Municipal Airport Bond Issue Proposed For City Winter Takes Parting Fling At Rocky Mountain Area

Season's Heaviest Snow Buries Areas Of Western States

Blinding Storms Halt All Transportation In Sections; Small Towns Are Marooned By Snow

Texas Has Rains

Laramie, Wyoming Reports Worst Storm Since 1927; Intermittent Rains Fall Throughout Texas

(By Associated Press) DENVER, Colo., Mar. 12.—Lashed by wind and storm, seemingly the parting fling of a bitter seasonal offensive by king winter, the Rocky mountain region tonight was slowly recovering from blizzard-like conditions which left a large area buried under the heaviest snow of the winter.

In Wyoming, where the brunt of the storm was felt, a blinding snow storm paralyzed systems of transportation, hampered the air mail and marooned small towns and villages behind a blockade of snow which covered highways to a depth of nearly three feet. The storm area extended northward to the Canadian border, spreading a blanket of snow over Montana and southward to New Mexico.

General In Colorado

Heavy snow fall was general in Colorado except in the San Luis valley, in the southwestern part of the state. Highways were blocked Denver was overspread with a nine inch covering of white and the Pikes Peak region assumed a wintry aspect in freakish contrast to spring like weather which prevailed in the area yesterday.

A tale of heroism came from snowbound Mount Alamos, 15 miles from the famed Cripple Creek mining district of Colorado, where a group of high school boys banded together to rescue Frank Nelson, a 74 year old prospector from the log cabin who has been marooned without food.

LARAMIE, Wyo., March 12 (AP)—The worst storm since the memorable blizzard of May, 1827 was raging here today. Between 18 and 24 inches of snow fell.

Boundary Probe To Start April 8

Texas Officials Will Meet Oklahoma Legislators At Quannah And Make Tour Of Territory In Dispute

(By Associated Press) AUSTIN, Mar. 12.—The Oklahoma boundary committee of the Texas Legislature will assemble at Quannah, April 8, to begin its investigation, Senator Clint Small of Wellington, a member of the committee, said today.

The committee of 16, including the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the house, will be joined by a similar committee from the Oklahoma legislature.

The committees will proceed from Quannah to Higgins in the northeast corner of the Panhandle. They will traverse the Oklahoma territory east of the Panhandle, which probably will become a part of Texas under a Supreme court decision unless a sale to the sister state is consummated.

Small said that the committee expected to spend two days looking over the land and another day with the Oklahoma legislature in session at Oklahoma City.

Two-Year Olds In School Soon

CLEVELAND, March 12.—In the near future, your two-year-old son or daughter will give you an airy wave of the hand, and trot off happily to school. That is the prediction of Josephine MacLatchey, member of the bureau of educational research, Ohio State University.

The present age for the beginning of a child's education, Miss MacLatchey points out is when it reaches the age of five years. There is no reason, she believes, why a nursery school can't be established to take care of a child's education between the ages of two and five years.

"Between birth and the age of two years a child learns to walk and talk," Miss MacLatchey says. "Most people do not realize what a remarkable feat the child has accomplished during those years."

"Proper training for the child between two and five years will not only benefit the child, but also the parents, many educators now believe."

Senate Votes To Engross License Reduction Bill

Efforts To Postpone Measure Until Special Session Apparently Fail; Vote Final Today

(By Associated Press) AUSTIN, March 12.—Senate forces favoring the almost 50-percent reduction in automobile license fees recommended by the legislature, failed to carry their measure until special session today.

The senate engrossed the house bill by a vote of 19 to 8. In the long battle before engrossment, proponents of the measure repudied every amendment offered, fought off several sallies, designed to postpone consideration until the special session and kept their lines unbroken until several filibusters "blew their brains" had died away.

Opponents of the bill turned a riot into an orderly retreat by blocking the suspension of the rules, which would have required a four-fifths vote. The bill is scheduled to come up for final passage tomorrow morning, a perilously short time before noon, which is the deadline for final passage of any measure.

Burks Is Named To Attorney Post

Burton S. Burks, local lawyer, was appointed assistant district attorney Tuesday and assumed his duties, today taking the oath of office. This position has been made possible by passage of a bill in the present session of the state legislature, providing for an assistant district attorney in counties where the district attorney is overtaxed to take care of regular duties.

Intermittent Rain Squalls Prevent Bible From Making His Test; Clocks At 199 Miles Per Hour In Preliminary Trials; Segrave To Try Again

(By R. T. GILL Associated Press Staff Writer) OCEAN SPEEDWAY, DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Mar. 12.—Intermittent rain squalls and extremely poor visibility late today caused the automobile speed trials of Lee Bible, Daytona Beach, after he had made two fast test runs in the 35 cylinder Triplex, owned by J. Site For Project Selected By Group Covers 640 Acres; City's Location As Air Center Stressed

A RECOMMENDATION that the city commission call a bond issue for $100,000, for the purpose of establishing a municipal airport for Lubbock, was passed Tuesday night by the Board of City Development, in regular session held at the city hall.

The board also pledged its support of such a bond issue and to help carry the election.

This recommendation followed a report of the B. C. D. Airport committee, composed of George E. Benson, chairman; J. D. Slaughter, Roscoe Wilson, Charles A. Guy, John Dairymple and T. B. Dugan, which suggested that such a bond issue be called. The committee spent several months of study and investigation, having visited a number of airports in Texas, and by sending two of its members, Benson and Guy, to the Texas Air Transport school, at Fort Worth, and sending one member to the Aviation Committee meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, held in Fort Worth.

Lubbock Is Far Behind

"We find that Lubbock is far behind in respect to aerial transportation," the committee reported, "being probably at this time the largest city in Texas without airport facilities. Most of the cities in Texas have acquired public owned airports. The majority were acquired by means of municipal bond elections."

The committee further stated that it was their opinion that, with adequate facilities, Lubbock can be the center of air travel of this section of the country and become a resumed their push toward Mazatlan after being temporarily delayed there by a burned railroad bridge.

Revolution

Rebel Movement Recognized. General Francisco Manzo at Nogales, Sonora, reported a communication stating that General I. Cardenas had recognized the rebel movement in the state of Jalisco.

"Federal circles in Mexico City were openly jubilant over the situation at Naco, and expected further defections from the rebel cause to follow.

General Olachea's description of his moves might be interrupted as forming part of carefully laid federal plans, by which he was to pretend sympathy with the rebels and to come out under his true federal colors only when a crucial moment in the campaign had expired.

Naco is in the heart of rebel territory. The general explained that although he had professed sympathy for the rebels he always had been loyal to the government.

Chief significance of his defection is psychological rather than military. It strikes the revolutionary morale a solid blow in the back. From a military point of view, Olachea's position is somewhat precarious. The general said he relies on aid from federal airplanes if a fight began at Agua Prieta. His force can be useful only in an advance on Nogales, which he was reported to be planning.

