DEVER OUSTED BY THOMPSON IN CHICAGO

Former Mayor Wins Heavy Majority of Ballots Over Incumbent

POLLING IS ORDERLY

Few Untoward Incidents In Heat of Exciting Election

CHICAGO, April 5. (AP)—William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson, republican mayor of Chicago from 1915 to 1923, today was elected to that office for the third time. Thompson, who conducted his campaign with a slogan of "America first," won over Mayor William E. Dever, democratic incumbent, in one of the bitterest and most closely contested elections in Chicago's history. Dr. John Dill Robertson, who ran as an independent, offered no serious opposition.

On the basis of returns from 2000 of the city's 2384 precincts, Thompson was returned a winner by upward of 70,000 votes. With 384 precincts missing, the vote stood:

Thompson 431,434; Dever 371,553; Robertson 43,456.

On the basis of the same figures, it was indicated the vote was the heaviest ever cast in Chicago, upward of 1,000,000 of Chicago's 1,142,000 voters going to the polls.

SIX GANGSTERS SEIZE PRECINCT BALLOT BOXES
By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Six gangsters entered the polling place of the 29th precinct of the 45th ward shortly after the polls closed today, and with drawn guns forced everyone in the place out. They then loaded the ballot boxes in an automobile and sped away before the police could surround them.

CHICAGO HOLDS QUIETEST ELECTION IN RECENT YEARS
By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Chicago's mayoralty election was conducted today without rioting. A few shots were fired but no blood was spilled and election officials said at 4 o'clock when the polls closed that voting had broken all records. It was estimated approximately 1,000,000 ballots had been cast.

Trouble that threatened during the hectic days of the bitter campaign fought between William Hale Thompson, Republican; William E. Dever, Democrat standing for re-election, and Dr. John Dill Robertson, independent Republican, was cured by a demonstration on the part of the authorities.

Armed guards held positions at every polling place, uniformed police held strategic positions on street corners and 500 special police armed with machine guns cruised through zones where clashes between whites and negroes threatened. The national guard stood ready to answer orders but no call was received.

Shoot to Kill Order

The authorities showed their hand early. Chief of Police Morgan Collins two days before the election told his men to shoot first and shoot to kill. Gunmen who doubted the sincerity of the order were convinced when Vincent Drucci, noted gang leader, beer runner and election slugger was killed last night.

Drucci with three of his companions were arrested as suspects. Drucci was disarmed but turned to fight while being taken to jail. He was shot without ceremony. Then gangland took to cover.

During the early morning hours a lone negro drove past a polling place in the "black belt" and swept it with pistol fire. Two election officials and a police officer answered the fire. The negro escaped but is believed to have been wounded.

Gunmen Fire Volley

Later in the day gunmen fired a volley through the window of the home of Mrs. Abbie Press, sister of William Hale Thompson, the former mayor and candidate on the Republican ticket in today's election. Only two maids were in the house. Neither were wounded. A photograph of Mr. Thompson that hung in the window had been bullet riddled.

A ballot box caught fire in the black belt but the fire was believed to have been accidental.

'Hoax or Flivver?' That's Puzzle After Bank Robbery Scare at Burkburnett

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, April 5.—Officers of the Farmers State bank and members of the Burkburnett police force were trying to decide Tuesday night whether they were victims of a hoax earlier in the day or whether a plan to rob the bank had gone astray.

Here's how it all happened:

A man who gave his name as Howard, age about 35, who claimed to be an oil worker in the Red river bed, appeared at the Farmers' State bank with a note and a bottle wrapped in a newspaper. He placed the bottle carefully in the window of the bank and then delivered the note to W. R. Hill, vice president. The note which was in an almost illegible scrawl, read in substance as follows:

Demand for Money

"Give the bearer $5000 to be delivered to us. If you fail to do this, or let anyone leave the bank or touch the bottle of nitro-glycerine in the window, until the bearer returns, we have three men on your opposite corners, who will shoot the bottle and kill you. I wanted this money before and you would not let me have it—it is not your money and why risk your life for it. Give it to the bearer and save your life and your building."

H. I. Johnson, justice of the peace, and one of the Burkburnett officers, Roy Blancett, happened to be in the bank at the time. On being questioned the man Howard said he had been hi-jacked on the west pavement out about a mile and a half while fixing a puncture on his car. As he finished, three rough looking men drove up, coming into the city and driving a Nash car with Oklahoma license number. As they joined him he said he noted three pistols on the seat of the car. The roughest looking man of the trio asked him if he would like to make $500. In astonishment Howard said he asked "How?"

He Gets Orders

The leader then ordered him to take the package he handed him, walk into Burkburnett, and put it in a bank window, deliver the note to the president or official, and bring the purse back to them at the M. K. & T. depot (about two blocks away) and then return to the bank. If he failed to do this, there were men who would shoot him or crash the bottle which contained nitroglycerine as stated. Howard said he was cursed and kicked when he hesitated, and then did as he was ordered.

Hill made a dummy bundle and sent Howard on his way to the station; after which the two officers followed him and awaited the arrival of the reported hijackers, who did not come.

After a normal wait, Howard and the officers went to the place where Howard said he left his car, west of the city, and found it was gone. They saw however tracks and all the signs of a roadside car repairing job as Howard had stated. After a bit of questioning by the officers Howard was released.

The bottle, a small extract type, was found to be empty, and was wrapped in a sheet of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram of Jan. 2, 1927.

Howard Is Cleared

Officers do not think Howard was implicated in the reported plot, and that his fear and anxiety of safety was genuine; and that this attitude prompted his reported obedience to the hijackers' orders, according to his story.

The affair caused no small excitement, and the bank corner was crowded with people discussing the matter long after the officers released Howard.

"Mystery Blast" Wrecks Bank

COLLINSVILLE, Okla., April 5. (AP) — A mysterious explosion wrecked the defunct Collinsville bank this afternoon, injuring three persons and damaging several other business buildings of the city.

A Mr. Bredine also was injured and one of two girls working in the bank slightly bruised by the force of the explosion. An investigation was launched as soon as the excitement occasioned by the blast had subsided. Officials were working on the theory that some enemy of former bank officials were responsible for the explosion.

The damage was estimated at $15,000.

Feeling in Collinsville and vicinity is said to have been bitter since the closing of the bank. Losses in the failure were said to total approximately $330,000.

MOTHER ASKS ALIENIST FOR JACK CARTER

She Fears Bandit Suspect's Mind Breaking Under Imprisonment

HE'S ACTING "QUEER"

So Say Officers of Boy Now Under 99-Year Sentence

Permission for a physician to examine Jack Carter, prisoner in the county jail under indictment charging robbery with firearms of a filling station here, to determine his mental condition was granted Monday by the district attorney's office at the request of Carter's mother, District Attorney Ben Allred announced early Tuesday afternoon.

Fear that her son's mental condition is becoming unsound was expressed by Carter's mother in making the request, the district attorney said. Acting and talking queerly for the last two days, Carter, who is already under 99 years' sentence from Dallas for robbery, and in addition to the local indictment faces two others in Fort Worth, is attracting a new flurry of attention in the district attorney's and sheriff's offices.

Walker Appointed

Dr. M. M. Walker, the physician for whom the permit was granted stated Tuesday night that he had not examined Carter. Dr. Walker stated that he did not know that he would.

Members of the sheriff's department declare that Carter has acted queerly since Sunday. In his solitary cell the young prisoner apparently does not recognize officers with whom he has become acquainted, it was said at the sheriff's office.

Among the unusual actions said to have been displayed was attempts to present sales argument for an unknown brand of men's hosiery. Carter stares vacantly at officers who visit his cell and makes senseless remarks, officers stated.

Deputy Sheriff Cliff Kiersey stated that when he served Carter with a copy of an indictment returned Tuesday morning by the grand jury, the prisoner merely stared and said nothing.

Sheriff W. G. Bralley stated that he had not investigated the matter and that he would leave it in the hands of Carter's private physician, the county physician, and Carter's relatives.

Opinion Is Varied

Other officers expressed the opinion that Carter's mental condition is as good as it has been since he was arrested and that possibly his actions are merely in protest to his removal to an upper floor of the jail. Carter was one of four prisoners removed from the first floor recently where reports of an intended jail delivery reached Sheriff Bralley.

When the prisoners were ttaken to the third floor a noisy disturbance ensued in which locks were beat, furnishings smashed and a threat to flood the jail made when a water faucet was opened. Sheriff Bralley ordered the four placed in solitary confinement after investigating the disturbance.

The local indictment against Carter is the outgrowth of the alleged robbery of the Gulf Refining company filling station at Eighth and Brook streets following which W. H. Faulkner, young filling station employe, was shot when Charley Hinson, another employe, opened fire on the alleged robber.

Arrested in Oklahoma

Carter was arrested in Oklahoma City on March 13 by Constable Frank Morgan. Since that time he was tried and convicted of robbing a Dallas filling station and sentenced to 99 years in the state penitentiary.

Two indictments were returned Saturday by a Fort Worth grand jury on charges of robbing Fort Worth filling stations. Carter has gained the appellation in Dallas and Fort Worth of "paper bag bandit" owning to the alleged use of paper sacks for holding money taken at filing stations.

A black bag was used by the man who is said to have robbed the Gulf Refining company station here, according to Charley Hinson, who was held at the point of a gun and forced to fill the sack. Hinson has been promoted to the position of city salesman since the hijacking.

U. S. ENGINEER'S SLAYERS DIE

Seven Executed in Mexico For Assassination

MEXICO CITY, April 5. (AP)—Tried by summary court martial for the kidnaping and murder of Edgar M. Wilkins, American electrical engineer, seven men have been done to death by a firing squad at Guadalajara.

The guilt of the culprits was said to have been established at the court martial Sunday night after the 19-year-old son of Wilkins had identified one of them, Marino Calzada, as the leader of the band which captured his father and himself.

The executions took place early Monday morning in the municipal cemetery at Guadalajara, near which town Wilkins was kidnaped. Calzada and two of the other men, Isidro Perez and Vincento Perolsado, were said to have confessed the crime. The names of the four others shot by the firing squad were not contained in the report sent by General Ferreidra.

Wilkins and his son were captured by the outlaws a week ago last Sunday. The boy was released with a note demanding a ransom of $20,000 which he took back to Guadalajara. Federal troops were immediately sent out to capture the bandits, and Calzada said it was anger over the close pursuit by the troops that caused the bandits to kill the American.

VOTERS NAME TWO NEW MEN FOR COUNCIL

Spurt Late in Race Puts King Over For Position On Commission

JONES POLLS 3535

Queisser and Patton Lose In Campaigns For Re-Election

Roy E. Carter was elected police and fire commissioner of Wichita Falls, and A. W. King, park and sanitary commissioner, in the election held Tuesday. Carter's plurality was 290 votes and King's 14 out of a total of 3711 votes cast.

Patton Loses Lead

Carter received 1528 votes and King 1573. John T. Young, former fire and police commissioner, was second in the race for his former office with a vote of 1238. Frank Queisser, present fire and police commissioner, failed of reelection, being third in the race with a vote of 358.

J. H. Patton, present park and sanitary commissioner, received 1159 votes in his unsuccessful race for re-election. Patton held an early lead in the contest but lost it when returns from the Buchanan street fire station and Bashara's garage polls were received.

Jones Gets 3535

Oral Jones, incumbent, and unopposed for re-election as finance commissioner, received 3535 votes.

The small number of votes received by Queisser was a surprise to the political wiseacres, who had been of the opinion that in the race for police and fire commissioner that it would be a close contest between Carter, Young and Queisser.

After the results of the election had been announced Patton conceded the victory to King and congratulated his opponent.

Cowart's Box

J. O. Cowart carried his "home box," the Jefferson street fire station, by a plurality of six votes. Ballots cast for Cowart in this box totaled 83, leading Carter who polled 77 votes.

Fifteen prospective voters failed to cast ballots at the Bashara's garage polls because the time limit, 7 p. m., in which votes can be received by the election judges passed before the voters could prepare their ballots. The law specifies that all ballots must be in the boxes before the time limit expires, W. E. McBroom, city secretary, said Tuesday night. The prospective voters were in the polls when the clock hands passed the 7 o'clock mark.

Voting at the Buchanan street fire station box came to a stop Tuesday afternoon for approximately three minutes when the supply of blank ballots was exhausted. When the supply became low because of the heavy ballotting the judges telephoned McBroom who immediately started another supply on its way from the city hall to the fire station, however, the messenger carrying the blank ballots was late by three minutes.

"Seven" was the lucky number for Carter. In three boxes the number of votes cast for Carter terminated with "7" and in the Jefferson street fire station box his total number was 77.

Official Count Monday

The largest vote was polled at the courthouse box where 1193 votes were cast; Bashara's garage box was second, with a total of 1079 votes.

The ballots will be officially counted at the next meeting of the city council, which will be held Monday night. After the council officially declares Carter and King elected to their respective offices, they will be inducted into office and immediately assume their duties as city officials Monday night.

The boxes containing the ballots will be delivered to McBroom Wednesday by the election judges. The boxes will be placed in a vault, which will be sealed, and left there until the council meeting.

A few minutes after the polls closed The Record News offices were filled with friends and supporters of the various candidates, anxiously awaiting the results of the election. After the results were announced some of the bystanders left with smiles on their faces and others departed "not so happy."

An airplane, women, old and young, and men who are deft at the handling of cards, politically speaking, all entered Tuesday the election contests.

One aspiring candidate, Frank Queisser, "took to the air" during the morning and early afternoon

FIRST—AS USUAL

The Record News, a morning paper, was first on the streets Tuesday night giving the first election reports showing returns from three boxes. Hundreds of persons were given early reports on the trend of the balloting.

When returns were finally completed on the remaining two boxes, The Record News issued its second extra simultaneously with the other Wichita Falls paper giving complete reports, but including TOTALS for each candidate.

Five Junior college students received their first taste of newspaper work in aiding in the collection of the results, the students working in addition to the regular members of The Record News staff.

Many Elections In Texas Cities and from a plane, which glistened from its new paint of white like a dove wending its way through the space between earth and sky, cards announcing that "your vote and influence will be appreciated" were hurled to earth.

Eager hands lifted the cards from the streets and some were even caught in the air, while the eyes that belonged to the hands were kept focused on the vessel of the air, which was making its flight close to Mother Earth.

All the candidates expressed during the day their confidence of being elected to the office for which they were candidates. None seemed to be of the opinion that they would be among those listed as "also rans" when the final count had been made and the winners announced.

Candidates and their cohorts were present at all of the polls. Standing outside of the prescribed limits from the polls within which the law sets out that political exhorting is prohibited, the candidates and their cohorts, women and men, handed cards to the voters entering the polls to scratch the names of the candidates whom they did not care to be enrolled on the city's pay roll.

The day was free from verbal and pugilistic arguments, generally prevalent on election day. The city and county peace officers reported that "it was another quiet day."

SPUNK WINS BOY FORTUNE

Spinach Grower's Experience Reads Like Romance

CRYSTAL CITY, Texas, April 5. (AP)—Spunk and spinach brought Wat Walker more than $50,000 within three years.

