DEMOS TO SUPPORT HOOVER PLANS

U.S. Cavalry Squadron Rushed To Duty On New Mexico Line

MOUNTED MEN ORDERED OUT AS PROTECTION

Fort Bliss Force Sent To Rail Town of Hachita, New Mexico

ESCOBAR PRESIDENT

Rebel Military Leader Is Provisional Head Of Insurrection

SAN ANTONIO, April 8. (AP)—A squadron of cavalry at Fort Bliss, El Paso, late today was ordered by Maj. Gen. William Lassiter, U. S. army eighth corps area commander, to proceed immediately to Hachita, N. M. The movement was described as a "protective measure." The squdron will be equipped fully.

Hachita is a small railroad town in the southwestern "corner" of New Mexico, about 10 miles north of the U. S.-Mexican border. It is some 110 miles west of El Paso.

ESCOBAR MADE REVOLT PRESIDENT

JUAREZ, Chihuahua, Mexico, April 8. (AP)—Gen. Jose Gonzalo Escobar has been proclaimed provisional president of the Mexican insurgents, it was announced here today.

General Escobar is considering selection of a cabinet, and has appointed Alejo Bey minister of the treasury.

Claim was made at rebel headquarters here today that rebel forces now have possession of Torreon, in the state of Coahuila, from which rebels retreated more than three weeks ago.

ESCOBAR PLANS WESTERN DRIVE

NOGALES, Ariz., April 8. (AP)—Gen. Francisco Manzo, commanding the rebel army on the west coast of Mexico, has been relieved by Gen. J. G. Escobar, commander-in-chief of the revolutionary armies, who will arrive here tomorrow by plane from the state of Chihuahua, it was reported at rebel headquarters today. Escobar will direct a drive down the coast, the report said.

REBELS REPORTED ON DEFENSIVE

(By The Associated Press)

The situation along the American border was viewed as less alarming by Mexico City and Washington alike Monday and principal interest in the Mexican revolutionary campaign centered on the unexpected departure of General Calles, federal commander-in-chief, to take personal charge of the federal campaign on the west coast.

General Calles arrived yesterday at Guadalajara on his way to Mazatlan.

Eighteen American airplanes are guarding the border, but with failure of the rebel attack against Naco Saturday, the immediate crisis seemed to have been passed there, though concentration of all insurgent armies in the state of Sonora ultimately might make it acute again.

The rebels everywhere were on the defensive and slowly withdrawing into Sonora as the sixth week of the insurrection began.

Six troop trains loaded with soldiers of the rebel commander Escobar left Juarez for Western Chihuahua, accompanied by all the town's taxicabs and most of the Mexican-owned trucks and automobiles in flat cars.

MOODY OPPOSES TROOP MOVEMENT

AUSTIN, April 8. (AP)—Governor Moody is opposed to soldiers of the Mexican, or any other government, crossing Texas soil unless they are unarmed and guarded by either United States troops or the Texas militia, he said today.

He stated that he had not given permission for a party of about 40 Mexican army officers, who had been interned at El Paso after the fall of Juarez and reported to have been transported to Eagle Pass to re-enter their country at that point, to cross Texas.

Hambone's Meditations

So Nero Quit The Fire Department And Joined The Police— An Editorial News Story

Back in 64 A. D., or thereabouts, a bimbo by the name of Nero thumped his ukulele while the old home town of Rome burned down. He didn't even call out the volunteer fire department, so the story goes, and thereby carved his own peculiar little niche in the historian's hall of fame.

Fiddlin' While Rome Burns

All of which means nothing in 1929 A. D. Burglars and thieves in the six months preceding April 1, 1929, carried off more than $44,000 of loot in robberies of 319 Wichita Falls homes and business establishments, while the police department tagged some 2,653 automobiles of fairly law abiding citizens and collected approximately $15,000 in fines from these same citizens. Recoveries of stolen property by the police department during the period didn't even cover the cost of broken locks and windows, it is estimated.

Figures compiled by reporters of The Record News, covering the six months period beginning Oct. 1 when the wave of thefts and burglaries became noticeable here, show that losses to property owners in Wichita Falls were sufficient to cover all budget expenses of the operation of another police department as large, as well equipped and probably as efficient as the present one. The entire department could have been doubled and the property owners' losses would have covered the expense with some $2,000 to spare.

Estimates of property losses from thefts and burglaries were taken from the files of The Record News and Daily Times, and are incomplete as many losses have not been reported to the local department, or have been suppressed from reporters. Statistics on arrests of traffic violators, collection of fines and recoveries of property by the police department have been taken from the records of the police department. Reports of grand jury indictments and county court at law cases prosecuted by city officers have been taken from county records.

Stolen Property $44,695—Recoveries $2,505

These figures compiled by The Record News show the estimated loss from reported burglaries and robberies to be $44,695 in six months, not including thefts of automobiles, which are not considered in this article. The estimated loss of property stolen from or off of automobiles is $2,456. Burglaries of Wichita Falls homes resulted in a loss of $21,949, while the loss from store burglaries and thefts from business establishments of various kinds reported to newspapers amounted to $20,266. School burglaries accounted for a loss of $24. The total number of reported individual robberies during the period was 319, or an average of 13 each week during the period, with an average loss of approximately $1,862 each week.

Recovered property listed by the police department during the period amounted to $2,505, or recoveries in six months of less than the amount of thefts in two weeks. In investigating the 319 robberies and thefts, police officers secured information that resulted in the return of eight grand jury indictments, or one indictment for every forty cases reported. Thirteen persons were involved in these major charges, or one person for each 24 cases reported. The grand jury indictments resulting from the efforts of city officers, according to information of the district attorney's office, included one negro charged with three cases of burglary, one negro charged with one case of burglary, two negroes charged with one case of burglary, two cases of theft with three persons in each case, three persons involved in one case of theft, the arrest being made by the Hodgins detective agency.

In the county court at law, 13 complaints for petty theft were filed by city officers in the six months period covering the 319 reported cases. Three of the cases are still pending, six convictions were secured, two cases were dismissed by the county attorney for insufficient evidence, one instructed verdict of not guilty was returned and one jury verdict of not guilty. In petty thefts, the police department filed one charge for each of the 24 cases of theft and burglary reported and secured one conviction out of every 53 cases.

Salaries $35,670—Traffic Arrests 2,653

The city budget for the police department shows a total of $84,292.57 for the operation of the department during a year, while at the present rate property losses from theft and burglaries will total $89,390. Salaries of police officers and officials during the last six months totaled $35,670. During the same period, 2,653 traffic arrests were made, and revenues collected from traffic and other fines totaled $15,180. Seven officers are regularly assigned to traffic duty, according to police officials.

The attitude of traffic officers is possibly reflected in the statement of one such to The Record News: "Of course we mark cars. We have our orders and obey them. But I used to pick up three or four 'vags' and suspicious characters each day for investigation. Don't do it any more. I was told my business was to attend to traffic and nothing else. That's what I'm doing."

As was said in the first part of this story, back in 64 A. D. a bimbo by the name of Nero played his fiddle while the old home town burned down. Which was very well for an amateur in those days and those parts, but means nothing in 1929 A. D. Today he might have quit the fire department to join the police, and swapped his bow for a traffic stick.

SINCLAIR MAY ASK REHEARING

Oil Man's Jail Term Upheld By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, April 8. (AP)—Harry F. Sinclair, under a supreme court decision today, must serve three months in jail for contempt of the senate in refusing to answer all questions asked in the Teapot Dome oil investigation. The opinion of the court was unanimous.

The wealthy oil operator will have 25 days in which to ask for a rehearing before the mandate will be issued. Rehearings seldom are granted. In addition to the jail sentence he must pay of fine of $500.

Sinclair had appeared several times before the committee, as a witness, at the time he was called on March 22, 1924. The committee, through Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, sought to obtain information concerning a contract made on Sept. 25, 1922, by Sinclair in behalf of the Mammoth Oil company with F. G. Bonfils and John Leo Stack.

Questioned concerning the contract which the committee had been informed called for payment of $250,000 to Bonfils and Stack for surrendering rights they claimed on Teapot Dome, Sinclair refused to answer. He took the position that the senate, having adopted a resolution calling on the president to cause proceedings to be instituted to cancel the leases on naval oil reserves made by Albert B. Fall as secretary of the interior, the inquiry had passed beyond the control of the senate committee.

Four Held After Yeggs Stage $1,080 Robbery in Front of Police Station

Quartet Booked on Suspicion After Bus Station Safe Is Looted by Burglars

Although the police department spent a great part of Monday in search of the burglars who knocked the knob off of a safe in the Union Bus station Sunday night or early Monday morning and escaped with $1,080 in cash, no definite trace of the yeggs had been found, Chief of Police Frank Burns said late Monday evening.

Four suspects had been jailed and were being held under charges of investigation Monday afternoon, but as to whether they were connected with the crime had not been ascertained at that time, Chief Burns said.

The yeggs entered the building through a skylight and slipped to the floor by a rope. The knob was hammered off the safe and the money, most of which was in currency, was taken from the strongbox.

Although the bus station is almost directly in front of the police headquarters, officers were of the opinion that the establishment was not closed at night, Chief Burns said, and had noted no disturbance there during the night.

Police officials announced Monday night that they had discovered a money bag, similar to the one which contained the money, and a pair of gloves in a local hotel.

The business session, unusually brief because of the inauguration of a new council, was continued, the newly received members plunging immediately into the work.

All Should Serve

Brief words of congratulation and good wishes were offered the new organization by the retiring members before adjournment. Roy E. Carter, in a short talk, declared that he wished every citizen of "average intelligence" might serve one term on the council for the sake of the city's own welfare.

THRIFT BANDIT TRIO SOUGHT

Store Owners Robbed Of $487 by Hijackers

Three masked bandits who Saturday night hijacked the Edward-Humble grocery store at Thrift and escaped with $487 which the owners of the store had just taken from the cash register were still being sought Monday, according to the members of the Burkburnett police department, who with other county officials are investigating the case.

E. R. Edward and J. W. Humble, proprietors of the store, in the act of closing shop for the day and for the week, had just emptied the cash box Saturday night when a rattle at the doorknob attracted their attention, they told officials. Believing the visitor a belated customer, they opened the door, to face an army automatic in the hands of a masked man. Two other bandits, one carrying an army rifle, forced their way into the store. One counted the money into a bag, while the other held the owners at the point of their guns. The three escaped in an automobile.

The aid of county officers here was enlisted Monday, but no clue pointing to the identity or whereabouts of the hijackers has been developed, officials said.

"My Wife Wasn't Able to Walk Six Blocks to Town," He Says

"She Has Gained Five Pounds or Over and Looks and Feels Like a Different Woman, Since Taking Orgatone," Says Wichita Man.

"My wife had fallen off in weight and at the time she started on Orgatone, she was so weak she couldn't walk six blocks to town without being completely exhausted," said Chas. Smith, of 1008 Twelfth street, employed by the Heath Transfer Co., Wichita Falls, Texas.

"I fully agree with my wife now," Mr. Smith continued, "that there's nothing as good as Orgatone for people in the condition she was. She has actually gained five pounds, and never complains at all now of feeling tired. For six years she has suffered from stomach, and gas formed and made her miserable most all the time. She would bloat up after eating, and would get bilious and dizzy and fainted several time, from her condition.

"The pressure around her heart caused her to have shortness of breath, and her heart would pump like a 'trip hammer,' and at times, she would feel so bad, she could hardly move. She was extremely nervous and would roll and tumble all night long, and never got a good night's rest. She was troubled with severe sick headaches, that would last from days to weeks at a time, and then, she suffered so bad, she had to stay in bed most of the time. She lost all of her appetite for when she did eat she would suffer so afterward. She was so run down and worn out she couldn't do her own housework, and always felt tired and never had any energy or strength.

"She had tried so many different kinds of medicines, she decided to try Orgatone. She has now just taken three bottles, and you should see the great change. She looks, feels and acts like a different woman. She walks to town and back now without stopping to rest, and it doesn't bother her or exhaust her in the least. She eats anything she wants, and has a hearty appetite and hasn't been troubled with bloating or gas since she started taking Orgatone. She goes to bed, and gets a good night's sleep, and doesn't roll and tumble all night long as she did, and get up in the morning feeling rested and ready for her day's work. All of her nervousness is gone, and her heart is back to normal, and her headaches are also relieved. She has gained about five pounds in weight and has gained and been built up all around, like a general 'overhauling.' She never has those fainting spells any more, and feels fine every day. She has improved so much in every way, that she doesn't look like the same person. She feels so good now, she even does her own washing, and all of her housework and never tires. We both are more than glad to recommend Orgatone, because it has done her so much good, and she will continue taking it until the full treatment is concluded, and we know she will then have her perfect health, or as good health as she ever had.

"I sincerely feel that we cannot sing the praises too highly for Orgatone, for it has proven a wonderful treatment in my wife's case, and if anyone will just come and ask us, we will be glad to tell them personally what Orgatone did for her."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison's Drug store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Also at Burkburnett by the City Drug store; at Electra by the Tarleton Drug Co.; at Vernon by the Vernon Drug store, and other prominent drug stores in every city and town.—Adv.

St. Louis Man May Direct Little Theater if Membership Drive Succeeds

About 50 supporters of the Little Theater movement who attended a meeting held at the Woman's Forum Monday night launched a campaign immediately after dismissal which has for its objective the obtaining of a professional director by showing a paid membership of at least 100 by April 15.

The proposition from which it is hoped the local organization will find itself provided again with a paid director was made by F. C. McClung, a theatrical man of St. Louis, who addressed the gathering Monday night on the subject of Little Theaters, and suggested plans for the continuance of the activity begun here early this spring.

May Accept Post

Pressed by a number of local members of the group to propose a plan on which he would assume charge of the future productions here, Mr. McClung agreed to cancel his present engagements which are effective until June and become director of the Wichita Falls Little Theater if the organization could show a minimum of 100 members by next Monday. Under the proposed plan his compensation would be 50 per cent of the earnings of the Little Theater, and the agreement would cover not only the remainder of this spring season, but all of the 1929-1930 season. Mr. McClung expressed his willingness to accept the position here for a smaller amount than 50 per cent in case 200 paid memberships were obtained, the sliding scale to be determined definitely in the event of such a membership being obtained.

The basis on which memberships have been sold during the last week, and will be issued during the coming seven days, is the payment of $1 and the pledge to sell two tickets to each play which may be given.

Campaign Planned

It was said that about 20 memberships were added Monday night to those previously obtained, making a total of more than 50 toward the 100 which will be required to obtain the services of Mr. McClung under the terms of the agreement reached Monday night. Mr. McClung will leave Wichita Falls Tuesday morning, but stated that upon receiving advice from the local organization by Wednesday, April 17, that the membership of 100 had been obtained, he would return immediately and assume his duties as director here.

Those present at the meeting Monday night stated that a high degree of enthusiasm prevailed, and expressed assurance of exceeding the stipulated number of members within the coming week. The attendance was marked by an unusually large proportion of men, it was stated.

A meeting will be held next Monday night, April 15, at 8 o'clock for hearing the reports of the membership campaign inaugurated Monday night.

The tax assessor was instructed to use 66 2-3 per cent of the property valuations for assessment purposes, the same percentage as ordered for 1928, it was explained. A similar order is passed early in every fiscal year, the new members were told.

COURT CALLS ELECTRA BOYS

Dozen to Testify Here In Liquor Trial

More than a dozen Electra high school boys will be called to the stand in the 30th district court Tuesday to testify for the state in the trials of Roy Gonce, Al Stewart and George Bingham, separately indicted for the sale of whisky after a grand jury investigation of an alleged speakeasy said to have been operated at Electra.

The state expects to use the youthful witnesses in an attempt to prove its charges of the liquor sales, according to members of the district attorney's office. The boys were called before the January grand jury after a meeting in Electra of school officials, parents and county officers, investigating reports that boys had been visiting the alleged speakeasy.

The three defendants will each be tried separately, the name of Roy Gonce being first on the docket. All three trials are expected to be completed Tuesday.

Inside the soul of ONE WOMAN

"YOU'VE NO RIGHT TO KEEP HIM FROM ME!"

Once in a long time TRUE STORY receives a confession such as this! "Inside the Soul of One Woman" is an amazing human document—a revelation of married love that no married woman—or man—can afford to miss. A complete life diary, practically book length, in May TRUE STORY—out today.

