MOMENT OF TRUTH

ROAD TO HAPPINESS

In 1953 Congress enacted an income tax, providing for a normal tax of one per cent, rising as high as six per cent on large incomes.

Many years later the income tax is still with us. The basic tax has been increased many times, and today there looms a six per cent surtax on personal and corporate income.

Industry believes that Congress should examine this new proposal carefully, that the better way to fight inflation would be to cut federal spending, for this would strengthen our economy and help maintain high levels of employment and production.

Thomas Jefferson once said, "I place economy among the first and most important virtues, and public debt as the greatest dangers to be feared. To preserve our independence, we must not let our rulers lead us with perpetual debt. If we run into such debts, we must be taxed in our meat and drink, in our necessities and in our comforts, in our labor and in our amusements. If we can prevent the government from wasting the labor of the people, under the pretense of caring for them, they will be happy."

Recent polls show that Americans favor cuts in government spending as the road to happiness.

Writing in a recent issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Director J. Edgar Hoover reminds us, "The role of the policeman in our society goes far beyond the sworn duties of enforcing the law and arresting lawbreakers. Modern day computers would be taxed to process the thousands of special services performed for the public by law enforcement officers every day."

Mr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, California, recently said, "... Large corporations have learned ... profits may be reaped in education. Education is more profitable than poverty ..."

"The time is near," says the Portland, Oregonian, "when the public should demand of its senators and representatives in Congress the same open record on financial affairs that Congress self righteously demands of appointees in executive offices."

The National Association of Manufacturers reports that, "Industry is now making a concerted effort to show students the great opportunities and challenges to be found in the business world. Students who can contribute new ideas, new efforts, new concepts are the ones industry is seeking; such students usually have the imagination and ability to recognize industry's vast contributions in problem solving for the public good."

"To be successful in our, or any other, business takes more than self confidence," says Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange. "It requires that others, particularly the general public, also have confidence in the business."

Tale of the Trouser

Ever since skirted Romans conquered the "trousered barbarians" of western Europe, trousers have been worn by men. Since those early days, they've been favored of the cranks, worn close, called "tight," and have been worn with false apices under them.

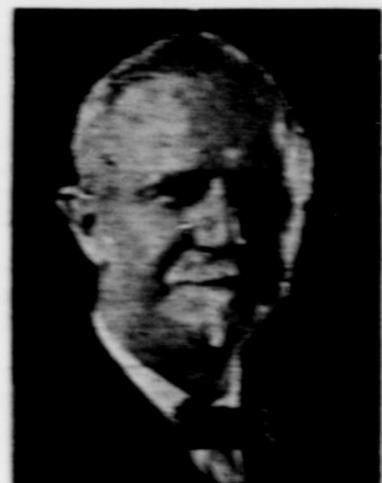

The long trouser was violently opposed when introduced in the early 19th century. The "breeches-less" men of the French Revolution wore them first. Until the close of the 19th century it was not fashionable to have trousers created. This was the mark of ready-made trousers that had laid folded on a shelf.

As times have changed, and ready-made stocks with sharp creases are now worn by the well-dressed American male. The latest advance is an amazing new flexible fabric used for Mr. Leggs' "Confex" slacks. A blend of Dacron polyester, washed and Lycra spandex, "Confex" goes along with every movement, returns to shape smoothly and instantly, and is incomparably wrinkle-resistant.

Roger W. Babson Weekly Report

Babson's Point of View On WHAT'S HAPPENING TO OUR SCHOOLS

Babson Park, Mass. — One of the very biggest businesses in this country today is education. We Americans are now spending a total of $48.8 billion per year to run our schools and colleges—an increase of 124% in the last decade. Another whopping boost in costs lies just ahead.

More Pupils—Fewer Teachers

We have always "made a lot of" education in this country—and rightly so. We prize ourselves in our fine public school system and in the freedom of choice which has permitted, also, the multiplication of private and "parochial" schools. As we have grown in numbers, especially since the end of World War II, so too has enrollment in our schools increased. This year there are 42 million pupils registered in public elementary and secondary schools in the U.S. An additional 4.7 million youngsters attend private school from kindergarten through high school.

At the same time, there is a chronic shortage of teachers, which has been aggravated by the rapidity of the rise in student numbers and by the fact that teachers' salaries, in many instances, have not kept pace with those of comparable professions. So the teachers have become more restless and more aggressive. And the labor unions have moved in. The net result is that we are now facing demands for much higher teachers' salaries all across the nation—demands which, even if only partially fulfilled, will cost millions of dollars more in the coming year.

Is Our Investment Paying Off?

Since it is very much in order for us to ask ourselves if the sacrifices we are making to support our schools are in fact paying off. Whether we like it or not, we are all going to pay more in taxes to run the public schools in our community. Salaries of teachers will spiral, maintenance costs will rise. And we will be told that we should be doing much more for our children.

The big question is: How much more can self-supporting citizens—with their own financial problems—afford to pay, and precisely for what? Precisely from one-third to one-half of what we pay each year in local taxes is used to run our schools. If we don't know exactly how this money is spent—and with what result—wouldn't it be common sense to find out?

