Industry leaders back oil fee; API still split

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

HOUSTON — Oil industry leaders, increasingly voicing alarm over imported petroleum, lifted their long-standing opposition to an oil import fee Monday and said instead that "no option...should be ruled out" in shoring up the nation's domestic oil supplies.

But industry executives said that the American Petroleum Institute, influential lobbying arm for 200 big oil companies, remained sharply split on the controversial import fee issue and conceded that there remained little support for it in Washington.

They were reminded of that by White House director of the Office of Management and the Budget, James C. Miller III, who told the trade group at its annual meeting here that President Reagan remained opposed to a special tax on oil imports.

"Without a strong and clear position by the White House, we're beating our heads against the wall," said George Keller, chairman and chief executive of San Francisco-based Chevron, and president of the trade group.

Reagan himself will be the main target of a stepped-up campaign for some form of immediate relief that would raise and then stabilize oil prices, Keller said. He added that the industry would not lean on Vice President George Bush, a former oil man, for help because his ties to the industry were "seen as a negative."

The question of an oil import fee came to the fore this year as oil prices collapsed, resulting in lower U.S. production and exploration. Imported oil, generally cheaper to produce, has filled the gap, raising the spectre of renewed dependence on oil from the unstable Middle East.

A tariff on imported oil, proponents argue, would enable all producers to raise their prices. That would create an incentive to increase production and exploration for new reserves, strengthening the nation's energy security.

The new policy statement by the oil leaders makes no mention of an import fee or any other specific remedy, saying only that all avenues should be explored. Until now, despite protests by many members, the trade group has imposed an import fee out of distaste for bureaucratic headaches and increased government involvement in industry affairs.

The shift in thinking represents a victory for such industry leaders as Fred Hartley, the outspoken chairman of Los Angeles-based Unocal and a longtime advocate of an import fee as the only way to combat the policies of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which triggered the price collapse.

The industry's deep internal divisions on what to do about the oil price collapse has undermined its effort to win help in Washington. The shift in position Monday is an attempt to represent a united front.

However, industry executives said that strong opposition remained — notably by Exxon, Mobil and Shell — and some scoffed at the latest shift in posture as an innocuous one that seemed to make everyone happy.

Rescuer has vivid memories of fire

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

The dramatic, life-saving rescue of a Midland man two months ago from a smoky apartment fire is still fresh in the mind of the rescuer, so fresh that he remembers the bright colors of flame.

The man he saved doesn't remember what happened.

"There was a lot of orange showing," said Steve Lyons, describing the first glimpse of the fire early on the morning of Sept. 18 at the Sierra Paseo Apartments, 3417 N. Midland Drive. "There were a couple of guys trying to get in, but I thought to myself 'If he doesn't get out now he never will.' "

Two neighbors of Byron McQuinlan had tried to reach the man in his burning apartment on the second floor, but couldn't.

That Lyons did was a fact recognized by the Downtown Midland Lions' Club, who last week made Lyons the 1986 Firefighter of the Year.

Boy missing after killer snowstorm

Associated Press

Bitterly cold temperatures chilled the nation's midsection today, and a 13-year-old boy was still missing in more than 2 feet of snow in North Dakota in the wake of a snowstorm that killed eight people.

As snow fell this morning over the northern Rockies and from the middle Mississippi Valley to the Great Lakes, record low temperatures for the date were broken in eight cities in Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota.

The temperature dropped to 10 degrees below zero in Norfolk, Neb., which was one of 14 cities in the northern Plains to set new record lows on Monday.

"We are heading into the time of year we all hate — cold weather," said National Weather Service forecaster Chuck McCain in Colorado.

The frigid temperatures came on the heels of the season's first major snowstorm, which dumped more than 2 feet of snow in spots before moving into Canada and provided an unsubtle reminder of what winter offers.

In North Dakota, which was walloped by wind-blasted snow in last week's storm, a number of county roads were still blocked today by drifts.

Rescuers used snowmobiles and dogs to search on the Fort Totten Reservation for 13-year-old John Robertson, who has been missing since he went out to play Saturday afternoon. Up to 28 inches of snow fell on the area over the weekend.

"The only thing we figure is that he was trying to visit a friend," said his grandmother, Lorraine Robertson.

Up to 2 inches of snow fell Monday across parts of Wisconsin and Minnesota, icing roads and causing numerous minor traffic accidents. Light snow also reached central New York state Monday.

Snow that piled up to 5 inches high in Nebraska on Monday forced the postponement of high school football playoff games until today.

As the weekend storm moved into Canada, it gave Winnipeg, Manitoba, its second blizzard in 20 years.

Freed hostages leave Syria for France

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — An 85-year-old retired car dealer and a businessman freed in Lebanon by Shiite Moslem kidnappers left for Paris by plane today, and the French government thanked Syria for its role in the release.

The two Frenchmen, Camille Sontag and Marcel Coudari, 54, were released in Moslem west Beirut on Monday night to Syrian army officers, government sources said.

Two statements signed by the Revolutionary Justice Organization, a pro-Iranian Shiite group, had promised the imminent release of some hostages.

The two Frenchmen were driven to Damascus during the night and given clean clothes and a bath at a government facility. They arrived early today at the Foreign Ministry, where they remained for more than an hour in an anteroom and were turned over to French envoys.

Coudari said Sontag had been held with an unidentified Irishman and four other Western captives in an underground prison in Beirut. Brian Keenan, a teacher missing since last spring, is the only Irishman missing in Lebanon.

The two Frenchmen were treated "very well" by their captors and were held separately in what they believed was south Beirut, Coudari said.

Sontag, who lived in Beirut for 40 years, sat quietly at the ministry, saying nothing and slowly wringing his hands on his lap. He appeared well, but confused.

He wore a gray suit and had an unkempt beard. He said his kidnappers had broken his hearing aid when he was seized in a west Beirut street May 7 and he could not hear well.

Clements chooses team leaders

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The head of the state's largest telephone company and the president of one of Texas' largest bank holding companies will direct Gov.-elect Bill Clements' task force on improving the state economy.

Clements Monday named Jim Adams of Dallas, president of the Texas Division of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., and John Cater of Houston, president and chief operating officer of MCorp, as co-chairman of his Business Development and Job Creation Task Force. Clements has said he will add to the task force an additional 40 or 50 "very prominent Texans" from industry, big business and academia.

"These two men bring years of leadership, experience and knowledge to the task force," Clements said of Adams and Cater. "But more importantly, they have a deep commitment to this state and are willing to do what's necessary to help bring economic growth to Texas."

Jim Adams and John Cater "...have a deep commitment to this state and are willing to do what's necessary to help bring economic growth to Texas."
— Gov.-elect Bill Clements

The full task force, which will meet "in the near future," will assemble recommendations to flesh out the six-point jobs plan Clements outlined during the fall campaign. "We'll be prepared for the legislative session in January," he said.

The six-point plan includes controlling state spending and taxes, encouraging small business, enhancing higher education, establishing high-tech research centers at state universities, expanding commercial ties with Mexico and communication with the federal government.

"My vision is that this task force can serve as a catalyst to pull together the diverse interests in the state," Adams, 47, said. "Our charge will be to develop a framework that not only alleviates obstacles to economic growth but creatively builds on our state's natural resources."

Adams is a member of the board of directors of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, the Texas Research League, the Greater Dallas Planning Council and the North Texas Commission. Cater, 51, a member of the board of directors of the Houston Economic Development Council, the Houston Chamber of Commerce, the Houston Area Research Center and the Texas Medical Center, could not be reached for comment Monday.

In related news, outgoing Gov. Mark White Monday designated Bob McPherson, deputy assistant for programs, to coordinate the transition to the Clements administration.

Man's body found in fire-damaged home

From Staff Reports

The badly burned body of a man was found early today in the living room of his house that was heavily damaged in an early morning fire.

The body of Haskell Collins, 69, was found on the floor of the living room in the house at 1302 S. Connell about 6:30 a.m. today by firefighters.

According to fire officials, the house was heavily damaged by the blaze, which apparently started in the living room.

Bobby Williams, assistant fire marshal, said the cause of the fire is under investigation.

Police said next of kin had been notified.

Cocaine, crack carry user 'up' to elation, 'down' to fatigue

Second in a series

By JOHN A. BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In the ironic and contradictory world of drugs, it is worth noting that the active part of cocaine, from which crack and its lesser cousins come, were devised by a mountain plant as a means of keeping insect pests away.

The insects got the message. Humans are still working on it.

More than 20 million Americans have used cocaine and some four million are using or abusing it now. Scientists say it takes an average of four years from the first use of the drug to the time when it is interfering with a normal life, and finally to addiction, a state in which there is no normal life.

So the seeds of a greater epidemic are already planted in the society. A gradual rise in cocaine addiction might have been expected even if crack had not shown up.

The purity and potency of crack and coca paste and the fact that they are smoked rather than sniffed gives users a much quicker, "higher" high which is addicting in a few months, thereby making the four years it takes with cocaine seem like a very long and old-fashioned engagement.

Sniffed cocaine takes about 10 minutes to hit and the high lasts about half an hour. A drag of crack strikes the brain in seconds and the high lasts less than 10 minutes, inviting repeated performances.

Hence, the binge houses, where addicts cluster to buy hit after hit of crack in one great splurge of repetitive highs, sometimes lasting for days before exhaustion takes over. And hence, the grand depressing low or crash that comes when crack wears off.

Cocaine has come a long way in the last 100 years.

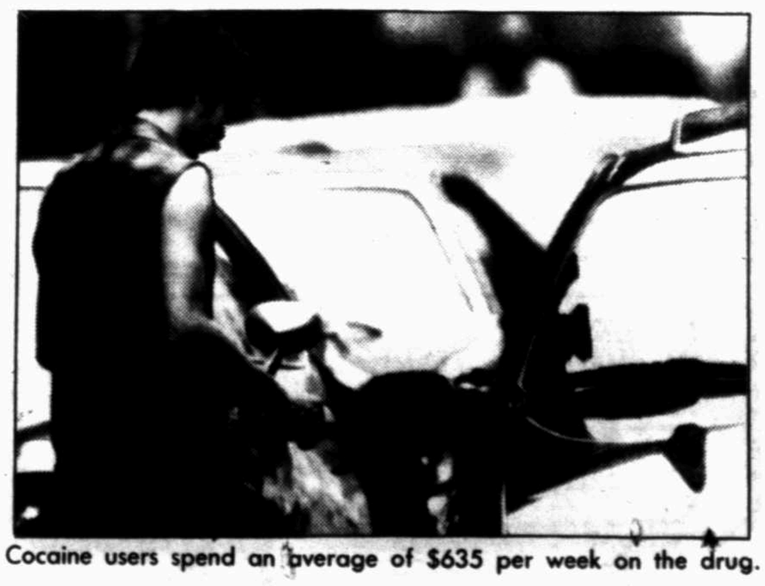

As early as 1860, a few years after its introduction in Europe, the first bottle was sold in the United States, for 50 cents. It was put in everything. In fact it was not until 1903 that it was dropped as an ingredient in a soft drink called Coca Cola. It remained, however, in many patent medicines in combination with alcohol. It seemed harmless, even beneficial.

In 1983, the 800-COCAINE hotline was set up and in the first 18 months over 450,000 calls were received, sometimes more than 1,000 a day.

While providing advice, it also provided a window to cocaine abuse.

Cocaine users spend an average of $635 per week on the drug.

In a statement delivered to the news agency Agency France-Press, Direct Action said the blasts were to protest South African President P.W. Botha's visit.

Botha, who arrived Monday, was scheduled to dedicate a memorial to South African war dead later today during Armistice Day ceremonies in Longeval, a village north of Paris.

Police said the first blast occurred at about 1 a.m. at the Peugeot building, just west of the Arc de Triomphe, and was loud enough to be heard for miles around. Firemen reported one person was slightly wounded and the building was damaged.

Two more blasts followed moments later, both at the suburban office complex La Defense west of downtown Paris.

Firemen said the explosions damaged the Total Tower and the Manhattan Tower, which are some distance apart in the huge complex, causing no injuries.

A statement claiming responsibility for the blasts was received soon afterward by the news agency Agence France-Presse and was signed Direct Action, Commando Clarence Payi-Sipho Xulu, named after two members of the African National Congress imprisoned in South Africa.

The statement condemned what it called French "collaboration" with the "fascist state" and specified that the target of the Manhattan Tower blast was the office of the Pechiney-Ugine-Kuhlmann, which like Peugeot and Total, a petroleum company, has business links to South Africa.

The news agency reported that the night guard at the Total Tower received a warning from an anonymous caller claiming to represent Direct Action just before the explosion.

In September, a series of bombings in Paris killed 11 people and injured 161.

Parades, services, reburial rites among Veterans Day observances

Associated Press

Parades, services and the reburial of an unknown Civil War soldier marked today's Veterans Day remembrances of America's military dead, and veterans held vigils and marched to honor those still missing in Vietnam.

Thirty-two marchers, many of them Vietnam veterans, were en route today to Springfield, Ill., where the parade was to cap a 42-mile trek to draw attention to the plight of those held prisoner or missing in Southeast Asia.

Parades also were planned in Georgia, to honor female veterans; in Oregon, and on New York's Fifth Avenue.

A Colorado veteran who lost a leg to a land mine in the Vietnam War will bicycle from Loveland to Fort Collins carrying a proclamation of support for soldiers still listed as missing or prisoners of war. Chuck Trinemeyer is making a series of bicycle rides around the state to raise public awareness of those unaccounted for.

At the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C., an American flag made of red, white and blue flowers — one for each of the 58,200 names of war dead inscribed on the memorial's black wall — was to be unveiled this morning.

"The Moving Wall," a 250-foot-long, half-scale replica of the Washington memorial, was on display in Westlake Village, Calif., and another replica was erected at the Michigan State Fairgrounds Coliseum in Detroit.

A 24-foot-long granite monument with the names of 139 Wyoming veterans was to be dedicated in Cody.

Plans were advanced this week for new Vietnam veteran memorials in Illinois, West Virginia and New Jersey. An 8-foot-tall bronze statue of a youthful, battle-weary soldier was to be unveiled today at the dedication of the Oklahoma Veterans Memorial in Oklahoma City.

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger spoke at ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia, where "rests the soul of our nation." The defense secretary, an Army veteran of World War II, paid tribute not only to those who died in battle, but also to the missing and wounded.

"We honor those whose fate in Southeast Asia still is not finally resolved, countrymen whom we will not forget. We remember those who still carry the physical and mental scars of war, and we try to give to them the comfort they have courageously earned and justly deserve."

President Reagan planned no public activities for Veterans Day, but asked Americans to take time to honor the nation's veterans, whom he called "the heroes among us."

In a statement, Reagan said "it is right that we should meditate on the principles for which so many Americans have fought — peace, freedom, the sacred and inviolable dignity of all men — principles that give hope to the nations."

In Michigan, the body of a Civil War soldier was removed Monday from a neglected grave in Grand Rapids for military reburial today in Battle Creek's Fort Custer National Cemetery. The reburial was the culmination of an effort by a handful of people who discovered the grave and fought for his recognition.

The soldier was a member of the predominantly black 102 U.S. infantry, and his remains had been marked by a small headstone bearing only the inscription "Unknown 102 U.S. Colored."

Representatives of Great Britain, France, Israel, Mexico, Belgium and Italy were expected for the 27th annual West Coast Sacred Torch Ceremony at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in California's Hollywood Hills.

Female veterans were featured in plans for the Georgia Veterans Day Parade in Atlanta. About 100 women, most of them World War II veterans, were to take part.

Some veterans said interest in the day, which commemorates the signing of the armistice that ended World War I, has declined in recent years, especially among non-veterans.

Emil Soroka, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars post in Turnersville, N.J., said it is difficult to recruit new members, as veterans of the Korea and Vietnam eras are less interested than World War vets.

VETERAN'S DAY
November 11

Veteran's Day is set aside to honor the men and women who have served in the U.S. armed forces. Originally, it was called Armistice Day, after the signing of the Armistice between the Allied and Central Powers on November 11, 1918, which ended World War I. Congress changed the name to Veteran's Day in 1954.

Asked if he intended to go back to Beirut, Sontag said loudly: "Me? Me? Never!"

Coudari, missing since February, chain-smoked American cigarettes, talking constantly in Arabic with Syrian officials.

"It was very scary," he said. "I was frightened a lot of the time."

He added: "Syria did everything for me and I'm very grateful."

In Paris, the French government also thanked Syria.

"The government, which rejoices very greatly over this happy outcome and thanks the Syrian authorities for the part they have played in it, continues the effort it has undertaken since its formation with a view to the quickest possible release of our other countrymen still detained," the French Foreign Ministry said in a statement.

Seventeen foreigners, including six Americans, remain missing in Lebanon and various groups have claimed responsibility for the abductions. The most recent previous release was that of American David Jacobsen, who was freed Nov. 2 by Islamic Jihad, another pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem group.

Coudari and Sontag appeared shaken when a swarm of photographers and television crews stampeded into a chandeliered room in the Foreign Ministry during the ceremonies in which they were turned over to French diplomats. The crush sent security men scurrying to save valuable vases.

When some calm was restored, Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa said: "We've done everything we could do to get the release of the hostages and will continue to do so."

Speaking a day after Common Market countries, including France, imposed sanctions on Damascus for allegedly sponsoring terrorism, al-Sharaa declared: "The Syrian government wants good relations with all countries. But those countries who show hostility to Syria should expect the same hostility from Syria."

France, fearful of jeopardizing Syrian help in obtaining the release of its hostages kidnapped in Lebanon, has been reluctant to take action against Damascus.

Al-Sharaa noted that the announcement Monday by the 12-nation Common Market "shows a lack of genuine consensus. It gives flexibility to each country to take what contacts are appropriate to that country."

Foreign Minister Jean-Bernard Raimond said the release was obtained by the seven-month-old government of Premier Jacque Chirac through its policy of maintaining "contacts with all the states that may have an influence on the kidnappers.

"These contacts are based on a completely dignified policy, not based on any bargaining. You will never hear in connection with the freeing of our hostages of any arms deliveries or financial haggling."

DRUGS

Almost half the callers were daily users and the average they were spending a week was over $635, some as high as $3,150. Three quarters said they had lost control and two-thirds said they felt addicted. A large majority said they could not say no when it was available.

The large majority had sleep problems, chronic fatigue, severe headaches and bleeding and sore nasal passages. Psychologically, the large majority complained of depression, anxiety, irritability, apathy, paranoia and difficulty in concentrating.

Only about half of the teen-agers in the helpline samples said they were daily users. They were almost equally male and female. The average caller was an 11th grader who had been using cocaine for 15 months at an average monthly cost of $440. In addition to the usual symptoms, they reported delusions, exaggerated suspicions, compulsive behavior such as combing their hair, or tapping their feet. They had trouble with memory, lost interest in friends. "An alarming 20 percent reported brain seizures with loss of consciousness induced by cocaine," the report said.

Twenty-eight percent had active thoughts of suicide and seven tried it.

"The paranoid thought mode almost invariably seen in consistent users has led to accidents and homicides," says Dr. Sidney Cohen of UCLA's Neuropsychiatric Institute. "Once manifest, the psychosis tends to recur on subsequent cocaine exposures. Manicky behavior, insufficiently mentioned in connection with cocaine abuse, is common in the 'coke head.' "

Dr. Cohen cites the cocaine paradox: what starts out as elation and euphoria ends up as the blues and fatigue.

