South Plains Posts Record Chill

CHILLY DOGS — A Manhattan hot dog vendor sips a cup of coffee beside his cart in the midst of wind-blown snow and a remarkable absence of customers. Heavy snow accumulations were predicted for the New York area by late Friday. It would bring the city's snow total to near four feet since the first of the year. (AP Laserphoto)

Storm Brings Weather Misery Across Nation

A-J News Services

THE FRONT which dumped snowfall measured at 1 to 3 inches across the Panhandle and South Plains and as far south as San Angelo early Friday took an even tighter grip on the same region as the day wore on, holding temperatures to record low maximums in Lubbock, Amarillo and the Midland-Odessa area.

Amarillo reached a high of only 20 degrees Friday, breaking an 82-year-old record set in 1896, when the mercury climbed to only 24. In Lubbock, the high of 28, actually occurring in the wee hours just after midnight Thursday, broke the record for March 3 set in 1965 at 35 degrees.

Friday's record-low maximum at Midland-Odessa was a 36-degree reading, breaking the old record of 38, also set in 1965.

Chill Factor Minus Five

At a late hour Friday the temperature stood at a chilly 20 degrees; but a 14 mile an hour wind created a chill factor of minus five degrees, suggesting still other cold records might fall today.

Intermittent snowfall hit the South Plains region generally Friday, although snow totals and precipitation totals were not changed significantly from what had been recorded by early Friday morning.

Tulia's additional 2 inches during the day Friday topped the snow map for the South Plains, as combined total snowfall for the Thursday night-Friday period ranged from 1 to 2 inches at Amherst, Brownfield, Cotton Center, Dickens, Dimmitt, Farwell, Floydada, Idalou, Jayton, Littlefield, Lubbock, Lorenzo, Muleshoe, Wolfforth, Wilson, Tahoka, Spur, Slaton, Seminole, Sudan, Plainview and Plains, to a 3-inch total at Friona as of 6 p.m. with snow still coming down. Tulia's two-day total was 4 inches as of that time.

Slight Warmup Due

The forecast was for a slight warmup on the South Plains today, with highs in the mid 30s and a chance of light freezing drizzle or snow this afternoon.

However, the entire country was in an uproar Friday as the result of the arctic front which moved through Lubbock and the South Plains late Thursday.

From snow and rain through most of the Lone Star state to more flooding rainfall in California, from 3-inch snowfall in Chicago to tornados in Florida, from flood-forced evacuations in Arizona to near-blizzard winds in Utah, the weather map was full of eventful matter Friday.

Little Hope For Respite

Snow and freezing rain spread across the Panhandle and the northwestern third of Texas as far south as San Angelo Friday, causing streets to ice over and motorists to bash into each other. The rest of the state was cloudy, rainy and cold.

The arctice front extended as far south as Brownsville and temperatures behind it ranged from the teens in the Panhandle to the 50s in far South Texas.

Rain In South Texas

Showers and some heavy thunderstorms were reported in San Antonio and south Texas, with the heaviest precipitation between Cotulla and Alice.

Although moisture of one kind or another was commonplace throughout the state Friday, precipitation actually realized was generally less than a tenth of an inch late Friday. Abilene reported .10 of an inch of precipitation to top the reported totals, although intermittent snow continued late Friday evening in spots as far south as the Dallas-Fort Worth area, Austin, Temple, Comanche, Mineral Wells and Abilene.

Snowfall amounts were expected to stop short of an additional inch and precipitation totals were not predicted to climb over a tenth of an inch anywhere in the state.

Forecasters said another "very big storm" was due by this morning in hard-hit Arizona, where sunny skies brought a brief respite from heavy rains that sent hundreds of persons fleeing from flood-waters in southern sections and stranded 8,000 Indians in knee-deep mud and snow on the Navajo reservations.

Arizona National Guardsmen who worked through the night evacuating people from areas west of Phoenix were given a rest when flood waters stabilized Friday. The Red Cross said about 250 persons were sheltered at an emergency center in Buckeye. Some 250 others were housed in six other shelters in the area.

Authorities in both Arizona and New Mexico sent helicopters over the Black Mesa area of Navajoland to survey needs. An airlift of food and medical supplies was being prepared.

Arctic-cold 50 mile-an-hour winds pouring down Wasatch Mountain canyons stirred up near-blizzards in Utah. A snowslide closed Provo Canyon. Temperatures plummeted to 28 below zero at Havre, Mont.

Coal Contract Trailing In Early Miner Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's soft coal miners began voting Friday on a tentative contract that could end their 88-day strike and keep the federal government from trying to force a settlement.

Union, industry and government officials all predicted a close vote. Initial totals from several dozen locals — most of them in Virginia — showed the contract being rejected by about 2-1.

Returns from 51 locals showed 3,055 votes against the contract and 1,560 in favor, according to the official United Mine Workers tally. All but 10 of the locals are in District 28, which represents nearly 11,000 miners in Virginia.

About 166,000 miners were eligible to vote in 794 UMW locals, most of them concentrated in the towns and hollows along vast coal deposits stretching from Pennsylvania to Alabama and into the Midwest.

The early returns from District 28 "certainly are not very encouraging," said Jerry Anderson, a spokesman for the UMW. Anderson said the union leadership had expected the district to vote down the accord "because of the attitude of the district's leadership against the contract."

"This certainly seems to be a trend for (District) 28," he added.

Miners in a majority of locals were expected to vote today and Sunday, but officials said the final outcome may not be known until Monday.

UMW President Arnold Miller, touting the contract in last-minute coalfield campaigning, warned that the future of the union was at stake.

President Carter also said he hoped the miners would vote yes. If they do not, he was reported ready to act swiftly to force an end to the strike.

Even if miners ratify the contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, it would not automatically end their long and disruptive strike.

The UMW is negotiating separately with the American Bituminous Contractors for a contract to cover an estimated 30,000 construction miners. Sources said it was likely to be several more days before agreement was reached.

Union officials said it was unlikely that miners would cross picket lines set up by construction workers. But they said it also was possible that the construction miners would agree not to picket if their contract were negotiated and awaiting ratification.

Stalled contract talks involving the construction miners held up an end to a strike three years ago.

The contract covering the miners, negotiated under threat of strong govenment intervention, has been controversial, and the union paid for radio and tele-

CRASH HURTS 84

SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA, Spain (AP) — An Iberia Airlines DC-8 jetliner overshot the runway on its landing approach Friday and ran down a small embankment, injuring 84 passengers, airport officials said. They said 16 of the injured were hospitalized.

Farmers Post Bond, Vow Blockade Today Of Hidalgo Bridge

EDINBURG (AP) — Jailed striking farmers were released Friday after posting bonds of $28.50 each on reduced charges, but leaders vowed to again blockade the nearby international bridge that was the scene of Wednesday's violent confrontation with police.

The mountain of paperwork required in releasing the approximately 150 prisoners from the Hidalgo County jail took four hours.

The farmers, jailed since Wednesday, were met by several hundred cheering farmers outside the jail.

The $28.50 bond on the attempted obstruction of a public passageway charge will become a fine if farmers choose not to reappear on their yet unscheduled court date.

But Corsicana farmer Joe Flanagan said the released prisoners will join hundreds of other farmers in nearby Hidalgo this morning at the 175-yard span over the Rio Grande.

Asked why, he replied, "To blockade the ... (bridge)."

When asked how long, he responded, "As long as we want."

Tommy Kersey of Unadilla, Ga., told the farmers, "When we go down there, we should let bygones be bygones. Let's go down there to show them we can do it. We've got a lot going down here in the Valley now, if they haven't heard of us yet, they damn sure have now."

The number of farmers jailed had dwindled from the 210 arrested Wednesday afternoon at the bridge. Most of the jailed farmers remained in jail rather than post less than $20 bond on obstruction of a public passageway charges.

There had been a steady trickle of farmers leaving the jail the past two days as they posted bond. The number of other farmers milling around the jail swelled to 500 at times Friday.

The confrontation Wednesday came after the striking farmers, protesting the importation of Mexican produce, blockaded the bridge. They disabled one truck to block the bridge and a melee followed as officers with riot gear and tear gas quickly rounded demonstrators.

The farmers had been charged with obstructing a public passageway, which is a Class B misdemeanor and carries a maxi-

Four Texans Die In Crash

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — Four persons from Fort Worth have been found dead aboard a twin-engine airplane that crashed within 1.5 miles of the La Plata airport near here Thursday night.

Airport officials earlier identified the four persons aboard the missing plane as Roy A. Morrow, the pilot; his wife, Bobbie, and Morrow's daughter and son-in-law, Cindy and Jay Paul.

Sheriff Leo Milligan said the plane was found about 1 1/2 miles east of the airport, in southwestern Colorado.

The plane disappeared from radar screens as it approached the airport Thursday night after being cleared for landing, airport officials said.

The plane was painted white, which hampered searchers on snowmobiles in their 12-hour search. Twenty-four inches off new snow fell overnight in the area.

Meanwhile, bad weather in north-central Colorado postponed the search for another plane, missing since last Saturday on a flight from Laramie, Wyo., to Aspen. Aboard that plane were Isanlum Rudnicki, 29, and Cy Swanson, 24, both of Morris, Minn.

CONTRACT OBJECTIONABLE — It's not food these Winslow, Ind., United Mine Worker members are criticizing but the proposed coal contract. In early voting the agreement appeared to be taking a beating, although union, management and government officials anticipated a fairly close vote by the time final returns are posted. Farm Strikers Prepare Food For Relief Of Coal Miners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Agriculture movement said Friday it is gathering truckloads of meat, vegetables, flour and other foodstuffs for distribution to striking coal miners in Kentucky.

"We will be delivering about 20 truckloads of food worth about $100,000 retail on Monday to the United Mine Workers district office in Madisonville, Ky.," said Phil Brandon, an American Agriculture spokesman from Campbell, Mo., where the bulk of the food is being gathered.

Brandon said striking farmers throughout the country are contributing to the effort because "we've never met a bad coal miner yet. Those people have been out on strike for nearly three months now and they need the help. We might as well give it (food) to them...we can't get a decent price for it."

"We've got a common bond with the miners," added Marvin Meek, an American Agriculture spokesman from Texas. "They work below the ground and we work on top of it. They need the help and we're in a position to help them with food."

Brandon said the Teamsters Union and the Independent Truckers Asociation are helping defray the cost of transporting the food.

"We decided on Madisonville because it's the closest to us here in Campbell," added Brandon. "We're about 200 miles from the (UMW) district 23 office."

According to Brandon, the miners will receive truckloads of:

— oranges, cabbage and beef from Texas;

— canned goods from Nebraska;

— potatoes from Colorado;

— beef from Missouri;

— and flour from Kansas.

"The (American Agriculture) strike offices in Oklahoma, Louisiana and Minnesota have all sent money for beef," said Brandon. "Several other states haven't decided yet how they are going to help out but we expect the list of states participating to grow before Monday."

Brandon also said the cost of the food to farmers was much lower than the prices miners would have to pay for the same product on grocery store shelves.

"The flour for example cost the boys in Kansas about 90 cents a bag because they bought it wholesale," Brandon said. "The miners would have to pay $2.39 for it in the store. The meat cost us about 45 cents a pound for the 15 steers we had processed. It would cost more than a dollar a pound in the stores."

Separate Jet, Helicopter Crashes Kill Navy Fliers

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Two men are dead and two others missing in separate crashes of a Navy jet trainer and a helicopter, the Navy said.

Two Navy fliers were killed Thursday when their T-2 trainer plunged into Pensacola Bay shortly after take off from Pensacola Naval Station. The helicopter, an H-46 Sea Knight, was flying from a carrier when it went down in the Atlantic Wednesday night. Two crew members are missing.

Growers Ask Higher Price Supports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cotton and peanut growers told the Senate agriculture committee Friday that last year's revisions of federal price support programs will drive them out of farming.

Most witnesses called for higher price support levels to improve the overall farm economy. Many were from the high plains of Texas, which produces about one-fourth of the U.S. cotton crop.

Cotton is the only crop among those covered by farm programs in which basic support is geared directly to world and domestic prices, whichever are lower.

Those prices dropped unexpectedly after the revisions became law, meaning a support rate almost 14 percent below what farmers had expected.

Witnesses also came from the Southeast, hit hard last season by drought and pests. J. Nelson Gibson, president of the Southern Cotton Growers Inc., urged a return to the old program's main feature: strict acreage allotments that reflected decades-old cotton planting patterns.

Lou Mann, president of the National Cotton Council, a major force behind last year's farm bill, caled the measure "good, basic legislation under which cotton-grower income can be protected. We believe it should be given a fair trial."

However, Mann did urge the Carter administration to use existing law to boost the cotton economy as quickly as possible without raising prices for U.S. fiber above world market rates.

Peanut-growers were especially critical of a recent rule which automatically classifies second-or third-grade peanuts as "excess" eligible only for lower support rates — even if that is a farmer's only crop.

Changes in the peanut-program were intended to raise prices by cutting production while supports are phased out, and shifted from "parity" to average production costs nationwide to determine price supports.

Parity is a ratio of farm prices to costs, with 100 percent reflecting the favorable balance of the 1910-14 period. For peanuts, the support is now about 70 percent of parity.

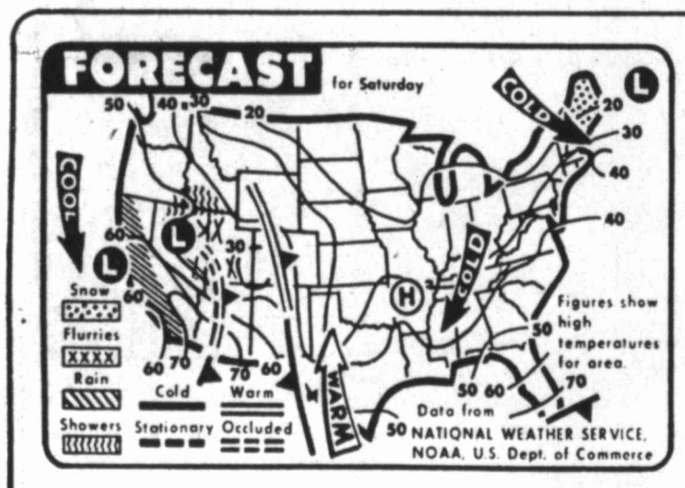

Stockpile Disposal Authority Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has asked Congress for authority to sell silver and other commodities from the nation's strategic stockpile of materials.

Legislation introduced Thursday by Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., at the administration's request would authorize the General Services Administration to sell up to 62.5 million ounces of silver.

Sales of tin, aluminum oxide, industrial diamonds and other commodities in specified amounts would also be authorized.

Jay Solomon, administrator of the GSA, said the legislation was "part of a balanced program of acquisitions and disposals for the national stockpile."

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today predicts an area of rain in parts of California, an area of showers or flurries in parts of the Southwest, and an area of snow in parts of the Northeast. (AP Laserphoto)

Sabotage Blamed In Deadly Florida Train Derailment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sabotage caused the Florida train derailment last Sunday that spewed deadly chlorine gas and killed eight persons, the National Transportation Safety Board reported Friday.

The FBI said it had begun an intensive investigation, but declined to say if it had any leads.

"Our investigators have determined that the derailment near Youngstown, Fla., was caused by sabotage as a result of someone misaligning the rails at a joint in the track," said acting safety board chairman Kay Bailey.

Mrs. Bailey said board investigators found that someone had deliberately removed a metal joint which joins two pieces of track and had pulled the rail off to the side "so nothing could happen but that the locomotive would go off the track.

"The person or persons who did this obviously knew what they were doing,' she added.

Mrs. Bailey said the sabotage required the removal of four bolts which fastened the joint to the tracks and then pulling the rail off to the side. She said a strong person using a crowbar could do the job in 20 to 30 minutes.

She said careful examination showed the track misalignment was deliberate and could not have been caused by the train or because of defective rail.

A tank car carrying the chlorine gas ruptured early Sunday following derailment of part of a 120-car Atlanta and St. Andrews Bay Railroad Co. freight train three miles north of Youngstown in the Florida Panhandle.

Eight passing motorists, all of them in their teens and early 20s, were killed when chlorine fumes from the broken tank drifted over nearby U.S. 231. Nearly 3,500 persons had to be evacuated from their homes.

The FBI said it had entered the case under the Federal Train Wreck Act and that it was conducting its investigation out of Panama City, Fla.

Francis McAdams, who headed the safety board investigation which detected the sabotage, said the derailed train was the first traffic over that stretch of track in six hours.

He said the engineer of the train "felt a sudden drop — he said it felt like a drop of about two feet. The next thing he knew the locomotive was on the roadbed and then in the sand."

McAdams said it was not known whether the sabotage was done by vandals or by someone seeking to deliberately derail that particular train.

Asked if another fatal derailment last week near Waverly, Tenn., also might have been caused by sabotage, Mrs. Bailey said board investigators had made a preliminary determination that the Waverly wreck was caused by an overheated wheel. She said the overheating was the result of a handbrake being left on.

Crews Tackle Delicate Task

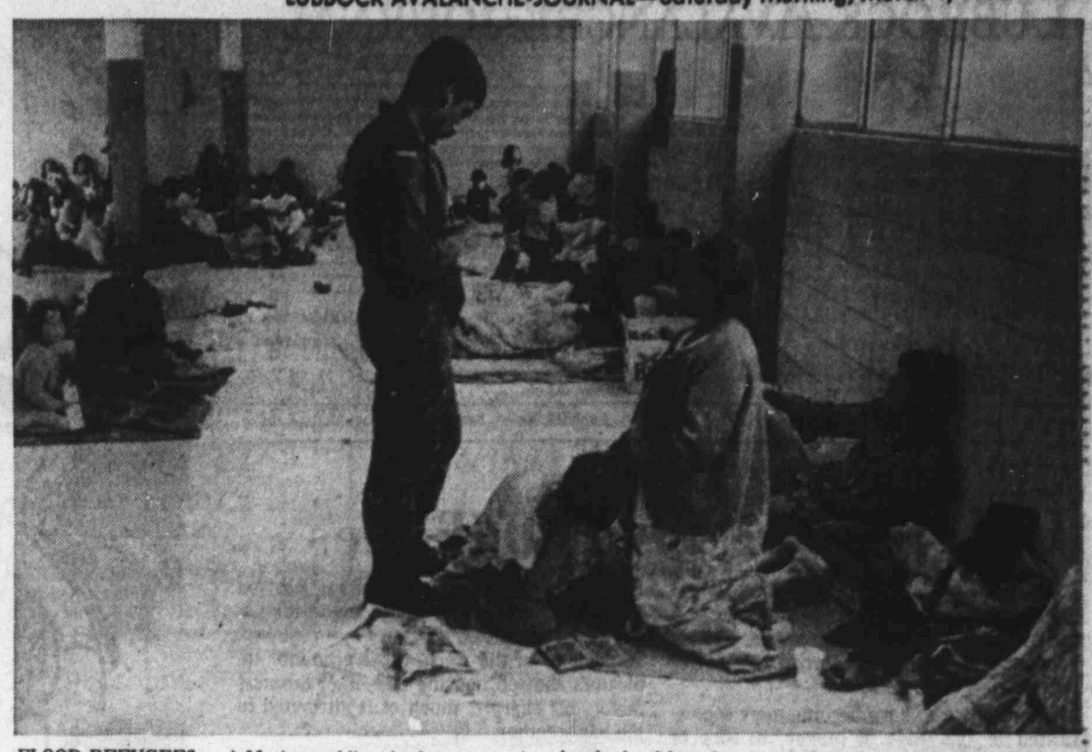

YOUNGSTOWN, Fla. (AP) — Salvage crews hand-carried bricks from a wrecked freight car Friday to clear the way for unloading 25,000 gallons of volatile liquid propane from a tanker that lay derailed nearby.

Salvage officials said if the tanker exploded it could send debris a half mile in any direction and create a fireball a half-mile wide.

Unloading the propane remained the most delicate task following the derailment Sunday that claimed eight lives when chlorine leaked from a punctured tanker. Nearly 100 persons sought hospital care and 3,500 were evacuated.

Most of the evacuated families were allowed back.Thursday night after the remaining chlorine in the tanker was neutralized chemically in a pit of caustic soda.

But a two-square-mile area around the wreck remained evacuated Friday. Johnson said he could not say when the remaining 50 families would be allowed to go home.

Reporter Subpoenaed In Trial; Barred From Covering Case

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The New York Times reporter responsible for reopening the investigation that led to the indictment of Dr. Mario Jascalevich was barred temporarily Friday from covering the murder trial here.

Reporter M. A. Farber has been subpoenaed as a defense witness, and as such falls under a court order that prohibits witnesses from attending court until they have testified.

"Until I make a final ruling on this, Mr. Farber will be barred from the courtroom," ruled Acting Superior Court Judge William J. Arnold.

A final ruling was expected sometime next week after attorneys for The New York Times and Jascalevich submit legal briefs.

Farber, who in 1976 dubbed Jascalevich "Dr. X" in early news accounts, was present in the courtroom when the temporary ruling was made. He declined to comment on the matter.

Jascalevich is charged with killing five patients at Riverdell Hospital between December 1965 and September 1966. The deaths occurred while Jascalevich was chief of surgery at the hospital.

Opening arguments in the case are scheduled Monday.

New York Times attorney Floyd Abrams argued Friday that barring Farber from the courtroom would create a precedent and provide a tool by which defense attorneys could bar reporters from covering a trial.

If Farber, nominated for a Pulitzer Prize for his reporting on the case, is barred from the trial "we will send another reporter to cover the case," said Abrams, the reporter who represented the New York Times in the Pentagon Papers case. "He will know less . . . and the public will be less served."

Jascalevich's attorney, Raymond A. Brown, said his client's right to a fair trial took precedent over Farber's right to cover the case. "There is no First Amendment right here," Brown said. "This gentleman just like anyone else is subject to the order."

But Abrams noted that exceptions had been made to the sequestration order and noted that Bergen County Assistant Prosecutor Sybil Moses, who is presenting the state's case, was also listed as a defense witness.

Crossword Puzzle Meet Set

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI) — For you crossword fans, what's a six-letter word for enigmatologist? Answer: Shortz. Will Shortz, that's who, the holder of the world's only college degree in puzzles.

He's directing America's first Crossword Puzzle Tournament this weekend in Stamford where he lives with his Random House unabridged dictionary which he reads for fun.

Shortz, 25, who grew up on a Crawfordsville, Ind., farm where his parents, Wilma and Lyle Shortz, still raise horses, has sold more than 400 puzzles to the New York Times, Simon and Schuster and puzzle magazines.

Shortz is a graduate of Indiana University who majored in an independent learning program he developed and named: enigmatology. His courses were all about puzzles. His thesis was on the history of American word puzzles before 1860.

"I'm the only one in my family with the remotest interest in puzzles. My parents really wanted me to be a lawyer," he said. For Valentine's Day, Mother's Day and birthdays, he sends his parents a puzzle instead of a card.

"A good puzzle maker tries to avoid far-out words and cliches. If I get to a corner of a puzzle and I think "erne" (sea eagle) would work nicely there, I'll rework the whole corner to get rid of it. It's a cliche and I won't use it."

"A lot of people who are crack solvers couldn't make a puzzle to save their lives. Some of the best puzzle constructors are medium solvers. I'm good at solving but I'm not fantastic. I'd never win a tournament like this one."

About 150 contestants have signed up for the two-day tournament Saturday and Sunday at the Stamford Marriott Hotel. The competition consists of five crossword puzzles of increasing size and point value.

The prizes will be awarded Sunday by Margaret Farrar, editor of Simon and Schuster's crossword book series since 1924.

Shortz says solving crossword puzzles is good intellectual exercise. "For a lot of people, it's as part of a daily routine. It's stimulating and it clears away those mental cobwebs."

AN EDITORIAL:

U.S. Dollar--Sign Of Times

ALTHOUGH HIGH finance and world monetary problems normally do not catch the attention of the general public, what is happening to the dollar abroad is a major exception.

Americans, who have become more sophisticated in the ways of money, balance of payments and inflation in general, are suddenly aware that we have problems overseas as well as at home. And that they complicate one another.

Although it made an effort at a rally, during the past week the U.S. dollar plunged to all-time lows against four major European currencies.

FOREIGN EXPERTS cited a "lack of confidence in Washington's assertions that it will act forcefully to support the dollar."

Other sources attributed the gradual and steady slide of the once-heralded dollar to the continued heavy import of foreign oil by America.

The result is a growing crisis on the world money market as it affects not only exchange rates across the board, but world trade. West European nations particularly are worried that the imbalance will cause a deterioration in exports and spark a recession or worse.

WHAT WAS happening to the dollar wasn't all the bad news for the week. The American consumer also came in for some data he already was aware of on the cost of living.

Consumer prices rose .8 percent in January, the largest single increase in almost a year, much of it attributed to sharp boosts in food and housing costs, according to the Labor Department.

And later in the week, other economic indicators showed housing and other business factors off sharply, much of it attributed to the bad weather.

HOWEVER, THE overall economic picture, both at home and abroad could be traced to other factors, many observers believe. That is the way President Carter is handling the nation's business.

While the White House can't be blamed for all ills, it can be faulted for what has appeared to be a wishy-washy stance on everything from a broad, workable energy program to bringing the coal strike to a quicker end.

In brief, Mr. Carter has created a credibility gap in his ability to get a handle on some major problems.

FORTUNATELY, FOR many parts of the nation and world, including Lubbock and the South Plains, the economic outlook is still bright.

But, there is an underlying current of uneasiness, which can be attributed to the administration's placing emphasis on the wrong things at the wrong time.

The battle to get the Panama Canal treaties okayed in the face of overwhelming public opposition, the Marston affair in Pennsylvania, involvement in the ERA dispute and similar issues all detract from the main business at hand.

That is, in a nutshell, to get the nation going again—this time in the right direction.

Ham's In A Pressure Cooker

YOU CAN say one thing for the Carter folks: they sure know how to transform a tempest in a teapot into a typhoon.

Official administration reaction to the latest published allegations about Hamilton Jordan's social conduct would have done credit to Sen. William Scott, R-Va.

Scott, you'll recall, is the fellow who called a press conference a few years back to deny he was the dumbest member of Congress—a designation bestowed upon him by a magazine article hardly anyone had read until he called attention to it.

Bam! A one-day tongue-wagger instantly turned into front page news. "Jordan's Behavior in Bar Becomes a Federal Case," said the Washington Star headline.

It turns out that the denial, which included a 24-page statement from the bartender, was at least as credible as the original Post tidbit, probably more so. But, really now, who cares? The answer is that the White House cares—a lot, in fact.

JORDAN, POWELL and the rest of the good ol' boys are getting plenty peeved with what they regard as cheap shots from the press. The trouble is they are lashing back with a vehemence that merely keeps the pot boiling.

It is hard, of course, to maintain cool—and perspective—in the face of inaccurate accounts born and reared to larger-than-life proportions on the gossip circuit.

"You're dealing with human beings," as Powell said of his friends. "That's not a name and a title sitting over there; that's a real person."

But Jordan, Powell and White House folks like them draw—as they should—intensive press scrutiny. They are showered with the unwelcome attention of gossip writers precisely because of their titles.

It goes with the territory. Not because they are Georgians but because they occupy positions of enormous power in this government.

The sledding will be rough and the road rocky until they learn that the best way to deal with cheap shots and vicious gossipers is to ignore them.

ART BUCHWALD:

Truth In Advertising Tough As A Boot Heel

WASHINGTON—The STP company, which makes motor oil additives, has been ordered by the Federal Trade Commission to pay a $500,000 penalty for falsely advertising its product.

While the company can probably live with that, its big problem is that it has also been ordered to spend $200,000 in advertising, publicizing the fact that its previous advertising was not true.

This FTC ruling has Madison Avenue in a dither. How does an advertising agency devise a campaign saying its client's product was misrepresented?

We are now in the offices of Deal, Rehobeth and Gluckstein Advertising Agency where they are making a presentation to J.E. Rabbit, president of LS & D Co., who has just been ordered by the FTC to spend a million dollars to inform the public that is was misled by claims that an LS & D coffee ground additive would give people 20 extra miles to the gallon.

"J.B.," SAYS Gluckstein, "as you know a million dollars is a lot of money to spend to inform the American public LS & D is not what it was cracked up to be, but I think we can do it."

"And bankrupt me in the process," J.B. snarled.

"Relax J.B. Our campaign is going to fulfill the FTC consent agreement and at the same time do as little damage as possible," Gluckstein said.

"First we need a catchy slogan. How's this? 'Anyone who puts LS & D coffee grounds in his motor ought to have his head examined?'"

"That's a good slogan?"

"WAIT, J.B. The FTC didn't say where we had to put the ads. We've worked out a media plan.

"We'll place full-page ads in The New York Herald Tribune, The New York Journal-American, The New York World-Telegram and The Long Island Daily Press."

"But those papers don't exist any more."

"We'll put four-color spreads in Collier's, The Woman's Home Companion, and The Literary Digest, saying we're sorry we all lied."

"They also aren't published any more."

"That's for the FTC to find out."

GLUCKSTEIN CONTINUED, "Our big thrust will be in television. We've devised some outstanding commercials.

"We're trying to sign up Roman Polanski for a spot. We'd show him standing in front of the Eiffel Tower and have him say, 'I've been putting LS & D coffee grounds in my Rolls-Royce for 12 months.

"When I found out what it did to my motor, I decided to skip the country.'"

"That's good," J.B. said.

"One of our people is now trying to talk Robert Vesco into doing a commercial. We'd show him on his yacht and he would say:

'SOME PEOPLE SAY I stole money from widows and orphans. Others say I'm just a slick guy trying to make a buck.

'But whatever they think, they're all agreed that if I hadn't put LS & D in my private Boeing 707, I never would have made it to Costa Rica.'"

J.B. said, "That could turn them off."

"Now we have a blindfold commercial. We're hoping to get Clifford Irving to do this one for us.

"We'll blindfold him and let him drink a glass of LS & D coffee grounds and a glass of STP motor additive. Then we'll ask him which one had more gusto. He, of course, will say LS & D."

"Where are you going to put the television commercials?"

"On the Saturday Night Live Howard Cosell Variety Show."

"Is that still on the air?"

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

UN Is Too 'Young'

WASHINGTON—The men who are supposed to make U.S. foreign policy have their fingers crossed that Andrew Young will not abandon his own government's moderate new line on Rhodesia—a ludicrous state of affairs preordained when President Carter named a highly ideological black politician as ambassador to the United Nations.

Young's hip-shooting warning on Feb. 15 that "an internal settlement" for Rhodesia is "no settlement" at all shocked the White House and reverberated throughout the foreign policy apparatus of the Carter administration. It sounded like a declaration of U.S. policy.

Two days later, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance huddled with Zbigniew Brzezinski, the President's national security adviser, in the White House.

They drafted a formal U.S. statement of policy recognizing this hard fact, blithely ignored by Young:

Extraordinary movement toward an internal political settlement in Rhodesia must be commended by the U.S., however cautiously, as a possible basis for settlement.

EVEN HIGH LEVELS of the State Department fully appreciate Young's clout as a black politician who is idolized by millions of Americans. "Now we have said what U.S. policy really is toward the internal settlement," one official at State told us.

"The question is, will Andy stick with us or go out on his own?" That is truly an intriguing state of affairs for a world superpower.

Vance is a quiet man of iron self-control who seldom shows his irritations, but he was angry over Young's warning that an internal settlement could "create a black-on-black civil war."

That would be fought between Soviet-armed guerrillas (also backed by black Africa and, since Carter took office, by the U.S.) and more moderate pro-Western black leaders negotiating the internal settlement with White Prime Minister Ian Smith.

In that war, there would be no doubt about Young's sympathies.

FAR ANGRIER THAN Vance were British Labor Prime Minister James Callaghan and other Western leaders.

For the first time, they saw in the internal settlement at least a remote chance of blocking Soviet penetration of rich Rhodesia when it becomes black-ruled Zimbabwe.

That aim is clearly low on Young's list of priorities.

Restraining Young's ideological and emotional reaction to black Africa, these European leaders fear, is beyond Carter's power. Young's political influence over black voters in the U.S.—who were essential to Carter's 1976 victory—is too great to risk a Carter-Young break.

WE ASKED A KEY aide of Young what right the UN envoy had to condemn the "internal settlement" in a public statement without clearing his words with Vance.

The aide replied that as the "chief representative of the U.S. in the Rhodesian talks" Young had a clear right to "say what he wants."