Brick and Mortar

We have currently over 2 million teachers in this country providing instruction in a bewildering variety of subjects. For the most part, they teach in school systems—whether public or private—which have made herculean efforts to modernize plant and equipment. The result is that in many American communities today there are schools that are better equipped in classroom space, in laboratory facilities, and in recreational advantages than were many of our colleges fifty years ago.

In a way, we have made a fetish of education. But, in our ambition and pride, we seem to have placed more stock in college as the end goal of education that emphasis on knowledge and how to use it to enrich our own lives and help others. In our desire to provide the "best" for our children and grandchildren, we have concentrated more on brick and mortar than on the real essentials.

Building Character

Just because a school is new, or large, or has the best gym money can buy is no guarantee it will be a good school. What is taught—and how it is taught—are still mighty important. After all, quite a number of our greatest Americans have been the products of one-room schoolhouses or of modest educational backgrounds. Many years ago, the distinguished British philosopher, Herbert Spencer, wrote: "Education has for its object the formation of character." We seem to be losing sight of that concept in our highly competitive society. If that trend continues, we shall be not only financially—but spiritually—the poorer.

Safety Tips for Sports Lovers

Whenever your favorite sports enjoy their safety! Here are helpful hints:

1. Check Your Equipment: Faculty or excessively kept sports equipment can be dangerous, so look yours over before you use it. When finished, make sure equipment is stored properly and safely.

2. Know When to Stop: Experts say that end-of-the-day fatigue is the cause of many sports accidents and muscle strain. Stop while you're ahead of the game and save that final set for a next time.

3. Treat Aches Promptly: Weekend athletes can expect soreness and swelling occasionally, since many sports put tremendous strain on muscles. If you're aching, soak as soon as you can in a hot tub. Towel dry heavily and apply Ben-Gay penetrating heat lotion to the affected area. It's a creamy alginate that works fast to help relieve external aches. At all local drug counters.

By Nancy Whitman

Paper sculpture is a low-cost way to play.

To make a paper cut, say youngsters will need only colored paper, pens and imagination. These days bright construction paper, loose cut in pads, can be found in the creative art racks of variety stores everywhere. The paper gets cut into strips, bent into circles, pasted tight. Circles of various size make the car's body and head. Other pieces of paper can be added for whiskers, ears and paws. An American-made strip makes the tail, a whole menagerie of multi-colored animals can be made this way.

Other paper play children enjoy is modeling work. A sheet of newspaper gets spread with this paste. When it is soft and damp, the child bends and crumples it into an unusual shape. It dries in a day or so. What does it look like? Children take it from there. The paper model often resembles a familiar animal—or perhaps a bird or butterfly. It can be trimmed with scissors, painted with tempera or powdered paint, decorated by pasting on objects of all kinds—feathers, buttons, yarn. Shuffy cotton, household string or fuzzy material.

A new book called Paper Art, from Whitman Publishing Company of Racine, Wis., reminds us that paper is full of surprises, and is easier to work with than costly or complicated materials. Paper can be woven, braided, pieced and stamped. It can make costumes for a play or paintings for a wall, or designed to wear through the day. Strips of colored paper can be made into a mosaic, and the corner store has stencils, tracing paper and other art supplies.

A youngster will enjoy making masks, mobiles, party decorations and greeting cards once he gets started.

Paperwork is popular with the playground set.

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

Why Don't We...

THE Hines Band touring the Soviet Union under the cultural exchange treaty was making a great hit and was received everywhere with loud acclaim. That was too much for the Kremlin, so it cancelled all future appearances of the band in major centers and sent it into the country districts. This high-handed action was taken after the itinerary had been carefully planned.

A proper retaliation would have been for our country to have cancelled, or sent to the small cities, the Ukrainian Chamber Orchestra soon to tour our country and to take out, no doubt, hundreds of thousands of American dollars. When the Bolshoi Ballet performed in major cities earlier this year, the U.S.S.R. garnered in more than one million dollars. But even though our own cultural efforts are flouted and not allowed to come to the attention of the people in the cities in the U.S.S.R., but are consigned to rural districts, we nevertheless, with only a mild verbal reproach, exact no penalties, but continue to welcome singing and dancing groups from the U.S.S.R. The latter would have far more respect for our country if we exacted the same terms and conditions from Soviet artistic groups appearing in our country that they exact from us. Nothing is gained but much is lost as the result of this jelly-fish policy.

If the paper on transportation issued by the National Committee of the Republican Party is an indication of the platform that party will adopt in 1968, it is high time all conservatives banded together to do something about it.

Among the proposals are (1) federal investigations to determine causes of accidents, (2) federalizing of the issuance of driver's licenses and a federal program for their training, (3) national auto inspection and safety standards, (4) a department of transportation to establish a national policy, (5) more federal aid for highway construction, including cities and suburbs, and (6) subsidies for operating commuter trains.

I suggest that the whole program be scrapped, and that Republican candidates in 1968 run on the 1932 Democratic platform. Older citizens will remember that this platform called for a 25 percent reduction of federal spending, a balanced budget, and the removal of government from operating in the private enterprise zone. No matter if the Democrats did write it thirty-six years ago, that is a winning platform and it would be a capital stroke for the Republicans to adopt it.