IT'S an extraordinary story this woman tells you—a story not one wife in a million would have the courage or honesty to tell. But, hidden behind her veil of anonymity, she describes without reservation the ebbs and tides of a love that began as a boy-and-girl romance and all but wrecked her life at 45.

Here is a wife who reveals in simple honesty—with utter fairness to her husband—what happened when first "another woman" came between her and her mate.

So natural—so inevitable! The girl wife tired and jaded from child-bearing . . . the eager young husband keen for recognition in his chosen science . . . then another woman—sophisticated, lovely, who gave him the praise he craved. It's a situation any wife knows—but not every woman will guess how this wife solved it!

And how much better this woman understood her erring Dan when she herself, devoted wife though she was, met "the other man." If she herself had not come so near slipping, could she have understood years later when that sinning son of hers—and Dan's—poured into her ears one night his passionate confession?

She and Dan were gray now. But a man is still young at 46. Better-looking than ever, this husband of hers—the secret object of college girl crushes. How she smiled at them indulgently—until that terrible hour when a slim, red-lipped girl cried out to her, "You don't care for him now, except as the father of your children! You've no right to keep him away from me!" To win through all these other crises in her married life—and find herself now at 45—fighting for her very life!

Tune in for TRUE STORY HOUR!

VALUE OF SOIL IS STRESSED

Whiteker Writes on Methods of Conservation

By B. M. WHITEKER
Agricultural Manager, West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

STAMFORD, Texas, April 8.—There is at this time an awakening of the minds of the farmers of the Southwest to the vital importance of soil conservation and many eastern states, as Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, as well as the Carolinas, Virginia, Tennessee, etc, that first let all the virgin top soil wash away for lack of serious study of soil conservation, as during the Civil war period, and soon thereafter when land was too exhausted to continue to produce profitably, it was but little trouble to move to new untilled virgin soil just a little further south and west, until today no more free land is to be had, and these young farmers or some of them began to use their heads and apply thought to the principle of continued profitable agriculture for generations on the same lands. This brought about a rehabilitation of the land on worn out farms of the states, lying along the Mississippi valley and east to the Atlantic ocean.

Crop Rotation

First came crop rotation and this gave added impetus to the work as its effect was not only immediately profitable, but the tendency also was to eliminate or materially retard plant diseases of the land on which rotation was adopted; also the liberal use of barnyard manure, as well as commercial fertilizer on these lands, increased the production and the quality of the crop. But in most, if not all, of these states the method of preparing the land for planting seed is on a high bed to keep the young plants from drowning and water furrows acting as drainage system, and then all summer the Georgia stock with the bull tongue or the one mule turning plow was used to throw up the dirt to cover luxurious and rapid growth of obnoxious vegetation that grows in those sections and still the results of soil come-back was slow and then began the method of terracing, an almost forgotten art, to prevent erosion of the top soil, which contained most all of the plant foods, such as Nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, etc, and then the rapid recovery of crop production was seen. But, still with these states, soil drainage was a difficult problem, as terracing tended to water log the land, although very expensive, as tile ditching and laying it is not easy and certainly not inexpensive. Yet, much value to crop production was evident.

Moisture Is Important

In the southwest and especially West Texas, where the soil is rich and productive, with splendid climatic conditions, favorable to the great range of crop varieties, where production in abundance of quality and quantity per man power at less cost and where land is cheap and millions of rich fertile virgin acres still await the farmer with his modern machinery to prepare, cultivate and gather the golden harvest, the real knowledge of not only soil conservation but also moisture conservation enters into the question, as ours is a so-called semi-arid country.

Terracing performs a double service in that flood or rain waters held by terracing and contouring not only holds the silt and soil from erosion but holds the water and more fully saturates the land and materially helps the quantity of acre production.

Since many years of experience in terracing by agricultural colleges through their agricultural agencies and vocational teachers with their classes, as well as individuals and with modern equipment as cheap terracing machinery and still cheaper and more accurately constructed are the little farm levels. Terracing to conserve soil erosion and moisture as we get it from year to year in West Texas to increase annual production is now out of the haze of understandable uncertainty to the simple problem of construction.

Demonstrations Given

In order to increase immediate activity, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce through the agricultural department is putting on in West Texas a series of constructive terracing demonstrations to increase as rapidly as possible this much needed soil and moisture conservation. To do this and get in the next few years geometric progression from this work, the organization is taking the work not only to the farmers, but to the boys of public and high school age, who are to be the future producers of the soil. As an inducement to get those boys immediately interested in the subject by actually building terraces, prizes will be offered, beginning with the annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at El Paso in May, for the boys in groups of three, or otherwise, who make the best showing of constructive terrace building on the ground, and by questions on the proper methods of construction and maintaining terraces on the farms and pastures. Pasture terracing materially increases summer grazing. The value of a terraced farm gives that farmer added credits over the man who does not. So terrace, that even the farm loan companies, bankers, merchants and individuals who look to farm collateral today as the safest and surest of securities for long-time and low-rate money, and especially so if the farm is properly terraced.

BAKER STARTS WAR ON CRIME

New Committee on Detecting Thugs Formed

NEW YORK, April 8. (US)—To be known as the committee on the detection and prosecution of crime, a new body has been organized by Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war and now head of the national crime commission, it was stated today.

The committee will be under the direction of J. Weston Allen, former attorney general of Massachusetts, and author of the model criminal code which he drafted at the request of the late Governor Hadley of Massachusetts.

In making the announcement, Baker said:

"There is a feeling that our whole system of detecting and apprehending criminals falls short of efficiency. This new committee will study the situation and obtain the advice of those best qualified to suggest steps to be taken to improve our police systems generally.

"While the problem as it relates to our larger cities has received the greatest public attention, it is the feeling of the commission that the rural constabulary is in even greater need of overhauling. The appointment of this committee is an indirect result of the study made by Governor Lowden's committee on the relation of the police and the courts to the crime problem, published by the commission last year."

Baker gave it as his opinion that the full resources of each state can be placed at the command of those entrusted with police duties in the rural districts. The means is to be one of the problems discussed.

Prescription Error Fatal for Youths

LONDON, April 8. (AP)—An inquest held today into the deaths of three boys who came up to London from Sudbury recently to be treated for ringworm, brought out that a misplaced decimal point in a prescription caused the fatalities.

The boys, Charles, Leslie and John Thorpe, aged 10, 7 and 5 years respectively, died under mysterious circumstances after being given medicine from a prescription compounded at the hospital to which they applied.

The testimony showed a mistake made in the calculation of a quantity of a drug resulted in the oldest child being given 2.5 grammes instead of .25. The others also were given proportionately 10 times the desired quantity.

JEWESSES TO SEE PASSOVER

Pair Picked by American Jews for Trip to Holy Land

NEW YORK, April 8. (US)—Two young Jewish women, picked from a nationwide gathering of 25, will shortly leave New York to represent American Jewry in Palestine during Passover. The contest, which was held in the 71st regiment armory, this city, was conducted under the auspices of the Jewish National Workers' alliance.

More than 10,000 persons crowded the armory to witness the first annual choosing of a "Jewish queen and princess." A committee of 13 judges unanimously agreed that Miss Phayne Raquel Moses, 22, was the embodiment of all the perfections of the female American Jew, and she was chosen "queen."

Miss Esther Manischewitz, 15, of Cincinnati, Ohio, daughter of the Matzo baker, was selected as "princess and lady-in-waiting to the queen." Both young women will leave this week for the Holy Land. They will be supplied with all expenses for a round trip by the sponsors of the contest.

Both of the winners speak and write Hebrew and both are members of Orthodox families. Neither of them have vocations, but are classed as home girls by the alliance.

Miss Manischewitz, strange to relate, was born in Palestine, as was her mother. She was brought to this country, however, at the age of one year and has lived in Cincinnati since that time. She was the youngest contestant in the competition.

The most fun offered the public for a dime is a wavy automobile track known as the Ocean Wave. Wichita now has one, four miles out Henrietta road. Drive out and try it once. A pleasant surprise awaits you.—Adv.

INDIANS LOSE LAND DECISION

Contested Oklahoma Tract To Isom Grayson

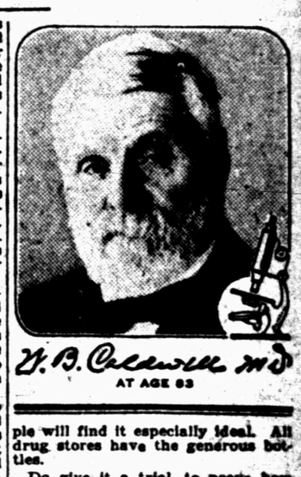

WASHINGTON, April 8. (AP)—Isom Grayson and others scored a victory in the supreme court today in a contest over valuation of oil land in Creek county, Oklahoma, originally allotted to Nancy and Garfield Colbert, Creek Indians, when the lower courts were reversed and the case sent back with instructions.

The land has been in litigation for many years, and has been in the possession of James A. Harris and others since 1906. Isom Grayson and others claimed title as the heirs at law of Gertrude Grayson, who had inherited a one-half interest in the land.

The Oklahoma supreme court held the time had expired in which the title of Harris and his associates could be changed.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treament of constipation, billiousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs.

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the tarte, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Do give it a trial, to prove how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours.—Adv.

MR. COOLIDGE in Part Two of His OWN STORY tells

Why he did not Choose to Run

WHAT he did to Stop his Nomination at Kansas City—

WHY he did not say he would refuse the nomination if it were tendered to him—

WHY he did not declare for Hoover before the Convention—

WHY he believes no man should be President for more than two terms—

You May Obtain Part One of the Coolidge Story in Reprint Form

There has been no magazine feature in our time which attracted such universal attention as has Mr. Coolidge's fine human story. Many persons eager to read the document were unable to do so because April Cosmopolitan was swept from the newsstands almost overnight.

Mr. Coolidge naturally desires that all who want to read his story of the Presidency should have the opportunity.

Rather than disappoint friends and readers, we have reprinted Part One in pamphlet form and you may have a copy for the asking.

Address Cosmopolitan Magazine, 57th St. at 8th Ave., New York City. (Please inclose 4 cents in stamps for postage on each copy desired.)

THESE are important revelations; important to you and to every member of your family. As Mr. Coolidge tells them in May Cosmopolitan, they are not only important but thrillingly interesting. For this second installment of his story is as humanly written as was his opening chapter in April Cosmopolitan.

It is, as Ray Long says, one of the great human documents of our time. Mr. Coolidge deals with events of great importance in a manner so direct that at times it is almost breath-taking.

For instance, you find that he believes no man can be President for eight years without having his head swelled by the constant adulation with which he is surrounded, and that is his common-sense reason against a third term.

His story is alive with similar human, down-to-the-ground observations. Mr. Coolidge is an American writing to Americans in the clearest American they've ever had the opportunity to read.

We advise you to buy your copy of May Cosmopolitan today—there won't be enough by many thousands to supply the demand.

As you buy your May issue, place an order for the June issue, in which Mr. Coolidge begins "The Scenes of My Childhood," the real story of a real boy who didn't dream he was destined to be President.

RED IS PARIS' SPRING COLOR

Gaudy Frocks Seen at Seaside Resort

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.

PARIS, April 8. (US)—Red as the favorite color for the brilliant spring days has been the outstanding fashion feature in these days following the inaugural Easter display.

Those who visited Deauville, the fashion center, over the Easter week-end found flaming crimson the choice of at least three-fourths of the smart women who appeared at this continental shore resort.

Americans at Resort

While foreign women predominated at the holiday gathering there, several Americans were in evidence. Among those observed was Mrs. Helen M. Kelley, the first Mrs. Frank J. Gould and later wife of Prince Vlora, whom she also divorced.

Mrs. Kelley, at a luncheon with a group of non-Americans, looked notably chic in a tweed coat with fur softening the line of the neck, and a small tzque, fitting tightly about her head.

As the coat was opened, it was revealed that she also had chosen red for her frock, and the brightness of the ensemble was further enhanced by a multicolored scarf worn loosely about her throat.

Others Prefer Dark Shades

Here in Paris, Mrs. Thomas W. Lamont, Mrs. Wainwright Parish and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Sr., and other Americans showed themselves partisans of the more conservative darker colors. Mrs. Parish appeared at Ciro's in an evening gown of black lace by Molyneux. It was untrimmed and light below the hips, being severely simple in style but was obviously cut by a master hand. The uneven hemline almost touched the ground at the back. With this, she wore an evening coat of mould brocade with a flower design in pinks and blues, lined with gray and having a gray fur collar.

Mrs. Parish also took with her aboard the Aquitania two Paris ensembles, one by Molyneux in wine-colored silk with superimposed bows on the coat and dress, and the other a beige georgette crepe dress and coat trimmed in two tones of brown. The lower skirt of the dress was accordeon pleated.

Breaks Monotony

Mrs. W. B. Osgood Pell and Mrs. Price Collier were also among those showing themselves favorable to the less startling shades, although Mrs. Collier's daughter relieved the general sombre tone by appearing at the Ritz in a patou creation making novel use of the prevailing taste for red. It was a frock in printed mouseline with a red sheen collar effect and panels of tulle.

Floyd Ard to Appear Friday Night

Floyd Ard, the young musician to be presented in recital by the Woman's Forum Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Floyd Ard Gives Final Concert At Forum Friday Night

On Friday night at 9 o'clock, the Woman's Forum is presenting Floyd Ard in a farewell concert. He will leave in a fortnight for Philadelphia to enter the Curtis Institute of Music.

This young artist has played before an audience of appreciative music lovers for six years. This will be his seventh consecutive appearance, but the first in which he will appear as a composer. His friends are eager for the event.

For the past year, he has been studying at home and preparing for work at the institute, of which Josef Hofmann is director. It is a singular co-incidence that Arthur Rodzinski, the head of the department of orchestra in that school, studied piano with Emil Sauer, who was Floyd's master in Vienna. Yet not so much a coincidence, for the purpose of the Curtis institute is "to hand down through contemporary masters the great traditions of the past," and the best artists are there for that purpose.

Forum members will be admitted on their membership cards, students will enter for 50 cents and adults $1.

HUBBY'S FOLLY MAY WEAR OFF

Dorothy Dix Talks Frankly To Wondering Wife

Shall This Wife Surrender Her Husband to the Other Woman?—Straight Talk to the Sentimental Wife. Folly of Marrying a Man Who Has to Be Babied.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am just another wife whose husband has found out after 20 years of married life that he has married the wrong one. We have three fine children, and I love him, and I have stuck by him through poverty and have helped him to fight through to prosperity, but I am not thinking of myself, nor even of my children, as much as I am of him when I ask you if I should give him a divorce.

For the woman he has fallen in love with is a woman of very low morals who would only stay with him as long as his money lasted and then she would look for another to keep her in luxury. She would not take care of him as I take care of him. She would not do the things for him that I do for him. I honestly believe that she would not make him as happy as I make him.

But what I want to know is, am I doing the right thing in staying with him when he wants me to go? Shall I let him marry this woman, knowing that it will wreck his whole life and that he will be miserable in the end, or shall I stay on and see if he will get over his attack in time?

JUST A WIFE.

Answer—I think if I were you I would possess my soul in patience and stick it out for another year. Give your husband's folly that much time in which to run its course and the chances are that it will wear itself out and he will have regained his senses once more.

It will help a lot if you will take the children and go away from him for the year. Why not take them for a year's study in Europe? That will be the best education you can possibly give them. Being in new scenes and making contact with a different life will divert your own mind from your troubles and it will give your husband a chance to find out what you and his home and his children really mean to him.

Besides that, your inevitable jealousy and nagging about the other woman keeps him irritated with you and fans the flame of his passion for her. He contrasts you, finding fault with him and reproaching him, with her soothing flattery, and you lose out.

If you go away this friction is eliminated and he will have a chance to remember how sweet and good you have always been to him and how faithful and dependable you have always been. Very often married people need to be separated in order to get a perspective on each other's virtues, and to find out how fond they are of each other and how dependent upon each other.

So, if I were you, I should propose this separation plan to my husband and tell him that if, at the end of the year, he still wanted a divorce I would let him have it.

You may be very sure of this one thing: If his lady love is the kind of a woman that you think she is he will get her number in that length of time. She may deceive him for a while, but she can't keep it up. In some way she will show her lack of principle, her coarseness, her greediness, her selfishness and her lack of consideration for him.

