Cheney fires general because of remarks

■ Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney says Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Mike Dugan violated Pentagon rules by publicly discussing likely military targets and the size of U.S. forces.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney fired Gen. Mike Dugan as Air Force chief of staff Monday after Dugan's public comments about contingency plans to unleash massive air raids on Iraq and target Saddam Hussein personally.

Dugan

Dugan, in the top Air Force job only three months, said in a statement that he regreted "any embarrassment that my comments may have caused the administration" and said he had been presenting only his own views.

Cheney said Dugan had violated Pentagon rules by publicly discussing likely military targets inside Iraq and disclosing classified information about the size of U.S. forces in the gulf area.

"There are certain things we never talk about," the secretary said in explaining his decision to fire Dugan. He cited "operational matters" such as the selection of specific targets for potential air strikes and the targeting of foreign leaders.

"Gen. Dugan's statements as reported in the press and as confirmed by him to me — failed all of those tests," Cheney said, adding later, "I was concerned about the lack of judgment" by Dugan in offering "wide-ranging speculation about decisions that may or may not be made by the president in the future."

Cheney stressed that the Bush administration had carefully refrained from publicly discussing possible military options, in part because giving Iraq hints at American plans could endanger U.S. troops. Cheney told reporters that 150,000 U.S. soldiers, sailors and airmen are now in the Persian Gulf area as part of the six-week-old Operation Desert Shield.

Dugan was away from the Pentagon on Monday and not available for comment, his office said. But the general, in a statement distributed by the Air Force, said:

"I sincerely regret any embarrassment that my comments may have caused the administation. I was presenting my personal views and they should not be construed to reflect any plans or the position of any other member of the administration or the Department of Defense."

Cheney told reporters he would recommend to President Bush that Gen. Merrill A. McPeak replace Dugan. McPeak, 54, is commander of Pacific Air Forces, based in Hawaii.

Dugan took the Air Force job in July and quickly gained a reputation for openness with the news media and the Congress. One gesture that illustrated this departure from past Air Force practice was his decision to give defense reporters laminated cards listing his office phone number and the numbers of his chief aides.

Cheney lauded Dugan's long Air Force career but said the four-star general has no future in the military.

Price of crude oil closes at $33.63

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

Crude oil prices on the New York Mercantile Exchange Monday reached their highest level since oil has been traded on the Exchange, as traders reacted to increasing hositility in the Persian Gulf crisis.

The price of West Texas Intermediate crude oil closed at $33.63, up $1.87, after opening $1 higher and see-sawing up and down for most of the day.

WTI opened at a $32.80 per barrel for October delivery, surpassing the old opening high of $32.35 that was set Aug. 2, 1983, and matched once during the latest Persian Gulf crisis, on Aug. 23. The exchange's records for crude date to March 30, 1983, when it began trading the oil futures.

Analysts say the high opening price was the result of higher prices for North Sea Brent.

Brent prices were higher in part because of a North Sea pipeline problem that was keeping about 70,000 barrels per day off the market. European oil prices were also higher because of a rumor that unscheduled repairs would be held on a Soviet pipeline from the Ural Mountains to the Caspian Sea, although traders said the Soviets issued a statement this morning that was construed as a denial of the rumor.

The posted price, which was $30.50 for WTI Friday, jumped to $32.25 Monday as Permian and Marathon raised their price $1.75.

Exxon gives building for MISD offices

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Midland Independent School District central administrators, packed like academic sardines in their offices for more than 30 years, will have a new home by the year's end courtesy of Exxon Co. USA.

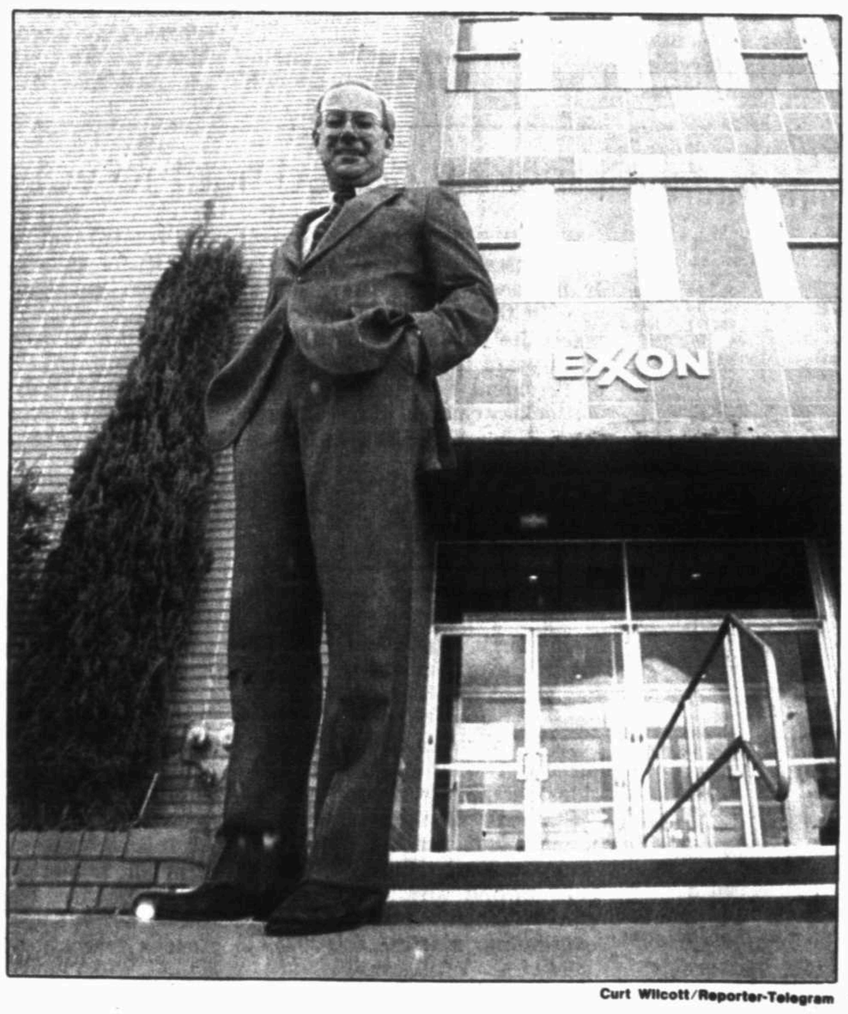

Robert Olsen, manager of Exxon's Southwestern Production Division, announced Monday that his company was giving MISD its seven-story, 80,000-square-foot downtown building.

Olsen said rather than sell the 615 W. Missouri Ave. building, worth an estimated $1.5 million, the company decided to make it a gift to the community.

"I interviewed a number of community leaders to see what would make the most sense," he said. "The one that was clearly the best fit in terms of what they needed was for the school system. We've had a long-standing support of education around the country."

MISD central administration has been housed in three locations, with the main offices at 702 N. N St. Other administrative offices are at the Western Building, 1031 Andrews Highway,

Negotiators discuss future of U.S. bases

■ Philippine President Corazon Aquino says it's time for the "orderly withdrawal" of U.S. troops from the islands.

Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — U.S. and Philippine officials opened talks Tuesday on the future of U.S. military bases, and the chief American negotiator said the days of a large U.S. military presence here "are coming to an end."

"What remains for us to determine is the rate at which this presence will be reduced and the nature of the relationship our two governments wish to pursue," chief U.S. negotiator Richard Armitage told the opening session.

U.S. and Philippine panels resumed the talks that began last May on the future of Clark Air Base, the Subic Bay naval base and four smaller installations.

The lease on the bases expires in September 1991, and President Corazon Aquino says it is time to discuss the "orderly withdrawal" of the 40,000 American troops, Defense Department civilians and military dependents stationed here.

"It is clear to me that the days of a very large presence of U.S. sailors and airmen in the Philippines are coming to

Almost year after quake, Bay area still in ruins

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nearly a year after an earthquake killed 67 people and jolted nationwide TV viewers expecting the World Series, San Francisco's supervisors still enter their chambers through an archway braced by timbers.

The Embarcadero Freeway is still deserted, weeds sprouting from cracked concrete. An estimated 1,000 people left homeless by the 7.1-magnitude tremor sleep in doorways and shelters while the city negotiates redevelopment funds to rebuild hotels.

In Santa Cruz, a seaside tourist town eight miles from the Oct. 17 quake's epicenter, chain-link fences ring downtown craters where the shuddering Earth crumbled Victorian buildings, cracking colonnades and toppling turrets.

From San Francisco to Watsonville, businesses, homes and freeways severely damaged by the Loma Prieta quake remain in ruins, and officials estimate it will be five to 10 years before the worst of the $7 billion-$10 billion damage is repaired.

None of the agencies involved was willing to estimate the final price tag, which will include seismic renovations to protect against the "The Really Big One."

"It's one of the most depressing things I've ever been through in my life. It's like it was nuclear bombed. All the buildings are gone ... I can imagine going through World War II and coming home to see your city totally destroyed," said Bob Shepherd. He was Santa Cruz city finance manager until he resigned Aug. 17 to teach.

Only one of the 15 buildings demolished in the town centerpiece, Pacific Garden Mall, is under construction. Five others have permits, said Ceil Cerillo, executive director of the city's redevelopment agency.

More than 35 businesses sell their wares out of six tent pavilions.

Ten miles south in Watsonville, a town of migrant field hands and cannery workers, the gutted Main Street has barely begun to revive. The largest retailer, Ford's Department Store, announced in mid-August it will rebuild with help from Federal Emergency Management Agency funds.

In Oakland, where the quake stunned a downtown revitalization effort, several blocks of stores and office buildings remain boarded up.

Oakland City Hall, which dates to 1914, is ringed with scaffolding and closed to the public while the city dickers with FEMA over how much of the $90 million renovation the agency will reimburse.

San Francisco officials won't begin the $100 million repair of the Beaux Arts City Hall until they settle with FEMA.

"There is still no agreement. It's stupid to work on our buildings while we're negotiating what's eligible. ... We'd have removed the evidence," said Tom Jones of the mayor's Office of Community Development and Housing.

Drivers in and out of the city continue to face traffic jams on U.S. 101 and Interstate 280, sections of which remain

Loose moose

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Neighbors ate popcorn and drank beer as they watched authorities remove a bull moose from a garden, where it feasted on green beans and tomatoes.

The Sunday block party lasted until state Department of Wildlife agents fired two tranquilizing darts into the 700-pound moose.

The sedated animal was hauled away in a horse trailer and released on Mount Spokane, about 15 miles northeast of Louise Clawson's vegetable garden.

As many as 100 curious neighbors gathered, giving authorities a few nervous moments until the moose was subdued.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Cloudy skies forecast

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the upper 80s, south winds at 10 to 15 mph, and a 20 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in the mid-60s and a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Wednesday is expected to be partly cloudy with a high in the upper 80s and a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

The high for Monday was 86 compared with the record high for that date of 98 set in 1977. The overnight low was 66. The record low for that date was 47 in 1971.

STATE

Strong thunderstorms generated by moist, unstable air dumped heavy rains on parts of South and Central Texas on Monday, and forecasters expected more precipitation through the middle of the week.

Rainfall was also expected in parts of North Texas under the influence of a high-pressure system in the midwestern United States.

Nearly two inches of rain were reported at Eagle Pass and Loma Alta, with 1.95 inches at Lake Georgetown, 2.24 inches at Silver Valley and 2.15 inches at the Miller Ranch on the Devils River, the National Weather Service reported.

The weather service said 3.38 inches of rain fell at Giddings. In the last two days, some locations in the Sonora and Del Rio area have received nearly 10 inches.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms extended from near San Angelo to near Abilene, Wichita Falls and along the Red River to Sherman and Paris. Strong storms stretched from near Lufkin to southeast of Waco and at the Texas-New Mexico border.

More scattered rains were expected statewide through Wednesday, with locally heavy amounts possible in the Concho Valley.

NATION

Cool weather asserted itself over much of the nation Monday, with record lows in Michigan and frost advisories extending into the central Appalachians.

Afternoon temperatures were generally only in the 50s and 60s from the northern and central high Plains to the middle and northern Atlantic Coast. Readings also were in the 60s in the Northwest.

Overnight temperatures dipped into the 30s across parts of the upper Mississippi Valley, the Great Lakes region and northern New England, with freezing temperatures reported in the upper Great Lakes region.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., on Lake Superior, was the cold spot in the Lower 48 states Monday morning with a record low of 27, the coldest reading on record for so early in the season there. Elsewhere in Michigan, Muskegon tied its record low of 36.

A freeze warning was posted overnight into Tuesday morning for extreme western Maryland and the northern mountains of western Pennsylvania. Frost warnings issued for the rest of western Maryland and the southern and central mountains of northwestern Pennsylvania.

The Associated Press also contributed to this report.

(From 1A)

"He will be retired," Cheney said. "Gen. Dugan is a fine officer with an outstanding record of 32 years of service to the Air Force and to the nation," Cheney said. "This was not a pleasant action for me to take but a necessary one."

One Pentagon official said Dugan was fired not simply for speaking openly but because he overstepped his authority, which does not include decisions on wartime options.

"It's saying things that aren't true; it's saying things that weren't his decision to make. He's not in the operational chain of command, and the idea whether Saddam Hussein is personally targeted — those are decisions that are up to the president to make," said the official, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

This official also said Cheney was upset that Dugan had said Israel supplied the U.S. government with intelligence information about high-value Iraqi targets.

Cheney said he fired Dugan after conferring with Bush.

"It was my decision, my idea," Cheney said.

Initial Capitol Hill reaction supported Cheney's move.

The chairman and the ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and John Warner, R-Va., said in a statement, "We believe Secretary Chaney's action ... was justified."

The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Cheney "did the right thing in dismissing General Dugan. ... He put American lives in danger."

Before becoming Air Force chief of staff, Dugan was commander in chief of U.S. Air Forces in Europe. He was a combat pilot in the Vietnam War, flying 300 missions.

Dugan's controversial comments, reported Sunday by the Los Angeles Times and The Washington Post, were made during the Air Force chief's trip to and from Saudi Arabia, where he visited Air Force units

Dugan told the newspapers that if the United States and Iraq went to war, the Pentagon planned to unleash an air campaign designed to "decapitate" the Iraqi leadership by targeting Saddam, his family and even his mistress.

The general said that until two weeks ago, U.S. target planners had assembled a conventional list of Iraqi targets which included Iraqi air defenses, airfields and warplanes, missile sites and other military installations. He said other targets would include Iraqi power systems, roads, railroads and perhaps domestic petroleum production facilities, but not the oil fields.

(From 1A)

Albert Helmig, a principal in the trading firm of Energex said a number of factors over the weekend had prompted the jump in oil prices. Among those he cited were the Iraq invasion of embassies in Kuwait, the expulsion of Iraqi diplomats from several European countries, statements in President Bush's seven minute speech over Iraqi TV and Iraqi demonstrations which followed.

"There was just a general increase in hostility, moving the situation closer to a war," said Helmig. "The market is telling us that oil prices will go very high if war causes an interruption of oil supplies, but most feel the supplies will not be permanent and the market will recover after 90 to 120 days."

Helmig said the price of oil contracts one year from now is selling for about $7 less. "I sold a contract this morning for next October at $25.60. Traders see a more normal situation one year out."

Helmig said the market was ignoring bearish news and reacting only to bullish news.

Natural gas stayed the same at $1.52 per 1,000 cubic feet for October delivery, although later months were slightly higher.

EXXON: Building donated for MISD administrators

and West Early Childhood Center, 2101 W. Missouri Ave.

Superintendent Joe Baressi said the district will not only be able to consolidate central administration under one roof but save more than $100,000 annually in rent for Western Building offices.

"I think the size and location of the Exxon building and the parking available will allow us to serve our administration needs for the next 30 to 40 years," Baressi said.

Computer services and the personnel departments are now in offices in the Western Building, while guidance and parent training specialists and truant officers are operating out of West Early Childhood Center.

These staffers as well as almost all other central administration staffers will be moved to the Exxon Building during the Thanksgiving and Christmas school breaks, Baressi said. Computer services, though, may not be moved until next summer, he added.

No new name for the building has been decided yet, Baressi said.

The 702 N. N St. building has served MISD central administration since 1957. Additions to it were made in 1967.

The facility is conveniently located next to the overcrowded Sam Houston Elementary School, which has five portable classrooms and a diminutive library.

The administration building will be converted next spring into classroom space for Sam Houston, which is still set for a refurbishing project in the summer of 1991, Baressi said. Revenues from a recent 2.9 percent tax hike will pay for renovations to Sam Houston and Washington elementary schools.

Olsen said his company, which has 550 employees working out of offices in ClayDesta Plaza, considered selling the Exxon Building or even moving into it.

"But we wanted to do something that would have a long-lasting benefit for the community," he said. "We've had a long commitment to Midland and we wanted Midland to know that we're still committed."

The title to the building will be formally transferred to MISD in a ceremony to be held in about a month, Olsen said.

The Exxon Building has been vacant since the company created an onshore exploration division in Houston in May, resulting in the loss of about 75 exploration jobs here. The move of those employees was expected to be completed by Sept. 1.

Airlines raising fares

NEW YORK (AP) — Trans World, Northwest and United joined other major airlines Monday in imposing an additional 4.2 percent fare increase that will raise domestic tickets by a total of 9.5 percent since Iraq invaded Kuwait.

The higher rates go into effect on Oct. 1 as airlines try to recoup some of the extra money spent on jet fuel, which has risen by about 50 percent since the Aug. 2 invasion.

Last month, airlines boosted domestic fares by 5.3 percent to partially offset the higher fuel costs.

Airlines were unsure whether they will be catching up with the higher costs once the higher rates go into effect.

"That's beyond our speculative abilities, because it requires seeing into the brain of Saddam Hussein and we don't have that capability," Northwest spokesman Bob Gibbons said.

The second wave of fare increases was begun by Pan Am, which announced a 4.4 percent increase on top of its earlier increase.

Airlines that responded last week with announcements of additional 4.2 percent fare increases included American, America West, USAir, Delta and Eastern.

QUAKE: Bay area still hasn't been rebuilt

closed. The Embarcadero, the lifeline to Chinatown and North Beach nightclubs, remains a hulking ruin while the city decides whether to replace it with an underground expressway.

Repairs to these roads are estimated at $160 million. That does not include $100 million to replace Interstate 880's Cypress overpass, where 42 of the quake victims died after it collapsed.

"When the freeways reopen, we'll be the foremost engineers in the world on earthquake repairs. We want to do it right; safety is the main issue," said Greg Bayol, spokesman for the state Department of Transportation.

Some homeowners in San Francisco's heavily damaged Marina District, where only two of 54 demolished buildings have been reoccupied, found $500,000 Small Business Administration loans too little too late.

One woman interviewed by the city received word she was eligible for a no-interest 20-year loan from CALDAP, a state program, one day after she agreed to sell her $2.5 million property for $1 million to pay her note.

Officials estimate it will be five years before the freeways are restored and at least three years before hotels are rebuilt with help of emergency redevelopment funds, said Bill Rumpf, chief of San Francisco's redevelopment agency.

Hinckley denied right to vote in D.C.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. has been denied permission to vote in the District of Columbia where he has been confined for eight years for the 1981 shooting of President Reagan.

Hinckley claimed in a petition to the D.C. Board of Elections that he had resided and paid taxes in the District for eight years and should be given the right to vote in the upcoming general election.

But after a hearing Monday, the board rejected the petition and said a person involuntarily confined cannot change his address to where he is being held.

BASES: U.S. presence in Philippines to be reduced an end," Armitage said in his opening remarks.

On Monday, police clashed with hundreds of demonstrators who demanded that the Americans go home. At least 17 people were arrested and seven people were injured in two anti-bases rallies outside the U.S. Embassy.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Monday in Washington the Bush administration hoped any new accord would "include provisions for a continuing defense relationship, including U.S. access to Philippine military facilities."

Opposition to the bases is growing among Filipinos who consider them an infringement on national sovereignty.

On the eve of the talks, Mrs. Aquino said in a nationally televised address that the negotiations will redefine relations between the United States and this former American colony.

"It is now necessary for our government to work with the United States for arrangements regarding the orderly withdrawal of their forces from our country," she said.

Last Friday, The Washington Post reported that U.S. negotiators will offer to close the bases over 10 years.

Manila newspapers reported last month that the Philippines will propose that Clark Air Base and other facilities be closed next year in return for allowing the Americans to keep Subic for 10 years.

U.S. officials said the 40,000 American troops, Defense Department civilians and military dependents will remain as long as they are wanted.

Mandela calls police crackdown 'license to kill'

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A new police crackdown on black faction fighting amounts to a "license to kill" for security forces, African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela said Monday.

He said the ANC's national executive committee would discuss police measures at an urgent meeting today and hinted it could call for supporters to arm themselves.

President F.W. de Klerk said he would announce further measures this week intended to halt street clashes in black townships near Johannesburg that have killed almost 800 blacks since Aug. 12.

Also Monday, police in Pretoria arrested a right-wing extremist who claimed responsibility for bombing two offices of the governing National Party. Boers State Party deputy leader Piet Rudolph had been in hiding since a weapons theft at an air force base in April. The party opposes efforts to end apartheid in South Africa.

No major township violence was reported over the weekend or Monday, police said.

The new police measures, codenamed Operation Iron Fist, were announced Saturday in response to calls for the government to halt the township carnage.

They include more police and soldiers in the townships; roadblocks; searches for weapons; use of dye dropped from helicopters to identify participants in clashes; equipping police vehicles with mounted machine guns; isolating workers hostels and squatter camps with razor wire; and a dusk-to-dawn curfew.

Police spokesman Col. Frans Malherbe said all the measures except the curfew would be implemented this week.

The government previously declared the Johannesburg-area townships unrest areas and poured in additional police and soldiers in a bid to halt the fighting. But the street clashes continued.

De Klerk said in Pretoria that additional measures would be announced later this week. He did not elaborate but said those participating in the violence would be prosecuted.

He also said the violence had shifted from attacks against the white-led government to a power struggle among black factions to "play a leading role in the negotiation process."

De Klerk has pledged to eliminate the apartheid system of racial segregation and white dominance. He also has called for negotiations on sharing power with the black majority.

Mandela, on a one-day tour of four small towns near Cape Town, said the new police measures would be ineffective. He was most upset by the mounting of machine guns on armored patrol vehicles.

Police Maj. Gen. Gerrit Erasmus said the machines guns were for protection from attackers with assault rifles. Several policemen have been killed recently in such attacks.

"From now on we can expect indiscriminate shootings whenever there are demonstrations, no matter how peaceful," Mandela said. "In my view, this is a license to kill."

