By J. W. King, Sr.

The Mitchell County News for this week will be the final edition for Volume 33, it being number 52.

The paper for next week will be the beginning of Volume 34. The datelines on the heading of the paper will carry Volume 34, Number 1, and will be dated May 14, 1964.

During the 33 years of its existence The News has tried to be of service to the community. We hope our town is a better place in which to live because of this service.

During the years the newspaper has enjoyed a fairly good subscription list. Some of our subscribers have been with us all of the time. There are a few, however, who have not seen fit to support their home paper with a subscription. To these people we will say that we would have appreciated their support during the years.

Next week the paper will start a brand new year. It hopes to have the support of every citizen in the community during the coming years. We are going to need this support if we are to continue serving the area with a newspaper at its present standard. Prices of every piece of equipment, paper, ink, and labor used to print a newspaper are much higher and in order to meet the cost the publisher MUST raise the subscription price a little.

Any time during the next three weeks you can get the paper at the old subscription price of $2.00 a year in the Loraine area or $3.00 outside the area. On June 1, 1964, the price will advance to $2.50 in the Loraine area and $3.50 outside the area. On June 1 the price of a single copy will advance to 10 cents instead of 5 cents. So if you are among those who buy the paper each week at the news stand or at the newspaper office you can save a lot of money by subscribing for a year. If you do not buy a paper each week or subscribe to it you are missing a lot.

Those who are already subscribers, or those who are not subscribers have an opportunity until June 1 to make a saving. You can get The News in the Loraine area for $3.50 for two years, a saving of 50 cents at the old price or $1.50 at the new price. Those who live outside the Loraine area can get the paper until June 1 at 2 years for $5.50, a saving of 50 cents at the old rate of $1.50 at the new rate. If you want to take advantage of the offer and set your paper ahead a year or two we'll appreciate it. You will more than get your money's worth.

LONE STAR AGRICULTURE

RELEASED BY THE TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
John C. White, Commissioner

A NATION OF WEIGHT WATCHERS

Americans are probably the most weight-conscious people in the world. So much so that we've got official "weight watchers" whose job it is to check for accuracy in the weight or measure of almost every commodity we buy.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, who supervises these "weight watchers" in Texas, puts it this way:

"When you make a purchase at the food store, fill your tank with gasoline at the service station, or buy any merchandise by weight or measurement, you may think the transaction is only between you and the vendor. It may be a surprise to know that every such transaction is participated in by a third man even though he is not present in person.

"That third man" is the inspector from the Texas Department of Agriculture who has checked the scales or devices used in all commercial sales in the state."

Commissioner White pointed out that a state-wide survey of commercial devices is now underway in Texas and that individual city reports will be published within the next few weeks.

"Preliminary reports show the average of incorrect devices to be about seven percent lower than this time last year," White said. "Final results of the survey will be available around the last of April."

These inspections are a year-round activity of the department but concentrated drive is launched in the spring of each year to make certain all the measuring and weighing equipment is either sealed as correct or condemned for repairs. If the equipment is beyond repair, it must by law be destroyed as a safeguard to public transactions.

"The customer, himself, can be one of our best 'weight watchers' White emphasized. "Look for the seal from the Texas Department of Agriculture on every scale and never hesitate to ask that any package or pre-packed food be reweighed at the check-out counter. It's just good business for the buyer and seller, alike," the Commissioner added.

When you prepare hot meals

your kitchen stays degrees cooler

with flameless electric cooking

Flameless electric cooking units fit snugly against pan bottoms. They put their heat into the pans where it is needed, not into the kitchen air. The electric oven, being flameless, requires no flow of air into and out of it to support combustion. The oven is insulated all around, including the bottom, to keep heat inside where it belongs. Result: your kitchen stays degrees cooler when you are cooking hot meals. See your electric range dealer soon. Cook the cool, clean, flameless way . . . and live better electrically!

This quick and thrifty casserole combines handsome canned pineapple slices with baked beans and corned beef hash. Many budget minded homemakers regularly stock cans of these popular items in their pantry. This supper favorite goes together in a few minutes and bakes brown and crusty in a hot oven in less than half an hour. Plan it on a menu with tossed green salad and hot rolls.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Hunting a Broken Quail Covey

Quail hunters following a broken covey that lights here and there as singles, often are puzzled to find that their dogs can't locate the birds, or blunder smack-dab into them with no chance to stand.

This happens because:

(1) An alighting quail usually hits the ground running and ends up a "far piece" from the spot where it landed.

(2) Your dog can't smell such a bird out because the newly-grounded quail has air-washed its body odor away in flight.

You can get around this by waiting patiently for about half an hour before going after the singles. This gives the birds time to regain the distinctive scent the dogs depend on.

Try Stuffed Goose Decoys

It may be too tough for your pocketbook, but if you own and use a flock of "stuffed" goose decoys, you'll get the geese when others don't.