Rebel troops were concentrating more and more heavily at their Torreon headquarters, said dispatches from a correspondent of the Associated Press, who accompanied rebel troop trains south to Torreon from Aguas Prietas.

The rebels seemed everywhere, though they planned to strike a concerted blow on other fronts, while a strongly entrenched federal garrison held the important city of Mazatlan.

General Juan Almazan, commanding 10,000 federales in the Monterrey region announced that he was leaving Monterrey yesterday afternoon for Saltillo, 80 miles southwest where rebels are entrenched and protect the left flank of the main rebel body.

Almazan said the battle there would be a decisive one.

His airplanes have been busily scouting the enemy. An American giving the name of Philip M. Johnson, of Washington, D. C., has joined the Almazan forces.

Calles Moves Northwest. General Calles, federal commander-in-chief, has moved his headquarters from Canites, about 30 miles northwest to the town of Rio Grande, from which vantage point he can control movements of two federal columns, one against the Torreon and the other against Durango City. His troops were pushing on as fast as repair crews, working in shifts, could fix the railroad line.

The head of the federal main body was going forward from Canites.

First trouble over gun running for the rebels broke at El Paso, Texas, where two members of the American border patrol were ambushed and wounded by rebels attempting to cross the Rio Grande river with arms and ammunition. A miniature battle, in which many shots were exchanged, followed the arrival of border patrol reinforcements.

About 50 men were seen running for safety on the Mexican side of the river.

Government cavalry was hunting the wilds of Vera Cruz province for rebel General J. M. Aguirre and the remnants of his force. A Mexico City bulletin said 300 Yaquis led in the field there would surrender shortly.

Loyal troops under arms were estimated at 40,000 by federal General Almazan, with 50,000 potential recruits from Agrarians and workers.

Federals Prepare For Combat At Naco, Sonora

BISBEE, Arizona, March 12. (AP)—Trenches and rifle pits occupied by an estimated army of 1,500 federal soldiers at Naco, Sonora, across the border from here, tonight gave a decidedly war-like appearance to the tiny town. The entire settlement was circled by hastily but well constructed fortifications, thrown up since General Augustino Olachea, former rebel leader of Sonora Indian troops, turned against his fellow revolutionists early today and took the federal government.

The soldiers manning the trenches were equipped with modern rifles and had plentiful supplies of ammunition. Tonight they continued preparations for an expected attempt by rebel troops in Agua Prieta, east of here, and at Nogales, Sonora, headquarters, 60 miles west, to make a simultaneous attack. Some reports indicated the attack might come tonight.

More U. S. Troops Ordered To Guard Border Towns

WASHINGTON, March 12. (AP)—Apprehension of American residents along the international border over the safety of themselves and their property as a result of revolutionary activities in Mexico today prompted the movement of additional troops to the border.

The detachment, composed of a company of infantry and a troop of cavalry were ordered to Naco, Arizona, and to guard the water supply of Bisbee, a city about 8 miles north of the border.

The northward progress of former President Calles, who is in command of the federal troops advancing to meet rebel forces in the state of Durango, is being watched closely by officials here. The rebels appear to be withdrawing from the south and concentrating in Durango and in the adjoining state of Chihuahua. There are extensive American mining and ranching properties in the states now controlled by the rebels but thus far no damage has been reported to American property.

Rebel General Aguirre Faces Firing Squad

MEXICO CITY, March 12. (AP)—The execution of the rebel General Simon Aguirre, one of the leaders of the revolt in Vera Cruz who was captured yesterday, was announced by the government late tonight. YOUR CHILDREN by Olive Roberts Barton ©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Bobby's mother looked over his shoulder at his language paper and shuddered. "Bobby Smith! You're the world's worst writer! I'm perfectly ashamed of you. Can't you try harder?"

"I do try, Mother. But I just can't keep on the lines."

"But those lines in diagramming! Surely you could have taken a ruler instead of drawing them by hand."

"I know, but I'm awful tired. That arithmetic took nearly all evening and I just hurried with this."

"Let me see your arithmetic paper."

Bobby opened his book and took it out reluctantly. "I guess maybe it isn't quite so good either. Honest, Mum, I can't get my work neat the way you and Miss Holbin like it."

His mother went over and got Elizabeth's night work and laid it on the table beside his. "Look here, Dad, will you? I want you to see what a careless son you've got."

Bobby hung his head while his father, interrupted in the middle of a thrilling mystery story, came to earth long enough to amble over and take the two papers.

"Humph! Pretty rough stuff that, Bob! New kind of shadepaper they use in your room, huh? Sort of cloudy black and white!" He winked at his wife.

Sarcasm's Effect Bobby's ears turned crimson.

"Well, I've preached soap and water till I'm tired," sighed his mother. "What am I going to do? Bobby, let me see those hands. Hold them out. Mercy! Paws, that's what they are—paws! No wonder your nightwork papers are dirty. If I were Miss Holbin I wouldn't touch them."

Under Bobby's touselled thatch, above those painfully red eyes, and murky neck was one of the finest brains in the city. His arithmetic problems were right. Keenly analytical, his young mind had ferreted out the different methods of solution. He had no flair for grammar, but diagramming was mechanical. It was as correct as his arithmetic.

His untidy papers were a hundred times as significant as Elizabeth's neat ones, but he got not even the faintest word of praise.

It was right to try to teach him neatness, but he so often miss the big thing and nag about little ones where other children are concerned. Someday Bobby will make a name for himself very likely. But if he does it will not be because of any encouragement he got at home.

He said he believed the organization would benefit because the investigation "has proven it to be clean and fair in its patronage distribution."

FT. WORTH WOMAN NEVER HAD WELL DAY FOR 15 YEARS

"For fifteen years I didn't know what a well day was. Suffering continually with my stomach, my appetite fell off, my nerves were completely unstrung, and everything I ate caused such distress and misery that a substantial meal was unknown to me. My liver was out of order, and weak kidneys caused my sleep to be badly broken. I grew weak, debilitated and generally run down. I suffered continually with constipation, that brought on dizziness and sick headaches, and lost energy strength and weight.

"I spent lots of money on medicines and took treatment after and was finally told that another would be necessary before I could ever hope to be well.

"Then I read statements about the good Sargon was doing and I decided to try it. I would not take five hundred dollars for the good it did me.

"Now, my fifteen years suffering is ended. My nerves are steady and I have a splendid appetite. I eat everything I want and enjoy it. Nothing disagrees with me any more. I am full of energy, my strength has returned, and I never have an ache or pain. The dizziness and headaches are gone. I have gained weight, and feel like a different woman in every way."

The above statement was made by Mrs. Minnie Freeland, of 1213 West Fifth St., Fort Worth. She is well known and highly respected in the community in which she resides. Sargon may be obtained in Lubbock at the City Drug Stores and in Slaton at the City Drug Store.

Range Needs Rain, Texas Report Says

Movement of Fat Cattle To Be Delayed By Drought; Ranges Said To Be At 79 Per Cent Normal

AUSTIN, March 12.—Although local rains have improved range in some counties of Texas, a good general rain is now needed to revive grasses and weeds, fill water tanks, and assure plenty of spring feed, according to the monthly report of the United States department of agriculture.