"Have we reached the apogee of cocaine use?" Dr. Cohen asks. "Probably not. Supplies are plentiful and prices are down. Treatment remains difficult.... It is true that strong stimulant epidemics have a record of dying out, perhap because the user's plight is highly visible and serves as a deterrent to those in the user's vicinity."

Nevertheless, he says, the future is in doubt.

LYONS

"It was more smoke than fire," said Jim Hatchett, 21, who was called to the scene by Rodney King, another neighbor. "There was more smoke than anything else. I got in there and had to turn around and come out."

Apparently, the fire, which quickly generated billows of thick, black smoke, broke out in the kitchen area of the 28-year-old McQuinlan's apartment.

"I was really out of it, and hardly remember anything," said McQuinlan, a serviceman for Refrigerated Services of Midland. "But I was lucky.

"If it wasn't for him, I probably wouldn't be talking to you."

Ironically, Lyons said he used to live in McQuinlan's apartment, so he knew exactly where everything was. He said he had decided ahead of time which window he would jump from if he had to.

"It was all over the cabinets," Lyons said. "When gasses are ignited, flames roll across the ceiling, in a beautiful visual pattern. That's something I always remember about those type fires.

It was definitely a serious situation. The kitchen was involved and flames were about a foot deep on the ceiling. And the smoke detector in the apartment was melted. By the time I reached the bedroom he was unconscious."

"I could have reached the bedroom," Hatchett said. "I was at the edge, and I probably would have gotten there."

Lyons agreed.

"Jim would have reached him, I know he would've reached him," he said. "He just choked off when he reached the bedroom, and I went ahead."

Midland Fire Chief James Roberts said he had heard talk about what Lyons did, but he was not sure if a citation was warranted.

When he found out, he was not surprised.

"This type of action on his part does not surprise me at all," Roberts said. "He has always been an outstanding person."

Lyons says matter-of-factly that saving lives is part of his job.

"Some paramedics in the department, they just don't know how many lives they save," Lyons said. "Back when you first come out of school, you count how many you think you've saved. You say to yourself after a situation, 'well that was a clinical save.' But after awhile there are just too many to count."

Ex-wife says Vietnam veteran needed psychological counseling

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Vietnam veteran shot to death when he pointed a rifle at a San Antonio police officer was denied psychological counseling he needed, his ex-wife says.

William Chalmers, 43, of Philadelphia, was shot four times late Friday by officer Chris Blowers after he pointed a .30 caliber rifle at the officer, police reported.

"They should have given him more help. They didn't really do anything," Dora Chalmers, 38, told the San Antonio Express-News. "I think they should have kept him in the hospital, they should have tried harder to help him."

Blowers said he tapped on the window of a pickup truck in a residential area after neighbors called to report a suspicious vehicle. The neighborhood has been plagued with burglaries, residents said.

Mrs. Chalmers said she divorced her husband in 1980.

She said he suffered from nightmares stemming from his tour of duty in Vietnam in 1968-69.

The couple was married in 1969 after he returne from Southeast Asia, she said. He left the Navy, but later re-enlisted.

She told the newspaper she still loved her ex-husband "very much."

"He was ill. I'm not denying that. There's nothing wrong with admitting that," She said. "He use to have nightmares about Vietnam."

"There's a lot of Vietnam vets out there who need a lot of help. If he'd only gotten the help he needed," she said.

She said Chalmers was on medication to help him with bouts of depression.

Police in Lewisburg, Pa., said an arrest warrant was issued for Chalmers Sept. 11 for a contempt of court citation. Officers said the man had violated a court order by not taking his medication.

The contempt of court citation stemmed from an attempted murder charge he faced in Pennsylania, police said.

"A lot of his mental anguish came from his Vietnam experience," she said. Unfortunately, he was one of the people the system didn't help and now it's too late."

Chalmers came to San Antonio about a month ago to visit his ex-wife, their daughter, Elaine, 15, and son, Daniel, 13, she said.

Two persons killed in plant explosion

KENNEDALE (AP) — An explosion felt and heard a mile away ripped through a magnesium plant south of Fort Worth, killing two workers.

The blast occurred at 2:30 p.m. Monday at the Anacast Co. plant, where magnesium is melted down, said Fort Worth fire department spokesman Tommy Ryan.

The explosion, which blew part of the plant's roof off, was thought to have resulted from water leaking through the roof, Ryan said.

Water and magnesium, a chemical element, explode when combined.

Bobby Williams, 31, of Fort Worth, died Monday at John Peter Smith Hospital. He received third-degree burns over 60 percent of his body, hospital administrator Michael Mayo said.

The other worker, Willie Hutchins, 43, of Fort Worth, died early today from injuries suffered in the blast, hospital spokesman Ben Breitkreuz said.

Firefighters were concerned that radiation from the large furnaces might be leaking from the plant.

U.S. to 'abandon' SALT II limit on strategic bombers

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will abandon the SALT II treaty limit on strategic bombers carrying air-launched cruise missiles in mid-December, according to an administration official.

The decision means rejection of an appeal by Congress last month and could clear the way for the Soviet Union to build up its long-range nuclear forces beyond the limits set by the unratified 1979 agreement.

Spurgeon M. Keeny Jr., president of the private Arms Control Association, called it "a tragic development."

"This will assure the destruction of the SALT II agreement, which is an essential component of the arms control framework built over the last 20 years by the previous five presidents," Keeny said in an interview Monday.

The selection of mid-December, which was made in the past week, marks the third shift in target dates this year.

"Somebody is making some political decisions" to keep the treaty alive a little longer, said the administration source, who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Earlier Monday, the White House dismissed as "premature" a report in Sunday's Washington Post that the United States would exceed SALT II limits this week by placing on duty the 131st B-52 bomber to carry cruise missiles. That would mean exceeding the treaty's ceiling of 1,320 on a combination of missile warheads and cruise-bearing bombers.

"A decision has not been made when the bomber becomes part of an operational unit," presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said. He told reporters that plans were to make the bomber operational "before the end of the year."

After the B-52 bomber is armed with nuclear-tipped cruise missiles at the Air Force Logistics Center at San Antonio, Texas, the plane will be transferred to Carswell Air Force Base in Forth Worth.

Speakes added: "The president has said we will exceed the limits. We've said SALT II is no longer in operation."

Keeny, a former deputy director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said scrapping the treaty's numerical limits will permit the Soviets to deploy new SS-24 long-range mobile missiles without having to remove powerful SS-17 or SS-19 missiles from their arsenal.

"It's the ultimate irony that President Reagan, while calling for deep cuts in strategic offensive arms, he is at the same time destroying the existing limitations on offensive arms," Keeny said.

The SALT II treaty was signed at the summit in Vienna, Austria, in 1979 by President Carter and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the late Soviet leader. It was the last major arms control agreement between the superpowers.

The treaty was never ratified by the Senate, but Carter and later Reagan — despite his vehement criticism of the accord in the 1980 presidential campaign — pledged to observe its contraints on strategic nuclear weapons provided the Soviets did the same.

Reagan decided last May to cease voluntary compliance and to base U.S. strategic weapons decisions on "the nature and magnitude of the threat posed by Soviet strategic forces."

He accused the Soviets in two reports to Congress of serious violations of arms control accords with the United States. While deciding to scuttle the treaty's restriction on B-52 bombers with cruise missiles, the president ordered the destruction of two Poseidon nuclear submarines with 16 warheads each to stay within a 1,200 warhead ceiling.

Last month, the House and Senate wrote in the defense authorization bill that "it is in the national security interest of the United States to continue voluntary compliance with the central numeral sublimits of the SALT II treaty...so long as the Soviet Union complies with such sublimits."

Initially, the Air Force was scheduled to equip its 131st bomber with cruise missiles in November. However, in August, for what the administration called "technical reasons," the schedule was slowed down to late December.

Last month, just before the two leaders were due to meet in Iceland, the date was changed a second time — to Nov. 11 — even though Sens. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., had urged Reagan to surpass the SALT II ceiling.

"Delay would be completely contrary to your May decision to abandon SALT II by mid-November as a proportionate response to the Soviet SALT II violations," they said in a letter to the president.

Bishops to decide if they should protest, sacrifice loyalty to pope

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's Roman Catholic bishops are nearing a decision on whether to talk back to Pope John Paul II concerning his crackdown on Catholic liberals, including their brother bishop in Seattle.

Even if they decide at their annual meeting today or tomorrow that they do want to protest, they have to decide how loudly, how publicly, how clearly or ambiguously to do it — no easy matter for church leaders strongly inclined toward loyalty to the pope.

Their first chance to at least send a signal of confidence in their own national organization was arriving today in the form of elections of top officers of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Promotion to president of the current vice president, Archbishop John May of St. Louis, would follow conference tradition and would turn the leadership over to a moderate bishop who has shown he is committed to the idea of an active national bishops' organization — something not in great favor among some high Vatican officials who see most authority emanating from Rome.

Going into the election, observers and participants agreed that electing almost anyone else president, especially one of the conservative bishops among the other nine nominees, would suggest a knuckling under.

The vice presidential election appeared more open, with candidates from the right, left and center. There was speculation the bishops would choose neither a pronounced liberal nor conservative but instead vote for a moderate with strong ties to the national conference — such as Cincinnati Archbishop Daniel Pilarczyk, chairman of the liturgy committee.

Late today, the nearly 300 bishops were going behind closed doors to hear Seattle Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen's side of his dispute with Rome and to decide what, if anything, to do about it.

Hunthausen announced in September — much to Vatican officials' dismay at his public airing of the situation — that he had been ordered to give up much of his authority to a Vatican-appointed auxiliary bishop.

The archbishop had been adjudged too liberal in such matters as ministry to homosexuals and divorced Catholics and in the dispensing of absolution for sins to large groups.

Concern about the Hunthausen case and about controversy surrounding Vatican disciplinary actions against several priest-dissenters caused the conference's outgoing president, Bishop James Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, to warn Monday of "dangerous disaffection" and "developing estrangement" between the Vatican and many American Catholics.

Archbishop Rembert Weakland of Milwaukee, an influential liberal who was a presidential nominee as well as the main author of the bishops' much-publicized pastoral letter on the U.S. economy, said Malone spoke for many in the conference.

But not for all, as was made clear by conservative Cardinal John O'Connor of New York, also a presidential nominee, who said he felt accounts of disagreements between the bishops and the Vatican had been "vastly overblown."

NATION IN BRIEF

U.S., Soviets agree to work on space ventures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to cooperate on 16 space ventures in a pact that deals more with exchanging information than on developing joint mission hardware, an industry magazine says.

Aviation Week and Space Technology said the negotiators, who met in Washington a few weeks ago, expect the agreement to be signed by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev at their next meeting.

The Soviets formally proposed a cooperative mission to return samples from the surface of Mars, but the Americans had to reject it because the United States has no approved Mars sample return program.

The two sides, however, agreed on joint selection of potential landing sites for future landers and coordination of existing missions.

McDonald's toys 'risky'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parents of tots who received Lego building sets with meals at McDonald's should return the toys for replacement because of the risk of children swallowing the pieces, the government warned.

The safety warning was issued Monday by the Consumer Product Safety Commission a couple of weeks after its chariman, Terrence Scanlon, noticed the toys being distributed while he and his children were at a McDonald's.

The toys, included in the Happy Meals, should be returned for replacement if given to children under age 3, the agency and McDonald's said.

A spokeswoman for the national fast-food chain said Duplo building sets will be offered as replacements.

People needing further information can call McDonald's at 312-575-6198, or the Safety Commission at 800-638-2772.

Sanctions to continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said the United States would continue economic sanctions against Nicaragua's Sandanista govenment because it poses a threat to U.S. security and foreign policy.

Reagan's statements were in a letter to inform Congress of his decision. Such a letter is required every six months, and the text was released by the White House.

"The policies and actions of the Sandinista government continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and foreign policy of the United States," Reagan said in the letter.

The president accused the Sandinistas of continued support for guerrilla groups in neighboring Central American countries, the expansion of their "huge arsenal" of Soviet weaponry, and of pursuing a policy of "internal repression" leading to thousands of refugees fleeing the country.

Report: Government should return power to states

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new report on federalism by the Reagan administration says the government should return to the states some of the power it has acquired on public policy matters ranging from abortion to wage and hour laws.

However, civil rights spokesmen criticized the report as an attempt to undo legal principles established over the past 50 years.

The 90-page study, which was submitted to the Domestic Policy Council, a Cabinet-level advisory body, concludes the federal government has usurped the power of the states in almost all areas of public policy.

The report, presenting the philosophical framework for the last two years of the Reagan presidency, says Congress should assess all legislation to determine whether it might unconstitutionally infringe on the authority of states.

The report found that the Supreme Court showed "indifference" to the principle of federalism in 1973 when it guaranteed women access to abortion and limited the states' power to regulate abortion.

The federal government, says the report, has used an expansive interpretation of its constitutional power to regulate interstate commerce, an area of law that has been settled in favor of forceful federal intervention for the past half-century.

At a news conference, Assistant Attorney General Charles Cooper said there is a "kind of federal pincer movement on state sovereignty."

Cooper, who chaired the working group that issued the recommendations, said Congress enacts a piece of legislation or the executive branch adopts a regulation "that intrudes...into the sovereignty and reserve powers of the states."

Selfless service

War is never a pleasant occurrence. But when war comes to a nation, as it has to this one many times in the past, the difference in the outcome rests primarily on those who, without a thought of themselves, serve their country in the interest of their fellow man and future generations.

Such is the hallmark of selfless duty.

Americans are fortunate this year that their nation is not involved in a war. Yet the peace that now prevails is a fleeting one, evidenced by the millions of American veterans from wars conducted in the past. We must not forget their contributions to our nation and our way of life. That contribution allows our way of life to continue.

James P. Dean, national commander of the American Legion, offered particularly enlightening thoughts on that topic recently when he observed: "This Veterans Day is the single day a year we have to honor all men and women who put aside their lives with but a single thought in mind: to preserve America when she was threatened.

"Veterans Day reminds us that these citizen-soldiers did not merely put aside their uniforms when the threat was conquered. We returned to family and friends with a new sense of meaning to our lives; one which gave us a new appreciation for the bounty and opportunity in this nation."

Dean went on to note that observance of Veterans Day honors "our parents and grandparents, brothers, sisters and neighbors for stepping forward during periods of trial, peril and threat."

To cast aside the memory of those who have stood in the line of fire when this nation was threatened would be the greatest injustice of all — even greater than the loss of life many suffered. On this Veterans Day, all should join in prayerful thanks for those who have served our country so ably, honorably and bravely.

Their selflessness should be recognized.

Another View:

Cutting 'no deals'

The Reagan administration, which entered office pledging that it would cut no deals with terrorists, is now seen to have indeed cut such a deal, albeit at one remove. To win freedom for three Americans held hostage in Lebanon by a group calling itself Islamic Jihad, the administration has secretly approved and probably initiated some third-country shipments of U.S. arms to Iran, Islamic Jihad's political supporter and spiritual mentor. This approach was carried out so quietly by the White House that even the secretary of state, who should have been informed, was kept in the dark. The effort achieved the release of three hostages. It also now leaves the United States, which has always exhorted others not to pay ransom to retrieve hostages and not to arm Iran, wide open to charges of hypocritically undercutting its own polices.

Significantly it was Syria, through information given to a magazine that it subsidizes in Beirut, that provided the first definitive word about what was going on. In so doing Syria almost certainly put to a dead stop any further early efforts to continue swapping hostages for military equipment. Two Americans remain the captives of Islamic Jihad. Three more are held by other Lebanese groups. No faction in faction-ridden Iran can afford to be seen as having truck with the United States. As soon as the Beirut magazine story was out, the speaker of Iran's parliament, who seems to have been involved in the negotiations with administration emissaries, made haste to deny, denounce and otherwise distance himself from any allegation that he had been dealing with the Great Satan.

By blowing the whistle, Syria was reasserting its ability to play the spoiler in any regional political developments that it dislikes. By blowing the whistle, Syria also gave the lie to its pious assurances that it has been doing everything in its power to win freedom for hostages in Lebanon. What may have disturbed Damascus most of all was an indication that the United States, if still far from restoring normal relations with Iran, was at least trying to foster contacts with those in the Iranian leadership who seem inclined to take a more pragmatic view of Iran's relations with other countries.

Administration officials wouldn't be doing their job if they failed to pursue any chance to encourage the more moderate elements in Iran, particularly as the struggle for power and succession in that war-weakened country becomes more open and intense. That worthwhile effort, though, has now become inseparably intertwined with the arms-for-hostages deal that has been exposed. And because such a deal has occurred, because ransom is seen to have been paid, further hostage-taking has been invited. This is precisely what the administration warned against from the day it took office, even as it urged others to stand firm and uncompromising against the menace of terrorism.

The White House will no doubt plead that it acted out of the most humane of intentions. Its mistake, as perhaps the State Department might have reminded it had it been consulted, was in not thinking more about the inevitable international political consequences that would follow.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1986. There are 50 days left in the year. This is Veterans Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 11, 1918, fighting in World War I ended with the signing of an armistice between the Allies and Germany inside a railroad car in the Forest of Compiegne in France.

On this date:

In 1620, 41 Pilgrims signed a compact aboard the Mayflower, anchored off the Massachusetts coast. The compact called for a "body politick" to enact "just and equal laws."

In 1778, Iroquois Indians in central New York killed about 40 people in the Cherry Valley Massacre.

In 1889, Washington became the 42nd state.

In 1921, President Warren G. Harding dedicated the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery. The inscription on the tomb reads, "Here rests in honored glory an American Soldier known but to God."

In 1939, Kate Smith first sang Irving Berlin's "God Bless America" on network radio.

In 1966, Gemini 12 blasted off from Cape Kennedy with astronauts James A. Lovell and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr. aboard. Gemini would circle the Earth 59 times before returning.

In 1972, the U.S. Army turned over its base at Longbihn to the South Vietnamese Army, symbolizing the end of direct U.S. military involvement in the Vietnam War.

Five years ago: More problems delayed the launch of the space shuttle Columbia, prompting engineers to replace a data signal processing unit.

One year ago: About a week before his summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, President Reagan visited Arlington National Cemetery, where he honored the nation's war dead as "victims of a peace process that failed."

Thought for today: "Truth is such a rare thing, it is delightful to tell it." — Emily Dickinson, American poet (1830-1886).

B'nai B'rith fights ADL name snatchers

WASHINGTON — The B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League spends most of its time battling anti-Semitism whenever it rears its ugly head. But recently the Jewish organization had to take time to fight — and win — a legal skirmish with an upstart German-American group that had appropriated B'nai B'rith's registered "Anti-Defamation League" title.

Jack Anderson

It wasn't much of a contest. The German-American ADL, which had run four fund-raising ads in Washington, D.C., newspapers, turned tail and ran when the B'nai B'rith ADL threatened legal action. The copycat group quickly changed its name to the German American Information and Education Association.

The ADL battle began when B'nai B'rith officials spotted the first German-American ad in the Washington Times on July 10. "There is a desperate attempt by a certain group to keep World War II events in the minds of people to retain their sympathy," the ad charged. It then complained that "the very same people that impugn (Austrian President Kurt) Waldheim" for his admitted Nazi past "never uttered one word of outrage against (Menachem) Begin's past" as head of the Irgun Zvai Leumi, a Jewish underground guerrilla group in British-ruled Palestine before the founding of Israel.

