Reporters See Tito's Forces In Yugoslavia

(Editor's Note: The following stories concerning Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), Yugoslav Partisan leader, are the result of a Cairo military headquarters arrangement whereby Stoyan Pribichevich, American correspondent of Time and Life magazines, and John Talbot of the British news agency Reuters, were chosen by lot to make a trip into Yugoslavia.

(Chief Petty Officer G. E. Fowler of the U. S. navy, formerly a Los Angeles cameraman, and Sgt. Max Slade of the British army film photographic unit, also made the trip as photographers.

(An interview with Tito obtained by the Associated Press, which submitted written questions and received his personally-written replies, has been blocked by censors of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson's Allied Mediterranean command since its submission on April 30. This decision was made despite Wilson's assurance last January, when he took over that command, that he did not intend to impose political censorship.

(Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, sent a message to General Wilson May 4 asking for clearance of the interview obtained by Correspondent Joseph Morton, then at Bari, Italy, or a statement on why it was suppressed. General Wilson has not replied.

(The story by Pribichevich was distributed to the American and British press in London by the British ministry of information).

SOMEWHERE IN YUGOSLAVIA, May 8—(Delayed)—A few weeks ago a high Allied official in the Mediterranean zone expressed doubts as to whether certain territories of Yugoslavia could be called "liberated" in the strictest sense of the word.

Well, I entered the Partisan territory safely 10 miles behind the fighting line. I traveled 25 miles on a Partisan railroad. I passed Partisan patrols along the road. I watched a procession of two dozens of German Ustachi and Chetnik prisoners and I visited the last session of the anti-Fascist youth congress.

All this in three hours. This was liberated enough for me.

Upon my arrival in Yugoslavia on a vast mountain field under a starry sky I met Maj. Randolph Churchill (son of the British prime minister), a number of Partisan officers and soldiers and groups of peasant men and women with ox carts to carry my luggage.

A captured German "people's car" then took me, my British colleague, John Talbot, and General Sreten Zujevich, "The Black," a member of Tito's (Marshal Joseph Broz) supreme staff, for a ride through the night. Behind us a town had been bombed the previous morning.

The automobile soon surged uphill along a fantastic serpentine route through the wild Bosnian countryside where a unit of the Prinz Eugen Elite Guards had been annihilated by the Partisans a little over a year ago.

For 12 years I hadn't seen my

Nurse Absolved In Infant Deaths

NORWICH, Conn., May 15—(AP)—There was no criminal negligence involved in the deaths of five infants at Lawrence and memorial hospital, New London, from boric acid mistakenly administered as dextrose, Coroner Edward G. McKay reported today.

The deaths occurred in April and were traced to boric acid powder which had been placed in a jar which usually contained dextrose used in preparing formulas. The coroner's report today stated that he had been unable to determine who had placed the acid in the jar.

The report exonerated Miss Paula Machnick, the hospital pharamcist.

Man Is Charged With Threats Against FDR

WASHINGTON, May 15—(AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted Harold R. Mason, 37, on a charge of making threats against President Roosevelt.

U. S. Attorney Sylvan Schwartz, who presented the case, said Mason, an extra railroad passenger conductor, frequently had been a member of President Roosevelt's special train crews.

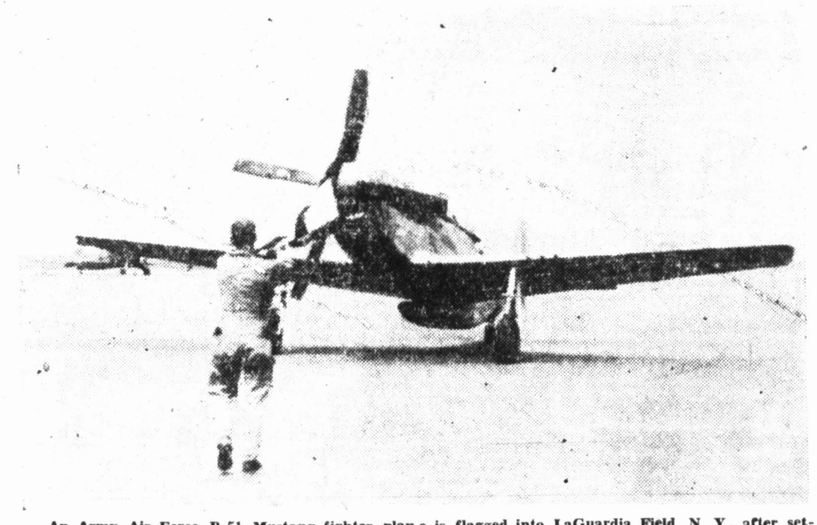

Mason, arrested May 6 in Philadelphia, was alleged to have said in the presence of others at his home that "I and 19 others have a tommy gun waiting to get a crack at the president."

More Room Needed For Dem Convention

AUSTIN, May 15. (AP)—A proposal to switch the Democratic state convention May 23 from the state senate chamber to more spacious quarters was advocated today by Mayor Tom Miller.

Miller said he spoke for Travis county pro-Roosevelt leaders and the proposal had found favor among a dozen other pro-Roosevelt persons in other sections of the state.

His plan contained other elements including one requiring all participants in the state convention to pledge support of all Democratic nominees in the general election.

Other developments in the preconvention picture included:

Opening of headquarters in an Austin hotel by pro-Roosevelt forces with Fred B. Isely, former assistant attorney general, and Mrs. Ouida Ferguson Nalle of Austin in charge.

A formal statement from Mrs. H. H. Weinert of Seguin, co-chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, that she will support the party's nominees for president and vice president regardless of whom they might be.

Miller brought his multiple-pointed proposal to Governor Coke R. Stevenson, who suggested that Miller make it known to leaders among forces favoring an uninstructed delegation to the party's national convention.

The governor agreed that it might be advisable to transfer the state convention from the senate chamber to spacious Gregory gymnasium on the University of Texas campus or to a downtown park.

Miller said it was apparent that some counties would send large delegations to the state meet.

He declared further he offered his "stabilization" plan in order to assure a full hearing to all sides and to maintain order.

He conceded that it might be possible for the two factions to agree on a keynote speaker in advance of the convention and thus prevent a possible fight.

He proposed that candidates for temporary and permanent convention chairmen pledge themselves to

Clothing Union Raps 'Scuttling' Of Price Control

CHICAGO, May 15—(AP)—The general executive board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America asserts that "congress has scuttled the president's program for economic stabilization."

The board, in its report to the CIO union's convention which opened today, declared a combination of Republicans and anti-administration Democrats "has defaulted on every vital domestic need for the establishment of a secure and united home front which will give maximum support to our armed forces on the battlefront."

As a result, the board said, "living costs have continued to mount while wages remain stabilized under the little steel formula, which now has become outmoded and unrealistic in the light of the failure to halt price increases."

Sidney Hillman, president of the union and chairman of the CIO political action committee, discussing the announcement of Rep. Dies (D-Texas) that he would not seek re-election, said "there is no truth to reports that our committee has spent $250,000 in the second district of Texas (Dies' district). We haven't spent seven cents in Texas."

Hillman, who has been subpoenaed by the Dies committee said he would appear before it May 23. Asked if he would take with him records of the political action committee, he replied "we'll have to determine that."

Hillman said he expected the union to act on a fourth term endorsement for President Roosevelt and added:

"I hate to prophesy, but I would not be surprised if the union would join the demand for a fourth term."

Judge Dismisses Conspiracy Case Against Chaplin

LOS ANGELES, May 15—(AP)—U. S. District Judge J. F. T. O'Connor today dismissed a federal indictment alleging that comedian Charlie Chaplain and three other conspired to deprive 24-year-old Joan Berry, the actor's former protege, of her civil rights.

The dismissal was granted upon motion of U. S. Attorney Charles H. Carr, who told the court he had received written instructions from the justice department in Washington to request the action.

Thus cleared with the British-born screen veteran were Thomas Wells Durant, his sportsman friend; Police Capt. W. W. White, of Beverly Hills, and Robert Arden, radio commentator. The indictment grew out of Miss Berry's arrest on a vagrancy charge in suburban Beverly Hills in January, 1943, and the issuance of a suspended sentence on condition that she leave the city.

Chaplain was acquitted last month of a federal mann act indictment alleging that he transported the red-haired film aspirant to New York and back in October, 1942, for immoral purposes.

Charges against two other defendants in the conspiracy indictment, police Lt. Claude Marple and police Matron Jessie Winifred Reno, of Beverly Hills, recently were dismissed. A third, police judge Charles J. Griffin, was declared by Judge O'Connor to be immune from prosecution because Griffin imposed the suspended sentence upon Miss Berry in the course of his official duties.

Are You Working For Victory, Or Waiting it Out?

Are you working for victory or just waiting the war out?

That was the appeal the War Manpower commission made today as it called on hundreds of Pampans to fill in the gaps in carbon black, gasoline refinery, and machine shop production lines. (See advertisement on Page 3).

The idea is that you are not doing your share unless you are either in the armed forces or in an essential industry.

Simply because there are no aircraft factories in Gray county is no reason for you to hold back. There are carbon black plants here that make a product used in the tires that keep our jeeps, personnel carriers, trucks, and artillery rolling; gasoline refineries that produce the oil for automotive equipment; machine shops that make vital parts for the equipment that will blast Hirohito off the map.

This means that if you want to serve your country you needn't travel thousands of miles to do it. The chance to serve is right at your door.

As each day brings invasion closer the need for workers grows greater. Invasion does not mean overnight victory; there is still a long road ahead.

You can shorten that road and bring the men in the armed forces home sooner, if you do your share.

Persons interested in taking employment in vital industries should call today, at once, at the U. S. Employment service office, 206 N. Russell.

New Type Plane Being Produced

PHILADELPHIA—(AP) — A new welded stainless steel cargo plane, the Conestoga, is in full production at the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company plant, the navy announced today.

The two-engine, 68-foot aircraft with an upsweep after-body giving it the appearance of a flying whole, is the first plane in which welded stainless steel has been used to a large extent, the navy said.

Doors on opposite sides of the fuselage permit launching of paratroops and supplies simultaneously from both sides in contrast to conventional one-door transports.

The cargo compartment, 25 feet long, eight feet wide and eight feet high, is made possible by a unique manner of attaching the wing to the fuselage without passing the wing through the fuselage in the customary fashion.

The ship is capable of carrying 10,400 pounds over a range of 650 miles, but its maximum range can be increased to 3,500 miles with auxiliary fuel tanks.

Two 70-horsepower engines give it a cruising speed of 165 miles per hour. Total weight fully loaded is 33,000 pounds.

The Conestoga can be converted to troop transport or ambulance use, and an ambulance and jeep both can be carried inside.

Japs Pierce Loyang From 3 Directions

By RICHARD C. BERGHOLZ
AP War Editor

Large Chinese forces have launched an offensive from southwestern China to regain an important portion of the old Burma road and to join Allied troops driving across northern Burma. A juncture would reopen an overland supply route to China.

The Chinese high command announced today U. S. 14th air force planes supported the drive which opened May 10 and carried the Chinese troops across the Salween river in Western Yunnan province at many points.

Coincident with China's announcement of the western offensive, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Allied headquarters in Burma revealed patrols have stabbed within 22 miles of Myitkyina in the closest land drive to that key enemy base since the drive aeross Northern Burma towards the Burma Road began.

Far to the northeast, a Chinese counter-attack cracked Japan's newly-won grip on the Peiping-Hankow railroad, but 75 miles west of the railroad Nipponese forces are reported to have fought their way into the historic city of Loyang from three directions.

Chunking said Chinese troops captured Suiping on the vital north-south railroad and have surrounded a Japanese force at Chumatieh on the railroad five miles south of Suiping. The invaders completed their conquest of the last 150 mile segment of the supply line last week.

