Reaction to Reagan speech divided

Candidates differ widely

By T. LEE HUGHES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — To Rep. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, the president's station of the union address "was a strong and effective reaffirmation of the program we have worked for for three years" and an "effective agenda for 1984 and the remainder of the decade."

However, state Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said, "I think if the president's speeches worked as well in the real world as they do on television, we wouldn't have any problems. (But) the average Texan lives on a different channel."

Gramm and Doggett are among the candidates seeking the Republican or Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated with the retirement of Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

And those candidates differed widely in their assessment of the Reagan policies outlined in the president's state of the union address Wednesday night.

"I think he was trying to lay the groundwork for his re-election," said Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, who is seeking the Democratic nomination, saying that "there was a lot of campaign language involved in the speech."

Hance said he was disappointed the president's address did not deal with the issue of deregulating natural gas nor with the plight of farmers. Agriculture is in its "worst state since the 30s" and the speech should have contained at least "one line recognizing it was a problem," said Hance.

"The (speech) itself obviously was necessarily very generalized," said former Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels, who is seeking the Democratic nomination again after narrowly losing to Tower in 1978.

Krueger praised Reagan's suggestion that representatives of congressional leaders and the administration sit down to try to work out ways of cutting the federal deficit.

But Krueger said Reagan "did not seem to be ready to assume any responsibility" for the deficits, though he and the Congress have "given us the largest deficit by far of any government in history."

However, Robert A. Mosbacher Jr. of Houston, who is seeking the Republican nomination, said he did not think Reagan's appeal for a bipartisan solution to the growing deficit would work in an election year.

"I think frankly it's not going to happen in 1984 because it's a political year," said Mosbacher. However, he called the address "a good, positive track-record speech coupled with some realistic goals for things we can work towards.'

Rep. Ron Paul, R-Lake Jackson, who is seeking the Republican nomination, said establishing an ad hoc bipartisan commission to try to work out the problems of the deficit "is a politically realistic thing to do." But Paul said, "We don't need another commission to tell us what to do. We need to vote to cut spending."

Paul said he was generally pleased with the president's speech but was disappointed that Reagan called for keeping the U.S. Marines in Lebanon.

Midlanders follow parties

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Midlanders from the Democratic and Republican sides agreed on one thing about President Reagan's State of the Union address: He gives a good speech.

And while the Republicans contacted by the Reporter-Telegram unanimously gave a verbal applause to the Wednesday night talk, the Democrats pointed out what they didn't hear.

Janet Massey, Democratic county chairman, disagreed with Reagan's opening assessment that "America is back, standing tall." Last year he had talked of seeing an America on the mend, and she still thinks there are a lot of holes in the economy to be mended.

"Hopefully, America is on its way back," she said. "But we still have a lot of people looking for food, for jobs, for shelter."

Reagan Legg thought it "was a great speech," but the president "slid over some of the more important issues like lack of fairness in his tax policies and administration of programs to the poor."

Reagan's suggestion to set up a bi-partisan committee to tackle the budget deficits and agree on cuts was a good idea, said several of those contacted. But they don't believe it will work with local Republicans saying the Democrats in Congress won't agree with the cuts.

Ernest Angelo Jr., a member of the National Republican Committee, said the committee idea is a good move. "But I don't believe the Democratic leadership will attempt to make progres in reducing those deficits. If Congress thinks they can blame the President for it, they are sorely mistaken."

Until this past year, the Democrats never paid attention to budget deficits, Angelo charged.

He predicted it will take at least five years to get the budget balanced and acknowledged Reagan had said the same thing four years ago. "But no one was willing to work on it."

Bob Monaghan, a member of the State Republican Executive Committee, contended the Democrats would "drag their feet" on budget cuts. He viewed Reagan's words as "putting the Democrats on notice to to do something about the deficits."

Lou Brown, past president of Texas Federation of Republican Women, supports the president's call for a balanced budget constitutional amendment. "The budget should be balanced. It's the only way they're going to stabilize the economy and stop this roller coaster ride."

If the balanced budget theory works for the states, it can work on the federal level, according to Angelo. Efforts to pass a balanced budget amendment have failed in the past, he noted. But "if everyone is so concerned about the budget deficits, I think it may have a chance."

He also supported another suggestion of Reagan's and that was the line item veto. Although 43 states use it, the president is prohibited. "He proved in California he could handle it. It's been exercised by a lot of govenors well in Texas."

Leaders see 'few specifics'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's appeal to Congress to join him in a down payment on trimming deficits is being met by skepticism from Democrats and praise by Republicans, but leaders of both parties agreed his election-year address offers few specifics for stemming the flow of government red ink.

Reagan, delivering his third State of the Union address to Congress Wednesday night, outlined his goals for 1984 and took general credit for the nation's economic recovery, claiming "we can report and be proud of one of the best recoveries in decades."

"America is back, standing tall," Reagan declared in a speech laden with patriotic broad strokes and appeals to traditional U.S. values that could set the stage for his expected Sunday announcement of re-election candidacy.

In a proposal that prompted sharp partisan reaction, Reagan called for establishment of a bipartisan White House-Congress group to find ways to start trimming federal deficits.

Reagan called this a "down payment" on cutting deficits and said it would entail less-controversial budget cuts and elimination of government waste — hopefully trimming deficits by as much as $100 billion over the next three years.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said today that he envisioned cuts of $10 billion-$20 billion in fiscal 1985 and $50 billion-$60 billion in the following year.

Reagan restated his opposition to chopping defense spending or cutting deficits with tax increases, but said some savings could be achieved through closing tax loopholes and simplifying the U.S. tax code.

Regan, asked on the NBC-TV "Today" show whether defense spending would be a subject for discussion, said, "Everything is negotiable.... Nothing is non-negotiable."

An undercurrent of presidential-year politics ran through Reagan's address before a national radio and televison audience, with Democrats and Republicans at one point engaging each other in an applause duel.

When Reagan told Congress "We must bring federal deficits down," Democrats gave exaggerated, rowdy applause, interrupting him in mid-sentence. When he finished the sentence by saying, "but how we do that makes all the difference," Republicans cheered and applauded loudly while Democrats lapsed into silence.

Sailor denies Navy oath to take monastic vows

BECHTELSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Saying he felt partly responsible for the death of an American flier in Lebanon, a sailor on the USS John F. Kennedy began refusing to eat or work. Now, discharged by the Navy, he is becoming a "witness for peace" — by entering the priesthood.

Nicholas Patrick, 33, said he felt like he had "blood on my hands" when two U.S. warplanes were shot down by Syrian forces Dec. 4 after taking off from the aircraft carrier on which he was stationed.

"I was partly responsible for people getting killed, even though I didn't push the button," Patrick said in a recent interview. "I just couldn't be part of that. I had to get out.

"The Navy, I guess, was glad to get rid of me," he said. "They said I was a detriment to morale."

Patrick, who is from the Scranton area but is now living with friends in this southeast Pennsylvania town, is reading the Bible and preparing to enter a Franciscan monastery where he will take vows of poverty, chastity and obedience while studying for the priesthood.

"Every night, I still dream I'm on the ship and back in the Navy. I just wish it would finally be over," he said.

Patrick said he knew both Lt. Mark A. Lange, who was killed when one of the planes was shot down over Lebanon during a bombing raid on Syrian positions, and Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr., who was held prisoner of war by the Syrians for 30 days.

Dennis Klauer, a Navy spokesman in Washington, confirmed the basic facts of Patrick's account, but said the Navy could not "for now" provide details.

Patrick said he has chosen to tell his story now because "I want to be a witness for peace."

After four years in the Air Force from 1969 to 1973, Patrick earned a bachelor's degree at the University of Scranton and was already enrolled in a seminary when he "got scared" of making the commitment. "I didn't feel I was ready," he explained.

He dropped out, went to work at a children's home for a year and then enrolled in another seminary, from which he also dropped out.

He couldn't find a steady job and so, at age 30, he made what he now calls "one of the worst, non-thought-out decisions of my life" — to re-enter the armed services.

Chad shoots down French plane

PARIS (AP) — Pinning apparent blame on Libya, France said today an armored unit from rebel-controlled northern Chad shot down a French warplane after raiding government positions.

Libya claimed rebels shot down two French fighter jets in the clash on Tuesday and warned against intervention by "foreign parties," its official news agency, JANA, said.

French military sources said two French military planes — a Jaguar and a Mirage F-1 escort — were hit by ground missiles. The Mirage returned to base safely but the Jaguar was shot down and its pilot died after bailing out, they said. His body has not been recovered, the sources said.

Three French planes — the Mirage F-1 and two Jaguars — had attacked the raiding rebel column, the French Foreign Ministry said.

There was no word on rebel casualties.

A Belgian doctor, a Belgian nurse and 12 Chadians were captured in the raid, the French Foreign Ministry said. On Wednesday, Belgium said it had lodged a protest with Libya.

The Belgian captives were identified as Dr. Christian Delzenne and nurse-midwife Marie-Chantal Rouckens, both workers for Doctors without Borders.

The French Foreign Ministry said today that "Libya seems to bear the responsibility" for Tuesday's clash.

France "cannot hide the seriousness of the events which have taken place in Chad," said a ministry spokesman, who, according to procedure, spoke on the condition that he not be identified.

France's defense minister, Charles Hernu, met with President Francois Mitterrand and Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson to discuss Chad.

The military sources said the French aircraft destroyed about 15 vehicles, including two gasoline tanks, of 20 in a rebel group which infiltrated a defense line established by French forces across central Chad. The sources said four or five vehicles escaped into the desert.

Skinny 9-year-old boy credited with saving his stepfather's life

JAMESTOWN, N.D. (AP) — A farmer pinned beneath a car that had slipped off a jack says he's alive because his skinny 9-year-old stepson kept calm, got help and even lifted the car high enough once so he could breathe.

"He was very scared, but he held it together," Rique Schill said Wednesday of his stepson, Jeremy Shipley. "We're very close. We're like father and son."

"If it hadn't been for him, I know I would have died," said Schill, who works on a farm 13 miles south of Jamestown. "I was starting to panic. I couldn't breathe."

Schill, 31, was recovering from broken chest cartilage and bruised ribs. He was released Tuesday from the Jamestown Hospital, but said he was staying with relatives about a block away in case his condition worsened.

He was working under the family car when it slipped off the jack. The rear axle pushed into his chest.

Are Cuban troops leaving Ethiopia?

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

DIRE DAWA, Ethiopia — There is no sign yet that the Cuban army force around this railway town is breaking camp. But in Addis Ababa, the capital, Western diplomats predict a withdrawal of as many as half the 10,500 Cuban soldiers estimated to be in Ethiopia.

The diplomats, who spoke on condition that they not be identified, said Soviet and East German envoys have spoken candidly to them of such a pullout from this East African nation.

U.S. officials in Washington said earlier this month that the 10,500 figure is itself a reduction from a high of 12,000 to 13,000 Cubans in Ethiopia.

The Cuban soldiers and pilots arrived here in 1977-78 to strengthen Ethiopia's ilitary regime following the capture of the Ogaden region of southeastern Ethiopia by neighboring Somalia, for centuries a military rival in the Horn of Africa.

With the Cubans' help and the infusion of an estimated $1 billion worth of Soviet weapons, the Ethiopians pushed the Somali forces out of the Ogaden.

There have been few recent forays by Somali-backed guerrillas, and Ogaden war refugees have begun to return to the area from camps in Somalia, according to United Nations and Red Cross officials.

There is no attempt to conceal the continued presence of the foreign troops, which stayed on at Ethiopia's request as a security guarantee.

A visitor to Dire Dawa recently saw a field exercise by a Cuban armored unit just outside town. Off-duty Cuban soldiers, wearing floppy cotton campaign hats and uniforms, were seen at Dire Dawa's "Taiwan Market," a bazaar named for the origin of some of the smuggled jeans and T-shirts on sale.

At present, the Cubans are found in areas not far from the Somali border, including the outskirts of the ancient walled city of Harar and at Jijiga, the diplomatic sources in Addis Ababa said.

There was little agreement in diplomatic circles on a possible motive for a pullout, if indeed one does occur. Some cited the high cost of maintaining two brigades here, but others asserted that only a small fraction of the cost is borne by Ethiopia and that the Soviets most likely are helping to defray the expense.

Few have spoken of a rift in Cuban-Ethiopian relations, although Cuba once supported the Marxist guerrillas fighting for autonomy in the northern province of Eritrea; President Fidel Castro of Cuba once offered to mediate the 22-year-old conflict.

One observer said that with an army of about 300,000 now, Ethiopia has no need for 10,000 foreign troops. "And it hurts the self-esteem and self-respect of any professional army to see them still here," he added.

Most diplomats expect the Cubans to return home by ship from the Red Sea port of Assab.

They said there was no confirmation of reports that the Cubans might join the 20,000 or so other Cubans now in Angola, in southwest Africa.

Cubans have been in Angola since the mid-1970s, first helping the government there win a civil war which brought it to power following independence from Portugal in 1975.

They have stayed on as a strategic reserve in the government's continuing struggle with pro-Western UNITA guerrillas and to train and provide logistic support for nationalist guerrillas fighting to wrest the territory of South-West Africa (Namibia) from South African control.

As in Angola, the Cubans are said to be more popular with the local population than the Soviet advisers assigned here.

The Soviets, in Ethiopia in far smaller numbers than the Cubans, are described by various Ethiopian sources as being aloof, clannish and even racist. The Cubans, coming from a multiracial society, get on better with local residents despite the language barrier, the sources added.

"The Cubans work with us, share our sorrows," said a resident of Dire Dawa, perhaps referring to the several hundred Cubans estimated to have been killed during the 1977-78 Ogaden conflict.

Cuban units have volunteered to build playgrounds and a small stadium in Jijiga and are now working on a brewery project in Harar, the resident said.

The Cubans' round, cotton hats are now common throughout the countryside, on the heads of Ethiopian farmers or traders of a widely used narcotic called khat.

The hats are sold for pocket money, enabling the Cubans to buy the local beer.

Brazil seeks presidential election

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — More than 150,000 people rallied to press the military government for direct presidential elections. Organizers called the peaceful demonstration the largest ever in Sao Paolo.

The government put the army on the alert, and 5,000 unarmed policemen kept an eye on the rally Wednessday. It was sponsored by the nation's largest opposition party, the Brazilian Democratic Movement.

Since a military coup in 1964, the president has been selected by the military and confirmed in a rubber-stamp election by the electoral college.

The government of President Joao Figueiredo, a retired general, "won't be able to ignore this rally," said congressman Ulysses Guimaraes, head of the Democratic Movement.

"This rally is of fundamental importance because Sao Paulo is like a huge drum that, when beaten, echos throughout the country," Guimaraes told The Associated Press.

Many in the crowd waved banners saying "I want to vote for president" or "Direct elections — the beginning of a new Brazil." Demonstrators cheered and sang along with musicians and singers performing songs about elections.

"The entire nation is united around the ideal of direct election," Leonel Brizola, the opposition governor of Rio de Janeiro, told the crowd. He called the rally "a turning point in Brazilian history."

A recent poll by the Gallup Institute indicated 81 percent of the population favors direct elections for president, but the government so far has insisted on keeping the electoral college.

Andre Franco Montoro, an opposition leader who is governor of Sao Paulo, said the rally was the largest political demonstration in the history of Sao Paulo.

The demonstrations are expected to climax with a rally in Brasilia, the nation's capital, on April 3, a week before Congress votes on a constitutional amendment that would establish direct elections for president.

A week ago, about 40,000 people demonstrated for direct elections in Salvador, in the state of Bahia, and in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, tens of thousands of people protested laws limiting salary increases passed by Congress last year.

The electoral college that will choose Figueiredo's successor in January 1985 consists of the federal Senate, the House of Representatives, and six delegates from the majority party of each of Brazil's 23 states.

Figueiredo's military-backed Social Democratic Party has a majority in the electoral college as a result of the 1982 national elections.

In those elections — for all offices in Brazil except president and vice president — Figueiredo's party got only about 30 percent of the vote. But it won control of the electoral college because of rules giving small rural states disproportionate representation.

Supporting the campaign for direct elections are all four opposition parties, the Roman Catholic Church, the Brazilian Bar Association, labor unions and student groups.

The outlawed Brazilian Communist Party took part in the rally on Wednesday. Its members carried red banners decorated with its symbol, the hammer and sickle.

Wednesday was the 430th anniversary of the founding of Sao Paulo, Brazil's largest city.

Soviet Union delivers frigate, submarine to Cuban government

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has delivered a second 2,300-ton Koni Class guided-missile frigate and a third diesel-powered attack submarine to Cuba, a Pentagon official disclosed Wednesday.

The new frigate is armed with four twin surface-to-air missile launchers, four twin 76mm gun mounts and two 12-barreled anti-submarine weapons. It has a mine-laying capability and a crew of 130 officers and men.

When the first Koni frigate was turned over to Cuba in September 1981 a Navy spokesman told Copley News Service:

"Delivery of this ship to (President Fidel) Castro gives Cuba its first real ocean-going surface navy capability. Additional deliveries could make Cuba at least a minor naval power in the Caribbean."

The new frigate and a third 2,400-ton Foxtrot Class submarine were delivered to Castro "within the week," the Pentagon official said.

Before the arrival of the first Koni, the largest surface units in the Cuban navy were four 380-ton Soviet-built patrol craft of the Kronstadt Class.

Shamir, Kohl hold their third meeting

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, bruised but unruffled by a traffic accident, met today with Helmut Kohl after the West German chancellor said he would work to bring Israel and Jordan together for peace talks.

The two leaders met for 90 minutes in Shamir's office and emerged smiling after their third meeting since Kohl arrived Tuesday.

They had planned to meet Wednesday night, but the session was canceled because of a lengthy Parliament debate over Shamir's economic policies. The bitter debate ended with Shamir's backers defeating no-confidence motions on a 62-56 vote.

Shamir, 68, was bruised in a traffic accident this morning on the way to Jerusalem but was released from the hospital after an hour of tests. He told reporters, "I was not hurt. They did some tests and the results were positive and I am returning to work."

The prime minister said he was slightly bruised when he was thrown across the back seat of his limousine after an unmarked police vehicle crashed into his car. The police inspector driving the unmarked car also was reported slightly hurt.

Early today, Kohl conferred with Shimon Peres, leader of the opposition Labor Party which had pressed the bid to unseat Shamir.

Peres said he told Kohl that Europe had wasted too much time trying to bring Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat into peace negotiations. Instead, Peres said he told Kohl that Europe "can help bring us together with Jordan" and he said Kohl "agreed 100 percent."

Peres quoted Kohl as saying he had spoken to Jordan's King Hussein and believes the monarch "is seeking peace."

Shamir has called for Hussein to join peace negotiations on the basis of the 1978 Camp David accords. Jordan has refused, saying the autonomy for Palestinians envisioned by Camp David fell short of Palestinian aspirations for statehood.

Shamir and Kohl reviewed the Middle East situation during one 90-minute session Wednesday, and Shamir said the only path to peace Israel will follow is outlined in the Camp David agreement, his spokesman said.

Spokesman Avi Panzer said the two men reviewed peace plans offered by the 1982 Arab summit, President Reagan and the European Community, and Shamir steadfastly opposed proposals he considers one-sided.

Shamir considered "all these ideas to be non-starters," Panzer told reporters.

The Arab summit at Fez, Morocco, called for an independent Palestinian state.

Reagan accused of 'deceit'

MOSCOW (AP) — A member of an often-harassed independent peace group in the Soviet Union has accused President Reagan of "lies and deceit," according to the official Soviet news agency Tass, which published his letter to Reagan.

Tass said the open letter was from Oleg Radzinsky, a 25-year-old Moscow man sentenced last fall to a year in jail and five years' internal exile for what were termed anti-Soviet activities.

Authorities have harassed Radzinsky's peace group since its formation 20 months ago.

Hong Kong talks to resume

PEKING (AP) — Chinese and British negotiators today ended two days of talks on Hong Kong's future status and agreed to meet again Feb. 22-23 in Peking.

A brief statement issued after adjournment did not elaborate on the substance of the eighth round of talks on the status of the British colony. China's Communist government says it will reassert sovereignty over Hong Kong by 1997, when Britain's lease on most of the colony expires.

U.S. Air Force plane crashes

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A U.S. Air Force fighter plane en route to training exercises in the Philippines crashed on Luzon Island but its pilot ejected safely and was rescued eight hours later, the U.S. Embassy said today.

The embassy said Capt. Michael Keane, 29, of Mount Propect, Ill., had no sign of injuries when he was found Wednesday, more than eight hours after his F-16 aircraft crashed in a hilly, uninhabited area 90 miles north of Clark Air Base and about 140 miles north of Manila.

The plane, assigned to the 8th Tactical Fighter Wing at Kunsan Air Base in South Korea, was en route to Clark for training with Philippine-based U.S. planes and the Philippine air force, the embassy said.

Uruguay election in jeopardy

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Uruguay's elections are in jeopardy because military leaders who promised them have become alarmed by trials of former military chiefs of neighboring Argentina, according to political leaders and high government sources here.

But these same sources said in interviews that cancellation of the elections scheduled for Nov. 25 could mean the 11-year-old regime will have to resort to brutal and bloody repression.

"There may not be revolution if there are no elections, but there will be very harsh things, with dead people in the streets," said Enrique Tarigo, leader of the Colorado Party. "No one is indifferent anymore. Everyone is indignant."