Speaking by and large, for of course there are exceptions to every rule, and especially are there a hundred exceptions to every rule that applies to matrimony, I think that a wife makes a mistake if she divorces her middle-aged husband simply because he thinks he is tired of her and unless he shows unmistakable evidences that he has actually come to hate her.

There are plenty of cases of that kind where a husband develops such a loathing for his wife that he feels actually murderous toward her. She becomes physically repugnant to him. The very tones of her voice grate on him. Everything she says and does irritates him and her presence poisons life for him.

The man who feels this way toward his wife does not trouble to disguise his feelings, so when a woman realizes her husband dislikes her the only thing she can in decency do is to leave him as quickly as possible. But when the husband just thinks he is tired of his wife and that she no longer supplies the thrill and kick he yearns for in matrimony, the situation calls for dalliance instead of drastic action on the wife's part.

For at middle age there comes to many men an age of indiscretion, when they have a sudden yearning for romance and flirtations, and when they are mighty apt to stray off the strait and narrow path. It is the last call to the dining car. The final flare-up of youth before it sinks into age, and if wives have the courage and the wisdom to nurse their husbands through this second sentimental period as they do their babies through their second summers, all goes well for the balance of their lives.

The husbands get over it and are glad and thankful to settle down with their wives and children, with their homes unbroken, and with the respect of their fellow citizens and with no messy divorces on their hands and no alimony to pay.

Not long ago a very miserable man said to me that he never saw any middle-aged couple going happily and contentedly along together without shedding tears of self-pity. He said that when he was 45 he fell into the hands of a pretty gold-digger who made him believe that he was too young for his wife and that he was tired of a middle-aged woman and he induced his wife to divorce him. He married the girl only to find they had nothing in common and that she had married him for his money and he wound up his story by exclaiming!

"Oh, if my wife had only had a little more patience she could have saved me from marying this woman and wrecking all our lives."

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I have been married six months and I am the most miserable woman in the world. My husband is good and kind and he gives me a beautiful home and everything I want, but when he goes to work in the morning he only gives me one stingy little kiss and the same way when he comes home at night. And in the evenings he will sit up and read an hour or two at a time. I cannot stand this neglect. What shall I do?

UNHAPPY.

Answer—My suggestion is that you try to act like a reasonable human being instead of a sentimental fool. You are certainly one of the answers to why men leave home. Any man would, rather than put up with the hoo-hooing of a wife who thinks she is mistreated because a tired man and a busy one doesn't spend all his time in telling her how wonderful and beautiful she is, and how much he loves her.

Life isn't a petting party, my child. It is a stern reality in which we show our love for others by doing our duty by them and by trying to make things comfortable for them. As long as your husband is tender and kind to you and works to keep you soft and easy he ddesn't need to give you any other proof of his love and you are not a neglected wife, you are a mighty lucky one.

Kisses are just the meringue on the lemon pie of matrimony and sometimes when the meringue is the thickest and the kisses the most plentiful the pie is the sourest.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—Would you marry a young man who had been babied all his life and whom you had to baby to keep in a good humor, because otherwise he would go into a state of sulks that lasted for weeks?

BRUNETTE.

Answer—Not unless you have the mother complex very abnormally developed. And, personally, I don't believe a woman ever stays very long in love with a husband that she has to treat like a spoiled child. In a husband a woman wants a man she can respect and rely on. She doesn't want to take an infant to raise.

DOROTHY DIX.

Oh, These Women

The Truth About Women

FLOYD H. ALLPORT, professor of social and political psychology at Syracuse university, in an absorbing and penetrating article in the March issue of "Harper's," entitled "Seeing Women as They Are," explodes the myth that women are basically different from men.

IT so happens that Professor Allport's attitude is precisely my own attitude. I have always maintained that there is no fundamental or significant differences in the character, temperaments and variability of men and women.

But the fiction persists that there is, simply because few people have attempted to refute and demolish it.

The responsibility for the continued life of this fallacious belief is not altogether men's. There are many women who insist upon special consideration and treatment for no other reason than the accident of the fact that they were born women—and for exactly this reason the theory of equal rights remains more of a theory than an actuality.

In one breath some of us will insist upon equal rights and in another we will trade upon the ancient fiction. But no woman who thinks or acts like that will attain equality with men or other women. There are some things that even legislation cannot do.

IT is no novelty to hear men say, "Oh, you know how women are!" A world of scorn has always gone into the expression.

But it is largely our own fault. We have never combatted the libelous notion with sufficient vigor. At the same time some of us have offended in a similar way. Disappointed in one man, or maybe two or three, we have cried, "All men are the same!" And we have been bitter and scornful in our thrusts.

MEN and women, generally, are fundamentally the same. Professor Allport goes deeply into the subject, analyzes the alleged differences which have been pointed out as detrimental to women and points out the forces and factors which have made for the myth that there is an essential difference between the sexes.

It is a frank intelligent and honest dissertation, and I advise all thoughtful women to read the article and show it to their husbands and men friends.

It is the simple truth about women, the whole and real truth.

And, true, to tradition, the truth does not hurt. In this case it is soothing as well as enlightening.

Goley told officers of spending sleepless nights in the woods while searching parties combed that section of the state for him. At one time, he said, officers passed within two feet of where he lay hidden.

The prisoner supported the claim of Joe Streiter and Claude Burnett captured Friday by officers, that no outside aid was given them in their escape. No trace of H. G. "Snake" Cain, alleged member of the Pendleton bandit gang and charged with engineering the escape, has been found.

TEXANS LET'S TALK TEXAS

West Texans! let's talk about the opportunities of West Texas, agriculturally, industrially and commercially--and as a wonderful place in which to live.

as the DAY follows the NIGHT

AS SURELY as the day follows the night, West Texas stands upon the threshold of an era of industrial development which will be as thrilling and as picturesque as has been the past history of this remarkable empire.

Sometimes the most worthwhile things are the least obvious. It seems to have been so in the case of West Texas. In the outset it seemed to many people that there was very little to recommend this section as one peculiarly fitted for the building of a great industrial area. Men were attracted to this section of Texas, however, whose vision was far reaching. They foresaw that West Texas was destined to become a great center of industrial activity.

Accordingly they instituted a program of foundational industrial work which required the greatest courage and fortitude to carry forward. These men pioneered West Texas. Today their efforts are gloriously in evidence. On every hand the force of their determined optimism is felt. National recognition of the correctness of their forecast, made a quarter of a century ago, is daily being given. They have laid the foundation of a mighty empire.

This heritage they are tendering to a new generation, whose capacity for going forward with it is reflected in today's sound developments.

The Texas Electric Service Company has had a part in West Texas development. And this Company feels that it partakes fully of the spirit of West Texas, that it has an understanding of the needs of this territory which enables it to plan its future along the most constructive lines of helpfulness to this great wealth producing area.

ATHLETE HURT AT DANCE HALL

Semi-Pro Pitcher Tells Of Severe Beating

HOUSTON, April 8. (AP)—A charge of aggravated assault was filed today against Deputy Constable W. O. Patterson of Harrisburg, after W. T. Riggs, 23, Houston amateur and semi-pro baseball pitcher, told the district attorney Petterson beat him into unconsciousness Saturday night at a dance hall near here.

Attaches at the Houston hospital where Riggs was treated said 17 stitches were necessary to close gashes in his head, and an X-ray examination would be made to determine whether his skull was fractured.

Riggs a refinery employe, alleged two men grabbed him from behind just after he left the dance hall. One of them beat him with a gun, Riggs stated.

"I don't know how many times the man hit me, but he hit me twice before I fell and several times after I was on the ground," Riggs went on. "I don't know what happened after that. I woke up in the hospital."

W. O. Petterson, deputy constable, told the district attorney he struck Riggs over the head with his gun three or four times after the man had resisted arrest and hit an officer. Riggs was "staggering all around," Petterson said. He added Riggs was never unconscious.

The youth denied he was intoxicated when arrested.

NEW YORK, April 8. (AP)—Rep. F. H. La Guardia today sent to Speaker Nicholas Longworth of the house of representatives a telegram in which he offered to have the office of Rep. A. DePriest, recently elected negro member from Illinois, placd next to his own.

"Have noticed in press agitation among some members against allotment of office to our colleague from Illinois, Mr. De Priest," the telegram read. "I will be glad to have him next to my office. TEXAS BORDER FIGHT TALKED

Rival Del Rio Editors Call Each's Hand

DEL RIO, Texas, April 8. (AP)—Reports of an impending attack by rebels on the Mexican village of Villa Acuna, opposite Del Rio, met with conflicting views on the border here.

Lisandro Pena, Mexican consul general, said the revolutionists would have to travel 500 miles through a great desert where there is no food or water in order to reach the border here. In addition they would have to force their way past a federal garrison at Sabinas, 50 miles south of Villa Acuna, as well as loyal troops at other points.

Adamo Gutierrez, editor of La Popular, a Spanish language newspaper here, and who sympathizes with the rebels, said the states of Coahuila, Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas will be in active revolt within three days and that all border towns are to be attacked. He declared Villa Acuna would be attacked by 300 men under General Rosalio Hernandez.

Dan Gonzalez, editor of Los Noticias, another Spanish language paper at Del Rio, which stands by the federals, said: "Gutierrez and other rebels and some local American correspondents of press associations are plumb full of revolution."

Young Heflin told reporters that "almost everyone who boarded the Ancon at Panama took liquor aboard with them." He said all of the liquid refreshments were consumed before New York was sighted.

DR. GOLDSTEIN HERE TONIGHT

Speaker to Challenge Modern Views on Family

A lecture designed to offset the influence of prominent sociological activities of the present day will be given at the Memorial auditorium Tuesday night at 8 o'clock by Dr. David Goldstein of Boston, declared by those sponsoring his appearance to be an established authority on sociology.

Dr. Goldstein has announced that he will challenge the "widely advertised views of Judge Ben Lindsey of Colorado and Bertrand Russell of England "relative to new types of marriage and other deviations from the conventional, older practices in the establishment of the family as a unit in society. Such proponents of modernistic theories, the lecturer states, are disseminating dangerous ideas which creep forward so slowly as to escape notice, and play upon public sympathy in order to create a shield for their operations. Most of the movements whose foundation will be questioned have been declared by Dr. Goldstein to consist of old, well-known truths attired in the appearance of newness in order to create a stir among the many who are eager to experiment with any innovation.

At the conclusion of his lecture, the speaker will conduct an open forum, when he will welcome any questions which members of the audience may choose to ask. In former appearances, it was said, these discussions have occasioned many vigorous verbal tilts between Dr. Goldstein and hearers who hold ideas at variance with his own. Birth control and sex questionnaires have been given numerous hearings in these exchanges. Dr. Goldstein's lecture, "What Is Wrong with the Family?" is characterized as a defence of Christian ideals and Christian institutions.

The doors of the auditorium will open at 7 o'clock, it was announced, and there will be no collection or solicitation of any kind. The speaker is brought here by the Knights of Columbus and a general invitation has been extended to the public to attend.

Mrs. Inman Tells of Reconciliation Move

RENO, Nev., April 8. (INS)—Helen Garnet Patton Inman today from the witness stand told of efforts on her part to effect a reconciliation with her wealthy husband, Walker P. Inman following their separation in New York in 1927.

She charged that the influence of Mrs. Duke, Inman's mother, prevented any reconciliation.

She declared that with her attorney Emanuel Cohen, she had visited Charles Caldwell, attorney for Inman, with the plea she still loved her husband and wanted a reconciliation.

"You are temperamentally unsuited for each other and had better give up the idea," she said Caldwell told her.

She said Mrs. Duke wanted her son to fit himself for the responsibility of handling the Duke tobacco fortune when he fell heir to it. She added that Mrs. Duke had called her son a "waster and idler" when he refused to go to work.

Mrs. Inman said her fortune consisted of $1,200 cash, two automobiles, some clothes and jewelry. She asserted her expenses in the case were being borne by her attorney.

82,500 DOLLARS IN TAXES!

EIGHTY-TWO THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS! That's eight thousand, two hundred and fifty ten-dollar bills.

Paid Annually by Insurance Companies for the Support of Your State

If you home owners think your taxes are too much just think of the business which pays several hundred times as much. That business is the Life Insurance business in Texas. These taxes are paid with pleasure and we are telling you only so you can better appreciate the size of the industry, its value to the state, the part it plays in the state's development and why, other things being equal, Texans are partial to home companies.

This is the emblem of the Texas Companies. Symbol of mercy, protection and progress and the mark of a noble calling.

This tax item is perhaps the least important contribution of Life Insurance Companies to the welfare of our own people. These companies supply millions in finance to home owners and farmers, public utilities, public roads, streets and improvements, industries, buildings and other worthy enterprises. They employ thousands of office workers and agents with salaries totaling over two million a year. But above all else, they are helping more than one and one-half million southern people to learn thrift, enjoy protection and acquire estates. Truly, Texas Life Insurance Companies mean much to this state and they deserve the allegiance of Texans.

COPS CHARGED IN HIJACKING

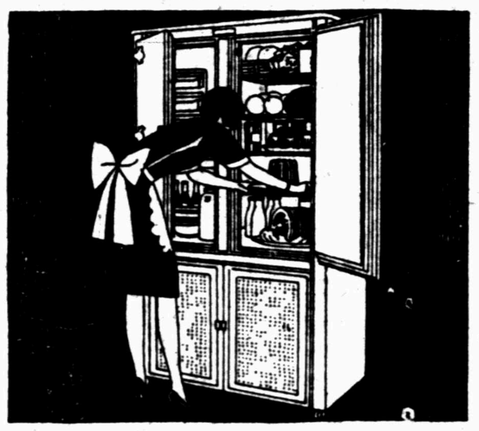

Rum Runner Says Officers Took His Alcohol

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 8. (INS)—Affidavits by a booze runner that he had been "hijacked" by two members of the Lawrence police department and relieved of eight gallons of alcohol and $16 were responsible for the starting of an investigation here today by county and city officials.

The affidavits were signed by James McKowen of Wamego, former motor car dealer in that city, in the office of D. F. Smith, clerk of the Dogulas county district court, here Saturday afternoon, in the presence of Harry Frazee, county attorney.

The story told by the rum runner came after he had been informed by Sheriff R. R. Rutherford that he would be immune from any prosecution in connection with the matter. McKowen, in the affidavit, declared that he was stopped by two Lawrence motorcycle policemen near the edge of this city the night of Jan. 27. After searching the car and finding a large quantity of alcohol in the rear, the two officers, according to McKowen, offered to let him go for the price of $250.

When informed that he had only a small amount of money with him, the two officers decided to take the alcohol. McKowen asserted he was forced to drive on to a side road and there the Lawrence "cops" took all his money and eight gallons of alcohol. He said they gave him back two dollars to buy gas and oil and permitted him to keep a large amount of whisky which they said there was no market for. He then said he was permitted to go on. McKowen was brought to Lawrence by Sheriff Rutherford Saturday and viewed the members of the city and county police forces. He then signed a second affidavit stating that the two men who did the "hijacking", were James Weed and George Price. Both officers charged are veterans on the force, although neither is more than 35 years of age.

Watchman Gives Life Needlessly To Save Autoists

BERLIN, N. J., April 8. (UP)—Benjamin Lewis, 46, a railroad crossing watchman, sacrificed his life for six persons and what he thought was his duty at Pleasantville, near here, last night.

George Bendinger of Pleasantville, and his family of five, returning by automobile from a week-end at the seashore, crashed through the gates which Lewis had lowered for the approach of a Pennsylvania railroad express. The motor stalled as the car straddled the rails.

Lewis seized a red lantern and ran as fast as his rheumatic legs could carry him to flag the express. After the exprss had shot over the crossing, with brakes screeching, it was found that Bendinger and his family had leaped to safety from the car which had been completely demolished. Lewis was found dying beside the track. He died at a hospital without knowing that the people in the automobile were safe.

LONDON, April 8. (UP)—The rebel Kwangsi and Wuhan forces of China are completely demoralized as a result of the government's recent victories, the Observer's correspondent at Shanghai reported today. French Paper Backs Kellogg for Post

PARIS, April 8. (UP)—The newspaper "La Liberte" said today that Frank B. Kellogg should be named American ambassador to Paris to succeed the late Myron T. Herrick. HEADS LARGEST BANK IN U. S.

