Deck's DIDACTICS

By H. D. W.

This column this week might very well be called the impressions of a country boy in big towns. Since the Washington experience was the highlight of the entire trip I will mention it first. I was with a delegation of approximately a hundred Texas editors and business men. Upon arriving in Washington we were met at the train by the Texas Senators and Congressmen and I was right pleased that Tom Connally and Marvin Jones greeted me personally the minute I landed. After a few minutes of handshaking we were taken direct to the White House and as soon as possible were ushered into the President's office.

I had been carrying the resolution from the farmers of Collingsworth County with me since I left the train. Having heard of the secret service men, I was expecting one of them to call me off to the side and inspect my parcel, which I had in a round container and I was quite ready to take the thing out and show it to them. As I kept going from one room to another I kept wondering why some of them didn't take a look or give me some trouble of some kind. The only thing that ever happened took place as I started to approach the President's desk. One man tipped up the end of my scroll, took one brief look and I was in the presence of the President.

If I live to be a hundred I will never forget the next twenty minutes. I have already mentioned the presentation of the expression of appreciation of the farmers of this county in a story last week; so I will devote no more space to that, but I would like to mention again the fact that President Roosevelt did show a sincere and genuine interest in the farmers. He was greeting everyone with a warm handclasp and a friendly word, but when he heard that a group of cotton farmers had sent him their greetings and best wishes, you should have seen his kind face break into one of its broadest smiles. As he asked: "How are they coming out," the expression on his face and the tone of his voice convinced me that his interest was more than politeness. I know now in my heart what I have thought in my mind for the past year, and that is that American Agriculture can depend upon President Roosevelt. The farmer has a friend in the White House.

That night I went to a banquet which boasted a distinguished gathering which awed me considerably. Besides Vice-President John Garner, Jesse Jones and members of the Cabinet, both Texas Senators and all of the Texas Congressmen were there. Postmaster General Farley Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Speaker Rainey, Harry L. Hopkins were some of those present. I could write a whole page about the speeches, but I do not know whether you would be interested in them or not.

I was particularly interested in two things. One was a statement by Vice-President Garner that as far as power and serving the country were concerned that he would rather be Speaker of the House than to hold his present office, and the other was that considering the great need for a man like Roosevelt, that he was profoundly glad that Roosevelt was nominated in Chicago instead of himself. The other thing I was most interested in was the speech of Secretary Wallace. He looked upon the Bankhead bill as an experiment which may be all right for one year, during which time the present surplus may be reduced, but his attitude is that to continue it longer than one year would cause the cotton producing states to lose their world supremacy. He also made it plain that the farmers and not the Department of Agriculture demanded the bill.

It was an interesting experience to me to be sitting in the House of Representatives while Marvin Jones steered the Bankhead bill through its final vote. To him as to us down here it seemed to be the only thing for one year, but I was relieved to hear from Sec'y. Wallace's own mouth that it was not being urged as a permanent policy.

I wish that old Joe Hardy could have been at that banquet. Having studied politics all of his life, he would have enjoyed it immensely. Sen. Barclay from Kentucky, whom I have heard him mention many times was there and made a speech and it was a good one, too. Joe would undoubtedly have been as self-conscious as I was in tuxedo, but he would have forgotten that in a hurry when the thing started. By the way, old Tack of the Globe-News warned me that he was going to write back and tell his readers that I was in a borrowed tuxedo, so I might as well admit it. It was Jimmie Gillentine's and it fit fine.

The thought of Old Tack reminds me of something else. In our delegation were some of the really big shots of Texas, but I want you to know that we can be proud of our Panhandle editor, Gene Howe. You should have seen the attention they paid to him on the Kansas City Star, which we visited on the trip. Old Tack is a gentleman of culture and standing, and I am glad he has become a full-fledged Texan. It is an asset to the entire Panhandle to have him in Amarillo.

In New York I met some old friends, some of whom I had not seen since I left the University of Texas, but Wellington readers will be more interested in my meeting with Dan Williams of the World-Telegram. He formerly lived in Childress and he is now a prominent newspaper man. Imagine my surprise when upon meeting him to find that he knew who I was, and he also mentioned an article in the Alcalde, Texas student magazine, about me that I had never seen nor heard about. I tried to pay his soft soap back by telling him some nice things that Bud Manzer had said about him. After that we got down to real reminiscences. The first person he asked about was May Godfrey, who he declared had always been a very dear friend of his family's. When he found out that the Godfrey's had always been my friends we did have a talk. He also asked about Mrs. R. L. Scott,

There are many other things that are impressed on my memory, but I am more interested in men than in buildings. At the zoo in St. Louis I wanted my daughter, Diane, to see the baby bears, the many colored birds and the monkeys so very much that I actually did not enjoy seeing them myself. In New York I saw a beautiful ballet dance at Radio City. It was a dream of color, sound and movement, and my throat actually hurt with a physical pain because my wife was not there to see it, too. As I went along the same thing kept happening to me and I kept thinking of various people in my home county. In fact when I ate lunch at the Anheuser-Busch plant, I would hate to mention all of the men that I wished for. The food was simply delicious.

This trip has convinced me that I will always be just an old country boy. I feel uncomfortable in big towns. It used to be that I hated to have the train stop for I knew I would have to get off and get around in a strange place.

The same feeling is still with me. I just don't like strange places until I can find some place in them that seems familiar. After I get a spot to go back to, even if it is just a hotel room, I am all right, but until I find it the country certainly does crop up in me. After all why shouldn't it. I didn't even live in the town of Wellington until I was married, and I was twenty-five then.

Alleging that Carl J. Fox, animal boarding home proprietor, gave her cat away by mistake, Miss Lulu Wells of Alameda, Cal., is suing him for $950.

Samuel Evans of St. Louis sued the hospital where his son died because it shipped him the body of a woman.

In an old quilt she had many years, Mrs. H. G. Thum of Davenport, Ind., found p currency worth $5,000.

Chevrolet Ready For World's Fair

Installation of equipment for the assembly of Chevrolet automobiles in the General Motors Building at 1934 "Century of Progress International Exposition," Chicago, has already been started by the Chevrolet Motor Company, M. E. Coyle, president and general manager, announced today.

Complete installation will be effected well in advance of the scheduled re-opening of the 1934 World's Fair on May 26, Mr. Coyle said, assuring early visitors that they will be able to see an automobile built up from the bare frame to the completed car, from the opening until the closing day of the exposition.

Machinery is identical with that used in Chevrolet's other assembly plants, with the exception of overhead conveyors. The latter have been replaced by floor type conveyors to bring parts to the proper stations along the line. This slight change in factory procedure provides visibility for the thousands who will watch the assembly each day. Machines will again be finished in silver with black trim, and will be manned by approximately 200 workers in white uniforms.

A balcony seven feet above the assembly line and erected in circular form so that the maximum number of visitors may walk completely around the line and watch every operation in the building of a typically modern automobile, has been provided, Mr. Coyle said.

Production of 25 to 30 cars a day is planned. Two body types—coupes and sedans will be built on the Master Chevrolet chassis. Regular inspection posts will check every operation along the line, and the cars will be driven out under their own power, tested and put through final inspection right on the spot.

Additional interest will be furnished this year in the Chevrolet assembly plant by the installation of a "knee-action" assembly, an outstanding feature of the 1934 Chevrolet. Visitors will see just how this remarkable development, which contributes so materially to riding comfort, is constructed.

Chevrolet is again the only company which will operate an automobile line at the Fair, Mr. Coyle stated.

William Lloyd of Detroit, thought drowned when water flooded a mine, was later found peacefully sleeping in a shaft.

Home Activities For Young Children

DENTON—Now that the activity curriculum has taken a firm hold upon the schools it is not surprising that parents are eager for information regarding activities that may be carried on in the home—the child returns from school filled with enthusiasm over the work he has done during the day and immediately demands materials to satisfy the stimulation "to make something that has been partially satisfied during the day." Because he enumerates many tools and the seeming great amount of material that he feels has been placed before him at school, the parent is inclined to refuse his requests.

Many times the refusal is made because of the lack of a suitable place to work. For those who live in the country the problem is not so difficult as there is nearly always a shed that can be made into a work shop.

As for apartment house children who have no place at all for work except their own rooms there is still a way to satisfy this craving for carpentry. With a chest of tools under the bed, with a covered box for work bench, used during the day for a window seat, and with a heavy piece of canvas on the floor to catch the saw dust and to protect the rug, the result will be many miracles.

Carpentry isn't the only activity that is easily carried on in the home for other phases of work fostered by one school may be introduced into the homes. It is true that most of the home activities are those that are carried on in the house and they are usually engaged in when the weather is such that outdoor play is impossible.

For the boys and girls who are within the age where carpentry and the creating of things is the chief delight, a source of great pleasure is clay modeling and carving with soap. For the children of this age plasticine is a splendid medium for expression. They are able to take care of it and keep it so that it can be used again and again. It lends itself to many uses in modeling smaller temporary articles that are not suited to the manipulative stage of young children. Another form of work that children enjoy is cutting and pasting.

The pre-school child and the child in the first few years of school life does need guidance in his choice of home activities. This type of child has not learned co-operation and is still individualistic. He uses his senses to acquire knowledge and it is a wise parent who provides material that will attract his attention.

In a drawer of a cupboard keep a supply of spools and buttons with shoe strings for stringing them. Save all pasteboard boxes and cartons to be made into pulling and pushing toys. An old flour sifter, an egg beater and a bowl regardless of whether the flour and eggs are present afford endless amusement and investigation.

For the child somewhat beyond the baby stage there should be blocks, dolls, doll furniture, garden tools and any and all material that lends itself to dramatic play. For the quiet hour around the table, modeling clay, crayons, and paints should be accessible with a quantity of paper always on hand.

When the older boys are engaged in their carpentry work and the youngest are playing in the sand pile, the older girls may be dressing up and playing lady. For this amusement and pleasure there should always be a supply of material for making costumes as well as some of mother's old dresses and shoes.

THE ISLE OF LONG AGO

- 1. Oh, a wonderful stream is the River of Time, As it runs through the realm of tears, With a faultless rhythm and a musical rhyme, And a boundless sweep and a surge sublime, As it glides in the shadow of Years.
- 2. How the winters are drifting, like flakes of snow, And the summers, like buds between; And the year in the sheaf—so they come and they go, On the river's breast, with its ebb and flow, As it glides in the shadow and sheen.
- 3. There's magical isle up the river of Time, Where the softest of airs are playing; There's a cloudless sky and a tropical clime, And a song as sweet as a vesper chime, And the Junos with the roses are staying.
- 4. And the name of that isle is the Long Ago, And we bury our treasures there; There are brows of beauty and bosoms of snow— There are heaps of dust—but love them so!— There are trinkets and tresses of hair;
- 5. There are fragments of a song that nobody sings, And a part of an infant's prayer, There's a lute unswept, and a harp without strings; There are broken vows and pieces of rings, And the garments that she used to wear.
- 6. There are hands that are waved when the fairy shore By the mirage is lifted in air; And we sometimes hear, through the turbulent roar, Sweet voices we heard in the days gone before, When the wind down the river is fair.
- 7. Oh, remember for aye be the blessed Isle, All the day of our life till night— When the evening comes with its beautiful smile, And our eyes are closing to slumber awhile, May that "Greenwood" of Soul be in sight!

