we got fined so much," Connors said. "It got to the point that I couldn't do it physically."

Third seeded Carling Bassett and new partner Eric Korita defeated Raffaella Reggi and Tim Mayotte 6-4, 6-1 in the other featured match.

Korita was a late replacement for Jimmy Arias, who became ill. Korita did not arrive at Astroarena until 6:30 p.m.

Scrambled Pats worry about Jets

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

New England Patriots players may be excused if they claim that their concentration was broken a bit this week for Sunday's game with the New York Jets.

It's been a week when the big news out of Foxboro, Mass., where the game will be played, has been the upheaval on the Patriots' coaching staff. On Wednesday, much to the consternation of many of the players, Coach Ron Meyer fired defensive coordinator Rod Rust; on Thursday, Meyer was fired and replaced by Raymond Berry, who reinstated Rust.

Berry, a Hall of Fame receiver with the Baltimore Colts and a one-time New England assistant, said he would make no changes in Meyer's game plan for the contest with the Jets, which could have considerable bearing on the race for wild-card playoff spots in the American Conference.

General Manager Pat Sullivan said he made the switch at the season's midway point "because I oppose disruptions and we need a stable situation here."

"Berry is the low-key kind of guy who should be able to fit in right away," he said.

But Berry, in what could pass as the understatement of the week, said:

"This is not an ideal situation."

In other games Sunday, Cincinnati is at Houston; Indianapolis at Dallas; Detroit at Green Bay; Minnesota at Chicago; New Orleans at Cleveland; Atlanta at Pittsburgh; St. Louis at Philadelphia; Tampa Bay at Kansas City; Buffalo at Miami; Denver at the Los Angeles Raiders; San Francisco at the Los Angeles Rams, and Washington at the New York Giants.

Seattle is at San Diego Monday night.

New England, 5-3, beat the 6-2 Jets 28-21 in their first meeting a month ago at Giants Stadium. But the Patriots were crushed 44-24 last week by the Miami Dolphins, a loss that triggered Meyer's firing of Rust and, indirectly, Sullivan's firing of Meyer.

New England lists as "questionable" All-Pro guard John Hannah, hospitalized during the week for treatment of a neck injury and will definitely be without Irving Fryar, the NFL's top draft choice, who has a separated shoulder.

The Jets, 28-7 winners over Kansas City last week, are getting healthier — running back Freeman McNeil may be back after a week on the sidelines with a rib injury and receiver Johnny "Lam" Jones may be activated after missing the entire season with a broken collarbone.

There's also a new coach in Cleveland, where defensive coordinator Marty Schottenheimer took over the 1-7 Browns after Sam Rutigliano was fired last Monday.

Like Berry, Schottenheimer doesn't plan any immediate changes when the Browns take on the 3-5 Saints, who blew a 21-point lead and lost to Dallas 30-27 in overtime last Sunday night. But, he says that sometime soon he may switch to a two-back offense in place of Rutigliano's one-back alignment.

"You don't play coaches, you play teams," said Saints' Coach Bum Phillips, who added that he's more concerned about getting his own team back on track after three straight losses.

Phillips concedes, though, "When you make a change, it can give you a lift. About 90 percent of football is mental. Everybody's got about the same caliber of players. It should work that way with that guy — the defense will believe in him, and probably the offense will believe in him."

The big game Sunday is in Los Angeles, where the Raiders and Broncos, both 7-1, play for the lead in the strong AFC West.

Denver won the first game, 16-13, handing the Raiders their only loss of the season. The Broncos may have to go with Gary Kubiak at quarterback in place of John Elway, who bruised his shoulder in last week's 37-7 win over Buffalo.

That means Denver, which gained 233 in the first game, will again move primarily on the ground.

"We'll have to control the ball by running it," said Coach Dan Reeves. "We'll mix things up, and we'll challenge their cornerbacks like we did last time, but our main concern is being able to run. The Raiders are very dangerous when they get you in a must-pass situation. They really come after you with their pass rush."

Women in workforce bring social change

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

They earn $500 billion a year and take home nearly one-third of the nation's pay. Their work makes it possible for American families to buy houses with $100,000 mortgages.

Businesses court their patronage, and they have forced corporations to rethink their attitudes toward babies and families. Most work as clerks, secretaries, teachers and nurses, but two have traveled in outer space and one is running for vice president of the United States.

They are the nation's working women, 50.1 million strong and growing. Women have joined the workforce in unprecedented numbers in the last 20 years, and for the first time, more than half of the adult women in the United States are employed outside their homes. So many mothers with small children work that only 5 percent of U.S. households fit the cherished American stereotype of a working father, a stay-at-home mother and minor children.

As a general rule, who should be responsible for taking care of the children?

THIS SURGE of women into the workplace is regarded by social scientists and historians as a fundamental change, as significant as the Industrial Revolution or the immigration waves of the last century. "It's the single most outstanding phenomenon of this century," said Eli Ginzberg, a professor at Columbia University and chairman of the National Commission for Manpower Policy.

"I'd be willing to bet that only a small minority of families in the United States has not had to deal over the past 10 years with the fact, or the consequences" of women working, said Ruth Mandel, director of the Center for the American Woman and Politics at Rutgers University.

The influx of women into the job market has had repercussions for the economy, for employers, for relations between the sexes and for children.

Many such changes have been positive. Most women say employment gives them a sense of accomplishment they had lacked. That second paycheck also has made home ownership possible and male unemployment endurable for many families — and may mean that future recessions will be both shorter and milder.

WHY DO women work? For the same reason men work, "to put food on the table," in the words of Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., who represents a working-class district of Baltimore. The idea persists that women work mostly for pin money or psychological rewards, but Mikulski retorted, "We're not talking about self-fulfillment when we talk about women working."

Statistics indicate that, indeed, most women do not have a choice. The National Commission on Working Women reported that of the women in the workforce in 1983, 26 percent had never married, 19 percent were widowed, divorced or separated and 21 percent were married to men earning less than $15,000 a year.

The high-profile women executives in their $300 dressed-for-success suits and silk blouses are hardly representative of the female work force. Women's yearly earnings still average only about three-fifths of men's earnings, about the same as in the 1950s. The wage gap exists across the board.

DEAR ABBY

Woman worried about husband's past

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: How important is it for a woman to know all about her husband's past? This is the second marriage for both of us. I'm 51 and he's 59, and we're happy as a pair of teen-agers. I've talked and talked about my past, and there is nothing he doesn't know about me.

Him? He hasn't told me anything. When I ask him to tell me more about himself, he says his past is none of my business. He treats me like a queen and gives me everything I want, but don't you think he should tell me if there's anything I ought to know? After all, I am his wife. — LIVING WITH A MYSTERY MAN

DEAR LIVING: If you're happy and being treated like a queen, don't question his past. As his wife, however, you should be made aware of a few facts: Is he wanted by the police? Does he have any large outstanding debts? Does he have any illegitimate children who might come out of the woodwork and say, "Hi, Dad"? Or worse yet, one or more wives?

If he can answer no to all of the above, cover him up; he might catch pneumonia.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 23-year-old single, attractive guy. People tell me I'm good-looking, but I have a big problem. I'm very shy around women. I can't seem to get up enough courage to say "Hi" to a woman sitting alone in a bar. I guess I need a little push to break the ice. I have met many neat ladies who have introduced themselves to me.

Abby, this is for every woman in the world: Next time you see a guy you think you'd like to know sitting alone at a bar, don't be afraid to go over and say, "Hi, my name is ( ). What's yours?"

He's probably just as lonely as you are, and it could be the beginning of something wonderful. — LONELY IN MANHASSET, N.Y.

DEAR LONELY: It's worth a try. Even if the guy says, "I'd ask you to join me, but I'm waiting for my wife."

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you advised a reader not to let one bad experience sour her on the whole human race. "Mary C. of Oklahoma City" said she had returned a suitcase her truck driver husband found on the highway, and instead of being thanked, she was accused of stealing some valuables from a second suitcase lost at the same time!