The ANC leader said police only need tear gas and water cannons to control demonstrations. Mandela also said he believes the security forces have helped orchestrate the violence.

In addition, he reiterated charges that a "sinister task force" had participated in recent attacks on blacks intended to destabilize the situation. Witnesses have reported seeing white men with blackened faces participating in the attacks.

The government has said it would investigate such charges.

Mandela said the government's failure to halt the unrest could upset planned negotiations on power sharing. But he added: "To abandon the talks now would be to play into the hands of this task force."

"But we will not stand by and see our people mowed down like dogs," Mandela said, reiterating a threat to arm ANC supporters. The ANC, however, is not believed to possess a large arsenal of weapons.

Most of the fighting has been between Zulus loyal to the conservative Inkatha movement and Xhosas and other blacks who support the ANC.

The ANC and Inkatha, the two largest black political movements, both oppose apartheid but differ on tactics and plans for a future South Africa.

Reagan addresses Soviet parliament

MOSCOW (AP) — Ronald Reagan, visiting the Soviet Union for the first time since leaving the White House, on Monday cautioned the 15 fractious republics against letting their passion for independence boil over.

The former president, speaking to lawmakers in the Supreme Soviet parliament, recalled the "wrenching and terrible" U.S. Civil War.

"As you find a reformulation of the relationships in your union you will find there is a period of uncertainty and tension," he told the parliament's international committee.

"Differences can be resolved in ways that are fair to all, but reason must prevail over passion if there is to be a climate conducive to the settlement of disagreements."

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev is trying to negotiate a new treaty giving more autonomy to the Soviet Union's ethnically and geographically diverse republics. But 13 of them already have declared some form of independence or sovereignty, in which their laws would take precedence over national laws.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, arrived in the Soviet Union in Leningrad on Sunday, the start of a five-day visit proposed by Gorbachev when they last met in San Francisco in June. The two men greeted one another Monday with a warm embrace, and Gorbachev praised Reagan's contribution toward better superpower relations.

The official Tass news agency said Gorbachev and Reagan had a "substantial and ...cere" talk, discussing the Persian Gulf crisis, the prospects for continued cooperation between the Soviet Union and the United States, and the outlook for cutting strategic nuclear weapons.

In his speech, Reagan marveled at the reforms that have swept Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

"These are yeasty times, times of ferment," he said. "Freedom can bring out passions between groups of people that may boil over. When they do, cool and calm decisions are called for by leaders, so as to lower temperatures all around."

Reagan said political changes might come easier than economic changes as the Soviet Union struggles to replace its centrally planned command economy with a market economy.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Perseverance will help you overcome any roadblocks to career progress this fall. A true sensitivity to the needs of others wins you the attention of someone in a position of power. You will take special pride in the accomplishments of your children. Although romance could have its ups and downs next spring, you are likely to work things out. A love relationship takes on new meaning in June. Enjoy an overseas vacation in July or August.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Jack Warden, singer Frankie Avalon, actor Robert Blake, country singer Charley Pride.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your judgment may be faulty now. Be aware that anything you say could weigh heavily on your future. Travel will provide a delightful break from your usual routine.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Specialized knowledge and greater public recognition come your way when you associate with influential people. Others will give you a strong voice in legal or financial matters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You control your destiny. Your hard work will pay off handsomely in the near future. What you learn about finances today could come in handy. Talks and trips go best before nightfall.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Old agreements may bear new fruit for you now. Contacts in faraway locales brighten your day. Promote your plans through talks and letters. You can get exactly what you want. Your income soars!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): People in authority could make you hot under the collar. Patience will pay big dividends. You can learn valuable lessons from the past. Be more open to an older person's suggestions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make certain you are not influenced by temporary disharmony at work; acting on impulse could spoil a promising venture. An out-of-court legal settlement will work to your advantage.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Today's communications could bring the information you have been seeking. Use this knowledge wisely. A close friendship is a lucky charm! Shopping bargains abound. Study the ads.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Guard your visionary ideas. Others want to jump on your bandwagon. Casual acquaintances could prove to be valuable advisers. Ask for suggestions on improving a new service or product.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A longtime companion plays a special role today. You gain vital information, along with a trusted ally. Joint financial moves look promising. Devote more time to romance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A new business alliance can pay permanent benefits even if you and your partners are miles apart. Long-sought goals become easier to attain, thanks to your network of friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Long-range plans flourish now. You attract good sources of support and funds. Be open to advice — it could help eliminate secret worries. Get ready to take a step up the career ladder!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your personal appeal and communication skills are an unbeatable combination today. You attain a long-cherished goal. Information provided by influential friends will be a godsend.

TODAY'S CHILDREN respect tradition and love rituals. A well-organized home embellished with small luxuries and artistic touches suits these Virgos to a "T." They have strong opinions and will let others know exactly where they stand. As intelligent youngsters, they often make statements that are wise beyond their years. Their eloquence and sincerity are big pluses! Medicine, education and finance are excellent fields for these studious Virgos.

Before being elevated to the peerage, Lord Smith of Marlow had acquired fame as a surgeon. After removing 34 gallstones from Maurice Harrison-Gray, he remarked: "Enough for a small slam at no trump!"

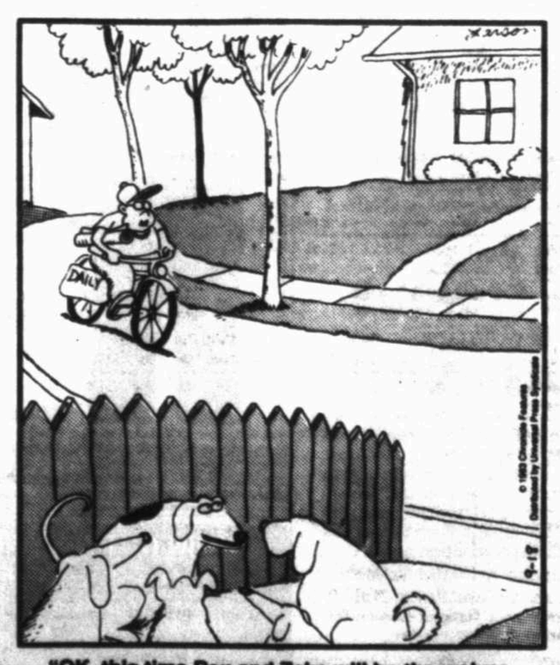

Lord Smith was a member of the British Parliamentary team that went to Sweden to play against the Swedish Parliament. This hand cropped up during a rubber bridge game with his hosts. Lord Smith sat South and reached six hearts on the auction shown. North was rather aggressive in pushing to slam when South had not shown any more than a minimum opening bid, but Lord Smith displayed impeccable technique.

Declarer won the opening spade lead in hand, cashed the ace and king of clubs and ruffed a club. After playing off the ace of diamonds and ruffing a diamond in hand, South cashed the ace of trumps and viewed West's king with mixed feelings.

Declarer set about singling in his trumps. The other top spade and a spade ruff in dummy were followed by a second diamond ruff in hand, then the last spade ruffed with the queen of trumps, on which East discarded the queen of diamonds. With the lead on the table, East was down to J 7 in trumps while declarer held 9 5. When a diamond as led from dummy, declarer could not be prevented from scoring his nine of trumps en passant for the fulfilling trick.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Veteran comedian Steve Allen doesn't find anything funny about television's trend toward stronger language and adult-oriented themes.

Allen lashed out at current television trends in an opinion piece published in Monday's Los Angeles Times.

The "flow is carrying us all along right into the sewer," he wrote.

"The very sort of language parents forbid their children to use is now being encouraged not only by anything-goes cable entrepreneurs but the once high-minded networks," said Allen, host of the 1950s comedy-variety series "The Steve Allen Show."

Shows that depict children and others using vulgar language only point up the collapse of the American family, he said.

Allen applauded NBC's censoring of some remarks by comedian Andrew Dice Clay on a recent "Saturday Night Live" episode. He called Clay "the prince of filth."

"The best humor, when it is not simply purely playful, says something witty and wise about the issues it confronts," said Allen.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Charlton Heston, who has been stumping for two Republican congressmen, will relinquish the podium soon to take on the role of Sherlock Holmes.

Heston

Heston said Sunday he's traveling to London this month to begin work on "Crucifer of Blood," a film based on Paul Giovanni's play about the Arthur Conan Doyle sleuth. The movie will be directed by his son, Fraser Heston.

Heston starred in a 1980 stage production of "Crucifer of Blood."

Earlier Sunday, Heston spoke at a rally for Rep. Bill Dickinson of Montgomery, seeking his 14th term. On Saturday, he spoke in support of Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., at a news conference in Atlanta.

The Oscar-winning actor, who has long been active in politics, praised Dickinson and Gingrich for their "energy, wisdom and influence."

CHICAGO (AP) — Perennial Mr. Olympia Lee Haney could be a hero to Weight Watchers dropouts everywhere.

Haney, crowned Mr. Olympia on Saturday for the seventh consecutive time, says the secret to his muscle-bound form is eating — and eating — and eating some more.

The key is eating the right food, said Haney, 30, who estimates he gobbles up 4,000 to 5,000 calories a day, 65 to 70 percent of them carbohydrates.

"But most people eat a high-fat diet, have bacon or sausage in the morning, a burger for lunch, and before they know it, they have had 5,000 calories and have a lot of body fat," he said.

Haney's latest Mr. Olympia crown, which came with $70,000 in prize money, eclipsed the record of six consecutive titles that he shared with actor Arnold Schwarzenegger. It also left the two tied for the overall title with seven wins apiece.

"Anyone who can repeat two, three or four times is tough to defeat and is very special," Haney said. "They know their body, their nutrition, their preparation. That's what made Arnold so great. It's not that easy."

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — American author Toni Morrison's novel "Beloved," depicting the struggles faced by three generations of black women, has won The Chianti Ruffino Antico Fattore international literary prize.

Award sponsors praised the novel for "giving a voice to the experience of suffering, survival and life of the black population of America and in giving a voice to the feminine experience within the black population."

Morrison, who accepted the award Sunday during ceremonies at Florence's Palazzo Vecchio, described the book as "the story of the complex and intense love of a woman for her children." It is set before, during and after the Civil War.

Morrison, who was selected from among winners of other national literary prizes, receives a cash award of $4,200.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jackson didn't say if it would be the one with the glove, but he promised Boy Scout officials he would do all he could to follow their edict to extend a hand to others.

Jackson

The pop music superstar was presented the Michael Jackson Good Scout Humanitarian Award at a banquet in Century City.

"On behalf of the millions of past, present and future Boy Scouts, I will try to abide by your motto of being prepared and always extending a hand to others," said Jackson.

"Michael Jackson is a good example of youth, helping us keep kids off the streets by supporting scouting," said Ray Martin, chairman of the Los Angeles Area Council Boy Scouts of America.

"He supports what the scouting programs are doing — giving kids an alternative to street gangs," Martin said.

Avoiding gridlock important, but ...

The nation's air transportation system is overburdened. Congested airports and outdated air traffic control systems are contributing to flight delays that cost billions of dollars annually in wasted time and fuel. Unless airports and air traffic control systems are expanded and improved, the United States could face aviation gridlock.

Yet, as passengers have fumed at delays, the federal government has allowed the aviation trust fund, financed by an 8 percent tax on airline tickets and other taxes, to accumulate a $7.6 billion surplus. Successive administrations and Congress have kept much of the trust fund unspent because it helps to disguise the enormity of the federal budget deficit.

Now, however, the House of Representatives has approved legislation to spend more of the trust fund for aviation improvements and operations, reducing the surplus to as low as $1.1 billion by 1995. The bill also would create another source of financing for airport improvements by allowing local airports to impose a new surcharge on airline tickets.

With federal approval, local airports could add "passenger facility charges" of up to $3 to airline tickets. Passengers would have to pay only at the first two airports used on a one-way trip. Thus the maximum round-trip charge would be four $3 charges, or $12. The passenger charges could raise $1 billion annually to improve and expand airports and ease growing delays.

Critics say it's outrageous to ask passengers to pay added fees when they've already paid ticket taxes to the aviation trust fund that remain unspent due to deficit politics. They note that the administration is seeking a ticket tax increase from 8 to 10 percent without any assurance that the additional revenue would be spent to modernize and expand the aviation system.

Some critics say it's no secret that for years capital improvements at airports have been grossly underfunded.

In view of the severe threat that aviation gridlock poses for transportation and the American economy, the Senate should approve the House-passed passenger facility charges. But it should do so only with ironclad guarantees that use of the aviation trust fund to mask the federal deficit will end promptly.

Did FDA arrange Chilean grape scare?

WASHINGTON — American consumers forgot about the Chilean grape poisoning last year almost as soon as the federal government announced that it was once again safe to eat the foreign fruit. But in Chile, the bizarre episode has not been forgotten and the bad taste of the cyanide scare still lingers.

Anderson

How could the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, acting on an anonymous threat, have found two poisoned grapes among 6 million cases of fruit after searching for less than a day? In the minds of more and more Chileans, the answer is that the FDA botched the grape tests and Chile lost millions of dollars in fruit sales because of it.

A few Chileans have reached a more sinister conclusion — that the U.S. government concocted the grape scare to intimidate then-Chilean dictator Augusto Pinochet and remind him how dependent he was on the United States

The General Accounting Office is investigating the FDA's conduct in the Chilean grape incident, but the Chilean Exporters Association did its own investigation, which points the finger at the FDA. The exporters concluded, based on research done at labs including at the University of California at Davis, that someone accidentally or deliberately injected the grapes with cyanide at an FDA lab in Philadelphia.

The exporters don't explain why someone might have done that, but a respected Chilean attorney thinks he knows. Arturo Claro, senior partner in Chile's oldest law firm, has threatened to sue the U.S. government, claiming the grape incident was sabotage. Claro claims that more than a year before the poisoning, a U.S. diplomat asked him what effect he thought it might have if the United States banned Chilean fruit imports as a way to force Pinochet out of power.

"There is an ambassador of a Third-World country who will testify against the United States. You will see soon," Claro told our associate Melinda Maas.

If the fruit was indeed spiked by a terrorist in Chile, then the FDA was either very skillful or very lucky in the resulting investigation.

In early March 1989, the U.S. Embassy in Santiago and a Chilean export company got several anonymous phone calls warning that some Chilean fruit would be poisoned with cyanide. On March 11, a load of fruit arrived in Philadelphia from Chile and sat on the dock overnight. At 10 a.m. on March 12, FDA inspectors confiscated three grapes from the load and on March 13, the FDA announced an embargo on all Chilean fruit, claiming that two of the grapes had cyanide in them.

The Chilean Exporters Association now claims that the temporary ban cost the Chilean fruit industry more than $300 million. The exporters hired their own scientists to duplicate the conditions of the scare. Based on those studies, the exporters say it would have been impossible to inject the amount of cyanide the FDA says it found in the two grapes, ship them to the United States and still have them arrive looking as fresh as they do in the FDA photos. The cyanide would have destroyed the grapes in a matter of hours and would have affected the surrounding bunch also, the exporters' research concluded.

"All of the evidence found shows that the grapes must have been contaminated either accidentally or intentionally in the FDA lab," David Holzworth, the Washington lawyer for the exporters told us.

FDA officials say they are puzzled by the findings and refuse to believe the grapes were contaminated by someone in the lab. The FDA wants to close the books on the affair, but Chile will not let that happen.

Neither will the General Accounting Office, which is looking into serious questions about FDA procedures and record keeping in the grape episode.

Columbus bashers may kill celebration

Just two years from now, America marks the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' first voyage to the New World. The occasion will quicken no memories of the last such observance.

In 1893, a proud United States, the frontier newly closed, held the famous Columbian Exposition in Chicago. "Egyptian dancers" performed the "hootchy-kootchy," and one of every six Americans visited the Court of Honor, with its splendid fountain — Columbus surrounded by 27 colossal figures representing Sculpture, Architecture, Music, and the like.

Murchison

In 1992, it looks as though wailing and gnashing of teeth will eclipse the cacophony of jubilation. We are invited to feel guilty, guilty, guilty over Columbus' having the gall to invite himself here.

Indians — as Columbus named the natives, with cartographical inexactitude — already have been demonstrating against a Columbus exhibition called "First Encounters." In a recent New York Times article, novelist Hans Konig enjoins us not to celebrate 1492 but to "mourn" it, on the grounds that Columbus "set in motion a sequence of greed, cruelty, slavery, and genocide that, even in the bloody history of mankind, has few parallels. He organized an extermination of native Americans. He was also as mean, cruel, and greedy in small matters as he was in vast ones."

Every age tends to read history in terms of its own peculiar concerns. Our forbears, in 1893, valued individual heroism and the pioneering spirit. They were appreciative that Columbus and his crewmen had put their lives on the line to fulfil a dream. True, Columbus didn't actually "discover" America; the Vikings did. Still, those who manned the Nina, Pinta, and Santa Maria didn't know that when they set forth on their terrifying journey.

One reason anti-Columbus sentiment flourishes increasingly is that the present age has far less use for heroism than had the America of a century ago. The suffering, the dying, the bleeding, and sacrifice that went into the making of America — that's all over. Today we've got it made: air-conditioning, microwave popcorn, VCRs. How can we possibly relate to Columbus, a man with a gleam in his eye, driven to stake life and fortune on a hunch? A hunch today is the instinct that T-bill rates may rise next week, and Oakland will take the World Series.

Other modern sensitivities are at work here — about Indians, naturally; and about the environment, which those bad pioneers pillaged and despoiled. Oh, how limpid the streams around Newark, how unsullied the corn fields whereon Detroit now reposes — until the filthy, rotten white man came. Yes, no doubt we could have huddled closer together in the slums of London or the herdsmen's cottages of Central Europe, thus sparing America the burden of welcoming us. On the other hand, this doesn't seem a very relevant consideration. We're not over there, we're here.

If the Columbus-haters want to denigrate heroism and fast-forward past the achievements of 500 years, such is their, ahem, American right. What I want to know is, what are we supposed to do about all this, 498 years later?

We can admit that the Spaniards who followed Columbus to the New World were, at a minimum, careless of native lives. (Not that the racist-sexist Aztecs, oblivious to the one-man, one-vote principle, qualify as models of tolerance.) We can admit that the conquistadors looted the New World of its gold. And when we have admitted all this, what then? What are we supposed to do about it?

Here we are. America happened. If Columbus hadn't "found" it, somebody else would have, and we'd be here just the same.

Kuwait created to control landlocked Iraq

George Bush's popularity soars in the United States, but in the Arab world, a true measure of public opinion would show similar support for Iraq's Saddam Hussein. As usual, the past explains the present.

For 400 years the Arab world languished under Turkish rule. When the Ottoman Empire collapsed, Turkish rule was replaced by British, French and Italian colonial rule.

Reese

Today's map of the Middle East was drawn by French and British politicians after the end of World War I. They were the victors. The Middle East was part of the spoils. Both were colonial empires.

To the British, India was the crown jewel of the empire, and British interest in the Middle East was primarily dictated by its hold on India. At that time, the Middle East was the land route from Europe to India. With the completion of the Suez Canal, the Middle East was the shortest sea route from England to India.

Thus the British, who didn't care a whit about either Arabs or Jews, played the Middle East card primarily to keep Russia and the French away from their land and sea routes to India. Colonial policy was always based on the divide and conquer principle, so the Brits were ingenious at pitting one group or tribe against another. Kuwait, which even today is really nothing more than a city state, was created by the British specifically to control landlocked Iraq.

This era of colonial rule did not end until the 1960s but a second phase of European and now American colonialism — corporate colonialism — overlapped governmental control. European and American oil companies gained concessions during the era of colonial rule that were nothing less than outright robbery.

On average, these concessions gave the oil companies control of up to 80 percent of the territory and were to last an average of 60 years. The oil companies had sole control over the decision-making, including pricing and production and how much the Arab countries would receive. They divided up the market and manipulated prices. When it suited them, they simply shut down production.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) was created at the instigation of Venezuela in an effort to break the grip of the oil giants on these countries. It never made much progress, however.

It was Moammar Khadafy, whose group of young officers overthrew a corrupt Libyan monarchy, who finally broke the grip of the oil companies and for the first time allowed an oil producing country to set the price. Once he had made the breakthrough, the other countries followed suit and gradually — in the 1970s — the oil producing countries at last began to gain control of their own resources.

In the meantime, Israel unfortunately bears the onus in the Arab mind of being one more aspect of European colonialism since it was created by Europe and America over the protests of the Arabs.

It is in the context of this bitter legacy of governmental and corporate colonialism that the Arabs see Saddam Hussein as a hero who stands up against Western attempts to reimpose their will on the Arab countries. They are, in a word, fed up Western greed, hypocrisy, double standards, meddling and arrogance.

That's why it was a blunder for Bush to put U.S. troops on the ground and to Americanize what would have been a strictly Arab quarrel. That's why Bush's blunder has the potential to create a catastrophic blood bath.

It's time to confront the American warhawks who are hiding behind euphemisms and ambiguous phrases. Let's get specific. Just how many thousand American lives do these warhawks think Kuwait's Al-Sabah family is worth? Twenty thousand? Thirty thousand? Let's cut out the bull and talk dead and maimed American boys and girls. That's the pot in this poker game, not high-sounding rhetoric. One Kuwaiti businessman said the Al- Sabah family is not worth one drop of American blood, much less a life.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

Good friends don't use the guest towels

I went to stay at a married friend's house for a couple of days. He is a good and dear friend who falls under my Boise, Idaho, theory, which is:

You will have many friends in your lifetime, but there will be only a couple who you can call and say, "I can't tell you why, but if you're not in Boise, Idaho, in the next 24 hours with $100 to loan me, I'm in big trouble," and they will be there, no questions asked.

Grizzard

They gave me the guest bedroom. I awakened the next morning and went into the guest bathroom to take a shower.

That caused my first dilemma.

When God first created the shower, what he had in mind was two knobs. One was marked C, the other H. The idea was to turn the C and the H to get the temperature of the water just as you desire.

But we've monkeyed with that. Most showers have just one knob now, and you don't know whether to push it or pull it or which way is C or which way is H, and I have scalded my person from Baltimore to Bakersfield trying to take a shower.

My friend's guest bathroom shower has only one knob. It took me a half-hour to figure out which way to pull it to get the shower going, and which way to turn it to get the water just over lukewarm, which is how I like my shower.

The bigger dilemma came when I stepped out of the shower 10 minutes later.

I had neglected to check for towels before I got into the shower.

Some background: I am not married, so I don't have any guest towels.