Health and Safety Tips From A.M.A.

HEART DISEASE

Although no single factor will prevent heart disease, says a pamphlet of the American Medical Association, good health habits are as favorable to the heart and circulatory system as they are to all body functions.

If you already have some form of heart disease, suitable medical management and good living habits will prolong life and make it more enjoyable.

Here are some suggestions from the American Medical Association for healthful living—

Understand heart disease. Don't fear it.

Learn your health status by periodic medical examinations.

Reduce weight if obese. Eat less in the hope you will live longer to eat more.

Don't experiment with special diets. If your physician thinks you need one, he will prescribe it.

Exercise regularly. If you have heart trouble your physician will set your activity limits.

Prevent infection diseases. If one should occur, seek treatment promptly.

Accept life's challenges, come to terms with the inevitable and live as though you will live forever.

Some of the greatest thinkers say that they do their work during those weeks when their wives aren't speaking to them.

SENSING THE NEWS

THE UGLIEST AMERICANS

Americans who travel abroad these days—and what with overseas military service there are millions who have had this experience—are painfully aware of a small minority of boorish individuals who display an offensive image of the United States and who offend our country's best friends. They have come to be known as "ugly Americans."

Not all "ugly Americans" are loud, demanding tourists who complain noisily about hotel services. Indeed a tragic incident in recent weeks reveals with crystal clarity that the ugliest Americans of all have posts of influence in the White House executive offices and the Department of State.

The reference here is to those top officials who made the decision to insult a good friend of the United States and to deny to American fighting men well-deserved recreation in a friendly port that was ready to receive these combat veterans with tremendous hospitality. The incident was that involving the aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt at Cape Town, South Africa.

This great warship, returning to the United States by way of the Cape of Good Hope, was scheduled for refueling at Cape Town in order to save the American taxpayers a quarter of a million dollars. Refueling a warship in a foreign port requires the assent of the foreign country involved. Giving assent is a courtesy extended by a friendly nation. Few countries in Africa today would grant such permission to a U. S. naval vessel returning from combat duty off Vietnam. The majority of African states have consistently condemned U. S. actions in Southeast Asia. They will not permit American military aircraft or ships to use their airfields or ports.

South Africa, on the contrary, has a long record of cooperation with and support of U. S. efforts in the cold war. American naval vessels have regularly enjoyed the use of fueling and repair facilities in South Africa. In addition, South Africa allows the U. S. to maintain a missile and space tracking station near its inland capital of Pretoria. During the Mercury space program, American military aircraft flew from South African fields to give protective cover in the case astronauts had to splash down in southern waters.

Despite this record of friendly assistance, the White House and State Department bowed to the demand of "civil rights" extremists and a bloc of ultra-liberal congressmen who try to present South Africa as a bigger menace to the world than Red China or the Soviet Union. Orders were dispatched from Washington, saying that sailors aboard the FDR were not to be permitted ashore. This insulting order is the ultimate in "ugly American" behavior. It was as though one accepted an invitation to dine, and then refused to shake hands with one's host. What the war-weary crew of the Franklin D. Roosevelt thought about their denial of shore liberty is on record. One crew member wrote to the press as follows:

"Here we are, a fighting ship, returning from the war. We had hit the first port where the people were not only humane and hospitable, but truly interested in the American people as people, not just so many American dollars. For the first time in my life, I was truly ashamed to call myself an American. How in the name of heaven can 35 congressmen and a few civil rights workers get the United States government to insult our foremost allies in Africa?"

The Johnson administration, in bowing to the demands of the "civil rights" extremists and ultra-liberals, may have scored a gain in that quarter. But the United States has suffered a loss in several respects. A friendly people have had their friendship thrown back in their faces. Certainly, the U. S. has not so many real friends in the world today that it can afford to reject those who seek only to be good friends, and ask for no financial handouts. The leftwing in the United States is now convinced that it can scuttle the security interests of the United States in Africa by crying "civil rights."

Viewed overall, the U. S. has suffered a major loss in the cold war. South Africans who are willing to stand alongside the United States on Vietnam and other crucial issues see that their good will is not appreciated. It is only logical to conclude that advocates of a DeGaulle-type neutralism may find a hearing in South Africa. If this is the case, the United States will be seriously handicapped. Having a good friend at the strategically vital Cape of Good Hope is enormously important to the United States. The White House and State Department, in order to achieve cheap political success with minority groups, has endangered the long-range safety of the American Republic.

Policyholder Questions Answered by the Institute of Life Insurance
 277 Park Ave., N.Y., N.Y., 10017

Q. What are the chances that an application for a life insurance policy will be approved, and won't be "rated up"?

A. About 97 out of every 100 applications for ordinary life insurance are approved, 91 of them at standard premium rates.

Q. How many Americans are employed in insurance?

A. All types of insurance companies provided jobs for about 1,225,000 people in 1965. About 700,000 of them were in the life insurance business, including some who devoted at least part of their time to other types of insurance coverage.

By the way, employment in the insurance business continues to increase, despite the wider use of electronic data processing.