Rail Head--

have found Sloan thoroughly democratic and the possessor of a keen sense of humor, but also "strictly business" when the occasion demands. During his stop here Sloan explained that he has a deep appreciation of the responsibilities of his new position. "My experience has taught me," he said, "that any public service company must stand or fall upon its ability to render a complete and satisfactory service to the public. The Katy has made an enviable record in that respect, and to maintain that record and to improve upon it as briefly, the task I have set out to accomplish."

"The Southwest has brighter prospects and sounder reasons for expecting continued growth than any other section of the country," Sloan said in commenting upon his interests in the development opportunities his new position affords him. "While I do not know the Katy territory intimately, I do know that the development of the Southwest's vast natural resources has only commenced, and that the next several years are certain to see a steady and substantial increase in its growth and population. As a matter of good, sound business, the Katy is going to do everything possible to speed the development of the territory it serves, especially along agricultural and industrial lines. Business the country over is steadily showing signs of a sound improvement, and I do not know of any section that has as much to look forward to as that recovery seems definitely on its way."

Sloan said he believes "the most encouraging factor in the future of the railroad industry is the growing public tendency to realize that what affects the railroads adversely, adversely affects the public. This growing understanding of the railroads' problems will pave the way for removal of restrictions which tend to hamper the carriers, and will place them in position to more effectively serve the public." "Railroads need the steady continuous and good will of the public more than any other business," Sloan said. "They owe their existence to the public and adequate service to the public is their sole purpose and reason for existence. Obviously, then, the public's friendship, understanding and co-operation are all vital and essential elements in the success of the railroads. The Katy is going to continue to do everything possible to warrant the public's good will."

Sloan who is 53 was former head of the New York Edison Company, the world's largest public utility, and commenced his railroad career a week ago Saturday when he arrived at the Katy's general office in St. Louis, following his election a few days before as chairman of the board. He announced that he is going to take an active interest in the property and spend much of his time "on the line." The officials accompanying him say the inspector trip is the most extensive and complete one undertaken in several years and indicates, they said, that their new chief is taking his new tasks seriously. They say he has shown an amazing faculty for absorbing and understanding details.

Sloan who resigned from the presidency of the New York Utility Group in 1932 said he accepted the Katy chairmanship because he had gotten a "kick" out of being in the procession and that two years had convinced him "it is more fun to march than to stand on the side line and watch the parade go by." When friends commented upon the fact that he was starting in at the top, Sloan said that was all the more reason he intended to work hard to learn railroading from the ground up.

Sloan, who is 53 and a native of Mobile, Alabama, has spent practically all of his business life in serving the public. Commencing his career as a construction engineer following his graduation from the Alabama Polytechnic he soon became a public utility executive in Birmingham, and within a comparatively few years was head of what is recognized as the world's largest utility group, the New York Edison Company, which with its affiliates represents an investment of $1,200,000,000; has more than 4,000,000 patrons and a gross annual income of more than $820,000,000. He returned from the public utility field two years ago to devote his time to his private investments, but accepted the chairmanship of the Katy board because he said he saw in it an opportunity to render a service in a field of public endeavor that from boyhood had always interested him.

Members of the visiting railway party included Vice President J. L. Burns, J. M. Bryson, general counsel; G. T. Atkins, vice president in charge of traffic; J. G. Livengood, comptroller; Chief Engineer F. Ringer; F. E. Scott, purchasing agent; F. Johnson, treasurer; N. A. Phillips, secretary; J. F. Hennessey and George C. Smith, assistant to the president in charge of traffic; D. V. Fraser, executive department office manager; R. C. Trovillion, freight traffic manager; C. R. McDonald, J. E. Hickey, E. E. Hamilton and S. L. Altschuler, executive representatives; W. E. Hicks, Dallas of-

A Drive On Crime

(An Editorial)
By R. H. Templeton

I am glad that the editor has asked that his fellow citizens edit this issue of the paper and I am glad of this opportunity to contribute this editorial. I am taking my subject law enforcement, two drive on crime. We are living in a saturnalia of crime, the like of which this nation has never known. Our citizens are being murdered to the tune of twelve thousand five hundred men and women annually who are being driven to tragic brutal deaths at the hands of their fellow citizens before an apparently helpless nation. Crime is on the increase both in the kind and number of crimes committed. More banks are being robbed, more people murdered, more kidnapping is being committed and the crimes including theft, embezzlement, fraud have become so prevalent that there is not a piece of property in the hand that is safe.

The Lafittes have been succeeded by the Al Capones, the Captain Kidds by John Dillinger, Charles F. Baker and his gang and the Robin Hoods by the Clyde Barrows, Hamiltons and their clan. They have reached that proficiency in their crime career that they defy all law, both state and national, as well as all law enforcement officers. It is a sad comment to make that lives of citizens and their property are more unsafe today than at any other period in the history of our country. This is a terrible indictment to make out that I don't think the picture is overdrawn.

It is apparent to every thinking man and woman that something is radically wrong and the big question—what is wrong with our system of law enforcement that will permit such a condition to exist. It is an easy thing to criticize and to point out and describe the awful condition that exists in our country today, but it is not quite so easy to outline the trouble and give a remedy therefor. The National Government has become alarmed at this awful condition that exists in throughout the country and is suggesting some national legislation. Congress appointed a committee that ascertained that the people of this country last year by fraud, forgery and embezzlement a billion, one million, two hundred seventy thousand dollars; that twelve thousand five hundred men and women were murdered and it cost the Government to prosecute the murderers one billion one hundred and sixty million dollars; that law enforcement including jail fees and costs amounted to four billion dollars; that officers' expenses reached six billion, five hundred and three million dollars and that the total cost of the nation was over thirteen billion dollars. This is estimated to be six times the cost of the education of our children each year. The good law-abiding people of this nation is not only paying for the education of our children but is paying this thirteen billion dollars to battle crime, yet, not withstanding all this expense, crime is rampant in the country and the state and nation are losing ground with these criminals who are challenging not only our law, but law enforcement in this country. Not only must the National Government (become) alarmed, but State Government, the Municipal Government and the citizens who compose all the various Governments should become alarmed and with single purpose determine to put down crime. It is fast ruining the nation and doing more to demoralize character than all influence in the land today.

The reason crime is flourishing in the land today is because that it is taking advantage of all the inventions and the wonderful progress that has been made in the last quarter of a century—the use of the automobile, the machine gun, the acetylene torch, together with an accurate knowledge of our financial system. In other words, these criminals have made the same progress that the Nation has made in its inventions and the use of machinery. An Urschel can be kidnapped in Oklahoma City in the early part of the night and the next night be hidden in a little obscure hut at Paradise, Texas; A Clyde Barrow can drive down to our own penitentiary with a knowledge of our penitentiary system and with the use of his machine guns and automobile take a Hamilton and his bunch from the clutches of our law and turn him loose on civilization again and be in Oklahoma next day and Kansas the day following and in three days time with our good roads, cover a large territory and all Europe.

Contrast this progress made by these criminals with the progress of our law enforcement system. It was made and created by our forefathers in founding this state and nation providing certain officers, before there was a dream of automobiles, airplanes, etc. What change has been made since then? How can one sheriff, one city marshal cope with crime under all these conditions? Take Collingsworth and Wellington for an illustration. With one sheriff and two deputies, one constable, one city marshal and one night watch, all of whom are human and must eat and sleep like other folks—how can they watch this criminal element that has become so numerous? All the criminal has to do is to learn the habits and customs of these officers and watch and abide their time and that is why there is hardly a night in the town but what somebody's automobile is being striped, somebody's store is being broken into, somebody's chickens are being stolen and these criminals can pursue their livelihood of crime without detection. There is an organized and systematic bunch of thieves living in this town and county and they are not all black either, who never work and all they study about is to steal and rob for a livelihood. They go about in days locating a place where they can complete their plunder at night. In the last two weeks I had the watch on my Buick car costing $22.50 stolen, while my car was in front of my office and another night the radiator cap and another night the roof of one of my buildings was opened and robbed and a bunch of my chickens stolen and my trailer stolen and taken to Oklahoma. The facts are that there is an underground system whereby the thieves in this town steal radiator caps and watches and tires, trailers, chickens, etc. and that night deliver them to some other co-conspirator in crime in towns like Mangum, Amarillo, Oklahoma City and by getting their stolen property out of the state they stand very little chance of being detected. There are regular places in these cities that buy stolen property. It is needless to say that we need some change made in our law enforcement. This thirteen billion dollars that the nation wastes every year on these criminals while they flourish would pay for a renewed system of law enforcement to take the place of our old antiquated and inefficient law enforcement. Take this county alone—the citizens have lost enough money to have hired two night watchmen and a dozen deputy sheriffs and providing the sheriff with a detective, fingerprint men and sufficient funds to have paid all necessary telephone calls and automobile trips in running down the crime. No one man with a little salary attached to his office can stand the expense necessary to cope with and detect crime in this age of automobiles and smart thieves. A law could be passed actually prohibiting the sale of machine guns and fire arms and also requiring all the junk dealers to take Bill of Sale for all automobile parts purchased by him together with the finger print of all sellers of junk with penalties attached to make compliance. The Nation and State could organize a radio system and have regular hourly broadcasts throughout the nation with a reception in every sheriff's office throughout this nation. You need not tell me that an enlightened people can't cope with this bunch of thugs. Our trouble is we have become indifferent to the situation and we have been asleep in the way of reforms to keep pace with these new inventions which have made crime possible. We stand by and see our half paid officers under this horde of criminals organized and expect him to combat crime and catch these criminals. He is helpless under such conditions. He is outnumbered a thousand to one without equipment or facilities for detecting these fast criminals. If Collingsworth County would put on about a half dozen good deputies, specially qualified and equip them and at least two night watchmen with one or two good detectives, crime would not flourish in Collingsworth County. We are paying the price anyway while encouraging crime and why not spend the same money and put down crime and protect life and property? We might just as well face the facts and go at this matter of law enforcement in a practical, business and systematic way. None of these criminals are really smart, they are just mean and have sense enough to take advantage of our antiquated system of law enforcement and the few men we actually employ to enforce our laws. If any wonder that crime flourishes and that our officers can't cope with the situation? No one man can do this. It is one man's job to look after the office in our sheriff department and then there ought to be a half dozen looking after the matters outside of the office. If the Government would first place a sufficient number of qualified men in office to enforce the law and then amend the law so an officer could follow his criminal across the state as long as he is on the trail and arrest and kill him where ever he found him and establish radio police controlled systems where by all crimes would be reported every hour in the day, these Clyde Barrows and the kind could not get away like they do. Then the citizens ought to organize and as soon as a crime is committed report same to the officers and aid him until the criminal is run down. It is the hot trail that counts and quick action because—give a little time with these fast automobiles and good roads our criminals can soon make his get-away and that is why the Barrows and Dillingers continue to illude and escape from the clutches of the law. We need a general revision of our criminal laws to meet the present conditions. We need an aroused citizenship to enforce the law.

