For Redistricting Plan ...

Solons Have 3-Day Weekend To Collect Enough Support

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators have a three-day weekend to see if votes can be collected for a new congressional redistricting plan that both House and Senate could accept.

The idea, say Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, and Speaker Bill Clayton, is to avoid sending the remap bill to a conference committee where it could be haggled to death.

Clayton abruptly gaveled the House into adjournment Thursday afternoon after a point of order blocked debate on a property tax bill that was supposed to buy time for negotiation on redistricting.

The House tentatively approved a redistricting bill Wednesday night. Wilson came up with a slightly revised version Thursday morning and said it probably could get the 16 Senate votes necessary to send it to the governor and avoid conference.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, started testing the water in the House. He decided he needed the support of Rep. Bob Saunders of La Grange, who had won an 81-64 vote Wednesday for an amendment drawing a safe district for Congressman Bill Patman of Ganado.

Von Dohlen's version of the redistricting bill, as it came to the floor from his House Committee on Regions, Compacts and Districts, gave Patman so much Republican territory that his re-election chances were 50-50 at best.

It would take a motion to reconsider Wednesday's vote on the bill to allow consideration of Wilson's plan.

But reconsideration also would open up the bill to all sorts of other amendments, including some that could put Patman — a moderate who voted against President Reagan's tax cut plan — in an unfriendly district.

Late Thursday, associates were saying Saunders wanted an ironclad agreement no changes other than those contained in the new Wilson plan would be made.

Patman's wife said it appeared the Wilson plan would not hurt her husband's political career but she wanted to be sure there were no "mistakes" that might add hostile territory to his district.

Von Dohlen said he needs Saunders' support to reassure those who voted for the Saunders amendment that the new Wilson plan would not damage Patman.

The Wilson plan adds part of conservative Fort Bend County to Patman's proposed new district, along with Bastrop and part of Caldwell Counties.

It also makes adjustments in the districts of U.S. Reps. Jake Pickle of Austin, Marvin Leath of Marlin and Ron Paul of Lake Jackson.

In addition, it restores Delta County to U.S. Rep. Sam Hall of Marshall, who had championed the federal Cooper Reservoir project in that county. Earlier plans put Delta County in the district of U.S. Rep. Ralph Hall of Rockwall.

Wilson said the plan represented a compromise that held a good chance of gaining both chambers' approval without a conference committee.

"I'd rather do most anything than go to conference committee because of the dangers of someone forcing something on us at the last minute," he said.

Both plans would meet Gov. Bill Clements' objective of creating a heavily minority district in Dallas, where a black would have a chance of unseating U.S. Rep. Martin Frost.

Packing minorities into Frost's district leaves U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox, a Dallas Democrat, wth a largely Republican district.

Republicans would gain two seats — they now hold five — from either plan.

Texas' congressional delegation was increased from 24 to 27 by the 1980 census, which showed population gains in Texas far above the national average.

Jamboree Injuries

FORT A.P. HILL, Va. (AP) — Three boys at the 1981 Boy Scout Jamboree here have been sent to the Medical College of Virginia Hospital in Richmond for treatment of medical problems.

The Jamboree spokesman L. Allen Klope said Thursday the problems occurred at the opening show Wednesday night.

David Lambert of Austin, Texas, suffered an aneurysm in his head but was in satisfactory condition and expected back at camp, Klope said.

A spokesman at MCV confirmed that Lambert would be released Thursday and probably would return to the Jamboree.

Andy W. Smith of Shelby, Ohio, was hit in the head with a flashlight. He was treated at the hospital and released.

John B. Likens of Morrestown, N.J., broke his arm when he fell off a truck outside the camp site. Likens also suffered cuts and bruises on his head. He was reported in satisfactory condition Thursday at MCV, the hospital spokesman said.

Favor Submission, Not War

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Nearly half the West German public would rather submit to Soviet domination than defend democracy and risk nuclear war, the respected Allensbach Institute says in a report on a public opinion poll.

The institute reported 48 percent of 1,300 persons questioned in May said it was more important to preserve peace than risk a nuclear holocaust in defense of democracy.

Lawyer Seeks Records

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Texas attorney has obtained a subpoena for Veterans Administration records he believes may help clear up conflicting claims to the fortune left by Howard Hughes.

Attorney George Parnham of Houston hopes to prove that screen writer and author Rupert Hughes, an uncle of the late Hughes, was sterile and therefore three women claiming part of the estate could not be his granddaughters.

"Rupert was a veteran of the Spanish-American War, World War I and World War II. It is our understanding that he was treated in a VA hospital in the Pittsburgh area," said Parnham. Rupert Hughes died at age 84 in 1956, he said.

Parnham, who suspects the hospital records may reveal Rupert Hughes' blood type, was granted the subpoena Thursday by Allegheny County Judge Joseph Del Sole.

Police Search For Three Men

Snyder police today were searching for three men who fled following a stabbing which sent one man to the hospital at about 1 a. m.

Officers said Willie Mack Berkley, 19, suffered a deep stab wound to the stomach in the incident which occurred at the Texaco Truck stop. He was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where he underwent surgery.

Officers said that witnesses told of seeing three men flee in a blue car which was believed to be a 1979 Malibu Chevrolet. The car reportedly had its windshield broken in the altercation, and it hit a parked 1978 Ford driven by Jackie Floyd of 1910 Coleman as it sped from the scene.

Police also investigated a motorcycle mishap at 11:23 a. m. Thursday at the interscetion of U. S. 180 and Texas 208 at the southeast edge of town. Lonnie Martin Mendez, Route 2, operator of the motorcycle was taken to Cogell Memorial Hospital by Scurry County EMS for treatment of what appeared to be minor injuries. He apparently lost control of the motorcycle and it went into a skid, it was reported.

A minor traffic mishap was reported at 4:24 p. m. Thursday at 2400 College Ave. Involved were a 1979 Toyota pickup driven by David E. Newcomb of Albuquerque, N. M., and a 1971 International truck tractor driven by Jose Z. Medrano of Ackerly. No injuries were reported.

Charles Wells of 701 27th St. reported at 8:43 p. m. Thursday that a lawnmower had been stolen from his front porch. It was valued at $50.

Iranians Ask For Return Of Bani Sadr

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Thousands of Iranians demonstrated in front of the French Embassy in Tehran for the second day today, chanting "Death To Zionist Mitterrand" and demanding his government extradite fugitive ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Tehran Radio reported.

"Mitterrand, Mitterrand, Give Us Back Bani-Sadr," the marchers chanted, referring to French President Francois Mitterrand. Warnings were blared through bullhorns to refrain from attacking the embassy, and the marchers dispersed peacefully after 90 minutes, sources in Tehran said.

However, about 100 other Iranians vowed to maintain their protest in front of the heavily guarded French Embassy. A sit-in also was held in front of the French Embassy in New Delhi, where 100 chanting Iranian students were demanding Bani-Sadr's return to Iran.

Tehran Radio said the embassy protesters, who began their sit-in Thursday, hung placards on the walls of the embassy building in Tehran's downtown "France Street" criticizing the French government.

PolishWorkersDemand Full Meat Rations Back

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — About 300 workers demonstrated outside the Polish Parliament today and sent a delegation inside with a resolution threatening a warning strike next week unless full meat rations are restored.