I want to share an experience that might help to restore Mary C.'s faith in strangers:

Our son and two of his buddies were on a camping trip that took them into the Northwest. (They were 17 at the time.) Our son left his camera on a picnic table at one of the campsites. A young couple who were camping next to the boys returned the camera to us with a note telling us that they had become friendly with our son and his friends, and the last picture on the roll of film was of them — the young couple.

Abby, our son and his buddies never returned home. All three were killed in a head-on collision in Oregon. Had it not been for the generosity of the young couple who returned our son's camera, we never would have had that precious roll of film — the last pictures to be taken of our son and his friends.

Needless to say, we wrote to tell this couple how priceless their gift turned out to be. — MRS. JONIE W. DANFORD, AURORA, COLO.

'Trailer parks' becoming respectable mobile home communities

By JAMES M. WOODWARD
Copley News Service

Mobile home parks in the United States are a different breed of community than they were just a few years ago.

Several decades ago, the numerous "trailer parks" across the country were the lowest level of residential community. Most of the trailer homes were shabby and dirty — a place to live that was only a little better than a box under a bridge or a pad in an alley between city buildings.

These parks slowly improved in appearance and quality of living. Likewise, their reputation moved toward the point of respectability.

But it wasn't until recent years that the parks — now called mobile home parks — gained a status and reputation equal to many conventional single-family home developments.

Today's mobile home park developments are much larger than their older counterparts. They often contain 500 to 1,000 units, compared with 50 to 100 units in many older parks.

The new parks are super modern, offering amenities such as recreational buildings, swimming pools, Jacuzzis, golf courses, lakes and other attractions. The bulk of the new developments are located in Sun Belt states.

About one-third of all new housing units last year were mobile homes, according to Stephen Roulac, a noted real estate investment consultant. The new mobile home parks are among the best real estate investments available today, he said. And they provide an appropriate residence for many Americans.

However, past reputations of trailer or mobile home communities still create major problems in the planning and development of new parks. Zoning problems and fighting a rising tide of objections from residents in establishing communities that surround the proposed mobile home development are particulary troublesome.

"Some of the past problems experienced with trailer parks in the 1930s and 1940s are still present in today's 18,700 mobile home communities," Roulac pointed out.

The new mobile home parks are more stable than many other types of real estate developments. They create fewer maintenance problems and lost rent for landlords due to transient tenants.

These problems in the area of planning, development and management are discouraging many major investors from acquiring mobile home parks. Indeed, several large owners and managers of parks are divesting their investment portfolios of such properties.

Cattle being computerized

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The cow has now been launched into the age of electronics in Australia, reports a computer management information journal.

At the flick of a switch, according to MIS Week, farmers in two Australian states — Victoria and New South Wales — are able to plug their microcomputers into a central computer for advice on herd management, feeding programs, market predictions and even irrigating systems.

As a result, a herd will not be able to mutter a moo without being monitored by a panel of computers

Lease work near completion on drug facility

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Ground lease work was announced as "99 percent finalized" on a chemical dependency unit, discussion continued on plans for a nursing program and a resolution was passed requiring staff members over the age of 70 to retire at the Midland Memorial Hospital Board of Directors monthly meeting Thursday.

Ted Kerr, MMH's attorney, was pleased with cooperation from the City of Midland for helping gain rights-of-way. "We hope to start as early as next week on rights-of-way," said Kerr.

"Also the Scharbauers have been extrememly cooperative in working with us and the Camelback people." The Scharbauer family is donating land for the proposed drug treatment facility.

Midland Memorial Hospital has a joint agreement with two Phoenix, Ariz.-based firms, Camelback Hospitals and Samaritan Health Service, for the construction and operation of the drug facility. The firms have total construction, ownership and programming responsibilities for the project.

Camelback Hospitals is a longtime provider of psychiatric and drug and alcohol abuse treatment programs. Samaritan owns and manages the largest system of general hospitals in Arizona.

"We hope financing will occur by Nov. 6," said Kerr.

A possible groundbreaking ceremony was discussed for the chemical dependency unit as early as next month. Projected completion date is July 1985.

Plans for a fall 1984 initiation of a satellite nursing program in Midland were dashed as MMH President Ray Branson announced a possible "spring 1985" program.

"We hope to start by January, 1985," said Branson. "But I doubt if it will be possible."

Discussion was continued on how to set up the program, how it will work and where it would be held. The nursing program, would be taught under the auspice of Texas Tech University Health Science Center at Midland Memorial Hospital and Odessa Medical Center. Funding for the program is coming from both hospital and private donations. The project would allow nurses who have graduated from associate degree programs at community colleges the opportunity to complete their baccalaureate degrees in Midland. The program is expected to cost about $300,000 for the first two years.

"We want this program to be open to the whole Permian Basin," said Branson.

A resolution requiring MMH employees over the age of 70 to retire was also passed at the board meeting. Exceptions were made if employee retirement would impair the hospital in any way. Only the president can approve employment past the age of 70.

"This was just in keeping with other laws on mandatory retirement," said a hospital spokesman.

For third time, trial ends with hung jury

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — A third set of jurors chosen to decide the fate of Tommie Coleman was unable to settle on a verdict Thursday, prompting District Judge Joe Connally to declare a mistrial and release the 20-year-old on his own personal recognizance.

Coleman was on trial this week for the third time since his arrest in November 1983 for aggravated rape, robbery and burglary at an Odessa home.

As they had in two previous proceedings, the 12 jurors chosen to decide on Coleman's innocence could not come to a unanimous decision, forcing Connally to declare a mistrial after about 4½ hours of deliberations.

The 12-person panel was stuck at 8 to 4 in favor of convicting Coleman, exactly as the panel had split in the August trial. In the first trial in April, jurors voted 8 to 4 for acquitting the 20-year-old black man.

Coleman had been in jail since his arrest shortly after the Nov. 11 incident. While released on his own personal recognizance, he is required to return to Ector County district court if the district attorney's office decides to continue seeking a conviction against him.

Court-appointed defense attorney Jimmy Edwards, who followed the same strategy in this week's proceedings that had led to the previous two hung juries, said he was prepared to take the case to trial a fourth time if prosecutors chose to seek further prosecution.

District Attorney Mike Holmes was unsure whether he would continue to pursue a conviction against Coleman, who is alleged to have entered the home of an Odessa housewife with another man and raped and beaten the woman.

The other man arrested in the case was convicted and sentenced to life in prison.

"I want to try him again. I don't know if I want to put the victim through it again," said Holmes of the woman who has had to testify five times about the incident in which she allegedly was beaten and raped by both men about 1:30 a.m. on Nov. 11, 1983.

Coleman has languished in jail, unable to post bond set at $45,000 for the indictments on aggravated sexual assault, aggravated robbery and burglary with the intent to commit sexual assault. He testified during the first trial to having turned 20 years old in jail.

Jurors were apparently not convinced Coleman was "guilty as sin," as prosecutor Ken Cowling said during final arguments. Four sided with Edwards, who insisted the case had not been proven "beyond a reasonable doubt."

Edwards pleaded with the all-white jury to put aside their feelings about the rape of the Anglo housewife by the black men, as she had recounted it to them early in the week. If the case went to trial again, she would almost certainly be called to recall the events of that night for the sixth time.

Anthony Crawford, 21, who lived with Coleman in Odessa before their arrest, received the life sentence in the second trial on his case. The first ended in a mistrial when a policeman testified in violation of court procedures about other offenses for which Crawford was under investigation.

During his final argument, Edwards outlined the jury's three options: a guilty or not guilty verdict, or a hung jury. He suggested they should find Coleman not guilty because the state had not proved the defendant was the man who entered the house with Crawford.