Ranges, the report said, continued to deteriorate during February, and more than the usual amount of feeding was necessary. Cattle, sheep and goats, as the result, lost flesh rapidly, the review pointed out.

The movement of fat cattle, the report continued, will probably be delayed unless range conditions improve immediately, the volume of the market movement depending largely on weather conditions during the next few weeks.

The department placed the condition of the ranges on March 1, at 79 per cent of a normal.

Basketball Championships Come Regular To Four Teams

Debate With Boxing Moguls Fails To Reveal Dempsey's Plans

WHAT'S THIS?
A Denver, Colo., baseball enthusiast has followed up John A. Heydler's 10-man plan of baseball, with an entirely new conception of a style of ball. Joseph N. Kory, the author of the new idea, goes the president of the National League one better by changing the layout of the diamond. Kory would have five instead of four bases including home plate. He adds 10 feet to the distance between home and first and home and third. Naturally with the extra bases, there would have to be another infielder for the guardian of the additional sack. Although the infielder would be playing further back, the batter would have to hustle just as hard to beat out a hit as under the present plan. But his chances for plugging the middle bags would be much greater. The catcher's throw to second and third base would be further than before.

This radical change appears to be a reform in the wrong direction. It favors the offense rather than the defense. The pitcher would have to face 10 batsmen and give the opposition four outs instead of three. The author suggests that the activities of the pitcher be confined to defensive activities and not be permitted to hit. Besides facing 10 hitters and giving them four outs per inning, the pitcher will have an extra base to watch and throw further to the bases and thus his task would be much heavier.

No doubt but that this plan would prove interesting for a while, but it varies entirely too much from the present system of baseball. Insofar as it favors the offense, it would appeal to the average baseball fan who likes plenty of action. There are many, however, who prefer to see a close defensive game. The present need of the game is to give more duties to the outfielders, to encourage base-running, to lessen the task of the runner and to get away from the present mode of free swinging instead of more scientific placing of hits.

ANOTHER CLASS D LEAGUE
Over at Vernon, Sunday, was perfected a Red River Valley Class D baseball league by representatives from five Texas and Oklahoma towns. Vernon, Childers, Altus, Lawton and Anadarko were the towns represented at the meeting. Another franchise will be granted within the next few days to complete a six-club circuit. This new league with Grady Shipps of Vernon as president's chair will open the season April 24. This is about the "tenth attempt the towns of that section have attempted to organize a baseball league, and it looks like they have finally succeeded. From what we have learned there are some towns in this group who have been fighting organized opposition to Sunday baseball for a number of years and these are likely to have a rough time of it before this opposition can be overcome.

It seems strange that smaller town officials will continue to howl about Sunday baseball when hundreds of their citizens leave these towns each Sunday of the baseball game within a radius of 100 miles. Sunday baseball is an institution not only in Texas but throughout the country. The puritanical city of Philadelphia is possibly the only place of any consequence where the game is prohibited on Sunday. Permission was recently granted the Boston Braves to play Sunday baseball in that city. Philadelphia will likely be next.

California Bears Take Title For 6 Seasons Straight

Arkansas, Pennsylvania and Oklahoma Universities Make Habit Of Taking Championships

BY ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 12 (AP)—One college acquires the idea it can turn out championship basketball teams, there seems no way to discourage it.

Witness the sectional triumphs of such aggressive schools as the University of California, the University of Arkansas, University of Oklahoma and the University of Pennsylvania. It is a habit with these outfits.

California's Golden Bears, by knocking off Washington in the playoff at Seattle, captured the Pacific coast conference honors for the fifth time in six seasons. Arkansas has lost only one Southwestern Conference game in two years and now holds the title for the fourth successive time. Oklahoma has made it two in a row.

At Pennsylvania, where the influence of the famous McNichol family of stars carries on with Eddie McNichol as coach, the Quakers have possession of the eastern league crown for the second straight year and eighth time in league history.

No one has yet tackled the task of picking an All-American basketball team. Perhaps it will be the best if no one does, although the job of picking the best five basket players in the land is scarcely more difficult than the task of selecting an all-American football eleven.

It's possible to start with Charley Hyatt, Pittsburgh's great forward, and go on through a notable list of players. Hyatt, in the opinion of many coaches, is one of the best all-around performers of this or any other season. He scored 302 points for the Panthers in 21 games.

But if Hyatt is picked for one forward post it leaves only one place open to such a galaxy as Joe Schaaf, Pennsylvania ace; Tom Churchill, the Oklahoma all-around athlete; Captain Vern Corbin of California; Frank McMillan of Idaho; Holy Brook of the University of Texas; Bud Foster of Wisconsin; Wear Schoonover, or Arkansas, and Thompson of the powerful Montana State quintet.

If it were for starting another quintet, Schaaf might be nominated, although he also fits in perfectly as a running guard.

"Stretch" Murphy, the lanky Purdue star and record-breaking high scorer of the Big Ten loop, has at least an inch or two margin on most rival centers. Tom Pickell of Arkansas, is another astutiduous jumper of ability.

It might not be the best but an all-American quintet composed of Murphy, center; Churchill, forwards; Schaaf, center; Schoonover and Gregory, guards, would be hard to stop. Yet it might be done by another five composed of Foster and Corbin, forwards; Pickell, center; Wineapple and Phillips or McCoy, guards.

Deny Report That Injury Was Known

Pittsburgh Officials Claim Wright's Injury Was Unknown When Trade Was Made To Brooklyn

Information has been received here to the effect that the Pittsburgh officials knew of Wright's injury last winter and that this knowledge might have influenced them in making the deal.

Yankees Nose Out Tampa Club, 1 To 0

TAMPA, Fla., March 12 (AP)—The New York Yankees opened their exhibition season today by beating out the Tampa club of the Southeastern League, 1 to 0. Tony Lazzeri did most of the hitting for the world's champions against the class "B" team. He made three of the seven's eight hit. Babe Ruth bled in four attempts. Defeat Of Cudahy Is Tournery Upset

St. Louis Quintet Derails Iowans At Aggregation Is National A. A. U. Meet; Wichita Henrys Win

KANSAS CITY, March 12—With its first major upset, the defeat of the Cudahy Athletic club of Sioux City by the National Amateur Athletic Union basketball tournament tonight neared the end of its second round fray.

The derailment of the Iowans, quarter finalists last year and picked to go as far this season, provided a bright spot in a morning and afternoon of contest, more or less drab except to the partisan fan. Relegation of Cudahy to the side lines for the remainder of the week was accomplished by an unheralded quintet from St. Louis playing under the name of the Los Angeles Athletic club. The score was 19 to 16.

What few fans filled the hall for the last game of the afternoon schedule sensed another upset when the Doane College cagers from Crete, Neb., started battle against the Henrys of Wichita with a vengeance. But after the early minutes of the fray, the Wichitans took the situation in hand and won 37 to 10.

