Scurry Area Dry Spell Ended By Soaking Rain

Soaking rains fell over Scurry and adjoining counties Wednesday night as a cool front moved down from the Panhandle.

It was labeled by many farmers and ranchers of the area as the best rain of the year, and chances appeared good that it would continue through most of today and possibly into tonight.

Reports this morning indicated that measurements of two inches to more than four inches were general over the area.

The official gauge at the Snyder water treatment plant had measured 2.87 inches by 7 a.m. today and showers were continuing.

Four inches fell at the Lake J. B. Thomas dam and four or more inches were reported in much of southeast Borden County. Larry Price reported 4.2 inches south of Vincent in Howard County.

Other reports included 3.9 inches at Fluvanna, three inches at Hermleigh with up to 3.5 to the northwest, 2.9 inches at Ira, 2.5 to 3.0 inches at Colorado City and over most of Mitchell County, 3.5 inches around Roby, 3.0 inches at Rotan and 2.1 inches at Hobbs.

Rains from 2.75 to more than 3 inches were reported along the Scurry-Garza County line.

The rains fell slowly but steadily throughout the night. They began between 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. in Snyder. Runoff was relatively light. However, Deep Creek was flowing about four feet through Snyder this morning and the Colorado River was reported flowing a small stream into Lake J. B. Thomas.

The lake has not caught any water since late man spring and the supply was down to around 8,000 acre feet. it was hoped that it could make a significant catch from the current rains, but prospects for a big runoff appeared dim since the rains were falling slowly.

The cold front which produced the rains was reported moving slowly across the state from northwest to southeast. It was on a line from Texarkana to Brownwood to San Angelo this morning.

Temperatures were cooler behind the front. Snyder's low this morning was 51 degrees and the mercury was not expected to get out of the 60s today.

Heavy thunderstorms were reported in southern Andrews County and northern Ector County this morning, and the National Weather Service issued a flash flood watch for Brewster, Jeff Davis, Pecos, Presidio and Terrell Counties this morning.

Movement of the front was reported almost nil at mid-morning, offering hope that the rains would continue in this area and possibly give Lake Thomas a better chance to make a catch.

Conviction Upheld

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) - The New Jersey Supreme Court upheld the contempt convictions of The New York Times and its reporter Myron A. Farber today for withholding notes in a murder case.

The high court ordered Farber to report back to jail next Tuesday unless he surrenders his files.

The case has attracted national attention, and its outcome could set a precedent on freedom of the press.

Attorneys for the newspaper said they would appeal today's court decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Dollar Plunges

LONDON (AP) - The dollar dropped sharply on the world's foreign exchanges today for the second day in succession, hitting a new low in Swiss francs and sending the price of gold to a record high of $216.75 an ounce.

Market analysts said they believed the slide was an acceleration of the drop Wednesday prompted by adverse Arab reaction to the Camp David summit agreements.

"We are all so nervous that even the slightest babbling from anyone in the Middle East affects us," said one Frankfurt dealer.

Carter Nominated

S. C. (AP) - The Southern Governor's Conference has recommended President Jimmy Carter for the Nobel Peace Prize by a 12-0 vote for his efforts at the Middle East summit - but it really wasn't that unanimous.

With announced reluctance Wednesday, Republican Govs. John N. Dalton of Virginia and James B. Edwards of South Carolina supported the resolution. They had argued that it was too early to tell if Carter's meeting with the leaders of Egypt and Israel at Camp David would bring peace to the Middle East.

Jim And Madge Give Up Cafe Business At Gail

By JOHN DUNNAM

GAIL - After 23 years Jym Hendricks and his wife Madge have retired from the cafe business. Being typical of the old timers who inhabit these parts they didn't quit until they had to. A heart attack Jym suffered in July made retirement mandatory for the couple who had a monopoly on the restaurant business in Borden County for the last 13 years.

On July, 27, 1955, when the Hendrickses bought the old George Cathey Cafe. Foch Walton was also operating a cafe in Gail, the county seat and only town in the 921 square mile county. "And back then both of us would sell you all the soda pop you could drink for a nickle a piece," Jym said.

Then years later, Walton sold out to the Hendricks and moved to Snyder. The Hendricks moved their business a few hundred yards east into the building Walton vacated, also on U.S. Highway 180, the main street of Gail.

A native of San Saba County, Jym is the fourth son of an eight-boy, two-girl family. After serving in World War II he returned home but found himself restless.

"When my brother sent word that they needed more hands on the 9-R ranch, I up and moved to Borden County."

The young Hendricks must have found all the excitement he craved because he has been here ever since.

In 1945 he married Madge Blythe.

Jym says he got his first cooking lessons at home cooking for his brothers and sisters but really learned the cafe business from his wife. Madge says here sister-in-law, Sally Blythe, taught her the trade while she worked at Sally's Cafeteria in Snyder.

Being the only cafe for miles around is a mixed blessing. Like a country doctor, the Hendricks have been awakened in the middle of the night not to cure an upset stomach but an empty one. Madge recalls an incident when they were awakened by four burly men who wanted them to get up and fix them a hot meal.

"We thought it was just a bunch of drunks and were going to send them away when one of them said 'Come on Madge fix us all a T-bone, you know we will make it worth your while. I recognized that voice, it was an oilfield crew, Halliburton I think, that had eaten with us several

Labor Vows Support To A Degree

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Steelworkers say they will be glad to support President Carter in a stepped-up fight against inflation, but not if it means restraining wage increases.

Carter went before a convention of the United Steelworkers union on Wednesday to seek organized labor's cooperation with a tougher anti-inflation program that he said would be announced soon.

"Sure, he'll get cooperation from us," said Domenick DiPilato, a delegate from North Adams, Mass. "That is, to the degree we can give it to him. But he's got to do something in regard to prices, especially in getting health costs down."

DiPilato, like several dozen other delegates interviewed after Carter's speech, would not pledge cooperation by voluntarily holding down large wage gains steelworkers have won in recent contracts.

"We feel we're not responsible for inflation," said James Baker, a delegate from Gary, Ind. "We feel our wages are just catching up with higher prices. We'll help on this inflation fight, but our wages have to keep pace."

That is not the kind of response Carter administration officials want to hear from organized labor, which thus far has balked at government pleas to show wage restraint at the bargaining table.

Budget Balance Hoped By 1981

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agreement by House and Senate conferees on a budget with the lowest deficit in five years holds out hope that the government's books can be balanced by 1981, the chairman of the House Budget Committee says.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., the committee chairman, said a balance could be met "if Congress continues to exercise restraint on spending and if the economy continues to be healthy."

Giaimo planned to seek a House vote almost immediately on the budget, but his would require unanimous consent to waive parliamentary delaying requirements. The Senate is set to act soon after the House.

The conferees, who had been deadlocked over financing a special public works program, compromised and agreed Wednesday on a fiscal plan projecting a deficit of $38.8 billion.

The agreement also would allow for reducing taxes at least $2 billion more than the House voted in a $16.3 billion tax relief bill. The Senate Finance Committee already is enlarging the tax cut.

The conference committee budget calls for revenues of $448.7 billion and spending of $487.5 billion in fiscal 1979, which begins Oct. 1.

There will be some new model automobiles on the market soon and happily the advertising and public relations people who send out the publicity material in advance of the fall showings are still following the usual format. The trend toward so-called "truth in advertising" could change the style one of these days, however.

Remember when the feds said Joe Namath had to declare that he really did wear those pantyhose he plugged on television for a while? And how Bruce Jenner had to step forward and swear that he really did eat Wheaties, just like those he advertised?

There used to be a joke going around every fall when the new cars came out. Someone would look at the pictures in the folders and in the advertisements and ask the dealer if the girl in the picture went with the car.

Well, they still have those long, willowy but somewhat curvy girls standing beside the new cars when they are photographed. But we doubt seriously that anyone thinks for a minute that he gets one of them when he buys a new car. Sometimes we think that the feds and Ralph Nader take us to be the dumbest creatures on Earth. Few could afford to keep one of those models supplied with clothes in the first place. Moreover, motor vehicles have about all the options the public can stand already. But they're nice.

The Scurry County Fair, which comes up next week, does not have a livestock division in official competition, but animals may be displayed in the livestock-agriculture exhibit building adjoining the coliseum. The Snyder Chamber of Commerce oversees this feature and people who have suitable animals are encouraged to bring them in and put them on exhibit.

Also, Ernest Sears again is arranging for the Kiddie barnyard. This is an assembly of farm animals especially arranged so that youngsters may come in close contact with them.

Anyone wishing to exhibit any type of animals at the fair should contact Roy Kidd, president of the chamber, Charlie Henderson, J.N. Eicke or Sears. They need to know how many exhibit pens to set up.

Northern Electric Invites Visitors

The public is invited to tour Northern Electric Company's plant Friday afternoon between the hours of 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. when the plant will hold "open house."

Visitors will enter the plant through office entrance on the north side of the building. To reach the plant by automobile, turn off College Avenue just south of the U.S. Highway 84 overpass and go west on the access road.

Snyder Goldcoaters will be on hand to help conduct the tours of the plant during which visitors will have an opportunity to see Northern Electric personnel turn out automatic blankets.

Northern Electric has been in production at its Snyder plant since last March.

Refreshments will be served to visitors and there will be drawings for several door prizes, said Jimmy Daniels, the plant's operation manager. See more about Northern Electric in Section B.

Q--Why don't they bring zebras from Africa to America and break them to ride as horses?

A--There is no need for them. America has plenty of horses. In fact, there are so many wild horses on some of our federally-owned lands that they cause problems in some parts of the West.

Kickoff Banquet Planned...

United Way's General Drive To Begin Oct. 3

A dinner session Oct. 3 will launch the Scurry County United Way's 1978 general campaign.

Plans for the kickoff dinner were made Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of United Way directors and campaign leaders. The kickoff session will begin at 7 p.m. in the Scurry County Coliseum.

Guest speaker for the event will be Eddie Nicholson of Lubbock, a well-known humorist and patriotic speaker who is known as America's Rocking Chair Philosopher."

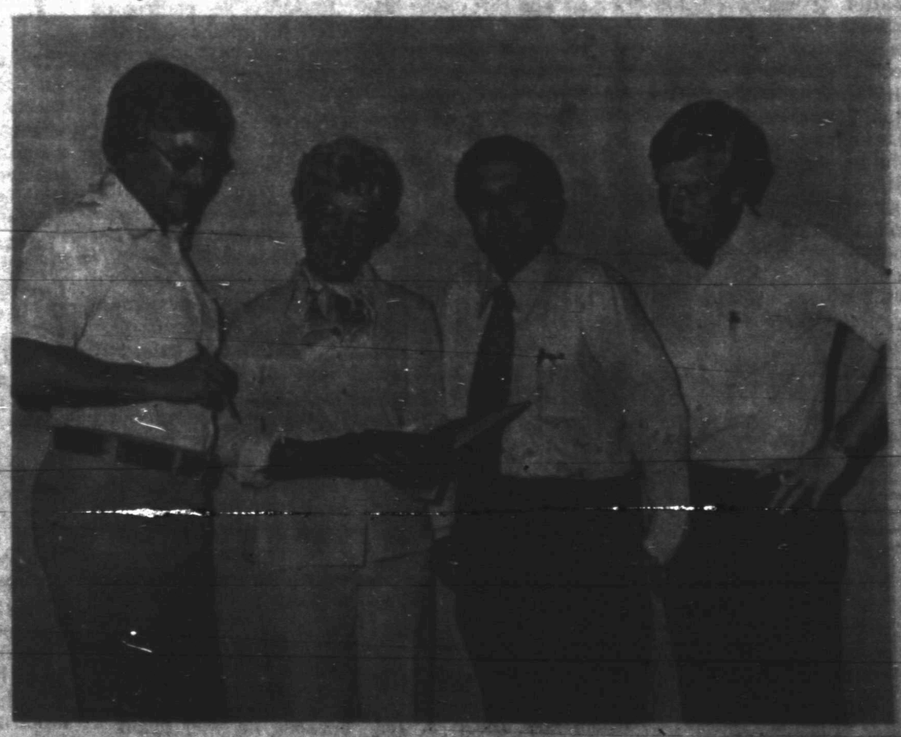
Mike Reed and Larry Genuchi head the general campaign, which will seek $51,350.