On July 25, B'nai B'rith advised the German-American ADL that it was infringing on a federally registered name. Hans Schmidt, head of a sympathetic organization that shares the same address and telephone number, the German American National Political Action Committee, explained what happened next in a letter sent out to "Dear friends of GANPAC and Germanity." Our associate Lucette Lagnado obtained a copy.

"Alas," Schmidt wrote, "neither we nor the lawyer who drew up the papers for our new organization was aware that the Jewish ADL had legally requisitioned both the acronym ADL, as well as the title 'Anti-Defamation League' for themselves. This is typical of the very people who fight for inclusion into, and part ownership of, everything we got but attempt to retain every piece of ground they have ever gained. At any rate, under the present circumstances we felt we had no choice but to change the name of our new organization. For us there was no loss since so far few Americans knew of our existence (the 'free' U.S. media saw to that!)."

In its new incarnation, the German American Information and Education Association sent out a fund-raising letter signed by its president, Stan Rittenhouse, identified by B'nai B'rith officials as the author of an anti-Semitic tract called "For Fear of the Jews."

In his letter, addressed to "friends of German culture and spirit ... concerned Americans," Rittenhouse rails against the usual suspects for what's wrong with the country: "a grotesquely biased news media controlled behind the scenes by a tiny unrepresentative minority ... anti-German hate movies on TV ... almost unhindered immigration of (often) unassimilable aliens ... one-worlders and usurpers."

The letter then promises: "Our organization will henceforth always take that position that seems best for America's ethnic majority!" This is an apparent reference to Americans of German descent or "Germanic heritage," which Schmidt and Rittenhouse claim is the largest U.S. minority, numbering 52 million. According to one of the organization's ads, Americans of Dutch, Belgian and Scandinavian backgrounds are counted as Germanic, and the "German" states of the union stretch from Pennsylvania to the Dakotas.

Rittenhouse's letter appeals for contributions, saying "we need $6 million to establish and staff a TRUTH CENTER ... to inform the American people of important news currently being withheld by the liberal media." When asked if the $6 million figure was chosen to correspond to the number of Jews who died in the Nazi Holocaust, Rittenhouse chuckled and said it hadn't even occurred to him.

COMPLAINT, CONSOLATION: A reader recently wrote to complain that Rep. Gene Chappie, R-Calif., is setting up a scholarship fund with his campaign leftovers when he retires this year. The reader said he gave $10 to Chappie for political use, not scholarships. If it's any consolation, Chappie at least can't spend the tenner on himself — as he could have if he had served in Congress before Jan. 8, 1980. Until that loophole was closed, a retiring member could spend surplus campaign funds on anything lawful. Those who didn't serve before the cutoff date can spend leftovers on anything lawful — except themselves.

YUPPIES ON THE BENCH: Conservatives under 40 are winning a significant share of Reagan administration appointments to federal judgeships. There's a good reason for this, of course. Since federal judges sit for life, a 35-year-old jurist will have an extra 20 years or more to apply the conservative doctrines of the Reagan era than if the jobs went to mature, experienced lawyers and judges of 55 or 60.

Nicaraguan policy Reagan's march of folly

TOLEDO, Spain — Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez will visit Cuba during his Latin American trip starting this weekend, making him the first head of an allied government to go to Havana.

The U.S. attempt to isolate Cuba is breaking down, although at the same time the Castro regime has lost its allure for the European left. As one participant said in a meeting here on Cuba, Western Europe and the U.S., if Cuba is still anyone's model, it is of how not to run an economy.

Flora Lewis

Nonetheless, Reagan administration policy in Central America continues to worry America's friends. A major result of the new Senate majority, they hope, will be to add restraints on the Washington-sponsored guerrilla war to bring down the Sandinista government in Nicaragua and possibly to revive attempts for a negotiated settlement in Central America as a whole.

Experts agree there is virtually no chance of any move toward more normal relations between Cuba and the U.S. in the foreseeable future, not only because of Washington's stand but also because of Fidel Castro's anti-U.S. attitude. But high-ranking Cubans show a serious interest in an accord on Central America. Moscow has made clear that it is not going to subsidize Nicaragua as it does Cuba, and the Cubans have told the Sandinistas that Havana cannot protect them.

There is room here for an escape from the dangerous slope the U.S. is sliding down in the region. It is a commonplace to say that Nicaragua is not Vietnam, but there are mounting parallels. Not the least important are the subterfuges and downright lies the administration has felt compelled to use to press its campaign against the Sandinistas, undermining the most vital of all national interests — the credibility of the U.S. government in America's own eyes.

In Barbara Tuchman's book "The March of Folly," four historical examples are given of strong powers that brought disaster on themselves by dint of stubborn refusal to face reality. She defines this folly as cases where there was ample warning that policy was wrongheaded, where the facts were available, and where an alternative, conciliatory policy was easily possible.

Mrs. Tuchman cites the fall of Troy; the behavior of the Renaissance popes, which brought on the Reformation and Europe's wars of religion; Britain's intransigence and mismanagement of the American Colonies, and the U.S. war in Vietnam.

U.S. policy on Nicaragua fits the case histories of stubborn folly to an uncanny degree, including the failure to assess what really matters and what the dangers are.

From time to time in its shifting, fuzzy statements on Central America and the Caribbean, Washington has pointed out that the overriding U.S. concern in the area must be the fate of Mexico. This is certainly correct, but the vast and painful problems of Mexico are only exacerbated by troubles in Central America. Overturning the Sandinistas is a diversion, not a palliative.

There are hopeful developments in the spread of democracy in Latin America, which faces excruciating odds of debt and the social impact of trying to overcome the economic crisis. The U.S. has a stake in the success and stabilization of these democracies. They could have an impact on the sorry Nicaraguan experiment in the longer term, but escalation of the war and increased U.S. involvement would make things harder for them.

European allies are just as opposed to what the U.S. is doing. They don't speak up much because they don't feel directly concerned, and they don't see the Sandinistas or for that matter the Cubans as heroic any longer.

But like most Latin Americans, they see the best way to deal with these pockets of communism as letting them stew in their own juice until their inefficiencies and internal pressures force them to change. Democratic Spain is particularly interested in strengthening its influence in the Latin countries, and it has capabilities that can be most helpful to the U.S. provided Washington is seen as acting constructively, not aggressively.

Most Communist countries are moving now toward reforms in one way or another, not because the U.S. has pushed them but because they are falling behind economically. Cuba is an exception, stuck in its rut, and sooner or later it too will have to move.

An activist U.S. policy is needed to reinforce the democracies. An activist destabilizing policy in Nicaragua is counterproductive. President Reagan is going to have to reconsider priorities and make some compromises to get along with the strongly Democratic Congress in the next two years. A good place to start is to back away from a Nicaraguan adventure before it becomes another march of folly. The possibility is there.

CHARLEY REESE

Government should set up scaffold of its own

Welfare reform has long been a favorite topic, particularly of conservatives, but it seems that neither conservatives nor liberals are willing to face the one tough decision without which no true reform is possible.

That decision is to remove the government incentive for idleness.

Charley Reese

Unless it is painful not to work, some people flat won't do it. They have a talent for idleness and are perfectly willing for the rest of us to supply them with room and board while they idle away their time.

I don't know why so many people who write about welfare insist on denying this obvious fact. They do, though. They operate on the assumption that every single person receiving public benefits really doesn't want them and would be out there in the rat race were it not for some circumstance beyond their control.

That simply isn't so. There are some people who despise work. They will expend considerable energy to avoid it. The very thought of bouncing out of bed at a regular time, showing up for work and staying there until quitting time, appalls them. They view it as a stupid and barbaric kind of existence.

They may be right, but being one of those who works, I'm not at all happy about having to expend a portion of my labor to support their laziness. That's the crux of opposition to the present welfare system.

Despite the demagoguery of liberal politicians, I've never run into a political conservative — a few libertarians excepted — who was not willing to provide permanent public support to those disabled by age, disease or accident and temporary support to those temporarily dislocated by circumstances such as lay-offs or plant closures.

Helping those people are not the issue. The issue is what do we do about those people who, if we let them, are perfectly content to live off the labor of others not only for their lifetimes but for generations? They are not disabled. They may have deliberately disqualified themselves for the marketplace by avoiding the labor of public schooling. But their bodies are healthy and their brains function. They know, for example, perfectly well how to fill out forms and to milk the system for maximum benefits.

A fellow I know once ran an apartment complex occupied by people who received rent subsidies. He was trying to collect $10 from a tenant and the tenant, an ample lady, laughed at him.

"I'm smarter than you are," she said. "I don't have to lift a finger and you're out there working your (expletive) off."

As galling as it was, the fellow admitted she was right. He did not have much time to spend with his family because he was working so long and hard to provide not only for his family but for hers, too, via the burdens imposed on him by local, state and federal taxes.

This is an injustice and injustices, allowed to continue, will fester in a society and turn it mean. The solution is simple. We just need to stop supplying public assistance to the able-bodied.

The liberal shrinks in horror at the thought. The liberal thinks if you cut off the able-bodied parasite, they will starve. But they won't. They know how to work. They can work. They just don't choose to work unless it is absolutely essential, meaning unless they cannot find a sucker willing to support their preferred idleness.

A preacher whose church bordered an interstate highway once conducted an experiment. Transients frequently stopped and asked for handouts. The preacher set up a scaffold at the rear of the church. When the transients stopped and asked for a handout, he told them he would gladly help but would they mind helping the church by painting for a couple of hours? Almost without exception, the transients promptly got back into their cars and sped off.

Unless we remove the injustice of the able-bodied parasites living off the labor of others, the working people will eventually rebel. All it takes is a little courage, admittedly a rare commodity among politicians.

Ex-hostages differ on U.S. deals for captives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two former hostages in Lebanon differ on whether the United States should make deals for captives, with one criticizing any weapons shipments to Iran and the other supporting President Reagan's reported actions.

The Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, a former hostage, said he opposed any arms shipments to Iran and would have preferred to remain captive had he known weapons might have been the price for his freedom.

"The trading of arms symbolizes violence," Jenco said Monday. "Why continue the war between Iran and Iraq?" he said in reference to the long-running war in the Middle East. "That troubles me very much, that innocent people might be killed because I was given freedom."

Meanwhile, President Reagan insisted Monday that no U.S. laws have been violated and that the U.S. policy against deals with terrorists remains intact.

The president, according to his spokesman, Larry Speakes, also asked his advisers on Monday to keep silent about the matter because "hostage lives are at stake."

Earlier on Monday, Speakes again refused to discuss reports that the administration secretly shipped arms to Iran in exchange for three hostages in Lebanon.

"We've said what we have done is legal, proper, right, in the best interests of the country and in the best interests of the hostages," he said.

Jenco, a Catholic priest, was freed last July. His views are similar to those of the Rev. Benjamin Weir, who was released in September 1985.

Last week, Weir said the "trading of arms for hostages" was a "questionable tactic," and he said he was against any move that could lead to bloodier fighting between Iran and Iraq.

But Jeremy Levin, the former Beirut bureau chief for Cable News Network, said he has long believed it probably would take "some kind of negotiating, some kind of deal" to spring the American hostages.

The Reagan administration's long-stated policy is that it does not negotiate with terrorists.

Levin, who spent 11 months in captivity before he was freed in February 1985, said he hoped any deal would not endanger Americans in the future, and he said he would have "preferred that arms were not the apparent quid pro quo in this particular situation."

But he said Reagan responded to the outpouring of sympathy from Americans for the hostages, and for that he should be congratulated.

"It (public pressure) appears to have motivated him to the point of fostering some extraordinary and highly controversial actions," Levin said.

The president apparently is willing to take the consequences of his actions, and, "from that point of view, I support him and I thank him for coming around," Levin said. "Better late than never."

Levin urged Americans to write Reagan and Congress because the president "might like to hear that what he is trying to do is not a sign of weakness but an incredible sign of strength."

Levin and Jenco appeared at a news conference sponsored by No Greater Love, a humanitarian group that is trying to draw attention to the hostages. The group collected about 25,000 letters from school children in the Buffalo, N.Y., area for the hostages.

Long-term damage for Rhine feared

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A poisonous chemical spill in the Rhine has killed half a million fish, deprived towns of water supplies and stirred fears of long-term damage to one of Europe's busiest and most scenic waterways.

French officials plan decrees against catching Rhine River fish for the next six months becauase of the spill Nov. 1 during an industrial fire in Basel, Switzerland.

Some critics are calling the spill Chernobale, after the Chernobyl nuclear disaster last April in the Soviet Union. Bale is the French name for Basel.

"We don't know how damaged the Rhine is, but there's no doubt that there has been serious harm done," Walter Wallmann, West Germany's environment minister, said Monday.

In Brussels, the European Common Market's enironment commissioner requested an urgent meeting of government ministers later this month to evaluate the consequences and "deal with the immediate crisis."

The Swiss government said member nations of the International Rhine River Commission would hold a special meeting Wednesday in Zurich.

West German, French and Dutch officials accused Swiss authorities of slow reaction and poor cross-border coordination after the accident.

About 30 tons of toxic herbicides, pesticides and mercury poured into the Rhine along with water used to put out a fire at the Sandoz chemical plant outside Basel.

The spill, about 25 miles long, drifted slowly downstream, causing huge fish kills and contaminating water supplies of river towns.

Concern has been intensified by the Rhine's importance as an artery of European commerce and tourist attraction.

The 820-mile-long river rises in a Swiss glacier and passes through or forms borders of Liechtenstein, Austria, West Germany, France and the Netherlands on its way to the North Sea.

French authorities said they had prevented the chemicals from entering tributaries and underground water sources by closing lock gates into canals and secondary waterways.

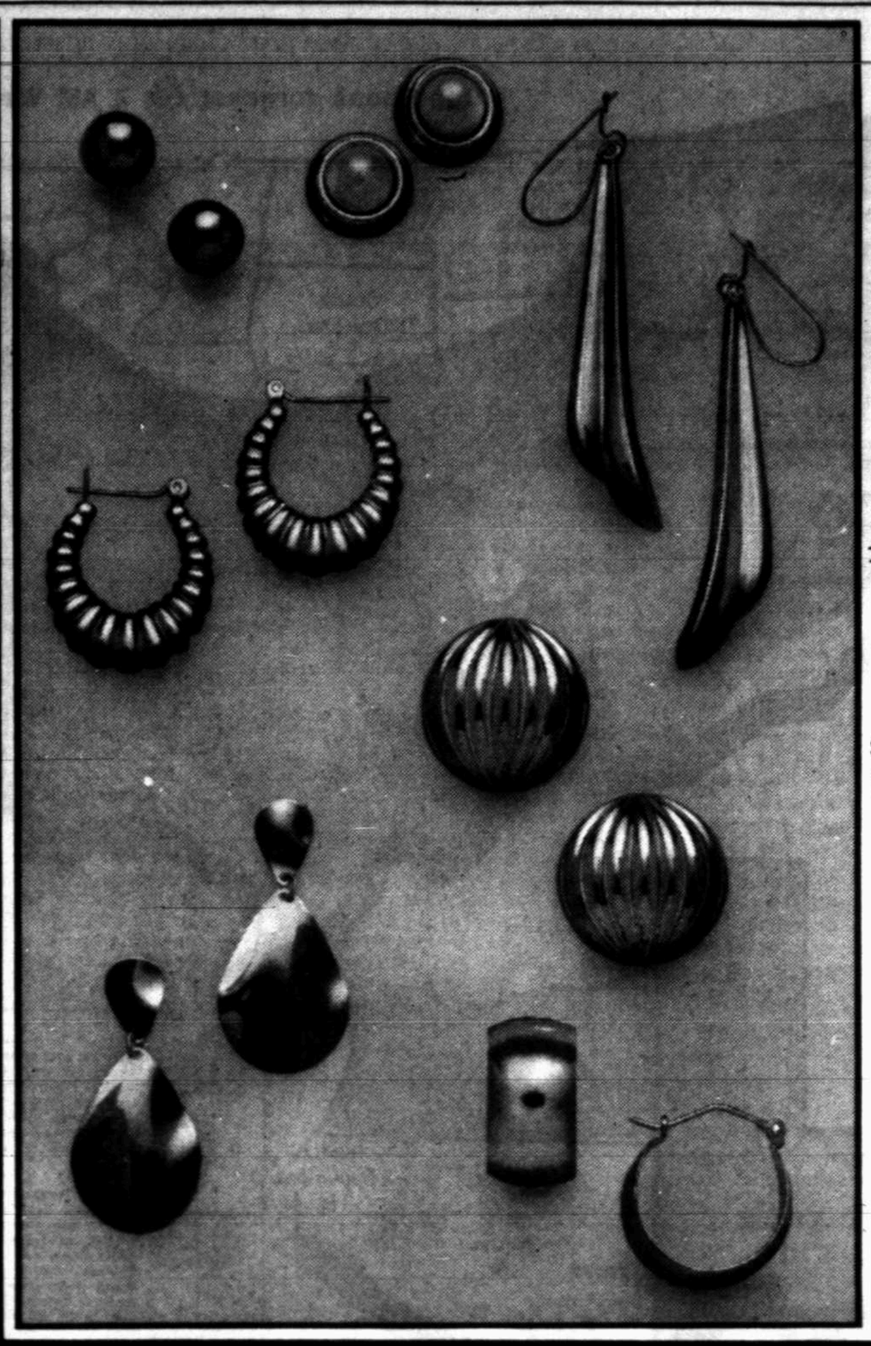

Unkel and Bad Honningen in West Germany's northern Rhineland indefinitely closed off their normal water supplies, which are a combination of Rhine and ground sources.

"They will continue to be served with water by a 24-hour firetruck service until further notice," said Detlef Diehl, spokesman for Environment Minister Wallmann. He said other Rhine communities either customarily used only ground water or had switched to it.

Precuationary measures also include cancellation of some Rhine cruises, which are important to the West German tourist industry.

The chemicals entered the Netherlands over the weekend and neared the Rhine delta on the North Sea late Monday, Dutch environmental authorities reported.

A second patch of mercury-tainted water from a container leak at the Sandoz plant that was related to the fire made its way down the river Monday in West Germany. Company spokesman Benedikt Hurni said toxic concentrations were "minimal" compared with the first spill.

Cold conditions could linger

From Staff and Wire Reports

Cold temperatures will remain in the Midland area through Wednesday according to forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. A low in the upper 20s, with a freeze warning issued, is expected tonight. Wednesday's high should reach only near the 40-degree mark.

Tonight, under partly cloudy skies, winds will be out of the east at five to 10 mph. Winds will remain out of the east on Wednesday, increasing to 10-15 mph under mostly cloudy skies.

Monday's high of 65 was 20 degrees below the record high set for that date in 1964. Today's low of 31 was 15 degrees above the record low set for this date in 1950.

STATE

Cold Canadian air spilled southward across Texas today in the wake of a fast-moving cold front that roared across the state.

Temperatures were in the teens over the Panhandle and in the 20s across the South Plains and Low Plains of West Texas at dawn today. Wind chill indexes across portions of West Texas ranged between zero and six degrees at dawn.

Light rain was reported across Central Texas, South Central Texas and the Rio Grande plains. Isolated showers and light rain dotted most of East Texas and Southeast Texas. Heavy thunderstorms were reported offshore from the upper Texas coast in the Gulf of Mexico.

Patchy fog was reported over the Coastal Bend and in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Skies were clear over the High Plains of West Texas and partly cloudy to cloudy elsewhere.

Forecasts called for a freeze warning for parts of North Texas and in the Permian Basin and Concho Valley tonight.