Wat is 26. He began with the family farm of 104 acres in the Winter Garden district, which the former owner sold for $20 an acre to avoid bankruptcy, and has increased his holdings to 1400 acres.

The real story of young Wat's achievement began with a thwarted ambition.

Back in September, 1919, when he was 17 years old, he entered A. & M. college as a student of electrical engineering. His father, H. P. Walker, was superintendent of public schools here.

Walker was making strides toward his goal when his father's health broke down in 1922. Wat wrote his father that he would leave school if his parent would relinquish teaching. He suggested that they move out on their farm of 104 acres near here and and began farming.

"We had a time getting dad reconciled to the idea," Wat explained "because he had taught school he long he had begun to believe he could do nothing else.'

With a lone monthly pay voucher as their only financial support they entered on their venture. It was spring and the Winter Garden district was just then coming into its own as a truck raising district. Many farmers were still dubious about the new industry, but young Wat realized that he just had to make a go of it. He sowed spinach on his farm and rented an additional 160 acres. At the end of the season he had made and divided with his father a profit of $10,000.

Greatly encouraged, he created a sensation among his neighbors by purchasing long terms a tract of 320 acres at $165 an acre, which was by far the highest price ever paid for land up to that time in the Winter Garden section.

Some of his neighbors said "Wat was crazy" but he saw in his new possession a level tract of Neuces river bottom land with a 30-foot alluvial deposit sloping gradually away from the river. That slope, a moment's reflection would show made irrigation inexpensive.

In the years that followed, this young man whose "spunk and spinach" had led him afield, was not disappointed in his investments. His records show that his first year netted him $20,000 by renting out the land. In the year of 1924 he farmed it himself at a profit of $40,000 and last year, the least profitable year he had, due to the overproduction of spinach, he cleared $17,000 on his investments. This year his tonnage is high and the price level is exis exceptionally good. His holdings now aggregate 1400 acres.

Perfect Crime Fails and Love Slayers Land In Prison

Following confessions which were afterward repudiated, Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray are under arrest charged with killing Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert, in the Snyder home. Above, the Snyder house at Queen's Village, N. Y., a recent snapshot of Mrs. Snyder and Gray, arrested at Syracuse, N. Y.

* * * * * * * * *

NEW YORK, April 5. (AP)—Another "perfect crime" that failed, the slaying of Albert Snyder, art editor of "Motor Boating," while heslept i nhis Queens Village home on the morning of March 20, brought to trial his wife, Mrs. Ruth Snyder and her confessed paramour, Henry Judd Gray, on first degree murder charges.

Mrs. Snyder has been th. center of attention since her arrest the day following the murder. She assumed the role of the misunderstood wife, married to a man many years her senior, who had tastes totally different from her own. Discord, she said, forced her to look elsewhere for happiness.

Gray, a corset salesman, with a wife and ten-year-old daughter, was a man of society in his home in East Orange, N. J. So sterling was his character believed to be that members of his family and friends refused to believe his guilt until they heard it from his own lips.

Party With Friends.

On the eve of the murder Snyder and his wife attended a card party at the home of friends. "Tommy," as Mrs. Snyder was known to her intimates, saw that her husband drank plenty of liquor, "to make him feel good" as she later confessed to the police.

When they got home Mrs. Snyder put him to bed. He was partly deaf and she took care that his "good ear" lay on the pillow.

Some hours later the couple's nine-year-old daughter Lorraine, found her father dead. He had been beaten, chloroformed and his body bound to the bed with picture wire. In an adjoining room, Mrs. Snyder also had been bound. The house was in great disorder from top to bottom.

Mrs. Snyder told the police a man of giant stature had forced his way into the home and had killed her husband and had beaten her.

Officers Suspicious.

Detectives were suspicious from the start. In their attempt to accomplish the perfect crime the slayers had been too thorough. They had ransacked the kitchen.

"There is something wrong here," said the officers. "Regular murderers don't work that way. They wouldn't bother the kitchen."

There was no evidence of the head injury which Mrs. Snyder claimed the murderer had inflicted. Soon the jewels which she said had been stolen were found under a mattress. Other things were found to contradict her story.

After hours of questioning Mrs. Snyder confessed. She admitted an intimacy with Gray and said that he had hidden in the house until they returned from the party. After she had put Snyder to bed she and Gray committed the crime together.

Alibi Punctured.

Gray was detained by police in Syracuse. At first, he stoutly denied any connection with the murder. He had what seemed to be an airtight alibi. Clerks in the hotel where he was stopping remembered that he had called from his room at about the time he would have been in Queens Village if he had committed the murder. His bed was rumpled as if he had slept there the night of the crime.

Police brought Gray to New York for further questioning. After hours of steady denial he suddenly confessed his part in the slaying. He told how he had struck Snyder over the head with a window sashweight while Mrs. Snyder looked on.

Although he had confessed, police were not satisfied until they explained his alibi. Haddon Gray, a Syracuse friend with whose two children Gray shot marbles on the night following the murder, was brought to New York. He had substantiated Gray's story of his Syracuse movements. Taken before the Queens county grand jury he admitted that he had aided Gray prepare his alibi in the belief that he was helping him keep from his wife knowledge of an engagement with a woman friend. He admitted that it was he who had impersonated Gray in calling from his hotel room and had otherwise aided the hoax.

Each Blames Other.

Both Gray and Mrs. Snyder repudiated their confession when brought into court, claiming they were made under duress. The love that had joined them in the killing seemed to have cooled in the several days they had been in prison for they did not speak to each other in court. They blamed each other for their plight.

One theory advanced for the motive was that Mrs. Snyder expected to collect her husband's $52,000 insurance policy, and then flee with Gray.

Another possible motive advanced by the police was that Snyder had learned of their intimacy and that they had killed him on his account.

Poisoned Liquor.

A bottle of liquor containing bichloride of mercury was found in Gray's possession on the train trip from Syracuse. It was later revealed that he had attempted to take a drink of it on the trip, telling officers that it was cough medicine.

FIBERS GROW IN TEXAS SOIL

Valuable Plants Grow Wild In West Texas

HOUSTON, April 5. (AP)—Many of the 1000 or more useful fiber plants known to the world grow wild in Texas, according to Prof. H. P. Attwater of Houston, who is considered a foremost Texas authority on native birds and animals whose agricultural and horticultural experiments have been conducted since 1883.

Thousands of acres in West Texas, Prof. Attwater said, are covered with beargrass, wild hemp, flax and other fiber producing plants. Meanwhile, he recited, experiments with the cultivation of hemp, flax, jute and ramie in the coast region have produced what he said were good results and point, he insisted, to the successful inauguration of the fiber industries of the future.

When or how the fibers first came to be used, Prof. Attwater said, will never be known. "It is possible, however," he continued, "that they were first employed to aid man to obtain food," as the natives of the burning tropics to the frozen north have used crude fibers for their fishing lines and nets. It might further be supposed that the rude knotting of the twisted filaments of fiber nets may have first suggested weaving and substitution of vegetable clothing for the skins of the animals."

Flax, he indicated, has a greater antiquity than any other known fiber. Its cultivation goes back to the stone age in Europe, he indicated, and is known to have been used by the Swiss lake dwellers, a people who lived in the time of the mammoth and other great animals. Specimens of their work are preserved in museums.

The history of the hemp, he said, goes back only about 500 years before the Christian era. It was mentioned by Herodotus and was used by the Scythians. As for jute, it has been known and cultivated in India since remote times.

In the western world, it has been found that the Peruvians produced fabrics of marvelous design and finish, while both flax and hemp were known to the ancient Mexicans and Aztecs. The Chinese grass fibers known as Remie has been grown in the Orient from time immemorial; cotton was the ancient national textile of India and historians say that bullrushes were used for cordage in Egypt, as well as for matting, curtains, boats and sails. Ancient vessels of bullrushes are mentioned in Jeash and the use of the inner bark of bullrushes by Egyptians for papyrus is regarded as even more interesting.

"Even in our day," Prof. Attwater said, "travelers have found that the savages of the North Pacific and Indian ocean, the South Sea Islands as well as semi-civilized tribes of Australia, Africa and South America are still using fibers in making clothing, hats, caps, head dresses, war masks, sails, cables, ropes, paper, boats, fish lines, brushes, shoes, hammocks and a whole host of other articles."

DULL, SLUGGISH AND CONSTIPATED

After Years of Bad Health North Carolina Woman Experienced Great Relief From Taking Black-Draught

Gastonia, N. C.—Mrs. Mary Crawford, who lives in this town, says: "I was in bad health for several years. Nothing I ate agreed with me. After each meal I had bad gas pains, caused from gas on my stomach. My color was sallow. I complained a lot and was very nervous.

"Most of my trouble came from constipation, but I did not realize this until I was real sick. I let it run on, hoping for the best.

"One day I read about Black-Draught in the Ladies Birthday Almanac. I had known of it for years, but had never used it. I thought it might help me, so I got a box to try. I started taking a small dose after each meal.

"In a very short time I could see that I was better; I slept better and could eat without being disturbed by gas pains. I no longer had the sick headaches.

"I experienced such great relief, after taking Black-Draught, that I keep it in the house all the time now.

"When I begin to feel dull and sluggish, and get constipated, I take a dose or two, and the next day I am feeling fine."

Dramatic Reader Entertains Large Audience at Palace

An audience of women which completely filled the Palace theater greeted Mrs. Bertha Kunz Baker, dramatic reader of New York City, Tuesday afternoon when she completely captivated her hearers with the recital of Bernard Shaw's three-act comedy, "Pygmalian."

The quaint story is of an eccentric English professor in London who be comes interested in a gutter-snipe of a flower girl with a terrible accent and makes a waker with his friend that he can take the girl in training for six months and by making her able to speak the English language with precision and beauty can completely transform her into a lady who can be presented as an equal of any duchess and can hold her own in the highest social circles.

Her various stages of development, her tantrums and the dialogue between the pupil and teacher the clash of wills, combine a splendid vehicle for the marvelous interpretations given by the characters by Mrs. Baker.

She held her audience intensely interested during the entire reading and was enthusiastically applauded between scenes.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. W. W. Silk, who also make other forum announcements, Preceding the reading, Joel MacGregor, in costume, entertained with a group of Scottish songs accompanied at the piano by J. S. Pitman.

Mrs. Baker was presented under the auspices of the general forum as the April attraction and ushers for the afternoon were Mesdames J. H. Barnard, Joe Shipley, Pat Jarrett and Misses Iva Willis and Alice Welty.

Brigand Queen

In a cave among the old castles in the province of Naples, the military police have found a band of brigands led by a young woman, Maria del Prete.

Holdups and thefts in this district have been numerous during the past three months. The police were puzzled until a clue to the sex of the members of the gang was provided when a farmhouse was robbed, the robbers taking money and the Sunday clothes of the women. This pointed out that the bandits were women with a love for finery, and they were young, for it is only the young who feel this passion with an intensity fierce enough to steal.

Young, fearless and feminine. They found such a girl in the mountains, and stealthily following her were rewarded with the knowledge of the meeting place and the names of the robbers. When the officers of the law dropped in on them, Marie del Prete was gaily robed in the finery of her latest victim, and was dividing the remaining spoils among her small band of theives.

Dancer

The soviet government has recently awarded the title of "worthy artist" to Mme. Victoria Kriger, ballerina of the Moscow Imperial opera. Mme. Kriger ranks second as Goddess of the Dance. Both of these dancers have thrilled large audiences with their exquisite grace and rare talent in dancing. nfWgrace o-C er d W hr r r r rd

HER DAY of WORK and PLAY

by AMY ABBOTT

Women Democrats in every section of the United States are anxious for party succes in the national conference called in Washington May 6 and 7 to check anyy effort to nominate a candidate for the presidency who is not loyal to the Constitution of the United States.

Another purpose of the meeting is to launch an intensive educational campaign inspiring women to take a more vitaly interest in public affairs, especially in the enforcement and observation of all laws.

The call was issued by Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson of Chevy Chase, Md., acting chairman of the National Women's Democratic Enforcement league.

Cabaret Agents.

Susceptible bootleggers haven't a chance in New Jersey, since two dashing young women, armed with badges, pistols, sweet smiles and a thirst, began work there as prohibition agents. They dress smartly, possess friendly personalities, and keep an alert but cagey eye on the doings in roadhouses and smaller resorts between Newark and Atlantic City. The young women were borrowed from the New York prohibition authorities, after Broadway became too well acquainted with them.

Royal Marriage.

Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt has announced her engagement to Prince Godefroi Langebourg, scion of a noble German family which dates back to the twelfth century. The marriage will confer on Gloria the title of "Serene Highness."

The news of Gloria's engagement is not a surprise, although she has hesitated for some time, she dreads life in Berlin. She has confided to her friends that her preference would be a ceremony in Paris. Her fiance would rather have it in Berlin.

There has been no invasion of Paris by German princes and nobility since before the war, when the ex-kaiser officially visited the French capital.

Adventurer.

The spirit of daring that prompted Christopher Columbus seek new lands is again manifested, this time in a woman. A girl of 16 has just accomplished the daring feat of crossing the most tempestuous part of the Black sea in a row boat. Tamara Schumarino, after many thrilling experiences, covered this distance, approximately 1,000 miles, the first woman to shoot the Dnieper rapids.

In recognition of her bold adventure she has been made honorary member of the Soviet navy, in which she is the first woman to be enlisted. Two world records at 16!

An Indian Girl.

The naural rhythm of movement that is born through generations of outdoor life won for Lola Cuzarare, of the Tarahumara tribe of Indians, first place in a marathon of 28 1-2 miles; she finished the race, her trainer trailing her, in 4 hours and 56 minutes. This was an event in the annual relay games of the University of Texas, at Austin, Texas.

After the long races the girl winners were presented with lovely shawls of bright, colorful hues. The men were given musical instruments and furnished impromptu music from a violin, banjo and mouth harps.

The Tarahumara Indians are a picturesque tribe, living remotely in the mountains of Mexico, whose amazing ability to cover long distances on foot at high speed has only recently become a matter of general knowledge.

Wives Who Listen.

"One of the heaviest duties of a wife of a cabinet minister is listening to her husband's speeches," says Lady Hoare, wife of the British air minister.

Other wives will echo this sentiment, some, perhaps even turning the speeches to advantage as she does. Lady Hoare has listened so attentively to discussions of the views and problems of the air question that she capably substitutes for her husband, Sir Samuel, when he has a speaking engagement that he can not fill.

Greek Art.

Sappho, the poet of Mytilene, has lived many generations through her beautiful poems—she now makes a more personal appearance.

The marble head of a woman found at Corinth may have been a statue of the poet Sappho, according to Dr. T. Leslie Shear of Princeton university.

He says: "The woman's features reveal a dreamy nature and subdued passion. Her hair is tinted auburn and is arranged in an unusual way behind where it is gathered in a folded veil. Because of the technical treatment of the hair and the sharply-cut eyelids, the marble is obviously a copy from a bronze statue, and as it resembles a head of Sappho on an old coin, perhaps the original was the famous bronze Sappho made by the sculptor Silanion in the fourth century B. C."