Division chairmen appointed at Wednesday's session include Oil and Industry, Charles Lantrip; Commercial, Jerry Vestal; Educational, Dr. Robert Clinton; Professional, Judge Wayland G. Holt; Rural, Rex Robinson; Public Employees, Earl "Hassie" Sneed; Utilities, Rodger Sullenger; Royalty Owners, Lyle Deffebach.

The Advance Gifts division is launching its work this week. Headed by Bill Piland and John Jarrell, it has a goal of $17,000, or 33.1 percent of the overall goal.

Ed Micak, United Way president, presided at the Wednesday meeting. He appointed five others to serve with himself on a nominating committee to nominate a slate of officers for next year. They are Wilma Dillard, Lyle Deffebach, Joe Williamson, Dr. Ben Brock and Carol Davis.

Tickets to the kickoff dinner will sell for $2 each, and this will be the next meeting of the organization.



PREPARING FOR ANNUAL DRIVE—Scurry County United Way officials Wednesday set Oct. 3 as the date for their general campaign kickoff banquet. misleading label

President Carter was quoted as being delighted recently with House approval of a Civil Service reorganization bill. The vote was 385-10 which is about as near unanimity as could be expected. There are slight differences between the House bill and one approved earlier by the Senate. But sponsors are confident these can be adjusted in time for final action prior to adjournment for the closing weeks of the biennial election campaign.

Principal features of the measure call for elimination of promotions based on length of service. Also possible are discharge of incompetent workers and transfer of employees in the interest of better utilization of worker capabilities.

President Carter describes the measure as the cornerstone of his plan to shake up the Federal Civil Service and make it a more efficient operation than is possible under existing law.

Civil Service Commission chairman Alan Campbell is even more enthusiastic in his evaluation of the measure. He said it is equal in importance to passage of the original Civil Service Act in 1883. "It guards not only against the spoils system in the public service but simultaneously promotes efficient management," is the way Campbell summarizes the legislation.

Realistic analysis of the legislation, however, justifies the conclusion that solving problems of managing a work force of more than 3 million individual human beings is not a great deal nearer than it was in the beginning. Skepticism on this point arises from the nature of the operation. Government is a monopoly. Income adequate for all needs is assured. The only pressure for efficiency is the degree of dedication among politically appointed top executives.

The provision in the new law which permits firing of inefficient workers permits a politically motivated executive to advance his favorites. The best that can be hoped for under the new setup is that an occasional efficiency-minded executive will use his authority under the law to weed out featherbedding operations.

blowing the whistle

Whistleblowers who work for the government aren't the only members of this all-too-rare species who get shot down.

The Wall Street securities analyst who uncovered the Equity Funding Corp. scandal five years ago has been ordered punished by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

An SEC administrative law judge suspended Raymond Dirks from the brokerage business for 60 days for "selectively disseminated" information about Equity Funding. Apparently some investment companies managed to sell their shares before the fraud scandal broke.

"The government is attempting to punish the bearer of bad tidings," Dirks claimed, noting the companies involved got off with light censures.

He voted to "fight it all the way to the Supreme Court."

Although not a keen fan of football, I am amazed at the hysteria and devotion the sport breeds in people.

I never felt it. To me, football is just a game. Not everyone, however, shares that "just a game" attitude. The people who go to football games don't, for example.

Mind you, I also go to a football game every Friday night. I do it as a matter of course. I am expected to cover a game each Friday night during football season.

It's the spectators in the stands and the players on the field who interest me. The coaches aren't boring, either.

At one game recently, the coach exhorted his players to "Go out there and hit somebody!" The players did their best. Fortunately, there were no major injuries.

The players must hype themselves up into a crescendo of frenzy in an attempt, sometimes unsuccessful but usually interesting, to win. The coarse mumbles break into occasional shouts, and the shouts into occasional chants as the student players attempt to convince themselves that they are the number one team.

What amazes me is the person who can claim his team is number one when his team is trailing by 24 points. Only occasionally will the dark gloom of hopelessness spread over a player when he sees it is obvious that his team cannot win.

When a play is made it is not unusual for the spectators from both sides of the football field to jump up and shout, cheer, and yell. How one play can be mutually beneficial to two opposing teams is something that escapes me.

One thing that does not escape me, however, is the almost certain knowledge that if I were to raise a dissenting voice, speak a snide comment, or voice an anti-football belief during a game I would likely be kicked, stomped, and molested by the players and coaches. Children would kick me, dogs would bite me, cheerleaders would hurl abuse at me, and generally, I think I would receive an unwanted feeling.

I don't want to wear out my welcome before I have to at those games.

they don't tell all

Dr. Peter Bourne was President Carter's advisor on drug abuse. Now it is gossiped that Dr. Bourne had himself used drugs.

The Washington press corps has gossiped that Dr. Bourne used pot and cocaine, according to Washington Post ombudsman Charles Seib, because several unnamed reporters are supposed to have said they were in a bedroom with him at a party in December when he both smoked and snorted.

Then why did nothing come out until months later when Dr. Bourne gave a woman in his office a prescription on which he had written a false name?

If the supposed drug involvement was sufficiently significant to cost Bourne his job in July, why had the reporters ignored it last December?

Were the reporters at that party, if the story is true, suppressing the news, breaching the public trust?

Michael Gartner is editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune and he is also a lawyer.

Recently he confronted us of the media with this challenge: "It is a rare reporter who tattles on a friend."

One of the reasons that my home base is removed by a thousand miles from Washington, D.C. is that, with Walter Lippmann, I have always believed a newsman should keep a little air space between himself and the newsmakers.

I don't know how any observer, however disciplined, could report objectively about somebody with whom he is on a first-name basis.

Justice Louis Brandeis said, "The function of the press is very high, almost holy. To misstate or suppress any news is a breach of trust."

Yet all those years that a certain senator was being helped off the Senate floor because he was drunk - regularly and frequently - you never heard a word about it.

Nor did his home state constituents.

Should we have tattled? (Because he is deceased there seems to be no purpose in naming him now; furthermore, the Senate never has been limited to only one such.)

Mr. Gartner says that editors and reporters know far more than they are willing to print - and much of what they refuse to print is about their own activities.

Presently a reporter is on the carpet for having sought to use privileged information for personal financial gain; yet there are dozens of reporters who have written profitable books based on such information.

When reporters and-or editors get together in a social gathering you hear the doggondest cacophony of substantive stuff that never goes public. You have to wonder if the media is in fact selective in choosing its targets.

I keep remembering something publisher Katherine Graham of the Washington Post said: "We must ask ourselves if we would really have been as tenacious in pursuing the Watergate expose if the President had been any one other than Richard Nixon."

If it seems at the moment that the courts are intruding on our files and unjustly jailing our reporters, have we been asking for it?

battle underway

NEW YORK (AP)— While not forsaking the immediate battlefront of wage-price negotiations, business and labor are now struggling with each other over more far-reaching and consequential issues.

The battle is little less than an effort by each to tilt the entire political and economic system into a position more favorable to its credos, and each is using all the muscle it can muster.

Labor's most conspicuous thrust has been in forcing resignations from the board of J. P. Stevens & Co., which the Amalgamated Clothing & Textile Workers say has denied workers "social and economic justice."

With increasingly large investment and savings portfolios, unions also have threatened to withdraw millions of dollars from Manufacturers Hanover Bank, one of whose officers was on the Stevens board.

Equally aggressive, business has stepped up its lobbying efforts, defeating labor on measures involving union picketing and right to work laws, and lessening the size of a minimum wage increase.

The new battlelines are based on philosophical bias and brute power. Both say their ideologies embrace the true essence of America. But to sell their views they rely on organization, numbers and money.

Each is highly aware of the new and renewed efforts to influence not just the immediate and surface issues, but the basic, philosophical approach of Americans to their system.

The lead story in a recent edition of AFL-CIO News carried the headline "Union Counterattack Hits Rising Right-Wing Threat," and told of a drive "to get rid of the unions."

In The Federationist, an AFL-CIO magazine, Arch Puddington, executive director of the League for Industrial Democracy, maintains the renewed conflicts result partly from a decline in political party loyalty.

As expected, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and its lobbying foundation, the National Association of Manufacturers, are in the forefront of the back to basics effort.

Perhaps the only distinct, major area of economic agreement between the two sides - and it isn't solid - is on the matter of wage-price controls, which generally are viewed as intrusions.

While the business viewpoint - less Washington involvement, more free enterprise, lower taxes, more capital incentives - is currently in vogue, labor possesses in its pension funds a powerful counterforce.

These funds aggregate hundreds of dollars, and while their control generally rests with corporate officials, labor might be expected increasingly to insist on an additional say in their use.

martha angle and robert walters

PORTLAND, Maine (NEA) - At a time when most congressional Democrats are actively shunning the proffered campaign help of President Carter, Sen. William D. Hathaway of Maine sticks out like a sore thumb.

Hathaway has already welcomed Carter to the state once this year and hopes to do so again before election day. Vice President Mondale has been here, and so has his wife, Joan. Not to mention HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. And Labor Secretary Ray Marshall. And Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland. And Ohio Sen. John Glenn, New York Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan and - over and over again - Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Hathaway, 54, needs all the help he can get this year to keep the Senate seat he wrested away from Republican Margaret Chase Smith six years ago.

His opponent this time is no aging incumbent grown careless and complacent over the years, but a tireless and aggressive young challenger, 38-year-old Rep. William S. Cohen, who won national renown in 1974 as one of the first Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee to vote for the impeachment of Richard M. Nixon.

An articulate and attractive moderate with a highly developed competitive instinct, Cohen is the kind of Republican who could go far on the national political scene if he makes it to the Senate this year. And at this point, he is a slight favorite to win in November, although Hathaway has narrowed the gap somewhat since early polls were taken.

Hathaway is nowhere near as well organized as Cohen, who has put together a large and enthusiastic field organization manned largely by youthful volunteers. But the Democratic senator is pulling all the strings available to an incumbent whose party controls the White House.

Not only has he trotted a series of big name visiting firemen, from Carter on down, through the state, but the announcement of federal grants and other goodies for Maine.

It didn't use to be that way. Maine's congressional delegation is evenly divided along party lines: Hathaway and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie are Democrats; Cohen and Rep. David F. Emery are Republicans. "For five years, we made all grant announcements jointly, and then this year, the administration began funneling everything through Hathaway," Cohen said. "There's not much I can do about it."

Cohen is making no attempt to counter the parade of Democratic bigwigs marching through Maine on Hathaway's behalf. In fact, he has posted a "keep out" sign to out-of-state Republicans, preferring to rely on his own legwork and organization.

Democrats hold a slight voter registration edge in Maine, but Cohen's appeal has always cut across party lines and this time he is concentrating most of his efforts on carving into his opponent's base. Indeed, the Democratic mayor of Lewiston, Hathaway's home town, has endorsed Cohen.

Hathaway, in turn, is hoping that conservative Hayes. Gahagan, one of three Independents on the Senate ballot, will drain off right-wing Republicans who dislike Cohen's relatively liberal House voting record.