But Rentschler Calls Himself 'City Farmer'

NEW YORK, April 8. (US)—Introducing the new president of the largest bank in the United States, to-wit:

Gordon S. Rentschler, 44 years of age, and 6 feet 2 inches tall, at his desk in the Gray building at No. 55 Wall street, that houses the National City bank of New York.

A block away, the stock exchange was roaring through a day's trading. The banking room downstairs was filled with customers. But this panorama of finance at the moment did not hold his attention.

Is Expert Farmer

His mind turned to the old farm homestead three miles east of Hamilton, Ohio, where he was born and that he now owns. It is the spot where he and his four brothers—all outstanding figures in the business world—are accustomed to foregather, don their old clothes, and be boys again.

He says he is a "city farmer," but nevertheless he can plow corn, harvest wheat, run a threshing machine and wield an axe at the wood pile in a fashion that arouses the envy of his nearby "dirt farmer" neighbors.

Does his farm pay dividends? He says that it does. He says, too, that the crates of eggs and lumps of butter that come to him at his Fifth avenue home from this farm carry a sentiment that more fully compensate him than the return in money he is getting from the investment.

Of huge physique, Mr. Renschler is a comparatively new figure in Wall street. It is only four years since he turned from the head of a successful machinery business that his father had assisted in founding, and in the capacity of vice president and assistant to the president, entered the largest banking institution in the western hemisphere.

While his parents were wealthy, he is nevertheless a self-made man. He took advantage of the opportunity offered by his father's foundry to start in as a puddler, after he was graduated from Princeton university in 1907, and to go to the top of that business. By sheer personal ability he has placed himself at the head of Wall street's largest bank.

The Hooven-Owens-Rentschler company was turning out at that time the largest and heaviest castings being made. From the puddling mill Rentschler went into the engineering department and began to deal with the complex and intricate problems that eventually carried him to the top of the business.

Worked With Ford

One of his first problems was in connection with the rapidly expanding business of Henry Ford. The great plant at Highland park, in Detroit, was being projected by Mr. Ford, and larger machinery was needed than had ever been made before.

Rentschler went to Detroit, and for month after month worked with Mr. Ford, and eventually saw the new plant go into operation.

He came in contact with the great power plants that were being projected in different parts of the country, and for several years supervised the molding of the heavy machinery that was needed for the generating units.

When the United States entered the world war, the Rentschler company was building marine engines, and the United States shipping board called upon it for assistance. Rentschler went to Washington as "contact man" for his father's concern, and in this capacity was advisor to the shipping board in many of the immense problems with which it wrestled.

Back to Foundry

After the war he went back to the foundry, and was soon assisting Henry Ford in planning the machinery for a new glass plant for his automobile works.

He turned his attention also to the building of sugar machinery. He was in Cuba when the great depression of 1921 swept over the sugar industry. The National City bank had an immense volume of sugar acceptances on its hands, and it was largely through the advice of Rentschler, with whom it was brought into contact, that this item was successfully liquidated.

Rentschler traveled to other parts of the world—Europe, South America and the Orient—in the interest of his father's business, but the National City bank kept in touch with him. So frequently did the bank call upon him that one day Charles E. Mitchell, who had become president, remarked:

"This man is working for us more than he is working for himself. Ask him if he will come here and take a position in the bank and deal with these matters for us."

Carpenter entered the Matuscki home, shot the two women and then turned the revolver on himself. Mrs. Carpenter died instantly. Mrs. Matuscki was wounded seriously. VATICAN MAY HOLD COUNCIL

American Prelates May Be Elevated

ROME, April 8. (INS)—A papal consistory may be held at the vatican at the end of next month when several American prelates may be elevated to the cardinalate, according to information from vatican circles today.

It had previously been reported that Pope Pius XI would restore Italian predominance in the sacred college through the creation of a number of Italian cardinals to take the places of those who have died this year. Now, however, it is reported that the pontiff will allow the present ratio to remain with the Italians in the minority.

Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore is mentioned as one possible recipient of the red hat. According to reports three Americans may get this high honor as well as two Englishmen.

Romans and foreign visitors were thrilled on Sunday when the Alpini, Italy's crack mountain troops, met here in convention. The delegates, singing war songs, marched to the basilica of St. Peters, there they attended a mass. The pope appeared at a window of his private apartment in the vatican and blessed the soldiers. The pontiff was obviously impressed by the martial display. He waved his hat to the troops.

The warriors came to a halt before the papal apartment with their eyes fixed upon a balcony window where the pontiff was expected to appear.

The pope made his appearance in the impressive papal robes and the pontifical hat of red and gold. For 10 minutes the pontiff stood watching the soldiers. Thrice he raised his hand in blessing and then, removing his hat, waved it to the crowd while he smiled.

A roar of cheering broke from the troops.

Approximately 25,000 veterans were in Rome. They made an imposing appearance as they marched through the streets. They cheered loudly when members of the royal family appeared at the balcony of the quirinal and this enthusiasm was repeated when Premier Mussolini appeared at the coliseum.

The alpini are the most picturesque troops in the Italian army. They wear a distinctive uniform with plumed hats and heavy hob nailed boots.

DROVE POISON OUT OF SYSTEM

Constipation Troubled Alabama Lady Until She Had Taken Black-Draught

EAST FLORENCE, Ala.—"For two years, I suffered with pains in my back and head," writes Mrs. J. E. Sloan, 126 Royal avenue, this city.

"I felt dull all the time, and was not able to do anything.

"I was constipated most of the time. My complexion was bad and I had no appetite.

"An old lady advised my father to give me Black-Draught. As quick as she told him, he got it for me. I took Black-Draught three times a day for three weeks, and I began to feel like a different person. I developed a good appetite; the poison left my system, and I felt fine.

"I thought my trouble came from constipation, and as soon as the cause was removed, I got all right.

"Since that time, I have tried to keep a box of Black-Draught in the house, as I find it corrects biliousness and relieves sick headache. It is our family medicine."

Constipation dams up poisons in the bowels, causing their bad effects to be felt in other parts of the body. At the first sign of constipation, take

LUCKIEST DAY OF LIFE SAYS FARMER

"I came eight miles to get Sargon and it was the luckiest day of my life, for now I feel great. As soon as I began taking Sargon I knew it was entirely different from everything else. I told some friends of mine that if Sargon did not do what I said it would, that I would give them their money back. That's how I feel about it.

"For five years I have suffered with kidney trouble so bad that I would have to get up seven or eight times every night. I felt all tired out in the mornings. I was awfully nervous and had headaches, backaches and rheumatic pains in my arms and legs, and all my muscles felt sore and stiff. I also suffered with indigestion and constipation and my whole system was full of poisons.

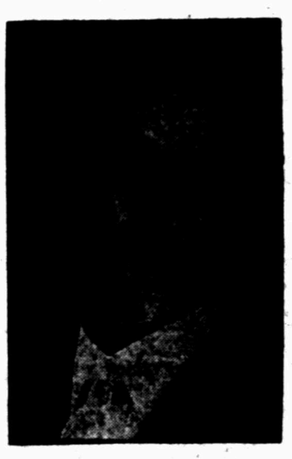

"I can now eat anything I want without having indigestion. My nerves are calm and steady; my kidneys are in perfect condition and I can sleep the whole night through; the pains are gone from my whole body; I am not constipated like I was and all the poisons have been cleaned out of my system. I feel years younger.

"I feel fine all over but the greatest treat to me is to sleep all night. I am glad to recommend Sargon and I know a dozen different people that I have gotten started taking it."

The above statement was made by T. G. Murphy, of Seminary Hill, eight miles from Fort Worth. He is a retired farmer, 73 years of age.

Sargon may be obtained in Wichita Falls from the Renfro Drug Co., Eighth and Scott streets, No. 1 main store, and Seventh and Indiana, No. 2; in Electra from Lough's Drug store; and in Burkburnett from Burkburnett Pharmacy.—Adv.

THE PLAIN TRUTH

AND SOMETHING EVERY MOTOR-CAR BUYER SHOULD UNDERSTAND.

The Cadillac-built La Salle is just as easy to purchase as many cars of far less value and far less prestige. And it is far more economical to operate.

THOUGH you know full well that Cadillac and the Cadillac-built La Salle are the finest and smartest cars on the streets of the world, here is a fact about La Salle which you may never have fully appreciated.

It is actually far easier to purchase a La Salle than the average motorist realizes, and far more economical to operate it than many imagine.

La Salle is priced as low as $2295, f. o. b. Detroit.

This means that, for very moderate monthly payments, you can enjoy the satisfaction, prestige and pride of possession of a Cadillac-built car.

It means also, a car built to last a lifetime. Not that you intend to drive it a lifetime—but, whether you drive it a year, or five years, or ten years, La Salle must yield uninterruptedly brilliant performance because of its famous Cadillac-built 90-degree, V-type, 8-cylinder power plant.

For the Cadillac Motor Car Company, with all the resources of General Motors at its command, and with all the world to choose from, has long since proved to its own satisfaction and the satisfaction of hundreds of thousands of owners that the 90-degree, V-type principle is the soundest principle to produce the highest type of eight-cylinder results.

Actual costs of operation covering hundreds of thousands of miles of usage throughout the country by individual owners and large corporations prove conclusively that from a service and operating standpoint La Salle is the most economical car for you to own.

Where can you find any other car—excepting Cadillac—so adequately designed to meet 1929 traffic conditions? There are no others equipped with the three ultra-modern Cadillac-La Salle safety features: the Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission, Duplex-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes, and Cadillac-La Salle Security-Plate Glass.

The most casual examination of La Salle interior decoration, appointment and upholstery reveals it to be so lavish as to create an atmosphere and environment unequaled elsewhere and in perfect keeping with the most luxurious home.

In braking, gear-shifting, steering and all the operations of driving, no other car in all the world—except Cadillac itself—can equal La Salle.

Call at any Cadillac-La Salle dealer showroom and determine for yourself just how easy it is to own a La Salle. The General Motors Deferred Payment Plan makes it possible for you to enjoy your La Salle at once and pay for the car out of income. Cadillac-La Salle dealers will gladly accept your present car at its full market value. It is probable that this value will be sufficient to take care of the down payment and reduce the monthly payments. 773

FAMILY ties went out of style When production records came into fashion.

Smart concerns aren't wearing 'em nowadays.

The Rothschilds are a notable exception—and they held together mainly because they worked apart.

Mayer the First knew better than to keep his sons and eggs in one basket, and you'll observe they're still scattered from London to Vienna, but not quite exercising the financial authority of a previous century.

Consanguinity and dividends don't mix. The bonds of affection and duty aren't inviting capital—they've defaulted too often.

Wherever there is a partnership of relatives, it's sailing through stormy seas and scenes. The "brother" sign usually indicates that strength has a weak partner and shrewdness is handicapped by some dead weight.

Indiscipline, feminine interference, petty jealousy and bitter personalities always upset the apple cart and throw monkey-wrenches into the works. Mrs. Cain regularly assures her husband that Abel does too little and draws too much. And vice versa.

Carnegie, be it noted, didn't send over for "Cousin Cora's son."

John D. figured that he and William were about all the Rockefellers Standard Oil could originally stand.

Marshall Field found his associates climbing up the balance sheet. So did Harriman.

You can't keep it all in the family and keep at the top.

NAPOLEON lost Waterloo years before, through delegating oversized jobs to Jerome and Joseph.

He shared his fortunes with the lesser Bonapartes, but they couldn't divide his genius. So when the great emergency rose, they fell short.

Even he occasionally owed sceptres where he paid in marshal's batons.

Loyalty and efficiency deserve first day in court and on throne. Read French history and heed the bitter penalty of mis-distributed crowns.

Lock the family entrance and abolish the inside track.

Don't fill all your drawingrooms with half fares. Then you'll have some space left to reward efficiency as it outgrows day coaches.

Ambition won't be kept out of good berths—they're too plentiful elsewhere.

Ability doesn't waste much time shaking empty plum trees.

After young Cyrus Simmons graduated and reported at the plant, the old man met him at the office door:

"This isn't your department. And it's a long journey from a spoke shave to a swivel chair.

"You'll have to go the whole distance and punch your way up from the time clock.

"Oh, boy, talk about luck! Jest in time to git a drink," said Miss Mame Moon, when she called on Mrs. Em Pash, who'd jest varnished some porch furniture. Never count on anything turnin' up but trouble.

Well, if worst comes to worst, and your neighbor won't keep his chickens at home, and his dog tears up your yard, and he glares at you every time he passes, you can always get a job as a dry agent and shoot him down.

A Story of Our Times

IN a rundown suburban allotment on the outskirts of a big mid-western manufacturing city there stands a vacant house, windowless and forlorn, uninhabited for years.

One day recently neighbors saw the form of a man moving about inside the old house. They called the police, who went to the place and found, unconscious on the floor, a very old man, dressed in clothes that were no more than rags, wasted almost to a shadow. On the wall beside him was pinned a note. It read:

"Loren Peters starved to death in this old house. Had a bottle of chloroform and razor. Didn't know which to use. It takes so long to starve to death. It is getting dark. I can't write any more. —LOREN PETERS."

But the old chap hadn't starved to death—not quite. They took him to a police station, poured some hot coffee down his throat, and put him to bed. After a while he woke up. They let him rest for a few days, and then sent him to a place called the Wayfarers' Lodge—a frame building where homeless men can get soup and a bed for sawing a little wood.

Loren Peters, of course, was too feeble to saw any wood. So they gave him a bunk and a daily supply of food anyhow, and let him sit around the place all day, basking in the sunshine when the weather was pleasant, and huddling indoors when it was stormy. And there he is now, silent and uncomplaining, drowsing away the spring days, a tired old man at the absolute end of his tether, waiting for death that almost caught up with him in the abandoned house.

His story was quickly told. He had no home. He had wandered into town on a vague hunt for some form of subsistence. Failing to find it, he had crawled into the old house to die. Death had not come fast enough. For eight days the old man had cowered on the bare floor, cold, miserable and hungry. He did not go out of the house in that time.

There are all kinds of interesting stories in our daily papers. Some of them are unimportant, easily forgotten; and some of them are sharp and vivid, and stay in the mind long after the paper has been thrown away. At times there are beautiful stories that reveal the devotion and loyalty and kindness of the human race; and at times there are stories like this story of old Loren Peters.

What does a story like this mean, anyway? How does it come that things like that can happen in this prosperous, civilized America of 1929? And what, if anything, are we going to do about it?

There isn't, really, much that we can do right away. That homeless old wanderer was more than an individual. He was a symbol; a symbol of all the loose ends there are in our current society. He belongs in the picture of today, along with the towering buildings and bright shop windows and sleek residential districts that make us so proud.

The trouble, you see, is that we still believe, with Cain, that we are not our brothers' keepers. Until we learn that that belief is eternally false, there will continue to be stories like this one of Loren Peters.

Outdoing Jules Verne

ONE BY ONE the improbable romances that delighted an earlier generation are being turned by modern science into something very like the truth.

When Jules Verne wrote his "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," he proved himself one of the most daringly imaginative writers who ever lived. He depicted a gigantic submarine, fitted out with all the splendor of a private yacht, in which people could cruise about the world, descend to the bottom of the sea, explore the secrets of the great deep and, in general, live like wizards.

No submarine of that kind has yet been built, although the giant cruising submarines launched since the war by the British and American navies do not fall far short of Verne's mark. But Sir Hubert Wilkins, famous polar flier, is now planning to duplicate the most far-fetched and improbable part of the whole tale.

He plans to go to the north pole by submarine.

If you have read Verne's book you will recall that the most exciting part of it dealt with the inventor's trip to the south pole. Verne assumed that there was water instead of land at the south pole—water, covered with limitless ice floes. He had his submarine dive under these floes and gain the pole, where no other ship could have come within hundreds of miles of it; and his account of the submarine's adventures on its way north, when it got imprisoned beneath an iceberg and nearly became a tomb for its crew, is one of the most thrilling things in fiction.

Thrilling—and improbable. Even a generation that knows what submarines did in the world war is inclined to balk at that part of the book.

Yet that is precisely what Wilkins proposes to do.

Using a specially equipped submarine, Wilkins plans to dive under the great arctic ice floes and go to the north pole just as Verne had his boat go to the south pole. He is making allowances for the predicament of Verne's crew, too; his submarine will have a special lock, so that if it is caught under the ice a diver can go out and plant explosives that will open the ice and allow the ship to come to the surface. It will also carry chemicals that can be used to melt the ice.

