Hail, wind targets Hermleigh

By NOBLE B. YOUNG
SDN Staff Writer

Hermleigh and the surrounding area was singled out by a Friday evening thunderstorm which caused extensive damage from golf ball-sized hail and high winds.

The wind and hail damaged most residential and commercial buildings in the community including the Hermleigh school and post office.

The Joe Groves family residence — a mobile home some 3 miles east of the community — was likely the hardest hit by the storm, which moved through around 7 p.m.

At the Groves residence, the roof was blown off of a room built onto the west side of the mobile home.

The remainder of the home was damaged extensively also and the family was unable to stay there Friday night.

Groves told sheriff's deputies he saw a funnel cloud just before the home was damaged. The National Weather Service in Abilene did not confirm the sighting, however.

Groves said he and three other persons in the trailer turned couches on top of themselves as the storm approached. None were injured.

At Hermleigh, most of the damage was blamed on the large hail.

Hail stones covered the ground over most of the town after the cloud passed. Drifts up to 2 ft. deep were noted against the southwest sides of buildings.

Postmaster Evans "Doug" Vineyard said he and his wife Dorothy were sitting at home when hail stones up to 2 inches in diameter came through their living room windows.

Windows at the post office were broken out also. Vineyard was at the facility mopping and sweeping water out of the building around 8 p.m. He characterized damage to the interior as minor.

The Allsup's store beside U.S. Hwy. 84 also sustained heavy damage with one window knocked out by the hail and wind damage to the roof and ceiling.

Store employees Kathy Bates and Annette Nichols said they saw the store's ceiling lift up about 2 ft. with the wind, then fall back as they watched from the safety of the restrooms in the rear of the building.

All of the windows on the southwest face of the Hermleigh School were broken out as were the windows at the Central Baptist Church and other structures.

Also hard hit were vehicles parked in the open with windows and lights broken out of many.

Allsup's suspect indicted

One of the suspects indicted here April 11 for the shooting death of an Allsup's store clerk was indicted for attempted murder by a Mitchell County grand jury Friday.

Now facing formal charges in both Snyder and Colorado City is Dorsey Lee Johnson, 19. He faces charges of capital murder here, an offense for which he and a second suspect in the crime have been denied bond.

Arraignment proceedings for both Johnson and 19-year-old Amanda Lynn Miles of Colorado City have been set for May 8 in connection with the Allsup's shooting.

The pair was arrested in Colorado City April 8 following a second robbery and shooting at a convenience store there.

Also indicted by the C-City grand jury Friday for attempted murder in connection with that incident was George Edward Miles. He is the brother of Amanda Lynn Miles, who is not implicated in the Colorado City incident.

The capital murder charges in Snyder stem from the death of store clerk Jack Huddleston, who was found shot following an apparent robbery of the College Ave. Allsup's March 23.

Local shooting filed as attempted murder

A 19-year-old Snyder man was being held in Scurry County Jail Saturday in lieu of bond set at $15,000 on a charge of attempted murder in connection with a Thursday evening shooting incident west of town.

Arrested Friday afternoon was Michael Joe Lindsey of 3208 Ave. V.

He is alleged to have fired several shots from a .22 cal. weapon at the mobile home residence of Ramiro Ruiz. The incident occurred around 8 p.m. Thursday at the Key Mobile Home Park west of Snyder on 37th St.

According to investigators with the Scurry County sheriff's office, the Ruiz family was inside the mobile home when the shooting occurred. No injuries were reported.

Listed as damaged in the incident were the Ruiz home, a late model pickup and an older model Cadillac parked outside the mobile home.

Bell agency to add new travel bookings

Joan and Bob Bell of Bell Insurance Agency have been named as travel consultants for Linn Travel Of Lubbock.

As a local agent, Bell Insurance will be able to arrange airline reservations, cruises, motorcoach tours, hotel reservations, rental cars and tour packages.

Linn Travel consultants are backed by the SABRE computer reservation system which has the ability to screen some 495 airlines serving 4,500 destinations.

In this way, the system searches for the best connections and prices in addition to printing tickets and itinerary and booking passes on selected airlines.

Joan Bell has been in the insurance business here for 27 years and she and her husband have been Snyder residents 35 years.

The local phone for Linn Travel Agency Inc. is 573-3792.

Feed mill 'surprised' by lawsuit

The Ezell-Key Grain Co. of Snyder was ordered to pay a $1,000 civil judgment to the State of Texas this week, a fine caused by Ezell-Key "unknowingly" doing business with a trucking firm operating without Railroad Commission permits in 1984.

John Jarrell of Ezell-Key said Friday the company was unaware of the trucking firm's

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Things are getting so complicated that many are now drawing their own confusion."

It's been one week since the destructive twisters hit the neighboring city of Sweetwater.

By last Tuesday, most utilities had been restored--in itself a pretty amazing feat. Sweetwater is the district office for Texas Electric Service Co. and more than 100 out-of-town TESCO employees were called in to assist in the clean-up effort.

About 12 Snyder-based TESCO employees were part of the well-coordinated reconstruction effort. Local TESCO Manager Jack Smartt was one in Snyder to help district manager Tim Fambrough map strategy for the massive repairs.

Fambrough is no newcomer to disasters. In addition to the Sweetwater tornado, Fambrough was the manager in Wichita Falls when the deadly storm struck that North Texas city a few years ago.

From time to time, Fambrough comes to Snyder to visit the local TESCO office which is part of the Sweetwater district.

No one is blaming Fambrough for the tornado, but local manager Smartt suggested that Fambrough should make certain there are no clouds in the sky before he starts out for Snyder.

North Elementary Principal Jim Erwin has accused us of using this column to sand-bag our golf game. However, our game speaks for itself.

Another Pump Jack tourney has come and gone--and still no one has asked us to be their partner. There is something wrong with a game where the guy who gets to hit the ball the most is the loser.

Some folks are serious about their game. We have one golfing companion whose game improves everytime he keeps the scorecard. You've seen the type--after recording the score, they glance over both shoulders and then carefully wipe their fingerprints off the stub pencil.

A golfer has to be optimistic--hoping some day to have a card that he'll be proud to turn in to his club pro. Then there is the case of the real golf optimist--a fellow buried with his clubs.

Stenholm art entries to advance

Works by five Snyder High School art students were chosen Friday to advance to a district-wide art competition sponsored by U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, who represents the 17th Congressional District.

The local regional contest was part of similar shows conducted in Abilene, Big Spring, Gainesville, Graham, Post, Stephenville and Weatherford.

The 40 chosen to advance Friday will be judged May 10 in Abilene at the district show. Ten finalists will be chosen at that contest.

These 10 will be the guests at a luncheon in Abilene May 31. At

No jury call

A jury call for 132nd District Court Monday has been cancelled.

Those summoned need not appear, court officials say.

Court agenda

County commissioners will approve last week's minutes and consider county bills during regular session Monday. The meeting is set to begin at 10 a.m. in the courthouse.

Absentee vote

Officials with the county clerk's office noted Friday absentee turnout in the Republican primary is running higher than 1984's total.

As of Friday afternoon, 58 votes had been cast by county Republicans. Only 40 voters were recorded with the close of absentee balloting in 1984.

Democrats have recorded 185 votes since absentee balloting began April 14. The absentee vote ends Tuesday.

Boosters due

The Snyder Band Boosters will meet Monday to elect band officers for next school year. The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the high school band hall.

Also to be discussed will be band scholarships, the May 3 band banquet and the junior high band festival May 17.

Choir concert

The Snyder Junior High School Choirs will be presenting their 1986 Spring Concert at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Worsham Auditorium at Snyder High School.

The mixed choir, eighth grade girls choir, seventh grade girls choir and boys choir will be presenting selections from their UIL concert contest performances last week.

Parents to meet

Parents of Snyder High School seniors are asked to attend a 7 p.m. meeting Monday in the SHS student center. Purpose of the meeting is to plan SHS graduation activities.

Sports banquet

Tickets are now on sale for the Snyder High School All-Sports Banquet scheduled May 5 at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Friday, 88 degrees; low, 62 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Saturday, 64 degrees; no precipitation; total precipitation for 1986 to date, 2.02 inches.

Reagan offers to negotiate to end Vietnam's presence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan, on his way to Southeast Asia to meet with officials of the region's non-Communist nations, offered today to help negotiate an end to Communist Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia but held out little hope Vietnam would accept.

"America, along with our ASEAN friends, believes that Vietnam should withdraw its forces from Cambodia and permit the Cambodian people to determine their own destiny," Reagan said. ASEAN is the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

He reiterated U.S. willingness "to participate constructively in an overall settlement." But he said, "The Communist government of Vietnam ... to the detriment of their own national interest, remains intransigent."

The latest setback in relations between the two countries came when the Hanoi government, to protest the April 14 U.S. bombing raid against Libya, broke off direct talks with the United States on resolving remaining questions about the fate of U.S. servicemen missing in Southeast Asia since the Vietnam war.

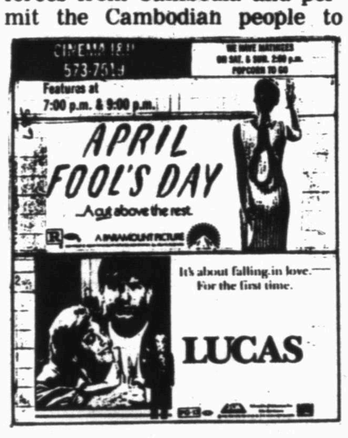

En route to Bali to meet President Suharto, Reagan saluted the Indonesian strongman as a longtime friend of the United States and "a most responsible influence in world affairs."

Reagan offered the description of Suharto in his weekly radio speech to be broadcast as he flew to Honolulu, where he planned to call another friend and former power in Southeast Asia: deposed Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos.

Ignoring human rights concerns expressed by the private Asia Watch Committee, which charged the Suharto government has suppressed opposition and free expression, Reagan applauded Suharto's role in improving economic conditions in Indonesia and developing ASEAN, a group of six non-communist nations in the region.

"President Suharto has been a most responsible influence in world affairs and a force for the economic progress of his people at home," Reagan told his radio audience in a five-minute address recorded during a stop in Los Angeles.

Reagan is scheduled to meet Thursday in Bali with Suharto and the foreign ministers of the other ASEAN nations on his way to Tokyo for the economic summit of the major industrial democracies.

File charges in wife's death

HOUSTON, Mo. (AP) — A man who was on a radio talk show when announcers broke in to report the shooting death of a bank president's wife is being held without bail today on a first-degree murder charge, officials say.

Roy G. White, 40, of Houston, was charged Friday with the murder of Wanda Byler, and with first-degree assault in the wounding of her husband and another bank official who police say arrived with only $20,000 of a $100,000 ransom.

White was being held without bail in the Texas County Jail here, a few miles from Raymondville, where the shootings occurred Thursday, said Lt. Ralph Biele of the Missouri Highway Patrol.

Biele said the investigation was continuing, but that authorities "don't have anyone else in mind."

Authorities had thought more than one assailant might have been involved in the shootings at the home of Wanda and James Byler near Raymondville.

Mrs. Byler, 54, was blindfolded, bound and shot 12 times with at least two different weapons, police say, a .38-caliber and a .22-caliber gun. Her body was found Thursday morning in her home.

Shortly after the shootings were reported to police, White arrived for a talk show at KBTC-AM and KSCM-FM in Houston, where he had resigned last month as a salesman, said Wayne Robinson, general manager of the stations.

White was on the air promoting a custom car club when announcers interrupted to report the death of Mrs. Byler.

In 1692, the chieftain of the MacDonald clan of Glencoe, Scotland, and 40 of his men were massacred by British soldiers led by a member of the Campbell clan. The Campbells were hereditary enemies of the MacDonalds. The pretext was that MacIan of MacDonald was the only chief not to take an oath of allegiance to the British king. In fact he had, but the oath was kept secret by the king's agent.

Local firm top insurance agency

For the second time in three years, Williamson-Steakley Insurance Agency has been named Agency of the Year by State Reserve Life Insurance.

The Snyder insurance firm was cited for its outstanding performance in 1985, and agency personnel--including partners Joe Williamson and Jene Steakley--were honored Friday night with an awards dinner at Willow Park Inn.

Williamson-Steakley won the award in 1983. The agency was presented a plaque and a traveling trophy. To retain the traveling trophy, the agency must win the award three times.

The agency of the year award is the highest honor that an agency can obtain. The winner is determined by a point system that takes into consideration total production, increase in production, quality business, and training progress.

Williamson-Steakley Agency had total premiums of $330,244 in 1985. Williamson earned the company's 1985 inner circle award and both Williamson and Steakley were 1985 star award winners.

Williamson was fourth in total company sales and Steakley was sixth.

Members of the local agency, in addition to Williamson and Steakley are Jeanette Templeton of Snyder, Mike Gorman of Colorado City, Danny Weir of Big Spring and Ray Weir of Big Spring.

Ken Bell, president of State Reserve Life, presented the awards at the Friday night dinner.

Terror wave continues

by The Associated Press

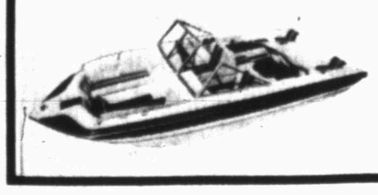

Bombs ripped through an American Express office in France and a British bank in Lebanon today, one day after terrorist violence in four countries killed at least five people and left a U.S. Embassy employee wounded.

Libya has vowed retaliation for the April 15 U.S. air raid launched to punish Col. Moammar Khadafy's government for its alleged involvement in international terrorism. But there was no clear indication that any of the attacks in the past two days were linked to the North African nation.

A bomb estimated to contain 33 pounds on TNT tore through the British Bank of the Middle East in Moslem west Beirut before dawn today. Lebanese police said there was extensive damage but no casualties. There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

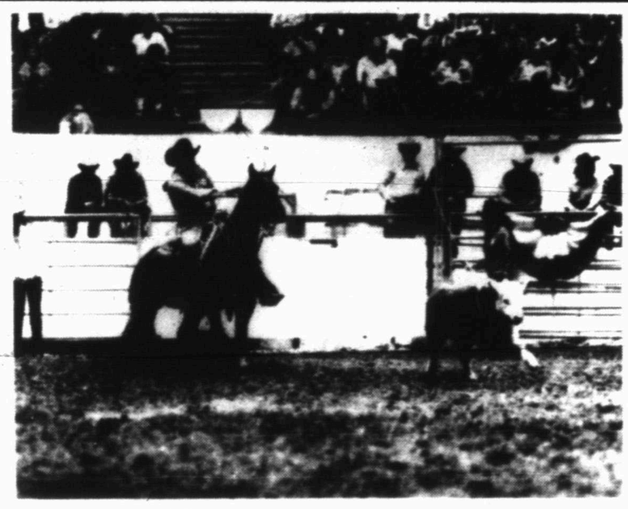

British employees of the bank had fled west Beirut earlier in fear of terrorist reprisals, as have dozens of other Westerners.

Last week in Lebanon, a kidnapped American and two missing Britons were found slain outside Beirut, and an Arab terrorist group claimed they were killed to avenge the U.S. air strike, which was backed by Britain.

Justice of the Peace

Seven days from now you will be going to the polls to vote for a Justice of the Peace for Scurry County. I know that you want to vote for the candidate that you feel will do the best job for the citizens of Scurry County. As a candidate for the Justice of the Peace office, I am asking you to look closely at each candidate, their qualifications, and their experience. I feel that I have the experience, and the education to be the next Justice of the Peace in Snyder. I do not intend to make a lot of promises that I may or may not be able to keep. My promise, if elected, is a simple one, to do the very best that I can for the citizens of this county. I am a family man with a 14-year-old son who attends Snyder Junior High, and I want my son as well as your sons and daughters to have a safe place to grow up. I want to do my part to make Scurry County that place. Again, please take a good look at the candidates for Justice of the Peace. If you make a mistake, it will take another four years before you can correct it. I have the qualifications for this office but more than that, I have a sincere desire to serve the citizens of Scurry County for the next four years as your Justice of the Peace. Please help me to help you by voting...Troy Martin...in the Republican Primary at West Elementary on May 3rd, Thank you.

Expelled Libyans deny they performed acts of terrorism

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Deported from Britain, 22 Libyan students returned home chanting their support for Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy and denying they had been engaged in subversion or terrorism abroad.

The students flew into Tripoli aboard a Libyan Arab Airlines jet Friday night after being escorted to London's Heathrow Airport by armed British policemen. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher had ordered their arrest earlier in the week for alleged revolutionary activity.

About a dozen of the young men chanted "Libya, freedom; Britain is a prison" and "Our leader, Khadafy" as they were brought to a news conference organized for foreign journalists bused to Tripoli airport to cover their arrival.

"I think Mrs. Thatcher wanted to do something for the Americans," said one of the returning students, Hadi Abu Laiha. "If I did something wrong, why did they wait until now to deport me?"

Mrs. Thatcher had sanctioned the use of British-based U.S. F-111 fighter-bombers in the April 15 U.S. air raid on Libya. President Reagan ordered the attack because of Libya's alleged involvement in international terrorism, and Libya has vowed to retaliate.

Laiha and others in the group denied they had been involved in terrorism or subversive activity. They said they had protested the U.S. air raid and that they supported Khadafy, but said they had violated no British law.

Laiha said he had been six months away from earning a doctorate in statistics and computer science at the University of Wales in Cardiff when he was arrested on Tuesday and told he was to be expelled.

Libyan officials escorted about 40 foreign reporters, photographers and television crew members to the airport. They apparently were all the journalists remaining after a campaign to cut the ranks of about 250 who had rushed to Tripoli to cover the confrontation between Libya and the United States.

The same day the 22 were expelled, the British government announced it would bar some 330 other Libyans from continuing their studies to become pilots and airplane mechanics, citing national security reasons.

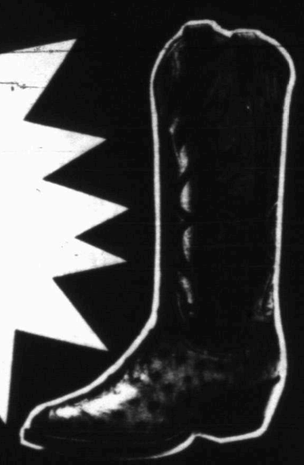

On Monday, the 12-nation Common Market advised its members to reduce the number of Libyan diplomats in their countries. As of Friday, Spain, West Germany and Denmark had announced they were doing so. France has expelled six Libyans.

Payments suspended on revolving credit debt

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Officials of the Western Company of North America suspended all payments of interest and principal on more than $400 million of unsecured bank debt because of adverse market conditions.

Company officials attributed the move Friday to "continued deterioration of market conditions" affecting both of their lines of business.

Western Company provides onshore oil and gas well services and offshore contract drilling services.