Gets NRA Job

N.W. Averell Harriman, above, son of the late E. H. Harriman, rail magnate, has been assigned to carry on a tremendous task in the recovery program. In changing NRA from a code-making to a code-enforcing agency, Harriman will take charge of compliance, enforcement, and code authority procedure.

I would like to say more, but have already gone beyond the space that should be allotted to me, but this is a theme that we could write at length.

Respectfully submitted,
R. H. TEMPLETON.

Expert Advocates Wholesome Food

Vitamin Value Of Good Foods Is Topic Of Scientific Article

Today 500,000 farmers and their families are sitting down to dinner in Texas. The wholesome viands on most of their tables are rich in food values; fats, carbohydrate, proteins, and incidentally the necessary minerals and vitamins, says the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. The wise mother should know from experience the foods on which her family thrives and only a calamity prevent their inclusion on her table. She probably does not know that Vitamin A is the anti ophthalmic or anti infective vitamin and is necessary for a good appetite, health and vigor, prevents infections especially of the eyes and lungs, and is essential for normal reproduction and lactation; but she does know that spinach, mustard, carrots and tomatoes are good for the family and father knows that green grass is good for the chickens, cows and pigs. Mother knows the deep yellow yolks are in the best eggs and rich yellow butter is best; but that all of these ordinary foods supply Vitamin A has not occurred to her.

She may not know that Vitamin B protects the body from such nervous diseases as beri-beri or polyneuritis, but she knows that cereals, peas, wheat bran, rice bran and egg yolks are necessary for the health of her family and the fact that Vitamin B is supplied by these is only of incidental importance to her.

That Vitamin C is the anti-scorbutic vitamin and protects the body from scurvy and keeps the bones and teeth in good condition, does not mean so much to her as being sure the family have plenty of oranges and lemons and plenty of other fruits and salads; but with these she unconsciously supplies the needed Vitamin C.

If the children or the young animals have rickets or poor bone development she does not charge it in lack of Vitamin D, the anti rachitic vitamin, but the prudent well informed mother hustles the sufferers into the sunshine and buys some salmon and feeds them yeast and cod liver oil until relief is noted.

That barley, beans, corn, peas, rice and oats for the table and alfalfa added for the feedlot, supplies Vitamin E that prevents sterility is interesting to her of course, but at any rate she knows that such items are desirable in the diet.

She also provides plenty of yeast, liver, kidneys, sweetbreads, and lean meat, as well as milk, eggs, cheese, turnip greens and potatoes and the fact that these supply Vitamin G that prevents pellagra is only of secondary importance to her.

Mother knows that an abundance of all sorts of wholesome foods will keep off ailments and keep the family strong and happy. She may not know that every day in the experiment station laboratory nearly 400 rats, carefully bred for uniformity, are measuring to the minutest degree the vitamin potency of the feeds and foodstuffs on which our people and our animals must subsist and that they are measuring the quantities of each various item of food needed to supply the body requirements, not only for maintenance but for proper growth and production and reproduction; but she does know that somebody has figured out some mighty good menus for the table and some mighty good rations for the feedlot and she is not too prejudiced to use them for all things she desires health and happiness of her family and the thrill of successful livestock production is pleasing to her.

vitamins are measured by feeding rats. No other method so satisfactory is known for evaluating the vitamin potency of feeds and foodstuffs. From Bulletin 477 one learns that a human being needs at least 100 units per day of Vitamin A and that foods carrying this amount can be provided for half a cent or less; that milk cows and hens require green feed in the regular ration in order to continue in good health and be able to produce milk and eggs of high vitamin A potency, and that hays and fodders and even sorghum silage do not supply enough Vitamin A for cows to produce milk in normal amounts.

Shamrock Considers Baseball League

Organization of an 8-team semi-professional baseball league will be discussed at a meeting which will be held in Shamrock within the next few days, according to Jim Biggs, who has written players and fans in eight surrounding towns asking if they would be interested in such a league.

Towns and cities which would comprise the semi-pro league include Elk City, Sayre, McLean, Wheeler, Mobeetie, Twitty, Magic City, and Shamrock. Games would be played one day a week.

A schedule of games will be presented at the organization meeting in Shamrock and if adopted play would be started within a few days said Biggs.

Shamrock is about the only city of the nine proposed, that does not have a ball club, said Biggs and it would be a fine thing for some local organization such as the American Legion to sponsor a club. There has been some talk that the local Legion post might be induced to do this but no definite action has been taken in the matter.

State Teachers Set New Rules At Fort Worth

The new requirement of higher standards for teachers in four-year high school systems is approved by superintendents throughout the state, according to a report released by Dr. Lewis B. Cooper, Director of Research of the Texas State Teachers Association at Fort Worth this week.

The data show that 91 out of every 100 superintendents approve the December action of the Committee on Classified and Accredited high schools in requiring a higher standard of teachers. Dr. Cooper said that one-fourth of the 7,786 teachers included in the study were affected by the ruling.

Teachers who do not meet the new requirements now will have periods of three years in which to make a minimum of eighteen semester hours credit in some standard college. No teacher will have to be eliminated from any school system on account of this ruling, provided, progress is made toward the objectives set up by the Committee.

The new regulations which require higher qualifications of teachers are reported by many superintendents from every section of the state to be the most advanced step the profession has ever taken, a step which will be beneficial both to the teacher and to the children of Texas.

P. T. A. Will Sponsor Summer Round-Up Soon

The largest round-up in the history of Texas will be started in May when every Parent-Teacher Association in the State will join hands in their annual campaign, known as the Summer Round-Up Children. This is a movement that has for its purpose to send to the entering grade of school children who are free from remedial defects as possible.

Each local Parent-Teacher group endeavors to have the parents who have children ready to enter school visit their family physician and dentist for the purpose of having a complete physical examination made of the child and then encourage the corrections needed. It is teaching the parents the responsibility of having their children prepared physically for school life. At this time parents should have their children immunized against diphtheria and smallpox.

Children grow very rapidly during the first six years of life, and during this rapid growth, physical defects are apt to develop which may cause permanent damage if they are not corrected early. Poor posture in children is very often the result of faulty nutrition. Fatigue may also be a factor, and in some instances there may be actual disease of the bone.

Inability to see or hear well is a serious handicap for the child beginning school. He cannot progress as rapidly as one who sees and hears normally. As a result the child is frequently held back, not because they are mentally slow but because of defects. The Texas State Department of Health lends their hearty cooperation to the Parent-Teacher Association in this effort as they have seen the value of it in the results obtained in past years.

Experience And The Professor

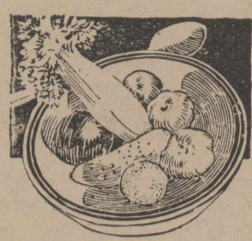

By Ted Johnson
The river being on a big rise, a certain college student, having urgent business across the swollen stream hunted the boatman to row him across. It was a starlit night. As the boat was leaving the shore the flowers were all in bloom and heavy timber and bushes.

The student asked the old boatman if he had ever studied botany. The old man answered, "None, don't know what it is." "Ah," says the professor, "you have missed one great part of your life. Just think of the wonderful beauty in flowers and natural vegetation."

About the middle of the stream the professor looked up at the moon and stars and asked the old boatman if he had studied astronomy, to which the boatman replied he had not. "Ah, man," the professor exclaimed, "you have lost the greater part of your life."

About that time the boat turned over in the very rough water. Then the boatman says, "Professor, can you swim?" The professor said he could not and the old man said, "then you have lost all of your life."

MY FAVORITE RECIPE

Colorful vegetables carefully prepared bring a wealth of variety to your menus this time of year. With so many different kinds to choose you might try an all vegetable dinner or luncheon—but be sure to serve vegetables in lavish profusion for they minister to health as well as appetite. Here is a suggestion for a vegetable dinner that is so satisfying that the meat course will never be missed.

Stuffed Green Peppers
Tomatoes on the Half Shell
Baked Potatoes
Head Lettuce with Russian Dressing
Potato Custard
Coffee

Stuffed Green Peppers

2 green peppers
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour

1 cup boiled rice
1-3 cup cheese
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon paprika

Wash peppers, cut up and discard seeds and pulp. Rinse well in cold water. Melt butter and add flour. When blended, add milk and cook until very thick sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add rice, cheese and seasonings. Stuff peppers. Arrange in small pan. Add 1-3 inch water and bake 30 minutes in slow oven. Baste frequently. This recipe may be increased according to the number of people to be served.

Tomatoes on the Half Shell
Have large, firm, meaty tomatoes, cut them crosswise without peeling, then brush the cut surface with melted butter, sprinkle with chopped green pepper and parsley and a little onion. Bake in a hot oven till tender and the tops nicely browned.

Potato Custard
Pare and grate four white potatoes into a quart of milk. Beat four eggs and add three-quarters of a cup of granulated sugar beating it all the while. Stir in half a teaspoon of salt, cinnamon and a quarter of a teaspoon of grated nutmeg and the grated rind of half a lemon. When well mixed turn into the milk, mix thoroughly, then pour into a buttered baking dish of custard cups set in a shallow pan partly filled with lukewarm water. Place in a moderate oven and bake till the custards are set and a knife inserted in the center comes out clean and dry. Cool and top with whipped cream just before serving.

New Vegetables Dishes
Here are some delicious new ways of serving familiar vegetables—try them out and increase your reputation as a cook.

Vegetable Salad
Cook separately and dice 2 beets, 2 carrots, 2 turnips. Mix lightly and add 1 cup cooked lima beans or peas. Toss in a dressing made of 2 tablespoons melted butter blended with 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1 teaspoon chopped parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Line a salad bowl with lettuce and heap the salad mixture in a mound.

Cauliflower Souffle
To 1 cup of white sauce made with milk or cauliflower water add 4 egg yolks beaten until thick and 1 cup cooked cauliflower cut in tiny pieces. Cool and fold in 4 eggs white beaten stiff. Bake 20 minutes in a hot oven. Serve at once.

Onions French Style
Use small white onions, cooking them whole or the large Spanish or Bermuda variety cut in rings. Cover with boiling water let stand for half an hour, then drain, place in a double boiler and dot with butter. Cook gently till tender. Season and serve.

Southern Peas and Onions
Clean and cut the tops off a bunch of young onions. Split the onions lengthwise and add 1 slice of bacon and 1 cup fresh green peas. Add 3-4 cup boiling water and boil till the onions and peas are tender. Add more water if necessary. Remove the bacon, season to taste with salt and pepper. The liquid should be cooked almost away. A white sauce may be added to this recipe if you desire a creamed dish.

Warning Issued Against Plowing In Public Roads

Warning was issued today against the destruction of ditches by plowing in and across public roads by members of the commissioners court.

"Filling up ditches over the county causes the roads to wash," commissioners said. "There are also a number of persons who throw dead cats, dogs, cans, etc., in the ditches along the roads. Persons breaking the law in this manner may be prosecuted and fined to the extent of $200."

Persons having debris around their homes were encouraged to carry it to the dump grounds, four miles north of town.

but approval has not been received on either. An effort will be made this week to get the work started in the immediate future.

