T-Bar expected to finish ahead of schedule

Freshwater district president says pipeline to bring water on May 10 or May 14

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

The T-Bar Ranch water pipeline is coming online earlier than expected.

By May 10 or May 14, the Midland County Freshwater District No. 1 will begin delivering water to the residents of Midland, said Jose Cuevas, president of the district.

These new dates put the project about three weeks ahead of schedule.

Cuevas said two tanks, a 2 1/2-gallon tank and a 5-gallon tank, are full and passed testing.

About 25 percent of the water fill pumps are ready, which are capable of providing 20 million gallons of water to the city per day. Cuevas said the pipeline will initially provide the city with 10 million gallons per day, but the capacity will increase to 20 million per day as demand increases.

By March 20, all the water pipeline, from the water field, to Farm-to-Market Road 1877, will be complete, Cuevas said.

With less than 2 inches of rain recorded so far in 2013 and two years into a statewide drought, the T-Bar Ranch water pipeline project is expected to provide water relief to Midland for about 40 years.

The $200 million project, spearheaded by the Midland County Freshwater District No. 1, features a 65-mile pipeline that goes from the T-Bar Ranch in Winkler and Loving counties to the utility lines of Midland businesses and homes.

In a Speaking Out column, which will appear in next Sunday's Reporter-Telegram, Mayor Wes Perry said of the project: "It is the biggest project the city of Midland has ever accomplished at almost $200 million and is a product of working cooperatively with the Fresh Water Supply District No. 1: Parkhill, Smith and Cooper and numerous other contractors. It will provide a water supply for at least the next 40 years. And, most notably, the taxpayers of Midland incurred no debt in the construction of this project."

Under the Freshwater District's contract with the city, the water district is entitled to a $5,000 per day incentive if it finishes the project early. It also agreed to pay $5,000 per day if it misses its May 31 deadline.

PROTECTING PLAYAS

Bush encourages natural habitat preservation

By Audrie Palmer
apalmer@mrt.com

Former first lady Laura Bush on Friday encouraged ranchers and farmers to find their own playas and keep them as a natural habitat for wildlife in the area.

Bush was the luncheon speaker at the first Jenna Welch Nature Study Center playa symposium. The symposium at the Petroleum Club included a panel of a variety of experts in the field of playas and conservation and served as an educational seminar for the newly opened I-20 Wildlife Preserve.

With more than 300 playa lakes in Midland County, Bush said the one restored under Interstate 20 at the preserve is the 12th largest in the area.

Without any rivers, lakes or other sources of water, she said that it's important for landowners to keep with the native grasses and other vegetation around them.

"They serve as flyways. The birds will go on down to the little isthmus of Panama on a flyway in Midland County," she said. "If you have a playa, do what you can so that the birds can stop here."

The area playas provide wildlife with places to drink, so ranchers should try to protect these lakes to ensure there's water after it rains, she said.

Bush said she was happy to be in Midland on Friday and to speak at the symposium. The planned nature center will bear the name of her mother, Jenna

Autopsy: Russian boy's death an accident

By Betsy Blaney
Associated Press

ODESSA — The death of a 3-year-old adopted Russian boy has been ruled an accident by West Texas authorities, but officials said Friday they are still investigating a case that has become a flashpoint in the debate over international adoption.

Four doctors reviewed the autopsy report and agreed that Max Shatto's death on Jan. 21 was not intentional, Ector County Sheriff Mark Donaldson and District Attorney Bobby Bland said. Preliminary autopsy results had indicated Max had bruises on several parts of his body, but Bland said Friday that those bruises appeared to be self-inflicted. He also said no drugs were found in Max's system.

"I had four doctors agree that this is the result of an accident," he said. "We have to take that as fact."

Alan and Laura Shatto adopted Max, born Maxim Kuzmin, and his half-brother, 2-year-old Kristopher, from an orphanage in western Russia last fall. Laura Shatto told authorities she found Max unresponsive outside their Gardendale, Texas, home while he was playing with his younger brother. The boy was pronounced dead at a hospital a short time later.

Russian authorities have blamed the boy's death on his adoptive parents and used the case to justify a recently enacted ban on all American adoptions of Russian children. Russia's Investigative Committee has said it has opened its own investigation. It's unclear whether the committee could charge the Shatto family or force their prosecution.

A.J. Weatherl

On Thursday morning, February 28, 2013, A.J. Weatherl, age 83, loving husband, father, brother and friend peacefully passed from this life to the next surrounded by loved ones. He had been hospitalized at Midland Memorial since Saturday, February 23rd for a sudden illness.

Born May 5, 1929 in Miller, Oklahoma to Otis and Kathleen Weatherl, A.J. attended Miller schools and later pursued academic work at the University of Houston in the area of electronics. He served his country in the United States Army, including over a year of service abroad during the Korean War. He was honorably discharged in 1954 to the US Army Reserves having earned a Korean Service Medal with one Bronze Star, a United Nations Service Medal, a National Defense Service Medal, and the Good Conduct Medal. Upon his discharge, A.J. returned to his work as a Lineman for Mobil Pipeline. He was later promoted to Division Troubleshooter in Houston and Beaumont, Texas. A.J. earned his license in Microwave Communications and transferred to Midland in 1963 as a Microwave Technician. After rising to the post of Communications Supervisor, A.J. was tapped to work on a number of special initiatives, including projects in Alaska and Saudi Arabia. A.J. retired from Mobil in October of 1986 with 39 years of service. After retirement, A.J. worked in the insurance industry and also established his own company, Jay's Promotional Products, which he later sold to Century Graphics.

On December 27th of 1954, A.J. married Fern "June" Willingham in Lincoln County Oklahoma. Parents of Marla, Steven, and Kathleen, the two were married for 56 years and worked as a team to establish a loving and supportive household for themselves and their children. The couple was fiercely devoted to family and delighted in any event involving their children or grandchildren. They were equally devoted to extended family and relished their annual trek to the Weatherl Family Reunion. Their mutual devotion to a life of worship, outreach, and service to community was expressed in their church-related activities and community-based endeavors such as serving as a delivery team for the Meals on Wheels organization. The couple enjoyed traveling in their trailer to destinations in Texas and the US, and made a number of trips abroad to Mexico, Canada, and the United Kingdom. A.J. and June also shared an affinity for bowling, competing at the league level for a number of years. Other collaborative interests included dancing and listening to music, and watching professional golf in person and on television.

A.J. was the consummate storyteller, had the ability to talk with-and charm-literally anyone, and possessed a remarkable and envious sense of humor. A faithful Christian servant, he attended St. Paul and St. Luke's United Methodist churches and was a member at First Christian Church. In each of these settings, young children knew him as the man who always had a sucker or stick of gum to share. A.J.'s uncompromising moral compass guided his thinking, behavior, and decision-making, allowing him to serve as a role model for all who knew him. Others who had the joy of interacting with A.J. over time knew him as a golfer, a little league and softball coach, an umpire, a boy scout leader, and a skilled cards, checkers, and dominoes player.

U. of Idaho president lone Texas Tech finalist

Regents have chosen University of Idaho President M. Duane Nellis as the lone finalist for the Texas Tech University presidency.

Texas Tech University System regents made the selection on Friday. System Chancellor Kent Hance calls Nellis "a visionary leader with an outstanding record of accomplishment in higher education.

He would succeed Lawrence Schovanec, who served as Tech's interim president since the August resignation of Guy Bailey. State law requires 21 days to pass before final action is taken on the appointment.

In a statement, Nellis said he had believed his Idaho appointment in July 2009 would cap his career and that the Texas Tech opportunity came as a surprise. He said he takes pride in the University of Idaho's work as Idaho's flagship national research university.

Lawsuit: Girl told to pledge allegiance to Mexico

The family of a teenager who says she was punished by her South Texas school for refusing to recite the Mexican pledge of allegiance has filed a federal lawsuit claiming her constitutional rights were violated.

The lawsuit says Brenda Brinsdon was a high school sophomore in 2011 when her teacher told students to stand for the pledge of allegiance and to sing the Mexican national anthem.

It says Brinsdon's teacher and principal tried to "coerce" her when the girl declined to participate. The lawsuit was filed Wednesday in McAllen.

McAllen school district spokesman Mark May said Thursday the class was conducting a "cultural awareness assignment." He said students each day pledge allegiance to the United States and Texas and that they're not directed to offer a pledge to any foreign country.

AUSTIN

Texas seeks No Child Left Behind waiver

Texas has formally sought a waiver from the U.S. Department of Education to avoid accountability standards imposed by the No Child Left Behind law.

The state had been one of 11 nationwide not to seek a reprieve from some mandates of the federal policy. But Education Commissioner Michael Williams announced in September that Texas would change course.

Williams' agency said Friday it had submitted a letter seeking to forego accountability standards and to avoid at-risk student intervention guidelines in favor of existing state policies.

Previously, Texas had not sought a wavier because of fears the federal government might eventually impose a national curriculum.

Last year, nearly half of Texas' public and charters schools failed to meet No Child Left Behind accountability standards, which are getting more rigorous annually.

Former Central Texas housing director indicted

A grand jury has indicted the former director of a Central Texas housing authority who's accused of diverting more than $200,000 in taxpayer money to family members.

State authorities said Brenda D. Schroeder is charged with felony theft by a public servant, submitting fraudulent credit applications and engaging in organized criminal activity.

They said Friday the 62-year-old Schroeder ran the Smithville Housing Authority for six years and wrote checks to herself and others. She was fired last year.

Wendall B. Bennett, Schroeder's son, was indicted for felony theft and engaging in organized criminal activity. Authorities said Schroeder falsely claimed her son was a landlord eligible for federal subsidies.

Schroeder was being held Friday at the Bastrop County jail on two separate $250,000 bonds. Bennett remains held on a $250,000 bond.

East Texas sheriff facing theft, tampering counts

Clinton did not return a message for comment Friday. Dark referred additional questions to county Criminal District Attorney Danny Buck Davidson, who did not return phone messages.

Clinton was overwhelmingly elected sheriff in November. He was an officer with the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission for 24 years.

T-bone wreck traps driver in car

From staff reports

A driver became trapped inside her car after a pickup hit her vehicle in a right angle — or T-bone — collision in front of Travelodge at the West Loop 250 and Interstate 20 interchange at about 11 a.m. Friday.

A driver of a gray pickup was stopped on the northern I-20 frontage road exit and was turning left to head north on West Loop 250, according to MPD Sgt. Jason Lee. Meanwhile, a silver car was traveling north on West Loop 250 as the truck proceeded to turn onto Loop 250.

The front of the truck hit the driver's side of the car, Lee said. This caused the driver's front door to be stuck. Police were able to extract her from the vehicle.

Neither driver was injured. The truck driver will be cited for failure to yield the right of way to the car, Lee said.

Both vehicles were towed away.

Programs encourage sharing of footage with police

Associated Press

DALLAS — Suburban Dallas resident Scott Lindsey is joining a growing group of homeowners collaborating with police by providing home-surveillance footage that may help nab criminals prowling their neighborhoods.

"Criminals are criminals, but if criminals understand that the entire city is wired with surveillance, they may be a little more hesitant," said Lindsey, who has several cameras at his Richardson home.

The Dallas Morning News reported Friday that police departments in the Dallas suburbs of Richardson and Sachse last month launched separate efforts in which residents sign up with authorities, submitting information about their camera systems.

Police then can contact volunteers near crime scenes, asking residents to review their footage to see if the cameras caught anything.

Alex del Carmen, chairman of the University of Texas at Arlington's criminology and criminal justice department, said such cameras are more symbolic than useful, but people can benefit by feeling safer.

"It allows the resident to be a stakeholder," del Carmen said. "The community comes together to fight crime."

But the use of these cameras also raises questions about civil rights and privacy, del Carmen said.

"Where do you draw that line between the usage of video cameras to protect us from crime and the expectation of privacy that citizens should have?" he said.

But such concerns appear to lag behind a prevailing belief that communities must remain vigilant against crime.

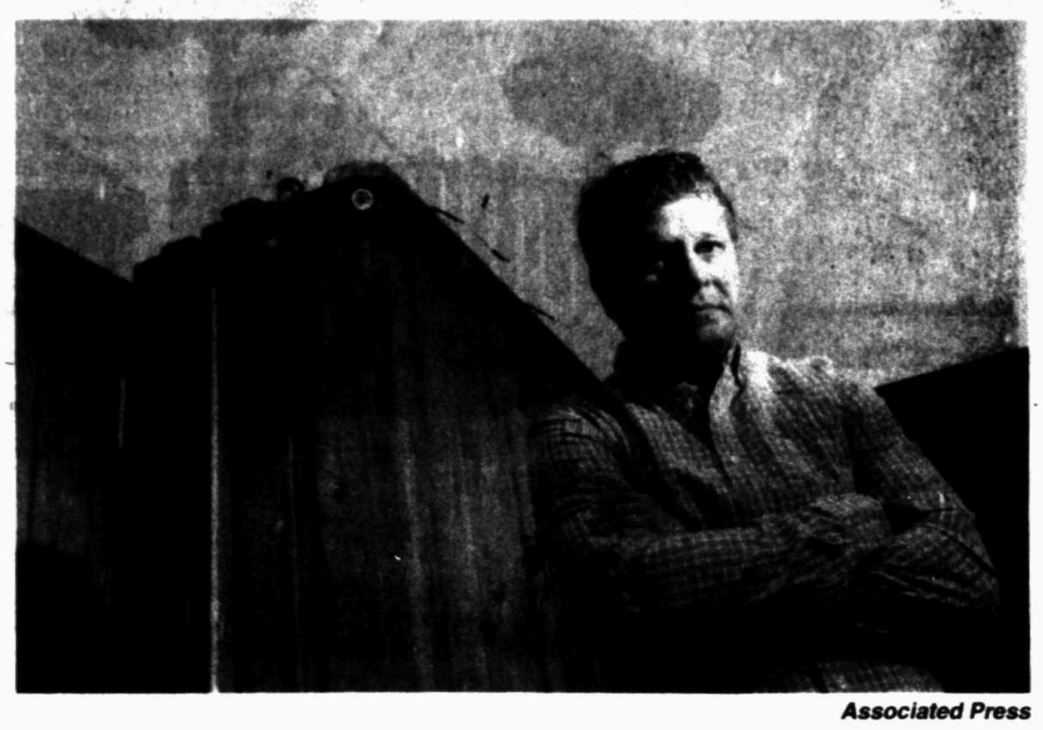
Authorities said they don't intend to turn neighborhoods into places where residents are monitored 24 hours a day, and volunteers will decide if they want to turn over images or footage that captured criminal activity.

"By making sure that we use this technology in cooperation with the citizens, I think this can be a huge benefit to solving crimes," said Mike Wisenant, a Richardson police officer who's helping manage his department's Neighborhood Video Crime Watch program.

Police in Richardson said that about 30 residents had signed up. Sachse reported a similar number of participants.

The Dallas Police Department has used homeowners' recorded video footage in past investigations and is studying what other cities are doing with their video partnerships, said police spokesman Lt. Paul Stokes.

