CITIES PROFITABLY OPERATING WATER PLANTS.

In the Following List of Towns, Some Smaller Than Junction, Each Show a Handsome Profit From Its Own Water System.

The following towns own municipal water works. This table is given here in proof of the statement made in this paper that water systems when properly built will pay for their cost. In reading this table, the first column gives the name of the town, the second the population, the third the number of customers, the fourth the rates charged for water, the fifth the net earnings per year.

Town	Population	Number Customers	Rate Charged	Net Earnings
Caldwell	1689	400	$1.50 for 2000 gal.	$3,000
Anson	1425	410	$1.50 for 2000 gal.	$5,000
Cooper	2563	420	$1.50 for 2000 gal.	$3,000
Hearne	2741	500	$1.00 for 2000 gal.	$3,500
Crowell	1175	250	$1.50 for 3000 gal.	$3,000
Gilmer	2268	325	$1.40 for 3000 gal.	$2,000
Whorton	2346	450	$1.50 for 2000 gal.	$9,000
Kaufman	2500	675	$1.00 for 2000 gal.	$12,000
Nocona	1422	600	$1.10 for 2000 gal.	$5,000

Each of these towns have to operate expensive machinery, many of them pumping the water from well and afterward pumping to the standpipe. Each of them have to purchase fuel or electric current.

Take the four smallest towns listed, Caldwell, Anson, Crowell and Nocona. The average charge is $1.45 per 2500 gallons. This is almost one-half the charge made for water in Junction.

The average net earnings is $4,000 yearly; $4,000 will pay the interest on and retire $5,000 of bonds. These towns, operating under much more expensive methods of producing water than Junction will have to do, are paying for their water works, and their key rate of insurance has been reduced 43 per cent, which would represent a saving to taxpayers of more than $1,500 per year. In other words, such plants when built not only pay for their cost but make a profit to the city owning them while doing so.

When paid for they continue to be revenue producers and revenues may be used to run the city government or the charges may be reduced.

There are towns in Texas that have reduced the water rates to $1.00 per month. Mineola is one such town, and still their yearly earnings last year was $2,862.70.

Plainview has a rate for residences of $1.00 per month, 3000 gallons, and for irrigation purposes, $2.00 per month for 20,000 gallons.

The rate at Kaufman is $1.00 for 2,000 gallons and their yearly earnings are $12,600.00.

There are in Texas 409 city owned water plants, and 378 city owned sewer systems. Nearly one-third of this number are towns having a smaller population than Junction.

Incorporation, which will confer the ability on the town to negotiate loans for such improvements, is an immediate necessity.

SAN ANTONIO C. OF C. OFFICIALS VISIT JUNCTION

Last week Junction had the honor of entertaining W. H. Furlong, assistant manager of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce and manager of the Highway Department of the same organization.

Mr. Furlong was accompanied by Frank C. Gross, president of the Gross National Bank, William Herff, president of the San Antonio Loan & Trust Co., W. M. Morgan of the Morgan Woodward Co. Ford Dealer, John Ostrow, of the Jefferson Hotel and Mr. Bater, branch manager of the Reo Automobile Co.

The purpose of this visit was the logging of the road from San Antonio to Junction, from Junction to the different tourist camps and all points of interest surrounding Junction.

The party was entertained by W. H. Baker, president Kimble County Chamber of Commerce, H. O. Denman, secretary Kimble County Chamber of Commerce, W. P. Riley, president Junction State Bank, Coke R. Stevenson and Emil A. Loeffler, who stated that it was a real inspiration to accompany such men as these on a sight-seeing tour and watch them drink in the beauties of our scenery. The party was introduced to a real fried chicken dinner at the Fritz Hotel, as guests of the Kimble County Chamber of Commerce.

We are indeed glad to have had the honor of entertaining such a distinguished group of business men and trust that they found in Junction and its people the hospitality for which it is known.