Hathaway and Cohen differ sharply on the two major local issues dominating the campaign - the fate of the huge Dickey-Lincoln dam proposal and settlement of Indian land claims in Maine. Hathaway endorses a White House-suggested settlement of the Indian land claims that would protect small property owners while penalizing big paper companies; Cohen opposes it.

In a state where voter turnout is not likely to go much above 400,000, issues may not matter as much as personal contact. Both candidates have assiduously performed their constituent service chores, but Hathaway has has 14 years in Congress to Cohen's six to win the gratitude of citizens ensnarled in federal red tape. The election may boil down to a contest between Hathaway's friends - in Maine and Washington - versus Cohen's footwork.

situation changing

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Since time immemorial, European nations have lived in fear of the horrors of war. Well they should, since they are the crossroads of the world and the center of ambitions of conquest since ancient times.

In more modern times those fears have lessened because Europeans have been able to rely on America for critical support when threatened by aggressive forces. Japan has come under that protective umbrella since her defeat in World War II.

This situation has gradually been changing. The change is only perceptible when numerous factors are put together to appraise the attitude of many nations towards the growing might of the Soviet Union and our own military decline.

Today, they see Russian bases literally encircling this planet. North of the Black Sea, for example, is an enormous military complex to supply Arab terrorists and revolutionaries in the Middle East and it takes little imagination to figure out why Russia moves in that area. Should the Soviets ultimately take over Arab oil it could and would mean blackmail to all of Europe, Japan and the United States. The oil boycott just a couple of years ago certainly should have taught us that Nations can be brought to their knees for the lack of it without a shot being fired.

What to do? Of course, for the immediate is to increase the development of our own source of energy in order to be less dependent on foreign oil imports. The second is to rebuild and increase our military capabilities which have been steadily declining. These are subjects discussed here before and well known from many sources. There is, however, an interesting study by Dr. Edward Glick, professor of political science at Temple University, a recognized authority on Middle Eastern affairs, which goes somewhat beyond the more immediate concerns.

Dr. Glick seeks to link the triple security needs of the United States, Israel and the Arab Nations to a U.S. military presence in a neutral area in the Middle East. He suggests, in essence, the establishment of U.S. military air, naval and electronic facilities in a base in Israel as a deterrent to Soviet expansion, and as a preventive to Arab and Israeli conflict. The idea would carry with it a declaration that we would be in a independent position for our operation but drawing a line, as was done in Berline, and that we will stop anyone who crosses it!

The presence of an American base on Israel soil, Dr. Glick maintains, would make the Arabs, Israelis and Russians think seriously before they would fire on each other. He suggests that we have a lease-free access to an absolute neutral enclave, with defined purpose of only maintaining peace and no influence or authority otherwise.

It is an interesting concept and one deserving study for the longer-range implications, regardless of more immediate solutions for peace in the volatile Middle East.

HFT Classes Success

If you have a lemon--make lemonade. That is exactly what Sandi Miller and Dave Loflin, instructors for Hope For Tomorrow did. Although they eat something a little higher in calories than lemons, they did however turn the tide in their lives by finding a way to control their weight.

They want to share the information with everyone with a weight problem. Losing weight restores dignity and confidence to the individual. Hope For Tomorrow has put losing weight in the highest and most dignified manner possible.

Weight loss is available through a continuing education course at Western Texas College and Howard College in Big Spring. Sandi Miller instructs the Snyder class which meets at 6 p.m. each Tuesday in the Ac. Science Building C, room 103. Loflin instructs the Lamesa class.

Both expressed their feelings about Hope for Tommorrow. "I had lost down to my desire weight before, but I didn't keep that weight off, " Miller said. "In January, 1975 I found Hope for Tomorrow and on Aug. 25, 1975, I reached by weight goal with a total loss of 35 pounds. I learned to know myself better select proper foods within a budget and to eat away from home and stay on the program. A regular exercise program is a big asset also. It has been three years and I feel I am qualifed to say this is the program to teach us how to achieve permanent weight loss."

Loflin said, "I joined Hope For Tomorrow on Feb. 7, 1978 at 258 pounds. In seven months I have lost 75 pounds. I had tried various diets, losing some weight but always gaining it back. This is the first time I have ever reached my ideal weight since high school. I was so enthusiastic about this program that I started lecturing on May 2."

Anyone desiring to lose weight may enroll at any class, drop out, and rejoin the clas at anytime. The weight loss is taught in grams, and how to eat and lose weight comes from the four basic food groups. Instruction also is given on how to avoid and overcome food temptations, and suggestions are given for exercise.

Fee for the course is $7 and $2 per week. Senior citizens and WTC students have a $3.50 enrollment fee and a $1 weekly fee. Scholarships may be applied for by anyone unable to pay the fees. Also, scholarship donations ar accepted.

Practice Safety With Chemical Oven Cleaners

COLLEGE STATION Recognize the hazards of chemical oven cleaners and practice safety when using these products, advises a family resource management specialist.

Chemical oven cleaners are highly caustic in order to do an effective job of cleaning grease and other burned-on foods in an oven.

This one characteristic - the presence of caustic substances - means that the user needs to be aware of hazards associated with caustic substances and of safe ways to use these products, points out Linda McCormack.

Mrs. McCormack is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

When using oven cleaners, follow these guidelines:

-Read and follow the directions before each use.

-Wear protective gloves for hands and goggles for eyes.

-Open kitchen windows for ventilation.

-Keep children away from the area being cleaned.

-If the fumes become irritating, close the oven door, leave the room and get fresh air.

-Read the label for information about antidotes.

When storing oven cleaners, keep locked away from children.

Oven cleaners which contain more than two percent sodium or potassium hydroxide - caustic substances - must be packaged in child resistant containers to keep children from opening them.

HERMLEIGH NEWS

By ADALA DRENNAN

The Hermleigh Cardinals have won their second football game of the season. All Hermleigh folks are mighty proud of this team and the pep squad.

Miss. Laurie Peterson, who has been working in California, is returning home Saturday morning.

Mike Peterson, who is in the C B's with the U.S. Navy and has been stationed in Port Hueneme, Calif., is being transferred to MC Murdock Anti-Artic at the South Pole.

Mrs. Ruth Davis and her mother Mrs. Effie Wright, spent the weekend in Pecos visiting their brother and son, Frank and Ann Wright.

W.W. White is a medical patient in Hendricks Hospital in Abilene, room 612W.

Mr. and Mrs. Butch Nachlinger and Eric, and Mrs. Frank Nachlinger attended the West Texas Fair in Abilene last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. B.D. (Mildred) Garrett, presently living in Snyder, are building a new brick home here. Congratulations, and welcome to Hermleigh.

Mrs. Rachel Lassiter and daughter Adala Drennan visited with Mrs. Frances Fleming in Sweetwater Tuesday. She was hospitalized for several weeks at Rolling Plains hospital and has recently been transferred to Leisure Lodge (nursing home) in Sweetwater and is in room 9.

Mrs. Clovis Robinson is in Abilene visiting her sister, Mrs. Olivia Mullins.

Mrs. Cecil (Mary) Hall spent last week in Christoval, visiting her daughter Mr. and Mrs. John (Cecile) Grady.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hanson visited their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Larry McClain of Rotan Monday.

The Order of The Eastern Star honored the Masons and their families Tuesday evening with an ice cream supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gladden and Christi have moved back here. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Glass. They are moving to the Wanda Nixon house. Mr. Gladden is with American Magnesium Co., west of Snyder.

It has been called to the attention of this correspondent that in last week's column Hermleigh received 2.1 inches of rain. Was reminded by several in and near town that 2.6 inches was received; while others did not get nearly as much. So, no doubt the rainfall has been quite scattered, and more would be appreciated.

Congratulations to R.C. Nixon for ginning the first bale of 1978 cotton in Scurry County; which was grown on his farm near Camp Springs from Western 44 variety seed. This is Nixon's third time in the past five years to produce the first bale of cotton in the county. It was ginned at the Hermleigh Gin Co.

New Classes Set At WTC

New classes in cake decorating and macrame are being planned as Community Services coures at Western Texas College.

Classes in both subjects got underway this week and both were filled so the new classes are being arranged for students who could not be included in the present groups as well as others interested.

Persons who would like to enroll for either course must call the Community Services office at 573-8511, extension 240, to reserve space in the class. Enrollment in each class is limited to 12 persons.

The Community Services is now accepting reservations for the Aviation Ground School scheduled Sept. 25-Nov. 9. Classes will meet from 6:30-8:30 on Monday and Thursday nights with Rex Hopkins as instructor.

Collects Recipes

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) —Anwar Sadat favors lettuce leaves stuffed with rice and chicken, while Menachem Begin likes apple pancakes. Princess Grace of Monaco sent along a recipe for "Monegasquen Tillans" - a meat and vegetable dish.

But Queen Elizabeth II just won't say.

Those responses, and others, were received by Jerry Faye Wilson, 43, and Enterprise, Ark., woman who collects recipes of the famous as a hobby.

If you want to use splinter bids decide just which of your jumps will be splinters.

The most general rule and the one we use is that any time you bid in a new suit and bid one more than necessary for a regular forcing bid you are using a splinter, showing a singleton in the splinter suit and forcing to game in the last bid suit.

North and South were playing that a simple reverse bid was forcing so that a two-diamond rebid would be a force in diamonds. Hence, when North bid three diamonds he was showing a singleton diamond and forcing to a spade game.

South's three hearts was control showing so North jumped to four spades to show good shades and South Blackwooded to the grand slam.

He knew he was taking a chance when he bid seven. North's two kings might include the king of hearts and the queen of spades had not been guaranteed but South gambled and the gamble paid off. North held the right cards and one diamond ruff was the 13th trick.

A reader asks what the expert response is to a standard notrump opening bid.

It is a raise to three notrump. You don't use Stayman to try to find a 4-4 fit in spades here, since even with a 4-4 spade fit, the odds are that this hand will produce as many tricks in notrump.

THE YOUNG AT HEART--The annual Shrine Circus was interesting, but it was a bit of cotton candy that attracted the attention of 5-year-old Kevin McMillan. Flanked on either side by his parents, Jimmy and Cindy McMillan, the youngster tore off handfuls of the sticky substance while watching the circus clowns, lions and trapeze artists. The circus had two performances Wednesday (SDN Staff Photo)

Ranch Day Slated Early This Year

LUBBOCK--Ranch Day is coming early to the Ranching Heritage Center this year. The date is set for Sept. 23, two weeks earlier than the traditional Saturday festivities.

Events will be as entertaining as participants have come to expect, however, with beans in the pot, sourdough pancakes cooking on the open fire and the aroma of fresh baked tea cakes wafting over the 12-acre site at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

There are a score of authentic ranching structures restored at the center which depicts the history of ranching in western America. They come from big and little ranches from the coastal plains along the Gulf to the high plains where the 3-million-acre XIT was spread over ten counties.

Ranch Day is set aside for the annual meeting of the Ranching Heritage Association, a supporting organization for the center. Anyone may join the association or just join in Ranch Day fun, beginning at 9 a.m.

Tickets, including the barbecue lunch served by Texas Trails Chuckwagon of Albany, Tex., are $5.50 for adults and $2.25 for children; $4.50 and $1.75 for association members. They may be purchased at the Ranching Heritage Center, or reservations may be made by calling 806-742-2498.

