How can they come into a living realization with a living God so that they might find purpose and meaning, strength and forgiveness? He said that Rotary's Four-Way Test, "is it the truth, is it fair, will it build good will and better friendship, and will it be beneficial to all," can be used to advantage in dealing with others.

J. Richard Loden, regional parks maintenance supervisor for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, was initiated as a new member of Rotary.

Rotary Official To Visit Rockport

Rotarians will welcome on July 30 the governor of this Rotary district, Ernest G. Bice of Brownsville.

He will address the Rotary Club of Rockport, one of 41 in his district, and will confer with Dr. J. Martin Shaw, president of the local Rotary Club, and with other club officials to obtain information on the group's plans for its service activities and to offer suggestions on Rotary administrative matters.

Bice is one of 298 Rotary governors throughout the world who are now serving as representatives of Rotary International in districts composed of member clubs. Each district leader is responsible for supervising the clubs in his area. Rotary, an international men's service organization, has more than 650,000 members in some 13,800 clubs in 146 countries.

A member and past president of the Rotary Club of Brownsville, Bice is a meteorologist with the ESSA Weather Bureau and is head of its Brownsville office. He was elected to office at the Rotary International Convention in Honolulu, Hawaii, in May of this year, and will serve until June 30, 1970.

Though a seasoned Rotarian before his election to the office of district governor, Bice attended an 8-day international assembly last May at Lake Placid, N.Y., at which time all Rotary governors for 1969-70 attended in-depth seminars to plan for their jobs. One of his biggest jobs will be to hold a district conference of all Rotary Clubs in this area. The conference will be held in Brownsville, April 16-18, 1970.

Department authorities said the application cards and instructions are now being printed and were expected to be ready July 22.

The refuge, established in 1937, contains 47,271 acres. However, only approximately 38,000 acres of prime deer habitat in Aransas County will be hunted.

P&W Commission Sets Seasons And Bag Limits for '69 Hunting

AUSTIN—The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission in a regular meeting in Austin last week set the longest deer, turkey and dove seasons possible.

The traditional deer and turkey season in regulatory authority counties begins on the second Saturday of November, which this year falls on Nov. 8—the earliest possible date in the month a second Saturday could fall. By the same token, next year's season will begin on Nov. 14—the latest date possible.

Dove hunters will get an additional hour of hunting daily because of the Daylight Savings Time. Last year, the dove hunters could start blasting away at 12 noon Central Standard Time or 1 p.m. Daylight Saving Time. This was eliminated from the Federal guidelines this year and in effect, dove hunters can begin shooting an hour earlier.

Several standard changes were approved for all counties under regulatory authority. Of major importance was

Since 1960, there has been a steady decline in unemployment from about eight per cent to slightly more than two per cent. This is well below the state and national averages. In 1960, unemployment was concentrated in the blue collar categories. An adequately trained and well educated work force is the best insurance against an upswing in the unemployment rate.

Determining basic and secondary employment was accomplished in consultation with local individuals familiar with economic activities and from an analysis of economic information. Each job supports an additional 3.4 residents. Each new job in the basic category will support one job in the secondary category. This means that each job established in the basic sector will mean a total population increase of approximately seven persons.

Area's Economy Is Evaluated By Bartholomew

Editor's Note: This is another article based on the comprehensive plan for Rockport, prepared by Harland Bartholomew and Associates and local advisory committees.

An evaluation of the local economy has been prepared from various sources. Due to the relatively small urban population within the corporate limits of Rockport, reliance has been placed on Aransas County data rather than statistics for the city itself, since the economy of the county and city are so closely linked together.

Texas Employment Commission statistics show the labor force has expanded by 500 persons since 1961 to a total of 2900 persons in 1968. Increases in employment have all occurred in the non-agricultural sector, with growth in both manufacturing and non-manufacturing employment. In 1967, each employed person in the county was supporting a total of 3.4 dependents. This is based on the estimated population of 10,000 persons for the county at that time. Nationally, about 40 per cent of the population is in the labor force. Aransas County has only 30 per cent of the population employed. This can be explained by the fact that there is a large concentration of individuals in the retired category and many are too young to be in the labor force.

Declines in farm and ranching employment follow the national pattern of concentrating into fewer and larger units. Although manufacturing employment has risen 75 per cent since 1961, it is still a relatively small part of the employment picture. While manufacturing is a growing segment of the Texas economy (16.3 per cent), it has played a relatively minor role in Aransas County where the current figure is 9.5 per cent. New manufacturing employment opportunities may attract residents to the county who are employed in the Corpus Christi metropolitan area.