Bethany college of Lindsborg, Kansas, moved into the third round by a 39 to 23 defeat of the Omaha Athletic club. East Central Teachers of Ada, Okla., eliminated Briggs of Chicago, 31 to 22. Another Oklahoma entry, the Phillips University five of Enid which showed so well in the 1928 tourney, moved into a third round by turning back the Peru Nebraska Pedagogues 35 to 15.

WACO, March 12 (AP)—Lefty Stein, pitcher, and Gene Rye, outfielder, joined the Waco Cubs today and marked time while a drizzling rain delayed the start of spring training for the second day. Manager Ed Pratt announced tonight all players would report tomorrow morning for the first drill of the season. Pratt expects to devote most of his time to conditioning the hurriers.

Riley Only Cat Not In Training Camp

MINERAL WELLS, March 12 (AP)—Only one player, Jim Riley, remains outside the Fort Worth fold and the first baseman has been granted special permission to report late, on March 20. The Cats are recruited to within one of full strength by the arrival of Don Songer, pitcher obtained from Toronto. The southpaw flinger reported to Jake Atz today. The Memorial Camp field was too damp for a general drill today, but the Fort Worth and St. Paul, American Association squads took a workout of pepper games, logs around the cinder path and battery drill.

"Jellies" Pass Way To 19 To 13 Victory Over "Toughs" In First Spring Football Training Tussle

Lubbock High School Squads Display Worlds of Fight in Intra-squad Contest; Toughs Heavier

The "Jellies" played ultra-modern football Tuesday afternoon, using an overhead track to advantage, to down the "Toughs," 19 to 13 on the Tech gridiron in the first game of a series to decide the championship of Spring football training of the Lubbock High school squad. So effective was the aerial display of the Jellybeans that the Toughs were made to look very tame on several occasions.

A heavier Tough machine piled up more first downs than the lounge lizards, but lacked that goal line punch that comes in handy some times. Captain W. D. Dawson, "Bigger Red" Squires and a host of golden-jerseyed warriors ripped off gain after gain through the Jellybean line but were repelled by a fighting crew led by Mina Watkins and R. E. Harberger when they approached the goal line.

The Toughs drew first blood in the second quarter when John R. Green, playing his first football game, broke through tackle and outdistanced the secondary Jelly defense to score a touchdown. The extra point was added when the Jellybean right guard was offside.

Defending Champs Stage Comebacks

Johnny Farrell And Gene Sarzen Make Startling Recovery In International Match

MIAMI, Fla., March 12 (AP)—Favorites in the second day combinations of the sixth international four ball matches rode to victory today, but not until after they had been all but routed as lesser figures held the whip hand in the first part of the day's events.

The defending champions, Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarzen, made the most startling recovery of the day as they strode home four and three ahead after laboring for a part of the morning round under a four hole handicap amassed by Ed Dudley, Los Angeles and Al Espinosa, Chicago.

Walter Hagen and Leo Diegel, seeded in the lower bracket, presented a large gallery with an uphill battle in the afternoon. Hagen and Diegel, trailing Johnny Golden, Patterson, N. J., and Billy Burke, Westport, N. J., 2 down at the end of the morning round, came back to win two up. Hagen dropped an eagle 3 on the second round of the windswept course, to demonstrate the whip hand in the first part of the day's events.

NEW YORK, March 12 (AP)—William Harrison Dempsey, boxing promoter, discussed his future today with both the executive committee of the Madison Square Garden corporation and Humbert J. Fugazy, Metropolitan rival of the organization. Dempsey said the Garden proposition, which would include the former fighter in the organization as a vice-president in charge of boxing at a yearly salary, could be viewed only as a basis for future negotiations. He has no idea whether these will take place, although he plans further discussion with William F. Carey, vice-president and guiding hand in the corporation's affairs.

New economy for 35c a quart

Mobiloil dealers now offer you an improved Mobiloil, made especially for new economy under today's high-speed driving conditions

Today's driving conditions demand still better lubricating oils, superior to anything produced before. The New Gargoyle Mobiloil meets this need. Any Mobiloil dealer can supply you with the new economy Mobiloil at 35c a quart. Your saving in oil and gasoline consumption alone will more than make up for the extra 5c a quart.

MAKE THIS TEST

Drive to the nearest Mobiloil dealer... have him drain all the old oil from your crankcase and... fill it up with the correct grade of the New Mobiloil. You know from experience how your engine ran the last time fresh oil was put in the crankcase... Now--notice the difference!

Look for these results--

- Increased Oil Mileage: Often 100 extra miles per quart from the New Mobiloil.
- Increased Gasoline Mileage: Many tests show gasoline consumption reduced as much as 16%.
- Faster Pick-Up—More Power: Quicker get-away, more "pep" on the road, less labor on the hills.
- Smother Operation: A quieter motor, a velvety smoothness of acceleration, less vibration when speeding.

35c a quart

The dealer who sells a quart of the New Mobiloil for less than 35c (except Mobil "E" the chattering oil for Model T Fords, at 30c) is not making his fair reasonable profit. Lower prices often accompany substitution.

JURORS DISMISSED

Bradley May Be Called To Father's Bedside

Jurors called for service in the Ninety-Ninth district court were dismissed yesterday by Judge Clark M. Garza County Is Exhibit Winner

Garza county again took the blue ribbon for having the best display of agricultural products when George Samson, veteran exhibitor, placed an agricultural exhibit at the Southwestern Exhibition and Fat Stock Show this week that won first.

The Garza County Exhibit won over exhibitors who had won first at the State Fair at Dallas, the East Texas Fair at Tyler, the South Texas Fair at Beaumont, and the Tri-State Fair at Amarillo, last fall.

Samson has had exhibits at the Panhandle South Plains Fair at Lubbock for the past several years and has won first honors here, practically every year. He has won first place at the state fair and a number of regional fairs for the past several years.

The Garza county winning will center the attention of those watching the results upon the possibilities of agriculture in Garza county and on the South Plains section. A letter of congratulation has been sent from the Lubbock chamber of commerce to Samson, complimenting him on his exhibit and the service he has rendered Garza County and the South Plains in this regard.

Dealers Prepare For Auto Exhibit

In order to make the South Plains Automobile Show, to be held here on March 28 and 29, the biggest event of its kind ever staged in West Texas, 14 Lubbock automobile dealers are leaving no effort undone to provide the latest and classiest models for their displays. George P. Kuykendall, president of the Lubbock Automobile Dealers association, declared yesterday.

"Two days of attractions and amusements that will, indeed, a show, are to be offered to the visitors to this event," Mr. Kuykendall said. "We are sparing no expense to give the people a treat that will be long remembered."

Location of the show is the Uptown Dance Palace, which has been leased for the two days, the show to begin on the afternoon of March 28.