At the State Department, the view is different. Officials there said that in his quick blast at the internal settlement, Young was strictly on his own; only the White House or Vance are able to state U.S. policy.

Thus, if the internal solution between Ian Smith and the black moderates prospers, Carter faces serious trouble.

Young, still linked to the black guerrilla leaders outside Rhodesia, would confront Vance, Brzezinski and his National Security Council staff and the British.

That clash would confront Carter with a dilemma: how to muzzle Andy Young without antagonizing American blacks to whom he is a symbol of black achievement.

CRACKING DOWN on Young would be something new for the President, who so far has given him unprecedented political freedom.

Young is the only American diplomat allowed to raise political funds for Democratic candidates, most recently at a $100-a-plate fund-raiser in Miami for Democratic Rep. William Lehman Feb. 18; Young was the star attraction, outshining even House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

Such politicking by clinically non-political UN ambassadors was forbidden by every other President.

ANDREW TULLY:

A Cross Jordan

WASHINGTON—Hamilton Jordan, President Carter's 32-year-old chief of staff without-portfolio, has a problem. This bright young Georgian has become a celebrity, and he's having a tough time trying to handle it.

A celebrity is someone who has fans, and would-be fans. There are also people who go about trying to scratch off some of a celebrity's glitter.

Last December, Jordan attended a party given by Barbara Walters, another celebrity. He was reported to have turned to the wife of Egyptian Ambassador Ashraf Ghorbal, fondled her bodice, and said he'd "always wanted to see the pyramids."

Jordan denied the report. So did Ambassador Ghorbal.

NOW THE SCENE in the drama, "The Education of Hamilton Jordan," shifts to Sarsfield's, a Washington saloon. A story in the Washington Post said Jordan was slapped by a young woman after spitting his drink down the woman's blouse.

I do not get into arguments between any newspaper and a government official. I comment only to suggest to Jordan that whatever happened—if anything—constituted a message that should be read by every fledgling celebrity.

It is that a celebrity runs a risk whenever he enters a place as public as a saloon and tries to live a little like plain people.

ALMOST ALWAYS, the celebrity is attempting the impossible—trying to shed his fame, or notoriety. The country is full of people who seek encounters with celebrities, however brief, so that later they can play the game of name-dropping.

Thus, "I was in Sarsfield's the other night and Ham Jordan told me..." Or simply, "Guess who was on the bar stool at Sarsfield's the other night."

It is unfair. A Hamilton Jordan should be allowed to down a few beers in a bar without having to shake hands with everybody in the joint. It is unfair that he apparently cannot, but it is a fact of life that he ignores at his peril.

Henry Kissinger is fond of remarking that power is the greatest aphrodisiac, and next to Carter, Jordan may be the most powerful man in the White House.

IT IS NOT A libel on the sex to say that most women are attracted to power. So are most men. In America those with power are our substitute for a nobility.

A lot of women undoubtedly would like to be romanced by, or romance, Hamilton Jordan. They went for Kissinger, and he's just a fat little man compared to Handsome Hamilton.

So Jordan has a lot to learn about life in Washington. He can't live like a good ole Georgia boy, not in this predatory town. And as a male newly separated from his wife, he's got to think 33 times before making a pass at a female in public.

Jimmy Carter's no dummy. And he obviously respected Jordan's counsel. He trusts Jordan; he needs him around. In return, Mr. Jordan, engrave John Kennedy's law on your heart: Never embarrass the boss.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Why Not The Best

SOMEBODY HAS finally (now that it's too late to do me any good) come out with a travel guide for single women that's better than borrowing Zsa Zsa's little black book.

In fact, if you want to get technical about this, you don't even have to be single. There's no law says a married woman can't follow Shirley Van Campen's travel advice, but if she's going to try all of it, she'd better leave the old man home.

Because "Travel and the Single Woman—Europe" covers everything (hotels, restaurants and tours) for the solo sightseer—plus one added attraction.

There's a provocative commentary that rates the love-making techniques of men from nine different countries.

Shirley (after reading her adventures I feel I know her too well to call her anything more formal) is a California travel agent, writer and solo traveler who claims she has "personally and meticulously inspected and investigated" every tourist attraction she recommends.

WHETHER THAT applies to the males, too, is something you'll have to figure out yourself. (You didn't really think I'd give away all of good ol' Shirl's secrets here, now did you?)

But a few samples might come in handy if Europe is on your calendar this year. She lists the Romeos alphabetically, by country. It's the only fair way, really.

"The man of Austria: a sturdy outdoor type...very conservative...but what he does, he does very well.

"Austria is definitely for lovers. When I am in this romantic country I can think only of love, love, love." (So much for the famous Alps.)

"The man of France: some say the present Frenchman, as a lover, is a myth...that, unlike Napoleon, the juice of passions in his veins is the juice of the vine...that TV is his woman now and his bed is used only for sleep.

"But the Frenchman will say it is the woman who makes a lover great. So travel to France and you may be just the Josephine who can produce another Napoleon."

MOVING RIGHT along to the man of Germany: "As a lover he is precise, methodical...a perfectionist who will tell you it is easy for two bodies to meet in love, but to join minds at the same time is the greatest fulfillment of all.

"There is an old saying that he's so proficient he can hold a candle in one hand and you in the other—and the flame will never die. Don't hesitate to explore him and his beautiful exciting country."

Shirley finds the British man "a very rare species indeed, with his incredible sense of humor, his dry witticisms, his reserve—even in the bedroom."

Italians, she says, are the same as any other men, except that what they feel emotionally they express by touching, pinching, squeezing, etc., on street corners, buses, wherever the mood hits them.

"If you feel," she cautions, "that an Italian caress or a gentle squeeze might be too much for you, then by-pass Italy, because you won't be immune—even in the Vatican."

Shirley sums up the Latin lover as "a sensitive, handsome man who erupts like a volcano, a fantastic lover. Why not go to Italy and find out for yourself?"

BUT WAIT, DON'T rush off to Rome until you hear what she has to say about Scandinavians, whom she describes as descendents of "vikings who used to carry off screaming young maidens over their shoulders."

"I decided to try my luck," she confides, "and I figure the maidens had to be screaming from sheer joy!"

Norwegian men lure you into "oceans of sublime ecstasy"; Danes look upon lovemaking as "a fantastic circus performance, filled with dazzle, romance and laughter to the final act"; and the Swedish man is the kind "you never want to leave."

Unless you've heard about the Spanish lover, who warms up on sangria until (as Shirley puts it) "the tempo of his passions is frantic and overwhelming, followed by a beautiful afterplay that may last for years."

THEN, ASSUMING you have any energy left to go tramping through museums, the rest of the book (which, fittingly enough, is really "little" and "black") is crammed with thousands of tips for women travelers:

Packing—"Take along three sets of new lingerie, the sexiest bra and bikini panties you can find. Even if you're over 65. It will do wonders for your attitude and get your thoughts on the right track."

Money—"Tuck your cash in your bra. If you go bra-less, wear a money belt."

Bargain-hunting—"Fake a British accent. The English have a reputation for being thrifty, and Europeans don't up their prices as much as they do when they hear "Americanese."

Meeting men (in taverns, sidewalk cafes, museums, wherever)—"I hate the term 'pick-up.' It all depends on your attitude and the way you present yourself. There is absolutely nothing wrong with 'snagging'—just do it with class."

...Pass It On

HALLUCINATIONS sometimes come just before a classic migraine headache. Also, the sufferer of same may see spots and flashes. This phenomenon is called the pre-migraine aura. And some scholars contend it was during onesuch that Lewis Carroll conceived the characters in "Alice in Wonderland."

Q. "Is it true John Wayne got the nickname 'Duke' because he once acted the part of a duke in a school play?"

A. Some say so. But others contend the name was taken from an airedale he owned as a youngster. Duke was also the name of his western movie horse, incidentally. For that matter, it was the name of cowboy star Tim Holt's horse, too.

Q. "What's 'the fifth quarter' of a beef?"

A. The hide, hooves and tallow. A lot of smart operators have started their fortunes by dealing in fifth quarters.

Q. "Start with one cent. Double it daily for 30 days. How much would you have at the end of the month?"

A. $5.368.709.12.

Ex-College Teacher Used African As Slave

MIAMI (AP) — A former college teacher has admitted he and his wife bought a 10-year-old African girl from her mother and used the child for a least two years as a house slave. She was given one dress to wear, a tin plate for her rice and a broken glass to drink from.

"This is the first classic case of slavery in this century the FBI knows of," FBI agent Joseph Ball said Friday. "A little girl was bought in Africa and brought back here to be a slave. That's what used to happen before the Civil War."

Syed Riaz Hussain Shah, a horticulturist who formerly taught at Miami-Dade Community College, pleaded guilty in federal court Thursday to a charge of holding a person in involuntary servitude.

His wife, Dr. Ishrad Majed Shah, an anesthesiologist at Okeechobee Hospital, had faced the same charge. But it was was dropped when she pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of lying to immigration officers.

Neither of the Shahs has commented on the case.

The girl, Rose Iftony, was 10 years old in 1974 when she was brought to the United States from Sierra Leone, where the Shahs paid her mother $200 and promised to educate her. In return, they said the girl would babysit the Shahs' son, who was then 4 years old, said civil rights attorney John Conroy of the Justice Department.

"The payment of money indicates that really wasn't what the Shahs had in mind at all," Conroy said. "They only wanted her to work for them."

The grand jury charged in the indictment that the Shahs used Rose as a house slave in what the FBI described as a "lavishly furnished" apartment in Okeechobee.

"They would not let her wash dishes in the dishwasher, but made her do them by hand," FBI agent Lathell Thomas testified. "They would not let her use a clothes-washing machine."

Thomas said neighbors reported that the couple kept the girl constantly scrubbing floors by hand.

The Shahs finally sent little Rose to school in December 1975, after managing to get her expired visa changed to a student's visa by claiming to be her aunt and uncle, Conroy said.

The story of the child-slave began to come to light as teachers at Dunbar Elementary School noticed Rose's emaciated condition and reported it to authorities. Workers for the Division of Youth Services told a juvenile court judge in 1976 that Shah had made sexual advances toward the girl when his wife was absent. No sex charges were brought.

Youth authorities continued to investigate and the girl was evenutally taken away from the Shahs' household. Evidence surfaced that the girl was a house slave, and the couple was indicted in October 1976.

"The girl's a nice kid, very bright," Conroy said. "The child was just simply unable to extricate herself."

The child has been placed in a foster home and will be allowed to remain in the United States until she completes her education. Then she must return to her mother and 11 brothers and sisters in Africa.

Shah faces up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine, and his wife up to six months in prison and $500 fine.

Both are registered aliens from Pakistan, and immigration officials say no decision has been made on whether to deport them. U.S. District Court Judge William Hoeveler has ordered a pre-sentence investigation.

Coal Shortage Dims Lights In Indiana

With coal supplies short and electricity use cut back, all but a few street lights are off. The only illumination comes from traffic signals and automobile headlights. Wabash Avenue, cutting through the downtown business district, is all but deserted.

Most businsses, under orders to trim electricity consumption by 25 percent, are dark.

And some 900 persons whose work has nothing directly to do with coal production are laid off or on shortened workweeks.

For two weeks now, the town has been under mandatory power cutbacks because the United Mine Workers' 88-day-old strike has left Public Service Indiana, the state's largest utility, unable to replenish its coal stockpile beyond the danger level.

Their strike has disrupted the lives of Terre Haute's 70,000 residents — many of whom work at its food processing companies and large bakeries, a large record plant, an aircraft maintenance plant.

The city sits on the corner of producing coalfields near Indiana's western border and, ironically, coal seams run underneath the buildings of Terre Haute itself. If it could be mined, there would be more than enough coal to meet the city's electrical needs.

But Indiana has been the state hardest-hit by unemployment caused by strike-related power cutbacks, with more than 4,700 people laid off Friday and the paychecks of at least 20,000 more more reduced in other ways. And Terre Haute is the hardest-hit city in Indiana.

Other states, notably Ohio and West Virginia, have sought voluntary conservation or ordered minimal electrical cutbacks, but utilities there are not yet imposing cutbacks on the scale of those in Indiana.

Here, businesses have cut back hours or shut down completely. Schools have suspended classes for days at a time. Virtually everything is colder and darker than it was a month ago.

In the rough-and-tumble industrial areas, squat warehouses and factories operate at a fraction of normal capacity.

"People are really up-tight about the situation because the kind of industry we have is heavily dependent on electricity," says state Rep. William Roach, a Democrat whose district covers much of Terre Haute. "At dark, nothing moves. Even your restaurants are closing early."

He adds that citizens are becoming bitter and suspicious: "They don't understand how we can be sitting on 300 years' worth of coal and still can't get enough electricity to run the city ... We're surrounded by power plants and we don't have any power.

"It doesn't make sense."

At the District 11 headquarters of the UMW, meanwhile, the thermostat for the coal-fired furnace registers a toasty 75 degrees.

In an office a block away, Mattie Welsh works under a single light preparing the books for the Terre Haute Tent and Awning Co. When the sun shines, light from the windows makes up for lamps that are off.

"But on a dark day, especially when I type, it's bad," she said.

Her boss, Gregory Pretsch, says he is disgusted: "There is no sympathy at all for the mine workers, and this is a union town."

The cutbacks don't seem to have a noticeable effect on the Ballyhoo Bar, a dark little tavern near the Indiana State University campus.

"We heat with gas, but the coolers have got to run. You've got to keep the beer cold," said Wayne Otheham, a graduate student in technology who tends bar part time.

"People just keep going about their business," he added. "But they're mad. I hear people say, 'shoot the coal miners.'

"I don't know. When one part of society dictates what goes on for the rest of us, I think that's terrible."

French Socialist Leader Stays 'Mystery Man' To Countrymen

MITTERRAND

To his supporters, Mitterrand is a rare blend of gentleman, intellectual and skillful political leader, as evidenced by the way he revitalized the moribund Socialist Party. Opinion polls say the party is the most popular in France.

To his critics, he's a cunning politician running a campaign hazy on the issues but strong and direct in its appeal to those Frenchmen disenchanted with the center-right majority that has led France for the past 20 years.

As the March 12 first round of the crucial National Assembly elections approaches, many Frenchmen simply are unsure what the 61-year-old Mitterrand stands for or what his leadership would mean for France.

"I just came for a personal look," said a shopkeeper at a recent Mitterrand rally. "Socialist friends say he's great, a true believer in democratic socialism. But I can't figure out what he really wants to do."

Communist Party leader George Marchais says he is perplexed. Mitterrand has yet to make clear how many Communist ministers he would name if the combined left wins a majority of the 491 National Assembly seats in the two-week, double-elimination election and he forms a new government.

A formal Socialist-Communist electoral alliance has fallen apart, but Mitterrand says he will put Communists in a Socialist-led cabinet. He would be France's first Socialist premier since Guy Mollet, who held the post for three months in 1957.

Mitterrand is a well-known figure after 30 years in French politics and two unsuccessful bids for the presidency. Paris today is flooded with Mitterrand books, campaign brochures and biographies. But ambiguities remain.

He spoke eloquently at a recent press luncheon of his hopes for remaking France into a true, democratic socialist world leader.

"We want to play a determining role in the United Nations, be respected for the force of our propositions," Mitterrand said. But he did not describe those propositions.

He said a leftist French government would negotiate "new contents" for France's friendship treaty with the Soviet Union to make it "more substantial." But he refused to say what those contents would be.

He said France would remain in the Common Market but would try to improve the lot of the worker throughout Europe — again, no specifics.

In the same manner, he dealt with Western fears about a Socialist-Communist government sharing military secrets or seeking revision of the North Atlantic Treaties.

"We don't seek revision of NATO," Mitterrand said But then he went on to speak of the need for France to develop a "totally independent" defense system.

Abernathy Claims U.S. Still Split

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Despite widespread talk about fighting racism in America, the United States is still two nations — a black one and a white one, civil rights leader Ralph Abernathy.

"Unfortunately, a split still exists between black and white America. It is a true fact of history. We are two nations. We are two nations in one country," Abernathy said Thursday night.

He also said the United States should withdraw from the April Davis Cup tennis matches scheduled to be held in Tennessee because of South Africa's racial policies.

Miller Confirmed For Federal Reserve

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate overwhelmingly confirmed G. William Miller as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board Friday, despite claims by his lone detractor that the appointment "will be a joke."

Placing Miller at the head of the Federal Reserve is "like taking ballet star Rudolph Nureyev and pitting him against boxer Leon Spinks for the heavyweight championship of the world," said Sen. William Proxmire, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

"It will be a joke," the Wisconsin Democrat told his colleagues just before the voice vote, in which Proxmire's was the lone dissenting voice.

Miller's nomination to one of the most important of the government's economic posts was confirmed after it became clear that the only vote against him would be cast by Proxmire, who questioned his integrity and qualifications to handle monetary affairs.

Although remaining a minority of one, Proxmire delivered a vigorous denunciation of Miller as an economic amateur who is entering office under a cloud of investigation and suspicion.

G.W. MILLER

Other senators said Miller's background as the highly successful chief executive of Textron Inc., an international conglomerate, fully qualifies him to succeed Dr. Arthur Burns in a four-year term as Federal Reserve chairman.

They said an investigation by the staff of Proxmire's committee failed to prove that Miller ever knew that the Iranian air force chief was a secret owner of a sales agency which helped Bell Helicopter, Textron's largest subsidiary, clinch a sale with Iran that resulted in $1.5 billion in business.

Proxmire has stated that the $2.95 million Bell paid Air Taxi Inc., the firm alleged to have been owned by Gen. Mohhamad Khatami, was a bribe. And he said that while there is no evidence that Miller knew of Khatami's ownership of Air Taxi, the evidence is strong that he should have known.

Proxmire was rebuked for such statements on the Senate floor by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., a committee member, who said evidence of Khatami's secret ownership at the time of the helicopter sale in 1973 is "fragmentary and circumstantial."

"If there is a cloud in this situation it is not a cloud of Mr. Miller's making," Stevenson said. "His professional life has been impeccable, beyond reproach.

"It would be a tragedy if the country returned to the day where insinuation, loose talk and accusations are enough to create a cloud and deprive the people of their servants," Stevenson said.

But Proxmire was not silenced.

"Anybody who thinks there is not a cloud has got his own head in the clouds and is unwilling to state the realities of life," he replied.

Proxmire said the Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating a wide variety of Textron business activities in a probe that could extend for half a year and possibly place Miller in civil and even criminal jeopardy.

If that occurred, the traditional independence of the Federal Reserve would be placed in jeopardy because of the power of the U.S. attorney general either to initiate or quash a prosecution, the senator added.

But Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., who was the most persistent questioner of Miller on the Republican side of the banking panel, said the SEC investigation is not of Miller but of his company.

"I think there is no cloud upon his personal integrity," Brooke said.

Ex-POW Marks Return

SOUTH SAN GABRIEL, Calif. (AP) — It's been five years since former Air Force flier John Nasmyth Jr. was released from a North Vietnamese prison camp, and Nasmyth threw a party Friday to celebrate his return.

Nasmyth, now 37 and working in his brother's real estate business, invited several other former POWs and hundreds of friends and neighbors who had joined in a campaign to win freedom for the POWs.

When Nasmyth returned to his hometown in this Los Angeles suburb after 6½ years in North Vietnam prisons, he was greeted by a marching band playing "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." He saw for the first time the famous homemade billboard his family had erected three years earlier. It read: "Hanoi Release John Nasmyth."

The sign, which became a national symbol of the movement to win freedom for the Americans held prisoner by the Vietnamese, was erected by his mother, Virginia Nasmyth, who traveled around the world on behalf of the POW.

It was Mrs. Nasmyth, who "got the idea it would be fun to have a five-year anniversary party, so I said, 'Let's do it.'"

They decided to hold the party Friday afternoon and evening in the house Nasmyth was raised in.

Former POWs and fighter pilots who fought in Vietnam are a close group, Nasmyth said, and there are several reunions every year.

One group, Nam POWs Inc., will meet in Los Angeles this May, Nasmyth said, and plans to drive down to San Clemente to meet with former President Richard Nixon.

Nasmyth said he had talked to Nixon's chief of staff, Col. Jack Brennan, who said "it would be nice if we could jump in some cars and come down and, in his words, 'have a drink with the old man.'

"I'm sure we're probably the most loyal group to him there is," Nasmyth said, "because he got us out."

The five years have been good to him, said Nasmyth, still a bachelor. "They've been too good. I need to diet all the time."

He hasn't had any adjustment problems, he said, adding, "Believe me, it's a lot easier to adjust to this type of life than to prison life."

He usually gets them in the Southeast because "They're cheap down there. I've bought several in Alabama and Mississippi."

How does he get them to the West Coast?

"I fly them," he said. "I'll fly anthing. I had a propeller fall off over Texas one time, but fortunately it was a twin engine plane."

12 Chilean Exiles Invited Back Home

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Chilean government says 12 prominent Christian Democratic party members who were forced to leave Santiago last month may return to their homes.

They were exiled to the northern tip of the country for violating the military junta's ban on political activity. The exiles include the former president of the Senate, Tomas Reyes.

Massage Parlor Killing Blamed On Gangsters

Local attorney John T. Montford claimed Friday that organized crime may have been responsible for a 1976 massage parlor shooting death.

Montford — who is challenging incumbent Criminal District Attorney Alton Griffin in the May Democratic primary — is defending Leroy Adams, who was charged with murder in connection with the incident.

Mrs. Margaret Adams, 48, the defendant's estranged wife, was gunned down May 19, 1976, inside Brandy's Massage Parlor at 2802 34th St.

The murder case had been scheduled to go to trial Monday. But State District Judge Thomas L. Clinton granted a defense request Friday to delay the trial, after Montford indicated he needed more time to try to locate three witnesses.

Montford indicated during the hearing that his client may have been framed.

"Our theory is that the defendant was framed by organized crime," Montford stated.

The filed motion for continuance said the defendant claims "the offense was in fact perpetrated, conceived and carried out by organized crime, all in an effort to frame and blame the defendant for something that he did not do..."

The motion listed three witnesses — two men and a woman — who were reportedly at the premises when the shooting occurred.

Montford said that, despite diligent effort by both the state and defendant, the three witnesses have not been located.

The defense claims the three witnesses can discredit testimony by a main state witness.

Montford further claimed during the hearing that two unidentified men ran out the back door of the massage parlor at about the time the defendant is alleged to have done the shooting.

Mrs. Adams had reportedly filed a divorce suit against her husband the day before she was killed.

LIMIT SAVES LIVES

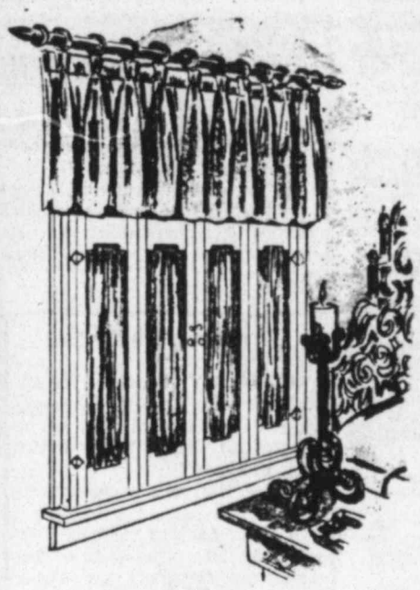

Four full years of the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit in the United States resulted in the saving of 36,000 lives, reports the National Safety Council. Motor vehicle acidents killed 55,511 persons in 1973, 46,402 in 1974 and claimed 45,853 lives in 1975. Deaths totaled 46,700 in 1976 and the 1977 figure is expected to be 47,000.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Doubts about Brazil's soybean production this year triggered heavy buying that boosted soybean and soybean oil futures sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade Friday.

The Agriculture Department said that drought may have reduced Brazilian soybean yield to an estimated 11.5 million metric tons. The new figure, which was revised downward by a million tons, puts the Brazilian crop at a half million tons below last year.

Later in the session, renewed rumors that Brazil had suspended export registrations for soybean oil added impetus to the upswing. Similar reports earlier in the week were denied.

Retail Meat Prices Show Steady Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail beef prices climbed to slightly more than $1.48 a pound on the average in January and are still going up, says the Agriculture Department.

The January beef price average, a composite price based on all cuts sold in retail stores, was up 3.4 cents from December, the highest in two years. Last September, before starting its current rise, beef was $1.39 a pound.

Pork prices also have climbed from the low marks of last fall to almost $1.34 a pound in January, up 3.2 cents from December. Pork was less than $1.27 last October.

Department economists have predicted for months that meat prices were on the upswing and that the trend will continue in 1978.

Preliminary figures for February, which are considered highly tentative, show that the increase continued last month with beef rising further to near $1.50 a pound and pork to more than $1.37 a pound.

Beef prices are expected to continue higher or at least fairly near the current marks for some time as a result of massive cutbacks in the nation's cattle inventory the past three years. Pork prices are expected to rise less and possibly ease a bit later this year because of stepped-up hog production by farmers.

The beef and pork prices for January were reported Thursday in a monthly analysis of price spreads for food after it leaves the farm.

The "farm value" of beef costing more than $1.48 in stores was shown at 86.6 cents a pound while middlemen who process and sell the meat got 61.6 cents in January. In December, farmers got 86.1 cents and middlemen 58.7 cents.

Farm value of beef is not what farmers get for live cattle because it requires nearly 2.3 pounds of live choice-grade steer to make one pound of supermarket beef. But it is the farmers' share of what consumers pay for beef.

The farm value of pork in January was 82.3 cents against 79 cents in December. Middlemen's shares were 51.5 cents and 51.6 cents, respectively.

Overall in January, the farmers' share of a market basket of food items increased 3.7 percent from December while the middlemen's share declined two-tenths of 1 percent, the report said.

Put another way, farmers received the equivalent of 39 cents of each food dollar spent in January, up from 38.1 cents in December, the report said.

Marketing Meetings Scheduled

Choices available to South Plains farmers concerning the most practical commodities to produce and how to market them more profitably this year in light of economic conditions and new farm legislation will be explored in one-day conferences Wednesday at Lamesa and Tuesday at Plainview.

The conference in Lamesa will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Community Building across from Forest Park.

The Plainview meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. in the Centennial Room of the Hale County State Bank. Parking for this meeting will be available in the east lot across the stree from the bank.

Extension agricultural economics and marking specialists from Texas A&M University will conduct the program, says Billy C. Gunter, extension district agricultural agent at Lubbock.

They are Dr. William E. Black, project leader in marketing and economist and policy, and Dr. Ronald D. Knutson, economist-marketing policy and research.

"Part of the answer to the plight of the farmer lies in improved marketing," Black said.

Federal target prices and deficiency payments need to be supplemented by well-planned marketing decisions and action by the farmers, he added.

During the morning session each day, Black and Knutson will analyze the marketing situation, explain the 1977 farm act and its implications for agriculture on the South Plains, and discuss eight marketing alternatives which can help farmers improve their economic situation.

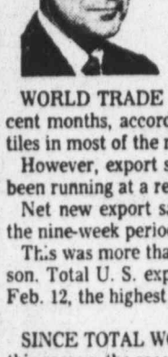

Livestock Show Set

ABERNATHY (Special) — The Abernathy Future Farmers of America and 4-H Club Livestock Show will be Monday and Tuesday at the Service Grain Elevator.

Judging will begin at noon Tuesday.

Dr. Jerry Stockton of Texas Tech will judge both breeding swine and market pigs. Lamb and steer judging will follow the swine show with Lubbock County agent Ken Cook doing the placing.

About 200 head of swine, 60 lambs and 40 steers are expected to be exhibited.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

WORLD TRADE IN RAW COTTON has remained relatively low during recent months, according to trade reports, due largely to weak demand for textiles in most of the major raw cotton importing countries.

However, export sales of U. S. cotton for delivery in the 1977-78 season have been running at a relatively brisk pace over the past two months.

Net new export sales for 1977-78 averaged almost 110,000 bales per week in the nine-week period ended Feb. 12.

This was more than twice the weekly rate in the first 4 1/2 months of the season. Total U. S. export commitments for 1977-78 stood at 5,550,000 bales as of Feb. 12, the highest level in four years.

SINCE TOTAL WORLD TRADE in raw cotton appears to be relatively stable this season, the recent increase in U. S. export sales apparently represents a major competitive gain for U. S. cotton in the world market.

The recent increase in export sales and the continuing favorable outlook for U. S. cotton supplies and competitive prices have prompted the USDA to raise its official export projection to 5 million bales, up from the previous forecast of 4.7 million.

World prices of cotton were in a declining trend during the first four months of the current season. U. S. export prices also were declining during this time, but were above competitive growths for most of the period.

Meanwhile, world import demand for cotton remained slack during the period of declining prices. Demand was particularly weak for U. S. cotton, which apparently was not fully price competitive with most foreign growths.

THE DECLINING TREND IN WORLD COTTON prices was reversed in December when a number of the foreign exporting countries, notably the Soviet Union, reportedly began to take a more cautious attitude toward quoting for the export market.

At the same time, some of the major importing countries began placing orders for raw cotton because their stocks had dropped to abnormally low levels. This combination of circumstances placed additional upward pressure on world prices.

Consequently, prices had increased significantly by the end of December and have generally tended to strengthen moderately since then.

U. S. cotton export prices also have strengthened appreciably since early December but not as much as most foreign growths. As a result, U. S. cotton prices now are competitive with the leading foreign growths.

This development is a major factor in the recent increase in export sales of U. S. cotton and should continue to influence our sales in the weeks ahead.

Beef Cattle Display Rebound

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Rebounding from early losses of as many as 22 points in October, live cattle futures finished five to 55 higher Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Volume was 13,640 contracts. Fresh support came after Thursday's mixed trade with some buying spilling over from the strong pork pits and light livestock runs, some of which came from wintry weather.

Firming of beef at noon also was constructive after easiness in some directions earlier.

Wholesale beef was unchanged to up one cent at 71 to 72 1/2 cents per pound, a one-week high. Cash cattle were steady with the top at $47.50 per hundredweight.

Slaughter was 145,000 head. Monday, the six markets expect 19,400 head to arrive.

Hog futures advanced all day and climbed as many as 110 points before ending 42 to 80 higher led by distant June. Sales totaled 7,995 cars.

Support carried over from the belly pit, and traders also noted light hog runs and sharply higher prices, coupled with strength in pork products. The discount of futures to cash also was a plus.

Wholesale hams were up one to 2 1/2 cents at 79 to 87 cents per pound, f.o.b. river points, a one-week high. Cash hogs were steady to up $2 with the top at a week's high of $50 per hundredweight.

The major terminals expect 28,500 head to arrive on Monday. Friday's kill was 251,000 head.

Pork belly futures (bacon) soared 180 points to the limit of 200 led by March, the third consecutive day of limit gains. Turnover was 9,653 contracts.

Prices bulged to their highest levels since October 1976. Buying spilled over from Thursday's limit advance with light runs and kill, along with meager storings being constructive factors.

Values were up as much as 9 1/2 cents per pound from recent lows.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up two cents at 66 1/2 to 72 cents per pound, f.o.b. river, highest since September 1976.

Elephant Born In U.S. Zoo

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The first African elephant born in captivity in the Western Hemisphere — a 220 pound male — was doing fine Friday at the Knoxville zoo.

The baby elephant, christened "Little Diamond," was born Thursday night to Toto, an elephant on loan from New York's Bronx Zoo.

Toto was one of two expectant African elephant females at the Knoxville Zoo. The other, Sapphire, is expected to give birth in June.

There have been successful births of African elephants in zoos in Europe, the last in the 1960s, but the arrival of Little Diamond marked a first for America, zoo officials said.

Zoo keepers reported Little Diamond was able to stand a half hour after he was born. An hour after his arrival he wandered into Sapphire's stall and it took six keepers to get the calf back with Toto.

The Knoxville Zoo was pushing to complete a new, $75,000 calving barn. It was to have been ready for use next week, but the birth came earlier than expected.

"Actually, we're lucky to have guessed the right month," said Zoo Director Guy Smith III. "It's hard to tell with elephants because mating can continue over a period of three months or so, even after conception."

DIAMOND'S LITTLE BOY — Zoological history was made at 11:30 p.m. Thursday when Toto, on a breeding loan from the Bronx Zoo, gave birth to a 220-pound calf. The newborn, one of the only elephants ever born in captivity, was dubbed "Little Diamond" after his father, Ole Diamond, the largest African bull elephant in captivity. Little Diamond is shown standing near the hind legs of his mother. (AP Laserphoto)

Old-Fashioned Banquet Marks Importance Of Agriculture

SNYDER (Special) — The best of Scurry County was dished up here Friday in the Scurry County Coliseum as the Snyder Chamber lauded agriculture in an annual banquet reminiscent of an old-fashioned dinner on the ground.