SALE OF REGISTERED RAMS AND BILLIES

Over $1,000 worth of registered billies and rams were sold by local breeders at the Barbecue held here last month.

Several of the local breeders and one from San Antonio took advantage of the gathering this year, renting space at the park to show a few of their blooded goats and sheep. None of them had been prepared for showing, in fact two breeders say they only decided at the last hour to try their luck.

From early in the morning till late evening a goodly crowd could be seen around the pens discussing the good and bad points of each. One man brought 12 rams in and sold 8 of them at $25.00 each. However, he tells us that since the barbecue he has sold 16 more to different parties who had examined the ones he had brought to town, and that he expects to sell at least 20 more.

Another man reports the sale of 8 rams to be delivered this fall, at $50.00 each.

One breeder from San Angelo had a pen of billies ranging in prices from $100 to $400. As to the number of billies he sold we have not been able to learn. However, we do know that a Kimble County ranchman is the present owner of the $400 billy.

This is an example of what it would mean to Kimble County to have a real fair.

If a few of our local men could gather up a truck load of blooded sheep and goats, without attempting to groom and feed them for show purposes, haul them to town and sell them without any effort, what could be done if we had a 7-day fair each year. It would mean that every breeder in Kimble County would be preparing his stock for competitive show purposes as well as sales. That breeders from all over the U. S. would be on hand to try for the honors. It would keep the local breeder ever on the lookout to improve his stock. It would create more interest in better sheep, goats and cattle. It would improve the quality as well as the quantity of the clip, and also advance the price of all stock.

These are just a few of the advantages to be gained by a fair. We will from time to time attempt to point out to our readers the various advantages a fair would naturally bring to the people of this county as a whole. We believe this as well as all subjects pertaining to the public at large should be discussed and analyzed for its merits and demerits. So we are offering the columns of the Eagle to any one who cares to use them to the end that everyone will have a chance, as the old saying goes, to see both sides of the fence.

ICE COMPANY PURIFIES WATER BEFORE FREEZING

Water used in the manufacture of ice in the plant of the Borden Ice Company is now being purified by a process recognized and recommended by authorities to entirely eliminate contamination. In addition to being purified the water is softened and further clarified by passing through a pressure sand filter. The company is to be commended in the provision of adequate equipment for properly safeguarding the public health and welfare.

Mr. John L. Sullivan of New York City, was brought to the local hospital suffering from an illness caused from strains received in lifting. His exact condition is not yet determined. Mr. Sullivan is employed by the Oklahoma Construction Company and working on the Humble Pipe Line.

BIGGEST STEAL IN ALL HISTORY OF TEXAS.

Syndicate Power Company of Dallas Secures Water Rights Affecting the People of the Western Portion of State.

Wherein a bunch of capitalists attempt to tell the people living in an area as large as the State of Ohio they cannot use the water that flows in the rivers and creeks of their different communities for drinking purposes, they cannot water their stock from the river or creek that runs through or adjoining their ranch lands or farms, that the farmer cannot use the water running through his farm to irrigate his corn, cotton, etc., with, that a city cannot dam up a creek bed that only has water in it when it rains, to supply water for the thousands of people living within its limits. Why? Because the State Board of Water Commissioners have granted a charter to the Syndicate Power Co., with headquarters at Dallas, to build dams and impound more than three times as much water as flows down the Colorado River with all its tributary streams, for the purpose of manufacturing electricity and supply the farmers (who are able to pay for it) water to irrigate their farms with.

Did they pay for this right? Not one dime. So we say this is the greatest steal in the history of Texas; where the masses are deprived of their God-given rights in order to enrich a few capitalists.

When the people of Kimble County, who drove the Indians out that they might carve out of this great country a place to live and follow their different vocations, who cleared the lands that they might plant seed and raise food for man and beast, just when these same people have begun to come into their own, have advanced to the point where they see the necessity of irrigating their farm lands—to fill the ever increasing demands made by the increase of families, and other people moving into their midst. When the ranchman of Kimble County, who waters his flock and herds along the Llanos learn that the waters of his streams are no longer his to use, unless he pays a water syndicate for it, then will the people of this and every county of the water shed of the Colorado River awaken and assert his rights.

