BATTLE OF BALLOTS ON TODAY GRAND DRAGON SAYS KU KLUX KLAN BACKING J. FRANK NORRIS THINK IN TERMS OF TEXAS, URGE SECRETARIES

EAST TEXAS C. OF C. MAN ADDRESSES CONVENTION HERE

NATIONAL ADVERTISEMENT OF LONE STAR STATE IS PLAN

ADJOURN TODAY

ELECTION OF OFFICERS TO BE HELD THIS MORNING

Closing their second day with the annual banquet at the Tech cafeteria last night, the Texas Executive Association went down on record at having the largest meeting ever held. One hundred and five secretaries are here and have been here for the past two days fitting themselves better for their profession.

Toastmaster Roy Christian opened the meeting with the regular assembly of the Halitosis Club, International. A very spirited session was held and many interesting and important measures were passed for the betterment of the welfare of the organization.

Following the session of the Halitosis International, W. N. Blanton was introduced, who impressed still further in the minds of the members the importance of "thinking in terms of Texas." He was followed by Byron Johnson of El Paso who told of "The Problems of the Secretary."

Speaks on Profession
M. E. Melton of Texas, in his talk on "The Profession" stressed the importance of each individual member fitting himself better for his work. He told of the rise of the profession of the commercial secretary from the mere gift job to the present day type of professional man. Melton also went into a discussion of the National School of Commercial Secretaries and gave some interesting information regarding the work of the school.

Regular sessions will be held this morning at 8:30. The various committees will make their reports and officers will be elected and officers will be elected and nominations for next meeting placed made. They will adjourn before noon today.

Discusses Chickens
In the diversification program poultry should top the list, said W. D. Cargill of Brady in his discussion at the opening of the afternoon session. "Texas gets less for her poultry than any other state, but it will take lots of hard work on the part of the commerce organizations," Cargill stated. His discussion gave in brief the possibilities of Texas as a poultry raising state and what should be done to stabilize the business.

W. E. James appeared before the secretaries from the State Council (Continued on page 6)

MAURY HOPKINS HEADS HALITOSIS

Maury Hopkins of Plainview was last night elected by acclamation president of the Halitosis International. Roy Christian of Corsicana presided over the meeting of the famous organization at the Tech Cafeteria last night. All the visiting "chicken eaters" were present. Mr. Hopkins' name was never mentioned by anybody until Mr. Christian, after calling for nominations, and being greeted by a profound silence, announced his election. It was suggested by Mrs. Paul T. Vickers of Midland that the wives of C-C secretaries and managers form an auxiliary organization to be known as "The Listerated International." Mr. Christian was presented with a large bottle of a well known antidote for halitosis, and John Boswell of Dallas was given an onion, the official club fruit. The purpose of the Halitosis International, is "to make the world sweeter for the democrats."

ANTI-AMERICAN RIOTS IN PARIS

DOWN WITH MELLON DOWN WITH BORA! SHOUT CROWDS

PARIS, July 23.—Scarcely had Andrew Mellon, American secretary of the treasury, stepped on European soil, before the boulevard demonstrators of Paris raised the cry "down with Mellon." "Down with Mellon—down with Bora!—down with debts" cried the thousands as the French gave a demonstration surpassed only by that of the Herriot cabinet fall. Police were kept busy chasing crowds away from tourist agencies and from cafes frequented by Americans. Every attempt was made to keep the crowd of 2,000 in order. Arrests were made only in case of violence.

Mexican Troops Ready For Trouble

MEXICO CITY, July 23.—Mexican federal troops are detained in their barracks as a precaution against disorders when new anti-Catholic religious decrees are enforced August 1, officials have declared.

MAY BUILD PALACE FOR STRIKING GARDNERS

ROME, July 23.—Pope Pius XI may build a large apartment building near St. Peter's to be used exclusively by employees of the vatican and to end their threats of a strike.

BLOODWORTH IN STATEMENT REFUTES NEWSPAPER YARNS

SAYS HE PERSONALLY IS FOR FT. WORTH PASTOR

NEW EVIDENCE CLAIM BLOOD FOUND IN HALL OUTSIDE OFFICE

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 23.—Lloyd Bloodworth, grand dragon of the Texas ku klux klan announced late tonight that he would stand behind Dr. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth, who faces possible indictment for the slaying of C. D. Chipp, a wealthy business man. Bloodworth's statement is interpreted to mean that the klan organization will stand solidly behind the "fundamentalist" pastor, in spite of the fact that the klan chief declared he was speaking only for himself.

"I am behind Dr. Norris in any way that may be of assistance to him in his present situation," Bloodworth declared. "I have known him for 17 years and in all that time he has been an outstanding crusader for protestant Christianity. I am not attempting to speak for the klan organization of Texas, but I presume I know their attitude in regard to free speech, free conscience and the freedom of worship." Determined to be indicted, tried and acquitted as complete exonerations on the killing, the crusading pastor printed in his church paper "The Searchlight" an article entitled "Roman Catholics and enemies of Dr. Norris on present jury."

In the article Norris declared that the grand jury was formed before the alleged "church murder" for the purpose of indicting him for criminal libel for the attacks he had been making in the pulpit and in his paper on prominent Fort Worth Catholics. These attacks were the ones which Chipp had called at the pastor's study to protest against when he was shot.

"Searchlight" had been off the presses only a short time when Sam Sayers, a special prosecutor, announced his law firm had come into possession of evidence that Chipp was not killed inside the Baptist church study as Norris has said he was. Blood marks were found outside the study door, according to Sayers.

$20,000 Loss In Blaze At Tyler

TYLER, Texas, July 23.—Loss estimated at $20,000 was incurred at Chandler, 12 miles west of Tyler, when two brick buildings in the downtown district were destroyed by fire. The Tyler fire department responded to the alarm and saved five adjoining buildings that were endangered by the blaze.

BITTER CAMPAIGN WILL BEAR FRUIT AT POLLS OF TEXAS

DAN'S AND MA'S LITTLE BET WILL BE DECIDED

POLLS OPEN AT 8

AVALANCHE WILL POST RETURNS FROM ALL TEXAS

Well, it's all over but the voting. That is, for most of the candidates. When Lubbock citizens start marking up their ballots as the polls open at 8 a. m. today, the result of months of strenuous and often bitter campaigning will come to light, and things political may lull slightly before the almost inevitable second primary.

Of course, to listen to Dan and Jim and Lynch, you wouldn't think there was going to be any second primary. They are all three going to be elected by a majority vote today, according to their campaign managers. But the vote will be counted and the argument over soon, and guests of the Avalanche at the annual election party at 13th and Avenue I tonight, where a bulletin board will be placed and returns from the Texas "Election" Bureau posted, will get a pretty good idea of how things are going, even if the final returns from the 252 counties of the great state of Texas may not be announced for several days.

Outside of the hot local campaigns, interest centers on the gubernatorial election. Miriam A. Ferguson, incumbent, Ten Moody, now attorney general, and Lynch Davidson, Moody and "Ma" have up the famous election bet—Ma has offered to resign as governor if Dan leads her by one vote. Dan has offered to resign his office as attorney general if Mrs. Ferguson leads him by 25,000 votes. Moody says he will keep his bet if he loses. Ma hasn't said anything about it lately. In the meantime, while Dan and Ma have been lambasting each other and their proponents tearing their shirts for them, Lynch Davidson of Houston is claiming a big "silent" vote. He calls the bet, "crap game politics." It will all come out in the voting today.

The boxes for the city in the democratic primary are all in the court house. The polls open at 8 a. m. and close at 7 p. m. In the meantime republicans of Lubbock will be voting on a republican state ticket at the city hall. Election judges have asked that voters bring their poll tax receipts if possible, to facilitate matters. A big vote is expected here.

Denton Speaks For Dan Moody

W. B. Denton spoke yesterday afternoon at the corner of 13th street and Avenue I to a large crowd of people in the interest of Dan Moody's campaign for governor. The crowd was evidently with him, for they cheered vociferously.

"ZIM" ADVOCATE FURNISHES FEATURE OF EVENING AS THOUSAND GATHER FOR LAST LUBBOCK POLITICS RALLY

Lubbock county candidates and representatives of candidates for state offices made final appeals to voters at an open air meeting at the corner of 13th and Ave. last evening. Something like 1,000 voters were present. While quite a number of the candidates made their announcements several were absent or failed to avail themselves of this opportunity. Mayor Frank L. Parrish presided at the meeting. Speakers were allowed only five minutes each and a majority of them failed to use all their time. Speaker for district attorney and for gubernatorial candidates kept the floor until they were called down by the speaker. Their remarks were brief and to the point and as a whole were nothing more than final appeals for support. Moody and Davidson were represented in an able manner, though no one present volunteered to represent Mrs. Ferguson. Probably the best, and by far the most entertaining speech of the evening was delivered by Judge G. E. Lockhart in behalf of Mr. Zimmerman. He outlined the platform of his candidate in a "snappy" manner, declaring him to be the only qualified candidate in the race, for Zim had said as much himself. He said when he and Dr. Zimmerman took over the white house, conditions would change and that in a hurry. Rich men will be driven out of existence, the Deen law repealed and the Volstead act junked. They both favor "light wine and heavy beer." Of course the remarks of Judge Lockhart were humorous, but as a change from numerous serious campaign speeches they were appreciated. So far as is known this will be the last public meeting to be held in this county until after the election when quite a few are expected to renew their efforts for a second primary.

NEW SERIAL STARTS ON PAGE 8, THIS ISSUE

A new serial, "Sylvia," by Ninon Romaine, is begun in today's issue of the Avalanche, on page 8. In this romance of Greenwich Village this distinguished woman, already recognized on three continents as one of the greatest of living concert pianists, makes her bow to the world in a new role. Sylvia is the first published work of novel length by Madame Romaine, and the publishers have professed to find in it the same charm and allure of brilliant provocative romance, that had been found in her musical accompaniment.

Tea At The Home of Mrs. Slaton and Breakfast At The Country Club Are Given As Entertainment of Visitors

Two delightful social affairs were given for the visitors in Lubbock Thursday and Friday who, with their husbands, were attending the meeting of the commercial secretaries of West Texas.

The first of these, and informal tea, was given at the home of Mrs. O. L. Slaton, general chairman of the arrangements for entertaining the visitors. This was a general get acquainted meeting where the visitors met each other and where several Lubbock women were also present to do the courtesies for the city. Mrs. W. B. Howell was chairman of the committee for the tea with Mrs. A. B. Conley and Mrs. W. H. Meador as co-workers. Mrs. Slaton's home is unusually lovely and with its decorations of beautiful flowers, was an ideal place for the tea.