France debates press controls

PARIS (AP) — The French National Assembly has begun debate on nearly 2,200 amendments to the Socialist government's proposed bill to regulate ownership of the nation's newspapers.

Officially presented as an update to a 1944 law on the press, the bill is clearly aimed at breaking up the empire of arch-conservative newspaper publisher Robert Hersant.

Druse fighting on two fronts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian-backed Druse militiamen fought on two fronts today, and Syria renewed its tirade against President Reagan for keeping U.S. forces in Lebanon.

In Rome, the Italian news agency ANSA reported that Italy is pulling out 200 more men today from its peacekeeping contingent in Lebanon — part of reductions this month that brought the force down from 2,100 to 1,400 men.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Defense, Col. Alberto Scotti, confirmed that reductions have been taking place but said security reasons prevented him from giving specific figures.

Italian troops serve in Beirut along with servicemen from the United States, France and Britain. Members of the multinational force have been the targets of terrorists and often have been caught in the battles of Lebanon's warring factions.

A U.S. Embassy official in Beirut said today that Americans who have asked the embassy whether they are endangered in Beirut are advised to "reconsider their reasons for being here."

He said he did not know of any Americans leaving the capital since the assassination last week of Malcolm Kerr, president of American University of Beirut.

A Western reporter said she saw two shells crash today near the outer perimeter of the U.S. Marine base at Beirut airport as the Druse and Lebanese army soldiers traded artillery and mortar fire around the hilltop town of Souk el-Gharb and bluffs southeast of the city.

Salvadoran election forum held

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist rebels and army troops battled to control a key eastern province, and six presidential candidates participated in a rare forum to discuss March 25 elections in war-torn El Salvador.

In neighboring Honduras, the government said it was investigating claims by the leftist Nicaraguan government that Honduran troops massacred 200 Indians near the border between the two countries.

Nicaragua late Wednesday issued a new protest, over the alleged kidnapping of 30 Nicaraguan peasants by anti-Sandinista rebels based in Honduras.

In El Salvador, guerrillas attacked Tierra Blanca, on the coastal highway in Usulutan province, where the army launched a counterinsurgency drive last week, the military said.

An armed forces release Wednesday said both sides suffered casualties in the fighting, but gave no figures. An earlier communique said at least 32 insurgents and seven soldiers of the U.S.-trained Atonal battalion were killed Tuesday in Usulutan.

The government extended its "pacification and reconstruction" program into Usulutan last Friday, seeking to drive out the guerrillas. Units are to remain behind to keep rebels from returning while resettlement programs are conducted.

When the program began last June in San Vicente province, rbels left ahead of the army troops. But in Usulutan, military and guerrilla sources say, they are fighting hard for control of the province, a key cotton- and coffee-growing center and logistical base.

Dentist brushing up his business

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — The nervous patient sits in the waiting room, the high-pitched squeal of the drill sending shivers down the spine. The antiseptic smell alone enough to make the palms sweat.

Then out pops the dentist — wearing a giant toothbrush that looks like it's impaled in his head. Or sunglasses with frames made of fang cleaners and bristles for the bridge.

Is this any way to inspire confidence? David Beber, creator of "toothbrush art," says it is indeed.

"The patient in the dentist's chair should know there's a lot more behind dentistry than mechanical manipulations on the teeth," the 37-year-old dentist said recently. "These are cute. They break the ice, break the tension."

For those patients in his waiting room who are calm enough to notice, Beber, who has practiced in Torrance for 7½ years, displays a number of toothbrush creations he's put together with a small gas burner in his office laboratory.

They include "Escargo," a plastic snail made from a heated and curled toothbrush and parts of a brush handle for antennae; "Teething Brush," a variation of the silver spoon that one may be born with in his or her mouth; "Diet Brush," whose skinny handle is more than a foot long; and "Soft Pretzel Brush," a loosely knotted tooth cleaner.

The artistic urge flared in November when Beber took a patient psychology course and decided to shed his white coat for a street clothes.

However, his tie kept dangling in the sink, so he fashioned a tie clip by bending a a toothbrush in half. An idea was born.

Beber said he has given the "art" to patients and friends, but has no plans to market it.

His 6½-year-old son did purchase one work from him — "Aerobic Brushes" — for 2 cents. The boy insisted, Beber said.

Beber loves driving around town wearing his odd-looking sunglasses, and grinning when people pretend they don't notice.

"I like to talk to people," he said. "It's difficult to have an opening."

The sunglasses, created after Beber sat on his own shades, made their public debut during a family outing to Universal Studios.

A group of Japanese tourists "wanted to know if I bought them locally," he said.

Florida executes 66-year-old man

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Anthony Antone, at 66 the oldest inmate on Florida's death row, was electrocuted today for arranging the murder of a private eye. He was the first person executed since reinstatement of the death penalty who did not kill the victim himself.

Antone was strapped into the chair and received 2,000 volts at 7:01 a.m. EST. He was pronounced dead at 7:08, said Vernon Bradford, spokesman for the Department of Corrections.

He was the third prisoner executed in the state and the 12th in the nation since the Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment in 1976.

Antone's last words, the only statement he made, were "The only thing is 'Forgive them Father, for in their ignorance they know not what they do.' And that's it."

Wearing a mask and tied to the chair with leather straps, Antone appeared to struggle against the chin strap fastened after his last statemect to keep him from speaking. He was breathing heavily. When the current came on, he tightened his fists and his chest heaved upward.

There was no reaction from the witnesses, who were ushered out immediately afterward.

Antone was convicted in 1976 of first-degree murder for being a middleman in the Oct. 23, 1975, contract shooting death of Richard Cloud, a private investigator who testified before grand juries probing the underworld. He provided the gun and money for the slaying.

He had been scheduled to be put to death two days ago, but won a temporary stay of execution while his lawyers appealed to U.S. Supreme Court. The appeal was turned down.

Dressing in black pants and a white dress shirt, Antone had to have his head and lower right leg shaved to accommodate the death chair's electrodes.

Prison officials described Antone as "calm but not communicative" after he was told the Supreme Court on Wednesday night had turned down his lawyer's arguments, ruling they had been weighed and rejected before.

About 25 death penalty protesters gathered in a muddy field across from the prison under a steady drizzle. One carried a sign that read, "Gov. Graham guilty of first-degree murder." Also on hand, wearing orange raincoats, were about 10 members of a pro-death penalty group called LOVE, League of Victims and Empathizers.

At the Capitol in Tallahassee, about 35 anti-death penalty protesters conducted a somber demonstration. The protests were considerably smaller than for the last two executions in Florida.

Gov. Bob Graham has signed 68 death warrants since taking office in 1979, including one for Antone that expired during appeals in 1982. Graham said Tuesday, "I believe the time has come to carry out justice."

Antone did not request a special last meal, but was offered steak and eggs between 4 and 4:30 a.m., said Bradford.

Antone sought the reprieve from the Supreme Court on grounds that he was a victim of ineffective counsel. The justices by a 7-2 margin rejected the arguments, the third time they had refused to tamper with Antone's case.

"There are no other forums or issues that we haven't already tried," Scharlette Holdman of the Florida Clearinghouse on Criminal Justice said after the ruling.

"We've had it real, real hard and there've been a lot of times when I wonder how we've stood it this long," Wanda Cloud, the victim's widow, said recently.

Cloud had been a detective with the Tampa police, and became a private eye after he was dismissed from the force.

Antone said he was innocent of charges he arranged and provided weapons for Cloud's slaying, insisting he was a "fall guy."

"I had no knowledge of it," he said during recent interviews.

Antone also said he wasn't afraid because "as far as I'm concerned there's no such thing as death."

The case prompted a mercy plea from all five Roman Catholic bishops in Florida, who argued that violence breeds more violence.

Pope John Paul II joined in a similar plea on behalf of murderer Robert Sullivan, who was put to death in Florida on Nov. 30.

No other state has executed more than one killer since the the 1976 Supreme Court ruling. Antone was one of 211 on Florida's death row, the nation's most populous.

Another killer, Beauford White, is scheduled for electrocution Feb. 7 in the oaken chair where nearly 200 convicted killers, rapists and one kidnapper have died since 1924.

Antone had been scheduled to die Tuesday morning but was granted a temporary stay by a three-judge panel of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

Shortly before the stay expired at noon Wednesday, the full court denied a request for a rehearing, prompting the unsuccessful appeal to the nation's highest court.

Antone punished for murder he hired others to commit

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Anthony Antone, executed in Florida this morning, was convicted of arranging the contract slaying of a former vice detective who had angered mobsters by his drug investigations.

The victim, Richard Cloud, was gunned down Oct. 23, 1975, when he answered his doorbell at home.

Two men accused of being involved in the crime — the triggerman and the man who allegedly put out the contract on Cloud — later committed suicide in jail.

Cloud, despite a reputation of clearing major cases, had been dismissed from Tampa police force after an 11-year career when he refused to take a lie detector test in questioning about allegations of excessive use of police force during an arrest.

Cloud later worked as a private investigator and informant for the FBI and the state Department of Law Enforcement, spending about 90 percent of his time testifying before federal grand juries investigating the underworld.

Authorities said Cloud put heavy pressure on the drug trade reportedly controlled by reputed mobster Victor Acosta.

Acosta allegedly put out the contract for Cloud, and recruited Antone to do the job. Prosecutors said Antone provided the gun and money for the killing.

Benjamin Gilford, the triggerman, confessed to the crime. He later committed suicide while awaiting sentencing in a jail cell in Orlando, authorities said.

Acosta also was found dead in a jail cell in Tampa. He died of a drug overdose that authorities ruled suicide.

Ellis Marlow Haskew, who testified for the prosecution that Antone arranged the killing, was the driver of the getaway car. Haskew received a 35-year prison sentence under a plea bargaining agreement.

Antone's defense attorneys say their client was only a middleman in the murder-for-hire scheme plotted by Acosta. They argued that Antone was not at the scene of the crime.

Local reaction to speech divided

Reagan included an $8 billion manned space station to be built over the next 10 years. Angelo said that didn't mean the entire $8 billion would be appropriated soon. Instead, he said the appropriation would be $150 million next year to get the project started.

Monaghan said he agrees with the concept, saying it may be needed to counteract what Russians are doing in space.

However, he said the cost may come from increased taxes. "I think there will have to be some taxes somewhere."

Monaghan also supported Reagan's idea of revamping the tax code. "I would favor a 10 to 15 percent flat tax rate. My tax form is 1½ inches thick this year. I don't even understand it all."

Legg, however, disagreed, saying that if it means eliminating the deductions for charity and churches most people wouldn't accept it.

It wasn't the major points of the speech that most affected some of the listeners. To Mrs. Brown, the part she liked the best was when the President spoke directly to the Soviet Union ambassador and appealed for peace.

Texas inmates feel executions unlikely

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas Death Row inmates, reacting to a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that halted two executions, predict other legal obstacles will keep the door to the death chamber closed.

The scheduled executions of James David Autry in October and Thomas Andy Barefoot in November were blocked so the high court could decide whether death sentences should be proportionate to lighter sentences given out for similar crimes. The justices rejected the argument Monday.

But condemned prisoners said Wednesday that they were not worried that the ruling would hasten their deaths.

"I've had four stays. If I believed what the state of Texas told me each time I would be dead by now. I didn't believe them then and I don't believe them now," said Thomas Andy Barefoot, a former Louisiana oilfield roughneck who received a stay of execution a year ago Wednesday, just 12 hours before he was to be put to death by lethal injection.

"I don't believe I'm any closer now than I've ever been," said Barefoot, who was convicted in the 1978 shooting death of a Central Texas policeman. Barefoot also had been scheduled to die last month.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox this week predicted Barefoot and fellow inmates Ronald Clark O'Bryan and James David Autry could be executed by summer.

Autry, who was convicted in the 1980 shooting of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk, was strapped to the gurney with a needle in his arm when Justice Byron White granted a stay less than a half hour before his scheduled Oct. 5 execution. White ordered the reprieve and temporarily halted executions in Texas while the high court considered the proportionality issue.

Autry refused to meet with reporters on Wednesday, the only day of the week the Texas Department of Corrections allows interviews with inmates.

But other death row inmates said that while they were surprised by the swiftness of the high court, they were not surprised by the decision.

"I kept thinking that maybe there were some human beings on the Supreme Court, but I didn't have my hopes up," said Billy Hughes, who was ordered to die for the 1976 slaying of a state trooper. "I'm sure there are a lot of D.A.'s (district attorneys) and judges across the state with their slide rules out trying to figure out how soon they can get us."

Navy grants discharge for would-be priest

The Air Force rejected him because of his age, but the Navy took him.

Patrick said he began to realize he was out of place in the military in 1981 when Navy warplanes shot down two Libyan jets.

As a yeoman, he worked as a clerk and typist for an air squadron, where he saw flight crews preparing for combat.

"I was getting more and more concerned," he said.

In 1982, he asked for a discharge as a conscientious objector, but the request was denied.

"Everybody pretty much knew that once bombs were dropped, I would do something. It became almost a joke (among his shipmates).... They knew my feelings, and some of them supported it."

Early on Dec. 4, as the USS Kennedy was lying 60 to 100 miles off the coast of Lebanon in the Mediterranean, a fellow sailor told Patrick, "You're not going to like it — they're going."

When he heard an officer call for attack planes to be raised to the carrier's flight deck, Patrick said he left his post and went to the chaplain's office, where he stayed until the mission was completed.

The chaplain asked him what he planned to do.

"I said I would stop work and then also, to show that I really meant it, I would stop eating too. I was going to force them to either get rid of me or have a death on their hands," he said.

Patrick was charged with unauthorized absence, dereliction of duty and failure to obey the order of a senior commissioned officer when he refused an order to return to work. The squadron commander, he said, "busted" him in rank, stripped him of a month's pay and sentenced him to three days in solitary confinement.

After the three days, Patrick again refused to work. He was again demoted and sent back to the brig. He fasted for 10 days, losing 20 pounds, before the Navy put him on a plane home. He then received a general discharge under honorable conditions.

"I don't say that anybody else should do what I did," said Patrick. "But for me, this was the right thing."

Man falsely accused, his guilty wife both freed

NEW YORK (AP) — A man imprisoned 28 months for murder was cleared after his chief accuser — his ex-wife — testified that it was she who "just kept stabbing" the victim. Then the woman was freed because she had been granted immunity, and was given $20 bus fare home.

On the witness stand in state Supreme Court in Queens on Wednesday, Delissa Durham confessed that she had lied when she accused her former husband, Nathaniel Carter, of the Sept. 15, 1981, stabbing of her foster mother.

Ms. Durham, 25, said she killed Clarice Herndon, 62, with a folding knife following a day-long argument.

"I ran in with the knife and she jumped up and I ran after her," Ms. Durham told a silent courtroom.

"Did the knife make contact with the body?" asked Lawrence Halfond, a Legal Aid lawyer.

"Yes," she replied.

"More than once?," he asked.

"Yes," she said.

"More than twice?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied.

"You just kept stabbing?" he asked.

"Yes," she said.

Mrs. Herndon was found stabbed 23 times in her Queens home.

Despite her confession, Ms. Durham was set free because authorities had promised her immunity from prosecution for murder when she originally testified before the grand jury. She was granted immunity from perjury last week in exchange for clearing her husband.

"I regret that this kind of thing must happen," Queens District Attorney John Santucci said. "But my priority became the freedom of Nate Carter, and I needed to give Delissa immunity so she would tell me what had happened."

Following Ms. Durham's testimony, Justice John Leahy vacated the conviction and sentence against Carter, 33.

"I feel real good," Carter said after the hearing. Hugging his new wife, Kathy, and noting that Wednesday was their second wedding anniversary, he said, "It's a great anniversary."

The district attorney's office gave Ms. Durham the bus fare to return to her home in Connecticut after the hearing.

Nine Texas delegates chosen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine Texas congressmen have been selected as delegates to the Democratic National Convention as House Democrats continue the process of tapping convention delegates.

Four of the Texans selected Wednesday favor Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, three favor former Vice President Walter Mondale, one favors Colorado Sen. Gary Hart and one is uncommitted, according to a survey of their offices.

Up to 14 Texas congressmen were considered likely to be chosen as delegates to the convention before House Democrats complete their selection process today.

The choices will be ratified by the party caucus on Feb. 1.

Texas congressmen chosen on Wednesday and the candidates they favor are:

Rep. Charles Stenholm, Stamford, has endorsed Glenn; Rep. Jake Pickle, Austin, uncommitted; Rep. Abraham Kazen, D-Laredo, leans toward Mondale; Rep. Charles Wilson, Lufkin, leans toward Mondale; Rep. Jack Brooks, Beaumont, supports Mondale.

Also Rep. Martin Frost, Dallas, supports Hart; Rep. Ralph Hall, Rockwall, favors Glenn among announced candidates; Rep. Mike Andrews, Houston, supports Glenn, and Rep. Jack Hightower, Vernon, supports Glenn.

In addition, Rep. Jim Wright, Fort Worth, will automatically be selected to attend the convention because of his position as House majority leader. He is uncommitted.

Overall, Texas will send 200 delegates and 67 alternates to the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco, the third largest delegation at the convention.

The nine Texas congressmen were among 110 being slated in regional meetings of House Democrats.

Shelter not adequate for homeless

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year ago, Mitch Snyder was arrested in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol when he and others staged a demonstration to demand housing for the nation's homeless.

On the anniversary of that event Wednesday, several members of Congress, all Democrats, convened a subcommittee hearing in a shelter Snyder now runs in a federal building six doors from the Capitol. A grateful Snyder told the committee they haven't done enough.

He asked the members "to initiate legislation that will establish in law the right of every American to adequate and accessible overnight shelter."

"We celebrate the use of this building through March 31. But what of the spring?" he asked. "What do we tell these people on the morning of April 1 as we send them back to live on the streets of Washington, D.C.?"

The 1,000-bed shelter is on loan from the General Services Administration, the federal government's building manager, until March 31 when it will be put up for sale. Its inhabitants may then become homeless again.

"Over my dead body," roared Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee's subcommittee on housing and community development, which held the hearing.

Gonzalez, who called the homeless "the ultimate throw-away of a throw-away society," promised he would find a way to make sure that the needy aren't put on the street again.

A $60 million program has been authorized to rehabilitate housing for the homeless, but the money has not been appropriated. The Federal Emergency Management Agency allocated $40 million to private agencies to house the homeless this year, but mayors testifying to the subcommittee said it was not enough.

Chicago Mayor Harold Washington told the committee that at least 12,000 homeless, perhaps as many as 25,000, roam the streets of his city where shelters have a total of only 1,078 beds.

Gov. Mario M. Cuomo of New York estimated the numbers at 60,000 in New York City, 7,000 in St. Louis and 5,000 in Chicago. He said the average age of applicants for public shelter has fallen to 34.

He said the problem comes from high unemployment, the diminishing supply of low-income housing, the trend toward releasing people from mental hospitals and the denial of disability benefits for many who had been receiving them. He said surveys in New York, Boston and San Francisco suggested that a quarter of the homeless are mentally ill.

Mayor Ernest N. Morial of New Orleans, chairman of the Conference of Mayors' task force on joblessness and hunger, said estimates for the country range from 500,000 to 2 million.

Denver Mayor Federico Pena said the homeless even number several thousand in his "growing, healthy Sun Belt city with a strong economy, pleasant climate, high-quality housing stock and well-educated workforce."

"We celebrate the use of this building through March 31. But what of the spring?" What do we tell these people on the morning of April 1 as we send them back to live on the streets of Washington, D.C.?"

Reagan makes many promises

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan promised so much Wednesday night he sounded like John Glenn's caricature of Walter F. Mondale.

Four days from his announcement on whether he will seek a second term, Reagan promised action on fair housing, on women's rights, on the environment, on a space station. Will he trim the federal budget deficit? No promises on that.

Glenn, the senator from Ohio and a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, has sharply criticized Mondale, the former vice president and another Democratic candidate, for promising too much and offering too few details on how he will meet his promises.

"America is nothing if it is not promises," said Mondale, during the Democrats' debate in New Hampshire.

"America is too great for small dreams," said Reagan Wednesday night in his State of the Union address.

Despite repeated references to bipartisanship, Reagan's speech was a preview of a re-election campaign that will strive to stay the course on the tough domestic and foreign policy issues.

In his speech to Congress and the nation, the president was unmoving in his insistence that neither tax increases nor cuts in his defense budget are the way to deal with federal deficits.

Nor did he offer any hint that he was prepared to yield to congressional pressure to pull U.S. Marines out of Lebanon.

The president refrained from any sharp political attacks in his 42-minute speech, preferring instead to wrap himself in the mantle of John F. Kennedy with his call for a vast leap in the space program, and in that of Dwight D. Eisenhower, by recalling the former president and general's statement that the essential struggle "is not merely man against man or nation against nation. It is man against war."

The speech was intended to lay out the president's agenda for the coming year, not so much to tell Congress what he expected of it as much as to shape via television the voters' perceptions of Ronald Reagan.

Reagan's aides made no attempt to hide their view that the State of the Union address in an election year is primarily a political document.

The speech was a compendium of Reagan optimism, as he dusted off the ideas of his 1980 presidential campaign for a new run in 1984 and added a dosage of vintage Reagan cracks, such as that about "the handwringers and doubting Thomases" who questioned the wisdom of his economic program.

Quick decision 'shocks' passengers

ST. LOUIS (AP) — USAir says a pilot was correct to plunge his jet 14,000 feet after losing cabin pressure, causing children aboard to scream and other passengers to appear "in shock."