The local economy in 1960 was dominated by a non-agricultural, non-manufacturing employment pattern. This is still the situation today. Approximately one-third of the labor force is "white collar," well below the 41 per cent state average. The employment pattern reflects slow, steady growth. With the exception of declines in agricultural employment, all other categories have shown gradual increases.

Since 1960, there has been a steady decline in unemployment from about eight per cent to slightly more than two per cent. This is well below the state and national averages. In 1960, unemployment was concentrated in the blue collar categories. An adequately trained and well educated work force is the best insurance against an upswing in the unemployment rate.

BONES IN CHANNEL BELIEVED FROM ELEPHANT

A number of large bones found in a channel being dredged between Rockport and the Corpus Christi ship channel have been tentatively identified as being from some member of the elephant family.

More than a dozen of the bones were found in sludge thrown up by a Bauer Dredging Company dredge now working southeast of Aransas Pass.

Several fragments apparently are the joint ends of an animal's large bones, one of them about the size of a human head and weighing between 15 and 20 pounds. A vertebra measures six inches in diameter and is three inches thick. Others are flat bones from either the skull or pelvis.

The bones were taken by University of Texas students to the Marine Biological Institute at Port Aransas for study.

EDITOR'S VIEWPOINTS

AMERICA'S COMMON BOND

The old political preachment that it is somehow sinful to burden future generations with debts contracted for major public undertakings seem to have been buried Nov. 5th by debt-minded and debt-oriented voters. That probably is because they run their own personal affairs on credit undertakings once deemed utterly prohibitive.

At any rate, millions of Americans signed their communities and states to IOU's pledging an estimated $9 billion indebtedness that won't be paid off until some of today's newborn have long since turned gray, if then.

Moreover, the size and character of the projects, such as education, recreation, and water pollution control, would leave many an old timer wondering what in thunder the proposers were dreaming about.—Toronto Blade.

POVERTY CAN BE EXPENSIVE

We are told there is a federal policy against government agencies using the mails to distribute information to people who have not asked for it. Like so many rules it seems to be honored more in the breach than in observance.

Consider the Office of Economic Opportunity, pentagon of the war on poverty. The OEO has a special privilege allowing it to mail to any postal patron anything it wants—especially big, high cost brochures telling of its glories, prepared by 46 press agents. This is just part of the nearly $75 million a year which California Congressman Charles H. Teague, of Ojai, reports is being spent annually by the administration on promotional mailings.

There's an old quip that one thing money can't buy is poverty. It certainly can promote it, though.—Corcoran (Calif.) Journal.

STAMPS OF AN ERA

Postmaster General Watson, in a thoughtful effort to give President Johnson something appropriately remindful of his postal administration, decided to present him with a copy of each stamp the Post Office has issued since Mr. Johnson came to Washington in 1937.

It took some doing to round up nearly 600 different, uncanceled stamps, including shelling out about $120 of his own money to buy the copies from dealers. What a lot of stamp collectors—and those totally unmoved by the science of philately—have long wondered is how the Post Office could turn out so many new stamps over the years and still fall so far short of the mark artistically.

The designs and colors of most U. S. stamps, which have memorized everything in recent years from the Erie Canal and Walt Disney to law and order and Davy Crockett, is nothing to brag about, with a few notable exceptions.

This is one case in which practice has obviously failed to bring perfection—or even an acceptable degree of proficiency.—Toledo Blade.

NO LONGER SIMPLE

Sometimes, committing a list of particulars to memory is aided by taking the first letters of each item on the list and making a word of them. So it used to be with the president's cabinet posts. The letters spelled "St. Wapniac" (secretaries of state, treasury and war, attorney general, postmaster general, secretaries of the navy, interior, agriculture, commerce and labor.)

It was a key that served students for many years—until 1947 when the National Security Act named a new position, secretary of defense, to displace the secretaries of war and navy and include chiefs of staff of the various military branches of services. Still the memory key was useful. It now spelled "St. Dapical."

But in 1953, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was set up as a cabinet post "to supervise the work of various government agencies that deal with public health, education and economic security." The Department of Housing and Urban Development followed, and the Department of Transportation. The good saint's name altered to the almost unpronounceable "St. Dapiachht."

If proponents of removing the post-master general's office from the cabinet roster are successful, it will wind up "St. Daiachht," and teachers may as well forget it as a memory aid. In a complex government, the simple saint has lost his usefulness.—The Oregonian.

Three Local Boys At Salvation Army Camp

The Salvation Army is host to 800 boys from across Texas, including three from Rockport at the organization's 370-acre Camp Hoblitzelle near Dallas this summer.

Mrs. R. L. Hart, camp chairman for the Rockport Salvation Army Service Unit Committee, said the youngsters left by bus July 20 and will return July 27.