Q. Which is the "best-insured" country in the world?

A. In relation to national income, Canada has more life insurance than any other country. By this yardstick, the United States ranks second.

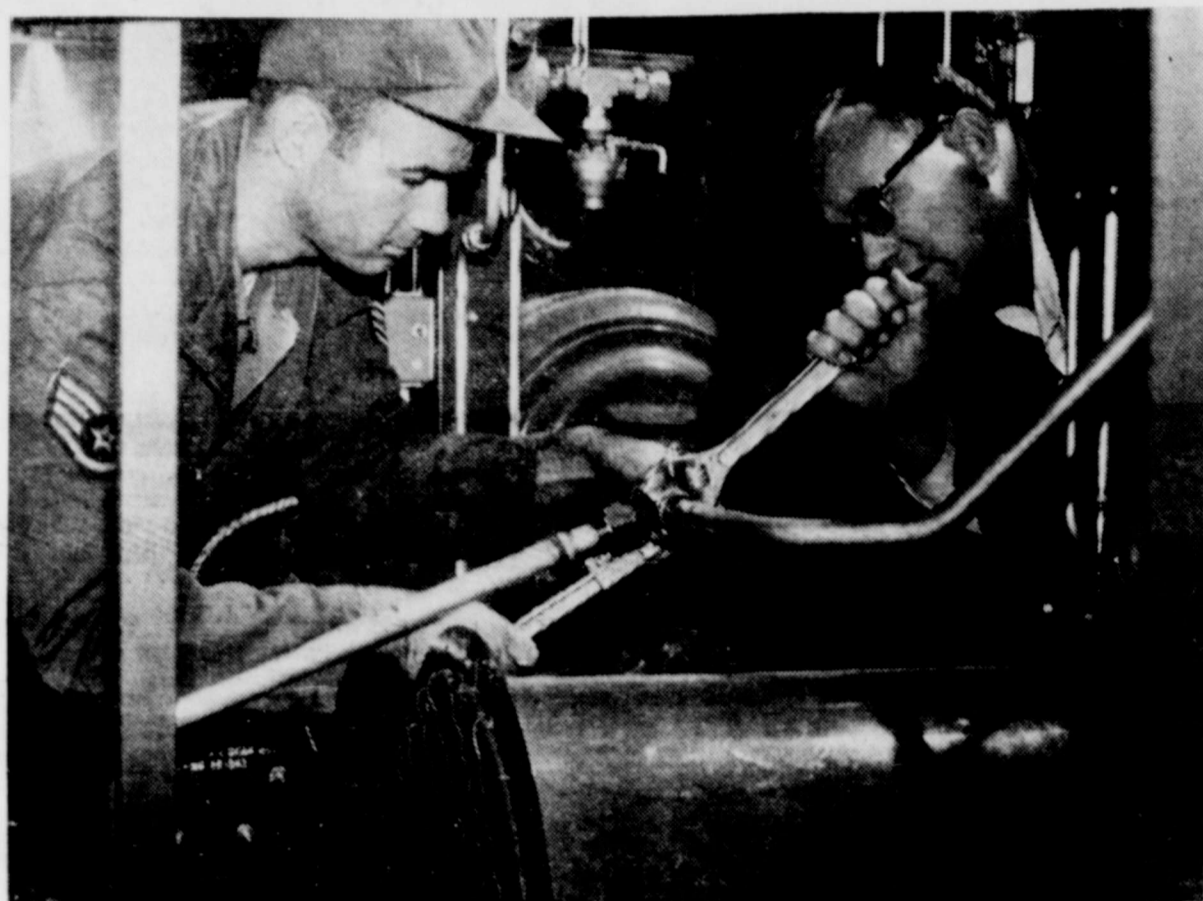

Q. How many life insurance companies are there in the United States?

A. At midyear 1966, there were 1,705 legal reserve life insurance companies chartered and doing business in the United States. In addition, more than a dozen Canadian life companies and some from other countries were licensed here.

Q. How big an item is life insurance in the average family budget?

A. American families spent an average of $3.94 for life insurance and annuities out of every $100 of disposable personal income (after taxes) during 1965.

"Black Shack" Will Deliver Goods

By TSgt. John F. Wood
 SHEPPARD AFB, Texas — From Rome to Nome, Maine to Spain, the men from the "Black Shack" will deliver the goods.

The "Black Shack" is the nickname given to the hangar at Sheppard Air Force Base where the men of the Mobile Training Unit Section work. This (MTU) section is a vital part of the 3750th Consolidated Maintenance Squadron. The goods are the training devices and equipment used in the Air Force field and mobile training program.

This highly skilled team of experts is capable of maintaining, modifying and refurbishing all the training devices that are used in the fighter and cargo-type aircraft training programs.

Within hours, any one of thousands of perfectly-operating pieces of training equipment (electronic, hydraulic or other) can be airlifted to a remote corner of the globe if necessary. The trainers in the field can then set up the equipment and carry out their mission, whether it be to instruct students on how to fire rockets down a "bad guy's pocket," or how to get the maximum zip out of a jet engine with a new modification.