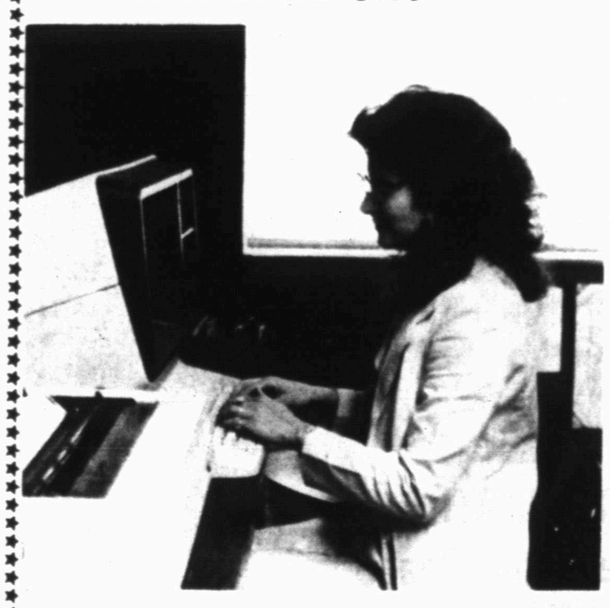

"The suspension of interest and principal payments was undertaken to conserve the company's cash position, which is currently in excess of $45 million," said Western Chairman H.E. "Eddie" Chiles in a prepared statement.

"Western has discussed with its institutional creditors the necessity of these cash conservation measures until business conditions stabilize," Chiles said. "The company is continuing discussions with its institutional creditors in an effort to reach a mutually satisfactory restructuring of the company's indebtedness."

Workers can handle storm

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Emergency workers in a neighboring city to a West Texas community, where tornadoes plowed through a trailer home park and subdivision, held a drill to evaluate their ability to handle a similar storm.

More than 150 Abilene city, hospital, community and private workers proved Friday they could handle a major tornado that might strike the city.

A pair of twisters one week ago struck the southern edge of Sweetwater, 47 miles west of here, causing an estimated $20 million in damages, killing one person and injuring more than 90.

In Abilene, emergency personnel participated in a two-hour emergency exercise. The statistics after the mock storm were 12 "fatalities" and 25 to 30 other "injuries," officials said.

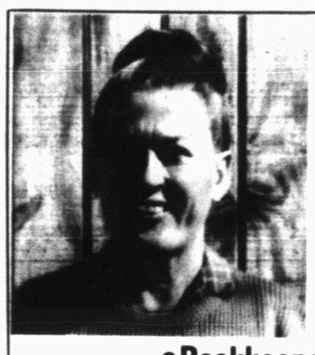

"We got good marks, but we also learned a few things we could do to improve our ability to respond, and that's the whole idea," said Ron Pollard, risk manager for the city, told the Abilene Reporter-News.

Robert Stout, an exercise-training officer with the Division of Emergency Management, Texas Department of Public Safety, said the city's drill was "excellent."

But he said municipal officials missed the first tornado "warning" in the drill.

"We lost 15 minutes of warning time when the first (tornado) spotter message came in early, and it never got relayed," said Stout. "That's the real world. That happens."

The drill site was a swath including Madison Middle School, Jackson Elementary and the High Meadows area.

800 protestors attend rally

AUSTIN (AP) — A rally in which about 800 anti-apartheid demonstrators chanted and listened to speeches at the University of Texas violated UT rules on the time and place of public meetings, campus officials said.

But UT police made no arrests in the 1½-hour rally Friday outside the Main Building. Officials said 228 people were arrested in three other unauthorized rallies this month at West Mall.

Ronald Brown, vice president for student affairs, said disciplinary proceedings will begin early next week for students who have been identified as leaders of the rally. They include some who were arrested in the earlier demonstrations and are already facing disciplinary penalties, he said.

Brown said the decision not to make arrests was not a concession that the previous arrests were ill-advised and did not mean that the university no longer intended to enforce its meeting rules.

He said it would be "reasonable to assume" that the penalties will be more severe for students who have repeatedly broken the rules. Disciplinary penalties outlined in the UT catalog range from a warning letter to expulsion.

Brown said the university's change in tactics resulted from meetings this week involving administrators, police, UT attorneys and others.

"There was a consensus that although the arrests were appropriate the first three times — and if things got out of hand, they would have been appropriate here — if the purpose was to test our rules, there is now ample evidence to do that," he said.

"We also are keeping in reserve the possibility of further arrests, both today and in the future," said Brown.

He said the rally was videotaped by UT officials to help in identifying leaders.

Glenn Maloney, assistant dean of students, told the Austin American-Statesman that previous arrests "have enabled us to identify the leaders, so we don't need to arrest anyone again to identify them" in order to initiate disciplinary proceedings.

Maloney said he had several complaints Friday from students who said the rally was interfering with their right to sit at tables along the mall and distribute literature.

TORNADO Safety Rules

When a tornado approaches — your immediate action may mean life or death.

Seek inside shelter, preferably in a tornado cellar, underground excavation, or a steel-framed or reinforced concrete building of substantial construction. Stay away from windows!

IN CITIES OR TOWNS

In office buildings—stand in an interior hallway on a lower floor, preferably in the basement.

In factories—on receiving a tornado warning, post a lookout. Workers should move quickly to the section of the plant offering the greatest protection in accordance with advance plans.

In homes and small buildings—go to the basement or to an interior part of the lowest level (a closet, a bathroom, or an interior hall). Get under something sturdy.

Mobile homes are particulary vulnerable to overturning during strong winds. Trailer parks should have a community shelter. Appoint a community leader responsible for constant radio monitoring during threatening weather or during watch periods. Leave mobile homes or vehicles and go to a substantial structure. If there is no shelter nearby, lie flat in the nearest ditch, ravine, or culvert with your hands shielding your head.

IN SCHOOLS

Whenever possible, go to an interior hallway on the lowest floor.

Avoid auditoriums and gymnasiums or other structures with wide, free-span roofs.

If a building is not of reinforced construction, go quickly to a nearby reinforced building, or to a ravine or open ditch and lie flat.

Keep Listening

KEEP LISTENING

Your radio and television stations will broadcast the latest tornado advisory information. Call the Weather Service only to report a tornado.

REMEMBER: Tornado watch means tornadoes are expected to develop. Tornado warning means a tornado has actually been sighted.

Pianists break monotony in bank

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Pianists working in shifts at a downtown bank building are breaking the monotony of waiting in long teller lines and providing an alternative to recorded background music.

Pianists have performed at the InterFirst Plaza building's atrium lobby for the past month, taking requests for two hours at midday and two hours in the late afternoons.

Brooks Barker, 26, a former music student at Trinity University, handles the midday shift at the Shuman baby grand while dressed in a black tuxedo.

Barker said the tunes he plays, many by request, range from familiar movie themes to energized samples of improvisational jazz.

"I think what I do is part of the new high-tech, high-touch element developers like to have in buildings like this," Barker said.

Jury selection to resume in slavery trial in Kerrville

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Lawyers likely will take a week to pick a jury to hear evidence in the state's organized crime case against a Hill Country family and a hitchhiker, the district attorney says.

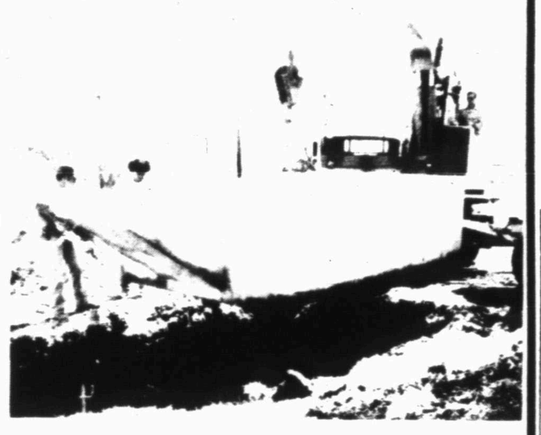

Prosecutor Ron Sutton said the jury selection process, which began March 24, has been in recess and will resume Monday at the Kerr County Courthouse.

Those picked to serve on the jury will consider the state's case against Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., his son Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., and the son's wife Joyce.

Wires cause grass blaze

Units of the Snyder Fire Department were dispatched to the 1400 Block of 7th St. at 5:19 p.m. Friday where they extinguished a small grass fire.

Sparks from electrical lines blown together by the wind were credited with starting the blaze. No property damage resulted from the fire.

3 arrests occur

Police logged three misdemeanor arrests Friday night, two men jailed for public intoxication and a third charged with driving while intoxicated.

City dumpster struck Friday

Three minor traffic accidents were reported in Snyder Friday.

Involved in the first — at 11:51 a.m. in the 2200 Block of Ave. N — was a 1985 Chevrolet driven by Billy Dean Hall of 210 34th St. which struck a city of Snyder owned trash dumpster.

The second accident occurred at 2:53 p.m. on the parking lot of the Lota-Burger restaurant on College Ave.

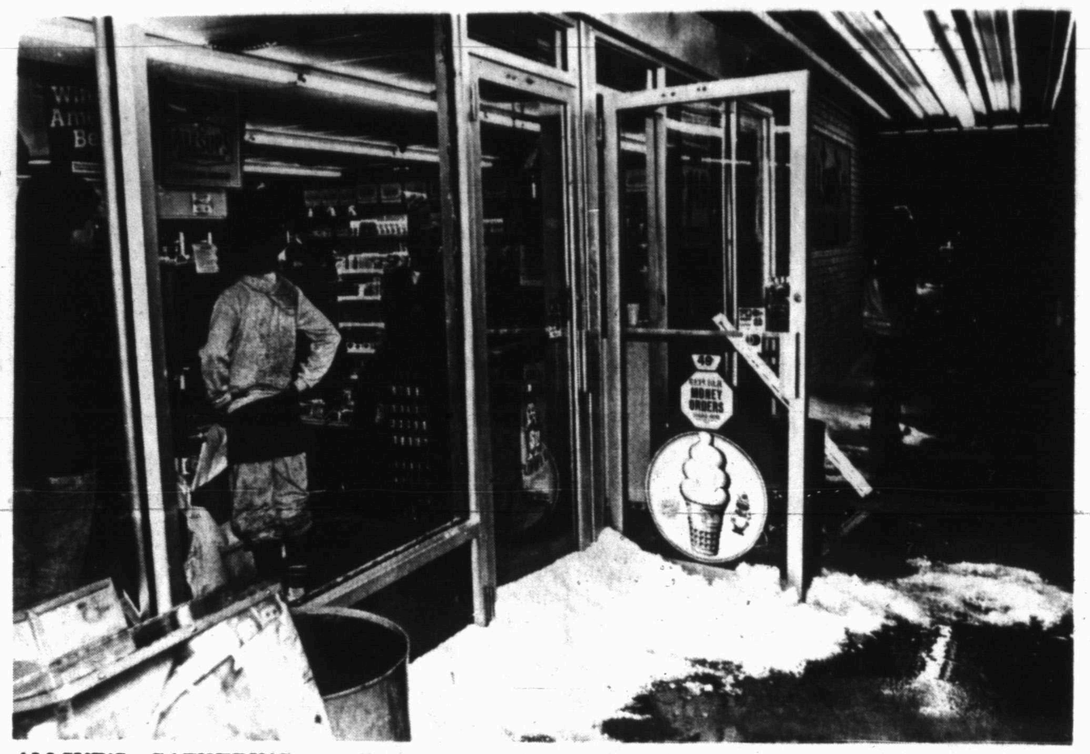

Involved in it were a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Gloria Jewel Jones of Rotan and a 1985 Chevrolet driven by Lila Foster Blakey of Rt. 1, Snyder.

A non-contact vehicle which fled the scene was being blamed for Friday's third accident at 3:55 p.m. in the 2400 Block of College Ave.

Curtis G. Derrick of 2410 30th St. told police he was trying to avoid a collision with that vehicle when his 1982 Chevrolet pickup struck a parked 1978 Ford owned by Feather Printing Co. of Snyder.

No injuries were reported from any of the three mishaps.

In 1912, the first Girl Guide patrol in North America was founded in Savannah, Ga.

Hail damages property in Hermleigh

Sheriff's deputies along with employees of Aid Ambulance-Snyder toured Hermleigh shortly after dark looking for possible injured. None were found, however.

The storm was the second of the day for the Hermleigh area. The first, noted around 5 p.m., left a Houston truck driver blaming the wind for his overturned tractor-trailer rig.

Donnie Gashette of Houston was driving a 1985 Kenworth and an unloaded trailer southbound on U.S. Hwy. 84 about 3 miles south of Hermleigh when the rig overturned as a storm passed through the area.

Gashette said the wind began blowing the trailer around and, as he slowed to keep control, the entire rig overturned in the roadway.

He was not injured in the mishap.

Confessed spy now recants testimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A confessed spy who now denies she was a Soviet agent told a judge she was pressured into pleading guilty by her lawyers and said she changed her story because she wants to help her former lover, a fired FBI agent on trial for espionage.

In an emotional speech that began with the words: "Your honor, we are not guilty of this crime," Svetlana Ogorodnikov, a Soviet emigre, poured out her story to U.S. District Judge David Kenyon 10 months after she stood before him and pleaded guilty to espionage charges.

Her comments, made in chambers Thursday, were released Friday by Kenyon. Jurors were not told of the development, and Mrs. Ogorodnikov, 35, resumed her defense testimony in the second trial of former FBI agent Richard Miller. A jury in November could not reach a verdict in Miller's first trial.

Lawsuit filing called surprise violation of RRC rules. He noted the filing against the local feed mill was "a big surprise."

The firm in question is Rhineland Agra Shippers of Munday.

Jarrell said to his knowledge Rhineland was a stable and well established firm operating at least 15 trucks and serving "most if not all" the livestock feed mills in Texas.

Last week, a lawsuit styled The State of Texas vs Ezell-Key Grain Co. was filed in 132nd District Court. It asks for a penalty of $100 per occurrence against Ezell-Key for doing business with the shipping firm.

The lawsuit petition indicates the local company used Rhineland to haul grain to Snyder from various locations in the Midwest on 10 occasions between February and June of 1984.

Court officials say the Munday-based shipping firm has been the target of a long term investigation by the Department of Public Safety License and Weight division for hauling commodities for hire without required state permits.

This has resulted in the assessment of some $65,000 in fines against the trucking company, they say.

There were 22 entries in the local contest. Sophomore Craig Watkins had two works chosen, a pencil drawing and a black India ink drawing. Also selected were a "scratch art" entry from senior Carla White; a second "scratch art" entry from freshman Hermelinda Garza; and a colored pencil drawing from junior Martha Gutierrez.

Pecos peppers Tigers, 6-3; district in two-way tie now

PECOS -- Pecos' Eagles utilized the age old two-out rally to defeat Snyder 6-3 here Friday and throw the District 2-4A baseball standings into a tie.

The Eagles scored five of their six runs with two outs already on the board, then held off a late Tiger rally to notch the win.

The outcome leaves the series at 1-1 between the two teams this season and gives both squads a 6-1 district slate. Snyder, its winning streak ended at eight, will take a 15-8 season record back to Moffett Field to host Andrews next Tuesday. Pecos, 15-6, will be at Fort Stockton.

The key runs in Friday's game came in the bottom of the fourth inning with Pecos already ahead 1-0.

First-up Oscar Mariscal drew a walk off of Snyder pitcher Jimmy Velasquez, but he was thrown out when the next batter, David Vejil, hit into a fielder's choice.

Ponchito Bafidis followed with a single, sending Vejil to third.

It appeared as if Snyder would get out of the inning when Jesse Abila ground out, but Pecos was only getting warmed up. Lupe Gavaldon cracked Velasquez for a double, scoring Vejil and Bafidis. Before the inning was over, Larry Avila also singled to score Gavaldon and give Pecos a 4-0 lead.

Snyder got its first run in the sixth. Mike McWilliams did the honors with a two-out single that scored Brad Holcomb. Holcomb had also singled - two of eight hits given up in the game by Pecos hurler Javier Solis.

The Eagles answered in the bottom of the sixth inning, helped along by two Snyder errors. Vejil singled board and came in on an error while Bafidis reached on a Tiger miscue and scored on an infield hit by Solis.

Trailing 6-1, Snyder attempted a rally in the top of the seventh inning. First-up Kenneth Pickering flew out to the short stop Mariscal, but Ricky Hunter and Steve Parker followed with back-to-back singles. Next-up Justin Webb hit a towering fly ball that Mariscal's couldn't keep up with because of the win, and it allowed courtesy runner Brad Gartman to score.

Pecos got its second out when Lance Windham snared a fly hit by Velasquez. A single from Brad Holcomb then gave Snyder its final run before Solis got Chris Fryar to ground out to the second baseman.

Pecos had gotten its first run in the third inning. Avila got he Eagles cracking with a two-out single. Windham sent him to third with another single, and he scored on a Tiger error.

Unofficially, Snyder made five errors in the contest. Velasquez, 7-4, dished out nine hits and walked four batters. He also struck out six.

Solis, 6-2, handed out eight hits, struck out six and walked two. Pecos made two errors.

Snyder left nine men stranded on the basepaths, including two in the second, third and seventh innings. The Tigers had loaded the bags in the second with only one out, but Solis got Pickering to hit into a double play to end the threat.

"We just didn't get to ol' Solis when we had the chances," said Snyder Coach Albert Lewis. "They got the momentum and you know how tough Pecos is in Pecos. They had the place filled with fans and it was something. They played inspired ball."

Peete holds lead at Houston Open

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) - Calvin Peete is a golf perfectionist like Hall of Famer Ben Hogan, who thought each hole should result in a birdie.

Peete was not perfect Friday but he was close enough, shooting a two-under-par 70 for a 135 total after 36 holes and a two-shot lead in the $500,000 Houston Open.

"I'm somewhat of a perfectionist like Hogan," Peete said. "I read where he once said a man should birdie every hole. So I'm always trying to birdie all 18 holes."

Brewers cook Rangers, 11-1

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The Milwaukee Brewers have kept alive their Arlington Stadium jinx on the Texas Rangers.

The Brewers swept the Rangers in their own park in five games last year and followed Teddy Higuera's five-hit, nine strike-out pitching to an 11-1 slaughter on Friday night.

Milwaukee needed it, snapping a three-game losing streak. The Brewers had lost 8 of their last 10 games.

The Brewers pelted five Rangers' pitchers for 18 hits. Jose Guzman took his third loss in four decisions.

Paul Molitor backed Higuera's strong effort with three doubles, a single and four RBIs.

In 18 career innings Higuera is 2-0 and has struck out 21 Rangers.

Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger said "I've been waiting 14 games for this one. Teddy had great stuff out there tonight. He kept the Rangers off balance. It's a shame he didn't get his shutout.

"He had a lot of stamina. He could have gone 11 or 12 innings. If he keeps itching the way he has been he will be one of the best in the American League."

Higuera, who led Milwaukee in victories last season with 15, said "I made just one mistake on Don Slaught and it cost me my

Raiders thumped by Horned Frogs

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A walk, three errors and a balk allowed Texas Christian to score five runs in a wild first inning, and the Horned Frogs went on to pound Texas Tech 15-8 Friday afternoon in a Southwest Conference baseball game.