Knox To Open Up Boys Summer Camp

Warren P. Knox, former scout executive of the South Plains Area Boy Scouts of America, announced here Tuesday, following his return from an extended trip to South Texas, that he will open a boys' camp, in the summer time and a boys' school in winter, on the Arrowhead ranch, near Kerville. The ranch is about 15 miles from Kerville, close to the small town of Hunt, and 800 acres has been secured for the purposes Knox intends to make of the tract.

A two-story ranch house is to be used as headquarters of the enterprise, Knox said, the land having a mile of water front and a lake of about half a mile in extent. The camp, in summer, will be for boys from 10 to 16 years of age and will be held from June 1 to the latter part of August. The school, in winter, will be conducted in cabins which are expected to be ready for the coming fall. Horseback riding, swimming, hunting, boating, fishing and hiking are among attractions contemplated.

Several Lubbock county boys plan to attend the camp this summer, Knox stated.

EXAMS CONTINUE IN VOGUE
 Examinations are in full progress at the college now and there is an amount of studying in vogue that would probably prove puzzling to the professors had they not witnessed such an experience many times before. The majority of students take their examinations quite seriously and cram industriously while others have as their motto "If the prof is going to bust me let him bust me as I am." Saturday is to be a holiday for the students but the work will only have begun for the faculty.

WHY-- WINTER COOKING REQUIRES MORE GAS

Consumers who use gas for both cooking and heating realize why their bills are higher in winter than summer. They know that it takes much more gas to keep them warm during severe months than in periods of mild weather.

In cases, however, where gas is used only for cooking, consumers sometimes wonder why their winter bills are higher than in summer.

There are several reasons, one of which is that more hot food is eaten in winter than in summer.

Water coming from the faucet in summer frequently averages around 70 degrees in temperature, while in winter it may average as low as 45 degrees or a temperature lower than that of the ice water you drink in summer.

Thus, in winter, the temperature of the water may have to be raised 167 degrees to reach the boiling point, while in summer it may be necessary to raise it only 142 degrees—or even less.

This same situation applies in more or less degree to all branches of cookery. The articles of food go into the oven or on the stove at a lower temperature than in summer, the utensils are colder and the air in and around the stove is colder—so much more gas is required for cooking than in summer even if the same menu is used.

The West Texas Gas Company organization works diligently throughout the year and to the end that you may enjoy A REALLY GOOD GAS SERVICE, whether it be on the Fourth of July or during the bitterest wave of winter cold.

NOTICE-It is not the intention of The Avalanche to cast reflection upon the character of anyone knowingly, and through error we should, the management will appreciate having our attention called to any such error.

There are those who will say without thinking that prohibition is a failure and that it does not prohibit and that conditions are worse now than they ever were in the days of the open saloon.

Most of the people of our fifty years of age can make a comparison of conditions now and what they were twenty-five years ago and they will admit that there is improvement over those days.

She says: "Our town, Fort Smith, Arkansas, was known as 'Hell on the Border' before prohibition. It deserved its name. There are no saloons there."

The same comparisons can be found in numerous Texas towns. Twenty years ago, the average laborer did not spend his money for clothes for the wife, children and himself. He did not furnish them a nice automobile to ride in, a radio to enjoy, or perchance a nice neat home of their own.

We see drunk men, true enough. They say that women drink now. We do not know from actual observation. We can not recall seeing a woman drunk in twenty years, while in the days of the open saloon, it was a frequent occurrence to see women reeling on the streets, and down through alleys by the side of the saloons.

At the same time, he obviously is going to stand no nonsense. There will be discipline in the senate while he occupies the rostrum.

Run would be in thousands of homes where drinking is seldom seen now. Drinking would fill the highways and the street gutters, when men filled with booze would drive madly through the streets, and down the highways because liquor would be easy to get.

DO THEY REPRESENT? The time is nearing for the adjournment of the Forty-first Legislature of Texas. Some little opposition seems to have developed because there is not going to be time to finish the work in the few remaining days. The 14th of March has been set for the time for adjournment by resolutions adopted by both upper and lower house members.

The question of adjournment occupies some time and two hours of debate in the senate, and by members of the house before final adoption of the resolution. It was charged by some that there had been an unnecessary amount of time lost and delays encountered in the passage of bills that could have been gotten out of the way had certain members been faithful to their duty and stayed on the job.

We are aware that the office carries with it a measly little salary, not worth looking for, but most of the men make a right to get the office, and wanted to go to the lower house or the senate for some reason or other, most of them claiming their desire to serve the people, because of the need of legislation that must be had. If we send men down there they should be on the job. If they do not expect to be there, then they should not want to be elected. Faithful service is what we expect at the hands of the representatives. We send them down there with the faith in them that they are going to be on the job and the people are expecting that they are.

It would seem however, from what the man from Henderson says, that only the faithful few remain at their posts, and keep the mill grinding, while the others are running around thinking very little of legislation, proposed or needed. There seems to have always been plenty of unfaithful servants, while on the other hand there have always been some who have stood true to the charges given them, and we are sure that our representative, Carl Roundtree, of Lamesa, and our Senator Pink Parrish, of this city, have been found faithful workers, who have been on the job, and acting in good faith with the boys at home. Not only these two, but others have been true to the trust, and we believe it nothing but fair to every representative who has been faithful and tried to do his duty to have his record published so that people might know and fair to the public to know the unworthiness of those who have been careless and indifferent to not being on the job. Let the latter stay at home the next time, and send men who will be faithful to the office to which they were elected.

NEW VICE PRESIDENT RESENTS BEING CALLED "CHARLEY" NOW BY CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington Correspondent for Central Press and The Avalanche

ASHINGTON, March 12.—To speak of Senator Curtis of Kansas as "Charley" always has been considered absolutely the correct thing. I never heard the former senator actually say "Call me Charley" but everybody did it, and evidently it was no shock to him. No public man ever wore senatorial honors more unostentatiously than the Sunflower state senator.

Vice President Curtis seems likely to be quite a different individual. To the whole senate's surprise, the Kansas takes his new position with great seriousness. He is the same kindly old man that he was previously but it has been clear since election day that he felt he had a much more important part than formerly to live up to.

Mr. Hoover's understudy has rebuked no one, to be sure, for addressing him as "Charley," but there is a subtle something in his manner which indicates that he resents it a trifle now, as distinguished to himself, but to the vice presidential office.

All the senators are practicing to acquire the new habit. It is rather difficult after nearly 20 years of nothing but "Charley" and they forget occasionally, whereupon a hurt look comes into his eyes, and the individual who made the break stammers and corrects himself.

Vice President Curtis will be accorded all the deference he may imply that he would imply that he would like to have shown to him, for every soul on Capitol Hill has a real affection for him and wants to please him—only, who would have imagined that he'd care two coppers?

The vice president usually is thought of in Washington as a good deal of a political idler—a personality of no particular importance except, of course, by virtue of the fact, at any time, the next minute may make him the most important one in the country.