Breakfast at the Country Club. Friday morning at eleven the guests were served a breakfast at the Lubbock Country Club with Mrs. Nell Wright as toastmistress. The visitors and Lubbock women were seated alternately, and each guest was introduced by her partner. Mrs. Roscoe Wilson gave the invocation. Mrs. Richard Douglas charmingly sang two songs at the beginning of the program. Mrs. Wright extended a most cordial welcome, followed by songs by Mrs. Ed McCreely, and Mrs. Barker, of Fort Worth. Mrs. Joe Flaig beautifully accompanied all the singers. Mrs. W. H. Meador gave a cleverly rhymed toast to the visitors.

The breakfast was served from a long table, elaborately decorated with many varieties of garden flowers. The committee for the affair was Mrs. Wright, Mrs. A. V. Weaver, and Mrs. T. B. Duggan.

The Lubbock women who attended the tea were Mesdames N. H. Wright, A. V. Weaver, W. B. Powell, Eastin Wolfarth, C. M. Ballenger, R. Q. Pierce, E. E. Vickers, P. E. Friend, E. L. Klett, T. B. Duggan, S. C. Arnett, J. S. Johnson, Pink Parrish, M. L. Price, J. H. Hankins, J. T. Hutchinson, M. B. Hiburn, A. B. Conley, W. H. Meador and O. L. Slaton.

Those who were present at the breakfast were Mesdames W. S. Pogue, Sam Dymally, Joe Flaig, Roscoe Wilson, S. C. Arnett, W. A. Bacon, W. H. Meador, Len Duggan, R. W. Blair, Ed McCreely, Richard Douglas, Nelson, of Floydada, Misses Ruth Slaton, and Della Winkinson.

INTERIOR DECORATIONS

Simple Overdraperies
Simple overdraperies such as those shown in the sketch give a very finished look to a window and can be made by a person with ordinary aptitude for sewing.

You can make them lined or unlined, depending upon your material. If lining them, you can line them with the material itself or some other material like a satin or a silk.

Shades Not Necessary
Also you can make them with enough width so you can pull them together at night, and not use shades. Or you can have them much narrower and consider them just as window drapery.

These draperies require two sets of rods; the straight rod and the curved overdrapery rod. They can be bought cheaply.

In taking the measurements before buying the material, allow something over for irregularities and slight mistakes. You will probably have to piece your valance, in which case you may need to match the figures in the design, so be sure to consider this in figuring.

Need Not Be Expensive
Overdraperies do not need to be of rich or expensive material to be good looking and in good taste. Lovely cretonne or dechintze sare shown in the good stores at ridiculously low prices. These can be lined with almost any cotton material such as gingham, lawn, cotton crepe, or made double. For more formal materials something on the order of satin gives the necessary body.

BEAUTY HINTS

By Peggy Hopkins Joyce

Ventilate your hair. On warm sultry summer days, your hat crowds the life from those naturally lustrous and virile locks.

Select a warm—not hot—airy place in the bright sunshine and shake out your hair, gently, lock by lock, while the health-giving rays do their work. But never remain long in the glaring sunlight with your head unprotected. Old Sol is a bit strenuous when it comes to bleaching hair. He can streak it unmercifully.

But if you try this semi-weekly airing, I'm sure you will find it worth the short time which it will be bought cheaply. In taking the measurements before buying the material, allow something over for irregularities and slight mistakes. You will probably have to piece your valance, in which case you may need to match the figures in the design, so be sure to consider this in figuring.

WON'T PAY FARE, SO HE PAYS $5 FINE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 23—S. P. Lemly, who gained nation-wide notoriety a year ago for his refusal to have his children vaccinated in conformance with city ordinance, will "pay out" a $5 fine imposed for disturbance of the peace.

Lemly was fined for a disturbance after he had refused to pay ten cent bus fare in lieu of a fine regulation street car six cent rate. Bus line service displaced the street car.

Lemly refused to pay the rate ante and failed to meet the judge's assessment.

LUBBOCK COUNTY DELIGHTS TO HONOR HER BEST FRIENDS

Today she has the opportunity of paying tribute to one who has manifested his faith in Lubbock in a substantial way. The reference is to Superintendent of Public Instruction, S. M. N. Marrs, who was a member of the Locating Board that placed the Texas Technological College in Lubbock. If Mr. Marrs were not qualified for the position he now holds, and there were a better man in the rare, the good citizen could not conscientiously support him. But Mr. Marrs has made an able and faithful official, and today it will give our Lubbock citizenship especial pleasure to record a strong vote for him. Let it never be said that Lubbock is ungrateful to her friends! —An Interested Voter.

DEMOS LAUNCH COOLIDGE ATTACK

ASSAIL INCREASED APPROPRIATION FOR LAST CONGRESS SESSION

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The democratic national committee is making the increase appropriations of the last session of congress, the vehicle for an attack on Coolidge economy.

The issues of a formal statement on this subject from national committee headquarters here today indicate that the figures are to be used generally by democrats in the congressional campaigns throughout the country this summer.

The statement is based on a summary of appropriations prepared by the republican chairman of the senate and house appropriations committees.

"Plans to Coolidge economy by political promoters to the contrary notwithstanding the stubborn, discordant fact is that appropriations for 1927 are $470,886,681 greater than they were for 1926; or if certain deductions be made because of postal service revenues, the increase is $273,603,305," the democratic statement said.

President Coolidge recently explained that these increases are due to the normal expansion of the government and, in part, to the expenses of the soldiers bonus act which congress passed over the presidential veto.

"Had congress appropriated all the president's budget bureau estimated the amount would have been $11 higher by $6,802,000," the democratic committee said.

"The increase for 1927 over 1926 is greater than the total appropriations by the congress for all purposes thirty years ago. Nobody expects appropriations now to be what they were then; but it is startling to see the entire cost of the federal government then was less than the increase of appropriations for 1927 over 1926."

Remarks of Senator Francis E. Warren, chairman of the senate appropriations committee and Representative Martin B. Madden, chairman of the house appropriations committee, published in the Congressional Record of July 12, analyzing federal finances, have embarrased promoters of the Coolidge economy cult.

COTTON FLEA NOT SERIOUS AS YET

BUY EATON SAYS WAR MAY BEGIN INSIDE OF ONE WEEK

County Agent David P. Eaton, who inspected a number of the farms in this community, said last night that while the cotton flea was not serious here yet, it might possibly be so in a week or less. He would not say that he advised farmers to take steps at once to fight the pest. "I would rather leave this up to the individual farmer just at present, and let him be judge," said Mr. Eaton—but he did say that it would take probably a week to obtain sulphur and other supplies for spraying the cotton to kill the fleas, and that it would be a safe idea to start ordering supplies now for eventualities.

Mr. Eaton said that the insect which he sent to College Station for inspection was not a cotton flea, but that the cotton flea was undoubtedly here. "I just caught the wrong bug," he said. "It turned out to be a 'jassid,' which is harmless to cotton. Dean Leidigh of Tech first identified it, and the College Station authorities verified it."

NEW YORK—With sleds fashioned from barrel staves, a band of small boys staged a winter carnival sliding down the steps of the supreme court house in Chamber street bystanders swallowed soft drinks and cheered until police put an end to the winter sport.

LONDON—George Alfred Isaac, former laborite member of parliament, was arrested for standing nude on a Thames tow path near East Molesey. When he explained he had been swimming and had undressed behind a hedge, he was released.

Conservation New Longhorn Study

AUSTIN, July 23.—In the current catalogue issued by the University of Texas, announcement is made of the establishment by the board of regents of a department in the curriculum of the school for the study of the conservation and development of the natural resources of the state. The new course, at present, consists of the bureau of economic geology, the engineer experiment station, and the industrial chemistry experiment station. In discussing the establishment of the new department, the announcement says "its aim, as the name implies, is to aid in the development and conservation of the natural resources of the State."

WORK UNDER WAY AT SCOUT CAMP

BOYS MUST REGISTER TUESDAY TO ATTEND ANNUAL OUTING

A motor, donated by the Axtell Company, to pump water from the spring at the Post Memorial Scout camp into the reservoir which is under construction, was yesterday installed at the camp. Steel reinforcement for the tank and steel stay bolts, have been donated by C. C. Hurnsby, and concrete, as already announced, given by the Panhandle Construction Co. According to L. S. Harkey, scout commissioner, everything will be ready for the boys by August 17, when the annual camp opens. In this connection, Mr. Harkey calls attention to the fact that all Scouts who wish to attend the camp must register their wish by next Tuesday, July 27, at the latest. He declares that Lubbock citizens are answering loyally to the call for funds.

Tahoka Firemen Elect New Officers

JAZZ PEAK OVER

Rev. William F. Manning, Episcopal Bishop of New York, says that the younger generation, having gone to the peak of the age of jazz, is now on its way back to a quieter life. I think the peak of the jazz age has been reached. I believe we are coming to a more normal outlook. We have had the jazz influence in literature, music and religion, but we are coming to a more normal situation. We can rely on the good sense of our young people today as much as in any age—rather more so. They have sincerity and a desire for reality. Bishop Manning declared when interviewed at his departure for the World Conference on Faith and Order at Berne, Switzerland. That the peak is passed seems plainly evident. It is no longer thought to be quite so smart by young women to smoke and drink or by young men to boast of a hip flask and the acquaintance of princely bootleggers. The Charleston seems to be subsiding. There is less fervid denunciation of things religious. The so-called realistic novel of current consumption is not quite so putrid as it has been. At least, this is what many people think. Others feel that this burst of optimism on Bishop Manning's part is a section of the ritual of a new psychology whereby the worthy bishop hopes to charm away a condition which perplexes him sorely. Everyone denounces the jazz age, but who, of all the older critics, has tried to understand it? How many persons have tried to find out what it is, what it represents and what it really portends. Just what has been the effect of the jazz tendency? What need does it fill in the young person's life? What can be devised to fill that need when jazz disappears? These are the questions which must be answered. A sweeping denunciation will accomplish nothing. Intelligent and sympathetic investigation might accomplish much.

NEW RADIO FIELD

England will utilize the radio to cultivate a standardized pronunciation of English, it has been announced. A committee has been appointed which will adopt a uniform pronunciation which will be used by all announcers of the British Broadcasting company. There are many peculiarities of dialect and pronunciation that it is hoped may be overcome in this manner. We, too, could profit by such a plan. Our English, as well as, or even more than, that of England, needs purifying. But even more than purifying, as far as pronunciation goes, our English needs correction. As a nation we misuse the language flagrantly. That does not mean that we have none who use correct and well spoken English; but it does mean that the majority of even our native stock use careless, if not absolutely incorrect, speech.

There is no other agency by which speech could be brought simultaneously to so great a number of persons. Radio reaches everyone today, and without waiting for the results of the English experiment it would be well to appoint a commission to confer with the British commission to the end that these two great English speaking nations, with a common language, may be brought to speak it with uniformity of pronunciation and greater correctness.

GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP

An American golf player in England is credited with being down upon sportsmen of this nation severe criticism—as to being poor losers and even poorer winners, the two unforgivable sins of sportsmanship. The fact that, in this instance at least, the criticism is fully merited, is most embarrassing and leaves us in a weakened position for the defense of all those fine American sportsmen who have met both victory and defeat with becoming grace and generosity. However, there is much consolation in the attitude of Miss Helen Wills, national tennis champion, who, on her return from abroad, speaks of her victorious opponent, Miss Suzanne Lenglen, in the most appreciative terms: "She is a wonderful player. She is so steady and accurate. At the time she is one of the most graceful players I ever saw. Do I think I'll ever beat her? Well, I don't know about that. I'd love to try again, though. I've heard things said about her being eccentric and temperamental but she's certainly not that way once she starts to play tennis. She's as steady as the Rock of Gibraltar." Thus does Miss Wills retrieve America's self respect. Could anyone be more generous to one's victorious opponent? And Miss Mary K. Brown, captain of the team bringing back the Wightman cup, recaptured from the British on the courts of Wimbledon, had many words of praise for the unsuccessful British defenders: "When they learned that Helen Wills would be unable to compete they reduced the number of players on their team. That's my idea of true sportsmanship." This should compensate for the lack of generosity said to have been displayed by the golf champion and others who may, in the past, have displayed poor sportsmanship. Certainly one should not engage in sport unless one can gracefully lose and as gracefully win. It is part of the game and good sportsmanship is a quality that does much to promote international friendship.

FAILINGS OF THE GREAT

It has become quite common of late for authors and critics to dig into the private lives of great men, with a view to exposing their human frailties. There can be no particular objection to this, so long as it is not attempted to belittle the service these men have rendered to mankind. Every man and woman has certain defects of character, and this has always been so. It is a further fact that some of those who have contributed most to civilization have been guilty of moral offenses which would be sternly condemned to-day.

As a matter of history, many of the world's greatest leaders have led reprehensible private lives, as measured by commonly accepted standards. It even may be asserted that in the case of the very highest types of genius this has been the rule rather than the exception.

But in estimating the permanent place which should be accorded these men in the esteem of the world, only the service which they rendered to humanity should be considered. A recent writer well expresses this idea thus:

"Every leader must be tested not by his private conduct, but by his public behavior. Did he serve well his day and generation? If he did, all else will be forgiven, and forgotten."

AN EASTERN PLAYGROUND

President Coolidge's summer sojourn in the Adirondacks will serve, among other things, to give deserved publicity to a region seldom known and appreciated outside of the Empire State. It is, as new visitors almost universally testify, a beautiful realm of mountains, lakes, streams and forests, of a kind seldom associated by distant Americans with any place in such proximity to the populous eastern centers. The mountains lack the ruggedness and majesty of the Rockies, but have their own impressive grandeur and loveliness. The waters are blue and clear, the woods deep and extensive, the roads excellent. Many a sojourner from the West and South has been surprised especially at the wildness and spaciousness of the big park maintained there by New York State. Many a visitor from neighboring states has been surprised to discover that between the Hudson and the St. Lawrence lies an area more unspoiled by man than can be found in Canada without faring far north. The South and West and Middle West should know the Adirondacks, just as people within easy reach of their charms should know those of other sections of the country.

FRONTIERS FOR COLLEGE MEN

George A. Malcolm, assistant of the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands, urges young men to seek opportunities on "present-day frontiers." "By frontiers I refer to ordinary geographical boundaries. The Philippines, Australia, Hawaii, are frontiers where opportunities abound for college-trained men, but these opportunities go a-begging because in our changing social life, the immediate thing every college lad must have is success and he believes, curiously enough, that he is nearer attaining it if he gets a 'white collar job' of little worth than if he dons overalls and learns the same from the bottom." The desire for immediate success may be natural enough, but it is shortsighted. It does not allow for building a sound foundation of experience; it does not recognize the fullest meaning of "success," but is content with its superficial sign. It takes a courageous pioneering spirit to tackle even "present-day frontiers" but any one with faith in young American believes that there is plenty of such spirit left to make use of the judge's advice.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON'S VIEWS ON PROHIBITION LAWS

"Pussyfoot" Johnson has delivered himself of some original views about the handling of violators of the prohibition law. "If I had my way," said Mr. Johnson, "I'd chloroform some of our judges who are handing out lenient sentences for Volstead violations. The judges who fail to administer the maximum penalty to dry law offenders should be put out of the way as painlessly as possible."

The only criticism we have to offer to Mr. Johnson's suggestion is that should not be restricted to the judges but should be extended to include the police departments who not only countenance violations but aid and abet in the violations and in many cases accept bribes for so doing.

More violations go unpunished from this latter cause than from any other and a means to prevent the dereliction of those whose sworn duty it is to enforce the law would go far to correct the evils of liquor violations under the dry law.

GOOD TURKISH EXAMPLE

There is a building boom in Angoria, the new capital of Turkey. That mud town, which formerly housed 10,000 people very poorly, and will soon house 100,000 well, is being transformed. More than 150 brick and stone dwellings have been built in the last six months. A new postoffice and parliament building of stone and concrete have been completed. Numerous other public buildings are going up, including a national museum, a good hotel and an opera house. Streets have been paved and the malaria-infested swamps outside the city have been drained and planted with trees. Thus Mustapha Kemal continues transforming Turkey, and the "unspeakable Turk" sets an example to other nations.

So Think We

We think people make a great mistake in using big words when little ones will serve the purpose. We heard of a Lubbock girl a few days ago who when her "sweetie" said she was exceedingly leggy, blushed profusely, looked down at her revealing skirt, became indignant and slapped the young fellow viciously in the face, reported the case to her father, and then to her mother. Mother thought possibly it was not so bad as it sounded and looked the word up in the dictionary, and was well pleased. Just see what the young man called her.

We think this is a great country. It is a place that existing conditions justify us in being thankful. We are thankful that mosquitoes do not sing like female soloists or, houseflies do not wear roller skates, and that the big red ants that inhabit the back yard are not as large as house cats.

We think the fellow with a poll tax receipt will be the one that counts today. About all the satisfaction the fellow without one will get, is to watch the fellows with the much needed receipt go filing in to exercise his right of suffrage.

We think that Lubbock should have another fire station in the west part of the city, if that is the requirements of the State Insurance Board to reduce or keep down the cost of insurance premiums.

We think the fellow that once began cutting the grass on the lawn at daylight, now has a radio that he sits up with until two o'clock and that is one reason that some of the yards are so ragged looking.

We think you can help to get the returns of the election earlier tonight, by voting early this morning.

We think votes are just about as "high" now as they will be tonight near poll closing time, so lets vote early.

We think the latest interpretation of "Liberal education" might be that the student is led right up to a point where he does not believe anything.

We think that some people must get a great deal of pleasure out of "passing the buck", for we are sure they would not do so if they did not enjoy it.

We think when you find a fellow that glories in being different to anyone else, you find a person who is disagreeable to most everyone.

We think probably the reason that some women think more of the lap dog than they do of babies is because they have no babies.

We think that the greatest thing that tourists get is a tan.

We think money make the motor go much faster than it ever made the mare go, but it is our experience that it takes more money for the motor.

We think the parking hog is equal in every respect to the road hog, and of the latter we think possibly there are more.

We think the weed cutting ordinance certainly should be enforced. Nothing but sheer laziness will prevent the cutting of weeds.

We think with the number of people—black and white—who are wanting work that anyone can certainly get the weeds cut off their lots.

It Is Reported

That there were over $160,000,000 spent for Universities in the United States last year, and we are convinced that it was one of the best investments of the year, even at that.

That all candidates are very hopeful of being elected today.

That Lubbock will still have some tall weeds to cut even after the election, and it may be that many people will have more time to devote to weed cutting when the election is over.

That the voters on the court house lawn have had some very able arguments as to the correct way to operate the government how to vote, and who to vote for, but none of them have been able to determine exactly who is going to be elected governor of Texas or how long the President will live.

That Cal Coolidge caught a four pound fish on his recent fishing trip and sent it to Al Smith on Saturday. Wonder if Cal didn't know that Friday was fish day.

That many of the visiting secretaries are so well pleased with the South Plains that some of them may be after Abey Davis' job when he gets tired of it.

That an air plane is in Lubbock today and it will be at the service of any candidate who may want to bring in a lot of votes or who may want to get away quickly after the votes begin to roll in and the count is announced.

That many prominent oil companies have men in this territory investigating the oil prospects. Favorable reports come from many of them.

That a Michigan man was severely punished for chaining his son to the bed. If his sons were like ours, they would not have to be chained, they would stay without it.

By some that Dan Moody rode into the office of attorney general on the coat tail of the Fergusons, but as Dan got 153,208 more votes than the Fergusons did in the general election, the Ferguson family must have had their coat on backwards.

WET AND DRY

In the nineties, South Carolina tried state control of the liquor trade. The State government had been notably free from corruption up to that time. The experiment resulted in graft and scandals and South Carolina rejected the system and adopted prohibition.

According to the popular understanding, the form a referendum proposed in New York City was dictated by a man who began his career by defending Boss Tweed and ended it as the brewer's attorney. The people have beaten everything he has proposed whenever they had the chance.

The Supreme Court has said: "No legislature can bargain away the public health, or public morals. The people themselves cannot do it, much less their servants. No corporation or individual can acquire any rights, by contract or otherwise, which the Government may not annul and take away, if the exercise of such rights becomes detrimental to the public health or the public morals. This power legitimately exercised can neither be limited by contract nor bargained away by legislation."

This is the time to arouse and mobilize every friend of Prohibition and to charge him with a positive electric energy which the teachings of Jesus, the position of our church and the facts in the case when forcefully stated, will supply. This is the time for no uncertain sound from all the friends of prohibition wherever our field of responsibility may lie.—Washington Christian Advocate.

Mrs. William Fraser McDowell, President of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, says that Gandhi of India in his boyhood had a horror of Christians because he thought they all got drunk.

Mr. Ernest H. Cherrington says that the records of the city of Paris show that the arrests for all causes other than for intoxication increased between the years 1919 and 1924 by less than twenty per cent, while the arrests for intoxication during that same period increased by more than seventy-five per cent.

Kansas worked at Prohibition twenty years before it made a success of it. It was eighty years before the American experiment in government was definitely successful.

INGRATITUDE
Let not ingratitude your heart debase,
Be not embittered by the sins of men.
Stand ready ever to be kind again.
All memory of unworthiness erase,
Do not with hatred nobleness replace,
How shall you answer for your conduct when Judgment is passed? And shall it serve you then
To plead the wrong of others for your ease?

Let not ungrateful brothers drag you down,
But keep your spirit kindly and serene.
Let not a mean acquaintance make you mean,

Strongest is he whose heart with kindness beats
Despite the base ingratitude it meets.