Led by 200 tanks, Japanese stormed Loyang from the east, north and northwest but the Chinese high command said the enemy is being held despite heavy casualties on both sides.

In Northern Burma, Chinese troops under Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell surged through a small village and joined other Allied troops about 10 miles north of Ka-

Forrestal Gets Unanimous OK For Naval Post

WASHINGTON, May 15—(AP)—The senate naval affairs committee acted unanimously today in recommending senate confirmation of James V. Applause greeted Forrestal's appearance and the entire committee arose in special tribute.

The committee acted on his nomination to succeed the late Frank Knox, a few minutes before his arrival, thus reversing the usual procedure under which a nominee appears to answer any questions prior to committee action.

Priest Submits To Suspenion Order of Bishop

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 15—(AP)—Rev. Stanislaus Orlemanski, for 22 years pastor of our Lady of the Rosary Church, remained is seclusion today, apparently reconciled the bishop's suspension which greeted him on his return home from a flying "mission to Moscow."

Indication he had accepted the suspension order imposed by bishop Thomas M. O'Leary came yesterday when the 54-year-old Polish-American priest failed to appear at four masses.

Bishop O'Leary imposed the canonical penalties after Fr. Orlemanski failed to obtain permission to leave his church for the trip to Moscow and a conference with Russian Premier Josef Stalin. He was ordered to go to a monastery for an indefinite period and was stripped of his priestly privileges for the interim.

Rev. George A. Shea, Chancellor of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Springfield, disclosed that bishop O'Leary had received a personal letter from Fr. Orlemanski and added:

"It would be fair to assume that it said that Fr. Orlemanski would acquiesce to the bishop's orders."

Rev. Shea said the terms of the punishment forbade the Polish-American pastor to say mass, administer any of the sacraments or to take part in any of the public functions of the church.

Earlier Fr. Orlemanski charged that he was being "crucified" for his church after his unprecedented Moscow visit from which he brought what he announced was a signed agreement of Stalin to permit freedom of religion in Poland, and Ukraine and all the Russias.

Fr. Orlemanski said he would appeal to the apostolic delegate in Washington, archbishop Amleto Cicognani, or to the Holy See in Rome for a review of bishop O'Leary's action.

In Washington, however, the apostolic delegate said that he had not received an appeal, and issued a statement saying that Fr. Orlemanski, "like every other diocesan priest, is directly subject to his bishop."

2,000 Germans Quit, Americans Make Gain

By RICHARD McMURRAY
Associated Press War Editor

The reborn army of France has advanced seven miles in Italy and driven a "significant breach" into the crumbling Gustav line with their American and British comrades driving steadily forward in hard, continuing fighting all the way from Cassino to the sea, Allied headquarters announced today.

Half a dozen towns fell. Many more imposing mountain peaks, more important than the battle-reduced villages, were stormed. Prison cages filled with 2,000 German prisoners. The Americans were attacking important Spigno, 72 miles from Rome, after driving four miles north and west of Minturno.

The British and Indians deepened their Rapido river bridgehead to 2,000 yards and plunged ahead into the Liri valley toward Rome. The dead city of Cassino was in growing danger of being outflanked. Ausonia fell to the French, and it was there that the Gustav line had been gashed anew.

From Britain, where Gen. Eisenhower's western invasion masses were crouched for a decisive stroke at Hitler, American heavy bombers attacked military barriers in Northern France in force. Waves of medium Marauders struck targets in the same sector. Overnight, British Mosquitos bombed Cologne and military targets in France and the Low Countries.

The Germans struck back sharply at the British coast, probably aiming at invasion shipping.

Over the weekend, American heavy bombers were said officially to have virtually closed the Brenner Pass leading from Germany into Italy, while 1,000 planes ripped up railyards and airdromes in the Po valley of Northern Italy. In a month of ceaseless attacks from Britain and Italy, Allied aircraft had flown an incredible 90,000 sorties against Germany and deposited a staggering 130,000 tons of bombs.

The Russians were regrouping for their approaching campaign through Poland and Romania. Heavy Soviet bombers kindled great fires in the Polish rail center of Brest-Litovsk, attacked Polotsk in White Russia and Narva in Estonia. German troops on Dnestr rive rbridgeheads in the south were thrown back with hundreds of Nazis killed.

The German command announced a withdrawal of "several kilometers" south of Cassino in the eighth army sector of the flaming Italian front.

The French troops, fighting magnificently in the best traditions of their army, were driving through some of the hardest terrain in Italy

Senate Rejects Debate-Limiting Cloture Petition

WASHINGTON, May 15. (AP)—The senate rejected today a debate-limiting cloture petition which would have halted a Southern Democratic filibuster against the anti-poll tax bill. The action indicated the measure will be shelved.

The vote to invoke cloture, which would have shut off all debate in 96 hours, was 36 ayes to 44 nays, far short of the necessary two-thirds of those voting.

Proponents of the house-approved bill outlawing collection of the poll tax in eight Southern states as a prerequisite to voting for federal officers planned to meet immediately to decide whether to abandon present efforts to pass it.

The senate rejected a cloture petion by a tally of 37 yeas, 41 nays in 1942 when the Southern group conducted a filibuster on a similar bill.

Without debate limitation, leaders said there was no possibility of bringing the bill to a vote over the determination of the bill's opponents to "talk it to death." Senate procedure, unlike that in the house, where the bill passed overwhelmingly, permits unlimited debate.

In a last-minute, futile appeal for adoption of cloture, Majority Leader Barkley had declared that without debate limitation, "this bill can never be voted on."

Senator Clark (D-Mo) interposed his view that it would be "perfectly disgraceful" for the senate to be locked in a filibuster on the anti-poll tax bill "at a time when our troops overseas are about to embark on the greatest adventure of all time."

Barkley asserted that cloture in this instance would "not be a method to tie the hands of the senate, but to untie them."

Senator Pepper (D-Fla) likened Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's statement advocating abolition of poll taxes to his advocacy of "international collaboration," and asserted both declarations were "to little, and too late."

Asserting that he favored cloture and passage of the anti-poll tax bill because the issue "goes to the integrity of the institution of democracy," Pepper said he disclaimed "those who make political capital" out of the drive for its abolition.

Sufficient Vote Is Seen For FDR

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

With Oklahoma Democrats leading off today in the expected selection of 22 convention delegates favoring a fourth term, voters in California and New Jersey primaries will put the final seal of approval tomorrow on a first ballot nomination for President Roosevelt.

To clinch matters even further, Delaware and Montana Democrats will name small delegations tomorrow which leaders predict will be for the president. The state committee has recommended that Delaware's votes be instructed for a fourth term and Montana leaders predict the same procedure for that state's 10 votes.

Washington added 18 to the Roosevelt column over the week-end and by Tuesday its total is due to stand at 677 delegate votes pledged and claimed, as against 589 needed to nominate.

In the California primaries, a 52-vote slate favoring the renomination of Mr. Roosevelt and of Vice President Wallace will be chosen. Republicans will pick 50 delegates nominally pledged to Gov. Earl Warren, the GOP convention keynoter, as a favorite son.

New Jersey Democrats will elect delegates to cast 34 votes, with a fourth term slate selected by Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and his aides opposed by only four unpledged district delegate candidates. New Jersey Republicans will elect 35 delegates, with party leaders backing an uninstructed group that is opposed by 13 candidates openly favoring the nomination of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Montana Republican leaders also favor an uninstructed delegation of eight from that state, with Dewey and Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio showing strength among the candidates.

California's primary nominations for the senate seat now held by Democrat Sheridan Downey and for 23 members of the house of representatives may give some line on the relative strength of the two major parties in that state. Cross filing is the rule there, so the candidates are entered on all tickets. The last time he ran, Senator Hiram Johnson (R) won five party nominations and was unopposed in the general election.

CONSIDER SPAIN'S 'NEEDS'

Claimant to Spanish Throne Asks Franco To Step Down

LONDON, May 15 — (AP) — Don Juan, claimant to the Spanish throne, was understood today to have predicted the collapse of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime with an Allied victory over Germany, and to have demanded Franco's resignation and the restoration of the monarchy to forestall "terrorist extremism."

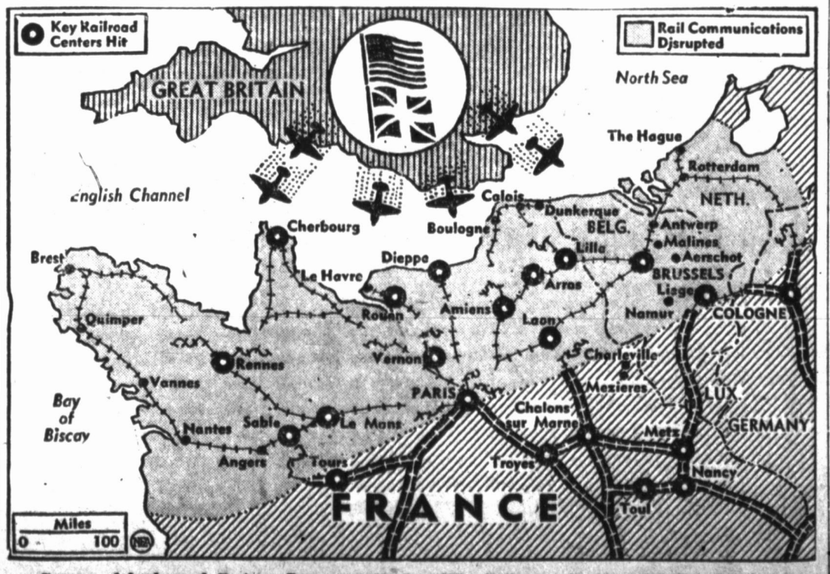

This renewal of the pretender's demand to take the throne his father left in 1931 was reported to have been made in a letter written Feb. 14 from Lausanne, Switzerland, where the prince has been living in exile.

Copies of the purported letter, addressed to Don Alfonso de Orleans, Don Juan's representative in Spain, have circulated widely in Spain and also have been received in London.

Don Alfonso, who was a general in the Spanish air force, now is reported to be living in semi-exile at his palace in Cadiz instead of his normal residence at Seville.

After the collapse of Fascism in Italy and again in January of this year, Don Juan urged Franco to step down, according to the letter, but the latter's reply "showed an absolute lack of understanding of the true needs of Spain."

'COMMUNICATIONS DISRUPTED'

First Lord of the Admiralty Is Example of Britain's Democracy

A. V. Alexander—sketched by S. J. Woolf

By S. J WOOLF
NEA Staff Correspondent

LONDON, May 15—Britain rules the waves, but the Board of Admiralty rules Britain's navy. At its head, a position in some ways resembling that of secretary of the navy, is a smallish jolly fat man who bears the title of First Lord of the Admiralty. If anyone had any doubts as to the democracy of England, a visit with its First Lord would soon dispel them. True he sits in state in a large and dignified room surrounded by enormous paintings. Yet A. V. Alexander (his Christian name is Albert, but few people know it) looks more lige a kindly grocer than one of the r"uling classes."

We in America boast that rail splitters may become presidents. Here in a land proud of its kings and queens, its lords and ladies, a poor youngster who left school at 12 to go to work dons a naval cap and receives salutes from admirals.

ONCE A PREACHER

Almost 40 years ago, when he was 19, he joined the Western Cooperative society. The cooperative movement, which enables its members to enjoy the saving resulting from mass purchasing, has made greater strides in England than in America. A. V. Alexander is largely responsible for its growth. He is an extremely hard worker and intense in his devotion to his ideals. While still a comparatively young man he became theLabor Cooperative member of parliament from Sheffield as well as parliamentary secretary of the board of trade. He also was a Baptist lay preacher.

Some 15 years ago, Ramsey MacDonald, who was prime minister, sent for him. He thought he was going to be named president of the Board of Trade. Instead he was asked to become First Lord of the Admiralty.