Some will say it cannot be done. Well, let's see.

Brownwood has before the Board of Water Engineers a project to dam up what is known as Pecan Bayou and Ned Creek, to impound water for their city and to be used for irrigation purposes.

This request is being contested by The Syndicate Power Co., who claims all water rights on all streams, creeks and rivers that are tributaries to the Colorado River. If they are right in their claims then every farmer that is using water from any river or creek for any purpose whatsoever, that is a tributary to the Colorado river, is infringing upon the company's rights and is subject to a law suit.

Now what are we going to do about it? Sit idly by and permit without a struggle a few capitalists to slip in and grab off a water right that will even deprive us of the privilege of using the one great asset God gave this county, or shall we join forces with Brownwood and the rest who are struggling for their rights.

Some will say, "what have we in common with Brownwood?" Brownwood is fighting your battles today. Let's carry our part of the load now, for if Brownwood loses we haven't got a show.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC A BIG SUCCESS

The Fourth of July Sunday School picnic at 8-mile school house proved to be a high day for the Sunday School lovers. Seven schools were represented. The message by Brother Ray, the Christian preacher from Mason, was timely and much enjoyed.

At 12:30 the baskets were unloaded and as fine a spread as could be had was enjoyed by everyone, excepting Joe Ramsey and Fayette Hodges, who were suffering from attacks of Pelagra. If Henry Bierschwale, Big Boy McWright and Roy Skaggs had acted at all decent we would have had plenty of food for supper.

The afternoon was given over to ball games for all ages. The first game was played between the Methodists and Baptists. Judge Baker went to the mound for the Baptists and Mr. Fillinger, the champion hurler of yesterday, pitched for the Methodists. At first it looked like a complete shut-out, but in the ninth, Dan St. Clair, a pinch hitter banged out one across the left field with three on the sacks. That closed the game; but vengeance is brewing.

The junior boys played the Dads a close game. Then came the game between the fats and leans. Fayette Hodges and Deckert served as battery for the leans; Son Hodges and Lowe

WATER CO. ADDS CHLORINATOR TO EQUIPMENT

For the protection of the users of their water, The Llano River Mill and Irrigation Company have received complete equipment for the installation of a chlorinator for the local water plant. An engineer will arrive today and supervise the work, which will possibly not take longer than two days.

For some years past there have been various tests made of the water from our local plant and other sources, and in most instances we have received a good report. The very fact that for several years past no case of typhoid fever could be traced to our water supply, is sufficient evidence of its purity.

The local company is to be commended for obtaining for its patrons this equipment and in adding an additional safeguard to users of water from our city water works.

NEW MAIL SERVICE FOR JUNCTION

Last week "Uncle Sam" started a new mail service from San Antonio to Junction for first class mail only. Mail leaves San Antonio at 6 a. m., arrives in Junction 11:15 a. m.

Leaves Junction at 2:30 p. m., and arrives at San Antonio at 7:30 p. m.

This service added to our old service gives us mail twice daily.

SCHOOL FUNDS

BREAK RECORD

S. M. N. Marrs, State Superintendent of Schools, said that the State apportionment for the next scholastic season would be $15 per child, which will be the largest in the history of Texas. This amount will be adopted by the Board of Education on the first Monday in August, the date fixed by law for the apportionment to be made.

There are two reasons why the record will be broken and the $15 assured, Marrs said. One is that the increased gasoline tax and the increased gasoline consumption produced more money than was expected and will result in a balance of more than $1,000,000 on Sept. 1 to the credit of the available school fund. The second is that no textbooks will have to be purchased except a small addition to the supply already in use. No new contracts or changes were made by the Textbook Commission last October, on recommendation of Marrs, and hence there will be no new purchases.