HUBBERS BEAT AMARILLO BY SCORE OF 8 TO 5

METS GET THIRTEEN HITS OFF RATLIFF, BUT ANCIENTS MAKE THEIR ELEVEN BLOWS COUNT FOR WINNING TALLIES

Special to The Avalanche
AMARILLO, July 24—Although the Mets pounded Ratliff for thirteen hits today while the hubbers only garnered eleven from the hurling of Nicklaus, the visitors from Lubbock made their blows count for more, taking the long end a score of 8 to 5 from the North Plains youngsters. The creaking of joints as the supposedly ancient Hubbers circled the bases for the individual tallies, was not noticeable to listeners.

Quattlebaum cracked one over the fence in the sixth inning.

This makes four games in a row the Hubbers have taken from the budding youths of Amarillo. They cleaned up the series with them at Lubbock. They have two more games to go at Amarillo before they make it six—if they do. But they are already safe with the long end of the six game series.

It will be remembered that Lubbock after beating Amarillo here during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, left the field because they were dissatisfied with the umpire's decision, and forfeited a game to Amarillo to 0.

Lubbock made two errors today. Amarillo muffed three of them.

NON-WHISKER BELIEVERS COOLED OFF BY ICE MEN 8 TO 0

The Texas Utilities romped on the lads of the non-believers of the whisker variety yesterday afternoon at the Merril Park with an 8 to 0 score.

Never during the game did the Barbers threaten to score on the ice men. Ater, power, man of the Utilities on mound duty, was at all times, commanding the barbers with his good change of pace and curve ball.

After cleaned the bases once with a home run to centerfield.

FIRST PRELIMINARY TO DEMPSEY FIGHT GOING ON IN HOTEL LOBBY BY MANAGERS WHO BOTH HAVE CONTRACT WITH CHAMP

By EARL J. JOHNSON
CHICAGO, July 23—The first preliminary to the big Dempsey fight here in September, has started in an arena at the Congress hotel. It is a bout between the heavyweights promoter to determine who has the best contract, Tex Rickard or Bill Clements. Rickard claims to have Dempsey signed up to fight Gene Tunney here in September. Clements to have Dempsey to have Dempsey signed up to fight Harry Wills here the same month. Arguments for the two promoters are sparring for a knock out but thus far both can decide the winner.

In event the contest begins to drag, it may be transferred to one of the local courts of justice, where a regularly authorized "referee" can decide the winner.

Clements says Rickard can go ahead with his bout plans if he wants to but that he may find himself stopped cold on the day of the fight by a restraining order. But Rickard doesn't go in for heavy losses of that kind. He prefers to wait and see if the issue can't be decided by the Congress hotel preliminary.

Although Rickard may have the sturdier contract, Clements certainly had a head start in the local field. He has been licensed as a promoter by the new Illinois boxing commission that he will soon apply for a permit to stage the Dempsey-Wills fight at older's field. Rickard hasn't even been licensed by the commissioners.

Knowing he had no intention of defending his heavyweight title for several years, Dempsey may have been a little magnanimous in the matter of signing contracts. At any rate, several such are in existence and every time Tex Rickard gets around to arranging a fight for the champion, there comes what is known in fistie circles as the "old shake down."

"The Clements contract is void and I have the only legal right to Dempsey's services" said Rickard. But he added he would spend no more time or money on plans for a heavyweight championship fight until the matter had been settled legally.

"It ain't void" retorted Clements. "Paddy Mullins is on his way here to select training camp for Harry Wills, who is coming to Chicago to first of next week."

Hardware Dealers Clean Shelves For Barrier Bros.

The Sherrod-Myrick nine cleaned the Barrier of their merchandise yesterday afternoon at the Tech park getting to them with a 6 to 2 count. The Hardware nine got to Stalnaker, the ace moundsman of the Major league for six bingles; while on the other hand the hardware burger, Ribble, who has been out for some weeks, held the department store nine to two lone clouts.

Stalnaker, accustomed to gathering in a number of strike outs got five strike outs yesterday.

Ty Cobb Goes to Bleachers to Fight

WASHINGTON, July 23—Ty Cobb held up the game here today between Washington and Detroit when he rushed into the stands to get a rabid fan who dared the Tiger manager to come up and fight.

Seven policemen dashed after Cobb and prevented a fight.

The fan who sat behind the Detroit dugout, razed Cobb continually, and members of the visiting team threatened to go after him. Stalnaker, the fan waved Cobb on. His players gathered around the Detroit manager and other fans came to the support of Cobb's disturber, during the whole team into the stands.

As Cobb started into the stands policemen and umpires gathered about while the fan sat back and smiled, occasionally beckoning the Detroit manager to "come on."

Jack Ingram, a blind ex-soldier, won the London to Brighton walking contest for the third successive year and received a $500 cup.

Helen Wills to Go Back to Tennis

NEW YORK, July 23—Helen Wills has announced that she will play her first tennis since her appendicitis operation, at East Hampton Long Island next week.

Although the national woman tennis champion described the East Hampton tournament as "just a little one" to provide the kind of test I need," Mary K. Browne and other prominent players have entered.

The tournament starts Thursday and Miss Wills said that if she continued to feel as well as at present, she would certainly be on the serving line for her first match.

"I will play at Seabright a week from Monday" Helen announced. "I practiced for 15 minutes at noon today to accustom myself to the heat and sun, and felt fine."

RAY SCHALK IS TO STAY WITH WHITE SOX

NEW YORK, July 23—Ray Schalk is an institution with the White Sox. "As long as I remain with the club, he will remain" Eddie Collins, manager of the team, said today in denying a report that waivers had been sked on the veteran catcher. "Schalk is not through as a player and when the time comes that he is, he still will be valuable as an advisor."

SEVERID JOINS SOX

NEW YORK, July 23—Hank Severid, veteran former St. Louis and Washington catcher, made his first start today behind the bat with the New York Yankees against the Chicago White Sox.

The Yankees claimed him when the senators asked waivers on him. Severid will do regular duty until Pat Collins, who is off duty with a sprained side, is able to work

BIG LEAGUE HITS HEAVY AND MANY

Heavy hitting was in order in both the National and American league games Friday. In the seven games played, 162 hits, a season's record, were made off 24 pitchers.

The Yankees held their advantage in the American league, defeating the White Sox 11 to 3. Cleveland increased a lead over the Atlantic in the race for second place, defeating the Mackmen, 8 to 5. The Athletics, in losing their seventh straight game, made five errors.

Detroit drew up on practically even terms with Washington in the fight for fifth place by defeating the Senators, 9 to 6. The latter now leads the Tigers by one point. St. Louis put Boston deeper in the cellar by administering a 6 to 4 defeat.

The Braves brought the Reds down to a notch by hammering Mays and Nehf for 14 hits and a 6 to 4 victory. The Cardinals and Cubs kept pace, the former beating the Giants 6 to 5 and the latter defeating the Phillies 5 to 3. Pittsburgh and Brooklyn were idle.

Connie Mack Took Thomas from Shreveport to Coach His Twirlers

WASHINGTON, July 23—Ty Cobb held up the game here today between Washington and Detroit when he rushed into the stands to get a rabid fan who dared the Tiger manager to come up and fight.

HE MADE OVER THE PITCHING STAFF IN BIG TIME

Last year, when the Athletics were burning up the American League, after trailing seven straight years in the cellar, few realized the reason for the sudden rejuvenation. The reason was Ira Thomas, who dropped the managerial reins in Shreveport of the Southern league, to build up Mack's pitching staff.

Thomas "made" Bryan Harris who pitched five straight seasons of losing ball. Sam Gray owes his success to the old veteran. He changed Gray's pitching style entirely and immediate success was the result. In one short season, he made over an entire pitching staff. That pitching staff is now pitching with the brains of Ira Thomas, a coach who is working behind the scenes far from the plaudits of the crowd.

of Safety and made an appeal for the prevention of all preventable accidents. He stated that the cause of our complex age, the safe guarding of lives is becoming one of the most vital problems of the present time. "Only by organized effort will the state of Texas be able to check the accidents which are occurring daily on the streets and highways. James is at present working the state in the interest of the council and is giving aid to the local organizations and organizing local councils. When the question was placed before the secretaries regarding the council's work, every member pledged his full support for the safety work. James stated that he would go "anywhere in the world in Texas" to help with the cause.

Burge Talks
Regular program was followed, including a discussion of the "Relations of Chambers of Commerce to the Future Agricultural Development of Texas", "Community and Community Exhibits" and "Selling Your Town a Program of Work." At the close of the morning session, A. L. Burge of Port Arthur made an appeal to the members to give their physical and financial support to the fighting of the proposed increase in Fire Insurance rates. The members went on record as opposing the increase and will endeavor to hold a meeting at Austin when the companies present their case before the commission. Discussion of the exhibits preceded the morning adjournment also.

National Advertising
Carrying still farther the idea of national advertising, W. M. Blanton, secretary of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, in introducing President A. P. Duggan of the West Texas organization at the luncheon yesterday, stated, "The next great movement will be toward Texas and now is the time to begin preparing for it. Texas is the mecca of the capitalists and their millions in the near future and it is up to the commercial organizations of the state to take care of the onrush." Blanton paid a tribute to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and its plan of diversification and stated that the very same plan is being carried out by his organization in East Texas.

Duggan Talks
President A. P. Duggan of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce greeted the secretary as she arose and stated that no organization could function without them. The secretaries are the backbone of the organization and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is the result of their work. A good secretary must have three qualifications: He must be a man of vision, he must be able to think and he must serve "with his all," said Duggan. In outlining the program of the organization for the year Duggan gave two main tasks as the nucleus of the work: first, Col. Lee's diversification plan will be carried on further as many things have been noted in the study of farming in Texas. "In the last five or six years there has been a steady decline in the number of farm owners in the state, the feed acreage has decreased while the cotton acreage has greatly increased, 100,000 less hogs in the state than six years ago and the general trend has been to the one crop farmer. What we want in Texas is the farmer who owns his own home and has a payroll of 52 times during the year." Duggan urged that every secretary push the movement of diversification in his own territory.

The second main object of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for the coming year will be of making a study and reaching a solution of our tax problem. At present there are under 177 counties paying the expenses of the state. West Texas will need the co-operation of every secretary in the state who will be the problem a fair fight. At least six counties will be on the other side of the books in the next year and the problem will be greater. The fight will be a hard one but the people of this section and the state will face it." Duggan received a hearty applause from the secretaries.

Afternoon Session
In the afternoon session several important problems of the association were discussed: "Financing a Chamber of Commerce" by G. C. Richardson of Brownsville; "The Questionnaire—How and When to Use" by John Boswell of Dallas; "How to Build Good Will for Your Organization" by E. T. Shoup of Wellington; "The Secretary's Relation to the Press" by Paul T. Vickers of Midland; "Statistical Information, How to Get and Compile" by Bryan "Block of Marshall; "How to Get a Working Board of Directors" by W. W. Miner of Waco and "Keeping Members Effectively at Work" by Joe Christian of Corsicana.