HERMLEIGH WANTS ONE--To start its volunteer fire department, Hermleigh hopes to buy a truck like the one pictured above from the Texas Forestry Department. The community plans to support the department through donations and fund-raising projects and must match $3500 in state funds to buy the truck. Ray Simmons, overseer of the Hermleigh Community Fund, P. O. Box 104, reports that donations are coming in steadily. A community meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the school cafeteria to discuss projects to raise additional money for the department. There will also be a covered dish supper.

Girl No Pen Pal

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)—It was a big deal when three adventurers crossed the Atlantic in a hot-air balloon.

James Tuschling Jr.'s balloon made the same crossing, and it didn't even have a navigator.

Tuschling, 13, launched a pair of nine-inch, helium-filled balloons this summer.

Thinking the balloons might make it to another state, Tuschling attached his address, saying: "Send your name and address and we will be pen pals."

Last week, the answer came - from Hertfordshire, England.

"Dear James," wrote Elaine Whittaker, "Your balloon has really gone a long way. My boy friend and I found it last week....

"However, I don't think I would make a good pen pal as I am a 19-year-old girl.

Dallas Hotels Checked For Clues To Disease

By TOM DeCOLA
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Two of the 35,000 conventioneers at the Veterans of Foreign Wars national gathering here in August contracted Legionnaire's Disease.

An inspection team from the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta visited several Dallas hotels Wednesday searching air conditioning systems, water coolers and other environmental items for clues to the illness' mysterious habits.

"We're still unsure as to how this disease is spread," said Dr. Stella Goings of the CDC. "The organism that causes the disease seems to like water."

Neither of the two cases involved a Texas resident, but Dr. Goings said identification of those afflicted would have to come from local authorities. CDC officials in Atlanta reported both were "appropriately treated and doing well."

Dr. Goings said two other convention-related pneumonia cases were "presumptive" Legionnaire cases, and six other pneumonia cases gave no signs of being Legionnaire-suspect.

The VFW convention ended Aug. 25. Since the incubation period for the disease is 14 days, the doctor said there would be no reason to believe latent cases will be reported.

Dr. Lowell Berry of the Dallas City Health Department said the disease is thought to be common, with some 15,000 to 45,000 cases occurring annually. Other outbreaks have been reported this year in New York City and Memphis, Tenn.

Dr. Berry said health authorities would work with VFW officials in Texas in attempts to locate additional cases. Dr. Goings said similar programs would be carried out in each state and territory represented at the convention.

Physicians have been alerted to report suspected Legionnaire's cases, and a special Dallas telephone number was circulated to doctors to use in such reporting.

The disease, a type of pneumonia, received its name two years ago when 29 persons who contracted it and died after an American Legion convention at Philadelphia.

Dr. Goings said that the bacteria that causes the disease appears to thrive in middleaged males.

Rodgers Named

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Joe M. Rodgers Jr., a Nashville industrialist with ties to two potential 1980 presidential contenders, will become national Republican finance chairman.

"I expect to stay in the job until after the 1980 campaign," he said Wednesday. "I'm going to have to stay pretty neutral."

Bubble Boy Seven Today

HOUSTON (AP)—Today was a special one for David the "bubble boy." It was his seventh birthday.

David was born with no immunity to disease, and he has spent all of his years enclosed in plastic walls or a special suit.

Among today's festivities was a birthday party at his home with his classmates.

The first graders can't hug David, give him a traditional birthday spanking, or invite him outside for a game of baseball. But it will be a celebration all the same.

David's last name and home address have never been revealed, at his parent's request.

His first grade teacher visits four mornings a week to keep him up with his class.

Sr. Center Sets 42 Tournament

The Senior Center will hold its monthly 42 Tournament Tuesday, Mrs. Gloria Shaw, Center Director, said.

Everyone who wants to participate in the tournament must register by Monday. Players may register any day they are in the Center or may register by calling the Center at 573-8511, extension 305.

Senior Citizens who would like to join the 42 games each Tuesday afternoon in the Center are invited to be at the Center by 1 o'clock.

Astros Lose, Too...

Rangers Dumped

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP)—Rod Carew was 2 for 4 and Dan Ford, who's been in a slump the last half of the season, rapped out 3 singles in 4 at-bats Wednesday night as the Minnesota Twins scratched out a 5-3 baseball victory over the Texas Rangers.

The Twins managed to push across four runs in the fourth inning without getting the ball out of the infield. They capitalized on four walks off rookie Steve Comer, a hit batsman and two infield singles.

While Comer dropped his fifth loss against nine victories, Twins' righthander Dave Goltz upped his record to 14-1. He struck out three and walked two.

In the Twins' lucky fourth, Dave Edwards and Roy Smalley walked to force in the first two runs and Rod Carew got an infield hit, scoring the third run. Comer was replaced by Len Barker, who allowed an infield single to Dan Ford for the fourth run.

Ford also knocked in the Twins' fifth run with a sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Texas' Richie Zisk socked his 20th homer of the season, a two-run blow in the sixth.

Braves 3, Astros 2

Glenn Hubbard's two-out, ninth-inning single scored pinch-runner Ed Miller from second with the winning run as Atlanta beat Houston.

With one out in the Braves' ninth, Joe Nolan singled and was replaced by Miller, who stole second while appearing in his first major league game. Hubbard then delivered his hit to left for the winning run.

Brewers 5, Royals 4

Paul Molitor drilled a two-out single in the eighth, capping a two-run rally that pulled Milwaukee over Kansas City. Larry Hisle singled and came home on Sal Bando's two-out triple.

Three Teams Remain Undefeated...

Area Football Wars In Third Week

Once again area gridders are set to defend high school pride as football season enters its third week here in West Texas. Three area teams will be looking to keep their perfect records, while two others hope to break into the win column this Friday. The other two schools look to improve on 1-1 marks.

Perhaps the area's most heralded team, Roby, will try to trim opponent number three in Bronte this week. The Class B Lions come off a 14-0 victory over Class A Hawley, and are a good pick to remain undefeated after Friday.

Neighbor Rotan, which has outscored opponents 91-28 in the first two weeks of play, will host winless, scoreless Rochester. The Yellowhammers, ranked in the middle of their district, are a big favorite again this week.

Moving southwestward, Hermleigh chalked its second win of the year with a 38-8 thumping of Wellman. Coupled with an earlier 37-16 victory over Grady, the Cardinals now register 75 points to their opponent's 24. Hermleigh will host Blackwell (1-1).

Colorado City, 1-1, garnered its first win of the season last Friday, edging Sweetwater of Class 3A, 15-6. The Wolves are sure to retain that record for another week, as they take a Friday's rest in preparation for Post at Post on Sept. 29.

Meanwhile the Hobbs Panthers found the going tough in Bryson without quarterback Jim Ratliff. Ratliff was injured in an auto accident the Tuesday before, and is reportedly out for the season. Bryson clipped Hobbs 15-0. The Panthers, now 1-1, will travel to Lueders-Avoca this week.

And they're still looking to break into the win column at Ira and Borden County after two weeks of action. The Bulldogs (Ira) travel to Loop this week while the Coyotes try undefeated O'Donnell at Gail. Ira was defeated 36-14 by Grady last Friday, while Borden County fell 28-14 to New Home.

All area games are scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday.

Grimsley Says

...Trojans 21, Tide 17

An AP Sports Analysis
By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The lady in the optometrist's office was going through the routine eye examination.

"Look at the chart," the doctor said, "can you read the top line?" "Read it:" the lady exclaimed. "I know the guy - he plays guard for Notre Dame."

The Fighting Irish - Masztak, Horansky, Martinovich and Co. - have shaken off the Missouri setback and, as in the two previous years, hope to make a bid for No. 1.

Our score last week: 42-9, .823, with Penn State over Ohio State the piece de resistance. This week's upset special (USC over 'Bama.

Southern California 21, Alabama 17: The Tide has had two toughies. The Trojans are young, fresh, eager and away from home.

Notre Dame 27, Michigan 19: The Irish don't get aroused until they've blown one - Georgia Tech in 1978, Mississippi in 1977.

Ohio State 25, Minnesota 14: Woody's gamble with the passing game backfired, now it's back to the infantry.

Penn State 22, Southern Methodist 17: The Mustangs' Mike Ford-Emmanuel Tolbert combination can be troublesome.

Texas 30, Wyoming 7: The Longhorns field a team that rhymes - players named Ham, Jam and Lam. How about Slam.

Arizona 24, Texas Tech 7: When Arizona joined the Pac 10, Coast pundits warned that Coach Tony Mason was "a builder."

Arkansas 35, Oklahoma State 14: The Razorbacks' Lou Holtz has become king of the one liners: "The right angle is tryangle."

Oklahoma 37, Rice 7: Who let all those race horses out of the corral?

North Carolina 18, Maryland 10: The Tar Heels and their new coach, Dick Crum, are both defense minded, give ground grudgingly.

Army 20, Virgina 7: The Cavaliers averaged half a touchdown per game in 1977. Not enough against improved Army.

Tennessee 32, Oregon 7: Coach Johnny Majors takes the wraps off his quarterback, Jimmy Streater.

Spurs Trim Roster To 14

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—The San Antonio Spurs have trimmed their training camp roster to 14 by cutting third-round draft choice Gerald Henderson and free agent Marshall Rogers of Pan American after Wednesday's morning practice session.

The National Basketball Association team plays its first exhibition game here Saturday against Kansas City and opens its season Oct. 13 in Denver.

The 6-3 Henderson was drafted last spring from Virginia Commonwealth.

Rogers, who is 6-1, was the NCAA scoring champion two years ago and spent a season with the Golden State Warriors.

Meanwhile, disgruntled George Gervin, last year's NBA leading scorer who says he wants to be traded because of a contract dispute, was at practice Wednesday but is refusing to talk to reporters.

The 6-7 Gervin, who averaged 27.2 points per game last season, wanted the Spurs to renegotiate his contract. Gervin, however, reportedly turned down the Spur's offer of $300,000 per year for eight years.

Gervin has five years remaining on an eight-year contract paying an estimated $150,000 per year. He missed three of the team's first four training camp sessions, before returning and saying he wanted to be traded.

Tiger JV Buses To Steer Field

BIG SPRING—Undefeated Snyder High junior varsity is scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff against the Steers here today, weather permitting.

Heavy rains, which hit the area for 12 hours and were continuing this morning, could force cancellation of the JV contest. The schools were waiting to make a final decision about noon.

Snyder goes into tonight's game with a perfect 2-0 slate, having whipped Midland Lee and Lubbock Estacado.

Both school's varsity squads will meet tomorrow night in Snyder. The Tigers are 1-1 on the year, while Big Spring goes into the game 0-2.

The Snyder-Big Spring varsity game is well known in the area for its rivalry. Most of the meetings between the two schools have produced close finishes. Last year's contest was won by Snyder in the final 16 seconds.

Stram Figures To Offer Fans Something Different

An AP TV Sports Column
BY HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Hank Stram, long a recognizable figure plotting strategy and prowling the sidelines at National Football League games, is confined to the broadcast booth this season. But he's brought his enthusiasm and passion for organization with him.

"When I got involved with broadcasting I sat down and analyzed the situation," says Stram. "What can I contribute to the broadcast? Some guys want to be comedians. Some want to talk about the past all the time, things that are not really relevant.

"I became determined to talk about the game that people are seeing right now. Let someone else talk about past history. I'm very careful to talk about the game as it unfolds."

Stram will have plenty of opportunity this season. On Sundays he works as a football analyst on CBS Television and on Monday nights he joins veteran Jack Buck to call the game for CBS Radio. Few broadcasters will see more football than Stram this season and that's just fine with him.

"I'll see more games this year than ever before," says Stram, who attended one game a week as coach of the Kansas City Chiefs for 15 years and the New Orleans Saints for two.