The rally, under a banner reading "We Want To Eat," came a day after a mass protest in the second biggest city of Lodz. State Planning Chief Zbigniew Madej told the delegation in parliament, "We are all painfully moved by the incidents of the past days, protest actions caused by shortages in supplies.

"These issues have worried the government for the past few months. Pressure on the government, organizing new protest actions cutting into everyday life, however, are not the way out of the crisis."

Poland's year-long labor upheaval, which led to the creation of Solidarity, the first union independent of Communist Party control in the Soviet bloc, has raised fears of Soviet intervention in this key Warsaw Pact ally.

The Soviets added the aircraft carrier Kiev to an armada massing in the Baltic Sea today. Intelligence sources in Western Europe speculated an amphibious landing exercise was in the works that could include the largest marine landing ship in the Soviet fleet, the Ivan Rogov.

The Baltic port of Gdansk was the headquarters of the strike wave last summer that launched Solidarity, the union that is spearheading the current protests over food shortages.

On Thursday, thousands of women and children took to the streets of the textile center of Lodz to protest the shortages.

The 8,000 to 10,000 demonstrators marched through the center of the city of 840,000, leaders of Solidarity said.

The march highlighted four days of demonstrations in Lodz spearheading a growing national protest against shortages, government plans to reduce the August meat rate from 7.7 to 6.6. pounds a person and hike food prices by as much a 400 percent.

Threats of additional protests have come from all corners of the nation.

The government has blamed the shortages on its $27 billion foreign debt and a decline in worker productivity during a year of labor unrest that have cut government earnings, leaving no money for imports. Solidarity says inefficient government policies are to blame.

In Moscow, meanwhile, the Soviet Union today sharply attacked a resolution by the U.S. House of Representatives that warned against "internal repression or external aggression" in Poland.

The official Tass news agency said the measure was an American attempt to further aggravate the Polish situation.

AFS Planning For Exchange Student

Plans will be made for the arrival of a foreign exchange student during a "Dutch treat" breakfast session scheduled for Saturday morning at the Smorgasbord Restaurant.

The 1981-82 exchange student, Monica Pereira Couto of Ribeirao Preto, Brazil, is scheduled to arrive in about three weeks. A reception will be planned to greet her.

The breakfast session of the AFS will begin at 8 a. m. and all members and any other interested persons are invited to attend.

Village In Lebanon Shelled By Guerrillas

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas shelled a Christian village in southern Lebanon, and the leader of the Israeli-backed Christian militia says he will seek Israel's permission to return the fire, Israel Radio said.

Militiamen did not respond to the brief guerrilla barrage Thursday night on the village of Deir Aames, eight miles north of the Israeli border, the state radio said. There were no reports of casualties.

There were no immediate claims of responsibility for the attack.

Low Income Credit Union Fails In Texas

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Fidencia Pena never had indoor plumbing before the Amigos Unidos Federal Credit Union gave her a small loan several years ago.

Some of her neighbors in the Lopezville colonia, an unincorporated community of mostly migrant farmworkers, purchased used cars through the thrift institution.

After 12 years of making loans to its mostly low income, Mexican-American members, the credit union is closing its books and disbursing accounts.

Its directors decided July 21 that cash-flow problems were too great to continue in business.

It had survived as an anachronism, a product of the Great Society days of the Sixties, when civil rights legislation and minority aid programs flourished.

Of the 400 federal credit unions for minorities started by the now-defunct Office of Economic Opportunity, Amigos Unidos in the Rio Grande Valley was one of five or six left in the country.

It could not survive inflation and high interest rates, said manager Jorge Trujillo.

"It's been a struggle from the beginning. It's going to leave a void in the community," he said.

The $1 million in deposits are insured by the National Credit Union Association and none of the 4,000 members will lose money, he said.

At least half those with accounts had poverty-level incomes or below, Trujillo said. They probably will be forced to pay high interest rates to small loan companies, he said, if they can get credit anywhere.

"It's very difficult to take a low income group and make a successful credit union," said Ted Purser, a National Credit Union Administration official from Corpus Christi who is monitoring the institution's closing.

"Your loan demand greatly exceeds your savings. They could do it here because of the support," Purser said.

In addition to small deposits by individual families, the credit union asked charities and social service groups to deposit funds as backup reserve. The Roman Catholic Diocese of Brownsville and Texas Rural Legal Aid Inc. kept money there.

Most of the loans, the manager said, were for basic necessities.

"They were for everyday consumption, just to make ends meet," he said. "Used car loans of $1,000 to $1,500 were a big part. One of our policies was not to finance new cars. We couldn't afford it."

Home rehabilitations, including indoor plumbing, were another major loan category.

The colonias, where many migrants live, usually are poorly drained and frequently lack running water or indoor toilets.

Before the credit union opened, migrant workers felt intimidated and even discriminated against by banks and savings and loans.

"They weren't getting credit because they couldn't show a weekly pay check," said Moreno, a Pharr attorney.

After working several months harvesting crops in northern states, migrant families often return with thousands of dollars saved. They live off those earnings the rest of the year. Those deposits kept the credit union alive.

Loans generally were at 12 percent annual interest, or 9 percent to those with enough in savings.

Construction for home repairs cost less than with loans from a savings institution, Moreno said, because federal building standards did not apply.

"We could use good, used lumber instead of new," he said.

The credit union opened with between $85,000 to $100,000 start-up money from OEO, said Trujillo. It benefitted from federal manpower programs but after 1973 received no more cash assistance from the federal government.

Amigos Unidos persisted because of its large membership but that also led to its downfall.

"The overhead became impossible," said Purser. "It had about $1 million in deposits but in 4,000 accounts. Most credit unions would have only 1,000 accounts with that amount of money."

A savings program developed but not enough accumulated to attract adequate investments, especially as interest rates rose and savings and loans could offer higher returns.

"This is just an indication of the thrift industry, period," said Leon Handrick, deputy regional director of the National Credit Union Administration in Austin.

"There's just so much you can charge your members in interest. Savers today are in general a much more affluent class than they were 10 years ago," Handrick said.

Some Amigos Unidos members may never qualify for a loan again, Moreno said.

"There are always going to be bad credit risks," he said. "But probably not as many need the credit union as when it was originated. Credit has opened up a lot more than it used to be."

After dealing with a credit union, lower income persons will find savings and loans or banks less frightening to go to for loans, he predicted.

The United States is presently preparing for "star wars."

We have to.

There is no way American mothers can bear enough boy babies to police this planet with bayonets. We will rely on technology--or perish.

I remain convinced that the awesome atom bomb was entrusted by an all-wise Almighty first to our six percent fraction of the planet's population--not for our destruction--but for our deliverance.

It, in its time, cut the limitless hordes of Asia down to our size.

The manpower equation remains stacked against us.

But again technology can come to our rescue.

Israel's recent strike against a nuclear installation in Iraq has demonstrated how modern weaponry can neutralize modern weaponry.

For better or worse, right or wrong, Israel's anti-proliferation policy is effective.

Upstairs--while the United States has concentrated on such scientific achievements as interplanetary exploration and Moon landings--the Soviets have concentrated on developing orbiting satellites with strategic military potential.

Our Army's Gen. Dan Graham, director of our Defense Intelligence Agency during the '70s, expects that as surely as Britain dominated the seven seas for two centuries, the airless ocean of overhead space will be dominated by a nation--or a consortium of nations.