In the morning session several committees to act during the coming year: Committee on ethics, A. L. Burge of Port Arthur; E. R. Frosch, Roy Christian, Corsicana; V. E. Conway, Commerce; W. N. Miner, Waco; Committee on resolutions, Roy Christian, Corsicana; Carl S. Gains, Dalhart; Ray Leeman, Fort Worth; A. C. Wilhelm, Eden; J. B. Rickman, Jacksonville; W. N. Blanton, Longview, and W. H. ### Seguin Bids For 1927 T. C. E. A. Meet

The Crepe Myrtle City of Texas welcomes you in 1927. This has been the slogan of George D. Barber, secretary of the Seguin Chamber of Commerce since he arrived in Lubbock for the T. C. E. A. convention. "Seguin wants the meeting next year and hopes to be able to entertain her guests as royally as A. B. Davis and Lubbock are doing," Barber stated. Seguin lies 35 miles east of San Antonio on a paved sector of the Old Spanish Trail and the main line of the Southern Pacific railway. The city has a population of something over 6000 people and offers the facilities of two modern four-story hotels, recreational units and many other entertaining features. The meeting place will be voted upon at the report of the committees this morning but will not be selected until the meeting of the board in the fall.

Bambino Catches Ball From Plane

NEW YORK, July 23.—Baby Ruth caught a baseball thrown from an airplane at Mitchell field today. He caught it several times, in fact, once in his fielders glove and three times on various parts of his anatomy. The exhibition, staged as a publicity stunt for the citizens military training camps of the United States, saw the Bambino the opportunity of being the first man to catch a ball from a plane.

Rigler Reenters Ton Litter Prize Contest

PLAINVIEW, July 24.—J. E. Rigler, of the Prairieview community, Hale county, who won third place in the Texas Ton Litter Contest in 1925 has re-entered the 1926 contest with a litter of ten Duroc Jersey pigs and has secured an excellent start. The pigs are now seventy-five days of age and have a combined weight of 798 pounds, which is considerable higher than the weight of his ten Durocs entered in the 1925 contest at the same age. Mr. Rigler's pigs, winning litter of 1925 averaged 296.7 pounds at 180 days of age, the time allotted for the contest. Mr. Rigler believes that he will exceed his 1925 record and is hopeful of winning the contest this year.

DAVIDSON SAYS WILL BE ELECTED

MOODY AND FERGUSON RAN ON HATE, HE RAN ON BUSINESS, SAYS LYNCH

DALLAS, Tex., July 23.—"If every voter who believes I am the best fitted man in the race for Governor, will cast a ballot according to his or her conviction, there will be no need for a second primary, because I will be given the nomination tomorrow at the polls"—thus did Lynch Davidson summarize his campaign for Governor on the eve of the election. Davidson was in excellent spirits and confidence was his outstanding characteristic as he sat in his headquarters here this morning and reviewed the high points of what he termed "the bitterest political campaign in Texas in many years." Ten weeks of strenuous campaigning have apparently had no effect upon him physically. He said that he has personally presented his message to more than half a million people in that length of time. "Texas has been the battle ground for so many bitter political factional fights within recent years that it has gained an unenviable reputation with the rest of the nation. Today this great state is discredited financially, our social issues are invalidated and people in other states are wondering what will happen next in Texas. Tomorrow the voters will put an end to this political turmoil and by their action at the polls broadcast to the world that from this day on safe government and good business are going hand in hand. It is high time for such action, as never in the history of the state has there been a time when conservative, sound administration was needed worse than now. "The voters have just witnessed a vindictive political battle. For months the young Attorney General and the proxy Governor have indulged in a war of personalities that has been designed to arouse the hatred and prejudices of the voters. Neither has anything constructive to offer to the people. Moody bases his plea for votes on his hatred of Fergusonism and Ferguson calls upon his vaunted "vest pocket" vote to rise up and rebuke the young Attorney General. The battle of words has continued until both have run out of ammunition. "Fergusonism is a dead issue in Texas. The voters have determined to bury him so deeply at the polls that he will never be able to dig out. The Moody crowd knows this and it has left the booze and boodle politicians on the eve of the election with nothing to talk about. Consequently they have concentrated their fire on me during the last ten days. Mud and rocks have been coming my way, because the

No Murders For 35 Years In Olney

OLNEY, July 23.—The largest town in the United States with an unblemished homicide record is the town of Olney, which in its 35 years of existence has never had a killing. Olney has been going through a period of intense oil development the past three years, which makes the record even more remarkable. There has been only one suicide here and that was many years ago. Olney has a population of 6,000.

Hale County Cotton Is In Fine Shape

PLAINVIEW, July 23.—The cotton crop in Hale county is in splendid condition, fruiting heavily, and is three to four weeks earlier than the 1925 crop. Many farmers report bolls already formed and the plants still growing like sunflowers. Old cotton farmers say that cotton will open six weeks after bolls are formed and if this holds true, some cotton in Hale county will be open by September first. It is probable that picking will begin by September 15th if there should be no heavy rains during the last of the growing season. The much feared cotton flea has not been seen in Hale county and no damage from other insects has resulted. The cotton acreage in Hale county is estimated to be around 85,000 acres.

PROBE EDITOR'S DEATH

CANTON, Ohio, July 23.—Having assumed practically complete charge of the Canton police department, outside investigators of the murder of Don R. Melett, publisher of the Daily News, have established headquarters in the publication's office where they are sifting every clue available.

oil barrel and the whiskey politicians have awakened to the fact that there is a landlady for Lynch Davidson and they made a frantic last minute effort to stem the tide. "I have told the people of this state that I will not stoop to a campaign of vilification and I have not done so ever in the face of a flood of campaign lies that has no parallel in the political history of Texas. My record as a citizen and a business man is clean and my people know it. I stand squarely behind my pledge to give Texas a honest, conservative administration. So the best of my ability, I rest my cause in the hands of the good people of Texas, supposedly confident of the outcome of tomorrow's primary election."

"Safety-First" Campaign in Joliet

In the hope of lessening the number of street accidents, Joliet, Ill., has launched a "safety-first" campaign, and is constantly operating a street car painted white, which carries numerous safety slogans calculated to arouse adults and children to the necessity of thinking before crossing a street or taking any other step in which the element of danger enters.

FIGS PICKED IN GALVESTON EATEN IN CHICAGO TWENTY SIX HOURS LATER, BEING SENT BY FT. WORTH AIRMAIL

"Some week ago," says Charlie Braun, of Dallas, district traffic manager for the National Air Transport, Inc., the company which holds the contract for the Chicago-Dallas-Fort Worth air mail. "Several weeks ago I picked some figs from a tree in Galveston one Friday night. I caught a train for Dallas, put those figs on the mail plane, and 26 hours after the figs had been picked they were being eaten in the Blackstone Hotel in Chicago."

Mr. Braun, who is here with the Texas Commercial Executives, tells this story to illustrate how cities not on the Texas-Chicago airline can nevertheless profit by train connections with the Texas terminals, Fort Worth and Dallas.

"The Second National Bank of Houston made $150 in interest on 1 item which they sent by airmail," he declared, "by cutting the time it took to reach the New York banks. Another Texas bank made $51 in twenty days by sending remittances by air mail. This is $2.50 a day. The figures are not, the increased postage being deducted."

Lubbock Time Halved
As was pointed out when the Dallas-Fort Worth-Chicago mail first opened last May, Lubbock can cut its mail time to Chicago and New York in half, by mailing letters on the morning train here, marked "air-mail" with ten cents postage to Chicago and fifteen cents to New York.

Expansion to Come
Mr. Braun said that unquestionably expansion of the airmail service would follow, possibly within a year, as the growing volume of business made it possible. By expansion he means the extension of feeder air lines to other Texas points. He cites the great advantage to any city in faster mail service.

Fireproof Mail Planes
"Speaking of the construction of planes," says Mr. Braun, "our mail plane, which carries only one pilot, has a compartment for mail constructed of duralumin and asbestos, absolutely fireproof, so that if the plane crashes the mail will be saved nevertheless. Incidentally, the U. S. Government has discovered that its loss in ordinary airmail is only half the regular train service loss in registered letters, and registered letters are regarded by the public at large as being safe."

No Interruption
No interruption has come to the Fort Worth-Dallas-Chicago mail service since its inception except that during the recent fatal storm at Chicago, during which an airmail pilot on another line was killed, the Chicago office ordered the Texas plane down at Motine until the storm was over.

In connection with the election here, Mr. Braun mentions that a Mrs. Lovett, of Graham, Texas, being then in Pennsylvania, utilized the air mail both to receive and to return her absentee ballot, insuring its delivery on time.

Mr. Braun says that the next step in the development of airmail service to Texas will be the lighting of the airways, to permit night flying. An airway from Cleveland to Rock Springs, Montana, a distance of 1812 miles, has been lighted by the government, 500 million candlepower lights being placed at 200 mile intervals, 5 million candlepower at 25 mile intervals, and five thousand candlepower gas blinkers every mile. The huge beacons at the 200 mile intervals can be seen for 150 miles. Mr. Braun says that Secretary Hoover, who now has charge of the airways, is making arrangements to light the airway from Fort Worth and Dallas to Chicago. Night flying will, of course, further speed up service.

HOME TOWN TO DEFENSE OF RED

NOT THAT KIND OF AN ICEMAN; DECLARE LADIES OF WHEATON

WHEATON, Ill., July 23.—The answer of the married ladies along Red Grange's ice route to the charges that the famous matinee idol of the gridiron may have melted emotionally while under the warming influence of the beauties of Hollywood is terse and to the point: "Red is not that kind of an ice man."

A few of Red's customers elaborated somewhat on the remark but all agreed that his conduct would never have brought the popular label that has been hinted from time to time against the brawny ice man of the small town.

They didn't believe that Red had tried to steal the love of Mrs. Chas. A. Taylor of Los Angeles, whose husband charges in a divorce suit that Red kissed her.

Mrs. Thomas S. McCarty is one of Red's best customers. She is pretty and has the kind of ice box that requires the ice man to come right into the kitchen.

"Red has been here lots and lots of times," she said, "and he has always been a good delivery man who tended strictly to his own business. I think this Hollywood scandal is just a frame up of some kind."

Others who testified as to Red's good behavior were Mrs. Benjamin Levering, Mrs. A. E. Branigan and Mrs. Stella Jannotta. They all live along the same street and Red Grange has brought in the ice that iced their tea through many a hot summer month.

"He always said 'Good morning' and picked up his tickets and walked out," said Mrs. Branigan. Mrs. Levering was impressed by the football hero's nice way of moving the cream pan without spilling any of the cream.