Some hunters claim fantastic luck when using such decoy substitutes as paper bags, handkerchiefs, etc., but the fact remains that a goose is a sharp-eyed critter and the more natural your decoy appears, the more likely geese are to come down to your pit.

Taxidermist-mounted decoys can't be beat. They must be handled with care, but are worth the extra trouble.

Or you may substitute skins that you yourself have stuffed with cotton, etc. These are inferior to the professional jobs, but they will surprise you by the number of geese they will decoy to your blind.

Stuffed decoys have been used by many sportsmen with great success.

To Find Squirrels—Hunt Nest

In the South, most squirrels build their nests around a vine, either a grape vine or whatever sort comes handy.

Smart hunters look for these vines, then shake them vigorously. If there is a squirrel in the nest, out it comes into the open.

Hunt Woodcock on Wet Days

Best woodcock hunting can be had on muggy, humid, or downright wet days. The birds are more active then, and the scent lingers longer on the ground for your dog to nose out.

Shot Size is Important

When hunting turkeys on the wing use No. 2 shot in a modified barrel—12 gauge, or 20. The gauge makes little difference.

If ground shooting, best results are obtained with No. 6 or 8 shot, aiming for the head only.

Rifle hunters should use a Hornet, or .22 long rifle loads.

Shoot for the head, if you are confident, and save good meat.

Cooking Rabbit—Texas Style
Ever eat rabbit fixed Texas style? If not, you are in for a treat.

Cut up two choice cottontails as you would a frying-size chicken. Season well with chili powder, and brown in olive oil. Put pieces in well-greased casserole. Season with salt and pepper, parsley, and chopped onion. Cover with fine white wine, and bake slowly until most of the wine is soaked up—or until the meat is thoroughly done.

Make a gravy by thickening juices left in casserole with flour and cream.

For Easter Lacing

Harden the tips of your rawhide shoe laces by holding them over the flame of a match, until match burns out, or until the rawhide is thoroughly charred. You'll find they lace much easier.

Tunes for Coons

Coon hunters can bring a coon out into the open when it is hiding in a leafy tree by blowing several quick, short notes on a silent dog whistle, toy flute, harmonica, or tuning fork.

Lighter Guns for Older Men

As a man gets older he should shoot lighter guns. It will greatly improve his shooting.

Slowing reflexes respond better when the gun is lighter. So, if you have reached the 50-60-70 year bracket, and find that your shooting is getting progressively worse, lay down that 12 gauge, and pick up a 20.

Carry Chlorine Tablets

Boil all water of which you are not absolutely sure. Five minutes boiling is sufficient for safety.

To save time, and should boiling not be practical, treat water with chlorine. Used as directed, it makes water safe for drinking. Carry a bottle of chlorine tablets with you.

To Cut Glare From Sights

Smoke the front and rear sights of your rifle to overcome glitter that could spoil your aim at a crucial moment. Pass sight several times through the flame of a burning match.

Condensed Milk For Glue

You have an emergency glue right in camp.

Use condensed milk! It will glue just about everything—wood, paper, plastic, etc. Just apply and let dry as you would actual glue.

Coat Hangers for Decoys

Crow hunters—here's a novel decoy.

Stretch old black socks over wire coat hangers. Twist hangers to resemble crow's shape, stretch on socks, then hang here and there on tree limbs around your blind.

Hangers and socks are easy to carry and are very effective, especially when used in conjunction with a good crow call that is expertly used.

Q. Why are printer's helpers called "printer's devils?"

A. Printer's devil is a term that goes back to early days, before the advent of modern printing presses, when apprentices inked forms with handrollers and were so ink-covered that they looked like black imps of Satan.

Q. Why are the "Romance" languages called that?

A. The Romance languages—which include Spanish, Italian, French and Portuguese—are all descended to a considerable extent from Latin. The term "Romance" has nothing to do with "romantic." It is merely a form of the word "Roman."

VILLAIN

The name "villain" for a very wicked person dates back to the days of feudalism. A villain was then simply a farm-hand, or serf, or villa worker, but the lord of the manor presumed that the man would steal anything he could lift. So villains got a bad name.

VINCENT

Vincent is from the Latin "vincens," which meant conquering. It appeared in Roman times as Vincentius and has been used in various forms in various countries since early times.

Toward the end of the Civil War the Confederate dollar was worth two cents in gold. Monterrey, third largest city in Mexico, is known as the "Pittsburg of Mexico."

ALL IN ONE BASKET

The old saying that if we have all our eggs in one basket and fall down and break the eggs "we're out of luck" is still true.

It makes no difference whether the basket contains eggs, cotton, maize or any other crop, the result is the same.

In our opinion our part of the country needs "more baskets" . . . so if there is a failure of one crop we have others to fill in.

"It has been said of me that I lost my head with dignity and composure, at least. (Before the Banqueting House, at Whitehall, it was in 1649.) Nowadays, I'd lose it with pleasure and abandon exclaiming over the kind of laundry service even the commoner get from Jones Laundry!"