Insisting he was not accusing the victim of lying, Edwards pointed out the inconsistencies in her eyewitness identification. He questioned her ability to differentiate between facial features of black people, showing she had few in her classes in pre-desegregation days in Odessa public schools.

Cowling countered that the victim's identification did match Coleman's. Under Texas law, Coleman apparently can be retried as long as juries fail to come to a unanimous verdict, said Edwards.

'Gramm, Doggett differ on issues'

Gramm hits opponent on national defense

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

On the first anniversary of the United States' invasion of Grenada, Phil Gramm recalled he was among the group of congressmen and senators who initially supported President Reagan's action while his opponent in the senatorial race still criticizes it.

During a news conference at noon Thursday at Tiger Charter, Gramm included the Grenada incident as an example that his opponent, Democrat Lloyd Doggett, doesn't support a strong military or national defense.

That's only one of the issues where the two men differ in this campaign for the U.S. senate seat being vacated by John Tower, said Gramm, a Republican. And in the continuing saga of negative advertising, Gramm charged Doggett with unethically taping a telephone conversation between the two men.

"My opponent said it wasn't necessary to liberate the American medical students on Grenada," Gramm contended.

It was also Doggett who proposed raising taxes even before Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale announced his tax plan, said the Republican. Pointing out that he wrote the Gramm-Latta bill and introduced a balanced budget amendment, Gramm said the top issue in the campaign is how to control spending.

"I want to force the federal government to live on a balanced budget," he said.

Doggett had said Tuesday during a news conference at Midland Regional Airport that he had requested both men pull their negative ads from radio, television and newspaper and that a fourth debate be held. Later that day when Gramm was involved in a television call-in show at Victoria, Doggett called and the two talked off the air.

"That night at Austin I was informed that he had recorded the conversation and released it to the media," Gramm said. "He had opposed court-approved wire taps on kingpin drug pushers but he turns around and uses a wire tap in a political campaign. It was another in a long line of unethical actions."

Doggett had requested a fourth debate and Gramm had rejected the idea. As a result, there has been no truce in the type of advertisements, he noted.

"I took that call to find out if we could get an agreement on the ads, but when he tapes my conversation without telling me it's obvious you can't get an agreement on the ads."

Gramm said the ads he now is running on television feature President Reagan endorsing him.

Because of a Doggett ad, Gramm charged that the Democrat could never work with President Reagan if he is re-elected. In an advertisement used in other parts of the state, Doggett calls the president "King Ronnie the First" and tells voters to "Stick it to Ronnie," the Republican related.

"I don't think the President will take too kindly to someone who's said to stick it to him."

Recalling the 1970 senate race between Democrat Lloyd Bentsen and Republican George Bush, Gramm said Bentsen employed the reasoning that Texas should be represented by a Democrat and Republican. No matter who is in the White House, it would give Texas instant access, he said. "That's as true today as it was in 1970."

Questioned about Doggett's contentions that Gramm's actions had caused two West Texas sites to be placed on a list of nuclear waste dump locations, the Republican argued that it was his work that kept those Texas cities off the list.

"I suggested Boston, Mass., as a nuclear waste dump site and my opponent said I was a redneck," Gramm said.

FBI agents reveal evidence in murder case

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Prosecutors brought a series of FBI specialists to the witness stand Thursday in the first day of testimony in the capital murder case of 19-year-old Midlander Pablo Madrid Galindo.

The FBI agents, flown in from the nation's capitol to testify, revealed results of tests on physical evidence taken from the scene of the alleged murder-attempted rape, which occurred March 24 in a mobile home in south Ector County.

Mark Defee, 29, was shot to death about 3:30 a.m. March 24 in his trailer home. His wife was attacked by the slayer, but escaped to a neighbor's home, according to sheriff's department reports.

Galindo was arrested about one mile away at another trailer home where he stopped about 4:37 a.m., according to testimony. The residents of the trailer where Galindo was arrested testified they attempted to give him directions that morning before calling the sheriff.

Felicia McDonald, who testified that she lived in the trailer where Galindo was arrested, said she opened the door at one point, but was pulled inside by her husband before deputies arrested the defendant.

Both McDonalds said Galindo had blood on his right hand and was disoriented, but not intoxicated, when he came to their door.

The FBI agents tested blood samples, the gun Galindo had when he was arrested, Galindo's shooting hand and glass fragments taken from the defendant's clothing.

Results of the blood tests matched Galindo's type of enzyme with the blood stain on a sheet taken from the scene, but the results could only narrow the probability to about 19 percent of the population (who have this enzyme in the blood), according to testimony.

A test of Galindo's shooting hand determined the defendant had recently fired a gun or had his hand near a fired weapon, said Agent John Riley.

Tests determined that the bullets that killed Defee were fired from Galindo's pistol, said Agent Richard Crum.

Glass fragments taken from Galindo's boots and clothing matched samples taken from the trailer, according to testimony.

Galindo faces death by lethal injection or life in prison if found guilty of the capital offense. Testimony was scheduled to continue today.

Odessan guilty in murder of ex-daughter-in-law

Man could get life in prison and $10,000 fine

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Harold Eugene Wells, 55, Odessa, was found guilty Thursday of murdering his ex-daughter-in-law on March 16, apparently in a fatal reaction to a child custody dispute between his son and the victim.

Jurors deliberated for less than two hours Thursday before reaching the guilty verdict. Sentencing was scheduled for Nov. 5, with Wells facing a maximum sentence of life in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Wells was convicted of shooting Frankie Wells, 25, to death as she was putting groceries into the freezer of her apartment at the Park Motel on Second St. (Highway 80) in Odessa.

No witness testified to having seen Wells shoot his former daughter-in-law. Her boyfriend said he saw Wells get into a truck across the street and speed away from the scene after the shots had been fired. A test performed on Wells following his arrest the day after the shooting showed he could have been holding a weapon recently.

Wells' wife and son denied prosecutors' claims that they had told police a rifle was missing from the house during the initial investigation. The defendant's family said one rifle had been stolen several months before the shooting and the other had been pawned before the victim was shot to death.

The grandparents and their son had been embroiled in a dispute over custody of the couple's son since their divorce five months before the slaying, according to testimony.

Wells' son testified Wednesday that his ex-wife had threatened him March 16 as he and his father went to pick up the child, according to visitation rules. He said his father had already taken the son into his truck and was leaving the motel parking lot when they parted company that night.

Wells remained free on $10,000 bond, pending sentencing next week.

City's absentee voting surges to 5,076 in seven days

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Absentee voting in Midland in the Nov. 6 general election zoomed to 5,076 votes through Thursday, the seventh day of absentee voting, according to the office of Janeice Builta, Midland County elections administrator.

"It's been running about 25 percent more than the 1980 (presidential) elections," said Pat Stovall, chief deputy. But through Thursday, the absentee-voting increase shot up to 41 percent more than the 1980 vote through the seventh day of absentee voting.

Not including today, five more days of absentee voting remain.

A record 54,630 Midlanders are registered to vote in the election.

Through the seventh day of absentee voting in the 1980 general election, 2,994 had voted in person or by mail. The total absentee vote count that year was 7,012.

And the 1980 overall vote, out of 44,042 registered voters, was 32,890 — 75 percent of electorate.

Ms. Builta credited the relatively high absentee-vote turnout to the traditional interest in the presidential elections and to cases of people getting "burned" in previous elections by not getting to vote at all.

She discounted the write-in campaigns, such as the surge being effected by Sheriff Dallas Smith in his bid to get re-elected despite his rejection by the voters in the May 5 Republican Party primary election, as exciting interest in absentee balloting.

"I don't think that has anything to do with it. It's strictly Republicans against Democrats or Democrats against Republicans."

Ms. Builta said some Midlanders were "burned" because they had not voted absentee in previous elections, such as the 1980 and 1982 elections, and were unable to vote on the day of the general elections because of unforeseen events and situations. These included being called out of town on job-related assignments, due to illness, or death in the family.