The boys are Ray Evans, Alex Galvan, and Edward Gonzales.

Mrs. Hart said a total of more than 3,000 campers will enjoy the facilities of Camp Hoblitzelle during the 16 week-long sessions.

"The Salvation Army operates the camp free of charge for youths who would not otherwise have the opportunity to enjoy camp life," Mrs. Hart said. "The local boys are being sponsored by our Service Unit Committee, an agency of the Rockport United Fund."

"The camp features a 25-acre lake for fishing, boating and sailing, a swimming pool, sports, horseback riding, crafts and games as well as spiritual guidance."

All activities are under the supervision of experienced coaches and counselors.

Campers will be housed in attractive brick and redwood cabins and enjoy well prepared meals served in the camp's own dining room.

Camp Hoblitzelle, located seven miles south of Midlothian, was built through the generous gifts of more than 100 men and women of Texas.

Bridal Shower Honors Miss Grossman

Miss Wanda Grossman, bride-to-be of Gary Holden of Aransas Pass, was honored July 20 at a bridal shower at the Odd Fellows Hall, given by Mrs. Norman Von Heuvel, Miss Dee Ann King and Miss Donna Sparks.

Miss Johnnie Grossman was at the guests table. Mrs. Cindy Bondurant served punch and coffee, and Miss Lana Lindsey served the cake. The bride's serving table was decorated with a large wedding bell surrounded by yellow lace net set off by the white and yellow damask cloth. The gifts were displayed on several tables.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT
Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Silchenstedt announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Ann, to John L. "Buddy" Kingston, Jr., son of Mrs. Mary Etta Kingston, of Corpus Christi. The young couple plan to be married the latter part of August.

CONGRATULATIONS
Mr. and Mrs. Steve Atwood are the proud parents of a baby son, Stephen Craig, born July 17, at Spohn Hospital. When asked how much his son weighed at birth the still excited father said 17 pounds 13 1/2 ounces, then corrected himself and said, "I mean 7 pounds and 13 1/2 ounces."

Money still talks, and the way it is being treated these days, its favorite word is "Ouch!"—Griffin (Ga.) Daily News.

Centennial Edition Is Being Sent Throughout World

Since the Rockport Pilot published its Centennial Edition on March 27, marking 100 years of service to the Rockport area, copies of this historical issue have been sent throughout the nation and to many parts of the world.

Requests for copies and congratulatory messages are still coming in. Here are three received this week:

From Dr. Poll, Director of the Internationales Zeitung Museum in Aachen, Denmark, came this message:

"Dear Sirs:
According to a newspaper information, the Rockport Pilot is now 100 years old. Please accept our belated congratulation and our best wishes for the coming time."

"You would oblige us if you had the kindness to send for the Newspaper Museum a free copy of your jubilee edition."

"The Aachen Newspaper Museum existing more than 80 years in the first instance is collecting first, last, and special issues on the occasion of jubilees, anniversaries, or political events of importance. So a free copy of your jubilee number would be a fine enlargement for the collection that amounts today nearly 100,000 pieces."

From Walter Buckner of the Texas Industrial Accident Board at Austin, came this letter:

"Dear Friends:
Your Centennial Edition is one of the best I have ever seen. The great amount of history, which is so well written, will be preserved and passed on to others in the coming years. It is a most valuable document, and you and your able staff are to be congratulated for your fine efforts."

"If you have not already done so, may I suggest that you mail two or three papers to the Texas State Library Archives Division. They are anxious to have all such historical material."

The following letter was received from Llerena Friend, Librarian, Barker Texas History Library, University of Texas, Austin:

"Dear Sir:
I note in the Texas Press Messenger for June that your paper celebrated its centennial with a special edition on April 27."

"Barker Texas History Library of the University of Texas would like very much to have a copy of this special edition if you still have one available. We bind these papers in a series of 'Anniversary Papers,' and we now have over eighty volumes, material that we find exceedingly helpful in local history."

"If you have an extra copy, we will certainly appreciate it."

"CONGRESS of the UNITED STATES
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

Mr. Val Jean Eaton,
Security Real Estate, Inc.,
P. O. Box 990,
Rockport, Texas 78382.

Dear Mr. Eaton:

"I am grateful for your letter of June 12 concerning Lot 30, Block B, Andrews Subdivision, which I own. At this point in time, I am not interested in either selling or acquiring property. Please be assured, however, if the situation changes I will certainly keep your offer in mind.