Sappho was the first woman poet. Many believe her the greatest of all women poets.

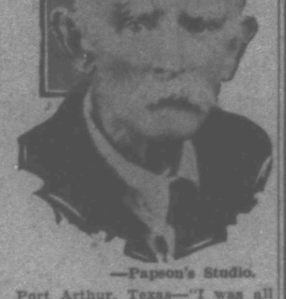

Club Woman

That old tag, "United we stand, diveded we fall," is a recognized factor in the wars of conquest.

The women's clubs of America are waging wars; they are fighting social evils and political wrongs. In order that they may not go down to ignominious defeat in this worthy warfare the women of our country are gradually becoming united and are promoting harmony in their own ranks.

The California Federation of Women's clubs is to meet in Sacramento from May 3 to 7. It is the proud declaration that the northern and southern club women of their state are strongly united in all their activities.

Life Not Gratuitous Affair, One Must Pay For Pleasures in Some Way

Life Cannot Give Us Everything; We Must Pay for Our Blessings, Yet Modern Business Woman Wants Her Freedom and Pay Check Plus a Husband; Home Woman Wants Pleasure of Children Without Their Care; Young Wife Wants Both Husband and Beaux.

The thing that is the matter with most of the peevish, fretful, restless, disconcented women you know is that they are disgruntled because they can't eat their cake and have it, too.

Our grandmothers had infinitely less to make life happy and interesting than we have, but they were more contented than we are because they accepted the station in life to which it had pleased God to call them, as the Prayer Book puts it, and made themselves satisfied in it. They recognized that every blessing carries its obligation, that there is a string tied to every good thing, and so they made the best of the lot that had befallen them.

But we modern women demand the earth and fullness thereof. We want the best of everything without any handicaps or drawbacks to it, and we want it handed to us as a free gift without our having to pay the price for it.

And because the world isn't run on this plan, because we can't have our cup of honey without a drop of gall in it, because we can't be both free and bond at the same time, because there is nothing for nothing, and fate has fixed its price tag on every desirable thing, we beat upon our breasts and tear our hair and fill the air with our moans and groans over our unhappiness.

Consider your friends, if you have not the courage to consider yourself, and see how much of their weeping is just tears of futile rage because they cannot have their cake and eat it, too.

Take, as a very familiar example of this, the business woman who trains herself for some profession or career and who succeeds in it. She enjoys her work. She likes the freedom it gives her and the money it brings in; but she is not happy, because she yearns for a domestic life. She wants love and a husband and children and home and pots and pans and carpet sweepers.

So she gets married, and she is utterly miserable, because cooking and sweeping and scrubbing bores one who has been accustomed to dealing with big affairs. Planning a dinner is a piffling occupation to one who has helped plan a million-dollar advertising campaign. Budgeting a twenty-five-dollar-a-week housekeeping allowance acts on the nerves of one who has been the understudy of men who juggled millions.

Moreover, she who has kept office hours and had perfect liberty of action outside of them finds the never-ending work of making a home slavery. She who has known the joy of having her own pocketbook, and spending her money as she pleased, finds it intolerable to have to ask her husband for money and have it doled out to her with strict injunctions not to waste it.

So it often happens that we are called upon to dry the eyes of the business woman because she isn't married and afterward to wipe away her tears because she is married. She wants her husband and children and home, and likewise her freedom and her good job and pay envelope, and she is miserable because she can't have them all bunched together.

Take motherhood as another example. Virtually all women want children, but a lot of them don't want the trouble of them. Half the women you know regard themselves as martyrs because they are tied down with babies and because they are always spreading bread and butter and washing dirty little faces and cleaning up after messy little hands and answering the eternal cry of M-o-t-h-e-r.

They make the welkin ring with their groans because they cannot gad around as childless women do and go to bargain sales and stay downtown for luncheon and go to the movies and spend their afternoons playing bridge. Yet these very same women who find motherhood such a burden wouldn't part with one of their babes for all the money in the world, and if some catastrophe should suddenly rob them of their children they would be utterly broken-hearted and desolate. All they ask is just the joy of having children without ever having to bother with them or to take care of them.

The mother who wants to have her cake and eat it, too, is still further exemplified in the woman with children who feels herself abused because she hasn't as fine a house or as good clothes or as many jewels as some childless woman has.

You will often hear a woman say enviously to another woman: "So you are going to Europe again this year! My, but you are lucky! I never get a hundred miles from home." Or, "What a wonderful husband you have to have given you that pendant. I should drop dead if my husband gave me a string of beads."

And then in the same breath she will tell how splendidly her son is doing at college and boast of the compliments her daughter was paid at a ball. It never seems to occur to her that the money it takes to raise a family would buy dozens of tickets around the world or a diamond tiara.

Would these discontented women swap off their sons and daughters for pearls and limousines? Never. But, nevertheless, they feel defrauded if they can't have all the luxuries the childless women have and the delights of parenthood besides.

And why do so many women find marriage a failure? Because they can't have girlhood and wifehood at the same time. They want to be able to run around and enjoy themselves, to go to parties, to have beaux and admiration. Above all, they want their husbands to remain lovers, to keep up the romance of courtship, to hold their hands and quote poetry and talk sentiment to them. And yet at the same time they desire their husbands to be practical breadwinners and domestic as the house cat.

And when they find out that the average man who pays his wife's bills has no money to spend on orchids and that the kiss to which you have a legal right hasn't much thrill to it and that a happy marriage is based on doing your duty instead of on fairy tales, why, they cry out that they are disillusioned and that marriage is a failure.

But the trouble wasn't with marriage. It was with them. They wanted to eat their cake and have it, too. Which can't be done.

MODISH MITZI — Her Friends Will Kill Or Cure Her — By JAY V. JAY

..."It doesn't taste so awfully bad, Mitzi," says Adelaide presenting Mitzi with her favorite tonic. Mitzi looks a bit skeptical and changes the subject by asking Adelaide if that isn't a new coat she is wearing. It is. It is made of black satin and the pleatings on it mark is very distinctively this season.

Aunt Sophia is recommending one of those good old fashioned remedies that are renowned for "picking up" run down people. Mitzi stalls around a little by admiring Aunt Sophia's new dress with the flange treatment on the back. The vestee effect in front is caught by a marcasite ornament and doesn't it make her look slender?

Mitzi is really talking against time—or at least against medicine when Polly arrives. Polly thinks she needs exercise. It's so simple if you follow the instructions in the book. One reason for Mitzi's illness we feel sure is the new and very charming georgette negligee she wears with the odd collar and yoke. It would encourage anyone to stay in bed.

Polly herself looks very handsome—either because of the exercise she has been practicing or because of the dull crepe satin coat she wears with ermine trimming the collar. The Goofer, too, has brought a remedy. She should try it, it will put her right on her feet again!

Tomorrow—Negligees.

SOPHIE IRENE LOEB Says—

The Worker Who Stands the "Gaff"

The little tailor was fitting my suit. His mouth was full of pins. While he was on his knees adjusting the skirt, somebody called him: "Abram, come here. Where is Mrs. Jones' new belt?"

"In the righthand top drawer of Sam's sewing machine," Abram answered.

After he had finished adjusting the length of the skirt, he arose, stood back and critically observed the garment. He saw another place that needed to be fitted and proceeded in his task.

Again someone called: "Abram Mrs. Smith wants some extra white collars made for her dress."

"Very well," he answered quietly, making a note of it in a little book which he drew from his pocket.

Not long after this the proprietor came by and said: "Abram, did you promise Mrs. Brown's dress for next Wednesday?"

"Yes," he answered, in the same quiet way. "It will be done."

And so it went for almost an hour. One after another came to him for this, that, and the other thing. And I could see that he stood like a rock of reliance to the workers about him.

For many years Abram has toiled in this tailoring establishment. It has now become a prominent concern and he is one of the pillars who has helped to make it solid—with discriminate and particula rpeople. When I asked if it did not annoy him to have some one calling him all the time, he answered: "If you can't stand the 'gaff' you might as well quit. You must get used to it. You must be willing to take things as they come in order to overcome them."

In the words of this worker lies the secret of many a success—being able to stand the "gaff"—to take things—to go through. It is so in every walk of life where there are doers. When they "arrive" it is not from luck, but labor. The trouble with many is that they wilt when there is a worry, and accordingly succumb to weariness.

In a word, they don't stand up and take the batting. They are "touchy," and forever are wanting to be "considered," and yet they are usually the least considerate for the hardships that others must put up with in connection with their work.

So Abram now commands a good salary and the respect of his employers because he has grown with them—he has been able to stand the "gaff." He has a family—an interesting family.

When he spoke of his boy, just turning 14, there was love in his voice and pride in his eyes. He was planning better things for him. He wanted him to have a good education so that the way might be easier than that of his father.

I could not help reflect that we might well paraphrase the biblical term that the good of the fathers is often visited on the children. And Abram's son will most likely reap what Abram has sown in patience and perseverance.

"And what is your greatest hope for him?" I asked.

"If I am able to give him the advantage of better things, that he, too, will be able to stand the strain and be a little better than his father, then I shall have done my part."

"No one can reach far who breaks under the blows," he added, significantly.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Mother! It's Cruel to "Physic" Your Child

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even if the child is chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement, but, best of all, it never grines, sickens or upsets the most delicate system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

PLUNDERING GROUND OF NATIONS

IS CHINA the plundering ground of the nations? Robert W. Wear answers yes. Robert W. Wear is traveling secretary for the national council of the Y. M. C. A. He represented the council 12 years in China and now he is in Texas delivering a series of lectures on the Chinese situation. This is his indictment of the powerful nations:

"Great Britain, France, Japan and the United States have all had the opportunity to help return China to the Chinese, peacefully and without strain of the economic relations between the countries, but they have refused to do it, and have, instead, kept China the plundering ground of the nations."

Sentiment against foreigners in China according to Wear, is directed chiefly against the British, because Great Britain has encouraged the sale of narcotics in the country. He defends the Chinese nationalists, Speaking of their aims, he says they are seeking sovereignty in their own nation, a democratic form of government and economic justice. He recommends that the foreign concessions in China should be surrendered as well as the privileges of extra territoriality. In the concessions he points out we have merely an example of a foreign government imposing its regulations on another people.

Furthermore he insists that Americans would not like it for instance, if the British had cities in America, concessions as they are called in China, in which citizens of the United States would be compelled to pay taxes to the British and abide by British laws, if they lived in those places. He adds "foreign countries have dotted China with these concessions." His interpretation of the privilege of extra territory is very timely.

If an American, Frenchman, Englishman or any other foreigner, commits a crime in China he cannot be tried by Chinese courts. He must be tried by a consular representative of his own nationality, and then only if the consul elects to do it. In the United States the Chinaman who embezzles, pilfers or murders is not tried by Chinese. He bows to the law of the land. American justice takes care of him. Japan, more than a year ago, declared its willingness to surrender its Chinese concessions and abandon the principle of privilege of extra territorial power.

As an example of the economic injustice suffered by China, this Y. M. C. A. globetrotter and authority points to the fact that the maximum customs on imports in China is 5 per cent. That is all the controlling 19 countries allow, and it cannot be increased without the consent of all of them. Taxes in China are gathered by foreigners and what is left of them after the Boxer indemnities are paid goes to the Chinese government. Some times, he says these payments are held up for months, a fact which works a great hardship on the Chinese government and is used by it effectively as an argument for soverignty. This is the verdict of an American secretary of a powerful organization who spent more than 12 years in the land of Confucious. "The best Chinese are eager to end these evils and to put away the indignities showered on their country. You can't blame them for doing it, even if they have to run all the foreigners out."

Pickings have been rich in China for European nations Pickings have been rich for Japan. If Robert B. Wear is correct in his analysis there is a Yellow Peril and the white man created it.

DALLAS HAS A BLACK BELT

DALLAS has a black belt if Rev. W. L. Dickson knows his people, their numerical strength and their voting strength. There are six candidates for the office of mayor, election April 5. One of these candidates has been romping on the brother in black. Parson Dickson resented the romping. He rushed into print. He declared 30,000 negroes made their homes in Dallas and 7000 are armed with poll tax receipts. They are not to be bought by politicians. They are not to be led astray by ice cream and cake blandishments.

There is a nonpartisan ticket in the field headed by Col. R. E. Burt, a millionaire oil man, one of the leading Baptists of Texas and a gentleman noted for his extensive character. Well, Parson Dickson says that two-thirds of the negro voters of Dallas will go to the polls on April 5 and cast their ballots for Col. Burt.

This makes it interesting for the other candidates, the standard bearers of others factions. As for the cake and cream eaters, the parson says they are idlers, they pick the crumbs which are swept from the table. They are not qualified voters, they boycott the tax collector, and on election day they count for naught

Colonel Burt hopes to see the city manager form of government ushered in some day in the proud city of Dallas. He is a level headed business man, a successful business man and this is one of the reasons why he champions a business government.

COOLIDGE HAS THE CALL

SENATOR SIMEON FESS of Ohio, republican and ultra dry, covered the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific and then worked his way back again from the Pacific coast to the Buckeye state. His mission was to sound the public pulse and to listen to political chatter.

His verdict: "Coolidge is the man. He will be renominated and re-elected." Thus, saith Fess, the wise.

Senator Fess backed Roy Haynes for chief of the prohibition enforcement division of the government. Mellon didn't back Haynes. Coolidge forced the appointment of Haynes. Haynes is a buckeye.

It is settled in advance that the republican Buckeyes will send an instructed delegation to the national convention for the favorite son of New England.

TROUSERS FOR WOMEN

A FAMOUS French man, creator of styles and fashions for women, predicts that the whirl of fashion may hurl women back to trousers. He has the evidence that the garment was stolen from woman by man in the first place. Not in the Garden of Eden. Fig leaves are not pantaloons.

A STORY OF MYSTERY, SUSPENSE AND LOVE

"THE SOB-SISTER"

He Dropped On His Knees Before the Cot

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

DIANA BROOKS, beautiful daughter of ROGER BROOKS, owner and publisher of the Catawba City Times and a chain of nine other newspapers, had been kidnaped and then released. Her father is engaged in a persistent fight against the corrupt administration of Catawba City, and through the medium of the Times, redoubles his scathing attacks on politicians of the Ring and defies the Underworld.

Later Brooks himself disappears and in attempting to locate him, DONALD KEENE, literary editor of the Times and TEDDY FARRELL, Don's ward and Sob Sister, meet with disaster in which Teddy saves her guardian's life. Out of gratitude, he asks her to marry him. Although she is deeply in love with him, Teddy refuses. Don believes himself in love with LOLA MANTELL, Diana's cousin.

Brooks reappears and finds that his newspaper stock is being manipulated. He suspects JOHN W. WALDEN, and plans to fight.

Don and Diana go for a ride in Diana's motor launch. A squall comes up and the boat is tipped over. Don does not swim, but Diana saves him from drowning. They wait for aid in an uninhabited shack on a small island. As time passes, they find themselves drawn dangerously toward each other.