Annual awards and speeches ran second to an "all you can eat" buffet of products grown in the county.

Champions from the Scurry County Junior Livestock Show were the main event with the choice beef, mutton and ham surrounded by the bounty from Scurry fields — potatoes, blackeyed peas, okra, tomatoes and corn.

Desserts came fresh from Snyder ovens.

Flour in the hot rolls probably didn't come from Scurry but the possibility is there since the county has a healthy wheat harvest each year.

Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan Brown told more than 700 persons gathered for the event how it was with farmers and ranchers who produced such things for the table.

The consumer end of agriculture was related by Julie Benell of Braniff International, the only woman on the board of chefs.

Keeping the mood rolling was the country fiddle of Lubbock's Cheryl Kiner and her Sounds of the West.

Setting the scene were exhibits on all levels of agriculture from National Cotton Inc., the Texas Agricultural Products Exhibit, one from the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District and one — pictures of how it used to be — from the Scurry County Museum.

Awards, all announced previously to save all the secrecy hassle, went to six persons.

Carl Williams, a former professor of animal sciences turned farmer-rancher, won the Winston Memorial Award for outstanding contributions to agri-business in 1977. He is secretary of the UCSWCD board of directors and 1977 chairman of the Scurry County Producers Association which handled the county diapause program for controlling boll weevils.

Williams, who received two degrees in animal science from Texas Tech, left the University of Mississippi in 1961 to become a fulltime rancher and farmer in his native county, is a member of the Snyder Co-Op Gin board, the Agriculture Extension Service and the Texas Farmers Union. Among his honors is a top farmer of America award.

W.T. "Pat" Falls, who retired in 1965 after 36 years in the schools, ending as assistant superintendent, copped the category with his program of upgrading land and minimizing wind and water erosion.

B.J. Bartels, a former mechanical engineer for Westinghouse in Pennsylvania who joined the program in 1972 along with Falls, took the farmer segment for increasing water storage ability of his soils with parallel terraces and controlling erosion from outside water by the use of waterways.

The William A. Vestal Award for community service went to Hubert W. Cargile, who came to Snyder in 1949 to help establish West Texas Bank during the oil boom. Cargile, who has been active in many community projects, was president in 1954 and saw his son, Joe, become president in 1961.

The McLaughlin Memorial Award for the individual making outstanding contributions to the oil and gas industry, was presented posthumously to Ike Dolen Jr. who died Feb. 24 following a Feb. 18 car wreck.

Dolen, an aeronautical engineer, was active in the oil and gas industry until his death. He was a member of the board of directors for Snyder National Bank, a major sustaining member of the Buffalo Trail Boy Scout Council and recently had donated furnishings for a suite in the new addition to Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Mike Ezell received the meritorious service award from the Texas Good Roads Transportation Association and Paul Sizemore accepted the first Gold Coater award for his chamber work with the Producers Club.

The casual dress affair, designed as a salute to the Scurry County farmer and rancher, was considered a huge success.

Three Children Die In New York Blaze

PIERMONT, N.Y. (AP) — Three children were killed and another was injured when their two-story wood-frame house burned to the ground Thursday in this Rockland County village.

All four members of another family who lived upstairs escaped unhurt, including two who were taken from the roof of the house by firefighters.

Governor Cuts Off Attempt To Restore Death Penalty

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A bill to restore capital punishment in New Jersey was killed Friday by Gov. Brendan T. Byrne, who said he would continue to hold out for general revision of the New Jersey criminal laws.

"Although I told the Legislature that I would sign a death penalty bill if it was accompanied in 1977 by a comprehensive penal code reform, I do not pretend that this bill alone is a solution to our many problems in the law enforcement area," Byrne said.

The governor pocket vetoed the death penalty — letting it die without his signature after the old Legislature's adjournment.

Sen. John Russo, sponsor of the capital punishment bill, has already introduced the same measure in the current Legislature.

When Byrne ran for governor in 1973 and throughout most of his first term, he said he was never persuaded that the death penalty was an effective deterrent against crime.

But he said late in 1976 that he would reluctantly sign the death penalty if the Legislature would agree to adopt the new criminal code.

The code made it through the Assembly but was bottled up in the Senate Judiciary Committee, never winning final passage.

Byrne said he requested the Legislature to deal promptly this year with penal code reform.

The death penalty bill was an attempt to write a law that would conform to the most recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

It called for the death penalty only for first degree murder and then only in limited circumstances.

The defense would offer evidence of mitigating circumstances surrounding the crime and the prosecution would try to prove aggravating circumstances.

At least one agravating circumstance, such as a previous murder conviction, murder of a law enforcement officer or fireman, or murder for a fee, would have to be present to permit the death penalty.

And the presence of any mitigating circumstance such as the defendant having no prior history of crime or the victim being an accomplice of the murderer in another crime would bar the death penalty.

When the bill passed the Legislature in January, 1977, a poll had found New Jerseyans overwhelmingly supported capital punishment by a 72-22 margin.

President Carter Goes To Camp David Retreat

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Carter and his wife Rosalynn flew by helicopter Friday to Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Maryland mountains.

As staff aides and reporters pelted each other with snowballs, the president and his wife boarded the helicopter on the South Lawn of the White House.

One snowball narrowly missed the president's back, but he appeared not to notice as he walked toward the helicopter with his arm around his wife's waist.

Theatergoer Gets Billfold

DENVER (AP) — Fred Jackson hadn't taken his wife Ruth to a movie recently, so she got suspicious when a theater called to say his wallet had been found there.

Jackson, 64, assured her he hadn't been to the movie for some time, then drove down to examine the billfold.

When Jackson looked inside, the mystery was solved. It was a wallet he lost 37 years ago at the same movie house.

A theater worker said he found the wallet at the bottom of a recessed lighting fixture along a wall. Jackson still lives at the address listed on a draft registration card in the wallet.

Art Urged For Inner Cities

ATLANTA (AP) — Joan Mondale says the arts can play a strong role in revitalizing the nation's downtown areas.

The wife of Vice President Walter Mondale, following a tour Thursday of local art galleries, told the Georgia Council of Arts that "art can change people's lives.

"Since the federal government is one of the major patrons of the arts, so many of its policies can affect the art community," said Mrs. Mondale, an arts advocate for the Carter administration.

She described various projects around the nation which illustrate the role the arts can play in fighting urban decay, including New York City's Manhattan Plaza, where housing and studio space for artists are provided on a sliding-scale rent payment policy.

"There are lots of creative people untapped out there," said Mrs. Mondale. "They are pioneers, homesteading in downtown areas."

Leg Problem Plagues Payton

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Football League's player of the year, Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears, is suffering some numbness in his leg that was gashed in January in ABC's "Superstars" television competition, says Payton's lawyer.

Bud Holmes told The Chicago Tribune from his Hattisburg, Miss., home that Payton "has some numbness in the leg . . . It's probably worse than we originally thought. There could be nerve damage." Holmes said Payton was "cut down to the bone" and needed 16 stitches in the gash below his knee.

Payton was hurt when he ran against a blocking sled during an obstacle course run for the TV show. Several days afterwards, the Bears said the cut required six stitches and was not serious.

Payton currently is appearing at the Chicago Auto Show. He told well-wishers that the injury was the worst he had ever had, but he did not appear to hobble.

Councilman Gives Up Peanuts

WESTFIELD, Mass. (AP) — City Councilor Charles Medeiros says the council is a carnival — so he was just making things complete by eating peanuts during meetings.

But Medeiros, the man people were calling "the municipal crunch," has promised to stop shelling and eating peanuts during council sessions.

He said he started the practice not to disrupt the council, but to upset his political rival Edwin Morawiec, the council president who had passed him over for a committee chairmanship.

Said Medeiros: "I'm not going to eat peanuts anymore. I'd like to get on to bigger and better things."

Comedian Arraigned

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor has been arraigned on charges of assault with a car and a gun and malicious mischief in the ramming of an automobile driven by friends of his wife.

Pryor, a 36-year-old Vietnam veteran from Peoria, Ill., who starred in his own NBC-TV series last year, remained free on $5,000 bail following Thursday's proceedings in Superior Court. His plea was put off until March 17, said Deputy District Attorney Michael Knight.

Students Get Apology

WESTFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — A red-faced campus security chief at Westfield State College Tuesday apologized in writing to each of 360 criminal justice students for saying they were responsible for 90 percent of the crimes on campus.

Thomas Connors was quoted Monday as saying 90 percent of the incidents on campus were the work of 16 to 20 students in the criminal justice program. He said Tuesday he made a mistake.

"It's not true," spokesman Andrew Detoma said. "Figures from the dean of students office show that on the 2,700 student campus, only 15 cases came to the student judicial board during the fall 1977 semester."

"Of these, only six involved criminal justice students, four of whom were freshmen involved in such incidents as breaking light bulbs and tipping over ash cans.

"He (Connors) was using an unsubstantiated figure," Detoma said. "Law enforcement people these days, they're so close to this kind of work that their perspective isn't always detached. He made this observation in a moment of frustration.

"He (Connors) is red-faced at this point," Detoma said. "He's just intensely embarrassed by this whole thing."

Calls Disrupt Worker's Life

DETROIT (AP) — Henry Ford II has a listed telephone number and gets lots of calls from all over the country from people who want to complain about their cars.

He's not the 60-year-old Henry Ford II who collects snuff boxes and figures he's worth about $70 million. This Henry Ford II is 29, works as a foreman at Chryler Corp. and is a bachelor.

The other Ford lives in the posh suburb of Grosse Pointe and has an unlisted phone number.

"I've had the phone since early last year, and right away I could see why the man whose company makes cars doesn't want (his) phone listed," said the younger Ford.

"I learned my lesson after the first month or so, when I was taking collect calls from all over the country, listening to people gripe about their cars ... Now I make sure to screen the calls with the operator. I say 'Do you want the Henry who lives in Grosse Pointe, or the choir director?'"

The younger Ford, in addition to his job at Chrysler, is a piano teacher and choir director at Detroit's Afro-American Mission.

What kind of car does the Ford who works for Chrysler drive?

He said he doesn't drive. He takes the bus.

Decoration Arrives Late

LICKING, Mo. (AP) — Francis Day will receive his Purple Heart next week — about 60 years late.

Maj. Gen. Richard L. Harris, commander of Fort Leonard Wood, is to present the decoration to the 81-year-old Licking resident at a ceremony next Thursday in Baker Theater on the Army post.

The award is for a wound received in action in Argonne Forest, near Ayres, France, Sept. 26, 1918. The Purple Heart is awarded to members of the Armed Forces wounded or killed in action after April 5, 1917, thus making Day one of the first soldiers to qualify for the decoration.

Third Osmond Child Born

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Suzanne Osmond, whose husband, Alan, is one of the Singing Osmonds, gave birth Friday to a 5-pound, 14-ounce son, the couple's third, spokesman Ron Clark said. The boy, to be named Douglas Kenneth, and his mother were doing fine.

Clark said Osmond was to be with other members of his family for concert appearances in Houston but stayed home to be with his wife.

The couple's two other children are Michael, born in 1975, and Nathan, born in 1977.

Handling Dangerous Snakes Fascinates Texas Daredevil

But it hasn't stopped him from "kissing" cobras, a feat he'll perform this weekend at the National Rattlesnake Sacking Championships and Snake Handling Show in Austin.

"The doctors said I almost died twice. I was totally paralyzed for 11 days," the 27-year-old Waco resident said of his reaction when a cobra new to the act turned on him.

"I had had it for four or five days and hadn't worked with it enough," he said matter-of-factly. The reptile which turned on him was not part of the "kissing" act, when Heffelfinger actually touches his lips to the face of a hooded King Cobra.

What makes a person who has come near death continue dealing with the imported, deadly reptiles?

"I don't know. It's a challenge really. I first got interested when I went to a snake handling show in Oglesby (pop. 441) to watch fools in a pit get bit. That was four years ago," he said in a telephone interview.

"Me and a buddy of mine went and it looked to me like it would be a lot of fun. My buddy's now in the hospital with a skin graft from a bite," he added.

Heffelfinger's act probably will be the showstopper, said Ken Jirasek, a building inspector for the city of Taylor, who has helped organize the event sponsored by the Taylor Jaycees.

"There will be dare devil acts, and all are dangerous, but the intent is to show people how to handle themselves when they encounter a snake in the world," Jirasek, a snake handler himself, insists.

On the practical side, the art of crawling out of a sleeping bag after a snake crawls in, will be demonstrated.

"A guy lies down on top of a sleeping bag and they cover him with rattlesnakes. Then they zip him up and he has to crawl out of it without getting bit," Jirasek said of the act that might convince some outdoor campers to stay home.

The sacking event, where contestants try to stuff 10, 3-foot-long western diamondback rattlers into a burlap sack, has drawn 17 entrants so far. All are from Texas, but past competitions attracted snake handlers from as far away as Pennsylvania. The record time is 32 seconds.

None of the acts involve snake handlers who perform for religious reasons, he said.

The event has grown since starting out six years ago in the Williamson County community of Noack (pop. 60). Back then, plywood boxes were the stage.

Now a plexiglass pit 16-feet by 16-feet is the wrestling ring.

Some fellow Texans have frowned on the show and say it's bad publicity, Jirasek said.

"They say, 'You're showing all our northern friends how primitive we are in the South,'" he said. "But I know the people in the North are looking for open air atmosphere, so I discount that theory."

Cosmonauts Break Endurance Record

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts aboard the Salyut 6 space station set a space-endurance record early Saturday, breaking the 84-day mark established four years ago by three American astonauts.

At 5:36 a.m. Saturday — 9:36 p.m. Friday EST — commander Yuri Romanenko, 33, and flight engineer Georgy Grechko, 46, surpassed the old record. It had been set from November 1973 to February 1974 by U.S. Marine Col. Gerald Carr, civilian Edward Gibson and U.S. Air Force Col. William Pogue aboard Skylab 4. The Skylab mark was 84 days, one hour and 16 minutes.

Romanenko and Grechko were launched into space Dec 10. With them in Salyut 6 as they began adding time to the endurance record were two other cosmonauts, one from Czechoslovakia. Their spacecraft had linked up with the space station nine hours earlier, according to the official Soviet news agency Tass.

The Czechoslovakian cosmonaut, air force Capt. Vladimir Remek, 29, is the first spaceman in history who is not Soviet or American.

He began his space tour Thursday with Russian flight commander Alexei Gubarev, 46, in the Soyuz 28 space capsule. It was the first time spacemen of two countries were sent aloft in the same craft.

In 1975, U.S. and Soviet crewmen in the joint Apollo-Soyuz program were launched separately and linked up in orbit.

Tass said the four cosmonauts in Salyut 6 were feeling well, with all on-board systems functioning normally.

The new arrivals were to stay aboard for seven days, taking part in photography and scientific experiments, the news agency reported.

On Feb. 11, Romanenko and Grechko broke the previous Soviet space endurance record of 63 days in orbit. During their trip the cosmonauts have talked with their families once a week.

Along the way they've been photographing the earth from the 19-ton Salyut and studying the effects of solar activity.

Salyut 6 was launched Sept. 6. and remained unmanned until Romanenko and Grechko boarded it one day after their Dec. 9 launch. One month later they were joined for five days by two other Soviet cosmonauts — the first time two separate space capsules had docked at the same space station.

From Jan. 22 to Feb. 6, the unmanned space ship Progress 1 carried out the first robot resupply and refuelling mission of a manned space station.

It said further joint space missions involving Poland and East Germany are planned for later this year. All were reported to be part of the manned Inter-Cosmos space program in which Soviet cosmonauts will serve as flight commanders with East bloc cosmonaut-researchers aboard.

Son Buries Parents At Sea

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — The 27-year-old son of a U. S. couple who died mysteriously aboard their yacht, the Spellbound, says he buried them at sea because they would have wanted it that way.

Gary Edwards said his father, Lawrence, 50, fell in the cockpit last Friday and struck his head, dying within the hour. He said his stepmother, Jody, 44, despondent over losing two husbands through accidental deaths, shot herself the next morning.

The Tahiti Bulletin reported Edwards, of Kirkland, Wash., said the series of accidents began when his 21-year old sister, Kerry, apparently fell and fractured her skull.

Edwards was quoted as saying that after conferring with his sister, they wrapped their parents' bodies in blankets, sleeping bags and chains and buried them at sea because the couple would have wanted it that way.

Officials on French-owned Tahiti called U. S. authorities into the case on grounds the deaths occurred on the high seas and therefore the case, involving Americans exclusively, should be under U. S. jurisdiction.

In Honolulu, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said it was investigating.

Kerry Edwards and Lory Hoskam flew home Wednesday via Los Angeles.

Edwards said he hoped to sell the home-made yacht in Tahiti rather than sail it back to the United States.

"I wouldn't mind sailing back," Edwards was quoted as saying, "but not in that boat."

Cold Weather Helps Lower Crime Rate

As usual, cold weather appeared to be the city's best crime deterrent and a dearth of reports filed by Lubbock police recently reflected the snowy weather.

However, that didn't make apartment manager Abbass Azima of 5801 22nd St. feel any better.

Following the departure of a tenant, Azima told police he found the apartment furniture smashed, a couch cut, draperies missing and doors damaged. It all added up to $1,000 worth of criminal mischief. Azima said the damage occurred sometime between Oct. 12 and Thursday.

Motel manager Tim Jaggers of 912 Slaton Highway also was having his problems. Jaggers said one of his lodgers may have been responsible for the theft of a $450 color television taken from one of the rooms Thursday or Friday.

The snow won't do David Marcum of 2315-B 8th St. any good. Marcum said someone stole his skis, bindings, poles and gloves Wednesday. He estimated his loss at $220.

Charlie Evans of 3512 66th Drive said someone came into a business at 6002 Slide Road Thursday and made off with a $330 microwave oven.

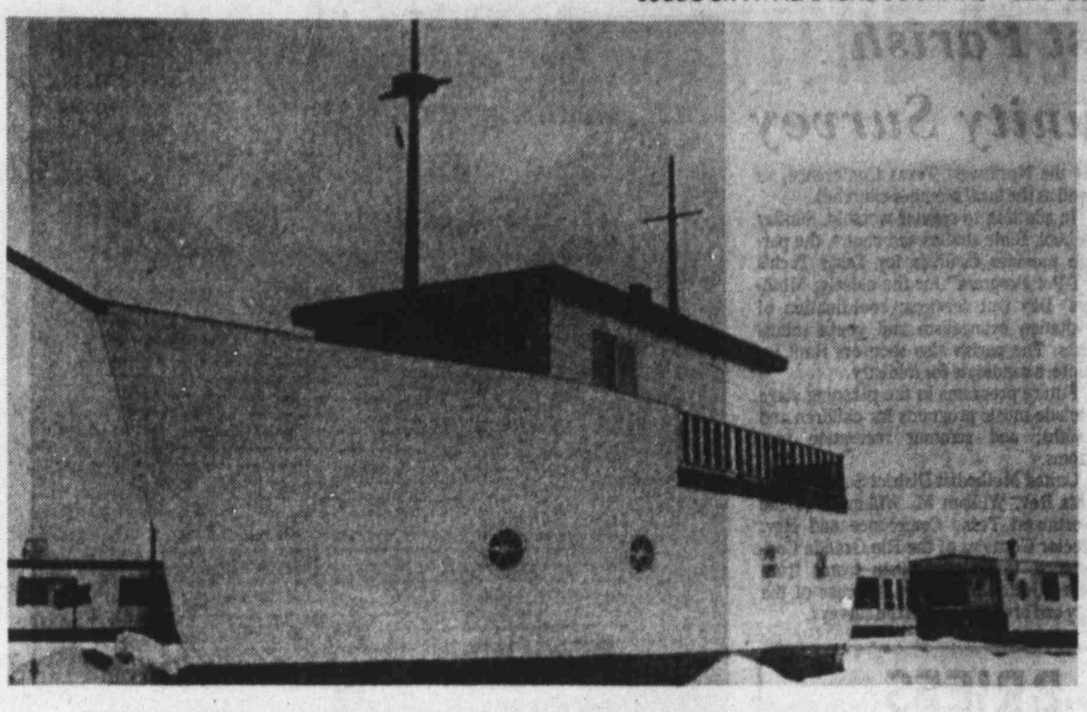

Bernie Daniel Eckert of 2607 35th St. said his 1978 Pontiac was rendered hubcap-less Friday after someone snatched his wheelcovers valued at $300 while his car was parked in the 500 block of 32nd Street.

The cold weather forced yet another thiff inside recently and Israel Hernandez said the culprit took a $180 revolver from Gibson's Discount Center at 50th Street and Avenue H.

Andrew Santos of 2012 E. 7th St. said car burglars broke into his vehicle Thursday or Friday and took his $80 CB radio.

DRIVERS' MILEAGE

In 1976, approximately 134 million licensed drivers in the United States put nearly 1.4 trillion miles on their odometers going to work, running errands, making visits, taking vacations and providing services.

Eleventh Juror Selected

Only one juror is now needed to complete the panel for the Samuel Christopher Hawkins III capital murder trial.

The 11th juror for the case was chosen late Friday.

He is Herschel A. Martin, an airport policeman for the City of Lubbock.

Martin, 50, resides at 1918 42nd St.

In an unusual move earlier Friday, presiding District Judge Richard N. Countiss ruled the defense could have an additional peremptory challenge.

In a capital murder case, each side by law is allotted 15 such free strikes of prospective jurors for no stated reason, although a judge can grant more.

Defense attorneys Gene Storres and Russell Busby Thursday used their 15th challenge, and asked Countiss for additional strikes.

The judge granted the defense the right to use a 16th challenge, but the question of whether still more free strikes were to be granted the defense was held in abeyance.

Through Friday, the defense had used 15 strikes and the state had used 10.

Hawkins, 34, of Amarillo, is accused of stabbing a 6-months-pregnant Borger woman to death during an attempted aggravated rape May 3, 1977.

Abbe Rodgers Hamilton, 19, was found in bedroom of her home tied hand and foot and stabbed about 10 times.

If convicted of the capital charge, Hawkins faces death or life imprisonment.

Jury selection for the trial ended its third week Friday. Attorneys had considered 121 potential jurors during that time. The selection process is the lengthiest ever for a capital murder trial here.

Jury selection for the trial, which was transferred here on a change of venue from Hutchinson County, was to resume at 9 a.m. Monday in the 99th District courtroom.

Countiss decided against a Saturday session because of the death of Hutchinson County District Attorney Stephen Cross' grandfather.

City Methodist Parish Plans Community Survey

Lubbock Inter-Ethnic Parish, a unique cooperation of United Methodist congregations of Anglo, Black and Hispanic traditions, plans a community survey beginning Sunday at 3 p.m. at Mt. Vernon UMC, located at 23rd Street and Cedar Avenue.

Additional surveys will be conducted at Iglesia Metodista Unida La Trinidad (Trinidad UMC) March 12; and Wesley United Methodist Church March 19.

Lubbock Inter-Ethnic Parish is supported by United Methodism's General Board of Global Ministries, Commission on Religion and Race, Advance Specials of the Northwest Texas Conference, as well as the local member churches.

In addition to regular worship, Sunday School, Bible studies and choirs, the parish provides facilities for Texas Tech's "T-Pot Program" for the elderly; Mothers' Day Out services; coordination of visitation evangelism and youth ministries. The parish also sponsors Raul Infante, a candidate for ministry.

Future programs in the planning stage include music programs for children and youths; and summer recreation programs.

United Methodist District Superintendents Rev. William M. Wilkinson of the Northwest Texas Conference and Rev. Hector Gonzalez of the Rio Grande Conference, invite evangelism teams from other United Methodist churches of the city and area to assist in the surveys.

CHURCH BRIEFS

First Methodist Women Slate Spring Fete

"Belles, Brides and Beaus," the annual spring banquet for the women and girls of Lubbock's First United Methodist Church will be at 6:30 p.m. Monday in the church's Memorial Hall.

Mrs. Janet McWhirter is banquet chairman. The program will feature a style show, presented by Hemphill-Wells. A wedding theme will be used.

Models for the show include Edie and Laurie Dougherty; Melinda and Tracy Shannon; Laura McMillan; Sue and Jill Hancock; Cindy and Claudette Culp; Jessica, Kimberly and Heather Hancock; Donna, Mary Jane, Cindy and Le Anne Snodgrass; Joanne, Jennifer and Christy Hunt; and Janell Matthews.

Reservations may be made by calling the church office.

Amarilloan To Speak Sunday Night

Dr. Terry Peters, a Roman Catholic from Amarillo, will give his testimony at 7 p.m. Sunday at Lubbock's University Assembly of God Church at 4803 University.

His subject will be "Baptism of the Holy Spirit." Peters is a chiropractic doctor.

Sundown Methodists Set Revival Meet

SUNDOWN (Special) — The Rev. Delton Fisher will conduct spring revival services at the Sundown United Methodist Church, Sunday through Thursday.

Rev. Fisher is pastor of the Abilene Grace United Methodist Church. He is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Marvin Fisher of Lubbock.

Pastor of the Sundown church is the Rev. Gene B. Louder. Evangelism chairman is Tommy Arnwine. Otis Turner and Truitt Mitchell will be in charge of music.

A church fellowship session will follow Sunday night's service. Monday night will be "Youth Night" and Wednesday night will be "Children's Night.

Music Leader In Brownfield

BROWNFIELD (Special) — Mercer Shaw, described as "The Big Man With An Even Bigger Voice," will lead a "Singspiration" at Brownfield's First Christian Church, Sunday through next Wednesday.

Time for each night's song service will be 7:30 p.m.

Shaw is considered by many as one of the outstanding music leaders in churches today. He has served as minister of music and religious education at Sunray, and as minister of music and director of fine arts at the First Christian Church of Wichita, Kan.

He has done solo presentations at Disciples of Christ (Christian Church) general assemblies and at the World Convention of Churches of Christ.

He has performed concerts all over the United States.

City Church Marks 15th Anniversary

Western Hills Baptist Church of Lubbock will be celebrating its 15th anniversary with a two-hour service beginning at 9:45 a.m. Sunday. A tradition of the anniversary celebration each year is a large cake, which has a special illustration. This year's cake is a reproduction of the "Ark of the Covenant." A piece of cake will be served each person attending the anniversary celebration. Dimensions of the cake are 26 inches tall, 26 inches wide and 44 inches long. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

EVANGELIST — Jack Taylor will be evangelist for a revival at Lubbock's Monterey Baptist Church, Sunday through Wednesday. A prayer breakfast is scheduled at 8 a.m. today to prepare for the revival.

Gospel Businessmen Set Dinner Meeting

A dinner for the Lubbock chapter of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship International is scheduled at 7 p.m. Friday at South Park Inn on the West Patio.

Speaker will be Homer Owens, a native of Hereford, now president of Rhema-The Way, Inc., an inspirational gift manufacturing and retailing firm with more than 50 employees.

Owens attended West Texas State University at Canyon, where he met his wife, Ruby. The couple has four sons. Owens said he was saved when he was 12 years old and baptized in the Holy Spirit at age 34 at a Full Gospel Businessmen's banquet in 1968 at Waco.

Music will be by Rand Hill and soloist Joyce Gilbert.

CROSSES OF LUBBOCK — Rachel Lewelling, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Lewelling of Lubbock, a student in the Child Development Center of Forrest Heights United Methodist Church, displays one of the small, aluminum crosses being distributed by the church as a reminder of Christ's sacrifice during the Lenten season. The crosses are inscribed with the words: "Jesus Christ is Lord." Members of Forrest Heights have been asked to accept the commission as "cross bearers" during Lent. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley)

CHURCH NEWS

Family Life Program Set

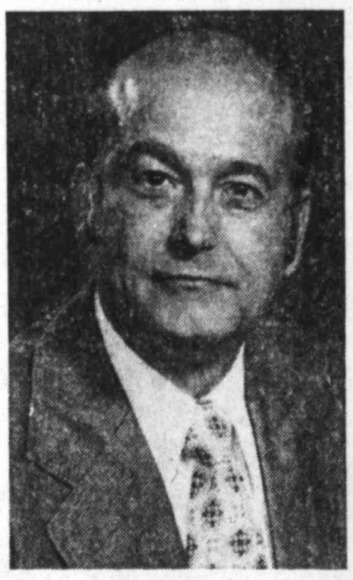

Dr. Ewing Cooley of Arlington, and Bill Little, pastor of Christ Memorial Baptist Church of St. Louis, Mo., will be featured in a special family life emphasis at Lubbock's Second Baptist Church, located at 5300 Elgin Ave., Sunday through next Wednesday.

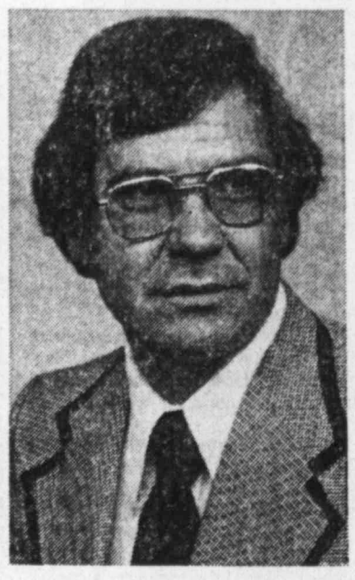

Cooley, counseling supervisor for the Metro Counseling Association of Dallas, and Little each night will present 45-minute dialogues between psychological and theological aspects of family problems, and then will engage in 45-minute talkbacks with the audience.

In addition, special sessions are planned for men, women and youths during the four-day emphasis. Special fun times include a movie night for children through sixth-grade age.

The emphasis is an effort by the Family Enrichment Committee of Second Baptist, to make the church a resource and support system for families in everyday life, as well as in crisis situations.

FAMILY LIFE SPEAKERS — Dr. Ewing Cooley of Arlington, left, and the Rev. Bill Little of St. Louis, will be speakers for a Family Life Emphasis at Second Baptist Church of Lubbock, Sunday through Wednesday. Dr. Cooley is a counselor. Rev. Little is a pastor.

Two Deaths End Feud On Stereo

NEW YORK (AP) — A long-simmering feud over a stolen stereo erupted in violence when a Brooklyn man stabbed his neighbor to death and then killed the neighbor's 7-year-old daughter because she was a witness to the crime, police said.

Larry Brown, 27, was arrested Wednesday and charged with killing Cleo Davis, 36, and his daughter, Annajka, police said. Davis' wife, Josephine, found the bodies when she came home from work to her Bedford-Stuyvesant apartment Tuesday night.

Police said the two men "had been drinking buddies for a long time," but had been arguing for several months about a stereo stolen from Davis. Davis accused Brown of the theft and the men engaged in a number of heated arguments when they drank together, police said.

Religious Program Gets High Marks

Already a Sunday morning favorite in the South Plains area and Eastern New Mexico in the Roswell area, the television program "A Better Life," now is being telecast in the Panhandle section from Amarillo.

"A Better Life" program is part of the overall "Pathway Evangelism" program of Lubbock's Broadway Church of Christ.

The Amarillo telecast began January 8. Since that time, Pathway officials said 99 letters have been received from the KAMR-TV (Amarillo) viewing area. This is declared a good mail response for a starting program. The mail has been received from 28 communities with a majority from Amarillo but some are from such towns and cities as Borger, Canyon, Dalhart, Floydada, Hereford, Muleshoe, Pampa, and Stinnett. Some response is reported from the Tucumcari, N.M., area.

Here are extracts from some of the letters received by "A Better Life":

— "I've just seen your TV show, 'A Better Life,' and what a thrill and great blessing it has been to me. I am recovering from major surgery and needed to hear what you had to say."

— "I heard you over TV-4 this morning. You talked on depression and it really hit home."

— "I watched your message on KAMR and was very impressed. I would like to know if you represent a denomination and if so, which one?"

— "I feel that the Lord was speaking to me through you. Thank you for bringing Him and His word closer to my heart."

— "I was so down in the valley and I was ready to kill myself but after watching your show, it put me to thinking."

— "I've just listened to your program, and I received a new look on life."

Joe R. Barnett, Broadway minister, said "the television and literature ministry is exciting and we rejoice that God is using 'A Better Life' to his glory."

"A Better Life" is heard over Station KCBD, Channel 11, at 11 a.m. in Lubbock each Sunday; and is telecast over Station KSWS, Channel 8, at Roswell, N.M., at 10 a.m. each Sunday. Telecast time over KAMR, Channel 4, at Amarillo each Sunday is 11 a.m.