L. C. Thompson, owner of the ice company for which Red makes deliveries, vouched for everything the ladies said. "We have never had a single complaint against Red's work," said Thompson. "And as for Red himself, 'Not me. I'm no love pirate, I'm in the ice business and that's all.'"

Red denied that he was responsible for any of the domestic troubles of the Taylors, of Los Angeles, and said he didn't believe that Taylor had named him in his cross bill for divorce.

In regard to the report that Taylor had accused his pretty young wife, Clarice Taylor, of sitting in Grange's lap and kissing him, the touchdown specialist said:

"No, I never kissed her. I met both of them twice but that is about all. I did know they were thinking about a divorce—but I sure didn't have anything to do with it. This is just a bunch of Hollywood stuff. Taylor is a cousin of Charles Pyle, my manager, and that is how I happened to meet him and his wife."

Red plans to rest for a few days after his Hollywood screen career before resuming his work as the Wheaton ice man.

"Sylvia"

By NINON ROMAINE

Chapter I
Tangent ends of memory pictures, things seen, experienced and forgotten...

The topaz tiger eyes of Sohia, deep set in her pale ivory face with its scarlet painted mouth, and a fleeting vision of her green Mandarin coat heavy with gold; military bands and soldiers sweeping under whipping flags through the canyon of Fifth avenue; a high garden wall topped the flowering lilacs, their fragrance filling the sparkling dew-strewn morning; Bob's sleek blond two hands filled with emeralds, hands so full that the green gems spilled over onto the Bokhara carpet; the wistful, patrician face of her luckless, artist father; flashes of dim studios, half lighted and the perfume of incense and roses; Riverside drive in a slanting rain; the verdant fields of June in the country, and the mood induced by the paintings of John Twatchman and George Inness in the Metropolitan Museum; a gay, swift auto ride—and Death.

No not death, only the shadow of the Valley of Death and her husband's frightened eyes and white face bent to a girl's lips in a hospitable bed—a girl hurt in her mind and in her body. Memory pictures flashing like snatches of motion picture cut outs. Somewhere there would be a chain linking these into a sane and formal and continuous pattern of something experienced.

What was it the rugged featured, stern physician with the kindly voice had said? Something about a damaged memory and a traumatic shock, something that must be re-ensured; that life might be sanely coherent again. Write, write, write—set down on paper the whole narrative of her life that it might be made straight. Write. Search through heart and mind and soul that the record should be clear again; and then somewhere along this life-path the hurt to the mind might be lifted.

"It is the thoughts of things that torment, rather than the things themselves," the doctor had told her. And he had added:

"Face the thoughts, Sylvia, openly. Have them out here you may look them squarely between the eyes. Then they will stop hurting. I know of no other remedy, my dear."

And Sylvia Wood in her hospital bed, watching the May breezes balloon and swell the muslin curtains of her windows in Memorial Hospital thrilled all through her slender, white body with the desire to live. For a long time there had been no such desire, no even for Bob's sake; loyal, brave Bob, showing only in his anxious, drawn face and puzzled eyes how greatly he was suffering.

Before that there were days when everything was blank and dark, a brooding epiphany of nothingness swimming in a liquid pain. But this morning Sylvia desired, oh so ardently, to live; to dance, to walk in green fields and see Greenwich Village, dwelling place of dreamers and workers and drones—to see the little patch of green grass in Washington Square up the street from her studio windows, and to wait for Bob's steps in the corridor as he came home from the office.

Only it hurt so to quest back into the area of memory suddenly tangled into queer lights. Well hurt, or not it must be done; the story of her life must be written, not avoiding any incident or episode; pain to bring ease. The doctor had said so. Sylvia reached an arm over her white bed and her hand rested caressingly on the violets Bob had brought that morning. Tears were hot behind the girl's eyelids and her sensitive, pretty mouth quivered for a moment, as she whispered:

"Bob, my sweetheart. My big husband boy."

Then slowly the flood of tenderness receded leaving tranquility and peace.

"I have to play square with Bob." The thought ran round and round in her dazed mind. "I have to get well for Bob."

She remembered her husband's words back in the first days when consciousness returned and she knew she was going to die. They were:

"On the other side I should be with you too, my sweetheart. If you go I shall follow very soon."

There can be no life for me in heaven or earth without you, my precious one. But we'll fight to live, won't we, Girl? There is most of life for us to live together still.

Yes she would live. And now, five weeks later, the medical men had told her so, four of them standing solemnly about her bed after a consultation. She would live but perhaps her mind would be impaired. It was rugged-faced, kindly Dr. Patrick Noble, learned in the ailments of the mind, graduate of Vienna and Berlin universities and the famous clinic at Zurich, friend of Freud and Jung and Oskar Pfeister, who took Sylvia's case then.

"The only way to get well is to begin, Sylvia," he had said, and the thought whirled twice through Sylvia's mind and stopped, arrested.

"The only way to get well is to begin."

The words lodged somewhere, took on a cadence, became a song. Very well then she would begin. Now.

The girl pressed a button on the cord that reached beneath her pillow.

"Feeling lots better today, Mrs. Wood," the blue frocked, white aproned, cool nurse smiled, answering the call. "That's fine. Do you want something?"

"Yes," answered Sylvia, "bring me some pencils and paper, please."

Nurse Nora's eyes brightened.

"That's just fine, my dear," she said. "We surely are getting better. But Dr. Noble says you must not get too tired. Just write a little today. And look here, see what the doctor left for you."

The nurse picked up a lovely teak wood chest, about twice the size of a shoe box. It smelled of the Orient.

"Dr. Noble brought this for you to put your manuscript in," she explained, "and here's the key. You can wear it tied to your wrist."

The nurse placed the chest on a chair near the bed, ran up the bedside at the window letting the spring sunshine flood the room, and propped pillows back of the girl's shoulders. Then she swung a bed table so that it might serve as a desk. For a long time, however, Sylvia just rested propped in bed her pencil drawing vague patterns on the paper. Once she inscribed:

"My name is Sylvia Wood. I am twenty-one years old and the wife of Robert Haskell Wood, aged 25. I was born on March 21, 1903 and my father's name is Ivan Divork Reed and my mother's name was Cynthia Mary Lincoln Reed. My mother has been dead since a long time. I hope to be a painter and Bob and I have lived for a year in Greenwich Village, New York city."

Then she stopped because she was tired from the unusual exertion and because she knew that was not the way to begin her story.

For a flash the memory of the automobile accident at Striker's corners on the road to Thornapple Lake chilled her with fright, but the panic died away soon. It did not linger paralyzingly as it had even yesterday. She was getting better.

Sylvia remembered driving her little sport mode; rooster for a sign in the April country during first visit she and Bob had made to her father's home in Phillipsburg since their marriage ten months before. The orchards were in bloom under a sky as blue as the crystal phials fashioned by ancient Phoenician artists; birds sang and the green leaves were striving to come into the world.

Sylvia was driving fast thrilling with the pleasure of the air against her face as the finger of her speedometer mounted to 35 to 40 to 50 miles an hour. Then a woman suddenly drove Ford into the road from a farm yard. The girl swerved, her car leaped a ditch and there was a splintering crash as the automobile juggernaut into the fence. A lightning flash of Bob's face—and long darkness.

Farmers extricated the unconscious girl from under the wreck of her overturned car and an ambulance rushed her back into the city. In the operating room of Memorial Hospital surgeons and nurses labored over her broken body all night. Concussion of the brain, among other injuries, they had said.

It hurt so abominably to think of that.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING THE COW, SOW, AND HEN IS HIS RELIEF

Special to The Avalanche
HEREFORD, July 23.—From a hired hand, drawing fifteen cents per hour for his work, to a business man, who does over a half million dollar business annually; from a traveling van that is pulled along by a pair of Mexican burros, to automobiles as a means of transportation, has been G. W. Brumley's record since he came to Hereford fifteen years ago.

He was broke and down but not out. He worked at day labor for a while at fifteen cents per hour, then tried his hand at farming, and then went into the hog business nine years ago. His success as a hog raiser has been nothing short of phenomenal, and today he does around a half million dollar business in his line. He now buys hogs from most of the cities in the Panhandle, and has established a hog market in Hereford that has been worth thousands of dollars to swine breeders of this section. The efforts of this man are not concentrated entirely on his own personal success. When the West Texas Chamber of Commerce started the hog importing campaign for West Texas, Mr. Brumley purchased approximately 100 bred gilts and is selling them to farmers on time, in an effort to encourage farmers of this section to keep more hogs on the farm.

"Diversified farming and the cow sow and hen" are two of his slogans and he spends much of his time and money with the local Chamber of Commerce trying to put these ideas over. He does not encourage farmers to raise hogs and nothing else, but is urging a well balanced program for West Texas people.

Last year Mr. Brumley shipped hogs from the Panhandle. With his hog business, with three filling stations and a wholesale oil business and with a few farms bringing in a nice income, Mr. Brumley can be counted among the successful men of the country. "I came here broke and worked for fifteen cents per hour for a time to support my family, and friends helped me to win" are Brumley's own words.

Coolidge Resents Commission Attack

By United News
PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 23.—President Coolidge today through his spokesman, indicated his resentment at attacks made by the District of Columbia commissioners. These attacks made the selection of a commissioner to succeed Frederick A. Fleming difficult, the spokesman said, as prospective applicants feared to accept the position because of the criticism they would.

POINCARÉ FORMS FRENCH CABINET

"WAR MAN OF RUHR" NOW AGAIN ACCLAIMED BY FRANCE

By RALPH HEINSEN
United News Staff Correspondent
PARIS, July 23—The acclaim of France is once more with Raymond Poincaré.

The statesman who has been scorned for the last two years as the "war man of the Ruhr," has announced a cabinet and the French nation greeting six premiers assembled under a national union banner, is enthusiastic in its approval of the leaders it has called back to office. Poincaré has triumphed in formation of a ministry of solid strength after months have been wasted by leaders who attempted to form political governments. With 300 votes already assured him in the chamber of deputies, he takes office assured of support in any measure he may propose to save France from financial disaster.

Briand, Barthou, Leygues and even Herriot are among those who will work with Poincaré in his ministry. Already some confidence has been restored in France, as improvement in the exchange indicates. The franc has mounted steadily, improving from an early quotation of 47.49 to the dollar to 42.87 at the close of business Friday night.

The cabinet list follows:
Premier and minister of finance—Raymond Poincaré, president of France 1913-1920; premier 1922-1924.

Minister of justice—Louis Barthou, minister of justice 1920-1921.

Minister of the interior—Albert Sarraut, minister of colonies in 1920-1921.

Minister of foreign affairs—Aristide Briand, premier ten times between 1920 and 1926.

Minister of public works—André Tardieu, high commissioner of France to the United States before the war.

Minister of commerce—Maurice Bokanowski, minister of the navy in 1924.