NOW READ ON.

CHAPTER XXVII.

A moment she stood there. Then suddenly turning, Diana ran—straight toward and into the shack. . . .

She greeted him cheerily sometime later when he, too, came back to the little house among the trees.

"No one here yet," she told him, her voice singing in the cadence of a golden melody. Her eyes glowed almost black. But she played her part, acting as if nothing unusual had happened.

He stood before her like a shame-faced school boy, hesitating as though he wanted to say something.

"They're likely to come any minute now," he finally said, picking up the corncob pipe and carefully filling it. For several minutes he smoked in silence.

Diana was thumbing listlessly through a copy of a fisherman's and hunter's journal. She glanced up after awhile.

"Oh, yes, the fishermen, you mean," she said casually and resumed her reading although it bored her fearfully.

He threw a sidelong glance at her, drew in a lungful of smoke, expelled it and took another look. She looked as she always looked.

"You didn't see Teddy that night after she'd dug her way out of th' cellar, did you?" he asked, apropos of nothing under the sun. He had to say something.

"No," replied Diana, tossing the journal on the table as a token of her willingness to be sociable. "But Dinny described her and the hole she dug, to us afterward. Th' darling kid! Dinny said she didn't look like a human being that night in the drug store—all plastered over with clay as she was. What a glorious thing for a girl to do!"

"Splendid!" nodded Don, a reminiscent glint in his eye. "Th' grandest gesture I ever hope to know. Really, Dia, Teddy is almost too fine, too self-sacrificing, I mean. And she's developed so far beyond anything I had ever hoped for, too—mentally, physically and socially. You should have seen her the day I brought her home and turned her over to my mother. She was the typical gamin of the street at that time. She certainly has more than repaid me for the little I did for her—if I ever merited any repayment.

"Funny," he continued musingly, "the way she turned me down after I had asked her in the hospital to marry me. You know—I told you about that?"

Diana nodded, smiling, thinking what she had told Lola on a certain occasion in relation to Teddy's refusal of Don.

"But I don't think it so remarkable," she said reflectively. "I should probably have done just about the same thing. After all, Don," she went on slowly as if choosing her words in some very important decision. "It would hardly have been very satisfactory to Teddy. She knows you have been making love to Lola, you see."

He winced at the barb in her plainly worded thrust, but offered no denial of its truth to avoid allusion in any way to the incident under the trees. At length silence again fell over them. The chirping of crickets in the trees close by penetrated the shack with their sharp metallic clatter.

"I don't know but what we might as well turn in." He said it casually, matter-of-factly, as if he were addressing Bill Canfield or Dinny Morrison or any one of the numerous men friends he knew. The situation, he realized, was distinctly delicate and must be handled in a manner altogether impersonal. Then he addressed himself once more to the girl before him.

"It's late," he said, "and the indications are that we shall have to spend the night here all by our lonesomeness, after all."

She made pretentions of suppressing a yawn in order to cover any signs of worry. She, too, must play the game.

"There's only that one cot, you know, Don," she reminded him judiciously.

"I know. But there's plenty of blankets. I'll make up a shake-down on the floor here. You go on in and go to bed, Dia. I'll blow out the lamp and have another smoke in the moonlight."

"All right, Don, I s'pose I might as well—"

She walked over slowly and into the little annex. She would lie down, she decided, without undressing. There was still the possibility of the owners of the shack returning that night and Don and she getting back to Catawba City.

A wide shaft of moonlight fell across the cot. From where she was lying she could hear the gentle lapping of the waves on the beach and could see the silver-drenched trees outside the tiny window.

The sound of Don hitching his chair across the floor in the next room brought her thoughts back to him. His kisses and her yielding to them out there. It must have been moon madness. . . .

She was wide-eyed, listening. . . . For just an instant she felt a trifle startled upon discovering that he had come into the little room.

"You—scared me a—little," she confessed and laughed, her voice low, throaty.

"I'm sorry."

He was fumbling with the blankets. She looked at him, the clear rays of the moon revealing him plainly.

"Listen," she said, holding up her hand, "to that silence. Isn't it really eloquent?"

He avoided looking at her at first. Why, he could not have explained. Perhaps he was afraid of his own weakness. Then she spoke again and he turned, his gaze enveloping her from head to foot.

The thin gown sheathed her like a pale film. Her neck, the exquisitely chiselled chin and the full, sweet lips swam all at once in a blur before his vision.

"Diana!" he gasped, trembling, "you're—beautiful, too beautiful!"

He dropped down on his knees before the cot and his hand touched her face, her hair. Then his head bent and a sob shook him.

"Don—dear!"

There was interrogation in the low-spoken tone. He looked up.

"You mustn't act like—like this, Don," she chided him gently, as a mother might chide her child. "You and I have—have been chums—playmates, ever since I was a baby and you were a boy of 11. You have told—told Lola you loved her and—and asked her to marry you. You love her, don't you, Don!"

A close observer would have noted something in her voice as she asked the question—a slight tremor, indicative either of doubt or, perhaps, curiosity. Such a thing as fear, anxiety on her own behalf could have no place in Diana's mind in connection with Donald Keene. She knew him too well to feel qualms of apprehension. He was just a boy, a boy with a man-size heart and passions in a healthy body.

"Don't you love Lola, Don?" she persisted.

He had failed to answer her first question. He wanted to be honest, both with himself and with Diana. He had believed himself in love with Lola; had asked her—wanted her, then, to marry him. But—

Don didn't know. That was the truth of the matter. When he was alone with Lola, when he looked at her exotic, alluring loveliness it seemed to him that he loved her.

Did he really love her? Good Lord, what a mess! . . .

"Tell me, Don—do you love Lola?"

Diana's voice was pleading, mournful. It might have occurred to Don had he been equipped with a little more of that quality so common to the male gender of the genus homo, ego, that Diana's persistence had something more than mere friendly interest, mere womanly curiosity.

He, fighting for self-control, tried to answer honestly, fairly.

"My God, I must be crazy! I—I—Oh, Diana, I—I don't know!" he burst out finally.

A flush of shame stained his cheek bones. His gaze drank in again the exquisite lines of the girl lying before him. Her gray eyes were like twin pools seen in the woods at midnight. She was sweet, desirable. . . .

Then reason flooded back to him, it poured its soothing balm o'er him and lived his hot, throbbing pulses. He rose to his feet.

"Forgive me, Diana," he cried contritely. "I've been a fool, mad, crazy! It must have been—" He smiled his old whimsical smile—"it must have been the moon, or—or something," he concluded. Good-night!"

"Good-night, Don," she echoed.

He gathered his blankets together and walked out of the room.

(To Be Continued.)

Will Diana accept Don's offer of marriage? The next chapter will show.

Topic for the Week

"THE SPIRITUAL STRUGGLE"

Wednesday

"There are Evil Forces About Us."

SCRIPTURE: Read—Ephesians 6:10-20.

"For our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against the principalities, against the powers . . . against the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places" (Eph. 6:12). "And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat" (Gen. 3:13). "Each man is tempted when he is drawn away by his own lust, and enticed" (Jas. 1:14). "Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil" (Eph. 6:11).

See—John 6:70; John 13:2; I. Peter 5:8; Colossians 1:13.

MEDITATION: Jesus spoke of devils, of Satan, of Beelzebub, Tyrus. He often spoke in parables. But we need not dogmatize about the mystery of iniquity. I am sure there are wicked men and that there are evil impulses in me, and that vicious influences beat upon me at adverse winds against the sail. Like fire the breath of evil withers and burns the careless soul. My safety is in the living armor of God; that is, His spirit possessing me.

"There are two fires to which the soul is subject—the fire of sin and the fire of God; the one consumes the soil, the other consumes everything that impedes the soul."

Hymn

Beneath the cross of Jesus
I fain would take my stand,—
The shadow of a mighty rock
Within a weary land,
A home within the wilderness,
A rest upon the way,
From the burning of the noontide heat,
And the burden of the day.

I take, O cross, thy shadow
For my abiding place;
I ask no other sunshine than
The sunshine of His face,—
Content to let the world go by,
To know no gain nor loss,
My sinful self my only shame,
My glory all the cross.

—Elizabeth C. Clephane, (1830-1897).

PRAYER: Pray for—spirit of long-suffering; slaves of habit, true enjoyment; servants.

Collect—Heavenly Father, whose tender mercies compel our love, we thank Thee for the gift of Christ our Savior. In Him our short-comings are filled up; our sicknesses of soul are healed; our rebellions of spirit are quelled. For salvation full and free we bless Thee. In the presence of Thy outpouring of love our selfishness stands revealed. Breathe into us of Thy spirit that we may be strong to forsake sin, to overcome temptation and to live in the light which Christ supplies. O our Father, grant us to know something of Thy passion of love. Help us to proclaim the gospel to all mankind. Record our pledge before Thee that we will exalt the things of the spirit. Amen.

BO BROADWAY ..... By Joseph Van Raalte

NEW YORK. (EFS)—George Jean Nathan is in anguish. For five years he has been carefully collecting additional items for "The American Credo," that compilation of the falacies believed in by the mass of people of this country. Learned savants from the late Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, to professors in western universities, from amateur anthropologists to newspaper men, have been sending him items for the revised edition. He thought all the returns were in. He, himself, could not think of another article of the credo. He sifted his material from hundreds of letters. He sent the manuscript for the revised edition to the printer. He read proofs and could think of no more. The book is just off the press, and although it is not yet ready for distribution, it is too late to make changes in it. And it has just occurred to Nathan that he and his collaborators have forgotten two of the most obvious items in the credo. They are:

That Chinamen eat rats, and That to walk on dewy grass in one's bare feet in beneficial to one's health.

* * *

With Nathan's learned work in mind, I submit the following items toward the complete credo of the average New Yorker as distinct from the credo of residents of other cities:

1. That Philadelphia is so dull and slow a town that the average citizen there doesn't know the Civil war is over yet.

2. That the residents of Boston live exclusively on beans and codfish and that even street car conductors and coal heavers there use five syllable words and talk like a page out of Emerson's essays.

3. That bandits with machine guns every day race up and down Michigan avenue and State street in Chicago, killing off large numbers of the inhabitants.

4. That Kalamazoo, Mich., which is a great manufacturing city, must, because of its name, be a jerk-water town.

5. That Texans and Oklahomans all wear chaps and sombreros and carry two pistols in holsters on the outside of their clothes.

6. That there is a daily lynching in every city in the south, but because of influence, the fact doesn't get into the newspapers.

7. That the movie colony at Hollywood is entirely given over to debauchery, with champagne revels and nude dancing at dozens of parties every night.

8. That the patrons of New York night clubs are exclusively out-of-town buyers who are painting the town red on company expense accounts.

9. That all of the head-waiters in New York hotels are millionaire apartment house owners from money received in tips.

10. That the only people who ever go to the Aquarium, the Bronx zoo, the Woolworth tower, the Statue of Liberty, or the Metropolitan museum are hicks.

11. That because the subway trains roar so much they are fast. (N. B. The fastest subway express trains never go over 26 miles an hour, which is about eight miles an hour slower than the elevated trains of Chicago.)

12. That mosquitoes grow as big as jay-birds in New Jersey.

13. That the residents of Milwaukee have never heard of prohibition and that beer saloons, serving the finest brew, run openly there in all parts of the city.

14. That all the males in Louisville, Ky., were colonels in the Civil war, wear long white mustaches and white Stetson hats, and say, "suh" every other word.

15. That the Creole ladies of New Orleans are something like the hotsie-totsie negro entertainers in Harlem dives, only better looking.

16. That all the blind beggars on the streets of New York have excellent eye-sight and at the end of the day's work, drive home in limousines.

17. That the president of a bank in Kansas City or the head of a manufacturing plant in Detroit is flattered if you pretend to him that, instead of living in New York, you would much prefer to be slopping the pigs on a farm in the middlewest, implying that that is the occupation normally engaged in by the banker or manufacturer.

18. That there are no flies or mosquitoes on Manhattan island.

19. That people who have mansions on Fifth avenue never live there.

20. That all of the Japanese students (and Chinese, Siamese, Malay students also) are Japanese spies.

21. That the pictures published in the tabloids are always authentic.

AMERICANS HAVE BANANAS

A plantation that will produce 4,000,000 bunches of bananas a year is to be developed by Americans in Panama, the project having just been approved by the Panama government. The plans include the cultivation of nearly 40,000 acres, construction of a railroad 40 miles long, a concrete wharf, oil storage tanks and employes, quarters and development of an elaborate irrigation system. More than $9,000,000 will be spent on the project.

SOUTHERN AURORA SEEN

One of the most brilliant displays of the Aurora Australias ever seen lit up the southwestern sky of New South Wales recently. As reported from Christchurch, early in the morning the sky was almost dazzling with a white light like that of a distant searchlight display. It was also visible the night of the same day. Two nights before, the magnetic observatory recorded a permanent aurora which was not visible to the naked eye, but was one of the strongest ever recorded there in many years.

The ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

Through desire a man, having separated himself, seeketh the intermeddleth with all wisdom.

A fool hath no delight in understanding, but that his heart may discover itself.

When the wicked cometh, then cometh also contempt, and with ignominy reproach.

The words of a man's mouth are as deep waters, and the wellspring of wisdom as a flowing brook.—Proverbs 18:1-4.

Cook Parole Fought

Freedom on parole of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, explorer and fake oil stock seller, from Leavenworth prison is being fought by government attorneys. They question authority of U. S. Judge J. C. Wilson, Fort Worth, Texas, where Cook was convicted, of granting the defrauder probation. Cook is shown heaped with "North Pole" laurels.

"Frothblowers" Aid Waifs

Organized last June, the Ancient Order of Frothblowers already has 200,000 members in England and has raised tens of thousands of dollars to help waifs in London slums. A life-membership costs $1.25 and for this a member receives a pair of silver cuff buttons and a book of novel rules. Blowers, when meeting each other, have to display their links when ordered to "shoot your linen." If they cannot, they must set up the drinks to other blowers present or pay a fine which goes to charity. Lodges are called "vats," an ordinary member who enrolls 25 new members becomes a "Blaster" and one who enlists 100 new blowers is a "Tornado." Women have just become eligible and they are classed as "Fairy Belles." Canadians are taking a great interest in the new organization.

Underwood & Underwood

Loveliest of all spectacles offered by Washington at this time of year is the bursting into bloom of the cherry trees which line the park before the Lincoln memorial. Their delicate beauty makes a beautiful setting for the massive structure of Lincoln shrine seen in the middle distance between the blossoming branches.

KID DUGAN By Dick Dorgan

Friend Al—

Maybe you saw in the papers that Mack had asked for waivers on me for taking a punch at Cobb, and it was worth it and between you and me I ain't sorry to get off that club anyhow because this bird Mack would make Harry Lauder look like a gift horse. The softest thing about him is his teeth. He hires a fellow to cut the ham for the sandwiches we had the other day with a razor. Each sandwich has a piece as big as a hangnail. This bird could take one ham and feed the U. S. Army. Mack is holding onto Cobb because he thinks he'll draw more suckers into his customers' trap. I'll probably go with the Yanks.