TCU added a run in the third, five runs in the fifth on three hits and an error, and four runs on Bernard Walker's grand slam home run in the sixth to put the game out of reach.

With the victory, TCU pulled even with Tech in the SWC race with a 5-11 record. The two teams play a doubleheader on Saturday.

The game lasted 3 hours and 45 minutes. It included eight errors, four by each side; four hit batsmen; and 14 walks. Only 12 of the 23 runs were earned.

Chris Cauley, 4-2, got the victory. He allowed nine hits and walked two batters over seven innings. The loser was Johnny Vidales, 7-5, who was touched for six runs and five hits in the three innings he worked.

A walk and two errors loaded the bases for TCU in the first inning, setting the stage for Tony Wilmot's two-run single. The third error of the inning scored Darrin Roberts from third, and Wilmot later scored from third on a balk.

Tech scored single runs in the third, fourth and fifth innings; two in the eighth, and three in the ninth.

Vidales, Phillip Maldonado, Mark Booth and Brad Zach each had two hits for the Red Raiders.

Wilmot, Bubba Jackson and Drew Watkins had two hits apiece for TCU. Roberts added a three-run double for the Horned Frogs.

Swindell leads Texas past Texas A&M, 3-1

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - All-American pitcher Greg Swindell struck out 11 Texas A&M batters - including A&M's leading hitter, Mike Scanlin, four times - as Texas beat the Aggies 3-1 in an important Southwest Conference showdown Friday night.

The victory pulled the Longhorns, 46-9, into a tie with A&M for the conference lead at 13-3. The Aggies are 36-19 overall.

Dale Barry, A&M's southpaw starter, struck out six and walked just two, but scattered 10 hits in suffering his first loss in nine starts. Swindell, who gave up only four hits, improved his record to 9-1 and increased his strikeout total to 147 in 113 innings, while dropping his earned-run average to 1.27.

The Aggies took advantage of a rare Swindell error and a suicide squeeze in the third inning to work Don Wren around the bases for the first run of the game.

Wren singled, advanced to second on Swindell's errant pickoff attempt, moved to third on Maury Martin's sacrifice, and scored on Robi Chandler's perfectly placed bunt.

Texas tied the game in the bottom of the third when Kevin Garner's triple to the left field wall knocked in Coby Kerlin. Scott Collbaugh, who went 3-for-3, gave the Longhorns the lead in the fourth when he doubled to right field and scored from third on Kerlin's sacrifice fly.

Baylor bumps Arkansas, 10-8

WACO, Texas (AP) - Tony Huey, who had already homered, singled in the go-ahead run in the eighth inning as Baylor defeated Arkansas 10-8 in a Southwest Conference baseball game Friday afternoon.

Baylor is now 35-19 and 8-8. Arkansas dropped to 34-13 and 14-5.

Arkansas rallied from an 8-3 deficit to tie the game with single runs in the sixth and eighth and three runs in the seventh.

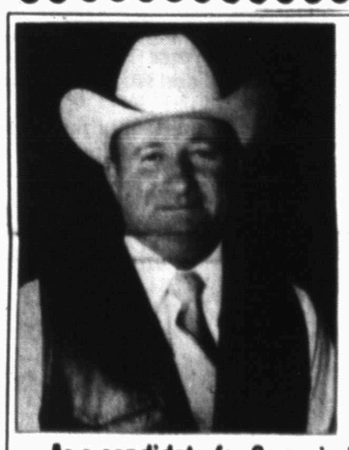

However, Baylor put its first two runners aboard in the bottom of the eighth when Arkansas reliever Ray Harris, now 4-2, walked Todd Hawkins and Mike Malinak.

A sacrifice bunt attempt failed when Harris threw Hawkins out at third, but Huey then singled Malinak home and Steve Jarvie followed with another RBI single to give the Bears their final victory margin.

Baylor's third pitcher, Blaine Beatty, now 8-2, worked the final 1 1-3 innings to earn the victory. Bears starter Craig Gummelt went seven innings before giving way to Ted Richardson, who lasted two-thirds of an inning before Beatty was summoned.

Tommy Pate
Candidate for County Commissioner
Precinct 2

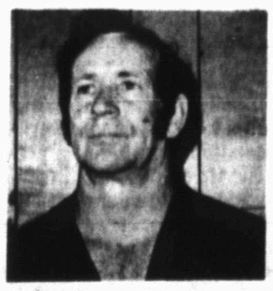

As a candidate for Commissioner Precinct 2, I would like to remind the voters that a commissioner's job does not lie within his precinct alone. His precinct duties are only a small portion of all the obligations a commissoner must fulfill. Among the many are helping to appoint county boards, approving all expenditures of the county and setting the county tax rate to list only a few.

When casting your vote on May 3 please take into consideration all of the responsibilities a commissioner has. Elect, Tommy Pate, a man who is qualified and will make the duties of commissioner his first priority. A man who will execute these duties with honesty and fairness to all.

I would like to be your commissioner and would appreciate your vote and support.

AJRA Rodeo winds down; final performance Saturday

Friday's performance of the AJRA Rodeo here produced a few new leaders - especially in the younger divisions - but other cowboys and cowgirls weren't outdone as quickly.

Among the leaders still holding on are Tod Danley in the calf roping, Jim Smith in the steer wrestling and Gary Snokhouse in the bareback.

Roby made a strong showing at the three-day rodeo, which winds up with Saturday night's 8 o'clock performance at Scurry County Coliseum.

Carter Edmondson of Roby clocked a 10.32 to lead the age 13-15 calf roping while Lorissa Edmondson took first place in the 12-under girls poles with a 23.34. Lorissa also leads the girl's ribbon roping with a 15.26.

Snyder's Jana Kincheloe got into the act with her time of 15.16 in the barrels, which leads the girl's 12-under division. She is second in the pole bending with a 23.85.

Todd Watkins of Odessa moved into the forefront of the saddle bronc riding with a 73. Wesley Henderson and Robert Fifer, both of Snyder, are tied for second with a pair of 70s.

Meanwhile, WTC rodeo team member Shelly Eldridge's 2.59 held up in the girl's 16-19 age breakaway roping. It was challeged by Wendy Wardlaw of Del Rio, who flashed a 2.70.

Also representing WTC rodeo, Danley held on to first place in the 16-19 calf roping with an 8.37, which was posted Thursday. West cowboy Gary Snokouse now shares the lead in the 16-19 bull riding with Ricky Kieschnick who scored a 68 Friday, but his 69 still leads the bareback competition.

Unsurpassed also was Jim Smith's 3.44 in the steer wrestling. Danley continues to hold down second place in that event with a 5.87.

Sweetwater's Shasta Brooks is sitting in first place in the eight-under flags, pole bending and barrels with times of 8.95, 22.85 and 14.94 respectively.

Tommy Henderson of Snyder leads the 12-under boy's barrels with a 15.73.

The fastest time in the barrels still belongs to Amarillo's Jane Templar in the 16-19 division, who clocked a 14.54 Thursday.

TOUGH LUCK -- Snyder's Reggie Price drew well, but couldn't quite stay aboard in the bareback event at the AJRA Rodeo, being held here at Scurry County Coliseum. The three-day show was to wind up with Saturday's 8 p.m. performance. (SDN Staff Photo)

Niki Moist times 4.7; tied for roping lead

ABILENE -- Western Texas College's Niki Moist clocked a 4.7 in the breakaway roping here Friday night to share the lead in the event with Karen Snodgrass of Howard.

The fast time insures Western Texas' women's team of reaching Sunday's 2 p.m. finals at the Hardin-Simmons University NIRA Rodeo.

Western Texas is currently in first place in the women's Southwest Region standings.

Thursday, Mistri Davis of Western timed an 11.4 in the goat tying and a 5.2 in the breakaway roping. Moist and Snodgrass flashed a 4.7 in the breakaway Friday.

Western Texas cowboy Shawn Goemmer is second in the saddle bronc riding with a 65.

Keith Hudson's 11.0 was still leading the calf roping.

SHS's Tucker awarded scholarship to WTSU

Don Tucker, Snyder High School student athletic trainer for four years, has signed a scholarship to West Texas State University.

"I think it's indicitive of all the things he did for us and it's a credit to Rick Howard and Jeff Clark, who trained him," said basketball coach Larry Scott.

Tucker, who has actually been a trainer for closer to five years - since the eighth grade - chose West Texas State over Sam Houston State University.

"The campus (at WTSU) is small and you know most of your professors. I wanted to go to a college with less people," he said.

The scholarship isn't a full ride, but as Tucker explained, "I'm real pleased. I wanted a bigger scholarship, but I'll take what I can."

He said he enjoyed working with both former head trainer Rick Howard and current trainer Jeff Clark.

"Both of them taught me what I know. They both helped me a lot."

McLennan wins Region 5; Western takes fifth place

HOBBS, N.M. -- McLennan Community College fired a searing 277 to win the Region 5 Golf Tournament and earn a berth to the national tournament here Friday morning.

The Highlanders shot an 859 over 54 holes, edging New Mexico Junior College by two strokes.

New Mexico, which had led after the first 36 holes, shot a 286 Friday and finished with an 861 total. The Thunderbirds will also qualify for nationals.

Third place was won by New Mexico Military Institute, which shot an 870. The Broncos were led by co-medalist Derek Crawford, who along with McLennan's Chris Little shot a 206. Crawford also earned a trip to nationals but will not be joined by the Bronco team.

Odessa College shot a 287 Friday and finished fourth overall with an 884.

Western Texas College, led by Pat Fitzpatrick's 224, finished fifth with an 894. The Westerners carded a 298 over the final 18 holes Friday.

Midland tied with the Westerners at 894 while South Plains was seventh overall with a 903.

Other WTC individual players included Bo Kay and Matt Smith, who shot 226s for the tournament, Frank Schuster, a 227, and Mike Harrison, a 229.

NBA roundup...

Mavericks, Hawks win

by The Associated Press

Spud Webb was "Mr. Inside" for Atlanta and Brad Davis "Mr. Outside" for Dallas as the two teams advanced to the second round of the NBA playoffs.

Webb drove the lane and drew a foul from Detroit's Kelly Tripucka with three seconds left in the second overtime on Friday night, then hit both free throws to give the Hawks a 114-113 victory over the Pistons and a 3-1 triumph in the best-of-five series.

"I wasn't nervous," said the 5-foot-7 Webb, who had missed the first of two free throws that would have won the game with six seconds remaining in the first overtime. "If I had missed the second shot, I might have been. But I felt good. When the first one goes in, the second is easy."

Dallas beat Utah 3-1 with a 117-113 victory in Game 4 as Davis hit all eight of his shots from the field, including five straight from three-point territory. Davis scored 15 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter.

"My only job was to come in there ... keep running the offense and keep taking the open shots when we got them," Davis said. "When things are going well, you get in sort of a groove."

The second round of the playoffs started today when Denver traveled to Houston for the first game of their best-of-seven series.

On Sunday, Washington is at Philadelphia in the fifth and deciding game of their first-round series. Dallas is at the Los Angeles Lakers and Atlanta at Boston in second-round openers.

Hawks 114, Pistons 113

Dominique Wilkins scored 38 points and Randy Wittman 29 for Atlanta, while Detroit got 30 from Isiah Thomas, 27 from Bill Laimbeer and 24 by Tripucka.

Thomas scored six points in the second overtime, including an underhand flip shot in the lane that put the Pistons ahead 113-112 with 11 seconds remaining.

After an Atlanta timeout, the Hawks worked the ball to Webb, who took the ball toward the basket when no teammate was open.

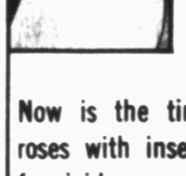

Webb's first foul shot bounced twice on the rim before falling through the net, tying the score. His second shot swished cleanly, and Earl Cureton's desperation toss for Detroit from beyond mid-court hit the backboard and bounced away from the rim.

Mavericks 117, Jazz 113

Sam Perkins scored 29 points and Mark Aguirre had 28 in addition to Davis' 26 for Dallas, while Thurl Bailey had 24, Bobby Hansen 22 and Mark Eaton 20 for Utah.

Dallas used a 12-2 spurt that covered the final 36 seconds of the third quarter and the first two minutes of the fourth period to gain control against Utah. Davis had one three-pointer during that run and added two others later in the fourth quarter as Dallas led by as much as 13 points.

His five three-point goals tied an NBA playoff record held by Mike Bratz of Phoenix in 1980.

shutout. Other than that I'm satisfield."

Slaught's one-out fly in the bottom of the eighth inning hit the yellow line on top of the fence for a home run.

The Rangers went into the game at the top scoring team in the AL.

"That one wasn't much fun at all," said Rangers' manager Bobby Valentine. "Higuera is a good pitcher and he made us look pretty flat.

"He's one of the better pitchers in this league. He was the rookie pitcher of the year last year for a good reason."

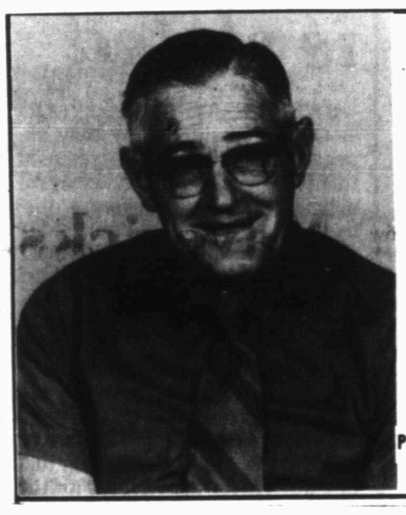

The Rangers' Pete O'Brien, leading hitter in the AL, said he was impressed by Higuera.

"You're not going to get many hits when you face a guy who's pitching like he was," O'Brien said. "He had just great stuff."

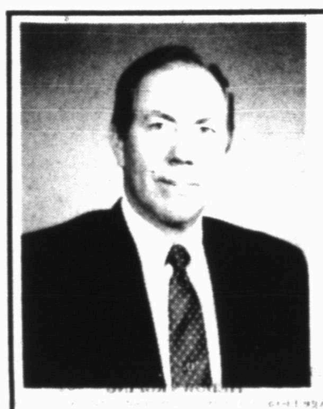

Bamberger said he hoped the loss would stop the Brewers' slide.

Hance says crossover votes likely

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Kent Hance, announcing endorsements from some longtime Texas backers of President Reagan, insisted Friday he has the best chance of attracting enough new GOP voters to unseat Gov. Mark White.

Hance predicted that substantial numbers of conservative Democrats and angry educators will take part in the Republican primary May 3 and vote for him.

"We feel like the rural vote we'll be getting will be very positive. A lot of people in education are going to be voting in the Republican primary for the first time. To them, if it's a question of Bill Clements vs. Mark White, that's no choice whatsoever," Hance said.

"Our goal of bringing in new voters — we feel like we're right on target," he said.

Hance downplayed recent opinion polls showing him and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler trailing Clements, the former governor.

"The only polls we've seen so far are polls that were taken three and even four weeks ago. It was simply a name identification thing," he said.

While those same polls indicate White may be in trouble, Hance said it would be a mistake for Republicans to get too confident.

"Anyone who thinks Mark White is going to be easy, they are getting themselves into a bad position. He will not be easy," Hance said.

Hance, the former Lubbock congressman who nearly captured the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination in 1984, said his campaign this year has enlisted many of his Senate campaign organizers statewide.

"The key is who turns out their vote. We feel like we're in good shape to turn out our vote. We have the grassroots organization to turn out the vote," he said.

Among those endorsing Hance on Friday was Clymer Wright of Houston, a longtime Reagan backer and former Reagan finance chairman in Texas. He likened Hance's ability to attract disaffected Democrats to that of the president in the 1980 and 1984 elections.

"We anticipate that Kent Hance will be able to attract thousands and thousands of new voters to the primary this year, which is going to completely throw off the (opinion) polls," Wright said.

In other political news Friday:

— The president of the Mexican American Democrats of Texas, Ruben Bonilla of Corpus Christi, urged all Hispanic voters to "take time and seriously reevaluate whether they can continue to support Oscar Mauzy."

Bonilla said a campaign newspaper published by Mauzy was "disturbing and disappointing." The tabloid newspaper included flattering articles about Mauzy and Supreme Court candidate Jay Gibson, who is running against Justice Raul Gonzalez, the high court's first Mexican-American member.

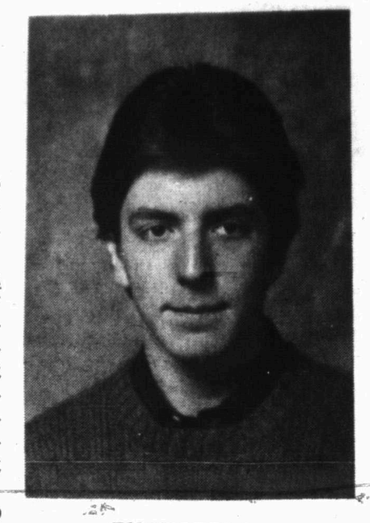

"The tabloid recently mailed to over 750,000 voters in the state pairing Oscar Mauzy with Jay Gibson not only is injurious to state Democratic Party efforts to elect the first Mexican-American to a statewide office, but is insulting to the Mexicano electorate," Bonilla said.

Mauzy, a Dallas Democrat, on Thursday apologized for the newspaper. He said it was "an insensitive decision" to "sell space in our mailer" to Gibson.

Mauzy said he did not endorse Gibson, adding that he values greatly the support of Mexican-Americans.

— District Judge Hugo Touchy, a candidate for the Texas Supreme Court, predicted he would get enough primary votes to force a runoff

"Unfortunately, there is a great deal of public apathy and a real effort by certain small groups of rich personal injury lawyers in Texas to keep the public ignorant of the significance of an untainted Texas Supreme Court," Touchy charged.

TIM KOTRLA

Tim Kotrla earns high math honor

The United States Achievement Academy has announced that Tim Kotrla has been named a United States National Award winner in mathematics.

Kotrla, a Hermleigh High School student, was nominated by Mary Bankhead, math teacher.

This marks the second time Kotrla has received this award. He was nominated in science by Mike Brown, junior high science teacher. Kotrla was named U. S. National Award winner in 1983 in science and math.

He is the son of Billy and Carole Haynes of Hermleigh and Major Ray Kotrla of San Angelo. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Chorn of Hermleigh, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kotrla of San Angelo and Mrs. Fred Haynes of Hermleigh.

Tornado cleanup is slated

SWEETWATER, Texas (AP) — Officials said Friday they expect 500 volunteers this weekend to help sweep the city clear of debris left by last week's tornado, which did an estimated $20 million in damage and killed one.

At least 250 off-duty personnel from Dyess Air Force Base have signed up to join in the cleanup, Greg Wortham, city public information officer, said.

He said at least another 250 people from civic groups and churches are expected to join in Saturday's cleanup efforts, just one week after the tornado hit the West Texas city of 12,000 residents.