I just have some plain, white towels, and they are stacked on a towel rack, and if anybody takes a shower in my bathroom, they can see the plain white towels and know to use them.

But in a married household, the wife will, in fact, go out and spend a lot of money on expensive towels that come in exotic colors like mauve and have flowers or birds or kittens sewn into them.

They will be known as Guest Towels.

The husband will be told, "If I catch you using a Guest Towel, I will kill you."

The problem with the Guest Towel, however, is the wife, in most cases, doesn't want the guests to use them, either, despite their name. Guest Towels basically serve only a decorative purpose.

So I stepped out of the shower and the only towels I saw were mauve (female for purple) with blue kittens sewn on them.

My dilemma is: do I go ahead and use the mauve towels with the blue kittens sewn on them, or do I stand here and shake like a dog until I'm dry?

If I use those towels, my friend's wife may never allow me to come back.

I shook like a dog. I was still pretty wet, so I shook like a dog again. I was still wet.

Luckily, my friend's guest bedroom is carpeted. I rolled around on the carpet for a few minutes, also like a dog, and dried myself.

The mauve towels with the blue kittens sewn on them remained intact. I am a good friend.

I barked at the kittens sewn onto the purple towels as I trotted out of the guest bathroom for breakfast.

Souter opposes death penalty ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court nominee David H. Souter said Monday at his confirmation hearings that letting states outlaw abortion might cast doubts on other privacy rights. Senators told Souter, testifying on his 51st birthday, that his confirmation was virtually assured.

During a third and final day of Senate Judiciary Committee questioning on controversial issues he would face as a justice, Souter said he opposes a judicial ban on the death penalty.

In a final statement to the committee, Souter said, "You have treated me with such consummate fairness that on whatever court I may sit I hope I will do as well."

Souter was followed to the witness table by an American Bar Association committee which previously announced that it had given him its highest rating — "well qualified."

More than two dozen other witnesses, including the woman whose challenge to a Texas abortion law led to the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion, were scheduled to begin testimony Tuesday.

Souter continued to dodge questions concerning his views on abortion but did address the privacy-rights issue and said his personal feelings on abortion would not keep him from taking part in Supreme Court decisions on the subject.

"A lot of people have the feeling that your confirmation process is over," Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., told Souter at one point.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., told the New Hampshire judge, "I believe you will be confirmed."

Sens. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, also voiced confidence about Souter's success. But committee chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., said some senators, including himself, remain undecided.

The 14-member committee will send its recommendation to the full Senate for a confirmation vote Biden indicated might come "in two or three weeks."

Asked whether he believes the death penalty violates the Constitution's ban on cruel and unusual punishment, Souter said, "I think that would be an insupportable constitutional conclusion. That is an opinion I could not join."

Retired Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan, whom Souter was picked by President Bush to replace, held such a view. The only high court justice remaining who opposes capital punishment under all circumstances is Thurgood Marshall.

But the court now is far more closely divided on its 1973 abortion-legalizing decision, Roe vs. Wade, and Souter again Monday turned aside questions about his personal views on that topic.

Pressed by Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., Souter did say his personal beliefs would not keep him from participating in abortion decisions on the high court.

He also said a successful attack on Roe vs. Wade "might call into question prior privacy rulings."

The comment could be significant, suggesting that a concern for other privacy rights might make Souter less willing to vote to overturn the 1973 ruling. In previous testimony, Souter told the committee he believes married women have a fundamental privacy right to use contraceptives.

Souter also said overturning Roe vs. Wade would make abortion "a matter for legislative judgment" — as individual states would have to decide whether to outlaw or stringently regulate abortions.

Space shuttle launch delayed for fourth time

NASA postponed Columbia's astronomy mission until after a higher-priority flight of the shuttle Discovery in October.

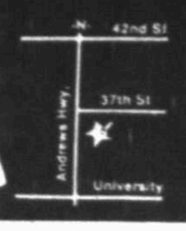

The leak appeared as the shuttle's huge external fuel tank was being filled. It was detected a few minutes after supercooled liquid hydrogen fuel began flowing into the tank at a "fast fill" rate of 8,400 gallons per minute — the same point where buildup caused NASA to cancel two previous launches.

At one point, the vapor reached levels more than triple NASA's limit.

The shuttle was to have been launched at 1:28 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

"The mood is pretty depressing," said Keith Hudkins, chief of the orbiter division. "After all summer trying to chase these leaks down ... I'll tell you this, we've had all the experts working very long hours, and they are experts. It's just a very difficult problem."

After the launch was called off, engineers scrambled to find the cause of the problem. They monitored sensors in the engine compartment long after the filling operation was stopped.

Prosecutors won't retry Mayor Barry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors said Monday they will not retry Mayor Marion Barry on the dozen drug and perjury charges a jury could not resolve, bringing the long legal battle between the mayor and the government near a close.

The charges, on which jurors had declared themselves deadlocked at the end of Barry's trial last month, include one involving an FBI videotape of the mayor smoking crack cocaine.

"I'm obviously relieved at this phase of the legal proceedings," Barry said after the U.S. attorney's decision was announced.

Barry, who was convicted of a single misdemeanor drug-possession charge and acquitted of another at the trial, still faces sentencing. After declaring he would not seek reelection as mayor, he is now running for the city council.

During a five-minute court hearing, Assistant U.S. Attorney Judith Retchin said simply, "The government has made a determination not to seek retrial on the pending counts." U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson then set a sentencing date for Oct. 26.

The government's decision comes five weeks after Barry's two-month trial ended with his conviction on one misdemeanor cocaine possession charge, acquittal on another and a mistrial on the 12 remaining counts — three felony perjury charges and nine misdemeanor counts.

U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens said, "Mr. Barry's political status and political future are not factors we considered when making decisions about this prosecution."

Stephens declined to say what kind of sentence he would recommend but did note the judge has "the latitude for ... a full year in prison." Barry also could face a maximum $100,000 fine.

The jury's verdict was widely interpreted at the time as a victory for the mayor.

But Stephens said Monday, "When all the dust is settled, in the final analysis, the ultimate truth will remain — that the chief executive of this City charged with the responsibility of leading the fight against illegal drugs and violence has himself been convicted of contributing to that human devastation."

While Barry escaped conviction on most of the charges against him — including the three felonies, which carried mandatory jail sentences — he was forced to pay a political price.

Current and former Barry administration sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said one reason Barry announced he would not seek reelection as mayor was to let the jury know he had already made sacrifices, to cast himself in a sympathetic light.

NATION IN BRIEF

Mayor's gun scares robbers

MIAMI (AP) — A shaken Mayor Xavier Suarez recounted Monday how robbers held guns to the heads of his wife and mother-in-law, but downplayed his role in frightening the men off with a gun of his own.

Police searched Monday for the two men who accosted the women just outside the mayor's home Sunday night and forced them inside while Suarez and his children were upstairs, said police spokesman David Rivero.

"My kids and I ... very quickly converged in the upstairs room, and we basically hid until I was able to come out and do my best to convince (the robbers) to leave," Suarez said.

He said he yelled down the staircase at the men and pointed his gun.

"I was ready to use it," Suarez added.

The two men escaped with the women's purses, some jewelry and a portable telephone, police said.

Cash marked bull semen

NEW YORK (AP) — Customs agents searching warehouses at Kennedy International Airport found 26 canisters marked "bull semen" that actually contained $6.4 million.

The money was drug-related cash bound for Bogota, Colombia, authorities said Monday.

The shipment was spotted Sept. 10 during what was supposed to be a routine sweep of warehouses. Agents X-rayed one of the empty 2-foot-high canisters and found it had been rewelded. The remaining canisters were searched and a total of $6,469,620 was seized.

"They felt we wouldn't examine it because of the nature of the commodity," Customs Area Director Thomas Mattina said in announcing the seizure.

Two Colombian nationals were arrested Sept. 10 for violations of currency laws. John J. Montoya, 25, and Jose A. Calderon, 35, both of Queens, face up to 10 years in prison if convicted.

The Police Department and the U.S. Treasury will receive some of the confiscated money. Some of the money also will go toward building prisons.

Hoover-ball returns

WEST BRANCH, Iowa (AP) — Hoover-ball, a game invented to help President Herbert Hoover stay in shape, is returning to the nation's capital after a 57-year absence.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., is sponsoring the first Hoover-ball Capital Classic on Sept. 29. The tournament, staged by the Hoover Presidential Library Association, will be held on volleyball courts on The Mall in Washington.

The game, likened by one participant to "throwing a frozen turkey over your garage," blends elements of tennis and volleyball. It pits two three-player teams against each other as they heave a 6-pound medicine ball over an 8-foot volleyball net.

The game was devised in 1929 by Hoover's physician to help the 31st president stay in shape and was played daily on the lawn of the White House while Hoover was in office.

"President Hoover was a Hoover-ball fanatic," said Tom Walsh, the library association's executive director. "He and a group of other Washington VIPs — who were dubbed by The New York Times as Hoover's 'medicine ball cabinet' — played six mornings a week, rain or shine, beginning at 7 a.m. He even played the morning of March 4, 1933, the day Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated."

The game was forgotten until revived in 1988 for a national tournament at the Hoover library and museum in West Branch, Hoover's birthplace. The 1990 tournament last month attracted 50 teams.

"We're expecting at least a dozen teams in Washington," Walsh said.

He said teams were being organized by Hatfield's staff and by the staffs of Iowa's Sens. Tom Harkin and Charles Grassley and Rep. Tom Tauke.

Protesters arrested

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Police wearing rubber gloves arrested about 25 AIDS activists Monday as they protested a national conference on health fraud.

Protesters lay on the street in front of a hotel and scattered duck feathers to symbolize "quack medicine." Arrests were for trespassing, obstructing traffic and disorderly conduct.

MMH may not fill top post at Clearview

■ MMH President Ray Branson is expected to serve as Clearview administrator, while the facility will function as a department of the hospital.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Midland Memorial Hospital probably will keep Clearview Hospital under its managerial wing and not fill the vacant administrator post at the substance abuse treatment center, MMH spokeswoman Laurie Johnson said Monday.

MMH President Ray Branson will serve as Clearview's administrator, while the facility will be treated as any other department of the hospital, Ms. Johnson said.

Robert Rabidoux resigned as Clearview administrator in mid-August, citing personal reasons, Ms. Johnson said. "He wanted to pursue personal interests," she said.

Rabidoux would not elaborate on why he left the financially troubled center, which has seen dwindling occupancy and high turnover since MMH bought it in December 1988.

"I don't want to be interviewed," he said. "I'm going to go someplace else. I'm working on it now."

Rabidoux, who has been Clearview's administrator since Aug. 31, 1989, said he had not found another job yet.

He was director of the MMH business office until June 1989, when he was appointed interim administrator at Clearview. Two months later he was named as administrator.

Ms. Johnson said the post vacated by Rabidoux likely will not be filled. Branson will manage the facility, she said.

"Clearview is a part of Midland Memorial Hospital and will be operated as a free-standing department," Ms. Johnson said.

Since December 1988, the Clearview staff has experienced more than 60 percent turnover, while seven positions — not including Rabidoux's — have been eliminated through layoffs and attrition.

Meanwhile, occupancy has dropped to below 30 percent this year. Clearview had almost 50 percent occupancy during some months in early 1989.

Comanche Peak down fourth time in 8 days

GLEN ROSE (AP) — A wiring short in a water monitoring gauge prompted the fourth shutdown in just over a week at the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant, a TU Electric spokesman said.

The latest shutdown came at 8:50 p.m. Saturday when the gauge incorrectly indicated a pump was not supplying enough water to the steam generator, TU Electric spokesman Mark Manroe said Sunday.

The wiring short was found, and the plant restarted at 2 p.m. Sunday, he said. Officials said neither plant nor public safety were jeopardized.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission said it doesn't believe Saturday's malfunction is a major safety problem. The agency will monitor TU Electric's review of the incident, said Joe Gilliland, an NRC spokesman.

The other shutdowns were on Sept. 7, 8 and 10.

Manroe said the plant remained safe during the shutdowns and that the biggest concern when they occur is that the plant "is not generating electricity."

The plant has had three "unusual events," slightly more serious than the recent shutdowns, since March when the testing of the facility began.

The plant is located in Glen Rose about 40 miles southwest of Fort Worth and was operating at 54 percent of capacity at the time of the weekend shutdown, Manroe said.

Man in El Paso charged with attacks on 2 women

EL PASO (AP) — Police have charged a man with attacking two women and say he matches the description of a suspect in attacks on two other women.

The man was arrested Sunday evening after officers found him sleeping in his car in a northeast El Paso park.

David Anthony Blaes, 27, is charged with aggravated assault in the Saturday attack of a 40-year-old woman who had been jogging at the park and an Aug. 5 attack of another woman.

Blaes also is charged with unlawfully carrying a weapon — a large hunting knife police said they found when they arrested him.

Blaes was being held at the El Paso County Detention Center on $105,000 bail.

In the Saturday attack, the jogger was returning to her car at 8 a.m. when a man with a knife tried to force her away from her vehicle. She fought off the attack by holding onto the knife while she screamed. She was cut in the

INTRODUCING ...

Joe Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Karen Hoffman, an animal control officer for the city of Midland for almost 10 years, said her love of animals drove her to pursue the career. She is one of four animal control officers with the city.

Animal control officer loves animals

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Karen Hoffman would like to dispel the image of an animal control officer as someone who chases dogs up dead-end alleys, scoops them up with a big net and hauls them away in a canine paddy wagon.

"We don't do nets," Mrs. Hoffman explained as she drove around last week in a van and looked for wayward animals. "We've tried to outlive the image of nets."

The day's first assignment for Mrs. Hoffman, an animal control officer with the city of Midland for almost 10 years, is to investigate an apparently abandoned dog chained to a tree on Maple Avenue.

Along the way, she scans from side to side and looks for loose animals. An open bottle of high-powered air freshener barely covers the stench of a skunk captured the night before.

Mrs. Hoffman pulls up in front of a beat-up house. A hairy black dog chained to a tree in the front yard pants and wags its tail as she approaches it cautiously before petting it on the head.

A resident of the house tells her that the dog belongs to a friend who is expected back later in the day. After reporting back to the 1601 Orchard Lane base, she moves on to other faunal adventures.

There's always an element of danger when approaching dogs and cats, she said. A pit bull may drown an officer in affectionate slobber, while a poodle may sink its fangs in a leg.

Mrs. Hoffman has been bitten twice, once by a Doberman pinscher and another time by a collie. Pit bulls and chows, though, pose the biggest threats, she said.

"You can't read them," she said. "A pit bull will try to bite you right off the bat. A chow will act like a friend one minute and then turn on you the next."

Dogs, cats and skunks are the most common prey for the officers, who also have been known to track down armadillos, foxes, coyotes and an occasional bobcat.

One time they had to capture a pet wolf which had escaped from its owner.

"When we found him he had a little girl by the thigh," she said, adding that the girl survived. "He didn't want to give her up."

Another time they found a peacock, which has been given a permanent home in a cage at the center.

Most dogs are friendly and will come right up to the officer, Mrs. Hoffman said. Skunks and cats, meanwhile, are trapped in cages. Using a long pole with a syringe on the end, officers kill skunks on the spot.

Coy Willis, animal control director, said the center handles 8,000 animals a year. About 10 percent of them are reclaimed by owners, 10 percent are adopted and 80 percent are euthanized by lethal injection, Willis said.

Later in the afternoon, Mrs. Hoffman is sent to a neighborhood in far north Midland to investigate a report of an injured cat near an intersection. The cat turns out to be more than injured. It is dead.

The deceased feline is placed in a plastic garbage back and put inside the van. It will be disposed of later at the city landfill.

On the way back to the control center office, Mrs. Hoffman related a dead animal story with a different twist.

She once found an apparently dead dog lying in the water in a street gutter. The dog's legs were sticking up in the air and it didn't appear to have a pulse, but all of a sudden it started wagging its tail.

The dog was brought back to the control center, where it was euthanized several days later.

For Mrs. Hoffman, killing puppies, kittens and other lovable animals is one of the hardest aspects of her job, but ironically it is her love of animals that got her into the career.

"If you love animals you can't last in this business unless you find something positive about it," she said. "I know a lot of those animals in the shelters get more love in the days they are there than they've ever gotten."

After moving from Pennsylvania to Midland with her husband in 1979, she spent the next two years raising her children. She had worked in a beauty shop in Pennsylvania before coming here.

A desire to raise public awareness of animal care drove her to pursue a job with the city, she said. She said she grew tired of watching abusive owners.

"I've always loved animals and I always put my nose in other people's business and told them how to treat their animals," she said. "A lot of time when people are cruel they do it out of ignorance.

"Now I can do something about it and do it with authority."

Mrs. Hoffman said the job becomes rewarding when an owner gets the message on proper animal care or a loving home is found for a captured animal.

"A lot of people appreciate what we do," she said. "They're the good dog owners. The people who get mad are the ones who don't care what happens to their animals."

Some owners are given citations if their animals are loose or don't have proper tags showing they had a rabies shot.

But officers will go out of their way, even to the point of making home deliveries themselves, to find owners or homes for the animals, she said.

"People who work there are not allowed to adopt the animals," she said. "We don't want people to think we picked up the animals just so we could have them ourselves."

The center, which is open 24 hours a day, has four officers who each respond to about 14 calls per day, Mrs. Hoffman said. Bite cases take top priority, followed by police calls, she said.

To become an officer she was trained on the job and had to take a state certification exam. She follows it up with 30 hours of continuing education every three years.

Willis said Mrs. Hoffman is one of the most dedicated employees on his staff.

"She's covered about every phase of the animal control program," he said. "She's one of our top employees. She's been able to look at the program as a whole and do what's best for the community."

Midlanders work as volunteers at Yellowstone

■ Several Exxon employees — and some of their spouses — took a week off without pay to help regroom the park.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

In 1988, a forest fire swept through Yellowstone National Park devastating about half of the natural wonder.

This summer, several Midlanders traveled to the charred ruins to help bring life back to the recovering park.

"It was like a bunch of black toothpicks sticking up. I was expecting to see all the trees over," said Jay Cerney, one of the Midlanders who volunteered to work at the park.

But with the passing seasons since the blaze, hope was already lurking among the leafless trees.

"Black toothpicks with wildflowers everywhere. It was gorgeous (the surviving wildlife). I was expecting to see death everywhere," Cerney said.

With nature already hard at work, Cerney, one of many concerned citizens across the country who went to Yellowstone this summer, pitched in to help.

"We were working from seven in the morning to five at night ... all manual labor, no power tools were used," Cerney said. "It was pretty tiring ..."

Despite the hard work, those who went didn't think of it as hard work.

Bob Heise, another Exxon employee, said, "It wasn't like we were sentenced to do this, we all enjoyed it. We are all very active in the outdoors. It was sort of an opportunity to give back what we've used."

The 15 or so who went to the Wyoming park from Midland were among three groups that labored five days each during July or August.

Camping in tents, Cerney's group spent their days reclaiming a trail by erecting trail markers and building small bridges over creeks. His group also removed an old water pump house near a pond that had become an eyesore.

"It was a really good experience and I'd do it again if I could," Cerney said.

Cerney said he and his group finished their work goals in four and a half days, so he was able to walk the trail they had reconstructed. "Walking the loop like a regular tourist was exhilarating."

And hopefully not the last time.

"It will be fun to go back in 20 years and see what we did ... everybody took a sense of pride in what they were doing," he said.

When Heise looks back on the work he did, he said he also feels a sense of pride.

"When you were there, you just thought you were doing the job. When we got back and saw the slides a lot of us were more impressed to see it later than when we were there," Heise said.

Heise's team spent their days building a 25-foot bridge over a swampy area for tourists on horseback.

"The idea of this bridge was to route all horse traffic through this area ... the fire had gone through the swamp where we were working," he said.

The bridge was constructed using only hand tools and the three main beams extending the length of the bridge were fashioned from trees killed in the fire.

But like Cerney, the hard work didn't stop Heise from enjoying the beauty of the park.

"If you still had some energy you'd go do some sightseeing, which we did, and then collapse 'til the next day," Heise said.

Another volunteer was Mike Roffall, who said he would do it again next year if he got the chance.

"Part of it was just getting away ... and knowing you're doing something to preserve a national monument and make it more enjoyable for others who visit the park," Roffall said.

"I think it was a really great opportunity not only to see the sights but feel like part of the park now," Roffall added.

Roffall spent his time building water bars and check bars (used to prevent erosion of trails), building a 16-foot bridge and putting in trail steps made from tree trunks.

The massive fire of 1988 damaged more than 45 percent of the park's 2.2 million acres.

Oil field workers taken off flight

LUBBOCK (AP) — Eight oil field workers who allegedly boarded an American Airlines flight intoxicated and demanded more booze were charged Monday with obstructing the duties of flight attendants by committing assault and using abusive language.

The men boarded the plane late Sunday with their own alcohol and after it was confiscated, they refused to buckle their seat belts, made sexual suggestions to the flight attendants and yelled boisterous, profane language to prevent the attendants from delivering preflight instructions, according to an FBI criminal complaint.

FBI agents and Lubbock police officers arrested the men after American Airlines Flight 701 from Dallas landed at Lubbock International Airport shortly before 12:30 a.m.

DEATHS

Coy L. Lay

Services for Coy L. Lay, 77, of Midland have been set for 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Ellis Chapel with the Rev. Homer Goodwin officiating. Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

He died Monday at a local nursing home.

He was born Feb. 18, 1913 in Russellville, Ark. He moved to Midland in 1953 and was a self-employed carpenter. He married Bernice Steed in 1954 in Midland. She preceded him in death in 1982.

Lay was a member of the First Assembly of God Church.

Survivors include one son, Jerry Lay of Katy; two daughters, Oni Mae Steed Pittman of Moore, Okla., and Mary Frances Gunter Reynolds of Midland; two brothers, Luther Lay and Grant Lay, both of Sand Springs, Okla.; five sisters, Erma Brian of Midland, Arkie Matthews of Terrell, Wincey Morris of Muldrow, Okla., Disie Duckworth of Sand Springs, Okla., and Georgia Hayes of Jennings, Okla.; five grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren and numerous nieces and nephews.

Ruth I. Thomas

ANDREWS — Ruth I. Thomas, 81, of Andrews and mother of a Midland woman, died Sunday at a Midland hospital.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Singleton Funeral Home Chapel of the Chimes in Andrews with the Rev. H.A. Hanks, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Andrews, officiating. Burial will follow at the Andrews Cemetery with Singleton Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Thomas was born Jan. 14, 1909 in Haley. She married Mack Daniel Thomas Sept. 16, 1926 in Chickasha, Okla. She had been a resident of Andrews since 1956.