Yours as usual,
Jack Keefe.

MID-WEEK FOOD NEWS

LUNCH BOX APPETIZERS

By CAROLINE B. KING
Culinary expert and lecturer on household science.

Biscuit Chicken Sandwiches

Make baking powder biscuits cutting them rather larger than usual, bake in a hot oven. Split, butter and spread with chopped chicken, mixed with a very little white sauce well seasoned. Put together in sandwich fashion and wrap when cool in parafin paper. Ham or any preferred meat may be used in place of chicken.

Prune Rice Puddings

Wash a tablespoonful of rice and cover with a quart of milk, place in a moderate oven, in half an hour add one-half cupful sugar, one-half teaspoonful vanilla and one-half teaspoonful salt. Stir and cook slowly for an hour then add a cupful of prunes cooked in the usual manner, then drain, pit, and cut in small pieces. Continue baking one hour longer. For the lunch box fill paper drinking cups with the pudding when cold, sift a little powdered sugar over the top, and cover with parafin paper.

Peanut Butter and Lettuce Sandwiches

Spread thinly sliced whole wheat or graham bread lightly with peanut butter, and arrange lettuce leaves, washed and carefully dried, on half the slices. Put together sandwich fashion, press lightly and wrap in paraffin paper.

Stuffed Eggs

Hard cook the eggs, and drop them in cold water, remove shells and cut in halves lengthwise. Take out the yolks and chop fine, adding any cold ham or bacon that may be at hand. Salmon or sardines may also be used. Season nicely and moisten with a little mayonnaise. Fill the cavities in the eggs, and put the halves together, wrap in paraffin paper, twisting the ends slightly to hold firmly.

Pickled Prunes

Wash and soak one pound of prunes in a quart of cold water, then place over the fire in the same water, adding the juice of a lemon and the thinly pared rind; also six cloves and a small piece of stick cinnamon. Simmer one hour, then add a cupful of sugar and one-fourth cupful of vinegar. Continue to cook for 15 minutes longer. Remove the spices when the prunes are done.

Brown Sugar Cookies

Cream a cupful of butter with two cupfuls of brown sugar, add a teaspoonful of vanilla, two well beaten eggs, one-third cup of milk in which three-fourths teaspoonful of soda is dissolved, and add gradually three cupfuls of flour. Drop by spoonfuls on buttered tins, bake in a moderate oven. A cup of chopped black walnuts or other nutmeats may be added to this recipe for variety.

When given proper care, dried fruits may be almost completely restored to their original color and flavor by the home manager.

All dried fruits should be kept in a cool, dry place. It is best in preparing dehydrated fruits to set them to soak over night, not for merely an hour or two. Not only are dried fruits convenient and economical, due to the minimized loss by spoilage and wasting, but, with the exception of vitamines, they contain all of the nutritive qualities of fresh fruit. The following recipes show how dried fruits may be used in combination with other foods:

Apricot Cobbler

1 quart of cooked dried apricots, sweetened
2 cups bread flour
6 tbsp. fat
1 tsp. salt
4 tsps. baking powder
1-4 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1-2 cup ice water

Sift the flour with the baking powder and salt. Chop the fat into flour until the particles are the size of small peas. Add the diluted milk and mix as quickly as possible. After the flour disappears, stir three or four times vigorously. Toss on to a slightly floured board. Knead lightly for a minute to obtain a smooth surface, as one would biscuit. Roll out to one-fourth of an inch in thickness. Lay in a pan half the size of the dough, allowing for overlapping on two sides. Pour in the sweetened fruit. Dot over top with bits of butter. Fold the overhanging dough over top of fruit, bringing the edges just together. Prick with a fork to prevent formation of air bubbles. Bake in a 425 degrees F. oven about 45 minutes.

Stuffed Prunes

1 pound prunes
Nuts
Candied ginger
Fondant

Wash prunes and soak in just enough water to cover. Steam until soft enough to pierce easily. Make a clean cut in the side of each prune to remove stone. Fill the cavity according to taste, with fondant, crystalized ginger, nuts or marshmallows. Roll in granulated sugar and let dry a few hours before packing.

Apricot Whip

1 1-2 cups chopped cooked dried apricots
1 1-2 tbsp. of lemon juice
Sugar to suit the taste
1-2 cup evaporated milk combined with 1-2 cup of 40 per cent whipping cream
Pinch of salt

Add lemon juice, sugar and salt to prunes. Chill and whip milk-cream mixture, then fold in chopped apricots. Keep chilled until ready to serve. This serves six.

Mock Cherry Pie

FILLING

1 1-2 cups soaked dried cranberries
1 1-2 cups raisins
Few drops almond flavoring
1 cup sugar

PASTRY

2 cups pastry flour
1-3 cup cold fat
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsp. evaporated milk diluted with—
4 tbsp. cold water.

Make the pastry in the usual way. Line a large, deep pan with paste, then fill with cranberries and raisins. Sprinkle sugar over the top, add few drops almond flavoring. Moisten rim of lower crust and be sure to press edges of upper and lower crusts firmly together. Bake in a 425 degree F. oven. Makes one pie.

Fig Pudding

2 cups graham flour
1 cup molasses
1-2 cup evaporated milk
1-2 cup hot water
1 tsp. soda
1 tsp. cinnamon
1-4 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. butter
1-2 cup stewed dried figs pressed through sieve.

Pour hot water over butter and molasses. Add soda, cinnamon and salt, mix wel land add evaporated milk. Add graham flour and with last few stirs add the strained figs. Steam two hours in buttered pudding moulds. Serve immediately, or reheat in steamer when ready to use. Serve with whipped cream sauce or any pudding sauce. Yield: Two puddings or 12 servings.

Whipped Cream Sauce

1 cup cream
3-4 cup powdered sugar.
2-3 cup evaporated milk
Few grains salt.

Combine the exporated milk and cream. Chill, then whip until stiff. Add the sugar and salt. Keep in refrigerator until ready to use.

Date Drops

1 cup sugar
3-4 cup pastry flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1 cup chopped dates
1 cup chopped nuts
1-4 tsp. salt
2 eggs beaten.

USES OF SOUP STOCK MEATS

C. I. A. Experts Give Recipes For New Dishes

DENTON, April 2.—The idea is quite general that meat that has been used in the preparation of soup stock has lost all its nutritive value and therefore is thrown away. This is a mistake, according to an expert in the household arts department of the College of Industrial Arts, and should be corrected as most of the nutrients are insoluble. There are many uses for such meats where flavor can be added and an appetizing dish prepared. Meat croquettes are always popular and easily prepared, and meat pie with a biscuit crust, a potato crust or a crust of boiled rice is also appetizing. If this were done, the stock would become the by-product as it really should be.

Bean Roast

Two cups dried lima beans, one cup dry bread crumbs, one cup rice stock or other liquid, one tablespoon celery leaves or seed; one-half cup nut meats may be added, two teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, four tablespoons peanut butter, one tablespoon bacon fat, two tablespoons grated onion.

Wash, soak and cook beans 45 to 60 minutes. Drain; when cool, chop coarsely and add crumbs and all other ingredients. Put into greased bread pan and bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

Beef Stock

Two pounds meat, one-third bone and fat, two-thirds lean, one-half teaspoon celery seed, two cloves, one-half bay leaf, five pepper corns, two quarts cold water, two and one-half teaspoons salt.

Cut one-third of the meat and fat into small pieces; crack the bone. Fry out some of the fat and brown the meat in fat. Put all the meat in a kettle, add the seasoning and water; cover, and allow to soak one hour. Then cook below boiling temperature for three hours; strain through a coarse strainer. Set aside to cool. If the fat has been allowed to solidify, skim it from the surface when the stock is to be used.

Trimmings and bones of fresh meat and pieces of roast or unused meat may be cut into small pieces and used for soup stock. No smoked or charred pieces of meat or bone should be used, however. (stock may be colored with caramel, provided the sugar has been cooked sufficiently to lose its sweetness).

Meat Pie

Use left-over meat and vegetables from making soup stock. Place in baking dis hand add broth slightly thickened with flour. Cover with mashed potatoes or boiled rice and brown in the oven.

FIGHTS EPIDEMIC

While the Swedish steamer Boren was passing through the Solomon Islands on its present journey, it was stopped by a canoe which contained natives and the sole white occupant of Stuart Island, who asked for medicine to fight an epidemic that was raging on the island. The man said that he was stationed on the tiny islet in the archipelago by a trading company, and that he had charge of 190 natives. The only communication that he had with the outside world was the visit every four or six months of a boat with provisions from Tugali, principal town of the Solomons. To connect with the Boren he had had to take the risk of venturing in the canoe several miles into the open sea. The Boren supplied the medicine and notified Tulagi of the epidemic.

CITY STOPS TAXI "RLOLING"

To relieve traffic congestion, Berlin is endeavoring to stop solicitation, or "rolling" as it is called in the trade vernacular of this country, by taxi drivers. Taxis are assigned to stands in a central parking space and respond only when called. The city has installed 50 telephone stands along the sidewalks so that patrons may easily summon the cabs. Telephone subscribers say the new system is much more satisfacory than the old.

SEEK $100,000,000 ESTATE

That they have a right to a large share of an estate in Liverpool, valued at $100,000,000, has just been learned by a family in Linwood, N. Z. So hopeful are they that a father and son are now on the way to England to prove their claim. Those interested are John Tabley, a tanner, and Mrs. M. Shaw, all of Linwood. The estate is said to have an income of $5,000,000 a year and dates back to the gift in 1335 of crown lands by Edward III to Gilbert Ford, ancester of the Tableys. Information of their possible windfall came to the New Zealand people through the activities of a man named Horrodson, who in two years' investigation uncovered a claim against the Tabley estate.

ICE 150,00 YEARS OLD FOUND

Ice believed to have been formed 150,000 years ago when Russia and all Northern Europe were covered with the wintry coating, has been found in a cave recently discovered in the Ural mountains. The cave is 26 miles long and is festooned with glistening icicles. The roof is a mass of snow crystals that reflect the colors of the rainbow, and they are many grottoes. Objects dating from the time of the Persian King Cyrus were found nearby.

Distinct as the separate notes of a song . . .

these flavors that are mingled

WHAT WOMAN has not known this thrill? When the success of some new dish is certain—when the family lingers at table and forgets to hurry.

Back of it all, no single thing she merely bought—but her own handiwork: a linking of taste to taste, to create some wholly new delight.

"Seldom," writes one noted authority, "does our greatest pleasure come from foods just as nature yields them." How true this is of one food we all enjoy!

From many distant lands, hundreds of different kinds and grades of coffee have been brought to us for years. Flavors in some as distinct as the separate notes of a song. Others with differences almost too fine to taste.

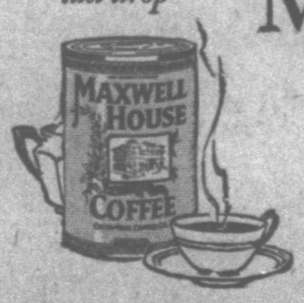

Yet no one of these has ever pleased the critical people throughout the entire country. It is a rich mingling of flavors—a special blend from the old South that has won the first real nation-wide fame that ever came to a coffee.

The special shade of mellow goodness which was created years ago in old Tennessee, is today swiftly changing the habits of a nation. From New York to Los Angeles, Maxwell House Coffee is pleasing more people than any other coffee ever offered for sale.

When you pour your first cup of this blend, when you first taste its mellow liquor, you will realize why Maxwell House Coffee has become so famous.

LESTER SHOWS FORM AS YANS SLAM VARSITY

Buvid and Buster Booked For Nine-Inning Imbroglio This Afternoon

Manager Carl Williams upped and surprised ardent rail worms Tuesday at the orchard by running the Spudders through a seven-inning intra-squad melee. Thowing arms of Lester White and Moorefield were pretty right. At least, Long Beach whizzed 'em by the Varsity mean enough to score a 6-2 victory for the freshmen. Frosh, including the veteran Carl at first base, whipped up on the regulars right merrily. Base hits weren't so frequent, yet they were not infrequent either. For instance, Buster Ross, waging a noble left-handed game in center field with the fish crew whopped out a couple and had lots to do with the licking registered on the regs. White whammed one himself. Kimbrough and Benton pelted Moorefield for one apiece. Lapan punched out a couple, as per usual. Apparently Pete loves those base blows. They can't get him—hardly, anyhow. The manager, himself, beside making a bang-up job of it at first base, got a hit, stole a base and scored a run. He came to bat two times. Benton may find himself in a tough break as a utility man if LaFayette ever gets crippled or something, for the skipper more than likely will hog everything and play first himself. He'd almost rather do that than pitch.

Turgeon, Swenson, Jenkins and Tobin hit a few with the varsity nine, but most of the great work of the afternoon was knocked off by the skipper's gang.

A full nine-inning game is billed for Wednesday afternoon, starting somewhere around 2 o'clock, said Williams. Buvid and Ross are booked for the box.

DALLAS, April 5. (AP)—The Dallas Steers evened the series with the Detroit Tigers today by taking the best game of the series 4 to 2. Montgomery, Tivis Bickley and Bartie Crass of Electra all of them are members of the Wichita District Coursing association, to put on a series of rabbit races near Electra about April 15. They hope to secure the plat of land adjoining the North Side Dairy Farm on the south, which is two miles north of Electra and conveniently located near the pavement. This will be fitted up for use in races which they hope to put on about April 15.

SPORT-A-LA-CARTE

We received in the morning mail, a little note of interest from old Leo Flynn. Leo used to do his stuff at the Garden until golf got the best of him and he lost his job.

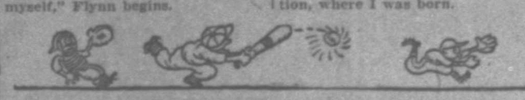

Now he's back at the ringside, where he started, telling the boys what to use next.

"No, I do not know who is entitled to the distinction of digging up the most hick towns, the advance agent for the 'Barnm and Bailey circus, Sells-Floto circus of myself," Flynn begins.

"At time I was the matchmaker for five other clubs, one in New York and four in other cities, Boston, Rochester, Albany and Trenton, besdes managing 42 fighters.

Made $2500 a Week.

"I was making in the neighborhood of $2500 a week. I lived in the same place, 328 E. 14th street, the place that I moved into on one bright morning when I was washed in on those shores from the state of Rhode Island, Providence plantation, where I was born.

Ruth has signed his contract
And hit a circut clout;
Now we'll buy a ticket,
And watch the BUM strike out.

"I have traveled all the way from Kennybank, Me., to Blue Hills, W. Va., from the rockbound coast of Maine to the golden gate of California, with tin-eared fighters for the last 25 years. They have been good, bad and indifferent. There is no hamlet that has been too small in the past for me to bring a fighter into, and very few that I have not hit just once over my checkered career.

"I went from managing a $6 fighter, for whom I had to pay $1 for my admission before I would be allowed to second him, to the pinnacle of making matches in the world's greatest temple of fisticuffs, Madison Square Garden, for two years.