He wants to be sure that we are among the dominators.

Presently the Soviets figure they can pin down our Titan and Minuteman missiles by orbiting two warheads for every one we have on the ground.

But, Gen. Graham computes, we can upset their arithmetic with a space-born ABM system which will catch Soviet missiles "on the rise."

In Gen. Graham's view, such an ABM system would restore American military superiority over the U.S.S.R. "and reduce the incentive on both sides to accumulate more and more enormously costly nuclear weapons."

The general adds that this would also be much more effective.

Traditional military strategy has always called for capturing and controlling "the high ground." Our footsoldiers in half a dozen wars have fought their way up a succession of hills. Artillery from a hilltop can dominate everything it can see.

Now the highest frontier offers that threat--or that opportunity--whichever we choose.

Reagan's Immigration Policy Will Be Debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas congressman has predicted that President Reagan's recommendations for a new immigration policy will be severely challenged when they come up for enactment.

"I'm not at all happy with the president's recommendations," said Rep. Sam Hall, D-Marshall, the second-ranking Democrat on the immigration subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

The East Texas lawmaker said the proposal "may be the first step in the right direction, to try to solve an impossible solution," but he said it would cause more problems than it would solve.

"I think it will be some time before the program comes before the Congress for its approval, but as put forth by the president I don't think it will be favorably received," Hall added.

The administration proposal calls for amnesty of all Mexican nationals who have been in the United States since Jan. 1, 1980; requires employers to swear that all their workers are in the country legally; and institutes a temporary worker program under which Mexicans could legally come to Texas or other states for a limited period to work.

"I'm against the amnesty business. That upsets our entire immigration policy by — with one stroke of the pen — letting everybody that came over illegally, to stay," Hall said.

"We've got thousands of people who are waiting to come in through regular Immigration and Naturalization channels, that I think should have a priority over people who come here illegally."

Also on Wednesday, after hearing what Reagan had recommended, Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, submitted for inclusion in the Congressional Record a copy of a speech he made 11 years ago.

"In that speech, I urged this House to direct its attention to the situation existing along our Mexican border, pointing out the need for understanding economic factors that cause people to leave their country and seek employment elsewhere," said de la Garza, a Democrat from Mission.

De la Garza pointed out that he represents the Texas Rio Grande Valley, "which has been identified as the focal point of most of the nation's undocumented alien problem.

Hall said it might be better if all immigration were shut off for a while through the declaration of a temporary moratorium.

"They've just inundated us, and we can't take care of the ones we've got, much less let everybody else in from all over the world," he said.

Hall also blasted the employer sanctions in the proposal.

"I don't think employers should be placed in the law enforcement business," he said.

However, Hall agreed with Reagan's call for a temporary worker program, under which Mexican nationals would come into the United States legally for a specified period of time to work, with the requirement that they return to Mexico later.

Mexican-American groups have made that proposal the focus of their sharpest attacks.

"I've always supported a guest worker program. It's a way you can keep a control of them. They're coming in for economic reasons only, just to work and they'll have to report back at intervals," Hall said.

Mexican-American dissidents relate the guest-worker program to the old bracero program of a number of years ago, Hall said.

"But I was told that when it was going full force, and was being enforced, that the illegal alien problem was negligent," Hall added.

A better way to attack the illegal alien problem, he suggested, would be to give the Border Patrol more personnel and money to work with.

Attention!!

How would you like it if the city council passed an ordinance that read...

"The drinking of all beverages in cans (except for beer) is now prohibited in all city parks & any other city owned property. Violaters will be fined from $100 to $200."

The above statement is not true but it could be. There is a similar ordinance up for a second reading Aug. 3, 1981, that is just as discriminating.

Reagan Used The People To Win Votes

NEW YORK (AP) — By the power of his conviction, by his willingness to compromise on the small issues to gain something bigger, and because of grass roots lobbying, Ronald Reagan has created a landslide again.

In another contest that was supposed to have been close but wasn't, the President swept aside opposition to his tax-cut plan and emerged from the Congressional debate with overwhelmingly favorable votes.

But did he and his people do it alone? No way. He had the help of the people, of course, and the good sense to recognize it. And, like good performers in all walks of life, his sense of timing was superb.

Or is that the way to put it? When historians write of this era of new conservatism, of old economics presented as new and experimental, they will probably say that Reagan didn't set the clock so much as events did, and that his role has been to respond when the alarm went off.

Which is to say that Republican Reagan, like Democratic leaders whose giveaways he said had gotten the country into an economic mess, is in the enviable position of being able to give the people what they want.

In this instance, the people appear to have declared themselves in favor of less government, though it means fewer government services.

Probation Is Revoked

Probation for Raymond Lee Walker was revoked Thursday by Judge Wayland G. Holt in 132nd District court.

Walker had received a two-year probated term on a felony DWI charge on Aug. 8, 1980. He was charged on another DWI count earlier this week. He entered a plea of guilty to the latest charge and received a $1,000 fine, and was sent to jail to serve the two-year term on the 1980 case.

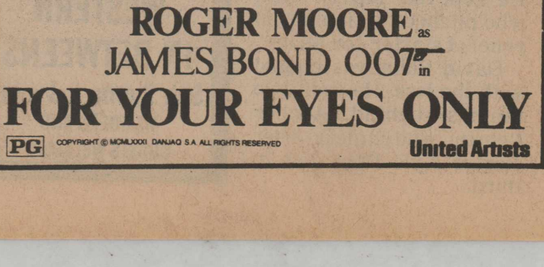

Rights Were Not Violated

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal judge says Bertell Ollman's constitutional rights were not violated when the president of the University of Maryland refused to appoint the Marxist scholar head of the department of government and politics.

Ollman, now a professor of politics at New York University, had claimed he was entitled to $100,000 in damages and the job.

But U.S. District Judge Alexander Harvey II, in an opinion released Tuesday, said university President John Toll's "decision was not based on the plaintiff's political beliefs."

Obviously, Rangers' Chiles Elated Over Settlement

FORT WORTH (AP) - Texas Rangers majority owner Eddie Chiles says he is "damned happy" to see the end of the 49-day-old Major League baseball strike.

Chiles told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram he learned of the settlement early today from Joe Burke, president of the Kansas City Royals.

"I just had a call from Joe Burke who told me the strike would be over in an hour and a half," Chiles said.

In a copyright story today, the newspaper quoted Chiles as saying he had his first real hope for a settlement following Wednesday's meeting of team owners.

"If we didn't get it (a settlement) done between now and Monday, we'd just have to give up the season," Chiles said.

Chiles said he is not certain about all the details of the agreement, but said there would be no arbitration on either free agent compensation or service time.

He said the season will resume with new schedules August 10 and will be extended a week longer than was originally scheduled.

Chiles said the season will be split into two halves with the current leaders (Oakland and New York in the American League and Philadelphia and Los Angeles in the National League) being declared first half winners.

He said the winners of the second half would play the first half winners in a pre-playoff showdown.

Texas Rangers pitcher Jon Matlack, the team's player representative, said, "I'm glad, obviously. I'm happy that cooler heads prevailed and they didn't chuck the whole thing (the baseball season) down the tube."

Asked if he believes there will be any backlash from the fans, Matlack said, "Most of my friends who are baseball fans have said they will still be baseball fans." He said he hopes the fans will not have a negative attitude.