Monterey Baptist To Hold Revival

Jack Taylor will be evangelist and Fritz Smith will be singer for a revival meeting at Lubbock's Monterey Baptist Church, Sunday through next Wednesday.

The church is located at 3601 50th St. The public is invited, Bill Hindman, pastor, said.

Sunday services will be 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. For weekdays, the schedule is: noon service, 12:15 p.m. and night service, 7:30 p.m., Monday through Wednesday.

Taylor is author of several books, including these: "Key To Triumphant Living," "Much More," "Victory Over The Devil," "After The Spirit Comes," "God's Miraculous Plan Of Economy," "Prayer: Life's Limitless Reach."

Judge Rules Nude Walk Not Wrong

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Fernando Perez, a 29-year-old Mexican man who took a nude stroll in Milan two years ago, did nothing wrong, Judge Francesco Dettori ruled.

Dettori said public nudity no longer is a cause for distress. It causes surprise but not disgust, he continued, and the main reason people wear clothes is to keep from getting cold.

Dr. FRED SWANK

Swank To Preach O'Donnell Revival

O'DONNELL (Special) — Revival services featuring evangelist Dr. Fred Swank will begin March 12 and run through March 19 in the First Baptist Church here.

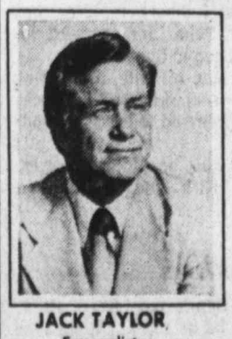

Sunday services will be at 7 p.m. Weekday services will be at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Swank is pastor emeritus of the Sagamore Hill Baptist Church of Fort Worth, where he served for 43 years. He is a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Music evangelists will be Ron Lowry, minister of music at Lubbock's First Baptist Church, and Derry Sanders, music director of the First Baptist Church of O'Donnell.

TO APPEAR HERE — Charles and Paula Slagle, recording artists from New Orleans, will be at Lubbock's First Foursquare Gospel Church Thursday. A "Festival of Praise" program is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m., according to Phil Demetro, pastor.

We live our lives surrounded by noise. Some we get used to and are barely conscious of. Some we can't stand — it drives us up the wall.

Yet for relaxation and inspiration millions of us turn to music. We do not think of it as noise. That is because it is sound with a purpose, with mood, message, a beautiful theme.

As music refines the clamor of noise, RELIGION unravels the confusion of everyday experience. Events, incidents, problems and trials that in themselves make little sense — become for the earnest believer challenges and stepping stones in his pursuit of Christian aims.

Join the millions who gather in Church each Sunday. Like you they are tired of noise and confusion. Their souls respond with courage and strength to the spiritual theme that runs faithfully through the Christian experience of life.

Do they come to hear the noise?

TEMPE FLOODING — Four youths paddle a makeshift raft through a flooded intersection at Tempe, Ariz., as high water assailed the Greater Phoenix area. Heavy rains have brought flooding from canals and the nearby Salt River, and entrances to the downtown State Capitol were sandbagged Friday as a precaution against high water. (AP Laserphoto)

Speedup Of Debate Set On Canal Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd reached an understanding with Panama Canal treaty opponents Friday to speed up the lagging Senate debate on the issue.

In the meantime, the Senate will "just keep plowing ahead, never looking back," in considering the pacts, the West Virginia Democrat said.

After 13 days, the chamber was still focusing on the first section of the first of the two treaties. But key anti-treaty senators consented to drop delaying tactics that had threatened to tie up the Senate for weeks and perhaps months.

Relinquish Control

The Panama accords, signed by President Carter and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos last fall and approved by the Panamanians in an October plebiscite, would relinquish U.S. control over the waterway by the year 2000 and guarantee the canal's neutrality after that date.

In a surprise move, Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., the master of parliamentary tacticians who has dominated the debate, agreed to withdraw six of eight proposed amendments to Article I of the Neutrality Treaty now under consideration.

That article has served as a vehicle for more than 50 amendments offered by treaty opponents. Eight have been rejected, usually by wide margins, and it appeared that no others stood any chance of passage.

Cooperation Praised

There was no sign, however, that the opponents were abandoning efforts to block ratification. Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a leading treaty foe, said the agreement with Byrd was made "in the spirit of cooperation" in moving the debate along.

Byrd praised the "splendid cooperation" of Allen, Laxalt and their allies, and said the Senate would dispose of Allen's remaining two amendments on Monday, then move on to the next treaty issue.

A snowstorm and lack of amendments to be debated immediately induced the Senate to take an unexpected early adjournment.

In another development, the Senate released a censored, 67-page transcript of last week's two-day secret session that was called to discuss allegations that Torrijos and members of his family have engaged in illicit drug trafficking.

The report contained extensive verbatim debate from the closed session but nothing that went significantly beyond a report issued earlier by the Senate intelligence committee.

That report said Torrijos probably was aware of drug activity by family members and officials, and did little to discourage it. But it said there was no solid evidence to show that Torrijos himself was involved.

Questions about the length of the debate had been raised by Byrd earlier in the week. He said at the time that he would consult with his colleagues on ways to quicken the pace of debate. Byrd reportedly was considering a plan for the Senate to debate the treaties eight to nine hours a day, setting aside additional time for all-important committee meetings.

The plan also reportedly calls for curtailing the Easter recess, which begins March 24, from 10 to two days.

Even though not all proposed amendments were certain to be called up, Byrd was concerned that the delaying maneuvers could tie up the legislative process indefinitely.

The attempted obstruction of a public passageway is a Class C misdemeanor, which carries a maximum penalty of a $200 fine. The cases will be wiped from the record, however, as part of the agreement between farmers and county officials.

The reduced charges will be handled in a justice of the peace or muncipal court.

Kersey, a spokesman for the prisoners, said about 40 farmers did not want to come out but had decided to do so in order to prevent violence outside the jail.

The decision to post the bonds came a short time after a tractor loaded with farmers was driven right up to the courthouse doors as demonstrators chanted, "We want them out now."

There had been meetings the past two days between local officials and lawyers and spokesmen for the farmers.

The situation became tense Friday morning when farmers outside became boisterous and rowdy as they paraded around the jail.

Hidalgo County Sheriff Brig Marmelejo said he was "taking a chance" on releasing the farmers on the reduced charge, but he said he was assured the situation could remain peaceful.

Lawyer Bill Wischkaemper of Lubbock, one of the negotiators, said the arrangement "was the best we could do."

The farmers outside were "getting restless," he said, and the jailed farmers wanted to get out and calm things down.

McAllen Mayor Othal Brand, who owns 40,000 acres of vegetable-producing land in this fertile section of Texas, was booed by the prisoners Friday afternoon when he donned a strike cap and said:

"It's unfortunate that we had difficulty. I'm sorry that it happened. Farmers are basically the most conservative, law-abiding citizens we have. I want to be part of the American Agricutlure movement. Agriculture is in desperate need of help."

Brand drew the strikers' ire when he admitted importing Mexican vegetables and many of the jailed farmers say they are angry with him because of Wednesday's confrontation.

Strike leaders and Brand said Friday that the problems at the bridge were a result of a "misunderstanding."

Area Gets Record Chill; Slight Warmup Forecast

6 inches of snow would fall by morning eastern Pennsylvania across New Jersey, southeastern New York and southern New England.

About an inch of snow fell in New York by noon Friday atop dirty, icy remnants of 45 inches the city has received since Jan. 1.

Heavier amounts had fallen in the Appalachians by late Friday, up to 10 inches in Grayson County, Va. Virginia sent 5,500 workers into the battle against the snow.

Calendar Mixed Up

The death toll in this week's storms climbed to at least nine and possibly 11, pushing the overall fatality count for six major storms this winter to above 300.

There were other uncounted weather-connected deaths in lull periods between the major winter blasts.

At Lexington, Va., it appeared the City Council might have angered the weather gods. The council passed a resolution Thursday asking the mayor to appeal "in an appropriate manner to the proper authority ... the wish that the dastardly, inclement weather desist forthwith."

Raft Ride Fatal

It snowed all night Thursday and on into the morning hours Friday at Lexington, Va.

In Southern California, a woman was killed when she and three men apparently tried to ride a rubber raft down the turbulent San Gabriel River. One of her companions was missing and feared drowned.

Near Mesa, Ariz., a 21-year-old man who was swept off a land cruiser by Salt River floodwaters also was presumed dead. His companions — at first feared dead — managed to make it safely ashore.

Five inches of snow forced schools and some businesses to shut down in the Carolinas and West Virginia Friday.

Midwest Digs Out

An overnight snowfall of more than 3 inches slowed morning rush hour traffic on Chicago expressways and built the city's record winter total to 81 inches. Some Midwestern communities were digging out of nearly a foot of new snow Friday and expecting more today.

In Florida, tornado-like winds destroyed mobile homes and toppled trees. Funnel clouds or strong winds were reported by the National Weather Service in at least 10 counties and many of the tornados reportedly touched ground. No serious injuries were reported.

"The roof looked like somebody took it off with a can opener and wrapped it around the radio tower," said Lt. George Farnall of the Belle Glade police department, when the tempest hit the mobile home used as an office and studio for radio station WSWN.

Mobile Homes Razed

Another destructive storm roared through the September Estates mobile home park on Pine Island about 25 miles west of Fort Myers, shortly after noon.

" I was standing in front of my utility room, then I saw my carport go," said Orville Noffsinger, 67, a park resident. "The air was full of treetops and parts of trailers."

Sheriff's deputies, who reported the storm as a tornado, said 20 mobile homes were damaged, including four that were demolished.

As Florida suffered from heavy rain and high winds, just to the north, freezing rain in northern Georgia during the early morning hours Friday left ice as thick as three-quarters of an inch on the roads and schools were closed in five counties. Some power outages were reported as ice-laden tree limbs fell onto power lines.

The national forecast for today called for more snow over northern New England and scattered snow showers into the lower Great Lakes region. Rain was to be widespread over the southwestern states, with heavy amounts again possible in California and Arizona.

Skies were expected to be mostly sunny over the Mississippi Valley, the Southeast and the northern tier of states from Wisconsin to Washington. Temperatures were expected to again be very cold from the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast, especially in northern sections.

Senate Energy Panel In Tentative Accord On Gas Pricing Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — After three months of deadlock, key Senate energy negotiators reached tentative accord Friday on a natural-gas pricing proposal that would lift price controls from the fuel by the mid-1980s.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., leader of the Senate conferees, announced the "agreement in principle" and said he would present it on Tuesday to the full 17-member panel of Senate energy conferees.

While Jackson said he was hesitant to predict that the proposal would end the impasse, he told reporters: "We have pulled together the basic elements of a compromise."

If the Senate panel agrees on the proposal, then formal bargaining with House energy conferees — suspended since last December — can resume.

Jackson said he felt the proposal was one that could be accepted by House as well as Senate negotiators and by the Carter administration.

The proposal was drawn up in three days of intensive negotiations joined in by Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

Jackson said agreeing to support the proposal are three senators who had backed a Senate-approved bill for deregulation of prices after two years: Democrat Wendell Ford of Kentucky and Republicans Pete Domenici of New Mexico and Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

Assuming Jackson can hold together five other Democratic senators on the Senate conference panel who previously have been in his camp, the support of the three additional senators would give him nine votes — the amount needed to break the deadlock.

Jackson said the proposal would give either the president or Congress the chance to reimpose the price controls should gas prices skyrocket once the limits are lifted.

The proposal would be more costly to consumers than the administration's proposal for continued price controls, passed by the House, but less costly than the Senate-passed bill calling for deregulation after two years.

Jackson said the exact price impact on consumers had not yet been determined.

Although Jackson declined to discuss specifics of the proposal, sources who asked not to be identified said it called for price deregulation of newly found natural gas after 1984.

The proposal reportedly would lift immediately the price ceiling on gas from the present $1.47 per 1,000 cubic feet to $1.84 and then allow the ceiling to gradually rise through 1984 to reflect increasing prices for equivalent amounts of domestic oil.

It also would give the president emergency powers to order gas moved out of producing states into northern cold-weather states in times of emergency to keep homes, schools and hospitals warm.

Meanwhile, moves were made in the House Friday to split the president's energy plan into its five parts and to try to act on the less controversial parts.

That move, spearheaded by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., encountered opposition from House leaders, who are hopeful that agreement on natural-gas pricing soon can be reached and the energy package kept as a single piece of legislation.

Parts of the energy bill already agreed upon by the House and Senate are limiting future industrial use of oil and natural gas by encouraging conversions to coal; setting federal guidelines for electric rates and establishing energy conservation programs.

Moffett said he's not sure House conferees will go along with the proposed gas-pricing compromise it expects to get from the Senate.

Moffett, a key member of the House energy conference committee, also said Congress should remove Carter's proposal to give homeowners a tax credit of up to $400 for home insulation from the tax bill and try to pass it separately, along with the other three measures.

Carter Anticipates Conferences With Brezhnev Over SALT II

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Friday that conclusion of a strategic arms limitation agreement will require a meeting with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev or at least communication between the two leaders.

But he said that negotiations being conducted in Geneva toward reaching a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty will resolve outstanding issues, including those related to a nuclear test ban.

"The time required has been much greater than we had anticipated," Carter said, but he observed: "We are making good progress ..."

"My guess is that the negotiators will resolve most of these issues in Geneva and it will probably require a direct meeting or communication between myself and President Brezhnev before we can reach a final agreement," he said.

The president launched his discussion of the arms limitation talks in response to a question posed by a college journalist taking part in a day-long series of conferences with administration officials.

Asked whether he saw any signs that the Soviet Union might attempt to base missiles in Cuba and tie the move to the negotiations, Carter said:

"I have had no suggestions that the Soviets might introduce missiles that were capable of attacking our country in Cuba if the SALT negotiations are successful or unsuccessful. I don't anticipate any threats from the Soviet Union through Cuba as a result of success or failure."

His comments followed by one day his statement at a Washington press conference that while the United States is not initiating any linkage between the negotiations and the Soviet Union's military activities in the Horn of Africa, such activities will make the approval of any arms limitation pact more difficult.

Such Soviet activity, Carter said, "would lessen the confidence of the American people in the word and peaceful intentions of the Soviet Union, would make it more difficult to ratify a SALT agreement or comprehensive (nuclear) test ban agreement if concluded, and therefore, the two are linked because of actions by the Soviets."

After the news conference Thursday, the president met with Paul Warnke, chief U.S. negotiator at the Geneva talks, and members of Warnke's team to review the developments in Geneva.

"We are making good and steady progress," Carter told the college students Friday. "We now are down to about 12 highly technical issues, three or four of which are quite significant in their nature and will be difficult."

He said progress was being made on a SALT II agreement that would run through 1985, and on principles for a third SALT agreement "which will bring about much more drastic reductions in commitment to nuclear weapons ... "

He also said progress was being made on a three-year protocol, which would serve as a temporary agreement outside the main treaty. It would provide stopgap limitations on certain weapons over which there still are long-term disagreements.

At the same time, Carter said, negotiators are making good progress toward a comprehensive ban on testing nuclear explosives for peaceful and military purposes.

He offered no details and gave no time frame for concluding any agreements.

Miners Pact Trails In Early Vote

vision commercials to urge its passage.

Miners, on strike since Dec. 6, were upset over proposed increases in medical bills and curbs on wildcat strikes.

An Associated Press telephone survey with 106 local presidents found 24 predicting their membership would vote to approve the contract, 35 forecasting rejections and 47 saying the outcome is too close to call.

"A majority don't think much of it. But it will be mighty close," said Carl Willey, president of Local 1254 in Craigsville, W. Va.

The survey also showed the union's campaigning has failed to persuade a majority of the local leaders to back the proposed settlement.

Twenty-eight of the leaders contacted said they would vote yes but 40 said they would vote no, and the rest were undecided or refused to say.

The secret ballot process has been used once before by the UMW. Miners voted 44,754-34,741 to ratify a contract three years ago. Prior to 1974, approval by the union's bargaining council was sufficient to ratify a new agreement.

The strike has forced power curtailments and industrial layoffs primarily in the Midwestern and Mid-Atlantic regions.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said earlier in the week the administration was prepared to act "immediately" to get coal production resumed if the miners reject the proposed contract.

Possibilites include invoking the strike-halting provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act and asking Congress for special legislation authorizing a federal seizure of the mines.

Legislation to impose binding arbitration was also a possibility.

But one source said Friday "it appears less likely" the administration would attempt to seize the mines or seek binding arbitration.

Marshall all but ruled out a resumption of industrywide bargaining if the contract is rejected, saying it would be very difficult.

But company-by-company talks are believed a strong possibility if the contract is rejected by the miners.

Miller said Thursday in West Virginia the union could find itself bankrupt and forced to negotiate separately with 2,600 coal companies if the contract is turned down. The cost could reach $15 million, he said.

Carter Hits Soviets On Human Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) -The Carter administration criticized the Soviet Union Friday for blocking attempts to mention human rights in a statement issued at the Belgrade conference on East-West cooperation.

The White House said the United States would agree to the document only because it wants to continue work on human rights.

No Clues Reported In Chaplin Case

CORSIER SUR VEVEY, Switzerland (AP) — An international arrest warrant was circulated Friday for grave robbers who stole the body of Charlie Chaplin from a walled village cemetery near Lake Geneva, but police said they had no clues in the case.

The warrant, issued for "unknown" offenders, asked police throughout Europe for assistance in the search. This indicated Swiss police think the robbers may have fled abroad with the body of the comic silent film star after snatching it Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

There is speculation that extortion was the reason for what police described the "horrible act of desecration." Chaplin, who was British and moved here in 1952, has left a fortune estimated at up to $100 million.

Investigating Magistrate Jean-Daniel Tenthorey said no ransom demands had been received and there was no evidence to suspect extortion. Police would not speculate on other possible motives for the theft.

"We simply do not know whether this was for ransom or for anything else," said Chaplin family lawyer Jean-Felix Paschoud. He said, however, that demands for ransom normally come several days after an abduction. He declined to say what the family reaction might be to a ransom demand.

Smith Asks U.S. To Support Rhodesian Pact

SMITH SIGNS TRANSITION ACCORD — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith Friday signed an agreement to change white-ruled Rhodesia to black-ruled Zimbabwe by Dec. 31. Three black nationalist leaders also signed the agreement during a ceremony at the mansion formerly occupied by British colonial governors. (AP Laserphoto)

By LARRY HEINZERLING

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith appealed to President Carter Friday to support his agreement with black moderates for majority rule and asked for an American "helping hand" to remove international sanctions against Rhodesia.

The white Rhodesian leader also said it was likely a multi-racial transitional government leading to national elections and black rule would be formed here within two weeks.

Smith, 58, spoke in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press just hours after signing the historic agreement with black nationalist leaders Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Jeremiah Chirau.

The pact sets Dec. 31 as the target date for a transfer of power from Rhodesia's white minority to the black majority.

"What we want (the United States) to do is to give us a helping hand instead of trying to hinder us as they have heretofore," Smith said in his downtown office.

He called on Carter to "enable us to get back on our feet by removing sanctions and joining with us in a call for a cessation of terrorism."

"Those things would really help the people of Rhodesia and the black people as much, if not more, than the white people," he said.

Beginning in the mid-1960s, the U.N. Security Council enacted a series of economic sanctions against Smith's regime, which in 1965 unilaterally ended its British colonial status and declared independence to avoid moving toward black rule.

"Do the American and British governments feel that they have any moral obligations to try and help us overcome this kind of problem, especially when we have accepted what they all along asked us to accept — majority rule?" he asked.

The agreement signed Friday has been rejected by Rhodesian guerrilla leaders based outside the country, whose insurgency is backed by black African states. Smith was asked whether he believed the United States, seeking to win friends in black Africa, could realistically be expected to support his settlement pact.

"It depends on whether they (the Americans) want to go along with this, if they want peace and a democratic system of government in keeping with the Western world's ideas in this part of the world," he said.

He said the settlement met the conditions of the British-American proposals set down by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger during a 1976 peacemaking mission here.

"If we now produce the goods, is there any logical reason why they should not accept this and go along with it?" Smith asked.

Questioned about when the planned interim government, to be led by Smith and the three black leaders, would be formally established, Smith replied, "I have a feeling this could take place within a week or two."

The guerrilla have vowed to escalate the war and disrupt any elections held under the internal settlement. When Smith was asked how elections could take place in a country at war, the following exchange took place:

"Well, we hope that when the time comes for elections, this war will have been resolved and peace will have returned."

None Hurt As Jet Skids On Runway

NEW YORK (AP) — A Swissair passenger jet skidded at the end of a runway at Kennedy Airport while landing in a snowstorm Friday, but authorities said there were no injuries or damage.

The airport was closed immediately.

Airport Supervisor Joseph V. Kennedy said the Boeing 747 jetliner was Swissair Flight 100 from Zurich. Passengers were evacuated by portable lounges, he said.

The airline said there were 267 passengers and 19 crew members aboard.

Officials said the aircraft, which has a capacity of 352 passengers, used the full length of the runway and came to rest on a paved overrun.

"At all times it was on paved surface," the statement said.

Nicaragua Rebellion Stifled

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Rebellious townspeople in Monimbo, admitting defeat by the national guard, put down their weapons Friday to accept food and medicine but vowed to continue their opposition to President Anastasio Somoza.

Sporadic violence was reported in other parts of this Central American nation, but it not on the scale of the bitter street fighting of the past week.

Trucks carrying the the food and medical supplies moved through dirt streets of Monimbo, a slum community which has become a national symbol of resistance to the dictatorial regime of Somoza. The city looked like a war zone Friday, with bullet holes in many buildings and the streets covered with debris.

The streets were littered with tear gas rockets fired from aircraft. Anti-government slogans and the letters of the insurgent National Liberation Front were scrawled on hundreds of homes.

The relief effort began Thursday when a committee "to help those violated by the national guard" arrived with fresh fruit, cheese, cooking oil, rice and beans.

"We have put down our arms," said one man who asked not to be identified for fear of reprisals. "We still have our dignity and our courage, but we stay inside our houses at night and are afraid to leave the community because the guard is waiting for us."

The Rev. Jose Maria Pacheco, a Roman Catholic priest who participated in the meeting, said:" They don't have anything to eat, we have to help them," adding, "only a total change of government will end the bloodshed and violence."

The Democratic Liberation Union in Masaya told reporters the political organization was receiving donations from throughout the country for the citizens of Masaya and Leon, other centers of resistance.

Agnew Documents Released By U.S. Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prosecutors who developed corruption charges against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resisted telling President Richard M. Nixon the details for fear he might destroy their case by making it public.

AGNEW

The prosecutors also were worried that Nixon, then enmeshed in the developing Watergate scandal, might "in pursuit of his own objectives" divulge the details to Agnew.

According to documents made public Friday, the prosecutors believed that Nixon wanted Agnew to resign and would put pressure on him to step down by demonstrating that the government had a strong case.

The prosecution did not specifically state what they believed Nixon's motives would be for wanting Agnew out of office.

Agnew resigned on Oct. 10, 1973, pleading no contest to one count of tax evasion stemming from his alleged acceptance of at least $87,500 in kickbacks while he was governor of Maryland.

He was placed on three years unsupervised probation and fined $10,000. Currently a business consultant, Agnew was out of the country and not available for comment, according to a spokesman.

The newly released documents show that top Justice Department officials wanted to charge him with bribery, conspiracy or extortion. In the end, they settled for Agnew's no contest plea coupled with his resignation.

About 2,500 pages of Agnew case documents, many heavily censored, were made public in response to a Freedom of Information suit filed in 1975 by two George Washington University law students.

However, the government withheld any documents describing what took place at the final plea bargaining session between Agnew's lawyers, the judge in the case, Walter Hoffman, and Justice Department officials. A Justice Department spokesman said the record of that meeting was not disclosed at Agnew's request.

Attorney General Elliot Richardson met with Agnew on Aug. 6, 1973, "at the request of the president in order to give him a summary" of the case, according to a Richardson memo.

Two days later, Assistant U.S. Attorney Russell T. Baker Jr. of Baltimore wrote that the meeting had been "designed to force a confrontation which would result in the vice president's resignation.

"When the meeting did not produce the desired result, the White House suggested that more detailed disclosures be made to the vice president in the hopes he would become convinced that the case against him was so strong that he should resign."

In a memo dated, Aug. 13, 1973, Baker detailed the prosecutors' fears of premature disclosure of the details of their case. The memo described a meeting five days earlier that Baker and his colleagues from the U.S. attorney's office in Maryland had with Deputy Attorney General-designate William D. Ruckelshaus and Henry Petersen, head of the Justice Department's criminal division.

Baker wrote that the top Justice Department officials were seeking a detailed update on the Agnew case for Nixon. But the prosecutors tried to persuade Ruckelshaus and Petersen that "it was not in the president's interest to have any detailed factual knowledge of the case."

The Justice Department officials insisted Nixon was entitled to the facts, according to Baker's memo.

Baker said the prosecutors then argued that telling Nixon could further tarnish the reputation of the department by making it appear Agnew was getting special consideration.

"We also stated our strong belief that most of the damage done to the department in Watergate had been done by officials in the White House," the memo said.

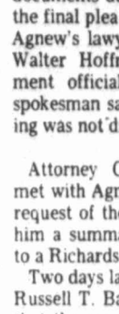

Moreover, said Baker, the prosecutors expressed "our concern that the president, in pursuit of his own objectives, might disclose to the vice-president" the details of the case against Agnew, or that someone at the White House might leak the information to the press.

Finally, Baker wrote, "we were concerned that the president might make some public statement on this matter for which a judge might later hold the government responsible on a pre-trial motion to dismiss for prejudicial publicity."

But nearly a month after that meeting, a 52-page memo spelling out the case against Agnew was sent to top Justice Department officials. It was not clear from the documents disclosed Friday whether that memo, dated Sept. 11, 1973, ever reached Nixon.

The newly disclosed documents also show that a week later, on Sept. 18, Agnew's lawyer, Judah Best, told Petersen his client would be willing to plead no contest to one count of tax evasion. Petersen wrote a memo to Richardson that "the government would prefer a bribery or extortion count."

Grin Part Of Job For 'Candy Striper'

HAL TAYLOR
Hospital Volunteer

By FRANK COATS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Hal Taylor came into one of the offices at University Hospital and gave his visitors a toothy grin, the same grin he uses to greet patients. He celebrated his 92nd birthday Wednesday, but even a short conversation will convince anyone that he didn't age gracefully; in fact, he hardly aged at all.

Taylor's an auxiliary at University Hospital — a "candy striper." He proudly wears a jacket showing he is a member of the Texas Association of Hospital Auxiliaries. Right under the jacket, he wore a striped shirt and a bow tie, and above the jacket was a small but unobtrusive hearing aid. He wore spectacles which refused to hide twinkling eyes with a slightly mischievous glint...and that grin.

He's a volunteer worker, and comes in for about half a day on Mondays and Thursdays, and whenever anyone else can't make it to work. Last year he accumulated more than 500 hours of volunteer work at the hospital, which a pin he proudly displays certifies.

He started work in 1976 at the hospital, trying to find something to do with his time.

February Crime Report Shows Violence Rising

By PAT CARLSON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Following a relatively slow start for the year, violence in Lubbock gained momentum during February with increases reported in murder, rape, robbery and assault.

There were five murders during the month, only two of which have been cleared. Police still have no suspects in three shooting deaths. In January, there was only one homicide — ruled justifiable — which resulted in a no-bill by a grand jury.

Six forcible rapes were reported to police during the second month of 1978, and four such incidents were cleared. In January, three of five were cleared.

There were more aggravated robberies and fewer clearances during February. Twenty-seven such reports were made within the city and eight were cleared. In January, 13 of 25 were cleared. Again, the most popular weapons used by bandits were firearms, with 16 such incidents reported last month.

Most of the robberies — eight — occurred in residences, and the greatest financial hauls — $1,761 worth — were got-

Police had a good clearance rate for assaults. Fifty-three of 61 reported incidents were cleared during February, compared with 42 of 57 during January.

The number of burglary reports decreased last month, but so did the clearance rate. However, the total financial loss during such incidents increased last month.

There were 313 burglaries reported and 35 cleared during February. Tallies for the first month of the year showed 63 of 331 were cleared. Of February's 313, forcible entry was gained 284 times. Force was used 309 times in January.

Property reportedly stolen during burglaries last month totaled $162,324, compared with $160,581 in January. The most dramatic increase was shown in non-residential buildings, such as store and offices, with 108 nighttime break-ins reported, compared with 79 during January. Still, however, most burglaries took place in homes after dark.

All classes of theft decreased last month, with 532 such reports made to police. The previous month saw 554 incidents investigated. Total amount of goods also decreased during February, from $208,816 to $132,051.

An increase was shown in vehicle thefts, with 81 such incidents reported in February, compared with the previous month's 62. The reported financial loss from such thefts was $268,300 in February and $160,975 during the first month of the year.

The total amount of property stolen in Lubbock during February was $568,413, compared with $536,218 during the previous month. Slightly less was recovered last month — $225,010 — than January's $225,205.

Other than vehicles, the category of goods resulting in the greatest financial loss for owners was that which includes television sets, stereos and radios. Currency and notes were the next most popular type property, followed by firearms and jewelry.

Of $259,529 worth of televisions, stereos and radios stolen during the first two months of 1978, only $18,360 has been recovered.

Author Tells College Class Of Cloned Baby

SEATTLE (AP) — The author of a forthcoming book about the alleged creation of a human baby through a laboratory process called cloning told a college journalism class that he helped arrange the purported experiment, and that the baby is alive and well, students say.

He also said he is contractually bound to secrecy about the individuals involved, according to a student newspaper.

David Rorvik, a San Francisco-based writer who has written about embryo development and genetic engineering, made the comments in a talk about the profession of freelance writing when he was a guest of a class at Western Washington University in Bellingham.

An account of the talk, and of an interview with Rorvik, appeared in the student newspaper, Western Front, on Feb. 10.

The J.B. Lippincott Co. said in a statement Friday that Rorvik's book, "In His Image — The Cloning of a Man," would be published April 28. It was originally scheduled for publication in June.

A Lippincott spokeswoman, Dianitia Hutcheson, said Friday in New York that the book is being published as non-fiction on the basis of Rorvik's credentials. However, she said Lippincott "does not know" if it is true. Rorvik was unavailable for comment.

In the process of cloning, the nucleus of a somatic or body cell is put into an egg cell from which the nucleus has been removed. The egg may begin to divide and grow and could become a mature animal, a genetically identical twin to the one which supplied the cell nucleus. The growing embryo could be maintained by being implanted into the womb of a surrogate mother.

Genetic experts say that although British scientists have produced a living frog through cloning, such a process involving humans is virtually impossible at this point.

According to the student newspaper, Rorvik told the students the cloned baby was born in December 1975 of a surrogate mother and "appears healthy in every respect."

In the interview, the newspaper reported, Rorvik said that a secretive, unmarried man came to him in 1973 and "identified himself as being very wealthy and very knowledgeable on the theory of cloning ... I was stunned by his proposal ... I went through a long period of serious thought about it." The newspaper story said Rorvik claimed the man had come to him because of the writer's background.

He said the cloning was performed in secrecy to protect the donor, the baby, the scientific researchers, the medical personnel and the surrogate mother.

Rorvik also said he has a contractual agreement with the donor to maintain secrecy.

According to the college newspaper, Rorvik said a medical journal was not used to reveal the experiment because of the secrecy pledge, because he is not a doctor, and because his book doesn't provide the complete documentation needed for acceptance in scholarly circles.

The New York Public Library lists Rorvik as author of four books and co-author of another. The subject matter includes fetal development and genetic engineering. An article by him about research on test-tube babies appeared in the New York Times Magazine in 1974, and for two years in the 1960s he was a science reporter for Time magazine.

Union Leader Gets Probated Sentence

HOUSTON (AP) — The director of a three-county confederation of carpenter union locals has been given a three-year probated sentence on charges of using union dues for contributions to political candiates.

State District Court Judge Frank Price ordered the probation Friday for Jack Fountain, 49, after receiving recommendations of prosecutors.

Fountain was accused of giving $20,000 in union fees to some 25 candidates seeking office in the 1976 and 1977 elections, most of them running for justices of the peace, constable, or state legislative posts.

Assistant District Attorney Bob Shults said most of the candidates took the money without knowing it came from a labor organization.