Survivors include one daughter, Linda Kay Thomas of Midland; one sister, Gladys Harris of Andrews and numerous nieces and nephews.

Her husband preceeded her in death.

Chronicle poll gives Gramm, Bullock leads

HOUSTON (AP) — Sen. Phil Gramm's re-election bid and Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock's effort to become lieutenant governor are helped by their name recognition, says a Houston Chronicle poll published Monday.

But, lower level state races on the November ballot are being overshadowed by the governor's race, it said.

Poll results show Republican Gramm leads Hugh Parmer, a Democratic state senator from Fort Worth, 63 percent to 20 percent with 17 percent saying they were unsure.

Eighty-one percent of those surveyed said they had read or heard little or nothing about Parmer, while 86 percent said they read or heard a great deal or at least some about Gramm.

In the lieutenant governor's race, 38 percent backed Democrat Bullock, 26 percent supported Republican Rob Mosbacher and 35 percent were unsure.

Seventy-two percent said they had read or heard little or nothing about Mosbacher, while 65 percent said they read or heard a great deal or some about Bullock.

The poll included 1,042 people who said they likely would vote in November. The poll, taken the week of Sept. 5, has a margin of error of plus or minus three percentage points.

University of Houston political scientist Richard Murray conducted the survey for the Houston Chronicle through the school's Center for Public Policy.

"It's tough for unknowns this year," he said, because most of the Texas media attention has been focused on the governor's race, the Persian Gulf crisis and other issues.

Democrats lead in the races for attorney general, land commissioner, treasurer, agriculture commissioner and railroad commissioner.

The number of undecideds ranged between 38 percent and 56 percent in the seven races.

According to the poll:

—For attorney general: Democratic state Rep. Dan Morales of San Antonio led Republican state Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown of Lake Jackson, 28 percent to 19 percent. Fifty-one percent said they were unsure.

—For state comptroller: Republican Warren G. Harding Jr. of Grand Prairie led Democratic Railroad Commissioner John Sharp, 21 percent to 19 percent. Fifty-six percent were unsure.

—For land commissioner: Democratic incumbent Garry Mauro led Republican Wes Gilbreath of Houston, 32 percent to 18 percent. Forty-eight percent were unsure.

—For state treasurer: Democrat Nikki Van Hightower, the Harris County treasurer, led Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison, a former state lawmaker and a Dallas lawyer, 32 percent to 23 percent. Forty-two percent were unsure.

—For agriculture commissioner: Democrat incumbent Jim Hightower led Republican state Rep. Rick Perry of Haskell, 37 percent to 22 percent, with 38 percent unsure.

—For railroad commissioner: former Democratic U.S. Rep. Bob Kreuger of New Braunfels led former Republican U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter of Amarillo, 31 percent to 21 percent. Forty-six percent were undecided.

—For Supreme Court: Republican incumbent Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Tom Phillips led Supreme Court Justice Oscar Mauzy, the Democrat, 24 percent to 20 percent. Fifty-three percent were undecided.

The victim in that attack picked Blaes out of a photo lineup and identified him as her assailant, Police Sgt. Ron Vanderroest said. She also identified the knife.

Police could not give details of the Aug. 5 attack, but Sgt. Albert Candelaria said the victim in that attack also identified Blaes as her assailant.

Police also are investigating a Sept. 4 attack on a 48-year-old woman who was raped by a man with a knife after her car ran out of gas on a highway.

Last Tuesday, another woman walking home at 11 p.m. was raped several times by a man who threatened her with a knife.

What Cityline provides

With Cityline, the Midland Reporter-Telegram's free telephone-based news, information and entertainment service, callers have access to dozens of categories of prerecorded data — everything from horoscopes and soap opera updates to local news and sports headlines and stock quotes — 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Once on line with the free system at 560-2400, touch-tone telephone callers will be presented step-by-step menus of informational choices. On-line assistance is available by pressing 6955.

Slowly and firmly pressing telephone buttons will help ensure operation of the system.

Other four-digit codes access other specific categories. For example, in order to find out what's for lunch at MISD, call 560-2400. After Cityline's welcoming message, enter 1831 to hear about the lunch menus at area schools.

How Cityline works

After touch-tone telephone callers have dialed 560-2400, selected an information category and pressed the corresponding four-digit code — or made menu selections — the telephone keypad takes on a new function once "inside" the data category:

- To jump forward in a category, press J (the 5 key);
- To repeat the category press R (the 7 key);
- To go to a new category choice press G (the 4 key);
- To back up to the previous information item, press B (the 2 key)

Richards raises more ad funds

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Democrat Ann Richards, trailing Republican Clayton Williams badly in the polls, came to Washington Monday seeking money for new television commercials she said would breathe new life into her campaign for governor of Texas.

At a fundraiser at the Woman's National Democratic Club here, Richards sounded familiar campaign themes, accusing her opponent of lacking empathy "for the people" and of voicing "the same old, right-wing, emotional, hot-button trash we've come to expect.

"We don't have to play the games the Republicans play," said Richards, who is the Texas state treasurer. "We don't have have to do the big lie technique."

Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., introduced Richards to a group of about 100 Democrats who paid $100 to munch Tex-Mex food at a late-day buffet.

"Ann's facing a tough fight," Mikulski said. "She's running against someone who's confusing his testosterone level with his ability," she said in an apparent reference to Williams' reputation for making off-color jokes.

But Richards also sounded a faint tone of desperation, too.

"The thing I have to do is be on TV. We can track it in this race and we can see it very clearly," she said. "When I'm on TV, our numbers are up. When I'm not on TV, our numbers are down."

Richards, scoffing at polls showing Williams with a double-digit lead, suggested that "anything could happen" between now and Election Day.

"This race is the most volatile, in terms of up-and-down, of any I've ever been involved with," she said.

Boasting that her campaign organization and network of grassroots volunteers far outclasses that of Williams, she said, "All the pieces are there together, and now it comes down to money."

Stop-smoking program planned

Staff Report

Patients with heart and lung ailments interested in participating in today's Charles H. Borden Inc. Stop-Smoking Program are offered free admission with a note from their physician.

Registration for the 2½-hour seminar begins at 6 p.m. at the Holiday Inn Country Villa. The seminars, which claim a 94 percent success rate, begins at 7 p.m.

School volunteer sessions set

Staff Report

Volunteers in Public Schools (VIPS) will offer volunteer sessions in math, reading and language arts tutoring beginning 8:30 a.m. today.

Sessions will be offered at First Baptist Church fellowship hall. VIPS and persons interested in joining VIPS are invited to attend.

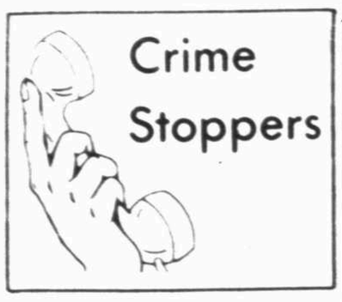

Dr. Peggy Holland, MISD coordinator of reading programs, will be the keynote speaker.

For information, call 694-9934.

First time volunteers can choose from sessions covering McGruff, library, the New Jersey Writing Project, storytelling, Partners in Reading and Read-to-Me.

Odessa Crime Stoppers seeks help with burglary

Staff Report

This week Odessa Crime Stoppers is seeking information to help solve a burglary that occurred at 2543 Santa Cruz in Odessa.

Between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Aug. 22 unknown persons entered the victim's home by kicking in the back door.

Once inside the burglars removed items from several rooms. In one bedroom police officers discovered that a light bulb in a lamp had been wrapped with a blanket, possibly to start a fire.

Items taken include televisions, VCRs and camera equipment. Value of items taken was about $3,000.

There have been several burglaries in that area and police are seeking the public's help in solving them.

If anyone has any information which leads to the arrest and indictment of the person involved in the crime, it could be worth up to $1,000 cash reward this week only. Call Crime Stoppers in Odessa at 333-TIPS and in Midland at 694-TIPS.

Leadership alumni name officers

Staff Report

New officers for Leadership Midland Alumni (LMA) have been selected.

They include Edward McCabe, president; Julia E. Vaughn, first vice president; Robert E. Burns, second vice president; Kim Womack, secretary-treasurer.

The new officers will assume their roles at the Sept. 27 LMA luncheon. The luncheon will be at the Petroleum Club and reservations are recommended.

The LMA also will host a reception for the new class on Oct. 10 at the home of Judge and Mrs. Pat Baskin.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Shooting

Staff reports

ODESSA — One man is in custody for attempted murder stemming from an early Monday morning shooting, police said.

Augustine Barrientes, 50, remained in jail under a $60,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace R.G. Hungerford.

Barrientes was arrested in connection with the shooting of Steven Morales, 28, at about 1:20 a.m. in the 600 block of Magnolia Boulevard.

When police arrived at the scene, Morales was found laying in the street, shot twice in the head. A .25-caliber bullet casing was found near the victim.

Witnesses told police that Morales had been talking to two Hispanic men at the time of the shooting. One of the men is said to have suddenly shot Morales in the head. After Morales fell to the ground, the assailant reached over and shot Morales in the head a second time, the witnesses said. The two men then fled.

Morales was transported to Medical Center Hospital before being transferred to Midland Memorial Hospital where he remained in critical condition Monday evening, hospital officials said.

Suspect arrested

ODESSA — A man wanted for escape from an Iowa jail was arrested by the FBI in Odessa on Sunday.

Randy Ray Simmons, 30, allegedly escaped from the Jones County jail in Iowa on July 28. Simmons had been incarcerated in Iowa on charges of forgery and theft.

The FBI's assistance in locating Simmons was requested by Iowa authorities and Simmons was charged with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on Sept. 5.

VOLUNTEERING

Fall for the great feeling you will receive by volunteering! The needs are many and diverse. A few of the opportunities available at the Volunteer Center of Midland are:

■ Want to make a positive influence in a person's life? Want to share experiences with "neat" young people? Want to work with wonderful volunteers? Be a leader. There is no better job. Many opportunities are available. Call the Volunteer Center of Midland today.

■ Are you interested in or have knowledge about the historical past of Midland? A local organization is compiling photographs, newspaper articles and other memorabilia about Midland and needs your help! Light typing, photocopying, and filing are required, and the hours are flexible.

■ School has just begun and the need for reading tutors and homework helpers has increased. You can help elementary school children successfully complete their homework and learning goals. A tutor training session will be held Tuesday and Thursday evening, September 18 and 20 6:30 to 9 p.m.

■ No bones about it; dinosaurs are walking the earth again. Volunteers are being sought to work with the DinoSafari exhibition. Volunteers are especially needed to work on Saturdays, now through November 25. Opportunities are available to sell tickets, act as a gallery attendant, and to assist visitors in the education area. Volunteers are also being recruited to work weekdays. Training will be provided by the museum.

■ Make a world of difference for a disabled or homebound person by picking up a few items at the store or a prescription drug and delivering them to the person's home. You can see the meaning of your volunteer work instantly. This is a flexible opportunity that can fit into any schedule.

For more information on these and other volunteer opportunities, please call the Volunteer Center of Midland, 697-8781.

TCLU legal director claims suspension from union organizing

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The legal director of a bastion of state liberalism, the Texas Civil Liberties Union, said Monday he was suspended for union organizing activities, a charge officials denied.

The president of the non-profit TCLU foundation, Melvin Straus, termed the allegations leveled by attorney James Harrington "ludicrous" and "nonsense."

"Scratch an ACLUer and you'll probably find a union sympathizer," Straus said. The 7,000-member TCLU is an affiliate of the national American Civil Liberties Union.

But Harrington said his problems with the group's executive committee "crystalized" after staffers established a union on International Workers Day, May 1. "That was the catalyst that really set them off," he said.

Only two members of the nine-member executive committee voted against accepting the union, Harrington said, but pressure later became so intense to disband that the group voted to affiliate with the Communication Workers of America.

Harrington said he was summoned this past Saturday to an executive committee meeting and informed he was terminated from his $38,000-per-year job.

Hours later, he learned the committee had reconsidered and downgraded their action to suspension with pay. They also scheduled a hearing Sunday before the TCLU board of directors.

Straus said the committee opted for the less severe course because "we liked him."

"We're fond of Jim; we just can't work with him," he said. He called the legal work Harrington completed "magnificent."

But Harrington, who has won many important court cases for the group, said committee members cited "incompetence" and "ineffectiveness" in communicating their decision.

Because of cases Harrington has won, grand juries must be representative of their communities, police and fire departments may not administer polygraph tests before hiring employees and farm workers are included in state worker's compensation and unemployment insurance coverage.

Straus said a former state board member who he refused to identify has agreed to take over legal operations on a temporary basis.

From a statewide perspective, Harrington said that now "is worst possible time in the history of Texas to be in a fight like this."

"Hopefully after the hearing happens we'll reach an agreement and get on about our work," he said.

NOW leader criticizes bishop in South Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — The state president of the National Organization for Women said Monday that Corpus Christi religious leaders and law officers are using Nazi-like tactics in denouncing the arrests of anti-abortion protesters.

Phyllis Tucker, president of the NOW chapter in Texas, also said that the officers should step down if they "cannot or will not enforce the law as they are sworn to do."

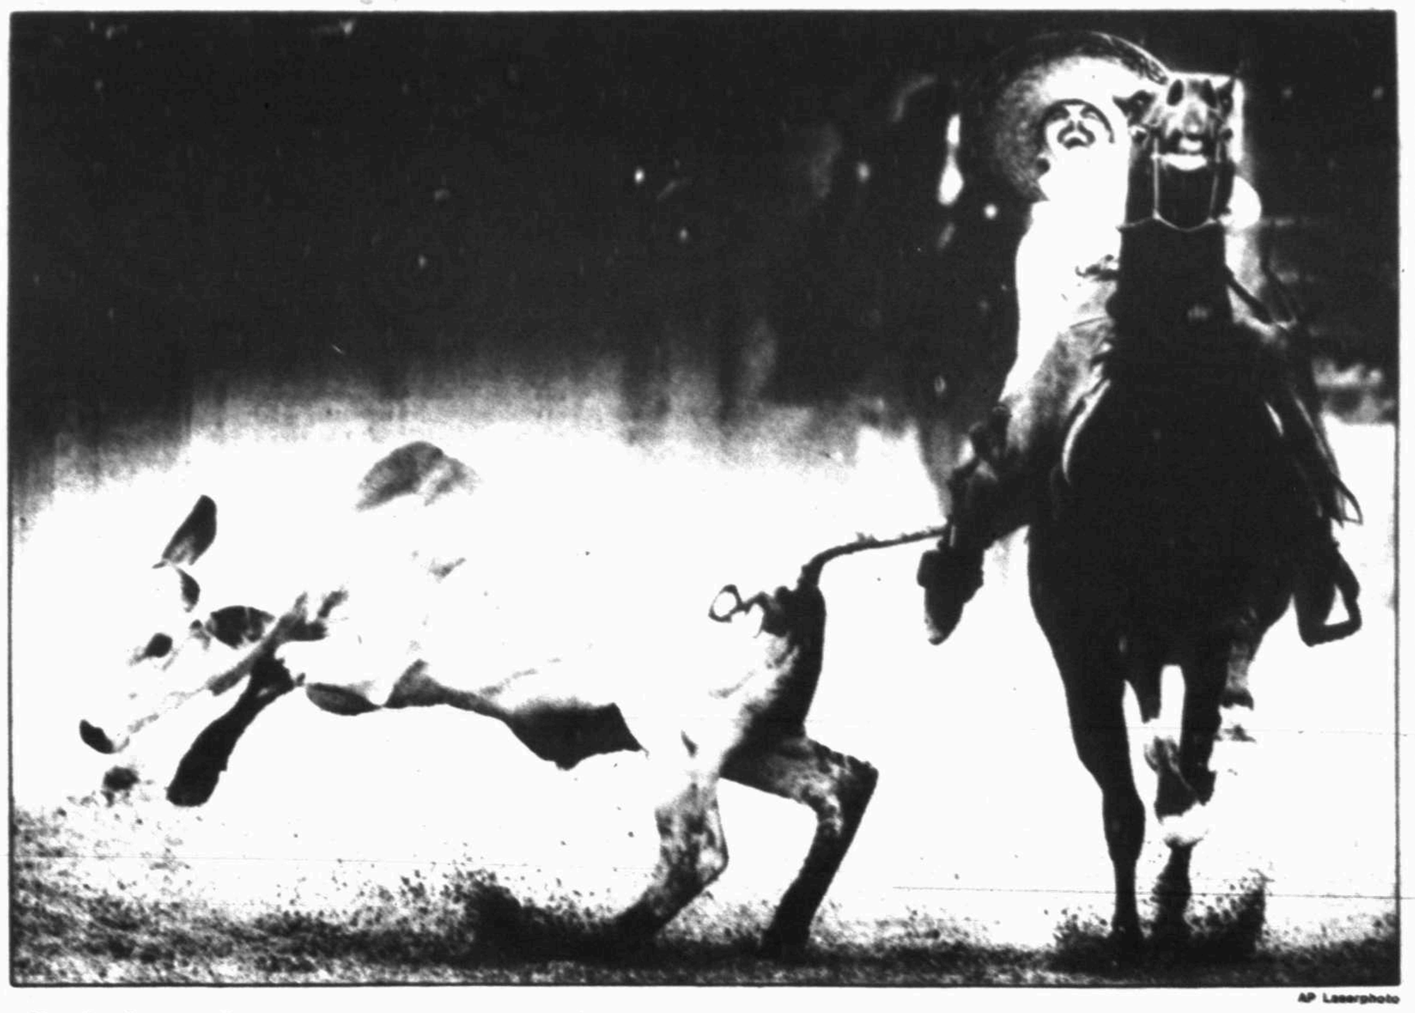

"They are seeking to impose their religious and moral beliefs upon others in an illegal manner," said Ms. Tucker of Houston.

"The Constitution of the United States clearly separates church from state in recognition that actions such as these are intolerable in a free society," she said.

In Corpus Christi, Catholic Bishop Rene Gracida and Nueces County Sheriff Jim Hickey have publicly expressed their anti-abortion views.

Gracida in an Aug. 27 letter to Corpus Christi police officers said church law forbids Catholics to "collaborate in the application" of immoral laws, such as laws permitting abortion.

The bishop's letter said police officers who remove anti-abortion protesters participate indirectly in killing children, and that history judges harshly "those who abuse the dignity of humankind under the color of law."

Classes forming at Avalon Vocational-Technical Institute

Careers begin at Avalon Vocational-Technical Institute in Odessa and you can start work on improving your career success right away. All that you learn is reinforced with an intensive placement program which will help you develop the skills to find a satisfying, challenging job in your field.

It's no secret that in today's challenging job market, education increasingly makes the difference in measuring career success. Avalon provides specialized business, technical and vocational training along with job seeking skills for the constantly changing business world.

To meet these changes, Avalon has introduced two new subject plans, Computer Operator and Credit and Collections Specialist.

The Computer Operator program begins with a solid base in typing and business skills and adds training in basic computer applications including word processing, data entry, data base and spreadsheets. This program prepares the graduate for an entry level position in computer related fields.

The Credit and Collections Specialist program offers a solid background in business and computer courses and progresses to the specific needs of credit and collection including knowledge of state and federal laws, credit analysis, claims and disputes and the techniques of skip tracing.

Avalon is a school which genuinely cares for its students, and Placement Director Denny Youngblood is truly dedicated to the students who take his Professional Development course, which is required for graduation.

The course prepares him/her for successful, secure job training. Topics include preparing an effective resume and standing out in a job interview.

The course emphasizes completing employment applications with correct and accurate information expressed in industry related language, the correct job search procedure and following through with job opportunities.

Active student participation is required in all phases of the course, including contact with potential employers, interviewing techniques and follow up contacts.

"Placement is up approximately 23 percent in all fields for the last three months," Youngblood said. "Right now, from the electronics department, I have two people available to interview for six jobs. Other than that, at present, all of our graduates are placed."

"Providing assistance is my primary job," Youngblood explained. "The jobs are there. You have to know where and how to look and I teach that. I don't have a magic or secret formula. It's hard work, determination and persistance. The biggest thing is developing an action plan."

In addition to teaching the Professional Development course, Youngblood works with contacts in the business community to help open up opportunities for his students. "I'm totally and thoroughly dedicated to the student body and the graduates. I do my job based on being in their shoes. I ask myself, 'If I were a student, how would I want me to do my job?'"

It's dedicated instructors such as Youngblood who make Avalon the well rounded educational institution that serves the Permian Basin.

Here's how Avalon works:

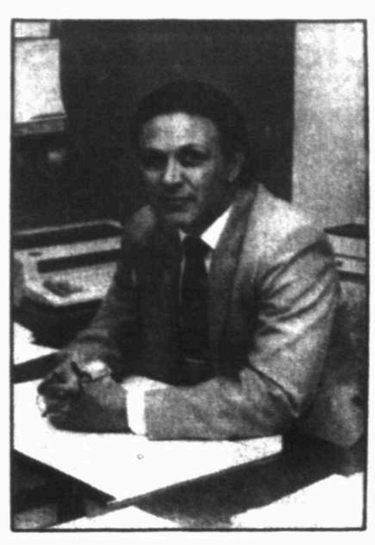

Generally speaking, two courses are taken for night sessions and three are taken during day sessions. Air conditioning classes begin every three weeks for day classes and every six weeks for night classes. Beginning with the Sept. 26 start, electronics classes also begin every three weeks.

Admissions representatives are on campus each evening until 7:30 for your convenience. Another Avalon advantage for Midland students is the free daily transportation between Midland and Odessa.

Avalon offers day and evening courses of study in a number of challenging and interesting career fields such as:

- Office Specialist
- Data Entry Specialist
- Computer Operator (new)
- Credit and Collections Specialist (new)
- Computer-Accounting Specialist
- Computer-Word Processing Specialist
- Executive Secretary
- Legal Secretary
- Electronic Technician
- Advanced Electronic Technician
- Air Conditioning, Heating and Refrigeration

New classes will form September 26, part of a flexible three-week starting period. Call 563-9000 or 367-2622 for information on admissions, financial aid and course offerings. Choose Avalon Vocational Technical Institute as your stepping stone to success today!