Wortham said several pieces of heavy equipment have been loaned to the city to move the debris and make way for rebuilding.

He said people with tornado damage are sorting out what they want to keep and are leaving piles of rubble curbside to be trucked away.

The tornado prompted donations of food, money, clothing and volunteer assistance. A disaster relief fund, which is a joint effort of the local ministerial alliance and the Chamber of Commerce, has a balance of about $11,000.

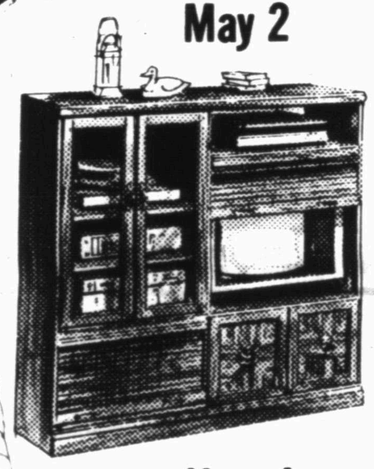

But relief officials said they still need money, furniture, and household items.

VOTE FOR
Jerry House
Commissioner
Precinct 2

A county commissioner has to make many difficult decisions, to provide leadership for the whole county he must be able to listen to both sides and then decide. Everyone knows of the economic problems facing our county. Agriculture has been in bad shape for over five years, the future doesn't look good for a few more years.

The oil industry has taken a very hard blow in the past few months. These two industries are where the majority of the tax dollar comes from. Having interest in both, I know the importance of keeping the taxes at a modest rate, but not letting needs of the people and property be neglected. So for honest and considerate decisions, vote for Jerry House.

JOHN TORRES BRIONES

2 charges await known fugitive

MIDLAND--John Torres Briones is wanted for murder in Ector County and aggravated assault on a peace officer in Midland County.

The murder charge against Briones stems from the shooting death of Jose Hernandez Perez who was gunned down in an Odessa bar.

The second charge is related to an incident where Midland Police Department Officer Dale Seago stopped Briones and his wife and tried to arrest him for an outstanding DWI warrant. Briones attacked Seago.

This week he has been added to the Texas Most Wanted List. A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered by the Governor's Office for information leading to his arrest.

Briones is described as a white male of hispanic descent, 5-9, 160 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. He has numerous tatoos on his body.

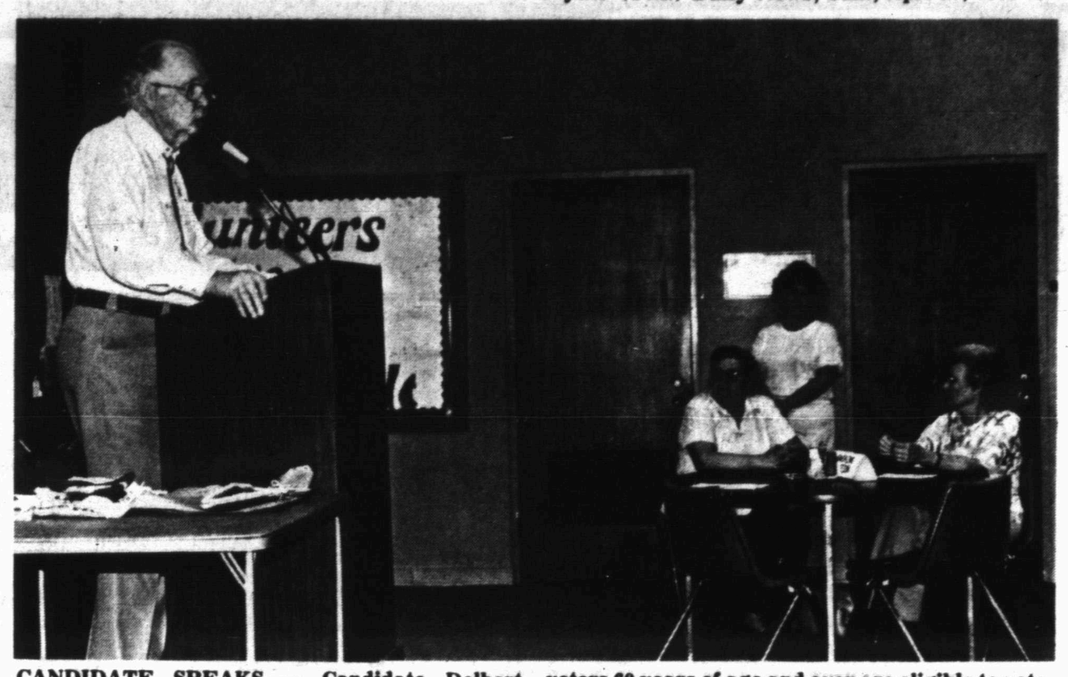

Tower is outraged

DALLAS (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. John Tower said Friday he is outraged and embarrassed that the son of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has been asked by the owners of an apartment building to leave his luxury digs.

"It's a slap in the face to a friendly government, to a very gallant lady who stuck her neck out politically to support us. I feel a great sense of outrage over this and a sense of embarrassment," he said.

Tower said he talked to the apartment managers on behalf of the prime minister's son, asking them to let Mark Thatcher stay in his luxury apartment in the exclusive Turtle Creek area near downtown.

Tower would not give the names of the people with whom he talked but said they wouldn't reconsider. Apartment management officials have refused comment on the matter.

CANDIDATE SPEAKS — Candidate Delbert Downing spoke at noon Friday at the Senior Citizens' Center. Downing hopes to win a seat on the first ever Texas Silver Haired Legislature — a bipartisan group of senior adults who will meet to discuss issues of concern to seniors. All registered voters 60 years of age and over are eligible to vote. Absentee balloting begins May 1 in the Senior Center. Individuals need not be active center participants in order to cast their ballots. (SDN Staff Photo)

WTC cosmetology interviews slated

Interviews for persons interested in enrolling in the Western Texas College cosmetology class starting in June will be conducted on May 1, Judy Border, cosmetology instructor, has announced.

Appointments for interviews are to be made by calling Mrs. Border at 573-8511, ext. 267.

Persons wishing to enroll in the class are to go first to the Student Services office in the Administration Building to pick up a cosmetology packet. All the forms in the packet are to be completed before the applicant goes for the interview.

Cosmetology students receive 1,580 hours of training in a 12-month period and are then eligible to take the State Board of Cosmetology examinations for licensing.

Vocal students to entertain

Vocal students of Jane Womack at Western Texas College will entertain with solos and duets in a program starting at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Senior Center.

Students appearing on the program will be Carmen Thielen of Post Lavaca, Jim Rainbolt of Post and Andrea Owens of Sweetwater. Mrs. Womack will accompany the students at the piano.

Kathy Roberts, county extension agent, will present a program on osteoporosis at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday. She will be emphasizing the role of good nutrition in her discussion.

Senior citizens are now selling tickets for the May Day barbecue on May 17 in the coliseum. Tickets are $5 each and must be purchased in advance. Tickets may be reserved by calling the center and these must be picked up and paid for by noon on May 16.

Miniature golfers from the Senior Center will resume their Thursday morning games on May 1. Senior citizens who would like to join the group can meet at Westerner Golfland on College Avenue.

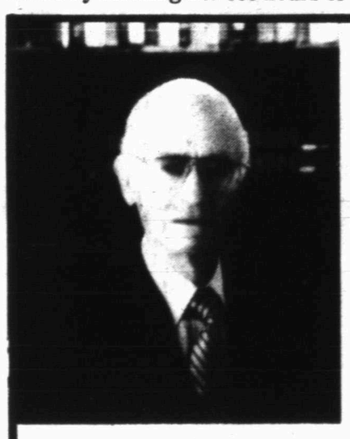

Delbert Downing, a candidate for election to Texas' Silver Haired Legislature, will be visiting senior citizens in Fisher County on May 1. He is to be in the Senior Center in Rotan to explain the new program. All Texas residents 60 years of age and older are eligible to vote for representatives to the Silver Haired Legislature which will serve as an advisory group to the state legislature. Information about this project can be obtained by contacting the Senior Center.

Woman is suing dance school

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — A former dance student is suing her dance instructor, claiming he cheated her of the title to her home by offering her 366 hours of dance lessons.

But the dance teacher calls the suit "ridiculous" and says the woman filed it on the advice of her psychic.

George Mason, 1725-1792, was a strong advocate of individual rights. Although a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, he declined to sign that document on the grounds that it did not sufficiently safeguard individual rights. Later, the First Congress adopted the first ten amendments to the Constitution, known as the Bill of Rights. These went into effect in 1791. The Daughters of the American Revolution honor this great American.

Thank You

We, the Family of Elmo Dunn, want to thank each and every one for everything you did for us during the loss of Elmo. Thank you for your prayers, your memorials, your flowers, your cards, your food, your visits and every kind word spoken.
It is all of this that makes our lives worth living.
God Bless all of You

Pat & Raymond Hogg & Scott Hardy Chris Dunn
Skeet, Shirley, Kurt & Staci Dunn Kristi & Monte Hamilton

Thanks

We wish to take this time to thank everyone who brought food, sent flowers and thought of us during our time of grief. We also want to thank Dr. Miller, Dr. Pate and the Staff at Cogdell Hospital for all their efforts.

Rioting sweeps Soweto township

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A mob invaded the home of a black police sergeant during riots in the sprawling black township of Soweto and hacked the officer to death with machetes and knives, police said.

The sergeant's death was the only fatality confirmed by authorities in Soweto as rioting exploded Friday in one of the country's flashpoints of black rage against the white-led government's apartheid race policies.

Hundreds of young people had tried to go on foot, in buses and in cars to a magistrate's office in the township outside Johannesburg where 15 students accused of burning a policeman to death were appearing.

When police turned back some of the marchers at roadblocks and dispersed others with tear gas, mobs formed and the rioting began.

Buses, homes and a police car were stoned and a delivery truck was set on fire by mobs of young blacks who roamed through the township of nearly 2 million people, according to the police report.

In addition to the fatal attack on the police sergeant, another black policeman's home was set ablaze, and soldiers shot a black youth who stoned their vehicle, police said.

Elsewhere in the country, police said a white motorist suffered serious stab wounds at the hands of youths who pulled him from his car in a black township near Cape Town.

Headman Somtunzi, government spokesman in the tribal homeland of Ciskei, said several homes were set afire Thursday night, including that of the justice and police minister.

Police on Thursday said a black Anglican bishop whose home was fire-bombed the day before had been detained under a security law designed to curb the violence that has claimed the lives of more than 1,400 people since September 1984, nearly all of them black.

Jury awards widow $4 million judgment

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — An 87-year-old Glencoe widow has been awarded more than $4 million in a lawsuit against Tenneco Inc. over alleged salt water pond contamination that the woman's attorney contends could take "10 to 50 years to clean up."

Tulsa attorney Randy Miller, who represented Allena R Gould, said he was told the judgment returned by a Payne County jury Thursday was the largest in the north-central county's history.

Dave Simpson of Oklahoma City, attorney for the Houston-based Tenneco, said no decision has been made about appealing the lawsuit. But Miller said he expects Tenneco attorneys to appeal the case.

The jury, which heard eight days of arguments in the civil trial before specially assigned District Judge Donald E. Powers of Chandler, deliberated more than two hours before returning the verdict.

The judgment provided $2,002,000 in actual damages, $2 million in punitive damages and $50,000 for Mrs. Gould's inconvenience, annoyance and discomfort, court officials said.

Miller said the lawsuit first sought $1.2 million but later was amended to seek at least $10 million.

Miller said his case detailed how Wilcox Oil Co. dug a 2-acre salt water retention pond in 1951 atop a hill on the northwest quarter of the 400-acre farm Mrs. Gould owned with her late husband, Edward A. Gould Sr., who died in 1977.

The pond was filled with salt water from two oil wells on the property and, as the water evaporated, it produced an "ever-thickening residue of salt," Miller said.

He said Wilcox officials filled in the pond in 1961 after the state Corporation Commission concluded salt was leaching into the ground, but Miller said the layer of salt remained below ground.

Wilcox Oil was taken over by Tenneco in 1964, and Tenneco assumed the earlier company's assets and liabilities, Miller said jurors were told.

Over the years, Miller said, salt from the former pond has continued to spread.

"It has severely polluted the whole countryside," he said. "There used to be springs all along the hillside. Now, there are salt water seeps.

"Even if it is stopped, it will take 10 to 50 years to clean up the water out there," he said.

In 1973, Gould wrote a letter to Tenneco officials saying that the farm's drinking water was beginning to taste salty, Miller said.

A Tenneco engineer's memorandum indicated the former pit could be a source of such pollution, Miller said. But Tenneco opted to plug and abandon its wells on the property in 1974, he said.

Scurry County Folks...

By Vicki Brown

A family tragedy inspired a local woman to help organize a new support group for this area — the American Cancer Society's "I Can Cope" program.

Anticipating the first session sometime in June, Barbara Bigham joined the fight against cancer since the death of her husband Willie on Jan. 6, 1985. "Dr. Close (oncologist David Close) had all the ACS materials in his office. I saw the 'I Can Cope' brochure and remember thinking at the time, 'I wish we had something like that in Snyder,' but we didn't," she explained.

General supervisor for public works with the City of Snyder for about seven years, Willie thought he suffered a light stroke on May 21, 1984. But two days later, doctors in Lubbock confirmed the presence of a golfball sized tumor in one lung. Later, two tumors in the brain and another beginning to attach to his liver were also discovered.

Even as recently as three years prior to Willie's diagnosis, no treatment was available for the type of cancer found in the tumors. "In those three years, researchers had developed a two-level treatment and reported a 60-40 percent positive treatment rate. Unfortunately Willie fell into that 40 percent group. But he was one of the fortunate people who did not become sick under chemotherapy. The anti-nausea drugs worked wonderfully on Willie," Barbara said.

Even though his condition stabilized at one time, the cancer continued to spread, finally forcing him in November to leave the job he loved. "The treatment did not stop it, but it bought him enough time to complete projects and dreams that were important to him. That gave him a real peace about leaving."

Through the encouragement of June Bellamy (whose husband also had cancer), Barbara attended an "I Can Cope" session in Abilene. "It wasn't until I started attending meetings in Abilene with June that I knew what is available through the Cancer Society. Through those meetings, I learned how to be a better supporter to Willie's treatment program," she explained.

During the first session, a nutritionist discussed the effects of diet on the disease's progression and companies offered free samples of various health foods available to cancer patients. "Because of having gone, I was able to help the nutritionist at the hospital work with Willie's diet and I could impliment suggestions at home," she said.

Barbara believes that the second session offered her even more help. "An oncologist in Abilene, who himself had been diagnosed a few months earlier, explained how cancer cells operate in the body, how the treatment affects those cells and how the treatment could hopefully stop them," she explained.

Barbara added that a lawyer and a chaplain were featured during the program's final two meetings. "I was unable to attend those last two sessions because I couldn't leave Willie," she said.

"The meetings helped me realize there just wasn't a whole lot we could do for our husbands. But they gave us an opportunity to learn some positive things we could do against this devastating illness and they relieved our hurt," she emphasized.

"I just didn't realize ACS does so much for cancer patients and their families," she added. "They gave me a cookbook and brochures to explain all the available programs.

"It's overwhelming when you realize there were so many people willing to bolster you up and hold you together," she said, intertwining her fingers together to illustrate. "I was surrounded by people who wanted to be part of a support team."

The four-session program will be offered here about three or four times per year with a support team always available.

"June and I feel like one way we can honor our husbands is to be a part of the team that brings the support to Snyder," she said.

CANCER FIGHT IS A FAMILY AFFAIR — Barbara Bigham (center, rear) is leading her family in the fight against cancer. In honor of her husband Willie, who died last year with the disease, Barbara is helping each of her three grandchildren Kallie, Karrie and Kraig sponsor a hole in the May 3 Sword of Hope Golf Tournament. The local unit of the American Cancer Society is hosting the event. (SDN Staff Photo)

Tarbet, Huddleston pledge nuptual vows

STEPHENVILLE — Shelly Lynn Tarbet of Stephenville became the bride of Kevin Leon Huddleston of Ira on March 15 at 7 p.m. in the Hillcrest Church of Christ. Glen Boyd, minister of the South Washington Church of Christ in Marshall, officiated the candlight, double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Max and Nelda Tarbet of Stephenville and Leon and Darla Huddleston of Ira.

Vows were exchanged before an altar highlighted by white lattice boards entwined with ivy and small white Christmas lights. Two spiral candelabra graced each side of the platform at the edge of the lattice. Two brass fan-shaped flower stands holding arrangements of blue and white flowers flanked the candelabra. A large, fan-shaped candelabrum centered the altar.

A white cloth aisle runner covered the length of the auditorium. Large white bows with white tapered candles marked each pew.

Sherri Reynolds of Corpus Christi and Marc Cates of Abilene served as candlelighters. Reynolds chose a floor-length teal blue taffeta skirt and white silk blouse. Cates wore a light charcoal grey tuxedo to match the groomsmen.

Steve Fisher, Julie Heironimus, Tracy Pettijohn, Rachelle Hunt, Shawn Johnson, Wes Price, Leslie Fry and Gregg Greer provided musical selections.

Guests were seated to "There Will Never Be Another," "The New 23rd," "O Master Let Us Walk With Thee," and "Be With Us Lord." The singers performed "David's Psalm" to the lighting of candles. Grandmothers were seated with "Walk Hand in Hand With Me." When the mothers and groom entered "What A Difference You've Made In My Life," was played.

Bridesmaids entered to "The Wedding Song." As the bride entered, Julie Heironimus and Steve Fisher sang "Follow Me and Whither Thou Goest". "We Will Serve the Lord" was played following the exchanging of vows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white organza gown featuring a sweetheart neckline, fingertip sleeves and ruffled shoulders. The cathedral train was designed with a ruffled hem and lace appliques. She chose a white silk bridal hat with white lace appliques and seed pearls. A waist-length veil decorated with lace appliques hung from the back.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses and carnations with tiny accents of blue. Blue and white lace ribbons complemented the bouquet.

In keeping with tradition the bride wore a pair of earrings that belonged to her mother. The earrings were given to her mother by her father as an engagement present. With her dress as something new, the bride borrowed a white lace handkerchief and wore a blue garter.

Serving as maid of honor was Jill Yarbrough of Littlefield. Bridesmaids included Sherri Holt of Midland and Kathy Huddleston and Cindy Fritz of Snyder, sisters of the groom.

The bridal attendants wore long, teal blue taffeta with large ruffled sleeves, a ruffled "V" and a large bow accenting the waist in the back. They carried white fans decorated with blue and white flowers and satin ribbons.

The groom wore a black, full tail tuxedo with black bow tie and cummerbund, charcoal grey slacks with black pinstripes and a single white rose boutonniere.

Anthony Tate of Hermleigh served as best man with groomsmen Kent Roberts of Austin, Kevin Fritz of Snyder, brother-in-law of the groom, and Duane Tarbet of Stephenville, brother of the bride. The men wore light charcoal grey tuxedos with grey bow ties and cummerbunds and white rose boutonieres.