NO NAVAL TRAINING

He knew little about the sea at the time, but with characteristic thoroughness he soon showed that he was fit to be the "ruler of the king's navee." Higher officers had sneered at the appointment, but the men below welcomed it. One of the first things he did was to introduce a plan by which secondar yschool boys were provided with financial aid so that they might attend Dartmouth, the English 'Annapolis.

Opposing old line officers, he held out for the construction of light cruisers and had his way. He was a leading figure in the naval disarmament conference in London and became very friendly with Henry L Stimson who was the representative of the United States.

Since then, except in one election, he has been a member of parliament. There he not only displayed his vast knowledge of naval affairs but he also was one of the most formidable and outsponken critics of non-intervention.

Accordingly, when Winston Churchill became prime minister no one was surprised when he asked Mr. Alexander to take his former position as First Lord of the Admiralty.

Senate Republicans Asked to Show Hand

WASHINGTON, May 15 — (AP)—Senate Republicans were challenged by Senator Kilgore (D-WVa) today to show by their support of a debate-limitation motion Monday their party's position on the House-approved bill to ban the collection of state poll taxes as a prerquiluite to voting in federal elections.

Kilgore declared in a statement that if the Republicans vote solidly for cloture the necessary two-thirds could be obtained to cut off a filibuster-fed debate at the end of 96 additional hours.

'INTERNATIONAL BRIDGE' OVER RIO GRANDE

Shapely Gwen Johns of Harlingen, Texas, forms an "international bridge" between Texas and Mexico across the Rio Grande, shrunken to a trickle by a long drought which was unbroken May 4 while floods plagued other section of the Lone Star state. Rio Grande Valley residents have been asked by civic officials to use water sparingly.

Gov. Bricker Can Have Bullet That Killed Kinsman

AUSTIN, May 15—(AP)—If Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio is looking for a bullet which, fired during the Texas War of Independence, killed one of Bricker's kinsmen he probably can have it.

This is the advice of L. W. Kemp of Houston, president of the Texas State Historical association, who says he can direct Governor Bricker to the bullet which is in Houston.

Here's part of the story:

When Gen. Sam Houston ordered his army to retreat from Gonzales some of his men refused. They were then assigned to guard the town and its approaches.

In the fight that followed one of Gen. Santa Ana's soldiers discharged his gun and the bullet hit a sycamore tree, richocheted and struck a young soldier named Bricker in the temple, killing him.

The bullet was extracted and put away in his personal effects.

Kemp says the same bullet has been displayed in Houston and if Bricker will contact him the Ohio governor probably can obtain it.

Memo to Troops On the Homefront

NEW YORK—A recent "newsmap" for soldiers, prepared by the Army Information Branch of the Army Service Forces, carried the usual charts plus a special message: It read:

"MEMORANDUM FOR THE ARMED FORCES
"Subject: Home Front Production

"1. Attention is invited to the facts and figures on home front production submitted herewith for your approval.

"2. The Numbers mean that the United States is turning out more equipment than all the rest of the countries in the world combined.

"3. The vast numbers are only part of the story. They are the result of he sweat and prayers of millions of men and women on the production line. That line now includes boys and girls working after school, housewives who place their children in well-supervised day nurseries while they are at the plants, and men and women who have come back out of retirement to bring the end of the war closer.

"4. The job on the home front is to produce, transport and distribute. Most of the folks at home do that job with the same loyalty and energy as you fight overseas."

Photographs illustrated such production statistics as: 424,000 pieces of artillery made from January 1, 1942, to January 1, 1944; 1,160,000,000 rounds of ammunition turned out in 1942 and 1943; 9,000 planes last March.

Social Security Representative Will Visit Pampa

The representative of the Amarillo Socisy Security Board office who has been meeting employers, wage earners, and others requesting information for assistance concerning social security at the United States Employment Service office on the first and third Wednesday of each month for several years, will be in Pampa next Wednesday.

The representative will assist employers, employes, and others who wish to ask specific questions or who desire information on the filling out of Social Security forms, obtaining account numbers, or establishing claims for old-age and survivors insurance.

Persons wishing information or future appointments, but who are unable to see the representative when he is in the city, may write or call the board's field office, located at 324 New Post Office building, Amarillo.

Texas Oil Output Hits Record High

AUSTIN, May 15—(AP)—Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson said today Texas has hit an all time high both in the number of wells and actual production of oil.

The present number of oil wells is 101,022, which last week produced 2,126,000 barrels of oil each day, said Thompson.

Anzio 'Sheets' Are Published on Time!

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WITH THE AEF IN ITALY, May 5 (Delayed)—(AP)—That old newspaper city room gag about "hey, Joe, go out and bump somebody off; we need a banner for the Bulldog" probably comes as near being true on Anzio beachhead as any spot in the world.

About 30 news sheets are printed on the beachhead by the men who do the fighting. They range from dailies to weeklies and bi-weeklies, have volunteer staffs, go to press on underground (literally) mimeograph machines in the deaf of night and are delivered from foxhole to foxhole in time for the morning coffee.

They have crazy names such as "Beachhead News," "Sea Horse," "Red Devil," "Braves Bulletin," "Flacky Wacky" and the like, and the stories often are written by the men who have just returned from the missions about which they're writing. They lay down their rifles and turn to the typewriter.

Some worldwide news is picked up by monitoring the commercial news broadcasts on beachhead radios—often in foxholes so close to the front that the listener must wear earphones because a loudspeaker would be audible across No Man's Land.

Majority of the news, however, is strictly of a local nature and they say things about one another which would give any libel lawyer a field day. Their sport stories vary from snipers' contests to lizard and beetle races on exclusive private tracks between foxholes and their society yarns consist largely of cracks about so-and-so faking illness in order to get sent to the hospital where such-and-such a nurse works.

Post-War Agency Reunion Is Urged

AUSTIN, May 15—(AP)—Postwar reunion of the state employment service and the Texas unemployment compensation commission is recommended by the commission as an efficient means of providing for readjustment of workers.

In areport to Governor Coke R. Stevenson the three-member commission said:

"It may have been that the experiment of operating the employment service (now part of the United States employment service) independently as a war agency was warranted; this is to be doubted."

The report said a survey indicated that the maximum potential claim load for jobless benefits in Texas when the war ends is 476,541. If maximum benefits were paid each claimant it would cost $114,369,840. The Texas unemployment benefit fund now totals $122,963,806 and approximately $20,000,000 will be added by the end of the year.

Currently the interest from the fund pays all claims.

The commission said that although it was impossible to predict the maximum claim load it felt that plans should be made for handling a top load in order to avoid delays in payment of compensation to individuals who claim it after they lose jobs in war industries which will close down at the end of hostilities.

Calmly, Valiant Flier 'Goes In'

A NINTH AIRFORCE FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, April 24 (Delayed)—(AP)—Thunderbolt Pilot Lt. John F. Hayden, severely wounded in a raid over Munich and knowing he was doomed, calmly told his comrades over the radio telephone: "My arm is shot off—I'm going in."

"Going in" meant that he was going to crash.

Other pilots reported they saw the plane of the 23-year-old hard-riding flier from Newton Center, Mass., crash into a hillside.

"It was one of the most courageous things I ever heard of anybody doing," said his group commander Col. Morton Magoffin, of San Antonio, Texas, who piloted one of the quartet of Thunderbolts that engaged six Messerschmitts in a running fight.

Hayden gained recognition in March when before strafing a French locomotive he swooped down and fired a warning burst in front of the engine, risking fire from a nearby flak tower, until the engineer jumped out. Then he completed the job.

YOUNG PINES PINED FOR SHOWER BATH

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—The Southern forest experiment station recently rigged up an "outdoor shower bath" to solve the problem of growing pine-tree cuttings.

"For years," says E. L. Demmon, director, "foresters in this country and abroad had been sloshing pine cuttings in assorted harmones and other exotic plant foods. Nothing seemed to help them take root.

"Not long ago we hit on the idea of setting up a system of overhead water sprays, keeping the cuttings drenched. It clicked."

As a result of the experiment the South may some day boast super-producing turpentine trees. Selected trees yield up to 10 times as much turpentine and rosin as ordinary pines, Demmon said.

A Laborite member has told the British Parliament that Great Britain "has no intention of abandoning the British empire to satisfy a certion section of the American press." To those Americans who fear that this country is about to become an adjunct of that empire, there may be some comfort in the knowledge that even the "sovereignty jitters" are operating on a reverse lend-lease basis.

THE BEST COVERED WAR IN HISTORY!

AP photographer William Allen representing the AP and the Wartime Still Photographic Pool taking pictures on the front lines in Italy shortly before he miraculously escaped injury when a bomb blasted Allied press headquarters at Anzio beachhead.

NEVER before has war been reported like this in word and picture. Associated Press correspondents and photographers—the greatest staff ever to cover a war—are telling the real, human, complete story. They live the story they tell, in front lines. The story of the infantryman, the boy just out of high school, is the story they tell. Just as they report the interview with the general. For instance, during a recent four-week period, The AP service of regional war pictures from overseas passing through the New York office alone, mentioned more than 1,000 different hometowns of soldiers, sailors, and marines. Moving from one area of violent battle to another, these correspondents continuously undergo most extreme hazards and hardships to keep the news and pictures coming through. Their achievement is without parallel or precedent!

Flying Manpower

Yielding to criticism of its plan for turning loose 11,000 civilian flying instructors, the Army Air Forces has offered pilot commissions or other posts commensurate with their abilities to these trained flyers. The news is welcome, even though it took a little public indignation to bring it. This is no time to squander trained military manpower, with hard fighting, hard flying and heavy casualties ahead.

Bootleggers Must Pay Taxes, Too

JACKSON, Miss.—(AP)—Bootleggers in "dry" Mississippi are receiving printed tax-form "invitations" to pay a tax of 10 per cent on their gross sales of whiskey — illegal in the state. The new law, enacted by the legislature, aims to discourage black markets by imposing a tax equal to 10 per cent of the gross sales, retail or wholesale, of any commodity prohibited by law.

The words "whiskey" and "Bootlegging" do not appear in the text of the bill, but Gov. Thomas L. Bailey admits it is aimed directly at the moonshine trade.

Men who return the tax forms being sent them by the state tax collector could find themselves in a rather uneasy situation, but there is an unwritten and unspoken "gentleman's agreement" that bootleggers who pay the tax will not be prosecuted for possession by the State government.

This, notwithstanding that payment of the tax "would not relieve the taxpayer from further prosecution in the courts and would not legalize the sale of whiskey," authors of the bill said.

How Big Is the WLB?

A long simmering dispute in the War Labor Board between public and labor members on one side and industry members on the other has finally boiled over. The industry members, in angry dissent, have asked that the majority's custom of granting maintenance of union membership be submitted to a court decision.

This request is timely, quite apart from the dispute in question, and should be granted. For the majority's defense of its actions in this case displays a rather swollen idea of the WLB's function.

Public and labor members announced that the granting of membership maintenance has been common practice for two years, and is now a "national policy." They also said that their solution was the only one for the "unreconcilable demands" of management for an open shop and unions for the closed shop.

But the WLB was not created to formulate "national policy." It is a body with limited, loosely defined powers. Its purpose is to expedite efficient war production by settling such disputes as defy usual means of arbitration. Its decisions are not "national policy" except in the board's own announcement. They are not the law of the land.

There is also something very arbitrary in the majority's excuse that union security was the only solution. The excuse would have been just as apt if the decision had gone the other way, since it was only a question of giving the nod to one side when either would give in.

Of course, the majority members have some better excuses for membership maintenance than that, and they used them. But the minority has some sound arguments against membership maintenance, too. These are debatable, and should be debated.