"They don't want that to happen again, and I don't blame them," she said. "They just lost their vote."

On Thursday, 700 Midlanders cast absentee votes via the eight voting machines set up in the Elections Administration Office at 709 W. Washington Ave. In addition, 25 ballots were mailed out. The 5,076 absentee vote count through Thursday included 3,738 in-person ballots and 1,338 mail-out ballots.

Absentee voting began Oct. 17 and ends at 5 p.m. next Friday, Nov. 2.

"There'll be no Saturday or Sunday absentee voting in Midland County," Ms. Builta said. "Ector County is. We're not. Some other counties are."

By Texas law, absentee voting is allowed due to:

—Sickness or physical disability.
—Confinement in jail.
—Religious belief.
—Age 65 or over.
—The voter expects to be out of the county on elections day and during the elections administrator's regular office hours for the absentee-voting period or actual absence from the county during those times.

"A lot of people were burned and burned badly," Ms. Builta said of voters who, in previous years, did not vote absentee. Due to circumstances beyond their control, they were unable to cast ballots in the general elections.

As a result, more registered voters are voting absentee just to ensure their votes.

"They come in here to be sure," she said. "They vote because they may be out of town. They don't know that they aren't going to be absent."

Jones won't be prosecuted on seven pending charges

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton says convicted baby killer and former nurse Genene Jones wouldn't serve a day longer in prison if she were convicted on seven pending child injury charges, so he won't prosecute her on them.

Sutton said Thursday he likely will move later to dismiss the child injury charges filed in connection with alleged injuries to children while Ms. Jones was working at the Kerrville Pediatric Clinic.

Ms. Jones, 34, was convicted Wednesday of child injury in connection with the Jan. 9, 1982, injection of four-week-old Rolando Santos with an overdose of a blood-thinner.

The injury occurred while Ms. Jones was a nurse at Medical Center Hospital in San Antonio, where the Santos baby was hospitalized for pneumonia.

The former licensed vocational nurse was convicted in Georgetown earlier this year of murder in the September 1982 death of Chelsea McClellan. The 15-month-old Kerrville girl died after she was given an injection of a muscle relaxant at the Kerrville clinic.

Ms. Jones faces a 99-year term on the murder charge and a simultaneous 60 year sentence for the injury conviction.

Sutton's decision may mean Ms. Jones will face no further charges in the suspicious injuries and deaths of dozens of children in San Antonio.

A grand jury is continuing its investigation of infant deaths at Medical Center from 1978 to 1982, when more than 120 infants died mysteriously and while Ms. Jones was working there.

District Attorney Sam Millsap said Thursday the former nurse's conviction is only the "first prong" of an investigation of mysterious deaths and illnesses suffered by young patients in Medical Center Hospital's pediatric intensive care unit.

He said he plans further investigation to determine whether hospital officials or the Bexar County Hospital District that controls it acted appropriately when informed of the problems in the unit.

"I will not say, at this point, there was a coverup (by hospital officials)," he added.

Millsap said he was not certain when the investigation would begin.

"We will decide where we go from here, soon. I won't spend the rest of my life on this case," Millsap said.

However, prosecutors in San antonio have said they do not expect further indictments against Ms. Jones in connection with the Medical Center investigation.

Sutton, reached by telephone at his office in Junction, Texas, said he doesn't think another trial is necessary.

"With the conviction we have on her already, it would not add anything to her sentence," he said.

The 60-year and 99-year terms will run concurrently, and any subsequent terms, Sutton said, also would run simultaneously.

"She would not serve a day longer even if she was convicted on all counts," he said.

In Kerrville, Ms. Jones is accused of injecting seven children with the muscle relaxant succinylcholine.

Truck up in smoke

Gasoline leaking on a droplight apparently caused the fire which heavily damaged this pickup truck Thursday morning at a garage at 108 N. Weatherford, fire officials said. The fire in the '76 Dodge pickup belonging to Leonard Wood Jr. was extinguished with 300 gallons of water.

VOTING

Ms. Builta cited an example.

This week, a fellow came in to vote.

"'I don't know if I'm going to be out of town or not,'" he said.

In an earlier election, the man had not voted absentee. And on the day after absentee voting had ended, his company sent him to Kansas City on business.

"Of course," Ms. Builta said, "he didn't know he was going out of town. That's just part of it."

Two armed gunmen rob convenience store

From Staff Reports

Police Round-up

A Stop 'N Go convenience store on Highway 80 about eight miles west of Midland was robbed Thursday night by two unknown men armed with a gun and a knife, according to the Sheriff's Department.

The two men entered the store at about 11:20 p.m. and ordered the cashier to lie on the floor. They then took an unknown amount of cash from the register and fled on foot.

In other police reports Thursday, a 26-year-old Midland woman was arrested for aggravated assault after she and an unidentified companion reportedly threatened a Midland man with a knife.

Noel Beeman of 303 N. Adams told police he was threatened by the woman and her companion at about 8:15 p.m. He said they chased him around the Playmate Club at 200 N. Lee before he escaped by hiding in the club. The woman's companion has not been identified.

A number of burglaries were reported to police Thursday:

— Track shoes and clothes worth $500 were taken from the girls' locker room at Midland Freshman High between Oct. 20 and Oct. 21.

Odessans jailed on murder charges

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Two Odessa men were in the Ector County jail this morning on capital murder charges resulting from a stabbing death and robbery Thursday night at a lounge in the west part of the county.

Odessans Gary Lynn Wauqua, 19, and Donnie Lee Bretz, 24, have been charged with capital murder after allegedly entering the Tally Ho Lounge, 3114 W. Second St., about 9:30 p.m. Thursday, stabbing an employee and taking $300.

Gayle Stifflemire, 39, Odessa, was pronounced dead at 10:15 p.m. by Justice of the Peace R.G. Hungerford from a stab wound to the chest suffered during the incident.

The two suspects were arrested about two hours later in the 200 block of McArthur St., using a description obtained from another man at the lounge. If found guilty of the capital offense, the two could face the death sentence.

Doggett wants Gramm to open campaign books

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — In a day-long swing across northern and eastern Texas, Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett hammered away at one theme: He beleives Republican Phil Gramm broke the law.

"He's been dragging my good name through the mud since June," Doggett said Thursday, "and now I find he did much of that with tainted money."

Doggett, questioning Gramm's acceptance of $110,000 in primary election contributions after the primary had ended, called on Gramm to open his campaign's books for public inspection.

Campaigning in Wichita Falls, Dallas, Shreveport, La., Beaumont and Tyler, Doggett said Gramm initially reported to the Federal Election Commission that he had no debt from the May 5 primary. But later, Gramm reported that he took the $110,000.

"The federal election law is very clear on that. He had an opportunity right there in a sworn form ... to show whether he had a debt or not. It's a question of whether he lied then or he lied now," Doggett said.

In his July 15 campaign finance report, a sworn statement filed with the FEC, Gramm's campaign reported no outstanding debts and cash on hand of $30,250.

Trucker uninjured in accident

From Staff Reports

The driver of an 18-wheeler carrying 4,000 gallons of hydrochloric acid was uninjured but about 2,500 gallons of the acid was spilled and the highway was partially closed during a one-vehicle accident near Crane early Thursday morning.

Jeffrey Ott, no age available, was southbound on State Highway 385 at Farm-to-Market 1233 at 6:30 a.m. when he lost control on the wet road, causing the tanker to slide into the median, according to the Department of Public Safety.

The truck-tractor rolled over on its top but the trailer remained upright. Hydrochloric acid was spilled onto the median through a puncture on the right side of the first compartment of the trailer, DPS reports said.

The truck, leased to Stimwell Services in Andrews, was enroute to a Gulf Oil Co. site in Crane County.

The southbound lane of U.S. Highway 385 was closed for about three hours because of fumes and winds from the southwest. A solution of soda ash was used to neutralize the acid.