The bride's mother chose a navy blue floor-length dress and a white rose wrist corsage with blue accents. The groom's mother wore a long burgandy satin dress and a pink rose corsage.

The registry table holding the bride's book was decorated with white candles and a small arrangement of white and teal blue silk roses. Pam Skraastad from Susuin City, Calif. registered guests.

The reception was held in the fellowship hall at the church.

Draped with a white lace cloth, the heart-shaped bridal table held the bride's cake, punch bowl and silver coffee service. A silver candelabrum served as the centerpiece.

The four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with white and blue roses, featured five heart-shaped cakes as its bottom layer. White pillars held up the next two layers and a second set of pillars held the top layer.

The groom's table, draped with white lace, also held a silver candelabrum centerpiece. The three-layered, red velvet groom's cake was decorated with slivers of milk chocolate on white icing.

Parents of the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner in the Graham Street Church of Christ annex on March 14.

A 1983 graduate of Stephenville High School, the bride is currently attending Abilene Christian University where she is also employed.

Also attending Abilene Christian University, the groom is a 1982 graduate of Ira High School. He is employed by the Abilene Y.M.C.A.

The honeymoon trip will take the couple to Granbury, then on to the Lake O' The Pines in East Texas.

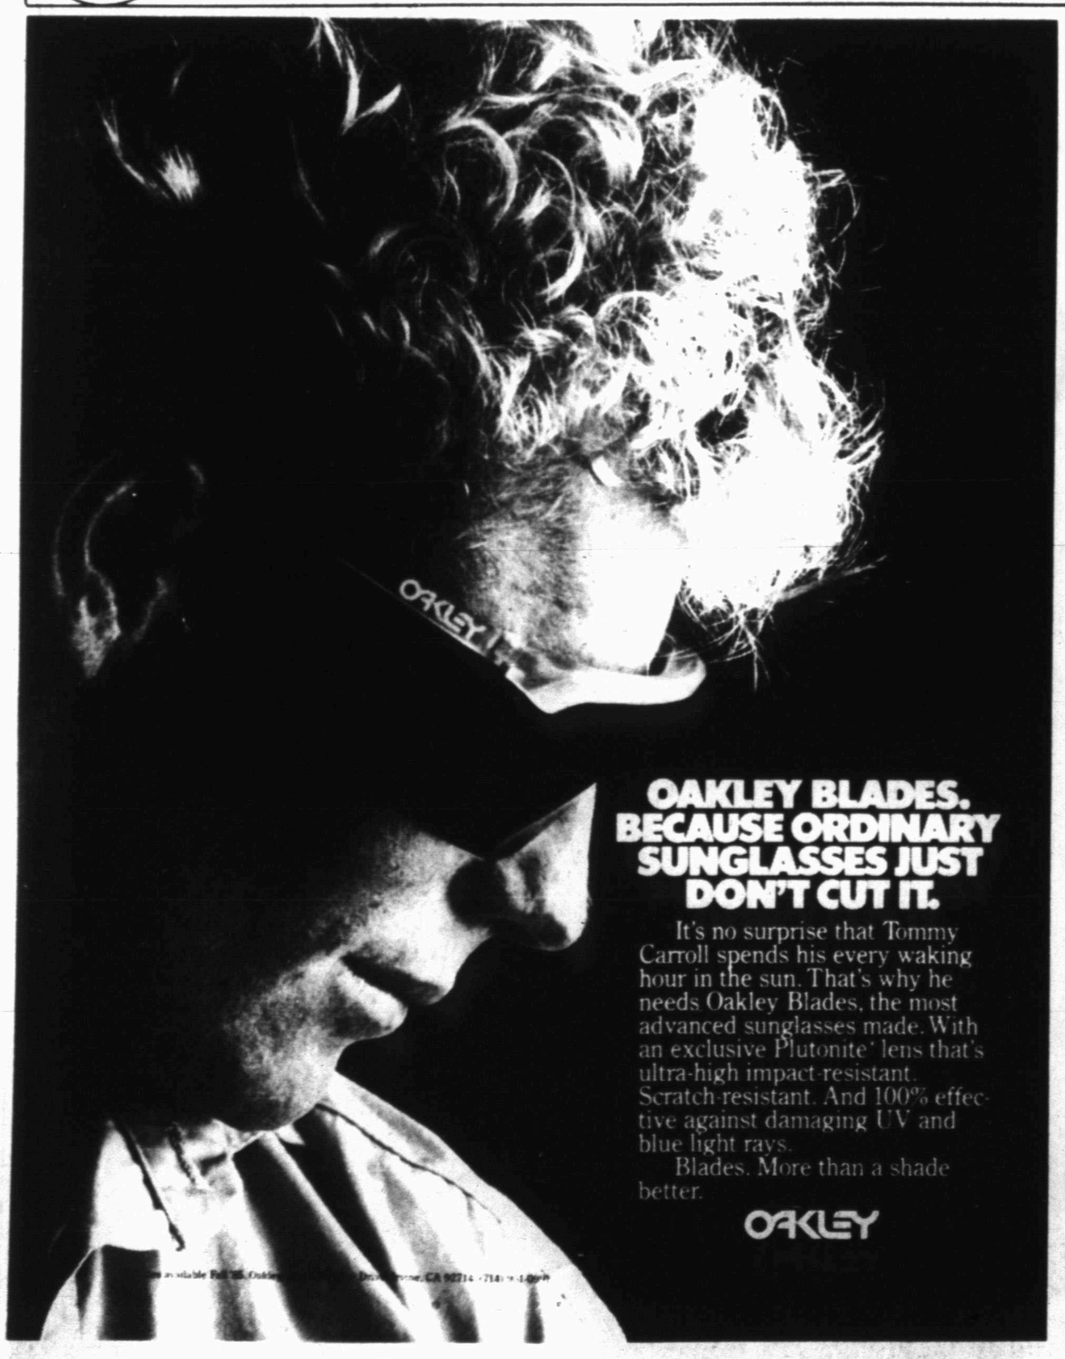

The couple will make their home in Abilene.

Knowing when to strip

By James Jacoby

Suppose you were an undercover agent sneaking into a nudist colony. Naturally you'd strip. When you're declarer with plenty of trumps and entries to both hands, try to remember to do the same thing. It can't hurt and may help.

Declarer trumped the opening lead and played ace and a diamond. West continued clubs. Declarer ruffed and played another diamond. When that suit failed to split, declarer eventually had to play the heart suit for himself. Because of the unfavorable location of the heart jack, he had to lose two heart tricks and his contract. Stripping the dummy of the club suit before playing diamonds would have solved declarer's problem.

Here is the correct sequence of plays. At trick two, declarer plays a low spade to dummy's eight. He then trumps a second club. A spade to dummy's ace is followed by a ruff of dummy's last club. Only then does South play ace and a diamond, on which West plays the queen. The defenders are now helpless. East cannot overtake with the king and play the jack because that will make dummy's fourth diamond a winner. If West is left on lead, he must either play away from the ace of hearts or must play another club, allowing declarer to ruff in dummy while discarding a loser from his hand.

Notice that this strategy is correct because you welcome the defenders' attacking the heart suit. If your hearts were weaker, like A-x-x opposite J-x-x, you would play differently, since your best hope would be that the diamond suit was splitting and that the defenders would not switch to hearts.

Groom from Snyder...

Couple united in Spring

SPRING — Pamela Renee Epperson of Baytown and Gregory French Hinton of Snyder were united in marriage at 4:30 p.m. on March 15 in the Oak Ridge Baptist Church. Rev. Mike Hinton of Little Rock, Ark., brother of the groom, and Rev. Mike Pullin of Fort Worth, brother of the bride, officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene La Plante of Baytown and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Hinton of Snyder. The bride's grandmother is Mrs. C.S. Bardin of Baytown and Mrs. D.M. Brightman is the groom's grandmother.

Guests enjoyed wedding music by Angela Propst on the piano, Danny Wilson on brass, soloist Randy Green and a string trio. Musical pieces included Baroque selections "Canon in D Major" by Johann Pachelbel and "Prince of Denmark March" by Jeremiah Clark.

The overture to Handel's "Royal Fireworks" and "Lord's Prayer" by Mallotte were played for the processional. The recessional was "Aggie War Hymn."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mark Morris, the bride wore an ivory satin gown designed with re-embroidered and pearl encrusted Alecon lace over English netting on the dropped waist bodice. Scattered motifs enhanced the skirt and chapel-length train. The bride's full-length veil of ivory illusion was secured by a beaded crown originally worn by her matron of honor 20 years ago. Her bouquet was made of bridal blush roses and white daisies.

In keeping with tradition, the bride carried a gold watch belonging to the groom's great grandmother as something old. Her dress served as something new and she borrowed a maroon and white Texas A&M garter from the groom's aunt.

Linda Gardner of Deer Park served as matron of honor with Mary Ann Hillin, April Green and MeLisa Phillips as bridesmaids.

The bridal attendants wore tea-length rose dresses with gray tie-back sashes. Each carried a candle encircled with a silk wreath arrangement of rose, burgandy and grey flowers.

The groom was attired in a gray classic, full tail tuxedo with gray tie and a rose carnation boutonniere.

J.D. Hinton stood as best man for his son. Groomsmen included Walt Williams of Oakhurst, Jim Zoda of Irving and Kyle Short of Mesquite. The men wore gray tuxedos with rose ties and cummerbunds.

The bride's mother chose a gray day-length Georgette crepe dress with pink accessories while the mother of the groom wore a gray day-length silk dress with gray accessories.

Jenny Robinson serve as flower girl with ring bearers Brad Hinton of Snyder and Nick La Plante of Baytown.

Ushers were Chuck Bell of Baytown, Perry Don Robertson of Irving, Van Massey of Fort Worth and Clint Baack of Houston.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony. Houseparty members included Dian Rosier, Janet Jones, Sharon Macon, Linda Walkins, Karen Bland and Patty Bland.

A background of greenery on lattice was the setting for the bride's table. Draped in white, the table held a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with fresh flowers in rose tones. Silver appointments were used.

Also draped in white, the groom's table held a chocolate cake with maroon and white icing decorated with Texas A&M motifs.

Out-of-town guests attended from Little Rock, Ark., Austin, Ft. Worth, San Angelo, Irving, Mesquite, Baytown, Houston and Snyder.

A graduate of Sam Houston State University, the bride is employed as an elementary music teacher in the Willis Independent School District.

The groom is a graduate of Texas A&M University and is employed by Panorama Country Club.

Following a wedding trip to Cozamel, Mexico, the couple will reside in Conroe.

Setting lends to computer's usefulness

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Purchasing a personal computer for use in the home is one important step towards organizing a home office, but it isn't the only one. Putting that computer in a proper setting is the second necessity for optimum usefulness, as Susan Stern recently learned.

Stern, who purchased a computer and set up her own business in her Westfield, N.J., home, is one among many who are now setting up such workplaces. Like her peers, she soon found that to be most effective, her computerized office at home required considerably better quarters than the proverbial dining-room table.

Based on her early experience, she is planning, but doesn't yet have, an efficient setup to deal with the problems of glare on the screen, excessive noise, physical discomfort while using her equipment and the annoyance of too much clutter.

"I always seem to be jumping up to open or close the blinds so I can see the computer screen," she says. Other distractions include the noise of the printer while she is trying to talk on the telephone, and back strain when she is at the computer keyboard too long. Lack of closed storage space is another irritation. "While this is an office, it's still my home and I want to be able to store my business behind closed doors," she says.

Stern is planning to turn a currently-unused third-floor space into her office. She will deal with noise by running carpeting part of the way up the wall. She expects to buy office furniture which is specifically geared to accommodate computers at the right height. Screen placement will be made to minimize glare and she will buy an adjustable office posture chair. To keep things tidy, she is looking for shelving that can be placed behind closed doors.

She is on the right track, according to some office experts. They say adequate lighting and furniture that accommodates computer components, software and supplies are essential for efficient home offices.

Another factor to consider is the color scheme, says Patrice White, interior fabrics stylist at the Wool Bureau. "In computer areas it is important to have low-glare and low-reflectant surfaces because of the potential eyestrain that can be created from many hours at the computer screen." (Reflectance is a measure of how much light the surface is giving off.)

Almost any color can be made more or less reflectant depending on its texture and luster (or degree of shine). However, as a rule the lighter the color the more reflectant it will be, she said. Among the best color choices for computer areas are mauves and grays, but you can choose almost any color by selecting it in a grayed hue. By choosing a heavily textured fabric, you will also minimize reflectance. If your room happens to be quite dark, select lighter shades for walls, floors and ceiling; if the opposite is true, opt for darker shades, she suggested.

In furniture it is a good idea to avoid high-gloss surfaces such as those found on highly polished lacquered tables. If your computer screen is near a wall, don't select a glaring print wallcovering for that wall.

Placement of components also plays a role in optimum performance. As a rule, a computer screen should be placed so its center is even or a bit below the horizontal sight line. The keyboard should be no higher than 27 to 28 inches off the floor, says Charles Davis of Steelcase Inc., a computer furniture producer.

Seating becomes critical as more hours are spent in front of the computer. "A chair should provide good postural support in both back and seat and the chair should be easily adjustable to fit the individuals who will be using it," he added.

Sooner or later, everyone who owns a computer will probably consider one or more of the various after-market products designed to keep the computer working well. These include antistatic mats, pads and sprays, and desk chairs, disk head cleaners, and surge protectors.

Spokesmen for both IBM and Compaq, producers of two of the most popular personal computers, say such devices are not necessary and that ESD (electrostatic discharge) buildup from computers is not a serious problem in the home. Nevertheless, those who make the products continue to sell them.

Davis said Steelcase had begun producing a line of anti-ESD chairs after his secretary began to find odd things happening to data she'd typed into her computer. Some detective work pointed to static electricity as the culprit.

A conductive chair that helped dissipate static electricity before it could get to the computer was constructed for her and the computer glitches stopped. A little more R&D and the company was soon offering a $50 to $60 antistatic option on its office chairs. This type of chair is also offered by other commercial office furniture manufacturers.

TAKE IT STANDING UP
Taking medicine while lying down - or lying down right after - can result in pills or capsules 'sticking' in the esophagus (the food tube to the stomach). This can delay the medication, cause painful inflammation, even ulceration in the esophagus. Pills should be swallowed with half a glassful of water while standing or sitting upright for at least ¼ minute.

It was estimated that a record 127 million viewers watched some part of Super Bowl XX in January, 1986. The Chicago Bears swamped the New End Patriots, 46-10.

CRP BIDDING TO REOPEN:

The bidding process for the Conservation Reserve Program that was initiated at the first of the year will be reopened for the period of May 5-23. At the same time, the initial bidding process for the 1987 program will start.

This will allow producers whose bids were not previously accepted to revise them or to submit new bids for this year and also to submit bids for 1987.

Producers interested in submitting bids for either of the program years should contact their county ASCS and SCS offices to initiate the sign-up procedure.

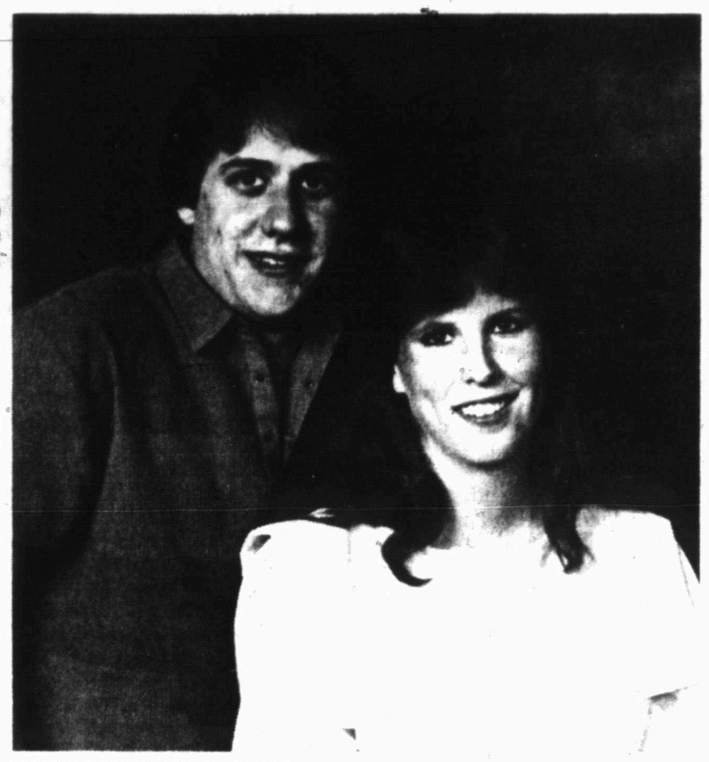

The 1986 sign-up held in March fell far short of the acreage expected to be accepted into the program. Nationally, about 838,000 acres of highly erodible cropland on 10,307 farms were entered into the CRP. Texas did not fare as well as the rest of the country, with only 29,052 acres on 151 farms accepted into the CRP.

The USDA had hoped to put some 5 million acres into the program in 1986, with about 825,000 of those in Texas. Over five years, the USDA has targeted some 45 million acres for the program, with 11.5 millions of those in Texas.

Landowners considering the upcoming sign-up period will need to remember that the CRP calls for a 10-year contract and establishment of permanent cover (grass or trees) to protect land from wind and water erosion. Costs involved in establishing this cover will be shared 50-50 with the government.

Bids on the cropland to be taken out of production should be based on what land would produce if it remained under cultivation, plus consideration should be given to the producers share of the cost in establishing permanent cover.

Annual rental payments on the land will be limited to $50,000 per farmer and will be in addition to annual commodity program payments

BE A SUPER SNACKER:

Meals on the run, mid-morning breaks, after-school snacks, TV munching and bedtime snacks; frequent small meals are replacing the traditional three, and consumer surveys confirm Texans are eating more food between meals. Snacking has become part of our lifestyle.

Snacks are an important source for daily nutrients and calorie intake. Although habit influences food selection more than health, eating heathy snacks can be a choice, not a chance.

Super snacks are delicious, a snap to fix and super for you—whether you're on a restricted diet, or trying to lose weight; whether you're at home or on the go; whether you're single or feeding a family. Treat yourself to super snacks.

Choosing super snacks doesn't require special foods. Just realize you are going to eat between meals, and have nutritious snacks available.

Snacks that are high in nutrients, but low in cost are the best values. Good snack foods include:

—meats and other protein foods—for body building and repair.

—peanut butter

—canned fish, salmon, sardines, shrimp, tuna

—nuts or sunflower seeds

—hard cooked eggs, plain or deviled

—jerky

—fruits and vegetables—packed with fiber and vitamins A and C apples, pears, grapes, oranges, tangerines, bananas, melons, carrots, tomatoes, dried fruit, canned fruit and vegetable juices

—breads and cereals—eat whole grain or enriched for B vitamins, iron and some protein. Combine your favorite cereals, pretzels and nuts; crackers and popcorn.