But in the flimsiest support of their stand, that of the "only solution," the majority members admitted of no debate. They made the statement, and that was that.

The WLB's history indicates that both labor and industry members are biased. They doubtless hope to evolve labor policies that will endure after the war. If the majority decision had been for the open shop, the labor members would have been justified in yelling just as loud as their industry colleagues have done.

But the point is that the WLB is not a policy making body. If its members have forgotten that, it is well that the courts should now define its specific powers.

Getting Ready

Back home from Italy, Lieut. Ernest Childers and Sgt. Charles (Commando) Kelly gave the press in Washington an account of the heroic soldiering that won each of them the Congressional Medal of Honor.

What they said was made all the more inspiring by the modest, straightforward, undramatic way in which they said it. And perhaps the most memorable statement of all was the off-hand remark with which Sgt. Kelly finished his story: "That was about all of that battle. We went back and got ready for the next one."

Lieut. Childers and Sgt. Kelly are on 21-day leave. When that is over they'll go back and get ready for the next one. After that there will be another next one and another, until the war is won or as long as they can help to win it. There isn't much time off for fighting men, even when they're heroes.

That might be something to bear in mind when Saturday sunshine or Monday hangover tempts us to forget that most of us here have a small part in "getting ready for the next one," too.

Prize for Price

Byron Price, director of censorship, is richly deserving of the special citation given him by the Pulitzer Prize committee for his creation and administration of the newspaper and radio codes of wartime censorship. The reasonable and sympathetic attitude of Mr. Price, a newspaper man, toward professional newspaper needs and problems have been in decided contrast to the arbitrary, closed-corporation attitude of Army and Navy censorship.

In fairness to Mr. Price it should be noted that there was some criticism of him in connection with the unfortunate publication of correspondence between Miss Vivien Kellams and a Baron von Zedlitz. Mr. Price made an announcement deploring this "leak" only after a congressional investigation had been threatened.

However, it has since been made known that he was investigating the violation of confidence that made this publicity of private correspondence possible some weeks before Congress took any action. As usual, Mr. Price was being quietly efficient and making no noise about it.

The Nation's Press

F.D.R. VS. A.P.

(The New York Daily News)

The above string of initials means that President Roosevelt is against the Associated Press and wants to bring it under his thumb as completely as the federal bureaucracy. The A.P. is holding its 84th annual meeting in New York City now, and has resolved — wisely, we think — to "resist to the utmost every effort to bring about the government control of news."

Such government control is threatened by the Government's current anti-trust suit against the A.P., which in fact is a cooperative news-gathering agency and not a monopoly. The United Press, International News Service and various other news-gathering agencies have grown and prospered alongside the A.P. An A.P. franchise is not essential to a newspaper's success. The New York News, for illustration, built up New York City's largest newspaper circulation before it was able to get an A.P. franchise.

The reasons for the A.P. suit make an interesting study in the nature of the President, who wants to run things and to ruin persons or organizations that he cannot run.

The suit traces back to Marshall Field III, grandson of the Marshall Field (1835-1906) who built up in Chicago one of the world's greatest department stores shrewdly bought Chicago real estate and promising stocks, and died leaving a fortune of between 100 and 200 millions. The fortune descended to his two grandsons, Henry Field and Marshall Field III. Then, on Henry's death Henry's share went to Marshal Field III—who recently, on reaching age 50, collected the last installment of the colossal wad, estimated at upwards of $100,000,000 and as high as $250,000,00.

Mr. Field was brought up and educated in England (Eton and Cambridge), because his mother, after widowhood in Chicago, married an English army officer. When World War No. 1 came along in 1914, he returned to the United States. When we got into that war, Mr. Field joined up and served honorably.

After the war, he served a number of years as an international playboy. Along in his forties, he became mentally uncomfortable, and like a good many other wealthy New Yorkers at last consulted a psychoanalyst. If you want to see what psychoanalysis is all about, see Ginger Rogers' current smash-hit picture, "Lady in the Dark" (now in its tenth week at Paramount), derived from Gertrude Lawrence's smash-hit stage play of the same name.

[illegible] analyst, the Russian-[illegible]ov Zilboorg, seemingly released in Mr. Field the conviction that his true mission in life was to angel radical newspapers.

Mr. Field accordingly (in 1940) bought the New York PM, a peculiar publication believed by some to be a newspaper. In 1941, supposedly urged by high New Dealers, Mr. Field started the morning Chicago Sun to fight the anti-New Deal Chicago Tribune, then Chicago's only morning newspaper. Two of Chicago's afternoon papers, the Daily News (Col. Frank Knox) and Times, were pro-Roosevelt. We forget whether the Hearst paper had been for Roosevelt or Willkie—a tough choice.

It was after the A.P. rejected Field's application for a franchise for the Chicago Sun, on protest by the Chicago Tribune as permitted in the A.P. by-laws, that the A.P. anti-trust lawsuit was brought.

PM and the Chicago Sun are currently battling for a fourth term for Roosevelt. Their chief tactic is to insinuate that any one who disagrees with Mr. Roosevelt in any particular is a seditionist. Presumably by election day they will be calling such persons actual traitors. It is possible that Mr. Field hopes to be rewarded, if Mr. Roosevelt is reelected, with the U. S. Ambassadorship to Great Britain; the customary No. 1 payoff for big campaign contributions and other help. Should Mr. Field get his plum, he would be warmly welcomed by the British Government.

The A.P., in taking its fight to the Supreme Court, has a tough prospect, we surmise, in view of the fact that seven of the nine Supreme Court justices are Roosevelt appointees.

To A.P. members and other newspaper people now convening in New York, we would like to make this suggestion: Subscribe for the duration of this campaign to three New York papers—the Communist Daily Worker, PM and the New York Post, published by Mrs. Dorothy Schiff Thackrey.

These papers are 100 per cent for a fourth term for Roosevelt, and their daily output best exemplifies the New Deal strategy and tactics in this campaign. Their circulations, true, are not large. But they are the papers to read if you want to see how a highly vocal group of Europe-minded persons centering in New York and Washington is trying to bludgeon the American people and press into complete subservience to the will of Mr. Roosevelt.

Common Ground

By R. C. HOILES

"I speak the pass-word primeval, I give the sign of democracy, By God I will accept nothing which all cannot have their counterpart of on the same terms."
—WALT WHITMAN.

Our Youth Subjected to Corrupting Influence

No wonder so few of the youth of our land believe in principles. No wonder so many of them are socialistic and believe more or less in a planned economy. They have been subjected to a corrupting influence in the high schools and state colleges.

While the average high school or state college professor probably believes he is a man of principles, when asked to explain the impersonal rules of conduct by which he is willing to live, he is nonplused. I have never found a single high school professor who advocated any impersonal rule of conduct. In other words, they are without principles.

Since most people learn by imitating rather than by reasoning things out, it is little wonder that the youth of the land under such environment believe in a planned economy or a dictator form of government. It is a result of the treatment we have given them.

State School Students For Roosevelt

This is evident from the results of a poll made in one of the classes of Fullerton, Cal. Junior college. Out of 20 students in the class, 15 were for a fourth term for Roosevelt.

I hear it said in defense that many of the teachers are Republicans. Men do not have to be men of principles in order to belong to the Republican party. The Republican party was in office for years after the Democrats in 1913 and 1914 had established laws that would lead to collectivism. Because few of the Republicans believed in the principle that all men are equal before the law, they did not repeal the class legislation.

How could a teacher in state schools believe in principles when he is practicing that might makes right, when he is living by the fruits of the sword rather than persuasion, when he is not required to teach efficiently enough so that people will voluntarily raise his salary but he must be supported by the sword? In such an environment the youth of our state have little chance of coming to believe in impersonal rules or laws.

The columns, of course are open for any teacher in state school or any defender of public education to write an impersonal code of conduct consonant with the practices of state schools which force the individual to pay for the educational system whether he thinks it is undemocratic, unethical and un-Christian.

Creating Purchasing Power

A cause of much confusion is that the government can create purchasing power or values.

Because government can transfer purchasing power by the sword from one group to another, many people draw the conclusion that the government has increased purchasing power. Thus confused, they demand more of this transfer of purchasing power.

But this transfer invariably reduces production. Purchasing power comes from one thing only—production of something that people want produced. Of course producing something that no one wants does not increase purchasing power.

A free market enables people to know what others want by the prices they are willing to pay. Prices are a democratic method of telling workers what the consumers want.

If people would get it into their heads that government never has and never can create purchasing power or values, a great deal of our confusion, unemployment and recession in a constantly increasing living standard would be eliminated.

It will be a terrible thing when that long-awaited land invasion of the European continent begins, with its full panoply of three-dimensional warfare. Terrible for the British and Americans and their Allies. But especially terrible for the arrogant nation that has chosen to live by crime, in what would otherwise have been the most civilized era of human history.

It would be unwise now or hereafter to yield to weak sentimentalism, after so many millions have fought and died to make a decent world. Unless this great crime is adequately punished, and the warrior-nations responsible for it are then committed to the ways of peace and held permanently in check, our modern civilization with all its promise will go the way of Babylon and Nineveh.

Men in the perilous war services can take it, but they crave recognition for the deadly risks they take and the sufferings they endure. And be it said to the credit of the man directing this war that the recognition now comes more promptly and liberally than it did in former wars.

Lieut. General W. H. Simpson, commander of the Fourth Army, tells the story of the more generous use of medals for heroism. It harks back to a war college meeting in 1937, at which Gen. George C. Marshall approved the new plan.

He maintained that it was not only fair, but very good policy, to give immediate recognition in the field when soldiers rendered distinguished service. The old procedure was slow and disappointing. The present procedure follows the method of Napoleon, who insisted that "the greatest reward of a soldier is recognition by his leader, but the recognition must be prompt."

This is particularly true of men wounded in brave actions. It helps to ease the pain and disability.

This is a time of unlovely terminology. The language may be growing more precise and efficient, but it loses smoothness and melody.

More and more, for example, words tend to end in "ee," which is never a pleasant sound. Thus, instead of "enlistments" and "inductees." Such terms probably come from the lodge-rooms, but that does not necessarily recommend them for general purposes. Then we have a deluge of such modern, manufactured words as "deferree" and "selectee" and "trainee" and "returnee" and so on.

Most of these newly adopted terms are unnecessary, and merely clutter up and break down a once-beautiful language. Chaucer and Shakespeare would doubtless be horrified if they could see and hear what we are doing to their ancient "well of pure English undefiled."

But then, as a philosophic college professor says, "it always was breaking down. And probably nothing can be done about it.

War Today

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

As we await the break of D-day it's natural that one of the burning questions should be how long it will take the Allied war machine, after ith as hit top speed, to grind out this final phase of the European war and administer the coup de grace to Hitler.

We are facing a terrific struggle. We should be foolish not to recognize that.

Having acknowledged this, it's legitimate to note that many observers incline to the theory that once the invading forces have overcome the terrible initial hazards and have established themselves, the Hitlerites will be about ready to accept the inevitable and surrender. This idea is based on the belief that the Nazis will quit short of allowing the fight to be carried onto German territory.

Speculation over the prospects of Nazi surrender would be dangerous if we didn't at the same time recognize the certainty that the invasion of western Europe is going to produce one of the bloodiest battles of history. The only thing which will force a collapse of the enemy will be conviction that there's absolutely no hope of gaining more favorable terms by hanging on.

The Prussian militarists know that they already are beaten. They're making a long-shot gamble that by protracting the conflict they can weaken Allied determination and thereby secure better terms.

The Hitlerites are going to fight invasion with everything they have—and that represents tremendous striking power, although it's far from what it once was. And we shouldn't treat lightly the German claim that they have devastating secret weapons, for they may have.