The proposal looks like as risky a jaunt as a man could well imagine. Yet Wilkins, while admitting there will be an element of danger, thinks that the trip, on the whole, will be rather less risky than trips across the polar ocean by plane. His submarine is now being prepared, and he hopes to get started in July.

A very few years ago Verne's book was considered just about the most wildly improbable tale in all literature. Now its essential elements are being fulfilled in a way that probably would have surprised Verne himself as much as any of his readers. The plain facts of today eclipse the imaginative wonders of a generation ago.

Tourists and Gods

THE GODS of ancient Greece died a long time ago. Even so, however, they must be turning over uneasily in their graves today. For the Greek government is planning on turning the famous Mount Olympus into a national park, modeled on those in the United States and Canada.

Mount Olympus was supposed by the ancient Greeks to be the actual home of the gods. Now, however, it is to become a haunt of tourists. Hot dog stands, no doubt, will encircle its base, and on new motor roads flivvers can spin to the cloud-kissed peaks where Venus, Zeus and Apollo once were devoutly believed to have their celestial palaces!

The idea is startling—and, somehow, extremely attractive.

The Once Over
By H. I. PHILLIPS

("George McManus, held under a murder indictment in the Arnold Rothstein case, was cheered as he was given his liberty. 'Thank you,' he said, doffing his gray hat and smiling. He then stepped into a closed car and was whisked away under an escort of motorcycle police."—News item in New York papers.)

PHILLIPS

"Don't take it to heart so," said the Tombs warden as he patted a sobbing district attorney on the back.

"I can't help it," said the district attorney in a choked voice. "He'll be awfully hard to replace."

"I know," said the warden. "He had been here a long time and we had become quite used to him."

"But why should it be McManus the judge let go?" demanded the district attorney, drying an eye. "There were so many others he might have taken away from me instead."

"It's hard to understand," admitted the warden.

"He was one of the best suspects we ever had," sobbed the district attorney.

"Certainly the best within my experience," agreed the warden. "I seen a lot of suspects but McManus had no equal."

"Most suspects are suspected only by a few, but we all suspected McManus," went on the district attorney. "Even the police suspected him . . . and you know how they dislike to suspect anybody."

"Why, even Grover Whalen suspected him a little, although it is hard to get Grover to suspect anybody except in a traffic violation. That's where we made our big mistake in McManus' case; we should have had him indicted for walking across Broadway against a red light."

"What was he charged with anyway?" asked the district attorney. "Trying to bribe Borough President Harvey, wasn't he?"

"No," corrected the warden. "That was the two other fellows. McManus was charged with killing Rothstein."

"Who?"

"Rothstein."

"What Rothstein was that?"

"I think his first name was Gus. He was poisoned in a taxicab, or something like that, by some woman. I forgot her name."

"Nan Patterson?" asked the district attorney.

"That's the one."

"I remember now," said the district attorney. "It was ever so long ago."

Here both broke down and cried softly, as they looked at the empty cell vacated by Mr. McManus.

"Well, we'll have to get used to it," sighed the district attorney. "Listen, did they treat him right when they released him? Did he get a good sendoff?"

"Oh, yes, yes indeed. Motorcycle escort, cheering crowds and everything. I don't know when a suspect in a murder case has been treated better."

"Was there a reception on the steps of city hall?"

"No, I don't think so."

"No band?"

"Not that I heard of."

"No scroll or keys to the city?"

"Nope."

"Well, it just goes to show," concluded the district attorney, burying his head in his arms.

The Day Book of a New Yorker
Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, April 8.—The fad in literary circles these days is Joan Lowell, a young lass who wrote "The Cradle of the Deep," now a best seller and a sensation. She is being feted by the literati and by those of the higher social strata who go in for snaring literary lions and lionesses.

Literary hero-worship seems to have hit a dizzy stride in New York. It amounts to a cult. There are more than books-of-the-month clubs now. There are literary-lions-of-the-month groups which feel they have lost social caste if they do not honor some person who stands foremost in the literary reviews and literary advertisements of the moment.

The Shuberts, I think, will agree that Friday is a dark day. Take last week for instance. There was a fire in the basement of the Shubert theater which destroyed all the chorus wardrobe. During the appearance of "Pleasure Bound," a Shubert production in another theater, a group of college boys shooed the star off the stage and in another Shubert theater, Ethel Barrymore failed to show up for the performance of the "Kingdom of God."

Paul Whiteman a year ago weighed 315 pounds, now he weighs 237 pounds, as the result of a diet, and he still is dieting . . . Believe it or not, the new Chanin building has more stories than the Woolworth building but is not as high—Mayor Walker seldom eats when he is a guest at a public banquet; he has adopted former Vice President Dawes' habit of eating before the banquet, and when he appears in the banquet he merely sips tea. He also breaks bread, but never eats it, pretending to the crowd that he is enjoying the dinner . . . One-third of the principal "after dinner speakers" in New York are paid for their appearances and their talks . . . There are more people in downtown Manhattan during the daytime than the actual population of Manhattan itself . . . This is due to the fact that people from uptown and from Long Island and New Jersey swarm into the downtown offices . . . James P. Winne, Republican national committeeman from Hawaii came to town and he announced that the way to pronounce the place is Ha-wa-ee.

A visitor among us recently was Mrs. Thomas E. Norton, well known Pittsburgh society woman. It is seldom that she has been in New York but she attests to the ease with which it is possible to get around hereabouts.

"I had an idea," she said, "that I could never get around New York without losing myself. Instead, I find New York laid out very conveniently for the stranger and I have managed to go most everywhere without the slightest trouble. Pittsburgh would be much harder for the New Yorker to negotiate."

And that I do not doubt. New York's numbered streets and its avenues are easy to master. But such cities as Pittsburgh, Boston, Detroit and Cleveland baffle me. Chicago's Loop is quite easy, once one learns the sequence of the presidents of the United States.

◆ ◆ ◆

This spring and summer, I understand, there will be many excursion boats to take people about Manhattan. This is an arrangement that will appeal not only to the visitor but to the native of New York as well.

For few of us have really seen the tight little isle from the water. In most islands natives take to boats frequently. In New York the idea is little known or appreciated. And yet, what can be more exciting than taking a boat around the isle; say up the Hudson, through the Harlem river, down the East river and back to the Battery?

As I understand it, some companies are even arranging for summer commuting boats—for those who work downtown and live way uptown.

POLICE BRIBE CASES TO JURY

Springfield, Mo., Cops Are Accused

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 8. (INS)—Following 45 convictions here of resort keepers and business place owners on liquor charges in the federal court, investigation of widespread bribery and protection by city and police officials are to be sifted by a federal grand jury at Kansas City.

The grand jury at Kansas City is to be convened April 22. Evidence gathered by the federal operators who have been here more than a month reveal shocking conditions as pointing to payments of police officers and city officials which had made possible a flourishing bootleg industry, federal operators said.

The June term of the federal court here closed with 45 convictions of liquor law offenders, 14 of whom were sentenced to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., with 22 sentenced to the Greene county jail here and nine women offenders sent to federal reformatories.

Wheeler Admits Marines Helped Nicaragua

NEW YORK, April 8. (INS)—Although reiterating his objection to the presence of American marines in Nicaragua, United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, returning from Nicaragua today on the Panama liner Ancon, admitted that the intervention of the United States in the Central America country d'affairs had brought it prosperity.

"Nicaragua is the most God-forsaken place I have ever visited and as far as I'm concerned the life of a single American marine is worth the whole of the country," Senator Wheeler said.

Senator Wheeler added that he is opposed to the building of the Nicaraguan canal.

Health And Diet Advice

Appendicitis

An attack of acute appendicitis is usually ushered in by colicky pains in the right side at at lowest part of the abdomen, accompanied by a general feeling of discomfort. The pain quickly becomes excruciatingly severe. The abdomen is usually distented with gas, and the muscles over the intestines tensed. The patient usually raises the right knee in order to ease the pressure over the area of the appendix. At first there is a chill, followed by a rapid rise in temperature, the tongue is always coated, and the breath offensive. Nausea is often present, and even a small amount of water may be vomited. Any kind of solid food will start stabbing pains by stimulating the intestinal movements.

These symptoms are present in a true inflammation of the appendix, but it is quite common to make a quick diagnosis of appendicitis whenever any severe abdominal pain is present, especially if on the right side. Any distention of the intestines with gases and inflammation may simulate appendicitis, and gall stones and kidney stone colic are frequently mistaken for this condition.

The public has been frightened into believing that an immediate operation is necessary for appendicitis, and tales are often told about how a delay will result in a burst appendix. The papers, however, do not usually carry much publicity about the patients who do not get well after an operation for appendicitis, but it is nevertheless true that many patients die after these operations, especially if the pus sac has broken before the operation. Many of these cases would have been saved if no operation at all had been performed.

The surgeon who has most success in operating for appendicitis is one who carefully selects his patients and operates when only inflammation exists, or before the appendix is ruptured. I have seen hundreds of cases of appendicitis completely cured without operation, and here is the method which was used.

The first thing to do is to stop all food immediately—even the drinking of water if the attack is so violent as to produce nausea. Water should be taken if the nausea is not enough to produce vomiting. During acute attacks enemas should be taken about every two hours. Use only a quart of water with no medicinal preparation in it. Enemas should be taken while lying on the back or in the knee-chest position. You do not need to be afraid of taking too many of these enemas, as there is absolutely no danger if taken properly. You have probably heard some physicians advise against enemas. This is their mistake, and you should not be influenced by it. Physicians who expect to operate also put ice packs on the abdomen, which has a tendency to refrigerate the pus sack if any exists. The best treatment is to do exactly opposite and use hot applications over the entire abdomen. This will encourage a better circulation of blood and assist in drying the lymphatics in the infected section. Remember, do not put the hot applications only over the appendix, but use them over the entire abdomen.

Doctors should avoid deep probing over the inflamed appendix. I am sure that in many cases the appendix has been burst by deep pressure while endeavoring to make a diagnosis. I have known the fasting, enemas, and hot packs to cure hundreds of cases where the patient has been advised that an operation was imperative and must be performed within a few hours.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Strictures

Question—J. K. M. writes: "Please tell me what causes strictures of the esophagus and also what causes stricture of the intestines and rectum.

Answer—Stricture of the ophagus is usually called by a nervous disorder or perhaps by tumors of toxic irritation. Only an examination could determine the exact cause. Stricture of the intestines is usually caused by adhesions, ulcers or kinks.

Salisbury Steak

Question—Mrs. A. L. B. writes: "I notice that a number of your menus call for Salisbury steak. Just what is the common name for this and how is it prepared?"

Answer—Any butcher should be able to prepare Salisbury steak for you. Select a good piece of round steak. Have removed all of the fat and gristle and grind the red, lean part. This appears somewhat similar to hamburger steak, but is more palatable and more easily digested and has an entirely different flavor. There is usually about a quarter of a pound of waste to each half pound of lean meat so that it is advisable to purchase ¾ of a pound of meat for each person to be served. To cook the meat it should be pressed into a flat ungreased pan similar to a cake tin, to a depth of about one inch and placed in a hot oven after which the fire should be turned down and the meat cooked for about five minutes longer.

Sulphur Dioxide Gas

Question—A. B. C. asks: "Can sulphur dioxide gas have any serious effects on the lungs?"

Answer—Sulphur dioxide gas is irritating to the lungs and sometimes predisposes one to tuberculosis.

MORAN AND MACK

MORAN: Big Boy, why is yo' got yo' medals on yo' back?

MACK: So the enemy kin see 'em.

MORAN: That's no place to wear 'em.

MACK: That's where I earned 'em.

MORAN: Th' enemy will think yo' is a pacifist.

MACK: What's thatta?

MORAN: A man what don't want to fight.

MACK: I'm not only that kind of a man but I knows an easier way of spellin' it.

MORAN: Yo' shouldn't wear yo' medals on yo' back.

MACK: Lissen, Egghead, the enemy runs after me—

MORAN: I follow yo'.

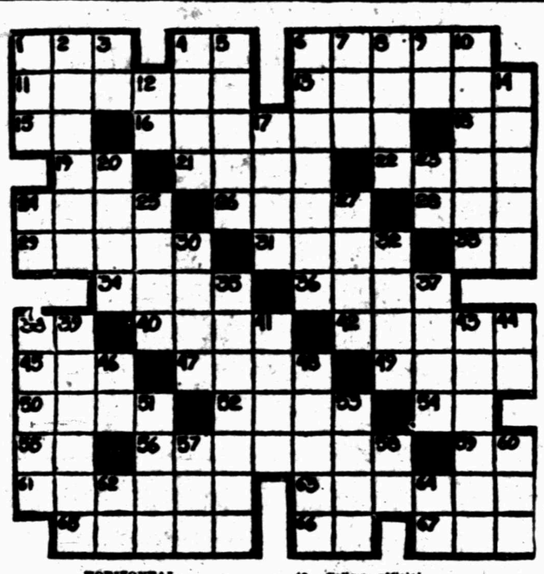

MACK: They sees th' medals on my back—

MORAN: I'm ahead of yo'.

MACK: Then they knows they is chasin a brave man.

Big Boy has the same idea about personal bravery that a hen has about channel swimming. The reason he is afraid of pulling in his head is that he is in the war up to his neck.

SPUDDERS SHOW OFFENSIVE POWER BUT DOUBTFUL DEFENSE

23 ATHLETES GO TO ABILENE

Fort Worth Cats Here Saturday and Sunday

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

The club house at Athletic park is minus 23 ball players today. That number of athletes has been sent by Skipper Galloway to Abilene for Carl Williams' Aces of the West Texas league. They are:

Pitchers—Eull Moore, S. R. Ross, Buster Jackson, Charley Martin, W. F. Bell and Russell Shamburg.

Catchers—Seldon Fant, Art Bradbury, C. C. Lawrence and Nason Baxter.

Infielders—M. M. Cox, Win Beck, Bear Allday, Johnny Noreck, Ray Andrews, Bill Bean, Speck Roberts, Bill Andrea.

Outfielders—J. L. Brown, George Nebel, Medardi Chapi, Wes Thompson and Jimmy Parker.

Chi Scribes Like Spuds

It is interesting and encouraging to note that the Spudders are viewed as a good ball club by some of the most astute critics of the game. I am referring to veteran baseball writers of Chicago who were here with the White Sox. They were impressed with the potential class shown by the Wichita Falls club as pennant contenders.

The viewpoint of the Chicago scribes in spring games, which of course is held by all those who know their baseball, is based not on what club wins or loses and the score—but how the players look in regard for the future.

Larry Woltz, who for 15 years has informed Chicago, through the columns of The Herald-Examiner, about the White Sox, particularly liked the looks of the Spudders, even while they were losing.

"You always have good hitting clubs here," said Larry. "Fellows like Fitzgerald and Turgeon make any ball club good and there are others who look fine to me. Those chaps, Payne and Steengrafe, are mighty good pitchers, too."

Pitching Doubtful

Woltz' favorable comment may hearten those fans who are viewing the coming championship race with doubt. True, the Spudders as now constituted, are not set for the race. Pitching is doubtful. Some of the new men may come through—or they may be flops. In that event, there must be reinforcements.

Clements has not shown much in the hitting line, though in justice to him it is pointed out that he has played in only a few games. And for that matter, exhibition games this spring have been too infrequent, what with raining out of the Giant contests, to get a good line on other of the newcomers.

Defensive play, particularly by the left side of the infield, has been erratic and indeed, such as to demand improvement. But shifting of shortstops and again, the matter of too few games, may have had a deal to do with the loose infielding.

Bennett Looks Fine

Red Bennett has shown pleasingly. His hitting has been the hardest of the Spudders, excepting Fitzgerald, and his outfielding satisfactory.

Galloway's galopers resumed routine work yesterday, with no exhibition scrimmages carded until Saturday and Sunday, when Atz' Cats are here.

Junior Business Girls Hold Meet

Twenty girls attended the meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Junior Business Girls Monday evening held in the Y. W. C. A. parlors.