—milk and cheese—chock full of calcium, protein and riboflavin; yogurt, plain or fruit flavored; milk, whole or skim; cottage cheese.

NUTRITOUS SNACK CONTEST—a nutritious snack contest is scheduled for the Healthfest, Saturday, May 10; Scurry County Coliseum. Look for details later.

Lawn mower should last 10 years

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The power mower you push across your lawn should last an average of 10 years — longer if you take care of it.

A recent survey of lawn-care professionals produced the opinion that most mowers were not reaching their potential, either in longevity or quality of performance, simply because important maintenance procedures were ignored or forgotten by their owners. It's easy to forget about mower care until the time you pull the starter cord and nothing happens.

We asked a lawn mower expert, Joan Hershey, for some recommendations on mower care. As a product manager for Allied Aftermarket Division, she specializes in mower maintenance. She said that, before starting your power, you should look to be sure chaff and debris aren't blocking the flow of air. Lawn mower engines are air cooled, and overheating can result if foreign matter keeps air from flowing from the fan (located near the starter) to and through the cooling fins.

Make a habit of inspecting the condition of the blade. Cracks can cause a blade to break and fly off. Nicks in the blade, caused by striking rocks or other hard objects, can develop into cracks.

In order to check the blade, first disconnect the spark plug, then tip the mower on its side, being sure the fuel tank is on the higher side of the tipped mower, so it is less likely to spill. Small nicks in the blade may be "dressed out" with a file, but nicks that cause concern should be referred to a mower mechanic. A new blade may be in order.

Once the blade has been checked and you have taken care of whatever might be wrong, reconnect the spark plug. Before starting the power, says Hershey, make sure the oil level in the engine is adequate and clean. You can insure the cleanliness of the oil by changing it after every 20 hours of operation. Many mowers include decals on the engine that specify which type and viscosity of oil should be used. Most rotary-style mowers have their oil drains under the deck. Reel mowers have the drains on the base of the engine above the deck. When draining the oil — or whatever causes you to reach under the mower — always disconnect the spark plug.

Most lawn mowers use an oilfoam type of air filter. To serve it, clean the foam element in a solvent, thoroughly wring it out and moisten it with engine oil.

ARE YOU PUTTING IT OFF INSTEAD OF TAKING IT OFF?
Your perfect figure is there!
You should have it . . . AND YOU CAN!
THE BEST TIME TO START IS RIGHT NOW. Reducing and shaping one's figure can be done at any age. Really, it can! And Pat Walker guarantees you will have your perfect figure at the completion of your program.
Lingering doubts? Here are the most frequently asked questions and our honest answers.
MISS PAT WALKER, International reducing authority, answers your questions about the Pat Walker method:

Q. Can I really lose weight and shape my figure?
A. Yes, and we guarantee it.
Q. Do I have to diet stringently?
A. Your program at Pat Walker's calls for sensible eating habits. You'll eat your favorite foods at any meal, but within reason.
Q. Will my weight loss cause me to look old, drawn or haggard.
A. No, our method firms and tones your body tissues. You will look younger and feel younger.
Q. Do I have to participate in exhausting exercises, like sit-ups, jogging or aerobics?
A. Never. You simply recline on our unit . . . it gently provides all the exercise you need. You don't get hot or tired.
Q. Do I have to sign a contract or take out a membership?
A. Neither. We don't believe in them.
Q. Must I be on the program always?
A. Once your program is completed all you have to do to retain your new figure is to eat sensibly and we'll tell you how to do that.
Q. Do I have to wear special clothes, leotards, gym shoes or the like?
A. Street clothes are fine. You need't disrobe at all and your hair isn't even mussed.
Q. Am I to be involved with strange treatments such as hypnosis, shock shots or diet suppression drugs?
A. None of that. You will receive professional counseling, a sensible food program and exercise so passive it can lull you to sleep.
Q. Is this group participation?
A. Absolutely not. Your entire program is in strict confidence and our units are fully enclosed for your complete privacy.
Visit one of your convenient locations and have your very own questions answered personally by its management. There's no obligation and we'll be honest and always up front with you.

Reports say Justice Dept. opts for barring Waldheim

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department memo says former United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim should be prohibited from entering the United States because he "lacks credibility" about his World War II activities, according to news reports.

Neal Sher, chief of the Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations, wrote the memo urging that Waldheim be barred, the news accounts said.

Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten confirmed that a recommendation had been made by Sher, but Korten refused to say what it was.

"With all due respect to the position and achievements attained by Waldheim after the war, it is clear that he lacks credibility with respect to his whereabouts and activities during the war," Sher was quoted as saying in Friday's Washington Post.

The Post and The New York Times reported that Sher said Waldheim's name should be placed on the Immigration and Naturalization Service's "watch list" of deportable aliens.

Waldheim has denied he was involved in German atrocities during the war or was part of a counterintelligence unit.

But in its report, The Times said Sher said war records showed Waldheim was a "special missions staff officer in the Intelligence and Counterintelligence branch" of a German army group involved in reprisals against civilians in the Balkans.

The Times said it had obtained parts of the memo from a former Justice Department official.

The Knight-Ridder newspapers also said they had obtained portions of the memo.

CBS News on Thursday quoted unidentified Justice Department sources as saying the recommendation to bar Waldheim from this country was based on Sher's review of secret U.N. files on Waldheim. ABC News also said the files were being cited by the OSI as sufficient reason to exclude Waldheim as a suspected war criminal.

Waldheim's defenders concede he made mistakes in his selection of material for autobiographies and statements, but maintained he had nothing substantive to hide because, after getting wounded on the Russian front, he spent the rest of the war on low-level desk jobs and as a translator in the Balkans.

Earlier this month, the United Nations released to Israeli and Austrian officials a 1948 U.N. War Crimes Commission report which places Waldheim on its "A" list of suspected war criminals. That designation means the commission felt the evidence against him was strong enough that he should stand trial.

WTC pool hours are announced

May 4 will be the last Sunday that the Western Texas College swimming pool will be open for students and others with swimming privileges.

The pool will be open from 6:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 5-8 and from 6:30-4 p.m. on May 9. The pool will close for repairs from May 10-June 2. The pool will be open to the public from June 2-July 25. Swimmers will pay $1.50 per person per session or may purchase a summer pass for $50 per person.

Bomb threat forces evacuation

HOUSTON (AP) — A bomb threat forced a two-hour evacuation of a Southwest Airlines 737 jet and a concourse area at William P. Hobby Airport Thursday night, officials said today.

No explosives were found after a search of the plane, passenger luggage and Hobby Airport Concourse A, said Bill Ainsworth, airport spokesman.

Flight 122 was scheduled to leave Hobby Airport for Dallas about 10 p.m., but the bomb threat delayed the flight until 12:15 a.m. Saturday said Charlotte Goddard, airline spokeswoman in Dallas.

Southwest reservations employees in San Antonio received a telephone call about 10 p.m. Thursday from a man who said some people scheduled on the flight had a bomb, Ms. Goddard said.

The man called again several times detailing the threat, Ainsworth said.

States may someday lose control of National Guard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, in a move sure to arouse controversy, is considering legislation that would circumscribe the authority of state governors over their National Guard units.

The move is described as a direct response to the decision by a handful of governors to deny permission to their guardsmen to train in Central America.

The legislative proposals have not been finalized nor have they been reviewed as yet by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, according to James H. Webb, the assistant secretary of defense for reserve affairs.

But a decision on the matter could be made by Weinberger within the next week or so, Webb added. The goal, he said, would be to limit the authority of governors to block the deployment of guardsmen to foreign countries for active-duty training.

Webb maintained that the National Guard cannot remain a key part of the nation's defense structure if individual governors are allowed to prevent realistic combat training in countries outside the United States. Such action by the governors circumvents U.S. foreign policy, he said.

"One way or the other, we have to be able to rely on these units," Webb said in an interview. "If we can't, then we're going to have to determine if (their) mission should be put into the reserves."

But the general who commands the National Guard Bureau of the Army and Air Force contended the civilian Pentagon leadership is overreacting.

"The problem has not developed to the point of demanding a change to the entire system," said Lt. Gen. Emmett H. Walker, the chief of the National Guard Bureau.

Walker declined to predict how Congress would respond to any legislative proposal submitted by the Pentagon.

Webb acknowledged that the National Guard and the states would likely fight the proposal.

The Army National Guard and Air National Guard are two separate components of a military system that includes the active-duty Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines as well as the Army Reserve, Air Force Reserve, Navy Reserve and Marine Reserve.

Unlike the reserves and active-duty units, however, the Guard is under state control during peacetime under a section of the Constitution that guarantees the right of states to maintain their own "militia."

There currently are 440,000 men and women in the Army National Guard and another 110,000 in the Air National Guard.

Problem might be in the air

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For the past four or five years, starting in December and continuing until about March, I felt slightly nauseated, with headaches, weakness and shortness of breath. Do you think I should have my furnace checked out?

DEAR READER — I don't know — but it certainly couldn't hurt. While you are at it, also check the muffler on your car. Fumes from burning oil and gasoline can cause the symptoms you describe.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband died, without any warning, of myocardial infarction. What is this?

DEAR READER — When a blood clot lodges in a coronary artery, a portion of the heart muscle is deprived of oxygen and dies. This heart attack is called a myocardial (heart muscle) infarction (death of tissue). If the affected muscle encompasses part of the conduction system (electrical wiring) of the heart, the periodic electrical discharges that power the heart muscle may be blocked, stopped or otherwise disrupted. Sudden death may ensue. Death without warning from a myocardial infarction is almost always caused by a sudden drop in heart-muscle oxygen.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have been in the hospital several times over the last four or five years, and every time I get a urinary tract infection within 24 hours. My doctor and I experimented and found that the problem was caused by the soaps used in the hospital, all of which kill body odor. Now I take my own soap and have no more problems. Shouldn't hospitals use nonallergenic soap?

DEAR READER — Because some people appear to react to deodorant soaps, many hospitals have changed over and are using the hypoallergenic varieties. Thank you for sharing your experience; perhaps your comments will help other readers.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I agree with the views you expressed in a column about old-age homes. I am 87 and had open-heart surgery in 1984. I had a small apartment and was able to take care of myself three weeks after coming home. But my children thought I couldn't take care of myself, so they put me in a nursing home. I've been here since then and help to take care of patients in wheelchairs. I still take part in other activities. Why couldn't I have two rooms of my own? Young people today don't want the responsibility of old people.

I worked in nursing homes many years ago. I know the sorrow and heartache that results from being taken out of familiar surroundings. Why can't some of these poor souls be kept at home with a little radio, a little tender loving care and someone to enjoy a cup of tea and a cookie with? Lots of old people go down to the mortuary and sit. I see the tears and feel the pain of living in a nursing home. These people cannot share their lives with friends and families. I am speaking from actual experience. I took care of my aged mother when she needed me; I went home at 4:30 for supper and returned each morning. I found the time. God has been good. I don't understand why old people necessarily have to be institutionalized.

DEAR READER — I have reprinted your letter because I think it is an eloquent statement. I cannot answer your questions, but I am sure the issues you raised will give readers much food for thought.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report on Irritable Bowel Syndrome explains the causes and management of this common problem. For your copy of the report, send $1 plus your name and address to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on IRRITABLE BOWEL SYNDROME.

Cat ills apply to humans, too

Medical columnists receive mail. This mail consists of readers' queries and comments, promotional material, advertising, announcements, flyers and books. I have just received a new book titled "The Complete Medical Guide to Cats" by Drs. Robert Perper and Edward Kepner (New American Library). I am not at all sure why I was chosen for this honor by the publisher, because I neither treat cats nor own them. Nonetheless, it seems to be a good book — if you like cats — and could be useful to cat fanciers.

Before giving the medical guide to a more deserving recipient, like my sister-in-law who loves cats, I thumbed through it. I was immediately struck by the realization that cats suffer from many maladies common to humans, including ingrown toenails, asthma, diabetes, slipped discs, glaucoma, lupus and constipation. I noted with satisfaction that the treatments for these feline afflictions correspond pretty closely to those used for humans. So far, so good.

However, veterinarians seem to be much more imaginative than people-healers. I think we doctors could take a cue from vets and upgrade our nomenclature to be more descriptive. For example, cats suffer from two skin diseases called "walking dandruff" and "licker's skin." With a flash of intellectual insight, I perceived that some of my patients might suffer from these conditions.

There is enormous pressure on doctors today to arrive at proper diagnoses. In fact, this exercise is still considered — in backward parts of the country — to be a valuable part of medical care. In preference to diagnostics, many modern doctors are happier fiddling around with machines. But physicians of a more languid temperament are sometimes required to reach a diagnosis without an electronic jack-in-the-box. That is tough going, as some doctors (and many patients) have discovered.

Therefore, for the benefit of my colleagues and the amusement of the public, I suggest that we stealthily introduce some catlike diagnoses into the often frustrating world of human medicine.

"Stud tail" is a feline term I can hardly wait to apply to some of my more nocturnal, younger male patients. It goes along with "drooling," an open six-pack, a pick-up truck with a rifle rack behind the seat and dungarees with worn knees. Stud tail can often progress to "blotch," hair balls and "hot spots" in macho males who develop the complete disease.

"Temperature-dependent hair-color changes" affect not only cats; I've just concluded that it is a common condition in people, too. I once knew a surgeon who tried repeatedly to dye the gray streaks in his hair, but he always seemed to come out with blue or green topping. Women with platinum hair that looks like cotton candy, teenagers with the punk look of orange or magenta bands, and aging portly men with uniformly walnut hair are not victims of the dye-bottle; they obviously suffer from temperature-dependent hair-color changes. I've indicated that fact, where appropriate, in their medical records. I don't know whether this condition produces "head mange," but I'm working on the problem.

"Clawing" and "distemper" are diagnoses I can readily affix to some of the hospital evening staff. When I try to admit a patient after hours, I am sometimes faced with nurses and orderlies who exhibit this behavior. Now that I can diagnose it, the affliction seems less threatening.

"Displaced third eyelid" is called "haws" in cats. I know several physicians who have this ailment. It usually develops precisely when a patient questions the doctor about fees. Funny things happen to the doctors' eyes,, and I think displaced third eyelid is a fairly accurate description of what the physician looks like under these circumstances.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered.

Investigation finds 'extensive' improprieties

AUSTIN (AP) — A lengthy investigation of the Lower Colorado River Authority has found conflict of interest, sexual improprieties, favoritism in choosing a major contractor, mismanagement and theft of equipment by river authority employees.

The misconduct included hunting and fishing trips paid for by LCRA contractors, use of house trailers for parties, strip poker games and sexual activities, and use of LCRA equipment and workers for personal business by some agency employees, according to a 155-page report.

Although only a few LCRA employees were involved, agency officials said they had taken immediate steps to prevent a repeat of such instances to ensure that money from LCRA electric and water customers is not wasted.

The changes should improve the tarnished public image of the agency to the half-million Central Texans receiving electricity from LCRA, officials said after the report was released Thursday.

"There will be a new team of leaders on my staff, including existing employees," said S. David Freeman, LCRA general manager. "They will be people who know right from wrong in a public agency. And everyone at LCRA will follow that leadership or leave."

Some of the activities uncovered during the five-month investigation violated LCRA policies and possibly state law, said Daniel Hedges, a former U.S. attorney hired by the LCRA to conduct the probe, which cost $385,000.

The report, which focused on LCRA activities since 1981, has been sent to the Travis County district attorney's office for possible action, Hedges told the LCRA board of directors.

The report does not name any employees involved in the wrongdoing. It puts the blame on mid- and high-level officials. Two unidentified employees were allowed to resign and six others received disciplinary action, including fines and demotions, Freeman said.

"It is both fair and accurate to say that until the past few months, the LCRA, as an institution, has been completely oblivious of and insensitive toward conflicts of interest," the report said.

"The LCRA has not taken conflicts of interest seriously. In the final days of the investigation, senior LCRA officials were still joking that if everyone who accepted hunting and fishing trips from vendors was fired, there would be no one left."

Freeman, who took over in January, announced a series of measures to correct the problems.

The measures included requiring financial disclosure statements from key agency officials, establishment of a strict purchasing policy for equipment and land, and firing Morrison & Knudsen Co. Inc., the contractor for the LCRA's lignite mine in Bastrop County.

"We have moved decisively and I believe fairly to usher in a new beginning at LCRA," Freeman said. "We have taken the necessary actions to make sure the people that led LCRA astray are no longer here. We have held the managers responsible — not the people in the ranks who may have been misled. And certainly the vast majority of LCRA employees who have done no wrong now have their reputations restored."

Protein may be helpful

NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers have identified a protein apparently found only in the brains of Alzheimer's disease victims, a discovery that may lead to the first chemical diagnostic test for the disease which afflicts an estimated 2 million Americans.

Dr. Peter Davies, who led a research team at New York's Albert Einstein College of Medicine that reported its findings in the May 2 issue of Science magazine, said today he hopes to perfect such a test within a year.

"We've discovered a protein in the brains of Alzheimer's patients which appears to be unique to Alzheimer's disease. It doesn't occur in the normal brain. It doesn't occur in the brains of patients with other neurological diseases either," Davies said today on the "CBS Morning News."

Davies said he was not sure if the protein was a cause or a result of the disease. "We're going to try very hard to find out in the next six or seven months," he said.

"It is a very, very important finding," said Dr. Robert Katzman of the University of California at San Diego, an authority on Alzheimer's, interviewed by The New York Times. Scientists have long sought to find a way to distinguish brain changes due to Alzheimer's from changes that occur in normal aging.

Alzheimer's disease victims gradually lose their memory and intellectual abilities and become unable to care for themselves.

Scientists have not yet developed a reliable diagnostic test for Alzheimer's. But Davies expressed optimism that the protein his team found will appear in spinal fluid, making such a test relatively simple.

"It looks like the accuracy would be very high. And the speed would be much improved too. Hopefully we can do this test in a matter of two days," he said.

Although no cure is known for the disease, Davies said a reliable test would aid doctors by identifying which patients might be subjects for new medicines, and it would also prevent people with other, treatable ailments from being misdiagnosed.

Muhammad Ali once described the 15th round of a professional fight as "as bad as it can get."

The same might be said of any professional sports contest as it drags to that final whistle, bell or buzzer. Maybe, but with boxing we really believe it.

We were reminded of Ali's quote again during last Saturday's Heavyweight fight between Larry Holmes and Michael Spinks.

The comment raised another nagging question as we tried to figure out where boxing fits in with the rest of sports.

Specifically, why fans will sell their wife, children and birthright for a sport like football, while boxing drags behind, a poor stepchild in the respect category.

The first obvious answer is boxing's taint due to its alleged relationship to unsavory types like gangsters. In the old days when the rest of sports was on the surface a lily white comparison, there may have been some argument for this.

But in these days of the sports expose, calling boxers dirty and the rest of the lockeroom crowd clean is the classic example of the pot slandering the kettle.

The second most heard answer is boxing is too violent. No argument here, especially as we watched Holmes and Spinks pound the peewaddle out of each other.