Fountain is president of the Carpenters District Council of Houston and Vicinity, embracing the counties of Harris, Montgomery, and Galveston and representing about 10,000 members.

In 1971, the union council was investigated by the Carpenters International Union, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the U.S. Labor Department after an audit showed more than $100,000 missing from one local's treasury.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY

DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taking an estrogen preparation for a number of years. I am in menopause. My health is fine. During the recent reports in the media about estrogen use, I asked my doctor to take me off it. I have not been taking it for a year. My recent estrogen level test was normal.

My doctor was rather perturbed that I discontinued and said he would still prescribe it. He feels it would prevent problems. Do you feel the medication should be continued to prevent atrophy of female organs? –J.M.

You don't report any adverse results from going off the estrogen the past year. Under such a circumstance I doubt you really need to continue it. Use as a preventative is, in my opinion, not a valid reason for taking estrogen supplements. Most women get along nicely without them.

If you should develop symptoms of vaginal atrophy (drying) such as itching or difficulty during sexual relations, locally applied estrogen creams would be preferable or oral use of estrogens.

Note that I offer the above as my personal opinion. There are some differences of opinion concerning estrogen use for such conditions. Your doctor happens to be on the other side. This has been substantially my view over the years as the controversy has heated up and cooled down.

My general view is that unless a condition is inevitable, there is no need to provide protection against it. The exception to that, of course, is immunization against infectious diseases.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could a hearing-aid device cure a loss of balance? Is there any cure for it? –S.B.

A hearing aid might help it. But loss of hearing does not always mean balance is affected. There are many other non-ear causes of balance loss — vision defects, the brain, and weakened muscle strength. See my booklet, "Dizzy Spells." It will help you understand the various mechanisms involved. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me at P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. The booklet may help answer your second question. When the cause of balance loss can be found it often can be corrected.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have an argument with my brother. I say our little baby brother can talk because he says "da-da." He says it's just sounds and not words. Please settle this. Can a six-month-old know the "da-da" from its "ma-ma"? –Miss T.W.

It's not language but the rudimentary beginnings of it. One speech authority notes that there are a group of sound patterns that form the basis for later speech. Among them are "ma-ma" and "da-da." It is only later, perhaps late in the first year, that the baby starts using these two sounds in relation to the person "called" — mother or father. It "gets the idea" as mother responds to one sound and father to the other.

So your brother is more correct than you are — at this point.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Ever since we were little we were taught that blood is blue before it oxygenates. Now we are being told in school that it is not blue, but a light red. Can you explain blood coloring for us? –R.S.

Blood varies in color from a bright red in the arteries to a duller red in the veins where it is less oxygen-rich. The blue tinge in the veins is cast by the skin.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a sperm count that came out "80 million." How good or bad is that? The doctor said he should be able to get me pregnant. –K.G.

The figure stands for the number of sperm for each cubic milliliter of semen. The normal range is 20 million to 200 million, so the 80 million is within normal range, though a bit on the low side. Needless to say, pregnancy has occurred with much lower readings. Only takes one, after all. Of equal importance is the health of the sperm themselves. If more than 20 percent are abnormal, a different problem exists than mere numbers.

For a comprehensive discussion of how to cope with the change of life, write to Dr. Thosteson at P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. for his invaluable booklet, "Make Menopause Easier." Enclose a long, self-addressd, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Woman Donates Years Pay To Research

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — After watching her husband waste away and die of leukemia, Alma Margosian decided to donate her entire 1978 salary to cancer research.

It means giving up $8,000 to $10,000 in paychecks and living on $408 a month from her husband's retirement. A daughter living at home while attending college receives Social Security survivor's benefits.

"Our lifestyle is going to change considerably," Mrs. Margosian says. "We worked all our lives to reach a time when we could enjoy things. Then Ed's illness came and brought that to an abrupt end."

Mrs. Margosian's commitment developed from watching "the futility of my husband's efforts" over more than two years to combat the spread of leukemia with chemotherapy.

Edward Margosian, a sheriff's lieutenant who died in May 1977, was "an extremely strong man," she says.

"But from the moment treatment began, it was all downhill. It just seems you cannot introduce poison into the body — which chemotherapy is — without something to rebuild the body."

Mrs. Margosian is focusing her donation toward research on nutrition because she feels chemotherapy destroys healthy cells as well as cancerous ones. "Something should be done to rebuild the body," she says.

Her paychecks are being sent to the Linus Pauling Institute at Menlo Park, Calif., which is experimenting with diet and vitamin C to inhibit cancer. Mrs. Margosian divides her work week, spending part of the time as a medical secretary for a physician and part as a medical transcriber for a hospital.

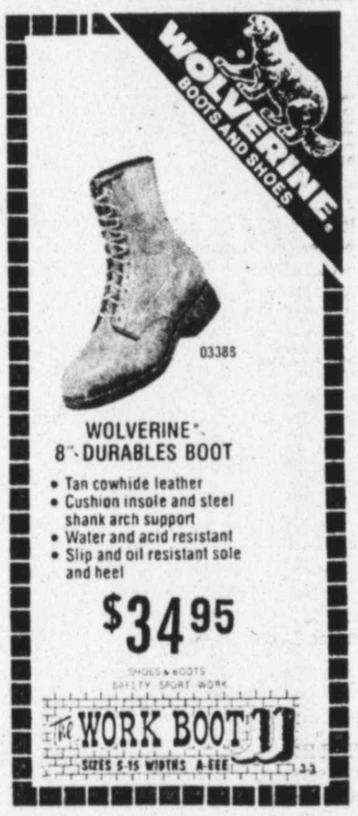

"I'm not in any position to give up a year's salary, but I feel so strongly about this," she says.

"I'm hoping I can stir up dust and have research laboratories across the nation aware of the feelings cancer patients or cancer families have. I hope other people will be so motivated so more research funds can be available.

"I think one year of my time is worth it if more effort can be made toward cancer research."

And donating to cancer research is not entirely unselfish because more than 20 percent of the nation's population contracts some form of the disease, Mrs. Margosian feels.

"There is no guarantee we're not going to get it, and I'd want treatment better than what is now available," she says.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I just finished reading your column "Been There and Still Am" and had to laugh a little.

I am a married man who has worked steady for the past 13 years, going to college at nights, supporting my family. To finish my education, I quit a $12,000-a-year job and my wife went to work at a bank. Although I receive a nice VA payment to go to school, I agreed to reverse roles with my wife.

I have been cooking, cleaning, washing, waxing, and doing all the housework for the past six months and I love it. I have never felt so needed or enjoyed so much satisfaction in all my life. We have an eight-year-old daughter who keeps me running with all her friends.

My wife loves her job and says she never had it so good. Common sense and adaptability on both our parts will enable me to finish school, improve our standard of living and give my wonderful wife a break in her lifestyle. If you have the idea that I might be a little bit "feminine," let me tell you I served in the Army in Vietnam as a sergeant in the Med-Evac Corps and I've never felt more of a man than I do now.

Maybe if you publish this letter it will give other husbands courage to do what I have done. It might look strange to outsiders, but it has certainly worked wonders for us. –Flip Side Of The Coin

Dear Flip: You are not as offbeat as you seem to think. Thousands of other married couples have switched roles and find it extremely rewarding.

I applaud those who have the courage to swim against the tide. Apparently the switching of roles in your family has made everybody happy — and that's the name of the game.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing this for teenagers who think drinking and dope is a big deal. I hope it will make them think twice before they try it again.

Dear Teenager: Getting drunk or high on drugs isn't what it's cracked up to be. It doesn't make you more popular, glamorous, or fun to be with. What it does is make you a clumsy-idiot, loudmouth kid.

It doesn't make you look grown-up, either. It actually makes you look like a punk, trying to be something you are not. Boozing or getting stoned won't solve your problems, or make them go away. It does just the opposite. It messes up your head and gets you into deeper trouble when you get caught. And you will. It's got to happen sooner or later.

No matter what you read, I know almost all of you are going to try it once or twice for kicks. But be careful — you just might get hooked. If you do, it could ruin you for life. How Do I know? Because — I am –A Teenager Who Found Out In Time

Dear Teenager: Thanks for some sensible talk. As a spokesman for your generation, you'll be listened to — while museum pieces like Yours Truly are tuned out. Glad you wrote.

South's two notrump was the unusual notrump to show both minors. It was rather unusual for an unusual notrump, but it did get South to six diamonds.

East covered the king of hearts with his ace. South ruffed, led his king of trumps, continued with a trump to the ace, ruffed a heart, led a spade to dummy's ace, ruffed another heart, entered dummy with the king of spades and was ready to attack clubs.

The only thing he feared was a 4-1 or 5-0 break and he had worked out a complete guard provided that East held the king of clubs as the bidding indicated.

He led dummy's queen. East covered with the king. South took his ace and led a second club. West showed out, but South didn't care. He took dummy's jack, led dummy's last heart and discarded one of his losing clubs.

West was in and had to lead a spade or heart. It didn't matter. South ruffed in dummy, discarded his last club and claimed.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR GALS:

This is going to be a delicate subject which I have been trying to solve for the last 16 years for you all and now I have the answer.

It's ladies' nylon underwear stains. Whether in your panties, under the arms of your expensive bras or slips -the answer is pre-wash spray.

It works as though a little fairy had waved a wand over all those stains and taken a vanish point out into oblivion.

Now that I have solved a problem for you, why don't you try to solve one for all of us?

Problem: How do you make it through the day when you get up on the wrong side of the bed and everything goes wrong? I've tried crawling back in and getting out on the other side, but know something? That didn't work either.

If you have an answer to this one, it would make millions of our readers happy if you could pick up a pencil and drop us a line. Lotsa love -Heloise

Clip 'n' Cook

TUNA BEAN SALAD

1 lb. 4 oz. can white kidney beans, drained and rinsed
7 oz. can solid white-meat tuna, lightly drained and coarsely flaked
3 tbsp. olive oil
3 tbsp. wine vinegar
Salt and pepper to taste
4 small scallions, finely sliced
Salad greens

Mix together the beans, tuna, oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Sprinkle with the scallion and granish with the salad greens. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SCANDIA SPREAD

8¼ oz. can diced beets
8 oz. jar herring fillets in wine sauce
1 tbsp. bottled white horseradish, well-drained
Sour cream

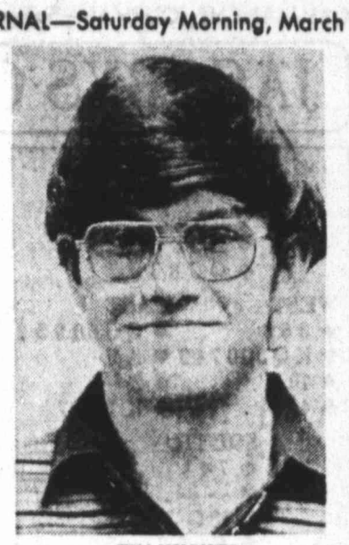

Drain beets extra-well and puree — there will be about 2-3rds cup. Drain herring extra-well, dry on paper toweling and cut fine — there will be about 3/4 cup. Mix beets, herring, horseradish and 2 tablespoons sour cream. Cover tightly and chill to allow flavors to blend. Just before serving spread on crackers and top with sour cream. Serve at once. Makes about 1 1/2 cups spread.

Paper Prints Final Run

CHICAGO (AP) — The final edition of the Chicago Daily News rolls off the presses Saturday, ending 102 years of publishing history.

The Daily News, Chicago's only afternoon paper and pioneer in the use of columnists and foreign correspondents, saw its readership dwindle during the past several years of changing lifestyles.

The Daily News and its writers had won a total of 15 Pulitzer prizes.

The death knell was sounded last month with the announcement by Field Enterprises Inc., publisher of the Daily News and its sister Chicago Sun-Times, that the paper had lost $11 million in the past year.

A request by the Chicago Newspaper Guild for a temporary restraining order to prevent the firing of 149 Daily News editorial employees was denied Friday by U.S. District Judge John Crowley.

Crowley said the death of the newspaper was "a sad day for all Americans," but that legal precedent required him to deny the request.

Bread Mix Ad Promotions Lead To Carton Seizures

CLEVELAND (AP) — U.S. marshals seized 20,000 cartons of "No Hunger" bread mix that had been nationally advertised as an appetite depressant and disease preventive.

The Federal Drug Administration and Ohio Department of Agriculture said the seizure on Thursday came because of claims made for the bread in newspaper advertising and on the label.

Liberal Democrats To Screen Hopefuls

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The liberal faction of the Texas Democratic Party meets here Saturday to hear from statewide candidates and then take a straw poll on who to support.

Democratic National Committeewoman Billie Carr said those scheduled to appear include Attorney General John Hill and former Gov. Preston Smith, candidates for governor; Bob Krueger and Joe Christie, candidates for U. S. Senate; Mark White and Price Daniel Jr., candidates for attorney general, and Harry Ledbetter, candidate for treasurer. She said Gov. Dolph Briscoe would not attend.

Ed Cogburn, secretary-treasurer of the organization known as the Texas Democrats, said that after all candidates have spoken "all the registered participants of the rally will be given a ballot so that they might express their sentiment as to which candidates they are supporting at this time. It is a non-binding straw poll and the results will be made public." Those attending will be charged $2 to register.

Mrs. Carr said the group also would discuss upcoming conventions and the re-election of present State Democratic Executive Committee members and officers.

Mrs. Carr stressed that the Texas Democrats organization is made up of "moderate-progressive" Democrats and has no connection with a group called Texas Moderate-Conservative Democrats who met recently in Dallas.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I am a widower, 68, who is managing — just — to get by on Social Security and a small pension from an employer for whom I worked 27 years. Other than a few thousand in savings my only "investment" is a long-term insurance policy which has a cash surrender value of about $12,500. My family consists of two sons, both married and doing well. I'd like to leave something for the grandchildren, but could use more income now.

A. Seems to me you have at least three courses open to you — starting with the premise that although life insurance is a "must" when you have someone to protect, it should be treated the same as any other asset when one's insurance requirements change or no longer exist. Translation: that $12,500 must now be put to work for you.

If you cash it in, $12,500 today can bring in about $1,000 a year from highly quality corporate or from U.S. Treasury bonds.

At the same time, you would halt the outgo of premiums. Now your net budget improvement would be more than $1,000 a year.

If you switch the funds into a lifetime annuity you could get, at your age, somewhere around $100 a month. (This would leave no estate for the grandchildren.) Or you could accept a bit less in monthly benefits via a "refund" type annuity which would leave in your estate any portion of the $12,500 you did not collect in benefits in your lifetime.

There is no way anyone but yourself can decide whether to take the highest annuity payout and leave no estate; or a slightly smaller payout with the chance of leaving the grandchildren whatever you don't collect; or to preserve the entire $12,500 for your heirs by putting the money into Treasuries or top quality corporate bonds. But it is a cinch you should do something currently productive with this investment that no longer is needed for the purpose it was purchased.

By all means, talk this over with your insurance advisor. He may have other ideas. But keep in mind that you want income — now — from the money accumulated in this policy and relief from dipping into your modest income in order to pay premiums. You do have alternatives.

• • •

Q. I am a retired woman of 56, alone, with $20,000 in savings and $20,000 in E bonds. should I move the savings into preferred stocks? I certainly could use more income. I don't have to leave an estate.

A. Part of your savings could be earing up to 7 3/4 percent from time deposits or even a bit more from good quality preferreds.

What I don't understand is asking about the savings, but skipping over any discussion of that $20,000 in E bonds. If you could use extra $1,200 (or more) a year, how about putting those to work for you by cashing in 6 percent of them a year, or by switching all to H bonds, or by cashing in the entire amount (income tax bracket permitting) and putting the proceeds into current yield securities — bonds, preferreds and commons?

As to leving an estate: Right now, and for the next 10, 20, 30 . . . (?) years yo are your own "heiress." So there's no point in talking "no estate" until you are old enough to get a good income from a lifetime annuity which would leave no estate.

• • •

Q. I want to switch E to H bonds. Must I report the change to the government?

A. Report it? Only the government can make the switch. You lent money to the government via E bond purchases. You now want to change the loan to H bonds (in order to receive current income). You can hardly make that change without the borrower (the government) knowing it.

What you probably meant to ask was: do yo now have to pay income taxes on the interest earned by the Es? Ans. — No. You may elect to have that tax liability transferred over to the Hs and pay it when (and if) you redeem the Hs.

Michigan Legislator Urges Separation

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan legislator, saying "the people downstate want to get rid of us and we want to leave," has drafted a bill that would allow the state's Upper Peninsula to become a state.

State Rep. Dominic Jacobetti's measure would allow citizens of the Upper Peninsula to decide in a referendum whether the region should form a separate state — an action that Jacobetti predicts "is going to happen. I'm serious about this."

Mart Plagued By Inflation

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest government figures on consumer prices have once again put inflation high on the list of the worries confronting the stock market.

The Labor Department reported at the opening of trading last Monday that the consumer price index rose at an 8.4 percent annual rate in January, based on the old method of calculating the index.

Under two new methods of measurement, the department calculated that consumer prices climbed at a 9.6 percent annual pace.

Commissioner Julius Shiskin of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said severe winter weather and other special factors contributed to the increase, which was the sharpest in nine months.

But even considering those unusual influences, Shiskin said the figures were "a cause for concern."

Stock market investors apparently felt the same way. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 7.89 points on Monday and another 6.23 on Tuesday, reaching a three-year low of 742.12.

German Nightclub Crowds Reject Comeback Bid Of Actress

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Bosomy Swedish actress Anita Ekberg broke off a comeback bid after three nights in a Munich nightclub, the management said Friday. She had been ridiculed by the German press.

Miss Ekberg, who achieved fame as the shapely symbol of Roman high life in the 1959 film "La Dolce Vita," had put together a song and dance routine for Munich's Moulin Rouge nightclub, which also features striptease.

The 46-year-old entertainer's contract reportedly called for $4,000 an appearance, and she was booked for five nights beginning last Monday.

A nightclub spokesman said she decided to quit after Wednesday's appearance. "It was the change of climate. Miss Ekberg is hoarse. We will forgo the last two performances and they won't be made up," he said.

German newspapers had panned her three performances, in which she sang old standards in English and did a simple dance routine.

Olivia Newton-John Seen As 'New Doris Day' For Movies

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Not since Doris Day has Hollywood produced a wholesome, apple pie-type singing movie star complete with upturned nose, blonde hair, freckles, squeaky-clean image and the fragrance of fresh laundry soap.

That particular ray-of-sunshine girl disappeared with the advent of the movie rating system, screen nudity and blue dialogue.

But that delectable all-American girl may resurface when the new movie, "Grease," is released this summer.

Only she won't be an American. She's an Australian named Olivia Newton-John, the recording star who makes her acting debut in "Grease" with current teen-age rage and Oscar nominee John Travolta.

Olivia is an established vocalist who has made a fortune in four years with eight albums. All were certified gold hits, selling a half-million copies. Four were certified platinum hits, selling at least a million copies.

A native of England and reared in Australia, Olivia is bent on making the transition from vocalist to actress. But the odds are heavily weighted against her if the past is any means of measure.

Only Barbra Streisand and Diana Ross among genuine superstar vocalists have managed to become movie stars in the past 20 years. Before them Doris Day was the exception.

Scores of top-flight women singers from Peggy Lee through Rosemary Clooney and Dinah Shore failed to become outright film stars. Judy Garland was a movie star before she became a recording star.

Helen Reddy made her movie debut this year in "Pete's Dragon," a Disney film. Bette Midler, a superstar in concert, is not the best bet to become a motion picture luminary.

She says, "Turning actress was a departure for me in a way, but 'Grease' is a musical so my appearance in it is also an extension.

"I'd been offered movies in the past but I couldn't find a role in a straight drama that suited me. Nor were musicals being made in the past three or four years for anyone except Streisand and Liza Minnelli.

"I saw 'Grease' on stage in London seven years ago and enjoyed it very much. When the lead role was offered me I took it happily because I knew a singing role wouldn't be too much of a jolt for me or the audience."

Olivia is a refreshing, guileless woman who looks people straight in the eye. And as many Australians do, she answers questions directly and in plain language.

Language, not so incidentally, is the big-eyed beauty's principal problem.

She speaks an Aussie argot with an accent that would curl the hair of a Mayfair Englishman and set an elocutionist screaming for mercy. Her accent is also charming.

"I was supposed to play an American girl in 'Grease'," Olivia said. "But they changed her to Australian because of my accent.

"I was perfectly willing to learn my dialogue in American accents. I could have done it because there's no trace of Australian accent when I sing. Even when I lived in Australia, I sang American. Everybody does.

"Making movies interests me a great deal. It's time I branched out. I'm 29 and getting on, you know."

Olivia plays an 18-year-old in "Grease." She looks at least a decade younger than she is, but that's not to say she is a wide-eyed innocent.

She has "been with" her companion-manager Lee Kramer for five years despite rumors that have her romancing other men, including Travolta whom Olivia describes as a dear and platonic friend.

For the past three years Olivia has lived on a four-acre ranch in the hills above Malibu where she keeps nine horses (five of her own), four dogs and two cats. She rides horseback almost every day.

Although she is an American resident, Olivia says she is a British subject and an Australian domicile. The latter designation she finds somewhat confusing.

She is a fast friend of fellow Aussie Helen Reddy who encouraged Olivia to move to Los Angeles. She has many friends among Australians living in the area.

"The recording field gave me the opportunity to become successful and well known," Olivia said. "And now it seems to be opening up a film career.

"I had a ball doing 'Grease.' Everyone in it was young and enthusiastic. Now I'm dying to do another picture. But this time without music because it's something I've never done before.

"Singing on stage is fine but it is too easy to become complacent doing the same thing year after year. Complacency can kill incentive. I'm a little bit lazy and acting helps me dig into myself to discover things I didn't before.

"Me become another Doris Day? I'd love it. I used to see all her films."

Casino License Plan Wins Approval In New Jersey

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — State agencies have agreed on a plan to issue temporary casino licenses in Atlantic City to keep ahead of other East Coast states considering legalizing gambling.

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne's office announced Friday that the state Casino Control Commission and the Division of Gaming Enforcement agreed in principle on proposed legislation that would allow the temporary licenses. Legislation to permit the temporary licenses while background checks are made is expected soon.

RHYMING NAME

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The student who acted as the chairman of the recent University of Toledo homecoming has a name that rhymes. She's Mary Terri Karry, who in her home town of Cleveland, lives on Londonderry (street).

UP IN CENTRAL PARK — Young Quinn Cummings, who has been nominated for an Academy Award, says hello to a couple of native New Yorkers Wednesday in the City's Central Park. The actress was promoting her film "The Goodbye Girl," in which her role earned the nomination as best supporting actress. (AP Laserphoto)

Searchers Discover Raft Rider's Body

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — One raft rider was drowned and two others were missing after their raft overturned during a midnight trip down the swiftly-flowing waters of the San Gabriel River, authorities said early today.

Los Angeles County Sheriff's deputies reported that the body of a woman wearing a lifejacket was pulled from the river about an hour after a man had been rescued from the normally dry riverbed in Norwalk.

The identities of the dead woman and the two missing men were not released.

Secrecy Sought For Natural Display Areas In U.S. Parks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government should keep secret the location of archeological artifacts and even some natural features to protect them from harm by the public, Congress was told Friday.

T. Destry Jarvis, administrative assistant for parks and conservation for the National Parks and Conservation Association, told two Senate subcommittees that people often exploit or destroy unique or fragile areas or objects once their location and nature are publicly known.

He said the Rich Hole in the George Washington National Forest in Virginia — an area of ancient stunted trees, pure springs and lush ferns — "has become littered with refuse and torn up by the tracks of dirt bikes" since signs about it were erected along a nearby highway.

Surgical Look-Alike Planning Elvis Tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Dennis Wise, the 24-year-old fan who underwent surgery to look more like singer Elvis Presley, is making plans for a tour to raise funds for a museum he wants to fill with Elvis memorabilia.

Wise, of Ocala, Fla., still wearing sunglasses to conceal lingering effects of the facial surgery, made his first post-operative public appearance here on a television show.

In his brief visit here, Wise created competition for Rick Saucedo, starring as Presley in "Elvis the Legend Lives," now in its fifth week on Broadway.

The live performance at the Palace Theater is drawing near-capacity attendance. The show is to go on road tour in May to Los Angeles, Atlantic City, Chicago and Detroit, according to Larry Marshad, the producer.

Foreign Presents Decision Due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

Justice Department lawyers are expected to rule shortly on whether Tricia Nixon Cox can keep the wedding gifts she received from foreign heads of state.

There is some question of whether under the law, the gifts from foreign leaders to a member of the President's family belong to the government.

Former President Richard Nixon's lawyers say the gifts belong to Tricia and her husband Edward Cox because they represented an independent household after their White House marriage on June 12, 1971.

If the government lawyers decide Tricia must turn over the gifts which are in private storage, Lynda Bird Johnson Robb, daughter of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, also will be asked to relinquish her wedding gifts from heads of state.

Neither presidential daughter is happy to have to hand over the presents that came to them through official quarters, but sources say Lynda Bird has the additional question of whether official gifts should have been accepted because her husband, Charles S. Robb was a Marine officer at the time of her marriage in the White House.

President Carter, who is a classical music buff and has great recordings for a background during his early morning hours in his studies, has hosted two outstanding cultural evenings at the White House in less than a week.

Horowitz, at 74, brought along his own Steinway and put on a performance that was electrifying.

A few days later, the President and Mrs. Carter invited the nation's governors and their wives to a gala with Metropolitan Opera Stars Beverly Sills and Alan Titus singing the familiar songs from "The Merry Widow." For Carter it was another irresistible evening topped off when Miss Sills led the President to the dance floor to waltz with her.

White House police say the new stronger iron gates around the White House compound have not detracted from the attempts by strangers to get into the grounds. But at the price of ramming cars into gates' there have been no successful intrusions.

One woman scaled the fence barefoot and in her nightgown and robe last week before she was stopped. She came back a week later in her Ford Galaxie and rammed the Southwest gate, doing considerable damage to her car in the process.

A glowing Mamie Eisenhower, wearing a long gown in a lilac shade showed up at a banquet for two top Secret Service Agency officials who are retiring — Thomas J. Kelley, who headed the office of Protective Operations and Assistant Director Burrill A. Peterson.

"She's a member of the femily," said one veteran agent. Mrs. Eisenhower has had Secret Service protection since 1953 when her late husband, Dwight D. Eisenhower became president.

She insisted to friends she is happy at the Gettysburg, Pa. despite reports she has applied for admission to an Army Distaff home here. Mrs. Eisenhower attended the groundbreaking for the home in Washington and at the time said she would someday like to retire there.

Her grandson, David Eisenhower who is married to Julie Nixon, is writing a book on his grandfather and living in Capistrano Beach, Calif. near the Nixons at San Clemente.

President and Mrs. Carter believe in paying back their political debts with White House hospitality. They have already given two parties for early primary supporters — from New Hampshire and Iowa. The next reception — and most of them turn out to be old home week for the Carters and their friends — will be in honor of backers from Florida.

Boston Globe correspondent Curtis Wilkie, taking note of the politically focused social events, asked press secretary Jody Powell if a similar party would be hosted for people from Massachusetts. Powell only smiled. Massachusetts went for Sen. Henry J. Jackson, D-Wash. in the primaries.

Detroit Woman Files Million Dollar Suit

DETROIT (AP) — A 21-year-old Detroit woman has filed a $1 million libel suit charging CBS incorrectly portrayed her as a drug dealer in a "60 Minutes" television segment last October.

Patricia S. Joseph claims the program showed film of her and identified her by name during a feature dealing with drugs. The film allegedly was made following Miss Joseph's arrest on drug charges in northern Michigan last July.

Miss Joseph's attorney, Jerome E. Burns, said, however, the drug charges were dropped within a week of her arrest.

Taylor Offers Hints For His Longevity

has been to be of service to other people," he said.

He works about two and a half to three hours a day, talking to the patients, getting them anything they want and listening to their problems.

"During the first hour I take the menus to the patients — that gives me a chance to go in the room. I always find something to compliment people on, and sometimes they'll start talking...and I'll stay and listen."

"If they don't want to talk I'll go and leave my blessing."

"During the next hour I'll take the drinks in, so I get to see the patients twice."

He started working when he was 13, in 1899. He worked for a sugar company in Utah until he became a superintendent after 25 years servce; since that was the job he was aiming for, he decided to leave.

He had a short stint with a company owned by "Wrigley the gum man" which didn't work out, and one day he quit, put his family in the automobile, and headed for California.

A few days after he arrived in Los Angeles, he found a job as a maintenance engineer for U.S. Steel, and worked there 35 years.

Back in Utah he married "a very well-educated woman. I never did have any schooling; I took my education from people like you, and you and you," he said, pointing out each person in the room. "I was a numbskull, but she taught me a lot of things," he said with that grin.

"Do you remember when you and your wife got married?" "Oh, but I do," he said. "It was in May, 1906.

"I lived with the same woman for 66 years. Her name was Lucille — Lou is all she was known by."

He and Lou had five girls and three boys — "like my father, he had five girls and three boys, too" — and he has 38 grandchildren, 46 great-grandchildren, four more great-granchildren on the way and a great-great-grandchild due this summer. The grin loomed ever larger, filling the room with his happiness.

"You need to love people to find happiness, even love your enemies," he said. "You might become friends — you never can tell."

The people in the hospital say he has a verse for every occasion, a story or anecdote or a willing hear for those needy.

He's the only man working as an auxiliary; how does he feel about working with all those young women?

"Oh, they're just lovely," he said. "You should have seen the cake they gave me for my birthday."

Lucille died about six years ago, and now he lives in Lubbock with another Lucille — his daughter.

He attributes part of his longevity to not using tobacco, drinks — "I'm talking about hard liquor" — and bad language.

He also believes in working past retirement. "You need to keep going to keep your health." When he retired 20 years ago, he was 72 and still climbing ladders and working on roofs, he said.

About growing older, he said: "You can't get away from it. The voice is yet young, but the rest is deteriorating. I'm aging with the years," he said, adding he was having "a lot of fun living."

"I like the company; I'm having a lot of joy doing the things I like to do."

Aircraft Blamed For Booms

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strange atmospheric effect upon sonic booms caused by supersonic military aircraft produced most of the mysterious booming sounds heard over the East Coast this winter, the Defense Department said Friday.

The booms that have baffled coastal residents since December coincided in every case with supersonic training flights in designated offshore areas, said a report compiled by the Naval Research Laboratory.

The report discounted other explanations, such as gas bubbles from undersea garbage, unidentified flying objects, secret government research, meteorites and gas escaping from the earth's crust.

The booms, heard from New England to South Carolina, caused such concern that the White House ordered a Defense Department investigation.

"We are satisfied that each and every event could be accounted for by aircraft flying supersonically," Dr. Alan Vernon, director of the Navy laboratory, told a Pentagon briefing. "We see no reason to evoke alternative explanations."

The two-month Navy study supported an explanation offered by National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientists, who said the baffling noises resulted from sonic booms even though aircraft were often not in the vicinity of the noises.

The Navy report concluded that the sonic booms traveled farther than normal because certain wind and temperature conditions deflected them back to earth.

Supersonic aircraft normally produce a trailing sonic boom that travels downward in a path 15 to 30 miles wide as well as one that goes upward and usually dissipates in the upper atmosphere.

The report said that under special conditions, warmer air above 30,000 feet bounces the upward shock back to the ground, striking up to 200 miles ahead of the aircraft that produced it.

Vernon said his group studied 183 booming events, including many not reported by the public, recorded from Nov. 1, 1976, to Jan. 12.

Pentagon officials said all aircraft involved were following existing regulations. However, they added that corrective action is being taken to minimize future occurrences.

Vernon said much of this distorted boom phenomenon could be avoided by better briefings for pilots and providing alternative flying routes during certain weather conditions.

The sonic nature of the booms and their timing were the first clues allowing scientists to eliminate other possible explanations, Vernon said.

"The events never or rarely occurred on Saturday, Sunday, or legal holidays," he noted. "Few were observed before 7 in the morning and there was a peak of activity at about 11 a.m. and again at 3 p.m. and none occurred later than 7 at night.

"If this was a completely natural phenomenon, one would have to conclude that God works civil servants' hours and not at night or weekends."

Vernon said the Concorde supersonic airliner was eliminated as a source of the booms because its flight schedule did not correspond with the mysterious noises.

Arbitration Panel Ruling Settles Oil Tanker Fight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After 131 days of hearings spread over 11 months, an arbitration panel has ordered Standard Oil of California to pay $78.5 million to FMC Corp. over an oil tanker dispute.