In Philadelphia, police have launched SafeCam, which allows residents and businesses to register their cameras. Other police departments across the country work with businesses or apartment complexes that have surveillance systems.



Associated Press

Scott Lindsey poses on Feb. 21 in front of his fence, where he has a camera and lighting mounted, at his home in Richardson. Lindsey is one of the residents who have volunteered to join the video program with the Richardson Police Department. If any suspicious activity happens in his neighborhood, Scott is willing to volunteer the footage from his video cameras and share it with Richardson police.

Children play on new playground equipment at Grafa Park in January. Grafa is one of six parks around Midland that can be toured today as part of the Progressive Playground Party. People who visit all six parks are eligible to win prizes. The other parks are John P. Butler, Pioneer, Sparks, House and Ulmer.

IT'S TIME TO PLAY

Tour encourages residents to visit city's parks

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

Parents looking for a way to spend time with their kids today might consider Progressive Playground Party, planned for 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The party is a tour of six Midland parks that have new playground equipment: Grafa, Midkiff Road and Ma-Mar Avenue; Butler, 3801 Bluebird Lane; Pioneer, 2001 Lindora Lane; House, 4800 Ric Drive; Sparks, 1500 E. Golf Course Road; and Ulmer, 2700 W. Kentuky Ave. Each park will offer different activities such as balloons, face painting and snacks.

The party is a promotional effort by the city of Midland's Parks and Recreation division to get families to visit the city parks outside their neighborhoods, said Laurie Williams, parks and recreation division manager

As an incentive to visit all six parks, residents can pick up a punch card at one of the parks and get a punch for each one they visit. After getting six punches, they then are eligible to win prizes during a drawing at the Martin Luther King Jr. Community Center at 3 p.m. today.

There will be 25 prizes, all parks-and-recreation related, Williams said. Some of the prizes include rental passes for pavilions, swimming passes, MLK Community Center passes and a private movie screening at a park.

The party will occur a few months after the six parks were renovated with new playground equipment. All the new equipment conforms to new safety standards, she said.

Some of the new equipment will be a Mega Tower system at Grafa Park and a 630-degree Typhoon Spiral Slide at John P. Butler Park. This equipment was targeted for children ages 5 though 12, Williams said.

Future activities planned by the parks and recreation division include summer movies and themed pool activities such as a luau or a hot dog day.

Rise in fatal crashes prompts driver safety campaign

By Mella McEwen
mmcewen@mrt.com

The opportunities created by the Permian Basin's thriving economy has attracted thousands from across the country and across the globe.

But the increased traffic also has resulted in an increase in vehicle crashes resulting in fatalities or serious injuries. The Texas Department of Transportation reported that in preliminary estimates for 2012, there were 4,128 fatal and serious injury crashes — 320 fatalities — in 58 counties of the Permian Basin. That is a 27 percent increase in fatalities over 2011.

Officials with TxDOT, the Texas Department of Public Safety and area counties have launched a public education campaign: "Be Safe. Drive Smart."

"We're committed to taking steps to improve safety," said Mike McAnally, Odessa district engineer with TxDOT, on Friday in announcing the campaign.

He said that over the next 10 days, billboards and signs at gas pumps and on convenience store windows will urge drivers to take basic safety precautions: drive at safe speeds, give trucks extra room, pass other vehicles safely and avoid distracted driving.

The hazards have increased along rural roads, where drivers are not used to driving in heavy traffic and where often the roads are narrow and don't have shoulders to help drivers avoid crashes, he said.

"The issue is incredibly important," said Susan Redford, Ector County judge. "It is incumbent upon us as elected officials to discuss with our citizens everyday driver safety. Enough people have died on our roadways."

Luke Legate, with the Texas Oil and Gas Joint Association Education Initiative — comprised of nine statewide oil and gas trade associations — said the companies that are members of those associations are aware of their impact.

The companies are committed to safety, and many are taking a proactive approach, whether the drivers are at the wheel of big rigs, vans or pickups, he said. Those procedures include classroom training, practical training, driving companions — supervisors riding along to ensure the driver is ready — exams and refresher courses.

Driver fatigue has become a growing issue because many oilfield workers work 12 to 15 hours and then travel great distances back home, Legate said. That has prompted some member companies to establish procedures to ensure drivers get enough rest.

He said other safety initiatives include the use of cutting-edge technology, such as GPS monitors, back-up cameras, hands-free communications devices and stabilizers.

Despite those efforts, "everyone has a role in keeping the roads safe — oil and gas companies, commercial drivers, ordinary drivers, teens and senior citizens," Legate said.

Carey Matthews, regional commander, Region 4 of the Texas Department of Public Safety, urged drivers to exercise extra caution on the crowded roads.

The main contributing factors to crashes are failure to control speed or speeding, failure to yield the right-of-way, driving while intoxicated and disregarding stop signs or stop lights, he said.

Matthews also said drivers should follow the basic safety measures of wearing their seat belts, observe posted speed limits and traffic signs, red lights and stop signs, drive to road conditions, exercise extreme caution in passing other vehicles, avoid aggressive driving, don't text and drive and plan ahead.

Matthews, whose region ranges from El Paso to Junction, said until additional troopers are recruited to the area, he has brought in troopers from other areas for task forces such as last December's Operation Asphalt. He said drivers can expect similar operations as the DPS works to ensure commercial drivers are obeying commercial driving regulations and to discourage hazardous driving habits.

Shawn Baxter, a DPS trooper, said the department's goal is always voluntary compliance with road rules, something the DPS works to achieve with heightened visibility.

Baxter, who works in safety education, said 90 to 95 percent of vehicle crashes are caused by human error. The remaining 5 to 10 percent are true accidents caused by unforeseen circumstances such as mechanical failure, tire blowouts or animals or other obstructions in the road, he said.

He summed up the campaign this way: "Make better decisions, drive smart and eliminate human error. Don't take unnecessary risks."

Death

consul general in Houston, said he wanted to see an official report from authorities before commenting on Friday's announcement.

The investigation into the boy's death continues, Bland said. Once investigators complete their work, Bland will meet with them and decide whether to pursue charges such as negligent supervision or injury to a child by omission. He did not say when such a decision would be made.

The Shatto family's attorney, Michael J. Brown, said that Max's death being ruled an accident "is not a surprise to me at all." Three doctors from the Tarrant County Medical Examiner's Office in Fort Worth, which completed the autopsy, and another doctor agreed on the finding.

Brown said Max suffered from behavioral issues and occasionally butted his head on objects or other people, which is how he got bruised. He also noted that Max was taking doctor-prescribed medication to treat hyperactivity but that his parents don't believe the medication played a role in the child's death.

Donaldson, the sheriff, has said that Laura Shatto told investigators that she went inside to use the bathroom, and when she came back outside, she found Max near playground equipment outside the family's home.

No one answered the phone at the Shatto home Friday, and a sign had been posted on the driveway: "No Comment."

The Russian government passed its ban on international adoptions in December in retaliation for a new U.S. law targeting alleged Russian human-rights violators. The ban also reflects lingering resentment over the perceived mistreatment of some of the 60,000 children Americans have adopted during the last two decades. At least 20 of those children have died, and reports of abuse have garnered attention in Russia.

Chuck Johnson, CEO of the Virginia-based National Council for Adoption, said an agreement ratified last year would have prevented the conditions that led to many deaths and abuse cases. One change in particular would have required all adoptions to go through agencies licensed in Russia.

"The deaths were terribly tragic, horrible," Johnson said in a Feb. 19 interview. "But the frustrating thing has been that those cases have become the face of inter-country adoption, and they shouldn't be."

The Texas Department of Family and Protective Services said Friday it found no violations at the Gladney Center for Adoption in Fort Worth, the agency that processed the Shattos' adoption. The state's Child Protective Services division is proceeding with a separate investigation into allegations that Max was subject to physical abuse and neglect, but has not determined whether those allegations are true.

Russian state media have featured the boys' biological mother, Yulia Kuzmina, who lost custody over negligence and serious drinking problems. In a tightly choreographed Feb. 21 interview on state television, Kuzmina insisted Russian custody officials seized her children unfairly and said she wanted to be reunited with her other son, born Kirill Kuzmin. She said she had given up drinking, found a job and pledged to fight to get the boy back.

Russian President Vladimir Putin's spokesman, Dmitry Peskov, has said it is necessary "to temper emotions" over the case, and U.S. Ambassador to Russia Michael McFaul has called for "sensational exploitations of human tragedy to end and for professional work between our two countries to grow, on this issue and many others."

Bush

From 1A

Welch, who she said got her interested in the outdoors.

Her mother was her Girl Scouts leader when she earned her bird badge, and Welch went on to continue bird watching as a hobby and can name the native wildflowers.

During a press conference at the symposium, Bush said she and former President George W. Bush have 100 acres of native prairie. They bought their ranch 12 or 13 years ago but had to plow for four or five years to rid the land of the non-native grass, she said.

After plowing, they began to plant native grass seeds. During the fourth year, she said, they experienced a drought and then during the fifth year an overabundance — 56 inches — of rain. With the help of a full-time employee, they're now able to have 100 acres full of central Texas native prairie.

"Since we've done that, we've heard bobwhite quail again nest on the ground," she said.

Because Texas is arid, Bush said having the native grasses and prairies is what will help the plants and wildlife to maintain in the environment. She's also encouraging seed growers to grow native seeds.

"It's about people learning to do on their own property what's best for their property. They're protecting what's already native there and working with each other to find out what that is," she said.

Bush recently co-founded the nonprofit organization Taking Care of Texas along with her friend, Katharine Armstrong. Armstrong was appointed to the Texas Parks and Wildlife commission in 1998 by then-Gov. Bush.

"It's about people learning to do on their own property what's best for their property."

Laura Bush, former first lady

Armstrong and TCT have been working with landowners around Fort Hood since 2000 to create habitats, which is a perfect example of the government, military and private landowners working together, Bush said.

Because TCT is a 501c3, Bush said it can't lobby in the Legislature, but the organization wants people to know what it can do.

She said it's not just for farmers and ranchers. Homeowners also can plant flowers in their backyards to attract butterflies and birds.

She challenged Midlanders to remember they live in a very arid part of the state.

"Do what you can to conserve water ... (even if that) just means turning water off while you brush your teeth," she said. "Water is a very crucial issue here and across the state."

She encouraged residents to participate in Keep Midland Beautiful's clean-up event on April 6 and to get involved in tackling the community's litter problem. She also asked operators to make sure there are covered trash recepticals at well sites so that the litter doesn't blow away.

"I see a lot of litter in Midland, and I know why. I know we have these very high winds that blow everything," she said.

Darryl Birkenfeld, who also spoke at the symposium, discussed what makes playas, why they are important and which birds and amphibians use them.

Birkenfeld, who lives between Amarillo and Lubbock, is familiar with West Texas. He said about 70 of the area's playas have been altered by roads going through them, which keeps the water sources from serving the needed ecological functions.

If playas were to disappear, the area would see much fewer wildlife habitats, he said. It would affect the central flyway, which is continental and stretches from the Arctic circle in Alaska to the south and to Mexico.

"It's a massive highway that goes through our part of the world," he said. "Playas are like 7-Elevens. Birds that use them don't stay forever. They may stay a day or two, but (the playas are) vital because they're a resting place and places to get food."

The effect on people and society would be in the recreational opportunities because many are used as parks and for bird watching.

It would also remove one of our only sources of surface water, Birkenfeld said.

While most of the research into playas has been done in the past 20 years, he believes the I-20 preserve is a good step for the Midland community and that it's something he'd love to see in other cities.

He recommended that in order to preserve playas and wildlife, businesses should not place transmission towers in playa lakes and that they should space wind turbines far enough apart do they don't interrupt the migration of species such as the Sandhill cranes and bats that are a source of pollination for the area.

HOUSTON

US rig count drops by four to 1,757

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. this week dropped four to 1,757, according to Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

The number of rigs listed as searching for oil increased by four to 1,333. There were 420 rigs searching for gas, a decrease of eight. Miscellaneous rigs were unchanged at four.

At this time last year, there were 1,989 rigs in the U.S. Among them, 1,293 were listed as searching for oil, 691 for gas and five as miscellaneous.

There were 185 directional drilling rigs this week, a decrease of 12; 1,141 horizontal rigs, down one; and 431 vertical rigs, up seven.

In Texas, there were 841 rigs exploring for oil and natural gas, a decrease of two. At this time last year, there were 926 rigs in the state.

Among the other major oil- and gas-producing states, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania each gained two rigs. Arkansas gained one rig.

Louisiana's rig count dropped by five. Colorado lost two rigs, and Alaska and West Virginia each lost one.

California and Wyoming were unchanged.

In the U.S., 1,686 rigs were listed as on land, 19 were in inland waters and 52 were offshore. There were 51 rigs in the Gulf of Mexico.

Canada lost seven rigs this week to settle at 655. There were 509 listed as searching for oil, an increase of five. Canada lost 12 gas rigs to finish the week at 146.

The total number of rigs in North America was 2,412.

CALIFORNIA

Californians could pay nation's highest gas taxes

CULVER CITY — Californians could end up paying the highest gasoline taxes in the nation when a 3.5-cents-per-gallon increase kicks in this summer.

The state Board of Equalization voted Thursday to increase the excise tax from 36 cents to 39.5 cents per gallon on non-diesel fuel beginning with the new fiscal year July 1, partly to offset tax losses because Californians are using less gas.

The change is expected to provide more than $500 million in revenue for the fiscal year, based on consumption figures. The diesel fuel tax will remain unchanged at 10 cents per gallon.

The excise tax is levied on gasoline suppliers but is often passed on to consumers. With the increase, a driver who travels 15,000 miles a year at 20 miles per gallon would pay about $26 in additional taxes.

When federal and other state taxes are added, Californians this summer could pay the highest gas tax in the nation, averaging more than 70 cents per gallon, according to petroleum industry figures. However, the board said in a statement Friday that it "cannot predict what the selling price of gasoline will be" on July 1.

The excise tax is the largest of the state taxes on gasoline. It was increased in 2010 under a change in gasoline tax laws to help close a nearly $20 billion state budget deficit.

ARIZONA

Company looking for oil and gas in Cochise County

SIERRA VISTA — A company wants to lease and develop the Bisbee/Douglas International Airport for oil and-or gas exploration.

The Sierra Vista Herald reported a land researcher from Gusher State LLC told the Cochise County Board of Supervisors that the company has been leasing mineral rights for $1 per acre annually for properties along Highway 191 from Elfrida to Douglas.

The airport's 2,640 acres sits in the area where the company plans to begin exploration in Sulphur Springs Valley.

Nine wells have been pumping in northeast Arizona's Dineh-Be-Keyah field since 1967.

Gusher State currently has leased the mineral rights to more than 100,000 public and private acres.

If oil were to be found on any of that acreage, the company says owners would then be entitled to a one-eighth royalty per barrel.