"My rent for my home, my office, cook, maid, stenographers, etc., cost me $17 a month for the very good reason that my wife and myself capably filled the aforementioned positions.

"You see I lived in the one house for about 23 years, had charge of the rents and all that sort of thing, therefore, from the time that I took the apartment until I left in 1921 there never was any change in the rental.

All Got K. O'd

"Many remember me as the old barnstormer king of the circut.

"I have hung up a number of new records. In 1916 on Thanksgiving day I was then managing 19 fighters. I matched 17 of them in 17 different towns, a record for all times for managers, and was successful in having each and everyone of them knocked out but two who were sick with the grippe.

"I have made over $200,000 in the boxing game, and unlike Gibson, Morgan, Johnson, Harvey, Jack Daugherty and others too numerous to mention, I still have mine very nearly all intact.

"In the last three years golf got the better of me, and until my attention was drawn to the fact that 'Boo Boo Hoff,' a new and enterprising young mnager from Philadelphia, had passed me in the turn with one more fighter than I had, and was slowly but surely corraling my barnstorming spots.

"I immediately laid the golf clubs aside and I once more passed Boo Boo, having two more fighters than he, a total of 28, with representatives in Boston, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Cuba, England, France and New England."

Farmer Athletes Work Overtime

COLLEGE STATION, April 5. (AP)—The next seven days will be the busiest of the year for A. and M. college in an athletic way. Friday and Saturday Coach Rothgeb's baseball nine will receive a real test against S. M. U. in Dallas, while Monday and Tuesday they will move over to Fort Worth for a couple of games with the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs. Saturday Coach Frank Anderson's track team inspired by its splendid showing against the University of Texas Longhorns last Saturday will meet the S. M. U. squad here. On the same day the Aggie tennis team will encounter the Rice Owls in Houston.

The Aggie golf team, which won the team championship last year, will play S. M. U. at Dallas Monday. The Aggie freshman ball team, coached by Johnny Bender, will oppose Allen academy of Bryan Thursday and Marlin high school here Friday and Saturday. The A. and M. freshmen track team will meet the Allen academy squad either Thursday or Monday.

BUCKY RECONCILED

WASHINGTON, April 5. (AP)—With the opening of the big league season just a little more than a week away Manager "Bucky" Harris is becoming reconciled to the fact that he will be forced to direct the Washington club from the sidelines for a time at least. An injured finger is healing, but slowly, and although every effort has been made to hasten matters, there appears but little chance of it permitting him to play.

Dempsey Wins In First Legal Foray

TRENTON, N. J., April 5. (AP)—Jack Dempsey today won the first skirmish of his legal fight against his former manager, Jack Kearns, when federal Judge Bodine refused to set a date for trial of Kearns' breach of contract suit for $600,000.

Judge Bodine denied a defense motion that the suit be stayed indefinitely until two New York suits based on the same charges are settled, but at the same time threw out a plaintiff's motion that the case be tried in the federal district court here on April 12. The judge said the suit is of such a nature that it should be tried by a jury in a law court, and not in equity.

FINK SUSPENDED

Routis Catches Air For Foul; Risko in Good Graces Again.

NEW YORK, April 5. (AP)—Frankie Fink, Texas featherweight was indefinitely suspended by the state athletic commission Tuesday for failure to fulfill a weight agreement. Andre Routis, French featherweight, was suspended for fouling Joe Salas, Los Angeles, last Friday at Madison Square Garden.

Johnny Risko of Cleveland, under suspension for fouling Jimmy Slattery in a light heavyweight bout at Buffalo, N. Y., last week, was granted permission to box Romeo Rojas, Chilean heavyweight, at Wilkes Barre, Pa., on April 19.

Twilight Park Almost Assured

16 of 22 Fence Ads Sell In Double Quick Time

That the Wichita Falls Twilight league, amateur baseball organization, will successfully construct and pay for its new park with ease inside of the next few weeks, seemed assured Tuesday. At least, so said league and team officials.

In raising funds to partially pay for construction of the park which is to be located on a plot near the Panhandle refinery on the Burk road, the league already has sold 16 of 22 fence advertisements. The heavy salesmanship display has been put on by Doc Kelly of the Electrics, Prez. L. O. Landon, Hoehn of the Panhandle, Brown of the American Eagles and Lawson of the Conocos.

If present plans go through, construction is to begin next week.

ELECTRICS GET DOWN TO WORK

None of the teams is allowing the new park business to distract attention from daily conditioning sessions. All four teams are working away diligently. Charley Spragins has lined up a tough starting squad with the Texas Electric Service company. His pitchers are Kollman, Andree and Murrell. Ross, Buss and Wolford compose the receiving set.

Tentatively at first base is Cox, Allen at second, Deems at short, Gantner at third, Blue in left field, Dick Gordon in center and Coolidge in right. Kurkendall is out for first base and three other outfielders, Sparks, Beck and Clary, are on deck

RUTH WHACKS BALL HEAVILY

But He's Behind His Old Quota of Honors

NEW YORK, April 5. (AP)—Batting punch, the chief factor in the pennant triumphs of the Yankees and Cardinals last year, will keep the two championship clubs in the thick of the 1927 races, observers seem agreed.

The two batting heroes of the 1926 baseball classic, Babe Ruth and Tommy Thevenow, both have been finding the range, setting the pace for their team mates in slugging bees that have marked the last few games of the spring exhibition series.

Thevenow, a supposedly weak sticker, furnished the surprise of the struggle last fall by hitting over .400. Although kept at eighth place again this spring in the batting order, the young Cardinal shortstop has been clouting at a .500 clip.

Thevenow's stick work augments the heavy St. Louis artillery which already includes Frisch, Bottomley, Lester Bell, Southworth and O'Farrell.

Ruth hasn't bagged his customary spring quota of home runs but he has been netting the ball hard and often. His training season average is approximately .350. Earl Combs and Joe Dugan have been clouting at around a .400 clip.

Two veteran siege guns, Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby, give every indication of having one of their best seasons at bat while the Tigers, in Manush, Heilmann and Fothergill, have the heaviest outfield battery in either league, a trio that monopolized the 1926 American league batting race.

The loss of Ross Young's stick work to the Giants may be offset by the sensational work of Melvin Ott, 18-year-old Louisiana youth who jumped from high school to the major leagues last season.

If he measures up to his present promise, Ott will furnish another example of John McGraw's ability to plug his gaps with youthful stars. The Giant chieftain developed Frankie Frisch, just out of college, to fill Larry Doyle's shoes a half dozen years ago. In 1924, Freddy Lindstrom, 18 years old and just out of high school at Chicago, jumped into Heinie Groh's third base post and gained world's series fame.

MINNICK PLANS POLO TOURNEY

Wichita Falls Team to Enter Large Ranch Event

CROWELL, April 5.—At least nine teams will be entered in the polo tournament to be given by Jim Minnick, widely known polo player, at his ranch on the Wichita river, nine miles south of Crowell, starting April 23 and lasting nine days. Teams from practically every section of the southwest will compete. Teams that are practically sure of entering the tournament, according to Minnick are: University of Oklahoma, Norman; Wichita, Kansas; Ponca City, Okla.; Wichita Falls, Dallas, Crowell, Texas; and three army teams from Fort Reno, Okla.; Fort Sill, Okla., and Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

This event is probably the only ranch polo tournament held in the United States and attracted thousands of visitors at its inauguration last year when a two-day tournament was given with teams entered from Dallas, Wichita, Kan.; Tulsa, Okla., Wichita Falls and Crowell. Five thousand people were estimated to have seen the tournament on its second day, many of whom came hundreds of miles and from several states to witness the event. The tournament is not operated on a commercial basis and was given free of charge to everybody last year. Only a very small admission fee will be charged this year in order to take care of the expenses of several of the teams that will come for the tournament.

With such an excellent group of teams entered, the games during the tournament have prospects of being among the best ever played in the south and a number of nationally known players will take part in them. All games will be played under regular association rules and Minnick is especially desirous of having the tournament conducted on a strictly sporting basis and wishes to keep it free from betting that is common among horse races.

McCallum Hasn't Selected Entries

The Coyotes will journey to Norman this week-end and enter the Oklahoma relays. Just who will take the trip with the Coyotes has not been settled. Coaches McCallum and Hall will wait upon the eligibility reports before picking their men.

The big invitation track meet held here last week showed the strong and weak points up well and these are being smoothed over by the two coaches. The Coyotes expect to be in much better shape for the Oklahoma meet than they were the past week.

FEATHERSTON PURCHASES TWO NEW POLO PONIES.

CROWELL, April 5.—C. H. Featherston, captain of the Wichita Falls polo team that will enter the nine-day polo tournament to be given by Jim Minnick on his ranch nine miles south of Crowell, was in Crowell and purchased two fine polo ponies from Shirley and Offield, cattlemen and high class horse breeders of Foard county, Monday. Featherston is making every preparation for the tournament and expects to have a first class team to take part in the games.

Cobb Regrets Not Knowing Mack

Ty Cobb and his greatest friend, Connie Mack, of whom he says, "I never knew his true character." Below Cobb signing to play at one of the largest salaries ever offered a ball player, until Ruth signed.

By TYRUS RAYMOND COBB
As Told to
SID KEENER
Special Writer, Editors' Feature Service.

Before I have completed my story I want to talk about Mr. Connie Mack. Until I was invited by Mr. Mack to accept an offer from his ball club I had never known the true character of him.

We had been bitter enemies on the ball field. I gave everything I had to beat his ball club every time we met. We had had only casual talks when we met off the field, but since joining the Athletics, since coming in daily contact with him I want to say that baseball owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. Mack.

I regret deeply that I did not become associated with Mr. Mack earlier in my career.

I'll break a leg or an arm, I'll do anything to win a ball game for him next summer.

When I signed I heard outsiders say I would be hard to handle and that Mr. Mack would have troubles on his hands with me.

I reported on time for spring training, I have obeyed every rule and regulation on the club, and I did something for Mr. Mack I would never have done for anyone else

We had a ball game with the St. Louis Cardinals at Avon Park, Fla. I had a stiff back, contracting a cold while driving to Fort Myers from my home.

Open gossip was going around that Ty was stuck up this spring and would not play in the early games. For this game at Avon Park the town people had advertised my appearance extensively. I did not know it until we arrived and I was not scheduled to play in the game.

When Mr. Mack found out about the number of people who traveled to Avon Park to see me he asked if I would appear as a batter in the first inning and then retire.

Mr. Mack asked me to do something. I not only appeared as batter in the first inning but played five innings in that game when Mr. Mack told me I had enough.

I started my career with Detroit and I want to finish with Mr. Connie Mack.

Five games of the pay-as-you-enter type remain on the card. Then the session opens with our nine in Shreveport. Detroit here Thursday for a pair. Saturday, Sunday and Monday it's Des Moines. Tuesday the trek to Louisiana. Wednesday Jefferson's birthday. That's all.

Somehow or other, whether unconsciously or what, they're figuring George LaFayette over the circuit as a lefthander. Hardly a foreign sports page in the state but that with the usual form 36, stock 7, class ABC pre-season review has alluded to George as a portsider. Funny thing is George isn't any newcomer but has been seen in action by every scrivener in the league.

Williams attributes the slight miscalculation among the expert-ing gents to purported fact George make his plays so rapidly nobody can tell which he is. George yurbles, "Maybe as how they're merely trying to accuse me of being a lefthanded thinker. Well, maybe I do look that way some times."

Corporal Gardner arises in correct ballyhoo posture to announce that "we're the first Texas league club who'll see the Detroit squad in its entirety. The whole 42 of 'em will be together and it isn't going to be any half-and-half team we play with."

MINGLE WITH CELEBRITIES

Lest the rabid microbe overlook, the corporal extempores sufficiently further to recall that three of the nation's batting idols compose the Bengallan outer works, will squint at Spudder pitching and will hawk the ball lambasted, if any, by our nine. They are Manush, Heilmann and Fothergill.

Texas figured Bill Mullen was the greatest third baseman to ever move up out of the league, but Warner chased Bill off the job with Moriarty's men. Several Texans, incidentally, with the Detroiters, Woodall, former Cat catcher; Tavener and Devireros, the infielders; Stoner, Walkup, Johns and the irrepressible Rip Collins, throwers.

Marty McManus is gazed upon as one of the greatest keystoners in the world. So much more for the ballyhoo. Merwin Shea, the hindketch, has one of the greatest arms in the game when it isn't sore, according to Williams and LaFayette who, played with him on the coast, only matter being it is sore at present, confesses press dispatch. But he's a wonder, this Shea, shay (I mean say) George and the pilot. Put second base back as far again and he'll never know the difference. Just go on and bee-line her to the bag. Wham! Your time.

INDIANS BILLED FOR NO. THREE

McCallister Can't Go Higher, Says Slocum

By BILL SLOCUM
Universal Service Staff Correspondent
(This is one of a series of articles by W. J. Slocum on probable finish of the American league race this year).

ATLANTA, Ga., April 5.—When the 1926 pennant race ended in the American league, with the Yankees staggering in to victory and the Cleveland Indians all but on their backs, fandom in general believed that Tris Speaker's club would be out in front if the race had another week to go. The Yankees had stored some reserve victories away in two earlier winning streaks and this extra store beat the Indians.

Not So Impressive

The Indians of 1927 shape up as an interesting aggregation, carrying some very good pitching talent and strong enough to be an afternoon's work for any ball club. At the same time the club does not impress as the Indians of 1926 impressed. If Jack McCallister finishes as high as third next October his rule must be considered as highly successful.

McCallister has plenty of outfielders, but to date he has not been able to satisfy himself in regard to Tris Speaker's successor.

Jamieson and Summa

Speaker is the only loss, but a big one, not alone on defense but on the attack as well.

Uhle, the most successful pitcher in the majors last year, tops the mound force, with Levsen and Shaute as very capable assistants, and the veteran Sherry Smith at an age where he is doubtful quantity. Miller, Karr, Buckeye and Hudlin for the secondary squad of pitchers, but it is on Uhle, Levsen and Shaute the real burden of the club's success must rest.

Sewell Catching Mainstay

Luke Sewell will do most of the catching with Myatt as assistant and Autry for the third place.

The infield remains unchanged. Burns, not the best fielder among first basemen, is a competent workman and a powerful hitter. Joe Sewell at short is one of the bright all-around stars of the league. Spurgeon, the youngster at second, should be even better than in 1926 when he fielded well and hit well. Lutzke at third, is a flashy fielder who lacks the hitting ability of his mates. Hodapp, Padgett and Usatt are the reserves.

Marathon Golfer Lands In Santone

SAN ANTONIO, April 5. (AP)—Doc Grahame of Mobile, Ala., and his caddie, "Happy" Kirby, also of the Alabama metropolis, are in San Antonio today just about a third of the way down the "fairway" of the longest golf "hole" ever played.