"He did really what he was supposed to do," said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman John Ellis on Wednesday of the incident 60 miles east of St. Louis on Monday in which no one was hurt.

A crew of four and 59 passengers were aboard the British Aerospace 111 twinjet when a cap came off the cabin ventilation system at 22,000 feet, said David Shipley, assistant vice president for USAir public relations. After diving, the plane continued its flight.

Raid nets $40 million in cocaine

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — A raid at what police say may be the largest cocaine factory ever found in the United States netted $40 million worth of newly processed drugs and five arrests.

Before carrying out the raid Wednesday at a farm 25 miles south of Miami, police evacuated a rural school. Bomb experts were called when police discovered 1,000 gallons of cocaine-purifying ether, with the explosive power to destroy two city blocks.

"It's the best lab I've ever seen," said Arthur Nehrbass, commander of Dade County's Organized Crime Bureau, adding it was probably the biggest ever found in the nation.

Oil masks smell of rotting bats

LAKE CITY, Fla. (AP) — A wintergreen-scented oil sprayed in the walls of a school gymnasium will mask the smell of rotting carcasses of bats gassed by exterminators in an assault that also involved rifles and sticks.

"We shot 'em and beat 'em," said John Buckley, owner of a pest control firm hired to get rid of the bat colony estimated to have numbered between 300 and 500 at Lake City Junior High East.

Fraternity may not be responsible

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — A lawyer for a fraternity facing nine felony charges of selling alcohol at a party says he doubts it can be held responsible even if guests did "drink themselves into oblivion."

City police said several people who had attended a party at the Dartmouth College fraternity on Nov. 13 were found "injured or sick" on the Ivy League campus.

People come from far and wide to feast on chicken-fried alligator

ORANGE (AP) — The dish that prompts people to drive more than a hundred miles to Danny's Fried Chicken is not the one the restaurant's name implies, the manager says.

Chicken you can buy in Houston.

For chicken-fried alligator, you have to go to Orange, on the Texas-Louisiana border.

Robert Melich said his restaurant buys about 500 pounds of gator meat a year from a wholesaler in Metairie, La.

"Some people come in here and they can't believe that we sell alligator meat," he said. "'Who'd eat one of those nasty things?' they ask, but other people come from as far away as Houston to get fried alligator."

Melich said alligator meat is taken from the tail. It is pounded to make it more tender, cut into strips, seasoned with salt and plenty of red pepper, then dipped into the same batter used for chicken and deep fried. It's served with french fries or rice dressing and a biscuit.

Alligator meat can be substituted for other meat in most Cajun recipes, Melich said. Some people cook it with a spicy picante sauce. Others barbecue the meat.

Like chickens, alligators have light and dark meat. The light meat has a texture more like fish or light chicken meat, Melich said. Darker meat is more like dark chicken meat or pork.

"Most people who try it, like it," Melich said.

Others may acquire a taste for the armor-plated lizards this fall, when three southeast Texas counties open the state's first hunting season on alligators since 1969.

Laws protecting alligators have left Texas coastal marshes and swamps teeming with the reptiles, which sometimes crawl out of the woods to invade a swimming pool or dine on a family dog.

Bruce Thompson, the Texas Parks and Wildlife official in charge of drawing up regulations for the hunt this September, said the commission won't decide how many alligators will be harvested until after a gator census is taken in July. But, he said, fewer than 1,000 alligators will probably be harvested during the first hunting season.

Most of the hunters will be doing it as a commercial venture and strict rules will ensure that every alligator killed will be harvested for hides and meat, he said.

An 8-foot alligator's hide will probably sell for $12 to $15 a foot, Thompson said.

The gator's meat is even more valuable. An 8-foot alligator will have about 200 pounds of meat, Thompson said, and that meat will wholesale for $2 to $4 a pound.

The prospect of tons of gator steaks coming out of marshes and swamps has not made Texas Health Department officials happy.

"First it was armadillos and rattlesnakes and now it's alligators," Dennis Baker, director of food programs for the state Health Department said.

The problem is that, unlike most other food animals, alligators can't be brought live to processing plants and slaughtered right before processing.

Ancient Indian culture found in jungles

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Brazilian and U. S. archaeologists are studying the remains of what they believe is the most advanced ancient-Indian culture yet found in South America's tropical jungles.

A village discovered at the mouth of the Amazon River, near the city of Belem, shows a relatively complex community whose inhabitants lived in houses, cooked in specially built ovens and developed ceramics to a high art.

The scientists hope their discovery will shed light on the debate on whether tropical jungle areas gave birth to relatively advanced societies. Many archaeologists claim lowland tropical areas were unable to support the rise of an advanced culture, limiting inhabitants to stone-age, nomadic tribes.

The village found on the giant Marajo Island, in the Amazon Delta area 2,000 miles north of Rio de Janeiro, is far more advanced than other jungle cultures now known.

Between A.D. 500 and 1300, these Indians buried their dead in highly decorated urns and used defined ceremonial areas, both considered signs of a more advanced civilization.

Leading the Marajo Island excavations are Jose Seixas Lourenco, director of the Emilio Goeldi Museum in Belem, and Anna Roosevelt of New York's American Indian Museum.

"Everything we have found is absolutely unprecedented in Amazon archaeology," Lourneco said in an interview here.

Many archaeologists are skeptical that anything similar will be found, but others believe more research in tropical areas is needed, and both sides feel the Marajo discovery is significant.

An important part of the archaeologists' work is aimed at discovering if the small village was settled by natives of the area or was a colony of a tribe that migrated eastward from the Andes, home of the highly advanced Inca civilization of present-day Peru.

The ceramics discovered at the four-acre site are similar to others found along the Amazon and up into the Andes, suggesting that a mountain tribe might have descended the river.

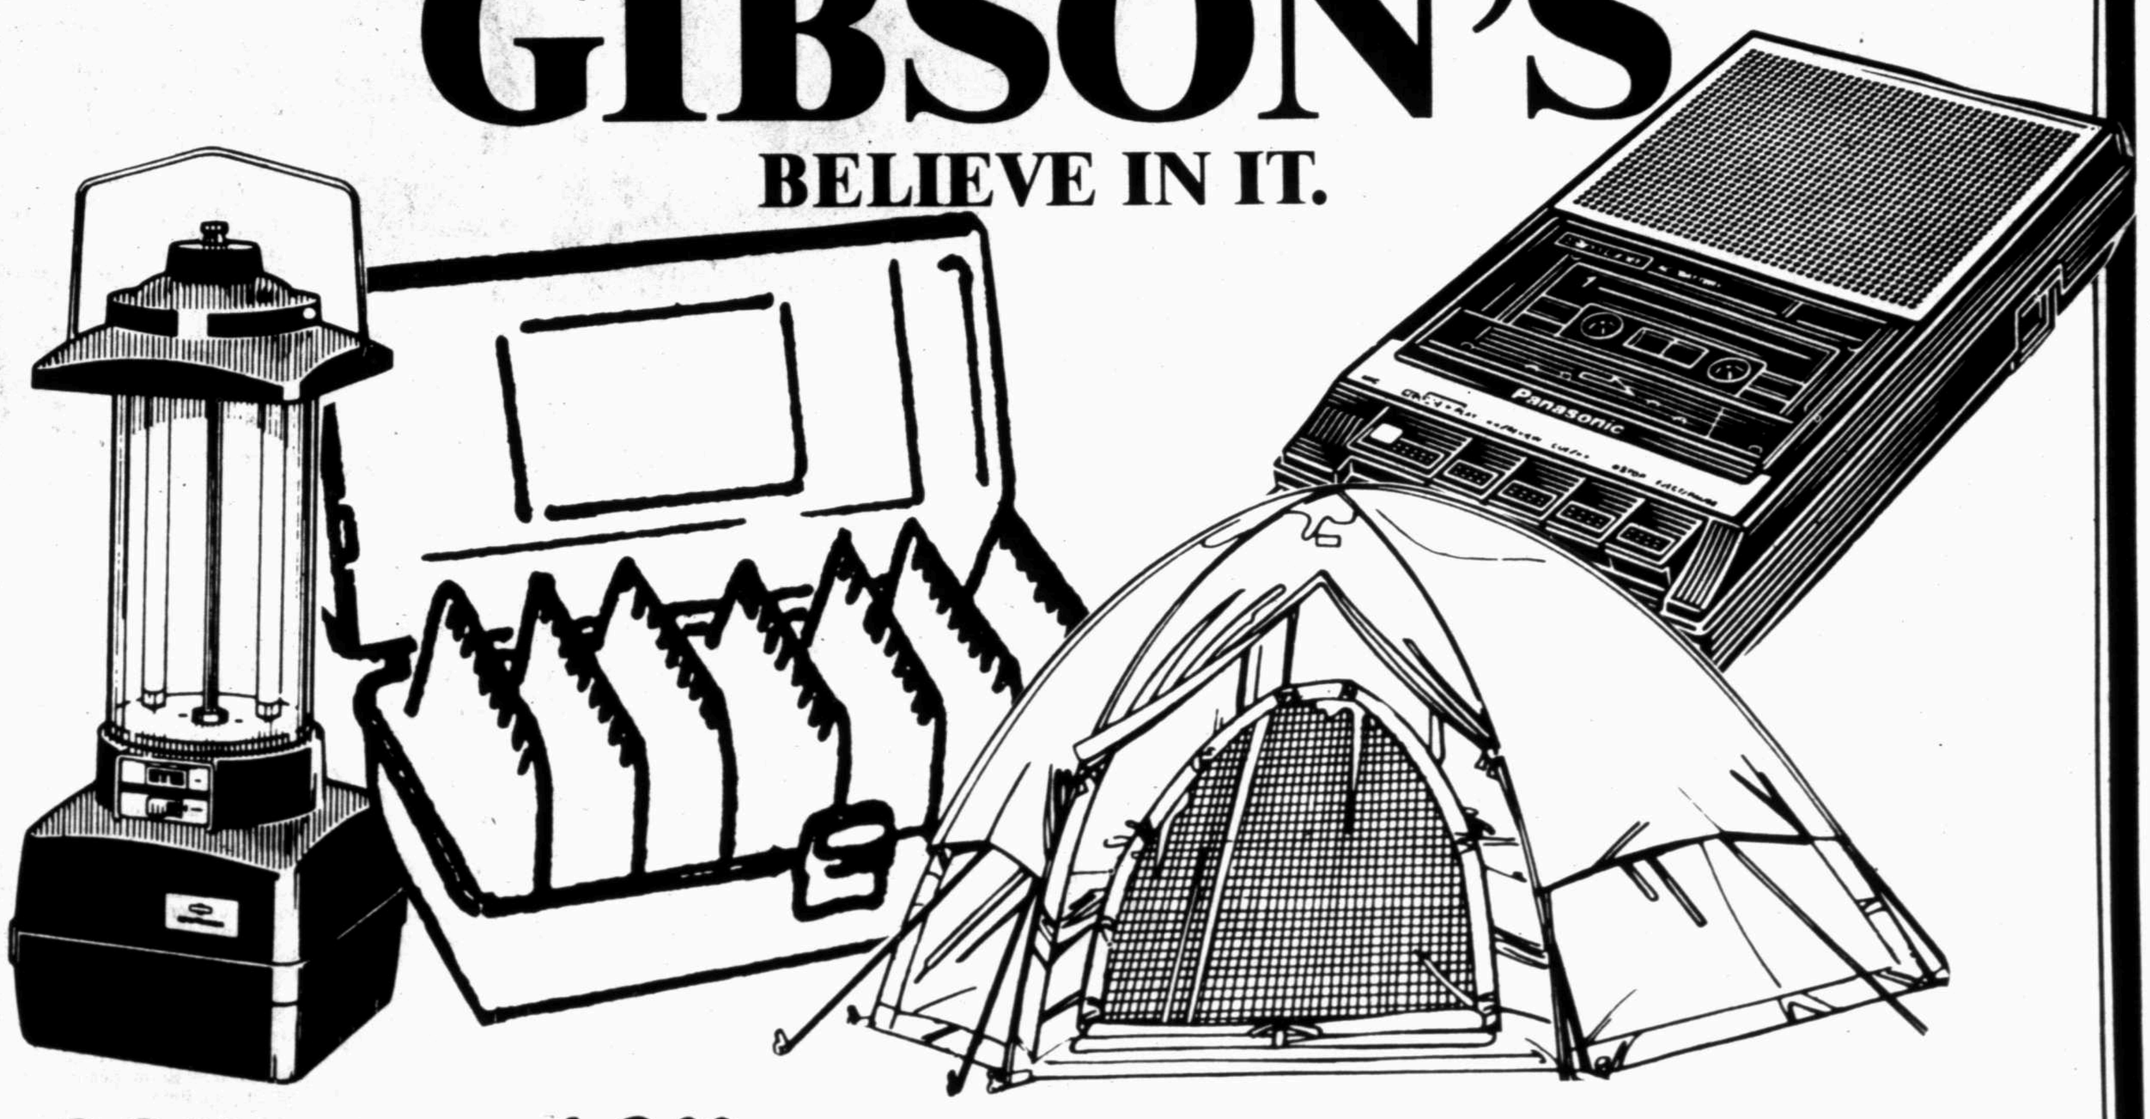

But Lourneco said, "The similarity, in itself, is very weak. There could be cultural factors common to all the tribes in a given area."

The scientists also found homes built from baked mud bricks, and well-designed ovens used for cooking.

The residents used simple ceramic pots in their ovens, but created richly decorated containers for storing food, and carefully crafted urns to hold the bodies of their dead.

These funeral urns will allow the archaeological team to make important studies on the Indians' diet, to see if they supported themselves on food they grew locally. Using sophisticated electronic equipment, the team can also examine human bones to determine the ethnic origin of the Marajo Indians.

Get rich quick!

Nobody but nobody can turn a big oil discovery into bad news, right? Well, consider the case of poor Mexico.

That poor nation below the United States' southern border accomplished that feat. It discovered oil and went broke.

How can a nation do that, you may ask? According to Mexican economist Luis Pazos, it isn't particularly difficult if one follows the recipe for economic disaster.

Pazos says the heart of the problem is that governments have difficulty making good decisions about using wealth. Hmmm! Who would have thought of that. But it's on the level, says Pazos, and he gives supporting evidence in descriptions of what some governments have done after claiming ownership of discovered oil in the name of protecting the interests of citizens.

— Some have "monetized" the sudden wealth, printing money as fast as the new-found oil flowed. Problem is that sets off inflation at a gallop and the general rise in prices hurts everyone.

— Others have spent their new foreign funds domestically, driving down prices and bringing depression to industries engaged in export. Again, the population suffers.

— In some instances, the new oil barons have anticipated future oil production and borrowed against it. The result is that oil wealth became a yoke of staggering debt.

On the other hand, in a country like the United States where any oil find is effectively "owned" by a large number of individuals, the result can be beneficial to everyone in the country.

The oil probably lies under quite a few farms and ranches — or city lots — and any one of the owners or all of them might earlier have sold part-interests in the mineral rights on their lands to others. Then there is the discoverer of the oil, possibly a partnership or maybe a large multinational corporation in which case hundreds or thousands of stockholders around the world share in earnings from the production.

Each owner realizes additional personal wealth and, of course, local taxing entities benefit, too. The end result is a wealthier society, instead of an economically strangled one.

Pazos' story is more than a lesson in basic economics. It's a blueprint of the validity of the free enterprise system and the tragedy of "nationalization" of resources.

More than that, it's proof that "get rich quick" schemes are the best route to the poorhouse.

Healthy concern

Except for life itself, probably the greatest gift that nature can bestow on humankind is sound health. Once granted, however, health must be carefully nurtured and, as Margaret M. Heckler, Secretary of Health and Human Services, has disclosed in her annual report, at ever growing cost.

Mrs. Heckler's department is calling up the services of more and more health professionals despite some budget cuts imposed by the Reagan administration, and, her report shows, with generally salutary results.

Since 1970, the report points out, there has been a 25 percent drop in the death rate for heart disease while deaths from strokes have declined by an impressive 40 percent. Meanwhile, life expectancy has reached a high of 74.5 years and there has been a dramatic reduction in the prevalence of high blood pressure.

But the picture is not entirely satisfactory, as Mrs. Heckler admits. Among blacks and other minorities, the infant mortality rate is twice that for whites and these groups continue to be inflicted with a greater burden of death, illnesses and various disabilities. So far as can be statistically determined, Mrs. Heckler and her staff insist, this disparity can not be attributed to the Reagan budget cuts.

The matter is of obvious concern to Mrs. Heckler and it is reassuring that she has taken positive steps toward overcoming the gap with the formation of a special panel on minority health problems.

Another View:

Decisions, decisions!

Folks, said Ronald Reagan in 1980, this Carter inflation has gotten out-of-hand. Elect me, he said, and I'll cut the budget, balance the budget and lower your taxes. And that will solve our economic problems.

So for these and other reasons the people, or a little over 25 percent of eligible voters, elected Mr. Reagan as president.

True to his word the president convinced Congress to cut income taxes. But to everyone's surprise, unemployment rose and bankruptcies increased. On the other hand, the inflation rate declined.

This has been hailed as a sign of success at the White House. And the president proudly proclaimed that "Last year they were calling it Reaganomics; what will they call it now?"

It is true that the inflation rate has declined to about 3.5 percent, and most business indicators are up. However new plant investment remains sluggish and the number of unemployed is twice as high as when Mr. Reagan took office.

Many economists are worried however. They point out that budget deficits are more than double what they were during the previous administration. And this means that future governments will have to budget much more for debt service, which will add to inflationary pressure.

Certainly the Reagan administration has produced some economic accomplishments. But whether or not the balance is favorable depends on which economists one believes.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

'White Hand' too strong for U.S.

WASHINGTON — President Reagan would like to stamp out the infamous, right-wing "death squads," which have cast a long shadow over the anti-communist cause in Latin America.

Jack Anderson

It won't be easy. Here are the reasons:

— Our own Central Intelligence Agency may have helped to set up the first death squads in Guatemala. They evolved out of the National Liberation Movement, a paramilitary-political organization which overthrew leftist president Jacobo Arbenz in 1954 with the not-so-covert aid of CIA agents.

— The CIA has continued to maintain contacts inside the death squads. The Reagan administration, therefore, knows more than it cares to admit about the composition and operations of the death squads. In fact, the administration has given a list of death squad leaders to the interim civilian president of El Salvador, Alvaro Magana.

— Some death squads operate through the World Anti-Communist League. This was once a respectable association of ultraconservative groups, but it has come increasingly under the influence of extremist, even neo-Nazi organizations. Nevertheless, some of Reagan's staunch supporters continue to sympathize with the league.

— The president has solid intelligence that hardcore revolutionaries, trained and indoctrinated by the Soviets and Cubans, have moved into key positions in the rebel movements of Central America. The only way to stop the spread of communist influence in our back yard, White House aides say, is to bolster anti-communist governments in the region. But the death squads are so deeply entrenched in these governments that it is almost impossible to extricate them.

I have been investigating the death squads, which operate throughout Latin America under the name of La Mano Blanca (White Hand). In the cause of executing communists, they have slaughtered tens of thousands of suspected leftists — including four U.S. churchwomen — without the formalities of a trial. All it takes is a loose rumor or accusation to bring a death sentence upon an entire family.

La Mano Blanca's political assassins are protected by a Mafia-like code of loyalty and silence. One of the rare sources who dared to talk about the death squads explained to my associate Jon Lee Anderson: "La Mano Blanca means that whoever is involved in the killing is protected by powerful, invisible hands. These hands whitewash all evidence leading to a member."

An admitted assassin, whom I call El Lobo (The Wolf), boasted: "We go by different names in each country and make up new ones to confuse our enemies. But we are all La Mano Blanca."

The front organization for the death squads, he confirmed, is the Latin American Anti-Communist Confederation, which is an affiliate of the World Anti-Communist League. The affiliate, known by the initials CAL, pretends to keep its skirts clean of the clandestine murders. But sometimes the truth slips out.

At a World Anti-Communist League meeting in 1981, CAL secretary Rafael Rodriguez came close to letting the black cat out of the bag. He boasted that many members of the Latin American affiliate were involved in "active resistance" to the communist threat, "whether with weapons, with the pen or with the spoken word ... Their mission is to back with action any authority taking effective measures to oppose communism."

Rodriguez concluded his peroration with this assurance:

"All the member organizations of CAL in El Salvador, and the Liberation Movement in Guatemala, are on the front line in this battle. Their fight is permanent and to the death, without backing down and without cowardice." Unfortunately, this was no mere rhetorical bombast, as the widespread slaughter can attest.

In El Salvador, President Magana has nervously accepted the list of death squad leaders from Washington. He has shipped some of the top military officers on the list into "diplomatic exile" at Salvadoran embassies abroad. But beyond that, he has admitted he is largely powerless to crack down on the political assassins.

In Guatemala, the National Liberation Movement is headed by Mario Sandoval Alarcon, one of the nation's former vice presidents and a longtime member of the World Anti-Communist League. He is believed to be the driving force behind the death squad operations in his country. Indeed, the National Liberation Movement campaigns brazenly as "The Party of Organized Violence."

Despite pressure from the White House, no criminal charges have yet been brought in either El Salvador or Guatemala for right-wing assassinations. La Mano Blanca is simply too powerful.