NEW YORK

Oil falls as spending cuts loom; pump prices dip

Oil fell Friday to its lowest level of the year on worrisome economic developments in the world's two largest oil-consuming nations.

The price of crude fell 1.5 percent and is down 6 percent in two weeks. That should allow drivers to catch their breath after a record rise in gas prices over the first two months of the year.

The average price for a gallon of gas rose 49 cents from Jan. 1 through the end of February, AAA said, eclipsing last year's increase of 46 cents in the same period.

Oil dropped close to $90 a barrel Friday as the prospect of U.S. government spending cuts raised concerns about oil demand in the world's leading economy. In addition China's manufacturing grew at its weakest rate in five months in February.

Benchmark crude for April delivery fell $1.37 to close at $90.68 a barrel.

OKLAHOMA CITY

Chesapeake Energy reveals SEC probe into CEO perks

Chesapeake Energy Corp. and outgoing CEO Aubrey McClendon are being investigated by the Securities and Exchange Commission about a perk that allows McClendon to invest personally in the company's oil and gas wells.

Chesapeake revealed the investigation Friday in its annual 10-K report filed with the SEC.

According to the report, the SEC opened an investigation in December, stepping up what had begun as an informal inquiry started in May.

The probe is looking into a deal that McClendon, who founded Chesapeake in 1989, has long had with the company that allows him to invest personally in the oil and gas wells the company drills.

McClendon financed his stakes in the wells with loans secured by his interest in the wells. Last spring Reuters reported that McClendon received loans of $1.4 billion from an investment firm called EIG Global Energy Partners that was negotiating a separate oil and gas deal with Chesapeake.

WASHINGTON

State Dept: No major objections to Canada pipeline

The State Department on Friday raised no major objections to the Keystone XL oil pipeline and said other options to get the oil from Canada to Gulf Coast refineries are worse for climate change.

But the latest environmental review stops short of recommending whether the project should be approved. State Department approval of the 1,700-mile pipeline is needed because it crosses a U.S. border.

The lengthy report says Canadian tar sands are likely to be developed, regardless of whether the U.S. approves Keystone XL, which would carry oil from western Canada to refineries in Texas.

Homeland Security released more than 2,000 immigrants

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Homeland Security Department released from its jails more than 2,000 illegal immigrants facing deportation in recent weeks due to looming budget cuts and planned to release 3,000 more during March, The Associated Press has learned.

The newly disclosed figures, cited in internal budget documents reviewed by the AP, are significantly higher than the "few hundred" illegal immigrants the Obama administration acknowledged this week had been released under the budget-savings process.

The government documents show that Immigrations and Customs Enforcement released roughly 1,000 illegal immigrants from its jails around the U.S. each week since at least Feb. 15. The agency's field offices have reported more than 2,000 immigrants released before intense criticism this week led to a temporary shutdown of the plan, according to the documents.

The states where immigrants were released include Arizona, California, Georgia and Texas.

The White House has said it was not consulted about the releases, and Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano has acknowledged they occurred in a manner she regrets. White House spokesman Jay Carney on Wednesday said the government had released "a few hundred" of the roughly 30,000 illegal immigrants held in federal detention pending deportation proceedings. Carney said the immigrants released were "low-risk, noncriminal detainees," and the decision was made by career ICE officials.

As of last week, the agency held an average daily population of 30,733 in its jails. The internal budget documents reviewed by the AP show the Obama administration had intended to reduce those figures to 25,748 by March 31.

ICE spokesman Brian Hale said Friday the numbers of immigration detainees fluctuate daily, but he reiterated only several hundred illegal immigrants had been released. "Beyond that normal movement, and as fiscal uncertainty remains over the continuing resolution and possible sequestration, ICE reviewed its detained population to ensure detention levels stay within ICE's current budget and placed several hundred individuals on methods of supervision less costly than detention," Hale said in a statement. "At this point, we don't anticipate additional releases, but that could change."

The immigrants who were released still eventually face deportation and are required to appear for upcoming court hearings. But they are no longer confined in immigration jails, where advocacy experts say they cost about $164 per day per person.

Immigrants who are granted supervised release — with conditions that can include mandatory check-ins, home visits and GPS devices — cost the government from 30 cents to $14 a day, according to the National Immigration Forum, a group that advocates on behalf of immigrants.

POLITICS BRIEFS

FROM WIRE REPORTS

WASHINGTON

Farm bill would save less than previously thought

Farm bills passed by the Senate and a House committee last year would save far less money than previously thought, according to a new estimate released Friday.

A report from the Congressional Budget Office says a Senate-passed farm bill would save $1.3 billion annually, as opposed to the $2.3 billion per year in savings estimated last year. A bill passed by the House Agriculture Committee would save $2.7 billion a year instead of $3.5 billion.

While the amounts may seem small in comparison to the bills' $100 billion-a-year cost, the estimates are another roadblock for the embattled legislation and the farm-state lawmakers who have fruitlessly tried to convince House leadership to move forward on it.

WASHINGTON

Obama pardons 17 people

President Barack Obama on Friday issued pardons for 17 people, largely for minor offenses.

Those receiving pardons came from 13 states and had been sentenced for crimes that included falsely altering a money order, unauthorized acquisition of food stamps, drug violations and possession of an unregistered firearm.

No one well-known was on the list released by the White House. Some of the crimes drew light penalties in the first place — such as a North Carolina woman sentenced to two years' probation and 100 hours of community service for distributing satellite cable decryption devices.

A dozen of the 17 had been placed on probation. The other five had been sentenced to prison terms ranging from 54 days to five years. For those placed on probation, the length ranged from one year to five years.

Hagel: budget cuts won't erode US military power

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel lamented $46 billion in automatic defense budget cuts as "abrupt and arbitrary" but expressed confidence Friday that the Obama administration will find ways to manage them without jeopardizing national security.

At his first news conference since replacing Leon Panetta as Pentagon chief, Hagel struck a more relaxed tone about the budget reductions, part of $85 billion in government-wide spending cuts that were taking effect Friday at midnight.

Whereas Panetta had warned of "catastrophic" effects that could reduce America to the status of a "second-rate" military power, Hagel said he believed the across-the-board budget cuts and their far-reaching effects will prove manageable.

"Today, America has the best fighting force in the world capable of responding to any challenge," he told reporters. "This unnecessary budget crisis makes that job much harder. But we will continue to ensure America's security."

Hagel met for a little over an hour with the chiefs of each of the services, plus the chairman of the Joint Chiefs, Gen. Martin Dempsey, to discuss budget issues.

Hagel told reporters that numerous actions will be taken in coming days by the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps to begin meeting the requirement for $46 billion in budget savings by the end of the fiscal year on Sept. 30. He said thousands of defense civilian workers, for example, will be notified later this month that they could be required to take one day of unpaid leave per week through September.

President Barack Obama has exempted military personnel from the automatic budget cuts, and the Pentagon has decided that its combat operations in Afghanistan, as well as its nuclear weapons force, will be protected from reductions. Even so, the Army will curtail training of forces other than those scheduled to go to Afghanistan; the Air Force will reduce flying hours for pilots and the Navy has already announced plans to delay ship deployments and ship maintenance.

Ashton Carter, the deputy defense secretary, said the Pentagon is doing all it can to prevent a drastic curtailment of troop training. But he said that will prove harder if the administration and the Congress are unable to strike a budget deal soon.

"(For) those who do not appreciate how serious this is, as the year goes on, it will be unmistakable," Carter said. "This is not subtle."

The defense spending cuts will hit some states harder than others.

Carter sent warning letters to the governors of 10 states that will be most severely impacted: Virginia, Texas, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Florida, California, Maryland, Ohio, Alabama and Washington.

The letters lay out in stark terms the number of civilian defense workers in each state who will face unpaid furloughs and the cutbacks that will hurt local bases and defense contractors. Copies of the letters were provided to The Associated Press on Friday.

Defense cuts and the states

The automatic spending cuts, called the sequester, could effect states where defense contracts are key to the economy. States that are most dependent on defense dollars.

SpaceX company fixes Dragon capsule problem

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A commercial craft carrying a ton of supplies for the International Space Station ran into thruster trouble shortly after liftoff Friday. Flight controllers managed to gain control, but were forced to delay its arrival at the orbiting lab.

The earliest the Dragon capsule could show up is Sunday, a full day late, said top officials for NASA and the private company SpaceX.

"We're definitely not going to rush it," said SpaceX's billionaire founder Elon Musk. "We want to make sure first and foremost that things are safe before proceeding."

The Dragon, owned and operated by SpaceX, holds considerable science experiments for the space station as well as food and spare parts.

Musk said six hours into the flight that all four sets of thrusters finally were working. "All systems green," he reported via Twitter. The problem may have been caused by a stuck valve or a line blockage. The thrusters are small rockets used for maneuvering the capsule.

An hour later, the Dragon was raised with the thrusters to a safe altitude. "Dragon back on track," he said in a tweet.

It was the first serious trouble to strike a Dragon in orbit. None of the four previous unmanned flights had any thruster issues, Musk told reporters by phone from company headquarters in Hawthorne, Calif.

He said it appeared to be a glitch versus a major concern.

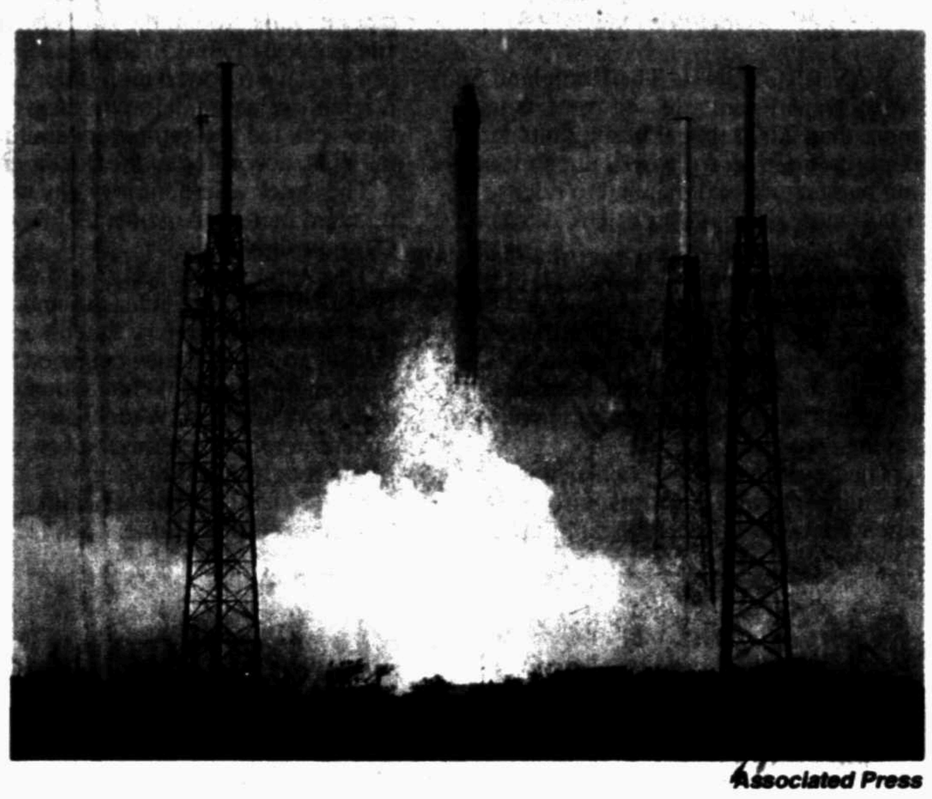
SpaceX has a $1.6 billion contract with NASA to make a dozen deliveries to restock the space station. This is the third trip by a Dragon capsule to the station; the first Dragon flight, in 2010, was a solo test.

NASA space station program manager Mike Suffredini said at least three groups of thrusters on the Dragon need to work before the capsule can come close to the complex. That's a safety rule that will not be waived, Suffredini said.

Engineers for both SpaceX and NASA plan an exhaustive study before allowing the rendezvous to take place. The Dragon could hang around at least a month before linking up with the station, Musk said. It's supposed to spend more than three weeks there, in large part to accommodate science samples that will be on the return trip.

SpaceX is in charge of the flight until it gets near the space station. Then NASA calls the shots.

"If we can convince ourselves the data's good, I suspect we can find an opportunity on Sunday, but again, we have to go look at it," Suffredini said.



Associated Press

The Falcon 9 SpaceX rocket lifts off from launch complex 40 at the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station in Cape Canaveral, Fla., on Friday. The rocket is transporting the Dragon capsule to the International Space Station containing more than a ton of food, tools, computer hardware and science experiments.

Coaches' sons learning together with the Rebels

Lee catcher Hunter Coleman snags a low pitch prepares to catch a pitch Thursday against Lubbock Estacado during the Tournament of Champions at Ernie Johnson Field.

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

Blake Blessie and Hunter Coleman are teammates, but that doesn't mean that there isn't some playful playground banter about which dad is better.

Blessie and Coleman are not only two freshman making an immediate impact on the Lee baseball team this season, but they are also the sons of the baseball coaches at Odessa College and Midland College.

And the playful banter goes on almost every day between Coleman, the son of Midland College coach David Coleman, and Blessie, the son of Odessa College baseball coach Brian Blessie.

Blessie

"It's like, 'My dad is going to beat your dad,' and just messing around like that," Coleman said.

The banter, though, is just fun for these two friends who have spent nearly their whole lives around baseball, and around baseball coaches. They admitted having fathers who are a part of the game was a help to them in their budding high school careers.

Now as members of the Rebels, which are 1-2 so far in the Tournament of Champions, they are seeing all that time on baseball fields pay off. Plus, it's something that first-year Lee coach Brian Roper, a former successful junior college coach himself who also has a son playing at Lee, has noticed.

"I know their dads well, and I've known their dads for a long time,

Farris fends off threat

Trinity runner wins 3,200

By Jonathan Hull
jhull@mrt.com

Most athletes in the area know Christian Farris the distance runner. Last weekend, his classmates got to meet Christian Farris the thespian.

Farris picked up his typical gold medal in the Division I Boys 3,200 meters at the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational on Friday, and the Trinity senior did so despite missing a few days of his typical training regimen a week before the event.

"I was in the school play last week so I had to miss a few days of work," Farris said. "I didn't get any sleep and took off like four days. It was awful. I didn't really have time to run. It was homework, trying to sleep when I could and the play."

Farris played a Bow Street Runner in Trinity's rendition of Oliver Twist last weekend, which kept him from getting in his normal practice time for a few days.

"I had a whole seven lines," Farris said with a smile. "It was fun. I had never done anything like that before."

But whatever time Farris might have spent out of his running shoes, certainly didn't have an effect on where he finished Friday. The Trinity senior went out and easily won the 3,200 with a time of 9 minutes, 59.78 seconds, although he did get an unexpected challenger in the form of San Angelo Central's Zach Cabrera.

"I really wasn't expecting a challenge," Farris admitted. "I didn't know him, and didn't expect anyone to keep up with me as long as he did."

Farris said he was impressed with Cabrera's ability to keep up with him as long as he did, and tried to allow Cabrera to pass him on several occasions.