George Veloz, center, with partner Jason Chung, right, and chef Tran Cao celebrate new dual-kitchen, twin-cuisine dining concept amidst freshly prepared orders of crispy Mexican tortillas and Chinese egg rolls.

Chico and Chung: a new restaurant concept

Separate tables no; Separate kitchens si

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business-Oil Editor

Just when Midland thought it had it all—except a Greek restaurant—here comes Monterrey's Chico and Chung.

Located in what was formerly the China Star restaurant on North Big Spring, Monterrey's Chico and Chung is an innovative approach to restaurant operations which involves the serving of both Mexican and Chinese cuisine under the same roof...from separate menus...prepared by two sets of chefs, speaking two languages...working in the same kitchen area, but with two separate kitchens and doing everything by number.

Sound confusing? George Veloz, owner of Monterrey Cocina Mexicana as well as the China Star location, says its been that and more, "sometimes like a circus."

"We have been at it about a week, feeling out the situation and getting over some of the little problems. We have cooks who speak only Chinese and cooks who speak only Spanish, and we have had some real strong disagreements in getting the new culinary concept off the ground, but we are going to make it work."

He explained that if a Chinese cook had a beef with a Mexican cook, he would have to relay his complaint to Jason Chung, who would in turn relay the complaint to him in English, and which he would pass on to the Mexican cook in Spanish.

Veloz says there have been Chinese restaurants that serve Mexican food and Mexican restaurants that serve Chinese food, but to his knowlege this is the first time, at least for Midland, the two popular cuisines have been prepared in two separate kitchens under the same roof.

"The kitchens are totally separate," he said. "You can draw a line right between them. They even have separate refrigerators and separate stoves."

He says two kitchens are necessary because chinese and mexican food are prepared entirely different, with most chinese food being prepared at the time of order. Two large commercial woks are needed for the chinese kitchen. On the other hand, some mexican food such as sauces and beans, can be prepared before hand. Also, Mexican cooking requires much more grill space.

According to Veloz, who has been in the restaurant business 30 years in Midland, it took him and Jason Chung, owner of the China Star, a few rounds of Tsing Tao beer and Carta Blanca beer to come up with the new concept, and about three days to work out all the operational details.

"I think the arrangement will pull more customers into the facility. A husband may want Chinese, the wife Mexican. We can accomodate both," said Veloz, who added that later on specials with both chinese and mexican food would be offered.

Jason Chung, partner in the venture, came to America four years ago from Hong Kong to join the May Chou family which runs restaurants in New Jersey, Baltimore and Lafayette, Louisiana. He is a partner with the Chou family, and was previously in the restaurant business in Hong Kong for two years.

"My chef has been in the restaurant business for 15 years," said Chung.

Decor in the new restaurant will be divided down the middle, like the kitchen. One side will have Mexican decor the other Chinese. And yes, you can sit on the Mexican side and eat Chinese or vice versa."

"Eventually, we will even have two buffets," say Veloz.

Economist: interest will increase again

Associated Press

Interest rates, which have dropped recently, will head back up, and the large federal budget deficit and resulting heavy borrowing by the Treasury are the reason, a leading economist says.

The deficit totaled $175.3 billion in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, down from the record set the previous year but still the second-largest shortfall in U.S. history, the Treasury Department said Thursday.

Henry Kaufman, the chief economist for the investment firm Salomon Brothers Inc. whose forecasts are widely followed on Wall Street, said recent declines in rates were only a "pleasant interlude" and that the "upward cyclical direction of interest rates is still intact."

A continued rapid growth of credit demand and the strength of the dollar on foreign exchange markets also will contribute to higher rates, he said at a bond-market conference in New York.

Coincidentally, interest rates in the money markets rose Thursday to snap their recent decline, while bond prices fell more than a point, or $10 for each $1,000 in face value. The rate on three-month Treasury bills, for example, jumped to 9.25 percent from 9.05 percent late Wednesday.

Part of the increase in rates occurred late in the day after the Federal Reserve reported a $1.8 billion increase in the nation's basic money supply for the week ended Oct. 15.

While the increase left the supply well within the money-growth targets sought by the central bank, the weekly gain was a bit larger than expected by the credit markets, analysts said.

Mortgage rates, meanwhile, remain relatively high but demand for housing remains strong as evidenced by the slim 1.1 percent September drop in resales of single-family houses, the National Association of Realtors said.

It was the fifth straight monthly decline in resales, but a smaller drop from the declines of 2.5 percent and 6.5 percent in August and July, respectively.

"Although continued high mortgage interest rates clearly are dampening housing activity, the slowing rate of decline in home resales last month underscores the strong underlying demand for housing," said Frank Katusak, vice president of the association's research division.

The federal deficit for fiscal 1984 was $1 billion higher than the Reagan administration had predicted in August, but down considerably from what both White House and private economists had feared at the beginning of the year.

The $175.3 billion deficit was 10 percent below the $195.3 billion record set in 1983, the year Ronald Reagan had pledged while campaigning in 1980 that he would balance the government's books.

In other developments:

—About 392,000 Americans filed initial claims for jobless benefits in the week ended Oct. 13, the highest claims binge since mid-January, the Labor Department said. But the total number of people receiving regular jobless benefits, adjusted for seasonal variations, fell by 72,000, to 2.3 million, in the week ended Oct. 6, it said.

—Canada's National Energy Board recommended a $1.33-a-barrel cut in the price of the top grade of oil it exports to the United States following earlier cuts by Britain, Norway and Nigeria. Meanwhile, Saudi Arabia's oil minister said he was "confident" Nigeria, one of OPEC's members, would rescind last week's unilateral price cut.

—Assets of the nation's 335 money market mutual funds rose $2.18 billion in the week ended Wednesday to their highest level in nearly 21 months, the Investment Company Institute said. The increase to $194.17 billion followed a $2.75 billion rise in the funds' assets the previous week, the trade group said.

—IBM moved to strengthen its position in the office-automation market, introducing a family of office software that enhances users' ability to exchange information between personal computers and large data processors.

—Assets of the nation's 335 money market mutual funds rose $2.18 billion in the latest week to $194.7 billion, their highest level in nearly 21 months, the Investment Company Institute reported.

Donoghue's Money Fund Averages (Averages for all 266 taxable funds)		41	10.16	10.68

30-day average yield 10.32

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 266 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT (R) of Holliston, Mass. 01746 increased $1.9 billion to $182.9 billion during the week ended Oct. 23, 1984. The taxable funds' 7-day average yield decreased to 10.16 percent from 10.19 percent. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield decreased to 10.32 percent from 10.42 percent. The taxable funds' average maturity increased one day to 41.

William E. Donoghue says, "Led by the second $1.3 billion increase in institution-only money funds in two weeks, taxable money fund assets increased by $1.0 billion. This brings the seven-week asset increase to $12.4 billion, of which $7.2 billion can be attributed to institutional activity. Institutions transfer assets to money funds when other short-term rates decline. Consumers have added $5.2 billion to money fund assets, in part due to the 91 basis point or nearly one percentage point average advantage over bank money market accounts."

Yield columns represent: Annualized total return to shareholders for past seven days and 7-day compounded (effective) rates of return. Past returns are not necessarily indicative of future yields. Crown Prince Harald of Norway and Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire look over material on the Norwegian off-shore petroleum industry.

Prince asks U.S., Norway oil industry cooperation

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil Industry leaders from United States and Norway should band together to share knowledge and experience about the business because Norway has come a long way since petroleum was discovered in that country in 1969, the Crown Prince of Norway says.

Crown Prince Harald also said Thursday Norway's merchant fleet was ready to handle the needs of active trade with the United States.

"The task and challenges confronting the industry in the future are so great that small companies or small countries cannot cope on their own," Harald told business leaders at a seminar promoting the Norwegian oil industry.

The value of exports in Norway have increased by 50 percent from a year before, the prince said.