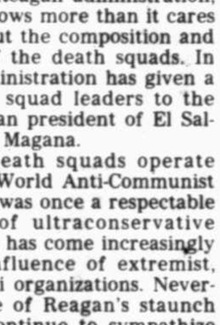

Meanwhile, the butchery goes on.

GEORGE F. WILL

Liberty isn't a human need?

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — The last time I was Bill Buckley's sidekick in a debate was 1978 and the topic was the Panama Canal treaties. We favored ratification, our opponent did not. We trounced Ronald Reagan so decisively he has not been heard of since.

George F. Will

This time the scene was Yale and the topic was "Resolved: Reagan Should be Re-elected." One of our opponents, George McGovern, had rejected — I can not imagine why — this topic: "Resolved: McGovernism Should Be Defeated Yet Again."

McGovern's partner was Robert Shrum, Ted Kennedy's press secretary, who at age 9 toiled for Adlai Stevenson. He has toiled for John Lindsay, in McGovern's 1972 campaign, and for Kennedy in 1980. He has suffered enough to deserve a night with undergraduates, who are receptive to McGovern's message, which is: "Come home, America, Part II." Come home from Lebanon, and from Central America, where President McGovern would, he says, "end all military operations." He means, of course, he would end all of our side's operations. He has taken too much to heart Orwell's axiom that the quickestway to end a war is to lose it.

Concerning domestic spending, even the Democratic candidates are Reaganites, in one sense. By their strategic reticence they accept Reagan's point: Non-defense spending (excluding interest) almost doubled, in real terms, in the 1970s and could not go on doing that every decade. So the argument for the 1980s was bound to be about where, not whether, there should be cuts. Democrats implicitly acknowledge this when they cast the issue as "fairness."

On domestic spending, Buckley and I are like two of the Synoptic Gospels. We share the same spirit, but there are, frankly, er, differences. My credentials as a defender of the welfare state are impeccable, in part because my book defending it was denounced in Buckley's National Review. My defense of Reagan is: What is the uproar about? Washington's principal industry, the indignation industry, is going to slip a disk if it keeps on straining to argue that the 19th century is being re-installed by Reagan–whose fiscal 1984 budget allocates two and a half times more, in real terms, for programs for low-income persons than was spent in 1970.

Today there are five million more persons receiving food stamps than received them during the worst of the 1975 recession. Reagan is spending almost as much on the elderly ($17060 per couple) as on defense. Maybe more domestic spending is needed and prudent. But it is silly to say that the domestic budget, which is roughly the same as the 1980 spending level, represents a clash of fundamental principles with Democrats concerning federal responsibilities.

On foreign policy the clash is fundamental. When each of the Democratic candidates falls to bragging — yes, bragging — about being wronger sooner about Grenada than any other candidate, it seems clear that if one of them (except perhaps Askew) had been President last October, today Marxists would be nailing down the lid of another Caribbean dictatorship.

Regarding foreign policy, what McGovern did in 1972 was as important as what Goldwater did in 1964. Goldwater decisively shifted rightward the GOP's center of gravity. And McGovernism is now orthodoxy in McGovern's party. This, in spite of the fact that few theories have been as clearly tested and decisively refuted as was McGovern's theory in 1972, to which he clings. The theory is that Soviet military spending is reactive and emulative — that it is provoked by ours — so U.S. restraint would be reciprocated. But at the end of the 1970s Carter's defense secretary said: When we build, they build. When we stop, they build.

When Reagan was inaugurated there were not enough shells, torpedoes or missiles to fill the magazines of the Navy's ships even once. Democrats say Reagan's five-year defense spending of $1.7 trillion is outrageous. But if Mondale really favors 4 percent real growth, he favors $1.4 trillion, and Glenn wants more. (If Reagan gets all he seeks, by fiscal 1988 the nation will still be spending, as a percentage of the budget, 30 percent less than JFK's pre-Vietnam level.

McGovern, who must think Mondale is a Prussian, wants to cut defense 25 percent. His summing up in the debate contrasted defense spending with spending on "human needs." That ignited Buckley, who excoriated those who consider national-security spending and what it secures — liberty, for example — something other than a human need.

Buckley, who is proof that a Yale education is not necessarily incapacitating, warned me that we would lose the vote at the end of the debate. He could have prevented a vote, but I reasoned that if we lost it would at least confirm my beliefs about modern youth and education. The voice vote did indeed go against us, and knocked McGovern off Reagan's proven path to glory.

ART BUCHWALD

Friendly talk can solve differences

In President Reagan's "I'm Not Really Mad at the Russians Speech" last week he ended by saying, "Just suppose with me for a moment that an Ivan and an Anya could find themselves, oh say, in a waiting room, or sharing a shelter from the rain or a storm with a Jim or a Sally. And there was no language barrier to keep them from getting acquainted.

Art Buchwald

"Would they then debate the differences between their respective governments? Or would they find themselves comparing notes about their children and what each other did for a living?... And as they went their separate ways maybe Anya would be saying to Ivan, 'Wasn't she nice? She also teaches music.' And Jim would be telling Sally what Ivan did or didn't like about his boss. They might have even decided they were all going to get together for dinner some evening soon."

Mr. Reagan's point, I believe, was that if people got to know each other one on one, they wouldn't want to go to war.

While getting Jim and Sally and Ivan and Anya together is a very nice scenario for peace, I think it's more important for Ronnie and Nancy and Yuri and his wife to find themselves sharing a shelter from the rain or storm.

"Hi, my name's Ronnie Reagan and this is my wife Nancy. We're originally from California."

"My name is Yuri Andropov and this is my wife Tatyana. We are hardline Communists."

"That's neat. We're rock-ribbed conservative Republicans. What do you do for a living?"

"I used to be the head of all Secret Police. Now I am the leader of the Soviet Union — when I don't have the flu."

"Hey, how about that, Nancy? Yuri here is the president of a superpower just like me. We have a lot in common."

Nancy turns to Tatyana. "Do you have to give a lot of state dinners?"

Tatyana replies, "Every night I have to give a state dinner. I never have enough china.

"It seems that's my problem, too. Who makes your clothes?"

"Oscar of Belorussia. Who makes yours?"

"Adolpho of New York. Here is a photo of the latest suit he designed for me."

"It is very beautiful. But then you are a beautiful lady ..."

"She's darling, Ronnie."

Ronnie says, "Tell me, Yuri, what bugs you the most about being president of the U.S.S.R.?"

"The Party bosses. They are always telling me I'm doing something wrong."

"Isn't that funny? That's what bugs me the most about being president of the United States. I don't mind the opposition. But I sure get mad when my own people keep telling me I'm screwing up."

Nancy says to Tatyana, "How do you get along with your children?"

Tatyana replies, "Don't ask."

Nancy laughs, "Me, too. I guess we'll never close the generation gap."

Ronnie says to Yuri, "So what's the toughest thing about your job?"

"Balancing the budget, providing jobs and keeping the U.S.S.R. No. 1."

"I can't believe it. Here we are, strangers caught in the storm and we have the same common problems, interests and aspirations. How about the four of us getting together for dinner sometime and working out a plan to avoid blowing up the world?"

"I'd like that very much, Ronnie. Here is my hotline number. Call me day or night."

"Great. And here's my card. If I'm not at the White House, try the Camp David number. We're always there on weekends."

That night as Ronnie and Nancy are getting out of their soaking clothes, Nancy says, "Wasn't she a lovely person? Did you know she also plays the balalaika?"

And Ronnie says, "He's a first class guy. He told me that before he invaded Czechoslovakia in 1968, his real ambition was to be a movie actor."

Pathologist testifies girl died from drug, not natural causes

GEORGETOWN (AP) — A pathologist, whose initial autopsy report was a potential roadblock for prosecutors, testified in the murder trial of nurse Genene Jones that she now believes a 15-month-old girl died from a drug and not from natural causes.

Chelsea McClellan died on Sept. 17, 1982, after receiving two injections that were supposed to be routine immunizations. Ms. Jones, a nurse in a Kerrville pediatrician's office, gave the shots.

Although the murder indictment says Ms. Jones injected a powerful muscle relaxant that killed the girl, the initial autopsy report said the girl probably was a victim of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

Dr. Kathleen Kagan-Hallet of San Antonio, a neuropathologist, issued that initial decision. But on Wednesday she told jurors she was wrong, and the mistake was due to an incomplete look at Chelsea's medical history.

"In my opinion," she testified, "the cause of death is respiratory arrest which then led to cardiac arrest and the death of the child due to succinylcholine."

The indictment names succinylcholine as the drug allegedly used by Ms. Jones. Toxicologists have testified here that the drug was found in tissue samples taken from the girl's body.

Ms. Kagan-Hallet said the medical history given her did not show that Chelsea had an eight-day hospital stay a few weeks before her death.

"The history we were given was so plausible for SIDS," she testified, adding that it seemed so routine that she didn't give Chelsea's death a second thought until she heard that prosecutors were suspicious of wrongdoing.

Defense lawyer Jim Brookshire opened his cross-examination of Ms. Kagan-Hallet by getting her to acknowledge that a child as old as 15 months could be a SIDS victim, especially if the infant had been premature, as Chelsea was.

Last week, Bexar County Medical Examiner Vincent DiMaio testified that SIDS deaths are limited to children under 10 months.

Brookshire also tried to plug doubt into a toxicologist's finding that there was succinylcholine in the girl's body. Dr. Fredric Rieders of Pennsylvania performed the tissue test at a Swedish laboratory.

He said traces of the drug were found in several organs and in Chelsea's thigh muscles — where the injections were given.

Brookshire asked Rieders if the traces he found were anything more than "puzzle pieces." Rieders said the results were more definite.

"These pieces are the known arms, legs and head of succinylcholine, if you will," Rieders testified.

Brookshire tried to get Rieders to say that the test merely showed a "probability" that Chelsea was killed with succinylcholine.

"You can never eliminate all the possibilities," Rieders said. "All of life is a probability."

Farmworkers march on courthouse

EDINBURG (AP) — Three hundred unemployed farmworkers idled by a crop freeze in the Rio Grande Valley marched on the county courthouse to demand emergency aid to help pay food, housing and utility bills.

The workers — some carrying signs saying "How about some foreign aid for the Valley?" — told Hidalgo County Judge Santos Saldana on Wednesday that they need the aid desperately.

"We're three weeks behind in the rent, we're buying milk for the baby on credit and our insurance on our '73 station wagon has been canceled," said Mary Ramirez of Mercedes.

The two-day Christmas weekend freeze has been called the worst economic disaster to hit the valley in 50 years. It destroyed the $30 million citrus crop and most of the area's winter vegetables.

Most of the farmworkers will have no source of income until early spring, when they move north to help harvest crops in the Midwest.

Mrs. Ramirez and her husband, Cruz Pedro, marched more than a mile to the courthouse with their 4-month-old son, Peter.

Before the freeze, Ramirez said, he was cutting lettuce for $200 a week.

The United Farm Workers union said that since four Rio Grande Valley counties were declared a disaster area by President Reagan in early January, $110,000 in emergency aid has been distributed to about 1,250 Hidalgo County families.

Red tape delays woman's release from jail

HOUSTON (AP) — A 61-year-old woman remained in jail two weeks after the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles ordered her release because authorities hadn't received the paperwork, a deputy sheriff says.

The parole board said Merriam Martin had completed a five-year sentence for a theft conviction and ordered her release Jan. 11. She was to be placed on mandatory supervision and sent to a halfway house, officials said.

But Ms. Martin was not released until Wednesday after inquiries by the Houston Chronicle.

Harris County Chief Deputy Sheriff Carl Mangogna Jr., said Ms. Martin was not released on schedule because deputies had no court order for her release.

Mangogna said the only paperwork received by the department was a message from the Texas Department of Corrections, saying that prison officials no longer required her detention.

John Byrd, the parole board's executive director, said a parole officer was sent to the county jail Wednesday afternoon with Ms. Martin's discharge certificate.

But Byrd said the officer could find no one who would take it. Byrd said he eventually told the officer to meet personally with Mangogna.

Ms. Martin, a bookkeeper, was convicted of stealing $7,000 from a former employer, authorities said. He discovered the thefts after firing her for other reasons.

Ms. Martin was sentenced to prison for the theft in June 1982, but served much of the time in the Harris County Jail.

Colleges wooing, courting Lee's talented Rebels

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

It's a tense time for college football coaches. Report cards come out Feb. 8.

Feb. 8 is the national signing date for high school athletes, who seek fame on the college gridirons across the nation. Future glories for all of the nation's teams hindge on how well they come out on Feb. 8.

Of course, there is some added Midland interest in this mad scramble this year since Midland Lee finished a 13-3 campaign and its first berth in the state finals.

INTEREST WAS heightened even more after four Lee players were named as first team All-State in Class 5A and another on the second team. There has been some high class wooing and courting going on.

So many college coaches have visited Midland in the past month that Midland Air Terminal will surely have to announce a traffic increase for this year.

According to Reporter-Telegram sources, none of the Lee players have yet committed to any college. Of course, that could change on any hourly basis. Colleges are looking at as many as 14 Lee players. If all sign with someone, it would be the biggest delagation of athletes to further their football careers in the history of the school.

ALL-STATE fullback Isaac Garnett, who gained 1,994 yards in 16 games for Lee, is considered by most observers as one of the real plums. Sources say that Garnett is leaning toward Oklahoma. He has visited the Sooner campus, but is scheduled to visit Baylor this weekend. He has also visited Oklahoma State. Garnett hasn't made up his mind, but SMU and Texas Tech are still in the running with the other three teams. Garnett has also talked with USC, but it is not known how serious the two are about each other.

All-State linebacker Michael Johnson is another highly sought after comodity. Johnson has visited Texas, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State and is another that is said to be leaning to Oklahoma. Texas Tech and SMU are teams that are still in the running also.

Players like Johnson and Garnett are allowed only three visits to a college campus since they participate in spring sports. Those not involved in spring sports may make five visits.

All-State guard Coy Stewart has or will visit Texas, Baylor, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas Tech. SMU and New Mexico State are said to still be in the running also for the 245-pounder. Arkansas may have the slight edge since father Randy Stewart was a co-captian for Arkansas with new Hog coach Ken Hatfield.

TIGHT END Charlie Diaz is also being hotly recruited. He has or will visit Baylor, Houston, TCU and Oklahoma State. Houston and TCU appear to have the inside track right now.

Defensive end Eddie Kittle, All-State second team, has visited Texas Tech and will visit Baylor. Kittle is said to be leaning toward Tech, but has not had his visit with Baylor.

All-State safety Andre Mayfield has talked with Baylor, Texas Tech and UTEP. Colleges are worried, however, about a knee injury that required surgery following the Trimble Tech playoff game. Still, he has a chance to land at one of those schools.

Linebacker Reggie Ellis has been contacted by both UTEP and Western Arizona and defensive end-tackle David Jackson has been contacted by both Baylor and Abilene Christian.

ALL-DISTRICT tackle Tracy Sherman has talked with both Rice and SMU, but it is not known where Sherman stands with those schools.

All-District guard Devoe McMillen and All-District center Allan Bell are both interested in Lamar and Abilene Christian while defensive tackle Pat Stevens is said to be leaning toward Howard Payne.

Linebacker Billy Cornelius and defensive tackle Carlos Ortega have also been contacted by college teams.

Rice has also talked with Midland High quarterback James Welborn, who passed for more than 1,000 yards last season.

All of these players will probably not sign on Feb. 8. Some of the smaller schools will wait to see what is left over and what needs they have after the Feb. 8 signing date.

Parish leads Celtics over injured Sixers

By The Associated Press

The Boston Celtics knew they had managed to win for short periods when Larry Bird and Robert Parish were injured, so they knew better than to think the Philadelphia 76ers would quit without injured center Moses Malone.

"Over a short period losing a star like Malone is really not a deterrent," Boston's Cedric Maxwell said. "The other players work harder. We've played without Larry and Robert and won. There's something psychological about it."

Malone was absent because of a sprained ankle, and Parish, the Celtics' center, responded with 24 points, 13 rebounds and four blocked shots as Boston defeated the 76ers 102-98 in Wednesday night's National Basketball Association game.

"Any time these two teams play it's a knock-down, drag-out battle," Boston's M.L. Carr said, but Parish added that while the intensity was there, neither team played well.

"It was one of those nights, and they don't happen very often, when both teams were a little off," Parish said. "I didn't change my style with Moses out. Clemon (Johnson) is a very adequate replacement and I knew it wasn't going to be easy. I worked hard for everything I got."

Boston's victory was its fifth in a row, 11th in the last 12 games and 15th in the last 17 and gave the Celtics a 34-9 record and a five-game lead over the defending NBA champions in the Atlantic Division.

"The Celtics are playing the best basketball in the league," Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham said. "We had some who played excellent, but we just didn't have five consistent players out there at once."

The Celtics managed only 15 points and the 76ers 12 in the fourth quarter, and Boston scored only one point in the final 3½ minutes. Philadelphia cut an eight-point lead to 101-98 before Parish blocked a shot in the final seconds and Dennis Johnson hit a free throw for the final margin.

Hawks 109, Bucks 105

At Atlanta, Dominique Wilkins prepped for Saturday's NBA slam-dunk contest with a double-pump, reverse dunk that broke a tie and put the Hawks ahead to stay against Milwaukee.

Atlanta, which now trails the first-place Bucks by just one-half game in he Central Division, had a 98-87 lead with 6½ minutes left, but Milwaukee rallied to deadlock the game at 101-101. Dan Roundfield, who led the Hawks with 20 points, hit two free throws after rebounding a missed shot by the Bucks' Lorenzo Romar that would have tied the score with five seconds left.

Mavericks 112, Warriors 110

Dallas won at home in overtime when Pat Cummings hit a 10-foot shot at the buzzer.

Joe Barry Carroll, who scored 24 points for Golden State, had scored with 10 seconds left in overtime to tie the score at 110-110. But Brad Davis drove the lane for the Mavericks and passed the ball to Cummings for the game-winner.

Mark Aguirre scored 31 points and Rolando Blackman 29 for Dallas, while Purvis Short led the Warriors with 28.

Pacers 117, Nuggets 112

At Indianapolis, reserve forward George Johnson scored 27 points, including two free throws with 29 seconds remaining that helped Indiana defuse a late Denver rally.

The Pacers had a 15-point lead with 9:37 left in the game before a 26-12 spurt by the Nuggets cut the deficit to 113-112. But Johnson and Jerry Sichting hit two frew throws apiece in the final minute to seal the victory.

Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers moves the ball past Boston's Larry Bird with this move, but the Celtics had the best move, downing the world champs.

MHS lady cagers go back to work

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The Midland High girls didn't have long to savor their 46-45 come-from-behind upset victory over cross-town rival Midland Lee Tuesday.

As soon as the important victory vaulted the Bulldog girls back into the District 4-5A playoff race, they looked up and saw that Odessa Permian is next on the schedule.

Both teams own identical 6-3 loop records and will square off at 8 p.m. today in the MHS gym. The survivor will maintain hopes of gaining a playoff berth while the loser could be out of the race for all practical purposes.

WITH ONLY five games left on the district schedule, a Midland High or Permian can't afford a loss. San Angelo owns a perfect 9-0 mark and it would take a major collaspe by the Bobcats to miss the playoffs.

On the other hand, Lee's second place berth is where sights are set. The Rebels are now 7-2 after the Bulldog upset and only one step ahead of both Permian and MHS.

Permian defeated MHS in the first half of district play in Odessa in an overtime contest. That in itself should explain why both teams should be tied at 6-3 for the league campaign. This time the Lady Dogs have Mojo at home and the hopes are that MHS will prevail this time around.

While both Permian and MHS continue the search for 4-5A miracles, the Rebels of Lee still have some firm footing with which to work and have no plans of letting this playoff spot disappear.

Lee should rebound nicely tonight when they meet 0-9 Odessa High in Odessa at 8 p.m. Still, the Rebs would like some help against San Angelo. They trail the Bobcats by two full games and meet San Angelo at home in this half of play next Monday.

Ever since girls basketball began some six years ago, Lee has won or shared every district title over that span. They would like to keep that streak alive, but they will need some help along the way.

Midland High will end the season against San Angelo and that could be a big contest if the Bulldogs are still in the hunt.

Deidra Knapp, who is carrying a 5.1 per game scoring average, has been the big gun for the Bulldogs in the last two outings, scoring 26 points over that span. She led MHS with 12 points against Lee and had 14 against Abilene High.

Junior Denise Lanz continues to lead the Bulldog scoring attack with a 13.3 season scoring average. Lanz has 306 points this season. Orvetta Johnson's 12.5 average follows with 275 points.

LEE'S FELICIA Farias scored 18 points against MHS Tuesday in the loss, but that effort extended her double figure streak to nine straight games. She has scored 68 points in her last three games and owns a 17.7 average for the year with 372 points.

Tunya Mayberry owns an 11.9 average, but has not been in double figures in two straight games. Stacy Harmon owns a 10.7 average, but was held to seven points against the Bulldogs Tuesday, breaking a four-game span in double figures.

San Angelo takes on Abilene Cooper tonight while Big Spring squares off against Abilene High in other 4-5A action.

Chaparrals in desperate need of win

From Staff Reports

Midland College lost to Howard College in Big Spring Monday night, 78-62, but the one that still rankles Coach Jerry Stone is the 54-52 home defeat at the hands of Amarillo College last Thursday.

If it weren't for that, the Chaps would be tied for second place with Odessa College at 5-2 in Western Junior College Conference play going into today's 8 p.m. date with Frank Phillips College at Langford Chaparral Center.