Lorene Hall and Miriam Tow gave a specialty number in the form of a song and dance, "When I Went to School With You." Mrs. W. O. Alexander of Burkburnett gave two piano numbers, "The Doll Dance" and "Carolina Moon." The Junior Business Girls trio, composed of Peggy Teeters, Ruby Cardwell and Helen Marrow, accompanied at the piano by Katherine Miller, entertained with a group of popular selections.

At a business meeting preceding the program, the club decided to give a dance Thursday, April 18, at Ye Old French inn. Plans for a mother and daughter banquet to be given May 6 honoring mothers of the girls was discussed.

Dorothy Blank and Virginia Miller were introduced as new members of the club. Those who attended the meeting were Maurine Ulmer, Fay McBride, Helen Morrow, Joye Baldwin, Ruby Cardwell, Jean Strickland, Thelma Wisdom, Frances McHam, Pauline Lane, Flora Lane, Flossie Mitchell, Ruby Pearl Nix, Peggy Teeters, Ruth Lammers, Jewell Beaty, Hazel Alliday, Birmah Arnold, Fay Dunnaway, Dorothy Blank, Beulah Gilbreath, Erma Schnelle and Ida Catherine Walker.

Chase Bank Acquires American Express Co.

NEW YORK, April 8. (AP)—The American Express company, left primarily as a foreign banking organization by recent deals between the express companies, is to be acquired by the Chase National bank, forming one of the largest and most far-flung banking organizations in the world, under a plan of merger announced by directors today.

The Chase National bank and the Chase Securities corporation propose to increase their capital stock from 610,000 shares to 800,000 each and reduce the par value from $100 a share to $20 by splitting up the shares five-for-one, resulting in a capitalization of 4,000,000 shares each for the bank and the corporation.

AMERICAN EXPRESS OFFICIAL HERE

W. A. Schaperkotter, assistant manager of the American Express company, with headquarters in St. Louis, was in Wichita Falls Monday night, but stated that he had learned nothing of the details of the merger of banking and express organizations reported in Associated Press dispatches from New York.

COLLEGE NINES PLAY

AUSTIN, April 8. (AP)—Twelve members of the St. Edward's university baseball team will leave tomorrow for Brownwood where they will meet Daniel Baker college in a two-game series beginning Wednesday.

Faces Old Foe

Fred Whittington from Oklahoma meets an old enemy of the ring tomorrow night when he boxes Pug Humphries, also from the Sooner state, in the 10-round windup of Alex Ross' weekly boxing show at the Palace theater. Whittington and Humphries are highly popular in Wichita Falls.

They met twice previously and fought two slashing battles on about even terms.

The phenomena that is Babe Ruth continues to puzzle the philosophers and human nature experts, who are at a loss to explain the amazing hold the man has on public imagination. Probably no entertainer, and few men in any walk of life, have occupied a place in the fancy of the people as that held by the Sultan of Swat. And he has held that place for a decade, his popularity increasing.

Only Lindbergh has captured the affection and adulation of the American public in a manner equal and possibly superior to that of Ruth. Roosevelt, the typical American portrayer of the strenuous life; Dempsey, the caveman killer of the ring and genial comrade, out of business hours, were great "drawing cards." But they played to packed houses for only limited engagements.

Ruth's is an amazing career of record-smashing achievements, not only as a star of baseball, but as a box-office attraction.

Twice this spring, crowds have broken up ball games in which the Bambino has played, in their eagerness to get a close-up of him and to talk with their idol. Over at Waco, a city of about 50,000 population, more than 12,000 fans paid to see a practice ball game—with Ruth of course the center of interest.

The Chicago White Sox park, enlarged in recent years, has a seating capacity of 54,000. Only once has that capacity been taxed to the limit. And that was two years ago, and with the White Sox out of the pennant race.

It was the New York Yankees who were playing in the South Side park—but it was the mighty busting Bambino who was the magnet of the fans.

◆ ◆ ◆

One seeking a solution to the popularity of Ruth might arrive at several conclusions. He packs the punch, and it is the wallop, the smash, that Mr. John Fan likes in his sport. That is the reason that Dempsey, the knockerout, was the greatest drawing card of fistiana. And Ruth is more than a home run hitter and great batsman—he is a stellar all-around ball player, a wonderful fielder with an excellent arm and an amazingly fine base runner for his great bulk and slender ankles.

But more than his mechanical play, in its relation to attracting and holding public interest, is Ruth's personality. He is human. He has erred in his conduct, flagrantly. But it always was as a small, mischievous boy, and not the calculating, deliberate flaunting of the rules of right conduct, when he stepped out. Babe Ruth drank and bet on the races with a zest and with an impulse, but never with the intention of breaking rules of baseball to prove he was immune to those rules.

He is friendly toward the fans and a great fellow with children. There is a bond between the big fellow, really only a grownup boy himself, and the kids, and they sense that feeling. They idolize Babe Ruth.

◆ ◆ ◆

Babe Ruth is nearing the end of his baseball days. Indeed, those slender legs recently have indicated they are weary of supporting the burden of 200 pounds imposed on them. They may quit on him at any time. And it will be a sad day for baseball when Babe Ruth leaves, forever, the scene of its major league play, which doubtless also will mark his retirement from the game. Thanks to a change in his mode of living and the close eye kept on him by his employer, Colonel Ruppert, Babe Ruth now is a wealthy man, with a trust fund that makes him independent for life.

Ruth loves baseball. For that reason he might play in the minors when his day as a big leaguer is ended. But I doubt it. One could as well imagine Bernhardt playing at the opera house at Podunk, as well as Babe Ruth playing in the minor leagues.

WHITE SOX COP DALLAS FINALE

Chicago Club Heads North After 10th-Inning Win

DALLAS, Texas, April 8. (UP)—Gathering four hits off the deliveries of Young Vic Frasier in the tenth inning Monday afternoon, the Chicago White Sox celebrated the breaking of their spring training here with a 9 to 5 victory over the Dallas Steers. The game was a thriller and the lead switched too and fro.

Carl Reynolds led the attack of the Windy City nine with five blows in six trips to the plate. One of the wallops went for the circuit. Randy Moore, who was obtained from the White Sox Monday morning made his debut in the Steer lineup in the centerfield post.

Manager Lena Blackburne hurried his team from the field to leave on the 5:40 p. m. train to Memphis, Tenn., where the White Sox will open a series with the Southern league team before returning north for the regular season. They were caught in a sudden rain storm as they boarded the train. Score:

Tight Big League Chases Forecast

Yanks to Have Contention; Giants, Cubs Favorites

By ALAN J. GOULD

NEW YORK, April 8. (AP)—The big league baseball caravans, trekking northward and eastward while the Bunion derby plods toward the wide open spaces, now can be subjected to closer scrutiny.

The grand openings are only a week off. Most of the lineups are fixed while twirling arms are being groomed by mayors, governors or other officials who will figure in the starting ceremonies.

The spring training scramble may be briefly summarized, in its general effect on pennant prospects, about as follows:

The American league race appears likely to be closer, with more real contenders for the Yankees to face, even though no major development has shaken the belief of the big majority of experts that the world's champions will repeat.

The National league race looks even closer but developments have emphasized in bold relief the unusual strength of both the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants, with critics about evenly divided as to which has the better chance to win.

Phil Finlay Leads North-South Golf

HELEN TO BOW BEFORE QUEEN

Miss Wills to Be Presented At British Court

By FRANK GETTY

NEW YORK, April 8. (UP)—When Helen Wills first met her majesty the Queen of England, the demure California Miss wore her hair in long pig-tails down her back and her skirts up around her chubby thighs, for "our Helen" was then the tennis prodigy of the new world, making her first appearance at Wimbledon.

Next month at Buckingham palace, Miss Wills, still a tennis prodigy, will again curtsey before her majesty the queen, but this time her hair will be "up," supporting three white plumes and a white veil, while her skirts will be down to her slippers and will end in a long weeping train.

Mincing steps, an elaborate curtsey and an exit walking backwards will replace the bold strides with which Miss Wills darted over the center court at Wimbledon when Queen Mary first watched her from the royal box. Long elbow length gloves will cover the brown arms of the national champion, and a fan or a bouquet of flowers must be carried, according to court ritual, instead of a tennis racquet.

Thrill of Lifetime

Miss Wills probably won't be as comfortable as she was on the courts several summers ago, but she will find compensation in the "thrill that comes once in a lifetime" to a young girl. She will be seen by everyone who "counts," and she will see for herself the gorgeous ceremony of a court presentation, if she gets there early in a limousine, drawn up in a long, slow moving line, along the hall and bird cage walk leading to Buckingham palace.

Other girls, with the freedom of the proletariat, will come up boldly and press their noses against the window glass of the car. For such is the preliminary ritual of a court presentation. The long line of cars hunches forward slowly towards the palace gates. Each automobile is equipped with a chauffeur and footman.

Arriving at the palace, it will be a case of "first come, first served." After the diplomatic presentations, the favored girls who are permitted to curtsey to their majestis (it is not certain that King George will be sufficiently recovered to take part this spring) go forward as their names are called, curtsey and back away, holding up their trains to avoid an undignified exit.

Economical Jundeon

After a quick sandwich and a glass of champagne—one to a person, by order of the queen—the first to be presented take up the choice seats in the throne room and view the ceremony as their sisters are presented.

It is all very elaborate and formal and breath-taking for a girl.

That Miss Wills was to be so honored this year first was made known through United States dispatches from Amsterdam, where the United Press correspondent was tipped off by the local newspaper, Die Telegraaf.

Officials of the United States Lawn Tennis association were quoted as cancelling Miss Wills' engagements to play tennis in Holland on May 11 and 12, because of the engagement at the palace.

Those same officials in New York denied having advised the Dutch to that effect, but admitted that Miss Wills was to be presented her playing dates in Holland.

Apparently, in the case of this interesting and important piece of news to the feminine world, nobody beat the Dutch.

Miss Wills will sail for England the latter part of this month.

U. S. GOLFERS AFTER TITLES

British, French and German Crowns Sought

NEW YORK, April 8. (AP)—From a private junket against England's picked pros and a fling at the British open championship, the forthcoming expedition of the American Ryder cup team expanded itself today into a concerted campaign for the principal golfing laurels of three European countries.

Not only the British open but the German open and French professional tournaments as well are to be objectives of the team of ten stars sailing Wednesday night and going into action April 26 and 27 at Leeds in defense of the Ryder cup.

After that in rapid succession will follow the British open at Muirfield, May 6 to 11, the Yorkshire Evening News 1,000 Guinea tournament at Leeds between May 13 and 18; the French pro championship near Paris, May 19 to 24; the German open of 72 holes, May 25 and 26, and finally a match with a French team, probably at Biarritz, May 28 and 29.

HORNSBY NUB OF CUB HOPES

Rogers to Make or Break Bears, Critics Agree

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, April 8. (UP)—Any discussion of the Chicago Cubs eventually works itself around to the question: Will Rogers Hornsby help or hurt the Cubs?

Conceding that Hornsby has added considerable offensive strength to the Cubs, many critics believe that the "Rajah's tendency to criticize his teammates will prevent harmony.

Members of the St. Louis Cardinals, many of whom played under Hornsby in 1926, believe their strongest opposition will come from the New York Giants and are doubtful if Hornsby will strengthen the Cubs, according to a St. Louis baseball writer traveling with the Cardinals.

"It is the opinion of most of the Cardinal players that in adding Hornsby to their roster, the Cubs have weakened their pitching staff by letting Percy Jones, a jinx to the Cards go to the Braves," the St. Louis correspondent says. "The Cubs added a great hitter in Hornsby but lost a great fielder and dangerous hitter in Maguire.

His Past Against Him

"Likewise Hornsby's past speaks for itself. He had trouble with the Cardinals in 1926, snickering and bickering and almost leading a mutiny against the team's owner.

"With the Giants, his short-lived career has never been definitely explained except that he may have been too ambitious.

"With the Braves, Hornsby was abusive and lost patience with his young pitchers when he became manager.

"Whether Joe McCarthy is the two-fisted manager he's cracked up to be and can control Hornsby and several other temperamental players who may object to Rogers' riding when they pull a boner is the big question mark in the Cubs' chances."

Rogers Peaceful Now

Hornsby has started out peacefully enough with the Cubs, minding his own business and playing pennant-inspiring baseball. Always a "loner," Hornsby does not associate with his teammates off the diamond. It is reliably reported that he has signed a pledge to refrain from gambling and is not playing the races this season.

Joe McCarthy has had eminent success in his handling of Hack Wilson and Kiki Cuyler, who are by no manner of means docile athletes. The same tactics McCarthy used in keeping Wilson and Cuyler calm, however, may fail when applied to Hornsby, who can give plenty of orders but can't take them.

Temperament and everything else to the contrary, Hornsby's batting average of .387 can't be waved aside by a lot of theories based on past records. Until Hornsby actually reverts to the tactics he demonstrated with the Braves, Giants and Cards (1926), it has to be taken for granted that he will prove a valuable link in the Cubs' machine.

FANS IN MAJOR LEAGUE CITIES TO SEE CLUBS THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON TO GREET JOHNSON

Chicago Teams Alone Stay Away From Home Town

By FRANK GETTY

NEW YORK, April 8. (UP)—Baseball fans in most major league cities will have a chance to view their favorites in 1929 array this week.

In all but two cities in each league the new lineups for the coming season will be presented for the inspection of the fans who have heretofore been following the fortunes of their home town clubs in the sport pages.

The Athletics and the Phillies already have begun a city series, and a majority of the other major league clubs will follow suit with interleague exhibition games between now and the season's opening, April 16.

On Thursday, the fervent fans of the national capital will have a look at Walter Johnson in his new managerial role, piloting the Senators against the first team of the New York Giants. Washington fans have been stirred by glowing reports of the team's progress emanating from the training camp at Tampa this spring, and they are hopeful that with the return to form of "Goose" Goslin, the acquisition of "Buddy" Myer, the shift of "Ossie" Bluege to shortstop and some additional pitching strength, the Senators may be a real pennant contender this year.

New York Awaits Ruth

Yankee fans are eager for a look at Babe Ruth. They want to see for themselves why the Bambino isn't hitting as hard as formerly, and they also want to criticize the new infield combination and to cheer the return of Herb Pennock, veteran, popular southpaw, to the box. The world's champions will be seen in action against the Brooklyn Dodgers, starting Saturday.

Giant fans, hopeful that McGraw's club will head the Cubs and win the National league pennant, will have their eyes peeled for the new outfield lineup, as well as turned critically upon the play of Andy Reese and Melvin Ott at second base. There will be some demand for the return of Andy Cohen to the keystone sack, the young Jewish player having been temporarily assigned to the second team. The Giants play at home against the Senators next Saturday and Sunday.

Two cellar possibilities, the Boston clubs, meet at home on Saturday, and there is certain to be a great turnout of fans, for the hub is the most loyal of baseball towns despite the poor showing of its representatives in recent years.

Detroit to See Tigers

Detroit fans first see Bucky Harris and the re-organized Tigers Friday, when the Toronto Leafs of the International league come over the border for an exhibition game. There have been a number of important changes in the makeup of the Detroit club since Harris took charge, including the introduction of a couple of high priced rookies and a switch at second base which may require Bucky's presence in the lineup.

Cincinnati fans will see the Ohio clubs in action next Saturday when the Reds play host to the rehabilitated Indians.

Out in St. Louis, the Cards and the Browns, both hopeful of finishing at least 1, 2, 3 this season, and both regarded by some baseball experts as pennant possibilities, open a city series Saturday.

Only in Chicago do the baseball magnates frown upon pre-season exhibition games between their clubs. The rivalry between the Cubs and the White Sox and the excitement attending the spring training of the two Chicago major league outfits should make a city series highly profitable, but Wrigley and Comiskey are content to keep their clubs under cover until the regular season opens.

Porker Coach Forecasts Powerful Team This Fall

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., April 8. (AP)—Fred C. Thomsen, newly appointed coach of Arkansas university, predicted today the Razorbacks would have their strongest team in history in the Southwest conference football race next fall.

In addition to a full squad of regulars, Thomsen will have 26 promising candidates from the freshman squad.

AMERICAN RYDER CUP Team

Leo Diegel, Canadian and professional champion, is a Ryder cup veteran. He is expected to play close to the top when the matches are held in England April 26-27.

Leo-the-Dieg is one of America's most colorful golfers. His style is unorthodox and his mannerisms—which include vocal exhortations directed at a wavering putt—attract attention wherever he plays. He has proven his ability to flash brilliant golf at times and has figured in most of the important tournaments of recent years.