Minister of colonies—Leon Perrier.

Minister of war—Paul Painlevé, premier 1925.

Minister of the navy—George Leygues, premier 1920-21.

Minister of public instruction—Edmond Herriot, premier 1924-25; premier in 1926.

Minister of pensions, Louis Marin, minister of liberated regions in 1924.

Minister of agriculture—Henry Oueulle, minister of agriculture in 1924-1925.

Minister of labor—André Millerand.

Poincaré's first unofficial cabinet meeting has been held at his home and measures by which his cabinet hopes to avert financial catastrophe, has been discussed. Poincaré stressed necessity for most stringent economy in governmental work. Elimination of cabinet and co-secretaries, he said, would be his first move in this direction. The war time president, in all probability will refuse to let his economy plans interfere with national defense, which is almost synonymous with the name Poincaré. Indications are that he will, and very probably, receive broad powers from the chamber of deputies.

"I will present my financial projects to the chamber Tuesday," the premier said in the typical staccato, with which correspondents who met him during war days, are familiar. "I will ask an immediate vote of confidence and the chamber will have to say 'yes' or 'no.'"

Only minor dangers threaten the success of the Poincaré ministry. These obstacles come, first, from radicals who are furious at the inclusion of Herriot in the cabinet; second, from possibility of discord among six former premiers all having distinct policies but all finding it necessary to follow the lead of Poincaré; third, from the chance that further fall of the franc may weaken the popular support of the cabinet.

Poincaré is assured of 300 votes

British Treasury In Debt Statement

By CHARLES M. McCANN
LONDON, July 23—The British treasury has issued a formal statement disagreeing with several points advanced in the most recent discussion of the Anglo-American debt question by the treasury of the United States.

British officials disagree chiefly with the latest statements made in Washington as to disposition made by Great Britain of money borrowed from the United States. They refer particularly to the allegation that Great Britain used the larger part of her borrowings for purely commercial purposes.

"It is not understood," says the British reply, "why the American treasury statement appears to treat dollars, derived by the British treasury from the sale of sterling and rupees not constituting a part of the independent resources of Great Britain."

The statement says that the currency was furnished the American army, while it was in the United Kingdom of Great Britain.

The United States paid for the sterling supply with dollars," says the statement. "This was in essence, a purchase of exchange for sterling which must be regarded clearly as an independent resource of Great Britain on United States treasury figures."

The statement further points out that Great Britain bought large quantities of foodstuffs from the United States which could have been secured from the dominions and from Argentina, but which were diverted to the allies instead, partly because these purchases were needed, and partly to avoid certain phases of the submarine warfare.

MEXICAN HISTORY BEING CIRCULATED THROUGH LIBRARIES

AUSTIN, Tex., July 23—Through the courtesy of the Mexican Government and the co-operative arrangement entered into by the Library of Congress, the University of Texas, the University of California, the University of Michigan and the Newberry Library of Chicago, a valuable collection of copies of documents in the archives of the Mexican Government in Mexico City is being supplied these several institutions. It was largely through the research work conducted in these archives by Dr. Charles W. Hackett, associate professor of Latin-American history at the University of Texas, that the documents were discovered and made available for the purposes they are now serving. Beginning in 1920, Dr. Hackett has been making the selections of documents to be transcribed. He will spend the next several weeks in Mexico City in the furtherance of that work and the manuscripts that may be selected by him from the ancient archives will be transcribed by expert Spanish copyists during the next twelve months. Up to this time approximately 65,000 pages of these manuscripts have been copied. Before they are accepted and sent to the several institutions which belong to this co-operative agreement, the text of each copy is verified by Miss Mary Blake of Mexico City, who is a noted authority of Latin-American history, and whose knowledge of the Spanish language comes from a life-long stay in Mexico City. Her father was a prominent member of the American colony of the capital and his bookstore there was a favorite resort for the more studiously inclined persons, foreigners and Mexicans. Miss Blake still conducts the bookstore which her father established.

The manuscripts which are being transcribed under the direction of Dr. Hackett deal with the period of Spanish control of Mexico and in many instances the documents are found to contain most valuable information of a historical nature. Probably the most valuable of these copied manuscripts is a 2,500 page brief or history of the Spanish occupation an advance northward of the Spaniards, written in the years 1805-1810 by a Spanish historian at the direction of the King of Spain. The purpose of this account was to show that Texas was not a part of the territory embraced in the Louisiana Purchase and that the United States had no claim up to it.

HOOVER SUGGESTS ARBITRATION PACT

ASKS COAL OPERATORS AND MINERS TO ENTER AGREEMENT

By United News
KANSAS CITY, July 23—Recommendation of a agreement providing for voluntary arbitration is made to the operators of the unionized section of the bituminous coal fields by Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce.

This agreement is somewhat similar to that which was entered into between anthracite operators and miners last February and was made known here by a letter received by W. L. A. Johnson, general commissioner of the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators association from Mr. Hoover.

Mr. Hoover qualifies his recommendation by a statement that "such action could only be of value if carried out within the industry itself and not by intervention of the government."

The letter is an answer to an inquiry by officials of the local organization concerning steps which would be necessary for the coal operators to take to bring about a condition which would justify congress in suspension of any legislative action.

In hearings on legislative proposals for coal industry before the house interstate and foreign commerce committee in May, Secretary Hoover said "if the unionized section of the bituminous industry could set up its own mediation board in the same terms as the anthracite industry I believe congress would be well justified in suspending legislative action."

URGES U. S. BUY RUBBER FARMS

FIRESTONE SEES NEW BARS IN OFFING BY GREAT BRITAIN

By United News
AKRON, Ohio, July 23—Forecasting new restrictions of rubber by the British government, Harvey S. Firestone, tire manufacturer today, urged that America purchase her rubber plantations.

New restrictions unquestionably will be placed by August 1, "on the exportation of rubber which would be more drastic on both the production and exportation of crude Firestone said. "The new restrictions would place the minimum rubber price at 42 cents. The original restrictions fixed the minimum price at 25 cents."

Firestone produced figures showing that a one cent a pound advance on imported rubber, in one year means over $,000,000 dollars, which would cost the American motorists a minimum of $126,000,000. He suggested the Philippines offer a fertile field for this American development.

LUBBOCK MAY BE CENTER OF WORLD'S NEXT GREAT OIL FIELD

BIG COMPANIES HAVE TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND ACRES OIL LAND LEASED IN SOUTH PLAINS; THREE WELLS SPUDDED IN

By ROY McCORKLE
Avalanche Staff

Will the South Plains of Texas give the world its next great oil field?

That is a question that is on the minds of many men—some of them oil men of national reputation. There are many reasons to think this is true, and so far as proof for the novice is concerned the very fact that a number of the major oil companies of America are interested in property here is sufficient.

No less than 200,000 acres of land have been leased to three of the largest oil companies in America—companies that have pioneered the largest oil fields in this land, and there is no reason to suspect they will not give Lubbock and the South Plains country a thorough test. Geologists have walked over land studied almost every section of land on the South Plains and their reports are very encouraging. There fore the large acreage purchases by major companies.

Wells Located

It is true that very little drilling has been done in these parts, though a number of drilling locations have been made and in a few instances drilling machinery has been ordered. No less than three wells are being sunk at the time, and equipment for two others is now in transit. Acreage around these wells is not for sale, and no "oil stock" will be found on the market. Owners, largely major operators, are drilling them as tests and even though all the five original wells prove "dusters" is no reason a great oil pool will not be found in this section.

No Greater Field

Today there is no greater field than the North Plains or Panhandle field, and to the writer's knowledge this section was six years in the making. Of course oil was there all the time. Gas wells—some of the world's largest—were drilled in as early as 1918, yet oil in paying quantities was not discovered until three or four years later, and then at a point 30 miles distant from the nearest big producer today.

Took a Chance

Geologists by the score visited this field and they were unanimous that "indications" for oil were good. A few of the more risky citizens of that section availed themselves of the opportunity to procure cheap acreage. Today they are independent—some of them millionaires.

And geologists and oil scouts say the same will be true of the South Plains. Formations are good and major companies with millions of dollars are working in at least three South Plains counties at this time. It may be three months, six months or a year—maybe longer, before a well is brought in, but in time this will cease to be a dream and be a reality. So say the larger operators, anyway.

Yellowhouse No. 1

Right now attention is turned to the Yellowhouse No. 1, located 10 miles southwest of Littlefield and one mile north of the old Yellowhouse ranch headquarters. A combination rig (rotary-standard) with a 112-foot derrick is now in operation and owners of this test (Gulf, Pure & Humble Companies) say work will be steady until a thorough test has been made. Contract calls for a 3,500 foot hole, though unless oil or gas is found the well will be considerably deeper.

Ellwood Test

The Ellwood-Myrick test in Hutchinson county, four miles south of Roundup is also attracting considerable attention. This will also be a deep test in a done of the most successful companies in Texas—the El Capitan, has charge of operations.

The Whicker No. 1 in Cochran county, three miles southeast of Bledsoe is also drilling at this time—at least a rig has been erected, machinery set and operators are ready to drill. This, too, will be a deep test. West of this place a number of producing wells have been drilled in. Very few lessons are being sold in this section although there is quite a demand for acreage.

In Bailey county preparations are being made for at least one test well and probably more. Other mineral deposits have also been found here. Probably the next "big announcement" will come from Terry county where rich deposits of potash, sulphur and the by-product, iodine, have been found. In the past Germany has practically supplied the world with these products, but there is every reason to think that German mines are no richer than those found on the South Plains. Traces of oil will also be found in Terry county. Some worthwhile announcements concerning these deposits will be published in the Avalanche at an early date.

Harry E. Thorpe, field representative of the Marlin Oil company of Texas, was in Lubbock Friday in the interest of his company. While here he will visit several South Plains counties, make a general survey of the country, and in all probability arrange to open offices in this city. The Marlin people are pioneer producers and once they are interested here they may be expected to sink a number of wells.

As a whole prospects for oil are bright, and before another year shall have passed oil derricks with real producing wells may be expected to be found here—not on one county, but in half a dozen or more.

WE LOVE AMERICA, SAYS MUSSOLINI

ITALIAN DICTATOR WANTS HIS PEOPLES TO CULTIVATE U. S. FRIENDSHIP

By FRANCISCO REA
(United News Staff Correspondent)

ROME, July 23.—A course in understanding of Americans is one of the many schedules mapped out for the Italian people by Benito Mussolini, iron-willed dictator at Rome.

"We love America and will make America love us," Mussolini told the United News in discussing attacks being made in other sections of Europe on the American war debt policy and on Americans generally.

The premier explained Italians must be made to understand the differences between customs of the United States and Italy. His aides have been given orders that special concessions are to be given Americans traveling on the railways of Italy.