Season To Resume Aug. 10...

Strike Agreement Finally Reached

NEW YORK (AP) - The major league baseball strike, which deprived the nation of its favorite summer game for almost two months and became the longest walkout in professional sports history, ended early today after marathon negotiating sessions.

Two-man bargaining teams - union head Marvin Miller and counsel Donald Fehr for the players, chief negotiator Ray Grebey and American League president Lee MacPhail for the owners - finally hammered out a compromise agreement somewhere between midnight and 2 a.m., EDT, approximately 12 hours after they first sat down at the table Thursday afternoon.

The regular season will resume under the original schedule on Monday, Aug.10, and the owners have the option of making it a split season, with intradivisional playoffs prior to the league championship series.

They must notify the players association of such a decision by Sunday evening, Aug.9, when the All-Star Game, originally scheduled for July 14, will be played in Cleveland. Workouts will begin on Saturday, although some clubs planned informal workouts today.

After seven weeks without the so-called national pastime, the warring parties ended their lengthy and often-bitter dispute the way most labor strikes are settled - by a form of compromise.

The key issue of compensation to a team losing a player in the annual free agent re-entry draft was negotiated as part of what Grebey called "a very definite tradeoff." The players achieved their proposal for a pool of players as compensation but had to give in and submit to a form of "punishment" against a team signing a ranking free agent.

In return, the owners agreed to credit the players with service time for the days they were on strike. This means that such star players as Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees, Ken Griffey and Dave Collins of the Cincinnati Reds and Bill Madlock, Phil Garner and John Candelaria of the Pittsburgh Pirates can still become free agents at the end of the 1981 season.

The players also agreed to drop a charge of failing to bargain in good faith which they had filed against the owners with the National Labor Relations Board. In return, the Basic Agreement between the union and management, scheduled to expire on Dec. 31, 1983, will be extended one year. In addition, the players' minimum salary will rise from $35,000 to $40,000 in the last year of the present contract.

The pension agreement also was extended a year to March 31, 1985, with the owners' contribution to be negotiated later and become retroactive.

Neither Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, nor Grebey, director of the owners' Player Relations Committee, would claim a victory.

Under terms of the settlement on pool compensation, which must be ratified by both sides, a team may protect 26 players. However, if it signs a "type A" free agent - i.e., one ranked in the top 20 percent based on his previous two years' performance statistics - it may only protect 24 players. The players had previously opposed such direct punishment.

The full terms of the settlement were to be made public later today, Grebey said.

The players association issued veiled warnings to the owners concerning future negotiations and it was obvious that a good deal of bitterness remains. It will be a long, long time before this strike is forgotten by either side.

The two-man negotiating teams met in the midtown office of National League president Chub Feeney, some four blocks from the Doral Inn, headquarters of federal mediator Kenneth Moffett. It marked the first joint talks since negotiations collapsed in Washington, D.C., one week earlier. They had been movedto the nation's capital from New York at the request of U.S. Secretary of Labor Raymond J. Donovan.

Miller said, however, that "the week in Washington was important because the differences first began to narrow under his (Donovan's) auspices."

Moffett described his role in the final round of bargaining as "minimal."

Sighs Of Relief Come From Houston Players

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Astros began preparations today to return to work after the 49-day players strike with General Manager Al Rosen saying "I think we owe it to the fans to put all this behind us."

The players were scattered but some were expected to work out in the Astrodome later in the day with a full workout following on Saturday.

Both Rosen and Catcher Alan Ashby expressed hope everyone will forget the owners-players dispute quickly.

"On a personal note, I don't think it was worth while to anybody," Ashby said.

"Both sides have to say now, 'Don't ever let this happen again. This is the worst thing that could ever happen to us and to baseball.'"

Rosen said it is time "to get the boys of summer back on the field because that is where they belong."

"Baseball is bigger than any of us," he said.

"I think the owners have to make some changes in their thinking and I think the players have to make some changes in their thinking."

Lubbock Wins Playoff Series

Fred Rumsey's two-run homer broke a 10-10 tie here last night and sent Lubbock Western to the State Little League Tournament in Waco.

With the game deadlocked in the bottom of the sixth, Tyler Wilt singled. Next up Rumsey then cracked the first pitch out of the park to give Western a 12-10 victory in the best-of-three series over Abilene Southern, which began here Monday. The homer was the ninth during the three games - the seventh by Lubbock sluggers.

Lubbock had overcome a 6-1 deficit by scoring five runs in the bottom of the third, keyed by singles from Jay Garry, Phillip Belliveau and Wilt, an error, and three walks.

Abilene came back with two runs in the fourth as Lance Deal cracked a two-run shot over the right-center fence, 8-6.

Again Lubbock bounced back as Belliveau cracked the game's third home run of the evening, but Abilene extended its margin to 9-7 in the fifth when Lance Wilkerson stole home.

Lubbock finally got the edge in the bottom of the stanza when Jay Garry singled, Belliveau reached on an error, Terrell Gillespie walked and Kevin Claborn got a basehit, making it 10-9.

Abilene managed one more run in the sixth to tie the game again, 10-10, before Rumsey's two-run homer.

Southern had built a 4-0 lead before Gillsepie made it 4-1 with a second-inning homer, and added two more runs in the top of the third before Western could get untracked.

Each team utilized three pitchers during the contest. Reggie Garza, who hurled 1⅓ as the third pitcher for Lubbock, was credited with the victory. He relieved Travis Neal, who pitched two innings in relief of starter Jon Mize.

David Bolin was tagged with the loss. He went two innings behind Archer Lenzini, who came on after starter Kyle Doby left in third.

'Pokes Release Seven; Morrison Among Them

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys released seven rookies Thursday including 11th-round draft pick Tim Morrison, an offensive lineman from Georgia, team officials said.

Morrison, a 6-foot-3, 260 pound former co-captain of Georgia's 1980 national champion team, was the first of the Cowboys' 14 1981 draft choices to be placed on waivers.

The team also released six rookie free agents including tackle Joe Arcidaicono of Villinova, linebacker Ken Banks of Eastern Michigan, cornerback Ulysses Cohen of Ohio State, guard Matthew Hofer of New Mexico State, defensive back Chris Jones of Cal Poly, and linebacker John Kulusich of San Jose State.

The Cowboys now have 94 players in training camp, including 48 rookies. The team must cut its roster to 60 players by Aug. 18.

Cowboy players continued their two-a-day workout schedule Thursday in preparation for Saturday's annual intrasquad scrimmage at the team's training camp at California Lutheran College.

Blanda Among Hall Inductees

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - George Blanda can joke now about his three "retirements," on the eve of his Pro Football Hall of Fame enshrinement with Willie Davis, Jim Ringo and Morris "Red" Badgro.

The four immortals will be enshrined Saturday ahead of the opening National Football League exhibition matching the Cleveland Browns and the Atlanta Falcons (ABC-TV, 3:30 p.m. EDT).

Blanda played the sport for an unequaled 26 seasons, nearly three years longer than any other performer in history.

Blanda is the only player this year to join the shrine in his first year of eligibility, five seasons after retirement.

He ranks as the No. scorer in NFL history with 2,002 points, all but 54 of them from kicking. He threw more than 4,000 passes for 26,920 yards and 236 touchdowns.

Blanda, out of the University of Kentucky, played in a record 11 NFL or AFL title games and holds 21 championship game records.