"This job provides me the opportunity to stay abreast artistically and keeps me current as far personnel is concerned. And I love the game."

Stram is no stranger to the microphone. During his tenure in Kansas City and New Orleans he had his own radio and TV shows.

"I enjoy this because it gives me the opportunity to watch football games just like I'd do at home," he says. "Only at home I'd just sit and watch. Now I can make observations.

"What I want to do is add a dimension to the broadcast that others can't. Former players can talk about their specific positions but a coach can see the entire picture. I try to make sure I provide a dimension nobody else can.

"The one thing I have to be careful with is not being too technical. I make it a point to control my thoughts. There have been times at clinics where I have talked for more than an hour about one play. You have to get in and out with your thoughts on TV and radio. And your explanation of a play has to be very vivid and clear so people know what you're talking about."

Escapes FBI Again...

Reportedly Drowned Fugitive Seen Alive

DALLAS (AP) - Bobby Johnson, a federal fugitive for 20 months despite the fact he reportedly drowned in the Gulf of Mexico early last year, has been seen alive and positively identified by the FBI.

James Geer, assistant special agent in charge of FBI, said agents positively identified the Wichita Falls grain dealer Aug. 18, living in Clarkston, Wash., under the assumed name Darrell Dean Olson.

However, the same evening, Johnson was apparently tipped that agents were in the area and fled Clarkston, abandoning the truck he was driving about 20 miles outside the town, the agent said.

Geer said agents had been conducting interviews in Clarkston after receiving information about the vehicle linked to Johnson that was registered to an Irene M. Olson at Great Falls, Mont. Further investigation determined the woman had moved to Clarkston, Wash., and was living with a Darrel Olson. Agents had interviewed the woman in Clarkston the evening Johnson disappeared. Geer said the present whereabouts of Johnson and the woman are unknown.

Federal investigation of Johnson began in January 1977 when a several million dollar grain shortage was uncovered at Robert Johnson Grain and Molasses Co. about the time Johnson was reported as having drowned under mysterious circumstances Jan. 3, 1977. He reportedly fell from a cabin crusier in the Gulf of Mexico, and his body was never recovered.

An intensive multi-state investigation led to the filing of a complaint Feb. 11, 1977, charging Johnson with transportation of stolen grain. At that time, Johnson was listed as a federal fugitive, Geer said.

Since his disappearance, several persons have reported seeing Johnson, but Geer said officials had failed to develop any information to show conclusively that he was alive. One witness told the FBI Johnson had undergone plastic surgery and was seen in Uvalde, Texas. Another account had him spotted in South America.

A federal grand jury was convened in Wichita Falls Feb. 14, 1977, to look into the allegations against Johnson.

On Sept. 13 of that year, an indictment was returned charging Johnson and his brother, H.C. Johnson, with 17 counts of transporting stolen grain.

H.C. Johnson was later convicted, and was sentenced to 16 years in federal prison earlier this year.

DR. CECIL OSBORNE

Seminar Features Noted Counselor

Dr. Cecil Osborne of San Francisco, internationally-known author and counselor, will conduct a seminar here this weekend in connection with a Spiritual Growth Conference at First Baptist Church.

He will speak at 5:45 p.m. Friday on "The Art of Understanding Your Mate." His topic for a 6:30 p.m. session Saturday will be "The Art of Understanding Yourself."

A meal for couples will be served in the First Baptist fellowship hall at 5:45 p.m. Friday, and a program will follow at 6:15 p.m. in the chapel. It is scheduled to end by 7:45 p.m.

The Saturday evening program will be for all ages and a meal for youth will be served at 6:30 p.m. The program will follow in the chapel.

On Sunday, Dr. Osborne will speak to young adults at 10 a.m. on the subject "You're in Charge." At the 11 a.m. worship hour his topic will be "Removing the Four Barriers to Spiritual Growth," and at the 7 p.m. service he will speak on "Anger, Guilt, Fear, Tension."

Dr. Osborne is founder and executive director of the Burlingame Counseling Center and the innovator of the Yokefellows concept. He has traveled widely, visiting some 51 countries, and has written six widely-read books.

Prior to assuming full-time leadership of the Yokefellows, Inc., he served 41 years as a pastor, including 34 years as senior minister of First Baptist Church in Burlingame, Calif.

Some 24,000 ships arrive and depart from the Port of New York each year. More than 180 steamship lines connect the port with all the world's trading nations.

Papp Breaks With Gersten

NEW YORK (AP)-They were friends for 30 years, business associates for 19. But producer Joseph Papp - top man at the New York Shakespeare Festival - and his chief aide are parting company.

Papp said a disagreement over a scheduled Broadway musical prompted the break with Bernard Gersten.

Twins Are Fathered By Different Men

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The birth of twins, doctors say, is a rare event - an 80-1 longshot. But twins were born near here recently under circumstances virtually unchronicled in medical history - each child was fathered by a different man.

The bizarre case came to light because the twins' mother filed a paternity suit against one of the men. To prove he had fathered the twins, she consulted Dr. Paul I. Terasaki, a UCLA immunologist who uses an advanced tissue typing system to determine fatherhood.

Since developing his tissue typing method, Terasaki has used it to settle more than 2,500 paternity cases. This one seemed routine.

The doctor matched the alleged father's tissue "finger prints," identifying keys called antigens found in the white blood cells, with one of the twins. But the antigens of the second twin did not match.

"This was the first time we've ever encountered it," Terasaki said in an interview Wednesday. "We hadn't been expecting that. I was surprised."

The odds against his system being wrong, he said, were 140,000-to-1.

The phenomenon of twins having different fathers, called superfecundity, required very special circumstances.

Non-identical twins are formed from two eggs released simultaneously from the ovary and fertilized by sperm released during the same sex act. But for twins to be sired by separate fathers requires the eggs be released hours apart during separate acts of intercourse.

There are only seven such cases known to medicine.

To test his evidence that two men had fathered the twins, Terasaki confronted the woman and asked if she had had intercourse with another man at about the time she conceived the twins.

She admitted she had.

"She accepted the possibility of double fatherhood readily," Terasaki said.

He then tested the antigens of the second man to the antigens of the second twin, and they matched.

Terasaki said professional ethics prevented him from identifying the woman, the two men or the location in the Los Angeles metropolitan area where the births occurred and the paternity case was filed.

The case has been dropped, however, and the dilemma of child support, he said.

"One of the men is taking care of it," Terasaki said. "Both children."

SHS Senior Earns Honor

Pamela Dee Blankenship, Snyder High School senior, has been named a Commended Student in the 24th annual National Merit Scholarship Program, Principal Horrace Bostick has announced.

This honor recognizes the student's outstanding performance on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test which was administered nation-wide to high school juniors in October of 1977.

A total of almost 35,000 commended students through the United States are being honored by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. Students in this group represent the top five percent of more than a million participants in the Merit Program.

To increase their opportunities for college admission and financial aid, NMSC has offered each commended student an opportunity to have identifying information sent by the corporation to two higher education institutions selected by the student.

Penguin Good For Passes

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Most motorists apparently didn't believe their eyes.

But Doug Lewis, who drives a soft drink truck, was more practical.

When he saw the penguin walking along the road, he stopped and shooed it into a service station.

There, Lewis and Jerry Duvelius captured it, and Lewis took it home.

A flurry of telephone calls disclosed the penguin's identity - it was one of two South African penguins that had escaped from Kings Island Family Entertainment Center 10 miles away last Friday.

The other penguin was hit by a car and killed.

"It couldn't have walked that far," said Lewis of the non-flying bird. "It had to come down by the Little Miami River."

The penguin is valued at about $1,500.

"I think Jerry negotiated some passes for next year," said Lewis.

O'Connor Must Quit Smoking

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Carroll O'Connor must quit smoking and drinking because of high blood pressure, his doctor says.

O'Connor, who has gained fame and three Emmys as television's hot-tempered Archie Bunker in "All in the Family," was treated for a nosebleed backstage at the Emmy awards presentation Sunday.

Ford Defends Panel's Work On Assassination

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former President Gerald R. Ford told Congress today that the Warren Commission would have broadened its inquiry into the murder of President John F. Kennedy had it known of CIA plots to assassinate Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

But he said he doubts that such an inquiry would have altered the commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald killed Kennedy and that he acted alone.

Ford, one of the three still-living members of the commission, testified before the House assassinations committee. The other two, former Kentucky Sen. John Sherman Cooper and former Kennedy adviser John J. McCloy, were to appear later in the day.

Ford said the commission knew nothing about CIA plots to assassinate Castro and CIA contacts with organized crime figures as part of those.

"Had the Warren Commission known of assassination plots directed against Castro, this might have affected the extent of the commission's inquiry," he said. "It certainly would have required the commission to extend its inquiry into those operations. But I don't think they, in and of themselves, would have changed the conclusion."

In general, the former president defended the commission's work as thorough.

Ford, who was House Republican leader at the time he served on the commission, acknowledged that he relayed information about the commission's organizational affairs to the FBI.

But he said he had no agreement with the FBI to slip information to it secretly during the commission's investigative phase.

FBI files made public last year suggested that bureau officials viewed Ford as their friend and pipeline to information about the commission's work.

Ford acknowledged that he met twice in December 1963 with Cartha DeLoach, a top aide to then-FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, and told DeLoach of the commission's internal battle over the hiring of a staff director.

Ford said he and DeLoach also discussed one piece of information the commission had received but that nothing in his personal records show any contacts with DeLoach after Dec. 19, 1963.

OBITUARIES

H.C. McKinley

Homer Cowen McKinley, 59, was dead on arrival at Cogdell Memorial Hospital at 2:50 p.m. Wednesday after he was suddenly stricken ill.

Justice of the Peace Bobby Goodwin returned a coroner's verdict of death from natural causes.

Funeral service has been set for 10 a.m. Friday at the Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel. The Rev. Jim Mosley of Ackerly will officiate. Following the service here, the body will be taken to Ranger for burial.

A native of Ranger, McKinely had lived here for 7½ years. He was employed by American Magnesium Co.

Surviving are a daughter, Judy Giddens of Ira; two sisters, Mary Hough of Kerrville and Marjorie Moore of Killeen and one granddaughter.

GraydonHicks

Funeral service was set for 2:30 p.m. today at the Hillcrest Cemetery in Fort Davis for Graydon Hicks Sr., 73, a former Snyder resident. He was dead on arrival at Big Bend Memorial Hospital early Wednesday. Geeslin Funeral Home of Alpine is in charge of arrangements.

A native of Fredericktown, Mo., he lived in Odessa from 1936 to 1949 and in Snyder 1949 until his retirement eight years ago. He was in the refrigeration business here for a number of years, was a member of the First Christian Church in Snyder and had been a member of the Lions and Kiwanis Clubs.

Surviving are his wife, Reva; two sons, Bill D. Hicks of Odessa and Graydon Hicks Jr. of Fort Davis; a daughter, Mrs. John Robert Brude of Fort Davis; a sister, Mrs. L.W. Molony of Altus, Okla.; 10 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Cattlemen Now Making Decent Profit

AUSTIN (AP)--A record price of $626 for young cow-calf pairs at the San Antonio auction Wednesday means beef producers are finally making a decent profit, says Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

Brown noted that choice 300-pound feeder steers brought up to $1.05 per pound at Giddings last week, and 170-200 pound choice feeder calves sold for up to $1.22 a pound at El Campo. These, too, were record prices, Brown said.

The prices "reflect a growing confidence among our beef producers, who are finally beginning to realize some decent profits after four years of extreme financial hardship," said Brown. "But it also shows the premium prices producers must now bid to purchase replacement cattle for their herds, which have been depleted due to continued sell offs brought about by sustained low prices and severe drought."