Hitler's army is generally figured total about 3,000,000, which is a formidable force. However, the fact remains that the German Reichswehr, big as it is, just isn't strong enough to cope with the Allied armies.

Despite Hitler's great strength, he no longer is able to defend adequately the entire perimeter of his European fortress.

Veritas, the British military commentator, concludes that the manpower situation "clearly indicates the inevitability of German's eventual collapse in the field." However, he believes the Nazis will make a supreme effort to throw back the invading Allies, "at least to effect a stalemate in the west before the Russians get at their vitals on the other side."

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

ARGUMENT — President Roosevelt's pet power projects, including the Tennessee Valley Authority, have got in the hair of the very Southern Congressmen who have been the special supporters of the experiments. Within the last few days several complaints against lopsided management of these enterprises have provoked rebukes on Capitol Hill.

The House Flood Control Committee recently amended its 1944 bill so as to place in the War Department the regulation of the waters in all dams built with Federal funds. The Administration bloc fought the proposal because of the unvoiced fear that conservative Army officers might show less sympathy for its theories than the David E. Lilienthals and the Ben Cohens.

But Chairman William M. Whittington of Mississippi explained that the change was not intended as an attack of Government ownership and operates per se. It was designed solely to insure the conduct of these ventures in the manner provided by Congress, and not in accordance with the visionary ideas of economic reformers or the selfish desires of private corporations.

Although both sides carefully refrained from exploding their real views, the argument threatened to rip open a vital question involved in the public power program—a phase which will eventually result in a more critical attitude toward these New Deal schemes.

NEGLECTED—Whenever Administration spokesmen have urged Congressional approval of vast power developments—TVA, Bonneville, Grand Coulee etc.—they have stilled opposition by emphasizing their importance to irrigation, navigation and flood control. And the strategy has worked in every instance.

But the Grand River Authority, Chairman Whittington explained, had so mismanaged the Pensacola Dam storage plant that it was partially responsible for the 1943 inundations in Oklahoma which destroyed lives and property. Although this particular structure was not built for flood control purposes, the private corporations operating it has agreed to reserve space for hoarding excessive rainfall.

The Authority and operators were so anxious to manfacture electricity, which produces cash revenue, that they neglected the other aspects.

When the reservoirs were needed to contain the rampaging waters, there was no remaining storage space. Under the Whittington amendment, which was adopted, the War Department will be counted on to exhibit more zeal for the preservation of human life and establishments than for revenue or self-aggrandizement.

PRICE—Another argument in favor of Federally built and financed power plants has been that they would lower the costs of industrial and agricultural products, especially fertilizers. But almost every Senator below Mason and Dixon's line is up in arms because of the failure to carry out this pledge.

Ammonia nitrates sold below the Potomac and Ohio Rivers are manufactured by TVA and Army ordnance centers in the South. Similar chemicals distributed north of that boundary are produced by Canadian companies and U. S. Government establishments. This division of sales territory was fixed by the War Production Board to insure equitable distribution to farmers everywhere.

But the TVA output generally costs more than the stuff sent down from the north. A grower in Kentucky, for instance, frequently pays from two to seven dollars a ton more than his neighbor across the line in Ohio.

Southern legislators, including White House favorites like Claude Pepper of Florida and Lister Hill of Alabama, have tried to ascertain the reason for the differential from every agency involved—WPB, OPA and War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes. But so far they have been unable to discover why the two monopolies should have such different price structures.

DOMINATION—The Senate controversy over the proposal repeal of the poll tax is pure political farce, and every participant knows it. It is designed to win votes for both proponents and opponents of the reform, with hardly a sincere thought being given to the pros-

SENATOR TRUMAN DOUBTS G.I.'S WORTH

By PETER EDSON

Early in the period of national defense, Gen. George C. Marshall suggested that a new division be set up in the Office of the Inspector General of the Army to keep an eye on construction and procurement programs. Realizing this was to be a far more expensive war than the last one, appreciating that some mistakes would be made, it was considered essential to keep a close check on the spending of billions of dollars in public funds.

The result was the creation of a new Procurement and Construction Inspections division in the Office of the Inspector General. The question now is how well the inspections job on this effort has been done.

In the insistence on speed, with accomplishments counting first and economic efficiency second, it is perhaps only natural that some public money slipped through the fingers and down the drains.

There were congressional camp construction investigations aired throughout 1941. A $515,000,000 program for building 229 camps actually cost $818,000,000, according to a Senate report.

Then came a series of ordnance plant construction programs that did not make nice reading. After inspecting the Wolf Creek Ordnance Plant project at Milan, Tenn., the Senate's Truman Committee reported that the War Department had failed to conduct an adequate investigation simultaneously with construction, and that it even refrained from making a thorough check of matters referred to it. The subsequent report by the Office of the Inspector General was considered by the Truman Committee to be an atempt to whitewash conditions there.

On the other hand, one high Army officer contends that the inspector general's report was a thorough investigation and its report one of the best ever prepared. The report was not made public, however, and was not even turned over to Congress, as all reports of the inspector general's department are considered confidential and not public documents.

NO CONFIDENCE, SAYS TRUMAN

After the inspector general had worked on several matters referred to the War Department by the Truman Committee, and after several of the officers, considered by the Truman Committee to be incompetent bunglers, had been promoted, Senator Truman informed the War Department that his committee could have no confidence in the investigations of the inspector general.

That was pretty rough treatment, but then, after the ordnance plant disclosures, there came a series of congressional investigations of aircraft procurement, truck procurement, the Canol oil pipeline and refinery project in Canada and Alaska, expenditures over and above appropriations for Pentagon building construction, air transport, leasing and purchase of hotels for Army use. All these congressional disclosures certainly did not add to public confidence.

In setting up the procurement and construction division in the Office of the Inspector General, it was given only a policy-making asset a pattern for inspections to or made the inspections itself, but to set a pattern for inspections to be make the inspections itself, but to set a pattern for inspections to be made by others. It inspected the inspectors and inspected their reports. The small staff of 16 officers, now headed by Brig.-Gen. Leo J. Ahearn, could not possibly inspect all the war plants, all the contracts.

ONLY A REFERRAL AGENCY

Even when the P. and C. division did find something wrong it could not make a full investigation itself. Instead, it could only refer its findings to the investigations division of OTIG to be run down.

In the case of civilian personnel or private contractors being at fault, evidence uncovered by investigations of the inspector general's department was of necessity turned over to the FBI or to the war frauds unit of the Department of Justice for prosecution.

Dozens, hundreds, perhaps thousands of cases involving both civilians and military personnel have been turned up by the inspector general's department and turned over to proper authorities. Many were small fry. But too many of the big fish got away, and that raises the question of whether this cloistered, grand jury-like procedure in the inspector general's department is adequate to deal with a vast multi-billion dollar procurement program.

THE STORY: Captain Azaraski, commandant of Niji Prison in Yokohama; Captain Baldwin of the RAF, presumably interned but actually a Japanese agent; and Tilda Courtright, American missionary, are planning a coup of some sort. Their plot involves Lieut. Link Belt and Norma Greer, interned Americans. Link is suspicious when he and Norma are taken on an automobile ride with Azaraski and Courtright.

* * *

THE INN ON THE HILLTOP

XV

"YOU can open the curtains now," Azaraski said.

Link snapped up the window curtains and looked out. He was surprised to discover there was nothing more alarming around them than some really nice rural Japan scenery. He did not know what he had expected.

"See," said Courtright. "Now aren't you ashamed?"

Link grinned sheepishly at Norma Greer. She smiled, also sheepishly. "A horse on us," Link said.

"I guess so," Norma agreed.

The road was hilly and winding and picturesque. Link rolled down the car windows to let in the breeze and the scent of the flowers.

"Not bad," he said.

Norma leaned back in the seat and drew a deep breath. She was trying to relax, Link knew.

Norma said, "The early fall of the year in Japan is the most pleasant of the seasons."

"Link, you've heard about the cherry blossom time in Japan, from March through May," she said. "But I'll bet nobody has told you about the fall. The fall is the best. Look at those trees yonder with the bright foliage, the maples. And the flowers, the chrysanthemums."

She sighed. "Norma is right about the fall being the best. The autumn herbs, the susuki, or Chinese miscanthus, the campanula and the flowering kikyo, and the volcanic mountains beyond the fields of lespedeza. And the chrysanthemums! The gay chrysanthemums! Link, have you ever seen the lovely chrysanthemum dolls they make?"

"Dolls?" said Link.

* * *

COURTRIGHT nodded. "Glorious dolls. Dolls made of chrysanthemums, on wire frames, amazing little figures. The dearest things. And they arrange them in tableaus of traditional or historical significance." She leaned forward and tapped Azaraski's shoulder. "Captain, could we find a chrysanthemum doll for Link?"

"Sure, you bet," said Azaraski. Link grinned at Norma.

"I want to be corny," he said. "I want to say: I'm sure you are more lovely than any chrysanthemum doll."

"Say it, Link," said Courtright. "Go ahead, say it. Take it from me, flattery is never corny to a woman."

"You keep out of this, Courtright," Link said. "Wasn't I doing all right?"

Norma was laughing. She was radiant.

"By gosh, I believe you're right," said Link to Courtright. "Look, she's wonderful when she's laughing, isn't she?"

He thought: There, I did a nice job of talking the girl out of her uneasiness. Now, if somebody would just convince me that everything is as innocent as Azaraski says it is.

A half-hour drive through pleasant scenery brought them to a little native inn. The inn stood on a hill, in a colorful bank of flowers.

The inn was completely ancient Japanese in atmosphere. It was like a different world. It was like getting on the street car in Amsterdam, riding half an hour, and getting off and finding that everyone was wearing wooden shoes and the startling peg-bottom Dutch pants.

"Care to see it?" asked Azaraski.

"Sure," Link said.

Norma offered, "I'll show it to you, Link. I want you to see it."

Azaraski jumped out of the car. "Wait, folks." He went back to the soldiers in the army machine. He spoke to them. The soldiers saluted and walked off in different directions with their rifles to surround the inn grounds.

"Now enjoy yourselves," said Azaraski, coming back.

* * *

LINK and Norma strolled to the inn, and a little Japanese man, all age and wrinkles, met them at the entrance. He had two pairs of slippers in his hands, and he bowed almost to the floor and hissed politely.

"We want to look over the place," said Link.

The old Jap didn't understand English, apparently.

"Chotto mitai mon desu," said Norma Greer.

"Nice job of sprechen sie Jap," said Link. "You must have been over here a spell yourself."

"Half my life in Japan and China," Norma admitted.

"Hey, what's he on his knees for?" Link meant the little old Jap.

"The inn furnishes the slippers," Norma said. "Take off your shoes. They would damage the floor mats, and they want the mats kept clean, too. The mats serve as the dining table as well, you know."

The little old Jap put the slippers on them, then backed away, bowing, and disappeared.

"Now, we can make ourselves at home," Norma explained. "I was here once before, before the war. What would you like me to show you?"

Link grinned. "How would it sound," he asked, "if I said I don't give a hoot about all the Japanese inns."

"Swell, Link!" For a minute, she looked as if she wouldn't mind if he kissed her. "What'll we do?"

"Let's go out and look at God's sky," Link said. "At least I'm not yet to the point where I distrust the sky."

LINK'S STORY

XVI

THEY passed through the inn and entered a Japanese garden, a delightful place, exquisite from many years of careful attention. It was open enough that they could see the sky, and the sky was fine.

There were clouds in the sky. Not many, a few, and they were tight clouds like wads of damp cotton. Link watched them.

"Mind if I tell you about me?" he asked Norma.

"I wish you would."

Link nodded. "Lincoln Belt, his short-short story: Born on a Missouri farm. At the age of 12, he had a race horse named Jones, and the hayburner never won a race, but he taught Lincoln how wonderful it is to have hope. Link's life has been rose-colored ever since. Eventually, following the pleasant road that his life has followed, he spent six years learning to be an osteopathic physician. And he practiced a year in Kansas City."