Under the direction and supervision of Jim Fritzer and TSgt. Dick Prouty, the "Black Shack Gang" are the men who carry out the (MTU) mission at Sheppard. A sister unit with a similar mission, smaller in comparison, is located at Chanute AFB, Ill.

Recently there have been five new members added to the group. They are TSgts. Dick Prouty, SSgts. William Egri, Robert Goss, Wendell King and AIC Richard Ott.

Fresh As Daisies, Bright As Spring

It's a teen's room for living, fresh as daisies, bright and cool as spring. It's instantly-decorated in cool daisy green and blue, blue and white stripes.

A teen's room is more than a bedroom. It's a room for study, for talk, for listening, for dreaming. It's a place where the colors of today explode light and right and bright in a room that's meant for living.

The look begins with fields of flowers around the room to say "now" and "in" loud and clear. The blue and green Cool Daisy pattern in Marvalon adhesive covering covers one wall, three-panel screen, drawer fronts, closet door, and waste basket.

A scroll headboard, straight from the teenager's sense of imaginative design, matches the base of the desk lamp, both fashioned from Spring Green adhesive covering. Echoing the same green shade across the room are a planter and the trim on hat boxes, covered with Blue Stripe to match the wall edging.

The shiny blonde look shows in the looks-like-marble effect of Travertine adhesive covering on table top, shadow box, and desk.

Marvalon adhesive covering, shelf and drawer lining (all these room-for-living patterns are new for '67) are vinyl-coated, durable, and washable. Adhesive covering, when applied to a flat surface needs only to be butted, not overlapped, since it does not shrink. It also can be removed with no damage to the surface.

Ever Popular Pear Salad

Carry the colors of the season to your table with this bright combination of favored salad ingredients using ever-popular canned Bartlett pear halves. Celery, nuts and green pepper are finely chopped and mixed with cream cheese, then mounded in the center of each pear half. A rich red cranberry dressing makes Holiday Pear Salad a season sensation. The refreshing lightness of canned Bartlett pears provides a welcome salad choice during the season of heavy feasting. Keep a can of Bartlett pears chilling in your refrigerator, ready to be made into quick, attractive salads like the one pictured here.

Holiday Pear Salad

1 (1 lb. 13 oz.) can Bartlett pear halves 1/2 cup chopped nuts
 4 ounces cream cheese Crisp salad greens
 1/2 cup chopped green pepper Green pepper strips, for garnish
 1/2 cup chopped celery Cranberry Fruit Topping

Chill pear halves. Blend softened cream cheese with green pepper, celery and nuts. Drain pears and place 2 halves on each lettuce lined salad plate. Mound spoonful of cream cheese mixture in center of each pear half. Garnish with green pepper strips and serve with Cranberry Fruit Topping. Makes 4 servings.

Cranberry Fruit Topping: Beat 1/2 cup canned jellied cranberry sauce until smooth. Gradually beat in 1/4 cup salad oil, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Makes 1/4 cup.

Both are also eligible to compete with the other 11 noncommissioned officers and airmen chosen this year for the annual award.

Sergeant Hamilton was chosen for the honor from about 10 noncommissioned officers in the squadron. A program writer, he was commended on his appearance, attitude and performances which exemplified the qualities most desired in a noncommissioned officer.

Miss Burk Of '66 Tells Of Joys Of Competing

This past year as "Miss Burk Burnett of 1966" has been one of excitement, fun, and hard work. The "Miss Texas Pageant" will always be vivid in my mind because it was a wonderful experience for me. Although I did not win the title of "Miss Texas," I gained something equally as important — poise, experience, the ability to get along with many types of people, and most important, friends.

Being "Miss Burk Burnett" and representing this wonderful town and its many fine people has been a truly wonderful experience for me. I would encourage the contestants of 1967 to work as hard as possible to win the crown, for it is worth while and fulfilling. We of course all understand there can be only one Miss Burk Burnett, but those not chosen are not losers for they will have shared a wonderful experience working together with each other under the guidance of The Modern Study Club.

My week in Fort Worth, competing in the Miss Texas Pageant along with 65 other girls, was truly the most wonderful experience of my life. It was a week of fun, enjoyment, hard work, and practice. I met many wonderful people.

I would like to thank the Chamber of Commerce for their enthusiasm and encouragement at the Miss Texas Pageant, most of all many thanks to the members of the Modern Study Club for their untiring work, interest, and support not only during the Miss Burk Burnett Pageant but during this entire year. Due to their help, interest, scholarship, and support I have had a wonderful year. Thank You.

Precious SIGHT

No price is too high to pay to protect the eyesight of ourselves and our children. Good eyesight is an absolute necessity in the earning of our livelihood, in the school work of our children, and in the enjoyment of all of life.

But there is another type of sight which in these times is often neglected — spiritual sight. We and our children need to be established and grounded in the love of God and His commandments, and to rely on Him. We need to meet His requirement of loving our neighbors as ourselves, thus making a better home life, community life and a better world. Psalms 34:8 reads, "O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in Him." Attend the church of your choice this Sunday.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Women Like Advantages Of Electric-Heat Homes

It takes a homemaker to know what another homemaker wants. In terms of a heating system, the lady of the house generally prefers one that's clean, quiet and comfortable.