"For a small country like Norway, the United States is in many ways 'The Promised Land,' " he said. "The hope of acquiring even small market shares always exists. Exports to the United States are not only a dream, but a reality to many Norwegian companies."

More than 20 oil companies have come to Norway since oil was first discovered by Phillips Petroleum Co. in 1969, Harald said.

"This has led to a great increase in import-export activities which are important to Norway," the prince said.

The purpose of the seminar Thursday was to "strengthen the marketing efforts of the oil industry in Norway," the prince said.

"I'm fully aware of the fact that among the oil companies there is already good knowledge of our country's capabilities," he said. "We want to attract new prospects, while at the same time reinforcing old prospects."

The Norwegian economy quickly developed to the technologies of the offshore industry, Harald said.

Judge okayed in $14 billion Texaco dispute

HOUSTON (AP) — A state judge should be allowed to preside over a $14 billion lawsuit between Texaco and Pennzoil, even though he accepted a $10,000 campaign contribution from one of Pennzoil's lawyers, a visiting judge ruled.

Texaco attorneys argued that State District Judge Anthony Farris should be disqualified from hearing the case.

But retired State District Judge E.E. Jordan of Amarillo said Thursday that Texaco failed to present evidence to support allegations that Farris would be unfair or that the contribution was given to influence him.

The lawsuit stems from efforts by Texaco and Pennzoil to buy a third oil company, Getty Oil Co.

Pennzoil claims it had reached an agreement with Getty's board of directors to purchase Getty for $10.2 billion but that Texaco then convinced Getty officials to breach the contract and sell the company to Texaco.

Farris, a Republican, is seeking his second four-year term.

"It is unfortunate that judges have to rely on the public, especially lawyers, for campaign funds," Jordan said.

Dollar goes up

LONDON (AP) — The dollar rose against most key currencies in early European trading today in response to higher dollar prices in Asian markets. Gold prices eased.

In Tokyo, where the business day ends as Europe's begins, the dollar rebounded against the Japanese yen after falling for seven straight sessions, closing at 245.50 yen. Thursday's late level was 244.30 yen, a seven-week low.

The dollar opened mostly stronger in dull European trading, falling only against the French franc and Canadian dollar.

The British pound, depressed in recent weeks by industrial woes, fears of lower oil prices and the dollar's underlying strength, fell slightly at the opening. It cost $1.2215 to buy one pound sterling, cheaper than the $1.22525 price late Thursday.

Restored films make money, too

ENTERTAINMENT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hollywood's major studios, ever concerned with new products for today's movie market, seem to be slowly realizing that restored old films can make money, too.

Much has been written about the historical benefits of returning films to their original condition. "A Star Is Born" has proved that such a move can also produce profits, however modest.

The Judy Garland musical was released in 1954 minus a half-hour of director George Cukor's version. Researchers found the complete soundtrack and 20 minutes of discarded film and pieced the rest together with photographs. The restored "A Star Is Born" was well-received in this country and recently opened to acclaim in Paris and Australia.

Film companies have now started re-releasing more complete versions of movies that stumbled in their first outings.

Michael Cimino's "Heaven's Gate" in its original three-hour-plus state has been playing in Paris with remarkable success. The 165-minute version of Serge Leone's "Once Upon a Time in America" has been made available; a shorter cut flopped earlier this year. The lavish "Happy Endings" number was restored to "New York, New York" for another go-round of the Liza Minnelli-Robert DeNiro musical.

Silent films such as "Napoleon" and "Metropolis" have also been restored for current release. English film historian Kevin Brownlow, who helped rediscover Abel Gance's "Napoleon," was granted permission by Charlie Chaplin's widow to search the Chaplin files. The result is "The Unknown Chaplin," with footage that has long been lost or never seen by the public.

Jack Haley, Jr., who is producing "That's Dancing" for MGM, uncovered a rare find for the film: Ray Bolger's dance to "If I Only Had a Brain," cut from the 1939 release print of "The Wizard of Oz."

"Like so many of these discoveries, it was on the wrong shelf in the wrong can," says Haley, who has devoted much of his career to celebrating Hollywood's past. "I showed it to Ray and asked how he liked seeing it after all these years. He said, 'Jack, I never saw it before.'"

The renewed interest in lost and neglected films has delighted the town's archivists and restorers. The Motion Picture Academy's Douglas Edwards, who helped reconstitute "A Star Is Born," indicated that more wonders can be found in the vaults.

"For instance, 'The Animal Kingdom,' which RKO made in the early 1930 with Leslie Howard and Myrna Loy," says Edwards. "It was on the AFI's (American Film Institute's) 10 most-wanted list. A nitrate negative and positive were found in a vault at Warner Bros., which had bought the rights for a remake."

Edwards' ambition is to reassemble Stanley Kubrick's "Spartacus," from which Universal cut an hour. Ron Haver, head of the film department of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, has his own pet project: Billy Wilder's 1969 "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes."

Bob Rosen, former UCLA archivist and now director of the National Center for Film and Video Preservation at AFI, comments: "With the increased interest in old films and the new outlets and markets for them, many films of the past may have commercial value.

"The studios put enormous value on their libraries, and preserving and restoring the old films is an eminently wise policy. The only danger is in over-restoring films," he says. "It's one thing to restore the director's cut. To inject all the unused material would be foolish. Movies are usually cut for good reason."

The original scenes cut from Orson Welles' 1948 "Macbeth" have been found and added, says Rosen, and the result is a "smashing film. ... If anyone can find the missing scenes from Welles' 'The Magnificent Ambersons,' he should be awarded a medal."

No chance, sighs Haver. When Paramount bought the old RKO studio, the new owners dumped carloads of the highly inflammable nitrate film stock into the Pacific Ocean.

Springsteen concert sets record

Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — Rock singer Bruce Springsteen reinforced his socially conscious image Thursday as he opened the first of seven Los Angeles Concerts at the Sports Arena to a record audience.

The capacity crowd of 15,493 fans — typically clean-cut and in their 20's and 30's — jumped to their feet as Springsteen opened with the politically-themed "Born in the U.S.A."

It was the singer's first concert in Los Angeles since 1981.

Springsteen's lyrics about the aspirations of ordinary people, plus his high-output, unpretentious manner on stage, have made him a working-class hero to a largely white, blue-collar and middle-class audience.

In introducing one of his current hits, "My Home Town," Springsteen endorsed the Steel Workers Old-Timers Foundation, which operates a food bank for the needy in Huntington Park, Calif.

"They're feeding people who have been hard hit by some of the plant closures here. They're trying to make your home town a better place to live," he told the audience.

Los Angeles police reported no problems at the concert.

A "protest rally" by the Democratic Socialists of America drew fewer than half a dozen demonstrators. Two of them held up a banner that read: "The Boss is Bruce, not Reagan," a reference both to Springsteen's nickname and to the president's mention of Springsteen's songs as a "message of hope" at a rally last month in the singer's home state of New Jersey.

When wind blew the banner down, many in the crowd cheered. Some remarked that the rally was exploiting Springsteen.

Almost everyone's registered

LEARNED, Miss. (AP) — Suppose they gave an election and everybody came. That could very well be the case in the towns of Learned and Cayuga.

"I believe just about everybody that's old enough is registered, except my granddaughter," said Williena Yates of Cayuga.

But Mrs. Yates, 77, said her granddaughter, Clair Proviance, planned to sign up this week at the Utica Townhall, the closest registration station to Cayuga and Learned.

Saturday is the deadline in Mississippi to register to vote in the Nov. 6 general election. Learned has 502 registered voters and Cayuga has 327.

Mrs. Yates and her husband Fred have operated the only store in Cayuga for 60 years this month.

Actress recalls days as star

CUERNAVACA, Mexico (AP) — Katy Jurado, whose eyes flashed fire in "High Noon" and other movie epics, says she sometimes sees her youthful image now on television and wonders: "Who is that girl — so shy, so cute?"