The Chaps didn't figure to beat the league-leading Hawks, 17-1 for the season and now 7-0 in conference, on their home diggings. However, for a half, it looked like they had a shot at the unlikely. Howard asserted itself in the second half as MC got into early foul trouble and won quite comfortably.

With his Chaps 14-6 on the season and in the throes of a two-game losing slump, Stone hopes his club can turn things around tonight. In fact, it's a must-win situation for MC, which faces Odessa College Monday at Chap Center.

IT WILL be Elementary School Night for students in Midland's primary grades. "All the elementary students in Midland have received free tickets for the game," said MC athletic director Delnor Poss. "At the game, they will put their names on the back of special tickets and desposit them in boxes for their schools"

The school with the best attendance will receive free passes for the rest of the Chap home games.

FRANK PHILLIPS comes into Midland at 7-12 and 2-4, but in the past the Plainsmen have always been a mine-field for Midland teams. This year is no different. Last week Clarendon beat FPC, 64-54, but then the Borger bunch beat New Mexico Junior College, 97-96.

Keith Scales, averaging 12.5 points per game, leads the visitors and teams up with Phillip Grissom to pull down a combined 11 rebounds a game. For accuracy, Scales is one of the best in the WJCC with a .585 field goal percentage.

The Chaps again will be playing without Zeak Williams, who missed Monday's game at Big Spring because of tonsilitis.

CHAPSTYQUES—Howard College doesn't have a player on its roster from west of the Mississippi River...Odessa College has the highest scoring offense in the league, averaging 89.9 points a game, three better than Howard, while the Hawks are the stingiest on defense with 62.6 a game...So far it's an eight-team scramble for the four Region V playoff berths, one reason why it's so important for MC to get untangled tonight...When 6-5 Kurt Martin came off the bench and scored 10 points for the Chaps the other night, there was a lot of neighbor nudging, "Hey,-where'd-he-come-froms?"...Kurt was all-district for two years at at San Antonio Madison in basketball and does golf coach Delnor Poss know Kurt was also all-district and MVP in golf for two years?...

MC's Poss walks into trap

Fast Eddie Clements of KCRS — aka Golden Throat — conned Midland College Athletic Director Del Poss the other day. He got the unsuspecting Poss to challenge him to a Media-Coaches basketball game.

How's that for gullible? Poss didn't know what hit him. The sting was set up so beautifully Robert Redford and Paul Newman would have been proud.

The plan was a simple one. Fast Eddie set up his mark by getting Poss in a basketball discussion.

"I got him talking about how great a basketball player he used to be," Fast Eddie said and then added, after a hearty laugh, "I said 'used to be is the correct phrase.'"

That's all it took. Poss challenged Fast Eddie to a game and the rest of us media types rallied to his defense.

"Give me Reggie Franklin," said RT sports writer Bruce Castleberry. "I want Reggie Franklin."

Franklin, of course, is the assistant coach to Jerry Stone at Midland College.

John Fedko, the Channel 7 sports director, was equally eager for his shot at the coaches.

"If I was there, the coaches wouldn't stand a chance," said Fedko.

Unfortunately, Fedko has to work tonight so he's sending Kelly Sanner of weekend sports fame. Sanner's touring Vegas at the moment but should be back in time for the 6:15 p.m. tipoff at Chap Center.

Skip Baldwin, sports director at Channel 9, and Greg Williams, weekend sports at Channel 2, round out the rest of the TV reps. Jay Hendricks, Channel 9 weather, is a maybe.

Dave Perkins of KCRS and Scott Flurry of KBAT will also be on hand as radio reps with Clements.

Along with Castleberry, who has been working on his Jabbar sky hook in anticipation of going over Franklin, will be photographer Kent Porter, news reporter Larry Budd and myself.

I'm in the game as the Coaches' handicap. We've got to give those poor guys some kind of chance. I've got a great shot if I'm undefended inside five feet. Beyond that, you don't know where my shot is going. If I'm defended, its usually back down my throat.

The coaches are countering with Poss and Franklin from Midland College. Reports also have it that Bill Jordan, Midland Lee's assistant basketball coach, will be on hand. Other than those three, nobody is saying who will be playing.

Some say the Coaches have some ringers coming in. That's totally understandable and acceptable. We don't want the Coaches to make too bad of a showing.

The result of this game is a foregone conclusion. We've got it in the bag. Besides, we control television, radio and newspapers.

You should have known better, Poss. This game was a stacked deck from the start. We can't lose.

Tar Heels learn lesson, school out for Wake Forest

By The Associated Press

The North Carolina basketball team learned a lesson against Virginia . . . and school was out for Wake Forest.

After nearly blowing a 21-point lead against Virginia last week, the Tar Heels made sure the same thing wouldn't happen again. So even when they were up by 30 at one point over Wake Forest Wednesday night, the top-ranked Tar Heels kept pouring it on, and it resulted in a 100-63 embarrassment of the No. 17 Demon Deacons.

"We knew what Virginia did to us, so we just played hard each possession," said North Carolina forward Matt Doherty, recalling a 69-66 escape over Virginia after the Tar Heels let the Cavaliers get back into the game.

Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy said his team might as well have been part of the crowd of 10,000 at Chapel Hill.

"It looks like we came over to watch Carolina play," Tacy said. "This can happen easily. The practices before the game had been good. I can't explain what happened tonight."

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 2 DePaul beat Princeton 50-39, No. 14 Louisville trimmed Florida State 95-71 and 20th-ranked Syracuse stopped Pittsburgh 62-58.

College Basketball

Top Ten

Michael Jordan scored 21 points and Sam Perkins added 20 to lead the undefeated Tar Heels to their 15th victory.

Jordan scored six points in a 12-0 spurt early in the first half that put the Demon Deacons in a hole from which they could not escape. Wake Forest could not find an easy inside shot as the Tar Heel defense forced turnovers on the perimeter and controlled the backboards.

"We didn't expect it to be like this," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said. "Our defense held them to four points in the first 10 minutes and that set the tempo for the game."

DePaul also improved its record to 15-0 with its victory behind Tyrone Corbin and Jerry McMillan, who scored 14 and 13 points, respectively.McMillan connected on his first three shots to give DePaul an 8-4 lead and the Blue Demons never were threatened.

"Getting an early lead was important," said DePaul Coach Ray Meyer. "If they had gotten ahead of us, I'm sure they would have let the air out of the ball and played in the center of the court."

Meyer, though, was "disgusted" with his team's free-throw shooting as DePaul hit on only 10 of 21 attempts.

"We're going to hold a free-throw contest tomorrow," said Meyer. "I'm going to drop-kick them in and they are going to shoot and I'll beat them."

Second Ten

Milt Wagner and Lancaster Gordon each scored 20 points to lead Louisville over Florida State, the Cardinals' eighth straight victory. Louisville's biggest lead was 89-57 with 6:07 left in game.

Alton Lee Gipson led Florida State with 17 points, while Dean Shaffer added 14.

Florida State Coach Joe Williams said his Seminoles were intimidated by the Cardinals at first.

"In the first half we were going more one-on-one and not taking the shots out of our offense," Williams said. "In the second half, we calmed down and cut it to 13, but then Louisville was off again."

Sean Kerins scored 17 points and Andre Hawkins had 13 points and six rebounds to lead Syracuse over Pittsburgh. The Orangemen held a 33-27 halftime lead and coasted through the second half, leading by as many as 15 points en route to their fifth straight victory and 13th in 16 games.

"I thought Kerins and Hawkins were the difference in the game," said Pitt Coach Roy Chipman. "I wasn't surprised, but I was impressed."

Unranked Teams

In other action, Richmond scored 10 straight points in overtime, four by Bill Flye, and held on to defeat James Madison 57-55; Ken Epperson scored 19 points and Toledo ran off a 23-8 spurt early in the second half en route to a 69-55 victory over Western Michigan; John Willoughby scored 14 points as Miami of Ohio pounded Kent State 54-47; John Shasky scored 18 points and collected 16 rebounds as Minnesota clobbered Wisconsin 75-62 and Steve Samuels tallied five straight field goals to fuel a first-half rally as Fordham turned back Holy Cross 71-62.

Tom Sluby sank two field goals and three foul shots in overtime to lift Notre Dame over Davidson 59-56; Derek Boldon scored 22 points and Jeff Heide added 20 as Central Michigan edged Bowling Green 86-84 in overtime; Also, freshman forward Derrick Battle hit two free throws with 37 seconds left as East Carolina ended the longest losing streak in the school's history by beating North Carolina-Wilmington 44-43.

Billy Sims to take stand in contract court trial

DETROIT (AP) — The attorney for All-Pro running back Billy Sims plans to put his client on the stand in a U.S. District Court trial that ultimately will determine which of two professional football contracts Sims must honor.

Elbert Hatchett said he probably would have Sims testify today after Jerry Argovitz, co-owner of the Houston Gamblers of the United States Football League, finishes testifying.

Argovitz spent virtually the entire day on the stand Wednesday — the first day of the trial before Judge Robert E. DeMascio.

Sims has signed contracts with both the Gamblers and with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Muddying the waters is the fact that Argovitz was acting as Sims' agent in negotiations well after he became a partner in the Gamblers' ownership group.

Sims signed a five-year contract July 1 with the Gamblers worth $3.5 million. He signed a similar contract — this one undated — on Nov. 12.

Then, on Dec. 16, Sims signed a five-year deal with the Lions calling for $5 million.

Sims and the Lions originally filed a joint suit in Oakland County Circuit Court last year, but that was transferred to federal court. The suit charges Argovitz with fraud and misrepresentation while representing Sims in contract talks with Detroit.

Currently, the only question being decided is which contract is valid.

"The contract's validity is not in question," Hatchett told reporters. "But, we feel they are voidable."

Hatchett spent the first day trying to show that Argovitz did a sloppy job on Sims' behalf, failing to keep the 1978 Heisman Trophy winner informed and failing to keep accurate written records of dealings.

"Sims had blind loyalty and confidence in you," Hatchett said.

"Yes sir, I know that," Argovitz replied. "Totally and completely."

Despite the long day on the stand and the fact that there had yet to be any cross examination, attorneys for the Gamblers expressed satisfaction.

"My client has been waiting some time to tell his story," attorney Steve Susman said.

Tom Kite dedicated to improvement

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Last season he won a very prestigious tournament, the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, finished in the top 10 in seven others and collected $257,066.

"It was not a very good year," Tom Kite said.

And, by his standards, perhaps it was not. While it a comprised a season that other players strive for, it was, by far, Kite's poorest in three years.

"I played very well up through April. Then nothing," Kite said. "I thought about it over the off-season. You always do. And I think I was pressing too much, got too anxious."

He is dedicated to improvement this year.

"I'm looking forward to 1984. I'm very excited about it, even though it's gotten off to a mediocre start," Kite said before teeing off today in the first round of the $400,000 Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open golf tournament.

"I think this is going to be my best year ever. I think I'm a better player than I've ever been," said the little man who led the PGA Tour in stroke average for two seasons and in 1981 was leading money-winner and Player of the Year. It was that season that he recorded an incredible 21 top-10 finishes in 26 starts.

The only flaw was his relative lack of victories, only three in the last three years.

"I'm not going to let it eat on me," he said. "I'm not going to worry about it. I'm going to try to not even think about winning. I just want to start playing well again, get that consistency back, and let winning take care of itself.

Raiders rattle Baylor, 85-57

By The Associated Press

Baylor Coach Jim Haller, who's watched his Bears lose their first six Southwest Conference basketball games this season, thinks Texas Tech may be one of the teams to beat before the campaign ends.

Junior guard Bubba Jennings and junior center Woody Martin each scored 16 points Wednesday night to lead the Red Raiders to an easy 85-57 win over Baylor at Lubbock.

In another SWC contest, Texas A&M rolled to a 68-52 victory over Texas.

Haller said Baylor, which fell to 4-13 for the year, played fairly well in the second half, but were no match for the well-tuned Texas Tech squad.

"In the second half we were pretty smooth offensively, but we're a long way from doing the job defensively. We never could slow Tech down. I really believe they'll beat one of the big boys before the end of the year," Haller said. "You miss free throws like we missed and you never allow yourelf a chance to get back into the game."

The Bears took a short-lived 5-2 lead early, but Tech quickly ran off 13 unanswered points in the next five minutes and never trailed again.

Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers said he was proud of the Raiders' performance.

"I was pleased with our frame of mind. We came out and played with a lot on intensity. Our guys showed a lot of maturity in doing that," Myers said.

Myers also had words of sympathy for the Bears.

"Baylor has a young basketball team. I know how they feel. but it's good experience for them. One of these days, those young players will be very productive for them," Myers said.

David Glover scored 12 points for Baylor, while Michael Tate added 11.

A&M came alive in the second half to roll to an easy win over the Longhorns at College Station.

Texas, led by Carlton Cooper with 24 points, used a tight zone defense and a 54.6 shooting percentage to gain a 28-26 halftime lead.

But the Aggies outscored the Longhorns 12-4 in the first five minutes of the second half and led the rest of the way.

Todd Holloway scored 20 points for the Aggies, while teammate Darnell Williams added 18. Both drew praise from A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf.

"The comeback in the second half was really the product of our good defense and the way the crowd got into the game. ... Darnell and Todd were also the difference in turning the game around for us in the second half," Metcalf said.

A&M raised its season mark to 11-7 and its SWC record to 4-3. Texas fell 5-12 overall and 1-5 in the conference.

Wayne Gretzky celebrates birthday early with goals

By The Associated Press

Wayne Gretzky is ailing, but opponents of the Edmonton Oilers continue to hurt even more.

Gretzky celebrated his 23rd birthday a little early Wednesday night by scoring his 59th and 60th goals and adding two assists in the Oilers' 6-4 victory over Vancouver. It extended his record National Hockey League point-scoring streak to 50 games.

Gretzky, who assisted on first-period goals by Glenn Anderson and Paul Coffey, has at least one point — either a goal or an assist — in every one of Edmonton's 50 games this season.

The two goals, one in each of the last two periods, enabled Gretzky to tie te mark he set two years ago with 0 goals in the first 50 games of the season.Gretzky, who turned 23 today, scored a power-play goal in the second period and got an empty-net insurance marker with 22 seconds left.

Gretzky played despite a pulled shoulder muscle and Coach Glen Sather said, "He's probably hurting more than at any time in his five seasons in the league. He also had his hand stepped on and cut. But he played like a true professional. All those hurts didn't slow down his production at all."

The Oilers snapped a 4-4 tie on Ken Linseman's soft goal at the three-minute mark of the final period and went on to record their fifth straight victory.

The Oilers blew their early 2-0 lead and trailed 4-2 midway through the second period before tying the score on goals by Gretzky and Rick Chartraw. It was the first of the season for Chartraw, who was obtained a few days ago from the New York Rangers.

Linseman scored the winner when his slow shot along the ice deflected into the Vancouver net off the post.

Edmonton is 17-1-1 in its last 19 games and has the best road record in the NHL, 20-7-1.

Moe Lemay scored twice for the Canucks, who are 1-8-2 in their last 11 games.

Chisox, Seaver enter first round

NEW YORK (AP) — According to Chicago White Sox president Eddie Einhorn, Tom Seaver "wants to play baseball." Whether he wants to play with the White Sox remains to be seen.

But while Einhorn said he was "always optimistic, and I hope Tom is optimistic," White Sox board chairman Jerry Reinsdorf said that "Seaver is a very principled guy, and if he doesn't get what he feels he deserves it would not surprise me if he retired."

Such was the reaction Wednesday following what Einhorn described as "the first round of discussions" with Seaver and his lawyer. The discussions were scheduled to resume today at a midtown hotel.

Seaver reportedly wants a substantial raise over the $800,000 salary he was to receive from the New York Mets. They failed to protect their 39-year-old pitching ace from the compensation pool and the White Sox grabbed him last week after losing pitcher Dennis Lamp, a Type A free agent, to the Toronto Blue Jays.

"I WOULDN'T say I'm encouraged, but I'm not totally disappointed," Seaver told the New York Times late Wednesday. "We talked about the conditions under which I'd work in Chicago. Neither side was convinced. I don't think a decision on my part is immiment."

"We had very good discussions for a long time," said Einhorn.

Neither Einhorn nor Reinsdorf would disclose what they discussed with Seaver, but Einhorn said, "We're into a hard negotiating position and we're going to continue. I'm not going to talk about anything specific other than to say that this is the first round of discussions with Tom and his lawyer. We're here to try and bring this thing to a head.

"It's hard to evaluate other than to say that this is a special situation and we're treating it as such. There's no doubt that Tom Seaver wants to play baseball. That's why we picked him. He has some good years left and he wants to play. It's a very unique situation. The compensation pool isn't easy to go through emotionally and we've got to treat it with kid gloves."

Seaver, who has won 273 games, spent the first 10½ years of his career with the Mets, where he was known as "The Franchise." The Mets traded him to the Cincinnati Reds on June 15, 1977, for four players and reacquired him for three players on Dec. 16, 1982. That enabled Seaver to live at home in Greenwich, Conn.

If Seaver decides not to report to the White Sox, his only alternative is to retire. If that happens, the White Sox are not entitled to another pick from the compensation pool.

"We knew that when we selected him," said Reinsdorf. "But we felt we had to take that risk. With a player like Tom Seaver, you don't hesitate to take those risks."

White wants Super Bowl

HONOLULU (AP) — "America's Team" has been conspicuously absent from the Super Bowl in recent years, and Dallas All-Pro Randy White says the Cowboys should be a hungry team next season.

"We made the playoffs this season, but for the Cowboys, that's not enough," White, a defensive tackle who is considered one of the game's most dominating linemen, said during a break in practice for Sunday's Pro Bowl game.

"When you're the Cowboys, you're supposed to win the Super Bowl ever year; people expect it.

"We have all the incentive to come back. I believe we're going to get to the Super Bowl next season. Of course, when we start out, we have to work on some other goals in order to get there, considering the way we finished up this year.

"Our team was down after the loss to Washington, but that's part of football," he said.

Lamar streak climbs to 73 games

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — They call it "The Streak."

Nearly six years have gone by since Lamar University's basketball team last tasted defeat on its home floor. Following a 76-75 loss to McNeese State on Feb. 15, 1978, the Cardinals have run off the nation's longest current homecourt winning streak of 73 games under two coaching regimes and in two arenas.

It's now eighth on the all-time list of streaks led by Kentucky's remarkable 12-year, 129-game spree compiled from 1943 to 1955. Lamar, 12-3, can move into the seventh spot past a Cincinnati 74-game streak with Southland Conference victories over the University of Texas at Arlington Thursday night and North Texas State Saturday night.

Billy Tubbs, now coach at the University of Oklahoma, guided the Cardinals through 31 games of the streak and Pat Foster, a former assistant to Eddie Sutton at Arkansas, has put together other impressive numbers since then.

The 44-year-old Foster, 82-23 in his fourth year at Lamar, has kept the streak in its proper perspective, winning outright league titles in two of the past three years anad tacking on three of the Cardinal's five straight seasons of 20 games or more.

"The players aren't into the streak as far as a motivating factor. Nobody wants to see it end, they want to win every game they play, but they want to win on the road too," Foster said

"I don't think they realize the significance of it. I'm beginning to, as a coach, realize that it's bringing a lot more attention to our program. I'm answering calls from New York City and from Denver to Los Angeles. So, it's great for our program and great that it brings that kind of attention to us, but then again you have to keep things in perspective.

"The players have enough to worry about. They've got to go to school and they have to go to great lengths to get ready to play every game physically and mentally."

Paying attention to their priorities of winning the SLC regular-season race and hosting and winning the league's post-season tournament has paved the way for the Cardinal's greatest success. They've appeared in the NCAA Tournament four of the last five years and in the National Invitation Tournament the other year.

Lamar has never lost an NCAA first-round game, whipping Detroit, Weber State, Missouri and Alabama in the process. In the 1980 NCAA event, the Cardinals advanced to the West Regional semifinals by downing 5th-ranked Oregon State before being eliminated by Clemson.

Currently sharing second place at 2-1 with Louisiana Tech in the league race behind North Texas' 2-0 mark, the Cardinals are coming off a lopsided 83-60 loss at Louisiana Tech.

But Lamar has rebounded well from losses in the past during the streak. During the 73-game skein, the Cardinals have shared a conference title and claimed four others outright.

The streak moved from the former on-campus facility of McDonald Gym to the Beaumont Civic Center three years ago.

Bryant actor threatened

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — A death threat against an actor playing coach Paul "Bear" Bryant was "just another page in the saga" of a movie that has been opposed by the family of the football legend who died a year ago today.

Larry Spangler, who is producing "The Bear," said Wednesday he told star Gary Busey not to make a trip to Tuscaloosa following the threats. He said a scene to be filmed on the University of Alabama campus was being shelved.

According to Spangler, Busey received two telephone calls within 30 minutes Tuesday saying, "If you come to Tuscaloosa the week of Coach Bryant's death dressed like Coach Bryant, you will be killed."

Bryant, who died of a heart attack at age 69, won more games than any other college coach — 323 in all, and 232 in 25 years at Alabama.

Baseball arbitration key battle

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven members of the American League West champion Chicago White Sox, including Cy Young Award winner LaMarr Hoyt, are among at least 73 players who filed for baseball salary arbitration before the midnight deadline.

Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Players Association, said Wednesday night that more players could be added to the list today if they filed before the deadline.