Difficulty on both projects is expected by city officials in the completion of the projects due to the fact that the change from C. W. A. to the relief program has brought about a drastic reduction in the amount allowed for truck hire, and the plans for financing will have to be revamped considerably even when the approval is secured. Work that is underway include lateral roads, the Dodsonville road, and two ward school buildings in Wellington. The work is now being done under the Texas Relief Commission and is classed strictly as relief work.

of Wellington. Interment was made in the Dodsonville cemetery. In 1901 Rev. Newton and his family came to Harmon County, Oklahoma, then Greer county, and settled on a homestead in the Tea Cross community, later moving to McLean and then in 1915 moved to Dodsonville. He was well known over this county not only as a resident but as a preacher for the First Missionary Baptist Church. Owing to his ill health, finally becoming blind he had not preached for several years.

Surviving him beside his widow, are three daughters: Mrs. Alton Bodenhamer of Paducah, Mrs. S. M. Hughes of McLean, Mrs. Ozro McKinney of Dodsonville; one son, Roy Newton of Dodsonville; 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Plans were also discussed for the organization of the Junior Fair to be held in Wellington next fall. "The Junior Fair will be modeled exactly after the county fairs," Mr. Newman said, "except for the fact that only boys and girls under the ages of 18 years will be eligible to enter exhibits in the fair. All exhibits will be made or produced through the efforts of the boys and girls entering them and it is calculated that much interest will be shown in the event. Both the Junior Fair and Junior Police organizations are projects of the Kiwanis Club this year." Those attending said that immediate efforts would be taken for the completion of the Junior Police unit and that arrangements were already being made for the Junior Fair.

Whose Birthday Do You Think This Is?

Well, It's Ours And We Are Eight Years Old...

Eight Year of Uninterrupted Service » » »

Since we started jobbing candy eight years ago, and the merchants of Wellington so generously supported this home-town enterprise, we have seen boom-times and bad times. People in business longer than we have been, say this depression from which we think we have emerged (like those editors who went north to tell the world last week) was the worst known to business in a generation.

We are glad to have been able to serve our customers with the same quality merchandise and reliable service right on through these years. Those who have bought from us have learned to know that Nowlin's will give you the best merchandise obtainable, at fair prices, and will stand behind every transaction.

During these eight years we have employed Collingsworth people to sell our goods whenever possible. Our first salesman was R. D. Sasser. Then later, Mrs. Earl Henry, O. E. Aldredge, Jake Parker, Russell Hopson, Cal Sugg and others.

While all salespeople have been paid for the work they did, yet there has been a wonderful co-operation and loyalty shown by the above, which has been instrumental in building the business which we now enjoy. Without this complete co-operation from salespeople, no business can thrive, and that, coupled with the year in and year out support of our merchant friends, has enabled us to serve you in Wellington, and surrounding territory, these eight years.

We are indeed grateful to our loyal helpers and to our loyal customers on our birthday. In order to care for demands, we have recently arranged to add many new factory lines, and following are some of the arrivals we are expecting or have already been received.

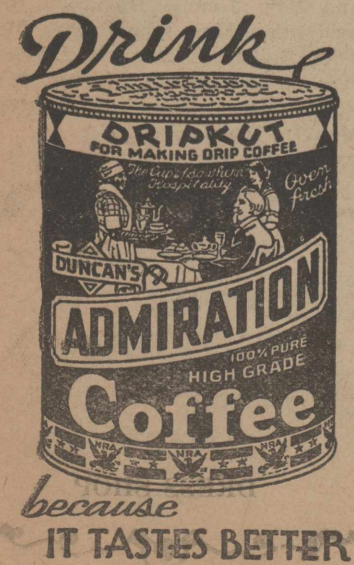

- A Car of Ball Fruit Jars, regular and large mouths.
- Also Rings, Caps, and canning supplies.
- A complete line of Hats, including ladies' and men's.
- Harvest and Sun Hats for adults and children.
- BROOMS—in every price range.
- SILK HOSE—Ringless Chiffons and Service Weight
- FOUNTAIN SUPPLIES—a complete line.
- MATCHES—and many grocery sundries.
- FILES, FLY SWATTERS—other hardware sundries.
- LIPTON'S TEA.
- Vinnedge CAFE SUPPLIES.
- OUR REGULAR line of confections.
- CIGARS—Daily Habit, Pony Puff & Picadura Import.
- WORK GLOVES—Leather and canvass.
- SCHOOL SUPPLIES, Wrapping Paper, Paper Bags, Twine, Canned Meats, Grocery Sundries.

So, on our birthday, let us thank you, and ask a continuance of your business through the next eight years.

Local Clubs Will Sponsor "Woman's Day" With Show

Entire Nation Will Cooperate With Ladies' Clubs April 26

Community Work

Mrs. E. W. Alley To Have Charge Of Ticket Sales In This County

The local women's clubs representatives working in conjunction with the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs in celebrating "Woman's Day" in the Ritz Theatre here on April 27th are looking forward to great success of their enterprise by which a liberal portion of the receipts of Ritz Theatre will be turned over to the Federation representatives.

In a statement today Mrs. E. W. Alley, in charge of the ticket sale, lauded the plans of Manager Bonner of the Ritz Theatre and his organization.

The plan whereby we are to receive a share of the day's receipts of the theatre is a splendid one," said Mrs. Alley. "It strikes a new note in community work and I believe is the first time a theatre has entered into such cooperation.

"As nearly everyone knows, the clubhouse of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs—an imposing structure in which are centered the activities of 30,000 Texas club women—bears a mortgaged indebtedness and the funds realized from today's theatrical activities in our behalf throughout the State will materially reduce this debt, thanks to the efforts of Mr. Karl Hobbeltzelle of Dallas, who besides contributing a part of the receipts from his theatres, interested theatre owners throughout the entire state.

"Here locally we are being given every consideration by Manager John Bonner of the Ritz Theatre, who is working as hard as we are to make the day a success. He is interesting business men and workers of the city in the project and I look for a banner day at the Ritz.

Besides the Ritz Theatre here, show houses cooperating throughout the state represent almost every town and city where a theatre is operated. It represents every circuit owned theatre in the state—and there are few, if any, individually owned theatres in Texas, failing to cooperate in this worthy undertaking.

Senator Small Opens Campaign In Mexia Friday

Revision Of Agencies For Economy And Efficiency Is Advocated

Many From Here

Former Wellm. Governor Launches Campaign

Senator Clint C. Small, in opening his campaign for governor at Mexia Friday, April 20, pledged his efforts to prevent diversion of gasoline taxes to other than highway purposes, as advocated by rival candidates, committed himself to broadening the railroad commission into a general utility board, creating a separate agency for oil and gas supervision, and to a broad policy of social legislation of increased state service to the people.

Those who attended from Wellington were: Joe Hardy, Lee O'Neil, Bill Lynn, T. E. Benge, J. A. Lucas, E. L. Winn, S. R. Pinkston, and Dr. E. W. Jones.

He said that old age pensions, mothers' pensions, unemployment insurance, state research and service as to health, care and cure of crippled children, tuberculosis and insane were legitimate subjects for state attention under the New Deal.

War On Criminals

Senator Small devoted much of his speech to a demand that the agencies for catching, trying and punishing criminals be modernized and said these reforms can be accomplished and the state saved $500,000 by legislation he will advocate if elected.

Sen. Small here launched his second campaign for governor, he having been one of the candidates at the time Gov. Ross S. Sterling was nominated. Among his planks, one a reversal of his former dry stand, advocated resubmission and repeal of the state prohibition amendment, and writing of adequate powers to permit dry area within the state to remain dry by local option.

Warns Against False Claims

Sen. Small said the state can reduce its cost of government only a little below the average retrenchments of 1933, and warned voters against credulity as to extravagant claims of lowered expenses. As to economy he said:

"I promise to suspend temporarily such few state agencies as can be eliminated without harm to the state; to reduce appropriations for all departments to the final point

Rural Teacher's Banquet Tuesday, May 4 One Hundred And Five Rural Teachers To Gather For Annual Banquet Here

More than 100 rural teachers are expected to gather here Tuesday night, May 4, for the annual banquet of the Collingsworth County Rural Teacher's Club, according to the announcement today of G. Dallas Waters, president. The gathering will be held in the First Christian Church and will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

The banquet announcement followed a meeting of the club officers in the Wellington Hotel here Saturday, at which time detail arrangements were completed. Those attending the meeting were: Mr. Waters, Raymond Wilson, vice-president; Mrs. A. B. Clark, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Waters said that the officers hoped to make the banquet this year one of the highlights for many years to come. Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Technological College, has been invited as one of the principal speakers and Byron W. Dickson, deputy state superintendent, Childress, has also been asked as one of the highlights of the program. In addition to these outstanding speakers, Mr. Waters said that arrangements had been made to secure other varied forms of entertainment including musical numbers, readings, songs and short talks.

"Rural teachers are urged to attend the meeting at the request of J. D. Wilson, county superintendent, and Mr. Dickson, who state that there will be many points of interest discussed which will be of vital importance to the teachers of the county," Mr. Waters said. "I expect to send to the principal of each school a letter telling of the fees and later developments of the event and am making the announcement at this time in order that teachers will not make conflicting arrangements."

The Collingsworth County Rural Teacher's Club was organized in Wellington shortly over a year ago and has a membership of 105 teachers of this county. It was primarily organized to further cooperation between the teachers of this county and as a means of working for the betterment and welfare of the schools and students of the county. Through the organization an effort has been made to exchange methods, information and ideas for the betterment of the schools, and through this means school leaders expressed a hope that solution might be generally applied to problems arising in the schools of the county.

Committee Holds Session In Amarillo To Work Out Problems

A determined fight against drouth, insects and wind was this week waged for two days in Amarillo by dry land farming experts of five states.

Among the methods listed are contour listing, strip farming, use of sorghum planting in narrow planting of two or more drill lengths through fields across the path of prevailing winds.

"We admit that some of the recommendations are slightly contrary to the best agricultural practices for the area and should be considered only as extreme emergency measures," said C. R. Jaccard of the Kansas State College, at Manhattan, Kansas.

Immediate unified community control is the only solution to the problem of saving lands on which the crops that ordinarily would hold the soil have been ruined by drouth or insects.

County Agents In Lead There will be no federal funds for the work, Mr. Jaccard said. The information will be released as quickly as possible to the needy areas, and county agents will be urged to take the lead in forming shock troops against the natural enemies of crops.