But ask youself, more violent than what? It certainly isn't football. That sport might feature the finesse of a pass reception or a slashing run, but its bottom line is big hairy guys stomping the squat out of other big hairy guys.

Then the contradictions of football and boxing began to click. Why do fans love to see a gang of guys use deception and guile to "trap," terminate or otherwise zap an unsuspecting opponent. But it makes us uneasy to see two men stand face to face to gain the same end.

It occurred to us that boxing may be a little too closeup for most folks — it runs a little too hot.

Football is green grass where boxing is canvas, blood, spit and sweat.

Most boxers express themselves before the fight at a "Me, I'm gonna whup..." level. But watching a great matchup like last Saturday speaks to us.

Going into that 15th round, you never see emotions like anger. Pounding the fool out of someone for close to 60 minutes must be a great tension reliever.

Instead, fighters approaching that stage seem to have removed themselves completely from the ring, their corner and the crowd.

In that 15th round, they go out pounding as usual. But when the final bell rings, their arms drop simultaneously. Often they embrace — a mutual congratulations that both have managed to survive one more fight with sufficient brain cells intact to find their own spit bucket.

To us, boxing is the ultimate sport. It may not be pretty and the business deals that precede and follow it may be suspect.

But no other sport is like it — an absolute one-on-one which takes its athletes to an absolute limit.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

While I was majoring in English in college and reading, reading, reading all the live-long day and all the live-long night, I came across a very short story by Sherwood Anderson in a collection of his works called "Winesburg, Ohio" (some of you probably had to read it in high school). Originally published in 1919, the story was "Tandy."

The story line was simple enough. A drifter, battling alcoholism, passing through town, befriended a man and his little girl. Before he left, he told her, "They think it is easy to be a woman, to be loved, but I know better...I know about her struggles and her defeats. It is because of her defeats that she is to be the lovely one. Out of her defeats has been born a new quality in woman. I have a name for it. I call it Tandy. I made up the name when I was a true dreamer and before my body became vile. It is the quality of being strong to be loved. It is something men need from women and they do not get it."

Later, the man looked the little girl in the eyes and said, "Be Tandy, little one. Dare to be strong and courageous. That is the road. Venture anything. Be brave enough to dare to be love. Be something more than man or woman. Be Tandy."

So profoundly affected was I by that story that I intended to have a daughter some day and name her Tandy. When she was old enough, I'd tell her all about her namesake.

As the years passed, however, I decided that Tandy sounded too much like Candy and was too cutesy for my taste. I named my daughter Jessica.

Still, the story and the name haunted me, so finally, I figured that someday in one of my books I'd have a main character by that name and open the book with Sherwood Anderson's quote. I was satisfied with that solution.

Of course, that was before anybody ever heard of home computers. Recently we bought a TRS-80 Model IV with word processing software and a letter-quality printer. The idea was to enable me to write more articles and short stories and columns and books, so that I could make more money so that we could pay for the computer.

As soon as we got it all set up and put on the dust cover, there was that name, Tandy.

Tandy and I did not get along at all in the beginning. She's the stoic type, likes to keep her secrets to herself. She wanted to get to know me better before she let me in on any of them. I'm the classic Type A, always in a hurry to get on with things. I couldn't be bothered with the cassette tapes and instruction books.

The first thing I tried to do was write a simple business letter. Took me two hours to figure out how to set the margins.

I yelled at her, I cussed her. I confess I even struck her once. I refused to accept the fact that a machine was smarter than I was.

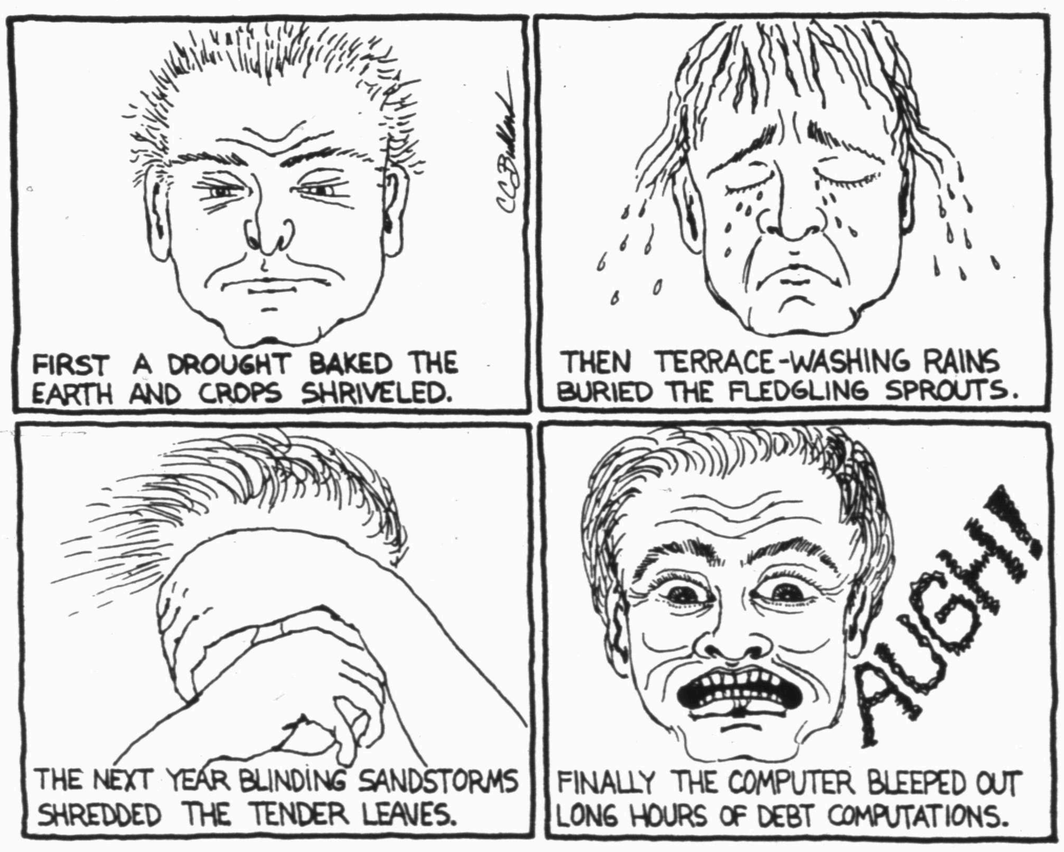

After a couple of weeks of this I was worn down enough to get out the danged tapes and books.

We get along a lot better now. In fact, with Tandy's help, I do manage to work about twice as fast as I did before. I've learned to appreciate her, but you won't catch me telling her. Wouldn't want her to get a swelled screen, or anything.

I guess you could say a computer is more than man or woman.

I just wish they hadn't named her Tandy.

Photographer was kidnapped

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A newspaper editor is filing complaints with officials on both sides of the border after a photographer said he was beaten by an alleged drug trafficker and his cronies in Juarez, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso.

Al Gutierrez, 34, who freelances for the El Paso Herald-Post, said Thursday he was held for 12 hours in Juarez by a man wanted on a 4-year-old federal warrant for conspiracy to smuggle marijuana into the United States through El Paso.

The man also threatened to kill Herald-Post reporter Terrence Poppa, who wrote a series of articles April 16 about drug operations along the border, Guteirrez said.

Gutierrez suffered cuts and bruises and wore a neck brace Thursday.

Herald-Post editor Jay Ambrose said he was in the process of filing complaints with the U.S. Department of State, FBI, the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City, the mayor of Juarez and the governor of the state of Chihuahua.

"Our concern is these people threatened the life of our reporter and they have a way of carrying out their threats," said Ambrose. "They play rough. We're outraged that any newsman ... should be beaten. And he is a guy just going to get a photograph.

"He's scared to death, as I would be."

The U.S. Consulate in Juarez had not been contacted about the incident as of Thursday afternoon, said deputy consul Mike Hogan. Consul Mike Hancock was not immediately available, Hogan said.

"In point of actual fact, there's very little we can do, except talk to the (Juarez) prosecutor and police," said Hogan.

Gutierrez said he went across the river to Juarez Wednesday to shoot a picture of a hotel named in the newspaper series for the Seattle Times, which had obtained the Herald-Post's series through the Scripps-Howard news service.

He decided to photograph the inside of the hotel and sought permission from the manager. Gutierrez identified himself and was asked into the office about 1 p.m MST, Gutierrez said.

Once inside the office, where there were about five other men sitting around a table, the principal allegedly pointed a gun at Gutierrez's head, ordered him to lie on the floor and empty his pockets.

Gutierrez was then taken to some rooms behind the office, where he was beaten and threatened with rape, he said.

"They said, 'We know you're with the DEA. We'll give you $5,000 if you tell us the truth," Gutierrez said.

At about 1 a.m. Thursday, the men threw him in a car, drove him to the outskirts of Juarez and dumped him in a ditch, Gutierrez said. He walked for about two miles until he reached a highway.

Former controller faces new charges

BEDFORD, Texas (AP) — Ron May, a fired air traffic controller who went to prison for striking, said he couldn't resist the chance to participate in a demonstration in Austin, Minn.

"When I heard about the scabs crossing the picket line up there, I knew I had to go," said May, one of 20 Dallas-area union supporters who two weeks ago manned picket lines alongside meatpackers who have been on strike against the Geo. A. Hormel & Co. plant for eight months.

May and 16 others were arrested during the violent protest. But, he said, he isn't bothered by the possibility of going back to jail.

"I would do it again this weekend, if they asked me to," said May, the former local president of the defunct Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

Police said the pickets refused orders to disperse and threw alkaline solution, a smoke bomb and rocks during a pre-dawn demonstration. But May said they locked arms peacefully to resist police attempts to break up the demonstration.

"Anybody in the front of the circle was arrested, and I was in the front," he said.

It's not the first time May, 38, has given his support to other strikers. In 1983, he picketed in Arizona with striking copper miners.

"If I have the time and the money, I go," May said. "There comes a time when you have to go beyond offering verbal, moral or economic support and physically do something."

May said the meatpackers strike represents the problems facing unions today, which he said are being weakened by giving concessions to management and by "union-busting" tactics.

"It's just like at the Alamo," he said. "You have to draw a line in the dirt and say that is it."

May was one of 13,000 air traffic controllers who went on strike in May 1981 over working conditions. He and two other Dallas-area leaders of the controllers union were convicted of illegally striking against the federal government and were sentenced to 90 days in prison.

Now unemployed after jobs as a taxi driver and burglar alarm installer, May faces charges in Minnesota of felony and misdemeanor rioting, unlawful assembly and obstruction of legal process. He said he expects the worst.

"The law is in favor of employers," he said.

Wasp may be answer to the beetle problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department researchers say they may have found a way to make hash of the dreaded Colorado potato beetle.

Robert F.W. Schroder, an entomologist with the department's Agricultural Research Service, said in a report issued Thursday that the answer may lie with a tiny South American wasp, smaller than a pinhead.

Schroder said the potato beetle is becoming resistant to most chemical insecticides. It causes an estimated $150 million loss each year to crops of potatoes, tomatoes and eggplants.

"Scientists from overseas are contacting us for quantities of the wasp to protect potato and eggplant fields," he said. "The wasp has potential to control the Colorado potato beetle worldwide."

The parasitic wasp has drawn attention from Canada, Italy, the Soviet Union and the Netherlands, which are raising colonies to see if the insects can be used in the biological control of pests.

Schroder got the wasp from an agency colleague, Benjamin Puttler, who discovered the insect in 1980 in South America with the help of Colombian entomologists. The wasp was named and described by Eric. E. Grissell of the agency's Systematic Entomology Laboratory in Beltsville, Md.

April 27, 1986

Financial conditions will be favorable in the year ahead. You will continue to make money from situations that are producing for you now, as well as from an exciting new enterprise.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If others are not in complete accord with your ideas or suggestions today, don't take it as a personal affront. Let all think for themselves. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best today not to use something belonging to another unless you have this person's permission. After you have consent, don't abuse what you borrow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you will not appreciate being dictated to by another. So that your day won't be spoiled, avoid the company of aggressive types.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Should you find yourself in need of assistance today, don't expect others to instantly drop what they are doing and rush to help you. Be self-sufficient.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could create a problem for yourself today if you poke your nose into something that is none of your business. Don't let your curiosity trigger trouble.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Where major issues are concerned, you and your mate will see eye-to-eye today. But angry words could ensue over something trivial.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're an exceptionally keen observer today and you'll easily spot faults in others. But to avoid trouble, keep your observations to yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Self-inflicted pressures and an urgency to get something done quickly could cause you to take chances today that you normally wouldn't.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Members of your family might do things today that will displease you. Keep a rein on your temper and don't respond in an angry manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your attention span may not be up to par today, so when performing any hazardous tasks, take extra pains to concentrate fully on what you're doing.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Financial involvements with friends today should be clearly spelled out in advance or someone may end up getting the short end.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Companions will resent it today if you place your needs and interests above those of everyone else. Try not to be too self-serving.

April 28, 1986

Partnership arrangements might not have worked out too well for you in the past, but the opposite will be true in the year ahead. Joint ventures will turn out to be the luckiest by far.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Bolder measures than usual are required today to accomplish your ambitious aims. You'll emerge victorious if you aren't afraid to take a chance. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A condition that has had negative overtones will be altered in your favor today. Someone other than yourself will be the moving force.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something that you cannot do on your own can be achieved today with the assistance of a competent partner. It's a person with whom you've worked with on two past occasions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Special rewards are in the offing at this time for work well done. Instead of merely doing what the boss requests of you, do a bit more and do it well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are fortunate enough to get an invitation today to go someplace where you can meet new people, by all means go. Happy surprises are in store.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's important in this period that the whole family pulls together where your financial interests are concerned. Collectively, you can generate an upswing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you will need active outlets for your mental and physical energies. Get out and move around, but don't tie yourself down to one place for too long.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions for adding to your earnings are extremely favorable for you today. If you catch the scent of something that could mean money for you, ferret it out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have sound managerial qualities today. Be resolute in your decisions, and don't back off if you believe them to be right.

Young Thieves Stretch Test Drive Into 3-Week Joy Ride

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are retired. We had a second car that we no longer needed, so we decided to sell it.

I parked the car on our front lawn with a "For Sale" sign on the windshield. During the noon hour, a young man rang our doorbell and said he was looking for a second car for his wife. (She was waiting in their car, in our driveway.) I went out, unlocked the door and started the engine. He asked the price and seemed interested. Then he asked if he could drive it around the block. I said he could, so he motioned for his wife to come. He asked her if she would like to drive. She got under the wheel, and he got in on the passenger side. She backed the car into the street, and they drove away.

Thirty minutes later, they had not returned, so I called the police. A policeman came out and checked the car this couple had left behind. It had been stolen in Oklahoma City—some 35 miles away.

This happened three weeks ago and our car is still missing. How could this have been avoided?

C.A. HENLEY,
TECUMSEH, OKLA.

DEAR MR. HENLEY: When the prospective buyer asked for permission to drive your car around the block, you should have asked for his driver's license or some other identification to hold until he returned.

However, if you were dealing with professional car thieves—and you probably were—you would have been left holding some phony credentials, as well as the bag.

DEAR ABBY: A technique for helping persons one meets to remember a name:

In 1937 when I was a salesman for an Austin, Texas, new-car dealer, a fellow salesman, Lee Brasfield, took my arm, led me up to a tall, handsome man and said, "Lu, I'd like you to meet a friend of mine, Lyndon Johnson. He's just been elected to Congress from this district. This is Lu Lyman."

Every time I met Congressman Johnson in the next 23 months, I made a point of saying to him, "I'm Lu Lyman." This spared his racking his brain to remember who I was. Being a good politician, the future president always assured me that he remembered my name.

This has been standard procedure in my military, business and social career.

LUCIUS B. LYMAN JR.,
KENT, OHIO

DEAR LUCIUS: Your "technique" may not help those you encounter to remember your name, but it will put them at ease immediately to know they don't have to.

To spare another the slightest possible discomfort is indeed the hallmark of a gentleman or a lady.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter from "Ellie," who bought herself a pretty nightie, had it gift-wrapped and told her bridge club that her husband gave it to her for Valentine's Day.

I also have a story to share. My husband and I have been married for nine years. We're farmers. Our anniversary is during planting season, and my birthday is during harvesting, so he never remembers either one. This past year, I knew he'd forget Valentine's Day, so I worked out a way to ensure myself against hurt feelings. I made arrangements with the florist in our area. If my husband placed an order for me, then she would fill his order. If he didn't order flowers, she should send those I ordered with a card reading as follows: "To my loving wife from her thoughtful husband. Love, Joey."

I was happy and cheerful all day even though I knew my husband would probably forget to send me flowers for Valentine's Day. I was right.

When Joey came home that day, I kissed him at the door and thanked him for the beautiful flowers. The expression on his face when he read the card was the best Valentine gift I ever had!

FARMING AND HAPPY
IN N.C.

DEAR HAPPY: That's a bloomin' good idea. Why not do the same for your anniversary and birthday? (Ladies, make a note.)

Reagan orders missile study

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan has ordered a study to decide whether the United States should develop a mobile multiple-warhead missile about the size of the 78,000-pound Minuteman, according to administration officials quoted today by The New York Times.

The new weapon could be developed to complement others in the land-based missile arsenal, or it could replace a 37,000-pound Midgetman version of the missile, the newspaper said.

"We're keeping our options open — it is not an either-or type of question," an unidentified administration official told the newspaper.

The request for the study is part of a classified directive signed by Reagan that also makes a provisional call for dismantling two Poseidon submarines to adhere to the limits of the unratified second treaty on limiting strategic arms, according to the Times.

According to the directive, the Poseidon submarines, nearing the end of their useful life, would be taken apart following procedures under SALT II. Officials told the Times they expected Reagan to issue a formal order for the dismantling soon after hearing the views of allies.

Defense Department officials have urged Reagan to stop abiding by the treaty. Some government experts told the newspaper that requesting the missile study may be intended to make the president's decision on the treaty more acceptable to the Defense Department. They were skeptical that it would actually spur the development of a new missile.

But others said the study could become part of the debate over the future of the land-based missile force, according to the Times.

In addition to requesting the study, Reagan's directive urged that the Air Force's Midgetman program be given higher priority. He also called for the Air Force to speed up its program to develop advanced cruise missiles to be carried by bombers, the newspaper said. These actions are intended as a response to alleged Soviet violations of arms control agreements, unidentified administration officials told the Times.

Reagan also renewed the administration's case for 50 more MX missiles in the directive. The administration initially sought twice that number, but Congress has indicated that it will not support the deployment of more than 50.

The United States now has 450 Minuteman missiles that carry one warhead and 550 Minuteman missiles that carry three warheads.

The first recorded horse race in the United States was held in 1668 at Hempstead, N.Y.

A 1911 fire in the 10-story Triangle Shirtwaist Co. building in New York City claimed 147 lives.