Diegel is uncanny with his short irons and has proven his fighting spirit in many fine matches. He likely will oppose Compston or Abe Mitchell in the singles matches.

Leo is professional at Tia Juana, Mexico, and is 34 years old.

Lu and Heinie Set to Put Browns in Race

The Yanke-teasing Browns of 1928 have Lu Blue and Heinie Manush back this year, so Dan Howley's club doubtless will do its share of teasing, and maybe trampling, during the rush for the flag.

Plans Abandoned For 45-Round Go

Los Angeles Promoter Seeks Hudkins for Walker

LOS ANGELES, April 8.—Harry M. Pollok of Tia Juana today announced that he had dropped negotiations for a 45-round bout for the light heavyweight championship between Mickey Walker and Tommy Loughran. The bout was to be held at the Mexican town next summer.

Instead Pollok will endeavor to match Ace Hudkins with Walker for the middleweight championship. Pollok declared that he had tendered Jack Kearns an offer of $100,000 or a privilege of 45 per cent of the gate receipts for Walker's end of the purse. Hudkins, according to the present schedule, would receive a flat offer of $25,000 or could accept 15 per cent of the receipts, just as he pleased.

The bout would be for 45 rounds to a decision and the date named was May 31.

Kearns today was in the dark about Pollok's offer. He said he had heard nothing about it and would not even consider the bid unless convinced that the bout would draw $250,000 or $300,000. Kearns doesn't believe the gate would reach either figure at the border city.

"The bout belongs to Los Angeles, Chicago or New York," said the "Dapper Doctor."

Hudkins had nothing to say except that he is willing to meet Walker whenever the latter signs articles. The place makes little difference to Hudkins.

Clubs selected for the league are Cordell, Lone Wolf, Elk City, Sayre, Wellington and Mangum. The season begins on April 28 and closes on Labor day, with 40 games for each club, to be played on Sunday and Wednesday of each week.

Manager Ralph Heatly of the Mangum club is now casting his experienced baseball eye about for players for his club. The chamber of commerce baseball committee will assist in the ticket sales to assure financial independence of the club.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, April 8.—Having little to do today, we must protest against the government making a bowling alley out of New York bay.

While Stuyvesant Fish was rowing his new yacht past the Statue of Liberty, two cannon balls went capering by his boat.

This flowery ammunition was broadcast by an internal revenue boat and as Rear Admiral Billard remarked:

"If that's a welcome to New York, then it's bad billards."

Stuyvesant, having no staff of diplomats, had naturally not expected any trouble.

What made him angry was the location of the battle. He doesn't mind a fight but he doesn't want the Statue of Liberty to be the referee.

The Fish boat was captured, searched and then allowed to proceed. If this is going to happen to yachtsmen this summer, we do not blame President Hoover for giving up the Mayflower.

We happen to know that the government has great difficulty in stopping the boothoochers from escorting contraband of thirst into New York harbor.

The rum jumpers own fast boats, swift motor cars and very quick airplanes.

But the government will not have anything big to worry about until the boozehoppers buy a railroad.

At the time that the Fish boat was being bracketed by the U. S. targeteers, Mrs. Fish and the Fish children were on the yacht.

A government apology would probably read like this, "We did it for the wife and kiddies."

It looks as if the government was determined to win a naval battle even if it has to fight it on the Erie canal.

There are some very nice swan boats in Central park that have been acting impudently lately.

Why doesn't the League of Nations get together and appoint a mandate over the Vesper Boat club on the Skuylkill?

If the blockade gets any tougher and stricter, a man will have to nail his citizenship papers on his back when he crosses over on a Hudson river ferry and carry an American flag with him into the bath tub.

The Mexicans have a better idea about war than we have. At least they know where their wars are taking place.

You never know when you are going to get it. The customs officials train their guns on a suspicious looking boat in the gulf and shoot the end girl off the daisy chain up at Vassar.

We thoroughly understand that there must be gunplay under present conditions, but why not give us a chance to either enlist or claim exemption?

Three Champions Fight This Week

Graham - Chocolate Battle Friday Is Feature

NEW YORK, April 8. (AP)—Three champions—Dundee, Mandell and Schwartz—will swing into action this week, but perhaps the closest approach to a championship battle will be the 15-round bantamweight struggle in New York Friday night with Kid Chocolate, Cuban star, and Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., the principals.

Chocolate and Graham, together with Fidel la Barba and Al Brown, are recognized as the greatest of present bantamweights.

Graham is a flash in the ring and experts, although favoring Chocolate, believe the Utican star the stiffest argument he has had in this country.

Of the three champions down for non-title engagements this week, Joe Dundee, welterweight king, seems slated for the toughest struggle. Joe meets Al Mello of Lowell at Boston Friday night in a charity show originally scheduled for some weeks ago.

2 HEAVYWEIGHT MILLS PLANNED

Schmeling, Paulino, Sharkey to Fight It Out

NEW YORK, April 8.—Unless Jack Dempsey changes his mind; there will be only two big heavyweight matches this year.

There are only three contenders for the vacant championship, Max Schmeling, Paulino Uzcudun and Jack Sharkey.

The elimination program is now definitely reduced to two dates—Paulino and Schmeling on June 26, and the winner against Jack Sharkey in September.

These pronouncements come from the lips of Tom McArdle, the man who has taken over the duties of the late George Tex Rickard with the Madison Square garden corporation. McArdle is now willing to admit that he has given up all hope of stretching the 1929 elimination tournament into three matches.

Risko Upsets Plans

His last hope vanished at Boston last Friday night, when the Otto Von Porat boom was rudely punctured by old John Risko. McArdle had much hope for Von Porat. Otto is a Norwegian, and you would be surprised how many Scandinavians were beginning to show interest in prize fighting. McArdle went to Boston last week in expectation that he would witness a smashing Von Porat victory.

As he visualized it, Von Porat would knock out Risko, then come to New York and knockout K. O. Christner on the same card with Schmeling and Paulino. That would entitle Otto to entry in the eliminations, first against the loser and then against the winner of the June 26 main event.

"But I have abandoned all thought of that now," said McArdle yesterday. "Otto did not stand up, and it is too late now. He blew a big chance against Risko. I think Otto was badly off form, but that means nothing to the public. I have to sell performance, not an alibi.

Dempsey Doubtful

"I think it is too late for anyone else to figure in the 1929 eliminations. A newcomer would have to do something frightfully sensational to break in at this date, and I don't see any one with such possibilities in view.

"Dempsey might alter the schedule if he decides to fight, but that is a remote possibility. He has shown no sign of it so far, and he would want at least three months of preparation before he would attempt a comeback."

The George Godfrey question came up but McArdle had nothing to say. Some time ago, Tom was favorably inclined toward Godfrey, but events that accompanied the Field-Thompson fight at Chicago cooled his ardor. If a black and white fight between little men can provoke a riot, McArdle does not want to tempt fate with big fellows.

April Melody

Temples of art—you can take 'em or lose 'em,
Writers of novels that lead to romance—
We haven't time at the moment to use 'em,
What do we care for the gods of finance?
Out of young April a new thrill is coming,
Born of the struggle that graces the pit;
Greatest of melodies—roaring and strumming—
Give us the song of the game winning hit!

Artists and writers and famous physicians,
Owners of trusts, will you kindly stand by;
While you are talking of world saving missions,
All that we ask is the Walloping Eye.
Drama? It's there where the Bambino rages—
Art? It abounds where the Hornsbys may flit;
Here comes the lyrical gift of the ages—
Give us the song of the game winning hit!

Who Wins?

At almost every fight that is reasonably close the division of opinion—even expert opinion—is startling. In many of these contests there has not only been a sharp division of choice, but even those picking the same man were wide apart on rounds won and lost. Among those qualified to judge a fight through experience and training, there has been a sift wide enough to include eight out of 10 rounds for one man and seven out of 10 for the other.

Even where referees and judges pick the same winner, they are frequently totally apart in summing up the evidence round by round.

I recall one fight where many of the experts gave 12 out of the 15 rounds to one fighter and several others, equally able to judge gave 11 rounds to the other man.

It would be like watching a ball game where half the scorers and half the fans figured the Yankees had won 7 to 3, while the other half had named the Athletics as winners by the score of 6 to 4. You can figure what a fine tangle that would make.

Why is this wide divergence of opinion so pronounced? Punches or swings delivered at different angles look entirely different to different eyes. There is also so much tugging and hauling and wrestling that most of the picture is obscured.

The best test and the only true one is to pick the man who has inflicted most punishment by the end of the fight. That, after all, is what they are supposed to be out there for.

Why Stars Last So Long

If you ever happened to check the matter over you will find in baseball that most of the leading stars have been able to keep going for many years—Cobb, Wagner, Young, Anson, Johnson, Mathewson, Speaker, Lajole, Alexander, Carey, Ruth, Pennock, etc.

This isn't a matter of mere chance. It isn't so much a matter of stamina. The answer is fairly simple. The star usually, nearly always, works with a high degree of form. So the wear and tear on his nervous system is lightened. He isn't working against himself. He is more a master of balance and ease in execution. There is much greater smoothness to his method. That is one of the reasons why he is a star. The same factors that help to make him a star also make the game easier and add to his span of activity.

Johnson had the greatest pitching motion baseball has ever known. It was for this reason that he could jump that fast one through for over 20 years. The fundamentals of correct pitching were always working with him—not against him. It is for this same reason that Vardon, Taylor and Braid are still fine golfers around the age of 60—after 40 years of hard campaigning.

Some Philosophy of Sport

"You can't get no base hits with your bat on your shoulder."—Lord (Umpire) Byron.

"Never mind about trying to cheat the wind in golf. First be sure that you don't cheat yourself."—Walter Hagen.

"The hardest man I ever had to master was Gene Tunney."—Gene Tunney.

"The only important stroke in golf is the next one to be played."—Jerry Travers.

Something for a Scientist

Some scientist could do a great job by inventing a serum that would make a few modern fighters start winging a few rights and lefts and forget the pleasures of the dance.

The slogan of most modern fighters in facing some opponent is "the skin they hate to touch."

About all they have proved is that the public can take a lot more punishment than the fighters can.

HUMPHRIES TO BOX THIS WEEK

Pug Substituted for Hall As Whitington's Foe

According to popular demand, Promoter Alex Ross yesterday announced the substitution of Pug Humphries for Cyclone Hall as the adversary for Fred Whittington tomorrow night in the feature of the weekly boxing show at the Palace theater. Hall originally was carded to meet Whittington, but public clamor caused the change.

Humphries gained the newspaper decision over Hall in their bout here last week. Whittington's challenge to the victor was read from ringside preceding that go, and accepted by both principals.

Hall fought Humphries about even, in the opinion of many ringsiders last week, but the others, including critics of both papers, thought Pug entitled to the decision. Hall probably will meet the winner of the Humphries-Whittington go, according to Ross.

Humphries and Whittington are old rivals in the ring. They have met twice previously, both their bouts being corking mills. Each is well known here and both always have made sparkling fights in former appearances in Wichita Falls.

Los Angeles Site Of 1932 Olympics

NEW YORK, April 8. (AP)—In spite of recurrent suggestion to the contrary, there is no prospect now at present, even a possibility that the Olympic games of 1932 will be shifted from their chosen site at Los Angeles.

Although this award was made and officially accepted several years ago, the impression has become rather widespread that the games merely were given to the United States as a nation and that the bidding for the athletic carnival still is open.

Pitcher Tauscher Sold To Dallas by Pirates

DALLAS, April 8. (AP)—Walter Tauscher, 24-year-old right-hander from the Pittsburgh Pirates, is the latest addition to the Dallas Steers' pitching staff. Tauscher was left behind when the Corsairs departed tonight for Shreveport.

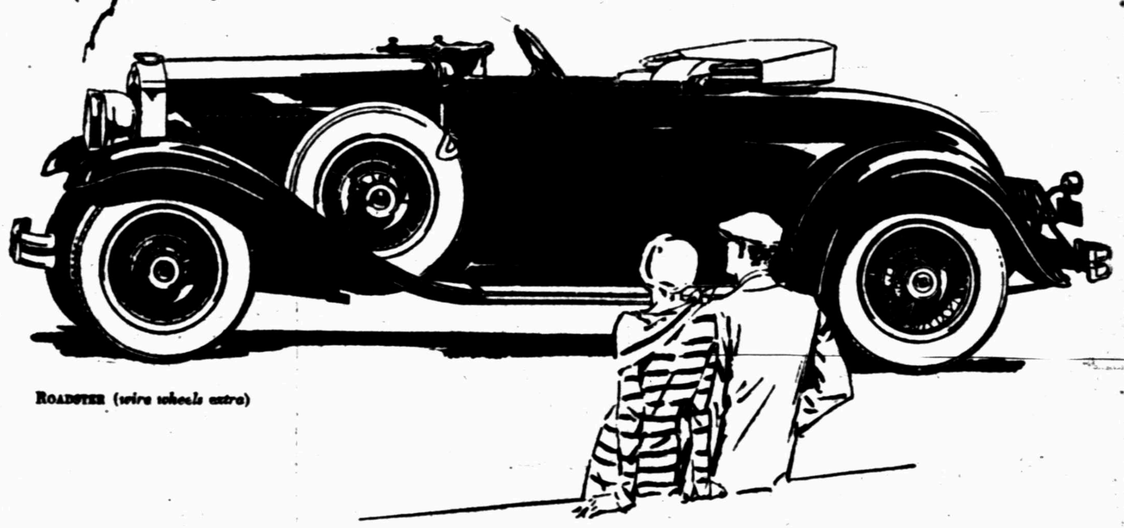

Tauscher was with the Pirates all last season. He participated in 17 games, hurled 28 innings, but was not credited with a single win nor charged with a defeat. He had an earned run average of 4.97 and a perfect fielding record.

OKLAHOMA OIL OUTPUT GAINS

Seminole Open to Gauge Field Capacity

Special to The Record News

TULSA, Okla., April 8.—But for the fact that the Greater Seminole oil field was open for the taking of its potential capacity, Oklahoma's daily output would have showed but a slight gain last week. As a result the state's daily production approximated 673,000 barrels a day, an increase of 28,650 barrels a day over the week of March 30, when it did 644,350 barrels a day.

Last week's daily production was 23,000 barrels a day over the goal of 650,000 barrels a day fixed by conservation authorities.

Kansas increased 3,740 barrels a day to 97,890 barrels a day, due to new completions in the Wright-Valley Center field of Sedgwick county. The Sunflower state averaged 97,890 barrels a day, against 94,150 barrels a day the previous week.

The United States daily output will probably show around 2,630,000 barrels a day for the week just closed, it is estimated.

The Greater Seminole oil field continues to fall off, making 362,809 barrels a day Saturday from 1,821 wells, against 376,677 barrels the previous day from the same number of wells. This amounts to a 13,868-barrel-a-day loss in 24 hours. The Seminole pool proper made 263,001 barrels, a loss of 9,178 barrels from Friday's gauge of 272,179 barrels, and St. Louis also fell off 4,690 barrels a day to 99,808 barrels from 334 wells.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, April 8. (AP)—An opening decline, influenced by favorable weather reports and indifferent Liverpool cables, was followed by rallies in cotton today on trade buying and covering, which was accompanied by talk of probable bullish cotton cloth statistics for march and comment on an improved technical position. July sold up from 19.76 to 19.96 and closed at 19.91. The general market closed steady at net advances of 2 to 8 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 7 to 13 points. Active positions showed net losses of about 11 to 14 points in the early trading under liquidation and some local and southern selling. This pressure was promoted by the easy showing of Liverpool cables and favorable interpretation of the weather. Rains reported in the Southwest apparently were considered comparatively favorable. There also were reports from the South indicating good progress had been made with farm work last week.

May contracts sold off to 20.32 and December to 19.72 under initial offerings, but after they had been absorbed, there appeared to be comparatively few contracts for sale. This rendered the market responsive to trade buying and covering, and the latter became more active during the late trading. It was promoted, no doubt, by the technical position, as some of the local traders regarded the failure of offerings to become more active or general on the better weather news as indication that the market had been pretty well sold out.