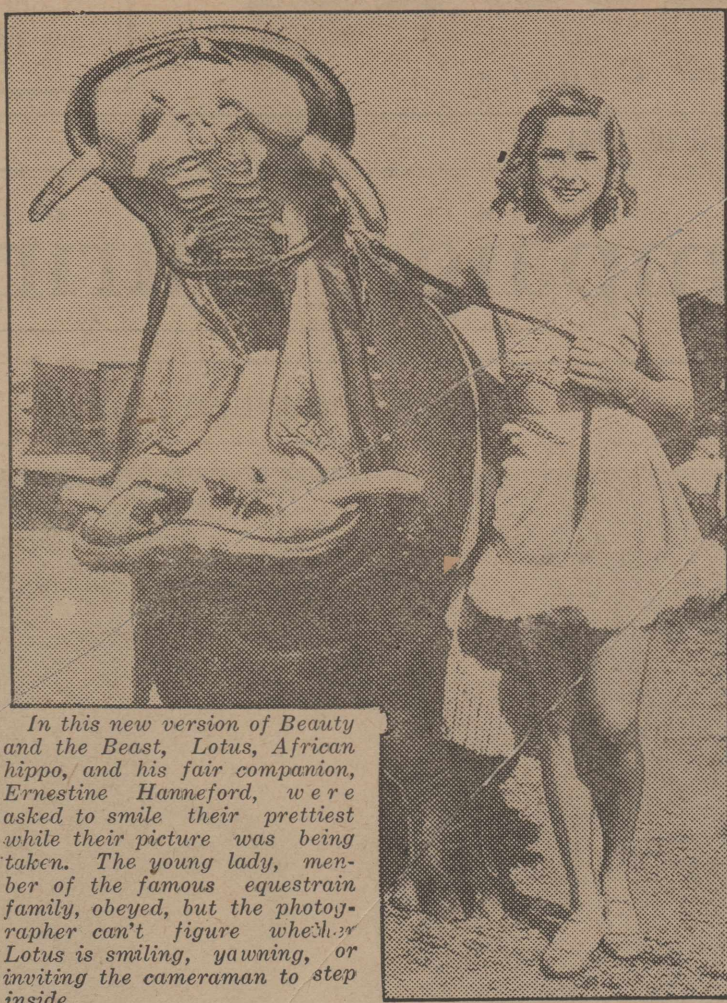

The report on agronomic practices as formed by a committee on soil conservation and land use follows:

"Tillage and cropping practices recommended for the use and management of the abandoned wheat acreage and other land which may not be planted to crops because of contracted acres are as follows:

"In areas of extreme drouth, where there is universal soil blowing the only feasible control method is unified community action. It is recommended that such unified action be taken and that it be directed by county authorities with the cooperation of the extension service.

"Where soil blowing is now widespread the occurrence of rain would simplify control measures. It is imperative that following a rain immediate concerted action must be taken to prevent the resumption of soil movement. The use of any implement or means that would break up the surface soil and leave it rough should be effective.

The Hour Or The Company?

In this new version of Beauty and the Beast, Lotus, African hippo, and his fair companion, Ernestine Hammeford, were asked to smile their prettiest while their picture was being taken. The young lady, member of the famous equestrian family, obeyed, but the photographer can't figure whether Lotus is smiling, yawning, or inviting the cameraman to step inside.

"Where blowing hazards, as from roads, exist adjacent to wheat fields the stalks left from a few rows of sorghums along the side may be used as a border protection.

"Contour listing is suggested for wheat land as a temporary protection to the soil, to save runoff water and prepare the land for a wide spaced sorghum planting, the stalks to be left standing during the winter for the further protection of the wheat crop. Ten-foot row spacing or wider with slightly heavier seeding in the row is recommended in order to provide on one hand, sufficient residue to afford protection from wind erosion and on the other hand, to permit the accumulation of a more favorable moisture and fertility condition for wheat. Grain headed or combined from above lands is eligible for harvest and sale.

"Where soil protection is the major consideration, narrow plantings of two or more drill widths of sorghum at intervals through the field across the path of prevailing winds can be used.

"On the sandy loam soils, which are commonly used for the production of both row crops and wheat, strip farming should be generally practiced. This type of farming consists of planting the crops and leaving land for fallow in alternate strips of varying widths, depending upon the nature of the soil and the distribution of crops on such land. An example of this would be a strip of sorghum, a strip of fallow, and then a strip of wheat alternating across the field. Such strips should be made as wide as practical, so as not to interfere with the efficient use of power machinery and, at the same time, accomplish the desired purpose. The strips used for fallow this year would be planted to wheat in the fall the wheat land would be used for sorghum next year, and the sorghum land would be fallowed. Such strips to be planted on the contour or at right angles to the prevailing wind.

"The maximum accomplishment of the above recommendations can be best obtained by organized county effort through the regular extension procedure."

Other Reports Coming Other recommendations will be made to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration regarding administrative rulings that might enable farmers of the area to protect soil from blowing and at the same time not interfere with successful operation of the Agriculture Adjustment Act.

The experts were from five states, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Colorado and Texas. O. S. Fisher of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., directed the conference.

Texas Remembers San Jacinto On Saturday, April 21

HOUSTON, Texas.—Loyal sons and daughters of Texas trekked to San Jacinto battleground, Saturday honoring the heroes who 98 years ago won Texas independence from Mexico.

Colonel Andrew Jackson Houston of La Porte, son of General Sam Houston, was the invited guest of honor.

Occurrences on that eventful day of April 21, 1836, lived again as thousands of Texans joined the pilgrimage to the plot along Buffalo Bayou where 600 Mexicans were killed and 700 captured in one of the decisive battles of history.

The Bayou, now the Houston ship channel, is a tribute to the general for whom it and the city of Houston are named.

Clarence Kendall of Houston, pioneer resident, was the principal speaker at the ceremonies starting at 2:15.

R. B. Morris of Houston, president of the Sons of Texas, presided.

An address on "San Jacinto Memorial Hall," was delivered by Mrs. Madge W. Hearne of Houston, president of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

General Houston's report on the battle of San Jacinto was read during the program, followed by a list of descendants of known survivors of the battle was read.

Taps, blown by a bugler from the United States Marine Corps, closed the program.

Fashion

By HELEN SCOTT

By Helen Scott

Fashions usually settle down after Easter and stay with us without much change until advanced fall styles make their appearance.

Millinery seems to hold the spotlight now, for there is really a big change in head gear. The cart wheel, even the wagon wheel sailor is with us and their proportions are huge. They are worn straight on the head and made of rough straws and felt. More felt is being worn than in many seasons past. As a contrast to these large hats there are the little boy hats that turn up all around and are worn so precariously on the head that elastic has to hold them in place.

These hats are very chic worn with dresses that have little bow collars which have been taken from Garbo's costumes in her new picture "Queen Christian."

An old favorite in dresses has made its appearance after an absence of many years, the riding-ote. This type of costume is made in many color combinations, but navy leads with brown and white a second.

Remember, your dresses should not be as long as last season. Vogue chart on lengths gives nine to ten inches for afternoon. Ten to eleven for street clothes, thirteen inches for sports clothes.

Accessories will be white mostly for the remainder of the season. The new bags with slip covers that are of washable white linen are very practical. Gloves are white for every type of costume for the summer.

With pique flowers and lingerie touches are smart on most all of the dresses. A splendid way to rejuvenate an old frock.

Mother's Day

By Virginia Curry

When you read this title you will probably think, "Isn't it a wee bit early to be thinking about Mother's Day?" Did you ever stop to think that every day is Mother's Day, and not just one day in a year when we stop in our hurry through life to send Mother a gift or a greeting on her day? We don't think of Mother as a great blessing that God has bestowed on us, but as an essential. Some one to clean up the house after you have rummaged it looking for something you haven't thought about for years. Someone to take your sore toe to be wrapped up, and someone to share our troubles. Someone to do things we don't like to do.

In a garden the mature flowers make seed from which come the little flowers, who in their turn grow and produce seeds. The old flowers watch over and protect the small plants. So it is in God's garden. The smaller ones are protected and guided until they are wise enough and able to make their own way.

A Mother's Love is an indefinable something which is embodied there in her breast from the first time the wee baby is first placed by her side, and stays there building and watching until the time she is taken from her earthly home. It is an undying love that is a shield protecting her boy or girl from the cruelties of the world. It is as enduring as time itself.

Mother It matters not if her dress is ragged and torn; It matters not if her hands are knotty and worn; It matters not if she has no Parisian dresses; It matters not if she has no waved tresses; It matters not that she is not as beautiful as some other; All that matters is that she is My Mother.

17 Million For Texas Relief

WASHINGTON.—It cost $17,966,057 to provide relief for unemployed persons in Texas from January 1, 1933, through February of this year, it was revealed this week, in figures made public by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

This total includes all public funds expended, both by the federal government, and by the state and various municipalities.

The figures showed a significant drop in relief costs during January and February of this year as compared to the first two months of 1933. Expenditures in January 1933, were $1,660,413, as compared to but $852,525 in January this year. In February of last year, expenditures amounted to $1,143,303, while in the corresponding month of this year they totaled only $1,018,014.

The total of $1,660,413 in January of last year is the highest amount spent in any month during the 14-month period.

The $852,525 figures for January of this year is the lowest total for any month.

The rise in February, 1934, over the preceding month is attributed to demobilization of CWA.

Express-Western Union Service

Packages for express shipments will be accepted at the local Western Union Telegraph office, or be picked up on request by telegraph messenger, it was announced jointly today by R. D. Morgan, agent of the Railway Express Agency and Mrs. Austin Gammell, local manager for the Western Union Telegraph Co.

This combination of service of the two companies, recently consummated, has for its purpose making Railway Express service more readily available to the public.

Householders may now ring for a Western Union messenger and one will call for packages up to 20 pounds in weight and $250.00 in value. Such messenger will be authorized to take packages for movement to destination by rail, or air express service; to accept them with charges prepaid or collect and to give receipt.

This new arrangement, continued Mr. Morgan, is intended to provide additional shipping convenience for the general public. It will not, however in any way curtail or interfere with the normal collection and delivery service we have long maintained in handling the business of regular shippers.

Truck will continue to make regular pick-up and deliveries and to respond to calls for shipments, as formerly.

Advance Plan To Improve Small Homes Over Nation

WASHINGTON. — Administration orders were out this week for a new vehicle to use on the road to recovery.

The projected machine would make available as much as $1,500,000,000 in lumps of from $300 to $2,000 for the renovation of small homes throughout the nation.

The program was approved at a White House conference marking abandonment of a previous proposal for heavy government spending in mass home building and slum clearance.

Blueprints of the program call for nation-wide publicity through regional communities to persuade home owners to repair their homes. The informational activities also would direct those interested to the proper offices. Motion pictures, speakers, and the printed page would be called into use.

Under the plan, President Roosevelt soon will ask congress to authorize a mortgage guarantee corporation to ease private borrowing by home owners. Without lending the money itself, the government would guarantee the loans. The proposed corporation, linked closely with the Home Owners Loan corporation, would determine whether loans were justified, then guarantee the mortgages of lenders.

The theory of the new plan is that thousands of homes need remodeling. With money available, officials believe, a big boost could be given to employment and to industries supplying materials.

Unofficial quarters said the drive would reach into every community in the nation and, if successful, could provide up to 1,000,000 additional jobs.

Horton Smith, Last Man to Beat Bobby Jones Before His Retirement, Does It Again to Show He's Still in the Running

By PHILIP MARTIN

Short putts from the golf world: Bobby Jones' failure to win the Masters' Tournament, staged over his own course at Augusta, Ga., doesn't mean that Jones is through so much as it indicates that one Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., pro, is back on his game again. It is interesting to note that Smith, who won the Augusta tournament in which Jones tried a comeback after being idle since 1930, was the last man to beat Bobby before the southerner's retirement.

Shortly after his victory over "Emperor" Jones in the Savannah Open of 1930, Smith was injured. He spent a long time recovering, and a longer time getting back on his game. But he proved conclusively that he was in shape again when he turned in a card of 284 during the Masters' Tournament, to lead the field, one stroke ahead of Craig Wood, second place winner, and ten strokes ahead of Jones!