American good standing in Italy has been increased recently by news of the cordial reception accorded John Cardinal Bonzano, papal legate to the Eucharistic congress in Chicago and Colonel Umberto Nobile, one of the leaders of the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Noble expedition which flew over the north pole in the dirigible Norge.

While the people of Italy have appreciated newspaper accounts of the cordiality with which Nobile and Bonzano were received in the United States, financial leaders and government officials have realized that the solid evidence of American confidence is shown by American investments in Italy. The debt settlement between Italy and the United States is almost universally popular in Italy, much of its popularity being due to the insistence of Mussolini that his people shall accept it as a fact agreement.

Official and financial esteem of the United States has been increased by the number of private loans made both to the government and to private individuals.

In a tortoise race held at Bickington, Eng., with two entries, one traveled 70 feet in 10 minutes; the other did not make a move.

Rev. W. P. Clark of Fort Dodge, Ia., stopped fishing long enough to marry Weldon Miller and Miss Mildred Cory, who followed him to the creek when they didn't find him at home.

New York Finance

NEW YORK, July 23.—While the volume of trading again dropped off today, this might have been due to weather conditions and had little bearing upon the trend of the market. Stocks were again called upon and with very few exceptions, the buying power was not there.

The market has reached an impasse such as was heretofore during the past fortnight. After the first flush of the July re-investment demand had spent itself, it became apparent that the buying power was coming largely from idle investment funds aided by professional operations. The buying in Steel, General Motors and other stocks of this class was largely for the account of interests who believe strongly in the future of the corporations back of the stocks.

Of late the brokers' board rooms have had a slim attendance but this is not unusual during a heat wave. Usually, the number of attendants in a board room means less than nothing. Board rooms with the largest crowds are those which cater to small traders and odd lot buyers. The real market factors are inconspicuous.

Professionals showed more haste in selling out yesterday despite the fact that there has been no change of importance in the actual basis of the market. For a long pull, the market shows nothing to justify alarm, but for to immediate future, the trend is any man's guess. When the possibilities are as indefinite as this, the professional element usually prefers to be on the outside looking in, or to have a short position. This sort of selling, plus the withdrawal of support, which has been noted over the past few days, has placed a weight against prices which hardly promises anything better than we have had for the next few days.

For a time the French situation served as a legitimate basis for the selling, but if Poincare is allowed to move ahead at the rate he is now going, he may have the strongest cabinet France has seen in years. With the premier and finance minister representing the conservative element and the range extending to the numerically strong radical group, Poincare's cabinet is the first gleam of hope. France has seen.

MOODY MAN TALKS TO TAHOKA CROWD

QUOTES COLQUITT PAPER IN ADVOCATING CANDIDACY OF DAN

TAHOKA July 23.—Ed H. Yeiser, an attorney of Austin, addressed a crowd of twelve hundred Lynn county citizens here today in the interest of the candidacy of Dan Moody for Governor of Texas. Mr. Yeiser was introduced by Dr. C. B. Townes of Tahoka. He entered upon his speech by first denying that this was a campaign of hate as offered by James E. Ferguson. He stated that this is a campaign of love and the honor of the state was at stake. Mr. Yeiser stated that for the past thirty five years he has lived in the shadow of the capitol at Austin and had personally known all the prominent men connected with the state's affairs since that time. He referred to the good administrations of honor given by the various Governors until the time of Ferguson. He related the events leading up to the impeachment of Jim and further claimed that Jim was now the actual Governor working in his wife's name. He strongly denounced the right of this man holding this responsible office for a fourth term.

Quotes Colquitt
The speaker dwelt for some time on the roads contracts and other things that he termed as graft in the departments. He stated that Fergusonism was the only issue and gave fifty nine terms of Fergusonism, which he said should be stamped out of the state. Mr. Yeiser quoted frequently from the "Free Lance," edited by Oscar B. Colquitt and contended that all these remarks were true or that they would be prosecuted for libel. "He further stated that there were many good people that were misguided and were voting for Ma Ferguson. He termed this as deplorable and a pity, but was strongly of the opinion that there would be enough good people on the other side to give Moody the desired majority in the first primary.

Mr. Yeiser touched briefly on Davidson, stating that Davidson was a good man, but stood no chance to become Governor. He referred to his, "Cut over timber policy," and further offered that if Davidson was put into the run-off with Jim that Jim would make a monkey of him. He appealed to the voters to give Moody a strong support, which he announced was the only method of ridding the state of Fergusonism.

Sherman Men Off On Dixie Tour

Lee Simmons, secretary of the Sherman chamber of commerce left yesterday for Sherman where he will join a Sherman party on a tour of the southern states. They will go to New Orleans; Birmingham, Alabama; points in Georgia and the Carolinas where they will make a study of the industrial plants of these places.

The party is composed of men of the Sherman chamber of commerce, including President Pool and others. Interest of building more industrial plants in Sherman and in Texas as a whole.

Lubbock Building For July $131,650

With the issuance of a building permit yesterday for repairs on the home of W. B. Thorp, 2223 Main street, for $3,000, Lubbock building permits for July came to total of $131,650. This is largely for building of homes.

The speaker dwelt for some time on the roads contracts and other things that he termed as graft in the departments. He stated that Fergusonism was the only issue and gave fifty nine terms of Fergusonism, which he said should be stamped out of the state. Mr. Yeiser quoted frequently from the "Free Lance," edited by Oscar B. Colquitt and contended that all these remarks were true or that they would be prosecuted for libel. "He further stated that there were many good people that were misguided and were voting for Ma Ferguson. He termed this as deplorable and a pity, but was strongly of the opinion that there would be enough good people on the other side to give Moody the desired majority in the first primary.

WANTS AIR MAIL CONNECTION BY BUS

HERE TO SWEETWATER WOULD SAVE A DAY FOR LUBBOCK SAYS BRAUN

Discussing with Charles Braun of Dallas, traffic manager for the Dallas-Fort Worth-Chicago airmail, the advisability of installing afternoon mail service via bus to Sweetwater to catch the night train there and the airmail at Fort Worth, Postmaster John L. Vaughan yesterday advised Mr. Braun to take the matter up with F. M. Gaines of Dallas, superintendent of railroad mail. Mr. Vaughan declared later that the installation of such a service would depend entirely upon the volume of business handled. He said that probably banks with important items on which they would profit largely in interest saved, would form the basis of the mail carried in this manner.

Mrs. Lee Royalty Painfully Burned

Mrs. Lee Royalty was painfully, though probably not seriously, burned early Friday when a kettle of boiling water was spilled on her body. Mrs. Royalty, it seems, was removing the kettle from the stove when the handle broke. A physician was called, and while her burns are painful her friends hope they will not be of a serious nature.

Joe Haish, who invented barbed wire, died at DeKalb, Ill., recently at the age of 99.

Hunt Big Boars In Edwards County

ROCK SPRINGS, July 23.—Texans who are seeking a new thrill in the way of wild game hunting need go no farther from their home town than Edwards county, Texas. Ranchers in the vicinity of Rock Springs are finding wild boar hunting both a sport and a source of profit, Milton Peters, formerly in charge of the Texas A. & M. College goat raising outfit, said.

The boars range in weight from 200 pounds or so, up to the heavyweights which often weigh as much as 700 pounds.

Boar hunting is in many respects like bull fighting, the man who steps in the pathway of a charging, snarling boar must be agile enough to step aside and let the animal pass between his legs. The next step is to swing quickly around and bring the infuriated animal by the ears and hog-tie him. A ranch wagon transports the porkers to the ranch house where they are slaughtered and make ideal adornments for the smokehouse.

Important Session Of Legislative

The next session of the Legislature promises to be one of the most important for years due to the fact that it has not met since adjournment early in 1925. More important school legislation will probably be enacted by this session than by any prior to this. The "Search and Seizure Law," road bonds and highway problems, Senate Bill 180, Primary Election Reforms, the Chiropractor problem, Prison Reform changes, and Court Reforms are likely to be important issues for the next session to decide. For the safe-guarding of their interests the people of the 119th Legislative District need to send a Representative to Austin that can and will investigate the worthiness of every one of these problems from every angle; calculate the effect of proposed solutions; weigh the best interests of "the people back home" who have to suffer the consequences; and be able to fight through the days and the nights for these interests with the dislodgement of all personal interests and cry of lobbyists.

EMMETT L. WHITAKER

is the man with the vitality and the interest of the people at heart to the extent that he had discussed these issues and his campaign with the voters over the district as far as possible and propose to investigate each of these problems from history, cause and effect, both in theory and practice on the ground before the session convenes in January. He is a young man of character and accomplishments, of the common people, a man that cannot be held back, sold or bought; one who takes a stand for the people who pay the bills and are affected by the changes. He stands for the interests of the majority against a special or privileged class overstepping its rights.

Whitaker's program includes making Texas, and especially the Panhandle, the most progressive and best loved part of the nation; cut appropriations on institutions and enterprises that are unprofitable, or wasteful; a more efficient school system; simplification of justice and laws; clean, honest, open politics and legislation; less talk, more work.

If you want a man with the best interests of the people above his private interests; has demonstrated his ability and knows what he is doing and why; is not two-faced, not afraid to stand upon his record private and official; one who has the stamina, tenacity and willingness to fight for the people whose servant he aspires to be. The name you leave on the ticket next Saturday will be the longest, Emmett L. Whitaker. (Political Advertisement)

Texas Artist to Establish Museum

DALLAS, Tex., July 23.—Frank Reaugh, Texas' own artist and one of the widest known American artists of the present day, is to have a combined Museum and studio in the heart of Dallas' finest residential district. The site for the proposed Frank Reaugh Fine Arts Museum and Studio, is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Flippen and Hugh Prather and is located in Highland Park.

Early last winter Mr. Reaugh, internationally known as the painter of Texas landscapes and Texas Longhorn steers, announced his donation of a large collection of his work valued at more than $50,000 to the city of Dallas. The donation of the collection was made with the provision that the collection remain at all times in Dallas.

In acknowledgement of the donation a movement was started to erect a worthy structure in which to house the collection. Construction will be started early in the fall.

DEAR VOTERS:

I am a WORKING man
Am a Candidate for District Clerk
Believe you will agree
No business should be run by INEXPERIENCED help
Someone of EXPERIENCE should Be at the head of any Business
Glad this campaign came during dull time—No court in session now—Will be soon
Am taking advantage of quiet time In District Court
To talk to you
Have a LADY Deputy. They say she is a good one
Years of Experience in County and District Clerk's Office qualify her to serve during my short absence from the office.
You, too, could run that or any other business
If someone was there to direct Affairs
I have had experience in law also—may be essential
Although I find it is not absolutely necessary
That's what we have Lawyers for—Thank goodness
My opponent is a fine girl—good friend of mine
She has a good job—possibly "lifetime" job—Good pay
Not after her job—Let her keep it—accord me same privilege.

SINCERELY,
LOUIE F. MOORE