In the settlement announced Thursday, Socal will have to pay FMC $22.5 million more for three of five tankers it had ordered in 1972. The original contract called for Standard Oil to pay $48 million for the three tankers. But FMC raised the price to $56 million in 1975, and then to an even higher figure, which the oil company disputed.

Spellers Continue Toward Bee Finals

By MONA HARVEY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Final competition to determine school spelling bee champions who will participate in the Lubbock County Bee March 11 continues in a flurry of activity.

Lubbock Christian Middle School named seventh-grader Scott Baldwin, son of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Baldwin of Route 2, Lubbock, as the winner. He defeated eighth-grader Brenda Adair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truitt Adair of 5317 30th St., who is the alternate.

Brenda misspelled "alacrity" enabling Scott to take the title with "albeit." The two were among eight classroom winners who competed 20 minutes.

Chris Hill, son of Dr. and Mrs. G.L. Hill of 3716 69th St., will represent Lubbock Christian Elementary. The sixth-grader's winning words were "aslant" and "asleep."

Alternate Mark Maddox, also a sixth-grader, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Maddox of 5405 21st St.

Seventh-grader Trina Heinrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lee Heinrich of Slaton, is the Cooper Junior High top speller. Her last challenger of eight students in the bee was eighth-grade student Gregory Perez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Perez of Slaton.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jackson of Lubbock. Her alternate is Leslie Kennedy, a sixth-grader and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Kennedy of Lubbock.

Sue Mote directed both Cooper bees.

Tamma Dunaway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dunaway of 2401 39th St., is the runner-up for the bee which Carol Sessums directed. Tamma is in the eighth grade.

Debra Garcia, an eighth-grade student, cinched the victory at Matthews Junior High where 30 students competed. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Garcia of 3202 Harvard will participate in the county bee.

Seventh-grader Bobby Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Soto of 2415 Auburn St., was named alternate. The deciding words were "insolvent" and "inspector."

Deneen Jones, sixth-grade daughter of Mrs. Cindy Mojica of 105 Ave. M, will represent Guadalupe Elementary. Her neighbor, Eleana Aguilar, fifth-grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcelo Aguilar of 113 Ave. M, was named runner-up. Gale Swann directed the Guadalupe bee.

Wayland Honors Program Seeks 'Good' Students

C/ NEWS
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Saturday, March 4, 1978

Wayland in September will begin a new "honors program" aimed at high school graduates with outstanding ability and records of high achievement.

The program is a bachelor of arts or bachelor of science degree plan designed to provide students with a broad, traditional liberal arts and natural sciences education.

Stimulation of the mind, not vocational training, is the guiding force. "Eventually, there will be lawyers and businessmen coming out of this — but at this stage, we are aiming at the maximum intellectual development of the individual," said honors curriculum chairman Dr. Donn Taylor.

Many college pupils find that their freshman, and sometimes their sophomore, years are spent repeating courses they have had several times before, in elementary, junior high and high school.

"There is some justification for that, I'm sad to say — that is, for college to do in survey courses what in my opinion should have been done at the public school level," honors professor Dr. Don Hofsommer said.

An overview class in English or American history, that in reality may be a catch-up class, can be a good thing for the average-or-less pupil. But it is a bore to the outstanding one.

So, even at the freshman level, Wayland's honors program will feature classes of "depth rather than breadth, enriched courses as opposed to merely survey classes," organizers said.

For Hofsommer's history students, that could mean "taking a deep look into themes in American history — wars in the American experience, their causes and effects, or the depressions, their causes and effects, for instance," the history department chairman said.

Biology teacher Dr. J. Hoyt Bowers echoed the "postholing" concept — going deep into a few things, rather than shallowly into many.

He will be assuming an a honors science student has a background of one or two years biology, chemistry and perhaps mini-courses in high school. "They will be pretty well introduced to many of the basic concepts . . . They don't want the same thing rehashed and poured out on the table.

"So, we might study the biology of populations, for instance. Not look at the individual so closely, but look at what difference all this makes to the population," Bowers said.

Bowers is a widely published specialist in West Texas and Plains animals. "Fifteen years ago, it looked like we were going to lose a dozen wild species in Texas. Now we're having problems with some doing well — coyotes, deer."

The reason for this turn-about could be the basis for a "population" study, he explained.

Instead of basic freshman English, the honors pupil will take advanced expository writing.

"This kind of student is going to be not only literate, but fairly well versed in rhetoric when he comes here. We hope to turn out, right at the first, a really polished writer," Taylor said.

Other features of the honors program will include:

— Most classes being taught by Ph.D. holders — in opposition to many colleges where lower-level courses are taught mostly by graduate students.

— Highly structured freshman and sophomore schedules, with more required courses than under other degree plans, but extremely flexible junior and senior years, with tutorial and individual research courses stressed then.

— Students grouped with other pupils of like ability for "group dynamics." Such grouping means not only a "challenge from the course, but also from others in it," Taylor said.

— Pupils' records, both transcripts and diplomas, clearly indicating an honors curriculum has been completed, assisting graduate school entry.

"All of this will be available within a Christian environment. This is one of the things that traditionally brings students to our school," Taylor said.

He said a variety of scholarship and grant programs are available.

The honors program is an out-growth of a self-evaluation study that recently was conducted at all Southern Baptist colleges and universities.

The search for students for the program now is underway.

Letters about it are going out to Baptist church ministers. "The best source we have in recruitment is really the local pastor," said Wayland academic affairs Vice President Dr. Kyle Perrin.

Decals Cause Firings

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) — About 10 electrical workers at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation have been fired for putting American flag decals on their hardhats, but the incident has prompted their company to put flags on all its hats.

That doesn't mean the men will get their jobs back, the company says.

Ralph Koontz, 45, construction superintendent for Fishback Lord Electric Co., which hired the workers for a sub-contracted job on the nuclear site, said the men were fired Monday.

Koontz said putting emblems on hats violates a company policy against unauthorized stickers and affixtures. Refusing the order to remove them was insubordination and grounds for dismissal, Koontz said Friday.

The company policy "simply states that we will deem what goes on our safety equipment," Koontz said. "They put on some emblems, American flags. They were fired for insubordination to company policy."

Darwin Myers, 46, of Saugas, Mass., one of the fired men, said his dismissal was an astounding surprise.

When he was ordered to remove the flag symbol, "I just couldn't do it," Myers said. "It is common in a lot of construction jobs to wear the decal. A lot of us take it seriously. We believe in what the flag represents."

"If I go to work there will be a flag in my hat," Myers said.

Koontz, who has supervised construction crews all over the United States, said that he has never encountered a personnel problem like this and that the company "does not have any disagreement with patriotism in any way, shape or form."

The firm adopted the policy, he said, "because the hats are a thing of safety and there are individuals who deface them in one way or another. Because we are responsible for safety, we control how they are used."

After the flag flap, the firm conferred with representatives of Local 112 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and agreed to put flag emblems on all helmets. The emblems, Koontz said, will be of "legible" size and comparable to what the fired men put on.

"Deliveries being what they are, the flags should be on in a few weeks," Koontz said.

Asked whether the fired men will be reinstated, Koontz said work is progressing on schedule without them. "I will deal with that problem when I get to it and right now I have nothing to get to," he said.

AT FENNER'S PLACE

MOTOR TREND MAGAZINE

PLYMOUTH HORIZON

EXCEPTIONAL front and rear seat head and leg room for four passengers. 4 doors plus hatchback to luggage compartment. Full bucket seats in front are standard, individually adjustable.

New confidence. New comfort. A totally new kind of car for America. A car that will take you where you want to go. No wonder Motor Trend Magazine named the new Plymouth Horizon the Car of the Year. Relax. Plymouth Horizon can handle it.

ECONOMY . . . 38 MPG HWY 25 MPG CITY 29 COMBINED

Fuel economy? You bet. Based on EPA estimates, Horizon equipped with manual transmission, is rated at 38 mpg, highway, 25 mpg, city. Your actual mileage may differ, depending on how and where you drive, the condition of your car and its optional equipment.

CHRYSLER CORDOBA 'S' $5550.

This Cordoba 'S' price is the manufacturer's base sticker price excluding taxes and destination charges. At $5550 it's a great value you shouldn't overlook. Redesigned and refashioned to be the ultimate personal car...from Chrysler.

CHRYSLER LeBARON 'S' $4864.

At a base price of $4864, this new Chrysler LeBaron 'S' 2 door with all its standard equipment, true value among luxury cars. (Price does not include taxes and destination charges.) Don't settle for anything less.

Student Testimony Heard

Four Abernathy students' testimony Friday on American farmers' problems was "very well accepted" by the Senate Agriculture, Forestry and Nutrition Committee, said Jerry Vineyard, one of the students.

The pupils testified in conjunction with American Agriculture Movement protest of low farm prices.

The committee chairman "commented on how well we presented ourselves. He said the committee could assure us they were trying to find a solution to the problem so that our future would not be in danger," Vineyard said.

He said he and his companions — David Hunt, Steve Presley and Gary McKenzie — felt their time presenting the farmers' case had been "well spent."

The four young men, all 18, are sons of farmers in the Abernathy area, and plan to farm once out of high school.

Their trip to Washington was paid for by Abernathy residents. Their testimony was to focus on the dangers facing the United States if the family farmer fails.

U.S. Records Trade Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States imported 24 percent more than it sold abroad in January, registering the nation's largest trade deficit in three months, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The $2.38 billion deficit in January was about equal to the average monthly deficit in 1977. Last year the trade imbalance was a record $26.6 billion.

A trade deficit means more dollars are leaving the country to pay for foreign goods than the United States is earning from sale of its goods abroad. It can lead to unemployment and inflation and has been blamed by some economists for interfering with the value of the dollar.

Administration officials say the deficit should be smaller this year because oil imports should level off and other countries' economies should be strong enough to buy more U.S. products.

In January, exports declined from $11 billion to $10 billion, while imports dropped from $13.1 billion to $12.4 billion.

Courtenay Slater, chief Commerce Department economist, said the January deficit would have been smaller if it were not for the lingering effects of the longshoremen's strike last fall.

She said shipments, delayed by the October-November strike, arrived in larger amounts than usual in January.

The January deficit of $2.38 billion was the largest since a record $3.62 billion deficit in October, and followed deficits of $2.35 billion in November and $2.12 billion in December.

Almost all exports and imports declined for the month, but oil imports rose 4 percent from $3.1 billion to $3.2 billion.

Exports showing big declines were chemicals, machinery and transporation equipment, all dropping more than 10 percent.

The department did not have a breakdown by most categories because the snowstorm at the data-gathering center in Jeffersonville, Ind., last month kept statistical workers away from work for several days.

The department also began changing the way it gathers trade figures to match worldwide standards, officials said. The new system changed the 1977 deficit from $26.7 billion to $26.6 billion.

Jet Crash Kills Pilot

NEWBURY PARK, Calif. (AP) — The pilot of an aging Air Force F-105G Thunderchief was killed when the jet slammed into a hillside 10 miles from Port Hueneme on a routine instrument training flight, authorities said.

The plane's electronics warfare officer, First Lt. William A. Stone, 29, of Huntington, W. Va., was reported in satisfactory condition from multiple injuries he suffered when parachuting to safety Thursday.

Ventura County Fire Dispatcher Robyn Sweeting said the body of the pilot, Capt. Charles T. Fulop, 31, of Apple Valley, was found in his seat, which apparently failed to eject from the aircraft whose instruments may have gone dead in rainy and windy weather.

Stone, who suffered injuries to his neck and both arms, was taken by helicopter to Los Robles Hospital in Thousand Oaks and then transferred to Port Hueneme Naval Hospital.

Air Force Capt. Sally Davidson said the 14-year-old jet, assigned to the 561st Tactical Fighter Squadron stationed at George Air Force Base near Victorville, was attempting to make an emergency landing at Point Mugu Naval Air Station, about 10 miles from the crash site.

Nuclear Hazards Studied By Disease Control Team

KITTERY, Maine (AP) — A four-member team from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta is to arrive at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard on Monday to begin a study of possible radiation hazards to employees working with nuclear materials.

Capt. William McDonough, shipyard commander, said Friday the team will be given access to all records available at the shipyard and full cooperation from Navy authorities. The study follows reports of higher-than-normal cancer death rates of employees in the early stages of nuclear submarine work at the shipyard.

Borrowers May Pay For More Than Loan: Credit Insurance

You may have gotten — and paid for — more than you expected the last time you borrowed money or bought something on time.

The "extra" in most loan contracts is credit insurance, designed to make sure that the creditor gets his money even if the borrower dies or is disabled, and to prevent families from being saddled with heavy debts after a death or illness.

You probably are familiar with credit insurance if you have ever taken out a mortgage; many lenders require that you purchase the protection. You may not realize, however, that credit insurance also is added to the package for many smaller loans.

When this type of insurance was introduced in the early 1900s, creditors generally absorbed the cost themselves. They were willing to finance the insurance in exchange for having guaranteed repayment of loans. Now, however, most creditors and lenders pass the cost on to consumers.

You pay the premium — usually in a lump sum amount at the time of the initial transaction — to the creditor, who is listed as the beneficiary on the policy. The creditor, in turn, pays the insurance agent. Finance charges generally are applied to the premium just as they are to the loan itself.

Consumers Union says that trade figures for the year 1975 showed that up to 95 percent of all people borrowing money from finance companies purchased credit life insurance.

Credit disability insurance, to keep up payments when a borrower is disabled, is less widespread, but sales are increasing rapidly.

Some consumer groups and government regulators are concerned that people often buy the insurance without realizing it and may be purchasing something they don't need.

"Because the monthly credit insurance premium charge added to most credit transactions . . . is relatively small and because most consumers usually sign the authorization for it when a salesperson tells them to without asking questions, many people who purchase the insurance are hardly aware of having done so," said a report by the Paul Douglas Consumer Research Center, which is the education and research arm of the Consumer Federation of America.

Costs can add up. The research center provided an example of the price of credit life and disability insurance on a typical $4,000 auto loan financed over three years. The life insurance premium works out to $120.47; the disability premiums would be $197.58; and the finance charges amount to $76.33. Total cost: $394.38.

To avoid buying something you don't want and to make sure you don't miss out on something you may need, you should learn the basics of credit insurance and how it works.

Most credit insurance policies today are decreasing-term rather than level-term. The amount of coverage decreases as time goes on and you have less of the debt to repay.

With a credit life policy, the borrower is insured for the entire amount of the loan outstanding. If the borrower dies, the benefits are paid directly to the creditor. Credit life policies differ from ordinary life insurance in that the amount of coverage is relatively small (except for mortgages); the policies are marketed through creditors rather than insurance agents; premiums do not vary according to the age of the insured; and there usually is no requirement for proof of insurability.

Credit disability insurance is a little more complicated; in most cases, it is available only as an addition to credit life. Creditors usually offer either "retroactive" or "elimination" plans. Both types have waiting periods — generally either 14 or 30 days — before the insurance takes effect. With retroactive policies, back payments are made once the initial waiting period has passed; with elimination policies, there are no back payments.

Credit insurance can be a valuable protection for your family. Financial experts say, however, that you should not buy the insurance just because it is listed on the credit application form. Consider first whether existing insurance and other assets are adequate to cover the debt and ask the creditor for the exact cost of the credit insurance.

Federal truth-in-lending laws require lenders to disclose all direct and indirect costs of a credit agreement, but specific information on credit insurance may be omitted if purchase of the insurance is voluntary.

Bentsen Hits Farm Efficiency

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — The American farmer's efficency has contributed to dwindling purchasing power among the nation's growers, U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Friday.

"Sure we have agricultural problems. They're urgent, important problems," he told 350 persons, mostly businessmen, attending the 12th annual Texas Legislative Conference sponsored by the Texas Chamber of Commerce.

"But our agricultural problems stem from our ability to be able to produce far more than we can consume in our country," Bentsen said. "Our success means we have an oversupply of food."

Bentsen spoke at a noon luncheon following an earlier address by Lubbock's U. S. Rep. George Mahon, 77, who will end 44 years in Congress at the end of his current term.

Mahon, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, mentioned the current farmers problems in passing.

"They (the farmers) have a problem, a desperate problem. Some are threatened with fiscal disaster," the Lubbock resident said.

"We've got to tailor production to bring it more in demand with supply," he said following his speech.

Government restraint, followed by consumer restraint back home, is the real key to future progress, said Mahon, who Thursday was named Texan of the Year at the conference.

Excessive government demands are like cholesterol in the blood, Bentsen said, continuing the attack on government regulations.

"It's like fatty deposits which clog the system and cause terminal illness," he said. "We can't let our business freedom be stifled by the smothering embrace of government regulations."

Mahon also participated in a panel discussion of national issues. Others on the panel were James McIntyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget; Reps. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, Abraham Kazen, D-Texas; James McIntyre, director of the Office of Managment and Budget; W. L. Fisher, director of the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas at Austin; and Elspeth Rostow, dean of the LBJ School of Public Affairs at UT-Austin.

In a wide-ranging question-and-answer period, de la Garza said he thought it was unrealistic to expect farmers to achieve 100 percent parity.

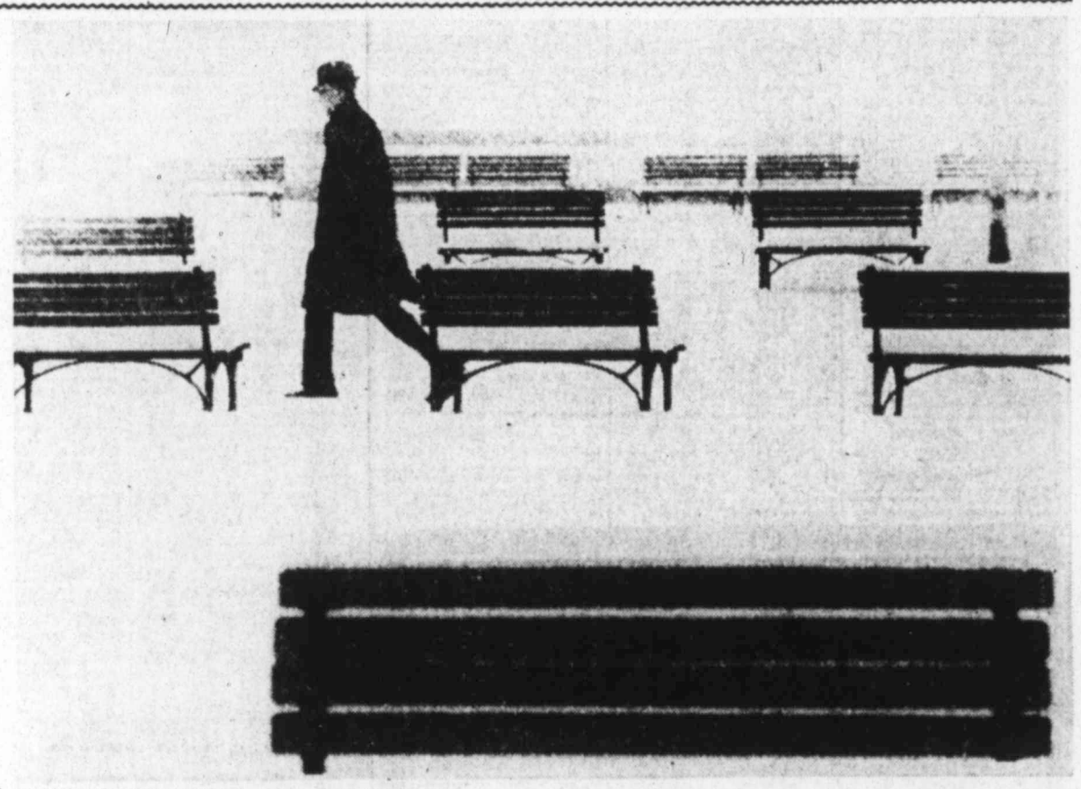

"We can't ignore the fact that increases to the farmer mean increases to the consumer," said the congressman whose district includes Hidalgo County, where farmers were arrested this week after skirmishes with police on a bridge.

Ex-Tech Head Honored At Anniversary Fete

Former Texas Tech University president Dossie M. Wiggins was honored at a reception Friday afternoon celebrating the 10th anniversary of the dedication of the Wiggins Complex at the university.

The reception, hosted by the student governments of Chitwood, Weymouth and Coleman residence halls and the Office of Residence Halls, allowed residents of the Wiggins Complex to meet the man for whom the complex is named. Faculty and staff members as well as regents who served during the tenure of Dr. Wiggins as president were present to honor him. Chitwood residents led tours of the high-rise halls for those who had not seen them.

Wiggins, who served as Tech's president from 1948 until 1952, is now a director of the Texas Commerce Bank of Lubbock, a member of the Board of Trustees at Hardin-Simmons University and a member of the Texas Tech Foundation Board.

Palestinians Fortify Lebanon Border Town

MAROUN EL RAS, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas were converting this desolate village beside the Israeli frontier into a stronghold Friday after driving out Christian Lebanese militiamen in a counter-attack.

Fighting between the right-wing Christians and an alliance of Palestinians and leftist Lebanese Moslems for control of border points has turned Maroun el Ras into a virtual ghost town.

A few residents still remaining said Christian militiamen drove into the town at dawn Thursday and took up positions on hilltops overlooking roads to three neighboring towns.

Witnesses told reporters the militiamen tried to appear to be members of United Nations truce supervision teams by driving commandeered U.N. vehicles and wearing blue and white helmets with the U.N. symbol.

Their account could not be confirmed by journalists who were escorted to the town by guerrillas of the Palestine Liberation Organization. The United Nations has about 100 military obsevers in Lebanon, with most stationed at posts near the Lebanese-Israeli border.

A PLO spokesman told reporters Moslem leftists, under a covering fire by Palestinian guerrillas, mounted a five-pronged attack Thursday and captured the town in hand-to-hand fighting.

Village residents said 15 Christian militiamen were killed and 28 wounded. "Our casualties amounted to two wounded," a leftist fighter said.

Some of the residents who remained behind during earlier battles packed their belongings and began leaving in trucks, tractors and cars, anticipating more bloodshed.

"You can be sure the Israelis will revenge this," a tobacco grower said. "We can't risk our lives staying here."

Israel has given support to the Christian militiamen, including artillery cover, but has denied Palestinian claims that its forces have fought beside the Christians. One Israeli goal is to prevent a resumption of raids into Israel by Palestinian guerrillas.

"The isolationists (rightists) were trying to wrench control of the strategic town after its residents had resisted involvement in any left-right conflicts," a guerrilla spokesman said.

Waving their rifles and submachine guns overhead, leftist Moslems climbed on a damaged half-track vehicle, making V for victory signs and yelling to photographers to "record this triumph."

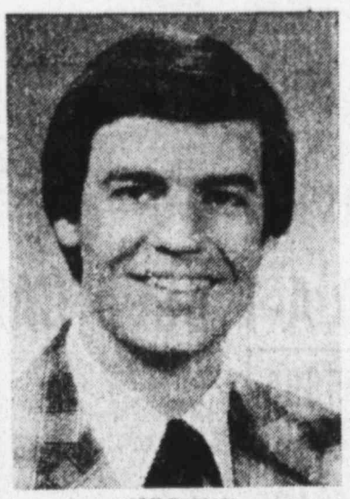

PLO officials said the Christian militiamen had left behind small quantities of Israeli-made ammunition and U.S.-made light weapons, one Sherman tank and two half-tracks.

One of them, 11-year-old Heider Bazzi who said he was an apprentice shoemaker, cradled a Soviet-made AK-47 rifle in his arms. "I was born with a gun at my side," he said.

JOE D. MAY

Joe May Promoted At Shallowater

Joe D. May has been elected banking officer of the First State Bank of Shallowater, according to board Chairman Raymond Barker.

May's duties will include general lending functions and his present duties as credit manager.

May, who came to the bank in Sepember, 1977, is a graduate of Lubbock's Monterey High School and has a degree in finance from Texas Tech.

Barker also announced that Mabry Brock, Harold Harriger, Jimmie Mason, Leroy Johnson and Kenneth Shropshire were re-elected to serve on the board of directors, along with Barker as chairman of the board.

Cougs, Rose Shock Hogs In Squeaker

HOUSTON (AP) — Senior guard Cecile Rose canned a 13-foot jump shot with three seconds on the clock Friday night to send unranked Houston to a shocking 70-69 victory over fourth-ranked Arkansas and earn the Cougars a finals berth in the Southwest Conference basketball tournament.

The Cougars, now 24-7, will play 12th-ranked Texas today at 8 p.m. for the right to advance to the NCAA Midwest Regionals in Tulsa, Okla.

Arkansas' Ron Brewer missed the front end of a one-and-one free-shot situation with eight seconds remaining to set the stage for Rose's bucket, which sent the majority of the Summit crowd of 15,330 into delirium.

It appeared a controversial ruling by referee Paul Galvan with 10 seconds remaining had sealed Houston's defeat. Galvan ruled that Charles Thompson had reached above the rim to tip in a follow shot with Arkansas leading 69-68.

The Razorbacks, now 28-3, held a 39-35 halftime lead, but came out ice cold and went three minutes before scoring a bucket in the second half, while Houston reeled off nine straight points.

Senior center Mike Schultz, playing the finest game in his career, scored 28 points, with 18 of them coming in the second half. The 6-9, 220-pound Cougar scored 10 consecutive points for Houston on one tear midway through the final half.

Sidney Moncrief scored 21 points to pace Arkansas, while Marvin Delph had 16 before he fouled out for the first time in two years and SWC Player of the Year Ron Brewer added 12.

Houston slapped a sticky full-court press on the Razorbacks and forced them into 16 turnovers in the game.

Schultz hit a short jumper with 2:37 to play and Houston took a 66-63 lead. However, the dormant Brewer came alive with two quick buckets and Houston led only 68-67 after a basket by Rose.

Cedric Fears was then tied up by Brewer, and Arkansas got the jump ball. Schultz fouled Reed and the freshman hit his two free throws to set the stage for the dramatic finale.

Rose scored 15 points and was the only other Cougar in double figures.

Monterey Wins 58-45 Over Lewisville Girls

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

ABILENE—Now don't get the idea that Monterey's girls are copycats, but their basketball habits resemble those of the boys team in one very worthwhile way—offensive patience.

When Lewisville nudged within 3 points (43-40) with six minutes to play, the top-seeded Hub City team started working the ball deliberately, just like Joe Michalka's boys have been known to do. From then on, all Monterey needed was to make its free shots and cruise to a 58-45 victory in the Class AAAA regional semifinals Friday night.

Monterey, now 22-7, advances to the finals in Abilene Christian's Moody Coliseum against El Paso Parkland today at 2 p.m. El Paso Parkland defeated Lee 59-55 in the other semifinal.

"We've been working on a more patient offense in the last three weeks, or since the second half of district," said a happy MHS coach Phil Hood afterwards. "There were only about four times in the game when we jacked the ball up when we shouldn't have.".

For most of the game, Monterey's biggest problem seemed its backcourt ballhandling. Rhonda Dunn, Jana Field, or Barbara Ragus would stretch beyond arm's length to snag a rebound only to throw the ball away or commit a violation.

Once these guards did advance the ball to the forecourt, Marilyn Beckner, Margaret Grennell and Sherri Davis handled the scoring duties successfully. Monterey hit 21 of 35 from the field for a cool 60 percent, while Lewisville blew several costly layups and went 16 of 56 from the floor for 28.6 percent.

Those figures reflected a big portion of the story.

"I think it could have been more lopsided if we hadn't had so many turnovers (31 for the game). I thought we showed a lot of poise down the stretch, though. Our offensive game has been like this all year. Margaret is a 46 percent shooter for the year and Marilyn is 44," the MHS coach said.

Miss Beckner, a sharpshooter from within 12 feet, canned 14 of 20 from the field for a 28-point game. Grennell and Miss Davis each sank seven of 11 foul shots and fired plenty of good feeds. Miss Grennell followed with 17 points, and Miss Davis 7.

The teams were tied for the fifth time in the at 22-all when the Beckner-Grennell duo returned from a brief rest with 2:41 left in the first half.

Bobbies, Slaton Set For Final In AA Regional

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

While the Bobcats are down in Austin competing for the Class AA boys' basketball crown today, their female counterparts, the Bobbies, were defeating Crane 53-50 in the Lubbock Coliseum during the opening round of the Region I tourney Friday.

Should the Bobbies get by Slaton during the championship game today at noon, then it's Austin or Bust.

Dimmitt coach Jimmy Hoyle said the fact the DHS boys will be meeting Whitehouse at 10 a.m. for the boys' AA crown should give the girls a little extra incentive.

"We should know by the time we start whether they (the DHS boys) won or not," Hoyle explained. "If they do that should really help us out (momentum wise)."

In other action Friday night, Shallowater pulled a major upset by knocking off Phillips 28-25 in a low-scoring affair, and Vega nipped Hawley 56-47. Shallowater and Vega will meet at 10:30 a.m. today in the Region I Class A finals.

Slaton, one of the state's top ranked AA fem teams, defeated Spearman 63-49 in the other Class AA matchup, setting the state for the showdown with Dimmitt.

For the better part of three quarters neither Dimmitt nor Crane could manage to hold more than a 5-point lead.

After Dimmitt's Norma Sandoval hit a 10-footer early in the fourth period to up the Bobbies' lead to 7, at 43-36, the Golden Cranes rolled up 6 unanswered points to cut the margin to 1.

With 2:13 remaining in the game, Crane's Katie Lewter hit a 12-foot jumper to give CHS a 1-point advantage (46-45).

Miss Sandoval, Dimmitt's leading scorer with 25 points, connected with 4 key points (a pair of free throws with 1:04 left and a 4-footer with 31 second remaining) to help hold off a late Crane rally.

A nice turnaround jumper by Blondie Lane of Crane had tied game 50-50 with less than minute remaining.

The win upped the Bobbies record to 27-8 and needless to say that suprised the youthful head coach.

"I would have never thought we'd win 20 games at the start of the year, much less 20 in a row (Dimmitt's current win streak)," Hoyle said. "But we've hustled hard this year and never gave up. That showed up tonight."

Hoyle said it has been so long now since the Bobbies have lost a game "I think we've just flat how."

Although Crane outhit Dimmitt from the floor 22-18, the game was decided at the free throw line where the Bobbies tossed in 17 shots to only six for Crane.

After falling behind 17-9 at the end of the first quarter, Dimmitt rallied back in the second quarter to nab a 1-point lead 28-27. During the second period, Dimmitt outscored Crance 19-10.

Leading Crane was Wanda Byrd with 25 points. Also hitting in double figures for the Golden Cranes was Lisa Grounds with 14.

Paced by Terri Stanton's 22 points, Shallowater suprised Phillips. During the final period, Shallowater hit only 4 points, but it was still enough to hold off Phillips.

Shallowater held a 24-19 third quarter lead.

Both teams hit 10 field goals each (Miss Stanton had eight of Shallowater's, Debra Rankin seven of Phillips'). But like the following game the tilt was won at the free throw line were Shallowater triumphed 8-5.

Miss Rankin topped Phillips with 16.

Lynn Webb poured in 26 points and Cynthia Robinson 25 in leading Slaton's triumph over Spearman. Chris Kennedy contributed 12 more to the Slaton total. Debbie Green had 22 for Spearman.

Dawn Harwell's 36 points powered Vega to its win over Hawley. Leading Hawley was Debbie Smith with 32.

Weather Hampers Area Slate

Long before the first gun was fired to start a race at the Lubbock Invitational Relays, a record was broken. But it was the kind of mark Lubbock high school Athletic Director Pete Ragus would like to forget.

For the first time in the history of the meet, it has been cancelled.

According to meet director Ragus, the Lubbock meet—set for a 10 a.m. start today at the Coronado track — will not be rescheduled because "there are other meets set for the rest of the season and it would be almost impossible to work ours back in."

Because of the inclement weather, other area track meets, as well as other sporting events, have also been either cancelled or postponed.

Along with the Lubbock Invitational, other track meets cancelled include the Top of Texas Relays at Pampa, the Idalou Relays, the XIT Relays at Dalhart, the Panhandle High School Relays, the Vernon Relays and the Andrews Relays.

Track was not the only sport hit hard by Mother Nature as Monterey's baseball clash against Odessa Permian set for today at Lowrey Field was also cancelled.

The Pecos and McCamey Relays are still set to start today at 10 a.m.

Flying Queens Smash Raiders, Gain Finals

SAN ANGELO (Special)—Wayland Baptist, the third-ranked team in the nation, rolled over Texas Tech 110-52 Friday night to move into the finals of the TAIAW State Women's Basketball Tournament.