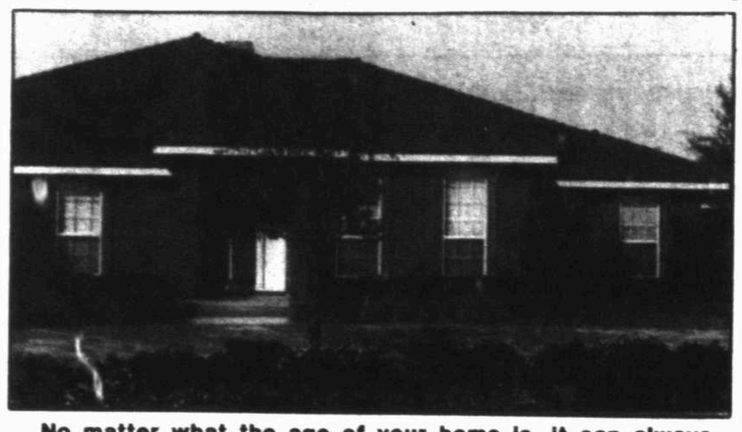

Denny Youngblood, Placement Director for Avalon Vocational-Technical Institute helps place all Avalon graduates and teaches them job hunting skills as well.

Mid-West Door & Window: Add protective storm windows, doors

Winter is just around the corner and with it comes the cold West Texas winds. Now is the time to prepare your home to lock out that cold and lock in the heat with beautiful storm windows from Mid-West Door and Window.

Mid-West Door and Window, located at 2400 West Front Street, has been providing beautiful, durable storm windows and doors since 1976. Since it is locally owned and operated, you know that you can trust Mid-West for the best job in town.

Because Mid-West sells only custom fitted windows, you can count on the best fit and the least amount of air infiltration. Custom fitted storm windows and doors do more than keep the warm air in and the cold air out. They also give you a more dust free and quieter home, and in turn a more enjoyable atmosphere.

No matter what the age of your home is, it can always benefit from the addition of storm windows and storm doors. The owner of this Midland home recently had Mid-West Door and Window add these beautiful improvements.

You might say storm windows and doors have six advantages. It's a protective investment in regard to heat, added beauty to your home, cooling, and protection from hail, dust, noise and other elements.

Mid-West offers a wide selection of storm windows, such as McReynolds, Mason and Peerless brands. All are different shapes, finishes and prices, to allow you to pick the one that best suits your home and pocketbook.

Mid-West offers the Peerless storm door for extra insulation, beauty and security. These doors come with tempered safety glass, adjustable door sweeps and double locksets with keyed exteriors. And to back up this door, Mid-West Door and Window puts a one-year limited warranty on it.

You can't go wrong with a Peerless storm door. With as much traffic that usually goes through doors, you need one that will last.

Other services offered by Mid-West are complete door sales, service and installation. Mid-West offers a full selection of beautiful wood doors with leaded beveled glass or raised panels to compliment any decor. Mid-West also offers residential steel doors for West Texas' harsh climate and added security.

These doors are also available with leaded bevel glass or just panels for a more conservative application.

Are you tired of constantly scraping and painting? Let Mid-West apply vinyl or steel siding to your home's exterior. Whether it's just the trim on your brick home or the entire exterior, siding is a great way to reduce maintenance and improve your home's appearance for years to come.

Custom-made aluminum screens and rescreening of your existing frames are also offered at Mid-West — yet another way to improve your home's appearance and lower the maintenance on your biggest investment.

Mid-West Door and Window offers professional installation on all products and it stands behind its work.

So for a clearer, brighter view and more comfortable living, call your local professionals at Mid-West Door and Window at 682-4632. Mike Smith and his staff promise you won't be sorry. Free estimates are available.

Dental implants can improve quality of life

Missing teeth and a tax audit are both looked upon as truly bothersome irritations. In addition, both are much less of a problem, as long as they happen to someone else! In fairness to the tax auditors, it could be said that at least they leave you a chance for a refund, but not so with teeth! It is estimated that 38 million people in this country have lost all their teeth.

In addition, it has been stated that among those over 65 years of age, over half are without their natural teeth.

This represents a considerable impairment of chewing function, considering that a properly fitted new denture, placed upon an ideal jaw ridge, can at best, exert only 12 percent of those chewing forces generated by natural teeth. The result of this reduced chewing function upon the digestive process is indirect, but nevertheless immediate. Proper chewing is the first and critical step of digestion. One need only look at the number of products that are marketed as denture adhesives and digestion aids, to see that there is a serious, and significant problem for those people affected.

Fortunately, there are now different answers. Dental implants can offer many benefits such as beautiful, natural looking teeth replacements without the constant inconvenience and discomfort of unanchored, removable dentures.

Dental implants can provide a method to anchor individual replacement teeth, or serve to replace a partial or full denture with fixed bridgework. That is to say, dental implants can replace a single tooth or several teeth, even teeth that have been lost through athletic or industrial injuries.

The overall quality of life is felt to have improved by many who have experienced the reduction of frustrations associated with dentures or removable bridgework. They also feel that dental implants not only improve their chewing ability, but also restore a feeling of more natural tooth function. If you are missing one, a few, or even all of your teeth, doesn't the placement of dental implants deserve your consideration?

For your implant treatment program, the Implant Dentistry Associates of the Southwest is a group of dentists who affiliate, or work together as a team, in the delivery of comprehensive care in the field of Dental Implantology. These dentists share neither corporate or formal unity, nor any financial relationship. They are united only by common values and a deep, firmly held devotion to the best long term interests of the patient.

Each team dentist holds a personal commitment and interest in the field of dental implantology as well as a professional appreciation for the direct and practical benefits that dental implants can provide for the patient.

In addition, each dentist has an overall willingness to share knowledge with other dentists whose orientation and interests are compatible and coupled with a willingness to work cooperatively.

It is also important to know these dentists are sufficiently experienced to understand that no one single type, from any manufacturer's so-called "implant system" will best serve the long term interest of all patients.

These dentists have freely associated together in their studies of dental implantology and continue to actively share a knowledge base as they cooperatively develop and execute the comprehensive treatment programs: however, as noted previously, there is a cooperative team approach but there is no sharing of costs or fees. Those matters are handled directly with the specific dental office involved.

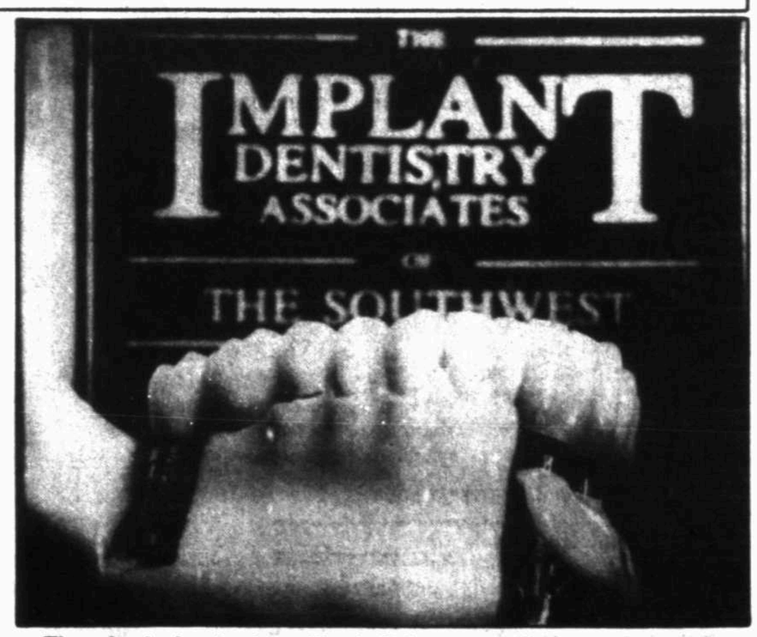

This selected group of dentists have been referred to as The Implant Dentistry Associates of the Southwest and the founder and director of this group is Dr. Millard J. Kimery, who is a specialist in the field of periodontics. He has maintained a practice in the Permian Basin that is now in its 18th year.

Throughout that time Dr. Kimery has continued an intensive program of post-doctoral studies in order to deliver the latest in technological advances. It may be of interest to note that he is one of the very few periodontists providing techniques in laser surgery as well as dental implantology.

Periodontics is a field of dentistry that is especially concerned with preserving the natural teeth, or dentition. This orientation, coupled with the required background field of study, uniquely qualifies the periodontist for the work in dental implantology. From the earliest onset of training, the graduate student in periodontics is steeped in the concepts of cellular physiology, metabolism, tissue integrity and their ongoing maintenance.

The preserving of the natural dentition is the overriding, long term goal.

Dr. Kimery's interest in the field of Dental Implantology had its origin in the late 1960s. Dr. Kimery has successfully completed an intense, comprehensive written examination provided by the American Academy of Implant Dentistry and has achieved over 450 post-doctoral credit hours of training in the study of dental implants.

The single implant on the left is supporting a conventional "fixed" replacement bridge that is cementable to place using standard dental techniques. On the other side, the multiple implants are carrying replacement teeth, which are "fixed" by screws that are "detachable" by the dental implant team at The Implant Denistry Associates of the Southwest. This has been called a "Fixed-Detachable" type."

In summary, if you are considering dental implants and are concerned about the adequacy of comprehensive training, please call The Implants Dentistry Associates of the Southwest. Dr. Kimery can be reached in Midland at 683-6384 and in Abilene at (915) 698-6426. The staff will be most happy to provide you with a copy of an informative brochure on how and what dental implants can do for you.

The Blue Gem Shop & Gallery opens Children's Art Corner

Art for children's rooms is not something that all of us think about as being very important. But that has changed for the children of Midland since The Blue Gem Shop and Gallery, 321 Dodson, has opened its Children's Art Corner.

Babies and children grow fast and the things that have been hanging on their walls will be changed, but why should it be this way?

Perhaps children can be led to a greater appreciation of art from the cradle up. Owner Dorothy Davis compares The Blue Gem's children's art department to a cocoon stage, like a butterfly. "We don't look at this cocoon as being beautiful but as it goes through all of its stages, we watch and wait," she explained.

"Every day we look and wish it to a more advanced setting. Suddenly — one day — we look and the cocoon is gone and in its place is a beautiful butterfly."

The Children's Art Corner is still "in the worm," so to speak, but every day it grows and one day soon, it too will be like the butterfly.

The posters and prints in the store relate to the books found in children's rooms, such as Beatrix Potter's "Tales of Peter Rabbit," "Curious George," the award-winning "The Polar Express" by Chris Van Allsburg and "The Runaway Bunny" by Margaret Wise Brown.

Other art comes from books such as "St. George and the Dragon," by Trina Schart Hyman, "Mama Don't Allow," by Thatcher Hurd, and Richard Scarry's "Busiest People Ever."

A colorful neon selection of posters by Jeff Low include "Camel-Flage" "Coyote Chorus Line," and "Chili Dogs." You'll find some signed and numbered prints such as "Tickled Pink" by Hansen. Coming soon is a collection of Dinosaur Bob and Babar the Elephant posters.

Charming Indian and cowboy children prints by Native American Star Tehee Weddel are framed and available for the special child on your gift list.

Any special occasion in a child's life is a time to remember. The first smile, first tooth, crawl, walk or anytime that is special to you and your child. When you have one that you want to cherish always, The Blue Gem Shop and Gallery will help you by adding the date and what happened to make it special on the back of the print or with a small engraving on the front.

"Each day we look to see what other butterflies will join our collection," continued Mrs. Davis. New posters and prints are arriving every day, just in time for you to fill your Christmas gift needs.

"We want your child to be a part of this department, so we have toys for them to play with, a rocker to rock in, books to look at and read and videos for them to watch. They share with you and with us in selecting art for their room."

"Come by and browse and let us show you what we are so excited about," Mrs. Davis added.

These fine posters and prints can be purchased framed or unframed, and framing is done right in The Blue Gem Shop and Gallery by the talented duo of Carolyn Turner and Gene Teer.

Gene and Carolyn have more than 22 years of combined experience and training in all aspects of framing, including creative matting, conservation mounting, mat designs and special cuts. Let the experts professionally handle your prized needlework, maps, shadow boxes, diplomas, photographs and other art work. "We stand behind what we sell," added Mrs. Davis. "We go out of our way to see that our customers are satisfied."

Of course, don't forget The Blue Gem Shop and Gallery for fine gifts as well as framing. Native American art and jewelry as well as many signed prints, limited editions, watercolors and oils.

Also available is the Blue Gem's printing service for stationery, napkins, matchbook covers and more. And for Christmas cards, if you order before October 1, your printing is free.

Store hours for this delightful art and gift shop are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, but the staff will not mind staying late if you are running a bit late. Call 683-1391 for more information.

Bring your child to the new Children's Art Corner at The Blue Gem Shop and Gallery, 321 Dodson. It is filled with posters and prints as well as toys to entertain while you browse. Two-year-old Emily Ford, pictured, reports that the Children's Art Corner "is a really fun place. The lady (owner Dorothy Davis) is really nice."

Do you need a secretary, but can't afford the cost involved? Would you like an office with a professional appearance and one centrally located in downtown Midland? Are you just ready for a change?

Come by and visit One Wall Plaza Executive Suites, 306 West Wall, Suite 1200 or call 684-5433 and Debi Myers will be glad to help.

A new and beautiful suite of offices are ready for occupancy with one and two room suites available now. Standard features for tenants of the Executive Suite include covered parking in the Wilco Building Parking Garage, new telephone equipment, answering service with a receptionist, large conference room and a beautiful receptionist area. Sizes and locations vary so come by and visit. If the 12th floor doesn't have the size or shape of office you need, then you will probably find that perfect space somewhere else in the building; and you can still use the secretarial services offered by the Executive Suites. One Wall Plaza is centrally located across Wall Street from NCNB Bank Building.

You have easy access to various banks, the courthouse, Subsurface Library and the post office. One Wall Plaza offers some convenient extras with Terry's Coffee Shop on the ground floor and A-1 Business Service on the 12th floor. Contact Carol Milsap at 683-9290 or Debi Myers at 684-5433 for more information or for a showing of office space.

In conjunction with the Executive Suites, A-1 Business Service is the secretarial service filling the various secretarial needs of the Executive Suites tenants. A-1 also invites individuals from other buildings and the public to use the secretarial service when the need arises. A-1 Business Service has been an active secretarial service in Midland for 20 plus years.

Owner Debi Myers has been involved in this family-owned business since 1972. She has performed secretarial services for lawyers, landmen, geologists, accountants and engineers among other oil related individuals and for large oil companies, independent companies, one-man offices, accounting firms and law firms for the past eighteen years.

With such a wide variety of experience and the latest in office equipment, Debi feels she can offer the best service available in this area. Long time customers will confirm Debi's dedication to a "job well done." The Permian Basin Landmen's Association and the Midland Exchange Club are long time clients of A-1 Business Service and are very confident that Debi will get the job done in a timely and efficient manner. Their members are very pleased with the secretarial services she offers and enjoy a good working relationship with Debi.

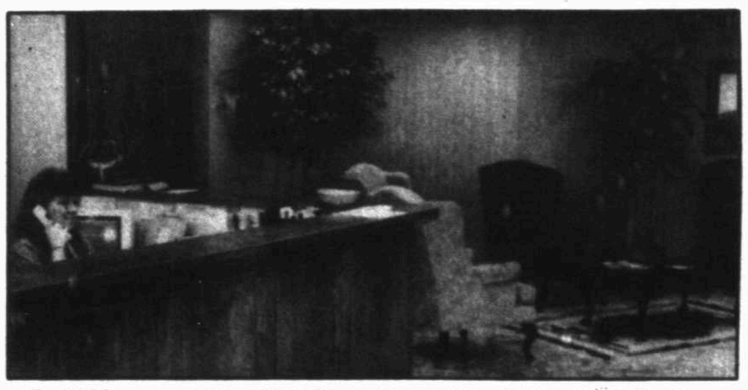

One Wall Plaza Executive Suites/A-1 Business Service offer a wide variety of services for your secretarial needs. All typing is performed on a computer and printed on a laser printer for a professional appearance for that big oil deal, special report or maybe a high school or college thesis. Same day service is offered on most jobs. Bookkeeping services include paying bills, balancing bank statements, receiving monies for deposit and making bank deposits (A-1 is bonded to insure proper handling of your money), along with a computerized bookkeeping system found to be very helpful when presenting your books to the accountant for income tax preparation.

A-1 offers club membership management utilizing a database capable of handling several thousand names. Ask about the club membership services, A-1 can take some of the pressure off when you're trying to meet deadlines. A-1 Business Service offers a complete resume service. Debi Myers has several years experience in preparing resumes and will prepare your resume from scratch or just type it, whatever your need may be. After your resume is completed in a final form you may want to have it copies on the new Toshiba copy machine or have all copies done on the laser printer.

You can also place an ad in The Employment Monthly, a national publication advertising positions wanted by individuals seeking employment, at a very reasonable cost. The magazine has a wide circulation and most advertisers receive a fast response. A-1 Business Service can help you write your ad and will handle the paperwork for submitting your ad to the magazine. Other very important services offered to complete the fully equipped office is world-wide fax, book binding, copying services and notary public.

As you can see, One Wall Plaza Executive Suites and A-1 Business Service can meet all you office needs. They offer all the secretarial services you would have if you had your own secretary, the only difference is that the cost is substantially lower. With a full-time secretary you would have a salary and probably some benefits not to mention workers compensation and payroll taxes.

As a tenant in One Wall Plaza Executive Suites, you would only pay for the services you use, i.e. typing, copying, fax service, etc. With a competitive rate on office rent along with superior secretarial services you can save money and still have a nice new office with a secretary/receptionist. Call 684-5433, fax 684-3902 or drop by for a visit.

Debi Myers, of One Wall Plaza Executive Suites/A-1 Business Service, can answer your questions on leasing a new, professional suite in central downtown Midland and how to save on secretarial costs and other overhead as well. Come by 306 West Wall, Suite 1200 or call Debi at 684-5433 for more information.

Use of American Indian place names creates challenges

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON - A century after its creation, the U.S. Board on Geographic Names has decided to put more American Indian names on the map.

The project is complicated by many factors, including the reluctance of Indians, for religious or privacy reasons, to reveal the names of some places.

Another factor is the difficulty of expressing such names in Latin letters. As part of a weeklong celebration of the board's centennial, leaders of name-screening boards in the western states met recently at the Library of Congress to compare notes.

The chairman of the meeting, Grant Smith of the Washington State Names Board, pointed out that the native name for the great waterfall in Spokane, Wash., can best be written as Stseqhwikwe, which means "Foaming Water."

Spokane itself was named for Illim Spukani, an Indian leader, the words meaning "Son of the refracted sunlight."

A centennial exhibition that went on display at the library recently also noted the Indian name of a lake in Massachusetts, Lake Chargoggaggoggmanchaugagoggchaubunagungamaug.

In native dialect, the exhibit says, it means: "You Fish on Your Side I Fish on My Side Nobody Fishes in the Middle." It is known locally as Lake Char.

At the meeting, Donald J. Orth, executive secretary of the national board for domestic names, said, "If you s[illegible] a name on the map and can't pron[illegible]nce it, you ignore it."

The national board's new policy was approved earlier this year but awaits signing by Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan. It describes names from American Indian languages as "an important and integral part" of American cultural heritage.

Within territory wholely or partly under tribal jurisdiction, the policy would consider changing non-Indian names into more indigenous ones.

If the names are widely known and long-published, however, they would be changed only rarely and only if given wide support and state approval.

Proposals to give American Indian names to unnamed features outside reservations would be considered if "linguistically appropriate to the area" and conforming to guidelines for writing American Indian names.

The board, created by President Benjamin Harrison on Sept. 4, 1890, considers approval of any name to be used by the federal government or to appear on its maps. It includes members from the departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Defense, Interior, State, the CIA, Government Printing Office, Library of Congress and Postal Service.

Each year it receives about 1,000 proposals for new or altered names in the United States and approves about a third of them. State boards make recommendations to the national board.

Spoon charged

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston running back Chuck Weatherspoon is free on $500 bond after he was charged with misdemeanor assault in connection with the weekend assault of another student.

Richard Labs, 33, said he was attacked "out of the blue" and suffered a black eye.

"I don't know what provoked him," Labs said.

Weatherspoon, 22, a senior, faces a Friday court appearance.

Weatherspoon set an NCAA rushing record last season, averaging 9.6 yards per carry.

Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman is sacked by New York Giant linebacker Lawrence Taylor as the Cowboys' love affair with the win column ended at Texas Stadium, 28-7.

Austin camp up in flames

■ Steamy Austin was supposed to be the physical test for the Dallas Cowboys, but the New York Giants laid the notion to rest.

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys figured they were forged in the fire of a steamy Austin training camp so they could handle any physical test from the opposition.

On Sunday, the Cowboys met the New York Giants and that notion sailed like a hot air balloon through the hole in Texas Stadium's roof.

The Giants kept the Dallas defense on the field so long that lineman Danny Noonan and strong safety Vince Allbritton staggered to the sidelines with heat exhaustion during the 28-7 loss.

New York controlled the clock, 41:40 to 18:20, and the Dallas defense wilted. Not even training for a month in the heat and humidity of Austin could help them.

The on-field temperature was 104 degrees at kickoff and New York quarterback Phil Simms said: "It's the hottest game I've ever played in. It was hot."

However, Simms noted that the defense expends more energy than the offense.

"The defense have to run twice as far," Simms said. "You could see the Cowboys getting tired."

The Giants nose tackle, Erick Howard, thanked Simms. "I was thinking ball control when the day began," Howard said. "I'm glad our offense kept the ball away from them."

Dallas got off only 38 offensive plays. Even the score they got hurt their tired defense. Alexander Wright returned a kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown and the defense had to get back on the field.

Rookie Emmitt Smith, making his first start for Dallas, got only six carries. He gained 11 yards.

Dallas defensive end Jim Jeffcoat said their should be no excuses for what happened.

"You're professionals and you get paid to do a job no matter how long you're out there," Jeffcoat said. "You just have to deal with it. There are going to be days like that and you have to keep on grinding."

Dallas defensive end Daniel Stubbs said he thought the Cowboys were in good condition.

"The heat sometimes bothers certain people," Stubbs said. "You can't blame the heat. We just weren't executing."

The Cowboys had petitioned the NFL to get its first two games at home in the heat.

Dallas defeated San Diego 14-9 but the Giants were at a higher level.

"The Giants take the football and just drive it on you and take you out of the ball game," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson. "We've just got a lot of work to do yet. The Giants will make a lot of teams look bad."

Elway turns a miracle against Chiefs

DENVER (AP) — John Elway completed a 49-yard, fourth-down pass to set up David Treadwell's 22-yard winning field goal as the Denver Broncos blew a 12-point fourth-quarter lead and rallied to beat Kansas City 24-23 on Monday night.