This assuredly is the feeling that the senate has itself toward its presiding officer. The supposition was that Senator Curtis, in running for the vice presidency, was virtually retiring—that he planned to drop out of active public life and yet had a fancy for remaining in his old friends' company as a kind of an emeritus.

It was taken for granted that victory would please him, much in the way that he would prize a loving cup or some piece of bric-a-brac, in token of remembrance—but to have him accept it as genuinely valuable—the "Hill" half smiles and is half touched by it.

Vice President Dawes unquestionably supposed he was stepping into a highly significant post when he dealt the desk before him his initial smash four years ago and that was viewed as unqualifiedly mistaken because Dawes did not realize how badly mistaken he was.

Vice President Curtis, however, knows the senate gavel for exactly what it is worth, and his satisfaction in coming into possession of it has an element of the naive about it, suggestive of the thought that anyone so easily gratified ought to be encouraged to get all the enjoyment he can out of his plaything.

So, if the new vice president chooses to feel that he has been promoted, there will be none to call him "Charley" either, as soon as they all can get out of the way of it.

Vice President Curtis can not possibly be anything else than a good-natured presiding officer.

At the same time, he obviously is going to stand no nonsense. There will be discipline in the senate while he occupies the rostrum.

There will be discipline in the senate while he occupies the rostrum.

GUARD THE BABY WELL DURING CONVALESCENCE BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and Hygiene, the Health Magazine

When the baby has been sick with measles, scarlet fever or any other acute infectious disease, it should stay in bed some time after its fever has disappeared.

It is particularly important that there may be much damage to the heart, the kidneys, or other vital organs which are subjected to unusual stress in times of infectious disease.

Only too often it becomes difficult to keep the child amused during this convalescent period. The parents have a tendency to spoil it by giving it all sorts of toys to play with and delicacies to eat.

Visitors are permitted and with them comes excessive excitement. For the adult visitors, as is emphasized by S. A. Cohen, the child is asked to recite or to perform other accomplishments.

Thus the period of convalescence is in many instances such that the child is not given opportunity to make a complete recovery and suffers a relapse.

The most important step in treatment of a convalescent child is rest. Such rest means mental as well as physical relaxation with a minimum expenditure of energy. Besides the sleep that it has at night it should have one hour in every three during the day.

The intervals may be occupied by reading and story telling, by cardboard games or other light recreations. If the weather is fine the child may have an hour outdoors in an armchair and receive occasional doses of sunlight.

The diet must not be such as will load a special burden on the digestive organs but should include cereals and other foods which will build and provide fuel for tissue. A warm bath should be given daily and the child permitted to rest after the bath.

It is particularly important that the child be kept from possible chill. On the other hand, the danger of overclothing is great since it causes perspiration and weakening.

The slightest sign of fatigue, loss of appetite, or irritability should be the occasion for more rest and careful attention.

The use of mechanical men as waiters is predicted. What a blow to the fellow who has learned through correspondence schools to talk to the waiter in French!

AS TO DEADLY SINS Dr. E. Stanley Jones, one of the great preachers of the country, lists what he calls the seven deadly sins of society. Now most of us have a sort of passion for classifying things, listing them, setting them in order. We like to set down the "four reasons" for this, and the "five causes" of that. It is usually a pretty good system, at least for the giving of ourselves where we are most needed. It is said that this is the way to find ourselves. It is probably true. It is a beautiful theory—and it is sometimes practiced.

THE BLACK PIGEON

"THIS HAS HAPPENED 'HANDSOME HARRY' BORDEN, promoter of dubious stock companies, is murdered some time between last past one and four o'clock on Saturday. His body is found sprawled on the floor of his private office Monday morning by his pretty secretary, RUTH LESTER. Ruth is engaged to JACK HAYWARD, whose office is just across the narrow airshaft from Borden's."

Ruth runs to Jack's office to tell him of the tragedy and, finding him out, searches for his pistol, which he had purchased at the same time he had bought an identical weapon for her to keep in her desk. His gun is gone! Ruth then recalls his incriminating behavior of the past Saturday and his angry threat against Borden.

Jack comes in and accompanies Ruth back to Borden's suite. While he phones for the police, Ruth, fearing Jack shot Borden across the airshaft, hurries into the private office to close the window. She gets with relief, for it is already closed! Ruth tells DETECTIVE McMANN of Borden's two Saturday morning visitors: RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, and MRS. BORDEN, his wife and mother of his two children, who called for her monthly alimony check. Mrs. Borden comes in during the questioning and McMANN mercilessly accuses her of the murder. She says she left Borden alive and saw only one person near his office: MINNIE CASSIDY, the scrub woman.

NIELSON, medical examiner, arrives. When search is started for a weapon, Ruth tells of the pistol in her desk. McMANN looks for it but it, too, is gone. While McMANN is questioning MICKY MORAN, elevator operator, a black pigeon flies plump against the window pane. McMANN looks out the window and his exclamation of surprise startles his listeners.

McMANN finds the tiny footprints of a pigeon in dried blood on the window ledge and on the floor near the body, which indicates the window was open when Borden was shot. Ruth's fear for Jack increases. McMANN questions Moran, the elevator boy, who is afraid Ruth killed her employer.

McMANN suddenly asks whose office it is across the airshaft. When he learns it is Jack's he asks the elevator operator what time on Saturday afternoon Jack returned to his office. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XV

Otto Pfluger hunched his shoulders and rammed his hands deeper into the pockets of his uniform. "I ain't keepin' tabs on them that got a right to come and go."

"Ain't there a register record for Saturday afternoon, Coghlan?" McMANN demanded. "You require everyone to sign in and out, don't you?"

Coghlan shook his head. "Not until four o'clock Saturdays. Too many tenants coming and going before then."

"I can tell you almost to the minutes when I returned and when I left the building," Jack Hayward settled the question matter-of-factly. "Miss Lester and I went to lunch at the Chester Hotel, and just before dessert was served I discovered that I had left the theater tickets on my desk. We were going to a matinee. I looked at my watch and found that it was 10 minutes past two and I walked rapidly from the Chester to the Starbridge Building—a distance of only two blocks. I didn't have to wait for the elevator, so it must have been not later than five or six minutes past two when I got off at the seventh floor. I went to my office and—"

"Just a minute!" McMANN interrupted. "I'd just a little bit rather have Otto's story before we have yours. You might unclench that fist of yours, Hayward, I'm afraid you'll sprain your fingers, and that would be too bad. . . . Now, Otto, how long before he went back down again in your car?"

"I ain't saying he was in his office at all," Otto denied sulkily. "Oh," McMANN pounced. "Saw him head toward the wing of the building when he left the elevator did you?"

Otto Pfluger shrugged, and slouched lower against the wall. "Now, I ain't sayin' he was in his office, or he wasn't in his office, because I didn't follow him—see? I tended to my business and that 'wadda be runnin' my elevator."

"And right now, young man, your business is to answer my questions. You give me a tip to keep your mouth shut, as Mr. Hayward evidently did, but I can give you a free pass to the jail if you don't open up and spill what you know."