"Girls?" Norma asked. With what was more than normal curiosity, Link hoped.

He grinned. "I told you last night. I'm the Great Dane, remember? Interesting to look at and to scratch or pat on the head, but nothing they want at the breakfast table. In other words, they always think I'm kidding."

She examined his face. "You're grinning. But I think it has bothered you, hasn't it?"

"A little, at times. . . . Well, on short occasions, a lot," he admitted. "But not as a whole. And now I'm glad of it." He looked at Norma with obvious appreciation.

"With very little provocation, you begin to roll your eyes," she said.

"Sure," he said. He wasn't embarrassed.

"Were you an aviator?"

Link shook his head. "No, a radioman. I was radioman on a bomber which messed up an airplane factory on the edge of Tokyo. We caught a lot of flack, took a pasting in fact, and two motors conked. After that, we were a sitting duck for the Zeros. They got us down back in the hills."

"What about the rest of your crew?" she asked.

* * *

A GRIMNESS came to Link's face, the cold knife of memory. "If you're enjoying this interlude," he said, "that part of the story might spoil it for you."

"If you'd rather not tell it."

"I don't mind. I was thinking of you."

"Tell me, Link," she said quietly. "I think it might be an important part of knowing you."

He said, "Well, here it is: It was bad. The pilot set us down in a bunch of pieces, which was good work. The blister gunner and the bombardier were done for. The pilot died in my arms."

He watched the clouds for a moment. "No one had ever died in my arms before. I stayed with the pilot. He was a wonderful guy. I stayed with him because I was a doctor. The rest of the crew stood around for a while, but I told them to leave, and they did. I was the ranking officer then. We had orders to scatter, anyway, to confuse the enemy. So they left me with the pilot."

Link's throat became tight. He reached down and plucked a blade of grass and made it into a reed between his thumbs and started to blow it, then realized what a vulgar thing the sound would have been, and he was almost ill.

Norma touched his arm with a gesture of sympathy. "It must have been bad."

"Strange," Link said. "I think strange is a better word. The pilot knew he was going to die. But he could talk clearly and sanely until the very last. He was great. He asked me to do some things for him, for his folks and some friends. They were simple things. He had me repeat what I was to do and say two or three times, the exact words to use. Then he closed his eyes and that was that."

Link threw away the blade of grass, threw it away grimly and violently, but it fluttered only a few inches from his fingertips and fell to the ground.

"Then I spent four days crawling around Japan on my hands and knees. Then some Japs with spears caught me. The spears were fishing spears, and I was very put out at being captured by anybody with spears. I got the usual going over, which is something incidentally, then they brought me to Niji Prison."

* * *

"WHAT about the rest of the bomber crew?" Norma asked.

"Never heard of them," Link admitted.

There was a silence. Link was frowning at the tall pines on the hills around them and realizing that, although he was for the moment depressed, he was glad he had told her that part of his story.

"Link," Norma said. "Link, what about Azaraski?"

"Azaraski!" he exploded. "Do we have to mention him!"

"Was he at Niji Prison when they first brought you there?" Norma persisted.

"Holy cow!" He gave her a look of astonishment. "You've been pumping me."

"A little," she admitted. "What about Azaraski?"

"Come to think of it, he came to Niji about a month after I did."

"Then you could have been the reason he came there."

"Could be," admitted Link. "But I don't see what makes me so important a guy. You know what? I think you would make an excellent detective. I don't know whether I'm so enthusiastic about that quality in a woman. I'll have to think it over."

"Well, Azaraski's coming to Niji after you did is a point."

"Sure it's a point," Link said.

Classics In Cotton

(From Saks-5th Avenue.

NEW YORK—Cotton step out in style this summer and team up with crepe, lace and jewels, take tailoring once reserved for woolens, use print designs once confined to silks, and make "big date" suits and gowns that go dancing or march up the aisle.

Stylists given cotton a fling at sophistication by merging gingham jackets with crepe skirts, like the one that you see at the left. Under the natty fitted jacket of brown, blue and white checks, which is worn with a brown crepe skirt, there is a bandeau-bra that is an invitation to the sun. But all that's intended to show when the jacket is on is the bra's brown lace-trimmed bow, which you can plainly see.

Many cotton prints imitate their betters—silk, shantung and jersey —in print. What puts the impersonation across are subtly colored designs set against dark silky surfaced background cotton and dark paisley-type patterns used in contrast with light background cottons of unusual textures. Even upon close examination none but the eagle-eyed can tell which is which.

But there are plenty of cotton prints—classic checks, polka dots, neat figures, splashy folrals, and all kinds of stripes—that keep their cool cotton look and achieve sophistication through styling. Gingham, the darling of the crop, does this in the red and white checked modified dirndl, shown right. Destigned especially for "big dates" it is extravagently beruffde at neckline and cuffs, banded and bow-tied with green grosgrain ribbon. Jewelled studs button up the waist.

Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. Walker Are GFWC Directors

AUSTIN, May 15—Two Texas club women have been named to the Board of Directors of the General Federation of Women's clubs, according to word received here by Miss Ethel Foster, president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs. They are Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins of Eastland, who will head the GFWC department of Fine Arts, and Mrs. Julia Waring Walker of Plainview, who has been named chairman of the committee on scholarship and fellowships. Both Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Perkins are past presidents of TFWC. Mrs. Perkins was recently named to the presidency of the Texas Federation of Music Clubs.

These appointments were made by the GFWC executive committee, composed of newly-elected officers: Mrs. LaFell Dickinson of Keene, N. M., president; Mrs. J. L. B. Buck of Virginia, first vice-president; Mrs. Hiram C. Hougton of Iowa, second vice-president; Mrs Oscar A. Ahlgren of Indiana, recording secretary; Mrs. Volney W. Taylor, of Brownsville, Texas, treasurer; and three appointive officers. Incidentally, Mrs. Taylor, a past TFWC president, is the first TFWC member to be named to national office in 25 years.

Declaring that world peace is debetween the nations of the world, Mrs. Dickinson, new GFWC president, announced this week that the policy of the two and a half million women of the Federation for the next three years is that of "consultation, cooperation, kindness and tolerance."

In rallying the women of America for the home front program of GFWC, Mrs. Dickinson said: "We cannot hope to achieve a lasting peace among the nations of the world without cooperation; we cannot establish our own nation upon a sound economic footing without the cooperation of all our people. The great welding force that can accomplish this aim is the woman power of America—and this is our primary responsibility, at this time, to work to this end. The women of our nation must resist the efforts of those who try to divide nation from nation, group from group, neighbor from neighbor, Christian from Jew."

Pointing out that the women of America are already mobilized for war on the home front, Mrs. Dickinson said that this effort must be even further accentuated. "Every woman," she said, "can and should accept her responsibility for the steps which will insure a total victory and a lasting peace."

Ann Kivlehen And Lt. Hamilton Are Married May 11

Special To The NEWS.

MIAMI, May 15—In a single-ring ceremony Miss Mildred Ann Kivlehen of Miami and Pampa became the bride of First Lieutenant Bill Hamilton of Commerce, Tex. Nuptial vows were spoken Thursday May 11, at high noon, in the parlors of the First Methodist church, Pampa, with the Rev. E. B. Bowen, pastor of the church officiating.

As the party entered, Lohengrin's "Wedding March" was played by Miss Adelia Jane Craig, of Miami, who also played "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," softly, during the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Miss Nita Davis of Pampa, and was given in marriage by her brother, Norris Kivlehen. Bert Hamilton of Amarillo, cousin of the groom was best man.

Mrs. Hamilton was dressed in a two-piece aqua suitw ith white accessories and wore a corsage of red rosebuds. Miss Davis, who was a college friend and roommate of the bride, wore a white jersey street dress, and also wore a corsage of red rosebuds. The bride's mother wore a gray wool suitw ith navy accessories.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Bess Kivlehen, belongs to one of the Panhandle's pioneer families and was reared in Miami. She graduated in 1942 from Miami high school, where she was most active in dramatics, athletics and all school activities. She was drum major of the high school band, football queen, and F. F. A. sweetheart during her high school years.

After graduation she attended West Texas State Teacher's college, and for the past year has been employed in the Public Relations office at P. A. A. F.

Lt. Hamilton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamilton of Commerce. He graduated from high school in that city and attended East Texas State Teacher's college for three years ebfore enlisting in the army. He is stationed at Childress and is in the Quartermaster Corps.

Only a few close friends and relatives were present for the occasion.

Lt. and Mrs. Hamilton left immediately after the ceremony for a short trip to Albuquerque and Santa Fe, New Mexico, after which they will be at home in Paducah, Texas.

Memorial Services Held By Canadian Eastern Star Group

Special To The NEWS.

CANADIAN, May 15—Members of the Canadian Chapter No. 227, Order of Eastern Star assembled in the Masonic hall last week for the annual memorial service for members deceased during past year.

All officers of the chapter took part in the ceremony which honored two charter members deceased last September, Mrs. Sarah Rathjen a past matron, and Sam Isaacs, the first worthy patron of the chapter. Isaacs also was a charter member of Canadian Lodge No. 885 A. F. and A. M. and the worshipful master of the lodge for the first five years.

A white cross bearing the names of two deceased members was placed on the altar, each officer fastening a white carnation to it.

Mrs. Thelma Carver is worthy matron and Mr. Harry Rathjen is worthy patron. Mrs. Violet Mathers, a past patron, delivered the eulogy to the deceased.

A convulsion is a terrifying spectacle in either child or adult. No matter how frightened you are, it is important that you keep your head and do the right thing.

A convulsion is a symptom of something else—not a disease itself. It may be caused by a head injury, by some internal disturbance, or by an infection such as tetanus (lockjaw) or meningitis. Babies or small children may have convulsions as a result of digestive disturbances, nutritional deficiencies, injuries of infections of any kind.

Symptoms of convulsions are muscular twitching, first of the face, and later of the arms and legs, or the entire body. Eventually the body may become rigid. The face is usually pale at first and then becomes bluish or purple. The eyes are rolled up, or fixed and staring.

A convulsion usually passes rather quickly, but is serious enough to require a doctor's attention. It is very important to learn as soon as possible what the cause is and to start treatment to prevent a recurrence.

GIVE PATIENT WARM BATH

Without waiting for the doctor to come, place the patient in a warm bath. Be careful that in the excitement you do not burn him. The water should be tested by the elbow. An older child who cannot easily be placed in a tub may be stripped and wrapped in a blanket wet in water as hot as you can comfortably bear it on your elbow. Cover this with a dry blanket to keep the heat in. Either the bath or hot pack should be continued until the patient relaxes and the jerking stops. Then dry the patient carefully and put him to bed.

After the bath, give an enema of clear warm water, or of warm salt water made with one teaspoon of salt to one pint of water. When the enema is finished, keep the child as quiet as possible until the doctor sees him.

• YOUR GARDEN

Many garden failures result from trying to grow sun-loving plants in shaded areas. Few perennials will bloom in the shade; where no sun shines the choice must be made from a few native plants which bloom early in the spring, before the foliage appears on the trees. With the exception of Bleeding Heart, Trillium and the native Violets, none of these are spectacular.

Planting in the shade requires well drained soil, enriched with humus and fertilizer. Prepare the soil prior to planting with 4 pounds of 4-12-4 fertilizer per 100 square feet and a 1 to 2-inch layer of peat or compost. Water liberally, and fertilize each spring. Plants demanding acid soil, such as rhododendrons and mountain laurel, will require the working in of sulfur, 3 pounds per 100 square feet, into the soil.