Treadwell's field goal came after Steve DeBerg had thrown two touchdown passes in the final eight minutes to turn a 21-9 deficit into a 23-21 lead for the Chiefs. The second scoring pass was an 83-yarder to Stephone Paige, who caught 10 passes for 206 yards.

But facing a fourth-and-10 at his own 17, Elway, who was 14-for-28 for 263 yards, found Vance Johnson streaking across the middle and he carried the ball to the Kansas City 34.

Elway then hit Mark Jackson for 16 yards, and Bobby Humphery, who finished with 132 yards on 19 carries, raced to the 4 to set up Treadwell's kick as the clock ran out.

The win kept Denver from falling into a deep hole in the AFC West as it evened its record at 1-1. Kansas City, which hasn't won at Denver since 1982, is also 1-1.

DeBerg, who finished 26-for-45 for 395 yards, hit Paige about his own 40 on the right sideline and the receiver, who also caught a 16-yard touchdown pass, broke a tackle by Kip Corrington and raced untouched into the end zone.

Denver had led most of the game on two touchdown runs by Humphery and another by Elway and was still ahead 21-9 with 9:30 left when Albert Lewis, just activated after a bitter holdout, blocked a punt by Mike Horan. It rolled 40 yards down the field and was recovered by Kevin Porter at Denver 17. Two plays later, DeBerg hit Paige with a 16-yard TD pass for the Chiefs' first touchdown following three early field goals by Nick Lowery.

Humphrey, held to 24 yards in a 14-9 loss to the Raiders last week, scored on a 36-yard run in the first period and a 6-yard burst in the second.

Elway scored on a 2-yard quarterback draw in the third period and kept two drives alive with two long completions to Johnson.

Alvarez, Saiz lead Big Spring

■ Despite a loss to Lubbock Estacado, Big Spring coaches see a big effort from two defensive players.

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

All coaches are concerned with wins and losses. But they also want their charges to play well — and they can recognize when their team's performance might not have been enough to beat a better team or vice versa.

Dwight Butler is a case in point. The Big Spring defensive coordinator saw his unit stumble and blunder around throughout the opener against Amarillo Caprock, even though the Steers won 42-13.

Alvarez

Saturday, it was a different story. The Steers all but shut down one of West Texas' most potent offenses, holding the Lubbock Estacado attack scoreless after a pass coverage breakdown on the Matadors' first play from scrimmage that led to a 28-yard scoring strike.

The Steer defense held Estacado to 166 total yards, but their offensive teammates just couldn't make the big play in a 17-6 Estacado win.

Despite the loss, Butler's a mighty happy man going into Friday's home game with Lubbock High. He's especially pleased with the way his players responded after an up-and-down performance against a mediocre Caprock offense.

"The kids took it upon themselves to do better," Butler said. "They had good practices all week."

But Estacado is a tough team to "do better" against. The Mats feature a huge offensive line, speedy running backs, and a sophomore quarterback — Zebbie Lethridge — who West Texans may be reading about for a long time.

Saiz

"I think if you go by talent and size, they would be at least the equal of anyone in our district (3-4A)," Butler said. "Estacado has size comparable to Andrews, and their tenaciousness is close to Monahans."

Middle linebacker Felipe Saiz and right end Fernando Alvarez spearheaded a team effort. Saiz was the leading tackler on Big Spring's state semifinalists last year, while Alvarez saw limited varsity action on the Steers' playoff drive.

Alvarez led the Steers Saturday with eight first hits and nine assists, while Saiz chipped in with five solo tackles, five first hits and six assists. The 185-pound senior also had three tackles for loss, caused a fumble and broke up a pass.

But Butler emphasizes the phrase "team effort" when he talks about his unit's performance on Saturday night.

"They played as a group, instead of as individuals. They really hung in there."

JOE WYATT

Oiler alterations good for opponents

If you waded through innumerable home shopping channels to set your dial on Sunday night's game between the Houston Oilers and the Pittsburgh Steelers, you likely did so hoping to see a well-executed rematch between the two teams that clashed so brilliantly in last year's wild-card playoff game.

Wyatt

If that's what you saw, call me. My Ford could be your next Cadillac, cheap.

For those that had the good sense to turn in early, Pittsburgh survived Houston's run-and-shoot-own-foot offense for a 20-9 win.

The Steelers, still without an offensive touchdown this season, were flagged for 92 penalty yards. Their aerial attack netted only 55 yards, and they covered just 68 yards on 27 ill-executed running plays.

Yeah, that stinks. But keep your nose covered.

The Oilers outgained Pittsburgh 309-123 and lost by 11 points. They eclipsed the 100-yard penalty barrier (14-for-104), managed just one return yard despite forcing eight Steeler punts and Warren Moon delved out four interceptions while watching his receivers drop a good portion of his better throws.

What, you ask, became of the rejuvenated Pittsburgh arsenal that fell one John-Elway-instigated drive shy of beating Denver and moving into the AFC title game just nine short months ago?

You remember Merril Hoge rushing for 120 yardd wonder how he managed just nine yards on nine carries in his latest venture, doing so behind the exact same offensive line he enjoyed in the playoffs.

And where, you question, has the normally interception-stingy arm of Air Moon gone? Moon, who threw just 14 times to the wrong jerseys in 1989, has done so six times in the first two games of 1990. Four such miscues against the injury-plagued, no-name defense of the Steelers paints a woeful picture of Houston's plight.

Two playoff hopefuls with one win between them, sputtering into Week No. 3 with more question marks than the transcript from the Oliver North trial, is what was most notable as Rod Woodson accepted kudos for his 52-yard punt return during Sunday's postgame show.

It's a clear case of "If it ain't broke, don't fix it," falling on deaf ears within franchises that could easily wind up with equal shares of the Central Division cellar.

Jack Pardee's run-and-shoot has now made a predictable pushover out of a team with the talent to contend for a playoff berth. So far, the Oiler offense has let four turnovers slip away for touchdowns.

Joe Walton, the guy that led the Jets through some pretty uninspired seasons, is the new man guiding the Pittsburgh attack.

Some attack. Altogether, the Steelers have rushed for 117 yards and passed for 216 yards over the course of their first two games. That's 333 yards of total offense, 42 yards fewer than Tampa Bay accumulated in its opener.

The Oilers and the Steelers are both going through the difficult stages of learning new offensive schemes under new offensive coordinators as the regular season unfolds.

Sooners soar, Panthers plunge in AP Top 25 poll

Associated Press

The Sooners soared and the Panthers plunged in this week's Associated Press college football poll.

After routing Pittsburgh 52-10, Oklahoma rose three spots to No. 11 and Pitt fell 12 places to No. 25. The Panthers almost dropped out of the rankings, just edging Fresno State by one point for the final spot.

Notre Dame strengthened its hold on No. 1 with a season-opening victory over Michigan, while Colorado dropped out of the Top 10 after losing to Illinois 23-22.

The Fighting Irish, who rallied to beat the Wolverines 28-24 Saturday night, received 44 first-place votes and 1,480 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. That's an increase of seven first-place votes and 29 points over the previous week.

The Buffaloes, who had a perfect regular season in 1989, are off to a rough start this year. They tied Tennessee in their opener and needed a last-minute touchdown to beat Stanford before losing to Illinois, which jumped six spots to No. 15.

Florida State moved past Auburn into second after routing Georgia Southern 48-6. The Seminoles got 10 first-place votes and 1,385 points, while Auburn, which beat Mississippi 24-10, received four first-place votes and 1,382 points.

Brigham Young rose one spot to No. 4 after overcoming a 22-point halftime deficit to beat Washington State 50-36. BYU was listed as the top team on two ballots and received 1,236 points.

Also moving up a notch were Southern Cal, to No. 5, and Tennessee, to No. 6. Southern Cal beat Penn State 19-14 and Tennessee crushed Texas-El Paso 56-0.

Michigan fell from No. 4 to No. 7 after losing to Notre Dame for the fourth straight year. Nebraska, which had the week off, remained No. 8, just ahead of Miami and Virginia.

Miami, which rebounded from an opening loss to BYU with a 52-24 win over California, rose one place to No. 9. Virginia moved up a spot to No. 10 after routing Navy 56-14.

Oklahoma is 11th, followed by Texas A&M, Arkansas, Houston, Illinois, Ohio State, Clemson, Arizona, Florida and Colorado. Rounding out the Top 25 are Washington, Texas, Arizona State, Michigan State and Pittsburgh.

Florida's 17-13 victory over Alabama pushed the Gators up five places to No. 19 and Houston's 51-35 win over Texas Tech lifted the Cougars up four spots to No. 14. Michigan State dropped from 19th to 24th after tying Syracuse 23-23.

Reds closer to West title

Associated Press

Jose Rijo pitched a two-hitter and Paul O'Neill hit a two-run homer Monday night to move Cincinnati a step closer to the National League West title with a 4-0 victory over San Francisco.

The victory reduced to 11 the Reds' magic number for clinching their first division title since 1979. The Reds are trying to become the first NL team to lead the division every day of a 162-game season.

NL

The defending champion Giants fell 8½ behind the Reds with their fourth straight loss. They've scored just five runs in the four games.

The Giants managed just a first-inning double by Kevin Bass and a ninth-inning single by Bass against Rijo (11-8). It was by far Rijo's best performance against the Giants — he came into the game with an 0-5 career record against San Francisco, including 0-2 this year.

The right-hander struck out 12, a Reds high this season, and walked two in his team-high and career-high fifth complete game. He has allowed three earned runs or fewer in 22 of his 26 starts.

The Reds knocked out Scott Garrelts (12-11) with none out in the third inning. They had five hits and three walks against him.

They loaded the bases in the first with one out, but failed to score as O'Neill popped out and Luis Quinones flew out. But Hal Morris lined a two-out single in the second inning for two runs after the Reds loaded the bases again.

Garrelts walked Eric Davis to open the third inning and gave up O'Neill's 16th homer for a 4-0 lead. O'Neill has a .379 lifetime average against Garrelts, including a two-out single in the ninth inning that broke up Garrelts' no-hitter on July 29 at Candlestick Park.

Rick Reuschel, activated before the game, came on in the fifth inning — his first appearance since arthroscopic knee surgey July 9. Reuschel hurt his knee during a start May 27 at Pittsburgh.

The right-hander allowed the Reds two hits and struck out two in two innings.

Dodgers 5, Braves 2

Eddie Murray and Kal Daniels each had three hits, including run-scoring singles to help Los Angeles to a victory over Atlanta and keep its slim pennant hopes alive.

The Dodgers, who won for the fourth time in four games, remained 5½ games behind NL West leader Cincinnati with 15 games left. The Reds beat San Francisco 4-0 and have 16 games left.

Murray, hitting .377 against the Braves this season with 15 RBI, drove in the Dodgers' first run in the third inning off Charlie Liebrandt (8-10). Mike Sharperson singled with two outs and took second as Daniels walked before Murray delivered his hit to center field, scoring Sharperson.

The Dodgers made it 2-0 in the sixth on a single by Daniels, Murray's double and a sacrifice fly by Mike Scioscia before a crowd of only 3,473, the Braves' second smallest turnout of the season.

Padres 5, Astros 0

Bruce Hurst pitched his second straight shutout and extended his consecutive scoreless-innings streak to 27 with a six-hitter in San Diego's victory over Houston.

The paid crowd of 6,059 was the smallest since May 22, 1986, when 4,784 watched the Astros play the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Hurst (10-9) won for the fifth time in his last six decisions and pitched his fourth shutout of the season.

San Diego took a 2-0 lead in the third when Roberto Alomar hit his sixth home run of the season. Alomar drove in Bip Roberts, who had doubled.

The Padres increased their lead to 3-0 in the third after Benito Santiago singled and scored on a fielding error by center fielder Karl Rohdes on Garry Templeton's single.

San Diego added its final two runs in the fifth on an RBI double by Jack Clark and Joe Carter's run-scoring single.

Boston maintains lead over Jays

Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox snapped a four-game losing streak and maintained their one-game lead in the American League East by defeating the Baltimore Orioles 7-3 Monday night as Mike Boddicker won his fifth straight.

Tony Pena scored three runs and had two RBI for the Red Sox, who remained one game ahead of Toronto, a 6-4 winner over New York. Baltimore has lost four straight and 17 of 23 and became the second team in the division to be mathematically eliminated.

AL

Boddicker (16-8) gave up three runs and seven hits in six innings and is 4-0 against the Orioles. Larry Andersen pitched two hitless innings and Jeff Gray worked the ninth.

The Red Sox used two walks around Luis Rivera's single to load the bases in the third against rookie Ben McDonald (7-5) and sacrifice flies by Dwight Evans and Wade Boggs made it 2-0.

Boston extended its lead to 5-0 in the fourth. Kevin Romine drew a one-out walk, Mike Marshall doubled, Romine scored on a wild pitch and Pena doubled Marshall home. Pena scored on an error by third baseman Leo Gomez.

McDonald (7-5) left with two out in the fourth after giving up five runs, four hits and five walks. His 84-pitch effort was a virtual duplication of his previous outing against Boston on Aug. 22 when he walked four and gave up four hits and five runs while throwing 83 pitches in 3⅔ innings.

The Orioles cut Boston's lead to 5-3 in the fifth when Sam Horn hit a two-run double and scored on a double by Mickey Tettleton. Gomez singled Tettleton to third but David Segui hit into a fielder's choice at the plate and Jeff McKnight grounded out.

Boston pulled away in the seventh, scoring twice against John Mitchell with the aid of two Baltimore errors. Pena drove in one run with a single and he scored as right fielder Steve Finley misplayed a double by Rivera.

Blue Jays 6, Yankees 4

Kelly Gruber snapped a 4-4 tie with a two-out bloop single in the seventh inning and surging Toronto beat New York for its fourth straight victory.

A crowd of 49,902, Toronto's 62nd sellout of the season and 55th in a row, helped the Blue Jays set a major league attendance record with 3,635,821. The old mark of 3,608,881 was set by the 1982 Los Angeles Dodgers. The Blue Jays have five home games left.

The Blue Jays, who began the evening one game behind Boston in the American League East, erased 3-0 and 4-3 deficit against rookie Steve Adkins, making his second major league start.

With two out in the eighth, Tony Fernandez singled off Eric Plunk (5-3), took second on a wild pitch and scored on Gruber's soft flare to right field. Manny Lee added an RBI single in the eighth after a single and a balk as Toronto won for the 14th time in 18 games.

John Cerutti (9-9) got the win in relief of Todd Stottlemyre, allowing a walk in one inning. Duane Ward and Tom Henke each pitched an inning, with Henke getting his 29th save. He struck out the side, including pinch-hitter Steve Balboni with two runners on base to end the game.

Jesse Barfield's two-run homer, his 24th, and Roberto Kelly's RBI double gave the Yankees a 3-0 lead in the second inning before Kevin Maas flied out with the bases loaded.

The Blue Jays tied it in their half with the help of one of the craziest plays of the season. George Bell struck out to start the inning but reached third on a wild pitch, Pat Borders doubled and Kenny Williams doubled them home.

Lee then popped out to first baseman Maas in foul territory. Williams was running on the play and slid head-first into third. But with an easy double play in the making, Maas threw the ball wildly to second.

White Sox 7, Athletics 0

Melido Perez pitched a five-hitter and Frank Thomas hit a two-run homer as Chicago defeated Oakland for its fifth consecutive victory.

Oakland's lead in the American League West was cut to nine games over the White Sox but the A's magic number is only seven. It was the 10th time this season Oakland has been shut out after being blanked five times in 1989.

The White Sox took advantage of three Oakland errors for three unearned runs and won their fourth in a row at the Oakland Coliseum. Chicago swept the A's in a three-game series at the Coliseum on June 22-24 and leads the season series 7-4.

Perez (13-14), who had lost six of his previous eight decisions, held Oakland to singles by Jamie Quirk and Carney Lansford for his third shutout. Perez struck out eight and walked three. Loser Scott Sanderson (16-10), who had a three-game winning streak snapped, gave up all seven runs runs and seven hits in five innings.

With Chicago leading 4-0 in the third inning, Thomas hit his fourth home run of the season since being called up from the minors on Aug. 2. The White Sox made it 7-0 in the fourth on a two-out triple by Lance Johnson that scored Ozzie Guillen.

Royals 1, Twins 0

Steve Farr, a converted reliever, pitched a four-hitter over seven innings for his third win in four starts for Kansas City and Bo Jackson drove in the only run with a sixth-inning single.

Farr (11-7), who has made 51 relief appearances for the Royals, is 3-1 as a starter and was making his first start since July 3. Steve Crawford went one inning and Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his 20th save.

The victory was the Royals' second straight after losing 11 of 12 games. In dropping their fourth straight, the Twins fell four games behind the Royals in their attempt to get out of last place in the American League West.

Indians 4, Brewers 2

Steve Olin, called on to make his first professional start when Bud Black was traded just before game time, held Milwaukee to two runs in seven innings.

Olin (4-4), a submarine-style right-hander, had been strictly a reliever since breaking into pro ball in 1987. He gave up six hits, struck out three, walked one and retired 15 of the last 17 batters he faced. Doug Jones worked two innings for his 36th save.

Black was about to begin his warm-ups when he learned that he had been traded to Toronto for minor league pitcher Mauro Gozzo and two players to be named later.

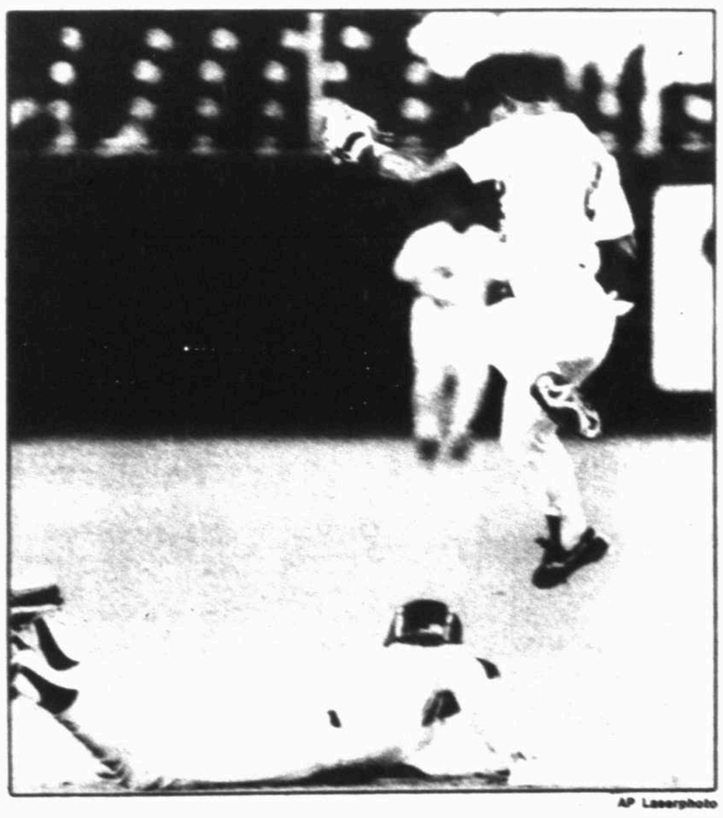

The win was Cleveland's fifth in the last six games. Milwaukee is 0-4 in Cleveland.

Rangers 10, Mariners 4

Rafael Palmeiro tied his career-high with five hits, Pete Incaviglia drove in five runs in the first two innings and Bobby Witt won for the 13th time in his last 14 decisions for Texas.

The Rangers scored four runs in the first inning, two in a double by Incaviglia, and four more in the second, capped by Incaviglia's three-run homer, his 22nd.

Rubin Sierra added four hits, drove in two runs and scored twice as Texas won for the 10th time in the last 12 games. Palmeiro is hitting .3247, third in the American League behind Kansas City's George Brett (.3254) and Oakland's Rickey Henderson (.3251).

Despite ESPN, Texas has long ticket lines

AUSTIN (AP) — No. 20-ranked Colorado is better offensively than last year's 11-1 team, which defeated Texas 27-6, Texas football coach David McWilliams said Monday.

McWilliams talked to reporters as students stood in long lines for tickets to Saturday night's game, which is expected to be a sellout of 77,809 even though it will be televised nationally on ESPN.

Kickoff is at 6:37 p.m., CDT.

Colorado, was upset by No. 21 Illinois, 23-22, at Illinois last week, after defeating Stanford 21-17 and tying No. 7 Tennessee 31-31.

Texas won its first opener since 1985 by beating Penn State 17-13, and is now ranked No. 22.

The Longhorns had this past weekend off, and McWilliams said, "It was nice to have an extra week of preparation from a defensive standpoint."

"Their advantage is they've played three games and now, coming into the fourth game, they pretty much are going to be set, I'm sure," he said. "Whether it evens out or not, I don't know. It's tough to lay off two weeks and play."

But he said Texas "had good practices last week — the concentration was good, intensity was good ... certainly our team is ready to play."

McWilliams rated Colorado better offensively because of the experience gained by junior quarterback Darian Hagan, who sprinted 75 yards on the first series last year to set up Colorado's first touchdown against Texas.

Several Longhorns are nursing injuries, including middle linebacker Brian Jones, tight end Stephen Clark, running back Lemel Foreman and defensive tackle James Patton.

Asked if he hoped Colorado would have to pass more, McWilliams said, "You hope to make them beat you left-handed, if they're going to beat you, which for them is having to throw the football."

Baseball owners ordered to pay $102.5 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball owners were ordered Monday to give players $102.5 million as compensation for damages caused during the 1987 and 1988 seasons by the clubs' conspiracy against free agents.

Arbitrator George Nicolau issued the decision following 3½ years of hearings, but did not detail how much money would go to each player, ruling only on the total amount of damages. Further hearings will decide how the money is divided.

The latest ruling joins the $10.5 million awarded to players last year by arbitrator Thomas Roberts, who heard the first of the three collusion cases and decided damages for the 1986 season. The total of approximately $113 million comes to $4,347,234 per team, and that does not include interest, which will total tens of millions of dollars.

Chuck O'Connor, head of management's Player Relations Committee, said the union had asked for approximately $130 million for 1987 and 1988 and that owners had proposed damages of about $85 million.

Nicolau, who heard the second two cases, did not wish to comment on his ruling. He gave copies to the union and the PRC and union head Donald Fehr said he would release the text of the decison on Tuesday, when he will hold a news conference.

"There will be much more to come when the remaining damages are determined, including lost salary for 1989 and 1990, and other damages," Fehr said. "Protest as they will, the owners can no longer downplay either the significance or the effect of their intentionally wrongful conduct."

Fehr said hearings would begin next week in Chicago on additional damages, such as compensation for loss of mobility. He said additional damages could be susbstantial while O'Connor termed these "issues of a relatively minor nature."