Hoyt joined Kevin Hickey, Steve Mura, Rudy Law, Rich Dotson, Jerry Dybzinski and Salome Barojas as members of the White Sox filing for arbitration. Under the binding system, both a player and his team submit a salary figure and present their cases before an arbitrator who picks either number, with no compromise allowed.

A player may sign before his scheduled hearing date, however.

The Boston Red Sox, Seattle Mariners and Montreal Expos followed the White Sox with six players each filing for arbitration.

The Expos had Tim Raines, Gary Lucas, Charlie Lea, Tim Wallach, Jeff Reardon and Bill Gullickson. Seattle had Mike Stanton, Pat Putnam, Dave Beard, Roy Thomas, Ed Vande Berg and Ron Roenicke, while Boston had AL batting champion Wade Boggs, Glenn Hoffman, Gary Allenson, Luis Aponte, Bruce Hurst and Steve Crawford.

Other big names on the list include Rickey Henderson of Oakland, Johnny Ray of Pittsburgh, Kent Hrbek of Minnesota, Lee Smith of the Chicago Cubs, Jesse Orosco of the New York Mets, and Pedro Guerrero of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

A surprising name on the list was another Dodger, relief pitcher Steve Howe, who was banned by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn from playing in 1984 for his admitted involvement with drugs. Howe lost his arbitration case in 1983, asking for $450,000 but receiving $325,000.

Before the midnight deadline for filing, pitcher Fernando Valenzuela, who was eligible for arbitration, signed another one-year contract with the Dodgers.

Gunslingers sign Buggs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Gunslingers have signed veteran wide receiver Danny Buggs, the second-leading receiver in the United States Football League, to a multi-year contract, the team announced.

Terms of the contract with Buggs, who played the 1983 season with the USFL's Tampa Bay Bandits, were not disclosed.

While with Tampa Bay, Buggs caught 76 passes for 1,146 yards and five touchdowns.

The Gunslingers acquired his rights earlier this month by trading their second picks in the third and fifth rounds of the USFL draft to the Bandits.

Government continues to spend more than it receives

By The Associated Press

The federal government continues to spend more money than it receives, but its shortfall is trailing the pace of a year earlier when the U.S. deficit hit a record $195.4 billion, the Treasury Department says.

Meanwhile, factory orders for durable goods fell 1.1 percent last month as orders for military equipment dropped sharply, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

Federal spending totaled $74.7 billion in December while receipts amounted only to $58 billion, leaving a deficit for that month of $16.7 billion, the Treasury Department said.

December's red ink raised the deficit so far for fiscal 1984, which started in October, to $63.3 billion. But that was 7 percent below the $68.3 billion recorded for the same period last year.

The deficits are criticized by many economists for keeping upward pressure on interest rates, since the shortfalls force the Treasury to borrow heavily in the credit markets in competition with private borrowers.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan acknowledged the deficits have especially upset the Europeans, whose currencies have lost value against the interest rate-supported U.S. dollar.

But Regan, speaking at a news conference from Washington that was linked by satellite to reporters in several European cities, noted that a few years ago Europe blamed America for a weak dollar and complained that "our inflation was ruining Europe. We did something about inflation, we did something about the dollar and now the cry is just about the opposite."

A strong dollar, he said, means "you are selling an awful lot of products" in the United States. "West Europe practically has a trade surplus with the United States for the first time in many, many years. That condition should be one that you should cheer about over there rather than claim that our deficits are hurting you."

Despite December's decline in durable goods orders, such orders rose a robust 16.9 percent for all of 1983 to $1.05 trillion — the biggest increase since the 18.3 percent rise in 1978. In the recession year of 1982, such orders for goods expected to last three years or more fell 10.3 percent.

But economists were divided over whether December's decline was a temporary pullback because of the 10.3 percent drop in military goods orders, or whether it was a further signal that U.S. economic expansion is slowing.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said that despite the decline, figures for shipments and the backlog in orders showed "durable goods manufacturing is off to a very healthy start in 1984."

However, private analyst Michael Evans of Evans Economics said, "I think we are going to see a great deal of weakness, much slower growth in capital spending throughout 1984."

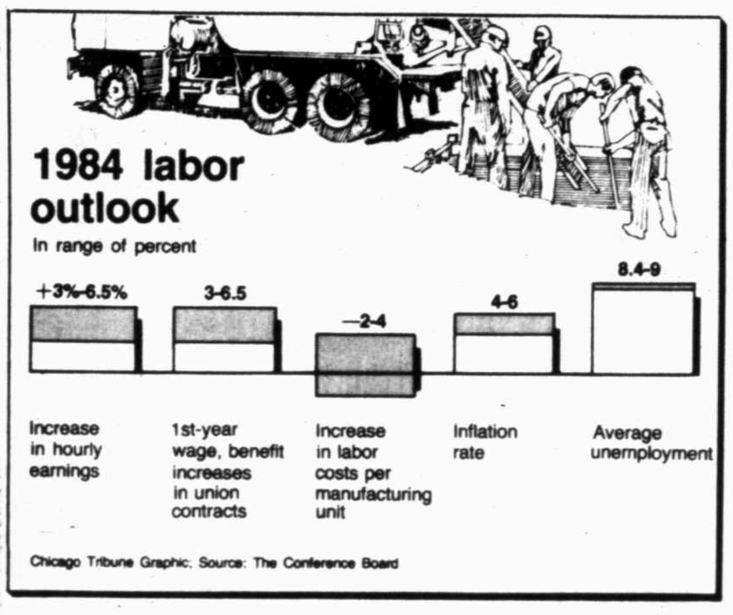

In other economic developments Wednesday:

—Eastern Airlines reported it lost $54.8 million in the final three months of 1983, giving it a total loss for the year of $183.7 million. Trans World Airlines said that it earned $21 million in the fourth quarter, but lost $12.4 million for the year. USAir Group said it earned a record $30.6 million in the quarter and $80.6 million for the year.

—A state judge in Delaware was considering whether to grant Pennzoil Co.'s request for an order giving it the right to buy a portion of Getty Oil Co. stock before Getty is taken over by Texaco Inc. in a $128-a-share, $10.2 billion deal. Getty contends there was never a binding contract for Pennzoil to buy 43 percent of Getty at $115 a share.

—The Federal Communications Commission decided household and small-business telephone users will not have to pay "access charges" for long-distance phone service until at least mid-1985. The fees had been scheduled to take effect in April.

—Wall Street rumors that President Reagan might not seek re-election sent stock prices down sharply in late trading. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 7 points at midday, closed with a 10.99 loss at 1,231.89. Reagan is to announce his plans Sunday.

Eastern, TWA report losses; USAir reports record fourth quarter earnings

By CHRISTOPHER LINDSAY
AP Business Writer

Battered Eastern Airlines reported it lost $54.8 million in the final three months of 1983, giving it a total loss for the year of $183.7 million.

Trans World Airlines, meanwhile, said Wednesday that it earned $21 million in the fourth quarter, including one-time gains from selling tax benefits and used airplanes. For the year, however, it lost $12.4 million.

Far-smaller USAir Group, the most profitable airline in 1982, said it earned a record $30.6 million in the quarter and $80.6 million for the year.

Frank Borman, chairman and president of Eastern, said in a statement, "Relentless increases in operating expenses, plus continued heavy competition that restricted traffic growth and fare relief, severely impacted Eastern in 1983."

Eastern spokeswoman Paula Musto said a new wage-investment program negotiated with employees in December should cut Eastern's payroll by $292 million in 1984. Eastern's union and non-union employees agreed to wage cuts in exchange for common stock and seats on the corporate board.

Eastern's fourth-quarter loss compared to a profit of $12.2 million in the last three months of 1982. The loss for all of 1983 was more than double the $74.9 million lost during the previous year.

Eastern said its revenue rose to $3.94 billion i 1983 from $3.77 billion. But expenses reached $4.04 billion in 1983, up from 1982's $3.79 billion.

TWA's earnings were stated separately from its holding company parent, Trans World Corp., which earlier this year "spun off" the airline to its stockholders, effective next month.

Trans World's other operations are food service and restaurants, the Hilton International hotel chain and Century 21 Real Estate.

TWA said its fourth-quarter profit included gains of $34.4 million from sale of tax benefits and airplanes. In the fourth quarter of 1982, the airline showed a loss of $11 million, including $52.8 million in one-time gains.

The full-year loss was less than half of 1982's $30.8 million loss. Revenue rose from $3.32 billion in 1982 to $3.35 billion.

There were non-recurring gains in both years. In 1982, the airline's results included $99 million from selling tax benefits and airplanes. In 1983, that category amounted to $85.7 million, plus an additional $23.5 million settlement from Trans World, reflecting possible future transfer of tax liabilities to TWA and Trans World.

TWA President C.E. Meyer said the results included $26 million in labor concessions by salaried employees and union pilots.

Extension of those concessions hit a snag Wednesday. The Independent Federation of Flight Attendants said negotiations "apparently ended" with the airline's rejection of the union's offer of $28.5 million in wages cuts. The company had demanded $30 million worth of cuts.

USAir's fourth-quarter profit was more than double the $12 million earned in the final three months of 1982 and was the company's best quarter ever.

For the year, USAir netted $80.6 million, a 36 percent increase from the industry-leading $59.1 million in 1982. Revenue rose to $1.33 billion from $1.19 billion.

USAir president and chairman Edward Colodney said the year's performance included the result of "moderation of heavy (fare) discounting" in the fourth quarter.

Last week, AMR Corp., parent of American Airlines, said it earned $227.9 million in 1983, compared with a $19.6 million loss in 1982.

Japan to export pipe to Soviets

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's four largest steel pipe makers will export 1 million tons of gas pipeline to the Soviet Union in fiscal 1984 starting April 1, a spokesman of Nippon Steel Co. said today.

Japanese business officials have said the pipes will be used for the Siberia-Europe natural gas pipeline.

The spokesman said that besides Nippon Steel, the other three are Nippon Kokan, Sumitomo Metal Industries and Kawasaki Steel. They had held a series of negotiations with the Soviet Union since last October for export of 1 million metric tons of large-diameter pipe, he said, but declined to give other details.

Japanese steel makers have supplied valves, pipes and other equipment for Siberian pipeline projects for more than eight years, but no figures on the amount of sales were available.

Chrysler, Mitsubishi may announce joint venture

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

DETROIT — Top executives of Chrysler Corp. and Japan's Mitsubishi Motors Corp. are meeting this week and may announce plans to build small cars together in the United States, officials of the U.S. auto producer said Wednesday.

Lee A. Iacocca, chairman of Chrysler, and Toyoo Tate, president of Mitsubishi, are expected to issue a statement after their meetings on the status of their long-running negotiations on a joint production venture.

Chrysler officials would say only that Iacocca, Tate and their top lieutenants are meeting in the United States, but they would not disclose the site. They described the session as an annual meeting to discuss the two companies' various business connections.

On the agenda are the findings of a Mitsubishi feasibility study on production of cars in the United States, Chrysler Vice President Baron Bates said.

Although Chrysler said it has not yet seen the study's conclusions, the top-level meetings are taking place at a time of increasing U.S. investment activity by Japanese automakers — notably a decision by Honda Motor Co. to double its plant capacity in Marysville, Ohio.

Honda announced Jan. 11 that it will double its U.S. capacity to 300,000 cars a year and may build engines here. That means Honda will be able to nearly double its total U.S. sales to 650,000 annually, while its Japanese competitors remain virtually frozen at current levels because of the Japanese government's restraints on car exports.

"The rush is on," said Robert A. Perkins, a Chrysler vice president who heads the company's Washington, D.C., office. He said the other Japanese auto companies are "alarmed that Honda's going to leave them dead in their tracks."

Chrysler, which owns 15 percent of Mitsubishi Motors and sells some of its cars in the United States, has been trying to get the Japanese company to form a joint venture since at least 1979. Until now, the U.S. producer's financial crisis and the lack of motivation for Mitsubishi have impeded such a project.

However, Chrysler's recovery, along with the U.S. strategies of other Japanese automakers and the continuation of import restraints, have dramatically changed the picture.

The restraints originally were to expire after two years but have now been extended twice by the Japanese government. They will continue in place until at least March 31, 1985.

In the case of Mitsubishi, the extension of restraints came just as the company was to launch its own U.S. dealer network, after being freed by Chrysler from a contract restricting Mitsubishi sales to Chrysler dealers.

The fledgling dealer group received 30,000 cars last year and will get only a small increase under the latest car allocation. Including Chrysler dealer sales, Mitsubishi will be limited to 122,400 cars.

That leaves a joint venture with Chrysler, with the two companies perhaps sharing the production, as the only way to grow in the U.S. market. Even as it pursued its joint venture with Mitsubishi, Chrysler has fought a proposed joint venture by General Motors Corp. and Toyota on antitrust grounds. It has asked a federal court to block GM and Toyota from proceeding.

Chrysler has explained the apparent contradiction by saying that GM and Toyota, the world's biggest and third-biggest auto companies, are too big to be allowed to cooperate. It would be all right for Chrysler and someone else, Iacocca has said.

Chamber board told local housing market beginning to pick up

Midland's real estate market is getting more active, reported Sara Newsom, president of the Midland Board of Realtors.

Speaking at the monthly board meeting of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Newsom said 84 homes were sold in December 1983. Total dollar volume of these homes was $8,810,619.

Of that, 41 new homes were sold for $3,213,950. The average selling price was $103,675, which is down from last year's average selling price of $105,665.

Total existing homes sold in December were 53 for $4,867,746. The average selling price for these homes was $91,844. Total listings of 1,568 are down from last month. The average price of homes listed is $104,300. Newsom said the listings hit a high of almost 1,800 during 1983.

"Activity is up and I hope we can keep it up," she added.

Joan Baskin, vice president for community development for the chamber, reported planning had started for Midland County's 100th birthday celebration to be held in 1985.

Jim Chase, chairman of the "Highway 191 Celebration" committee, told board members the event is scheduled for March 10 from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Highway 191, which will connect Midland from Andrews Highway to 42nd Street in Odessa, will be the third major highway between the two cities. Chase said the celebration is an effort between the Midand and Odessa chambers to create more goodwill between the two cities. Chase also said Gov. Mark White and other state and local dignitaries had been invited to the celebration.

In other business, Jerry King, a member of the small business council, gave a status report on the council's planned trade show. TradeShow Midland 84 will be Feb. 29 -March 1 at the Midland Center.

Jane Leslie, executive director of Clean Midland, reported the organization had elected a new chairman, vice chairman and eight directors. To date, Clean Midland has cleared eight lots in Midland.

The convention and visitor's bureau hosted five conventions with a total of 2,100 delegates in December and January.

Grant Billingsley, executive vice president of the chamber, introduced the chamber's new communications manager Doug Thurston. Billingsley also said the chamber had added Deborah Maroney to the staff as sales coordinator in the convention and visitor's bureau.

The board also unanimously passed a resolution in memory of Allen K. Trobaugh, a longtime Midlander who died earlier this week. The resolution established a scholarship, to be given each year, for a participant in the Leadership Midland program. The scholarship will be named in memory of Trobaugh.

Dollar slumps while gold increases in early trading

LONDON (AP) — The dollar slumped against key currencies in hesitant early trading today, pushed down by signals that the U.S. economic recovery has peaked. Gold prices slid upwards.

The U.S. currency's slip followed a marked dip Wednesday as traders sold off dollars to cut their holdings, apparently fearful of bad news in President Reagan's State of the Union address Wednesday night.

Although U.S. officials said the speculation had little impact on the dollar, European dealers noted that expectations of a possible $8 billion U.S. trade deficit and a dip in the U.S. money supply figures expected Friday were holding the dollar down.

Treasury Secretary Donald Reagan underlined recent gloomy statistics Wednesday by cautioning that the dollar should weaken later this year in response to big U.S. trade deficits and a lowering of U.S. interest rates.

High interest rates have sustained the dollar in recent months. Lower rates would make the currency less attractive to investors.

In London, sterling rallied for the second day, trading at $1.4084, It cost $1.4018 to buy one British pound late Wednesday.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 234.12 yen, slightly down from Wednesday's 234.35-yen close.

Other morning rates compared to Wednesday's late levels:

—8.59 French francs, down from 8.62.

—2.8093 German marks, down from 2.8190.

—2.2356 Swiss francs, down from 2.2418.

—1,709.25 Italian lira, down from 1,713.45.

—3.1625 Dutch guilders, down from 3.1720.

—1.24655 Canadian dollars, slightly down from 1.24775.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $368.00 an ounce, $1.50 up on Wednesday's close.

The center's five major bullion houses later "fixed" the recommended morning trading price at $368.40.

In Zurich, gold opened at a bid price of $368.20, $1.70 up on Wednesday's close.

Shell's fourth quarter earnings, 1983 net income up

HOUSTON (SWN) — Shell Oil Company reported today its fourth-quarter 1983 earnings of $549 million were $111 million higher than the same 1982 period. Net income for the year was $1.633 billion, an increase of $28 million from 1982.

Per-share earnings were $1.78 for the fourth quarter and $5.28 for the full year, up from $1.42 and $5.19, respectively, for the 1982 periods.

These preliminary results are subject to audit.

"This is our second highest annual net income, despite the drop in oil prices and soft market conditions early in the year," President John F. Bookout said.

"A MAJOR FACTOR in the quarterly earnings gain was the contiuing improvement in our chemical business," he said. Shell also had increased crude oil production, higher natural gas prices and improved refined product margins. In addition, fourth-quarter comparative results benefited from lower Windfall Profit Tax and from a gain on defeasance of debt. Partly offsetting these factors were lower crude oil prices and reduced demand for natural gas.

Funds from operations from 1983 totaled $3.6 billion, a record level and $146 million higher than 1982.

Revenues were $5.2 billion for the fourth quarter, essentially the same as the previous fourth quarter, and $19.9 billion for the year, compared with $20.2 billion for 1982. Earnings amounted to 8.2 cents of each dollar of revenue in 1983, compared with 7.9 cents in 1982.

Fourth-quarter earnings of $416 million in the oil and gas exploration and production segment were $6 million lower than the same period the previous year. Full-year earnings in this segment of $1.386 billion were $60 million lower than 1982.

THE MAJOR FACTORS causing the quarterly and full-year earnings declines were lower crude oil prices and reduced demand for natural gas. Positive factors included increased crude oil production, higher natural gas prices and lower expenses. Fourth-quarter results for 1983 benefited from a Windfall Profit Tax adjustment applicable to prior quarters in the year. The fourth-quarter and 12-month earnings in both years also included gains from the sale of marginal producing properties.

"Although our average domestic crude oil price for the fourth quarter and the full year was about $2.40 a barrel less than 1982, we are encouraged that our price has been essentially unchanged for 11 months," Bookout said. "Domestic crude oil production rose two percent for both the quarter and for the year, compared with 1982. Our crude oil production in 1983 was up for the fourth year in a row, with domestic production at the highest level in eight years.

"Our natural gas production was down six percent for the fourth quarter and 11 percent for the year, compared with 1982," Bookout said. "However, our natural gas production has increased from a low point in July, and at year-end was at more than 90 percent of producing capacity. Demands associated with cold weather and refilling of industry storage this spring may keep our production near this level for several months."

Earnings in the oil products segment were $81 million for the quarter, an increase of $9 million over the fourth quarter of 1982. The major contributing factors were higher margins and increased sales volumes.

FOURTH-QUARTER refined product sales volumes increased one percent; including sales to the chemical segment, oil products sales volumes were up five percent. Jet fuel sales increased 14 percent, but automotive gasoline sales volumes were down four percent, because of reduced sales to jobbers.

Fourth-quarter oil products results in each year benefited $22 million from drawdown of inventory valued on a last-in, first-out (LIFO) basis.

For the full year, oil products earnings were $238 million, compared with $344 million for 1982. The difference reflected both a poor 1983 first quarter and a $30 million benefit in 1982 from the sale of Shell's Ciniza refinery. LIFO inventory withdrawals benefited earnings by $40 million in 1983, an increase of $4 million.

Total 1983 refined product sales volumes increased four percent over 1982; including sales to the chemical segment, oil products sales volumes were up six percent. Automotive gasoline sales increased one percent and jet fuel was up 13 percent.

"THE OIL PRODUCTS outlook for the first quarter of 1984 is uncertain at this point and present margins are unsatisfactory," Bookout said. "Current market trends, however, are encouraging and, if they continue, we anticipate a substantial improvement over the $40 million loss in 1983's severely depressed first quarter."

The chemical products segment earned $24 million in the fourth quarter, compared with a loss of $26 million in the 1982 period. For the full year, chemical products earned $63 million, compared with a $25 million loss in 1982.

"Comparative earnings in both periods benefited from improved margins and higher sales volumes," Bookout said. "Chemical results have continued their steady recovery from recession lows as sales volumes have grown, and cost reduction programs are taking hold."

OTHER OPERATING segments, which include non-petroleum energy areas and emerging businesses, had earnings of $26 million for the year, compared with a 1982 loss of $32 million. The improve-ment included a profit of about $50 million from the September 1983 disposal of geothermal properties in the Geysers area of California.

Unallocated copporate items had a profit of $25 million in the fourth quarter and a loss of $80 million for the full year, compared with losses of $22 million and $128 million for the respective 1982 periods. The improvements were largely due to a $34 million gain in the fourth quarter of 1983 from defeasance of debt.

Total company earnings increase 25 percent for the quarter and two percent for the year.