Brown said the Texas cattle herd numbers 15 million head, a drop of more than 1.5 million from last year.

"Higher cattle prices are a welcome sign to the state's cattle producers," Brown said. "But it is inevitable that these higher prices will eventually be reflected in increased retail beef costs."

Pleas Entered On Oil Fraud Charges

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)--Seven executives from Florida and Texas pleaded innocent today to charges they tried to manipulate the price of oil sold to Florida Power Corp. four years ago during the country's energy crisis.

During a brief 15-minute arraignment, U.S. Magistrate Paul Game set a pretrial hearing for Oct. 3 and trial for the December term of U.S. District Judge William Hodges. Hodges' trial weeks are Dec. 4th and 11th, but no specific date was set.

Two former Florida Power officials, including its ex-president, four oilmen from Houston, and a dealer now living in Fort Myers each took his turn before Game to enter his plea and was then excused from the small, packed courtroom.

Angel Perez, 70, former Florida Power president and board chairman, remained free on $15,000 signature bond following his surrender last Thursday on a single charge of conspiracy which carries a maximum five-year sentence.

Richard Raymond, 63, retired vice president of the St. Petersburg-based utility, and Walter L. Ballard, 56, a Houston oilman now living in Fort Myers, are free on bonds of $50,000 apiece.

Both are named in all 12 charges of conspiracy, mail fraud and fraud by wire and face 60 years in jail if convicted on all counts.

Also indicted were James B. Clark, president of Larcon Petroleum Corp. of Houston; Ronald Pruitt, 36, a Houston attorney and part owner of Larcon Petroleum Inc.; John L. Burns, 50, a former executive with the Charter International Oil Corp. of Houston and Ray Granlund, 73, a Houston-based oil broker.

Ballard was a former officer of Signal Oil and Gas Co. of Houston.

The 12-count indictment culminated an eight-month investigation into allegations of daisy-chaining following the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo. Daisy-chaining is a process whereby goods change hands several times between companies with the price increasing each time before the product gets to its destination.

Prosecutors contend that Florida Power customers paid millions of dollars in overcharges in the form of fuel adjustments on monthly utility bills.

No dollar amount was specified in the six-page indictment, but investigators have estimated it to be around $8.5 million.

Florida Power serves 69,000 customers in a 32 county area of west Florida.

Charge Filed In Stabbing

A murder charge has been filed against Ruben Delao in the weekend stabbing death of Pete Silva.

Delao is alleged to have stabbed Silva, 49, and Silva's 22-year-old son, Felipe, in an incident that occurred outside a residence in the Greenhill Addition. The stabbings are reported to have occurred about midnight Saturday.

Delao remains in Scurry County Jail in lieu of $15,000 bond.

Gail Cafe

times before. They had been working a long time without anything to eat, so we got up and commenced cooking T-bones."

Jym Hendricks takes 71 years of experience at living into retirement with him. His memory is a living history book of America during the 20th century. He has lived through two world wars, the Great Depression and did his part in taming the wilds of West Texas.

"During the depression we survived mostly on what we grew in the garden." With a dozen members in his family he says it was a large garden. "It was rough but we did okay. We didn't have much but nobody else did either."

He was "just a button" during World War I but in World War II he saw action in four battles, including the Battle of the Bulge where he received the Purple Heart.

"There were 246 men in my outfit that went into that battle but only 46 were still around after it. Some were killed, others captured or missing-in-action. I never did find out what happened to a lot of them."

For 30 days after the famous battle he was in a hospital in France recovering from a frozen right foot and left leg. He is still recovering. After more than 40 years they continue to bother him. The mental trauma did not last so long but Madge said it was years after they were married before he would talk about those times at all.

After the war he began cowboying on the 9-R Ranch that occupied parts of Borden and Scurry Counties. The ranch was started by Tom Trammel, one of the early cattle kings of West Texas. When Hendricks hired on, it had passed from Trammel to the W.D. Reynolds family to J.R. Canning. Hendricks says the illustrious ranch is now owned by Joe Lemley of San Angelo who is a nephew of Joe York of Snyder.

The words "Jym's Cafe" can still be made out on a rusting sign that stands beside the building where the Hendricks fed the county's hungry for over two decades whether they were cowpokes, roughnecks, a traveler, more than likely lost, or just a neighbor wanting a change of fare. Jym and Madge are no longer there but you can still get a hot meal in Gail. Pat Porter and Bob Dyess have purchased the business and Lana Meads is doing the cooking honors. It is now the "Sunshine Cafe."

Jym is busy taking it easy "on doctor's orders" and Madge is busy taking care of Jym.

Auto Stolen Here Found Near Van Horn

Two suspects have been arrested in connection with an alleged auto theft from the car lot of Snyder Motor Co.

The theft of the 1977 Dodge Van is reported to have occurred during the night, but it was not discovered until about 8 a.m. today by employees reporting to work.

A teletype by the local police department was sent to area towns, and the van and two suspects were seized outside Van Horn between 9 and 10 a.m. today.

According to early reports, the two men are alleged to have stolen some gasoline in Van Horn. The van was recovered and the two men arrested following a chase.

In other police reports, two minor traffic accidents were investigated yesterday.

The first occurred at 2 p.m. at Forest Lumber Co. It involved a parked 1976 Ford owned by Bob McGee and another vehicle which is reported to have left the scene.

The second took place in the 2700 block of 25th St. at 4:20 p.m. Involved in it were a 1973 Ford driven by Manual Terrazas and a 1976 Datsun driven by Mary Sparks.

In 1975, Rembrandt's priceless masterpiece, "The Night Watch," was slashed and disfigured by a man armed with a bread knife.

Make your own milk products

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Thanks to your column on problems caused by milk, I am now enjoying rye cereal with Lact-Aid milk and avoiding all other foods in which milk makes up a very large portion. It's great not to have those awful cramps and diarrhea with no apparent answers.

Since we have solved this in the sense that I can eat cereal with milk as long as I use Lact-Aid everyone, especially me, wants to know if I will be able to enjoy cheese, ice cream and those foods again. Do you ever get your enzyme back after it has disappeared?

I've had some fractures. Can your bones get weak from not having enough calcium? I am 55 years old and have never been much of a milk drinker but have always loved ice cream, yogurt, cottage cheese and puddings.

Now I'm trying to remember to eat a couple of cans of sardines a week because they contain bones as well as being nutritious in other respects. Should I be supplementing my diet with calcium in some other way? I really don't care that much for milk even now that it doesn't cause stomach problems.

DEAR READER — Any woman in your age group probably should get the same amount of calcium that occurs in one quart of fortified skimmed milk a day. That's over a gram of calcium a day, preferably about one and a half grams.

Women who are on calcium deficient diets are five times as likely to have fractures from weakening of the bones as women who get enough calcium.

There are quite a few people who cannot digest lactose, the sugar that's in milk, because they lack an enzyme that breaks it down into single sugars for absorption. These individuals do have gas, diarrhea and difficulties which you have experienced.

A new product called Lact-Aid can be added to the milk and it will break down the milk sugar before you use it. You can get more information about it from Sugar-Low Company, 3540 Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City, New Jersey 08404. Incidentally, some dairies in selected regions of the United States have started marketing milk that has already been treated with Lact-Aid so that people won't have intolerance to milk sugar.

Of course, once the milk has been treated with the enzyme then you can use the treated milk to make your own homemade ice cream or cottage cheese if you wish. You can also use such treated milk to make puddings which you like. Yes, I think you need calcium and the lack of it can be a factor in your tendency to have bone fractures.

There are a variety of calcium tablets that you can take if you cannot increase your calcium intake in your diet. In addition to the bones in sardines as a calcium source, don't forget canned salmon. Another way to increase your calcium intake is to use skim milk powder and make extra rich milk. To this mixture you can add your Lact-Aid powder to digest the milk sugar that would be in the reconstituted milk. This super rich milk can be used for gravies, puddings and other cooking items and, in this way, you can significantly increase your calcium and protein intake.

To give you more information about the milk problem I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products, Good and Bad. Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you could find yourself in a predicament where you could personally profit, but may have to lower your standards in order to do so. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be a performer today, not a rationalizer. Instead of searching for reasons why something won't work, take action to prove that it will.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Normally if you feel you're getting the short end of something you're ready to stand up for your rights. Today, you may be reluctant to do so.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may put too high a premium on your independence today and do something foolish, just because someone concerned about you strongly suggests you do otherwise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Others have more respect and appreciation for your talents today than you do. Believe it when they praise your worthy efforts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) When you are in the presence of a certain individual, you tend to irrationally see yourself as somewhat inferior. Today you might foolishly let this happen again.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be overly concerned today about doing things to please another if it goes against your better judgment. Operate under your own high standards.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Too much deliberation regarding decisions today could be self-defeating. Your first thoughts are your best, so behave accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful in situations that call for divvying-up today. Unless the spoils are divided equally, someone will have hurt feelings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are very susceptible to flattery today. One who is aware of this may use shallow praise in order to twist you around his little finger.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be discriminating today regarding disclosure of confidential information. Talk openly to persons you love and trust, but be tightlipped with others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your self-discipline may not stand up today if you are tempted by things you know you shouldn't do. Steer clear of situations where it could be put to the test.

CAMPAIGNING FOR HILL--Mike Perrin, son-in-law of Democratic gubernatorial candidate John Hill, was in Snyder Wednesday. He met briefly with supporters and discussed strategy with Hill's Scurry County coordinator, Tom Chorn. "Inflation is our nation's biggest problem," Perrin said and outlined five points of Hill's anti-inflation program: Veto of any new state taxes; fix a constitutional limit on state spending; limit local property taxes levied by school districts; provide tax relief for homeowners and elderly property owners; and return state budget surpluses to taxpayers. Above, he displays his campaign route. From left are Malcolm Pettigrew, Houston; Chorn; Perrin; and David Smith, San Angelo (SDN Staff Photo)

Dear Abby

Good Results From 'Telling' Advice

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years I've read many letters in your column from people complaining that a friend, relative or neighbor habitually imposes on them. Then they ask, "What should I do?" And you always trot out your stock answer, "TELL THEM HOW YOU FEEL!"

Then I'd say to myself, "What a cop-out. Everybody knows that, but they're hoping Abby can offer some magic words that will make it easier for them."

Then I was faced with a very irritating situation. A couple I'd known for years made a habit of dropping by our lake cottage uninvited every Sunday morning. They'd even bring some of their friends and spend the entire day eating our food, drinking our beer, and using our towels which we'd find wet all over the place.

I finally got fed up and told this couple in no uncertain terms that they are not to come over unless invited!

At first they were hurt, but they got over it, and when we invited them they came gladly. We're still good friends, and now I'm sorry I didn't tell them sooner.

I just want to say that what appears to be a stock answer, "TELL THEM HOW YOU FEEL," shouldn't be dismissed as a cop-out. It's really the only workable solution to many a tough problem.

NEW YORK POST READER

DEAR READER: Thanks, I needed that. Telling someone how you feel doesn't necessarily mean telling them off.

DEAR ABBY: Is divorce contagious? I'm beginning to think it is. It seems to break out in large numbers in certain communities, and even in certain families.

If divorce is contagious, some smart scientist could make a fortune if he came up with a vaccine to prevent it. What are your thoughts on the subject?

YOUNG PROFESSOR

DEAR PROF: Divorce is not contagious, but it breaks out in certain communities because some people who have only considered it have gathered the courage to go through with it after friends and relatives have made the daring plunge. The only way to prevent divorce is to eliminate marriage.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when people ask to borrow your comb?

I wash my hair and comb it every day before school, and find it very annoying when kids ask me if they can use it.