NATION

Snow fell across the nation's midsection today and headed for the Northeast, while record-breaking cold air pushed into the Southwest.

Snow ranged from the middle Mississippi Valley to the Great Lakes region. Travelers' advisories for snow were issued in southeastern Iowa, northern Illinois and much of Michigan.

Winter storm watches for snow were posted in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and northeastern New York. Another blast of snow set off alerts in Montana.

Below-zero readings were common across the Dakotas, Nebraska, western Iowa and northwest Minnesota. The low temperatures came on the heels of a day of record lows in sections of Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Trial of ex-vice president of defunct FNB begins

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Opposing lawyers in the federal trial of Olen Mack Brock, former vice president of the now-defunct First National Bank of Midland, contend that they are seeking truth and justice in the trial.

Assistant U.S. Attorney James K. Blankinship is seeking to convict Brock of embezzlement and bank fraud. If convicted on the seven counts alleged in the indictment, Brock, who turns 50 this month, could be sentenced up to 27 years in prison.

Abilene defense attorney A.L. "Dusty" Rhodes, who maintains his client's innocence, asked the jurors not to "overlook what is truth. If you do that, you'll feel good when you leave this courthouse."

Rhodes took a spinoff of Blankinship's opening comments on his representing "the people" of the United States in prosecuting Brock.

"If he represents the people, isn't it his just obligation to represent Mr. Brock as well?" Rhodes asked.

"The government is required to render the truth even if it hurts them, because Olen Brock is part of the government, isn't he?"

Rhodes said that Blankinship's interpretation of the charges against Brock "sounds almost like a scenario on TV — a script." Rhodes said that script-writing is "easy to do" if one doesn't understand the transactions.

Rhodes exhorted the four-man, eight-woman jury not to "let your desire to do a good job to overcome what is right and wrong. Do not overlook what is truth. If you do that (seek truth), you'll feel good when you leave this courthouse."

Rhodes described Brock as a "gentleman probably...not unlike you (jurors)." He said Brock is a family man, has a "lovely wife," "worked hard all of his life," is a "man of total good character," and has "excellent credibility." He said Brock's transactions in the bank were "consistent with good accounting practices."

Rhodes said that Brock would testify in his own defense even though he is under no obligation to prove his innocence. It is the government's burden to prove any guilt alleged in the indictment, which U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton assured the jurors was no proof or indication of guilt.

Rhodes said the prosecution must substantiate any alleged wrongdoing.

"They've got to prove it," he said. "We'll disprove it."

Never before, said Rhodes, has Brock been "accused of stealing one penny."

Blankinship is alleging that Brock committed fraud in 1981 and 1982, that he benefited from bank loans, and that his actions posed a "conflict of interest" with the bank.

In the trial, Blankinship asked the jurors to "render a decision that you know is right."

"All that we ask is that you give us (the government) a fair trial just like you are going to give Olen Brock a fair trial. We'll be satisfied."

Since 1985, five ex-bankers, including three former bank presidents, in Midland and Odessa have been convicted in federal court of bank fraud in the wake of Federal Bureau of Investigation probes into bank fraud in the Permian Basin.

Latest to be convicted by a jury was William Hoyle McCright Jr., 61, former executive vice president of The First National Bank of Midland, which failed in 1983. McCright, who was sentenced to 12 years in prison, is appealing the "guilty" verdict.

The Rev. W.N. Otwell, left, ended five weeks of being a fugitive when he surrendered Monday to Tarrant County Sheriff Don Carpenter, right. Otwell was then taken to Austin where he appeared in state district court.

Otwell agrees to close boys' home

AUSTIN (AP) — The Rev. W.N. Otwell has agreed not to operate his home for troubled boys in violation of state law and the state has agreed not to press for imprisonment or fines for the fundamentalist minister.

The agreement was made late Monday in the court of State District Judge Paul Davis.

Otwell and Attorney General Jim Mattox shook hands after the proceedings.

Otwell surrendered to the Tarrant County sheriff Monday morning in Fort Worth after being a fugitive from the state for five weeks.

He was taken to Austin where Davis on Oct. 6 had ordered him arrested for disobeyng a court order to get a state license for the children's home at Forest Hill, in the Fort Worth suburbs, or shut it down.

"I appreciate the judge not incarcerating me," Otwell said after the brief court hearing. "I still think the law is wrong and will try to get it changed in the next Legislature."

"I think they made the right decision to close the school and go to the Legislature," said Mattox, who personally appeared before Davis.

Otwell contends that getting a state license for the home would violate the separation of church and state guaranteed in the constitution.

Davis ruled after Mattox and Shelby Sharp, Fort Worth attorney for Otwell, said an agreement had been reached.

The agreement calls for Otwell and the Community Baptist Church, which he heads, to keep the school closed until, and unless, the Legislature changes state law that requires state licensing of all schools that care for minor children.

The agreement will modify the court order to prevent the church and other church property from being padlocked and sold to pay the $67,000 in fines levied by the court.

The Department of Human Services will make periodic inspections to see that the order is carried out.

Davis also agreed to suspend payment of the fines levied against Otwell and the church for operating the home without a license.

"That includes a waiver of any possible jail sentence," he said, referring to the contempt of court action.

However, Davis lectured Otwell.

"You took it upon youself to decide whether to follow a law," Davis said. "That is a very unfortunate message you have given a lot of people.

"To say you are above the law is something our society hopefully will never permit," Davis said.

Otwell spoke briefly to the court saying he was serious at all times in his actions.

"I wasn't playing games," he said. "We felt the courts and the state had been unjust to us.

"We have suffered very much. We have paid the price," he said.

The minister's followers in mid-October thwarted the state's attempt to gain custody of the boys by spiriting them away before law officers made a pre-dawn raid. Otwell told reporters Monday that all of the children had been returned to their parents.

Revoked doctors' licenses increase, board says

DALLAS (AP) — The number of doctors' licenses revoked nationwide last year increased almost 60 percent, the Federation of State Medical Boards reported.

An increased number of doctors also had their licenses suspended or were placed on probation, the report said.

Dale G. Breaden, the federation's associate executive vice president, said a number of factors contributed to the increases. Among them, he said, were increased support for state medical boards from legislatures.

"The board in any state can only do what the legislature has granted them the power to do," Breaden said in a telephone interview Monday from his Fort Worth office. "The better the statutes, the better its (the board's) ability to perform."

Increased support from legislatures includes increased funding and staffing, and laws giving boards authority to take a greater range of actions against doctors, Breaden said.

Federation figures show that medical boards last year revoked the licenses of 406 doctors, an increase of 59.2 percent from 1984, when 255 licenses were revoked.

Also, 235 doctors were suspended, 491 were placed on probation and 976 received other penalties, such as reprimands.

In 1984, federation figures show that 71 Texas doctors were disciplined, including seven whose licenses were revoked.

The federation compiles figures from the 50 states and the District of Columbia. But Breaden said no attempt is made to compare each state's number of actions taken against doctors.

"We recognize too many variables to come up with a meaningful ranking," Breaden said.

For instance, he said Alaska reported no disciplinary actions taken last year against doctors. One reason, he said, is because Alaska runs one to 1½ years behind in its reports to the federation.

Lumber company fire suspect remains jailed

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

A local lumberyard sustained damage estimated at between $500,000 and $750,000 in Monday's early morning fire. A 17-year-old Midland man suspected of arson remains in city jail after he was arrested near the scene of the multi-alarm blaze.

Bobby Williams, assistant fire marshal, said he is still investigating the fire, which broke out about 4 a.m. in the door-shop complex at McCarroll Lumber Co., 3105 Bankhead Highway. Nine firefighting units, about 30 firefighters, on and off-duty, were called to the scene after a police officer on patrol spotted the fire. The shop area was a total loss.

No one was injured in the fire, but police evacuated 20 people from the adjacent Desert Inn Motel.

Police said the man, an unemployed air conditioner/heater technician, was arrested for public intoxication in the 100 block of S. Midkiff. After he was questioned, police decided to hold him for arson investigators.

Williams said investigators suspect several recent fires in the area of the McCarroll fire were also set.

In other reports, police are investigating several burglaries. A videocassette recorder valued at $400, a 25-inch color television set valued at $500, and a pearl necklace with gold beads were reported stolen from a residence in the 3800 block of Nassau. According to police, the items were stolen Monday, sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Police are also investigating the theft of several cassette tapes valued at $75 from a vehicle parked in the 3600 block of Cimarron. The theft occurred Monday between 8:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m., police said.

Architect to soon take Culver renovation bids

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Though most of Tuesday's Midland County Commissioners meeting was spent canvassing — precinct by precinct — last Tuesday's election, commissioners did make decisions concerning renovation plans for the Culver Youth Home and the Midland County Jail.

Architect Walter Pate, whose firm Pate and Associates is in charge of the scheduled renovations, got approval from commissioners to begin accepting bids on the Culver Youth Home additions.

The bids, to begin being taken at 1 p.m. on December 10, include addition of maximum security housing, a day room and other support facilities, a classroom and an office for the Juvenile Probation Department.

Pate said a fire protection sprinkler system will be added to the Culver Youth Home to remain in compliance with state requirements.

The bids will be taken from six to eight general contractors, Pate said, who will in turn sub-contract all the work to be done.

Separation of the jail sewage system from the main county courthouse's system will be completed for about $45,000, Pate said.

Bids will be taken sometime in late January, Pate said, on the nearly $2 million renovation scheduled to begin in mid-February on the Midland County Jail.

Midland police hunt for missing woman

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Midland police said early today some fingerprints, as yet unidentified, were found on the doors of the abandoned car of a Midland woman who has been missing since Saturday.

The woman, 24-year-old June Carpenter Gilkerson, was reported missing by her husband, Ronald, about 9:10 p.m. Saturday. Gilkerson told police his wife had left their residence at 9 a.m. Saturday, and said she was going to the Midland Restitution Center, 2305 S. Belmont, where she worked part-time. She never arrived, employees there said.

Her car, a 1986 Honda Civic, was found at the Best Western Motel on Interstate 20. Her purse, car keys, and a pair of sneakers were found in the car.

Police said they suspect foul play.

"A helicopter was used yesterday, most of the day, to try and locate her," said police Lt. Hank Norton. "The search is continuing today, with the Best Western as the hub. We are going to search out from there."

GARY OTT

It's a parent's prerogative to dish out bits of advice

If I had children, which I don't, I would be great at giving fatherly advice. My kids, like most I've known, would simply roll their eyes at my words of wisdom but I, like most parents I've known, would not let that minor detail derail me from dishing it out anyway.

Among the things I would say include:

— If you insist on treating your pet like a human being, be prepared to have other people think of you as weird.

— If you are happy, it doesn't matter if other people think of you as weird.

— When you get into a friendly argument with friends, don't try to win it by merely being louder than your opponent. Content is more important than volume.

— If you can't sing, don't. Others will judge you harshly.

— Don't save pennies. They never add up to as much as you think you have. For example, if you save 2,395 pennies, you actually have only $23.95. It's not worth the effort.

— Curse sparingly. The words are far more effective that way.

— When you have company over and feel an irrestistable urge to show them snapshots from your latest vacation, resist the temptation. They are really not interested.

— When friends insist on showing you snapshots from their latest vacation, act interested.

— If you have nothing to say, keep quiet.

— If you choose not to smoke, great, but don't act like a jerk around people who do.

— Pick up the tab occasionally. It will make you feel good, which is more important than impressing others, though it will do that, too.

— Don't whine to others about your financial woes. It comes across as tacky.

— Learn to laugh at your shortcomings. It is a very attractive trait.

— When you have had too much to drink, catch a ride home and sleep it off.

— Enjoying sports is a great emotional release. But always remember one thing, it is only a game. The sun will rise tomorrow.

— Try and appreciate all forms of music, but choose one type as your personal favorite and defend it against all critics. The lone exception is punk rock. It has no redeeming value.

— Don't be overly concerned with your clothes. Comfort is more important than looks.

— Occasionally, getting all dressed up can be fun. Try it periodically, but don't overdo it. People will come to expect it from you.

— Don't judge others by their looks.

— Treat your elders with respect. They don't always deserve it, but it's a nice touch just the same.

— Try and remember people's names. It will make them feel so much better than hearing you say, "What's going on, big guy?"

— Laughter makes even the worst of situations bearable.

— Keep up with what's going on in the world. It can be depressing at times, but knowing little tidbits can be helpful at cocktail parties.

— Do as I say and not as I do.

Special delivery of mail trucks turns out to be not so special

By MICHELLE STEIN

ARLINGTON (AP) — They have been there for months, dozens of U.S. Postal Service trucks, sitting in an empty field, collecting dust instead of delivering mail.

Anybody driving east on Interstate 20 between Matlock Road and Cooper Street sees them.

And ponders.

"I get 10 to 12 phone calls a day from people wanting to know why those trucks are here," said Jim Kelly, president of Interstate Trailers Inc., which is located behind the trucks.

Kelly knows exactly what the white trucks with blue and red stripes are doing there. He bought them.

Now he wants to sell them.

"As is, I'll sell you one for $1,400," Kelly offered.

"It was part of the agreement when I bought them," Kelly explained.

Which brings up the subject of why Kelly would purchase a passel of postal trucks, especially since he's not a mail carrier and has no plans to become one.

The story, Kelly said, began in 1980, when a Florida company called Commuter Vehicles was contracted by the U.S. Postal Service to design and build an electrically powered postal truck.

"There was a big gas crunch then," said Kelly, who then worked as plant manager for Commuter Vehicles. "The electric trucks seemed like a good idea."

Indeed, they did. Each 1,700-pound truck was designed specifically for the mail carrier, with a driver's seat on the right-hand side, a large tray on the left for letters and space in back for packages.

But that wasn't the best part.

"These vehicles only cost about 60 cents a day to run," Kelly said. "Compare that with the $7.50 a day it costs to fuel a mail jeep."

The only drawback, Kelly said, was the trucks could go only about 40 miles before their 12 six-volt batteries needed to be recharged.

"That shouldn't have mattered," Kelly said. "A mail carrier should be able to complete his route within the mileage allowed."

So the white, sloped-nose ("to cut down on wind") trucks were built and distributed to post offices throughout the South.

A new era in mail delivery had begun.

> "(Electrically powered) vehicles only cost about 60 cents a day to run. Compare that with the $7.50 a day it costs to fuel a mail jeep."
> — Jim Kelly of Interstate Trailers Inc.

Less than a year later, it was over.

"There was some operational failures," Kelly said. "Until they could be resolved, they (the postal service) discontinued use of the trucks."

In the meantime, 14 trucks were delivered to the Arlington post office.

They never were used.

"We were prohibited from using them...because of the problems," Arlington Postmaster Mary Mindrup said.

Kelly admitted there were problems.

"There were probably things that could be improved," he said. "But we had to get the trucks out there and work out the bugs. This wasn't something that had been done before."

The gasoline crunch ended, however, and so did the Postal Service's desire for an electric vehicle, Kelly said. Nearly a year ago, the trucks went on the auction block.

Kelly was low bidder.

"I wanted to see the vehicles put to good use," he said.

Like in a large company or an apartment complex. "They could use them as maintenance wagons," Kelly suggested.

Kelly hasn't made any big push to get rid of the trucks. He's amused by callers wanting to know if he's running a post office.

Arlington postal officials also have received a handful of phone calls about the trucks.

"They want to know if there is a post office there," Mindrup said.

Information sought about missing drilling compound

ODESSA — According to law enforcement authorities, oil field crime has doubled this year. This week, Crime Stoppers is asking the public for information to help solve an Odessa case.

On Nov. 4, 1985, an employee at Agri Empressa, located on Interstate 20 two miles west of Farm to Market Road 1788, discovered an inventory book missing. According to a master inventory taken Nov. 1, and another taken Nov. 7, 200 50-pound bags of Drispack drilling compound, valued at $18,000, was discovered missing.

Investigators have no leads in the case and are asking for help from the public.

Crime Stoppers is offering a $1,000 cash reward this week only for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the persons responsible for the theft.

Crime Stoppers in Midland can be reached at 694-TIPS, and in Odessa at 333-TIPS.

Vets recall gliding through WWII

Associated Press

Two Texas veterans of World War II recall their in-flight adventures as they glided through the war.

Lambert Wilder, 72, of Grand Prairie, and Allen Hall Jr., 70, of Waco, both flew gliders during the war. Wilder was a pilot in the European theater, while Hall saw action in the Pacific.

An Army Air Corps volunteer, Wilder flew CG-4A gliders, called "flying coffins" because they often carried dangerous cargoes and made difficult landings behind enemy lines.

Wilder said he feels lucky to have have survived while many other glider pilots were killed in crash landings or by enemy troops after landing.

"In all the activity I saw over there (Europe) I never had a scratch," Wilder said. "I got down in one piece on all three landings."

Wilder, flying his first glider mission into Normandy on D-Day, had a bird's-eye view of the monumental assault.

"I've never seen so many ships," Wilder said. "They stretched from horizon to horizon. Above us were streams of airplanes coming back from France."

As a member of the Air Corps First Air Commando unit in Burma, Hall participated in the first successful glider invasion of enemy territory.

"Those gliders could land in short spaces like a sandbar or rice paddy field," Hall said. "You might demolish the glider and get a broken leg or arm, but in a powered plane you probably would have been killed in an explosion."

When the gliders landed behind enemy lines, "we became infantrymen real fast," said Hall.

He also said the figures do not necessarily reflect all actions taken against doctors. "There's no claim here that every action taken by every board is reported here," Breaden said.

"Not too many years ago," Breaden said, "the only action a board could take was to revoke a license."

But today, he said, more boards are allowed to levy fines, issue reprimands, and suspend licenses until a full hearing can be conducted.

The federation has issued a 28-page guide with suggestions on what should be contained in a state law governing medical boards.

Norton said the prints were found on the driver and passenger doors, but he said they have not been identified.

Norton said about 60 officers, including Midland police, sheriff's officers, and Department of Public Safety troopers searched the area around the motel Monday.

According to employees at the motel, the woman's car had been parked there since 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Service group donates vehicles

From Staff Reports

Southwestern Bell Telephone and its Far West Club of Telephone Pioneers of America have donated vehicles to two Midland agencies, according to Jerie Orr, vice president of the club.

KidsArts and Company received a van from Bell to take their show to elementary school children in Midland. The program is designed to expand children's exposure to art (music, dancing, painting, etc.) in their schools or community centers.

The program is sponsored by the Museum of the Southwest, Cultural Arts Assembly and Casa de Amigos Community Center.

A station wagon was also donated by Bell and Pioneers to the Love Christian Child Care Academy for transporting children to the facility after school.

Darlene Gifford said the company donates vehicles it is retiring to nonprofit agencies throughout its service area. At the present time, the company is locating a retired vehicle for the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.

The Telephone Pioneers of America is the world's largest service organization and its members are active and retired employees of Southwestern Bell Telephone, AY&T and other Bell operating companies, according to Ms. Gifford.

Professor: Paranoia cultivated so arms buildup appears necessary

ABILENE (AP) — U.S. officials are cultivating paranoia so Americans will believe an arms buildup is necessary, according to a Harvard professor and Nobel Prize winner.

"They have cultivated national paranoia," said George Wald, a biology professor who won the Nobel Prize for physiology and medicine in 1967, in a speech at Hardin-Simmons University.

"The idea is that you get people scared enough so you can tax them as much as you want," Wald said Monday.

Wald also criticized the U.S. government's treatment of Third World nations.

The United States has constantly interfered with governments in Central America and manipulated them for its own prosperity, said Wald, citing Nicaragua as an example.