"It is my understanding that Security is an enterprise of Mr. Emory Spencer. If so, please express to him my personal regards. I have not seen Mr. Spencer since I was a young lad trudging barefoot through some of the hottest sand this side of Hades. But he was always kind to my father, Frank, and my mother, May, which I shall always appreciate. In fact, Mr. Spencer bought the lumber from the remains of my father's emporium, "Little Chihuahua," which stood on this lot and was a beacon of light and hope for many during the grim days of the Great Depression. And in Rockport, they weren't any grimmer.

"With best wishes, I am,
Sincerely,
(Signed)

Charles A. Frandolig."

Cane-pole fishing for kingfish? . . . Yep, it is being done!

During the past few years some of the sturdiest of salt-water fishermen have found added fun with this new method of tangling with kings.

It's the sportiest way of tackling these vicious, big-mouthed, sharp-toothed batters.

Joe and Raymond Muchowich concocted the scheme four or five years ago. They are owners of the Party Boat system that works out of Freeport.

These fellows have spent a lifetime on the coast and have had just about every fishing thrill in the books. But they say nothing will compare with catching a 20-pound, fighting king on a cane pole.

Their trick is to use a long, bamboo pole, slightly smaller than a utility post. Anyway that's the way they look to some anglers.

My advice to you, unless you are a pretty hefty man with a lot of muscle, is to leave this kind of fishing to them. However, it's fantastic to watch. But it's hard, hard work . . . and harder still on the tucker. So, if you have a weak heart . . . forget it. You've read too far already.

As you know, the kings begin their run along the Texas coast early in the spring. They are going good by June 1. And by mid-July they are hotter than Fourth of July firecrackers.

But, that's when the Muchowich boys like to do their king fishing. And when they go out on a boat, they always take along one of those bamboo poles.

For a line they use something like a 150-pound test, with a long wire leader attached to a chrome steel O'Shaughnessy 8/0 or larger hook.

This hook is baited with frozen mullet or sand trout. It is tossed over the side of the boat and slowly worked through the water.

Naturally, this kind of fishing must be done in water where kings have gathered.

Usually the kings are drawn to the boat by chumming—the tossing overboard of various sized hunks or chopped up mullet.

You'll know when a king strikes because when he does you've got your hands full. In the first place, the pole will weigh close to 50 pounds. You are on the heavy end of it, but the tip end with the line and bait is out more than 20 feet. You are off balance to start with.

When the king hits, the hook must be firmly set in the fish's tough jaws. If not firmly set, he will throw the hook and wave goodbye. Most important of all . . . if you are not careful . . . the king, which may be from 15 to 30 pounds, may throw YOU.

When that king takes the bait your work is cut out for you. Better be stripped down to the minimum because you have a big battle ahead of you.

Mr. King fights with every bit of the cunning and speed he has. And in water with no obstructions. He will head down, out and even up. I've seen them jump 10 to 20 feet in the air. And I've heard of them jumping over a boat.

Your job is to get the fish close enough to the side of the boat for the gaff. Usually this heavy steel hook has a 12 to 15-foot handle, to enable the gaffer to reach over the side of the boat.

Trouble is, about the time you get the fish within gaffing distance, it takes off again . . . and again. Every muscle in your body is under strain. You can't bring it in and you can't let it go.

Finally when the fish is exhausted, it is pulled to the boat and gaffed. Even if you are a hardy man, you take time out for a rest and a cold drink before starting another such search.

It's an exhausting experience with most any kind of tackle. If you have a rod and reel, you can play the fish some distance out, then bring it back in again. But, with a cane pole and only about 25 feet of line, your area is pretty well defined.

So, this summer if you really are looking for a workout, get in touch with the Muchowich boys. They might just go along with you.

For me, I'll sit this one out . . . and watch you fellows.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

BEANED BY BAGGAGE

Wheeling around a corner, the bus driver cut so sharply that a suitcase fell out of the overhead rack. It landed squarely on the head of an unsuspecting woman passenger, inflicting painful injuries.

In due course, she sued the bus company for damages. At the trial, the company protested that it should not be held responsible for such an unlikely accident.

But the court felt otherwise and ordered the company to pay the woman's claim. The judge said it was part of a driver's job to handle his bus with full regard for the dangers of falling luggage.

As it does on all common carriers, the law imposes substantial responsibility on a bus company for the safety of the travelling public. This responsibility extends not only to the way the driver handles the bus, but also to the way the luggage is placed—either on the rack overhead or in the seats and aisles.

Consider this case: A passenger set his suitcase on the floor where it protruded more than two feet into the aisle. Another passenger coming through, stumbled over the suitcase and suffered a broken leg.

Here, too, a damage suit against the bus company was successful. The victim won his case on the ground that the suitcase had been in that obstructive position long enough for the bus driver—if he had been reasonably alert—to have noticed it and taken action.