Grahame, attempting to drive a golf ball from Mobile to Los Angeles, Calif., pitched to the edge of the Salado river on the old Spanish trail shortly before 5 o'clock Monday evening and trudged on into San Antonio to make arrangements for getting through the "traffic hazards." His 30,930th shot carefully marked, he prepared with his caddie to spend a day or two in "recreation," consisting of 36 holes per diem on the Willow Springs Golf club course in company with Professional Archie Loeffler.

Ball number 196 nestles in the roadside brush while Grahame, the marathon golfer, rests up on the links. He has lost 195 pellets in covering the 850 miles from Mobile to San Antonio.

"But losing balls is the least of our worries," said Grahame Tuesday morning. "I've had to buy only four so far."

The two expect to reach El Paso in about two weeks.

GRIP FINISHES GORILLA IN ONE FALL BUT GORMAN GOES LIMIT TO DEFEAT MEXICAN WELTER

By BLONDY CROSS

The great C. Grip retrieved to an extent Tuesday evening at the Palace prestige jarred to the four corners of the ring the week before when one wee Jackie Reynolds bounced his bald knob on the floor and scored a dirty setback against the Buffalo brute-man.

And Jack Gorman, San Angelo's flashy welterweight, who seems by degrees to be regaining favor with Wichita Falls fandom that once was his galore, scored another victory notch in his wrestling belt.

Not So Rough

Grip crowned Gorilla Cossu, the wild, self-admittedly wierd Wop from Detroit, who looked fairly weird, all right, but not as wild as expected, in a match that was so clean the only modifying syllables appropriate are banded together in the term immaculate. The great Grip wrestled, nicely, gentlemanly, and even did himself up so brown as to overflow with a startling display of general good sportsmanship—quite a reversal for the Buffalo bullet-head. Cossu, who they said is rough and tough, showed himself to be tough, that's all. He gave Charles a royal but soggy battle for the better portion of 48 minutes and then after applying a series of headlocks to an apparently quite gooty foe, ran afoul of the inevitable body slam, inevitable with but small reservation where Charles G. is concerned. Grip, with a crotch and neck hold, hoisted his apish adversary high into the atmosphere, turned him upside down and whammed him on the base of the cranium. The smash settled the evening's entertainment for Gorilla. He decided that under the circumstances it would be very poor judgment to return for more trouble in a crippled condition, one shoulder being almost shaken loose from its anchorage.

Gonzales Wiry,

Gorman found Cocchasa Gonzales, the Mexican welter, slippery as an eel and wiggly as a snake, a rugged athlete, one who can give and take and who is difficult as a cat to flop flat.

Mexico tagged an early triumph but not a lasting one when he copped the opening fall in 21 minutes with a reverse flying headlock. The fall came as a sharp surprise, for both men had been mixing it up freely and easily with neither appearing the worse for wear. Cocchaso after falling in several flying mare gestures, suddenly shifted to the head hold and had Jack pinned before the latter knew exactly what had occurred, if at all.

The sturdy Gorman came back strong and not the least abashed. He ripped into Cocchaso with gusto. Spanked the swarthy-hided athlete af a reckless gait and heaved him overboard once. Cocchaso, it seems made the mistake of pulling Jack's hair or something. The going immediately got rough, but not near as rough as Mr. Gorman has known to be.

Yap On, Yokels

About this time, also, some of the gallery oafs took umbrage at the third man in the ring over some trifle or other. Surely it was a trifle, the leather-lunged boys don't grab time sufficient to cogitate over any weighty matters, but blindly bleat their insignificant wails at such a loud and staccato gait that it is safe to hazard neither can their neighbors concentrate on any point of importance should they desire. Heh, heh, lissen to 'em yap. Now guess who the referee was.

Gorman won the second with a slambang attack in 16 minutes after bouncing his opponent groggy and all but having him pinned for the full three seconds twice before. The Mex boasts a rolling pair of shoulders.

Jack tagged the deciding fall in 15 minutes by the same route, the slam. Almost everything had a slam to it Tuesday night, including the gallery yurps and the way Matchmaker A. B. Ross announced election returns.

Lure of Pirate Gold Costs Millions As Syndicate Dig Sand For Treasure

By Universal Service.

BOSTON, April 5.—More than $20,000,000 expended in efforts to extract the buried golds of pirates from the bowels of the earth. And less than $200,000 drawn out of the terra firma. That's the record of the northern New England and Canadian seaboards.

Now, in Boston, an attempt to locate some of the gold, is being organized. Several treasure seeking groups are being organized on comprehensive scales in New York. At least one syndicate is being formed in Chicago and another operating out of Cleveland.

Captain John MacKenzie, who has prospected for the hidden treasure of Captain Kidd and his contemporaries in buccaneering off and on, chiefly on, for about 35 years, is now endeavoring to organize a big plan for recovery of the gold.

Millions In Gold

MacKenzie is convinced there are millions in gold buried on the islands and the mainland at the mouth of the Bay of Fundy. He has prospected there at various times but found notning. He is convinced, however, the gold is there but modern equipment is necessary to recover it. So, he is striving to form a company, with a working capital of not less than $500,000. A schooner will be acquired, the best of excavating machinery purchased and a number of buildings constructed.

MacKenzie says he will risk all he has on this big shot. And if he loses as usual, will return to fishing for keeps. But he is sure of locating the gold on this expedition.

A project in which at least $1,000,000 has been sunk without finding a trace of hidden treasure, has been a plan to dig gold out of Oak Island on the Nova Scotia shore. A company was financed in New York, and the stories of the promoters looked so plausible, there was little difficulty in acquiring $500,000 for the start in operations. A big schooner was purchased and outfitted. Expensive machinery for excavating including steam shovels, were bought. Millions of feet of lumber carried to the island and a number of buildings erected.

Extra Assessment

When the half million had been spent without locating even a single gold coin, assessments were made on the members of the syndicate, one following another, until another half million had been subscribed by those anxious to retrieve the first half million.

Now, the island is deserted, but one of the organizers of the plan is now active in New York endeavoring to finance another scheme to get the legendary pirate gold of Oak Island. He hopes to renew operations this year.

Some old note books claimed to have been used by Benedict Arnold, when he lived just over the Canadian border from Maine, including his stay on Campobello island, have fallen into the possession of Capt. MacKenzie. While the veteran treasure seeker has refused to discuss this angle, it is declared the note books reveal an intention of Arnold to dig for pirates' treasure on Campobello island, and containing information which the promoter of the expedition thinks is very valuable.

This is a small island about three miles from the mainland in Passamaquoddy Bay, and at the mouth of the bay of Fundy. Old fishermen living on the island and other islands nearby insist that Benedict Arnold was buried on Campobello and that he was trying to secure sufficient money to make a determined effort to retrieve the millions in gold when he died.

With no possibility of getting the money from the United States he had made several trips to England but had extreme difficulty in raising enough to start digging on a big scale.

Boy Finds Gold

While playfully digging into the sand on the shore of Shediac Bay, a boy uncovered several pieces of gold. They were less than eight feet below the surface.

The find has electrified the little village on the bay and has led to hundreds of men and women and children toiling day and night with picks, shovels, divining rods, and other hand equipment in the efforts to get more of the gold. The small find has whetted the appetites of the treasure seekers. A syndicate is now being organized to buy steam operated apparatus, and attempts are being made to raise the necessary money in New York and Boston.

The uncovering of a few pieces of quaint jewelry about six feet under the surface of Black river beach, has revived interest in that territory as a treasure seeking rendezvous. One find has been made there of approximately $25,000 in gold coins and ornaments. James Stanley made the find. He was a farmer who had abandoned agriculture for treasure seeking. His family was in dire poverty until he made the lucky strike. And he made it with a pick and shovel. While digging at night with a sputtering flame from a lantern, the only light, he came across a small iron box. Secretly, he removed the box to his home nearby, and then guarded it to Boston in a metal trunk.

Gets Into The Blood

As an illustration of how treasure seeking becomes embedded in the blood, is cited the case of George Edwards. He has organized three companies to dig for the buried gold, without a dollar returned. And yet he is now planning on re-opening his activities, and is now just as optimistic as when he made his debut in the game about 20 years ago.

What is absolutely needed to get gold out of the earth is powerful steam driven machinery, claim the promoters of the companies now being formed to dig for the gold. It is their contention the treasure has been sinking farther and farther into the earth, with the passing of the years. And such crude equipment as picks and shovels will accomplish nothing today.

WICHITA COMPANIES CO-OPERATING IN GOVERNMENT SURVEY

OFFICE SPACE GIVEN BY CITY

Gas Pressure Results Shown In Petrolia Comeback

Practically all companies and individuals approached thus far with requests for information to aid in the production survey being conducted by the bureau of mines in the North Texas field have responded with hearty co-operation, according to C. W. Clark, president of the North Texas Geological society which is sponsoring the survey.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd has granted the geological society permission to use offices in the city hall annex where H. B. Hill and C. E. Sutton of the Dallas office, bureau of mines, will maintain headquarters while collecting data here.

Most of the work by Hill and Sutton will be done in the city from the records in local offices although they have already visited the Texhoma-Goss field in Archer county which is the first area to be examined. When all necessary data has been collected on this field, the engineers will return to Dallas for compilation of a report, returning here later to extend the work into other fields.

Operators and company officials are highly elated that the survey has been started. While increased production is not the paramount item at present it is realized that artificial means of extraction oil will eventually be essential for North Texas to hold its present important position in the eyes of the industry.

PETROLIA FIELD COMING BACK.

North Texas' oldest field is coming back under pressure, reads the caption over an illustrated article by George Reid in a recent issue of the Oil Weekly.

Delving into the history of the Petrolia shallow field in North Clay county, Mr. Reid writes that in 1902 one Mr. L. Lockridge was boring with a small rig in search of water and at a depth of about 150 feet the horse manipulated drilling machine penetrated an oil bearing strata which produced no water.

This discovery marked the beginning of oil production in the area and in a few years the shallow production at Petrolia was brought to the surface through 400 or 500 small wells and for several years the 700 acres produced oil profitably. The average sand thickness is 15 feet, the article says.

In 1925, 23 years after the discovery of the field, about 250 wells were producing less than 100 barrels daily and it was then that Walter K. Campbell and Albert Crenshaw, both of Wichita Falls, decided to enter the territory with application of the plan of resaturating of the shallow sands with natural gas in an effort to further denude the strata of oil.

At the time of its inception and application the plan was possibly unique in oil producing history. In February 1926, the new operators began the insertion of dry gas into the oil bearing strata after securing the necessary long time leases on desired property.

The 700 acres proved to be particularly adaptable to this method of operation, being underlaid with sands of a continuous nature. The Lone Star Gas company conducts its dry gas in high pressure mains through the property and thus the necessary gas is easily accessible.

The method of resaturation as explained by Mr. Reid consists in entering the gas in the center of a group of wells into key wells which are evenly distributed in the field. At first the gas was forced in at 30 pounds pressure and increased to 70 but after the sand become somewhat saturated and production of oil had reached a desirable point, this pressure was reduced to 50 pounds and at the same time a reduction in the volume of gas was effected.

The sands, after about 12 months of receiving gas are not yet fully saturated and in addition to this it has been almost impossible to stop all of the old leaks due to improper plugging the old holes. For these reasons the operation may be said to consume about 30 to 40 per cent of the gas forced into the field.

The remaining 60 to 70 per cent of the original gas measured into the field is returned to the gas company's lines and again metered before delivery. As the saturation of the sand progresses the volume of returned gas increases and it is expected that in a few months the present consumption will be cut in half.

The 240 wells are now making approximately 400 barrels daily whereas one year ago the entire area was making less than 100 barrels.

Centralized power stations operate the familiar jack type pumping apparatus by means of pull rods and cable. In this manner a great number of wells are operated by a single power unit. Lifting costs are very low.

The writer states that he is indebted to W. K. Campbell and Albert Crenshaw for the privilege of inspecting their property.

ANOTHER FAILURE

TULSA, April 5.—Production in the Seminole pool decreased 1,000 barrels in the 24 hours ending Monday morning. The total production for this period was 529,460 barrels from 317 wells.

Another failure was reported in the Earlsboro pool when the Gypsy Oil company got a hole full of water in the Wilcox sand in its No. 1 Strain in the northeast corner of 17-9-5. The Wilcox sand was drilled from 4,319 to 4,329 feet. A half a mile south of this the Roxana Petroleum corporation drew a bad one Saturday, getting water in the Wilcox sand from 4,343 and 4,350 feet. This is the company's No. 1 Strain in the southeast of the northeast of 17-9-5.

News of The Fields

ARCO, PARKEY.

Arco Oil company and W. C. Young will drill out the plug Wednesday in their No. 1. J. R. Parkey in which pipe is cemented on a sand at 1758 feet. The test is located west of W. C. Young's production on the C. B. Abney land and in abstract 419, S. P. R. R. No. 1.

TED HARRIS, FARMER.

Ted Harris drilled out the plug at 1443-61 feet in his No. 2 L. F. Farmer in W. C. Winters survey, abstract 663, Archer county, and the well is swabbing at the rate of 89 barrels daily, making two nice producers for Harris on this lease.

BRIDWELL-HEYDRICK, DOCTOR HAMILTON.

Bridwell and Heydrick cored a sand at 921 to 924 feet in their No. 1 Dr. C. B. Hamilton in section 1480, T. E. and L. survey, Young county. The sand showed enough oil to warrant setting pipe to test.

FLUHMANN AREA.

Operations in the Fluhmann pool southwest of Vernon in Wilbarger county have been practically at a standstill for several weeks but preparations are being made to start a pair of tests there at the present time. The Gulf Production company is rigging up to drill its No. 4 Blackman in the W. A. McKinney survey. Fain-McGaha Oil company and Roxana Petroleum corporation, the discoverers, have made location and are rigging up for their No. 10, 232 feet south of No. 7 in section 20, block 9.

CONSOLIDATED-COSDEN, NORTH OF OLDHAM.

Consolidated Oil company and J. S. Cosden are spudding in their No. 1 Richardson, located north of the Oldham pool and in section 16, A. T. N. C. L. survey, in Archer county.

HOLLIDAY TOWNSITE.

The test of Guy J. Brown and United Producers company in the center of block 38, Holliday townsite, Archer county, and north of the townsite proper proved a severe disappointment to those who hoped for the opening of a townsite pool. The plug was drilled out and oceans of salt water curbed further operations. The hole was plugged at 1825 feet.

HUMBLE, WARD.

The Humble Oil and Refining company is drilling out the plug in its No 1. Ward estate in section 1379, T. E. and L. survey, south Archer. Sand in the test is at 1038-42 feet, several feet lower than the first wells.

HAMPTON TO HOUSTON.

H. Elwood Hampton, Humble Oil and Refining company geophysical department, is leaving Wednesday for Houston to visit friends. It is rumored among the higher ups (seventh floor) of the Bob Waggoner building that Elwood will take unto himself as a bride Miss Thelma Burger of Houston.

STAFF CHANGES

Roxana Shifts Employes On Opening New Plant.

Additional changes are being made in the personnel of the Roxana Petroleum corporation production offices here with the completion of the new natural gasoline plant in the Fluhmann pool of Wilbarger county.