The two arbitrators found owners guilty of suppressing salaries through a boycott of free agents following the 1985, 1986 and 1987 seasons. Although teams once again started signing free agents following the 1988 season, the union claims damages are continuing because salaries are lower than they would have been without they boycott.

Clubs already have placed $10.5 million is escrow to cover the Roberts decision. O'Connor said $102.5 million would be added to the account by the end of the year and said the clubs still had approximately $100 million left from television money they had saved in their lockout fund last winter.

"While we disagree with the amount of damages awarded, it is important to remember that the events in question began more than five years ago," O'Connor said. "It is undoubtedly the case that the origins of this dispute are in part related to the clubs' efforts to grapple with the serious economic issues facing the game."

Tom Reich, who represents Jack Clark, said he thought teams would be required to pay $10 million each by the time the litigation is finished.

"It will probably be in the neighborhood of $300 million, including all of the damages and interest," Reich said. "That in my mind is not much more than half of what I felt the actual damages to players were."

Richard Moss, an agent who represents collusion victims Andre Dawson and Jack Morris, complained of the time it is taking for players to get the damages.

"So far the only people who have seen any money are the lawyers and the arbitrators," he said.

on 10 carries in the Mustangs' 50-22 romp over Ira last Friday. The halfback also caught one pass for five yards and returned two kickoffs for 44 yards.

Adams is a newcomer to high school football. Basketball was his sport at Hobbs, N.M., where he may have been in line to see significant varsity action under legendary coach Ralph Tasker if his family hadn't moved to Midland this summer.

"When we moved to Midland and I started going to school here (Midland Christian), you play all the sports," Adams said.

Adams isn't a total novice on the gridiron. He played in junior high until he broke his arm as an eighth-grader, and probably didn't need any more motivation to stick to basketball in cage-crazy Hobbs.

Jackson said Adams played his best to date against Ira, a team saddled with injuries and disciplinary problems. Still, the Bulldogs had some quality athletes on the field Friday.

Mustang quarterback Andy Bayley was surprised at the final score.

"We were expecting a tough game," Bayley said. "I was really surprised that we scored on the second play of the game."

Running back Patrick McAdams scored on a 26-yard sweep 36 seconds after the opening kickoff. Bayley set up the score by completing an 18-yard strike to end Alan Weaver on the Mustangs' first play from scrimmage that pushed MCS into Ira territory.

Bayley completed four-of-seven passes for 109 yards and two touchdowns, despite sitting much of the second half as Jackson used backups Andy Awtry and Kyle Jackson for most of the half.

McAdams, who has rushed for more than 2,000 yards in his high school career, finished with a team-high 115 yards and one score on only 11 carries. The junior also converted a safety-valve pass from Bayley into a 42-yard touchdown romp.

HERE AND THERE: Rankin and its District 8-A rivals have one less district game after Tornillo decided it was suspending its football program for at least the season because of a lack of interest.

Names like Billy Bob, Joe Don and Bobby Joe are part of Texas lore. But one would be hard-pressed to equal Stanton's starting backfield in the Buffs' unintentional effort to live up to regional stereotypes. The Buffs start John Eric Wyckoff at quarterback, John Paul Barry at tailback, Garry Don Thompson at fullback, and Jim Bob Kelly at wingback.

Jerry Glanville told to drop comments

PITTSBURGH (AP) — NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue has warned Atlanta Falcons coach Jerry Glanville that he will be fined if he continues criticizing opposing coaches.

Glanville, the former Houston coach, called Oilers coach Jack Pardee "a total jerk" after the Falcons' 47-27 victory over Houston on Sept. 9. He also made a flippant remark to a group of Texas sports writers after declining to answer their questions.

Dollar falls

LONDON (AP) — The dollar fell against major currencies in European trading today and gold prices rose.

Currency dealers in Frankfurt, West Germany, said the dollar was being undermined by market expectations that the U.S. Federal Reserve Board would lower interest rates soon to try to revive the economy.

Late dollar rates: 1.5575 German marks, 1.2865 Swiss francs, 5.2160 French francs, 1.7550 Dutch guilders, 1,165.00 Italian lire and 1.1593 Canadian dollars.

Gold rose in London to a late bid of $389.75 a troy ounce from $385.25 late Friday. In Zurich, the metal rose to a closing bid of $389 from $385 late Friday. Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold rose $1.41 to close at a bid of $387.37.

Justin gets boot

WASHINGTON — Choctaw Securities LP, an investment group led by the Kansas City executive Perry H. Sutherland and the New York investor Barry S. Rosenstein, has offered to acquire Justin Industries for $18 a share, or $153 million.

An earlier bid by Choctaw of $18.50 a share was rejected in March by company, which is based in Fort Worth.

Choctaw's new proposal was contained in a letter dated last Friday to each member of Justin's board.

T-bills fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell in Monday's auction to their lowest level in six weeks.

The Treasury Department sold $9.2 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 7.39 percent, down from 7.41 percent last week. Another $9.2 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 7.30 percent, down from 7.34 percent last week.

Midland cost of living jumps 1 percent

Courtesy ClayDesta National Bank

■ A 10 percent jump in transportation costs fueled a 1 percent rise in Midland's cost of living, ClayDesta National Bank says.

Staff Report

A surge in transportation costs fueled a 1 percent jump in Midland's cost of living, according to a survey released by ClayDesta National Bank.

The survey is the first indication of the impact sharply higher oil prices have had on the Midland economy since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Annualized, this month's rate of inflation would be 11.8 percent. In the past year, Midland's cost of living has risen 2.9 percent, with a larger 3.1 percent rise seen in the past six months.

Odessa's cost of living rose 1.5 percent, the 12th consecutive increase for that city.

In the Tall City, transportation costs leaped 10.3 percent in August, caused by a second month of higher gasoline prices.

Food away from home had the sharpest decrease, falling 0.7 percent in August after two months of increases. Higher prices for main dishes made with beef or fish were offset by lower prices for dishes prepared with chicken.

Sharply higher electric bills helped increase utility bills 3.3 percent in August. A second month of lower gas bills — which fell 1 percent last month — was offset by a 9.9 percent rise in electric bills. Water rates remained stable a fifth month.

After four months of increases, grocery prices recorded a 0.4 percent drop in August. Higher prices for alcoholic beverages were offset by lower prices for meat, produce and shelf items.

Buying clothes at Midland stores was more expensive in August, by 2 percent. A second month of lower prices tags for women's apparel was offset by higher prices for men's wear and children's clothing.

Health care costs reversed their July decline and rose 0.9 percent. Higher costs across the board — a doctor's care, dental care, non-prescription medicine and hospital costs — were responsible.

A fourth month of higher rents was responsible for higher housing costs as Midland housing costs rose 0.3 percent in August.

Regulators agree on bank capitalization

By Dave Skidmore

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators on Monday resolved a contentious dispute on how much capital banks must hold as a cushion against losses, averting a potentially chaotic standoff over the basic soundness standard for financial institutions.

Comptroller of the Currency Robert L. Clarke said his office would adopt rules favored by two other agencies, the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Meanwhile, the Office of Thrift Supervision, which regulates savings and loans, announced it would tighten its rules to conform with the commercial bank guidelines.

Clarke had pushed for a slightly more lenient standard. But, if he had stuck to his position, the nation's banks would have faced the confusing prospect of having different standards apply to different institutions, depending on which agency served as primary regulator.

The comptroller oversees about 4,000 nationally chartered banks, including the nation's largest institutions, while the FDIC supervises about 8,000 state-chartered banks.

The Federal Reserve regulates some of the state and federal banks, already overseen by the other two agencies, if the institutions are members of its system.

In announcing the shift, Clarke cited "some concern about possible confusion between our rule and the ... (other) guideline."

Inventory, sales report raises job concerns

By John D. McClain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business inventories jumped 0.7 percent in July, the biggest pileup in a year, while sales slumped 0.5 percent, the government said Monday, causing some apprehension over the amount of goods held on shelves and back lots.

Although the level of inventories is not recessionary, Robert Brusca, chief financial economist at Nikko Securities Co. International Inc. in New York, said surging stockpiles are a danger sign.

"When inventories rise faster than sales, particularly when sales are in a lagging mode, it's reasonable to assume you're going to see cutbacks in manufacturing output," he said. That could result in growing unemployment.

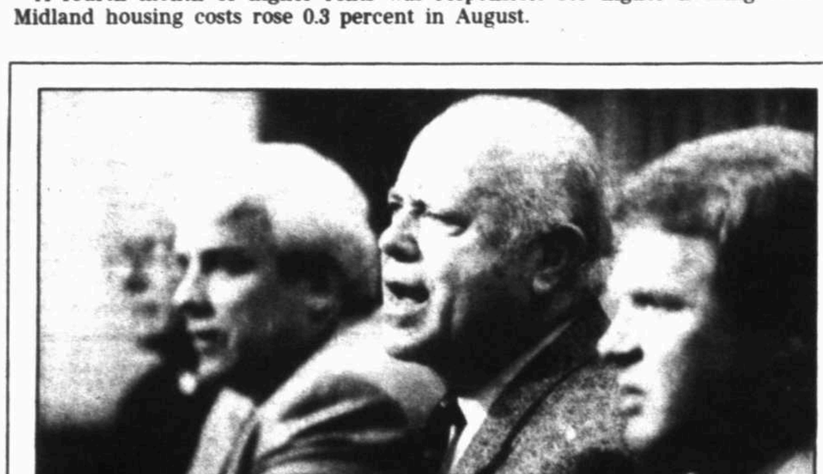

The Commerce Department said inventories in July totaled a seasonally adjusted $801.9 billion, up from $796.5 billion in June. It was the biggest increase since a 0.8 percent gain in July 1989.

The June backlog had declined a revised 0.5 percent from the previous month, rather than the 0.4 percent originally reported.

Sales, meanwhile, dropped to a seasonally adjusted $539.5 billion, down from $542.4 billion a month earlier. The June sales also were revised to a weaker 0.6 percent gain, rather than the 1.0 percent advance first reported.

Cynthia Latta, an economist with DRI/McGraw-Hill in Lexington, Mass., noted that sales rose only on the retail level in July but pointed out that retail sales deteriorated in August, falling 0.6 percent, according to a Commerce Department report last week.

And while retail sales increased 0.4 percent in July, the gain was less than half of the 1.1 percent jump the previous month. Retail sales represent about half of all consumer spending which itself accounts for two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.

GM, union negotiate tentative agreement

By Frederick Standish

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers reached tentative agreement early Monday on a new three-year contract covering 300,000 workers in 29 states.

"I'm just delighted we got this contract settled without a disruption," UAW President Owen Bieber said in announcing the agreement, reached after a 41-hour bargaining session between the union and the world's No. 1 automaker.

Details of the agreement were withheld until they could be outlined at a meeting in suburban Detroit of the union's 300-member GM bargaining council, made up of local union presidents and bargaining committee chairmen.

However, Bieber said at a news conference before dawn that he was "very, very satisfied" with the agreement on pensions, and GM vice president Alfred Warren said the contract gives the company latitude to reduce its work force.

Banks must deposit T-bill directs promptly

By Bill Doyle

Q. In reply to a reader who asked for details about purchasing U.S. Treasury bills, notes and bonds through the "Treasury Direct" system, you wrote the following:

"Payment of interest, discounts and proceeds for the face amount of matured Treasury securities automatically go into the (local) bank account you designate when you open your Treasury Direct account. The money is sent by wire the very day it is due, making it available to you immediately."

Doyle

When I buy a T bill at the Monday auction, the discount is determined that day. Then, my T bill is issued three days later — on Thursday — and the amount of my discount is wired to my bank that day.

From that point on, anything can happen, depending on how your bank handles things. I have had T bill discounts credited to my account as late as the following Tuesday. After much screaming, I now can count on having that money in my account by Friday.

Hadn't you better qualify your statement quoted above?

A. We can clear this up with another statement, taken directly from Federal Reserve literature on this subject.

It reads: "According to the regulations, depository institutions receiving Treasury Direct payments must credit their customer's account no later than the specified payment date. If the institution (meaning your bank) or its (district) Federal Reserve bank is closed, crediting must be on the next business day."

This should leave no doubt that your bank is violating the regulations. Your Treasury Direct payments should be deposited in your bank account the very day they are due and be available for withdrawal. Also, if the bank account into which the Treasury Direct payments go is an interest-paying account, interest should be paid from the date of each deposit.

This time, rather than "screaming" at the bank, be calm but firm in insisting that Treasury Direct payments be credited to your account promptly and correctly. And, if you have lost any interest as a result of the bank's previous mishandling of your account, demand that money.

Q. I phoned the district Federal Reserve bank to complain that my local bank does not credit my Treasury Direct payments to my account on the due dates. The man I spoke to said that, effective Sept. 1, banks have two business days to credit local checks and five business days to credit out-of-town checks.

I tried to tell him he wasn't answering my query, but he was insistent. Can you help?

A. You spoke to the wrong person at the Fed. Sounds as if he is new on the job or had a liquid lunch. He was talking about the most recent provisions of the Expedited Funds Availability Act and recited most of the correct rules, which prevent banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions from putting long "holds" on checks. One other rule is that money deposited in the form of government checks, certified checks and cashiers' checks must be available to depos-

High oil prices sharpen Spain's economic slide

MADRID, Spain — Spain has chosen the Persian Gulf crisis as the occasion to acknowledge the end of a four-year economic boom, but many business executives and labor leaders say recent government policy is more to blame than the sudden jump in oil prices.

Depending on imported oil for 54 percent of its energy, Spain expects that higher fuel prices will feed its inflation rate and yawning trade deficit.

But Mario Conde, a leading banker, said recently: "I think it is inadmissible to say that the gulf crisis has required a tough adjustment of the Spanish economy. It would be a totally unreasonable attitude because our real problems are internal."

Nonetheless, the Socialist government of Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez has pointed to the unexpected variable of the gulf crisis to justify a package of measures that includes tighter credit, spending cutbacks and a squeeze on both wages and profits.

"We are all poorer than before the crisis," the Economy Minister, Carlos Solchaga, said in a message aimed at both business and labor. "For this reason, we must all make a special effort because those who are irresponsible will pay for it with bankruptcies and higher unemployment."

Among the consequences of the crisis, the government has warned, will be an economic growth rate of 3.5 percent this year, instead of a projected 4 percent, and 2.5 percent in 1991 instead of an expected 3.6 percent — in both cases far below the 1986-89 average of near 5 percent.

At the same time, the government warns, even if the price of oil settles at around $25 a barrel, inflation in 1990 and 1991 will exceed last year's 6.8 percent, while the current account balance-of-payments deficit will reach $20 billion this year and $26 billion in 1991, more than twice the level that Spanish economists believe is safe.

Both business and labor have quickly read the signs.

The Madrid stock market index has fallen by 18 percent since Aug. 1. Companies controlled by the Kuwait Investment Office, which has major stakes in Spanish industry, have led the slide.

This is turn prompted the Banco Espanol de Credito, which is headed by Conde, to postpone a much-trumpeted $850 million stock offering in its industrial holding company, Industrial y Financiera de Banesto SA. "We're not going to sell cheaply," one bank director said.

Nicolas Redondo, leader of the General Workers' Union, has also described the latest belt-tightening as a threat to workers.

"The gulf crisis is merely a bad excuse to apply the same medicine of the past eight years and to introduce a new adjustment plan," he said.

While the private sector and trade unions agree on placing the blame, their reasoning is different.

Business executives say the government's budget deficit and uncontrolled consumer spending are at fault; labor leaders say the government has favored big business to the detriment of ordinary Spaniards.

In reality, such was the pace of economic growth in the late 1980s that, even with unemployment still affecting 15 percent of the work force, living standards as a whole have risen steadily since Spain joined the European Community in 1986.

Not only has foreign capital poured into the country in the form of direct industrial investment, acquisition of shares on the stock market and development funds from the European Community, but the government has spent heavily, trying to improve the infrastructure of highways and railroads.

Aware that stubborn inflation and rocketing imports were both signs of an overheated economy, on at least three occasions over the last 18 months the government tried to slow consumer spending by tightening credit. When the gulf crisis struck, though, inflation and imports were still too high.

Aggravating Spain's balance-of-payments problems, earnings from the crucial tourist industry fell last year and have slumped further this summer.

Tourism should still bring in around $16 billion this year, but the number of visitors fell by 750,000 in the first six months of 1990 compared with the same period of 1989.

The government is partly responsible because, by maintaining high interest rates to attract foreign capital, it strengthened the peseta to the point that Spain no longer offers cheap vacations. Yet in terms of accommodations, shops, restaurants and night life, the tourist industry is still more geared to package tours than to affluent and demanding visitors.

The gulf crisis in turn exposed the vulnerability of Spain's energy policy, which was built around the premise that oil prices would remain low.

Midland Reporter-Telegram STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numberical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key(*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key(*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

Analysis

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.22 to 2,567.33.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 9 to 8 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 673 up, 765 down and 503 unchanged.

Crude-oil futures for October delivery climbed about $1 a barrel today, crossing $33 a barrel in early trading before settling back a bit.

Analysts said that intensified investors' worries about inflation and the showdown in the Persian Gulf since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

More evidence of the inflationary consequences of rising oil prices is expected on Tuesday, when the government reports on the consumer price index for August.

Analysts estimate that the CPI will post an increase of 0.8 percent to 1 percent, for its biggest monthly increase since January.

With energy costs continuing to advance, there isn't much hope at present for any better news on inflation over at least the next month or two.

Energy stocks were steady to slightly higher. Atlantic Richfield gained 1 to 140⅞; Amoco rose ⅜ to 57⅝; Chevron gained ¼ to 76⅛, while Exxon was down ½ at 50⅞.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .10 to 174.05. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .47 at 320.98.

Volume on the Big Board came to 77.13 million shares with two hours to go.

TALKS: GM, UAW both satisfied

(From 4C)

The Detroit News reported Monday that the contract includes a 3 percent raise the first year, 3 percent lump sum payments the next two and retention of a requirement that GM hire one worker for every two who quit, retire or die.

There had been speculation that GM would push hard to remove or alter the 1-for-2 policy and that the automaker wants to cut tens of thousands of hourly jobs and close up to four assembly plants to better compete with the Japanese.

The Big Three automakers lost about 6 percentage points in U.S. market share during the 1980s, while the Japanese gained the same amount.

If approved by the UAW council, the contract would be sent to the rank and file for ratification, a process expected to be completed by the end of the month.

UAW contracts with Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. also ran out at the same time, but the union put talks with Ford and Chrysler on hold so that it could concentrate on GM and use that pact as a model for the other automakers.

Bieber and Warren said the new agreement could be tailored to Ford and Chrysler.

The union's contracts with the Big Three automakers cover more than 450,000 active workers. This year was the first time in 11 years that UAW contracts with each of the Big Three ran out at the same time.

The last time the UAW struck GM was in 1984. That strike lasted a week and ultimately involved about 25 GM facilities nationwide.

Meanwhile, talks continued in Toronto between the Canadian Auto Workers union and Ford of Canada. The CAW's 12,800 members at Ford of Canada struck early Saturday after talks broke off.

Negotiations were held later Saturday and resumed Sunday. No plants involved operate on weekends so any strike impact won't be felt until today; if the strike continued, U.S. Ford plants that use parts made in Canada would be affected.

Bieber, whose union's 1.5-million membership dropped by a third largely because of the shrinking U.S. auto industry, said he expected the tentative agreement would get a warm reception by the bargaining council. "Suffice it to say at this point they will be pleased with what we have to say," he said.

Warren said the talks were "some of the most difficult bargaining" ever between GM and the union. But Warren and Bieber were upbeat about the prospects for changing labor relations between the company and union.

"We feel that the spirit we developed during the negotiations, the relationship we built with the new leadership of the United Automobile Workers bodes well for General Motors, for the customer, the marketplace and the United Automobile Workers," Warren said.

Iacocca blames self for Chrysler's woes

Iacocca

"I'm confessing my sins here," Iacocca said in an interview published Monday in The Wall Street Journal.

Iacocca, who turns 66 next month, is famous for salvaging Chrysler from near-bankruptcy at the end of the 1970s in what became a now-legendary comeback.

But under Iacocca, Chrysler has weakened again, hurt by vigorous competition particularly from imports.

Chrysler's sales have dropped nearly 17 percent this year compared with an industrywide decline of 5 percent.

By some estimates, Chrysler will conclude 1990 as the fifth biggest seller of vehicles in the United States, behind Japan's Honda Motor Co. and Toyota Motor Corp., as well as its historical U.S. rivals, General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

During the interview in his Highland Park, Mich., headquarters, Iacocca said he was determined to lead Chrysler through a second comeback.

His major failing, he said, was trying to diversify Chrysler by expanding into the aerospace and defense businesses, a strategy that GM and Ford also undertook.

He said Chrysler's effort led to the formation of a holding company that added a layer of bureaucracy and diverted the company from its main business of producing new vehicles.

Chrysler is now shedding its non-auto businesses to refocus on cars, but its current models are still largely derived from the 10-year-old K-car.

"If I made a mistake it was following other companies, and maybe those were grandiose schemes, Iacocca said. "We didn't need a holding company. That's what made us top-heavy."

To shore up its finances, Chrysler has undertaken a large-scale cost reduction program, including the closing of one third of its assembly plants in the past three years. Iacocca has ordered $2.5 billion in reductions to be made by the middle of next year.

Gulf crisis attracts geology students

By Elizabeth M. Fowler
N.Y. Times News Service

Small liberal arts colleges like Wooster, in Wooster, Ohio, report growing student interest in geology as a major, as do engineering schools like the Colorado School of Mines.

This might be an obvious outcome of the Persian Gulf crisis, but the news comes with a twist because there already is a shortage of geologists.

Many geologists work for small environmental companies and local and federal governments instead of for oil companies. Shortages are certain to increase as the oil industry's need for geologists, especially those with master's degrees, grows.

Samuel Root, professor of geology at Wooster, said there is increased interest by students in the environment and such problems as water contamination and waste handling, both of which require geologists' skills.

"There is a tremendous increase in the numbers of geologists working on cleanups," he said. "Many recent grads work with small environmental companies. Now, with the oil situation, we will need even more."

He said that when he joined the Wooster faculty in 1983 there were 20 to 25 geology majors. "That dropped to seven after a couple of years and now it has almost doubled, to 13, this year," he said. The liberal arts college has 1,800 students.

Today's geology majors, Root stressed, "need a lot more chemistry, several courses in computer science as well as a course in the flow of fluids."

Professors of geology also need to take more courses, he said, especially refresher courses, which are often given by professional associations.