"I wanted to let him in front so I could kind of draft him and let him do more of the work," Farris said. "But he would never pass me. He was trying to draft me. So I started to play a little game with him."

Chaparrals confident heading into WJCAC play

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

The Midland College baseball team has been playing some consistent ball lately and that is good news for the Chaparrals as conference play is set to begin.

The Chaparrals (9-4) kick off Western Junior College Athletic Conference play this weekend with a four-game series at Frank Phillips College (7-3). The doubleheaders of seven and nine innings are scheduled begin at noon both Sunday and Monday.

MC coach David Coleman said from what he's seen from his team, he's been pleased with the Chaps' competitiveness, the consistency and the way they've been able to overcome adversity in games. After beginning the season with a 1-2 showing at Weatherford College, the Chaps have won eight of their last 10 games.

Coleman

"If you would have told me we would be 9-4 (heading into conference) I would have taken it," Coleman said. "We've only really had one day where we didn't play at the level we're capable of playing, outside of opening weekend. But you can throw that weekend out with all the nerves and other stuff going on.

"Offensively our hitters are really good right now and have given us a chance to score runs and they have given us opportunities. When you have a chance to score runs, you never feel like you're out of a game."

That MC offense has a team batting average of .324, good for fifth in the WJCAC. The Chaps have also outscored their opponents 112-55.

Leading the Chap hitters are the team's one-two catcher punch of Chris Shaw and Hunter Redman. Redman, a Midland Christian grad, leads MC with a .452 batting average, while Shaw, a freshman from Canada, is batting .444.

Shaw has been catching starting sophomore pitcher Jeremy Filipek, who has emerged as the team's No. 1 starter this season. Coleman said Shaw and Filipek seem to be comfortable with each other, so he'll likely keep that battery intact. But Coleman added that with the way Redman and Shaw have been playing, he's pretty comfortable in the ability of both of his catchers.

"In a sense we really have two number one catchers," Coleman

Lady Chaps seeded 3rd in Region V tournament

From staff reports

The Midland College women's basketball team will be the No. 3 seed in next week's Region V Tournament in Lubbock.

The No. 14-ranked Lady Chaparrals (23-7) lost a coin flip with New Mexico Junior College and will play No. 21 Collin County (25-4), the No. 2 seed out of the North Texas Junior College Athletic Conference, at noon Wednesday at Lubbock Christian University's Rip Griffin Center.

MC shared the Western Junior College Athletic Conference title with NMJC and South Plains after the Lady Chaps lost 79-71 to the Lady Thunderbirds Thursday night in Hobbs, N.M.

NMJC (22-5), the No. 2 seed out of the WJCAC, will play McLennan Community College (16-14) at 2 p.m., while South Plains (24-5), the No. 1 seed, will face Temple College (21-9) at 7 p.m. Wednesday. Odessa College (20-7), the No. 4 seed out of the WJCAC, plays No. 19 Weatherford College (22-4) at 5 p.m.

The late start to Friday's opening round of the Midland Girls Invitational wasn't what Ali Cowan was expecting, but she was kind of glad it did happen.

Cowan doesn't like early starts, and after shooting a 2-under 69 on Green Tree Country Club's East and West courses to lead the medalist standings at the tournament she might want another late start today.

Friday's start was delayed because of cold conditions at Green Tree.

"Honestly, the late start kind of helped me because I don't like teeing off early in the morning, and I actually got to eat breakfast," Cowan said. "I definitely warmed up as the day went on."

Records: Midland College 9-4, 0-0 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference; Frank Phillips 7-3, 0-0

Notes & quotes: This is the WJCAC opener for both teams. ... The start of the series was moved back a day because of bad weather in the Panhandler earlier in the week. ... The Chaparrals are expected to start RHP Jeremy Filipek (3-0, 0.95 ERA) in the first game, RHP Jason Zgardowski (1-0, 2.08) will start the second game and then RHP Thomas McIlraith (2-1, 2.08) will start the third game. MC coach David Coleman said the fourth-game starter is open depending on who is used out of the bullpen in the previous games. ... Coleman said he hasn't seen Frank Phillips play or doesn't know anybody who has played them, but knows that the Plainsmen are an improved team from last year. "They've played well early and they won a couple of tough road games," Coleman said. "By looking at their numbers they seem to have played well in the pre-conference part of their season. We'll have our hands full."

said. "That gives you a tremendous amount of confidence to use one of those guys in another role when one of them is not playing. You can DH those guys, or since Jay Gonzales has swung the bat so well there, you can use them in a pinch hit role. They both have been in that situation. Redman got a big double against Hill in a pinch hit role and Shaw got a big pinch hit this weekend. They still have an opportunity to make an impact even if they're not (catching)."

While MC hasn't had trouble generating runs, its pitching has been solid as well. The Chaps are third in the league with a 3.62 team ERA, led by the right-hander Filipek, who is 3-0 with a 0.95 ERA.

Coleman said freshman right-hander Thomas McIlraith (2-1, 2.08) has also pitched well in a starting role, while the bullpen has seen good work out of sophomore right-hander Jared Robinson (1-0, 2.19) and freshman right-hander Clay O'Dell (1-0, 4.22), who has pitched well recently in middle-to-late inning relief.

"In his very first college outing at Weatherford, he comes in with the bases loaded and he handled that well," said Coleman of O'Dell. "He came in with the bases loaded against Cloud (County) in Hobbs and minimized that issue. And then against Colby, he came in and stabilized the game. He's been impressive all three times out."

While there are a couple of spots that Coleman and his staff continue to tinker with, the head coach said he believes his team is in good shape heading into the WJCAC schedule.

"I think roles are starting to get developed and we're getting some questions answered," Coleman said. "We don't have everything answered but going into the first conference weekend we've had the ability to put guys in some spots and seen how they have handled things."

Plainview's Silvas has banner day with no-hitter

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

Brent Silvas felt pretty good Friday morning at Ernie Johnson Field.

It was a little chilly as his Plainview squad was getting set to take on El Paso Franklin in its third game of the Tournament of Champions.

But in a little over two hours, Silvas was feeling really good.

Silvas threw a no-hitter against Franklin, a perennial playoff team, as the Bulldogs won, 8-0, and won their second straight game of the tournament. But it was the no-hitter that was the highlight of the game for the Bulldogs as they continue their first season under former Lubbock Coronado coach Jimmy Webster.

Silvas

The Bulldogs beat El Paso Montwood, 12-6, on Thursday night at Citibank Ballpark.

"I just came out focused and ready to play, really focused," Silvas said. "My team was making the plays out in the field, that last inning we had a couple of errors but we pulled it out there and we got the 'W'"

Silvas didn't give the Cougars much of a chance to mount any kind of a rally as he used a well-spotted fast ball and a curve ball to keep Franklin off-balance.

The Cougars were able to load the bases in the seventh, but Silvas still didn't give up a hit and was able to work his way out of the winning with a fly ball to left.

Meanwhile, the Bulldog bats kept putting pressure on Franklin throughout the game, and they even executed a double squeeze with the bases loaded that scored two runs.

Silvas said the squad is playing with plenty of confidence since Webster has come on board this summer after he took over for Hector Limon Jr.

"He really knows what he's talking about and he's a really good coach," Silvas said. "It's been a lot different, and everyone on our team likes him and we all want to be out here and we are ready to play and get going."

Webster said his transition back to high school wasn't that hard as he only spent two years in college at Texas Tech, and spent 19 years coaching high school.

He said there is a difference in coaching in a one-school town such as Plainview compared to his years in Lubbock, and said he's gotten plenty of support from the day he walked on campus.

"The situation is good, the kids are hungry and they want to win," Webster said after Thursday night's victory. "They haven't had a lot of success the last two or three years and they want it."

Plainview will finish the tournament against Amarillo Tascosa and Odessa Permian today, and for Webster with as tough as this tournament is, he wants to see his players competing every game.

"They do a really, really good job at this tournament and we like coming to it," Webster said. "From a baseball standpoint, we just want to come out and play to the level we feel like we can play at. If we win fantastic, if somebody plays at a higher level than us on that particular day we will tip our hat and move on as long as we are getting after it."

On Friday morning, it was Webster's squad receiving that tip of the hat.

SONS

and those kids understand the game," said Roper, whose team lost to El Paso Montwood, 7-0, on Friday afternoon. "They've been around the game, and kind of like my son (Brady), they've grown up around it and it's kind of a special deal."

It wasn't until this past year that the two became close friends. Blessie moved to Midland this past summer as the two had played against each other in games before the high school, but had not really known each other beyond the games they were playing in. Now, though, they are pretty tight.

Plus the two said they've been welcomed by the older players on the team. Yes, they still have to do the things that freshmen are expected to do such as working on the field like they were on Friday, but they said they've felt a part of the team from the beginning.

"Being a freshman on varsity is awesome, and it feels real good," said Blake Blessie, who picked up a pitching victory on Thursday night against El Paso Hanks. "And there's a bunch of older kids that help us out a lot too, and they are not like you would think they are."

David Coleman said him and Brian Blessie have known each other for more than two decades, and to have their sons playing together on the same high school team has been a great experience.

"We are great friends ... dear friends," Coleman said. "I think we are .500 against each other in the six years I've been here. He loves my kids like his own, and I love his kids like my own. The only time I root against Blessie is the only time we are against each other on the schedule."

Brian Blessie said the two coaches are competitors on the field, but when they are off of it and sitting in the stands they are more dads than anything else.

"On the field, it's a different ball game, yes you are friends and you want to respect each other and play good baseball and beat a good-coached team," Blessie said. "But off the field it's about family, it's about the kids and what we can do to help each other."

Midland High's Brent Stewart tries to snag a base hit against Grapevine during the Tournament of Champions on Friday at Zachery Field.

Both coaches said they were more than happy to hear that Roper was taking over the program because they know how he coaches and the success he's had. That has helped make their sons transition to varsity that much easier.

"You know, the best Juco coach is the one coaching the Lee Rebels," David Coleman joked. "He's won over 500 games. The baseball community is small, and it just so happened that we all happened to be at the same place doing the same things."

And for the families of both, playing on the varsity as freshmen has exceeded their expectations, and they know there will be some rough times ahead. But the experience the two will gain this season could prove invaluable down the road, and Hunter Coleman said it's kind of nice having a coach at the kitchen table.

"Our dreams are to keep playing as long as we can," Hunter Coleman said, "and having them definitely helps since they are at that level."

MHS GOES 0-1-1 ON THE DAY: After a solid start on Thursday, the Bulldogs faced their toughest tests of the tournament on Friday and finished with a tie and a loss. Midland High began the day with a 4-4 tie against Grapevine at Zachery Field in a game that ended because of the two-and-half hour time rule, and then at Citibank Ballpark later that night Class 4A stalwart Wolfforth Frenship beat the Bulldogs, 2-1.

TWO NO-NOS: A pair of seven-inning no hitters were thrown on Friday during the second day of the tournament.

Plainview's Brent Silvas threw one in an 8-0 victory against El Paso Franklin at Ernie Johnson Field. Then in the final game at Christensen Stadium on Friday night, Andrews' Christian Marquez struck out 12 in a 3-0 no-hit victory against Odessa High.

Forsan's Haggard puts frustrating year behind her, wins triple jump

By Jonathan Hull
jhull@mrt.com

If Raegan Haggard had her way she would probably forget her sophomore year ever happened.

That's because it was a year of frustrations for the Forsan junior filled with injuries that kept her from competing the way she prefers. But Haggard is leaving that all behind her, and is preparing herself to literally leap to new goals she's never achieved before.

On Friday, Haggard picked up a gold medal in the Division III Girls triple jump competition at the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational at Memorial Stadium. And she did so in impressive fashion, clearing 35 feet, 4 1/2 inches, which placed her more than a foot ahead of Ashley Rackow of Lee's junior varsity squad.

But that wasn't the only Rackow she out-jumped. Haggard also had a better leap than Lee senior Tori Rackow, who won the Division I Girls triple jump event with a mark of 34-8. And while Haggard was happy with having the best triple jump on the girls side in the entire meet, she's not nearly satisfied.

"Actually, it's not even my best jump. I'm going for 39 this year hopefully," Haggard said. "I'm really happy with it. I just want to get to a 39, and I think I can get a 40 if I work hard enough. It's a good start."

Haggard's best jump came when she was a freshman, topping out at 37 feet, 3 3/4 inches. She was unable to build off of that effort, however, as a nagging hip flexor injury set in during her sophomore year, keeping her from being competitive.

"Injuries. The story of my life," said Haggard, who also medaled at the state cross-country meet as a freshman. "It doesn't stop me, it just holds me back a little. The pounding in triple jump, it's just that much worse. The only cure is to stop running."

So Haggard tried to limit how much she would run for a majority of her sophomore year, and although she experienced yet another injury during cross-country season this year, she's feeling good at the moment.

"I'm perfect. Fine. I just want to compete," Haggard said. "It was frustrating last year. It was hard not being able to compete. So I'm praying for no injuries this year."

So far, so good on the injury front, and if she can continue to spend less time in the trainer's room, Haggard might be able to reach her biggest goal this season and qualify for the state meet in Austin.

"It's just like the ultimate goal in high school," Haggard said. "It's the furthest you can go. I like competing and I like success."

FARRIS

From 1B

Farris began putting on random bursts of speed, trying to get Cabrera to answer in order to hang with him.

"He did a good job of hanging with me until my final burst," Farris said. "All I thought was, 'Finally.'"

Farris put on the jets one final time just as he started his final lap and Cabrera simply didn't have the gas to match him. Cabrera ended up settling for silver with a time of 10:06.03. But Farris was relieved to have some competition this early in the season.

"I'm always looking for someone to push me," Farris said. "I figured someone might finish relatively close to me, but I wasn't expecting it to be that close. I was really glad to have the competition."

Farris, who is set to compete in the steeplechase at the Texas Relays in Austin in a few weeks and will also take part in some distance races at an invitational meet at Rice University in Houston, has his sights set on reaching a time of 9:30 in the 3,200 and 4:20 in the 1,600 before his senior year ends.

And with no more appearances in a school play scheduled, he'll have plenty of practice time to achieve his goals.

TALL CITY INVITE NOTEBOOK

MHS BOYS WIN PAIR OF GOLD MEDALS: Isaac Eng and DeAndre Goodley each won individual gold medals for the Midland High boys track team Friday in their respective field events.

Eng won the first gold, dominating the discus event with a throw of 150 feet, 1 inch. It's Eng's first varsity gold medal in discus. He out-threw Lee's Daniel Nelson, who finished second at 130-3.

Goodley also had to beat a crosstown rival to win his gold in the long jump. He cleared 22 feet even, which was slightly better than Lee junior Darius Strambler's mark of 21-9.5. Midland High's Mazelle Justice got fifth in the long jump at 20.6.25.

Also medaling for Lee on Friday was Darrien Wallace, who shared second place in the high jump with Odessa Permian's Keouvion McCalop after clearing 5-10.