Smith will be a big threat to Johnny Goodman's National Open crown this year since, in winning the Augusta affair, he beat the best pros and amateurs in the country.

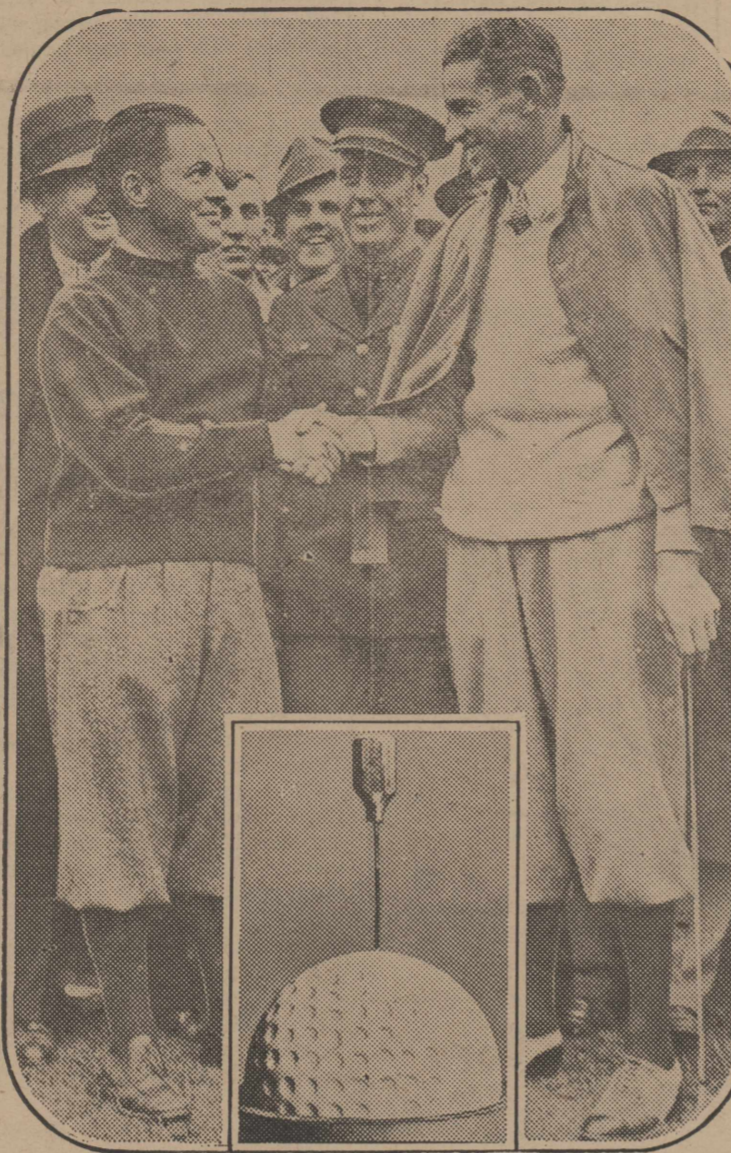

They're doctoring up the golf ball now to make it more lively—just as they did with the major league baseball.

The new balls have a liquid center into which is forced, by means of a hypodermic needle, a pressure as high as 800 pounds to the square inch. This added pressure is said to increase the distance of drive from eight to ten yards.

Golfers have been testing it on various courses this year, and the other day Johnny Dawson got a hole in one at Pinehurst, N. C., with it. Johnny swears by the ball now.

Another development in the ball is the introduction of a "honey-center" by one manufacturer. It is said this type of center will not be so apt to contract and expand under varying weather conditions as other liquid centers.

The old guard of women's golf—Virginia Van Vie, Maureen McCutt, Helen Hicks, Opal S. Hill, et al.—are due for some surprises from an up-an-coming group of youngsters before the year is over.

Foremost among these youngsters are Marion Miley, of Lejinton, Ky., and Lucille Robinson, of Des Moines, Ia.

The former, just out of her teens reached the final rounds of the Florida Women's championship by defeating Helen Hicks—and that's something. She holds six women's score records, one of which is on the Kenwood course at Cincinnati, scene of the 1933 National Amateur.

Miss Robinson won the women's western tournament in 1933, defeating Virginia Van Vie, present women's champion—and that is something, also.

Their records made it easy to predict that these two lassies stand a good chance of winning major tournaments this year.

Bette Davis and Charles Farrell seem pretty pleased. Can it be that they too have seen their latest picture "The Big Shakedown," showing at the Ritz Thursday, for one day only.

Jessie was still raving; but she darted to the batteries, and I heard her cry incessantly to the men. "Courage! courage! Hark to the slogan—the Macgregor, the grandest of them all! Here's help a last!"

5. To describe the effect of these words upon the soldier's would be impossible. For a moment they ceased firing, and every soul listened with intense anxiety. Gradually, however, there arose a murmur of bitter disappointment, and the wailing of the women, who had flocked to the spot, burst out anew as the colonel shook his head.

Our dull Lowland ears heard only the rattle of the musketry. A few moments more of this death-like suspense, of this agonizing hope, and Jessie, who had again sunk on the ground, sprang to her feet, and cried in a voice so clear and piercing that it was heard along the whole line, "Will ye no believe it noo? The slogan has ceased, indeed, but the Campbells are comin'! D'ye hear? d'ye hear?"

6. At that moment all seemed to hear the voice of God in the distance, when the pibroch of the Highlanders brought us tidings of deliverance; for now there was no longer any doubt of the fact. That shrill, penetrating, ceaseless sound, which rose above all other sounds, could come neither from the advance of the enemy nor from the work of the sappers. No, it was indeed the blase of the Scottish bagpipes, now shrill and harsh, as threatening vengeance on the foe, then in softer tones, seeming to promise succor to their friends in need.

7. Never, surely, was there such a scene as that which followed. Not a heart in the residency of Lucknow but bowed itself before God. All, by one simultaneous impulse, fell upon their knees, and nothing was heard but wailing sobs and the murmuring voice of prayer. Then all arose, and there rang out from a thousand lips a great shout of joy, which resounded far and wide, and lent new vigor to that blessed pibroch.

8. To our cheer of "God save the Queen," they replied by the well-known strain that moves every Scot to tears, "Should auld acquaintances be forgot." After that nothing else made any impression on me. I scarcely remember what followed. Jessie was presented to the general on his entrance into the fort, and at the officer's banquet her health was drunk by all present, while the pipers marched around the table playing once more the familiar air of "Auld Lang Syne."

Child Health Day To Be Held May 1

"Mothers and Babies First" is the slogan for Child Health Day, which will be held on May 1, according to Dr. H. N. Barnett, director, Bureau of Child Hygiene. Texas will join with the other states in the nation-wide celebration. There is a special significance in this year's celebration because children are always among the greatest sufferers in periods of hard times.

Child Health Day is a challenge to all adults to take stock of the health needs of all children, babies as well as those of school age, in their communities. All should be interested in furthering all measures to conserve health and promote happiness of children. An examination by the family physician at this time would not be amiss. He can detect signs of malnutrition, unsound teeth, heart defects, poor vision, poor hearing and many other defects and can advise the parents of the proper treatment necessary.

Parents should take an inventory of what they are doing for their children, to see if they are neglecting anything that should be done to remove health handicaps.

It is suggested that every community in the state conduct suitable exercises on May Day. Texas has always taken a prominent part in this observance and each year numbers of clinics for babies and preschool children are held. In this way a community-wide interest is centered on the small child. Teachers, children, and members of clubs are enlisted to establish year-round activities for the betterment of mothers and babies.

THE RELIEF OF LUCKNOW

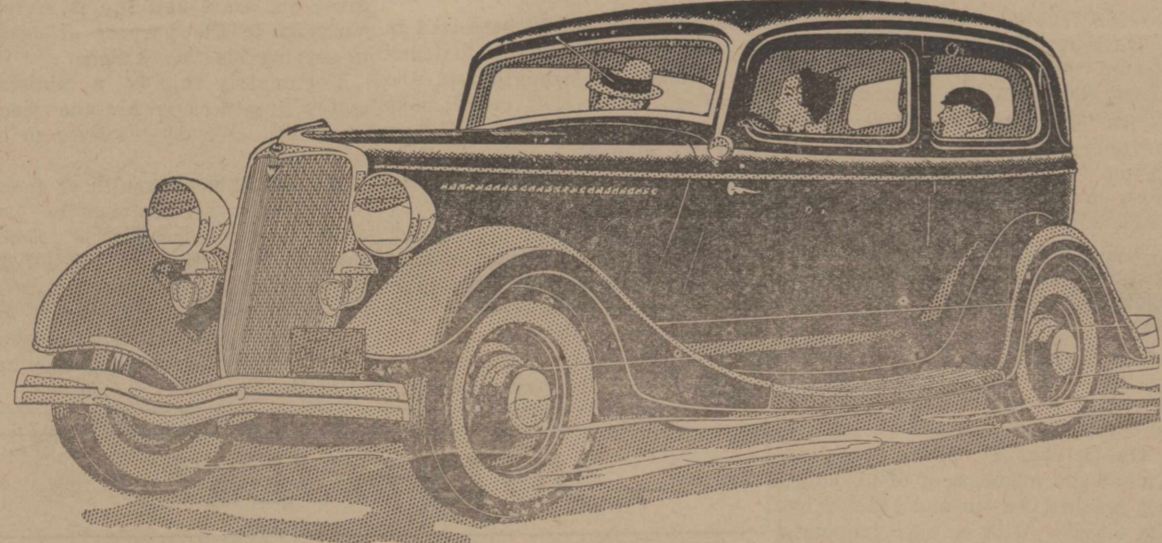

(From a letter to the London Times, by a lady, the wife of an officer at Lucknow.)

1. On every side death stared us in the face; no human skill could avert it any longer. We saw the moment approach when we must bid farewell to earth, yet without feeling that utterable horror which must have been experienced by the unhappy victims of Cawnpore. We were resolved rather to die than to yield, and were fully persuaded that in twenty-four hours all would be over. The engineer had said so, and all knew the worst. We women strove to encourage each other, and to perform the light duties which had been assigned to us, such as conveying orders to the batteries, and supplying the men with provisions, especially cups of coffee, which we prepared day and night.

2. I had gone out to try to make myself useful, in company with Jessie Brown, the wife of a corporal in my husband's regiment. Poor Jessie had been in a state of restless excitement all through the siege, and had fallen away visibly within the past few days. A constant fever consumed her, and her mind wandered occasionally, especially that day, when the recollections of home seemed powerfully present to her. At last, overcome with fatigue, she lay down on the ground, wrapped up in her plaid. I sat beside her, promising to awaken her when, as she said, her "father should return from the plowing."

3. She fell at length into a profound slumber, motionless and apparently breathless; her head resting in my lap. I myself, could no longer resist the inclination to sleep in spite of the continued roar of the cannon. Suddenly I was aroused by a wild, unearthly scream close to my ear; my companion stood upright beside me, her arms raised and her head bent forward in the attitude of listening.