Nevertheless, while the law demands due care of the driver, it does not expect the impossible. In another case, the driver did check the position of all luggage—above and below—before starting. Furthermore, he drove his bus with proper care.

Yet, unbeknownst to him, a satchel on the overhead rack contained a kitten. During the ride, the kitten moved, shifting the center of gravity and bringing the satchel crashing down upon a passenger's shoulder.

Under these circumstances, a court could find no basis for holding the bus company liable. The judge said he saw no way by which the driver, no matter how conscientious, could have foreseen and forestalled an accident like this.

"Thank you" letters from Virginia Shivers and Mary Sorenson were read. Mrs. Kinsey introduced her guest, Mrs. Pat Smith, owner of Anthony's Beauty Salon.

Minutes of previous meetings were read and approved. Mrs. Shivers, treasurer, gave a financial report. Recommendations of the executive board were read. Ruby Hart moved that the club sponsor a combination bazaar and rummage sale Aug. 9. Please bring rummage to Loyce Ogle's home, 1136 Oak Ave., Oak Terrace, or phone SO 4-5262 for pickup. The motion carried unanimously. A motion also was passed that the club make a contribution to the Chamber of Commerce downtown business district Christmas decorations fund.

The proposed budget was read, and with one correction, was adopted. A report was made on the district planning meeting held in Alice Sunday and attended by Mrs. Kinsey, Mrs. Hart, and Mrs. Shivers.

The club voted a "big thanks" to Mrs. Kinsey and Mrs. Morrison for the work on the yearbooks which were distributed to the members. Also, it was announced that Mrs. R. L. McAnally had made a gift of ceramic greenware for the bazaar.

The business meeting was adjourned for the members to open gifts and reveal Secret Pals.

An old millionaire invited his three sons and their wives to Sunday dinner. Once at table he told them he was getting old but had not made a will as he was disappointed that one of them had not made him a grandfater.

"I will give an extra $50,000 in my will to the couple with the first grandchild," he said. Then he bowed his head and asked the blessing.

When he raised his head and opened his eyes he found he was the only one left at the table.—Regina (Sask.) Commonwealth.

Fire Damages Small Home

A small, unoccupied home in the 1600 block of South Austin Street was badly damaged by fire Monday afternoon. Neighbors said the home formerly was owned by Joe Romero who now lives in Arizona. Although the cause of the fire was unknown, it was reported that children had been seen playing in the house on many occasions leading to the theory that they may have been playing with matches. Members of the Rockport Volunteer Fire Department quickly got the blaze under control and prevented the spread of fire to nearby structures.

remain on deer carcasses while on storage and shall remain with the carcass until reaching its final destination. Final destination shall be the permanent residence of the hunter or a commercial processing facility where the deer is finally processed. Antlers with tag attached shall be accepted as evidence of sex of a buck deer. A foreleg with an antlerless deer permit and hunting tag attached shall be accepted as evidence of a legal antlerless deer. This does not prohibit a hunter from skinning out a deer in the field and defines evidence of sex.

For the archer, the Commission authorized bow hunters to hunt all game birds and game animals with a longbow and arrow during the season provided therefor. Previously, the bowhunter had been limited to deer, bear, turkey, and javelina.

In all regulatory counties where there is a special archery season, the definition of a buck deer is the same as that of the regular gun hunting season in regulatory counties. "Any deer with a hardened antler protruding through the skin," except in the southeast regulatory district where a legal buck deer is defined as any deer with forked antlers.

Below is a wrapup of the hunting seasons and bag limits as set by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission July 9, 1969:

Whitewing dove seasons will be Sept. 6-7 in Brewster, Brooks, Cameron, Culberson, Dimmit, El Paso, Hidalgo, Hudspeth, Jeff Davis, Jim Hogg, Kinney, Kinney, La Salle, Maverick, Presidio, Starr, Terrell, Val Verde, Webb, Willacy, and Zapata Counties along the Rio Grande.

Mourning dove season will be Sept. 1 through Oct. 30 in the North Zone and Sept. 20 through Nov. 16 in the South Zone, except in those counties having a white-winged hunt where it will be Sept. 6-7 and from Sept. 20 through Nov. 16. Bag limit on both species will be 10 per day and 20 in possession. A bag and possession limit of both species will be permitted during the concurrent season. Shooting hours for dove will be 12 noon local time to sunset.

Teal season, all species, will be Sept. 13-21 with a bag of four per day and eight in possession. Shooting hours for teal will be sunrise to sunset.

This is a special early season. Teal may also be hunted during the regular duck hunting season to be set later.