Davis and Ringo will raise to eight the number of enshrinees from the Packers' championship dynasty of the 1960s, if you count their late coach, Vince Lombardi.

Davis, a cat-quick, huge defensive end, was an All-NFL selection five times and played in the first two Super Bowls and six NFL title games.

Ringo, a 211-pound rookie center who never weighed more than 23[illegible] pounds in his career, proved lack of size is no detriment in the sport.

Ringo, an Orange, N.J. native and Syracuse University graduate, earned All-Pro honors seven of his 11 seasons in Green Bay. The No. 1 center of the 1960s played his last four years with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Games Conclude With Ceremonies

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) - The World University Games, the biggest sporting event since the 1980 Moscow Olympics, officially ended Thursday with a colorful parade of national flags in front of 75,000 people at 23 August Stadium here.

The capacity crowd applauded for 30 minutes as the flags of 73 countries were paraded around the 400-meter track and lined up along the infield.

The majority of teams competing here left after competition ended Wednesday, and few athletes were present at the closing ceremony.

In his brief closing remarks, World University Games President Primo Nebiolo thanked the host country for "a wonderfully organized" event, despite numerous controversies centering on Romanian officials, particularly during judging for the gymnastics competition.

Although nearly 5,000 athletes attended the Games, and records were set in 26 of 29 swimming events, times were well off world records in nearly all disciplines.

Throughout the 12-day event, the Games were dominated by the Soviets, Americans and Romanians. The final tally was 38 golds for the Soviet Union, 30 for Romania and 29 for the United States.

The Soviet Union and the United States split 22 track and field gold medals with 11 apiece, while American swimmers, led by University of Texas standout Jill Sterkel's games record five wins, collected 16 golds to the Soviet Union's 10.

Pirates Claim Junior Teenage Crown Here

It was one, two, three and a championship for Sweetwater as the Pirates dealt out losses to Colorado City and Cisco here yesterday, winning the District I Junior Teenage League Tournament.

The Pirates, fighting back from a second-round loss on Tuesday, eliminated Colorado City at noon yesterday, 9-6, then rapped previously undefeated Cisco 13-4 in an early-evening game to set up the championship encounter with Panthers.

In the final - which extended past midnight - Sweetwater built a 12-5 lead and went on to win, 12-9.

The Pirates will represent the district in an upcoming State Junior Teenage Tournament.

In the final, Cisco and Sweetwater locked 3-3 after the first inning. The Pirates began to take over in the mid-innings however, making it 5-3 after two and 8-4 after three. Cisco bought another run in the fourth, but Sweetwater added one in the fifth and three in the sixth, then held on for the victory.

Mike Alvarado took WP honors for the Pirates. He was relieved after three by slugger Donald Jones, who lasted through two outs of the seventh, when Jason Reeves took over.

Jones slapped two singles for the winners while teammate Blaze Herring cracked a double and a single. Chris Franklin also knocked a double, and Brad Young and Gerald Todd hit a single apiece.

For the Panthers, Johnny Seabourn belted a double and a single and losing hurler Franky Seabourn and Johnny Ramirez knocked two singles apiece. Mark Swanner, Corliss Sanders and Jeff Seaton also hit a single each.

The first would-be championship game earlier in the evening was a strong contest through the first four innings with Sweetwater leading only 4-2. But the Pirates banged five runs in the fifth and four in the sixth to put the game out of reach. Again Jones was the heavy hitter, banging out a double and two singles. Alvarado and Brian Taylor also hit two singles apiece, while Brad Young - winning pitcher - hit a double and a single.

Doug Hendricks took the loss for Cisco, led offensively by Johnny Ramirez's two singles.

In the day's first game, Franklin took the win for the Pirates over Colorado City's Doug Chitsey. Sweetwater led 5-1 until the Colts tied the game in the fifth. The Pirates then added three runs in the sixth and another in the seventh to claim the win.

Herring knocked two doubles and a single for the winners, while Alvarado had a triple and a single, Jones had a double and a single, and Young notched a single. Billy Jackson led the Colts' four-hit attack with two singles.

Bird Rescued From Treetop

CHAMPION, Mich. (AP) — Mother Nature left Hector out on a limb, giving him a terrible fear of the unflown.

When the redheaded Brazilian parrot went camping with his owner, he had to be plucked from a pine by a fire company, which usually reserves rescues from trees for cats.

Gloria Vander Zanden told firefighters that Hector can cause a flap or two, but he simply cannot fly.

She said he was sitting atop of his cage at night when a gust of wind tossed him into the tree, 50 feet up. She tried coaxing him down, but Hector just pined away at Van Riper State Park.

The next morning, Hector was no longer high and dry — just high — after firefighters tried to spray him to earth with a hose. Firefighter Jim Mitchell went up a ladder, got to within arm's length of the bird and stuck out his hand, hoping Hector would hop on.

"Hello," Hector shouted, startling Mitchell and causing cackles among the spectators who had gathered.

Hector tried to bite Mitchell but firefighter grabbed the bird, tossed him in a plastic bag and lowered him.

"He was very happy to be home," Mrs. Vander Zanden said of Hector. "He gave me a kiss."

Real Addicts Act In Unusual Drama

EDITOR'S NOTE — Sometimes, we become possessed by our habits, whether they be drugs, cigarettes, food or other. There are all sorts of addictions. A group of women in Minneapolis bring all that out in the open in an unusual stage performance.

By LISA SCHROEPFER
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Martha Boesing had something to say about addiction.

She wanted to put it on stage, with real addicts playing the parts. People who knew what being a junkie is all about — and had something to say themselves.

So the 46-year-old playwright scouted around, held auditions and finally selected her cast of seven women. As it turned out, she says, three of them weren't aware of the only "requirement" and joined the production expecting to portray something they weren't.

At the Foot of the Mountain is a traveling troupe based in Minneapolis which lately has been evolving a production called "JUNKIE!"

It's not a play in the usual sense of the word — it's a "collage piece" that changes with every performance. But the same black thread runs through each. Addicts are obsessed and can't control their compulsions, whether it be drinking alcohol or coffee; eating or refusing to eat; mainlining or smoking; work, or sex, or violence.

It's also about realization, acceptance and recovery.

"It must be startling to see these women up there, so open, really telling what it feels like to be hooked on anything," Ms. Boesing says.

The performers don't remain on the stage; they wander through the audience offering a slug of whiskey or a joint. They ask advice of people in the fourth row. They compliment, they demand. They let observers know that they are a part of this.

The set is stark. So are the players, clothed in black and white and shades of gray.

The colorlessness is purposeful, says Ms. Boesing, for "the richness of life drains out of you" with every fix.

Holly Franzen, portraying a drug addict, says there are plenty of dramatic recovery stories of throwing away needles or tossing out a bottle. But addiction, at least for her, "has been the death and darkness that comes in so many forms."

The company is professional and paid, though salary ranges from a bare $100 to $150 a week. The membership, women of various ages and backgrounds, has changed over the years since Ms. Boesing founded the company in 1974 as a theater of protest.

"JUNKIE!" reflects the company's collective experience with addiction — their own, their families, and people they care about. It was created in three months without a script. Instead, Ms. Boesing set up what she calls "improvs" or situations, and the players filled them in. Here is a mother, tired and aching for a beer. Here is her daughter, walking an eggshell line when she objects.