4. A look of intense delight broke over her countenance she grasped my hand, drew me toward her, and exclaimed: "Dinna ye hear it, dinna ye hear it? Ay, I'm no dreaming; It's the slogan of the Highlanders! We're saved! We're saved! Then flinging herself on her knees, she thanked God with passionate fervor. I felt utterly bewildered; my English ears heard only the roar of artillery, and I thought my poor

Match the Performance of the FORD V8 for 1934 against any Car at any Price

THE car that flashed down a Florida beach to the world's land speed record was powered by the V-type engine.

The V-type engine knifed an Italian plane through the air at the record-smashing speed of more than 420 miles per hour.

On the St. Clair River, the V-type engine swept a speed-boat to the world's record of 124.8 miles per hour.

And that's the type of engine that powers the Ford V-8 for 1934. It's the only V-8 engine in a car selling for less than $2,545.

That's why the Ford V-8 will streak down a highway at 80 or better. That's why it will purr along at 50 or 60 without the slightest effort. And why it is unsurpassed in acceleration by many high priced cars!

Despite its power, the new Ford V-8 is the most economical car that Ford has ever built.

The new Ford V-8 gives you the riding ease of free action for all four wheels—with the safety of strong axle construction.

Before you buy any car at any price, drive the new Ford V-8.

YOU naturally expect Phillips 66 to be higher test than other motorfuels, when you know that Phillips is the world's largest producer of natural high test gasoline.

Just look at the gravity (or high test) figures, at the right. They prove that your expectation is 100 per cent correct. Then ask yourself why Phillips publishes these figures month after month, while others do not! Obviously the reason is that Phillips figures are higher, that Phillips welcomes any and all comparisons based on fact.

MEDIOCRITY IN EDUCATIONAL EFFORT DOES NOT PAY

By J. D. Wilson, County Supt.

Recently the manager of a major baseball league club was denied a new contract because he did not produce a championship team. The controlling stockholder of the club had the highest praise for the manager but no second-place team would satisfy. A manager must be found who could produce a world championship team.

This situation is rather typical in American affairs. A second grade tennis player is passed. A first grade one gains a $20,000 bequest from a prominent citizen for bringing the International Championship to his home state. The defeated prize fighter is a bum—the winner is the hero. The hundred-yard sprinter gains no credit for making the century in ten flat. The pace is not fast enough. He must win. Those who attempt a trans-Atlantic air flight and fail are forgotten. To be remembered they must succeed.

The individual who begins to slip is soon forgotten. "Has beens" are not selected to lead in any important enterprises. Selections are made from men and women who are still going forward, and not those who are slipping back. The individual must keep moving up—better today than yesterday, with promise of better tomorrow than today. This generation must be more aggressive than were our fathers. The next generation in turn must out-do the present one.

Recent years have witnessed the development of new competition. It shows itself in group action—the ice industry in competition with mechanical refrigeration, cement with lumber, coal with oil, and both with gas. It has likewise made its appearance in rather unexpected lines in recent months. Hard times resulted in the survival of the fittest. There is the weeding out process going on in business and industry—a period of slack business and low industry production has necessitated the laying off of employees. There is, therefore, the competition among employees, based upon their ability or capacity for work. This low employment period has been generally used to raise the general standards of employees. The less efficient ones have been the first to lose their jobs. There are few jobs that do not require the mind to function as well as the muscles. The standards for employees established by employers is going up—not down. The public school is the one agency that can be instrumental in meeting this change.

Industry and business this year must show greater growth than last year, next year more than this year, else the sales manager or other high officers must give an accounting.

The same spirit carries over into our public schools. A new school executive comes onto the job and he must show a better record than his predecessor, regardless of how excellent that record might have been. In accepting employment he will weigh carefully the opportunity for growth, which the new position affords. Each succeeding graduating class must be larger and better than the previous; more practical training in the school each year and more good common sense used by the teacher each year.

Progress, the result of growth, is stimulating. It is energizing—it is satisfying. Youth is pulsating with that spirit. It must be on the move. It must be going somewhere. When properly directed and encouraged, it produces growth. No half-way effort will suffice. Herein is the function of the schools. It transplants the child from an aimless activity outside of school to a motivated work within. It transplants from purposeless progress without to purposeful progress within. It transplants from impulsive interests without to impelling interests within. It substitutes ambition for emotions and dictates the direction of action. It is insistent upon whole-hearted effort—half-hearted attempts will not suffice. It is laying the foundation for every pupil to function in accordance with his talents. This is no mean task for our schools but each day brings new evidence of their so functioning—evidence of a task well done. This is due to the fact that the public is insistent that mediocre school system will not suffice—it must be the best.

WITCHCRAFT IN 1934

Recent news reports of "witchcraft murders," in which the victims were killed because they were supposed to be exerting evil influences upon their neighbors, have again brought to light unbelievable prevalence of superstition in this land of civilization.

Investigations pursued in consequence of these killings have revealed that in certain sections the belief in witchcraft and magic is as common as that which prevailed during medieval times in Europe, or among African native of the present.

One of the murders recently reported was committed in order to obtain possession of a "magic book," in which was printed: "Whoever carries this book is safe from all enemies; can not die, nor be drowned in any water, nor burn up in any fire," and so on.

It is estimated that in the United States not less than 20,000 professional "priestesses" of voodooism, fortune-telling, and other charlatanry making a living by playing upon the ignorance and credulity of superstitious people. They even number among their dupes many persons of wealth, education and social prestige. There is no accounting for how they get that way.

OTHER EDITORS Items of Interest in the Panhandle

Floydada Hesperian: After operating as a weekly paper for 30 years the Shamrock Texas has become a daily except Sunday, newspaper. The daily bug is also biting at Memphis where The Democrat is inviting invitations to begin the publication of a daily newspaper. It takes money to make any newspaper and a jump from a weekly to a daily means that the support must also jump in proportion. In the instance at Shamrock the first issue was well supported, giving the new venture a good send-off.

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal: It is doubtful if the general public is any less gullible when it comes to signing petitions than were the more than 150 students and faculty member of Akron University who pledged themselves unwittingly to decapitate themselves in celebrating the birthday of the university's president. Five members of the faculty, the president of the student council, student heads of the dramatic and theatrical groups and other campus leaders were among the signers. The petition was originated to "prove how futile are college petitions and how gullible are the students who sign them."

Tulia Herald: It may surprise many farmers in this county to know that flax can be profitably grown in this section of the Panhandle. Here are some figures of a Swisher County farmer who has been testing this crop for the past two or three years: In 1931 he raised 500 acres which produced an average of 17 bushels per acre, and sold for $1.75 per bushel. In 1933 he planted 300 acres that produced an average of 19 bushels per acre and sold for $1.50 per bushel. We are told that it is a spring crop and matures in 90 days.

Matador Tribune: With the sale of beer finally becoming legal in Matador Saturday the casual stranger would have known nothing about it unless he should have passed one of the business places where the sale started. The reaction was so mild that many were not aware that the sale had commenced until hours afterward.

Turkey Enterprise: Members of the fire department, who are making plans for a big picnic and political rally here July 3-4, state one of the feature events will be a donkey baseball game. Those who have seen donkey baseball say it is one of the most exciting and funniest games ever witnessed.

Clarendon News: Some things worth remembering are the value of time, the pleasure of working, the worth of character, the influence of example, the dignity of simplicity, the power of kindness, the success that comes from perseverance, the obligation of duty, the virtue of patience, the wisdom of economy, the joy of originating, and the profit from experience.

Estelline News: The issue of April 12 is Volume 9, Number 1. Our first eight years in Estelline have been rather checkered. For five years we enjoyed a reasonable amount of prosperity, three of which might be termed extra good. The last three have been unusually hard on the home town paper, because of the fact that the home town merchant in about 75 per cent of the cases starts his economy by cutting out his advertising schedule. Along with the everyday grind of publishing a newspaper has brought a lot of pleasant associations with the business men of the town. We are facing the new year with the belief that it will be much better in every way than the year just closed.

Canyon News: All of the candidates for governor have announced their platform in their opening speeches. From now on, the political issues will be discussed in every section of the state. Six candidates for governor are starting pretty well on even terms. As the campaign develops, alignments will be made which will develop the strength or weakness of the various men in the race. All of the candidates will be asked as to their stand on the educational system. Every candidate for the legislature should be asked to come out definitely on this question. In the governor's race, Senator Clint Small seems to be gaining in strength all over the state. To those who wish a safe and conservative man with unusual qualifications, Senator Small is making a great appeal. Four years ago Senator Small was not known in East and South Texas. Today he is well known and has a large following. With West Texas voters staying with Senator Small, he is in line for a place in the second primary.

If wealth ever climbs on the jolting wagon of life to ride with me, the first hammock of luxury I seek will be a supply of socks without end. Bright colors and blacks, big, long and silver. Then when the first sign of a toe shows, like a young bean breaking thru the sod, I will toss the sock carelessly away and reach for a new pair. There will be no sickening dread when I am in a hurry and get out my best shoes. I can think of no other thing that I want very much unless it would be to have a shot gun handy some morning and just one try at the alarm clock ringing on the bookcase.—Trail Dust in Matador Tribune.

The Dinner Bell or The Whistle?

OUR PAST

By C. C. BISHOP

Austin, the capital of Texas, and county seat of Travis county, is located on the Colorado river, eighty-one miles northeast of San Antonio.

The first white settler in this community was Jacob Harrell, who established his home there in 1837. A year later the town of Waterloo was founded on the present site of Austin.

On January 4th, 1839, Mirabeau B. Lamar, president of the Texas republic, appointed a commission of five men to select a site for the "City of Austin," named in honor of Stephen Fuller Austin, on which site the capital of Texas was to be established.

This commission purchased from Logan Vandever, James Rodgers, G. D. Hancock, J. W. Harrell and Aaron Burleson 7,735 acres of land for approximately $21,000.00.

Following the receipt of this news, President Lamar appointed Judge Edwin Waller to take charge of the survey of Austin's site, lay out the streets and lots and conduct a sale of the land to prospective citizens of the republic.

On August 1, 1839, Waller conducted the first sale of lots and there were 306 lots disposed of, which brought $182,588.00. The average price of the lots was between five and eight hundred dollars, some bringing only one hundred dollars and the prize lot, the one on which the Scarborough building now stands, is said to have brought twenty-eight hundred dollars.

After the lot sale the town grew rapidly. Work was immediately begun on a capitol building and a few government office buildings.

On October 17, 1839, President Lamar and members of his cabinet reached Austin and greeted by the citizens with a big banquet, which was served under a shed.

During the same week the first copy of the Austin City Gazette, Austin's first newspaper, was issued. A few months later the first city election was held and Judge Waller was elected mayor.

On January 25, 1840, the county of Travis was created by the Texas congress and named in honor of William B. Travis, one of the heroes of the Alamo.

In March, 1842, after two thousand of Austin's citizens had gone to the rescue of San Antonio, which had been raided by Mexicans under General Vasquez, President Sam Houston and his cabinet became worried about their safety and moved the government to Houston over the protest of the people.

The following year Houston's agents attempted to remove land office archives but the citizens overtook the party which had seized the papers from the land office. After a bloodless encounter at Walnut Creek, they returned the records to Austin.—This is known as the "Archives War."