That's the opinion of Mrs. Robert Dunlap, whose husband builds houses in Edgewater, Maryland. The Dunlaps' own home is electrically heated, and Mrs. Dunlap is so satisfied with it that she encourages prospective homebuyers to consider it for their homes.

While Mr. Dunlap and his client are discussing building materials and construction details, Mrs. Dunlap and the client's wife get to talking about homemaker's interests — appliances, kitchen arrangements, wall coverings, and whether the house will be easy to keep clean and comfortable all year round. This usually turns the talk to heating systems.

"I don't try to convince anyone to use electric heat," says Mrs. Dunlap. "I just explain how well it works for us."

Mrs. Dunlap feels that electric heat offers a lot of advantages for the housewife. "For one thing, it's so clean," she says. "No dust or dirt. Baseboard units don't take up any space, so they don't interfere with drapes or furniture arrangements. And there's no noise whatsoever."

But the most impressive feature, she feels, is room-by-room temperature control. "With individual room thermostats, I can keep the baby's room warm, the kitchen cool and the other living and working areas at the exact temperature I want without overheating or cooling the rest of the house." Homemakers like this, says Mrs. Dunlap, because it allows all-day, all-round comfort.

Both the Dunlaps consider proper windows essential to any efficient heating system. They have insulating glass in wood sash in their home, and recommend it for others.

Mr. Dunlap considers ponderosa pine wood windows "a good insulator" that helps achieve the full thermal insulation required for electrically heated homes. He says they also prevent window condensation which can result from the comfortable, healthy, but higher-than-average indoor humidity that electric heat allows.

He explains that humid air will condense on metal window sash in winter because metal turns cold from outside temperatures. But this doesn't happen with wood sash. "Since wood is an effective insulator that doesn't transmit cold there's no condensation or frosting on the sash. As for glass, it's kept clear either with insulating glass or storm windows."

Insulating glass in wood sash is readily available for all homes as stock units of ponderosa pine, and with this type of window storm sash is not required except in extreme climates. The units also have a factory-applied weatherstripping which prevents drafts and air infiltration.

From Mrs. Dunlap's point of view, elimination of the condensation problem is a work-and-worry saver. There's no danger of window moisture dripping down the sill and ruining wallpaper, rugs or drapery.

A question that concerns both men and women, the Dunlaps agree, is heating costs. They find electric heat economical. Wood windows help in this area, too, they say, since good window insulation cuts heat loss substantially and keeps fuel bills to a minimum.

News From The County Agent

Don't take chances on reduced crop yields which can result from soil and seed-borne disease organisms, cautions county agent B. T. Haws.

Chemical seed treatment is inexpensive and effective and the recommended controls are safe and easy to use.

The chemical forms a protective coating around the seed and protects it from micro-organism growth during the period of germination. However, seed treatment will not control damping-off after the seedling grows out of the treated zone, says the county agent. Damping-off organisms develop most rapidly when weather conditions are unfavorable and cause growers to associate damping-off of seedlings with cold, wet weather.

Most commercially purchased planting seed will be treated and this will be noted on the container tag. Growers who save their own planting seed can purchase seed treatment chemicals at most agricultural supply houses.

If seeds are treated on the farm the important thing is to get a uniform covering of the protective fungicide over the seed coat. This can be done with a homemade device which will tumble the seed and mix the fungicide thoroughly with the seed being treated.

The county agent points out the need for using the proper dosage. Lower than recommended dosage may cause the treatment to be ineffective while excessive rates may damage the seed. Some diseases are borne inside the seed and must be treated by different methods.

The worst thing to do is to over-water during periods of slow growth. Plant roots must have air as well as water. If the soil is saturated with water, little or no oxygen can reach the roots. This results in loss of the small feeder roots and eventually the death of the plant.