Now, though she has the same presence and charm as ever, she laughs that she is "old, fat and ugly — whatever you want to call it." That comes after 41 years as an actress and 125 movies, by her count.

Miss Jurado remains active professionally, though hampered by a broken leg that has kept her in a wheelchair for nearly four months.

She appeared as the mother last spring in the short-lived Norman Lear TV series "a.k.a. Pablo" about a Mexican-American family. To her amusement, it led many in the United States to believe she is Mexican-American and not, as she is proud to point out, a Mexican who has maintained a home in this resort city for many years.

"I never became an American citizen," she said, switching often from Spanish to English in a poolside interview in Cuernavaca, 45 miles southwest of Mexico City.

Miss Jurado also has a small but visible part in John Huston's recently released film, "Under the Volcano," which is set in the Cuernavaca of the 1930s.

"I want to do still even the smallest part — as long as it has character," she said. Her top choice, the actress said, would be to play the lead in a movie version of Gabriel Garcia Marquez's "Big Mama's Funeral."

It will be hard to match her spectacular start in Hollywood. Already a star in Mexican movies, she made her first American movie here in 1950, a Western called "The Bullfighter and the Lady."

Then she was called to Hollywood for "High Noon," the classic that won Gary Cooper an Academy Award as a sheriff abandoned by his town to alone face a band of gunfighters.

Miss Jurado played Mrs. Ramirez, a woman of the world who has a memorable confrontation scene with Grace Kelly as Cooper's Quaker bride. She recalls waiting endlessly to film her scenes as Miss Kelly, making only her second movie, pretty much had things her way.

"She was born to be a princess," Miss Jurado said of the actress who later became Princess Grace of Monaco. "She was that kind of a cold girl. ... She knew how to move all the pieces on the chessboard."

She said the part of Mrs. Ramirez wasn't difficult for her at all, although she spoke almost no English then and phonetically learned the lines.

"I am a little fire person," Miss Jurado, who wears colorful makeup but makes few attempts to hide her wrinkles, said with a robust laugh. "I always do what I feel and say what I think. I still have my temper."

In 1954, Miss Jurado was nominated for an Oscar as best supporting actress for "Broken Lance."

She doesn't feel that she ever was typecast abroad as a Mexican woman, playing among others a Jew in "Barabbas" with Anthony Quinn.

Impersonator takes on politicians, entertainers

PARIS (AP) — He can imitate Brigitte Bardot's kittenish coos and mock Charles de Gaulle's icy grandeur with equal ease. He can also sing like Louis Armstrong or come on like Sammy Davis Jr.

He is Thierry Le Luron, 32, France's best-loved impersonator, and he recently rented New York's Carnegie Hall at his own expense for a one-night extravaganza, becoming the first French comedian to appear in the prestigious concert hall.

Le Luron invested $50,000 in the two-hour, one-man show, which included impersonations in French and English of Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr., Francois Mitterrand, Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Maurice Chevalier, Charles Aznavour, Louis Armstrong and Marlene Dietrich.

The puckish comedian said in an interview that his Carnegie Hall venture was an anniversary present he gave himself "to fete my 15 years on the stage. In the 18th century, I might have built myself a little chateau. Nowadays, I have another way to buy my passage into the temple of celebrity."

Le Luron said he has an inferiority complex. If so, it's imperceptible to his adoring public. He stands barely 5 feet 4, but likes to remind visitors that he is no shorter than Louis XIV or Napoleon. He drives a shiny black Rolls-Royce and lives in $1 million penthouse apartment overlooking the Champs Elysees.

"I never practice in front of the mirror, and I hate my own voice," he said. "In fact, I feel more comfortable impersonating just about anyone. When I have to be myself, I never know what to do with my hands."

Le Luron made his first professional stage appearance in 1969 — before a provincial audience of five — when he was 17. Now French critics hail his virtuosity, energy and precision, and many respect him for daring to debunk the powers that be.

With his unique gift of transformation, Le Luron reproduces the phrases, mannerisms and tics of prominent French politicians. He has been sued only once, by Communist singer Jean Ferrat who accused him of slander but later dropped the charges.

"Is there a Socialist is the room?" Le Luron asks as the inimitable Adolf Glandu, an imaginary beret-clad, moustachioed Parisian who is cynical and selfish. The invented name is a composite of Adolf Hitler and France's infamous mass murderer Henri Landru.

"I think people respond to me because I say out loud what everybody else is thinking," said Le Luron of his enormous success.

Highlights in his 120-number repertoire include the late President Georges Pompidou appealing to citizens to clean up sidewalks after their dogs, and ex-President Giscard d'Estaing accepting a gift of diamonds from former Central African "Emperor" Bokassa I.

Though his imitation of Paris mayor Jacques Chirac is mercilessly accurate, the two enjoy a close personal relationship.

"In public, Chirac comes across as haughty, dictatorial and cold, but in private, he's just the opposite," said Le Luron who is known for his conservative political views. "My goal is to portray public figures the way the public sees them."

Le Luron did his first impersonation when he was 8 years old. It was of de Gaulle's now legendary 1940 radio call to arms from London to Nazi-occupied France.

He writes most of his own skits, gleaning material from radio interviews, televised news conferences and the written press. He says he doesn't care when his subjects — or victims — object to the way he represents them. Though some may object, they dare not say so publicly, he said.

Le Luron imitates only public figures "whose psyches I can understand." Thus the only French politician he will not caricature is Jean-Marie Le Pen, leader of the extreme rightist National Front now on an upswing.

"I just don't 'feel' him," he said.

"Impersonation is not something that can be learned," he explained. "It's a God-given gift. You either have it or you don't."

Escorting a visitor to the elevator, Le Luron wrinkled his brow and asked: "How does this sound?"

Then he threw back his head and brought out a famous hoarse whisper: "Hello Dolly, this is Louis ..."

Romanian farming town kicking smoking habit

MAIERU, Romania (AP) — This Transylvanian farming center of 7,000 people is giving up smoking. Local people say only a few hundred people are holding out and keeping the town from being completely cigarette-free.

That could take some time.

"The number of smokers must be reduced either through conviction or through passing away to the other world," said Iorgu Sava Craiesti, a retired engineer credited with starting a no-smoking campaign early this year.

"We have a tradition of keeping our spiritual and physical vigor," said Sever Ursa, director of the local school.

But he estimated that it could take 25 years to eradicate smoking totally.

A birth rate three times higher than the national average inspired the voluntary no-smoking movement, Ursa said. Nearly one-third of the population is under 16, and children are seen everywhere, playing in the streets and yards.

Ursa estimated that 200 people here still smoke cigarettes, or 2.8 percent of the population.

Although official figures are hard to come by, the latest government statistics show Romanian factories turned out 16.5 billion cigarettes in 1980.

Movie brings Ulster's agony home to British

LONDON (AP) — "Cal," a somber movie about the agony of Ulster, is bringing home to mainland Britons what it's like to be caught in the crossfire of Northern Ireland's turmoil.

The $2.6 million film, produced by an Englishman and directed by an Irishman, was well received at the Cannes Film Festival, where its only name star, Shakespearean actress Helen Mirren, won the best actress award.

"Cal" is the latest in a string of feature films about Ulster. Most won critical praise but were financial flops because British distributors shunned them as too politically sensitive.

A few years ago, London's National Film Theater canceled showing "The Dawn," a 1936 movie about the 1920 Black and Tan War, because it was considered too provocative for English audiences.

When the movie finally got a private showing, police Special Branch agents hovered outside the theater noting who went in to see it.

"Cal," produced by David Puttnam, who made the Academy Award-winning "Chariots of Fire," breaks new ground because it is playing to a wider audience on a major circuit after a London premiere.

It's also doing good business in Dublin and was released in the United States last month.