Wald said several years ago the president elected in Nicaragua tried to raise the standard of living through land reform, but he met resistance from the American-owned United Fruit Company and ultimately from U.S. government officials.

Once low-glitz LA area offers high fashion

Melrose Avenue boutiques set catchy designer pace

By BARBARA DeWITT and JENNIFER PRETZ
Copley News Service

What walks out of Melrose Avenue boutiques in Los Angeles today is often what fashionable women in New York and Dallas are wearing tomorrow.

Once a Los Angeles low-glitz area devoted to Art Deco and retro shops, the Avenue now has a catchy beat. From Australian designers to low-upkeep, high-fashion parachute gear, Melrose Avenue is for the young and middle-aged who want to look young and important.

Sometimes serious, sometimes eclectic, the fashion is reminiscent of San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district, where peace symbols and white doves became the themes for wearable art.

It's obvious that that mentality, that genre, is still alive and well on Melrose, particularly in shops such as Tiger Rose. At this 1986-style head shop, recycled clothes, tie-dyed shirts and peace symbol jewelry are the fare for the day, with prices low enough to appeal to preteens.

Speaking of other times and places, there's a salute to Australia at Koala Blue, an ice cream parlor-plus-boutique owned by singer/actress Olivia Newton-John and partner Pat Farrar.

THERE ARE sweatshirts ($29), T-shirts ($11), socks ($6.50) and handknit cotton sweaters ($112) all baring the Aussie bear, and while they're cute, the real eyecatchers are the handcrafted earrings ($48) and hand-painted blazers abounding with kangaroos ($260).

The earrings are big on whimsy, heart-shaped and trimmed in pearls, and look like tiny mobiles. For less frilly tastes, but the same price, one can wear brown-and-green boomerang mobiles.

Moving down the Avenue one gets a taste of Paris at St. Tropez Shoes and Comme Les Garcons.

St. Tropez Shoes offers styles for the well-shod fashion follower, including rhinestone tennies for $20, pointed-toe grannies for $49 and fringed cowboy boots for $120.

At Comme Les Garcons, one finds high-priced eclectic party clothes. Bright colored, oversized-and-billowy dresses, as well as designs full of juxtapositions, such as black lace in non-sexy silhouettes. Also in stock are an array of rhinestone-studded lizard pins, a fashion must among the club-hopping set.

Shoppers who want to rest their tootsies before crossing the street to Flash Feet of London, another shoe salon specializing in shoes to wear with Betsey Johnson and Norma Kamali designs, can park themselves at cutesy ice cream tables in front of Bonnie and Clyde's Art Deco-decorated dessert parlor. The hits here are apple pie, ice cream sundaes and flavored popcorn.

A trip to Melrose Avenue isn't complete without a stopover at Fred Segal's. It's an avenue within an avenue, and you'll find everything from hologram earrings to pink glitter baby boots.

The merchandise is more upscale than its Santa Monica sister, and so are the prices. Expect to pay as much as $70 for a pair of khaki crinkled silk boxer shorts to $625 for a Lily Farouche denim jacket decked out with beads, rhinestones, appliques and gold chains.

HIGHLY DECORATED boots, bags and T-shirts for the up-to-the-minute fashion customer are the order of the day here, but you'll also find some very sleek silver jewelry and spare (incredibly spare) knit dresses.

No rhinestones or denim, but lovely silk couture clothing is what you'll find at Suko, a small store catering to those with very good taste. This store is for the classic woman who doesn't want her clothing as severe as the fare at Parachute.

Speaking of Parachute, this Japanese-stark store offers monotone unisex styles in fleece, denim and parachute cloth. Definitely a place for high-tech tastes.

If Parachute leaves you cold, then run next door to Metropolis, where there's everything one needs to start a career as a Hollywood starlet. The clothes are frivolous, fun and fraught with imagination. For instance, there's a ruffly cotton number splattered with glitter and paint for $387, as well as artistically detailed T-shirts for $38.

Accessories such as frosted, jeweled Lucite jewelry and rhinestone brooches with tiny pictures of famous movie sirens are also on the scene for about $60. If you're on a budget but dying for a souvenir of Melrose, take a gander at Liz Soto, where Oriental faces are air-brushed onto shirts for $29. Also fun are campy Japanese-print boxer shorts for $12.

BUT IF you've got the artistic spirit to paint a shirt yourself, then head for Painters. This shop stocks black and white T-shirts and sweatshirts plus paint and glitter. You provide the talent.

When you walk out of Painters, you're at the corner of Melrose and Fullerton Avenue. Across the street are Rock Star and Let It Rock, which feature dress-for-success suits for would-be rockers.

At Rock Star, the inventory includes electric colored wigs, ammunition belts and punk clothes, such as pink leopard print satin jackets ($59) with matching boot covers called spatterdashes ($128). Not to be missed is a miniskirt made of shiny black rubber ($64) and a black lace and silver lame bustier dress ($109).

Rock stars who like more culture in their wardrobe probably will lean toward Let It Rock. To ensure its exclusivity, one must buzz to gain entrance. Once inside, be prepared to spend big bucks for imported glitz.

Less showy, more elegant, are the fashions of Catherine Martlet. In the bright white, Italian spare showroom were minimalistic designs for men and women. The clothes are natural fiber separates, designed to be layered, wrapped and tied. Price points are high, about $450 for a full-skirted dress.

To complete the shopping adventure, lunch at La Moustache Cafe, where the movie industry crowd hangs out.

Fall hairstyles offer options

Associated Press

CHICAGO — For fall '86, hair and fashion are all about style — and lifestyle. Just as fall fashion derives from the feminine form, hairstyles take their cue from curves, says a team of salon owners and educators from across the country.

The group, the Helene Curtis Master Trainers, has developed a collection of fall hairstyles based on fashion's silhouette and style, and have named it the Tough and Tender Collection.

Tough style reflects a woman's self-confidence, they point out. For the woman who favors a bold fashion statement, there are slim skirts and slim jackets in gutsy leathers and form-fitting knits.

Tough looks in hair might mean deep, dramatic waves sweeping off the face or a combination of precisely defined waves and free-form curl. On longer hair, finger-styling achieves a rough finish that has all the impact of spiky looks with a more modern feeling.

TENDER LOOKS turn up in soft suedes, laces and cashmere. Skirts are longer and flirty while tops and jackets curve to the body, emphasizing the waist and hips.

Tender hairstyles take wave and finish it with polish and softness. Perms are used to create a diffused, delicate texture or glamorous, '40s-style curl. Short cuts are styled smoothly up and back, while longer looks may be based on bold wave that fades into soft curl.

"Finally, designers have given women the option of dressing to suit their mood, whether it's in a 'tough' black leather suit or 'tender' sweater set and suede skirt," says master trainer Douglas Marvaldi of Winter Park, Fla. "Any hairstyle has to be able to easily make the transition from one look to the other. A cut based on form allows the versatility that fall fashion demands."

The form the master trainers see as most influential for fall is a geometric one that can be adapted to any length of hair, in "tough," avant-garde interpretations or a "tender" look of subtle sophistication. The hair moves in waves off the face — a departure from the forward-moving styles of seasons past. There is extension and volume at the front and back, while the sides and crown remain close to the head.

"It is the detailing which makes the difference between a tough and tender look, both in fashion and hairstyle," says master trainer Richard Calcasola of Long Island, N.Y.

"Working from a basic form, a woman can style her hair according to her mood. For a night out, she might use gel to mold a dramatic wave into the front, then pull the rest back into a ponytail. By day, the same cut can be styled with mousse to create smooth waves at the front and add volume to the nape area."

PERMS ARE essential for fall, says Calcasola, for the textural interest they add and the style support they offer.

"Fall fashions are so sleek and simple that they really demand a hairstyle with 'presence.' That usually means a lot of hair," he explains. "Not all women have the hair they want and need, so we can get the feeling of a lot of hair with the right cut and perm."

Adds master trainer Paul Morey, "Perms are not just for women with straight hair. This season, we will be using perms to make the hair move in exactly the right direction with exactly the right size and amount of curl."

Morey notes that fashion's emphasis on refinement demands a more "finished" look from hairstyles. "Hair for fall is more 'done' than it has been recently, but it still must be easy," he says, noting that glazes and gels give greater control than mousses, and add shine that emphasizes fall's waved styles.

"Mousses are important in styling high-volume looks and will still be necessary, but they will be used only in those areas of the style where a woman wants to create the look of more hair," he adds. "Where a style calls for control and direction, glazes and gels are needed."

Though the perm is becoming increasingly important, hair color will remain a strong influence, according to master trainer Brooxie Summers of Memphis.

"Haircolor and perm work together this fall, to add movement and definition to a style that isn't possible with either service alone," she says. "For instance, we'll use a perm to establish exactly the wave pattern desired, then use dimensional coloring to make that wave appear even deeper and more dramatic. With haircolor, stylists are able to transform a hairstyle from just good to terrific."

Lust undisciplined

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: "Sincerely in Christ in Ohio" is the epitome of naivete if he really believes that the girl who danced topless is guilty of instilling lust in men. Men are born that way; it is undisciplined submission to lust that causes problems. Men go to see girls dance topless because they are already filled with lust. If they didn't go there, they would probably go elsewhere and do worse.

"Sincerely" drove for the green, but he landed on the wrong fairway. — BEEN THERE IN OXFORD, MASS.

DEAR BEEN THERE: Been where? On the wrong fairway? Or where men go to lust after girls who dance topless?

Lusting is a natural urge found in women as well as men. Without it, we could not perpetuate the human race.

You hit the bull's-eye. It's "undisciplined submission" to lust that creates problems. The Good Book tells us to hate the sin, but love the sinner (but not literally).

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago I could have written the letter from "Massachusetts Mom," whose handsome, popular teen-age son had girls calling him at all hours of the night. Only I had TWO such sons. "Mom" said her son had to catch the 6:45 school bus every morning, so he tried to get to bed by 9:30 p.m. on school nights but girls would call him at 10:30 p.m. and 11:00, disturbing the entire household.

I'm surprised she had to write to you for help. The solution is simple. Here's how I solved it: I would answer the phone personally after 9 p.m., and if it was for one of the boys, I'd politely say, "He has gone to bed and cannot take any calls after 9 p.m., but if you'll give me your name and phone number I will ask him to call you tomorrow."

It didn't take very long for them to catch on. — PENNSYLVANIA MOM

DEAR MOM: Many wrote to say that they had solved the problem in that manner. One young man said his mother refused to call him to the phone after 9:30 p.m., but she'd call his teen-age sister to the phone regardless of the hour — if a boy was calling!

DEAR ABBY: I'm past 80 and read you religiously. The letter about teens who lack self-control and plead for birth control got my attention. Let those teens read this:

The bee is such a busy soul
He has no time for birth control
So that is why in times like these
There are so many sons of bees.

DEAR DR. DALTON:

My day was made better
Because of your letter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SILENT BUT SEETHING: Send this to your loquacious friend in Indianapolis:

Have you not noticed that usually it is the person who is least worth listening to who persists in talking most? Also, that it is the person present who could talk most interestingly who is the slowest to open up — and that when he does he is quick to resume silence if interrupted by some shallow gabby? "Empty vessels make the most noise." — B.C. FORBES

AT WIT'S END

Exaggeration works

By ERMA BOMBECK

To find out where humor is going, sometimes you have to look back to where it's been. The tools of exaggeration have always worked. I remember about 10 years ago, I wrote about a much-married star and predicted her next wedding dress would be drip-dry. Got a big laugh.

A story recently reported a California dress designer is doing brisk business with a new line of paper wedding dresses. No one laughed.

As I read about the dresses with Velcro closures that are easy to get out of, how you could do a quick-fix with Scotch tape that would hold it together for a few hours, and how you could throw it away once it had been used, there seemed to be an obvious parallel to modern marriage.

Maybe the impractical satin wedding dress with the long train and the expensive price tag isn't what a commitment is all about, but it's part of it. An important part. There's something about a traditional wedding that inspires traditional values and a traditional commitment. Where else would you assemble all of those "witnesses" who would remind you later that you promised to love this man/woman for the rest of your life?

And anyone who has planned a wedding within the confines of budget and taste without killing a member of the family has a prognosis for a good marriage. They can handle anything.

Paper.

Paper is what you give on a first anniversary because it's cheap and it's all you can afford.

Paper is what you wear for an examination and you could die from the insecurity of it.

Paper is what you fight over at breakfast.

Paper is what you hang in the bathroom together and wonder why you married one another.

Paper is disposable diapers, plates that cave in to pressure, cancelled checks, expired warranties. Paper does not represent a major investment, but rather a temporary measure.

I know. There's a lot of symbolism being thrown around here, but that's what marriage is all about too. There isn't a lot of room in it for compromise, especially in matters of morals, values, and what you need and expect from one another.

I'm not hustling major weddings here with 15 bridesmaids, three truckloads of champagne, 185 pounds of jumbo shrimp and a father who has to borrow on his life insurance to pay the bills.

I guess I'm saying you're going to need all the memories you can store. My wedding dress is contained in a small box on the top shelf of my closet. It's yellowed, it's limp, and the waist wouldn't begin to fit one of my Pillsbury Doughboy arms. Discard it? Never! I need to look at it from time to time just to remember how I felt the day I wore it and then go out and fight like a tiger to feel that way again.

Clements will replace PUC counsel

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov.-elect Bill Clements, who already has called for the resignations of the three Public Utility Commissioners, will replace Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle when his term expires Feb. 1.

Asked if Clements would advocate abolishing the office created under out-going Gov. Mark White to represent residential and small commercial ratepayers at the PUC, spokesman John Weaver said it is too early for that decision.

"We still have a lot of water to go under the bridge first before we look at the office," Weaver said.

Clements has not yet chosen Boyle's replacement, Weaver said. "We have no one in mind yet, but Governor Clements has the reputation for making high-quality appointments," he said.

Boyle will leave the office at a time when several major rate cases, including anticipated rate increase requests by Gulf States Utilities Co. and Central Power & Light Co., will be pending before the PUC.

"It will definately h t in terms of understanding the rate cases and being a complete and full advocate of the ratepayer," said Boyle, who was appointed when the office was created in 1983. He is serving his second two-year term.

But Weaver said Boyle's replacement will be experienced. "Anyone who is appointed will be highly qualified and won't be coming in green," he said.

Boyle, who said he was not surprised by the news, said Clements indicated in August during his gubernatorial campaign that the office of public counsel is expendable.

"I think it is critical that ratepayers receive equal representation," he said.

For example, Boyle said, GSU spent $4 million in attorneys' fees and other costs in presenting its last rate case to the commission.

"It would be extremely unfair to ratepayers for them to have to pay these kinds of costs for representation," he said.

Spokesmen for several utilities, including GSU, Central Power & Light and Texas Utilities Electric Co., said Monday it was inappropriate for them to comment on Boyle's upcoming departure.

Electric rate regulation was a major issue during the Clements-White battle, with Clements claiming the cost of electricity increased and White saying costs decreased under his administration. In his first news conference after defeating White, Clements last week called for the resignations of White's three appointees to the PUC.

The three commissioners — Dennis Thomas, Jo Campbell and Chairman Peggy Rosson, the El Paso housewife White appointed to a term that expires next September — say they will not resign. Thomas' term expires in 1989 and Campbell's in 1991.

Ms. Rosson said Clements' decision to replace Boyle was "expected but also regrettable."

"The main success of the office is due to Jim's personal commitment and his ability to recruit and inspire his staff, although he operated without a proper budget," she said. "It is a big loss for consumers."

Thomas and Ms. Campbell were unavailable for comment Monday.

Don Butler, an Austin attorney who represents cities before the PUC, said he will be keeping an eye on the future of the office of public counsel and the possibility of budget cuts.

"If they have to cut the budget, it would be more appropriate to cut some of the staff who testify in rate cases rather than the public counsel," he said.

Boyle, he said, has done an "excellent and straightforward job."

Boyle, who graduated from the University of Texas School of Law, has represented individuals and small businesses throughout most of his law career. He lobbied for the creation of the Public Utility Commission, which began hearing cases in 1976. He is past president of Texas Consumers Association and has worked for Consumer Federation of America in Washington, D.C.

Boyle said he would like to continue representing ratepayers after his term expires if the opportunity is there.

Dead man elected JP may not be replaced

ANSON (AP) — It may be January before Jones County commissioners decide on a replacement for a dead man elected to fill the long-vacant post of Precinct 3 justice of the peace.

Roy Lambert, the Democratic nominee who died more than two months before the election, handily beat Hawley City Secretary Donnell Turnage, a write-in candidate, a canvass confirmed Monday.

Since there was no Republican nominee, Lambert was the only candidate on the ballot — for a job that had been open for 20 years.

"Nobody ever ran for it," said Jones County Judge Roy Thorn.

Jones County officials had originally called Ms. Turnage the winner of the Nov. 4 election, 503-487.

But County Clerk Buyrl Rye said an election judge in the Hamby-area voting precinct and the absentee balloting board mistakenly gave Ms. Turnage straight-ticket Democratic Party votes.

After the canvass, and a recount of the two boxes in question, the vote was 566-414 for Lambert.

Thorn said Ms. Turnage has two days to ask for a recount of the other boxes in the election. If the results do not change, the position will be left open until January, when commissioners will decide whether they want to fill it.

Ms. Turnage didn't say what she will do next.

A similar incident took place in Howard County last spring when Justice of the Peace Lewis Helfin, who died shortly before the primary election, still received enough votes to force a runoff between two living candidates.

Mauro: Democrats 'got what they paid for'

Mauro

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Democrats "got what we paid for" in last week's election by spending less money this year in their efforts to get out the vote, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said.

"We spent $3 million in 1982 and $800,000 this time," Mauro said at a meeting of editors of Associated Press member newspapers. "We got what we paid for."

The lower expenditure and antagonism to incumbents contributed to Gov. Mark White's loss to Bill Clements, Mauro said. He said he was surprised that White made as good a showing as he did.

"White should have been dead meat," Mauro said. "He shouldn't have been able to raise money. He shouldn't have even been close."

Mauro said a poll he took showed White began the campaign 27 points behind Clements. Eventually, White lagged behind Clements by 7 percentage points.

Mauro defeated Republican M.D. Anderson, but he said the campaign was difficult because he was fighting the name of a Houston hospital instead of a viable candidate.

In addition, he said his office suffers from a lack of publicity.

"We go to 254 counties and talk about issues and positions that are somewhat obscure," he said. "Most of what we do is very boring. In effect, we run an office without much public awareness and media attention. In an election year, we have to make it interesting and make it have sex appeal."

Mauro said Anderson, who runs a dance hall, had a 65 percent name identification because people thought he represented the Houston hospital.

"My opposition started out with $1 million in name recognition and 0 negative. The biggest problem I had was apathy, apathy and apathy. My problem was running a non-serious race against a candidate with a serious name," he said.

Mauro attracted 61.3 percent of the vote, but he said the win was expensive with campaign costs totaling $1 million.

The land commissioner also said he tends to dimiss polls until the week before the election because he believes voters don't make up their minds until then.

He said newspaper polls, however, discourage contributors to candidates trailing in those polls and give a front runner the opportunity to mount a bandwagon campaign.

Mauro refused to speculate on his own political future. He has been considered a gubernatorial candidate among Democrats, but would only say Monday that the 1990 race would attract many candidates and result in a tough contest.