I feel like a snob and get mean looks if I say no. What alternatives do I have?

ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: Carry two. One for your own use, and the other for lending.

Menu Maker's Business Good

By TOM DeCOLA
Associated Press Writer

EASTLAND (AP)—If Victor Cornelius hadn't thought the menu salesman's prices were too high, he wouldn't have entered the business and then where would the Officers Mess at Albrook Air Force Base in the Canal Zone buy its menus.

"I was running a restaurant and doing theatrical printing then, and I knew his prices were too high," the 74-year-old Cornelius said. "I asked him if he wanted to sell out, 'cause he was kinda the main guy selling menus. He said $25,000, so I bought him out. The bad part was hauling around all the stuff of his I couldn't use. He'd sold some of those restaurant guys 3,000 menus and they were able to use maybe 40."

That was the beginning of the biggest menu printing operation in the country.

"Yeah, we're in all the states and a lot of other places," Cornelius said. His menus are identifiable by a small VC logo printed near the bottom.

How many restaurants are clients? "I wouldn't have any idea." In the thousands? "Oh, yeah, easy," Cornelius said, indicating a wallfull of client folders.

Much of Cornelius' success has come about due to his tinkering and innovative touch.

Among his patented ideas are Rediclips, those little plastic strips fastened to the tops of menus that usually carry an advertising message and serve as holders for "daily specials."

You know those pictures of hamburgers, club sandwiches and other meals that adorn a lot of menus? The process by which they are affixed belongs to Cornelius.

A machine that attaches the pictures is a Rube Goldberg-looking device slapped together by Cornelius and his workers. Is it patented? "Oh, I think it is, I'm not sure."

While Cornelius entertains no ideas about retiring, he would like to get away from inventions, or so he said. "But the damn things (ideas) come to me all the time and foul me up." About retirement? "Nah, I don't think so. What would I do, sit around scratching?"

While the folksy Cornelius and his West Texas, small-town operation throw off an aura of the primitive, a glance into the company's computer graphics room quickly dispells such a notion. His 85 employees take home about $12,000 a week and last year he gave out $28,000 in Christmas bonuses.

Business must be good, right? "Oh yeah, we got all we can handle."

He's into the refinement now of a diet card for use by nursing homes that lists individual patient diet restrictions and preferences. The whole thing can be washed in a dishwasher.

"One of the guys in the back came up with it and sent out some feelers without telling me and they all came back positive," Cornelius said. "I gave him $5,000 for the idea.

"Then he designed a holder for the cards, so I gave him another $2,000."

Cancer Risk Up In Shipyards

BOSTON (AP) - The risk of lung cancer is unusually high among men who worked in shipyards during World War II, probably because of their exposure to asbestos and other possible cancer-causing materials, a federal study concludes.

In the study, conducted in coastal Georgia, researchers found that men who worked in wartime ship building and repair yards are 1.6 times more likely than usual to suffer the often-fatal form of cancer. The rate is far higher if the men also smoke cigarettes.

About 4.5 million American men held shipyard jobs during World War II.

In a review three years ago, the National Cancer Institute discovered a strikingly high rate of lung cancer on the East Coast between Charleston, S.C., and northern Florida and along the Gulf Coast, mostly in Louisiana.

The institute's latest study, published in today's New England Journal of Medicine, concludes that at least part of the reason for this trend is the shipyard work there more than three decades ago.

"Asbestos and possibly other shipyard exposures during wartime employment account for part of the excess mortality from lung cancer in certain coastal areas of the United States," the researchers wrote.

Asbestos, a fiber made from crushed rock, is used for insulation in shipbuilding. It causes lung cancer and mesothelioma, a rare cancer of the lining of the stomach or lung, but the diseases usually take 20 to 30 years to show up.

The researchers examined the records of 458 men who had lung cancer in coastal Georgia and found that 95 of them had worked in shipyards in Savannah and Brunswick during the war.

THE LATIN HUSTLE--Students of the West Texas Theatric Arts Centre "Disco Class" prepare for their graduation party to be held Sept. 30. Snyder and Northern Electric

"Friends In Progress"

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

SECTION B, THU. SEPT. 21, 1978

Nearly A Year Ago...

Available Facility, Labor Lured Northern Electric

It was nearly a year ago that Northern Electric Co. became interested in Snyder.

The major attraction was a 75,000 square foot building which was available for immediate occupancy. Northern Electric was in the process of selecting a site for a plant to produce automatic blankets.

Snyder had the building, which was less than 10 years old, which had been constructed to house a mobile home manufacturing plant, but it had been vacant for two years.

Following many conferences with Snyder agencies, such as the Scurry County Industrial Foundation, the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, the Scurry County Board of Development and others, officials of Northern Electric decided the facility here would be excellent for starting a new blanket assembly plant.

There was only one major question remaining to be answered. Could the Snyder area provide adequate labor to staff such a plant? Estimates were that Northern Electric would employ around 150 persons its first year, and then hoped to increase, eventually reaching as many as 400.

A labor survey was conducted in Snyder and area towns. Over 800 potential employees signed up in the survey, indicating that Northern Electric's labor demands could be met in this area.

So, on Jan. 20, a formal announcement was made that Northern Electric Co. planned to establish a plant in Snyder, using the building in the north part of town that had been vacated two years earlier by Wickes Homes. Local bankers, Chamber of Commerce, industrial foundation and BCD officials met with Northern Electric officials and signed a lease agreement for the building.

Participating in this ceremony were Larry Udall, Northern Electric's vice president for planning and corporate development; Jimmy Daniels, who immediately became and still is the Snyder plant operations manager; Martin Brooks, president of West Texas State Bank; John Cameron, president of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce; Paul Sizemore, president of the Scurry County Industrial Foundation; Roger B. Mize, president of the Snyder National Bank; John Fagin, mayor of Snyder; and Gene Best, chairman of the Scurry County Board of Development.

The Northern Electric officials announced that they planned to have a pilot program going within 60 days and hoped to be in steady production soon thereafter.

The first automatic blanket was turned out in the Snyder plant on March 10. Since that time, the personnel has ranged mostly from 170 to 180 and production has been around 2,000 to 2,500 automatic blankets per day.

The company would like to increase its production and still has the welcome mat out for prospective applicants for employment.

Jimmy Daniels Plant Manager

It was last Jan. 20 that Jimmy Daniels, a transplanted Mississipian, declared himself to be a citizen of Snyder.

Northern Electric Co. had just signed a lease agreement on the industrial building formerly occupied by Wickes Homes in Snyder and Daniels had been designated as the Snyder plant's operations manager.

Daniels literally hit the ground running and has been at it ever since as Northern Electric's Snyder plant eased into production in March and now has some 170 people turning out from 2,000 to 2,500 automatic blankets per day.

A native of West Point, Miss., Daniels graduated from Mississippi State University in 1965. He has been with Northern Electric for 13 years, working in engineering, personnel, production and plant management in three of Northern's Mississippi plants before transferring to the company's Matamoros, Mexico, operation in 1977.

JIMMY DANIELS

Daniels is married and he and his wife, Thomasine, have a son, Richard 13, and a daughter, Tracy 9. They moved to Snyder from Brownsville.

In Canada in 1937, more than 1,500 cases of infantile paralysis with 58 deaths were reported in an epidemic that began in June.

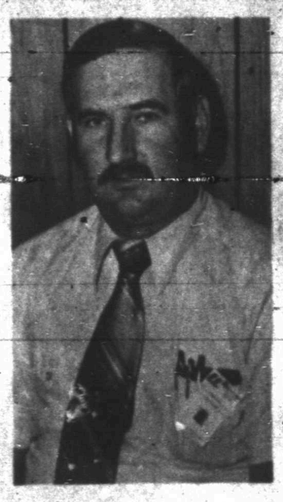
Lack Is Plant Superintendent



ROGER LACK

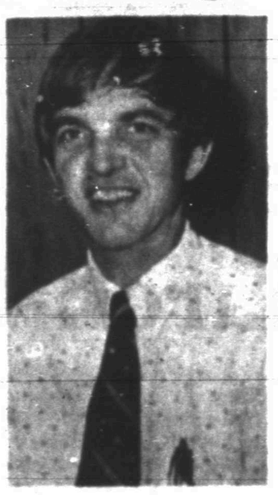
Roger Lack, 35, Northern's plant superintendent at Northern Electric Company's Snyder plant, has been with Northern for the past 12 years, beginning at Bay Springs, Miss., in 1966.

He moved here from Mt. Olive, Miss., after Northern established its plant in Snyder.

Lack has served as production superintendent in Northern's plant at Waynesboro, Miss.; plant manager in Citronelle, Ala.; assembly superintendent in Hattiesburg, Miss.; assistant plant manager in Bay Springs and assembly service department manager in Hattisburg.

Lack is married and he and his wife, Emily, have two sons, David and Jason, and a daughter, Dawn. They live at 3001 32nd St.

Day Is Head Of Manufacturing



JIMMY DAY

Jimmy Day, manufacturing superintendent at Northern Electric Company's Snyder plant has been with the company for four years.

Day, who received his bachelor of science degree in marketing and management at Louisiana State University in 1968, had six years as a professional golfer prior to joining Northern Electric. He was on the PGA Tour from October of 1968 through December of 1969.

Day joined Northern Electric in 1974 at Waynesboro, Miss. In 1976, he transferred to Northern Blankets, Ltd., a Northern Electric subsidiary in Manchester, England. There, his services were divided among field sales, national account sales, customer service and production manager. He came to Snyder in February of this year.

Day and his wife, Katie, have three children, Stacey 13, Stephanie 7, and Steven 3.

RON HEATH & BILL WISLOCKI

Wislocki, Heath Are Managers

Bill Wislocki, office manager, and Ron Heath, personnel manager, both began their careers with Northern Electric at the Snyder plant.

Wislocki, whose home town was Vicksburg, Miss., is a graduate of the University of Mississippi with a BBA degree in accounting. He worked for five years in the accounting field and came to Snyder to join Northern Electric last May. As office manager, he coordinates the functions of payroll, traffic, material control and production scheduling. He and his wife, Sylvia, have a son, Adam 3.

Heath is a native Texan. He attended North Texas State University and previously lived at Mineral Wells. He started as personnel manager for Northern Electric last April. He has one son.

Persons Quizzed In Explosions

DENVER (AP) - Federal agents were questioning persons in Rock Springs, Wyo., after finding evidence of explosive devices at the scene of recent explosions and fires at five producing oil and gas wells in a two-state region.

Federal official K.R. Klepinger in Oklahoma City, said no suspects or motives had been identified. The explosions all occurred within a month starting July 5. They culminated in a spectacular blaze at the Ryckman Creek well north of Evanston, Wyo., which took the Red Adair firefighting team a week to extinguish. Four other explosions at smaller wells self-extinguished.

First Blanket Produced In Snyder March 10, '78

Northern Electric Co. came into Snyder last winter anxious to get a plant geared up for production of automatic blankets.

It had been a long, cold winter, and the demand for automatic blankets had outstripped production. In fact, from about mid-winter on through the season, a person couldn't buy an automatic blanket in Snyder—or any other area town. All of the electric blankets that had been produced for that season had been sold.

Northern's Snyder plant produced its first blanket on March 10, and things have been humming in the plant on the north side of town ever since.

Today, some 170 people are working in the plant. They are turning out automatic blankets at the rate of 2,000 to 2,500 per day.

Jimmy Daniels, operations manager of the Northern Electric Plant, says things are going rather smoothly at the plant now.

"But I would like to have about 200 working here," Daniels said.

Production has gone well since the plant opened, but they have reached more plateaus than Daniels would prefer. He would like to see the production move on a steady incline.