"I think addiction is a national disease," the director says. "We really are an obsessive people, spiritually poverty-ridden."

In the nearly two-hour performance, the traditional concept of a junkie is ripped apart, with scenarios zipping by without giving the viewer a chance to analyze them. That's intentional, says Ms. Boesing; the aim is to hit people on an emotional level.

An alcoholic mother shouts at her daughter, the girl tries to soothe, but the players behind her, portraying her feelings, are cringing. The scenes tear away at the idea that most junkies live in ghettos and quiver with heroin overload.

Class Of 1941 Holds Reunion

The graduating class of 1941 held their 40 year reunion Saturday, July 25 at the Snyder Country Club. Ninety three exes and guests were present for the occasion.

An informal coffee was held at the club during the afternoon, with former classmates and friends dropping by and exchanging stories of years past and displaying snapshots of children and grandchildren.

Saturday evening was highlighted with a dinner at the club, followed by dancing to music of the 40's.

The invocation was given by Rev. Truman Barrett. Glynn Snyder was master of ceremonies. He asked each class member to introduce his spouse and to comment on his locality, work and family. Letters and phone calls received from many exes unable to attend were reported by various members.

Mrs. Cliff Hale presented highlights of their senior year and a brief history of past reunions. A former coach and teacher, James K. Polk, expressed his delight in being there and commented on the rare intimateness of this particular class toward one another.

Here is another hand from Harry Shearer's article on individual tournaments.

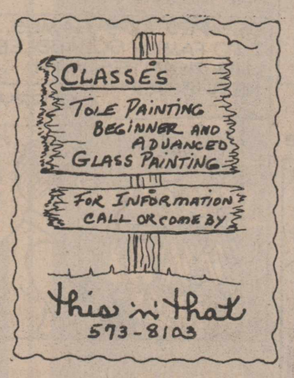

He sat South and on the assumption that North's three-club response was a Stayman request for a four-card major, Harry got to four hearts. North, obviously confused, decided to pass and there was Harry flying blind in a fog with both motors showing signs of trouble. Anyway, Harry made the best of what he was looking at.

Dummy's queen of spades won the first trick. He led a diamond and finessed his queen successfully. Two of dummy's diamonds went on his ace and king of spades and he ruffed his last spade. Back to his hand with the ace of diamonds and dummy's last trump took care of his own last diamond. Seven tricks out of seven in the bag.

A club to his king and West's ace give the defense its first trick. West led back a club and Harry was in dummy. He led a club. That was all dummy had. East ruffed with the seven of hearts. Harry overruffed with the jack and led his four of hearts. Poor West had to win with his eight and give Harry the last two tricks with the ace and queen of trumps.

What's more four hearts bid, five made, turned out to be almost a top score.

Engineers Plan Another Try

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) — Engineers say they will try again today to test-fire a rocket engine they hope will someday carry satellites into orbit for a profit.

The five-second test has been delayed a week by weather and troublesome equipment.

Technicians working for the Houston-based company financing the venture say the rocket will be bolted to its launch pad on nearby Matagorda Island for the brief test. Another test of about 25 seconds will follow a day or so later.

Walter Pennino, a spokesman for Space Services Inc., said he could not guarantee today's scheduled test would take place in view of past postponements.

Ira Baptist Church...75th Anniversary Plans Underway

Ira Church Sets Anniversary

By Opal Brown

Ira Baptist Church plans to observe its 75th anniversary September 13. Plans are being made to coincide the celebration with Ira's school homecoming which is slated for September 12.

The congregation is hoping that some of the former pastors will be able to attend some of the services and serve as guest speakers. Current plans call for morning and afternoon services and a noon meal.

The following history of the church was compiled from the Baptist Archives.

A. D. Leach was the first pastor recorded in the records, serving in 1906 and 1907.

In 1906 there were 13 Baptisms and four new members by letter for a total of 52 church members.

In 1907 the record shows an increase of 12 Baptisms and 27 letters making a total of 81 members, and property was valued at a sum of $1,000.

During the time, a little white building was built on land which was donated by John Taylor, who was a member of the Presbyterian church. Taylor was a Christian man who believed in churches. The church still occupies that same land today.

The next records from the Archives are of the year 1913 when a brother of A. J. Leach (A.D.) served the church coming from his home in Fluvanna each second Sunday and the Saturday night before of each month.

A. J.'s notes, which have been kept by his daughter, Mrs. Lee Brown, indicate that he was a student at Hardin Simmons University when it was Simmons College, and that he was ordained to the ministry at Rising Star Baptist Church Sept. 10, 1893.

Leach's notebook contained topics, scripture, chapter, verses, and dates when he delivered sermons at Ira.

On Jan. 11, 1913 Leach's topic was "God's hands" and the scripture he used was Psalm 31:15 when the Psalmist said, "My times are in thy hands."

A. J. Leach died Jan. 7, 1924 while pastoring a church in Rhome, Tx. and he was buried in the Aurora Cemetery near Rhome.

Leach was with the Ira church in 1914 also, then in 1915 R. A. Scranton pastored the church which at that time had a membership of 102. M. L. Hill was the church clerk.

In 1916 J. O. Heath of Loraine pastored the church and L. T. Condra was the clerk. Services were held on the second Sunday of the month.

The Archives have no further records until the year 1920 when J. W. Mcgaha was pastor and R. R. Bridges was clerk. Total membership then was 86.

The Archives records ship from 1920 to 1924. In that year C. A. Jones from Post served as pastor, P. L. Price was church clerk and P. A. Miller was church treasurer. Church property was valued at $1500 and the church moved up to a half-time church holding services on the second and fourth Sundays of each month.

C. A. Jones stayed with the church until 1925, G. W. Land served as pastor and Frank Billman was clerk. Membership had grown to 103 members.

The next Archives records are dated 1928 when Jones was again the pastor. Church services had been changed to the first and second Sundays of each month. L. T. Champion was clerk of the church and J. A. Leach was church treasurer. The pastor's salary was $600 a year. P. A. Miller was serving as Sunday School superintendent and Thelma Miller was Sunday School secretary. Church membership had grown to 174.

Jones stayed with the church through 1930. The records for 1931 do not name a pastor and membership was reported down to 149.

Jones returned as pastor in 1932 and services were changed back to the second and fourth Sundays and membership had come up to 178.

From 1932 to 1966 the Archives gave only the names of the pastors and the year in which they served. Pastors serving included Cal McGahey, R. R. Cumbie, R. E. Braton, W. A. Strickland, O. D. Welch, C. D. McIntire, Walter Smith, Alfred Altum, C. J. Smith, Lane Bond, Norman Wood, T. L. Nipp, J. Roy Haynes and Jim Hill.

During this period the church became a full-time church, built a home for its pastor and a new auditorium. A lot of repair was done on the old part of the building and some yard work was done.

O. L. Gober pastored the church for several years and was followed by Jim Moseley, Charles Bridges, Joe Rigsby and the present pastor is Mike Brown.

Former Snyderites To Become Missionaries

The Rev. and Mrs. Paul Savage were among 84 persons named missionaries by the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board on July 21 at Derbyshire Baptist Church in Richmond, Va.

They will work in Tanzania, where he will be a general evangelist and she will be a church and home worker. He is pastor of Kim (Colo.) Baptist church.

Savage was born in Commerce, TX., and grew up in Clairemont and Snyder. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Savage of Snyder.