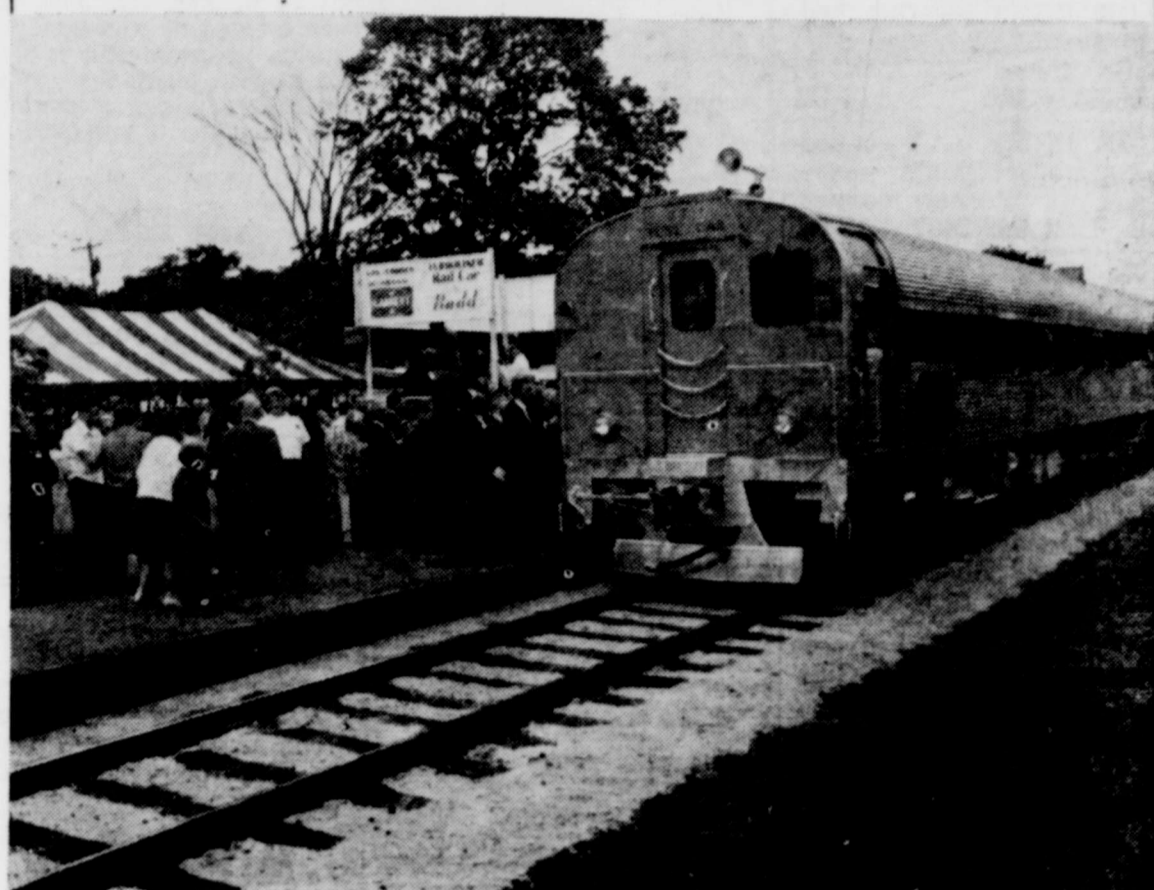

Never water plants by rule of thumb. Once the soil is thoroughly moistened, water them only when they need it. In watering houseplants, supply sufficient water so that it runs through the potting soil into the saucer below. Always discard the excess water from the saucer. This prevents the accumulation of soluble salts in the potting soil.

With a little experience, you can determine the moisture content of the soil from its color and feel. Plants in a cold room need less water than those in a warm, dry atmosphere. Flowering plants and those with much foliage require more water than those without blooms or with very little foliage.

If your house plants are not growing properly, it is probably due to low light intensity rather than the lack of water or fertilizer.

Anyone interested in 'Planning and Care of the Home Landscape' may attend a special interest meeting Tuesday, March 7 and Wednesday, March 8 from 10 a.m. until 12 noon. The meetings will be held in the Times Square Auditorium under the leadership of Extension Service specialists staff members. They are co-sponsored by the Wichita County Program Building Subcommittee on Home Improvement and Crops Subcommittee. Subcommittee chairmen are Mrs. John Jones and Mr. Loys Barbour.

"TURBOLINER" RAIL CAR TESTED

Ronkonoma, N. Y.—(HK)—The first rail car to be powered by gas turbine engines is undergoing rigorous tests on a 20-mile stretch of track on the Long Island Rail Road between here and Bethpage.

The self-propelled experimental "Turboliner," built by The Budd Company and powered by two Garrett AiResearch engines, goes through its paces 16 hours a day, 6 days a week. The tests will last eight months. If they are successful, a new era in U.S. commuter train travel may be at hand.

The principal advantage of gas turbine trains would be the great savings achieved in eliminating the need to electrify railroads serving heavily populated suburban areas. Turbine powered trains also would be speedy. The Budd Turboliner, for example, is being tested at top speed of 75 m.p.h., although it is capable of traveling 100 m.p.h.

Budd engineers installed a formidable array of instruments in the car to carefully measure such factors as performance, fuel consumption, safety, reliability, sound levels, vibration, and heat and engine exhaust.

The test project is financed by New York State's Metropolitan Commuter Transportation Authority and the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development under a program seeking to improve all forms of U.S. mass transportation.

When the Long Island Rail Road tests of the Turboliner are completed, The Budd Company will display it around the country.

Miss Burk Burnett Pageant Scheduled By Modern Study Club

Friday, March 10th is the date set for the Ninth Annual "Miss Burk Burnett Pageant" to be presented by the Modern Study Club, a member of the Federated Council and Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Modern Study Club feels that in sponsoring the Miss Burk Burnett Pageant they are doing three things: (1) raising funds for the Council of Federated Clubs projects which this club participates in; (2) Providing a very delightful evening of wholesome entertainment for the community and (3) Most important, giving our YOUTH an opportunity to gain poise and confidence by appearing before the public and an opportunity for fame and fortune through guidance and education in building a successful career. The winner of this pageant is given a scholarship to the college of her choice and is eligible for the Miss Texas Contest.