Farm economy needs 'new direction,' union leader says

LUBBOCK (AP) — Improvements in the farm economy must have a sense of value, new direction and a dedication to honesty to be acceptable to the U. S. population, a farm leader says.

"No one questions that we are at a crisis time in agriculture," Cy Carpenter, president of the National Farmers Union, said Monday during the Women Involved in Farm Economics convention. "It is our responsibility to make sure we provide the direction and clarity in terms of a new direction."

Carpenter said proof that the American farmer is willing to participate in the new directions in agriculture was seen in a poll last summer in which the majority of farmers who voted favored mandatory production cutbacks and large boosts in commodity prices.

But because the nation's farm population totals only about 2 million people, a larger support group must be formed, Carpenter said.

He said input from other groups will help pass the bills seen by his group as the solutions to agriculture.

"We (farmers) are the smallest minority in the country," Carpenter said. "We have to have a coalition of church, education, labor and consumer groups.

"It is absolutely necessary to have your involvement in requiring a better direction," Carpenter added, pounding the podium.

Carpenter said that because many of the groups getting involved are not knowledgeable about production, existing farm organizations must provide the direction and information.

Water New Mexico owes Texas 'priceless,' official says

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The amount of water New Mexico owes Texas for Pecos River water Texas should have been receiving for 34 years is "priceless" and can't be repaid by money, a Texas official says.

"Texas has considered whether any amount of money might compensate for the water owed us. We have determined that the answer must be no," Texas Assistant Attorney General Renea Hicks said in an Oct. 28 letter to New Mexico state Engineer Steve Reynolds.

"We're through negotiationg," Hicks said Monday.

Hicks said New Mexico's cash offer last month of between $3.4 million and $10.2 million for the water isn't worth it.

The issue will now go to the U.S. Supreme Court. The two sides will argue the merits of a proposal that New Mexico pay back 340,100 acre-feet of water to Texas over a 10-year period.

Hicks said the minimum acceptable payment of the debt is the 340,100 acre-feet of water proposed by the special master coupled with future compliance with the Pecos River Compact, the document that Texas claims New Mexico has violated for 34 years.

Reynolds said Monday that he wasn't disappointed in the decision.

"I told him (Hicks) that given the deadline when he first brought up the subject I was not surprised they were not interested in money. And given our current evaluation of the relevant risks involved we were not disappointed," he said.

A monetary settlement could have simplified the case, but the high court still would have to decide many issues, Reynolds said.

Reynolds said he proposed settling with cash because the water settlement would devestate agriculture in southeastern New Mexico.

STATE IN BRIEF

Laredo students charged with selling drugs at school

LAREDO (AP) — Four high school students have been arrested on charges of selling drugs on the school campus.

Alberto Bautista, 17, and three juveniles were arrested Monday at the United High School principal's office by Laredo Police Department officers, who charged them with various drug-related crimes.

According to reports, police seized small quantities of drugs, mostly marijuana, during the operation carried out jointly by school and law enforcement officials.

Bautista was charged with three counts of unlawful delivery of marijuana. He was taken to the Webb County Law Enforcement Center in lieu of three bonds totaling $15,000.

Ex-state senator indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury has accused former State Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston of failing to report about $135,000 in income on tax returns during 1979 and 1980.

An indictment released Monday also accused Ogg's former law partner, Charles L. Sowell of Houston, and Houston accountants Scott C. Mitchell and Reid Tinsley of income tax violations.

Bullock: Spending up in '86

AUSTIN (AP) — State government spending in the 1986 fiscal year was up 14.2 percent over the previous year as Texas spent $18.5 billion to carry out the functions of government, State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Monday.

Bullock said in his annual financial report increases in the payment of public debt and in highway spending "were responsible for 85 percent of the $2.3 billion increase in total state spending.

"Spending in all other categories rose 2.4 percent."

The 1986 fiscal year ended Aug. 31.

"I'm sick of her ruining our lives."

When confronted with a mental illness, families experience a wide range of emotional responses. From outrage to shame and denial. They often blame victims for causing worry, embarrassment, family strife. And they often blame themselves.

But mental illness is no one's fault. Least of all those afflicted. It's a serious medical illness.

Recognizing the warning signs and seeking treatment for your loved one can be the first steps to reducing family fears and confusion. And to actually healing the sickness. Today, mental illness need not be hopeless.

If you've been planning to take a candy making class or gingerbread house course before the holidays, NOW IS THE TIME. Eddie Brooks of Eddie's Sugar Cube, 2000 N. Big Spring, says there are only a few more classes scheduled before Christmas, and those are filling up quickly.

Candy Making Classes are scheduled for November 11 and 17 at 7 p.m. Included in this class are chocolate covered cherries, peanut butter cups, mounds, pecan turtles and painted candies. Eddie will teach you how to make a total of about 18 types of candy.

Gingerbread House Course is set for November 19 and December 3 at 7 p.m. Eddie says you will be given baking hints, patterns and recipes at the first class. Then you'll take your baked pieces back to the second class and learn to assemble and decorate them.

In addition to these pre-Christmas classes, Eddie has some scheduled for 1987.

Cake Decorating #1 will be a six week course beginning January 14 at 7 p.m. The very basics of cake decorating will be included.

Frosting Flowers, also a six week class, will begin January 13 at 7 p.m. It'll include about 25 flowers.

If you are interested in learning how to make gumpaste flowers after the new year, let Eddie know. She will have a teacher come in from out of town to teach the class.

For candy - there's a nice selection of Christmas molds and Eddie's getting ready to order more. If you have a favorite just let her know. You'll enjoy the wide selection of candy making supplies which include, Nestle's white and dark chocolate, mint molds, sucker molds, coloring, fillings, flavorings and more.

There's also a selection of Christmas candy boxes. One decorative box is designed so you can pour hot fudge right into it.

Cake Decorating is really fun with all the supplies you find at Eddie's. There are more than 30 novelty pans alone that are available for renting, along with square, round, hexagon and rectangular shaped pans. Of course, there's a tremendous selection available for sale, also.

Eddie's Sugar Cube has in stock a majority of the new novelty pans by Wilton. Wuzzles, Barbie, and G.I. Joe are popular ones. There are even some mini Santa pans.

Something that's expected to be real popular this year are the new Pantastic plastic pans. Priced at only $4.99, these novelty pans can be used approximately 12 times. Santa, a turkey, bells (for Christmas or wedding) and a Teddy Bear are a few of those available. Some of these are designed so that they serve as a chocolate mold for facial features, etc. The features are molded then removed while the cake is baked.

For weddings, Eddie has a full rack of bride and groom ornaments, three styles of fountains, separators, etc.

Along with all the pans (including heavy cookie sheets), some nice, recipe scalers (even measures cups), cake flavoring, coloring, cake boxes, plastic novelty decorations and turn tables, Eddie says she now has the new Wilton's '87 Yearbook for cake decorating.

Eddie also has a selection of clearance items including cake separater plates, pillars and a variety of pans.

For a fun holiday season, stop by the shop at 2000 N. Big Spring, Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Eddie will make appointments at other times if necessary.

Eddie Brooks of Eddie's Sugar Cube has an extensive stock of cake and candy supplies. She also has a few more classes scheduled before the holidays. Register now by calling 685-1231.

Betty's Boutique has perfect gifts for juniors and petites

If you've been making a list, checking it twice; found some young ladies that deserve something nice, head on down to Betty's Boutique in San Miguel Square. Betty's caters to students, as well as petite professionals. And if you're a little uncertain of what's in style this year, don't worry. The friendly ladies at the shop will give you all the assistance you need.

Fashions by Guess, including blouses, skirts, jackets, overalls, jeans, sweat shirts and socks, are exceptionally popular. The styling, versatility and comfort make them an ideal selection.

Oversized sweaters and sweat shirts are also big this year. The mix and match possibilities are endless.

No casual wardrobe is complete without one of the fun Mickey Mouse tops from Betty's. Match one up with a pair of Mickey Mouse socks and you'll be giving someone a double treat this Christmas.

Speaking of socks, Betty's Boutique will really sock it to you in this category. You'll find socks all done up in school colors, as well as special designer socks. One pair, in a fashionable color, is decorated with a cheerleader; another features a soda fountain scene. The designs go on and on.

Along with their socks, Betty's has other special accessories. Collars can be used to add a special touch to many outfits. At this store, you can choose from a wide variety of colors as well as ecru and white. Pick one with a little lace or a lot, which ever suits your fancy.

Dhurrie purses and pocketbooks, jewelry and belts are also given a special place at Betty's.

For the missy and missy petite professional, Betty has a wonderful selection of suits and coordinates. These have been chosen with the office environment in mind. J.H. Collectibles and Personal Petites skirts, dresses and coordinates give that "dress for success" look.

For all their customers, Betty's has added a selection of sleepware. Comfy night shirts make a perfect gift, and the beautiful gowns and robes are adorable.

Before you have the gown or night shirt wrapped for Christmas, take a look at Betty's V.I.P. Bears. You may want to include Dr. Kilbear, Baby Grizzly, William Shakesbear or Bearilyn Monroe in the package. These characters are as fashionable as they are loveable.

When you've browsed through all of this and just can't decide what to get, ask for a gift certificate. The person on your list will love shopping at Betty's as much as you do.

Beginning November 30 through Christmas, Betty's will be open on Sunday's from 1-5 p.m.

Visa, MasterCard and American Express are all accepted, and Betty does have a layaway plan. Best of all, she offers free gift wrapping.

You'll enjoy the unit now, and can be confident that it adds to your home's resale value. Bill offers a variety of quality units, as well as service on Majestic, Heatilator and True Heat units.

If you already have a fireplace, some of the most important things to remember, you won't even see while you're inside enjoying the fire. Bill says they are equipped to clean your chimney and fireplace, repair cracks in the brick and even take care of leaks around the flashing. If your fireplace is not drawing properly, you may need to have the flue extended. Call 697-4712 and the experts at Bill's will check it out.

With the tremendous amount of rain that West Texas has gotten this year, many people are considering chimney caps for the first time. This is very important, because a cap protects your chimney from rain, birds and debris. It also protects your roof by stopping free-flying sparks. Bill says they have just recieved a big shipment of caps to accomodate any fireplace. They install both factory-made and custom caps. The cap at 1512 Douglas is an example of one of their custom caps.

To protect your carpet and add to the beauty of your fireplace, Bill suggests a brass and glass doors. Superior and Majestic doors add a really dazzling touch.

Bill says Superior and Majestic are two of the best lines available anywhere. These doors are known for quality and are often requested by customers.

Bill's Fireplace Center also has screens for any size fireplace, including apartment fireplaces. Many styles are available.

Another product Bill is particularly proud of is the Peterson log sets. These oak-like sets look very authentic and have proven to be durable. These are ideal for the family that wants to enjoy a fire, without having to deal with real logs and ashes.

If you do enjoy having a "real" fire in the fireplace, Bill says a gas log lighter or tray lighter can make it easier. If gas is available, Bill suggests having a log lighter installed. He offers some factory-made lighters, which are equipped with regulators. He can also have one custom made for your fireplace.

As a licensed plumber, he is able to repair or replace old log lighters. If yours has holes beyond the grate, then gas is being wasted and you should consider replacing it with the appropriate size.

If a gas line can not be run to your fireplace, a tray lighter will serve the same purpose. This is great especially for cabins. (It's also a good Christmas gift idea.)

Bill's Fireplace Center is also offering oak and mesquite firewood in cords, ½ cords, ¼ cords, ⅛ cords and by the piece. It's often hard to tell when you are getting a fair deal on wood. Bill says, "When you pay for a cord at Bill's Fireplace Center, you get a cord."

To hold your wood, this center custom builds racks in just about any size (even sized for apartments).

In addition, you will find log carriers, tool sets, ash buckets, fireplace keys and all the other little extras at Bill's new location, across from Midland Park Mall and adjacent to The Company Store. It's the ideal place to start your Christmas shopping.

Act now, and you will enjoy 10 PERCENT OFF on wood racks, glass screens and chimney caps.

Copy Craft stays on top of market with service and discount prices

Ken Craft of Copy Craft is constantly shopping for the best quality products at the best prices. That's because Copy Craft is commited to offering their customers discount prices, as well as full service.

Copy Craft says "no" to freight charges, "no" to the quota game and "yes" to customer needs.

Ken and Letty Craft, Chuck Sonnenberg, Keith Edmunds and Debra Parker of Copy Craft understand that you don't have time to stop what you're doing to put up new supplies. That's why Copy Craft, a division of Ken Craft, Inc., offers FULL SERVICE.

Leaving things at the front door just isn't their style. In fact, Ken Craft explains that they will even be glad to keep an inventory list of your supplies. Depending on your needs, Copy Craft can set up weekly, biweekly or monthly inventory service.

Perhaps you need a price quotation on custom forms, such as letterheads, checks, invoices, statements or snap-out forms. Copy Craft will send an area sales representative to you to pick up a sample and call you back with the various price breaks based on the amount you need. You will find no hidden costs, only a straight forward response to exactly what your cost will be.

Copy Craft has a 7500 square foot warehouse on Highway 80 which enables them to offer the widest selection in the Permian Basin. Here's a check list of the many products they offer:

Nashua Corporation products:
Xerographic copy paper
diskettes 5¼" and 8" (with 5-year guarantee)
toners/developers for Xerox, IBM, Royal, Savin, Ricoh and Mita copiers

Avery Labels
including a full line of computer stock labels (all sizes)
Index, Rolodex and post cards

Ko-Rec-Type
Full line of typewriter and computer printer ribbons for IBM, Xerox, Deckwriter, TI, Anadex, Lanier, Wang, NEC and more

SCM Computer Star Forms

Custom stock forms, letterhead, statements and checks

Stenocraft Products
Clasp envelopes, hanging file folders, index cards, letter and legal pads, steno pads, envelopes, world bond paper, oriole linen bond, envelopes, tyvek envelopes, adding machine tape

Wilson-Jones Products
Complete line of computer nylon post binders, data cabinets, shredders and data caddies

Now that's selection and it's only the beginning. Because the selection is so wide, their customers have discovered the benefits of working with a local firm. For instance, on the occasion when a customer gets a defective diskette, Copy Craft's customer doesn't face shipping charges and a long delay in getting a replacement. All it takes is a quick call to Copy Craft at 561-9118 and a replacement will be delivered.

And during these days when efficiency is a top priority, you can count on Copy Craft to have the highest quality products at the best prices around. And, you don't have to make a choice between FULL SERVICE AND DISCOUNT PRICES.

Call 561-9118 for computer, copier and typewriter supplies, they'll come to you!

Yogie's Frozen Yogurt, 2100 North A. Street, is now offering the biggest homemade pies in Midland and spicy Black Gap Stew, along with their delicious frozen yogurt.

Yogie's Black Gap Stew is perfect for chilly days, which are becoming so much more frequent. With chilis and jalepenos, this spicy stew will warm you up at lunch or dinner.

You will also enjoy Yogie's fresh sandwiches in this friendly atmosphere. They make BIG sandwiches on wheat or white bread, as you order. Ham and cheese, chicken salad, pimento cheese or tuna salad is sure to become your favorite. Just like the stew, these are available for carry out, too.

By the time you've enjoyed a bowl of hot stew or a fresh sandwich, you'll be longing for a big slice of one of those tasty homemade pies in the pastry cabinet. The big 10 inch, deep dish pecan, peach, apple, pineapple, cherry and blueberry pies are so tempting, you'll want to take a whole one home with you. Yogie's makes that possible. In fact, for the holidays they will also offer pumpkin and mince pies.

Owner Linda Gay says they are expecting a tremendous number of orders, and you'll see why when you try a slice of the pie. So, go ahead and order now for Thanksgiving (the deadline is Monday, November 24), then you can pick your pie up the day before Thanksgiving so it will be sooooo fresh. If you'd like to have a whole pie before then, it's good to order 2-3 days ahead of time to make sure you get just the kind you want. Yogie's does, however, always keep some in the shop.

Yogie's always has your favorites, like chocolate, vanilla and strawberry along with some other special flavors.

Yogie's still has over 25 toppings - "Bear Necessities" - for your yogurt. M&Ms, honey, chocolates chips, crushed Butterfinger and Oreo cookies are some of the favorites.

Floats, malts, sundaes, shakes, smoothies and splits, otherwise known as "The Bear Maximum," are also great ways to enjoy yogurt.

For your enjoyment this delightful shop is open seven days a week. The hours are Monday through Thursday 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.; and Saturday and Sunday noon till 10 p.m.

Whether you want a pie, Black Gap Stew, sandwich or yogurt, you can enjoy it at Yogie's or carry it out.

"I'm pleased to have the quarterback we have," Schottenheimer said Monday night after 22-year-old Bernie Kosar passed for a career-best 401 yards to lead the Browns past 25-year-old Dan Marino and the Miami Dolphins 26-16.

"Without any question, Bernie had an outstanding performance," Schottenheimer said. "He came off some primary reads to hit receivers off the backside reads, because of things the defense did."

Kosar completed 32 of 50 passes without an interception and without a touchdown pass, although three Cleveland receivers dropped potential scoring passes in the end zone.

The more celebrated Marino finished with 22 completions in 39 attempts for 295 yards and two touchdowns, with one interception.

Kosar was rated fourth in the AFC and Marino was fifth entering the game.

So which quarterback is more valuable?

"I won't answer that," Schottenheimer said.

HARRY HOLT and Curtis Dickey ran for touchdowns and Matt Bahr kicked four short field goals for the Browns, 7-3.

Kosar's 401 yards matched Otto Graham's total, achieved in 1952, for the second-best passing game in Cleveland history. Brian Sipe set the club record with 444 yards against the Baltimore Colts in 1981. Kosar's previous high, 293 yards, came against the Cincinnati Bengals in September.

The Browns dominated the game statistically, compiling 558 yards of total offense to 353 for Miami, 4-6. But Cleveland's inability to finish off its drives kept the game close until well into the second half.

The Browns led 16-10 at halftime after Bahr kicked field goals of 32, 19 and 18 yards and Holt, a tight end, ran 16 yards on an end-around for a touchdown.

Cleveland receivers Webster Slaughter, Ozzie Newsome and Brian Brennan each missed passes in the end zone to force the Browns to settle for Bahr's field goals.

"The balls were a little slick," Kosar said charitably. "I think both teams had trouble holding onto the ball early."

Marino threw a 24-yard scoring pass to Mark Duper and Fuad Reveiz kicked a 20-yard field goal for the Dolphins in the first half.

A MIAMI turnover helped Cleveland open up a 23-10 lead 10 minutes into the third quarter. Miami's Ron Davenport fumbled after catching a pass at the Miami 29-yard line, and Dickey ran 13 yards for a touchdown four plays later.

Dickey finished with 92 yards on 15 carries.