Woodcock season will be Nov. 22 through Jan. 25 with a daily bag of five and possession limit of 10.

Snipe season will be Nov. 22 through Jan. 10, with a daily limit of eight and possession limit of 16.

Rail and gallinule season will begin Sept. 1 and run through Nov. 9. Bag limits on king and clapper rails will be 15 per day and 30 in possession. Bag limits on Virginia and sore rails will be 25 per day, 25 in possession. Bag limits on gallinules will be 15 per day and 30 in possession.

Shooting hours for rails, gallinules, snipe and woodcock are one-half hour before sunset.

population in balance with the habitat. Last year, Federal authorities estimated a population of 14,000 white-tailed deer on the Refuge or approximately one deer for every 3.3 acres.

E. A. Walker, director of Wildlife Services of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said approximately 14,300 white-tailed deer have been trapped on the Refuge since 1938 and restocked in areas of the State where suitable habitat occurred and brood stocks were needed.

"Essentially all white-tailed deer range in Texas has been adequately stocked he said. "Only a limited number of animals are needed each year for re-stocking purposes — not enough to influence the overpopulation on Aransas National Wildlife Refuge."

example of the kind of economic generating force which can be attracted into the community. Long-range prospects for growth in the manufacturing category do not appear to be bright at this time. The county's labor force is too small to attract labor intensive industries and the location of Rockport holds advantages only to those industries attracted by the resources of the area.

Many communities are seeking new industries, but the likelihood of attracting a large manufacturing industry into the county is about one to ten against. At the same time, competitive forces directed toward attracting industries into the Corpus Christi area will continue to place Aransas County in a relatively non-competitive position. As industries are attracted into the metropolitan area, some of the available labor force in Aransas County may find employment opportunities nearby. Long-range growth in the manufacturing sector may be a prospect as waterfront locations in the metropolitan sector become scarce.

Commercial Fisheries

Rockport has become an important base for commercial fishing operations in the various inland bays as well as the Gulf of Mexico. Fish landings have nearly doubled in the last five years from 1.3 million to 2.0 million pounds, with a total value increase from $263,711 to $491,185.

In the region, the important fin-fish catches include Drum, Trout, Flounder, and Sheepshead fish. Shellfish category includes crabs, oysters, and shrimp. Rockport is fortunate in having more varied fishing available than is the case elsewhere on the Texas coast. Oysters have become relatively difficult to find in south Texas because of silting conditions in the inland waters and in some instances, high salinity.

In recent years, there has been an upward trend in commercial fishing activities. One advantage is that there has been less pollution of local waters than in areas to the north. The major pollution problem facing Rockport fishermen is high salinity caused by oil field brine which is discharged as part of mineral production activities.

Mineral Resources

In 1965, value of minerals produced totaled $10.5 million. Employment in this sector of the economy amounts to about eight percent of the county total. In recent years, the size of payroll, value of shipments, and number of employees have increased substantially.

The most important minerals produced are natural gas, petroleum, distillates, and shell. Oil and gas production in the area is concentrated in fields north of Rockport in the Fulton and West Fulton areas (extending into Copano Bay) and on the north peninsula. Expansion and development in the oil industry are now concentrated in offshore locations. This is a favorable situation for Rockport because of convenient access to offshore producing areas. Oil production, in relative terms, is slowing even with increasing production. Gas production, however, should continue to expand. Aransas County produced 21.9 million cubic feet of natural gas in 1965.

Agriculture

Soil limitations necessitate careful conservation practices for agricultural use. The marginal character of farming activities in Aransas County is reflected in the statistics of the Department of Agriculture which show that land areas in farms is decreasing, causing the size of farms to increase and that the value of farm products in 1964 was one-third of 1959. Much of the present farming and ranching activity are located in the northern and western portions of the county.

Tourism, Recreation and Retirement

Since the 1890's, tourism and recreation have played an important role in the economy of Rockport and Aransas County. Early land promotions, following the opening of the railroad, led to the construction of several resort hotels. The protected setting on the gulf coast with the cool offshore breezes, beaches, hunting and fishing attracted tourists then, as these assets do today. A recent survey of tourists and recreation areas, conducted by the Coastal Bend Regional Planning Commission, identified the three most important attractions in the region as: fishing and hunting, climate, and swimming and water sports.

The Rockport-Fulton area was identified as one of the major tourist destinations in the region. The Regional Recreation Survey identified 32 major motel operations with a total of 575 rooms. While many of these are relatively small new motels, a full range of recreational accommodations have recently been built. Marinas and park areas, both state and local, comprise the most important public recreation facilities. Marinas at Little Bay Harbor, Key Allegro and Fulton represent almost one-third of all marinas in the Coastal Bend Region.