RACKOW WINS TRIPLE JUMP GOLD: Tori Rackow began what is going to be a very busy weekend for her with a gold medal in the triple jump, clearing 34 feet, 8 inches.

Rackow is set to participate in the long jump at 10 a.m. today before heading to a soccer match in Odessa against Odessa High at noon. She'll then make her way back to Memorial Stadium to run in the 200 meters.

TAYLOR HAS BEST DISCUS THROW OF DAY: Midland Christian's Bryson Taylor left no doubt who the best discus thrower is at the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational. Taylor had the best throw regardless of division, clearing 163 feet, 9 inches.

That throw would have picked him up a gold medal in Division I as well by more than 13 feet.

James Durbin/Reporter-Telegram

Midland High's DeAndre Goodley participates in the long jump event during the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational on Friday at Memorial Stadium.

Also winning a gold medal for Midland Christian on Friday was Matt Ramirez, who took the Division II Boys high jump title, clearing six feet even.

BERRYHILL GETS NO COMPETITION: Midland Christian's Kami Berryhill found herself alone in the Division II Girls pole vault competition, but she still ended up with the best vault of the day regardless of division.

Berryhill might have won the gold medal by default but cleared a height of 12 feet to secure it. That was six inches better than any other girls vaulter at the meet.

Errors hurt Lady Chaps in split at tourney

From staff reports

LUNDY — The Midland College softbal team had a rough day defensively and it finally caught up to the Lady Chaparrals in their second game of the day at the Region 14 Crossover Tournament on Friday.

The Lady Chaps overcame four errors in their opening game to beat Lamar State, 7-0, but committed seven more errors in their second game, which turned out to be a 7-1 loss to Butler (Kan.) Community College.

In the win, the Lady Chaps got a four-hit shutout performance from pitcher Shelby Weissenbach, who struck out four batters and walked two. Pililani Smith-Keopuhiwa hit two home runs and had four RBI in the win.

All seven of Butler's runs were unearned in the second game as the Lady Chaps struggled both at the plate and in the field.

"That was our biggest problem," MC coach Tommy Ramos said. "We had some excellent defensive plays at moments, but we had too many errors in the second game."

MC continues play at the Region 14 Crossover Tournament today.

of four on the day for the Lee senior, but Cowan also had six birdies as she was one of two players to shoot under par on Friday.

Along with Cowan, San Angelo Central's Kamryn Cummings shot a 1-under 70 and was in second. Midland Christian sophomore Christian Curnutte is in third after a 3-over 74.

"I left some strokes out there believe it or not, and in these conditions I'm extremely happy with what I shot," Cowan said. "It was definitely challenging with the wind, and it was cold, I just wanted to be in bed."

Cowan's round, though, was not the only bright spot for the Lady Rebels. Lee will take a 12-stroke lead into today's final round at Hogan Park.

Senior Libby Thomas shot a 77, while Talyn Standard fired an 86, Sarah Pitts 97 and Alexis Adkinson an 87. Lee totaled 319 as a team and is 12 strokes ahead of District 2-5A rival San Angelo Central, which shot a 331. Odessa Permian's II team is third at 358.

"I actually think we do have a shot (at winning), and it's a great confidence builder," Standard said. "Lee hasn't won the Midland Girls Invitational in like 10 years, and it would be pretty awesome if we pulled it out and did pretty well."

Curnutte

Curnutte's day didn't start well as she was 5-over at one point on the front nine, but Curnutte rebounded to card some birdies and steady herself with a bunch of pars for the 74.

"It was one of those days, it was just a weird morning," Curnutte said: "I'm just not a morning person, and I was kind of grumpy already. But I just picked it up and woke up a little bit."

Midland High's top team shot a 383 as Kathryn McGowan led the team with an 89.

The two-day tournament will conclude today as the field will be split into two-seven team divisions. MHS will be first in Division II.

The round will begin with an 8:30 a.m. shotgun start on Hogan Park Golf Course's Quail Course.

WYLIE'S UECKERT ACES DURING TOURNEY: Abilene Wylie's Kristen Ueckert recorded a hole-in-one on No. 7 East during tournament play on Friday. Ueckert used a 9-iron from about 115 yards.

Forsan's Haggard puts frustrating year behind her, wins triple jump

By Jonathan Hull
jhull@mrt.com

If Raegan Haggard had her way she would probably forget her sophomore year ever happened.

That's because it was a year of frustrations for the Forsan junior filled with injuries that kept her from competing the way she prefers. But Haggard is leaving that all behind her, and is preparing herself to literally leap to new goals she's never achieved before.

On Friday, Haggard picked up a gold medal in the Division III Girls triple jump competition at the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational at Memorial Stadium. And she did so in impressive fashion, clearing 35 feet, 4 1/2 inches, which placed her more than a foot ahead of Ashley Rackow of Lee's junior varsity squad.

But that wasn't the only Rackow she out-jumped. Haggard also had a better leap than Lee senior Tori Rackow, who won the Division I Girls triple jump event with a mark of 34-8. And while Haggard was happy with having the best triple jump on the girls side in the entire meet, she's not nearly satisfied.

"Actually, it's not even my best jump. I'm going for 39 this year hopefully," Haggard said. "I'm really happy with it. I just want to get to a 39, and I think I can get a 40 if I work hard enough. It's a good start."

Haggard's best jump came when she was a freshman, topping out at 37 feet, 3 3/4 inches. She was unable to build off of that effort, however, as a nagging hip flexor injury set in during her sophomore year, keeping her from being competitive.

"Injuries. The story of my life," said Haggard, who also medaled at the state cross-country meet as a freshman. "It doesn't stop me, it just holds me back a little. The pounding in triple jump, it's just that much worse. The only cure is to stop running."

So Haggard tried to limit how much she would run for a majority of her sophomore year, and although she experienced yet another injury during cross-country season this year, she's feeling good at the moment.

"I'm perfect. Fine. I just want to compete," Haggard said. "It was frustrating last year. It was hard not being able to compete. So I'm praying for no injuries this year."

So far, so good on the injury front, and if she can continue to spend less time in the trainer's room, Haggard might be able to reach her biggest goal this season and qualify for the state meet in Austin.

"It's just like the ultimate goal in high school," Haggard said. "It's the furthest you can go. I like competing and I like success."

From 1B

Farris began putting on random bursts of speed, trying to get Cabrera to answer in order to hang with him.

"He did a good job of hanging with me until my final burst," Farris said. "All I thought was, 'Finally.'"

Farris put on the jets one final time just as he started his final lap and Cabrera simply didn't have the gas to match him. Cabrera ended up settling for silver with a time of 10:06.03. But Farris was relieved to have some competition this early in the season.

"I'm always looking for someone to push me," Farris said. "I figured someone might finish relatively close to me, but I wasn't expecting it to be that close. I was really glad to have the competition."

Farris, who is set to compete in the steeplechase at the Texas Relays in Austin in a few weeks and will also take part in some distance races at an invitational meet at Rice University in Houston, has his sights set on reaching a time of 9:30 in the 3,200 and 4:20 in the 1,600 before his senior year ends.

And with no more appearances in a school play scheduled, he'll have plenty of practice time to achieve his goals.

TALL CITY INVITE NOTEBOOK

MHS BOYS WIN PAIR OF GOLD MEDALS: Isaac Eng and DeAndre Goodley each won individual gold medals for the Midland High boys track team Friday in their respective field events.

Eng won the first gold, dominating the discus event with a throw of 150 feet, 1 inch. It's Eng's first varsity gold medal in discus. He out-threw Lee's Daniel Nelson, who finished second at 130-3.

Goodley also had to beat a crosstown rival to win his gold in the long jump. He cleared 22 feet even, which was slightly better than Lee junior Darius Strambler's mark of 21-9.5. Midland High's Mazelle Justice got fifth in the long jump at 20.6.25.

Also medaling for Lee on Friday was Darrien Wallace, who shared second place in the high jump with Odessa Permian's Keouvion McCalop after clearing 5-10.

RACKOW WINS TRIPLE JUMP GOLD: Tori Rackow began what is going to be a very busy weekend for her with a gold medal in the triple jump, clearing 34 feet, 8 inches.

Rackow is set to participate in the long jump at 10 a.m. today before heading to a soccer match in Odessa against Odessa High at noon. She'll then make her way back to Memorial Stadium to run in the 200 meters.

TAYLOR HAS BEST DISCUS THROW OF DAY: Midland Christian's Bryson Taylor left no doubt who the best discus thrower is at the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational. Taylor had the best throw regardless of division, clearing 163 feet, 9 inches.

That throw would have picked him up a gold medal in Division I as well by more than 13 feet.

James Durbin/Reporter-Telegram

Midland High's DeAndre Goodley participates in the long jump event during the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational on Friday at Memorial Stadium.

Also winning a gold medal for Midland Christian on Friday was Matt Ramirez, who took the Division II Boys high jump title, clearing six feet even.

BERRYHILL GETS NO COMPETITION: Midland Christian's Kami Berryhill found herself alone in the Division II Girls pole vault competition, but she still ended up with the best vault of the day regardless of division.

Berryhill might have won the gold medal by default but cleared a height of 12 feet to secure it. That was six inches better than any other girls vaulter at the meet.

Errors hurt Lady Chaps in split at tourney

From staff reports

LUNDY — The Midland College softbal team had a rough day defensively and it finally caught up to the Lady Chaparrals in their second game of the day at the Region 14 Crossover Tournament on Friday.

The Lady Chaps overcame four errors in their opening game to beat Lamar State, 7-0, but committed seven more errors in their second game, which turned out to be a 7-1 loss to Butler (Kan.) Community College.

In the win, the Lady Chaps got a four-hit shutout performance from pitcher Shelby Weissenbach, who struck out four batters and walked two. Pililani Smith-Keopuhiwa hit two home runs and had four RBI in the win.

All seven of Butler's runs were unearned in the second game as the Lady Chaps struggled both at the plate and in the field.

"That was our biggest problem," MC coach Tommy Ramos said. "We had some excellent defensive plays at moments, but we had too many errors in the second game."

MC continues play at the Region 14 Crossover Tournament today.

"It's an opportunity for us as it is them," Hicks said. "It's coming down to that rivalry thing again." The two teams played to a scoreless draw on Feb. 2, and the Broncos need a win today to stay in the playoff hunt. ... Hicks said that senior midfielder Reilly Gwin is out for at least the next three games with a knee injury. ... The Lady Bulldogs' playoff position didn't change a lot as they are 10 points ahead of Abilene High in the standings, but they are two points behind second-place Odessa Permian. LEE of four on the day for the Lee senior, but Cowan also had six birdies as she was one of two players to shoot under par on Friday.

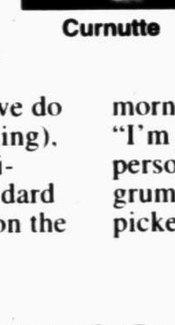
Along with Cowan, San Angelo Central's Kamryn Cummings shot a 1-under 70 and was in second. Midland Christian sophomore Christian Curnutte is in third after a 3-over 74.

"I left some strokes out there believe it or not, and in these conditions I'm extremely happy with what I shot," Cowan said. "It was definitely challenging with the wind, and it was cold, I just wanted to be in bed."

Cowan's round, though, was not the only bright spot for the Lady Rebels. Lee will take a 12-stroke lead into today's final round at Hogan Park.

Senior Libby Thomas shot a 77, while Talyn Standard fired an 86, Sarah Pitts 97 and Alexis Adkinson an 87. Lee totaled 319 as a team and is 12 strokes ahead of District 2-5A rival San Angelo Central, which shot a 331. Odessa Permian's II team is third at 358.

"I actually think we do have a shot (at winning), and it's a great confidence builder," Standard said. "Lee hasn't won the Midland Girls Invitational in like 10 years, and it would be pretty awesome if we pulled it out and did pretty well."



Curnutte

Curnutte's day didn't start well as she was 5-over at one point on the front nine, but Curnutte rebounded to card some birdies and steady herself with a bunch of pars for the 74.

"It was one of those days, it was just a weird morning," Curnutte said. "I'm just not a morning person, and I was kind of grumpy already. But I just picked it up and woke up a little bit."

Midland High's top team shot a 383 as Kathryn McGowan led the team with an 89.

The two-day tournament will conclude today as the field will be split into two-seven team divisions. MHS will be first in Division II.

The round will begin with an 8:30 a.m. shotgun start on Hogan Park Golf Course's Quail Course.

WYLIE'S UECKERT ACES DURING TOURNEY: Abilene Wylie's Kristen Ueckert recorded a hole-in-one on No. 7 East during tournament play on Friday. Ueckert used a 9-iron from about 115 yards.

Forsan's Haggard puts frustrating year behind her, wins triple jump

By Jonathan Hull
jhull@mrt.com

If Raegan Haggard had her way she would probably forget her sophomore year ever happened.

That's because it was a year of frustrations for the Forsan junior filled with injuries that kept her from competing the way she prefers. But Haggard is leaving that all behind her, and is preparing herself to literally leap to new goals she's never achieved before.

On Friday, Haggard picked up a gold medal in the Division III Girls triple jump competition at the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational at Memorial Stadium. And she did so in impressive fashion, clearing 35 feet, 4 1/2 inches, which placed her more than a foot ahead of Ashley Rackow of Lee's junior varsity squad.

But that wasn't the only Rackow she out-jumped. Haggard also had a better leap than Lee senior Tori Rackow, who won the Division I Girls triple jump event with a mark of 34-8. And while Haggard was happy with having the best triple jump on the girls side in the entire meet, she's not nearly satisfied.

"Actually, it's not even my best jump. I'm going for 39 this year hopefully," Haggard said. "I'm really happy with it. I just want to get to a 39, and I think I can get a 40 if I work hard enough. It's a good start."

Haggard's best jump came when she was a freshman, topping out at 37 feet, 3 3/4 inches. She was unable to build off of that effort, however, as a nagging hip flexor injury set in during her sophomore year, keeping her from being competitive.

"Injuries. The story of my life," said Haggard, who also medaled at the state cross-country meet as a freshman. "It doesn't stop me, it just holds me back a little. The pounding in triple jump, it's just that much worse. The only cure is to stop running."

So Haggard tried to limit how much she would run for a majority of her sophomore year, and although she experienced yet another injury during cross-country season this year, she's feeling good at the moment.

"I'm perfect. Fine. I just want to compete," Haggard said. "It was frustrating last year. It was hard not being able to compete. So I'm praying for no injuries this year."

So far, so good on the injury front, and if she can continue to spend less time in the trainer's room, Haggard might be able to reach her biggest goal this season and qualify for the state meet in Austin.

"It's just like the ultimate goal in high school," Haggard said. "It's the furthest you can go. I like competing and I like success."

From 1B

Farris began putting on random bursts of speed, trying to get Cabrera to answer in order to hang with him.

"He did a good job of hanging with me until my final burst," Farris said. "All I thought was, 'Finally.'"