"Mr. Hayward didn't give me no tip Saturday—now, nor this mornin' neither! He tips us boys reglar the first of the month, like most of the other tenants do. . . . Aw, all right! I'm tellin' you, if you'll let me, it was about 10 minutes after I took him up before—"

Public Opinion

Editor Morning Avalanche: I read with interest your editorial Sunday's issue under the caption 'How will President Hoover Harmonize Mellon and Prohibition' and note the criticism you gave the new president for reappointing Mr. Mellon secretary of the Treasury.

AS TO DEADLY SINS Dr. E. Stanley Jones, one of the great preachers of the country, lists what he calls the seven deadly sins of society. Now most of us have a sort of passion for classifying things, listing them, setting them in order. We like to set down the "four reasons" for this, and the "five causes" of that. It is usually a pretty good system, at least for the giving of ourselves where we are most needed. It is said that this is the way to find ourselves. It is probably true. It is a beautiful theory—and it is sometimes practiced.

SELLING The smart salesman is the man who creates in his prospect a desire for a certain piece of goods. He lets a bit of sun on the budding desire, waters it, and tends it properly—but he doesn't crush it by too much talk.

LARGE CHILDREN If salesmen realized that grown-ups are only large children—at least in the sense of their psychology—that a prospect wants something or other not for logical reasons but just because he wants it, perhaps they would learn a different approach. A salesman who isn't a psychologist wastes your time and his own. The man who says "the goods sell themselves" isn't a deep salesman.

Two Doctors Are Named For Death ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., March 12. (AP)—Dr. Murrell Pinson, and Dr. W. H. Longmire maintained strict neutrality in the case of their preliminary hearing on murder charges growing out of an appendicitis operation performed last Monday on 12-year old Robert Grindstaff at Scotia, near here.

Neither would discuss the charge the afternoon of an inquest held Thursday at which a coroner's jury attributed the boy's death to criminal negligence.

Henry Grindstaff, Robert's father, preferred the charge. The father asserted the doctors performed the operation while under the influence of liquor, and that they left the patient while he still was under an anesthetic.

THE BLACK PIGEON (Continued) McMANN grinned crookedly as he made rapid notes of the boy's story. "You didn't have any other passenger during those 10 minutes, Otto?"

"Now."

"And when Mr. Hayward left, did you notice anything about the surrender of his behavior?" McMANN suggested. Otto glowered. "Now."

Ruth could have kissed the sullen young towhead for his failure to mention a fact which might yet assume vast importance—Jack Hayward had returned to his office empty-handed and left it with a heavy briefcase.

"Who else rode in your car between two and four o'clock Saturday?" McMANN prodded the unwilling witness.

"I ain't been taking no memory course," Otto Pfluger shrugged. "But far as I remember, I didn't take down no passengers from the seventh floor after Mr. Hayward left."

McMANN scowled, then turned upon Micky Moran, who grinned cheerfully. "How about you, Moran? Who were your passengers for the seventh floor after Miss Lester's and Mr. Hayward's second trip?"

Micky scratched his thatch of red hair. "First I brought up Benny Smith, the kid that works here."

"Well he came back," Micky grinned. "Said he'd forgot something. I took him back down three or four minutes later. . . . And say, I guess 'at his kid had found his boss dead he wouldn't a-ride back down whistling, would he?"

Ruth smiled gratefully at the boy who was so obviously anxious to lift suspicion from the least check-out. "If that boy came back for something he'd forgotten, it was undoubtedly in the outer office," McMANN pointed out. "And the door was closed between the two offices after Borden was killed, according to Miss Lester's own story of her discovery of the body. But you stick to your own story, Moran, and let the office boy tell his when he comes in—if he ever gets here."

McMANN asked Curry. "Who else came to the seventh floor Saturday afternoon?"

"That lady I heard you call Mrs. Borden," Micky answered sulkily. "Gees! I didn't know she'd be married!"

"He sure didn't let it cramp his style none."

McMANN frowned. "Keep your opinions to yourself until they're called for, Moran. When did you bring Mrs. Borden up?"

Micky stuck out his lower jaw pugnaciously and seemed about to go into a stubborn silence. Then, "I dunno! Pretty soon after I took Benny down, I guess. After half-past one, anyway."

"Did you notice her manner? Anything unusual?" McMANN rapped out.

"I didn't pay no attention to her. She didn't mean nothing in my young life," Micky retorted. "She just got in the elevator and I took her up—that's all."

"And when she came down?" McMANN was having hard work to restrain his anger and impatience. "Was she upset?"

"Gees! I didn't give her a second look, after I seen it was the same lady I'd took up. Micky protested disgustedly. "I ain't got no time for dames her age."

McMANN looked up. "If he could cheerfully have clouted the impudent youngster over the head, but he limited the expression of his anger to a black scowl. "Anyone else?"

"Sure, a frail that was here Saturday morning, and two or three times before then," Micky answered sulkily. "Looked like a chorus girl."

Mita Dubois! Ruth cried. "I thought she was to meet Mr. Borden at the station—"

"Just a minute," McMANN silenced her peremptorily. "Describe the girl, Moran—hair, eyes, clothes, anything you can remember."

"Black hair, black eyes. Kinda tall and slinky, like a movie vamp," Micky obliged. "I didn't notice her clothes, 'cept she had a real live white fur coat with a real live white"

This Anniversary

One hundred and fifty-one years ago today, the Marquis de Noailles, French ambassador in London, announced to the British government that his country recognized the independence of the struggling American colonies, and that had formed a treaty of friendship and commerce with them.

The treaty had actually been signed several months before. Immediately after the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga had proved that the American cause was not altogether hopeless.

War weary America greeted the news of French aid with great enthusiasm. It was received with other emotions in Europe. Lord Stormont, British ambassador to France, left Paris immediately with information the French government of his intention. And Spain, whose old American colonial possessions she had a finger in the American pie, likewise resented the treaty.

Within a month France and England were at war and Spain was kept friendly to France only by a secret treaty which promised that France would recognize United States dominion only as far west as the Mississippi river.

Today's Poem

"IF SHE BUT KNEW" If she but knew that I am weeping Still for her sake, That love and sorrow grow with keeping Till they must break, My heart that's breaking will adore, Be hers and die; If she might hear me once implore her, Would she not sigh? If she but knew that it would save her, Would she not die? Her voice to hear, Saying she pitied me, forgave me, Must she forbear? If she were told that I was dying, Would she be dumb? Could she content herself with sighing? Would she not come? —Arthur O'Shaughnessy orchid pinned on the collar." McMann looked at Ruth, who looked an eager confirmation of the girl's identity. "All right, Moran. When did you bring her up and what happened, that you know of? Did you talk with her?"

"Not when I brought her up," Micky answered the last question first. "She was looking so sore tapping her foot and acting so impatient, that I kept my mouth shut."

"When was this?" McMann pounced.