The importance of the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge is shown in attendance increases, from 24,000 persons in 1963 to almost 40,000 persons in 1967. This increase is at a rate somewhat greater than other intensively used parks operated by the Department of the Interior. The non-manufacturing sector in the local economy reflects the increasing emphasis on tourism.

Most winter vacationers in Rockport come from Texas and the Midwest. Last year, 354 visitors registered with the Chamber of Commerce with most coming from Minnesota, followed by Texas and Iowa. Winter visitors stay longer than summer vacationers. Most summer visitors come from Texas.

Retirement is also becoming an increasingly important aspect of the local economy. Current statistics which clearly identify the number of retirees are not available but will be shown in the 1970 census. In addition to retirement, the vacation home market in Rockport has shown major increases in recent years. Recent lot sales and construction of homes in the several new waterfront subdivisions have demonstrated clearly the market for improved resort areas adjacent to the attractive coastal waters. Increasing leisure time and numbers of individuals entering the retired category will add to the impact of retirement and second home residents.

Retail, Wholesale, And Selected Services

All of the money earned in Rockport, which is available for consumer goods is not spent in the county. On the other hand, some money spent inside the county comes from other areas. The tourist sector of the economy contributes significantly to retail trade volume, particularly in the consumption of food and purchase of small necessities. Statistics published by the Bureau of Census indicate that between 1958 and 1963, the total number of retail establishments decreased from 122 to 106. At the same time, the volume of sales was increasing from about $6 million to $7.5 million. Since 1963, significant increases will be measured, both in terms of the number of establishments and the volume of sales. This information will be available in the 1968 Census of Business.

Retail sales in the county reached nearly $8.8 million, according to estimates prepared by Sales Management's Survey of Buying Power, 1967. An evaluation of retail sales clearly illustrates the competitive position of the community in a large metropolitan area and the strong emphasis on tourism and recreation.

Wholesale trade increased substantially between 1958 and 1963, from $4.1 million to $6.5 million. At the same time, a new wholesale establishment was added. Receipts per establishment were less than half about $31,000 to $46,000. Despite this increase of about 50 per cent, receipts per establishment were less than half the Texas average of approximately $100,000. This indicates considerable value added growth potential for existing operations.

The selected services segment of the economy provides basic services in the community. In 1963, there were 163 persons occupied in selected service jobs. Hotels and motels accounted for 50 per cent and personal services 20 per cent. The remaining 30 per cent were divided between repairs, amusement, and miscellaneous services.

Family Income

Per capita family income in Aransas County, is below both the state and national averages. Current estimates of families with earnings below $3,000 per year indicate that since 1960 this percentage has reduced from 34.6 to 30.9 per cent. This income figure is almost one-third greater than the national average.

At the same time, those families with incomes greater than $10,000 are substantially below the state and nation. Retail sales statistics are explained in part by the income distribution pattern. Many of the jobs available in Rockport are not high paying positions due to the fact that a heavy reliance is on the service and non-manufacturing category as opposed to salaries in more industrialized communities. As tourism and recreation gain importance in the region and the economic cycle increases the need for tourist accommodations, these facilities will tend to create more jobs in the service categories which, with the proper facilities, can stimulate changes in the pattern of income distribution.

Recreation Ass'n. Happenings

The Rockport Youth Recreation Association has been busy the past few weeks renovating and redecorating the old Del Mar Grill building. This building is being leased by the Association as a future recreation center for youth of Aransas County. So far, members have repainted several rooms and worked on the plumbing and lighting fixtures.

Although progress has been made by several people, much remains to be done. Members are asked to be at as many of the work sessions as possible. Work sessions are from 6 to 8 p.m. on week days and all day Saturday.

The Association extends special thanks to the men who have been assisting in installing new plumbing and lighting. Also thanks to the Chas. T. Picton Lumber Co., for contributions of paneling and paint.

Those who wish to join the Association are encouraged to contact Jonathan Teague. Requirements include the payment of $1 membership fee and a signed statement from parents of those under 21. Anyone who has passed the 8th grade is eligible for membership.

TREASURY ASKS FOR SB RATE INCREASE

Fred Bracht, Aransas County Chairman for U.S. Savings Bonds, was today queried about the Treasury request to Congress to remove the interest rate ceiling on Savings Bonds and other Government securities.

According to Bracht, "If the legislative request is approved, the interest rate on Series E and H Savings Bonds will be raised from the current 4.25 per cent to 5 per cent, if held to maturity. The increase will be retroactive to June 1. All outstanding E and H Bonds would benefit from the new 5 per cent rate, beginning with the first semi-annual interest period which starts on or after June 1."