The estimated number of scholastics for the coming season is 1,360,000 and with close scrutiny many names are being erased and that figure may not be reached. It was an increase over the current year of but 10,865 and the net increase probably will not be that much. There are forty-five counties still to report their current scholastic census.

Should the final figures go to 1,360,000 children the total State apportionment at $15 would be $20,400,000, the largest ever made in this State. It is expected that the record breaking $15 will also be the apportionment for 1928-29, since the Legislature appropriated $1,500,000 to supplement the available school fund during that scholastic year.

SAN ANGELO TO SEND CROWD TO KERRVILLE

San Angelo, June 28.—San Angelo will send a large delegation to the annual meeting of the Sheep & Goat Raisers' Association at Kerrville next month, president T. A. Kincaid has been assured by Ballinger Bryan, secretary of the San Angelo Board of City Development.

San Angelo had been given the 1927 meeting at the Del Rio convention but out of respect and honor to Capt. Charles Schreiner gave the meeting to Kerrville, with the understanding that the 1928 convention would be held in San Angelo.

"We feel sure that in view of this condition you will appreciate our position, and we sincerely hope you will support our delegation when it asks for next year's meeting," Mr. Bryan wrote president Kincaid.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. J. L. Jackson of Fairfield, Texas, earnestly desires to express through this paper as a medium her thanks and her appreciation of all those in Junction who so kindly and courteously tendered their sympathy and help, their beautiful flowers and their gifts to her and to her son, J. A. Jackson, victim of a dynamite blast who died in the Standifer Hospital on June 14. The kindness and patient, careful attention of the doctor, his wife and the nurse, and each loving word and deed of friend and neighbor has helped a mother bear up in her hour of bereavement.

Mr. J. A. Jackson is survived by his mother, Mrs. J. L. Jackson of Fairfield, and two brothers, Hal Jackson of Dallas, and Jimmie Jackson of Grand Prairie.

Mrs. J. L. Jackson.

KNOW TEXAS

Texas is free from interruptions in fuel supplies to an extent that no other state enjoys. This is due to its fuel oil, natural gas and lignite that requires little mining.

Texas produces more agricultural values every year than any other state.

Texas stands high in value of its mineral petroleum and sulphur.

OVERALLS UBER ALLES

Robert Anderson went to Harrison Grammar School, San Francisco, dressed in overalls. He didn't wear any shoes. The other boys didn't wear overalls and they did wear shoes. Mrs. Alice R. Norton, his principal, we are told, sent Robert home to stay there until he could dress more suitably. It is admitted that the overalls were clean and Robert was a well-behaved little chap.

San Francisco heard about that. Big cities have their faults, their snobberies and their heartlessness about some things. But within three hours after the people of San Francisco learned of Robert's difficulties on account of overalls Robert was back in school with specific authority of the Superintendent of Schools to stay there, overalls and all.

Robert's daddy is a disabled veteran of the World War and is now a patient in a Government hospital. His mother is working at $50 a month to support Robert and his sister. Under the circumstances overalls was as good as Robert could expect. It is true that they brought him undeserved mortification for a time. But by now they have shown him his home town's heart. Some day he will grow up to be proud of that good will, and of his overalls, too.

MAKING THE BIRDS SING

The results may be surprising but it seems almost too much to expect a song really worthy of the Lone Star State to come out of the contest for a state song being fostered by the legislature.

The plan is to raise a cash prize of $1,000 for the man or woman who writes the song that is finally accepted as the official anthem of the state. It is safe to say contestants will be plentiful.

But it would seem that the impulse to write the song would be, primarily, to win the $1,000 rather than to glorify Texas. What the state really needs is a song by a poet whose love and admiration for Texas is sufficient to cause him to spontaneously burst into song.

"Dixie," "The Star Spangled Banner," "America," and other famous patriotic tunes were not written for the sake of winning prizes. Yet the proffered prize may cause Texas poets to devote some thought to singing the virtues of Texas.