"Capital expenditures are now projected at $2.9 billion for 1984," Bookout said. "Our major spending emphasis continues to be on exploration and development of energy resources, primarily domestic oil and gas. Expenditures of $2.2 billion are planned in the exploration and production segment in 1984, an increase of $600 million over the $1.6 billion actually spent in 1983. We also expect that capital outlays in oil products will increase by about $100 million from 1983, while chemical products spending will be about the same."

Total 1983 capital expenditures of $2.3 billion were less than expected largely because of delays in government lease sales and awarding of oil and gas leases.

County attorney: City police 'avoiding DWI enforcement'

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

The recent arrest of a driver who was charged with public intoxication instead of driving while intoxicated has angered County Attorney Scott Henderson.

In a Jan. 13 memo to Chief of Police Wayne Gideon, Henderson said:

"It has become apparent that the Midland Police Department will continue its practice of avoiding DWI enforcement by filing public intoxication charges against persons found intoxicated while driving.

"This policy is contrary to the sweeping new measures enacted by the Texas legislature to curb drunk driving, and thwarts the efforts of the community to protect itself against such violations."

Case in point: a 26-year-old Lamesa cotton gin employee with a lengthy driving record who was arrested in the early morning hours of Jan. 13 after police spotted his westbound car travelling in the eastbound lane of Loop 250 at a high rate of speed.

According to the arresting officers' reports, the driver ran the red light at Midkiff Road at speeds of "60 to 70 mph" with his lights off.

He refused to stop for the pursuing officers, forced "three other vehicles off the road," fought with the officers when he was finally curbed and "was very intoxicated."

But instead of DWI, he was charged with public intoxication (a Class-C misdemeanor punishable by a minimum fine of $40) and the phrase "drunk while operating" was placed on his arrest sheet — a routine practice which alerts municipal court authorities that the offense occurred while the suspect was behind the wheel.

This results in the maximum fine of $200 being levied against the driver, with the money staying in city hands. But public intoxication offenses do not go on a person's driving record and therefore cannot be used to prosecute subsequent violations as felonies.

First offense DWIs, on the other hand, are Class-B misdemeanors prosecuted by the county attorney's office. A conviction is recorded on the person's driving record, the fines go to county coffers and subsequent offenses can be prosecuted as felonies under the state's felony DWI law.

What especially upsets Henderson is that in the case of the Lamesa motorist, police apparently did not check his record before booking him on the public intoxication charge.

The man's record — which dates back to 1979 — shows five speeding charges, two accidents and four arrests for DWI. Two of the DWI charges resulted in convictions and last July he was sentenced to 60 days in jail by Crosbyton authorities.

Had he been charged with DWI for the Jan. 13 offense, he could have been prosecuted as a felon and sentenced to prison.

Although it's apparently legal to charge drivers with public intoxication instead of DWI (Midland is not the only city employing the practice), authorities feel it nonetheless subverts the felony DWI law.

Noting that he's a "strong foe of drunk driving," City Attorney Joe Nuessle said: "I agree. It does undermine the law."

Henderson is not the only one upset by the Lamesa man's case, which is an extreme example of someone slipping through the drunk driving net.

"The citizens of this county should be just as outraged as we are," said Cynthia Grubb, local chapter president of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers."Our lives are not being adequately protected from this crime."

Recalling a closed-door, executive session meeting last November with Chief Gideon and city officals on the issue of charging drivers with public intoxication instead of DWI, Mrs. Grubb added:

"This has been an all too common practice with the Midland Police Department. We cannot tolerate this lax attitude by our law enforcement officers. We need a get-tough policy against intoxicated drivers — and it needs to begin with city hall and the police chief."

In defending the practice, Gideon denied that its purpose is to keep fines in city hands.

Noting that it takes up to two hours for police to process a DWI case — as opposed to 15 minutes on a public intoxication charge — he said:

"We permit the discretionary filing of the lesser offense of public intoxication as a time-saving measure. It accomplishes the goal of removing the drunk driver from the road, and it gets the officer back on the streets quicker."

Calling the Lamesa man's case "much more aggravated than most of the drunk-while-operatings we work," Gideon said the practice "is under re-evalution."

Meanwhile, he added, a memo will be issued today "re-affirming existing department policy" of checking the background of suspects before filing charges against them.

Judge Pat Baskin of Midland's 142nd State District Court swears in members of the Midland County Appraisal District. Baskin, right, administers the oaths of office to, from the left, David Grimes, Joe Nuessle, Gil Tompson, Margaret Cowden and Walt Holton. Ms. Cowden, who is new to the board, succeeds C. Wallace "Wally" Craig, and Holton, who was re-appointed to the board following a two-year absence, replaces Charlie Welch.

Midland appraisal board debates whether FDIC will be paying taxes

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Does the FDIC pay taxes?

Whether or not the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. is or will be paying taxes on holdings and foreclosures by the defunct First National Bank of Midland got hashed around Wednesday by the five-member Midland County Appraisal District board of directors.

The FDIC is liquidator of the failed FNB, once Texas' largest independent bank.

The board had no doubt the district would be collecting taxes on real property. But collections of taxes on personal property, from oil rigs to airplanes to office furniture, seemed uncertain.

"We have no legal remedy to force them to pay us," said Chief Appraiser Roland Wilkinson, "and it would be out of the graciousness in their heart if they do pay us."

"I wouldn't give up," said Joe Nuessle, Midland's city attorney and the board's secretary. "I don't see how the bank could foreclose on liens and in doing so wipe out (personal) property taxes."

Midland Rape Crisis Center holds class for volunteers

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

The Midland Rape Crisis Center began its fifth year Oct. 1. Since that date, almost 30 rape cases have been handled. Nine of those have come this month.

The center is right on schedule with last year's records.

Then, 91 rape victims were contacted, counseled and helped through their crisis by about 25 volunteers, the number the center tries to keep on staff.

According to Nan Gordon, MRCC executive director, about 10 of this year's victims have been 17 years old or younger. Last year, half of the victims were that age.

An intense volunteer training class, one of about four each year, begins tonight. Those wishing to volunteer can contact Ms. Gordon on the MRCC hotline, 682-7273, for further information.

"As a volunteer, your role is to support the victim so they may come to terms with the trauma of rape by exploration, understanding and action," states the volunteer procedure manual.

It is a difficult role to play, Ms. Gordon said.

Not only must the volunteer want to be able to communicate and listen to the victim, who often is in an extremely sensitive state while trying to cope with the trauma, the volunteer also must know how to support the victim while explaining courses of action.

Always, most importantly, the volunteer must allow the victim to decide which course she will take.

Not all of those entering the volunteer training course will become volunteers. The selection process is thorough.

Volunteers will be educated on the facts and myths of rape, child sexual abuse, rape exams, follow-up exams, rape investigation procedures and legal procedures.

During the course, which runs from 7 to 9:30 p.m. tonight, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, and 7 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday night, potential volunteers will be exposed to a wide range of the aspects surrounding sexual assault. They will also participate in active role playing.

A counselor will discuss the attitudes of volunteers and victims, myths, profiles of victims and rapists and watch a training film. Volunteers also will tour Midland Memorial Hospital's emergency room, where a nurse will discuss the rape exam, its procedures and what it accomplishes.

A representative from the police department will talk about sexual abuse and the district attorney will speak on court procedures and how volunteers can help a victim through the legal process.

The training course also will deal with the center's procedures for receiving suicide calls and other crisis calls.

An exam follows the course.

Volunteers must be 18 years or older, successfully complete the counselor training program and be devoted to their duties, which will include:

— Immediate crisis counseling and supportive follow-up counseling with the victim, family and those close to the victim;

— Provision of accurate data to the victim and family with regard to medical, law enforcement and legal procedures;

— Referral agent for non-rape matters;

— Work an average of three Hotline shifts per month and be responsible to find a substitute if necessary;

— Immediate and thorough documentation of all contacts with cases;

— Responsibility for maintaining a positive relationship with all cooperating agencies.

Slobs wait for opportune moment to expend energy

There must be something nice to say about sloppiness.

It's not enough to say: "I'm not a genius, but I sure am sloppy." Slobs don't find excuses. Neither are they lazy; they wait for the opportune moment to expend energy. Some wait a lifetime; others are not so patient.

Untidiness is a mark of a genius, so they say. The genius has more important things to do than clean up after himself as if he were a manservant or to put things away as if he were a file clerk.

Some people, who equate refinement with tidiness, think the outward slob is a sloven, a sloth who crawled out of the jungle and stood upright in civilization, which, his critics say, he has not yet formally joined.

That notion is hogwash.

The slob is really a perfectionist. He wants the world to be in perfect order. You see, he's smart, and he can really cut the mustard. "But why?" he asks, as he tosses paperwork onto a seeming garbage pile that really is his hidden desk.

"Man, aided, abetted and sometimes hindered by woman, has trudged the heights and explored the depths in his eternal search for perfection," says the slob. "Now I believe in history and education. Politicians and self-seekers do not; they seem never to learn. And if millions of men and women after thousands of years of striving have been denied perfection, then is it logical that I, in all of my vanity, could ferret out perfection in my lifetime?"

No, he demures.

The slob is a realist. He's made his bid, however reluctantly, for perfection before he became an avowed slob. He will try again.

He didn't exactly give up. He just took a sabbatical. Eventually, when the timing's right, he'll fling headlong into the quest for perfection. The slob, in all of his often misunderstood widsom, doesn't seek after perfection right now for the same reason a ship doesn't sail into some ports until high tide or an astronomer doesn't look for Halley's Comet every year. Why get stuck? Why get a crick in your neck for nothing?

Someday, when the timing is right, the slob is going to make progress. It may not be perfection, and it may not be hailed by the world's saints of fastidiousness as noteworthy. Forbid that! It may not be noticeable. But the slob is going to find perfection somewhere in his life. It may be buried in that heap of trash on his desk or in his vision.

The slob really is a perfectionist. He just doesn't practice everyday.

Woman third contender for GOP JP nomination

From Staff Reports

Robbie J. Rucker, who pledged she will bring "dignity and decorum" to the office of justice of the peace in Midland, on Wednesday announced her candidacy for the JP post currently held by Charlie Sprayberry.

Ms. Rucker, a 43-year-old Midland schoolteacher, is the third contender for the Republican Party nomination for the job in the May 5 primary elections.

Sprayberry, 43, is seeking his second four-year term in the JP slot, and Dewey Lee, 53, chief criminal investigator for District Attorney Vern Martin, is seeking election to the $30,000-a-year post.

Ms. Rucker noted that she has been "closely involved with politics and law" for the past 20 years and was selected to take several law courses so she could teach law in the Midland Independent School District. She is a fifth-grade mathematics and science teacher at West Elementary School. She referred to her long-time association with Louie Welch, former mayor of Houston, now president of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, and the grandfather of her children, Lisa, 20, and Mitchell, 18.

"I believe with the experience and dedication I have given the children in education in Midland and my interest in politics and the law that I will be a qualified justice of the peace," she said. "I will, to the best of my ability along with study and hard work, be fair, impartial and professional".

"When I am elected justice of the peace for Precinct 1, Place 1," she said, "you can be assured that I will continue to study throughout my term and will ahdere to the rules and regulations of the state of Texas."

Ms. Rucker said that her actions as JP "will not be based upon whim and caprice but rather upon logic, common sense and the law."

"I will bring dignity and decorum to the office of justice of the peace."

If elected, Ms. Rucker noted that she would not be the first woman JP in Midland.

Robbie J. Rucker

For about a two-week period in May 1958, Mary Hess, secretary to then Justice of the Peace L.C. Stephenson, served as JP "without additional pay" when Stephenson was absent from office due to an illness, according to the minutes of the Midland County Commissioners' Court. In 1958, the JP position was paying $6,000 a year.

"There are several women in the position of justice of the peace in Crane, Pecos and Seminole," Ms. Rucker said, "and we have our own woman district judge (Barbara Culver) here in Midland." Judge Culver, presiding judge of the 318th State District Court since the late 1970s, previously was the Midland County judge.

Ms. Rucker, a graduate of Abilene Christian University, has taught in public schools for 19 years, including 11 years in Midland. She is a real-estate broker and at one time was a veterinarian's assistant and a dental assistant.

In a sense, she said, law and politics is "like school teaching. It gets in your blood."

"I guess I'm an adventurer at heart," she said of her choice to seek a change in her career. "It's a way to broaden your horizons."

Arlington salesman to plead innocent to capital murder

SHERMAN (AP) — An innocent plea will be entered by an Arlington chemical salesman accused of four counts of capital murder in connection with the slayings last fall of four men in an ultralight aircraft hangar, the defendant's attorney says.

A Grayson County grand jury indicted Lester Leroy Bower Jr., 36, on Wednesday after hearing testimony from four investigators involved in the case.

Grayson County Sheriff Jack Driscoll, Texas Rangers Weldon Lucas and Charles Fleming and Sherman FBI agent Jim Blanton told the panel about evidence they said linked Bower to the murders.

Grayson County Attorney Stephen Davidchick, who requested the grand jury proceedings, would not comment on the indictment, saying the investigation was still going on.

Bower's defense attorney, Jerry Buckner of Weatherford, said he would file motions for discovery and other motions to "make them follow the rules."

Buckner said Bower would plead innocent.

On Tuesday, State District Judge Ray Grisham denied a defense motion to have Bower's bond reduced from $400,000.

The indictment accuses Bower of killing Grayson County sheriff's deputy Philip Boyce Good, 29; former Sherman police officer Ronald Mayes, 37; Sherman paint contractor Jerry Mac Brown, 51; and Denison builder Bob Tate.

Investigators said Good, Brown and Tate were shot twice in the head at close range with a .22-caliber weapon. Mayes was shot five times in the head, neck, chest and abdomen with the same type of weapon, authorities said.

Buckner said Tuesday he had not "seen or heard anything to show that Les Bower was ever in Grayson County."

Records in State District Judge Tom Cave's office in Fort Worth show that investigators seized 39 pieces of evidence in a search of Bower's Southwest Arlington home Friday night.

Among the evidence was two black ultralight aircraft wheels that had T-A-T-E — the last name of one of the victims — scratched on the inside, according to the records.

Midland appraisal board debates tax role of FDIC

"I don't think they can," said Margaret Cowden, who was at her first board meeting.

"Let's be sure," advised Nuessle, "that we look at all the angles on the thing."

Board Chairman Gil Tompson suggested that the board, via its attorney, Jimmie Oglesby, "see what the law says about it. They (FDIC liquidators) are going to get what they can."

"Everybody's in the dark," said Nuessle. "...Just don't assume everything is down the tubes just because we've had a bank failure."

He said "a lot of people" are affected by the foreclosures.

"They're strapped for cash. They don't know if they're going to go under." He noted that some taxes this year may fall delinquent. Deadline for paying taxes to avoid penalty and interest is Tuesday, Jan. 31. "People are just short of cash in this area."

Ms. Cowden alluded to the likelihood of forthcoming foreclosures by FDIC. "You can't roll over and play dead, or you won't get anything from them."

"This is purely speculation," said Nuessle, "but really all they (FDIC) can do is step in the shoes of the bank...If the bank would foreclose, it's still subject to taxes."

Now, does the FDIC pay taxes?

Yes, says Tom Procopio, FDIC's liquidator in charge of FNB.

"We pay whatever taxes are due (on real and personal properties)," he told The Reporter-Telegram late Wednesday. "We pay all taxes on property promptly to avoid penalties."

Man testifies about death of stepfather in civil suit

AMARILLO (AP) — The stepson of ranch foreman James C. Grandstaff said he heard gunshots moments after his stepfather drove to the site where Borger policemen were searching for an Oklahoma fugitive.

Raymond Glen Gatlin, testifying in a $5 million lawsuit against four Borger policemen, told a federal court jury Wednesday about events leading to Grandstaff's death on the morning of Aug. 11, 1981.

Gatlin said that on that morning, he was awakened by someone shouting through a bullhorn, "You in the pickup. Come out with your hands up or we'll open fire."

From a window, Gatlin said he watched a pickup truck surrounded by police cars. He said Grandstaff then walked into the room to see what was happening. Afterwards, Gatlin said his stepfather drove to where the police cars were, hesitated and drove back to the house.

Midland to host 1985 convention of Texas Republican women

From Staff Reports

Midland will host the 1985 convention of the Texas Federation of Republican Women, bringing in 800 visitors and projected revenue of $150,000 to Midland.

Nanci Mann, director of the Convention and Visitors Bureau here, said Midland received the convention bid over Odessa and Dallas.

"Our local Republican women were 100 percent behind the bid," Ms. Mann said. "The success of our bid can be attributed to local members Lou Brown and Fran Hillin, who are very active in the state association."

The Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Midland Hilton and representatives of the Midland County Republican Women's Club — dressed in red, white and blue tuxedos — made the bid at the TFRW board meeting in Houston.

The Texas Federation of Republican Women hold their conventions every two years with the next one scheduled for October or November of 1985.

State plans to improve FM 1788

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is proceeding with plans to improve FM 1788 in Midland County, beginning near Spur 217 and continuing south to its intersection with I-20.

An estimated 0.2 acres in additional right of way is expected to be required south of I-20 and west of FM 1788 to provide for widening and drainage. Public hearing notices were posted Nov. 23 and Dec. 13, 1983 in local newspapers, but no requests to speak were received by the Dec. 23, 1983, deadline.

The state is scheduled to receive construction bids for the project in April.

Officer's death ruled suicide

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The death of a veteran San Antonio policeman found shot in the head has been ruled a suicide.

The body of Patrolman Larry Sherbert, 34, was discovered sprawled in his apartment by his policeman brother and a fellow officer about 3 p.m. Tuesday.

"They became a little concerned about where he was when he didn't show up for work," said homicide Sgt. Jack Summey.

The officer's older brother, Patrol Sgt. Roy Sherbert, and Patrolman Harold Ferguson used a passkey to enter the apartment after a knock on the door brought no response.

Scouts squeeze sales into busy schedules for one week

By LISA GERLOCK
Lifestyle Editor

When the school day winds down, Jamie Dodson and Martha Josefy, both 12, come home, change into their green uniforms and get to business.

They are seasonal closet salesmen.

They pick a street, any street, and after the strategy is plotted "you take this house, I'll take that one," they begin. They approach the door, knock and wait. Someone answers. "Hi! I was wondering if y'all would like to buy some cookies," they announce. And the order list begins.

The syndrome is a familiar one. It's been going around for years. It starts with the desire to be a Brownie, then a Junior Girl Scout. In time, that's not enough and they want to grow. They want to go to camp and learn how to build toilet seats and bake candy bars on open fires. They learn how to sing and make bandages.

Almost every neighborhood has one. In this country, more than 3 million girls are affected by scouting. In the Permian Basin, more than 3,000 girls are victims.

Many of the "closet" salesmen had mothers who were also afflicted.

The tradition is as American as apple pie and baseball and is as old as the green beanie itself. Its recent changes also make it as new as the almond fudge cremes they are selling this year.

Unlike the first cookie sales, which featured cookies home-baked in a private kitchen, the delectables now are manufactured by the Fine Food of Virginia company and cost the scouts 75 cents per box. New products such as Caramel deLites, Pecan Chocolate Chips, Peanut Butter Patties, and Almond Fudge Cremes have been added to the line, and the most traditional of the cookies, the assorted cremes, have been dropped (not a hot seller last year, say troop leaders).

Last year, Miss Dodson, daughter of Gayle and Doc Dodson, and Miss Josefy, daughter of Anne and John C. Josefy, each sold more than 500 boxes of cookies which tied them for first place as Midland's top cookie-sellers.

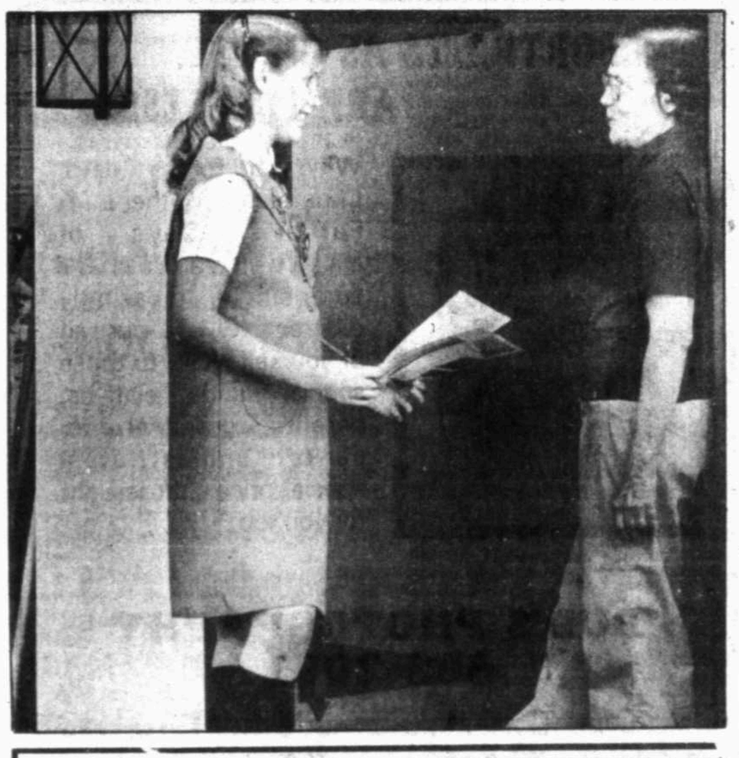

Each was awarded $150 "camperships," scholarships for a two-week camp at Mitre Peak, near Alpine. They also received pins and cookie cutters for their achievements.