Farris put on the jets one final time just as he started his final lap and Cabrera simply didn't have the gas to match him. Cabrera ended up settling for silver with a time of 10:06.03. But Farris was relieved to have some competition this early in the season.

"I'm always looking for someone to push me," Farris said. "I figured someone might finish relatively close to me, but I wasn't expecting it to be that close. I was really glad to have the competition."

Farris, who is set to compete in the steeplechase at the Texas Relays in Austin in a few weeks and will also take part in some distance races at an invitational meet at Rice University in Houston, has his sights set on reaching a time of 9:30 in the 3,200 and 4:20 in the 1,600 before his senior year ends.

And with no more appearances in a school play scheduled, he'll have plenty of practice time to achieve his goals.

TALL CITY INVITE NOTEBOOK

MHS BOYS WIN PAIR OF GOLD MEDALS: Isaac Eng and DeAndre Goodley each won individual gold medals for the Midland High boys track team Friday in their respective field events.

Eng won the first gold, dominating the discus event with a throw of 150 feet, 1 inch. It's Eng's first varsity gold medal in discus. He out-threw Lee's Daniel Nelson, who finished second at 130-3.

Goodley also had to beat a crosstown rival to win his gold in the long jump. He cleared 22 feet even, which was slightly better than Lee junior Darius Strambler's mark of 21-9.5. Midland High's Mazelle Justice got fifth in the long jump at 20.6.25.

Also medaling for Lee on Friday was Darrien Wallace, who shared second place in the high jump with Odessa Permian's Keouvion McCalop after clearing 5-10.

RACKOW WINS TRIPLE JUMP GOLD: Tori Rackow began what is going to be a very busy weekend for her with a gold medal in the triple jump, clearing 34 feet, 8 inches.

Rackow is set to participate in the long jump at 10 a.m. today before heading to a soccer match in Odessa against Odessa High at noon. She'll then make her way back to Memorial Stadium to run in the 200 meters.

TAYLOR HAS BEST DISCUS THROW OF DAY: Midland Christian's Bryson Taylor left no doubt who the best discus thrower is at the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational. Taylor had the best throw regardless of division, clearing 163 feet, 9 inches.

That throw would have picked him up a gold medal in Division I as well by more than 13 feet.

James Durbin/Reporter-Telegram

Midland High's DeAndre Goodley participates in the long jump event during the Rogers Ford Lincoln Tall City Invitational on Friday at Memorial Stadium.

Also winning a gold medal for Midland Christian on Friday was Matt Ramirez, who took the Division II Boys high jump title, clearing six feet even.

BERRYHILL GETS NO COMPETITION: Midland Christian's Kami Berryhill found herself alone in the Division II Girls pole vault competition, but she still ended up with the best vault of the day regardless of division.

Berryhill might have won the gold medal by default but cleared a height of 12 feet to secure it. That was six inches better than any other girls vaulter at the meet.

Errors hurt Lady Chaps in split at tourney

From staff reports

LUNDY — The Midland College softbal team had a rough day defensively and it finally caught up to the Lady Chaparrals in their second game of the day at the Region 14 Crossover Tournament on Friday.

The Lady Chaps overcame four errors in their opening game to beat Lamar State, 7-0, but committed seven more errors in their second game, which turned out to be a 7-1 loss to Butler (Kan.) Community College.

In the win, the Lady Chaps got a four-hit shutout performance from pitcher Shelby Weissenbach, who struck out four batters and walked two. Pililani Smith-Keopuhiwa hit two home runs and had four RBI in the win.

All seven of Butler's runs were unearned in the second game as the Lady Chaps struggled both at the plate and in the field.

"That was our biggest problem," MC coach Tommy Ramos said. "We had some excellent defensive plays at moments, but we had too many errors in the second game."

MC continues play at the Region 14 Crossover Tournament today.

Notes: The Rebels return to district play today looking to score more than one point in the league standings. Lee hasn't won a game since Feb. 12 and has been a part of three straight ties against Midland High, Odessa Permian and last Saturday against Lubbock Coronado. Lee coach Scott Hicks said today's game could set the tone for the rest of the season, and they need to figure out a way to get more than one point. "It's an opportunity for us as it is them," Hicks said. "It's coming down to that rivalry thing again." The two teams played to a scoreless draw on Feb. 2, and the Bronchos need a win today to stay in the playoff hunt. ... Hicks said

Notes: The Lady Bulldogs are looking to regroup after a frustrating tie against Abilene High on Tuesday. Midland High jumped out to a 3-1 lead, but the Lady Eagles scored two goals late in the second half to garner a point. The Lady Bulldogs' playoff position didn't change a lot as they are 10 points ahead of Abilene High in the standings, but they are two points behind second-place Odessa Permian. "It's still anybody's game and we are not out of it by any means," Dunlevy said. "I'm hoping that the girls see that we've been playing poorly and we are still close, and still right there in it." ... Dunlevy said on Tuesday that his backline struggled, and that at one time he replaced all of his backline players during a substitution. ... The Lady Mustangs won its second straight game on Wednesday beating Amarillo Tascosa 1-0. The game was delayed a day because of heavy snow in the Panhandle.

LEE

of four on the day for the Lee senior, but Cowan also had six birdies as she was one of two players to shoot under par on Friday.

Along with Cowan, San Angelo Central's Kamryn Cummings shot a 1-under 70 and was in second. Midland Christian sophomore Christian Curnutte is in third after a 3-over 74.

"I left some strokes out there believe it or not, and in these conditions I'm extremely happy with what I shot," Cowan said. "It was definitely challenging with the wind, and it was cold, I just wanted to be in bed."

Cowan's round, though, was not the only bright spot for the Lady Rebels. Lee will take a 12-stroke lead into today's final round at Hogan Park.

Senior Libby Thomas shot a 77, while Talyn Standard fired an 86, Sarah Pitts 97 and Alexis Adkinsson an 87. Lee totaled 319 as a team and is 12 strokes ahead of District 2-5A rival San Angelo Central, which shot a 331. Odessa Permian's II team is third at 358.

"I actually think we do have a shot (at winning), and it's a great confidence builder," Standard said. "Lee hasn't won the Midland Girls Invitational in like 10 years, and it would be pretty awesome if we pulled it out and did pretty well."

Curnutte's day didn't start well as she was 5-over at one point on the front nine, but Curnutte rebounded to card some birdies and steady herself with a bunch of pars for the 74.

Curnutte

"It was one of those days, it was just a weird morning," Curnutte said. "I'm just not a morning person, and I was kind of grumpy already. But I just picked it up and woke up a little bit."

Midland High's top team shot a 383 as Kathryn McGowan led the team with an 89.

The two-day tournament will conclude today as the field will be split into two-seven team divisions. MHS will be first in Division II.

The round will begin with an 8:30 a.m. shotgun start on Hogan Park Golf Course's Quail Course.

WYLIE'S UECKERT ACES DURING TOURNEY: Abilene Wylie's Kristen Ueckert recorded a hole-in-one on No. 7 East during tournament play on Friday. Ueckert used a 9-iron from about 115 yards.

McIlroy leaves, Guthrie leads and Woods struggles

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. — Rory McIlroy left before his round was even over. Tiger Woods had to rally just to stick around.

And with all that drama Friday in the Honda Classic, hardly anyone noticed that Luke Guthrie showed off his potential in a big way with a 7-under 63 to take a one-shot lead going into the weekend at PGA National.

McIlroy

Guthrie

Woods

Guthrie, pegged by many of his peers as a rookie worth watching going into the year, played bogey-free on another cool, cloudy day.

Of his seven birdies, perhaps the most impressive for the Big Ten champion from Illinois came on the sixth hole when he had mud on the side of his ball and was able to work the shot in from the right to about 10 feet.

After finishing his round, he walked into an interview room when someone mentioned that McIlroy walked off the course after being 7-over par through eight holes.

"I had no clue," Guthrie said. "I was just kind of going about my business out there."

He was at 9-under 131 and had a one-shot lead over Michael Thompson.

McIlroy, who missed the cut in Abu Dhabi and lost in the first round of the Match Play Championship in his previous two starts, made a double bogey on his second hole and rinsed two balls in the water on the 16th hole on his way to a triple bogey.

He hit his approach to the 18th in the water and never finished the hole.

He shook hands with Ernie Els and Mark Wilson and was on his way, but not before conflicting messages.

McIlroy told three reporters who followed him to his car that it was nothing physical but that he was "not in a good place mentally."

An hour later, he released a statement through his management company that he couldn't concentrate because of a sore wisdom tooth.

Woods looked as if he might join him. After mixing birdies with bogeys, Woods went bunker-to-bunker, over the green, short of the green and wound up with a double bogey on the 13th hole that put him one shot under the cut line with five holes to play.

Instead of the second straight week when No. 1 and No. 2 were gone early, Woods answered with a shot into 5 feet for birdie, a 6-foot par putt on the 16th hole, a par save from the back bunker on the 17th that was easier than it looked, and a par save from near the grandstand by the 18th green that was harder than it looked.

He wound up with another 70 to make the cut on the number, nine shots out of the lead.

"I didn't quite have my game like I did yesterday," Woods said. "I hit it much better yesterday, but I putted better today, so it all evened out."

Fans celebrate Virginia's win over Duke by storming the court Thursday in Charlottesville, Va. Virginia won the game, 73-68.

Fan celebrations taking center court this season

By Aaron Beard
Associated Press

With so many upsets in college basketball, there seems to be daily highlights of fans storming the court to celebrate.

No team has separated itself from the pack and there have been 15 instances when top-five teams in the Associated Press Top 25 poll lost to unranked squads on the road, according to STATS LLC.

That's led to a lot of postgame mayhem — and Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said it's not all fun and games when it happens.

He would know. His third-ranked Blue Devils have lost on the road to start court-storming celebrations four times this year, including Thursday when his team had to battle through the surge at Virginia. The coach said afterward that fans should celebrate, but the focus should be getting the visiting team off the court first.

"Put yourself in a position with one of our players or coaches," Krzyzewski said. "I'm not saying anybody did this but the potential is there all the time for a fan to come up to you and say, 'Coach, you're a ... ' Or push you or hit you. What do you do? What if you did something? That would be the story, right? So we deserve that type of protection."

There had been only seven instances in each of the past two seasons in which AP top-five teams lost to unranked teams on the road. But the past week has shown just how wild this season has been by comparison.

First No. 5 Miami — ranked No. 2 at the time — lost at Wake Forest last weekend. Then top-ranked Indiana lost at Minnesota on Tuesday. The next night, No. 4 Michigan fell to a Penn State team that was 0-14 in Big Ten play.

And in each of those cases, fans gathered around the edges of the court to count off the final seconds before charging in to celebrate at the sound of the horn.

While BCS conferences typically leave it to host schools to manage postgame celebrations, the Southeastern Conference fines its members when fans storm the court. The fines range from $5,000 for the first offense, $25,000 for the second and $50,000 for a third.

Karl Hicks, the ACC's senior associate commissioner for men's basketball, said his league doesn't allow unauthorized personnel on the court before, during or after the game as a general rule. But the ACC doesn't have a policy in place to fine or sanction a school if its fans rush the court.

In those moments, the first challenge for the host school is getting the officials and visiting team off the court safely and as quickly as possible.

"We do share best practices between and amongst schools, and advise where appropriate," Hicks wrote in an email Friday.

Hicks also said he hadn't received any complaints from Duke on Friday regarding the Virginia postgame rush, which created a bottleneck and stalled the Blue Devils as they tried to get to the tunnel and into the locker room as Cavaliers fans ran in.

Jon Jackson, an associate athletic director for media relations and public affairs at Duke, wrote in an email that the university's position is that "the safety of the players and coaches should be paramount at any venue."

He declined to comment when asked whether Duke would file a complaint to the league about anything that happened at Virginia or bring up court storming for discussion at offseason ACC meetings.

As the horn sounded, Virginia security staff wearing yellow jackets formed a line where the teams were shaking hands, while other security staff escorted the Blue Devils to the tunnel on the way to the locker room where the brief delay occurred.

Virginia athletic director Craig Littlepage said Friday it took about a minute from those handshakes until Duke arrived in its locker room. Littlepage said he felt arena staff "did a very good job" of managing the situation Thursday night, down to an announcement discouraging fans from rushing the court.

Bay homers, Mariners connect 4 times vs. Texas

Associated Press

Mariners	8
Rangers	6

PEORIA, Ariz. — The Seattle Mariners wanted to add power and production to this season's lineup, importing veteran hitters while also moving in fences at spacious Safeco Field.

While Cactus League stats shouldn't be taken too seriously, the Mariners' beefed-up offense is hitting home runs at a rapid rate. Jason Bay, Michael Morse, Michael Saunders and Carlos Peguero connected Friday in an 8-6 win over the Texas Rangers.

The Mariners lead the majors in homers this spring. They have connected for 18 in eight games — and won seven in a row.

Mitch Moreland hit a two-run homer for the Rangers, but they couldn't keep up with the Mariners.

After acquiring Morse and Kendrys Morales in trade sand signing Raul Ibanez and Bay, Seattle hopes these offensive outbursts are a sign of good things to come.

"We had a hole that we tried to fill in the off-season," Saunders said. "In terms of pitching, defense and running the bases, I thought we were among the best around. Our issue was offense.

"By getting quality bats that you can stick in the middle of the lineup, it takes some pressure off the younger guys and allows them to progress without tremendous pressure. That's generated some excitement for Mariners baseball," he said.

The Mariners have won seven straight spring training games for the first time since 1998. But the time of year can temper long-term optimism.

Questions remain about whether this revamped offense will produce in the regular season, especially in a competitive AL West.

The Los Angeles Angels spent big money on new talent and the Rangers and Oakland Athletics made last year's postseason.

"We're out here to get ready for the season, but we're also out here to compete," Mariners manager Eric Wedge said. "If you're going to play, you might as well win. I like what's happening in these games. We have a lot of guys with great ability, and it's starting to manifest itself."

The Rangers have scuffled to a 1-6-1 record while experimenting with lineups and nursing several injuries, including calf strains to Lance Berkman and Adrian Beltre that aren't considered serious.

Outfielder Nelson Cruz had chest pains Friday and underwent tests at a local hospital that showed a muscle strain. He's expected to resume baseball activity as early as Saturday.

Texas shortstop Elvis Andrus doubled and walked in his return to the lineup after a bizarre setback. He was scratched the previous day with what the team called "sensitivity in his left arm" — apparently caused by an elaborate tattoo.

Andrus will now join Team Venezuela for the World Baseball Classic.

The Mariners roughed up Cory Burns and Neal Cotts. Neither are serious contenders for the 25-man roster.

Rangers GM Daniels gets promotion, new title

Associated Press

SURPRISE, Ariz. — Texas Rangers general manager Jon Daniels has gotten a new title.

The Rangers on Friday announced that Daniels has been promoted to president of baseball operations/general manager. He says his role will remain the same.

Texas said chief operating officer Rick George also got a promotion, and will now be the team's president of business operations.

When Daniels became the Rangers' general manager in October 2005, he was the youngest GM in major league history at 28 years old. Texas has been to its only two World Series since then.