Progress is being made in San Angelo on the plan to develop a civic center, offering West Texans when they come to San Angelo to trade one of the most beautiful civic centers to be found in any city this size in the country. The plan is to move the court house down near the Concho River, adjoining Santa Fe Park, and building the new court house, city hall and auditorium in one building. The auditorium is going to give West Texans an opportunity to see many attractions they have never been able to see before because of lack of such a building.

A NEWSPAPERS DUTY AS WE HAVE SEEN IT

Often we are condemned for not giving space to articles that come to us as news items, that we believe will work a hardship on a number of our citizens, and to the benefit of none. Quite frequently we come into possession of information that would benefit a few, yet be a detriment to many. To publish an article of this nature would be betraying the confidence of every man, woman and child in this county.

We are always glad to get news items of a constructive nature, but not destructive. It is up to you to help us make his a better newspaper. Our interests are mutual. Mainly to make Junction a bigger and better place in which to live.

W. E. James and family of the Big Lake Wild Cat, was a caller at the Eagle office this week, coming over to renew old acquaintances and look over his river haunts of 30 years ago. Mr. James started his apprenticeship in the printing trade in the old Citizen office in Junction, while under the management of Herbert Winslett.

Mrs. B. B. Ragland entertained "The Gleaners" last Tuesday evening, June 29, with a picnic at Flat Rock crossing. Those present were, Nevada Blackburn, Elsie Bessent, Ruth Sanders Lucille Motley, Charlotte Bentley, Marjorie Montgomery, Lela McDonald, Norma Taylor, Ve Maddox and Pairsie Linn.

TEXAS' LARGEST DRESS CONTEST EVER HELD

Colleges Station, Texas.—What is declared to have been the largest dress contest ever held in Texas was conducted recently in Hale County. The review was held at Plainview.

In all, 139 dresses, all made of cotton cloth, were exhibited, being entered by 135 Hale County women. Four of the women made two dresses each. Cost of the material used in the dresses ranged from 39 cents to $2.60, and the finished products had a selling value of $5 to $10. The dresses were inspected individually and graded as to suitability of purpose, beauty and quality of design, harmony of color and materials and workmanship. Final decision was rendered after considering the appearance of the dresses on the women.

Mrs. J. P. McGarr, of the Snyder community, president of the County Home Demonstration Council of Hale County, won first place, a trip to the Farmers' Short Course at the A. & M. College in July. Mrs. Ed. Hudgins, of the Iowa Avenue Club, won second place and Mrs. Alex Kittrell, of Bellview, third. The Prairie View and Prairie Home clubs tied for the $10 prize offered to the club having the highest percentage of entries, both clubs 100 per cent in this respect. Fifteen of the seventeen clubs in the county were represented in the contest.

San Angelo.—A representative of the Texas Department of Agriculture, division of edible nuts, will be sent to San Angelo in the near future, according to information received here by Ballinger Bryan, secretary of San Angelo's commercial organization.

This notification was received this week from J. S. Woodford, chief of the division. Mr. Bryan will announce the date of the pecan expert's arrival as quickly as he is notified.

JUNCTION STATE BANK HOLDS DIRECTOR'S MEET

The regular semi-annual meeting of directors of Junction State Bank and Junction Cattle Loan Co. was held July 5. The showing for the first half of 1927 was very gratifying; $5,000 was placed to the surplus account of the Junction Cattle Loan Co., bringing that surplus to $25,000, which is equal to the capital stock. This is an unusually good showing for the company, it having been chartered in June, 1922, and has paid good dividends each year and builded their surplus equal to capital. The most pleasing thing to the stockholders was a 5 per cent dividend on Bank and Cattle Loan Co. stock. There is one thing Junction and Kimble County should be proud of and that is the largest country State Bank in the State. Combined capital and surplus of Junction State Bank and Junction Cattle Loan Co., one quarter of a million, with several thousand undivided profits.