Series E Bonds will have their maturity period reduced from 7 years to five years 10 months. H Bond maturity will remain at 10 years. Both E and H Bonds would enjoy an automatic extension period. The present 5 per cent rate on Freedom Shares would continue unchanged until they are removed from sale six months after the proposed legislation becomes law. Authority to extend Freedom Shares at maturity is included in the Treasury's request.

DU Says Duck Outlook Is Bright

AUSTIN — Reports from Canada by Ducks Unlimited indicate the possibility of a good duck season this year.

The private conservation organization says although rainfall has been below average this year in the nesting areas, below average temperatures have held evaporation of potholes to a minimum.

"It now appears that we are looking at the most successful breeding season since 1952," says D.U. "The performance of the early nesters has been nothing less than spectacular, and with secure water there is no reason why the later-nesting species and renesters won't do well."

No Permit Needed For Special Teal Hunt

AUSTIN—Hunters will not need a special permit to participate in the nine-day September teal season which runs from Sept. 13 through Sept. 21.

All that will be needed is a Federal duck stamp, plus a valid Texas hunting license if you hunt outside your county of residence.

The teal season was closed last year while biologists evaluated the results of experimental teal hunts which took place the three previous years. Special permits were required for the experimental hunts so a survey could be made of the participants.

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q.—The exemption I have claimed for my wife's sister is being disallowed. Is there anyone else at IRS I can talk to about this besides the agent that examined my return?

A.—Notify the examiner that you do not agree with his disallowance of the exemption you claimed and request that a district conference be arranged. At this conference, your side of the story as well as the agent's will be reviewed on the basis of the facts and law involved.

If the tax in question does not exceed $2,500 for any year, no written protest is needed to obtain such a conference. The people who handle these conferences are specially trained and act independently of those examining your return. This helps assure an impartial review.

Q.—I want to buy my son a shotgun so he can go hunting with me this fall. Is it against the law to give him the gun since he's 16?

A.—Since your son is under 18, he is not old enough to buy a rifle or shotgun under the Federal gun statutes. However you can buy the gun for him.

Q.—When I sold my house I had to pay a penalty on my mortgage because it was paid off early. Is there any deduction for that?

A.—The penalty for paying off a mortgage before the due date is considered an interest charge. Include it with your other interest payments if you itemize deductions.

Q.—Why did you raise the rate on the highway use tax?

A.—The rate on this tax has not been raised. It is still $3 per 1,000 pounds for trucks with a taxable gross weight of over 26,000 pounds.

The weight schedule, however, was revised effective July 1, 1969, to reflect the fact that trucks are now larger and carry heavier loads than previously. Sept. 2 is the filing deadline for trucks being used on public highways during July. Form 2290 is used to file and pay the tax.

Q.—I want to get rid of some old checks and bills.

What ones should I keep for tax purposes?

A.—Records that support items on an income tax return should be kept at least until the statute of limitations expires. Ordinarily this is three years from the date the return was due.

Other records such as those on property acquisitions, capital improvements and the like should be kept much longer. For example, if you sell a house you bought in the 1940's, you should have the records to establish what it cost when you acquired it, and the cost of any improvements you made.

This and That
JOHN KINSEY

I took a short vacation, went nowhere, slept late each morning, didn't shave, took naps whenever I felt like it—and thoroughly enjoyed doing no work and following no set routine.

However, when it came time to get up early to report for work at the Pilot at 8 a.m. Monday, I really was anxious to get back into my regular schedule of writing articles for the paper from Monday to Thursday noon, and then spending the remainder of the week as manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

During this short vacation I enjoyed such things as watching the redbirds, titmice, cowbirds, mocking birds and sparrows enjoying themselves at our bird feeder and the bird bath.

Uninvited squirrels often hop

from a nearby fence to the bird-feeder and I chase them away, unless it's a baby squirrel, in which case I let him or her eat a little bit before I yell, "Get away, you varmit."

Also, I had time to do some relaxed thinking about things in general and my own situation in life, and I came to the conclusion—as I always do when I think of such things—that I'm a very fortunate guy and have much to be grateful for.

I have a sweet wife, two fine children who are happily married, two young grandsons who naturally are handsome and brilliant. My dad, approaching 89, is in good health and soon will be visiting here. My brother-in-law and sister-in-law, who love Rockport, have bought a home here and will move here as soon as they sell their home in Wisconsin. I enjoy my work and I am fortunate to have some very good friends here who overlook or put up with my shortcomings.

One thing that kept occurring to me over and over again was that I should do a lot more to make these folks happy, beginning with my wife.