"Cal" will premiere in Northern Ireland Nov. 12 at the Queen's University film festival in Belfast, where festival administrator Michael Open said it is "the most important film we've ever shown."

It was directed by Pat O'Connor, who has made a dozen TV documentaries on Ulster. The movie, his first feature, is based on a novel by Bernard MacLaverty, an Ulster Catholic, who wrote the screenplay.

"I don't see that Protestants should be regarded as having a South African laager mentality," O'Connor said in an interview. "Nor do I think that all Catholics should be thought of as bloodthirsty gunmen because this clearly isn't the case."

The central character is Cal McClusky, a 19-year-old Catholic sucked into the relentless cycle of sectarian violence.He's the driver for an Irish Republican Army gunman who kills a Protestant policeman. Ridden by guilt, he is unable to break free of the IRA, like many young men in the North.

Cal seeks forgiveness from the policeman's widow, a Catholic named Marcella and played with smoldering restraint by Helen Mirren.

They are helpless victims, trapped by Ireland's centuries of violence, unable to comprehend anything but their own despair.They also become lovers, but the romance is doomed by the events that brought them together and their environment.

Cal and his father, Shamie, are burned out of their home because they are Catholics living in a Protestant area. The boy is beaten by Protestant thugs. His father, who works at a meat-packing plant — a symbol of the sectarian slaughter — is driven to insanity.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Exercise can be potent aid to sleep

Dear Dr. Solomon: Sometimes I have trouble falling asleep, and it lasts for a day or so. I don't like to take drugs for it because, as I say, it doesn't last very long. But I would like to know if there is anything else I can do about it. It's not as serious a condition as some of the other things people write to you about, but if I can avoid a few sleepless nights, I would like to do so. Do you have any suggestions? — Herbert, Baton Rouge, La.

Dear Herbert: Many people find they sleep better if they exercise during the day; even a brisk walk may help in this regard. You should also stay away from caffeine and alcohol, and avoid taking naps during the day.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Can't I just stuff my ears with cotton to protect my hearing from increased noise? — Mr. A.A., Steubenville, Ohio

Dear Mr. A.: Not unless you mean a pair of professional, wax-impregnated cotton ear plugs. Ordinary cotton is much too porous to provide any protection at all. Professional ear plugs are made of various other materials: rubber, foam, wax-impregnated cotton and plastic. Most sporting goods stores sell them at a modest price. They should be fitted separately for each ear, because each ear canal might be a different size. If both fit snugly, they can provide about 15 dB of noise protection. Well-fitted protective earmuffs screen out more noise than earplugs — up to 25 dB. (However, you cannot wear muffs over glasses without a sound leak occurring). Hearing specialists recommend muffs for anyone who works in construction, mining, lumber or any other noisy job. Muffs can also provide protection for target shooters, hunters, or anyone who uses power tools or noisy yard equipment. A combination of earplugs and earmuffs will give you the most protection.

Neil Solomon, M.D., is a columnist for Los Angeles Times Syndicate. If you have a medical question, write Dr. Solomon at 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon will not give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.

Washington, Lincoln, FDR might be losers in modern media market

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Franklin D. Roosevelt may have been the perfect presidential picks in their times, but in today's media age, they'd have flopped, a history professor says.

If you took Washington "and put him on television, he would have made Walter Mondale, on his worst and stiffest day, look, if you'll pardon the expression, like the 'Great Communicator,'" said Thomas O. Kelly II, professor of American History at Siena College.

Lincoln, who "was considered by some to be even uglier before he grew the beard," also would have a hard time, Kelly said recently.

STATE IN BRIEF

Policeman injured in shootout

ENNIS (AP) — A 37-year-old police officer was seriously injured Thursday in a shootout with two robbery suspects and authorities were led on a chase along Interstate 45 by one of the men, authorities said.

Police arrested one of the suspects at an apartment complex parking lot where he was wounded, and the other man was captured after a police car which he allegedly commandeered broke down in a 90-mph chase, said Ennis Police Chief Dale Holt.

He said Lt. Dennis Reno was shot about 11:25 a.m. as he was trying to apprehend one of the men wanted for questioning in a Garland store robbery Wednesday.

Reno, a nine-year Ennis police veteran, was shot in the neck. He underwent surgery Thursday afternoon to remove the bullet, which had lodged in his right lung, said a hospital spokesman.

Authorities charged the two men, ages 42 and 39, with two counts each of attempted capital murder in connection with Reno's shooting. The younger man was wounded in the hand. The older man, who was also charged with auto theft, suffered cuts.

The men were taken to Ennis Community Hospital, where they were treated and released into police custody, spokesmen said.

Trailways wants fare increase

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission said Thursday that Trailways Lines Inc., and its affiliated bus companies, have asked the commission for authority to increase intrastate passenger fares by 48.7 percent.

The commission set a public hearing on the application for Nov. 15.

Protests to the request must be received by the commission by Nov. 12.

Through its transportation division, the commission regulates intrastate bus and truck companies. Before these companies can increase rates or fares they must prove a financial need for the change.

Customers warned of card scam

AUSTIN (AP) — AT&T Communications warned its customers Thursday of a long distance calling card scam being practiced in some parts of the state.

Recently some individuals identifying themselves as AT&T operators are calling residential and business customers and asking to verify their calling card numbers, said Phil Bode, spokesman for AT&T in Austin.

In turn, these individuals are using the numbers to place fraudulent long distance calls, which are billed back to the calling card holder.

"Unfortunately, there is no way we can stop these people from victimizing customers," said Bode. "All we can do is alert the public."

Bode said if anyone gets such a call they should notify their local telephone company immediately.

One third of police cars in accident

HOUSTON (AP) — One third of the Houston Police Department's 471 new cars have been involved in accidents, including three vehicles which are total wrecks, officers say.

"We're exposed a lot," Gene Darling, the department's fleet maintenance supervisor said in trying to explain the number of crashes in the past three months.

Department spokesman Raul Correa said Wednesday the cars, at $9,800 apiece, are in use about 20 hours a day.

A recent study showed 63 cars were hit from behind by civilian vehicles. Of those, 17 involved drunken drivers, including 13 who hit police cars which had their lights flashing, Darling said.

Houston has about 990 marked police cars and an unmarked fleet of about 600 to 700, he said.

Teen arrested for rape, murder

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — An 18-year-old man was arrested Thursday in connection with the stabbing death of a 4-year-old girl and the rape of her mother.

The woman's daughter was pronounced dead at Dallas-Fort Worth Medical Center at 2:15 p.m., a hospital spokeswoman said.

The man was being held without bond in city jail on charges of investigation of capital murder and investigation of aggravated sexual assault, said police.

The suspect appeared before Municipal Court Judge Frank Hagle on the investigative charges. Formal charges were expected to be filed by the Dallas County district attorney's office.

Officers using a helicopter captured the man shortly after 1 p.m. in a field a short distance from the woman's house, where she was reportedly tied up and repeatedly raped.

Police officers from Grand Prairie and Fort Worth searched the neighborhood in the Trailwood Addition south of Interstate 20 for the man. A weapon was recovered, Grand Prairie police Lt. Montie Gatlin said in a prepared release.

Man accused of filing false records

HOUSTON (AP) — A Freeport man has testified he advised 3,500 taxpayers whose income tax returns he supervised to withhold payment to battle the "tyranny of the Internal Revenue Service."

David M. Martin, 65, testified in his federal trial Wednesday on income tax charges that he advised customers of Taxpayers United not to pay taxes on the grounds that federal reserve notes are worthless because they are not based on gold or silver or because wage-earners are not employees in the eyes of the law.

To Lease or Not To Lease

Reasons To Lease:

1. Leasing is convenient – you only pay for what you use and not for the full price of the car.
2. There is no used car to dispose of at lease end.
3. Leasing frees your cash and you can use your available bank line of credit for other purposes.
4. Lessee – leasing for business purposes will have the benefit of simplified tax records.