George joined the team in October 2010 in a role overseeing ballpark operations, including ticket sales. The Rangers last season drew a record attendance of more than 3.4 million people for home games, including 38 sellouts.

Astros, Cardinals play to a tie

KISSIMMEE, Fla. — Joe Kelly remembered his last game appearance, when there was a lot more had stake.

Pitching for the first time since the NL championship series, Kelly opened his bid for a spot in the St. Louis Cardinals' starting rotation with two hitless innings in Friday's 8-8 tie against the Houston Astros.

"There were no people calling me names out there today," Kelly said. "Warming up today in the bullpen, we had Cardinal fans down there, cheering you on, instead of people using derogatory terms and just screaming out hate and blasphemy towards you."

Among three candidates to replace the injured Chris Carpenter in the Cardinals' rotation, Kelly walked one hitter in each inning. He's competing with Shelby Miller and Trevor Rosenthal, and was the last of the three to pitch in an exhibition game.

"For the past three days I've been reminded by everyone in the clubhouse: 'Are you ever going to pitch?'" Kelly said. "I think it made me even more anxious to get out there. I'm one of the last guys to even throw, but it was good to get out there.

"I'm not too happy about my walks. I felt maybe a tad rusty, but I went out there and got my ground balls. That's part of my game and that's what I try to do."

Kelly, a 24-year-old right-hander, was 5-7 with a 3.53 in 16 starts and eight relief appearances as a rookie last year.

"Everyone, of course, wants to start in the big leagues," he said. "That's ultimately what my goal is to do, so I guess that's my preference. I'm happy I'm even given a chance to get that role."

Adron Chambers, Daniel Descalso and Pete Kozma had two hits and drove in two runs each for the Cardinals, who have won five straight.

Chris Carter homered for the Astros, a fifth-inning drive off closer Jason Motte. Brandon Barnes and Brandon Lair also homered for Houston.

Greenwood's Kam Williams tries to drive past Wichita Falls Hirschi guard Terence Cooper during the first half of Friday's Region I-3A semifinal at United Spirit Arena.

Huskies too much for Rangers

By Jordan Mason

LUBBOCK — One minute, Greenwood was down four, and four minutes later, it was down 19.

Early in the second half, Greenwood was keeping pace with No. 8 Wichita Falls Hirschi, but then the 3-pointers started falling — shot after shot, like rain from the United Spirit Arena ceiling — as the Huskies pulled away for a 59-38 victory in a Class 3A Region I semifinal on Friday.

Hirschi knocked down five of its 11 3-pointers in a 22-point third quarter, from which Greenwood was never able to recover.

The Huskies (22-8) move on to face the Rangers' district-mate, No. 5 Abilene Wylie, in the Class 3A Region I final today, while Greenwood ends its season at 20-15 following its first regional tournament appearance since 2004.

"It's a great season. These guys worked hard and put everything they had into it," Ranger coach Zach Boxell said. "It's a great accomplishment anytime you can make it to the regional tournament."

The Rangers were up 11-7 in the first before Hirschi snatched the lead for good on a 12-0 run as Greenwood went 5:19 without scoring a basket, a drought that lasted into the second quarter.

The Hirschi lead swelled to 28-17 in the second, with the Huskies' defense growing peskier with every made basket, before Greenwood put together its own 7-0 run to pull within 29-24 with 1:31 remaining in the half.

Boxell credited the Rangers' patience against the tight Hirschi defense as they entered halftime down 30-24.

Idalou hit some long range shots for some early momentum and then went to the big guy when things got tough down the stretch against No. 8-ranked Jim Ned on Friday night.

Idalou's 6-foot-9 Alan Zahn scored nine of his 15 points in the fourth quarter as the No. 4-ranked Wildcats held off a late rally by the Indians in a 65-52 victory in a Region I-2A semifinal game at Chaparral Center.

"This is his third year to play a lot of minutes for us at the regional tournament, and Alan has been doing this all year," said Idalou coach Tyler Helms of his senior post. "He's been huge, and hopefully he can build on that (today)."

"I was just trying to help out my team. We just had to keep our composure. Every playoff game has been close, so it helped to have that experience."

Alan Zahn, Idalou senior post

Zahn added a game-high 13 rebounds for the Wildcats and after the game was humble about his contributions.

"I was just trying to help out my team," he said. "We just had to keep our composure. Every playoff game has been close, so it helped to have that experience."

With the victory, the Wildcats (33-3) will face No. 7 Holliday, a 42-41 winner over Bushland, in today's 1 p.m. Region I-2A final for the right to go to the Class 2A state tournament. This is the fourth straight regional finals appearance for the Wildcats (33-3), who are also the three-time regional champion.

Jim Ned ends its season at 28-7.

In the first half, Corey Saucillo, who finished with a game-high 23 points, hit four of his five 3-pointers in the game to not only give the Wildcats the early momentum but grab a 38-30 lead at the half.

"Corey can flat fill it up," Helms said. "When he shoots the ball well, it gets everybody going. And it really helps us to be able to go inside after that because it stretches the floor and we're able to throw it in there to Alan and Alan got some easy ones."

After leading by as much as 48-35 late in the third quarter, Idalou saw its lead shrink to 50-48 with 4:43 remaining in the game. The Indians used a 10-2 run and back-to-back 3-pointers from Austin Mays and Brady Leissner to cut into the deficit.

Englishbee's big shot lifts Holliday to final

Time was running down but Holliday patiently passed the ball around the perimeter to get the best look. Then Cameron Englishbee found the ball in his hands, and he knew he had to take the shot.

Englishbee drained a 3—pointer from the top of the key with six seconds remaining in the game to lift the No. 7—ranked Eagles to a nail—biting 42—41 victory over upset—minded Bushland in a Region I—2A semifinal game Friday night at Chaparral Center.

"Coach drew up a good play for us, and the ball happened to be in my hands, and I happened to hit it," said Englishbee, who finished with a game—high 16 points. "They were playing good defense, like they did all night, but that was one of my two threes that went in, and it was a good shot."

Holliday coach Kyle Tucker said the play wasn't originally intended to be a 3—pointer but Bushland did a good job of defending what the Eagles wanted to do.

"We put the ball into our senior's hands, he kind of ad—libbed a quick shot and made it," Tucker said.

The Falcons (20—9) still had one last shot to win it, but Bayler Andrews' attempt from the right baseline missed its mark, sending the Eagles (32—3) to the I—2A final at 1 p.m. today at Chaparral Center against No. 4 Idalou, a 65—52 winner over No. 8 Jim Ned.

"Coach drew up a good play for us and the ball happened to be in my hands, and I happened to hit it."

Cameron Englishbee, Holliday guard

"Their kid had a great look and knocked it down. That's good for him and his team," Bushland coach Steve Rhodes said. "I thought we did a good job of getting it down court. We had a good look, but it just didn't go for us."

Englishbee's shot answered Teagan Shelton's bucket with 15 seconds left, which put the Falcons up 41—39 — one of the few leads Bushland had on the night.

Holliday started the game strong, racing out to a 21—9 lead early in the second quarter.

But Bushland fought back, and thanks in part to a 10—2 run, pulled to within 24—21 at the half.

"Every team's a good team when you get to this point and they did a good job of taking us out of our rhythm," Tucker said. "In the second and third quarter, they whipped us on the glass and out—rebounded us. That's what got them back in the game."

Bushland finally took its first lead of the game, 29—28, midway through the third on a free throw by Taylor Cornelius (team—high 13 points).

"All year long we've battled," Rhodes said. "In almost every game we've been down but we've found a way to fight back. We got some defense going, when we started making a run, going back, being patient and getting it down to Kam (Williams) and Jody (Lively) inside," Boxell said. "I felt like when they made their run and got up by 11, we were starting to not run our offense like we were supposed to. We were settling for early shots, and I thought once we got back to being more patient that's when we cut it to single digits."

Greenwood pulled within four on its first possession out of the locker room and stayed within two possessions of the Huskies until Hirschi senior Marcus Foster began to assert himself. Foster capped a personal 6-0 spurt by snagging a rebound and going coast to coast for the layup to put his team up 40-30 with 3:44 remaining in the third.

"As being a leader of this team, (I wanted to) just take over and get my teammates going because when I get going, they get going," Foster said.

The Huskies did just that, turning Foster's 6-0 spurt into an 18-3 run, which culminated with senior reserve Torrence Cooper hitting three of his four 3-pointers in the final 2:35 of the third, pushing the Hirschi lead to 52-33 in the final minute of the frame.

"We always play better in the second half, so I expected that," said Foster, who finished with 27 points and a team-high 10 rebounds.

Greenwood got 10 points each from Williams and fellow senior Cade Jones, and nine points and 13 rebounds from Lively, but was never able to recuperate from the second-half onslaught.

And while the Rangers were disappointed to see their magical season come to an end on the first game in Lubbock, Boxell was confident that their heads wouldn't hang for long.

"We had high expectations on trying to get some wins here too and keep going," Boxell said. "But I think once they look back at it, they'll have some great memories of this year."

"I'm real proud of the guys for overcoming the adversity and they could have easily thrown in the towel," Jim Ned coach Steve Bryant said. "I would have liked to have had our best five on the floor more than we were able to tonight, but that's part of the game. We lost to a good team."

But the Indians were saddled with foul trouble since the second quarter when 6-6 Will Bryant picked up his fourth foul of the game. It hurt the Indians further when Leissner (team-high 16 points) fouled out with 2:30 left in the contest.

That's when the Wildcats began to pull away and they did so by going inside, especially to Zahn, who would either get the tough layup or draw a foul.

"They ought to go to the big guy," Steve Bryant said. "When we don't have ours on the floor, it ought to be where they go to. A 6-9 kid at this level makes a big difference."

In the final stretch, Jim Ned just missed too many shots, while Idalou closed it out at the free-throw line.

"Coach Bryant does such a good job with them and we knew they were going to make a run," said Helms of the Indians. "It was unfortunate that both teams got into some foul trouble and several of the key players had to sit for a large part of the game, but sometimes it goes that way. I'm just proud of our guys that we were able to fight through it and grind it out."

Biggest win is off court for Texas Jewish school

New York Times News Service

When he woke up Friday morning, Zachary Yoshor, 17, a senior at the Robert M. Beren Academy in Houston and a star player on the school's basketball team, said he was not nervous about the state semifinal game looming for his team that afternoon in Fort Worth.

"I'm just glad to be playing," Yoshor said.

Beren Academy, an Orthodox Jewish day school, was not expected to be anywhere near the state championship — not because of questions over talent, but over the calendar. Beren Academy's players observe the Sabbath, which means they do not play from sundown on Fridays until after sundown on Saturdays.

Last year, the Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools denied an appeal from the school to change the schedule of a game that conflicted with the observance, sparking complaints from the mayor of Houston and a former NBA coach and a legal threat from a Supreme Court lawyer.

Ultimately, the schedule was changed and Beren Academy finished second in last year's Class 2A statewide tournament. The association announced in October that it would accommodate religious days of observance in scheduling its state competitions.

"Last year, it was about seeing what was possible," said Chris Cole, Beren Academy's coach. "This year, we had a completely different team. There was a lot of teaching going on and putting things together."

On Friday afternoon, Beren played the Geneva School of Boerne of Boerne, Texas, to determine who would play for the championship.

No Jewish high school has ever won a statewide basketball championship, according to Jewish-HoopsAmerica.com, a website that covers national Jewish high school basketball.

Friday's semifinal was close, and as the cheerleaders hollered, the teams went to triple overtime with the score tied at 49-49. Spectators began to joke that the game would go past sundown. Geneva took a 56-53 lead, but Yoni Schiff, a player for Beren Academy, hit a 3-pointer, sending the game into quadruple overtime. "I've seen less drama on 'Days of Our Lives,'" the game's announcer joked.

As fans in the bleachers rose to their feet and others tuned in the game online, Geneva pulled ahead to win, 68-67, ending Beren Academy's bid for the title. As the buzzer sounded, a Beren player fell to the ground, exhausted in defeat. The championship game is scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

DUNCANVILLE 64, LEAGUE CITY CLEAR SPRINGS 40

AUSTIN — For about 30 seconds, Duncanville's title run looked in serious jeopardy.

League City Clear Springs had cut a big deficit to one early in the third quarter Friday and were feeling good about an impending upset.

That's when the defending Class 5A champions simply shrugged off their upstart opponent with a 17-0 run, rolling to a 64-40 victory in the state semifinals.

Ariel Atkins had 29 points and 11 rebounds in a dominant performance in the paint, leading four Duncanville players scoring in double figures. Kiara Perry added 11 points and 13 rebounds as Duncanville collected it 69th straight victory.

The Pantherettes (41-0) came into the tournament ranked No. 1 in the state and No. 2 in the country by USA Today. Duncanville is vying to become the first repeat 5A champion since Mansfield won four in a row from 1999-2002.

Clear Springs (38-3) did all it could to blow it all apart.

Down 22-7 in the first half, Clear Springs rallied to within 27-23 by halftime with consecutive 3-pointers by Courtnie Latham and Kaylin Roher fueling the rally. Roher made another 3-pointer to start the third to get the Lady Chargers within 27-26.

Duncanville answered with a layup by Kiara Perry and a 3-pointer by Atkins and the route was on. Clear Springs wouldn't score again in the third quarter as Duncanville cranked up a bruising inside game with dominant rebounding.

The Pantherettes dominated under the basket with a 34-15 scoring advantage in the paint and outrebounded Clear Springs 46-22. Duncanville had 16 offensive rebounds that led to 16 second-chance points.

Latham had 16 points and 11 rebounds for Clear Springs, which had won 110 games over the last three seasons before running into one of state's most dominant programs. Clear Springs shot

Duncanville has played in the state tournament 22 times and will play today for its third championship in 10 years. Duncanville's 38-point win in the state title game last season was the largest margin in 5A history, and the Pantherettes rolled through this season with an average winning margin of 32 points.

Clear Springs managed to keep it close by comparison, but there was no stopping Atkins and Perry when Duncanville finally felt challenged. Atkins scored 11 in the decisive third quarter and was 10 of 16 shooting from the field for the game. Atkins also went 8 of 12 from the free throw line.

CIBOLO STEELE 69 PFLUGERVILLE 60

AUSTIN — McKenzie Calvert scored 17 points and Cibolo Steele stunned No. 2 Pflugerville 69-60 Friday night in the Class 5A semifinals.

A basket by Calvert at the start of the fourth quarter gave Steele its first lead at 51-49. The Knights built a seven-point lead while Pflugerville missed five consecutive shots until Mykiel Burleson made a 3-pointer with with 3:37 to play.

Pflugerville, ranked No. 12 in the country by USA Today but playing without two starters injured in the playoffs, couldn't trim the deficit below four in the final minutes. Cibolo Steele (33-5) made 7 of 9 free throws over the final 2:29 to preserve the lead.

Erika Chapman had 12 points and eight rebounds for Cibolo Steele.

Taylor Ross scored 18 points to lead Pflugerville (38-1).