In 1845, Austin was designated as temporary capital of Texas now a state of the United States. It was then decided to hold an elec-

Jesus' Own Scale Of Value

Text: Matt. 20:1-34

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 29.

In the life of Jesus, there were certain happenings which show plainly the contrast between the values he set upon life in his teachings, and the worldly ideals of power and success which influence men.

There were two disciples, James and John, who had a very ambitious mother. She appears in the New Testament record as the "mother of Jbedee's children." Bebedee, apparently, was only incidental in that family life.

The mother was the strong determining influence, and she had inculcated in these two sons the intense passion to be foremost that she herself had for them.

Jesus perceived this quality in the two brothes, and he playfully nicknamed them "Boanerges," which means the sons of thunder. Once he rebuked their fiery spirit when they urged him to call down fire from heaven and consume some villagers who had treated their Master disrespectfully.

But Jesus evidently perceived in these ambitious, fieryspirited men the qualities of strength and the power of action that could make them mighty pillars upon which to build his church, once their lives were purged of selfishness and worldly ambition.

Here in our lesson the mother had come to him with an urgent request concerning her sons. She asked that one should sit upon the right hand and the other on the left when he should come into his kingdom. She had as deep a misconception of the nature of Christ's Kingdom and power as had the young men themselves.

But the young men were true to the spirit of their mother. When Jesus pointed out to them the hardships and the sacrifices, they did not flinch. They declared themselves able to drink of the cup that he should partake of and to be baptized with the baptism, that he was baptized with.

They feared nothing, and they held back from sacrificing nothing, for the attainment of their purpose and what their mother had in view.

How different it was all to be in the actual result. These men so full of fire became full of love and zeal for righteousness. Where they had aspired to become great through lording it over others, they were to learn the Master's lesson that greatness is through character and love and service, that the greatest of all men is the minister. Not necessarily the man who bears a "D. D." or before whose name "Rev." is placed, but the man, wherever he is found, who gives his heart and life in simple sincerity to the purpose of Jesus in serving his fellow men.

Fortunately this is a ministry and a greatness within the reach of us all. We do not have to be born to it.

We do not need wealth or favor or influence to secure it, but where even the lowliest of God's children will devote himself to simple tasks and duty and to a life of ministry and service, he will find that he has entered Christ's hall of fame and the places of the great.

Kill Shamrock City Beer Vote

The beer election ordered to be held in Shamrock on April 21, has been called off as the result of a ruling by Elbert Hooper, first assistant attorney general, yesterday that state laws prohibit any political sub-division of a dry county holding such an election.

The only way beer can be voted is for another countywide election to be called.

The city beer election was ordered for Shamrock last Monday after a petition bearing signatures of more than the necessary 10 per cent of qualified voters, was presented county commissioners court, asking that an election be called.

Commissioners court was of the opinion an incorporated city could hold its own election even though the county had voted dry, and ordered the election without consulting County Attorney Clyde Fillmore as to the legality of such action.

State laws do not give any political subdivision of a dry county the right to vote beer, but under local option a political subdivision of a wet county may vote dry if it wants to.

Advocates of legal beer have indicated they will at once circulate petitions over the entire county with view of securing signature of 10 per cent of the voters, and ask that a countywide election be called at an early date.

Eighty-seven couples belonging to the Paris Marriage Club will be united at a single ceremony.

Teaching Pays, They Find

Col. O. W. Hoop, left, and Mary Spellman have found that teaching pays, even nowadays. When he tried to show his pupils that an average man couldn't beat a political machine, Colonel Hoop, U. of Tulsa Oklahoma professor, ran for police and fire commissioner of Tulsa. His students stumped for him, and he won handily. And so numerous were the former pupils of Miss Spellman, Beaver Dam, Wis., school teacher for more than half a century, that when they decided to elect her mayor of the city, she was swept into office by a big majority.

Option Cotton Plan Explained By Agent To Aid Farmers

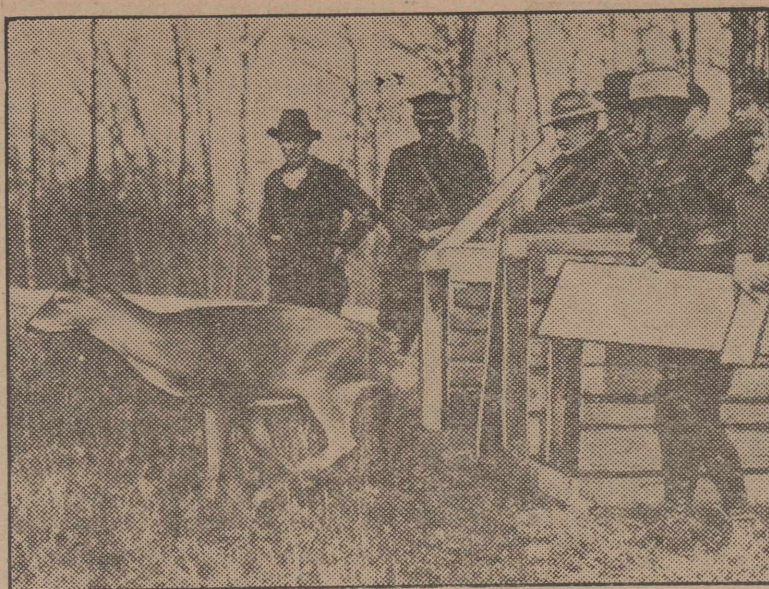

By John Stovall
County Agent

A number of the farmers have come to my office asking what they should do in regard to their option cotton. These men are being confused by not reading the article that has appeared in the state paper for some time, more closely. I have the information for the AAA section, Cotton Option Office that in no case can a producer segregate his cotton from the pool and sell unless the basis cotton market should be 15c before July 31, 1934. They further state that after that date the cotton will be sold by the Manager of the pool when so ordered by the Secretary of Agriculture. The cotton that has been referred to in the paper is that cotton that the farmers have failed to take the $20 per bale advance on, in this case that cotton will begin to have a charge set on the cotton for storage.

KNOW THE TRUTH ABOUT MOTOR OILS - CONOCO DARES TO GIVE YOU THE FACTS

New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Oil supports claims with positive proof!

A representative of the AAA Contest Board, a vigilant, unbiased investigator.

WITH the announcement of New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil comes another announcement of a daring and absolutely unique test. Supervised by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, and held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, these unbiased results offer no unsupported claims but fairly and impartially give you positive proof of performance!

Six oils were in the test—each in an identical, new, strictly stock car—all tested under equal conditions. The five competing motor oils were nationally known, widely advertised. AAA officials bought them on the open market, together with New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. After the cars were carefully broken in, they were lined up for the final grueling run. Five quarts of oil, a complete fresh fill, were put in each and the crankcase of each car sealed. No more oil was added.

The order was given—500 miles average a day—50 miles an hour—until the motors were destroyed for lack of lubrication. In four days, three oils failed and wrecked their motors—No. 4 at 1,713.2 miles—No. 6 at 1,764.4 miles—No. 5 at 1,815.9 miles.

Oil No. 1 failed at 2,266.8 miles. Then the exciting duel between No. 3 and No. 2. Oil No. 3, a competitive premium oil, went on for 3,318.8 miles before it broke down. Oil No. 2, New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Oil, stayed on alone for more than 1,400 miles farther, to a total of 4,729 miles, an all-time record of motor protection and low consumption on five quarts of oil!

This is evidence—these are facts—that should open a new era of results and economy for your motor. Drive into a Conoco station or dealer—fill with this New and Improved Oil. There is no longer any guess about it!

Mysterious Shot Shatters Glass Of M. J. Holland Car

Protesting on the grounds of possible danger to life and property, M. J. Holland, local insurance agent, this week said that a bullet fired from a .22 calibre rifle shattered the window of his car parked in front of his house in the southwest part of town.

Mr. Holland said that he heard reports of several rifle shots before the glass was broken and that he felt that some person had carelessly fired the bullet without thinking. He also stressed the fact that shooting across a highway was not only illegal, but dangerous and urged that more caution should be taken by marksmen.

beyond which they cannot go without injury to the state. I promise economy, not destruction. In the final analysis, many promises of economy mean destruction.

Combine Constabularies He would combine the Ranger service and highway patrol, create a state identification bureau, and equip officers with adequate arms and transportation to deal with modern crime. He said:

"The modern criminal has made marvelous advancement in the technique of crime. His progress has been much greater than that of agencies of government used to apprehend and convict the law violator. . . . Until we have an adequately-equipped and competent state constabulary to work with all other law enforcement agencies, we have no just reason to condemn the failure to exterminate the desperate criminals now seriously menacing society.

Equip Law Officers "I want to see the state ranger force reorganized in such manner as to enable it to function in keeping with the best traditions of the ranger service. With this force, I want to combine the highway patrol. We must then provide modern identification bureaus, efficient radio facilities, adequate transportation and modern arms that will put the officer on even terms with the criminal. . . . After the racketeer is in the penitentiary we will need a governor who will not make it necessary to catch him a second time.

"It seems that an extreme liberal wave has swept across the country, and with it, law violation of the most desperate type.

"A constitutional amendment should be proposed, placing the pardoning power in a board to consist of the attorney general, one appointee of the supreme court, and one appointee of the governor. The governor should have the power to veto the action of the board in granting clemency. . . . So long as the present law is in force, I would stop the wholesale pardoning of criminals. Men convicted of the same or similar offenses in different counties would remain in the penitentiary until they served full time."

Cut Costs of Courts Sen. Small revisited his law improving court terms. He urged that a grand jury indictment be not required, but that criminal cases be prosecuted merely on complaint. Much speedier trials would result, and much money would be saved, he said.

He urged many court reforms, dealing with the reversal of cases and trial delays. He proposed trial fees in the courts, graduating upward, tending to reduce the litigation and make those who use the courts pay for them. He estimated the reforms and levies would relieve the taxpayers of $500,000 a year.

Conservation Commission Sen. Small coming from the section whose natural gas deposits are being drained for the benefit of out-of-state people, urged creation of a three-man conservation commission, dealing with oil, gas, water resources, and the work of several state boards. At the same time, he advocated expending the comparable functions of the railroad commission, and making that body a full-fledged utility regulating agency.

"Good sound business demands that a commission of three men give undivided attention to conservation of natural resources," he said. "The expense of the commission and cost of regulating the production, refining and marketing of oil and gas should be borne by this industry, and not burden the general revenue. This commission should also take over the duties of the board of water engineers and the board of mineral development, both of which could be eliminated at a substantial saving."

As to moving departments of general revenue cost to the support of the industry supervised, Sen. Small said such agencies as the railroad commission, banking and insurance departments, and various licensing boards should be paid for out of fees for supervision, as some of them are now.

Sen. Small vigorously urged full support of the public schools and the college system. "As your governor, I would not retreat, but lead a charge for the betterment of education," he said.

Sen. Small's opening speech preceded by one day those of C. C. McDonald at Bonham and Tom F. Hunter at Clifton. Attorney Gen. James V. Allred already has had his opening speech. Maury Hughes will open at McKinney Saturday of next week. Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt has made several radio talks, but will not begin the routine campaign speaking until sometime in May.