He received the bachelor of science degree from West Texas State University at Canyon and the master of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. He also attended South Plains College in Levelland. His home church is Green Hill Baptist Church in Snyder.

Savage served two years in the U. S. Army after graduation from college and farmed four years near Snyder.

Mrs. Savage, the former Kathy Ricks, is a native of Eastland, TX., and grew up in Baird, Putnam, Scranton and Abilene. She is the daughter of George W. Ricks of San Angelo and Mrs. Aubrey Loper of Beaverton, Ore. She received the bachelor of science and master of education degrees from Hardin-Simmons University. Her home church is the First Baptist Church in Baird. Mrs. Savage is a former Snyder elemenary school teacher.

They have two children, Charlotte Geneal born in 1974, and John Paul, born in 1976.

The family will go to Pine Mountain, Ga., in September for a 12-week orientation before leaving for the field.

NEW MISSIONARIES—The Rev. and Mrs. Paul Savage, former Snyder residents, will work in Tanzania as missionaries for the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board.

Crude Oil Production Up From May

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas crude oil production totaled 76.6 million barrels in May, up from 74.1 million in April, according to the Texas Railroad Commission.

The May production was 31.5 percent below the production allowed by the commission, according to a Thursday TRC release.

The state's oil and gas wells produced 552.5 million cubic feet of gas in April, down 2.98 percent from the production of April 1980.

The movie, "Mutiny on the Bounty" won the Academy Award in 1935. Bette Davis was named best actress for her role in "Dangerous" and Victor McLaglen was best actor for his role in "The Informer."

High Price Asked For Billy's Suds

DALLAS (AP) — There's lots of tall tales brewing in these parts about the amount of the money you can tap from a collector for a can of Billy Beer.

The defunct suds named for former President Jimmy Carter's brother are being offered for sale locally at huge prices — but big takers have yet to surface.

Classified ads here quote prices up to $8,000 for an unopened six-pack. The brew was taken off the market three years ago.

April Yost of Dallas has two unopened cans for sale at $500 each and says she knows a man who got $10,000 for a refrigerated six-pack.

But there are doubters.

"I don't think we could find anyone who would pay $8,000 for it, or even a lot less," said Mark Monfrey, sales manager for the company that distributed Billy in Dallas. "I've had people call and tell me, 'I've got a six-pack, do you want to buy it?' And I say, 'No, I don't want to buy it.'"

Steve Gerachis, who manages a liquor store in the nation's capital, counts himself as one of the few retailers who still has Billy in a can. He does manage to sell it by the six-pack — for $60.

Two flea market vendors in Grand Prairie, Texas offered a case of Billy for $10,000, but one of them called it "just a big joke...we've got a case of it, but it isn't worth $10. You ever taste it?"

At Colonial Hill...

Noted Trumpet Soloist In Two Services Here

Stacy Blair, an internationally-known trumpet soloist, will be a guest Sunday in both services at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

He will present two special numbers during the morning worship service beginning at 11 a. m., and then present a full concert in the evening service beginning at 7 p. m. The congregation of First United Methodist church will visit Colonial Hill for the evening service, and other guests will be welcome at both services, said the Rev. Miller F. Robinson, Colonial Hill Pastor.

Blair, a native of Eastland, is fast becoming one of the world's leading trumpet soloists. In 1979, he won the Maurice Andre International Trumpet competition in Paris. This is the most prestigious trumpet competition in the world. Blair's prize included $8,000 and a recording contract with RCA and Erato of Paris, along with several solo performances with symphony orchestras around the world.

He has won over 40 state and national awards, plus four international awards, including the 1978 International Trumpet Guil Solo Competition.

Blair received the bachelor of music degree from the School of Music at Hardin-Simmons University in 1977.

His past trumpet instructors inlude Bill Owens of Abilene, Leon Rapier of Louisville, Ky., Adolph Herseth of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and Maurice Andre of Paris, France. He received the Fulbright Grant to study with the world renowned Andre in 1979.

Blind from birth, Blair learns his music by listening to tapes and recordings.

He knows over 55 concertoes by heart. He has performed in more than 20 countries around the world and has had a number of radio and television appearances, including recitals on National Public Radio and Television. He has been a guest soloist with the Louisville Orchestra, the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, the Ensamble Orchestra de Paris and many chamber orchestras in Europe.

He has done extensive work with the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention and with the Gideons. He will be guest soloist with the Austin Symphony next January.

Dear Abby

Invitation to Object Is 'Regrets Only'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You asked if anyone ever attended a wedding that was actually stopped when the minister asked, "If there is anyone present who knows why these two should not wed, let him speak now or forever hold his peace."

It happened to me when I was brand new in the priesthood. Unfortunately, my seminary training didn't cover this situation.

It was a fashionable wedding and the church was full. A woman screamed, "They should not wed!" I took the objecting woman and the bride and groom to an adjoining office, and asked the woman to state her objection. She replied, "I speak in the name of the Holy Ghost." The bride fainted. The objecting woman ran outside into the dead of night. I have never been able to locate her since. She was a stranger to both the bride and groom.

After a long delay for everyone to become composed again, we went on with the ceremony, and as far as I know, the couple I married lived happily ever after.

This incident made me do some research. Why is it necessary to ask for objections? Everybody attending the wedding had received a special printed invitation. If anyone had grounds to object, he had plenty of time to reveal them before the time of the ceremony.

I discovered that this part of the marriage service is considered the fourth bann. The clergy published the banns on three Sundays before the wedding date. If no one objected to the wedding, the marriage could be performed. The banns originally took the place of a marriage license and blood test. But today, we have more sophisticated ways. So, it does seem anachronistic and unnecessary in today's marriage rite to include this invitation to object. I still cringe when I read it.

EDWARD E. HAILWOOD, RECTOR,
TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH, ORANGE, CALIF.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Although I have never had an "objection" raised in 80 weddings I've performed, I know why the minister asks, "If anyone present can show just cause why this couple may not be lawfully wed, speak now or forever hold your peace."

Years ago when records were not as complete and accurate as they are today, it was necessary to raise the question of "legality." Someone present might know that one of the couple was already married, or they might be long-lost cousins and not aware of it, or some other legal matter that might prohibit the marriage was not known publicly.

And while I'm writing, Abby, I want to make another point: Some readers refer to their clergymen as "preachers." An ordained person is more than a preacher. A person preaches a sermon, but does not preach a wedding service. Preaching is a function, not a title. The word "minister" is more comprehensive of what an ordained person does.

(THE REV.) NOEL J. DOHERTY, RECTOR,
ALL SAINTS EPISCOPAL CHURCH, MIAMI, OKLA.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: When I was married in 1946, my age and date of birth were incorrectly stated on the marriage license. I said I was 21, but actually I was only 20. Being a country girl and naive for my age, I didn't think much about it at the time.

It started to bother me, so I wrote to the Bureau of Statistics and asked them to please correct the records. I was sent a copy of the corrected marriage certificate. Now what I need to know is: Do I need to be married again in order to be legally married, or am I already legally married?

STILL BOTHERED IN VA.

DEAR BOTHERED: You are legally married, and there is no need to have another ceremony.

Men Have Harder Time Surviving Death Of Spouse

NEW YORK (AP) — Men are the weaker sex when it comes to surviving the death of a spouse but their chances of living improve if they remarry, says a new Johns Hopkins University study.