TEXAS AND TEXANS.

(By Will H. Mayes.)

Misunderstand Texas Trip

The 125 Texans who toured the North and East on a special train for the purpose of making Texas understood by the cities visited appear to have succeeded in making Texas more misunderstood. The party was headed by Governor Dan Moody, and despite all he and members of the party said to the contrary, the Eastern people insisted that the tour was political in purpose and intended to exploit Moody as a prospective candidate for vice president. No effort has been made on the part of the Easterners to conceal the fact that they believed the Texans were more interested in Moody's political fortunes than in making Texas better known to them. The newspapers largely ignored any other interpretation of the visit, however much the Texans tried to tell them of the wonderful resources of our great State. In fact a large number of the papers almost ignored the visitors altogether, giving small space and inconspicuous position to the visit. Even the Texas daily papers gave little space to the trip as a Texas constructive news item.

Home Missionary Effort

The facts stated in the foregoing paragraph lead to a restatement of an opinion several times expressed in these articles, which is that the greatest field for making Texas understood is right here in Texas. That has all along been the prime purpose of the articles—to bring Texans to knowing more about what is being done thruout the State and through that to a greater interest and pride in Texas achievements. Once get the people of Texas to a complete understanding of what we have here and what can be done with our wonderful resources and they will in numerous ways carry the information to the people outside the State. Too many Texans have what is called an "inferiority complex" when it comes to the possibilities right about us. When that is removed through knowing Texas better, and not until then, Texans will become information missionaries, carrying the glad tidings to other States.

Work of the Texas Press

The removal of this "inferiority complex" will, to a large extent, have to be the work of the Texas Press, which should use every effort to teach Texas and preach Texas to Texas people. Most newspapers, especially in the smaller cities and towns, become too localized. Often this is because local conditions are such that the papers feel they must spend their efforts to improve these even to the neglect of what appear to be outside efforts. This writer has long had the opinion that the best way to interest people in improving local conditions is by showing them what others are doing to help themselves, and that is why these articles are written. The papers that use them seem to think they are serving their purpose—not in a way to show any remarkable results, but gradually and effectively. The press is the greatest medium of information. A press constant in its enthusiasm for Texas can impart its enthusiasm to those it reaches.

Texas Tourist Camps

The association that gathers data on Texas tourist camps says that many of the modern tourist camps are full to overflowing every night, while others are full on the night of each week. It concludes that the modern well-equipped camp, when well managed, is a success and as permanent a business institution as a hotel. Some places, however, have overdone the building of camps just as other businesses are overdone in some places. There are now something over 300 tourist camps in Texas, about 100 of which may be classed as modern, comfortable stopping places for tourists. The places that have the best camps are the places that are best pleased with the tourist business.

Texas Textile Mills Prosper

Texas mills in the State, of which the number is entirely too small, are prospering, and they have prospered through the "hard times" through which the Northern mills have been going. Textile manufacturing in this State has passed the experimental stage where local capital can be exploited through the construction of local mills, built with the idea that they will soon be allowed to fail, after which the stock will pass into the hands of exploiters who will then make the mills successful. In other words the textile industry in Texas is now built and run on solid, substantial, and approved business lines.

Pecan Growers to Meet

The Texas Pecan Growers' Association will hold a meeting at Gonzales July 12-14, at which every phase of the pecan growing business will be discussed. Pecan growing in Texas has become a business, but it needs to be studied like other business. Last year 350 carloads of pecan were gathered and marketed, bringing something like $1,750,000, which the growers think was less than half their value, when compared with other nuts. Marketing of pecans is not systematized and orderly, profitable marketing is now perhaps the most difficult problem confronting growers. Growers receive too little and brokers get too much, is the contention of the industry.