Evergreen plants which tolerate partial shade are: Hemlock, Pachysandra, Inkberry, Lily-of-the-valley Bush, Rhododendron, Japanese Yew, Pachistima, English Ivy, Evergreen Bittersweet, Mountain Laurel, Mahonia, Periwinkle.

Low growing trees which tolerate partial shade are: Flowering Dogwood, Red Bud, Sweet Bay, Amur Maple, Buckthorn, Cornelian Cherry.

Tall shrubs which tolerate partial shade are: Viburnum Lentago, Euonymus Atropurpurea, Spice Bush, Viburnum Americana, Redtwigged Dogwood, Rose of Sharon, Viburnum Lantana, Witch Hazel.

Low shrubs which tolerate partial shade are: Five-leaved Aralia, Yellow Kerria, Chenault Coralberry, Morrow's Bush Honeysuckle, Snowberry, Mountain Currant, Japanese Quince, Regel Brivet.

Perennials which tolerate partial shade are: Bugleweed, Sweet Woodruff, Trillium, Globe Flower, Japanese Anemone, Snakeroot, Virginia Bluebells, Sedum, Columbine, Foxglove, Bergamot, Lily-of-the-Valley, Bleeding Heart, Plantain Lily, Ferns, Forget-Me-Not.

Annuals which tolerate partial shade are: Petunia, Tuberous-root Begonia, Torenia, Browallia, Cornflower, Nicotiana, Calendula, Sweet Allysum.

WHY telephones are hard to get

The telephone business is deep in the war and getting deeper all the time.

The farther American forces advance, the more they need switchboards, wire, and telephones—the more they need the other electrical weapons being made now in telephone factories.

Yet folks at home want more, too. Since the National Defense program started in 1940, we have supplied not only the needs of army, navy, and war producers but have given service to hundreds of thousands of others as well. In all, the Bell System has increased the number of telephones in service by over 4½ million.

The equipment to do this came from reserves that are about used up. No more can be made for civilian use. That's why we can't fill orders as fast as we'd like.

But—helped by the patience and understanding of telephone users—we're doing all we can to serve as many as possible as soon as possible by:

Reconditioning and using every bit of telephone wire and central office equipment that will give good service.

Recovering such equipment quickly when someone discontinues service.

Operating central offices beyond their normal capacity.

Taking extra-good care of switchboards, relays, cable, and all equipment that can't be replaced.

And, with the co-operation of telephone customers, converting one-party lines to serve two or more families.

If you are one of those who are waiting, we'd like you to know we shall take care of your needs as soon as we possibly can.

pective beneficiaries. Here is the parliamentary situation.

The sponsors of the measure know that chances for passage are hopeless. Southerners will fillibuster the scheme to death, as they have done in the past. But Administration champions of the colored voters must go through the motions of keeping campaign promises. So Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley has in his pocket a petition in favor of shutting off debate. He has had it since Monday, the day the bill was introduced, and it bears the necessary number of signatures—sixteen.

He could have proposed cloture last Tuesday, or twenty-four hours after introduction of the measure. Instead, he withheld his motion until Thursday. By doing so, he permitted Northerners with numerous Negro constituents to insist upon wiping out the undemocratic levy. He gave them an opportunity to tell how their hearts beat for the underprivileged and the disenfranchised.

Likewise the Barkley strategy enabled eloquent Southerners to defend their social, economic and political system, and to warn that, despite Congress or the Supreme Court, they will not bow to northern domination. On Monday the revision will be voted down and the affair forgotten.

Equal Pay for Teachers

School teachers in about one-third of our cities work on a "single salary schedule," by which instructors of equivalent training and experience receive equal pay, no matter what grade they teach. Nation-wide adoption of this practice is urged in a recent article by Claude V. Courter, superintendent of Cincinnati schools.

It is hard to find any argument with Mr. Courter's proposal. Surely primary education is just as important, as strenuous, and requires as much ability as teaching in a senior high school.

Particularly now, when many low-paid elementary teachers have gone to better jobs and replacements are increasingly difficult to find, this equal-pay suggestion deserves consideration.

Wonder Drug, Penicillin Is Being Used Now At Pampa

By JANE BARA

Penicillin, the new life-saving wonder drug, is beginning to flow into Texas in a steady stream and is now being made available to civilians through hospitalization.

Penicillin inhibits the growth of bacteria; some authorities maintain it is an extremely powerful bactericidal agent also. It is non-toxic in various amounts necessary for therapeutic purposes. It is assayed in terms of Oxford units, which represents its power to inhibit growth of bacteria under controlled conditions, and at present is unavailable for general clinic use.

Under the direction of the War Production Board the manufacture of penicillian has been greatly increased in the past year While the needs of immediate military units must always be met first, the board now finds a limited supply is available for restricted use in civilian medical practice.

Now, because of rapidly expanding production, supplies are sufficient to permit release of a greater amount for use by civilians. However, the supply is still not adequate, and allocation is to be continued by the WPB.

Penicillin is distributed from the manufacturers to the "depot hospitals." Pampa hospitals will receive their quota from Northwest Texas hospital and St. Anthony's hospitals in Amarillo. Certain amounts are distributed to depots; from there it is distributed to surrounding hospitals within a given radius.

According to Dr. R. M. Brown, city health officer, doctors are asked not to prescribe penicillian only for a limited number of infections, and according to consideration of their supply on hand, furnish penicillian for hospitals.

No private hospital may dispense the drug for private use. Instructions have come from the WPB that a patient must be hospitalized before it is used.

Doctors are of the opinion, however, that the private practioner will soon be able to obtain the drug for use in general practice. It is doubtful that such distribution will be made, however, until production has increased beyond the needs of hospital demands. Up to this time only a limited quantity has been available for emergency civilian use on allocation through WPB.

The effectiveness of penicillin is still in an experimental stage, according to some doctors, and at present, potency and safety standards are not permanetly set up.

Among the thousands of uses, the drug has proven highly effective for the treatments of pneumococal pneumonia in patients. Bacteria promptly clears after injections of the substance.

The effectiveness of penicillin in the treatment of rheumatic fever is now being investigated and hypodermic injections for treating dysentery are now being used. Types of sinus infections have been known to be completely cured after penicillin treatment has been administered and numbers of cases of gonorrhea have been cured which formerly were incurable after the use of a form of sulfonamide. Records show that one out of every 75 men patients have been cured of the disease when penicillin is administered.

Inspection Records Must Be Retained

Removal of periodic tire inspectionsh as led many to believe that tire inspection records may be done away with. This idea is causing the Local Boards to have to handle many applications for new inspection records, according to the Office of Price Administration.

Tire inspection records must be kept, for a motorist making application for a tire replacement or for gasoline rations must present the record.

B-4 Gas Coupons Become Valid

"B-4" gasoline coupons will be issued to fill future applications for "B" gasoline rations and will be valid immediately the Office of Price Administration announced today.

The early validation of "B-4" coupons is due to a stortage of "B-3" coupons in the region and gasoline dealers are being notified of the validity of these coupons. It was also pointed out that outstanding "B-3" coupons are still valid.

WOMEN BEHIND OUR ACES ON THE JOB

While Mrs. Carl Bong, Poplar, Wis., mother of ace Maj. Richard Bong, was christening a ship at the Walter Butler shipyards, Superior, Wis., Mrs. Robert S. Johnson, wife of Capt. Johnson, was receiving word that her husband had just tied Bong's record of 27 enemy planes shot down in combat. Mrs. Johnson telephoned the news to her mother-in-law and then went on to work as usual in a Lawton, Okla., drugstore after stating "what it means most is that at this minute he is safe and well."—(NEA Telephoto).

YANKEES 8-4, INDIANS 4-3

NEW YORK, May 14—(AP)—Don Savage hit a home run in the fourth inning of the second game with two on today, to spark the New York Yankees to an 8-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians. The Yankees also won the opener, 4-3 in 13 innings.

WHITE SOX 0-6, SENATORS 4-4

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox came from behind in the ninth inning today to win the nightcap of a double-header from Washington, 6 to 4, after dropping the first game to the Nats by a count of 4 to 0.

TIGERS 6-9, RED SOX 1-0

BOSTON, May 14—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers swept both ends of a double-header with the Boston Red Sox today as Johnny Gorsica pitched a three-hit ball in the second game for a 9-0 victory after Detroit triumphed in the opener 6-1. The sweep dropped the Red Sox into last place in the league standing and moved Detroit into 7th.

BROWNS 3-0, ATHLETICS 4-2

PHILADELPHIA, May 15—(AP)—Frankie Hayes socked a homer into the left field stands with one on in the eighth inning of the second game of a double header with the St. Louis Browns at Shibe Park today to clinch the game for the Athletics 2-0, before 27,795 fans. The A's won the opener 4-3 in 11 innings.

Amarillo Dodgers Beat Fliers, 8-2

Errors in second and fourth innings, combined with five hits bunched by their opponents in the second, enabled the Amarillo Dodgers of Amarillo field to defeat the Pampa Fliers of Pampa field 8 to 2 in a game yesterday at Amarillo.

It was the Fliers second game and first loss of the season. In the first contest, the Fliers whipped the Pampa Oilers 12 to 7.

The Fliers made four errors in the second inning, and two in the fourth.

Neal Rabe, catcher, and Ben Norman, first baseman, were the big guns for the Amarilloans.

CARDINALS 6-1, PHILLIES 3-0

ST. LOUIS, May 14—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals strengthened their hold on the top rung of the National League ladder with two decisions over the Philadelphia Phillies today, 6 to 3, and 1 to 0. George Munger gave up six hits in winning the second contest after Morton Cooper, nearing his form of other seasons, turned in a well-pitched job in the opener.

PITTSBURGH 1-8, NEW YORK 0-2

PITTSBURGH, May 14—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates snared both ends of a twin bill from the New York Giants today, the first game 1 to 0 after a 10-inning pitchers' duel, the second by laying down a 13-hit barrage that snowed the visitors under 8 to 2.

REDS 4-0, BRAVES 0-6

CINCINNATI, May 14—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds exchanged whitewash jobs today in a double-header with the Boston Braves, winning the opener 4 to 0 behind near-perfect pitching by Bucky Walters, who gave up but one hit, and losing the nightcap 6 to 0.

Dallas Amateur Wins Texas And PGA Golf Titles

ODESSA, May 15—(AP)—A Dallas amateur, Jimmy Gaunt, today held his third consecutive PGA and Texas open golf championships as the result of defeating Raymond Gafford of Fort Worth by seven strokes in their 18-hole playoff.

Gaunt, with strong woods, accurate irons and good putting, shot a 34-35—69 three under par to down Gafford yesterday.

Gaunt, besides downing his Fort Worth opponent, defeated amateur Harry Todd four and three in their Texas cup match singles play. He was one over par on the first nine and three down.

Against Gafford, Gaunt was never over regulation figures until the 18th hole where he two putted for a bogie four.

In the Texas cup match play the professionals beat the amateur by a score of 11 to seven.

During the morning's double of the Texas cup play Sgt. L. C. Short established a new course record of 67, five under par.

Gafford beat Sergeant Short three and two.

As a team the professionals again won the cup by a score 11-7. Winning teams in the doubles were Gaunt and Gafford beat Todd and Martin 4-3. Sgt. Short and Private John Whitten beat Jimmie Gamewell and Gene Root of Amarillo 3-2. Largely due to Short's record breaker, Ralph Morgan and Graham Ross beat John Kuykendall and Cpl. Don Cherry 4-3.

Harvey Penick and Smiley Rowland halved with Ernie Dowell and John Garrison. Sam Schneider, Corpus Christi, and Hornbuckle beat the army amateurs Major R. R. Ashley and Lt. W. E. Doll one up.

Bill Skeeters and L. M. Montgomery gave the pro club of Stackhouse and Hampton a one up trimming.