Jamie juggles her business hours between ballet classes, piano lessons and play rehearsals. Martha takes time from her tightly-packed schedule of basketball practice and piano lessons.

The girls also agreed they make a higher percentage of the cookie sales from phone orders rather than door-to-door sales. "It's a lot easier," said Miss Josefy. While they learned modern communication systems make the sale easier, they also learned other parts of business, such as distribution and collection, still mean hard work.

"Last year it took about a month to deliver them," Miss Dodson sighed.

DEAR ABBY

Will needed another way

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Ordinarily I find your advice to be right on target, but I must disagree with your reply to "Concerned Daughter," whose mother had a lot in assets, was getting on in years and didn't have a will. The mother had asked her attorney son-in-law repeatedly to please get together with her to draft a will, but he kept telling her there was no hurry, he was too busy right now, etc., while the mother grew impatient.

You told "Concerned Daughter" to tell her mother to inform the son-in-law (married to another daughter) that if he didn't get together with her within two weeks, she should find an attorney who would!

Abby, I am not an attorney, but I have dealt with many of them.

First, the son-in-law would have an obvious conflict of interest in drafting his mother-in-law's will. Second, and perhaps more important, any attorney who would minimize the importance of having a properly executed will should be disbarred.

You should have told "Concerned Daughter" to tell her mother to forget the son-in-law and find a good, unrelated attorney who specializes in estate planning.

My wife and I both have our wills properly executed and periodically updated as necessary. We have a good attorney. — F. ANDRE WISE, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR F. ANDRE: Your wife is to be congratulated. She married a Wise man.

DEAR ABBY: I have this hang-up that is hard for me to overcome. It's been 10 years and I still can't call my in-laws "Mother" and "Dad." They have known this for a long time, so they asked me to call them by their first names. I have tried that a time or two, but I always chicken out. (It doesn't sound very respectful.) I have talked to people with the same problem, and they say they call their in-laws "Hey."

There is no way I can call my in-laws "Hey," so I just don't call them anything. What is the matter with me? And how can I overcome this? I feel so foolish. — HUNG-UP IN FAIR OAKS, CALIF.

DEAR HUNG-UP: How about addressing them as "Mother (her first name)" and "Father (his first name)"? And if that seems too familiar or lacking in respect, call them "Mother Smith" and "Father Smith."

DEAR ABBY: Here's my problem. We got thanked for the wrong wedding present and want to know what to do about it. The note said, "We just loved the beautiful wooden salad bowl and matching fork and spoon." But Abby, we sent them a stainless steel ice bucket.

A friend who supposedly knows proper etiquette tells me to say nothing. My husband tells me to let the bride and groom know about the mix-up.

What do you say? — WRONG GIFT

DEAR WRONG: Right the error and inform the bride of the mix-up.

(If you're single and want to know how to meet someone decent, see page 20 of Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular." Send $2, plus a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Scouts busy with annual cookie sale

With a little help from her parents, the cookies were delivered and the money was collected, she said.

Their ambition this year has leveled off to a degree, and their goals have been set with a different perspective. Neither one seems to really care if last year's record is surpassed. "Well, I dunno," they agreed.

This year "I'll just stop whenever," Miss Dodson commented with a comfortable tone in her voice.

It's a matter of priorities. She had to conclude her day of selling because she had to rush to ballet class at 5 p.m., and at 7 p.m., she was off to rehearsal for "Annie," which would occupy her energy until 10 p.m.

The cookie sale continues through Monday. Persons interested in cookies should scout their neighborhoods for green uniforms or call the Program Center, 684-6222 and a scout will be directed to inquiries, according to Lou Ann Graham, member of the council's cookie committee. The $1.25 profit from each box is divided into national dues and local programs, such as campers-ships and recognition awards, patches, troop projects, camp maintenance and equipment.

Secretarial positions increase

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The number of help-wanted ads offering secretarial positions increased 59 percent from 1982 to 1983, the annual survey conducted by The Secretary magazine and Professional Secretaries International Research and Educational Foundation shows.

The third annual Newspaper Help Wanted Advertisements Survey included 4,855 ads from newspapers in 22 U.S. and Canadian cities. It tracked information in the ads relating to titles, skills and abilities required, job duties, salaries and fringe benefits.

Exhibit on designers

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The works of two artists for whom clothing is a central image will be on view in an exhibition, "Viewpoints: Judith Shea and Nick Vaughn," March 18-May 6 at the Walker Art Center.

Judith Shea, a New York sculptor, trained and worked as a fashion designer before her interest in form and structure led her to sculpture in the mid-1970s. Her work will be represented by a selection of 13 objects depicting various items of women's clothing in cast metal and felt.

Unlike hers, the garments of Los Angeles-based artist Nick Vaughn are wearable. His designs will be featured along with photographs showing the garments worn by the people for whom they were made.

Cake mix doesn't rise to challenge

By LINDA ANDERSON

I can't resist a challenge.

Duncan Hines cake mixes are advertised in television commercials as "high risin'," and "rising to new heights of moistness." The ads claim Duncan Hines cake mixes rise higher than the other two leading brands, which I decided must have been Pillsbury and Betty Crocker.

I also decided the Duncan Hines commercial was a personal challenge to me to test advertising accuracy. (Taste and texture were also tested.)

I baked each of the three cake mixes to see if the Duncan Hines claim was correct. I spent a recent Sunday afternoon baking the three cakes. I used the same pan, placed it in the same position in the oven (the temperature in my oven varies from front to back) and followed the directions exactly.

All three mixes were chocolate because it is the favorite in my family.

The Pillsbury mix was Pillsbury Plus devil's food (18-1/2 ounce). Advertising on the package said the cake has "pudding in the mix."

The Duncan Hines mix was deluxe deep chocolate (18.25 ounce) , and the box information claims the cake has "new moister taste."

Betty Crocker Super Moist chocolate fudge flavored mix package advertised it as "Moist! Pudding in the mix" (18.5 ounce).

All three mixes require water, oil and three eggs. I bought all three mixes on sale for 69- to 79-cents, but they usually cost 79- to 89-cents. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

These are the results:

— All three cakes were equally easy to bake.

— All three cakes were equal in quality, though the deepest chocolate flavor was in the Duncan Hines, followed closely by the Betty Crocker.

— The Pillsbury was a lighter chocolate than the other two brands, but the texture was finer and the grain was lighter.

— The Betty Crocker cake was about 1/4-inch higher than the other two brands. I know because I measured each of them with a ruler.

The cakes were taste-tested (before they were frosted) by a child, a group of adults and two teenagers. The teenagers liked the rich chocolate flavor of the Betty Crocker cake over the Duncan Hines and the Pillsbury. The adults were evenly divided — those who like darker chocolate chose the Betty Crocker cake as their favorite and those who like their chocolate a little milder and smoother chose the Pillsbury cake.

Only one adult chose Duncan Hines as his favorite. (My mother, who happened to be in town that weekend, said Duncan Hines had a "funny whang" to it.) It was a deep chocolate that may be too chocolate for some people. (Sometimes chocolate seems to get bitter if it is very dark.)

Many of the testers commented on the Pillsbury cake being a finer grain than Duncan Hines and Betty Crocker — the Pillsbury cake had smaller crumbs and air holes than the other two did.

The Pillsbury mix called for harder and longer beating, which was probably the cause of the cake having a much finer grain than the other cakes tested. Directions on the other two boxes called for less beating, resulting in both the other two cakes having fairly large air holes in them.

This test of cake mixes didn't really result in one obvious winner. All three cakes were eaten very enthusiastically by those participating (and by my coworkers at the R-T, who reaped the benefits of three cakes in one day because I have no room in my freezer).

The convenience of cake mixes is hard to top, and these days most mixes are of extremely high quality. (The three brands tested are superb box mixes.) And I suppose for an accurate test of taste or flavor, I should have used three devil's food mixes or three double Dutch fudge or whatever.

But the original challenge of proving whether or not Duncan Hines cakes were really higher was met and the Duncan Hines cake in the test failed — the Betty Crocker cake actually was the highest rising of the three cakes I baked.

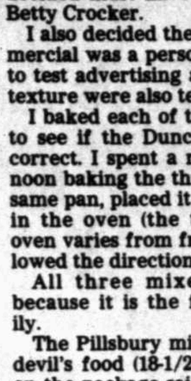

All three cakes were delicious.

Personal computer sales soaring

NEW YORK (AP) — The old adage of "a car in every garage" is being replaced by a new saying — "a personal computer in every living room" — according to a management information systems journal.

MIS Week says that with the public purchasing more than 100,000 personal computers a month, the nation is witnessing perhaps the most dramatic phenomenon of the entire computer revolution.

AT WIT'S END

Third child 'a charm' — sort of

By ERMA BOMBECK

Someone who has wisely remained anonymous once said that children are like waffles. The first one should be used to season the grill and then tossed out.

Studies made on first children say they're not all that bad. They are usually shy, serious, sensitive, are academically superior and more likely to be an Einstein.

Second children, on the other hand, are relaxed, independent, cheerful, lean toward creativity and are more likely to be a Picasso.

No one has had the courage to find — let alone study — child No. 3 and the ones that follow, whom I call "et ceteras."

Is there life after the first two children? What are the et ceteras like?

I have discovered the third child has a few attributes of his own. He has itchy feet and joins other families for three or four months, often without being noticed. He is not intimidated by anyone, has a great sense of humor, and is apt to be a game-show host.

Part of their uniqueness is that third children have no history. There are no footprints of him in the baby book, no record of his baptism, no snapshots of his birthdays and no report cards to show he ever was.

The third child is the one who gets called the other two's names before the mother finally remembers his. He goes through a lifetime of comparisons: "You're not going to be as tall as your brother . . . as smart as your sister . . . as athletic as your father."

I personally feel there's a lot to be said for the "et cetera" children who get a fast family shuffle and who thrive on neglect and somehow appear one day all grown up.

They not only know who they are and what they are, but they've dealt very early with the two things that most children fear the most: competition and loneliness.

Symphony sponsors artist competition

The 22nd annual National Young Artist Competition will be held at Midland College's Allison Fine Arts Building Friday and Saturday. Sponsored by the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale Association, Inc., the competition alternates yearly between Midland and Odessa.

The public is invited to attend the preliminaries in the various divisions held throughout the day Friday and Saturday and the finals scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the auditorium of the Allison Fine Arts Building.

Dr. Lara Hoggard was music director and conductor of the symphony when the competition first began. He envisioned a competition that would allow talented young musicians, high school and college age, to compete for recognition and financial awards. It was through his efforts and those of the Midland and Odessa symphony guilds that the competition has reached the level of excellence it has today.

Five distinguished musicians will serve as judges for this year's event. They are pianist Walter Ponce, clarinetist Stanley Hasty, violinist Dr. Donald Portnoy, pianist and adjudicator Roger Keyes and artistic supervisor Jean Mallandaine.

Head of the piano faculty of the State University of New York at Binghamton, Ponce has collaborated with, among others, Jaime Laredo, Elmar Oliveira, Nathaniel Rosen, Alexander Schneider and members of the Guarneri, Juilliard, Cleveland, Lenox and Galimir quartets. During the 1983-84 season, Ponce will appear as guest artist with the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center and will be a featured performer at the Seattle Chamber Music Festival.

Hasty joined the faculty of the Eastman School in 1955 and became principal clarinet with the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, a position he held for 13 years. He is professor of clarinet at the Eastman School.

Portnoy, an internationally recognized concert violinist and founder of the acclaimed American Arts Trio and Fine Arts Music Camp, currently serves on the music faculty of West Virginia University as professor of violin and conductor of the University-Community Symphony Orchestra.

ENTERTAINMENT

Keyes, coordinator of Baylor University's keyboard division since 1965, has appeared throughout Texas and the Southwest as performer, critic-judge and teacher of piano master classes and workshops.

Miss Mallandaine, a chief coach of England's Glyndebourne Festival Opera, graduated from the Royal Academy of Music, London. She came to Houston in 1977 at the start of the Houston Grand Opera Studio program and is in her sixth year as head of the Houston Opera music staff and director of musical studies for the Studio.

The Midland-Odessa competition includes college and secondary school divisions. Both divisions have piano, strings and wind instruments categories. The college division includes a voice category. Registered students in secondary schools, colleges, universities, conservatories and institutes of music are eligible for the competition provided they have not reached their 26th birthday prior to Jan. 27 and have not launched a professional career.

This year's prize money of $7,000 was contributed by Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Noel, Odessa, and Mrs. Raiford H. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anson, Midland.

A performing winners transportation fund has been provided by Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Craig Jr. This enables NYAC to pay the travel expenses of the four performing winners who are selected to return for the March concerts when they perform with the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

Administrative expenses are provided by the Beal Foundation and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bruno, Midland, and Dr. and Mrs. John E. Bauman and Mrs. Charles E. Jones, Odessa. Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Fullinwider, Midland, are benefactors of the Lara Hoggard Performance Medallion given to the four performing winners.

Count Basie concert rescheduled

Count Basie will perform at Midland Center March 15 for one night only.

Originally scheduled for last December, the concert was postponed due to transportation difficulties. Those holding tickets for the December date may use those tickets to attend the March 15 show.

Tickets, priced at $100 per couple and $50 per individual, may be purchased through Big Brothers-Big Sisters, Texas Avenue and O Street. An open bar and hors d'oeuvres are included in the cost of admission.

Part of the proceeds go toward Big Brothers-Big Sisters.

'More than Murder' makes good despite violence, sex

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — Sprague is blown away by bandits before the first commercial, and Mike Hammer says, "When somebody as big as Sprague gets wiped out, the city doesn't sleep until it finds out why."

It's an inside joke. Playing Sprague in his acting debut on "More Than Murder" tonight on CBS is Jay Bernstein, the show's executive producer. Presumably, he will not appear on camera in the series to follow, "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer," starting Saturday night.

That's about as subtle as "More Than Murder" gets.

In the next two hours, several people, including some more or less innocent folk, die violently, others are injured, and no one important escapes without some emotional damage.

And there's this underlying gag, based on the promise of sex and played through dozens of times in suggestive dialogue and rather abundant cleavage. ("I'm a contortionist. Do you contort?" one barely dressed young woman asks Hammer. "Only on Fridays," the private eye replies.)

The result, despite the almost overwhelming presence of those two elements the TV networks love to hate — sex and violence — is surprisingly positive: it's a good, old-fashioned, hard-boiled mystery, entertaining and endlessly moralistic.

It's like Hammer says: "I'm a pushover, once you get to know me."

Stacy Keach is the ninth Mike Hammer, and probably the best. He's a fine actor, with a sense of humor. And he looks good in snap-brim and trenchcoat, with a cigarette dangling from his mouth.

Spillane, who liked Darren McGavin in the "Mike Hammer" syndicated TV series in the late 1950s, is sensitive about his hero, fashioned, no doubt, to satisfy the writer's Brooklyn-born, tough-guy impulse.

Indeed, Spillane threatened to rub out Hammer in a dispute over the actor cast to play the lead in "I, the Jury," the first film adapted from one of his novels. That first Mike Hammer, Biff Elliott, never even read the book, Spillane says today. ("I was a Mickey Spillane fan when I was growing up," Keach says.)

In 1964, the writer himself played Hammer, in "The Girl Hunters." "I was terrific," he says.

TV show deals with abortion

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing is sacred to Bill Bittinger, except Bill Bittinger. But how will he react when his occasional girlfriend becomes pregnant and considers an abortion?

For the most part, the insensitive talk-show host, played impeccably by Dabney Coleman, is his usual egotistical self. He views the pregnancy as an affirmation of his masculinity.

But in one exceptional solo scene, in which he recreates a Yankee Stadium baseball fantasy complete with the voices of broadcasters Mel Allen and Red Barber, Bill expresses the feelings he can never verbalize. If centerfielder Bill Bittinger catches the ball, there will be no abortion.

The two-part episode of NBC's "Buffalo Bill," entitled "Jo-Jo's Problem," begins Thursday night and concludes next week. It is hilarious and moving television, not really an examination of the abortion issue as much as one comedic illustration of how these characters might deal with it.

NBC had the courage to do the daring "Buffalo Bill" but was nervous about this show tackling abortion.

"The network feels that the abrasiveness of Bill's character is enough without introducing issues that divide the nation," said co-executive producer Tom Patchett.

Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, said he was anxious because abortion is a red flag that immediately alienates some viewers and sponsors, "no matter how sensitively it's handled."

But once he saw the script, Tartikoff's concern shifted to scheduling. "My next fear was that the episode not play so early in the run of 'Buffalo Bill' that it might scare off first- and second-time viewers," he said.

Jay Tarses, co-executive producer who wrote the two-parter, believes comedy and drama can tread the same ground. If ABC can do a film about nuclear war, a comedy can also assimilate reality.

"We're dealing with life's issues on our show," said Tarses. "These things happen in life. ... I think there's a lot of humor in sadness."

In life, humor is one way of coping with problems and pain, but traditional sitcom, usually underestimating the intelligence of the audience, has mostly steered clear of anything stickier than the heroine burning the roast.

That changed in the 1970s, when "M-A-S-H" joked about death, "All in the Family" laughed about bigotry, and its spinoff, "Maude," tweaked knee-jerk liberalism. Bea Arthur's Maude was the first sitcom character to have an abortion, in programs Nov. 14 and 21, 1972, a double episode that drew heavy viewer protest.

Tom Mahaffey of St. Petersburg, Fla., learned about deception more than 50 years ago. Not at the card table, but on the football field of Notre Dame under Knute Rockne. Since, he has found out how to apply deceptive tactics at the bridge table, as this hand from the recent Fall North American Championships in Miami bears witness.

North-South were using some fancy modern gadgets. North's two club bid was a check-back in case South held three-card spade support. When South denied that but showed heart suit, North elected to play game at no trump. Some might consider that a bid of two no trump would more than do justice to the North hand.

Mahaffey led a top-of-nothing diamond. Declarer won the jack, then cashed the ace of diamonds before crossing to the table with the queen of clubs. He drove out the king of diamonds by leading the queen, in the process setting up the ten of diamonds as his eighth trick. Since he was going to get a heart trick for his ninth, the opponents had to come up with four tricks quickly.

After winning the king of diamonds, East shifted to a heart. Mahaffey captured the king of hearts with the ace and found the devilish shift to the ten of spades!

Not surprisingly, declarer did not think that it could possibly be right to go up with the table's queen of spades. It seemed better to hope that the defenders' could not take more than two fast tricks in the suit. So he played low from dummy, and could only watch in admiration as West cashed his two high spades to set the contract one trick.

Rare library texts stolen

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Up to 150 rare manuscripts, including two written by St. Thomas Aquinas, have been stolen from the University of Maryland, and school officials fear that some may be destroyed.

The theft was discovered by a library employee in September. Since then it has been reported to the FBI, campus police and rare-book dealers and collectors nationwide, university officials said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Performers' drug use controversial subject

Dear Dr. Solomon: I heard an interview with a well-known musician and he said that he was always nervous before a performance. Obviously his nervousness hasn't kept him from becoming very successful, but I wonder if some people who are very talented have been held back simply because they become nervous in front of an audience. Aren't there any drugs that a performer could take before going on stage? — Kay, NYC

Dear Kay: The use of medication to relieve anxiety in performers is a controversial subject. One study has concluded that drugs should probably be reserved for performers who are incapacitated by their anxiety.

The researchers tested a drug called pindolol on 30 professional musicians. People who evaluated their performance indicated that the better musicians showed some improvement. However, there was no objective improvement in the group as a whole. While it therefore appears that some performers would benefit from the use of an anxiety-relieving drug, the decision would have to be made on an individual basis.

Dear Dr. Solomon: How can I tell if I have glaucoma? Would you please describe the symptoms? — Stan, NYC

Dear Stan: The way for anyone to tell if he or she has glaucoma is to be examined by an ophthalmologist. This is particularly important since there are no early symptoms of the disease. As it progresses, however, the person may experience pain, headaches, an a decrease in peripheral vision.

Since damage may occur before the onset of these symptoms, early detection is extremely important. The examination itself is simple and painless.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am not a heavy drinker but every once in a while I tie one on. Someone once told me about a product that can be bought over the counter at a drug store that helps a person sober up. I don't remember its name so I would like you to recommend something. — Arnie, Baltimore, Md.

Dear Arnie: According to the Food and Drug Administration, there is no product that is effective for your purpose.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What do you think of withdrawal as a form of birth control? — Clarence, Dayton, Ohio

Dear Clarence: The big advantage of withdrawal (coitus interruptus) as a form of birth control is the fact that there is no expense involved. However, there is some risk of pregancy associated with this practice even if the man withdraws prior to sexual climax and ejaculation.

For Annette, Montreal: A woodburning stove may be a source of air pollution. Furthermore, its effects may be evident in infants and young children before they become apparent in adults.

"'SILKWOOD' is one of the best American films of the year. It makes you feel good about American movie-making. Entertainment means style, energy, talent working at full incandescence. By these criteria 'SILKWOOD' is not only a powerful film, it's a compelling entertainment in both senses of the word. A movie that shouldn't be missed."
—Jack Kroll, NEWSWEEK

"It's a brassy, profane, gum-chewing tour de force, as funny as it is moving. A stunning performance by Meryl Streep. The entire cast is exceptional. 'SILKWOOD' may be the most serious work Mike Nichols has yet done in films and that would include 'WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF?,' 'THE GRADUATE' and 'CATCH-22'."