There also was talk of probable bullish figures on production and sales of standard cotton cloths for March, the monthly statistics of which are expected within a day or two.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, April 8. (AP)—Advices of proposed farm relief legislation had a steadying effect on cotton prices in the late trading today and the market, after ruling indifferent for most of the session, rallied and closed at a net advance of 5 to 12 points. July contracts advanced from 19.68 to 19.92 and closed at 19.89, or 12 points net higher.

The market opened easy, despite relatively steady Liverpool cables. The early decline extended to 19.62 for May, 19.68 for July and 19.51 for October, or 9 to 11 points down from the previous close. Favorable weather in the belt over the week-end, coupled with reports of beneficial rains in the Southwest, were given as the causes for the initial weakness.

Later the market met some support when the official forecast promised unfavorable weather for the belt in the near future and recovered all the early gain, rallying to about parallel with Saturday's close. For the remainder of the morning and into the afternoon the market was quiet with prices fluctuating within the early range. Near the end, however, values rallied sharply under a demand stimulated by talk of proposed farm relief legislation and expectations of bullish textile statistics.

On the bulge May traded to 19.84, July 19.92 and October 19.71, or 20 to 24 points above the lowest. Final prices were 2 to 4 points under the top.

Traction Stocks Fall as Supreme Court Denies Plea for Higher Fares

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, April 8. (US)—Wide-open break in the traction stocks following the supreme court's refusal to permit a higher fare featured an otherwise dull and unsettled market on the stock exchange today. The list as a whole had been sagging for four hours when the highest court handed down its decision against the Interborough company. The local traction shares were thrown over regardless and when the dust cleared Interborough finished the session with decline of 16⅝, Brooklyn Manhattan with loss of 8½, Third Avenue was off 7¼ and Manhattan modified guaranteed lost 14 points for the day.

Bullish attention was centered in Can but after reaching new high it succombed to the general unsettlement and showed but fractional gain for the session. Coppers were the favorite for bear attacks and lost from 1 to over 5 points. Rails were held back by uncertainty as to what the O'Fallon decision would be but the supreme court adjourned without handing down a ruling.

Money appeared in fairly good supply and the call rate ruled at 7 per cent throughout. Turnover dropped under the 3,000,000-share level.

Private advices from Washington to several members of the stock exchange spoke of the likelihood of surplus gold of the reserve system being used in the international bank to be formed in connection with the reparations settlement. This strengthened belief that there is more going on behind the scenes in connection with money than appears in the federal reserve "warnings" and other public statements. Some developments recently in stocks in which General Electric is interested enhanced this belief also, as Owen D. Young of General Electric is spending all his time these days working out a reparations plan that will meet the approval of all nations interested. With these further indications that international affairs are dominating money developments, it is no wonder that each day witnesses the withdrawal from the market of more traders.

Bulge in Johns Manville was due mostly to expectation of announcement this week that contract had been made with Montgomery Ward for disposal of some of its products. Both companies will benefit, it is claimed. "The operation in Can is being managed by two members of the stock exchange. Their work is helped by the knowledge of improved earnings and a fairly large short interest. However, they are said to have their "hands on the fence in readiness to jump over" at the first sign of trouble. Marine preferred continues to be picked up by those who expect renewed work on recapitalization with the return of President Franklin.

There appears to be still some hope for the oils. Many companies will show good earnings for the current period and it is now stated that merger plans will be carried out despite the repulse to stabilization from the administration. The first consolidation will be that of Continental Oil and Marland. The plan is practically consummated and official announcement is to be made this week with the stocks taken in on the basis of $25 a share for Continental and $40 a share for Marland. There was some talk that American International would be affected by the break in copper stocks. American International now holds only one copper stock; the best of them all—Anaconda. It is in a position to meet any market happening with benefit to stockholders, for it is loaning a substantial amount in the call money market which leaves it in a position to reaccumulate good stocks at the right time.

The Interborough decision was a worse shock to Wall street than the attorney general's ruling against oil stabilization plans. The traction group in the street has been holding on for four years believing the highest court would give the road a higher fare. The tickers by giving a mistaken impression in starting their report of the decision added to unsettlement for they influenced purchases of stock that was quickly thrown over when it was realized that the company had suffered a complete defeat and that higher fare ideas would have to be thrown in the discard. There was some hope that the decision would hasten consolidation of all local traction companies.

Fed steers and yearling trade was slow at prices unevenly steady to 25c lower. Demand centered around offerings of choice quality. Further price upturns at eastern dressed beef markets had a supporting influence to the trade. Stocker and feeder classes were in light to moderate supply with values firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 8. (US)—Grain shorts covered heavily today in the local market when advices from Washington concerning farm relief activity construed as bullish caused buying which disclosed oversold markets. Wheat led the advance, and the balance of the list followed closely.

Prices of wheat futures closed 3⅜@3½c higher. Corn finished 2⅜@2⅝c higher; oats were ⅛@2⅝c up, and rye was 2@2⅝c higher. Winnipeg was inclined to drag, wheat prices there closing only 2¼@2⅝c higher.

The heavily oversold condition in the wheat market following the past few weeks of intense bearish sentiment and declining prices was largely responsible for today's sharp advance. The unofficial dispatches from Washington revealing the first new and definite angle on farm relief legislation in some time, being the first real bullish news in weeks, were sufficient to turn the market sharply about with pit conditions as they were. Pit observers did not note any extensive broadening of outside interest.

According to the various reports from the capital, house and senate committee leaders convening to prepare the farm bill, had been advised by White House leaders that President Hoover favors broad powers and plenty of capital for the proposed farm board. From this it was construed that the committees may provide a $300,000,000 revolving fund which would be used to purchase and store grain.

Despite the fact that some of these dispatches were carried in newspapers Sunday, wheat prices opened a shade lower.

With the sudden reversal of sentiment, shorts were indisposed to remain in that position, particularly with a government report on condition of winter wheat to be released tomorrow. And there was further indication of damage over the week-end in some sections due to hot winds. Export sales of 750,000 to 800,000 were reported.

Washington Society Folk Await Decision on Mrs. Gann's Standing

"Showdown" Possible Thursday Night While Curtis and Sister May Quit "Going Places"

WASHINGTON, April 8. (INS)—The all-absorbing question of "Where is Mrs. Gann going to sit" at official functions loomed as tall as the Washington monument today. And it is growing taller daily.

Congress may be assembling in extra session, Mexicans may be sniping Americans across the border, the state department may be confronted with a dozen delicate and important questions of international policy—but until it is decided whether Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, is going to be seated above or below the ladies of the diplomatic corps at social functions, there just isn't going to be any peace or quiet in capital society.

Stimson Faces Task

The decision rests with Secretary of State Stimson. No more embarrassing decision was ever put to a new secretary of state.

Vice President Curtis, with whom he sits twice weekly at cabinet meetings, has publicly demanded of Stimson that he reverse the ruling of his predecessor, Secretary Kellogg, and give Mrs. Gann a social rating above the wives of ambassadors and ministers.

Meanwhile the chatter and gossip going up daily from tea tables and nightly from the dinner tables of the smart set is reaching crescendo proportions.

Mrs. Gann's friends and those of the vice president assert that unless she is accorded the recognition usually given a wife of the vice president she will abstain from "going out," and it is even hinted that the vice president himself may feel called upon to decline invitations from those sources which are on the other side of the question.

"Showdown" Coming

Meanwhile, unless a decision is forthcoming shortly there will be a "showdown" on Thursday night. A dinner is to be given by the Chilean ambassador, at which the vice president, Mrs. Gann, and numerous diplomats have been invited.

Unless the Kellogg ruling is reversed before that, Mrs. Gann will be seated below the wives of the diplomats. Unless she gets a ruling before Thursday, it was predicted today that Mrs. Gann won't go. Probably Mr. Gann, who is a Washington lawyer, won't either. This latter possibility may solve one awkward problem, for no one, in all the fuss about Mrs. Gann, has ever been able to decide just where Mr. Gann ranks.

WEEKS CLUB ENROLLS 60

200 New Members Sought For Golf Course

Interest is growing rapidly in the membership drive of the Weeks Park Golf club with 60 new members having been signed since the campaign opened, according to W. E. McBroom, secretary of the club.

The goal in the membership drive this year has been set at 200 persons, Mr. McBroom said.

Local golfers have kept the muny course in constant use since the spring opening. Sunday topped all records this year for players on the course with 190 persons registering for play during the day.

The Weeks park course and greens have recently been given a complete overhauling by the city park department and the links are in excellent condition, Mr. McBroom said.

SALES OF BUS LINES UPHELD

State Commission Approves Changes Here

Sale of the C. C. Wells bus line from Vernon to Amarillo to the Wichita Falls Bus company was approved at Austin Monday by the motor bus division of the state railroad commission, according to dispatches received here.

According to officials of the purchasing company, efforts will be made at once to shorten the running time between Wichita Falls and Amarillo through the elimination of unnecessary delays at points of transfer. At the time of the hearing conducted here by Mark Marshall, of the motor bus division, about three weeks ago, it was stated that heavy buses of the latest design will be installed on the Vernon-Amarillo service as soon as the completion of pavement west of Hardeman county permits.

Other transfers in this section of the state approved by the commission Monday were:

C. H. Bourland to Jake Goode and P. O. Roberts, line from Vernon to the Red river, en route to Frederick, Okla.; Oklahoma City-Amarillo Bus company to Safety First Bus company, line from Pampa to the Texas-Oklahoma state line, leading to Oklahoma City, and C. A. Hale to Safety First Bus company, line from Amarillo to Higgins, by way of Pampa.

City to Construct New Storage House

Announcement that appropriations for the construction of a modern tool and storage house for the city park department had been included in the city budget for this year was made Monday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

The new tool house will be constructed at the Weeks park golf club on the site of the wooden barns which are used at present as storage houses for the park department tools.

The house will be 24 feet wide and 75 feet long, giving space for housing the city's trucks as well as serving as a storage and a tool house. The construction of a galvanized steel s re house will make it possible f the city to remove the wooden b rns.

Police Relief Fund Pays Belcher Services

A payment from the police relief fund for the burial expenses of W. P. Belcher, veteran city policeman, who died of heart falure several days ago, was made Monday by W. E. McBroom, secretary of the fund, to the Merkle Undertaking company.

The police department voted last week to pay the burial expenses for their fellow officer from the relief fund, which is subscribed to by all policemen on the force.

Mr. Belcher had been a member of the force here for the past 10 years. He was the second policeman buried by the relief fund.

The police relief fund also pays all bills for illness and treatment to members of the police force.

55 Permits Issued To Trash Haulers Here

Citizens of Wichita Falls should encounter little trouble this year in keeping the trash hauled from the alleys with 55 haulers all registered and given permits for operation here.

Indications are that several more haulers will obtain their permits and numbers soon giving the city more than 60 trash haulers, it was said by officials in the city clerk's office.

Attorneys to Ask Venue Change In Huggins Suit After Second Deadlock

R. E. Taylor of the firm of Taylor, Muse & Taylor, attorneys for Mrs. I. I. Huggins, alleged common law wife of the late J. L. Huggins, in her suit for one-half of the Huggins estate, announced Monday that he would seek a change of venue when the case comes up for the third time in district court at Henrietta next June.

A jury which last week tried to determine whether Mrs. Huggins was entitled to recover could not agree, and was discharged late Saturday after about 26 hours' deliberation. The arguments were completed, and the case went to the jury Thursday afternoon. A jury last November also failed to agree.

Mr. Taylor said he would seek to have the case removed to Fort Worth, home of the plaintiff, and if this measure failed he would ask that the case be brought to Wichita Falls.

The present suit, against W. H. Myers, executor, and the heirs of the J. L. Huggins estate, will determine solely whether the plaintiff is entitled to recover, attorneys said. In case the jury reports in her favor, a second trial will be necessary to determine the amount the plaintiff will receive.

Mrs. Huggins, the widow of the late W. J. Turner of Fort Worth, alleges in her petition that she became the common law wife of Huggins, Plains millionaire, in 1919. Huggins died at Henrietta about a year ago.

CREWS PUSH SCOTT BRIDGE

Pouring of Concrete To Start Thursday

Work of running the concrete for the south bank abutment of the new Scott avenue bridge across Wichita river will probably begin on Thursday of this week, J. M. Isbell, county engineer, announced Monday.

The concrete work, which is to rise from 1½ feet in the shale to a height of 18 feet, will require most of a week's work, the engineer said. Completion of the north bank foundation will follow immediately, he explained. The work of building the two center piers and constructing the connection arches is the final step.

Forty men are now employed on full time duty, Mr. Isbell declared, and the work is making rapid progress.

Man Faces Charges After Car Hits Boy

Charges of driving a car while infoxicated were filed Monday against C. R. Emmert, following an automobile accident on Holliday street Sunday evening.

Jack Stanfield, 11-year-old boy who was injured in the accident, was dismissed from the Wichita General hospital late Monday.

The complaint against Emmert, filed by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, was signed by W. S. Johnson, city officer.

Power Lawn Mowers Purchased by City

Two power lawn mowers were purchased Saturday for use in mowing the city parks and the municipal golf course, W. B. Ward, city purchasing agent, said.

The mowers were purchased from the Bailey-Moline company, local hardware store, and will be delivered to the city for use in about 10 days.

C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent, said Monday that the purchase of the two 25-inch mowers will reduce the time and labor required for mowing the city's grounds considerably.

Jury Gives Hopson Two Years in Pen on Bigamy Charge Here

Riley Hopson was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary for bigamy by the verdict of a jury in the 30th district court Monday afternoon. The verdict was brought in after less than two hours deliberation.

A 17-year-old Electra girl, who said she discovered Hopson had another wife two months after she married him in 1927, was the principal witness for the state. Hopson pleaded that since the marriage took place in Oklahoma, Texas courts had no jurisdiction.

A motion for a new trial, presented immediately, was overruled by Judge Allan D. Montgomery. Notice of appeal was given and the defendant made a $2,000 bond.

The case for the state was conducted by George W. Anderson and Mike Anglin, assistant district attorneys.

Work to Start Soon on 'Bridge' Over Spillway

Construction of the bridge across the Lake Wichita spillway, the connecting link in the Wichita and Archer county paving projects, will get underway within the next two weeks, according to Carl C. Madson, contractor, who called Monday at the office of J. M. Isbell, county engineer.

The so-called "bridge" is to be 400 feet long, longer than the present paving bridging the spillway, and will be four feet high, according to the specifications of the contract, Mr. Isbell said.

The county, city, state, and federal governments are sharing the expense of the construction, the county and city having put more than $6,000 in escrow last week for their part of the work.

Planes Bring Business Men on Visit Here

Three parties of visiting business men arrived in Wichita Falls Monday by airplane, stopping at the Municipal airport.

E. E. Robinson and O. L. Holden of Memphis, Texas, flying a Canadian Curtiss biplane, arrived before noon. Eddie Spencer, with two passengers, Miss Lizzie Hembree and W. W. Keeling, all of Seminole, Okla., came in later in a Travelair.

Monday afternoon F. W. Williams and William O. Anderson of Buffalo, N. Y., arrived from Tulsa in a "Husky Junior" ship. Mr. Williams is a former resident of Vernon, it was stated, and with Mr. Anderson was said to be en route to Los Angeles on a pleasure tour of the country.

Second Delay in Suit For $25,000 Refused

Judge P. A. Martin Monday morning overruled a motion for continuance offered by the defendant in the $25,000 damage suit of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Parton against the Fort Worth and Denver railroad and re-set the trial for 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Parton are asking damages in connection with the death of their 14-year-old son, Raymond, killed when a passenger train struck a truck in which he was riding in Iowa Park Nov. 3, 1928.

Counsel for the defense again asked for a continuance on the grounds that Charlie Miller, defense witness, is absent in Ladysmith, Natal, South Africa, and can not be here to testify.

Judge Hears Pleas In $500,000 Oil Suit

Arguments on a motion seeking to remove the $500,000 damage suit of H. M. Ford against the Roxana Petroleum corporation out of the federal courts and back into state court jurisdiction were begun late Monday afternoon before Judge W. H. Atwell in the United States district court in session here. The motion, introduced by the plaintiff, is being opposed by counsel for the corporation.

Judge Atwell Monday morning admitted Earl Hall of Henrietta to the practise of the law in the United States courts. Mr. Hall was introduced to the court by Walter P. Nelson Jr.

American citizenship was bestowed upon Ludvik Benak, Austrian, upon the passage of the final naturalization examinations.