AUSTIN — Merkel survived a furious third-quarter rally by Poth to advance 56-47 in UIL Class 2A girls' state semifinal action.

Merkel led 31-21 at the half Friday but Poth outscored the Badgers 12-2 and tied the game at 33-33 with 3:15 left in the third on a 12-foot jumper by Micah Weaver. A balanced attack allowed Merkel to recover.

Allison Szabo had 15 points, 10 boards and five blocked shots for Merkel while Ciara Cope scored 11 points and Macy Mays added 10 points. Tiffany Young collected 14 rebounds and blocked seven shots for the winners.

Ashley Fuller led Poth (28-6) with 18 points while Weaver added 15 and Devon Dylla grabbed nine rebounds.

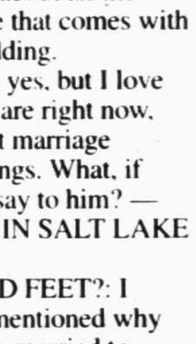
High-achieving home-schooler suffers bullying by other kids

DEAR ABBY



Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old female from the West Coast. I am home-schooled and don't have many friends because I score high in tests, meaning I retain more information than the average person.

On the rare occasion that I mingle with children my own age, they call me unpleasant names, play pranks on me and otherwise torture me. I had to change my emergency cell-phone number and start using my sister's because there have been so many immature and insulting prank calls.

I hate it. I can't help that I am smart, and I refuse to degrade myself by dumbing down my actions and speech because they can't handle their insecurities. — HIGH IQ

DEAR HIGH IQ: Being "different" isn't easy, and clearly you are very intelligent. But you and your parents should understand that crank calls are not "pranks" — they are a form of bullying and should have been reported when they happened.

Most parents who home-school also network with other home-schooling parents so their children can socialize with peers. If your parents haven't done this, I recommend you discuss it with them. You might also meet more intellectually advanced young people if you joined special-interest groups for older students.

Your high IQ might be less threatening to the students who have given you trouble if you volunteer to tutor some of them who need help with their schoolwork. (Just don't fall into the trap of doing it FOR them.)

DEAR ABBY: I have been with my boyfriend, "Dan," for almost five years. He's wonderful and we have a great relationship. We have talked about spending our lives together, but had mutually agreed in the beginning that marriage wasn't a priority for either of us. He has said for years that he never wanted to marry — which is fine with me.

I now suspect that he's planning to propose to me on our fifth anniversary. (He has never been great at hiding surprises.)

I'm thrilled that he wants to make that kind of commitment, and I want nothing more than to spend the rest of my life with him, but the thought of marriage scares me. I don't know if it's nerves about the pending proposal or that I have never planned on marriage and now I have to think about all the stress and strife that comes with planning a wedding.

I want to say yes, but I love the way things are right now, and I know that marriage will change things. What, if anything, do I say to him? — COLD FEET? IN SALT LAKE CITY

DEAR COLD FEET?: I wish you had mentioned why you think being married to Dan would "change things." If you've been happy together for five years, it's unlikely that making a formal commitment would damage the special relationship you have together.

Perhaps this is "old school," but I feel that if couples plan to bring children into the world, they should be married. Because you want nothing more than to spend the rest of your life with Dan, and are concerned about the stress of planning a wedding, when he pops the question, I suggest you say, "Yes — why don't we elope?"

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, March 2, 2013:

This year you listen more carefully to your instincts, as you will be unusually perceptive and intuitive. If your sixth sense points you toward a different path, follow it. You sometimes get so serious and locked into a certain idea that you can't see the big picture. Let go, and you will be pleased with the result. If you are single, you are very attractive to others. Summer holds many romantic possibilities for you. If you are attached, the two of you start acting like new lovers. SCORPIO sees through many of your defenses.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★ Conversations with a loved one will be animated and informative. You might want to be serious, but you can't with everything that is going on around you. Resist overthinking, and refrain from putting words in someone else's mouth. Tonight: Be a duo.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ You might want to have more say in what is happening, but it is obvious that others are going to take the lead. Get together with friends and loved ones, and frolic along with them. Tonight: Do not even consider some quiet alone time — be where the action is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ You will get more done than you realize is possible if you simply focus and make a list of your priorities. Do not let a project get more complicated right now; do only what you must. You will benefit from a few days away from the grind. Tonight: Choose a favorite form of relaxation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Attempting to show someone the error of his or her ways might not prove successful. This person's response is mainly a reaction to your words and/or actions. Go out for a walk or watch a movie in order to remove yourself from the situation. Tonight: Forget the here and now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★ Family matters could be overwhelming you right now. You can create a better situation only if others willingly go along with your plan. Unfortunately, a rigid individual remains firm in his or her beliefs. Recognize that you have hit a concrete wall. Tonight: Make plans that amuse you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Others remain responsive to your ideas and feelings. If you decide to cut off some negativity or a person who embodies this type of thought, you will be more effective. You also will feel free to toss yourself into life as you would like to. Tonight: At a favorite haunt.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ Take a hard look at your budget. Pay bills first, then make a decision about a long-desired purchase. Even if you nix the idea now, you will have another chance later on. Try not to worry so much about the different facets of your life. Tonight: Visit with a favorite person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You have many different sides to your personality. Some of the people around you know that. Be aware that your sharp words could startle someone who has not seen that aspect of your personality. You will get your point across regardless. Tonight: What makes you smile.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ Take your time, and refuse to be cornered into someone's off-the-wall idea. Be good to yourself, as you might not feel 100 percent. Take action in order to feel better. This might involve a nap, calling a friend or some other stressbuster. Tonight: Play it low-key.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Someone's terms could be nearly impossible to agree to. As a result, you might want to verbalize a resounding "no." What happens next could amaze you. Know that you can't predict others' reactions, but you can establish your boundaries. Tonight: Say "yes" to living.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ Take charge, and know full well what is happening with a friend or loved one. Seek feedback from others, as you might not be sure what to do or which way to go. Laughter surrounds plans as you decide to bring certain friends together. Tonight: Let it all happen.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ Make an important call to someone at a distance. Before you know it, you could be planning a special trip to see this person. Allow your feelings to flow naturally, and hold back any judgments. A loved one will do the same. Tonight: Add some music into the mix.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
I moved to a new city with a new job and started looking for an apartment. Little did I know it would be so expensive. This immediately made me rethink how to live in the city. I found an ad for a room to rent in a large 4-bedroom loft. It's with a group of professional guys who are sharing the space. The plus side is they have an 85" projection screen television in the main room. I mean, is there any better way to watch sports? This loft would be far better than anything I could ever get on my own and it's at a price I can afford. However, I've never lived with roommates before and it has me wondering if I'm going to get along with all of them. I could use some suggestions on things to consider before I take this place. Right now I'm blinded by the idea of 85 inches of the sports channel!

Carry: With an 85" television, this place sounds more like a sports bar than an apartment.

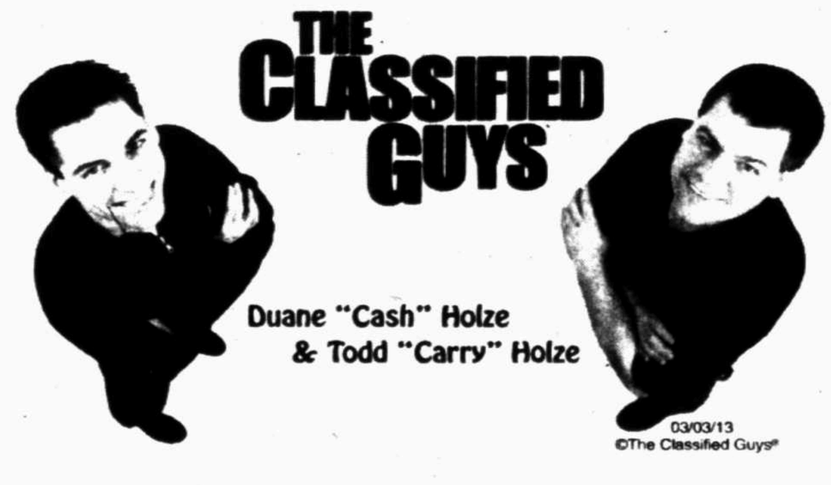
Cash: However, before you settle into the sofa, it's a good thing you're doing your homework. Living with roommates can be quite different than living alone. Not only will you be sharing the bathroom, kitchen and all the living areas, but you will also be spending time in the house with people you just met.

Carry: The best thing you can do is spend a little time with the guys before you write the rent check. Find out about their schedules, when they're home or how late they stay up. Also ask about house rules or cleaning schedules. With four guys, a sports channel and a big screen television, the living room could look as messy as a sports bar after a big game.

Cash: It would also be a good idea to find out about the rules of the television. Since it seems to be a main focus of the space, you should know if there are limits to its use. It might be difficult to get a good night's sleep if the television is on late at night.

Carry: If you get along with everyone, this opportunity could work out well for you. Since you're in a new city, living with others is a great way to meet new people and make some great friends. With an 85" television, they are sure to have a few people over.

Cash: The only question that remains is who's in charge of the remote control on game day?



Fast Facts

Acting Out

Sometimes you just never know who your roommate will turn out to be. Some of today's top celebrities once shared a place together. Actor Tommy Lee Jones roomed with former Vice President Al Gore at Harvard University. Comedian and actor Robin Williams was a roommate to Christopher Reeves when they both attended Julliard. Even actor Mel Gibson once shared a place with Geoffrey Rush, who played Captain Barbossa in Pirates of the Caribbean. It seems some people who share a room also share successful careers.

Cross Eyed

"If you sit too close to the TV, you could hurt your eyes." This is what many of us were told growing up. But is it true? The Canadian Association of Optometrists says that close viewing of a television is generally not harmful. The more important factor is to have proper lighting in the room to minimize the contrast of the television and reduce eyestrain. However, they also suggest that children who sit too close to the television should have their eyes examined since it's often an indicator of nearsightedness.

Fortune Cookie

When my roommate moved out, I met all sorts of people in my quest for someone to replace him. Most were nice, but it was the last guy to show up that seemed to fit perfectly. We were both stereotypical bachelors.

Like me, he only did his laundry when he was out of clothes, and only cleaned his room for dates or when his parents came to visit.

As we toured the apartment, he explained that he would only need the kitchen once a week. "That's odd," I said, "Is that because you work late?"

"Not really," he commented back. "It's just that all the takeout joints are closed on Mondays."

What are you waiting for? Your dream home is ready! If impressive architectural features, hardwood flooring, cathedral ceilings, built-ins, oversized crown molding, a pool, walls of windows to enjoy the view and an overall feeling of elegance are on your check list, this is the house for you!

6814 W. County Road 50 in Sunridge Ranch Estates was built in 2000 of white

Austin Stone/brick, features 5,635 square feet (per MCAD) of living space and is situated on 10 acres of land. Included in this two-story home are four bedrooms, four full baths, one half bath, four living areas, two dining areas, a three car garage, a stable and workshop. Schools for this area include Scharbauer Elementary, Goddard Jr. High and Midland High School.

Doors open to the formal dining and living area. Follow the hallway to the right where your new office/study has built-in bookshelves and a desk. The roomy sequestered master bedroom is also on this hallway where you can do more than sleep! Snuggle up by the corner stone fireplace or exit the door outside to the covered porch and pool. Relax in the master bath which has a jetted tub, two dressing areas and two large walk-in closets.

To the left of the formal dining room, another sequestered bedroom with a full bathroom and walk-in closet looks out of the window to a bricked patio and flowing fountain. A built-in window seat and desk make this room complete. Down the hallway to the left, you will find a spacious laundry room with an organization center including cubbies, cabinets and drawers.

Your gourmet kitchen has granite countertops and a matching backsplash in addition to black appliances and faux painted cabinets which add to the ambiance of this beautiful workspace! A center island with storage also offers bonus seating and a large pantry will keep groceries and small appliances tucked away.

The kitchen is open to the den and informal dining area. The focal point is the Austin Stone fireplace that rises to the cathedral ceiling. A built-in entertainment center lines one wall and windows offer a view of the pool complete with a Jacuzzi and fountain. The pool is surrounded by a metal fence to keep kids and pets safe. Nearby, is a pool house with a full bathroom!

An ultimate play area waits at the top of the stairs complete with a built-in "kitchen," comprised of a small refrigerator, sink and cabinets, and a large storage closet for games and toys. The paintings on the walls are priceless and add to the fun vibe of the room. Enjoy a view of the horizon or open the doors to a large deck and stairway leading down to the yard and pool.

The game room is connected to two bedrooms with a Jack and Jill bathroom where two oversized walk-in closets and built-ins provide bonus storage! Each bedroom is unique, one with a small balcony overlooking the fountain and patio by the kitchen and the other with a built in desk and display cabinet.

Also included on the property is a three car garage, a stable with four stalls, a barn and a large workshop. Additional amenities to the home: automatic garage door opener, security system, water softener, sequestered master and mother-in-law plan, parking pad, pool, tile, carpeting and wood flooring and metal roof.

SEWELL

Sewell Volkswagen of Midland-Odessa officially opens for business

Odessa, Texas – March 1, 2013 – The Sewell Family of Companies welcomes a new member of the automotive family. This Friday marked the official opening of Sewell Volkswagen, serving both Midland and Odessa. While Sewell has always prided itself as the premier Ford dealer for the West Texas region, they are excited to bring their high level of service and customer first mentality to an import line of vehicles.

The fuel efficient line of vehicles offered by Volkswagen will greatly benefit local residents, especially those that travel as much as West Texans. The smooth and dynamic lines give VW models their timeless look. Of course, everything is bigger in Texas, and VW will be addressing this sentiment with their new mid-sized SUV, the CrossBlue. The new concept will be comparable to the Ford Explorer.

It's a great time to be a VW dealer, as the auto manufacturer has its sights set on being #1 in the world. With sales increasing over 30% in 2012, a Volkswagen point in the Midland-Odessa area was inevitable. However, every manufacturer needs a trusted dealer, and Sewell's reputation for service made it the logical candidate. "I believe that Sewell and Volkswagen are a great pairing. It joins VW's world-class line up of vehicles with the Sewell tradition of exceptional service… it's a great fit," states Sewell. Good things come to those who wait, and Collin Sewell has been passionately waiting. The desire to bring German engineering to the Odessa marketplace has been a goal of the auto dealer since 2006, when he placed an initial call to inquire about the franchise.

Sewell Volkswagen of Midland-Odessa, as it is officially named, is a partnership between Collin Sewell and Justin Lowenfield. Lowenfield is Vice-President and General Manager of Casa Ford Lincoln and Casa Nissan in El Paso. "Justin and I became great friends while we served together on various Ford committees. His family has a great reputation in the El Paso community, both for their integrity and their commitment to giving back," says Sewell. "I'm excited to introduce West Texas to a great friend and his great family."

SEWELL

The dealership will run from a temporary facility located across from the Ford-Lincoln store on East 8th Street in Odessa. A new facility is slated to begin construction this summer and will be open mid-2014.