"Gees, I dunno! 'Bout half an hour after Mrs. Borden left. I reckon I ain't got no way of telling the time each party come up. I let her on the seventh floor and then I went back down. While my car was down, the telephone in the booth started ringing and I answered it. The starter goes off at half-past one, and they wasn't anybody else but me down there."

"Yes? What of it?" McMann demanded impatiently. "How long before Miss Dubois rang for the elevator?"

"At what I don't know—not exactly." Micky admitted, flushing. "It was my girl on the phone and I made a date with her for Sunday, and—kidded her along awhile, 'till when I got back in my car, the seventh floor red light was on."

"Five minutes? Seven minutes? Ten minutes?" McMann suggested impatiently.

"Maybe 10 minutes, maybe more." Micky admitted, his flush deepening. "This Rita came down here because I've kept her waiting, and I jolly her up a bit. I says to her, 'Sorry if I kept you waiting, Miss. I was making a date with my sweetie.' I says, 'Nen she says, 'Well, be sure you don't stand her up, old dear. Nothing makes a girl more sore than to be stood up.' she says, tapping her foot again, like she was sore as all get-out. An' I says, 'Gees! Did Borden stand up a swell frail like you?' An' she grins a little at that an' cracks right back. 'I'll say he did! And how!'"

"What else?" McMann demanded. "Gees, ain't at enough for one trip?" Micky grinned. "She got off and beat it out of the elevator like she was in a hurry. She run into the telephone booth and that's the last I seen of her, 'cause I had a call from the fourth floor then—or maybe it was the fifth. Naw, it was the fourth. Old man Cohen—wholesale shoes."

"Any other passengers for the seventh floor Saturday afternoon?" McMann demanded impatiently.

"Naw, not a soul." Micky answered promptly. "I thought Borden had gone down by the other elevator, for some reason or other. 'Ces, he musta been dead already and his sweetie thought he'd stood her up! Gees! She musta stood there poundin' on the door—"

"That'll do, Moran." the detective shut him short. "You and Otto can get back on your jobs, but don't leave the building till I give you permission, understand?"

When the door had closed upon the elevator boys, McMann faced Jack Hayward, his eyes narrowed to glinting gray slits. "Well, how about it, Hayward? I suppose you're going to tell me it took you 10 minutes to find those conveniently forgotten theater tickets."

Before Jack could answer Patrolman Biggers appeared, with the information that the men from the morgue had arrived to remove the body of the murdered man.

"Just a minute, Biggers. Hold 'em back until I get Mrs. Borden out of the way. I'll put her in Covey's charge down the hall till I need her."

Some of Ruth's hatred of the detective evaporated as she witnessed his gentleness with the widow whom he had, a few minutes before tried to bully into confessing that she had killed her husband. But when the body had been removed on a stretcher, and McMann was free to devote his entire attention to Jack Hayward, fear for the man she loved fanned her hatred of McMann into a high, hot blaze.

Can Jack Hayward explain away those 10 minutes? Newspaper reporters appear in the next chapter.

Two Hundred And Twenty-Five Are At Turkey Banquet

Representatives From Over South Plains Gather At New Town For Celebration; Hill, Bourland Speak

(Special to The Avalanche)
TURKEY, March 12.—Converting the mammoth Chevrolet building here into a banquet hall with plates for 225 members and guests the Turkey Chamber of Commerce tonight staged the annual banquet and business session.

A sumptuous meal was served under the direction of the Turkey Parent-Teacher association assisted by young ladies from the student body of the Turkey high schools.
McCarley Toastmaster.
Promptly at 8 o'clock Toastmaster J. B. McCarley called the assembly to order and the audience sang America. Following an invocation by Rev. I. W. Fulham, pastor of the First Baptist church, the Turkey concert band rendered an appropriate and pleasing program.
J. A. Lacy, president of the Turkey Chamber of Commerce delivered the address of welcome in which he announced that while Turkey was yet in its infancy as to growth and further expansion along industrial lines, every indication points to the fact that natural advantages and prospective acquisitions would within a brief period convert our city into a wonderful business district finally becoming a great distributing center of the vast South Plains section of grand old Texas. In enumerating the essentials of city building Mr. Lacy mentioned the bountiful and wholesome water supply now available, sewer extension, street paving and sidewalk building, and above all the possibility of securing the Rock Island railway trunk line, right of way for which is now being surveyed in this community.

Davenport Responds.
In his usual jovial and entertaining manner Jerry Davenport, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Childress responded to the address of welcome.

Secretary-Manager J. M. Edwards of the Turkey Chamber of Commerce rendered a detailed report of the activities of the local chamber which were numerous and extensive, concluding with the announcement that the organization was self supporting, all outstanding accounts being paid in full and a neat balance on hand was shown in the financial statement.

A male quartet from Canyon college rendered several pleasing selections following which R. E. Shepard, singing ex-mayor of Wichita Falls who delighted the audience in word and song.

Hill Makes Address.
The forceful address by Dr. J. A. Hill president of the West Texas State Teachers college was well received. This discourse was the feature of the evening program, the assigned subject being education and business.

A. M. Bourland, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce also addressed the body and Claude Terrell supplied a source of amusement by his talents as a joker.
Visiting guests were introduced, many of them making short talks which concluded the session.

MRS. NEAL A REAL ORGATONE BOOSTER NOW

"I Gladly Tell Others Of Aid New Medicine Gave Me, It Saved My Life," Says Lubbock Woman

"I'm a booster for Orgatone from now on."
Thus spoke Mrs. J. B. Neal, well known citizen of Lubbock, residing at 1613 Tenth Street, and when asked what Orgatone did for her, she said:

"Orgatone has given me the relief I long sought," she continued. "I had stomach trouble for about fifteen years, my food never agreed with me and the least thing I ate soured on my stomach, causing me to suffer intensely. Frequently I had dizzy spells and everything seemed to be turning round and round. I would become so dizzy that I'd have to lie down. I had gall bladder trouble, and I had pains in my right side, which would ache and throb, until I would be in misery, and thought I was going to die. Gas formed on my stomach, and I had terrible headaches at times. I was very nervous and restless and never felt like doing my work, and hardly ever got a good night's sleep.

"A friend recommended Orgatone to me and advised me to try it. Since I began taking Orgatone I have a different story to tell. Now my stomach is in fine condition. I can eat any kind of food I want, without it disagreeing with me. Nothing ever sours on my stomach now, and the pains in my sides have entirely disappeared, and this is the greatest relief of all, for I did suffer terribly with those pains in my right side. No matter how much I stoop over my spells of dizziness do not bother me and I have more strength and feel more like doing my work than I have in years. The nervousness has been relieved and I now sleep soundly all through the night and get up mornings feeling fine. Orgatone has really made life worth living for me, it has saved my life, and I'm going to be a strong booster for it, it has done for me what medicine and doctors failed to do, I am more than glad to make this statement and tell my friends about it."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowers Drug Store under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Out of town customers are being supplied by mail upon receipt of price of one bottle $1.25 or six bottles for $6.25.