"I now teach a hydro geology course," he said, "Next week I am going to a three-day program in Sarasota, Fla., given by the National Water Well Association on the subject of contaminated waters and how to clean them up. I will work the material into my course.

"With the gulf crisis and higher oil prices, I think we are looking at a long-term need for more geologists. We will need more research and development in other energy areas — coal production, for example."

BANKS: Standoff avoided

for measuring a financial institution's soundness. The more capital a bank has, the more losses it can absorb without failing and requiring money from the federal deposit insurance fund.

All of the agencies had months ago agreed on a common risk-based capital standard, which offers banks a break for holding low-risk investments such as home mortgages and government securities. That standard will be 7.25 percent of assets after this year and 8 percent after 1992.

However, they have been feuding over the so-called "leverage ratio" which represents the smallest amount of capital a bank may hold no matter how safe its investments.

FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman had been pushing for a 4.5 percent minimum, while Clarke wanted 3 percent. Seidman argued that Clarke's proposal would lower capital for 90 percent of the nations banks and would permit the industry's capital to shrink by $8 billion.

He said that was the wrong move in the wake of the savings and loan crisis. One of the causes of that debacle was lax standards which allowed S&L owners to operate their institutions with little of their own money at risk.

DOYLE: T-bills direct

itors by 9 a.m. the next business day.

But that has nothing to do with payments of interest, discounts and principal from U.S. Treasury securities in your Treasury Direct account. No checks are issued for those payments, which are made electronically by automated clearinghouse to your bank.

Q. I have Treasury bills, notes and bonds in my Treasury Direct account. I receive a statement of account when I purchase a Treasury security, when a security in my account matures and when I roll over a matured security to purchase a new one. In the latter case, the statement also shows the discount on the new security.

However, I do not receive a statement of account when a semiannual interest payment is made on a note or bond in my account. Shouldn't I get a statement to show each interest payment?

A. Nope. I thought you did and erred in saying as much in previous columns. However, it turns out that a Treasury Direct statement account is issued only when there is a change in the account. An interest payment does not change the holdings in your Treasury Direct account. That payment goes to your local bank account.

This lack of notification of note and bond interest payments has become a major cause for criticism of Treasury Direct. It means that investors have to do their own bookkeeping on exactly how much and when payments go their local bank accounts from Treasury Direct.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure other women have had this problem, but I don't happen to know any. I do not have any gray hair in my head, and I am 80 years old.

Van Buren

It wouldn't be a problem except for the fact that nobody believes me. I mention it only when I am asked, but when I tell people I have never dyed my hair, they think I'm lying.

I don't have a regular hairdresser and I go to the beauty parlor only once a year for a permanent. Abby, how can I prove that I am not a liar? — NO LIAR

DEAR NO LIAR: Don't waste your energy trying to prove you are not a liar. The burden of proof is on the accuser.

Whether one's hair turns gray or not is primarily a matter of genetics. Most Latins, American Indians and some strains of Irish do not "gray" until old age — and some never do.

At one point during the Reagan years, in order to confirm whether or not Ronald Reagan dyed his hair, a reporter for one of those gossipy newspapers (sold primarily in supermarkets) managed to acquire some of Mr. Reagan's hair from the barbershop following a haircut. The reporter took the hair clippings to a laboratory to be analyzed. The results? Not a trace of hair coloring could be found! To this day, however, there are those who still insist that Ronald Reagan dyed his hair.

So dear lady, in conclusion, please reread paragraph No. 1 of my reply, and have a good day!

DEAR ABBY: Many years ago — but please don't ask me how many — you printed a wonderful piece about the benefits of hugging. I have carried it in my wallet, but it's falling apart.

Will you please print it again? If you do, I'm going to have it laminated. Keep up the good work, Abby. I love you. — VINCENT J. FARINA, ORMAND BEACH, FLA.

DEAR VINCENT: I love you, too. And here it is:

HUGGING — THE PERFECT CURE FOR WHAT AILS YOU

No movable parts
No batteries to wear out
No periodic checkups
Low energy consumption
High energy yield
Inflation-proof
No monthly payments
No insurance requirements
Theft-proof
Non-taxable
Non-polluting
And, of course, fully returnable.
Hugging is healthy
It relieves tension
Combats depression
Reduces stress
Improves blood circulation
It's invigorating
It's rejuvenating
It elevates self-esteem
It generates goodwill
It has no unpleasant side effects

'Microwaveable' meals mixed

By Linda Anderson

It's no secret that "healthy eating" and "good nutrition" are becoming the buzzwords of food manufacturing circles. Companies seem to be rushing to fill their allotted supermarket space with "lite" or "low-fat, -calorie, -salt or -cholesterol" foods. The fact that older, more established products (such as cereals, frozen dinners and even snack chips) are being cleaned up for today's healthier eating habits (coconut oil, white flour and whole eggs are out; safflower, olive and peanut oils, whole grains and egg whites are in) isn't that surprising, but the fact that new products now have their "lite" versions, is.

Anderson

Lunch Buckets aren't that old. These pre-measured, pre-packaged, microwaveable meals have only been in the supermarkets for a couple of years. But now, Lunch Buckets have been joined by Light Balance Lunch Buckets, a new line of low-fat, low-cholesterol, pre-measured, pre-packaged, microwaveable meals. In fact, this new product is so new that its manufacturer, The Dial Corporation, sent a six-bucket case of Light Balance to the office so we could check it out for taste, price and advertising accuracy.

Paul J. Lustig, executive vice president and general manager of Dial Foods (is this the same company that makes Dial soap? I shudder to think) is quoted in the accompanying press release as saying: "The great thing about Light Balance is that they don't taste low in fat, cholesterol or calories, or sodium controlled. They taste just like regualr, upscale, delicious meals."

Sounded like a challenge to me.

Light Balance comes in six flavors: Beef Americana, Chicken Cacciatore, Chicken Fiesta, Mushroom Stroganoff, Beef and Pasta Bordeaux, and Pasta and Garden Vegetables. Suggested retail price, as listed in the press release, is $1.69 for each 8.25 ounce meal.

Advertising in the press release (which gets even more flowery than label advertising — I guess because they have more space to write on) goes like this: "It took two years of experiments by food scientists at Dial's Scottsdale, Ariz., laboratories to develop the premier formulas of the six items. Special pastas without egg yolk were developed to control cholesterol. Selected cuts of meat low in fat and cholesterol were incorporated into the formulas. Sauces seaoned with herbs and spices were developed to control sodium levels. And upscale vegetables like broccoli, sliced mushrooms and black olives were added to enhance flavors.

"'With Light Balance, we're moving shelf-stable microwave meals into the next century,' said Lustig. 'These are items of the future. Designing nutritionally well-balanced items that taste exceptionally upscale — that's where the whole food industry is headed. In the next 10 years, there will be a series of copycat items like Light Balance. But we're proud to be the first major entry in the "nutritionally balanced" shelf-stable microwave category. And we'll insure we remain the quality leader.'"

Well, with a recommendation like that, who could resist trying these little gems? First, though, the young taste-testers had to make sure the Light Balance meals they were going to try were the ones without peas, but once we finally got that settled, the taste-test was easy to prepare — the little buckets heat up nicely in the microwave, in two minutes or less (although the directions said to heat them for 75 seconds, I discovered that in my microwave oven, a minute and 15 seconds wasn't long enough).

The tasting itself had mixed results. I liked the Chicken Fiesta OK, the youngest taste-tester said "Yuck!" to the Pasta and Beef Bordeaux, the middle taste-tester loved the Pasta and Garden Vegetables and the Beef and Pasta Bordeaux (even though the younger one hated it), and the oldest taster hated the Mushroom Stroganoff so much she wouldn't even let her dog finish it up.

The meals are quick, and they are easy. But "regular, upscale, delicious meals" they aren't. What they actually taste like is other microwaveable meals. They may be more nutritionally sound than some of the other convenience foods found in the supermarket, but they'll never win any recipe contests.

What doesn't show doesn't matter

By Erma Bombeck

I hate to buy things that don't show. OK, so I admit it. I'm a snob, but you can't get respect out of a root canal or new underwear.

Bombeck

You could fork out a couple of big bills and have a septic tank so clean you could cook in it, but does anyone care? Plant a few geraniums in the side yard by the garbage can and people go crazy.

My whole house is flash and show. You walk into it and the first thing that hits you is the immaculate order of things. All the drawers are closed. There is a feeling of neatness. You know without asking that the people who live here have clean fingernails and pay their paper boy on time with cash.

Behind a closed door under the sink is a cookie sheet born the year "The Wizard of Oz" was shown for the first time. Inside the bottom drawer are dish towels so dingy that if a child played with them, you'd make him put them down because you "don't know where they've been."

Maybe if there were more of an incentive, we would pay attention to non-visibles. Perhaps a sign by the front door that reads, "This house has just had a termite inspection and has been declared clean."

I learned a long time ago not to waste my time on things that could not be seen. I never sewed up a pocket in a winter coat, never hemmed a slip that you could turn over at the waistband, never bought a water heater until the basement flooded, never replaced the tiles behind the stove, never threw away the scissors with half the tip broken off.

All you people out there who paint the inside of closets — and you all know who you are — listen to me. It's like having the light burn out in the refrigerator. Who knows when the door is shut?

Color's impact on mood swings researched again

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — The days of "hot" red and "cool" blue may be numbered. There's new evidence that old thinking on the moods colors can create may not hold true.

A recent Oregon State University study determined that, for short periods at least, the color of a space has little or no effect on mood or performance.

The study, conducted in one-hour segments, could have implications for areas such as waiting rooms and fast food restaurants, says LoErna Simpson, an assistant professor.

"Basically, in a short-term environment, you can go with most any color," says Simpson, adding that even strong colors seem to cause no mood or performance changes.

PERSIAN GULF CRISIS

Couple sending care packages to 'our children'

By Heidi Nolte Brown

MANASSAS, Va. (AP) — Like many parents with college-age youngsters, David and Jean Heard like to send care packages when their children are away from home.

But for the Heard children, the classroom is the Persian Gulf and their instruction could mean the difference between life and death.

Since President Bush ordered American troops to the Middle East following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, three of the Heards' 13 sons and daughters have been caught up in the deployment.

One son is a Marine in Saudi Arabia. Another, a sailor, is aboard the carrier Independence in the Persian Gulf. A daughter and her husband, both in the military reserves, remain in the United States but believe they'll be sent to the Middle East.

Mrs. Heard said she could not sit idle while she waited for news from abroad. So she and her husband, a retired Marine, started "Operation Something From Home."

Their mission is to see that every serviceman and woman involved in Operation Desert Shield gets something from home.

"We have read over the years how military personnel never get a letter, never get anything," Mrs. Heard said. "My God, these are our children. They're all our sons and daughters. And the least we can do is to get something to them."

What began from humble beginnings — a few dollars and a couple of packages a week — has grown into a nationwide effort, all from the basement of the Heards' Manassas home. Boxes are everywhere, brimming with articles from chewing gum and crackers to toilet tissue and paperback novels.

Nearly a dozen volunteers shuttle back and forth. Some operate the telephone, others are assigned as "shoppers" who buy items to ship to the armed forces.

Donations are pouring in, as are letters of support. A real estate company in the Virgin Islands sent a $50 check. An envelope from an anonymous sender arrived last week with a $100 bill tucked inside.

Aaron Clark, a fourth-grader from Mount Vernon, Ill., created his own care package with a small box of cigars, a roll of candy and a paperback novel. He sent it to the Heards with hopes that they would forward it to the troops.

Other packages include razors, lip balm, liquid soap, playing cards, wooden dominoes and letters from school children.

All items being sent have been tested and shown to be desert-proof: Mrs. Heard puts the items in the back window of her car for two days. If they don't melt, they're included.

The packages aren't sent to individuals by name, but are sent to APO and FPO boxes that correspond with those of soldiers in the Persian Gulf region.

The packs are getting through. David Heard, 55, got a thank you letter from a soldier of the 82nd Airborne Division, who sent a $1 contribution.

"The care package service is going to be a real morale booster," wrote another soldier in Saudi Arabia. "We are all over here for our country. We will die for our country. And if I die, I'll be proud within myself that I died for my country."

The letters they get from the recipients of the packages are reward enough for those involved in Operation Something From Home.

"That's worth 20 hours a day, seven days a week," Mrs. Heard said. "When I get tired or discouraged, I read those letters and I'm no longer tired. I only wish there were 40 hours in a day."

In a way, the effort is helping heal some old hurts left by the Vietnam War, she said. The homespun packages are a lifeline for those deployed to the Persian Gulf and a way to show them that they are being supported back home.

"Do you remember when our people came back from Vietnam?" Mrs. Heard asked. "It was no longer an honor to wear a uniform. They were spit at and rotten vegetables were thrown at them.

"I am ashamed that I was one of those Americans who didn't stand up and do anything," she said. "I was a coward and I did nothing. This country in 30 years has suffered so much. There just didn't seem to be any unity. And now if you read these letters...

"God Bless America — warts and all," Mrs. Heard said.

Sleep doesn't come easy as unit heads for Saudi Arabia

EDITOR'S NOTE: The 265th Quartermaster Detachment of the South Carolina National Guard is one of the reserve units called up for duty in Saudi Arabia. National Writer Fred Bayles followed the 14 Guardsmen as they prepared for deployment overseas.

By Fred Bayles

ABOARD THE SANDBOX EXPRESS (AP) — "Welcome aboard, gentlemen," said the Air Force loadmaster. "You'll be flying Freedom Bird to the world's largest beach without water."

The joke didn't register with the men of the 265th Quartermaster Detachment. After a night of delays they just wanted to get on the C-141 and sleep the expected 19 hours it would take to fly from Georgia to Saudi Arabia.

But sleep would not be easy to come by this night for the South Carolina National Guard unit.

The hold of the big cargo plane was packed. There was a scant two feet between the unit's four pickup trucks and the row of red web seats along the side of the plane.

The 14 men couldn't stretch their legs. They couldn't lie down. They couldn't read in the dim gloom of the cargo hold. And they couldn't stay warm.

As the plane climbed to 37,000 feet, the temperature in the hold dropped to the low 60s. The men rolled down the sleeves of their desert uniforms, buttoned up their collars and shivered through the long night.

"The only way you can do it is stand up for a while to get warm and then hope you can fall asleep," said Sgt. Hullie Cohen, who served in the Air Force before joining the Guard.

The water purification unit from Allendale, S.C., deployed for Saudi Arabia late last Friday after 16 days of training at Fort Stewart, Ga., boarded the plane just before midnight. Their M-16s were on their shoulders and they carried white plastic bags with water, rations, and a toiletry bag containing toothbrush, toothpaste, razors, shaving cream, sunscreen, bug spray, skin conditioner, lip balm, eye drops and deodorant.

But the next nine hours were no vacation.

The plane, the name "Sandbox Express," stenciled on its side, looked huge on the floodlit runway. But once aboard, space was a premium.

AP Laserphoto

The web seats dug into the men as they tried to get comfortable. Some used their soft-sided canteens as pillows. Conversation was impossible. The engines' roar was hardly muted by the yellow foam plugs sticking out of each man's ears.

Riding in the windowless hold was like cruising through the ocean in the belly of a whale.

The plane stopped at Torrejon Air Base near Madrid for fuel and a fresh crew, giving the 265th three hours to wash up in the crowded bathroom, send postcards home and watch a Clint Eastwood movie on a big screen television set up in a hanger.

Spc. Mark Rooker, 20, the youngest member of the unit, spent his time staring at the scenery. Rooker hasn't traveled much, and he was fascinated by the flat landscape.

"I'd like to come back here someday," he said.

Back on the plane, the men ate an Air Force box lunch of ham and cheese sandwiches and packaged Spanish pastries. Some visited the cockpit crew as the plane passed from Spanish to French air controllers over the Mediterranean.

Seven hours later, the plane rolled to a stop at a Saudi airport. It was 3 a.m. local time. The men scrambled down the ladder in full combat gear, carrying the South Carolina state flag. But the only one to greet them was a bored sergeant who led them past giant cargo planes and a road busy with truck traffic.

The 265th watched, a little stupefied from their long flight.

"OK," said Sgt. Earnest Deloach. "The joke's over. Let's go back home."

Iraqi diplomats expelled from Europe

By Laura King
Associated Press

International pressure on Saddam Hussein intensified Monday as European nations expelled Iraqi diplomats to retaliate for raids on embassies in occupied Kuwait, and support appeared to grow for an air embargo against Iraq.

In a sign of Iraq's growing isolation, the Soviet Union, Baghdad's longtime patron, said Monday it would re-establish diplomatic ties with Saudi Arabia. The Saudis infuriated Iraq by agreeing to become the main staging ground for the deployment of a U.S.-led multinational force after the Aug. 2 Iraqi takeover of Kuwait.

President Bush, meanwhile, said he considered Americans to be "magnificently united" behind the U.S. military effort in the gulf, but he cautioned, "I'm not clear in my own mind on how long this kind of support holds up."

At a news conference Monday, the president said he wanted to bring home the 150,000 U.S. troops in the region "as soon as possible" but did not know when that would be.

Arab radical groups, meanwhile, ended a three-day conference in Amman, Jordan on Monday with calls for suicide attacks on the U.S. forces.

"We have the striking examples of heroes who turned their bodies into bombs that horrified the aggressors and forced them to flee in darkness," Libyan Ibrahim Al-Kharraz told delegates, referring to the 1983 bombing of the Marine barracks in Beirut that killed 241 U.S. servicemen.

In Iraq, there was an outburst of anti-American sentiment in the state-run newspapers Monday, a day after Iraqi television broadcast an eight-minute message from Bush to the Iraqi people. "Shut Up, Mr. Bush," one headline said.

Bush's videotaped message, in which he warned that Saddam was leading Iraq into war, was followed immediately by an Iraqi commentary blasting the speech as "full of lies and contradictions." Hundreds of demonstrators then took to the streets of Baghdad, chanting "Death to Bush!" and "Death to America!"

The Bush administration said the hostile reaction demonstrated the effectiveness of Bush's message. "They obviously felt it was necessary to try to discredit the United States as much as possible," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

At the Kuwait-Saudi border, Iraqi troops unexpectedly opened the only border crossing over the weekend, and about 6,000 Kuwaitis fled their homeland. The flow slowed to a trickle Monday.

Refugees said Iraqi troops were seizing draft-age Kuwaiti men and forcing their wives and daughters to travel to Saudi Arabia without them. U.S. officials expressed concern over Kuwaitis being forced to leave their identity papers with Iraqi border guards.

"The confiscation of identity papers is an ominous sign that these citizens of Kuwait may not be allowed to return to their homes," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said. "If this is part of an Iraqi effort to drive Kuwaitis from their homes, it is unacceptable."

In Brussels, Belgium, the 12 European Community nations announced they would expel Iraqi military attaches and their staffs and restrict travel by other embassy personnel to protest break-ins by Iraqi troops at diplomatic premises in occupied Kuwait last week.

The Iraqi raids on Dutch, French, Belgian and Canadian embassies or diplomatic residences were unanimously condemned Sunday by the U.N. Security Council.

Britain said Monday it was deporting eight diplomats and 23 Iraqi nationals deemed a danger to national security, and West Germany gave walking papers to the Iraqi military attache's staff. Italy said Monday it was expelling 11 Iraqi Embassy employees who worked in the military attache's office.

The EC ministers were also weighing a possible air blockade of Iraq to enforce the U.N. trade embargo against Iraq. British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said there was strong support among the EC ministers for such a blockade.

Hurd said, however, that it was important to obtain backing from the U.N. Security Council for such a step.

Pentagon searching for R&R destinations

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — American troops sweltering in Saudi Arabia might be allowed to take their rest and recreation in foreign cities, on private beaches or on cruise ships, U.S. officials say.

The need for some kind of holiday system has become apparent with the realization that U.S. military forces are likely to be in the desert at least until early 1991 and probably longer.

At the same time, officials concede there are special problems in finding ways to let American soldiers relax in Saudi Arabia, a strictly conservative Moslem society where they cannot mix casually with the local population or the opposite sex.

Moreover, the sheer size of the American force — likely to reach 200,000-plus within a few weeks — could have a severe impact on nearby smaller Persian Gulf states, such as Bahrain and Dubai, where alcohol is available and the lifestyle is somewhat more Westernized.

Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of U.S. forces in Operation Desert Shield, said in an interview that he envisioned an R&R system similar to that provided for American troops in Vietnam two decades ago.

Those soldiers were allowed one week's leave a year, with the round-trip air fare paid to any one of several places, including Hong Kong, Australia, Singapore, Taiwan, Bangkok and Hawaii.

"I'd hope we could have the same sort of platter of selection available here," Schwarzkopf said.

But, he added, "we're still in the process of brainstorming this whole routine. ... We're a long way from having any firm plan for R&R."

One obstacle is that Defense Department regulations permit government-paid leaves only for soldiers in areas where there is hostile fire, he said.

"I know they're looking at that and a lot of other things," he said, noting that another Pentagon regulation already has been changed to give Saudi Arabia-based troops free mail privileges, usually permitted only in combat zones.

A key concern in finding suitable recreation centers was the threat of Iraqi-inspired terrorist attacks, Schwarzkopf said.

"I'm not going to set up another Beirut barracks to get blown up," he said, referring to the 1983 bombing of a U.S. Marine barracks in Beirut in which 241 servicemen were killed. "We're certainly factoring that into it."

If a Vietnam-style R&R is approved, possible sites might include Cairo and vacation spots in Europe, such as the U.S.-owned military ski resort and recreation center in Garmisch, West Germany.

Schwarzkopf said another proposal was for "a couple of cruise ships, where they can relax and dance and have music and air conditioning and swimming pools, and just sort of live it up."

Schwarzkopf said, however, that this was "an idea only," as was another suggestion for a private beach somewhere that could serve American troops without their numbers having too much impact on the local population.

The two most logical R&R sites in the region are Bahrain, just across a 12-mile causeway from Saudi Arabia, and Dubai, the major port of the United Arab Emirates near the southeastern end of the Persian Gulf.

Both are accustomed to U.S. Navy personnel, in relatively small numbers and civilian clothes. But they could have difficulty coping with an influx of military people looking for fun.

Schwarzkopf said there had been "no agreements ... no formal contacts" with those countries. But he said he could imagine "some entrepreneurial Bahrainis who wouldn't mind setting up a hotel at some location that wouldn't interfere with Bahraini life."

In addition to planning for out-of-country R&R, officers are setting up centers with air-conditioned tents, showers and television, where troops can gain a few days' respite from the desert.