Earlier studies have concluded that the death of a spouse leads to psychological distress that might contribute to earlier illness and death. But the researchers said their survey indicated for the first time that the impact appears to be more devastating to men.

The 12-year survey of 4,032 widowed people, published in the August issue of the American Journal of Public Health, did not show significant changes in the death rates of women whose husbands die.

But widowers "die at a younger age," said Dr. Knud Helsing of the university's School of Public Health.

It showed men between the ages of 55 and 74 who had lost their wives had a 60 percent higher chance of dying sooner than men in the same age group who were still married.

Helsing, who led fellow Johns Hopkins scientists Moyses Szklo and George Comstock, said he did not know why women's death rates did not show the same changes as men's.

He speculated that women "may be geneticaly superior at coping with stresses of many kinds."

"Or it may be the result of the way our society operates — males may be exposed to more hazards," he said. "Woman simply may be more adaptable. They may have more of a sense of survivability."

The findings on longevity among men who remarried were especially startling, the researchers said.

"Mortality rates among widowed males who remarried were as low or lower than males who had never been widowed," according to Helsing.

The figures suggested the same thing might be true for women, he said, but the numbers of women who remarried were too small for the researchers to be sure.

Triple Celling To End This Weekend In Texas

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Triple-celling ends in Texas prisons this weekend, but the tents used to temporarily relieve the overcrowding might be in service longer than anticipated.

Gov. Bill Clements was told Thursday that the metal buildings proposed for three existing prison units would not be ready as planned in November.

"That means we are going to have prisoners in tents in the winter," Clements told reporters.

David Dean, Clements' general counsel, said a delay in the bidding process could mean the metal buildings won't be ready until April. Later Thursday, Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Rick Hartley said the buildings might not be ready until next summer.

The buildings will take 90-120 days to put together after they arrive at the sites. TDC officials hope the buildings arrive by March 15, Hartley said, who added that the state is offering a $1,000 per day incentive for the contractors to finish the work before the deadlines.

The state has been looking for ways to relieve the overcrowding that a federal judge ruled has violated inmates' constitutional rights. Legislators approved $35 million for the metal buildings as a temporary solution.

The tents are used to house inmates — now about 1,200 — until the buildings are ready.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler set Saturday as the deadline for ending triple-celling — the practice of putting three inmates in a cell.

"As of midnight tomorrow there will be no more three people in a cell in Texas," Clements said Thursday.

The governor said he did not know about the delay on the new buildings until Dean mentioned it at the news conference. Clements, who has said the tents are better than triple-celling, said he remains "absolutely, unalterably opposed to three men in a cell."

Along with the tents, state prison officials are using a halfway-house program to help relieve overcrowding.

Clements said he has not had full reports on the program, in which selected inmates are released from prisons into secure facilities in large cities.

"I have had no bad reports," he said, "neither have I had a Good Housekeeping seal of approval."

Dean said there have been isolated problems with inmates released to the halfway houses.

"Obviously there will be a failure or two," he said, calling the program "kind of a shakedown cruise."

For the third consecutive week, Clements fielded questions about the special legislative session, and when he might add more topics.

"As I can measure and detect significant progress ... then and only then will I open" the session to more topics, he said. "I don't consider that we have had significant progress at this point."

He suggested that Texans who want to see their pet issues added to the call "get hold of their legislative representatives and say, 'For goodness sakes, let's get on with it ... so we can consider other things.'"

Clements said he would campaign against any constitutional amendment that would continue the state ad valorem tax.

His agenda for the special session includes abolition of the tax, but legislators have talked about setting up a three-cent tax to replace a 10-cent tax that has virtually been eliminated.

Clements said he favors a tuition increase to raise college construction money for state universities outside the Permanent University Fund.

Because of the new law requiring taxation of real estate on its market value, Clements said a three-cent tax actually would be a bigger burden on Texas taxpayers than the 10-cent tax that was last collected in 1978.

"That is bordering on deviousness by the Legislature," he said.

Noted Author Thinking Of Writing Texas Book

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Widely acclaimed author James Michener may offer a book on Texas in time for the state's 150th birthday celebration in 1986.

Michener, possibly the world's most successful living writer, completed his best-selling novel, "Centennial" — which focused on a fictional Colorado town — before the 1976 centennial of Colorado and the bicentennial of the United States.

The novel was considered part of his contribution to both celebrations.

Michener, visiting Gov. Bill Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby on Thursday, told state senators he wished he could change places with them.

"I can't tell you how I envy you your positions," said Michener.

Hobby said that Michener, 74, "was considering taking on a history of the state of Texas as his next project."

Hobby said it was to Clements' "credit" that he had initiated the project.

"We're about 99.9 percent along the way, but we're still not 100 percent," Clements told a news conference.

"It would be a very nice thing to have happen if we can make it happen," Clements said.

Problem with scarred liver

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I hemorrhaged and was taken to the hospital while visiting our son. I do not drink. They found yaricose veins in my esophagus and cirrhosis of the liver. Although I never knew I had hepatitis, they found large scars in my liver from it. Our daughter nearly died with it 26 years ago. I probably had it and didn't turn yellow. The doctors said that if I had known then, the doctors could have taken care of it but it was too long ago to do anything about it now. They said I was lucky to be alive. Please send me any information you have.

DEAR READER — Varicose veins of the esophagus is a good way to describe the cause of your bleeding. We call them esophageal varicies. As the liver becomes scarred from the cirrhosis it obstructs the normal circulation through the liver area. This makes it difficult for the veins in the lower esophagus to drain properly and they enlarge. When one ruptures a person may vomit a lot of bright red blood.

Cirrhosis is a form of scarring of the liver. It can be caused by many different medical problems. I note that you do not and never have used alcohol. That can happen. About 60 percent of all cases of cirrhosis are caused from the excess use of alcohol but that doesn't mean everyone who has cirrhosis has been hitting the bottle.

Hepatitis can result in cirrhosis of the liver but many people who have hepatitis do not have permanent significant liver damage. As you requested, I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-8, Living with Your Liver. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Incidentally, hepatitis can also be caused by long-standing untreated heart failure and a number of other diseases, too. So I can't be sure your problem is due to hepatitis without jaundice.

You will need to follow your doctor's advice carefully. A good diet that includes all the important vitamins and minerals is important. You may need some extra vitamin B complex. You don't need this advice, but those who drink should know that once liver damage has occurred it is unwise to use alcohol in any form. Alcohol is a toxin to the liver.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would a young man aged 25 who falls asleep at a party after three beers have a medical problem? He sometimes gets so busy he forgets to eat a meal. There is hypoglycemia in his family. He has never had a five-hour glucose tolerance test. Just wondered if this could be related to a prediabetic condition.

DEAR READER — There are a lot of people who are tired who fall asleep after a few beers. Alcohol is a depressant and tends to induce sleep in most people, but not all. Being so busy you forget to eat suggests being tired from working more than anything else.

If such a person has a habit of frequent small periods of falling asleep it could be narcolepsy, which is rather rare. Unless he has a habit of falling asleep on other occasions when he would be expected to stay awake it probably means nothing. Hypoglycemia can cause fatigue but such a diagnosis is not justified without inducing specific symptoms during a period of demonstrated low blood sugar. A low blood sugar problem is not necessarily a prediabetic condition either.