Wayland, the top-seeded team in the tournament, will meet Texas for the state title at tonight at 8. The Longhorns, ranked 12th in the country and the tourney's second seed, defeated Stephen F. Austin 93-78 in Friday's other semifinal match.

Tech, which came into the tournament seeded fourth, will battle SFA for third place at 6 p.m.

Wayland, which had defeated Tech three times earlier this season, rolled to a 59-28 halftime lead and was never threatened.

Jill Rankin scored 21 points to lead the Flying Queens, who are 26-3. Marie Kocurek added 17, Cathy Harston 16 and Jerianne John and Valerie Goodwin 10 each.

The Raiders, 33-8, had advanced to the semifinals with an 81-72 win over Houston earlier Friday, their fourth victory over UH in five games this season.

Miss Payton led Tech with 24 points, while D'Lynn Brown added 22 and Rosemary Scott and Karla Schuette 12 apiece.

Houston, 23-12, was sparked by Pam

Lawman Snares Chain Match Win

During the main event wrestling match at Fair Park Coliseum Friday night, the Lawman defeated Brute in the Russian Chain Match. Since the Brute lost, he will be forced to leave Lubbock for 90 days.

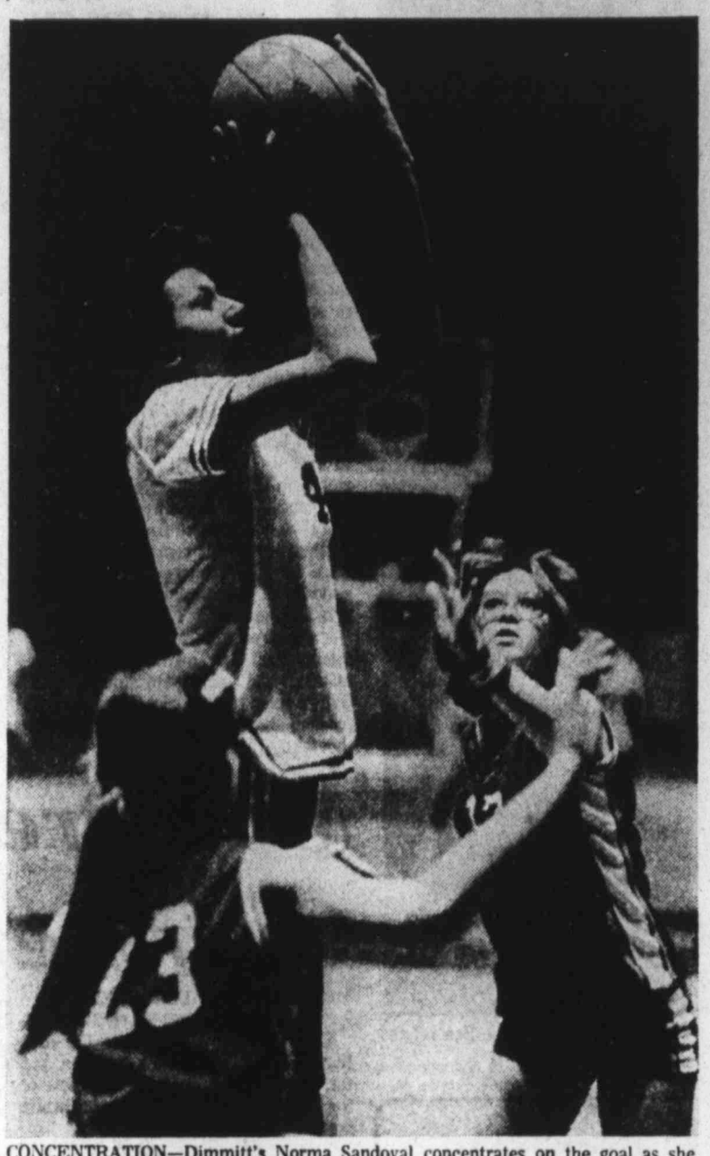

In other action, Roger Kirby and J.J. Dillon teammed up to defeat Terry Funk and Larry Lane; the Dikingo whipped Carlos Mata; Ricky Romero downed Don Kernolde; Dennis Stamp whipped Johnny Starr; and Rip Hawk and Alex Perez were both disqualified after fighting outside the ring.

Sherk Undergoes Surgery On Knee

CLEVELAND (AP) — Doctors in Los Angeles say they won't know until they operate on the right knee of Cleveland Browns tackle Jerry Sherk how bad the damage is.

Sherk was to undergo surgery today for repair of cartilage and ligament damage.

Sands, Nazareth Rip Class B Opponents

LEVELLAND (Special)— Sands outscored Anton 10-0 in the second overtime to to win 72-62 during the opening round of the Class B regionals here Friday.

Sands, along with Groom, Follett and defending state champion Nazareth will advance to the semifinals of the two-day event in the Texan Dome at South Plains College.

Follett will meet Nazareth at 9:30 a.m. and Sands tangles with Groom at 11 a.m. with the winners advancing to the finals at 7 tonight.

In Friday's other games, Nazareth's comeback just nipped Eola 60-59, Follett downed San Elizario 65-37, and Groom edged Jayton 57-55.

Cheryl Hartmaan, six-foot senior, hit a shot with five seconds remaining to lift the Swiftettes to a narrow win over Eola. Miss Hartman took one shot, missed, grabbed her rebound and put it back in for the winning shot.

Susan Martin's 41 points led Sands to its narrow win over Anton. Groom, led by Connie Crowell's 27 points, overcame a 34-32 third-quarter Jayton lead. Bridgette Hamilton's 28 points and Denalla Sartain's 25 paced Jayton's attack.

UH Upset Wipes Out Losses

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Coach Guy Lewis, recalling five one-point losses that almost derailed his team's playoff hopes, said all those games were wiped out Friday night by the Cougars' 70-69 upset of fourth-ranked Arkansas in the Southwest Conference basketball tournament semifinals.

"At last, a one point victory," Lewis said moments after Cecile Rose sank a 13-foot jumper with three seconds remaining to vault the Cougars into Saturday night's finals against 12th-ranked Texas.

"We've talked so much about all those one-point losses. But as far as I'm concerned, that's all wiped out now. The slate is even," said Lewis.

Rose got the game-winning shot seconds after Arkansas' Ron Brewer, normally an 86 percent free throw shooter, missed a free throw. Houston's Mike Schultz rebounded and the ball was whipped downcourt to Rose for the final shot.

"I was thinking about all those one-point losses," said Rose. "I feel sorry about Brewer, but he is human and anybody can miss. After losing five one-point games, it was time we won one.

"When I got the ball (Sidney) Moncrief was right in my face when I let go of the ball," he added.

"Of course I feel bad about missing the free throw," said Brewer, the SWC's Player of the Year. "I shot it too hard and it took a big bounce. Maybe if I'd shot a little softer..."

Brewer also blamed himself for the Razorbacks' being in the position of losing by one point. "It shouldn't have come down to one point," he said. "If we'd played our style, we would have won by 15 or 17 points. We were too cautious. In a way I blame myself because I didn't take the ball to the hoop more. I guess it's one of my poorest games."

Finals Of Schoolboy Tourney Set Today

AUSTIN (AP) — Houston Wheatley's full-court press forced Houston Cypress-Fairbanks into 35 turnovers Friday night as Wheatley squeezed into the Class AAAA schoolboy basketball finals with a 59-53 victory.

Wheatley gained the finals for the first time since 1971, when it lost to Cypress-Fairbanks, ending a string of three consecutive state basketball titles for Wheatley.

Wheatley will play San Antonio Fox Tech, a 76-67 winner over Abilene for the Class AAAA championship today.

Cypress-Fairbanks, which had already lost 10 games this season, took a 42-40 lead early in the fourth quarter, but the Wheatley press overwhelmed the Bobcats.

Antonio Melbeaux scored 12 for Wheatley, Carl Runnells had 11 and Theodore Harris and Noland Greenleaf each had 10 for Wheatley. Allen Howard had 16 points and 14 rebounds for Cypress-Fairbanks.

In the other semifinal Friday, Jay Shakir's 23 points spurred San Antonio Fox Tech to its victory despite the overall brilliance of Abilene's David Little.

The 6-6 Little collected 22 points for Abilene and raced all over the court, picking off errant Tech passes and leading a surge that narrowed an 11-point Tech lead to three at 64-61.

Tech never trailed in the second half, although a steal by Little—which he converted into a basket—tied the game at 47 midway through the third period.

Coppell made only three free throws, but a one-point swisher by Scott Austin with four seconds left in overtime knocked defending champion Broaddus out of the state schoolboy basketball tournament 63-62 Friday.

The semifinal victory over the No. 2-ranked team in Class A gives Coppell a shot at No. 1 Snook in the championship game Saturday night. Snook fought off a fourth-quarter rally by Van Horn to win its semi-final game, 53-49.

Three costly Broaddus errors — two by sophomore Perry Williams and a traveling violation on Terry Teagle — shattered the East Texas squad's bid for a third straight state title.

The score was tied 58-58 at the end of regulation play, and a Teagle goal that would have given Broaddus a 64-60 lead with 59 seconds left in the five-minute overtime period was rubbed out when Williams was whistled for being in the lane three seconds.

With 10 seconds remaining and the score tied at 62, Teagle was called for traveling as he manuevered for a shot.

Weldon Hamm, who hit a crucial goal with 21 seconds left to tie the score for the final time, scored 18 for Coppell, a North Texas squad. John Talley and Mark Dobecka each had 16. Dobecka, 6-3, pulled down 20 of Coppell's 41 rebounds.

Teagle, a two-time all-tournament player and bluechip college prospect, was shut off with four points and three rebounds in the first half, as Coppell mounted a 32-25 lead but finished with 18 points and 12 rebounds.

Mike Parks scored 24 for Broaddus.

Snook staked out a 40-27 third quarter lead over Van Horn, but had to fall back on Myron Palmer's dazzling behind-the-back dribbling to gain the finals. Palmer scored 13 points, one less than teammate Mike Junek. Lucas Melendez tallied 13 for Van Horn.

The game was punctuated with 62 turnovers — 32 by Van Horn, which Snook converted into 30 points, and 30 by Snook, which Van Horn turned into 23 points.

Coronado Netters Advance In Odessa

ODESSA (Special)—Coronado advanced eight entries in the Odessa Tennis Tournament Friday, with the A doubles team of Dana Craig and Linda Lee Weaver poised to bid for the championship.

The two won three matches Friday and will play the Odessa Permian team of Lewis and Miller into today's finals.

In A boys singles, Robert Davis of CHS won twice and will play Todd Kent of Canyon in the semifinals. David Craig won once before losing to Jim Cannon of Amarillo.

The A boys doubles team of Dale Anderson and Dan McMillan won three matches and will play Permian's team of Madden and Ashley in today's finals.

CORONADO B RESULTS
Phillip Catuogno won twice, to play today in the quarter-finals. Mary Crook-Reg Wright won twice, to play Conway-Hodge. Seminole, in semifinals. Beth Nickels won three matches, to play in semifinals; Molly McNamara won twice, losing in quarter-finals. Eva Thompson won once. Susan Mangum-Maggie McNamara won twice, to play in semifinals.

third period, narrowing Monterey's lead to 41-38 with a quarter to play.

Miss Henley, whose quickness bothered Monterey's defense, managed only 3 points in the final quarter as Miss Ragus and Miss Dunn followed their coach's game plan.

"Our plan was to overplay and to force their ball-handlers into the middle. We finally started doing that with about four minutes left in the game," Hood said.

Clinging to its deliberate offense and a 47-42 edge, Monterey reeled off 9 straight points from the foul line to clinch the game. Miss Grennell and Miss Davis each sank five charity shots during the final moments.

Major League Notes

Cleveland Indians

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians, stung by the walkout of third baseman Buddy Bell Friday over an apparent contract dispute, got some good news about pitcher Wayne Garland.

The veteran right-hander was sent to Los Angeles, where orthopedic specialist Dr. Frank Jobe examined Garland's sore shoulder and came to the conclusion the soreness is not a major problem.

Jobe told Indians officials Garland has biceptal tendinitis, the same problem he suffered from last spring, but that the current soreness is not nearly as acute.

Bell said Seghi told him late last season that he would discuss the matter with him later, but that the GM has avoided the issue. Seghi called it an "in-house matter" and would say only that he told Bell to "Bide his time."

Kansas City Royals

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — One of two tardy players reported to the Kansas City Royals' training camp Friday as the team managed to get in 2½ hours of work before heavy rain washed out the session.

German Barranca, an infielder who batted .259 with Jacksonville last season, reported to camp after overcoming visa problems in Venezuela. Still missing from camp is Luis Silverio, another rookie with visa problems in the Dominican Republican.

Two players missed the workout Friday because of illness. Reserve outfielder Joe Lahoud and catcher Bobby Glass were reported to have the flu.

Manager Whitey Herzog said he plans to hold an intrasquad game Thursday, one day before the team begins its exhibition season.

Montreal Expos

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Montreal Expos have renewed the contract of outfielder Ellis Valentine and tripled his salary, General Manager Charlie Fox said Friday.

A team spokesman said the increase would bring Valentine's salary for 1978 to about $75,000. Valentine, 23, batted .293 with 25 home runs and 76 runs batted in last year, his first full season in the National League, and was reported to be seeking more than $150,000.

Chicago Cubs

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Dave Kingman slugged two 400-foot drives over the fence in left-center field here Friday as the Chicago Cubs took heir first full-squad batting pracitce of the spring.

The only other player to clear the fence was Hector Cruz, also a newcomer who was acquired in a winter trade with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Kingman, in 14 swings, knocked out two "singles" and did not miss a pitch. He later said he is only concerned with "making contact." He said spring training home runs "don't mean a thing."

Baltimore Orioles

Dauer, who suffered second degree burns in the freak accident Wednesday night, will not be allowed to exercise for five days.

After conducting a three—hour workout for the 45 players on hand, Manager Earl Weaver announced that he would split the squad into two groups this spring to provide more batting practice.

Detroit Tigers

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Steve Kemp and Jason Thompson reported to Detroit Tigers spring training camp Friday, ending their three-day holdouts.

A club spokesman said both players passed their physical examinations and immediately joined a practice session that was held in a converted airplane hangar because of a steady rain outside.

Kemp and Thompson, both beginning their second full seasons with the club, were the team's first holdouts since the 1960s.

Thompson was the Tiger's home-run and RBI leader last season, playing regularly at first base. Kemp was given the leftfielder's job early in the season and batted .257 with 88 RBIs.

St. Louis Cardinals

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Veteran Jerry Morales, an outfielder the St. Louis Cardinals acquired during an off-season trade, predicted Friday a banner year in his new surroundings at Busch Stadium.

"I'm a line drive hitter, and I think I'll hit better in St. Louis with the Astro-Turf and bigger outfield gaps," said Morales, who played the last four seasons for the Chicago Cubs.

"The speed in our lineup and the guys hitting ahead of me mean I'm always going to find somebody on base," Morales predicted. "I've got a good chance to drive in 100 runs for the first time."

Morales, who suffered a knee injury in last year's All-Star game, watched his batting average plummet from a .331 level in July to a finishing .290 while also hampered by a broken finger in 1977.

Atlanta Braves

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Atlanta Braves Manager Bobby Cox, in search of a left-handed starting pitcher, feels he has a prime candidate in Jamie Easterly, who injured his shoulder last season and underwent surgery during the winter.

"I'm counting on Jamie Easterly," Cox said Friday after sending his squad through a two-hour spring training practice. "He's got to come through. We have to have a left-hander and he has shown he can pitch in the big leagues."

The left-hander, who has been shuttled between Atlanta and the minor leagues since 1974, had a 2-4 record with a 6.10 earned run average last season before being sidelined. He has an overall 6-20 major league record.

Pittsburgh Pirates

The 26-year-old hurler was traded to the Pirates late last year in a deal that sent outfielder Al Oliver to the Texas Rangers. Blyleven had signed contracts through the 1980s with the Rangers, but the Pirates have taken them over.

A Pirate spokesman said Blyleven signed a multi-year contract commencing this season. The contract provides the pitcher with deferred compensation over several years.

New York Mets

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — New York Mets shortstop Bud Harrleson, unhappy with his role as a utility player, has requested that the club trade him. General Manager Joe McDonald advised the 33-year-old infielder he will try to accommodate him.

"I'm not content with my role here as a back-up shortstop and a utility player," Harrelson explained. "I'm only 33 years old, not 43, and I still think I can play for a contending club.

"This club is looking for offense and I've never had to be an offensive player. They were always content with my defense."

A&M Favored In Border Runs

LAREDO (UPI)—Texas A&M and its squad of temporary sprinters will be the favorites today to win its second consecutive Border Olympics championship in the first outdoor track and field carnival of the season.

Two days of high school, junior college, college and university division action will take place on one of the few cinder tracks left in big-time track.

Officials of the Border Olympics, which will be unreeled for the 46th time, say they are considering a switch to an artificial surface for next year's meet.

Seven of the nine Southwest Conference teams will be present — Arkansas and Houston being the absentees — and they will be joined by Lamar and North Texas State in the university division.

Because Arkansas and Houston will miss the meet, only six of the individual champions from the recent Southwest Conference indoor championships will make an apperance at the Border.

Texas A&M will be favored this year because of the quality showings in the indoor season of sprinters Curtis Dickey and Mike Mosley, both of whom will leave the Aggies track team March 25 for the opening of spring football practice.

Dickey is a good choice to win the 100-yard dash, Mosley is an excellent hurdler and the Aggies sprint relay team will be highly favored with both those runners on it.

Jones, however, will miss the early part of the outdoor season because of the pulled hamstring muscle he suffered in the Cotton Bowl game. His first apperance in the sprints should be in the Texas Relays early in April.

In the other classifications Abilene Christian will be favored in the collegiate division, Ranger Junior College is the pick in its division and the high school race will be wide open with an increase in teams from the San Antonio and Corpus Christi areas.

Baylor is expected to give Texas A&M its biggest test with returning hurdles champion Davy Duncan, 880-yard defender Mark Collins and high jumper Bill Wimberley leading the way. Duncan won last year's 110-yard hurdles and nipped Mosley in the 60-yard hurdles at the SWC indoor earlier this month.

The other defending champions at the Border will be a threesome from Rice — Carlton Derrett (100), Bruce Atkinson (javelin) and Mike Novelli (three-mile) — along with Tim Scott of Texas A&M (discus), Cole Doty of SMU (220), Jim McAndrew of Texas Tech (long jump) and Byron Hildebrand of Lamar (high jump).

Tech coach Corky Oglesby will have a team which is short on conditioning, which is caused by the bad weather this winter.

"We ran our middle-distance people last week, but that is the only outdoor competition we've had this year," said Oglesby. "We're not in good shape."

Sophomore Charles Green will challenge the Aggie corps in the sprints. Tech's top entries in the 880 will be Robert Lepard and Randy Yates. Both ran on Tech's winning distance medley in last week's meet at Houston.

Freshman all-stater Harold Ledet will get his first outdoors competition in the shot and discus, and Stan Smyth, a transfer, will be throwing the javelin for the first time.

'Roop' Promises Better Year

TEMPE, Arizona (AP) — As young Ruppert Jones embarks on his second major league baseball season, he is constantly reminded of what he accomplished in his first big league campaign.

The Seattle Mariners' soft-spoken rookie centerfielder batted .263 with 24 home runs and 76 RBIs in 1977. He led the club in runs scored (85), doubles (tied with Bill Stein at 26), triples (8) and games played (160).

He also led the club in inciting the fans. He couldn't so much as stoop to tie his shoe, saunter to the plate to bat or lash out a hit without the hometown fans erupting into long, delirious chants of "Roop, Roop, Roop, Roop."

"The fans, those Kingdome fans, are the best," said Jones, who turns 23 a week from Saturday. "But I can improve. I can do better."

In fact, Seattle's No. 1 pick in the expansion draft expected a lot more of himself last season. A series of nagging injuries, one of which led to knee surgery last fall, robbed him of his bid to become the American League's Rookie of the Year.

"I just didn't achieve some of the things I wanted to achieve. Everything could have been better. The .263 average could be better, the 76 RBIs could be better. And I should have won a Golden Glove."

But the injuries — a thigh bruise in April, a twisted ankle in May and finally his left knee in August — slowed him.

"The leg just went out from under me," Jones recalls of the night in Yankee Stadium when he slipped running in to scoop up a base hit.

"I didn't say too much about it. Sometimes an athlete has to play hurt. I wanted to win the Rookie of the Year award so I stayed in there.

"This year I just want to stay healthy," continued Jones, who doesn't expect his knee to be 100 percent until June or July.

"I'm just doing what I can with it. It's going to be a gradual thing. It's not going to get well overnight."

It is simply a matter of time and little luck, Jones says, before he hits .300.

"I know I can. Me doing it's another thing. I thought I could hit .285 or .290 last year with a little luck," he said.

"People forget I hit the ball hard a lot last year. I've never seen so many great plays against one guy in my life. Every time I hit the ball hard somewhere, someone was there."

Walter Payton Suffers Numbness From Gash

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears' star Walter Payton, who cut himself during a television show, has some numbness in his right leg and "there could be nerve damage," his lawyer says.

Payton, the National Football League's leading rusher last season, suffered a gash below his knee late in January when he struck a blocking sled during ABC's videotaped "Superstars" show.

His lawyer, Bud Holmes, told The Chicago Tribune from his Hattisburg, Miss., home Thursday that Payton "has some numbness in the leg ... It's probably worse than we originally thought. There could be nerve damage."

Holmes said Payton was "cut down to the bone" and needed 16 stitches to close the gash.

Several days after the accident, the Bears said the cut required six stitches and said the injury was not serious.

Holmes said Payton has been treated by his personal physician in Mississippi, but was forced to cancel numerous speaking engagements.

Payton currently is appearing at the Chicago Auto Show. He told well-wishers that the injury was the worst he had ever had, but he didn't appear hobbled.

"I won't know how bad it is until I start working out," Payton said.

Holmes said Payton went quail hunting a week ago and "the whole area (below the knee) swelled up."

The Tribune quoted Holmes as saying he would ask Bear General Manager Jim Finks for a Payton salary topping the amount Buffalo is paying O.J. Simpson. The newspaper said that according to reported figures obtained from a management council survey, Simpson's salary last year was $733,358.

"Holmes would conceivably seek a three-year contract for well over $2 million," the newspaper said.

"Walter Payton is more than a football player," Holmes said. "He's a symbol of what it means to be No. 1 ... If Walter were to accept less than the No. 1 salary, it would do the entire profession an injustice. He owes it to the other players."

Payton is under contract to the Bears through 1978 because of an option in his current contract.

Carolina Qualifying To Resume Today

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — The second of three scheduled qualifying sessions for Sunday's Carolina 500 Grand National stock car race was postponed Friday because of a snow and ice storm.

The heavy late winter storm, which let up early Friday, laid a three-inch blanket of snow around the 1.017-mile North Carolina Motor Speedway grounds, then coated everything with up to two inches of ice.

Officials waited until midafternoon to make the decision to combine Friday's schedule with today's lineup. The remaining 21 positions in the 36-car field were to be contested starting at 9 a.m. CST.

Myers Reflects On Disappointment

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

HOUSTON—At 8 a.m. Friday, Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers was drifting through the lobby of his hotel, dressed in the same cream-colored suit which he had worn the night before when his Raiders dropped a 93-82 verdict to the University of Houston.

No, Myers had not been wandering around, dazed, since that defeat; he had some professional business pending which required suit-and-tie attire. But the loss was still on his mind Friday morning, even as he prepared for a new season, now some nine months away.

He admitted disappointment at the ending of the season in the first round of the SWC tournament here, but he was not disappointed with the season.

Tech had been behind by a point with less than ten minutes to play in the first half before a series of events catapulted the Cougars away to their third straight victory over Tech this season.

Houston's Cecile Rose scored on a 3-point play along the baseline, Myers drew a technicl which UH cashed in for 2 more points, and Houston was able to open a 27-15 lead.

Tech was never able to make a successful run at the Cougars thereafter, as it had to play their game—run and shoot—and that is a game which it can not do successfully.

"That was a key stretch," Myers admitted. "When I got the technical, I wasn't protesting the call against Kent Williams (on Rose) as much as two on the other end of the court. Down there (under the Tech goal), they call two charging fouls (one disallowing a field goal by Mike Russell), then on their (Houston's) end, they call it blocking.

"Those three calls didn't beat us, but they really seemed to turn the game around."

But, after the game, Myers said, "They beat us three times this year, so that says who is the better team."

The game brought to a close the three-year career of Russell, as the 6-7 forward scored 34 points, grabbed a career-high 18 rebounds and received a standing ovation from the 15,000 fans in attendance.

Russell is one of two players Tech will lose by graduation. The other is 6-3 guard-forward Mike Edwards, who held Houston's Rose scoreless and almost shotless for most of the first half.

While Russell handled most of the team's scoring load (he finished as the school's second all-time scorer), Edwards usually drew the No. 1 defensive assignment, and Myers admitted his losses will be difficult to replace.

"We'll probably have to have a different type club next year. No, we won't have a dominating player, like we've had for about years (Rick Bullock for three years, Russell and Bullock for one season, and Russell for two campaigns).

"We still have some good players, but we need to go out and get some people. We'd like to get some guards, a forward and some people to play inside. You always go after as many as you can."

After two players (Paul Richards and Bob Rudolph, neither of whom had played much) transferred at the end of the fall semester, Tech was short of depth, but now, Myers will have seven or eight scholarships available if he chooses to extend them this spring.

Tech finished the year with a record of 19-10, missing its third straight 20-game season by one. Coming that close to being the first school in the Southwest Conference to win 20 three in a row was disappointing, "but, before the season, I felt that it would be hard to win 18, 19, 20 games," Myers said.

"I'm disappointed we kinda tailed off at the end of the season (losing four of the last five with starter Kent Williams sidelined or limited by a broken jaw), but, I felt we played a tough schedule and were playing well when Kent got hurt."

Tech returns the 6-5 Williams (second in individual scoring), 6-1 Geoff Huston, 6-0 Tommy Parks, and 6-9 Joe Baxter with solid starting experience, and 6-8 Ralph Brewster and 6-5 Thad Sanders also experienced starting time.

The business plans did not occupy Myers long Friday; he pulled out before noon for Austin and the state basketball tournament. He was looking for help next year.

Late Rally Lifts Owls To Win Over Tech

HOUSTON (Special)—Rice scored two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday afternoon to down Texas Tech 2-1 in the Southwest Conference-opening baseball game for both clubs.

The teams will conclude the three-game series with a doubleheader today, beginning at 1 p.m.

Tech led going into the last half of the ninth by virtue of a third-inning run. However, The Owls tied the game quickly when rightfielder Jimmy Michalek ripped a 375-foot home run over the left-field fence.

Tech starting pitcher Robert Bryant then induced designated hitter Jeff Grossman to line out to centerfielder Randy Newton, but catcher Stan Hinson then slammed a triple over Newton's head, causing Raider coach Kal Segrist to remove Bryant in favor of Gary Moyer.

The Red Raiders had gotten their only run when catcher Dan Hejl rocketed a triple and later crossed the plate on Newton's RBI-single.

Newton, the team's top hitter among the regular players, got two hits in four trips to the plate Friday and was the only Techsan to get more than one hit.

Rice Hurler Doug Watson allowed only five hits. He walked no one and fanned three batters.

Explorer Tourney Scheduled Today

The Exploring Department of the South Plains Council, BSA, will participate in Annual Explorer Olympics basketball competition in a tournament set from 9 a.m. to about 5 p.m. today at Ralls High School, hosted by Post 333 at Ralls.

The tournament is a part of the Olympics which began in January and will continue through May.

Rozelle Ponders Rules To Improve Offenses

RANDOLPH, Mass. (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Friday the National Football League may adopt new rules to help team offenses next season.

"We need rule changes to help the offense, because the defense is doing too good a job," said Rozelle prior to the New England Patriots' winter pro football awards dinner.

"The size and mobility of the defense have shrunk the field," the commissioner said, adding that two basic rule changes will be considered at NFL meetings this month in Palm Springs, Calif.

Rozelle said one alteration would liberalize the interpretation of holding by the offensive lines, and another would place mmore restrictions on defensive control of pass receivers.

The commissioner said he favored any rule change that would boost NFL offense and further protect quarterbacks. By slowing down the defensive pass rush, Rozelle said, "quarterbacks will be helped because they won't have to eat the ball as often and they won't get injured as often."

Another matter under consideration is the prospect of film or taped replays of key officiating calls, and the addition of a seventh NFL official for each game.

Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs and a head table guest at the Patriots' dinner, told newsmen that instant replays of officating calls "would be a farce. It would stop the flow of the game. It's got to be a live game."

Rozelle said a seventh official would focus primarily on pass receivers, but he expressed reservation about using television cameras to check officials' calls.

"I fear selective over-ruling of officials," Rozelle said, "depending on where the camera was."

The commissioner opposed the idea of fulltime NFL officials, rather than weekend workers, saying the NFL would lose some of its best help. He said the staff of 80 NFL officials will have a turnover of seven or eight this year, slightly higher than usual.

More than 800 persons attended the awards dinner held by the 1776 Quarterback Club of New England for the first time since being formed by merger of three fans clubs.

Patriots awards went to fullback Sam Cunningham as most valuable player last year, linebacker Steve Nelson as "Unsung Hero", wide receiver Stanley Morgan as rookie of the year, and defensive linemen Tony McGee as the top pass rusher.

Crowell Fems Top Selections

Crowell had guards Beth Graves, Sheila Coleman and Sabrina Kearney, as well as forward Darlene Tucker on the first unit. Filling out the first team were Elizareth Hooper and Starlett Covington of Hamlin and Gayle Ware of Knox City.

The second team had forwards Jody Graves of Crowell, Rhonda Skiles of Knox City, and Ginger Duke Rotan, and guards Sherry Everett of Haskell, Vanessa Miller of Aspermont, Judy Ray of Knox City, and Darla Salley of Paducah.

Ski Event Delayed

ASPEN, Colo. (AP)—Heavy fog at the top of Aspen Mountain forced postponement Friday of the downhill race in the $40,000 John Denver Celebrity Pro-Am skiing races.

Fourteen of the 32 pro skiers had come down the course when World Pro Skiing director Bob Beattie halted competition. An hour later, when the fog had not lifted, he announced postponement of the downhill until Saturday when the entire field will ski the course.

Dimmitt Goes After Third State Championship

AUSTIN (Special) — Dimmitt bids for its third state championship here today when the Bobcats take on powerful Whitehouse at 10 a.m.

This will be a classic battle between the state's No. 1 and No. 2 ranked AA units. Whitehouse stands 35-1 with the lone loss a freakish one-pointer to Class AAAA Tyler Lee when it called a sixth time out in the closing seconds.

Dimmitt, which has been ranked No. 2 all season, is 32-4, losing to two AAA schools (65-64 to Canyon at home and 50-43 to Dunbar in the finals of the Caprock Tournament) and to two AAAA schools (68-65 on the road to Lubbock High and 50-44 to Abilene Cooper in the Reese Tournament semifinals).

Bobcat coach Ken Cleveland, who is closing in on the 500-career win plateau, is extremely worried about Whitehouse, which had little trouble in ripping Rosebud-Lott 68-42 Thursday.

"They're really impressive," Cleveland admitted. "They may be the biggest team down here overall in any class. They run a double post and kinda shift it in to any one of their big boys.

"We're just going to try to be right in their face. Well, I can't really say that because I don't know if we can get a hand up that high or not, but we'll just try to get in front of them."

The Wildcats are almost a "family" unit, with 6-2 Dwight Pettigrew and 6-1 Dwayne Pettigrew starting opposite 6-3 Jamie Nix and 6-5 Cary Nix. The non-family member is 6-3 Kevin Carlisle.

Cleveland said he felt all the Bobcats played well in the semifinal tilt. "I think the entire team contributed. You just can't say Rocky (Rawls, who had a game-high 31 points, hitting 13-of-19 from the floor) or Jim (Bradford, who scored 12 of his 13 points in the first half) played well.

"They had to have someone reounding and kicking the ball out to them, so I think they all played well.

"The last half of the first quarter and the entire second period were played extremely well. Then in the second half we looked up and saw that 17-point lead and we didn't want to do anything to jeopardize us getting into the finals, so we started piddling around and trying to kill the clock.