In the singles in addition to the championship wins Ashley, amateur, downed Stackhouse five and four. Dick Martin, amateur, beat Jimmie Gamewell four and three. Choc Broome, amateur, beat Gene Root two and one. Graham Ross, pro, bested Speck Goldman two and one by coming from behind. George Aulbach and J. T. Hammett halved. Bill Skeeters, amateur, bested Morgan Hampton two and one. Irving King, pro, beat Lieutenant Doll three and one. Lee Roy Garrett, pro, beat Private John Whitten four and three. Ralph Morgan, pro, nosed out Don Cherry when the latter missed a six inch putt on eighteen. Shorty Hornbuckle, pro, routed Norris Russell five and four.

Eye-Poppers

By EARL SANDE
Famous Jockey and Trainer

Thrills came when I was ridding, eye-poppers when training. We sent two of Maxwell Howard's stars to the post in the Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct in 1938, Stagehand and The Chief. Stagehand looked like the winner, but I had a soft spot for The Chief, perhaps because I rode Little Chief to victory in the same race 15 years before.

Coming into the stretch they had the race between them, but at the finish Johnny Longden on The Chief rode like a demon to cop the honors, with Stagehand second.

Leading The Chief into the winner's circle, I felt better than if I had ridden him myself.

SWC 1944 Program Same Scale as '43

AUSTIN, May 14—(AP)—An athletic program on the same scale as last year is being planned by member schools of the Southwest conference for 1944-45, it was reported at the closing session of the annual spring meeting.

Baylor university, which had no football in 1943 and will not have this fall, hopes again to put a basketball team in the field, Athletic Director Ralph Wolf said.

Wolf said there was little to indicate that Baylor could return to football before the end of the war due to the small student body and the fact that trainees stationed at the Waco school could not participate in the sport.

The other six conference members, Texas A. and M. Rice, Arkansas, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian—will have football and basketball and Texas, Rice and A. and M. plan ful spring sports programs with the exception of golf at Rice.

Arkansas plans track and S. M. U. saw some chance of having baseball but generally the sports program at all schools except Texas, Rice and A. and M. will be limited to possible participation in the conference meet only.

Bucks Receive Athletic Awards

By CLAUDA ENERLY
Special To The NEWS.

WHITE DEER, May 14—Football jackets and other athletic awards were presented at a special senior day assembly Friday by Coach Tyson Cox and Supt. Chester Strickland.

The football jackets are blue and gray, reversible, with a white "W" on the left side, and an emblem bearing the words "Co-Champions District 2-A" on the sleeve.

Co-Captain Willie Urbanczyk was the only one whose jacket bears the four stripes for four years participation. Three-year lettermen were Lawrence Hester and Co-Captain Lynn West, who graduated at mid-term and who is now in the Marines. Two-year lettermen were Billy George Clements and Jesus Lopez.

Others receiving jackets were George Murphy, Cletis Imel, Clarence Weaver and Dale Wall, seniors; Ralph Pauley, a mid-term graduate who is now in the army; Jack Page, Eugean Karlin and Bert Haiduk, juniors; and Brian Ed Evans, Leroy Thornburg and Billy John Shurley, freshmen.

Oscar Lee Williams, Mack Shipley and Glynn Burrell, managers, were awarded sweaters, and Coaches Tyson Cox and W. C. Whiteside received jackets.

Nine Track Trophies

Six of these boys have won all-district honors. Willie Urbanczyk, playing back, has been selected on the all-district football team three years (one unofficial, since an official team was not named that year), and Lawrence Hester, playing end, has received that honor two years. This year Jesus Lopez was placed at guard on the first team.

Hester Champion

On all-district second team this year were Lynn West, tackle; George Murphy, fullback; and Billy George Clements, end.

Hester has also been on the all-district basketball team one year. He received the largest number of awards.

The versatile red-headed athlete was awarded a football jacket, miniature gold football and a miniature gold track shoe.

He has lettered in football three years and has been named on the all-district team two years, at the end position. He is also a three-year letterman in basketball, was co-captain this year, and has been on the all-district team one year. He was captain of the track team this year and the only two-year letterman in the group. Last year he received the award as the "most valuable athlete" in the high school.

In addition to his athletic honors, Hester this year will be awarded the Venado Blanco Citizenship award given each year to the person selected by the faculty as the "best citizen" in the senior class; he was chosen as the outstanding student in the physical education and mathematics departments, and was elected by the student body as the "most dependable" senior boy and the senior boy having the "best personality." He is a charter member of the "W" Club; has been a member of the National Honor Society for two years, serving as president of that organization this year; and sings in the high school quartet and chorus.

Hester recently passed the army V-12 test and expects to take his physical examination for that program the latter part of this month.

Clements Runner-Up

Running a close second to Hester in athletic honors was Billy George Clements, who also received a football jacket and miniature basketball and track shoe. His awards, however, were based on only two years participation.

He has lettered in football and basketball two years and in track one year. He was co-captain of the basketball team this year, and was named to the end position on the all-district second team in football.

Clements, too, has received numerous other honors; he has been president of the student body this year; a member of the National Honor society for two years and served as treasure this year; secretary of the "W" club; sports editor of the school paper for the last semester; was elected the "most handsome" senior boy; and chosen as the outstanding student in the speech department.

Ens. D. D. West Scores on Nips

A Pampan is showing the Japs the only argument they understand, death, and doing his bit to wipe the yellow rats off the globe.

He is Ens. D. D. West, 22 navy aviator, and co-pilot of a navy Liberator plane that successfully bombed Japanese bases near Truk in the Southwest Pacific, while on a recent patrol.

The ensign is the son of C. S. West, Box 20, Route 4, Pampa. He enlisted in the navy at Dallas on July 21, 1942.

Ensign West's pilot was Lieut. Paul Brunean of San Diego. In an attack on an enemy fighter base on Satawan Island near Truk, the fliers circled the island outside of gun range until they spotted a Jap plane in one of the dispersal areas.

This was too much of an inducement for them to resist, regardless of the amount of ack-ack being thrown at them. Without the added advantage of surprise in their attack, they turned onto the target and made two runs.

The navy plane dropped its bombs on the target and on the second run, made direct hits on an anti-aircraft battery. The enemy scored one lucky hit on the wing tip of the Liberator, but didn't prevent the airmen from completing their mission.

WAKE-UP AMERICA

MORE JOBS THAN MEN

When "Men Wanted" signs are hung out we have prosperity. When "Jobs Wanted" ads appear, we have adversity.

Therefore, the chief thing to aim for is more jobs than men. Mass unemployment is the only real threat to the free enterprise system.

Men will not forever fight or vote for freedom accompanied by the unwilling poverty of no jobs. They must be convinced that freedom with abundance is better than freedom without abundance or abundance without freedom. Secondly, they must be convinced that our economic system can give them freedom and abundance.

Dictators have "full employment" by putting surplus labor into the army and killing their young men. We can do the same. Or we can put them to work raking leaves.

These are poor solutions for three reasons. First, the men are not happy. Second, as they do little of permanent value they are a dead drain on all other workers who must divide their loaves with them. Third, it makes men slaves to the army or political boss.

Nevertheless, "freedom to starve" has no enduring appeal even though men want intensely to be free to choose their own jobs and employers, to select their homes, and to move from one place to another.

Men know that modern science technology and power are now sufficient to produce a higher standard of living for all who will work. They are right. They are also right in demanding an economic system that will provide steady jobs for all who want to work.

With this modern science and power, we can cure involuntary poverty, and it will stay cured if we steadily pursue policies that will do just two things: Encourage the expansion of industry and jobs and eliminate surplus labor. More jobs than men.

The best friends of the workingman are: competent management that does not lose money but makes money and is able to expand the business, and investors ready to supply capital for better tools and equipment. To give the workman the productiveness needed to maintain the American standard of living, $7,000 must be invested for every job. Taxation that stifles the source of capital accumulation can destroy a free private enterprise system more easily than collectivist propaganda.

Bigger pies to divide are more important to workers than constant quarreling over the cuts of a smaller pie.

Workers, with their millions of votes, should join hands with management and investors to make bigger pies for everybody. They should campaign for policies that will encourage the constant expansion of jobs.

Among these are lower taxes against job-giving enterprise. Stop government competition with industry. Eliminate waste. Enable the boss to reduce prices, and so sell more good and employ more men making them. Suppress violence and gangsterism. Live up to contracts. Encourage savings that will buy new tools to replace wornout tools. Work for a sound dollar and a balanced government budget to free investors from the fear of inflation or repudiation.

Result: More jobs than men! Freedom with abundance!

REPORTERS

old country and now I inhaled lungsful of its air, watching the breath-taking scenery.

Peasants held the oxen of their cars by the horns until we passed, and patrols of Partisan soldiers in grey-green uniforms and with submachine guns on their backs saluted and shouted "Zdravo" (Health). All traffic in the Partisan country is by night to elude the German planes.

Patches of snow and burned peasants huts showed on clearings and in a savagely broken piece of landscape I spied a locomotive puffing and dragging a blacked-out train.

In the moonlight track of a forest we overtook a procession of gloomy, bedraggled men in various foreign uniforms, unshaved and unarmed. They were Germans, Ustashi and Chetnik prisoners with Partisan guards in front. In the rear a Partisan girl, a rifle across her shoulders, walked with the guards and sang in the chilly night.

At 2:30 a. m., the automobile descended into a town and stopped short before a blacked-out building. Talbot and I entered an illuminated huge hall decorated with Partisan, British, American and Russian flags and packed with over 800 uniformed young men and girls.

Tremendous applause burst forth, mingled with the shout of "Savez! Savez! Savez! ("Alliance! Alliance! Alliance!")

We proceeded to the front row facing the speaker of the second anti-Fascist youth congress of Yugoslavia. From a chair in the middle covered with a colorful Bosnian rug arose Marshal Tito and shook hands with us in a storm of applause and shouting.

Only the golden laurel leaves on his lapels and cuffs indicated the supreme commander of the National Liberation army of Yugoslavia.

Talbot sat on the left and I on the right of Tito to watch the proceedings. The more than 800 delegates, almost half of them fighting young men and women, represented a youth organization of over 500,000 registered members 15 to 25 years of age.

This is the spine of Tito's army. 75 per cent of it no more than 25 years old.

There were long speeches and longer resolutions but all the faces were serious. They took an oath to Tito pledging their lives and their honor in the struggle for liberation, and they meant it. Many of the delegates were veteran fighters. Many had traveled for weeks on foot to attend the congress. Some had forded the rivers and fought their way through enemy lines. Some had left dead comrades behind.

They sang and they applauded the names of Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin. They shouted against "the traitors," not mentioning any names, and they cried there would be no return to the old state of things.

...The Office of Price Administration has recently extended rationing regulations to make all "B" and "C" gas ration card holders eligible for Grade 1 top quality synthetic tires. This means that when the present tires of these card holders can no longer be recapped, they are eligible to buy the new U.S. Royal DeLuxe. "A" card holders are eligible for Grade 3 tires... used tires, recaps, "war" tires and seconds.

● HOW GOOD ARE SYNTHETICS?
...All synthetic tires are far better than even the most optimistic tire men thought possible. From all over the country reports from car owners are pouring in that the new U.S. Royal DeLuxe is turning in performance even beyond expectations. Backed by years of work in the pioneering of synthetics, and built by craftsmen who have learned how to use every ounce of materials to give the greatest possible service, the U.S. Royal DeLuxe is the best tire buy on the market today.

● WHERE CAN WE BUY THEM?
...If you have a Grade One Tire Certificate, you can buy the new U.S. Royal DeLuxe where you see the familiar U.S. Tire sign. If your U.S. Tire Dealer does not have your size in stock, be patient. All popular sizes are now rolling out of the giant U.S. factories in increasing quantity. Your Dealer will take care of you as soon as stocks are available.