E. N. Van Duzee, engineer who has been in charge of the pipe line construction for the new plant, has been transferred to West Texas fields. R. J. Gillon who has been in the local offices for some time goes to Vernon, or rather Paradise City, hustling metropolis of the Fluhmann field, where he will be in charge of the office at the new plant.

R. M. Berry finds himself with a valuable promotion in the shifting and is now assistant to the district superintendent in the local headquarters. L. A. McLain is here from Smackover, Ark., to succeed J. G. Sykes in the production offices. Sykes goes to Olney where he steps up to the position of chief gauger.

STOCKS CLOSE HIGHER PEAKS

General Uptrend Shown At Close of Day

BY BROADAN WALL.
Universal Service Financial Expert.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Stocks closed generally higher today. Steel and General Motors sold at new peaks and a good demand prevailed for the low priced stocks. Some of the issues which have been under selling pressure recently met better support. Public buying was reported on a larger scale in the cheap priced rails on merger possibilities. Buying of the junior rails at times was of large proportion and resulted in some stiff price advances.

Money loaned at 4 per cent. Brokers loans showed a decline, according to the stock exchange figures. Wheat and cotton were higher. Foreign exchanges, with the exception of the Italian lira, which sold at a new high level, was quiet.

The buying of steel continued on a large scale. Important developments are coming in steel. The deal is said to involve the acquisition and signing of an important contract which will have a far-reaching effect on the stock. On account of this development, unknown to the speculative element, Steel probably will be placed in a stronger position than ever before. Further developments are believed in a few days. What buying of the independent steel stocks have been in progress is based on the belief that if the coal strike is of long duration, it will mean an increase in pig iron rates and higher prices for steel shares.

General Motors and Hudson were strong. General Motors directors are not worried over what Durant may have up his sleeve. Rumors have it that he will probably do something for his stockholders who have been hung up with it in the shares for three or four years. Durant and Ford probably will get down to the motor business in earnest. Ford announced that he would quit the grocery business and Durant the stock market.

Western Maryland reached a new top and the preferred on the curb exchange rose six points. Atchison remained strong on the 75-cent extra cash dividend. This is believed to be a continuance of extra distributions by which the directors plan to reduce their large surplus cash holdings. Rock Island held steady. This stock is likely to regain its former position in the stock market as it did in former years by increasing dividends gradually. The company may give two shares for one and pay 7 per cent on the new stock.

Buying developed in Chicago and Alton. Stock of this road probably will fall into the treasury of some of the big southwestern lines. Alton is next in line to Missouri Pacific, St. Louis and as Chicago is the big distribution center of the United States, nothing would be more logical than the Chicago and Alton and one or two other roads being connected direct from St. Louis to Chicago. The same group active in other rails took "Katy" in hand as forecast in the column yesterday. At the close the stock was up approximately three points.

Frisco was quiet but this stock will be brought to the front. The company is expected to raise the dividend and to the course of events will put the stock 4% on the stock. It is expected to be the "Union Pacific of the Southwest." On account of its vast resources, the stock is being bought by oil magnates who are forming petroleum lands to all of the oil companies.

This group has sold in the last five years, it is estimated, approximately a billion dollars of properties of puffed up the funds into the stock. Frisco, it is predicted should sell at much higher prices. The group buying the stock will not to any way interfere with the successful management that has built up the property.

Bangood and Aroostook closed lower. Reports that the road and the Maine Central would merge were officially denied. Banks for the year of Bangor and Aroostook is said to be the increase in earnings and the prospects of larger revenues from traffic from the International Paper company's new sulphite mill in Aroostook county. Earnings in the first two months of this year are estimated at $3 a share compared with $8 for the whole year of 1926.

Short selling at New York Fox. The company purports to report earnings of $6.00 on the combined "A" and "B" stocks. Actual profits, it is said, equal $3.64 a share compared with $1.93 in the preceding fiscal year. To make the showing of $6.00 a share the company credited itself as "Additional earnings," with $1,304,533 on account of "excess depreciation" over "certificates off." In other words, the company failed to earn its full dividend.

Tobacco recovered from the recent estate selling. Tobacco Products and Cigar Stores closed higher. The companies will not be affected by any foreign competition as they are in the retail business. Buying is also taking place in Union-United on the curb exchange.

Humble oil was higher on the curb exchange. The company intends to lay a 600-mile main trunk line from West Texas to the gulf. This will facilitate the marketing of oil from the new fields and should be a further depressing influence on the crude oil market. Crude oil prices are expected to be reduced again.

Some of the public utilities were in demand. Short covering developed in General Gas "A." This stock, however, is believed to be selling high enough or too high. The stock pays only $1.20 a share.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, April 5. (AP)—Despite a tendency to edge downward during the closing hours, the cotton market today registered a net gain of four points for the day when the gong sounded today. The gain was accumulated largely through the influence of rains in the belt.

A report of the failure of a large Japanese firm doing an extensive cotton business reacted unfavorably on the market and started the afternoon decline.

Lows for the day were set immediately after the call, instigated by unfavorable cables. The opening was two points down to two points up and early trading edged May to 14.09, July to 14.18 and October to 14.32, unchanged to two points below yesterday's close.

Reports of rains acted as a stimulant to trading and before noon May had moved up to 14.31, July to 14.37 and October to 14.46, eight to 11 points above the lows and eight to nine points above the previous close.

The afternoon slump brought the market five to six points below the highs, although a closing rally regained a point or two of the loss and the close was steady.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, April 5. (AP)—The cotton market was quiet and steady within a range of 5 or 10 points in today's trading. July contracts rallied from 14.21 to 14.27, but sold back again to the lowest, closing at 14.21, compared with 14.30 at the close the previous day. The general market closed steady, at net advances of one to three points.

The opening was steady at an advance of one to three points. The influence of relatively easy Liverpool cables appeared to be offset by reports of rains in central and western sections of the belt, with the forecast for unsettled weather in the eastern belt tomorrow.

The advance met southern selling and realizing which turned the market easier after the opening. May selling off to 14.00 and October to 14.15, or within a point of yesterday's closing quotations. Offerings were light, however, and the market steadied up again during midday when there was a fair amount of buying which seemed to come from New Orleans and Wall Street. It was thought that the latter probably reflected the favorable tone of the stock market, while the former was influenced by reports of heavy rains in Arkansas and northern Louisiana.

Private wires from New Orleans claimed that the wet weather would cause a further set-back in farm work and might lead to a greater reduction in acreage than previously expected. May sold up to 14.07 while October advanced to 14.50, or general gains for the day of about five to nine points. Demand then tapered off and prices sagged back to about, or nearly the previous low points in later trading.

Liverpool cables said the Liverpool market was lower under hedging, combined with American and Continental selling, but reported a slightly better demand for cotton spot from the continent and Scottish Ampton.

Exports today 59,539, making 5,986,627 so far this season. Port receipts 36,139; U. S. port stocks 2,525,650 bales.

DIES ON TRAIN

Body of Aged Texan Found In Pullman Car Berth.

FORT WORTH, April 5. (AP)—George H. Culp, 71, Gainesville, known throughout Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico as a criminal lawyer, was found dead in a Pullman berth on a Santa Fe train en route from San Antonio to Fort Worth early today. He had been in failing health for some time.

Culp came to Texas from Kentucky 51 years ago.

ACTOR HANGS SELF.

NEW YORK, April 5. (AP)—The body of Ashton Tonge, an actor, was found hanging from a transom by a sash cord in his apartment in West 57th street today. He had been dead three or four days, police said. He had been despondent for some time, according to friends.

MARKET GOSSIP

J. H. Baldwin and Co., brokers, basement Bob Waggoner building, today received the following from New York, New Orleans and Chicago connections:

Closing Cotton Letter.

NEW ORLEANS, April 5.—Weather conditions over the cotton belt were much less favorable both last night and again today, but they caused only a moderate volume of buying as the trade did not know how to take rumors of an important Japanese failure and both Manchester and Chinese news was unfavorable. Spots were quiet but expectations were large. The day's clearance from all U. S. ports for foreign ports amounting to 59,539 bales against only 15,493 this day last year. Of the total exports it is interesting to note 40,506 bales went to Japan and China. The export movement thus far this season amounts to 8,433,434 bales against 8,426,771 to the same date last season.

Considerable rain was reported over night in the northern half of the belt and during the day much rain fell in the central belt, both north and south, and there was also scattered rainfall in the eastern and western thirds.

Any further rains in the near future would be exceedingly bullish as they would make worse what must already be considered an unsatisfactory start for the new crop. The barometer lines on this morning's weather map were not at all settled, leading us to believe that just ahead is weather which will be unfavorable rather than satisfactory on the whole.

Stocks.

U. S. Steel and a number of others made new highs for the year today. Profit taking was extensive at times but made very little impression on the market. The motors were more active than of late. General Motors equalled its old record high and practically all of this group improved substantially in price as compared with yesterday's close. Irregular markets are likely to continue for some time, but the buying side looks best.

Afternoon Grain Letter.

Wheat: Market held within a narrow range of prices, averaging lower during the early part of the session due to scattered selling and lack of any aggressive buying, but resting orders absorbed the offerings and with local short covering towards the close, prices firmed up. There was nothing particular in the news to attract attention. The seaboard reported a fair demand for export with sales of 400,000 bushels in all positions, including some red winter wheat to France. Premiums at the Gulf were slightly easier but there was no pressure of offerings. Southwestern receipts have been very moderate the past few days with mills continuing to absorb the choice qualities, while medium and low grades are somewhat slow sole. The same condition prevails in local cash market, with a fair volume of country shipping demand prevailing here. Weather conditions remain very favorable for the new crop, but some of the commercers from the southwest were not so optimistic in their long distance reports indicating that there would be considerable loss in acreage in western Kansas. There was also some talk about unfavorable weather in Canada interfering with winter wheat work. We still feel that a broader and more urgent cash demand will be required to maintain prices if new crop conditions remain favorable.

Corn: Trade was light and market dull, but showing a firm tendency due to local sentiment being bullish. There is very little outside interest in the market. Local cash basis was firm, with receipts light. It is also noticeable that country offerings were somewhat large today, but at prices a little over the market. Eastern shipping demand was generally slow, although some improvement in inquiries is noticeable. Weather conditions are more favorable for field work with a liberal increase in acreage expected in Texas and Oklahoma due to reduction in cotton acreage. We are still of the belief that a more urgent cash demand must prevail if advances are to be maintained.

Oats: Trade limited and very little change in values. Weather conditions were more favorable for seeding operations. A fair cash demand prevails with receipts light.

Rye: Market was firmer and prices higher due to scattered buying. Some export business was reported at the seaboard, with further bids somewhat out of line. Liberal shipments are looked for out of the northwest at the opening of navigation.

Provisions: Market was firmer following hogs which were quoted strong to 15c higher, Western run were 74,000 against 100,400 last year. Some slight improvement has been reported in both the domestic and export cash demand.

No. 1 $3.10@3.25; mixed russet burals best $2.65@2.75. One car $2.55; new stock market slightly weaker. Sales to jobbers. Texas sacked bliss triumphs U. S. No. 1s 1¾ inch minimum $2.25@2.75.

Italian Flier Forced Back

De Pinedo Faces Delay As Engine Balks

HOT SPRINGS, N. M., April 5. Commander De Pinedo, Italian aviator, who has already crossed over four continents, was forced to turn back today to Lake Ifall when the "Santa Maria's" forward engine became overheated after he had reached Deming, N. M.

After spending the entire morning trying to get his big plane into the air, the Italian finally drained his gasoline tanks of all but 100 gallons. He also discarded a damaged propeller weighing 300 pounds. Then, skimming the surface of the lake in the wake of two speed boats the lightened ship was soon in the air.

Not until his flying speed had decreased to 80 miles an hour did the Facisti ace become aware of the overheated engine, and doubtful of the performance of the rear motor in the high altitude, he turned back.

Three hundred pounds of equipment was removed from the Santa Maria tonight and just enough gasoline was put into the tanks to take the ship to Lake Roosevelt.

De Pinedo expects to reach Phoenix Wednesday noon. After refuelling he will immediately resume his flight to San Diego.

KELL PLANS TO EXTEND ROAD

Asks Permit to Build Line Into Panhandle

WASHINGTON, April 5. (AP)—Permission to build 90 miles of new railroad across the Oklahoma-Texas border was sought from the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Clinton & Oklahoma Western railroad. The new line will extend from the present terminus of the Clinton at Cheyenne, Okla., to Pampa, Texas. No estimates of cost were filed, but the petition said a rich agricultural area, a portion of which was underlaid by oil sands, would be given direct rail communication with Tulsa and Oklahoma City.

The Clinton and Oklahoma Western railroad is owned by Frank Kell of Wichita Falls who is in New York City on business. The development of oil lands adjacent to Pampa and the growing agricultural industry in that section have brought the need of additional railroad facilities to the fore in recent months and are thought to be responsible for the seeking of permission to build the road by the Wichita Falls capitalist.

Bees Which Nearly Took Man's Life Now Yield Him Fortune As Reward

CIBOLO, Texas, April 5. (AP)—John Gehrels probably owes his success to the fact that he was once almost stung to death by a swarm of bees.

When Gehrels was four years old he saw what he thought, was a swarm of flies in the backyard. He had been told to swat flies and he decided here was an excellent opportunity to slaughter thousands of the pests. The flies turned out to be wild bees that his father had captured. When the doctor got through with young Gahrels he was so full of bee poison that he was immune to bee sting.

He began bee keeping in Bexar county as a young man in 1904 with 175 hives but foul blood killed the most of them. He changed his location to Selma in the same county and built up 200 hives which he later sold. He then later moved to Neuces county. He grew truck and farmed for seven years and also tried bee keeping but the high winds of the coast county made the venture impractical. Still dissatisfied, he moved to Cibolo in 1915, became a carpenter and gin mechanic but lost interest in those occupations. Quite suddenly he realized his greatest interest was in the bee business and he quit his other jobs for that pursuit. He started with five hives and now has 700. In 1926 he shipped more than 30,000 pounds of honey to many parts of the country.

Truth Greatest Advertising Quality, Business College Head Tells Club

M. B. Whatley, manager of Draughon's Business college, was the principal speaker before the Advertising club at a luncheon Tuesday at the Kemp hotel.

Outlining methods of advertising used by the college, Mr. Whatley declared truth in advertising is the most effective quality. He explained the advertising procedure used with inquiries for the school's catalogue.

The college spends about $5 in advertising on each prospect before stopping, Mr. Whatley said, in discussing the school's direct-by-mail system.

P. B. Roberts was appointed as chairman of a committee composed of himself, H. J. Adair and C. W. Nolen to work on the "On to Denver" movement for the convention of International Advertising association.

Al Ellis made a brief talk on advertising agencies. W. H. Thomas and T. A. Bradley will discuss the worst advertisement they can find and Milo Connelly and C. A. Bolton the best they can locate at the luncheon next Tuesday, it was announced by Alva Willgus, chairman of the program committee.