"If it hadn't been for that, I think we could have scored a lot more points, but when you get down here and have a chance to get into the finals, well, you want to make it as enjoyable for your team as possible."

The Bobcats will go with their normal starting five of the 5-10 Rawls, 6-1 Jeff Bell, 6-2 Bradford, 6-1 Dennis Veals and 6-3 Mark Summers.

Cleveland indicated the team would watch the other three state title games after their contest today and then leave Sunday morning for their return home.

Chaps Journey Home To Prepare

If Larry Hays ever tires of coaching, he could always become a travel agent. He must be very familiar with that road between Lubbock and Phoenix by now.

The Chaparral baseballers departed at 6 a.m. Wednesday morning for four days in the sun and warmth of Arizona.

However, when they passed Tucson the rains began and by the time they reached Phoenix at 10 p.m. Wednesday, a flash flood had hit that city.

So, Hays and Grand Canyon Coach Dave Brazel decided it would be impossible to play their five-game series. And with the dates with Texas-El Paso not until Monday and Tuesday, Hays elected to return to Lubbock.

Therefore, the baseballers climbed back in their blue (that's the color, not the team's mood) bus at 6 a.m. Thursday and pulled back in Lubbock at 10:15 p.m.

And it was here that they got their first action, as pitchers John Ross and Oscar Asocta headed upstairs in the LCC Fieldhouse for a half-hour of work in preparation for starts against UTEP.

"I guess we could have gone to El Paso and worked out," Hays said, "But by coming home they (the players) were able to attend classes today (Friday) and I was able to get a little bit done. Too, there wasn't any sense in sitting about a motel room for three days in El Paso just waiting to play."

Since LCC opens Texoma Conference play next Friday against Midwestern, Hays is extremely concerned about his troops.

"We had hoped to go into conference with our pitchers all having four starts. Now, I'd I'd be satisfied with two each.

"I have an idea the other teams in our conference (Dallas Baptist, Texas Wesleyan, Midwestern) are getting to work out more than we are," Hays said.

The Chap mentor is also concerned about the District VIII (NAIA) rankings, which start Wednesday. "I just wonder how this will affect us in that. The ratings are so important this year because only the No. 1 and No. 2 ranked clubs draw a first-game bye.

"Even if you win your conference and don't finish ranked one or two, you've got to play that first day and if you have a bad game, you're gone.

"But the way thngs are going, I guess I ought to worry about just getting into the District Tournament instead of finishing one or two."

Lorenzo Places Pair On District 4-A Unit

District 4-A champion Lorenzo landed a pair of juniors on the 10-man boys team and Hale Center supplied two guards and three forwards on the 12-member girls unit.

Hale Center's Terri Henry was selected as the Most Valuable Forward and the top guard honor went to Cheryl Westerman of Ralls.

New Deal have three girls selections and Ralls two, with Petersburg and Crosbyton one each.

Spur and Crosbyton each had two selections on the boys team along with Lorenzo and the other four members of the seven-team district—Hale Center, Crosbyton, Ralls and Petersburg—each had one.

The teams:

GIRLS

BOYS

Rodney Keeton (6-2, Sr., 13.5 points, 11 rebounds, Hale Center), Edmund Turner (6-2, Jr., 20 points, 18 rebounds, Lorenzo), Darrell Lawson (6-0, Jr., 16 points, 9 rebounds, Lorenzo), Alton Fisher (6-2, Jr., 18 points, 10 rebounds), Spur), Paul Bethany (5-10, Sr., 12 points, 3 rebounds), Kelly Feree (5-9, Jr., 14.5 points, 5 rebounds), Crosbyton), Marvin Wiley (5-11, Sr., 13.5 points, 9 rebounds, Crosbyton), Tim Garland (5-10, Sr., 10 points, 9 rebounds, New Deal), Quintin Berry (6-0, Soph, 17 points, 10 rebounds, Petersburg), Rex Neitsch (6-4, Sr., 11.5 points, 15 rebounds, Ralls).

NCAA Closes Out OU Investigation

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association has closed out its investigation of the University of Oklahoma, the university was informed Friday.

The NCAA investigation centered on alleged irregularities in the handling of football players' complimentary game tickets. The issue prompted an internal investigation by the university and resulted in a strict new plan for handling such tickets.

"We don't have a statement," said Mike Treps, university media information officer, "but I can tell you that J.R. Morris, who is our vice president for the university community, was notified that the NCAA would not pursue the matter.

"It was turned over to the NCAA Infractions Committee (by NCAA investigators) in December and the Infractions Committee refused to pursue it at all. They wouldn't even consider it.

"They then notified J.R. that there would be no further comment on the issue from them, it was a closed issue, it would not be brought up, they refused to pursue it — it was dead."

The furor over the tickets erupted during the 1976 season with allegations that players were given a large number of complimentary tickets which many then scalped.

Seminole Hires Bornstein

Special Correspondent

SEMINOLE — David Bornstein, head coach at Stratford for the past six years, has been named head coach at Seminole High School, replacing Claude Chappell who resigned recently.

Bornstein was given a two-year contract at an annual salary of $22,000.

A native of Stamford, Bornstein has been coaching at Stratford for six seasons. Prior to that, he was an assistant at Hereford for four years.

The 32-year-old Bornstein will begin his duties here later this month, Seminole school officials said in announcing the hiring Friday.

Women's Bowling Tourney Opens

Heavy Rains Wash Out Citrus Second Round

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A violent thunderstorm, packing lightning and flooding rains, washed out second round play Friday and set up a double round of 36 holes Sunday in the $200,000 Florida Citrus Open golf tournament.

Second-round play now is set for today.

At the end of the second round, the field of 147 players will be cut to the low 50 scorers — the normal tournament schedule has the cut to the low 70 — so the double round can be played Sunday on the rain-drenched, 6,929-yard Rio Pinar Golf Club course.

The decision to go to a double round Sunday was made by PGA Tour Deputy Commissioner Clyde Mangum after lengthy consultations with Citrus tournament sponsors and executives of NBC, which will provide national television coverage.

The television schedule remains the same, 2-3:30 p.m. CST today and 1-3 p.m. CST Sunday. The network will come back with taped highlights of the finish from 5-5:30 p.m. CST Sunday.

The rain-out was the fourth in nine weeks on the PGA Tour this year.

It occured at midmorning Friday when a storm dumped more than a half-inch of rain in 15 minutes, flooded the fairways and made the course unplayable. The rains continued throughout the day.

None of the players had completed their rounds before the washout. All will start over from the first tee on Saturday.

The first-round leaders — Arnold Palmer, Tom Kite and Bob Murphy — all with opening 65s on Thursday, had late starting times and had not begun second round play.

Palmer, who lives at nearby Bay Hill Club, didn't even get to the golf course before the round was cancelled, a major disappointment to thousands of fans who had flocked to Rio Pinar to watch the 48-year-old make a run for his first American title in five years.

His 7-under-par opening round was his best score in two seasons and, Palmer said, resulted from the best overall play he's been able to muster in several years.

One shot back of the leaders at 66 were Australian David Graham and Roger Maltbie. At 67 were Ed Sneed, Hale Irwin, Lee Trevino, Steve Melnyk and Pete Brown.

1868 State Division Plan Marks Wallace's Historical Meet Paper

Dr. WALLACE

The roiling turmoil of Reconstruction Texas furnished the backdrop for Dr. Ernest Wallace's final speech as president of the Texas State Historical Association.

Couched in terms to bring alive the brawling dissent of the 1868 Texas Reconstruction Convention, "The Howling of the Coyotes" zeroed in on the convention's battle to divide Texas.

Wallace, who retired in 1976 after 40 years in the Texas Tech history department, was speaker for a Friday dinner of the association's annual meeting which began Thursday and will conclude Saturday in Austin. A number of Tech historians presented papers at the three-day session.

"Since the proposed state was sparsely settled, or not at all, the opponents derisively labeled it 'The State of Coyote' and its dedicated advocates the coyotes," Wallace said.

All the ingredients were there for the most-nearly successful attempt to divide a state originally as large as 312 states of Rhode Island.

Legality was found in the resolution of annexation while practical and economic justification could be found in the immense area and wide diversity in geography of Texas, which in 1868 already had sold 28 percent of its public domain to the federal government, reducing it down to only 32 times the dimensions of Massachusetts.

Dissention, each faction wanting a different division for their own purposes, coupled with violent actions and flagrant disregard of parliamentary rules proved the division attempt's doom along with the election as president of U. S. Grant who felt one Texas was quite enough.

Division took up much of the time until a delegation drafted, in secret, a constitution for "The State of West Texas."

Among other things it denied franchise to those who had "aided and abetted the Confederacy."

Its boundaries were the Colorado River, the 32nd parallel, a north-south line from the parallel to the mouth of the Pecos River, the Rio Grande and the Gulf of Mexico.

A newspaper in San Antonio, named as interim capital, termed it "vindictive, disfranchising, unjust, outrageous, visionary, detestable, wicked, unconstitutional, swindling, insurrectionary" and prepared by ambitious revolutionists who knew they could never gain political office in an undivided Texas.

The Coyotes pursued their cause to Washington, following the delegation presenting the new Texas constitution to Congress, but met defeat there as they had in Texas.

There were attempts before and since to divide Texas, but, as Wallace put it, the howls of the coyotes have been "from a lonely few, baying at the moon rather than those of a ravenous pack intent on tearing to pieces its prostrate and helpless victim."

History — regardless of geography, economics, language and race — forms Texas' common denominator, he concluded and added a quote from Sen. Joseph Weldon Bailey:

"While from her proud eminence today Texas looks upon a future as bright with promise as ever beckoned a people, it is not so much the promise of that future as it is the memory of a glorious past which appeals to her against division.

"She could partition her fertile valleys and broad pcairies, she could distribute her population and her resources, but she could not divide the fadeless glory of those days that are past and gone.

"To which state could she assign, without irreparable injustice to the others, the priceless inheritance of Goliad, the Alamo, and San Jacinto?

"To which could she bequeath the names of Houston, and Austin, and Travis, and Fannin, and Bowie, and Crockett? The fame of these men and their illustrious, but not less worthy, comrades cannot be severed: It is the common glory of all."

Papers presented by Tech historians included "The Archivist and Historian: Working Together" by R. Sylvan Dunn; "Sports, Public Policy and Urbanizahion: Dallas, 1880-1920" by Harry Jebsen Jr.; "Sports and Leisure-Time Activities in Late Nineteenth-Century San Antonio" by John A. Edwards; and "The El Paso-Juarez Conference of 1916." by James W. Harper.

State Archivist David B. Gracy II, who earned his doctorate at Tech, discussed "It's Your Heritage: The Archives of Texas."

Tech history professor Dr. Alwyn Barr was on the convention's program committee.

Wallace, whose teaching career began in a one-room country school and progressed to Horn Professor of History at Tech, will yield the presidency to F. Lee Lawrence, a Tyler attorney.

The Texas State Historical Association is the oldest learned society in Texas.

Firing Squad Executes 'Renegade' Palestinian

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A "renegade" Palestinian was executed by a guerrilla firing squad tuesday for "complicity" in the murder of a Palestine Liberation Organization official in Paris five years ago, the Palestine news agency WAFA reported.

It said Salim Hassan Qassem Abu Soboh "confessed that he had been in collusion with the Israeli intelligence service in the murder of Mahmoud al Hamshari."

"Soboh had communicated information to Israeli agents in Paris who killed the martyr Al Hamshari," head of the PLO Paris office in 1972, the agency said.

The agency did not say where the execution took place. But sources said Soboh probably had been abducted in Europe and brought to Lebanon where he was executed inside a refugee camp.

Wilderness, Oil Clash In Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The nation's best potential for new onshore oil discoveries may lie in the Arctic Wildlife Range of northern Alaska. But there's a hitch.

Some environmentalists say the range also is the country's best remaining prospect for classification as wilderness.

Gil Mull, a geologist with the U.S. Geological Survey, recently told a U.S. Senate-sponsored workshop of industry, environmental and government representatives that the range may be underlain by a basin of oil and natural gas as large as nearby Prudhoe Bay. Prudhoe, with reserves of 10 billion barrels of oil, is the largest oilfield in North America.

Wilbur Mills of the Alaska Coalition, a group of environmental organizations, told the same workshop that the range is probably the country's finest opportunity to preserve "an entire ecosystem."

The coastal portion of the range — site of the best oil prospects — is home to the largest caribou herd in the country as well as a denning area for polar bears.

"Unfortunately, oil is where you find it, not where you want it to be," said Ron McIntosh, an Atlantic Richfield Co. geologist.

The environmentalists seem to have the upper hand so far. Industry has been denied permission to conduct rudimentary exploration in the range, and the House subcommittee on Alaska Lands has reported out a bill that would make the range a wilderness area. Under range status oil exploration could be allowed; under wilderness status it would be prohibited.

And Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus has said if there is oil on the range it should be the last place drilling is allowed.

Fran Mauer, a biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said making the range's petroleum a national reserve "might be palatable."

Mauer and Jim Davis, a state biologist, dispute industry claims that development of Prudhoe Bay has had a minimal impact on wildlife. Both say caribou have avoided the area, especially during the calving season.

The range herd — known as the Porcupine Herd — spends part of the year in the Yukon Territory and thus preservation of it is an international issue. It is important to subsistence hunters in the Eskimo coastal communities of Barter Island and Kaktovik, also. Any change in the migration pattern of the herd could impact the two towns.

Both villages are likely to be affected, at some point, by the planned sale of offshore oil leases in the adjacent Beaufort Sea. Those sales are set for December of 1979.

There's no doubt environmentalists would fight any decision to allow exploration on the range. The early leader in the battle for authority to build a natural gas pipeline from Prudhoe Bay to the lower 48 states lost out partly because its route would have crossed the wildlife range.

During the battle over selection of a gas pipeline route, the construction of a pipeline through the range was likened to "taking a razor to the face of the Mona Lisa."

UT's LeMaistre Named To Head Houston Center

AUSTIN (AP) — Dr. Charles LeMaistre, chancellor of the University of Texas System, was appointed president of the UT Cancer Center in Houston on Friday.

LeMaistre, a physician, succeeds Dr. R. Lee Clark, who is retiring after more than 30 years as president of the Cancer Center. LeMaistre reportedly sought the Cancer Center presidency.

Bob Hardesty, spokesman for the UT System, said the "regents will probably take up at the next meeting" whether to retain the post of chancellor. E. Don Walker now holds the title of system president and is chief operating officer of the UT System.

For about three years, LeMaistre's duties have been chiefly in the development area — raising funds, seeking federal grants and making friends for the system.

LeMaistre, 54, has been chancellor since Jan. 1, 1971. Before joining the system administration in 1966, he was professor of internal medicine and associate dean of UT's Southwestern Medical School in Dallas.

He taught medicine at Cornell Medical College and Emory University before coming to Texas.

LeMaistre was a member of the Surgeon General's advisory committee that first warned of the lung cancer hazard from cigarette smoking.

Medical Care Rules Revision Sought

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Texas, a candidate for U.S. Senate, said Friday that the already-rewritten federal guidelines on medical care should be rewritten again.

Krueger, in a statement, said the revised guidelines for the National Health Planning and Resources Development act of 1974 represent an improvement "but they do not go far enough to convince me that the HEW has abandoned its implicit attempt to transform these voluntary guidelines into rigid requirements to which all regions of America will be forced to conform."

He said that HEW's "mistaken interpretation of its mandate from Congress could represent the first step backward in this nation's 200-year commitment to providing more efficient and readily available health care to all of our people."

Tropical Plant Thrives With Necessary Care

By ELVIN McDONALD

Catalog writers get absolutely euphoric over calla-lillies years ago, I read such a glowing account that I ordered a yellow calla. The bulb came in January when the temperature in our mail box probably registered less than 10F. Of course, the bulb didn't grow -callas are tropical plants -and I promptly decided that calla-lillies were impossible and forgot about them.

In recent years, I've grown a number of different calla-lillies as potted plantss in my sunny window garden -and outdoors in warm, frost-free weather. Given reasonably good care, each bulb will produce up to six blossoms during its flowering season. Depending on when the bulbs area available, and when they are planted, callas may be forced into bloom at almost any time as house or greenhouse plants.

August and September are the time-honored months for planting the classic white calla, Zanthedeschia aethiopica (zant-uh-DEE-shuh ee-thee-OH-pick-uh), and its fragrant flowers usually come during the winter and spring. Yellow and pink callas are usually planted from January to April for spring and summer bloom. If you are situated, as I was, so that yellow and pink calla bulbs arriving in winter are likely to be frozen, ask that they not be delivered until spring.

CALLA LILLY

Use deep pots and plant one bulb in a 5- or 6-inch pot, or two or three bulbs in an 8-inch or larger container. There are all sorts of elaborate soil mixes recommended for callas. I've been successful with a simple half-and-half mixture of garden loam (packaged, all-purpose potting soil) and sphagnum peat moss. When I first investigated the culture of callas, I was impressed that every writer stressed the use of well-rotted cow manure. I think I've obtained essentially the same results by using every-other-week feedings of liquid fish emulsion fertilizer.

Plants callas with the tops of the tubers barely showing above the soil. Water well and set in a light place until growth begins. Callas require plenty of water all through their growth period, and at maturity they can almost stand in water. After the blooms cease to appear, keep the foliage in good condition and growing as long as possible -perhaps two or three months. Then lay the pot on its side in a dark, frost-free place and let the foliage dry away. Rest the bulbs until planting time, which will probably be at least two or three months later. They should occasionally have some water splashed on the soil during the period of dormancy so that they will not dry out completely. Callas kept in constant growth without a dormancy period will not flower well. They should be repotted into fresh soil every year.

Callas need lots of sunlight, and a night temperature of 60-65F. They are natives of South Africa and, except in nearly frost-free climates, need to be grown as indoor plants in fall and winter.

The yellow callas (Zanthedeschia elliottiana) bears flowers of richest golden yellow, contrasted against dark green leaves which are attractively spotted white. The pink or red calla is Z. rehmannii. The flowerss of this calla are pink or purplish rose, a muddy color to my eye, but perhaps the purity of the yellow and white one makes one too critical. The leaves of the pink callas are narrow, tapering, sometimes white-spotted. The purple-heart calla (Z.melanoleuca) has large yellow flowers with a widely flaring margin and tip recurved to reveal a sharply contasting purplish black throat blotch. The foliage is spotted. Z. godfreyna is a smaller replica of the classic white calla, but the flowers are produced more freely. Z. albo-maculata is similar to the common white except the leaves are white-spotted.

Callas are easily propagated by seeds which may be sown at any time of the yar, but preferably in the spring. Use a soil made up of equal parts packaged all-purpose potting soil, sand and sphagum peat moss. You can plant seeds of the species mentioned above, but resultss will be more exciting if you sow seeds of the Apricot Sunrise hybrids, available from the George W. Seed Co., Greenwood, Sc 29647. These hybrids come in shades of apricot with red-tinged edges, pink, red, yellow, gold cream and intermediate shades, too.

HOUSE CALL

Q. I have been given a dieffenbachia or dumbcane 4 feet tall and was told to water it only when the soil is dry. I have had the plant over two weeks and the soil (which came covered by a moss blanket) still seems damp. Is there any reasonable maximum limit of time between waterings, so long as the soil remains damp? also, I have noticed drops of water collecting on the leaves. Is this normal?

A. To answer your first question, I would say simply to keep checking the soil surface; when it begins to feel dry, water well. The drops of "water" you describe could indicate the presence of mealybugs, aphids of scale insects. Examine the leaves and stems in good light with a magnifying glass. If you detect any bugs, wash them off with warm, sudsy water, then rinse; repeat at weekly intervals as necessary. Otherwise, don't worry.

Stock Suspect Arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — A Florida man has surrendered to the FBI on charges that he transported a half a million dollars worth of securities stolen from the estate of a Philadelphia man who died a secret millionaire.

Quentin Ertil, a spokesman for the FBI here, said the bureau arrested Norman Gerwitz, 58, of Miami Shores, Fla., and charged him with transporting from Philadelphia to New York securities owned by the estate of Harold Atkinson.

The badly decomposed body of Atkinson, also known as Harry Barnes, was found last Nov. 16. He was 81 at he time of his death. He apparently left no heirs, and neighbors thought he had died destitute.

But the executors of his estate have found that Atkinson left $600,000 deposited in eight Philadelphia banks, along with several hundred thousand dollars in stock that had somehow disappeared.

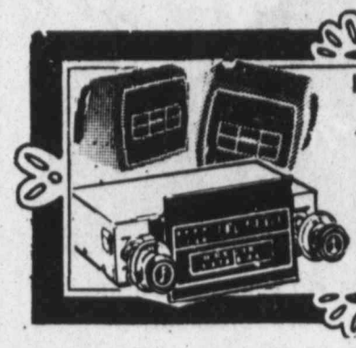

In the period from late November to the end of November of this year, according to Ertil, a New York City attorney offered stock in the name of Harold Atkinson to a New York City brokerage firm.

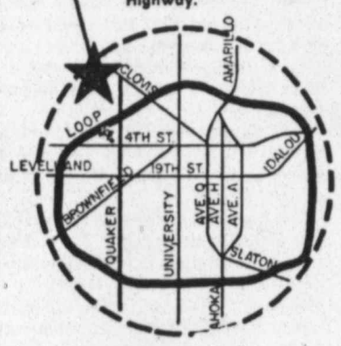

Ertil said the firm sold the stock and gave the attorney $460,740 in checks payable to Harold Atkinson.

According to papers filed here in the U.S. District Court, Gerwitz, using Atkinson's name, opened a checking account and a deposit box at a New York bank.

At the same time, it was alleged, Gerwitz deposited checks payable to Atkinson and drawn on accounts of the brokerage firm and bank in another account in Atkinson's name, this one in Jonesboro, Ga.

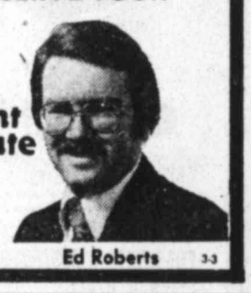

Gerwitz was charged with transportation of securities, which entails a maximum penalty of $10,000 in fines or 10 years in prison or both. He was released on $100,000 bond, and hearings are scheduled for Miami on March 21.

Mini-Geraniums Have Bonuses

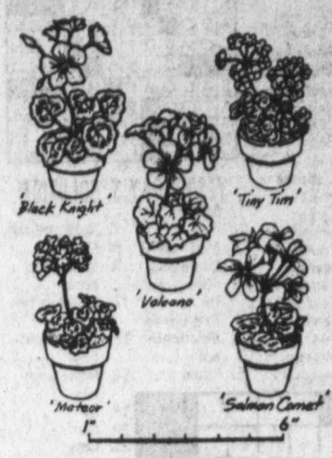

By ELVIN McDONALD

Everything we admire about common geraniums can be found now in miniature replicas two to six inches tall. These fascinating dwarfs needs a sunny window or greenhouse in winter, or 14 to 16 hours of fluroscent light daily. In a temperature range of 55-75 degrees F., with some fresh air and average humidity (about 30 percent), they will yield cheerful flowers and fresh foliage all year.

After providing enought light, the next step to thriving miniature geraniums is a continer of the right size. Most varieties do well in a 2½ or 3-inch pot of clay or plastic, with drainage holes. Semi-dwarf varieties which often attain a height of 16 inches need a 4-inch pot at maturity. When given too much root space, miniature geramiuns tend to grow rampantly and fail to form flower buds.

It is easy to find a growing medium which suits miniature geraniums. Try equal parts garden loam and sand, or mix together equal parts of an all-purpose packaged potting soil, sand (or perlite) and sphagum peat moss, plus a tablespoon of bonemeal or powdered limestone to each quart of combined ingredients. The important thing is to keep the medium evenly moist, or slightly on the dry side. Moisten well at watering time, and not again until the surface soil begins to feel dry. Constant saturation may result in root rot, which quickly spreads into the stems. Too much dryness will cause limp, yellowing leaves and little or no growth.

Encourage miniature geraniums to branch by pinching out the growing tips, first when the plants are young, and again after they have been through a long season of bloom. To keep them in good health, repot annually, preferably in the spring or early summer. Break apart the ball of soil and clip away old roots which twine around each other. Prune back one-half to two-thirds of the top growth, leaving the center part of the plant open, with a famework of branches around the outside. You can make cuttings of the trimmings, and root them in small pots of the regular growing medium. Keep barely moist until top growth indicates that a new root system has formed.

Miniature Geraniums

1. Not enought sunlight: If you can't provide more, keep miniature geraniums 4 to 6 inches directly beneath two 20-, 30- or 40-watt flouroscent tubes burned 14 to 16 hours daily.

2. Too much fertilizer with a high nitrogen content: Change to 5-10-5 analysis, or similar, and apply exactly according to container directions. Usually a fertilizer labeled specifically for African violets will promote bloom from geraniums.

3. Rapid changes of temperature: Protect miniature geraniums from drafts of cold or hot air.

4. An atmosphere which is close or stale: Provide some fresh air daily.

Diminutive geramiums have been known since before 1800, and three early cultivars from Europe are found today in many collections. These include Black Vesuvius (England, 1889), kleiner Liebling or Little Darling (Germany, 1925) and Madame Fournier (France, date of introduction unknown). Most of hundred or more named miniature geraniums in cultivation have originated from the common garden geranium, Pelargonium hortorum.

To please young visitors in particular, my collection of miniature geraniums includes Snow White (large single white blooms), and six of the Seven Dwarfs: Bashful (variegated foliage and orange-red single flowers), Doc (vivid scarlet), Dopey (rosy pink flowers, each set with distinctive white eye), Grumpy (variegated foliage, salmon-pink flowers), Sleepy (light salmon-pink), and Sneezy (scarlet flowers, each set with white eye in its center).

I have also grown at one time or another these miniature geraniums: Alcyone begins to bear bright pink, slender-petaled flowers above attractive dark green leaves when scarcely 2 inches tall. Goblin has double flowers of fiery red on a compact, but vigorous plant. Lilliput Lemon has scented leaves. Merope is an outstanding miniature with black-red double flowers and dark green foliage. Rosy Dawn has double flowers of twisted petals, bright apricot or orange-red in color, above dark green, zoned leaves. And on and on the list could go. In the space where five regular geraniums would be crowded in the winter, you can have 18 or more thriving miniatures spaced properly and attractively.

Tuesday he will speak at 10 a.m. during LCC's chapel on "Three H's of a Successful Life," and during a luncheon in his honor in the school cafeteria on "Our Need for More Love."

Woman Outsmarts Would-Be Rapist

NEW YORK (AP) — A 20-year-old woman says she tried to put off an apparent would-be rapist by telling him she was a lesbian, police say. When he replied that he too was homosexual, the woman said the dormitory guard also was homosexual and suggested he find him.

The man walked off in search of the guard, the woman ran to her room and alerted building security, and the man was arrested. Stephen Sorge, 24, was indicted Tuesday and charged with attempted sodomy, sexual abuse, burglary and attempted robbery in the Dec. 3 incident at Fordham University.

Composer Reviews Life's Work

HOUSTON (UPI) — Aaron Copland reflects on a life filled with music. His eyes sparkle and beneath the aquiline nose a smile forms and turns into a robust chuckle from this man of gentle humor.

He is the senior statesman of contemporary music. He is the dean of American composers. The observer sees the expression in his hands before the first note sounds and, at 77, there is youthful vitality in his step as he mounts the concert podium.

In conversation he modestly brushes aside inquiries about what makes him make music.

"I've been mostly devoting my time to conducting in the last few years. I've been composing for more than 50 years, which is a nice long time for doing anything," he offers with a mischievous laugh. "It would be very nice to go ahead and continue writing as if nothing had happened and some lucky devils can do that. I seem to have bogged down a bit."

He has conducted more than 100 orchestras throughout the world and appears to have moved away from pure composition, though his style and artistry have influenced young American composers for years.

Copland, talking with UPI prior to a recent guest conducting appearance before the Houston Symphony, surveys the current American musical scene with an optimism tempered by his own experience as a spokesman for contemporary music.

"I have always felt part of a younger movement. In other words, it didn't seem to me possible, or advisable, or even very much fun to be all by yourself and do something ... write great works maybe and someone will love them some day. It's more a question of ... I'd like to write this kind of stuff, where are my pals? My potential pals?"

"It's always interesting to see how someone else reads your music, so to speak. Sometimes they find things in it you weren't aware you put into it," he said during the interview.

"It helps keep the work alive in your own mind — to take something a little slower or faster than you thought of it. Sometimes you think it's awful and sometimes you say, 'Gee, why didn't I think of that tempo? It sounds better.'

"Everyone should hear music through his own two ears and make up his own mind as to how it should go. Of course, sometimes you hear a performance and say, well, that's one way it shouldn't be played.

"Not all composers can have an open mind about various interpretations of their music. I flatter myself into thinking I've heard enough different people do my music that I am rather relaxed when I listen to it."

If anything pleases Copland during this phase of his career — in which he has been awarded countless honorary degrees and honors, including the Pulitzer Prize in 1945, it is the general health of American music.

"Well, it's a very lively scene," he said in Jones Hall. "You take into account the numbers of composers working in a serious symphonic field or classical music, there are so many more composers than was true when I began 50 years ago. We stand a much better chance of developing good composers. Just by average count, we're in very good shape. There's an enormous amount of compositional work going on by comparison when I was born in 1900."

U.S. Eskimos Offered Invitation To Join Indian Energy Cartel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Indian energy cartel is moving to expand its control over energy resources on Native American lands by inviting oil and natural gas rich Eskimos to join its forces.

The Council of Energy Resource Tribes, founded in 1975 with 22 tribes, recently added three new members and now represents holdings of 40 percent of all U.S. uranium reserves, 30 percent of the coal west of the Mississippi, 4 percent of the oil and natural gas reserves and most of the nation's geothermal and oil shale resources.

CERT also voted to open its doors to Alaskan native corporations with energy holdings. CERT Chairman Peter MacDonald said the Alaskans have expressed an interest in joining CERT and about five of the 12 Alaskan groups would qualify.

Their membership would significantly increase the cartel's energy clout, though the amount of Alaskan Native holdings is undetermined because the government has not yet approved lands due the natives under Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act.

MacDonald, who is also Navajo tribal chairman, considers CERT the OPEC for Native Americans. Indian groups, like the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, were once exploited and are "now attempting exploitation of their own," said MacDonald.

"CERT is no different from the American Petroleum Institute which is a trade organization for oil producing companies," said MacDonald.

"Energy management and development is the only hope for our children and the preservation of our culture," said MacDonald.

But some Indians disagree.

A group called the National Indian Youth Council headquartered in Alburquerque, N.M., sued Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus for approving a Navajo lease with Consolidated Coal Co. and El Paso Natural Gas Co., saying strip mining will cause "irreversible damage to the Navajo lifestyle, land, air and water."

"The plaintiffs are unequivocally opposed to this stripmining project because they believe that by devastating their lands, it will also devastate their culture," the youth group said.

"The proposed coal strip mine will force the relocation of more than 200 Navajo People who make their living by raising livestock and dry farming," the group said. "The prospect of losing their ancestral lands and adopting a completely alien way of life will have a traumatic effect on the people."

In addition, the young Indians said strip mines will destroy native plants and herbs used in healing and religious ceremonies.

The mines, they argued, also would destroy sacred burial grounds, lands with religious and archeological significance and rich fossil-bearing sites.

MacDonald counters that the group lost a vote on the Navajo Tribal Council. "Unfortunately, we operate just like any other democratic society, the majority rules," he said.

Unlike OPEC, MacDonald's group will seek financial aid from Washington to meet its goals.

"We cannot begin comprehensive management and development plans unless we know the quantity and quality of the resources we have," said MacDonald.

Administration officials told MacDonald the budget has $7 million this year for inventory of tribal energy resources.

"But $7 million divided by 25 tribes is peanuts. We need several hundred million to do inventories."

As an example of OPEC-like clout, MacDonald said CERT members would not sign new leases without inventories.

MacDonald also wants the government to provide lawyers, geologists, hydrologists, petroleum engineers, and environmentalists to help evaluation of restoring the lands.

He talked about sitting alone across a conference table from oil company officials surrounded by a host of engineers, scientists and advisers.

"I didn't know if what I signed was a good deal or a bad deal," he said.

Prime examples of "bad deals" were long-term leases signed by the tribes and approved by the government during the 1950s when the price of coal was cheap.

MacDonald now wants those leases opened for renegotiation. If that fails, he wants the government to give the tribes a "parity payment" to make up the difference between a fair price for coal and the price companies earn under the contracts.