"We should turn out 600,000 our first year, and we would like to double that our second year."

Much of the huge building, at one time used to produce mobile homes, is devoted to the actual production of automatic blankets. Boxes of finished blankets ready for shipment are stacked in an area near the southwest corner of the building.

"I would like to take in all of this space for production," said Daniels, pointing to the boxes of blankets. "Then we could build a warehouse for these."

The market for the automatic blankets is the entire U.S.A.

"Our blankets go all over the country to retail outlets," said Daniels. "We hope we can turn out enough to meet the demand this winter, but we must increase to do it," Daniels continued.

The Snyder plant is Northern's fourth automatic blanket plant. Components for the blankets come from for other plants, including one in Maine which turns out the fabric. The blankets are then assembled here and in three other Northern plants.

The assembly process involves finishing the fabric (they call it napping), cutting the fabric into the standard width and length, inserting the heating elements, which are very small, well-insulated coiled wires, along with little breakers which prevent them from overheating. Then they have the outside controls attached, are bound, folded, bagged and boxed for shipment.

At present, the Snyder plant is operating only one shift per day except for the fabric finishers, a relatively small group, who work two shifts sometimes.

Northern Makes Small Appliances

To most Snyderites who keep up with such things, Northern Electric Co. is big in blankets.

They are correct, of of course. The Northern plant in north Snyder turns out around 2,500 automatic blankets per day. But Northern Electric is much bigger than the blanket trade.

In fact, if you look closely at the label on many small appliances, grooming aids, etc., you will find the Northern emblem. And many of them are sold in retail stores right here in Snyder.

For example, did you know that Northern Electric makes ice cream freezers? Well, Northern bought out the company that made Dolly Madison ice cream makers some two years ago and now turns them out, still under the Dolly Madison brand, at a plant in Mississippi.

Among other items widely used in Snyder as well as the rest of the country, Northern turns out hair styling wands, hair dryers, lighted mirrors, automatic manicure systems, cordless facial brushes, hot lather dispensers, oral water jets, heating pads, vaporizers, humidifiers and ice bags—the only item manufactured by Northern that isn't electrically operated.

There is the Northern Enchantment automatic blanket, the Northern Riviera automatic blanket, the Northern Capri automatic blanket, the Northern Sorrento automatic blanket, the Northern Lido automatic blanket, the Northern Challenger automatic blanket, the Northern Carlyle automatic blanket, the Northern Silent-tron automatic blanket, the Northern Norfield automatic blanket, the Northern Warmcrest automatic blanket, the Northern Arlington automatic blanket, and Northern's luxurious decorator throws.

Blankets are the product of the Northern Electric plant in Snyder, which began operation last March, and the company, a division of Sunbeam, now is the No. 1 nationally-advertised line of automatic blankets.

When buying clothes for growing children, quality is often not important. If clothing can't be handed down to other children in the family, garments will probably be outgrown before they are worn out, says Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Northern Got To Work Fast

Northern Electric Co. didn't waste any time getting its Snyder plant into production, once it decided definitely that it was coming here last winter. But it required quite a project to get the building ready for changing over from mobile homes to automatic blankets.

The 75,000 square foot building, located in North Snyder, was constructed originally for a mobile home manufacturing plant. Wickes Homes moved out of the building in 1975 and it had remained vacant until Northern Electric leased it last January.

The signing of the lease touched off a lot of preliminary work as Northern rushed to get the plant into production within two months.

The office area, as well as the production area were completely remodeled. One of the biggest tasks was installing air conditioning to cool the entire plant and adding additional sanitary facilities for personnel.

Also, an area on the west side of the plant building was turned into a new "break" room for employees.

The building now houses offices, production facilities and storage for finished products to be shipped. However, Northern officials say they would like to have more of it devoted to production. This could be achieved by providing additional facilities for warehousing and shipping. The prime need now is more production personnel.

Navy Buys Blimp

MIAMI BEACH, Fla (AP) - Saul Slater has built a hovering blimp, and the Navy thinks the design is just dandy for a vehicle to use for coastal patrol and ocean surveilliance.

The Navy bought the 73-year-old Slater's first blimp - a 19-footer. He now plans to build a new silver sausage - this one 110-foot-long.

"I thought it would be nice to have something to float around in," Slater said. "I can make it go sideways. Up. Down. It hovers."

"A number of companies have come up with designs for a blimp that can hover," says John Eney of the Navy's Lighter Than Air Project. "But Slater went ahead and built one."

Eney says Slater's blimp has the smooth ride, endurance and energy savings the Navy was looking for.

"If a cheap blimp could be built - one that sold for $150,000 - it could compete with yachts," Slater says. "I don't say it would replace the boat. But there are lots of people who'd like to sail around in the air."

WINDING WIRE--Before the wire can be laced through the electric blanket, it must first be sorted and straightened out. That process is left to Carla Jenkins, above. She sorts five strands of wire at the same time on a specially designed "winder." (SDN Staff Photo)

Northern Electric Co. Still Seeking Applications

If you are able to work and looking for a job, Northern Electric would welcome your application at its plant on U.S. Highway 84 just west of the Clairemont Road.

"We have about 170 people who are producing automatic blankets now, but that's not enough," said Jimmy Daniels, operations manager of the plant.

Daniels said Northern needs a work force of at least 200--30 more than it now has employed--just to keep up with current demand for its automatic blankets.

This means that applications are continuously being sought at the plant personnel office.

Northern Electric, the No. 1 manufacturer of automatic blankets, is in a continuous, long-range growth pattern, which means that employment opportunities continue to expand.

"We offer full fringe benefits to our employes," said Daniels.

These include health insurance, a profit-sharing plan, paid holidays, paid vacations, etc.

The Snyder plant is now turning out from 2,000 to 2,500 automatic blankets per day. Daniels would like to see this figure increase to 3,000 per day tomorrow. But they need more employees.

"We have some fine people working here now," Daniels said. "There's just not enough of them. But we are making progress and we hope to make even more before the end of the year.

Veterans' Burial Allowances Hiked

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House has passed a bill to increase veterans' burial allowances from $250 to $350. Backers of the bill, passed by the voice vote Tuesday, said the allowance has stayed the same for 20 years, while the costs of funerals and burials expenses have more than doubled. The bill now goes to the Senate.

CHECKING STATION--Periodic checking of the product as it is being made helps prevent more problems farther down the line. Beryl Hughes is shown manning a check station where she unkinks wire that is bunched up in the blanket before the blanket is completely sewn shut. (SDN Staff Photo)

IMPORTANT STAGE--Toward the end of the Northern Electric production line, the blanket ends must be sewn and fringe placed on one edge. Among other people working in that department is Socorro Del Toro, above. (SDN Staff Photo)

Traced Call Led To Girl

NEW YORK (AP) - A phone conversation in which fashion designer Calvin Klein was asked by his daughter's kidnappers if he had the $100,000 ransom was traced to the apartment where the girl was held and later found, a telephone company investigator has testified.

Investigator Joseph Cassese was one of seven witnesses - including four FBI agents - to testify Friday in the trial of Paule Ransay and her half-brother, Dominque Ransay, before state Supreme Court Justice Thomas Galligan. They are being tried on kidnapping charges.

Security checks at American airports have detected more than 15,000 guns being carried by passengers in the past five years, says the Federal Aviation Administration.

Plan Underway For Galveston Secession

GALVESTON (AP)-Boozey, bawdy and boisterous, H.A. "Doc" Weinert recalls those thrilling days of yesteryear when this island resort had more flash than the Devil's pinkie ring.

And now there are those - with Weinert leading the parade - who want to secede to form their own republic - an island free state where the only thing that stands between a man and a good time is the weight of his wallet.

Weinert recalls with some displeasure the late 1950s when the state of Texas stepped in to clean up widespread illegal drinking, gambling and attendant vices that had earned for Galveston a reputation as an "open, but clean" city.

The destruction of those revenue-and job-producing industries was a devastating blow to the economy of such a heavily tourist-oriented community, and Galveston has stagnated since then, he said.

Weinert has a plan to bring back the city's economic good health by returning to those thrilling days of yesteryear.

He wants to divorce Galveston from the state government he says caused the current economic malaise by getting Texas to de-annex the city so it can apply for admission to the United States as number 51.

Then he wants to follow the lead of Atlantic City, N.J., another seaside tourist town that had fallen on economic hard times until it became the Las Vegas of the East Coast.

A few large hotels and fancy saloons, maybe a horse race track, a dog race track and a few casinos strategically placed, and Galveston could be the richest little state in the nation, Weinert believes.

He can't be serious, you say with a grin. He's putting us on, right?

"I'm dead serious on this thing, and so are the people working with me," Weinert said in a telephone interview.

"Operations such as casinos and horse racing would offer a distinct advantage to Galveston and Texas.

"It would keep dollars here that are now lost to Louisiana and Las Vegas, which have gambling," he said.

Weinert doesn't think the quality of life in Galveston would suffer.

In 1957, the Galveston County Grand Jury blasted local officials for condoning "wholesale law violations." It returned 117 felony gambling indictments while criticizing the "apathy of a very large segment of the people toward law enforcement and good government."

The grand jury report listed commercial gambling, organized prostitution and illegal sale of liquor as the three major categories of open violations that existed throughout the county.

The death knell of the "clean, but open" era sounded soon after when then-Attorney General Will Wilson used the Texas Rangers in a crusade against illegal activities in Galveston.

He cleaned up the town, all right, but there are some residents, including Weinert, who aren't sure Wilson's action was in the best interests of the city.

Weinert noted that the city's population had increased steadily until 1960, when it reached about 70,000.

Wilson's crusade marked the beginning of an economic decline in Galveston, Weinert said. By the 1970 census, the city's population had dropped to about 62,000. It leveled off at about 65,000 as the city looked for new industry to boost its struggling economy, he said.

Galveston still is in an economic slump, Weinert says, and it must do something soon to pull itself out.

"People's backs are against the wall economically," he said. "This town is poor largely because the property owned by various foundations, churches, the state and the federal government is tax exempt.

"About 50 percent of the property owners are paying 100 percent of the taxes," he said.

Weinert now has petitions circulating around the island asking the City Council to hold a special initiative election in which voters could decide for or against de-annexation and statehood plan.

According to Weinert's plan, Galveston would ask the state Legislature to de-annex the city under authority of the joint resolution adopted by the U.S. Congress when it brought Texas into the Union.

Texas was annexed by the United States as a whole with the stipulation that at a later date, it could be split into as many as five states. It never was, of course, but the law still exists.

Weinert says 1,261 signatures are needed on the petitions to force the City Council to consider calling the election. That number is 5 percent of the 25,112 registered voters in Galveston as of March 2, 1978, he said.

"The plan is feasible if we get two things-acceptance from the local people and acceptance from the state legislature," Weinert said. "If we're fortunate enough to get the people's approval, we have to go into the regular session of the state Legislation in Austin and lobby to have the island de-annexed."

Weinert said he expects some people to laugh at the idea, especially at City Hall.

"Local government looks at it as a humorous thing, quite naturally," he said. "But we're as serious as we can be."

Weinert was right. Assistant City Manager Steve Huffman just chuckled when asked about the proposal.

"No, we haven't taken it seriously," he said with a grin that could be heard over the telephone. "Weinert's always been against the present form of government and for going back to the good old days.

"I think he just wants to secede from the whole United States...period," Huffman said.

The assistant city manager said that even if Weinert got enough signatures on the petitions, the city attorney and the attorney general would have to rule whether the whole idea was legal.

Besides, Huffman said he's not so sure Galveston is in the dire economic straits described by Weinert.