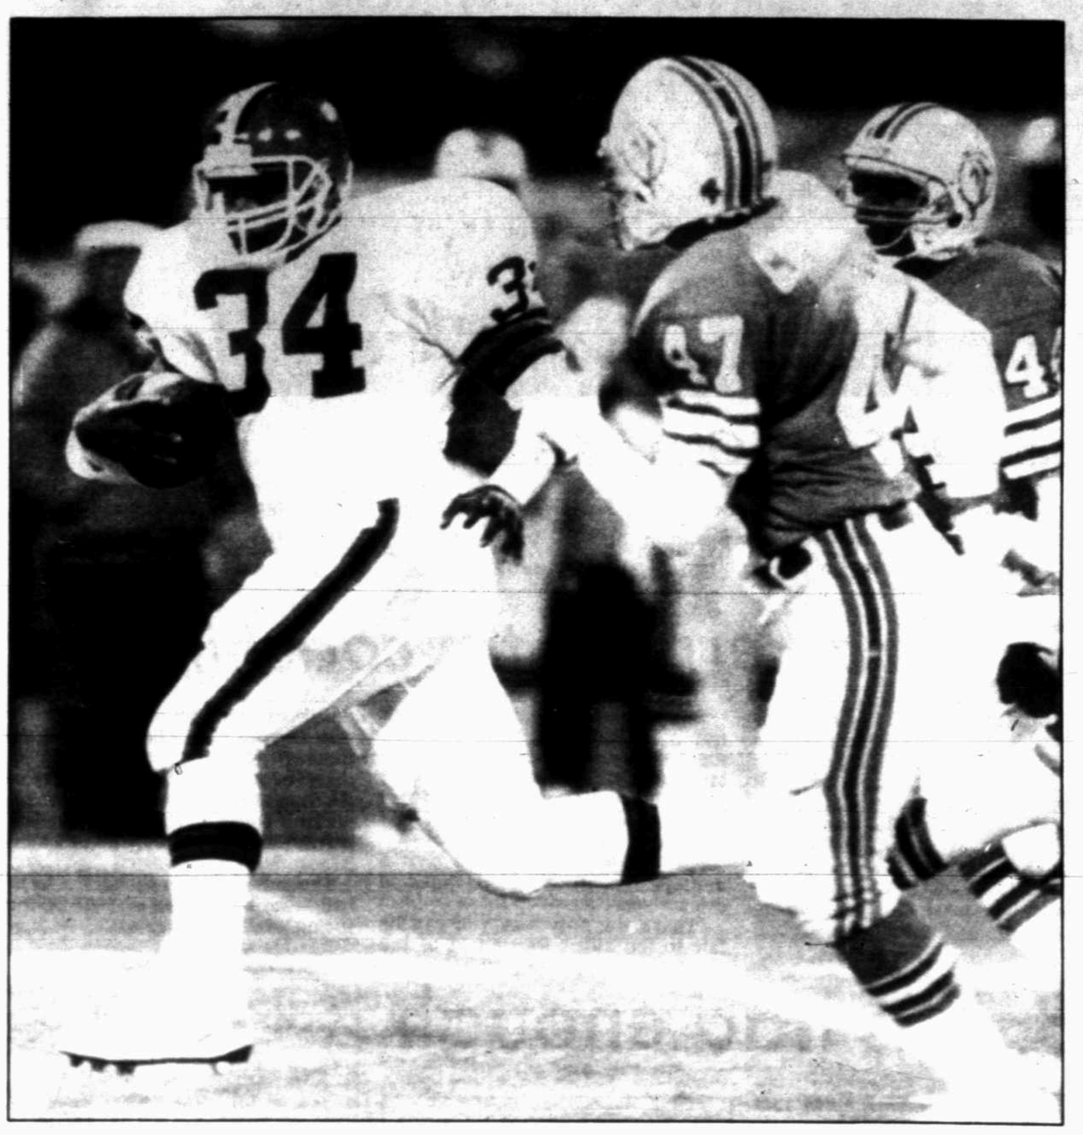

"We showed a lot of offensive weapons, and that keeps the defense honest," Kosar said.

Bahr added a 21-yard field goal — after an apparent 5-yard touchdown pass to Kevin Mack was nullified because Kosar was ruled to have been in the grasp of a defender — with 10 minutes to play.

The Dolphins, who had the second-ranked offense in the NFL behind Dallas entering the game, were held scoreless in the second half until Marino hit Mark Clayton with a 22-yard touchdown pass on the last play of the game.

"It was a big game for us if we were going to get back in the playoff race," said Miami Coach Don Shula.

Nittany Lions dip to No. 3 in latest poll

Associated Press

Prospects of a shootout between the No. 1 and No. 2 college football teams dimmed somewhat today when Penn State slipped from second place to third in The Associated Press poll.

Miami held onto the top spot following a 37-10 victory over Pitt. But Penn State's 17-15 squeaker over Maryland — a game in which the losers missed a two-point conversion with 14 seconds left that would have tied the score — cost the Nittany Lions second place and enabled Michigan, a 31-7 victor over Purdue, to move up from third. All three teams have 9-0 records.

Top 20

Miami received 57 of 60 first-place votes and 1,195 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.The Hurricanes have been No. 1 for seven consecutive weeks since beating then-No. 1 Oklahoma on Sept. 27.

Michigan, No. 3 the past two weeks, received one first-place vote and 1,102 points while Penn State had one first-place ballot and 1,075 points.

The change in the rankings did not deter efforts by the Fiesta, Citrus and Gator Bowls to arrange a national championship showdown between Miami and Penn State.

Oklahoma swamped Missouri 77-0 and held onto fourth place with 1,041 points while Arizona State received the remaining first-place vote and 973 points after claiming the Pacific-10 championship and a berth in the Rose Bowl by routing California 49-0.

Elsewhere, Alabama's 14-10 loss to LSU prevented the Crimson Tide from clinching at least a tie for the Southeastern Conference title and dropped them from sixth place to 11th, while fellow SEC member Mississippi made the Top Twenty for the first time in 10 years.

MHS' Cumings tops 4-5A volleyball list

From Staff Reports

District 4-5 runner-up Midland High paced Tall City schools with three players on the All District volleyball team released Monday, including the Outstanding Hitter in the district, Amy Cumings.

Cumings, a senior, led the Lady Bulldogs to an 18-11 season mark, 10-2 in the district, and MHS first playoff appearance in years. Cumings was joined by teammates Erin Allen and Dru Wyatt, both seniors on the first team.

MHS coach Sonja Pittman earned 4-5A Coach of the Year honors for the Lady Bulldogs playoff appearance. It was the first such honor for Pittman.

Midland Lee, the third place sqaud in district play, placed senior Michelle Lance on the first team. Cumings, Allen and Lance were all unanimous choices.

District champion San Angelo also placed three players on the first team, led by District 4-5A Most Valuable Player Lisa Davis. The only other unanumous selection was Odessa High's Connie Kruse.

San Angelo's Terri Washington was named the Outstanding Setter, and Didi Ross of Abilene High was named Sophomore of the Year.

In another volleyball note, Pecos and Brownfield will play at Midland High tonight at 7 p.m. in a Class 4A playoff match. That game will be a Tall City tune-up for the Class 5A Region I tournament to be held at Chaparral Center this Friday and Saturday. Teams in that tournament will be decided in games played tonight.

Scott is slim winner of NL's Cy Young

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Scott of Houston, whose no-hitter on Sept. 25 clinched the Astros' first National League West Divison title since 1980, won a narrow victory over Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles to become the league's 1986 Cy Young winner today.

In voting conducted by the Baseball Writers Association of America, the Houston right-hander received 98 points, 10 more than Valenzuela.

Scott was 18-10 with a major league-leading 306 strikeouts and 2.22 ERA in becoming the first Houston player to win the Cy Young award. Valenzuela, who won the award in 1981, had a 21-11 record for the Dodgers.

Mike Krukow of the San Francisco Giants, who had a 20-9 mark and a 3.05 ERA, was third with 15 points. Three of the next four pitchers on the list were from the New York Mets. Bob Ojeda of the Mets was fourth with nine points, followed by teammate Ron Darling and Rick Rhoden of Pittsburgh tied with two points, and New York's Dwight Gooden with one.

Scott received 15 first-place votes and was second on seven ballots. He was named third on two more ballots. Valenzuela received the other nine first-place votes.

Two ballots are cast by writers in each of the National League cities. They are asked to vote for their top three picks, and points are awarded on a 5-3-1 basis.

Frey being wooed by Twins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Twins officials have tried to persuade former Chicago Cubs manager Jim Frey to accept a job in the Twins' front office evaluating player personnel, it was reported Tuesday.

If Frey accepts, a news conference would be held later this week to announce his hiring and the appointment of Tom Kelly as manager of the American League club, according to the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, which quoted an unidentified source close to the team.

Kelly was the Twins' interim manager for four weeks after the Twins fired Ray Miller in September. It would be his first full year as a major league manager if he were hired. Frey managed division champions with Kansas City in 1980 and the Cubs in 1984.

Twins' officials brought Kelly and Frey to town Monday and interviewed them separately, the newspaper said, again quoting unidentified sources. After the interviews, Twins owner Carl Pohlad and Vice President Andy MacPhail said no decision had been made on who will get the manager post.

The Twins also refused to acknowledge that Kelly and Frey attended a club management meeting Monday, the newspaper said.

"The only thing I can tell you is that we had a meeting and that the thing that came out is that we're probably on schedule to get something done by the end of the week," MacPhail said.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

A wrong turn on glory road

The Midland Lee Rebels were laughing their way to the District 4-5A bank Friday night when they spilt coins all over Cuthbert Ave.

By the time the loot was picked up, the bank was closed and the Rebels' lost a year's worth of interest.

Bye Bye outright district championship. So Long on becoming the first team in Lee history to finish regular season play undefeated.

HELLO TO sharing the district championship with San Angelo (Ouch!). Hi to entering the state playoffs on a loss. And Howdy again to the "Unclean 30."

Lee's 6-3 loss to Abilene High did little to put finishing touches on what has been a glamorous season for the Rebels. Lost respect. Wounded pride. And a hit in the chops. They were all there in this one.

And we all know that Lee had injuries — major injuries — going into the Abilene High game. We all know that Lee had the top 4-5A playoff berth in hand. And we know about the previous two weeks of playing against the likes of San Angelo and Odessa Permian. But those were excuses that Lee coach Earl Miller wouldn't use.

But what ever happened to that "good teams find a way to win when the chips are down?"

Miller tried to warn us early in the year. "You just don't realize what kind of unrealistic expectations people have for these kids. If we don't play to our very best, there is a big chance that we will lose."

BUT THOSE weren't words we wanted to hear. And anyway, those were words coming from a coach and all coaches say things like that. Even Vince Lombardi said before rolling over Kansas City in Super Bowl I, "We couldn't beat a team of grandmothers the way we practice."

The truth is that this bunch of lovable Rebels is walking the thin line that separates greatness from mediocrity. That sounds like a slam, but is meant as a compliment. The kids and coaching staff have done a great job this year. But these Rebels found out Friday that the path to greatness is as narrow as as the distance from one atom to another.

Lee flunked its history test against Abilene High. Instead of becoming a perfect 9-0 team, which would have been a historical first, Lee is 8-1 and doesn't even own the best overall record in the history of the school. Last year's team was 9-1.

But while we're walking this thin line, the Rebels have another chance to pass its history lesson. All they need to do is read up on their 1983 ancestors.

THAT TEAM could have won an outright 4-5A championship with a victory over Abilene Cooper. They failed their test that year, too, and got into the playoffs by a thin whisker. And they also ended up in the state finals — test passed.

And that's where the 1986 Rebels are lucky. They have a chance to erase the memory of Abilene High 1986. There are a lot of teams in the state that would like a second chance in what is usually an unforgiving world of football.

There are no second chances from here on out, but Friday's wrong turn on glory road was only a time loser. Odessa Permian, for one, wish they were on the same road.

Lee's Johnson earns stripes

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas sophomore tailback Eric Metcalf has made coach Fred Akers' prophecy come true, and for former Midland Lee star Michael Johnson, a dream is coming true.

Johnson, a Texas Tech junior linebacker, was named the Defensive Player of the Week Monday in the Southwest Conference by the Associated Press. Johnson, had 15 tackles — including two quarterback sacks — and recovered a fumble in Texas Tech's 36-14 victory over Texas Christian.

Metcalf, the son of former NFL star Terry Metcalf was named the SWC Offensive Player of the Week.

Akers, before college football kicked off this fall, said Metcalf "has the knack for making the big plays. He is going to be a star in this conference."

On Saturday, Metcalf caught five passes from quarterback Bret Stafford for 181 yards and two touchdowns and ran 10 times for 29 yards and another touchdown in Texas' 30-10 victory over Houston.

Metcalf started slowly in the Houston game, and had only 25 yards total offense at the end of the first quarter as Texas led 3-0.

But he later caught a 74-yard scoring pass, set up a field goal with a 39-yard reception, ran 7 yards for a touchdown, and grabbed a 53-yard scoring pass against the No. 1-ranked passing defense in the SWC.

"Eric Metcalf provided some of the biggest plays you could possibly have," Akers said. "He's just a bundle of dynamite. We've been looking for that kind of thing to happen all year, and it just happened out here Saturday."

Texas coaches selected Metcalf's 74-yard touchdown, which gave the Longhorns a 10-0 second quarter lead, for the "gamebreaker" award.

Cowboys spread cheer like Christmas wishes

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys aren't dead yet in the NFC East but they need to cure their giveaway spirit quickly.

"Our backs aren't up to the wall — they are against it," said running back Tony Dorsett. "We aren't Santa Claus but the last two weeks we've been like 45 of his helpers."

The Cowboys had two touchdowns called back on penalties and lost 17-13 to the Los Angeles Raiders on Sunday as quarterback Steve Pelluer suffered five interceptions. The week before they lost 17-14 to the New York Giants.

"We've given away three of our four losses this year," said strong safety Bill Bates. "They are calling us 'giveaway Cowboys.'"

Pelluer was sacked six times and had a touchdown run called back on a holding penalty in the to the Los Angeles Raiders.

"Steve has had positive days and now he's seen a negative day," said Dallas' offensive coordinator Paul Hackett. "In both cases you have about 24 hours to forget it and get back to work."

PELLUER WAS starting his fourth NFL game because of Danny White's long list of injuries including a broken wrist.

"It just seemed like my head wasn't working as smart as my heart was," Pelluer said. "I don't think I made as many mistakes as I did poor decisions. I kind of got away from my reads of the defense."

Pelluer said he hoped he learned something.

"With the interceptions and all, I think that it really taught me to have a lot of mental toughness," Pelluer said. "I really felt like I needed to keep my poise as the game wore on. I'm sure I'll lose some confidence, but I know I'm capable of playing in this league and capable of taking this team to the playoffs."

Hackett said it's important that Pelluer responds favorably when the Cowboys travel to San Diego on Sunday to meet the Chargers.

"We'll find out about him," Hackett said. "What happens with a young guy who has had success is that he tries to make all the plays himself. It's just a crying shame that his great run (25 yards) for a touchdown was called back. He had some bad luck."

THE COWBOYS dropped to 6-4 in the NFC East, two full games behind Washington and the New York Giants.

Dallas defensive back Everson Walls, who had an interception return for a touchdown called back on a clipping penalty, said the Cowboys have got to snap out of their bad streak.

Gaylord Perry to try coaching

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Ex-major league pitcher Gaylord Perry says he looks forward to being head coach in Limestone College's new baseball program.

Perry, who won 310 games and earned the Cy Young Award in both leagues over his 22-year career, planned to be at Limestone this afternoon for a news conference to announce him as the school's baseball coach.

In a telephone interview from his home in Raleigh, N.C., Monday night, Perry said a few "minor" details must still be worked out.

"I'm looking forward to it ... I feel pretty good about it," he told The Associated Press.

Perry said he expects to sign a multi-year contract but declined to discuss specifics.

"That's the only way you can be fair to the kids," Perry said of the multi-year contract. "That's the only way. You've got to be there to help them develop."

The school hopes to field a baseball team by the fall of 1987 or the spring of 1988, Perry said.

Yeoman, 58, has had enough

HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Yeoman, who invented the veer offense and used it to build powerhouse teams at the University of Houston, says he is stepping down as coach after 25 years at the Southwest Conference school.

Yeoman, 58, assured of his third losing record in four seasons, said Monday night he would step down as coach at the end of this season.

Yeoman told KPRC-TV sportscaster Craig Roberts, who hosts Yeoman's weekly television show, that he would remain at Houston as a special assistant to the chancellor working in fund raising and public relations.

Yeoman, will take a 160-106-8 record into Houston's next game against Texas Tech. The Cougars are 1-8 this season, assuring Yeoman of his second consecutive losing season. The team won the SWC title and the host spot in the Cotton Bowl that goes with it in 1984.

Yeoman will be stepping aside with the entire Houston athletic program surrounded by controversy.

Two former players have claimed that Yeoman and his staff paid players and allowed them to play while ineligible. Twelve players flunked out of school following last season and 10 of his 28 recruits from 1985 were ruled scholastically ineligible.

The NCAA is investigating the Cougar program.

The school's athletic program was $3 million in debt before this season and attendance has continued to dwindle.

The school currently is searching for an athletic director to replace Tom Ford, the third Houston athletic director since the retirement of Harry Fouke in 1979, and recently hired Pat Foster as basketball coach to replace retired Guy Lewis.

The Cougars won their first SWC title in 1976, the first season they were eligible to compete for the title. Yeoman led the Cougars to three league titles in the team's first four years in the SWC.

Pete Rose ponders playing future

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds General Manager Bill Bergesch and player-manager Pete Rose huddled Monday to discuss which players to protect on the Reds' 40-man winter roster — including whether to protect Rose himself.

Bergesch said prior to the meeting that he hoped to resolve the matter Monday, even though a decision does not have to be made until Wednesday, when the winter roster list must be forwarded to the baseball commissioner's office and league administrators. He declined to speculate on what decisions would be made.

Bergesch has said publicly that he thinks Rose, 45, the most prolific hitter in major league history, should give up his spot on the winter roster so that the Reds can use it to protect a young minor league prospect who otherwise could be taken by another team in baseball's December winter draft. Any player with three years' experience in the minor leagues is subject to being drafted if he is not protected on the major league team's winter roster.

"This thing has been blown so far out of proportion, it isn't even funny," Bergesch said. "Pete's part of it is just one of many.

"All we're asking him to do is step off our playing list. He'll still be our manager. Nobody's going to draft him," Bergesch said.

If Rose is not protected on the winter roster and is not drafted by another team, he could not play for the Reds until May 15, under baseball's rules. Bergesch said that would give Rose plenty of time, as the manager, to decide which players should be retained on the Reds' season roster.

Rose has declined to speculate about the issue prior to Wednesday's deadline. Rose has said, however, that he thinks he could be valuable to the Reds in 1987 as a seasoned pinch-hitter and part-time player.

The last two seasons, Rose has platooned himself at first base with Tony Perez, who retired after the 1986 season.

"We have so many outstanding youngsters that we don't want to lose. Whether they're going to play first base isn't the question," Bergesch said.

AP TOP 20

Nebraska climbed from seventh place to sixth with 878 points by defeating Iowa State 35-14, while idle Texas A&M jumped from eighth to seventh with 830 points and Auburn rose from ninth to eighth with 782 points by crushing Cincinnati 52-7.

Ohio State, No. 9 in the preseason poll, finally made it back to the Top Ten after an eight-week absence, including six polls in which the Buckeyes didn't even make the Top Twenty after an 0-2 start. Ohio State, a 31-9 victor over Northwestern, has won eight games in a row and received 711 points in jumping from 11th place to ninth.

Washington rounds out the Top Ten. The Huskies, No. 12 last week, defeated Oregon State 28-12 and received 606 points.

Despite its loss to LSU, Alabama remained ahead of the Tigers atop the Second Ten. The rest of the Second Ten consists of Southern Cal, Arizona, Clemson, Stanford, Arkansas, Baylor, UCLA and Mississippi.

Last week, it was Ohio State, UCLA, Washington, Southern Cal, North Carolina State, Iowa, Arizona, LSU, Georgia and Clemson.