Collin County Onions

That South Texas is not the only section where onions may be grown with profit is shown by reports coming from Collin county, where onion growers have netted from $200 to $300 an acre on the crop just gathered. Almost every section of Texas where there is a light soil and enough rainfall can grow onions to the profit of the growers.

Camp County Potatoes

Camp county farmers have made money this year growing Irish potatoes, Pittsburg having shipped forty-two carloads at prices ranging from $3.00 to $4.35 a hundred pounds. One farmer with the use of commercial fertilizer realized $625 from one acre of spuds. What can be done in Camp can be done in one hundred other counties in Texas.

George Neu Passes On

George Neu, who was elected president of the Texas Press Association at its recent meeting, died from the stroke of paralysis which he suffered while on the way to the El Paso meeting, and his death has grieved the newspaper people and numerous other friends. He was a good man, faithful to the press, to the people and to his trusts, an ideal newspaper worker whose place can never quite be filled.

PREPARING FOR SHEEP AND GOAT MEN

Kerrville, Texas, July 6.—All roads for the sheep and goat men lead to "Kerrville" where preparations are being made to stage the greatest convention in the twelve years history of the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association of Texas on July 19, 20 and 21.

The housing situation in a resort city of Kerrville, where the tourist tide is at its height in mid-summer, has been solved by the whole-hearted spirit of cooperation shown by citizens, who have agreed to throw open their homes to the visiting delegates and their families. R. A. Franklin, chairman of the housing committee, is making a systematic check of the city and plenty of room is assured for all who attend the big three-day meeting. Officials and executive committeemen, as well as many members of the association, already have reservations at downtown hotels.

Representatives of other allied associations from all parts of the United States have made reservations, and the Kerrville meeting will be attended by buyers for the Russian government and a large sugar corporation in Porto Rico. Best breeders in the country have entered animals for the three-day auction sale, which will be the daily feature on the convention program.

Ally Beitel, chairman of the entertainment committee, and his co-workers are going to pull some surprises on the visitors just to show them what a Kerrville welcome really is.

The official convention program is now being arranged by president T. A. Kincaid of Ozona and the executive committee.

A GARDEN REDUCES COST OF LIVING

College Station, Texas.—The average family's grocery bill can be lowered at least $150 a year if a family garden is cultivated and the vegetables are properly conserved. J. F. Roshorough, horticulturist of the Extension Service, A. & M. College of Texas, said in a recent radio talk on care and conservation of vegetables, broadcast over Station WTAW, the A. & M. College broadcasting station.

"Tomatoes, cabbage, or other garden products, if allowed to go to waste represent simply a loss of labor and the loss is indicative of that which could have been done had not the negligence of the person allowing the waste caused the bulk of the crop to become a loss. Later in the year, the same person who has allowed the tomatoes to go to waste in the summer, will go to the grocery store and buy this very product in cans.

"Vegetables and other food products are not conserved solely by canning. A waste of food materials may come from allowing insects to devour the very food intended for ourselves. It is necessary that a constant guard be kept in the gardens for insect enemies. Then if the insect army is evaded and the garden is about to develop into maturity with an abundance of nourishing products, the weather may become dry and hot suddenly and thus present a new menace. It is economy in vegetable yields never to let the garden suffer for moisture. A thorough dust mulch or mulch made by piling old oat straw along the rows several inches deep next to the plants, affords a certain amount of protection from the sun's rays and also consumes moisture and prevents cracking of the soil. A small two-horse power engine and pump will irrigate one quarter of an acre or less of ground from the family well for less than the vegetables would cost on the market over a given period and would insure an abundance of late vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers, pumpkins, storage into the fall.

"Probably the most common way of preventing vegetables from going to waste is by storing away the products when they reach maturity. This may be done by canning or storage. It is difficult to keep certain vegetable products, such as string beans, peas, spinach, and other vegetables under average temperatures unless they are canned. But with other vegetables, such as beans, potatoes, onions, turnips, cushaws and ternelons and cantaloupes, allowing spring months may be employed."