Mrs. Lonnie Dolan, club president and Pageant Director today announced the names of the committee members in charge of the 1967 Pageant.

The Entries Committee will be headed by Mrs. Jerry Thomas assisted by Mrs. Eddie Reed. They will supervise the selection of eligible contestants for the Miss Burk Burnett crown.

The Staging Committee will be headed by Mrs. Darrel Nichols assisted by Mrs. Tim Wood, Mrs. Sandy Mitchell, Mrs. Lewis Gray and Mrs. Wayne Hamilton.

Mrs. Randal Hudson and Mrs. Jimmy Allen have been named chairmen of the Tickets and Programs and will be assisted by Mrs. John Griffith.

Mrs. Lewis Gray will be in charge of the entertainment committee.

Mrs. Gary Bean and Mrs. Albert Dillard will be in charge of securing the judges for the pageant.

Mrs. Jerry McClure, Mrs. Ted Harris and Mrs. Dude Smith are in charge of decorations.

Mrs. Lonnie Dolan, Mrs. Jerry Thomas, Mrs. Lewis Gray and Mrs. Sandy Mitchell are in charge of the sponsor and gift committee.

Mrs. Bill Reasoner, Mrs. Charles Griffith and Mrs. Albert Dillard are in charge of publicity.

To be eligible for the Miss Burk Burnett Pageant a girl must be between the ages of 17 and 28; a resident of Burk Burnett or the Burk Burnett School District; never been married or had a marriage annulled; and be of high moral character. She must possess a talent which may include playing a musical instrument, dramatics, singing, designing, sewing, painting or any of the fine arts.

Mrs. Jerry Thomas, chairman of entries said her committee has already begun its search of our local girls to participate in the pageant.

An entry blank may be found in this edition of the newspaper and may be filled in by anyone wishing to suggest a potential contestant. Address the entry blank to Mrs. Jerry Thomas, 510 Hilltop, Burk Burnett, Tex.

The contestants will be presented in bathing suit, evening dress and will give a three minute talent routine. The winner will receive a $100 scholarship to the college of her choice plus a bouquet of roses.

She and her mother will also receive an expense paid trip to the Miss Texas Pageant.

All contestants will receive gifts donated by Burk Burnett merchants and a Miss Congeniality will be chosen.

Feef cattle producers need to consider the amount of phosphorus their herds are getting. This mineral is highly deficient in dry pasture forage, a condition which is now widespread in Texas.

Texas egg production in January was 242 million eggs, 17 million above last month and 33 million above last year's, reports the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Good lighting around the farmstead can provide farm families year around benefits, according to the county agent.

These include keeping wild animals and prowlers away, preventing falls and accidents, saving time in farmstead night work and making activities in the building area easier.

The new mercury-vapor yard light is one of the best lights available. Where located near the middle of the building area, it provides enough light to adequately cover the entire area. The 250-400 watt size lamps are rapidly gaining in popularity over the 175-watt size.

Probably more home plant failures are caused by improper watering techniques than any other factor, according to Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent. This is especially true during the winter months when plant growth is very slow because of the low light intensities. We frequently get impatient and apply additional water and fertilizer to make the plant grow large and healthy. Actually, during the periods of low light intensity the plant in producing very little food and as a consequence cannot grow rapidly.

LETTER to the EDITOR

9020 Imperial Hwy. Downey, Calif.
 Dear Sirs:
 I am writing you in hopes you may know of someone around your area who could help me locate the names of the oil companies who were formed there in the year of 1918.
 My father and brother both had stock in two of the companies, but this was destroyed by fire and I cannot remember the names of the companies.
 If there is anyone who can help me I will greatly appreciate it.
 The stock was listed to Marshall G. Brooks and Cecil E. Brooks.
 Yours truly,

VETERANS

Questions - Answers

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.)

Q—I am attending a college which restricts freshmen and sophomores to 12 semester credits. VA regulations state that one must obtain 14 semester credits to receive full-time benefits. Because of school restrictions, and through no fault of my own, I can't qualify for full-time payments. Are there any exceptions to this rule?

A—Yes, if your school certifies that your 12 semester credits qualifies as a full-time course by including field work and laboratory work, you may then qualify for full-time VA benefits.

Q—I am a woman who joined the Navy in 1918 and served for seven months. I was classified as a Yeomanette. Am I considered a WWI veteran and am I entitled to VA benefits?

A—Yes, you are entitled to all VA benefits, if otherwise eligible.

Q—I was separated from service in 1952 and developed multiple sclerosis in 1961. I filed a claim with the VA and was denied service-connection. An acquaintance of mine, who left service in 1954 and also contracted multiple sclerosis, filed a claim the same year I did and was granted service-connection. How come?

A—In order to get service-connection for your condition the disease must have become manifest to a degree of 10 percent or more within seven years from date of separation. You, apparently, did not come under the 7 year deadline, whereas your friend did.

LIVE AND LET LIVE

"What I mean is," explained the insurance salesman to a bewildered rural prospect, "how would your wife carry on if you should die?"

"Well," answered the farmer reasonably, "I don't reckon that's any concern o' mine—so long as she behaves herself while I'm alive."