New policy: only four officers may eat at same place

HOUSTON (AP) — According to a new policy in the Houston Police Department, only four uniformed officers can eat at a restaurant at one time.

But some night duty officers are finding the rule hard to swallow.

Police Chief Lee P. Brown, in reponse to citizens' complaints, created the policy to help improve the public perception of the department and its officers, said police spokesman Sgt. J.C. Mosier.

The policy, effective since early April, sets a limit of four officers in a restaurant at one time, regardless of whether they are on duty. Likewise, no more than two marked police vehicles can be parked at a restaurant at one time while the officers are eating.

"It doesn't look good for us to have a large number of officers eating at one time. We get a lot of complaints on this," Mosier said.

"Does it look good to have seven or eight officers eating in a restaurant? It is our belief that the public thinks it is bad," Mosier said.

When more than four officers bump into each other during mealtime, Brown advises the offending parties to leave immediately.

While some officers said they understand the reasons behind the new policy, others apparently have problems complying with it.

"It's completely ignored," an unidentified night shift officer told the Houston Chronicle. "Everybody realizes it's totally impractical. I don't think anyone wants to go out of their way to violate the policy, but they force you to do that."

The policy creates problems for night shift officers who generally eat dinner at 4 a.m., some officers said.

"Honestly, we ignore it," another night shift officer said. "We've only got a few decent places to go. You can only space your dinner out so far. So everyone sees a lot of officers at two or three places."

Dan Rahmell, manager of a cafeteria, has no complaints. He said police officers are good customers.

"Obviously, if you have them in your dining room, you're less likely to be hijacked. I feel a little more comfortable as it gets late," he said.

Billy Graham holding Washington crusade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Graham says he won't make a big deal out of any government big shots who might show up at his first Washington crusade in a quarter-century.

"We know of some who are probably going to come, and we welcome them," the nation's best-known evangelist said Thursday at a news conference.

"I hope they're going to sit there not as political leaders but as individuals," he said. "Political leaders sometimes need the Lord more than anybody else."

"I'm hoping that some will find the Lord, but I certainly would not ... call their names or anything like that to embarrass them."

Graham, 67, has met every president since Harry Truman and has been friends with most in those four decades. But his eight-day visit to the nation's capital, beginning Sunday, will mark only the third Washington trip for the major crusades that have made him famous around the world.

He preached here for five weeks in 1952, declaring at one point that "Washington, with its sins, its drunkenness, its crime, will prove the test of what is going to happen to America."

His tone at the news conference suggested things hadn't deteriorated as badly as the earlier statement implied they might.

Still, he said, "Despite the tremendous unique influences and contributions of Washington, in many ways it mirrors — sometimes in stark detail — many of the problems of our entire nation."

Those problems include poverty and homelessness, widespread drug abuse, corruption, the breakup of families and an epidemic of loneliness, he said.

Graham conducted a second successful crusade in Washington in 1960, drawing about 140,000 people during a week at Griffith Stadium, home of the old Washington Senators baseball team.

But he was made to feel unwelcome when efforts to organize another crusade fell through in 1973.

"The time just wasn't right," he said.

During February, the Daughters of the American Revolution recall the famous Revolutionary cavalryman who was known as "Light Horse Harry." Henry Lee, 1756-1818, served with distinction under Washington. He was a member of the Virginia House of Delegates and was later elected Governor of Virginia. On the death of General Washington, Lee described him in the phrase that has become famous: "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his Countrymen".

CLOTHES MOTH

How to get rid of carpet beetles

(Editor's Note: This is part two of a two part series on controlling carpet beetles and clothes moth.)

By DEANNA MYERS
County Entomologist

When an existing infestation of carpet beetles or clothes moths are found the first step is to do a thorough inspection of the premises to determine where the beetles or larvae are located.

Then inspect all susceptible garments (or other items) for presence of larvae or damage. Susceptible items should be cleaned and then properly stored (e.g. with napthalene or PDB flakes or crystals).

Alternatively, items which are infested or are suspect might be heated to 150 degrees F for 30 minutes or frozen to O degrees for seven days if this is practical and will not damage the involved.

During the time when closets or other storage places are being emptied and susceptible items inspected or cleaned, these areas should be thoroughly vacuumed and cleaned (washed out if necessary). Carpet beetle adults, eggs, larvae or pupae may be present in these storage areas. They will usually be hidden in cracks and crevices around the shelves, baseboards or door casings.

Vacuuming will remove wool lint, an important food source for carpet beetle larvae. Residual sprays containing diazinon, chlorpyrifos, snergized pyrethrins, dichlorvos, resmethrin or other synthetic pyrethroids, or mixtures of any of these materials should be directed into these harborage areas.

Boric acid or diazinon dusts can also be used where they may be more appropriate (e. g. around electrical outlets or in wall voids).

Be especially thorough in the closets, attics, or other areas where active infestations have been sited. Do not place clothing directly on insecticide residues. Use clean shelf paper or the proper types of storage containers (discussed above) to isolate clothing from the insecticide.

Infested upholstery, carpeting, tapestry or other wall hangings can be sprayed directly. Use a fine mist and make a thorough spot or general application on these items (consult the product label for specific application directions).

Be extremely careful of staining on carpets. Treat small, out of the way areas as test areas if you are uncertain about staining. Wait 2-3 days and check these areas for staining. When the whole carpet is sprayed, do not walk on it or move furniture around on it until the spray dries thoroughly. Be extremely careful with sprays around furs or feathers. Besides the fact that none of these residual sprays should be used on clothing, including furs and feather garments, these latter items can easily be disfigured by sprays.

When other fur or feather items (e. g. wall mounted taxidermy) needs to be treated, use a dust formation. Dusts will also give the necessary insecticide distribution inside items such as sofas. Remember that the lining and stuffing materials in some furniture (especially antiques) may be wool felt.

Also examine the felt pads in pianos. Pet and rodent hair may also be present inside furniture or along baseboards (etc.) in sufficient amounts to support an infestation.

Finally, residual insecticide sprays may be appropriate around window and door casings or other possible carpet beetle access points on the inside and outside of the house.

Investment in seven principal Latin American countries has dropped sharply as a result of the debt crisis, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. By 1984, the ratio of investment as a percentage of gross national product had fallen about 7 percentage points below the 1980-81 average. The actual ratio varied widely by country, from virtually no change in Colombia to a drop of 11 percentage points in Mexico.

Police rescue woman

DALLAS (AP) — A 30-year-old woman abducted from her home and forced to withdraw more than $2,000 from two banks was rescued by police after a high-speed, 30-mile chase, officials said.

Stevvi Stanley, the wife of Dallas real estate and construction businessman Kermit Stanley, told police two men abducted her at gunpoint from her North Dallas home shortly after noon Thursday.

Police said they believe the two used a small-caliber handgun to force Mrs. Stanley into her car and make her withdraw the money from the drive-in windows of two nearby banks.

Mrs. Stanley was rescued and the money was recovered about two hours later after an armed assailant fled from her car in a wooded area near Interstate 35, two miles south of Waxahachie, ending a 30-mile chase that involved several police cars and a police helicopter, police said.

Donald Lee Whalen, 21, Joseph W. Whalen, 19, and Rodney Wayne Smalley, 21, were being held at Lew Sterrett Justice Center today on investigative charges of aggravated kidnapping and aggravated robbery, said spokeswoman Denise Wyles. Bond was set at $50,000 for each charge or $100,000 for each man, she said.

Police said they had not determined why Mrs. Stanley was targeted for the abduction and robbery, but said they were investigating Donald Whalen's employment two years ago with Kermit Stanley's construction company.

"We think (Donald Whalen's) job with Mr. Stanley may have been a contributing factor," said Dallas police Capt. John Holt.

Holt said the incident began shortly after noon when a neighbor reported to police that three suspicious-looking men were in the area.

Smoking rules are adopted

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Beginning Sept. 1 smoking will be banned in city-owned buildings here, making San Antonio the latest Texas city to take action restricting smokers.

The San Antonio City Council voted 7-3 Thursday to forbid smoking in buildings owned or leased by the city.

In addition, the new law restricts smoking to designated areas in bus stations, airports and train stations, and restaurants with more than 50 seats will have to designate a smoking area with adequate ventilation and some sort of barrier.

Such places as banks, beauty salons and supermarkets also will be required to restrict smokers to certain areas, as will concert halls, auditoriums, exhibition halls, waiting rooms and lobbies larger than 750 square feet.

Businesses with 70 percent of their annual gross sales made through alcohol are exempt.

Musician's kin faces charges

CHICAGO (AP) — A brother of members of the pop group De Barge could face a prison term if convicted of telling a flight attendant he was a terrorist carrying explosives, authorities said.

No explosives were found when Robert Louis De Barge, 30, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was arrested Thursday at O'Hare International Airport, said Federal Aviation Administration chief Donald Engen.

Engen said De Barge was aboard American Airlines Flight 558, which was preparing to leave for Grand Rapids, when he told a flight attendant: "I have explosives in my briefcase. I am a terrorist."

The flight attendant notified the captain, who returned the plane to the boarding area, where De Barge was arrested, said Engen, who was in Des Plaines on a scheduled visit.

Edward Hegarty, FBI special agent in Chicago, said De Barge was charged with making a false report aboard an aircraft. He was released on his recognizance and is to appear in court May 13.

If convicted, De Barge faces a maximum of five years in prison and a $25,000 fine, Hegarty said.

Hegarty said De Barge identified himself as a songwriter and music producer and arranger.

De Barge is an older brother of the members of the Motown group De Barge, said Karen Longley, a spokeswoman for Tony Jones Management in Los Angeles. The group, which consists of four brothers and a sister, has scored popular hits with "Who's Holding Donna?" and "Rhythm of the Night."

BEST SPELLERS--These two Ira third graders made 100 on all six spelling tests during the fifth sixth week grading period. They are Ricky Stroud, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Hotel remains a Texas landmark

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Yellowed newspaper clippings tell the tale of the boom years of the Del Camino Motor Hotel, back before they built a freeway that whizzed all the travelers from one Holiday Inn to another.

1947: "50 cottages will be added at Del Camino."

1948: "EP courts to be world's largest."

1950: "Additional 50 cottages to be added to Del Camino Courts."

1953: "Del Camino adds 28 new units."

And so it continued until later that decade, when articles chronicling the Del Camino's expansion began to be replaced by news of the new freeway.

"There's a lot of history behind this place, but I don't know it all," says Kaisser Farah, who bought the Del Camino as an investment in 1980.

"This is not my field really. I'm an investor, not a hotel-motel manager. I don't like the hotel business — too much hustle."

Even so, sentiment wins out, and Farah shows a visitor the little window through the wall plaster in the restaurant that reveals the original adobe bricks, 22 inches thick.

At its peak, the Del Camino had 287 rooms on both sides of tree-lined Alameda Avenue — or, as it was known then, U.S. Highway 80, the eastern pipeline into El Paso. Now, 100 or so rooms are left in clusters of Spanish-style cottages on only one side of the street.

Rooms may have been cheaper back then, but $23 plus tax still isn't bad. The planter boxes are well-maintained, and the rosebushes are blooming.

"It's still the best Mexican food in town," says Ramon Lerma, who should know. He's been working there 34 years.

The travelers are fewer in number, Farah says, "But they love the place. It's not just another motel."

S.G. Gonzalez built a restaurant on Alameda in 1928 and named it after another famous restaurant he owned in Juarez, the Central Cafe. Next door he built a three-story Spanish mansion with an elevator, where he lived.

He later changed the restaurant's name to Cafe del Camino Real, and in 1938 sold it and the mansion to W.A. "Bull" Adams, who was in the cattle business. There was a little motel on the property with 30 rooms.

The city limits then were where the streetcar line ended at Concepcion Street. The Del Camino, which was on both sides of the city limits, was the first part of El Paso easterners saw when they drove into town.

Adams, and later his sons, Bill Jr. and Calvin, began adding rooms at a furious pace. There was a motel with 300 rooms in Bakersfield, Calif., that claimed to be the biggest in the world.

Young mother battles illness to raise her sons

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Her goal is to see two toddling lads into adulthood, but if that cannot be, Carol Shepherd, 28, will settle for leaving her twin boys a big memory: of a mother who made the most of what time she had.

Her battle is with cystic fibrosis, an inherited, chronic disease that in time will choke off the body's respiratory and digestive functions.

Her artillery is a will of iron and a deep sense of mission, a never-say-die resolve, to keep her lungs functioning as long as they will. And she has reasons for staying alive.

"For these guys," she says, nodding at the twins and her husband. "And for all those people out there who don't know they have CF. And for those who do know they have it and think they'll die real quick."

Mrs. Shepherd's dreams are not unlike those of any other ambitious young mother, wife and erstwhile career woman: To own a home. To see her 15-month-old boys — John Robert and James Robert — grow up to be responsible citizens. To see husband Robert — a General Dynamics physicist and part-time Texas Christian University teacher — prosper.

"Ten years from now, I'd like to be doing free-lance writing at home," says the Fort Worth woman who could well be dead by then.

Were it 1960, Mrs. Shepherd's age alone would have labeled her a bona fide medical miracle. Twenty years ago, cystic fibrosis patients "all died when they were children," she says.

Today, she is a medical miracle anyway. Her doctors say she is perhaps the only living cystic fibrosis patient who has given birth to twins and survived.

Yet hers is not simply a medical miracle story. It is a story of grit and survival.

"She's a very courageous lady," said one of her doctors, Bill Wheeler, a Fort Worth Children's Hospital pediatric pulmonologist. "Anybody with CF who has lived past their mid-20s has done so because they're a fighter. They've stuck it out through a lot of pain."

"I know I have a terminal illness," Mrs. Shepherd said. "I know that most people who have what I have drown in their own mucus. It's a real sad way to die. I don't want to die that way, but that's the way I will die."

Cystic fibrosis causes the body to produce large quantities of thick mucus that typically inundate the lungs and digestive system. Eventually the mucus obstructs breathing and digestion to the point that the victim succumbs to pneumonia or another malady, damaging the lungs to the point that the patient drowns in his own fluids.

Twenty years ago, the average life expectancy of a cystic fibrosis victim was 3, and because of that cystic fibrosis still is considered a "childhood" disease and treated largely by pediatric specialists. Today hundreds of cystic fibrosis patients — including several in Fort Worth and Dallas — are living into their 20s and even 30s. The average age of death today is about 21.

The person who knows he has cystic fibrosis is typically told that if he is diligent — taking prescribed antibiotics and other medicines, eating a proper diet, exercising and going through three to four hours a day of grueling therapy — the lungs may be kept from further deterioration.

Mrs. Shepherd goes through three to four hours of therapy a day. In the first phase of her therapy, she breathes through a Pulmo-Aide nebulizer, or inhaling device, for a designated amount of time. The second phase is "percussion" therapy, during which she or someone else "claps" or slaps her back from various positions to break up mucus plugs in her lungs. The idea is to clear away as much mucus as possible, buying time for the lungs to function.

"I guess when I'm at the point where I'm real sick, when I know I'm going to die soon, I'll be thinking about it more," Mrs. Shepherd said. "Right now, I feel like I have just as much chance getting run over by a car."

Around the Carol and Robert Shepherd household in southwest Fort Worth, the more immediate danger would seem to be getting run over by a barreling 15-month-old child. Or two.

Cystic fibrosis was isolated as a specific disease in the 1940s and its cause is still unknown. Some experts predict that as many as half its sufferers die without being diagnosed, mainly because symptoms mimic those of other lung and digestive disorders: wheezing; persistent coughing; unusual mucus production; excessive appetite with poor weight gain; clubbing, or enlargement of the fingertips; development of nasal polyps; persistent, bulky diarrhea.

One symptom that aids in diagnosis is a salty taste to the skin. Hence, a "sweat test" — which measures the salt content in perspiration — is considered a reliable diagnostic tool. Countless parents have discovered their children have cystic fibrosis by noticing a salty taste to the skin. Both Shepherd twins have been sweat tested, and the results were negative

The disease is inherited, not contagious, and both parents — though most of the time neither has the disease — must carry the recessive cystic fibrosis gene. According to the Rockville, Md.-based Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, one in every 20 persons carries the gene and someone with cystic fibrosis is born once every 1,600 births. Sixty percent of the disease's female victims — and about 95 percent of the males — are sterile.

Mrs. Shepherd said while there is no cure for cystic fibrosis, a related breakthrough is expected soon: a test whereby adults may be tested to see if they are carriers of the recessive cystic fibrosis gene.

"Right now, there's no way parents can know they are carriers," she said. "That's what makes CF so hard to deal with. The parents don't know to expect it."

The Shepherd boys, born Jan. 13, 1985, at Harris Hospital, weighed 5 pounds, 9 ounces and 4 pounds, 5 ounces, respectively. "Both of them weighed more than Robert or I did at birth," Mrs. Shepherd said.

What's more, the two boys were delivered vaginally, without Caesarian surgery. "I was in labor four and a half hours, mostly back labor, then the babies just came out," she recalled.

"We were told that she probably couldn't get pregnant, but when we found out she was, she was determined to have a baby," said Shepherd. "All along, we knew that one in four women with CF who get pregnant die within two years after they have the child."

"Carol is, as far as I know, the only CF patient in the world to have given birth to twins," said Wheeler. "That she's alive today is probably attributable to several factors. Her cystic fibrosis is on the mild side of the spectrum. A lot of people with CF have a lot more lung damage than she does.

"Carol's case is a rarity. When women with CF have children, their lung function tends to deteriorate during the last part of the pregnancy and during the first few weeks after birth. Carol Shepherd has shown us that the lungs don't necessarily deteriorate at all. With two babies, if anybody would've died during childbirth, she would have.

"She has to take probably 10 different medicines every day," Wheeler said. "She does her therapy three to four hours a day. Plus exercise. Plus eating the right things."

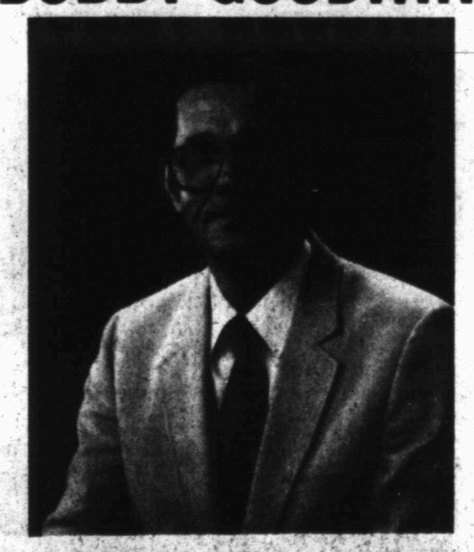

Plus keeping up with two small children.

"I had help for several weeks right after they were born, but for more than a year now, I've had them all to myself," Mrs. Shepherd said. "Robert has helped a lot at feeding and bathing time, but he's been working two jobs. We're trying to buy a home."

Robert Shepherd, Ph.D. and former TCU bowling team captain, met his wife-to-be in 1974, while they were students at Sidney Lanier High School in Austin.