Stanford, which had been in the Top Twenty twice earlier in the season, came back with a 28-23 victory over UCLA that raised its record to 7-2. Baylor returned after a three-week absence thanks to a 29-14 triumph over Arkansas. And Ole Miss, 6-2-1, made it for the first time since Oct. 11, 1976, even though the Rebels were not scheduled last weekend.

Associated Press

Some observations after 10 weeks of the 1986 NFL season:

— The Dallas Cowboys are in trouble.

— The Kansas City Chiefs and Minnesota Vikings could make the playoffs and the New Orleans Saints probably won't, but all are legitimately improved. So are the Atlanta Falcons, but clearly not enough to beat the NFL's best.

— The Chicago Bears, New York Giants and Washington Redskins aren't playing particularly well, but to steal a slogan from Al Davis, they "just win, baby." So do Davis' Los Angeles Raiders, who somehow manage to keep from disappearing.

For one game at least, the 49ers looked like a Super Bowl team again, as Joe Montana came back eight weeks after delicate back surgery and threw three long touchdown passes to Jerry Rice in a 43-17 victory over St. Louis.

"I told him he's a helluva man," the Cardinals' Bubba Baker said after he lay on Montana as a 40-yard pass settled into Rice's hands in the end zone.

Here's a look at the division-by-division races going into the season's final six weeks:

NFC West

Suddenly a highly competitive division with four capable teams, but the 49ers, 6-3-1 and spiritually buoyed by Montana's return, seem to have an edge if they can overcome a brutal closing schedule against teams with a combined record of 44-15-1.

The Los Angeles Rams, 7-3, still lead by a half-game, but have to be nervous. Their 6-0 loss at New Orleans demonstrated the futility of their offense when Eric Dickerson (57 yards on 21 carries) is held in check.

The Falcons 5-4-1 are fading and the Saints, 5-5, are coming, but probably not fast enough to qualify for the playoffs ... this year.

NFC Central

The Bears, 8-2, may be just another good team, but that's enough in this division. They have a two-game lead over Minnesota, 6-4, and it's hard to see how they can lose it.

The Vikings have a good shot at the playoffs — the Giants next Sunday are the toughest team remaining on their schedule, although the Saints could be spoilers on the final Sunday.

NFC East

It's beginning to look like this will be decided by the Dec. 7 game at Washington between the Giants and Redskins, both 8-2. If the Giants, who are relying on Joe Morris and defense, ever get receivers Lionel Manuel and Stacy Robinson back, they probably are the better team.

Dallas' 17-13 loss to the Raiders Sunday hurt the Cowboys badly — at 6-4 they're two games back. Moreover, Steve Pelluer (five interceptions) may have demonstrated he's a year or two away from being a playoff quarterback.

AFC East

The Jets, 9-1, are the best team in football now, but they lost Joe Klecko and Marty Lyons in Sunday's 28-14 victory at Atlanta. Klecko's their most important defensive player, but who needs defense when you have Ken O'Brien (17 straight completions, 322 yards, three TDs) throwing to Wesley Walker and Al Toon?

New England, 7-3, looks like a good bet for a wild card, and Miami, 4-5 going into Monday night's game at Cleveland, remains marginally alive, if only because of Don Shula and Dan Marino.

AFC Central

Cleveland, 6-3, going into Monday night's game, probably is the best team in the division. Cincinnati's 32-28 loss at Houston Sunday proved what has appeared obvious — the Bengals aren't as good as their 6-4 record.

AFC West

Denver's 9-3 loss to San Diego Sunday was probably just one of those days, but things could become serious if the 8-2 Broncos lose at home next Sunday to 7-3 Kansas City. The Chiefs haven't made the playoffs in 15 years, the longest drought in the league north of New Orleans, but should win at least three of their six remaining games — against St. Louis, Buffalo and Pittsburgh.

Polls favor MC tennis

From Staff Reports

Pollsters are already predicting a repeat title for coach Joe Williams' Midland College women's tennis team in 1987.

The Chaparrals, who won the National Junior College Athletic Association title at home last spring, are ranked No. 1 in the pre-season women's JC poll released Monday by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association. Odessa College's women are ranked No. 10, South Plains is 11th.

The MC men are ranked fifth in the first poll with the top spot going to North Greenville JC in South Carolina. South Plains College is the No. 10 team while Odessa College's men are ranked No. 13.

Williams and the Chaps can claim the top rated men's and women's Juco singles players in the country as well, according to the ITCA ratings. MC freshman Caroline Bhaguandas is the top rated woman, while sophomore Jean Roussel is tops in the men's division.

Both players were winners at the ITCA Rolex Regional tournament in Abilene last month and will compete in the National Small College ITCA championships in Fort Myers, Fla., Dec. 9-10.

Other ranked Chaparrals include Eric Lingg, No. 14; Lars Nordmark, No. 21; Johan Dysholm, No. 35; and Herve Rousseau, No. 41. For the women, Natasha Koprivica is sixth; Rachel Wilson is No. 8; Helen Schildknecht, No. 11; and Jill Vallandigham is No. 40.

de Wit defends Canadian title

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — Willie de Wit retained his Canadian heavyweight championship Monday night by stopping Conroy Nelson of Ottawa at 2:09 of the fourth round in a scheduled 12-round bout.

Nelson, a late replacement for Cedric Parsons, offered little resistance to de Wit, the former silver medalist at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympic Games. De Wit fights our of Burnet, Texas, and is backed by Midlander Ben Tamney.

De Wit, 14-0-1 as a pro, was the aggressor from the start, wading into a Nelson with hard shots to the body and head.

De Wit, of Grande Prairie, Alberta, was making his first defence of the title he won last January from Ken Lakusta. It was 30-year-old Nelson's third attempt at winning the crown.

BASKETBALL

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia 76ers forward Charles Barkley was released from the hospital after treatment for a bleeding spleen. He will not rejoin the team until at least next Monday, when he will undergo another examination.

Barkley was hurt last Tuesday after posting a triple double, 34 points, 14 assists and 10 rebounds, in a double-overtime loss to the Indiana. While pursuing a rebound, he caught his foot on teammate Julius Erving's shoulder and fell flat on his stomach and arm...

NEW YORK — Michael Jordan, who averaged 39.4 points in leading the Chicago Bulls to a 4-1 start, was named the NBA's Player of the Week.

Jordan, who began the season with a 50-point effort against New York, has shot 50 percent from the field and 76 percent from the free-throw line. He also has averaged 5.6 rebounds, 3.6 assists, 2.8 steals and 2.0 blocks. Jordan scored 41, 34, 33 and 39 points after the opener...

FOOTBALL

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Quarterback Randy Wright of the Green Bay Packers was released from the hopsital and Coach Forrest Gregg said Wright probably would be available for Sunday's game against Tampa Bay.

Layne, who quarterbacked the Detroit Lions to three NFL titles during the 1950s, was taken to the hospital late Saturday and was listed as stable for a second day...

DALLAS — Arkansas State quarterback Dwane Brown and placekicker Scott Roper along with Northeast Louisiana cornerback Charles Durham have been named players of the week by the Southland Conference.

Brown and Roper accounted for all but six of the Indians points in a 43-21 win over North Texas State and share the offensive honor.

Durham, a 5-10, 188-pound, senior, came up with two interceptions in NW Louisiana's 20-6 win over arch-rival Louisiana Tech...

HOCKEY

MONTREAL — Rookie goalie Mike Vernon of the Calgary Flames, who posted four consecutive victories including a shutout last week, was named the NHL's Player of the Week.

The 23-year-old Vernon had a 1.75 goals-against average during the span. His eight victories also tied him with goalie Ron Hextall of the Philadelphia Flyers for the league lead.

TV

NEW YORK — The Ohio State-Michigan and Arizona State-Arizona college football games on Nov. 22 will be televised by CBS-TV as a national doubleheader.

The network announced that Ohio State-Michigan will be shown at 11 a.m., with Arizona State-Arizona following at 2:30 p.m. The Ohio State-Michigan game will decide which Big Ten team will meet Arizona State of the Pacific-10 Conference in the Rose Bowl...

JEANE DIXON'S your horoscope

© 1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

By Jeane Dixon
Wednesday, November 12, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Strike a better balance between work and play and you will accomplish more. You need to take an occasional break from the pressures of your job. High finance is not a game you enjoy, but it may be important to your loved ones' security. Family ties grow stronger. Siblings cooperate instead of competing with each other. Let romantic partner know your intentions. Travel both inspires and relaxes you.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Chicago Cubs all-star catcher Jody Davis, French sculptor Auguste Rodin, China's Sun Yat-sen, the Oakland As' Bruce Bochte, singer Neil Young, football's Steve Bartkowski, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun, gymnast Nadia Comaneci, Princess Grace of Monaco, singer Jo Stafford, Reader's Digest founder-publisher DeWitt Wallace, actress Kim Hunter.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An uncompromising attitude could have an adverse effect on job security. Check instructions and stick to the facts. Your mate or an old friend is your strongest ally.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A personality clash could be featured this morning. Work by yourself until the clouds lift. Learning new high-tech skills improves your chances for job advancement.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Deal with the lingering aftereffects of yesterday's developments. Keep emotions out of business dealings. Self-restraint pays big dividends. A frank talk with romantic partner is thrilling.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Afternoon is the best time for consummating business and financial deals. Be discreet at all times to protect your reputation.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) A special professional relationship and other alliances are in the spotlight. A change of residence or lifestyle could bring an unexpected reaction from loved ones.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22) Look for a breakthrough where a financial or career matter is concerned. Put extra funds back into the business. A mysterious member of the opposite sex adds excitement.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22) An overly independent attitude will serve no useful purpose in business. Polish new skills and the financial picture will brighten. Be assertive when standing up for your legal rights.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21) Double your efforts to make a favorable impression. Travel is best postponed. Evening is an excellent time to work on a group project.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec 21) You have no trouble gaining support for your ideas now. Influential people stand ready to help out. Following up a hunch could bring new financial success.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19) Keep your feet firmly on the ground. New ideas will boost productivity at work. Married life is more rewarding than in the immediate past. Be affectionate.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 18) A misunderstanding could arise over a financial arrangement. Protect your position. Record all business meetings and social engagements on a calendar.

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20) Look forward to a banner day for business and romance. A spontaneous proposal brings excitement and happiness. Do not press for a permanent commitment.

Opening lead: Seven of ♢

We are frequently asked what we think is the most commong mistake made by the average player. It is not even close: the failure to count tricks wins hands down. We saw this deal played aboard a recent Royal Viking Line bridge cruise.

South is perhaps a little light for his rebid of three clubs, but the alternatives—two hearts and two no trump—also leave something to be desired. Certainly, the final contract of three no trump is hard to fault.

West chose a top-of-nothing diamond as his opening lead. Declarer saw the opportunity to set up a ten-ace in the suit, so he played low. East won the queen and shifted to the ten of clubs. Whether declarer ducked or won, the damage had been done and he did well to emerge with eight tricks.

The hand is almost too simple to write about. After the diamond opening lead declarer is entitled to nine tricks: four spades, two hearts, one diamond and two clubs. All he has to do is guarantee he gets them.

The way to make sure of that is to win the ace of diamonds at trick one. Thereafter, declarer simply cashes the ace-king of spades, comes to hand with a high club and leads the jack of spades to force out the queen.

Should West win the queen and revert to diamonds, declarer can assure the contract by playing the nine of diamonds from the table. East can win, but dummy's guarded ten prevents the defenders from running the suit, and declarer can cash out as soon as he regains the lead.

Sales of the Boss live 'phenomenal'

Springsteen

NEW YORK (AP) — Bruce Springsteen, the rock'n'roll idol with a common touch, demonstrated the golden touch as well as thousands of Americans paid as much as $50 for a chance to buy a collection of the Boss live.

Record stores reported an avalanche of calls and lines that snaked around corners as Springsteen's 40-song live album went on sale.

At the Record Theatre in Buffalo, manager Tom Colson said sales had been "phenomenal" — 800 in seven hours. At the Compact Disc Store in Baton Rouge, La., buyers were hovering over the crates as they were unpacked.

"Every call this morning has been, 'You got The Boss?' " said David Pope of Budget Tapes and Records in Charleston, W.Va.

"Everyone is coming in for it. I just saw my banker leave here with the album, and a pharmaceutical drug salesman is here now. The Republican county committeeman came in and said he wanted to make sure he got the first one I took out of the box," Pope said.

"I saw this when Lennon died and when Elvis died, but out of the box, a new album, I don't know. Nothing's touched this in the 15 years I've been in the business," he said.

"This is what working in a record store is supposed to be like. It's supposed to be fun," said Kenny Altman, manager of Tower Records in Greenwich Village, which sold "Bruce Springsteen & the E Street Band Live — 1975-85" at cost — just under $20 for the five-record set.

In Boston, horror novelist Stephen King was among the first in line at Strawberries Records & Tapes, arriving in a limousine and leaving with three sets of records and one on compact disc.

Prices in the mid-$20s were more common, while the compact discs went for about $40, with some charging as much as $50.

But the demand was huge, a product of Springsteen's popularity — at its height since the release of his last album, "Born in the USA," which sold more than 11 million copies; of his legendary status as one of the world's best concert artists; and of the coming holiday gift-giving season.

Bruce McNaughton, 52, an executive with Time Inc., waited for the opportunity to buy three albums — "one for my son, one for may grandson and one for me." He became a fan about five years ago, when his son induced him to listen to the lyrics, and "I discovered Bruce had something to say."

He went to a concert last year, and wants to relive the experience. "I've seen them all — I've seen Sinatra, I've seen the Big Bands, and nothing compares with Springsteen," he said.

Marchiano

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Linda Marchiano, who starred as Linda Lovelace in the pornographic movie "Deep Throat," is asking for donations to help pay for a liver transplant.

She was admitted Monday to Presbyterian-University Hospital for seven to 10 days of testing in preparation for a transplant.

"People think my husband and I are filthy rich from the bad experience I had, but it's far from that," said Mrs. Marchiano, 37.

"Deep Throat" was filmed in 1972 and she began speaking out against pornographers in 1973. Mrs. Marchiano, a homemaker with two young children, also is a part-time author and lecturer.

"My husband...is a laborer, and we go week to week like everybody else in middle America," she said.

Cuomo

In "The Godfather, as told by Mario Cuomo," Mafia boss Don Corleone "was a successful olive oil importer. He was called Godfather because he was always being asked to be the Godfather of the children of his many friends and employees."

Cuomo, the son of Italian immigrants and a potential 1988 Democratic presidential candidate, has said "The Godfather" portrays Italian-Americans unfairly. His press secretary, Martin Steadman, said Monday that Cuomo hadn't seen the MAD magazine satire.

Sinatra

HONOLULU (AP) — Frank Sinatra has expressed interest in playing a retired policeman on "Magnum, P.I.," says a spokeswoman for the television series.

"He's read a story that he likes, and a script has to be developed," said the spokeswoman, who insisted her name not be used. "But no deal has been definitely set. We haven't signed him to a contract."

Potential guest stars are often given a story line to consider, which is later developed into a script for their appearance if they approve.

Brando

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Marlon Brando wants to lease his South Pacific island paradise, but a Canadian wants to buy the atoll owned by the reclusive actor, a real estate broker said.

"Brando, for tax reasons, doesn't want to sell it," broker Mike Silverman said. "He doesn't want a bunch of cheap motels...on the island. He wants to lease it for $1.5 million down, cash, and quite a long lease. The proviso is that he and his wife must have the OK to spend time at their home there."

Silverman said Monday he was negotiating for the Toronto businessman, who he declined to name, and added, "at the moment, it is an iffy thing."

Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Kennedy and her son Teddy were "recalled to life," she says in a magazine article.

Mrs. Kennedy was in a European alcohol rehabilitation clinic in November 1973 when she learned that her 12-year-old son was suffering from a malignant tumor in his leg, which later was amputated above the knee, the former wife of Sen. Edward Kennedy said in the December issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

Her son went through years of chemotherapy and rehabilitation and, Mrs. Kennedy said, has devoted his life to helping the disabled.

Dollar slips

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar was marginally down against most European currencies in quiet trading today, while gold lost $4 to $5 a troy ounce.

—6.6765 French francs, down from 6.6825

—1.3874 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3875

In London, the British pound was quoted at $1.4373, compared with $1.4385 Monday.

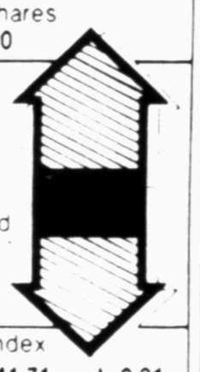

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $406.30 a troy ounce, compared with late Monday's $411.50. At mid-morning Monday, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $407.40.

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

One Midland woman stands ready to meet a new challenge as the U.S. economy restructures itself into a service-oriented economy and individual work schedules become increasingly busy.

For the busy professional, those who need shopping assistance and those who plain hate to shop, Nora Atwood has formed Exclusively Yours, a personal and corporate gift shopping service. "If an executive calls me and asks for a Christmas gift for a secretary, I'll go buy the gift, wrap it and bring it to the office. All I need to know is who it's for, what the occasion is and how much to spend," she explains. She says gift wrap is free and for now delivery — to anywhere — is nominal. So far the community has really responded to her idea, she said. "Husbands, secretaries, all have responded to this need that I'm trying to meet," she said.

Corporations can also take advantage of Atwood's services. She will go out and locate gifts for corporations to hand out to employees, customers or associates.

She takes calls for service in the mornings until noon, and does her shopping in the afternoons until 4 p.m. But she also takes special appointments, and never fails to answer the phone. Her firefighter husband also gets into the act by helping clients who need an expert opinion — such as widows who have never made major purchases — in purchasing automobiles and major appliances.

Atwood, who has a 14 year-old son, said she began the service "because I felt this was a new avenue in my life, something the Lord wants me to do." She envisions the service as making it more convenient not only for busy working people but for those who have difficulty going shopping, such as the elderly and handicapped.

She emphasizes that her business does not endorse any specific retailer, but is a service. "I use Midland retailers, but I will go shopping in the Dallas market if I'm asked to."

Even though the shopping service is new, Atwood already has plans to expand. She said she wants to set up a retail locator network. For example, if a customer is looking for a 19 inch Panasonic color television, he can call Atwood and receive a listing of merchants carrying 19 inch Panasonic color televisions. She also hopes to establish a newsletter for the retail community.

Currently she is arranging a Christmas shopping gala for Midland senior citizens. She explains that senior citizens can bring their Christmas lists to the gala and shop from Midland merchant's gift suggests. She will then take orders, buy and wrap the gifts and return them to the senior citizen in time for Christmas. The event will be at Midland Senior Cdnter Nov. 18 from 12:30 to 1:30, Hillcrest Center from 1:30 to 2:30 on Nov. 19, and at Golden Park from 2 to 3 p.m. on Nov. 20.

New Saudi policy reports broad Middle East support

MANAMA, Bahrain (DPA) — Saudi Arabia has worked out a new oil policy combining the quest for higher prices with demands for a bigger share of the international oil market, an authoritative oil publication said Monday.

The Nicosia-based Middle East Economic Survey said the new Saudi policy enjoys "the broad backing" of the kingom's partners in the Gulf Cooperation Council, which includes three members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries: Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar.

The publication, noted for its Saudi sources, said that the new "two-plank" policy contrasted with speculation that the recent dismissal of Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani meant that the Saudis had abandoned the objective of a bigger market share in favor of boosting prices.

It said Saudi Arabia's call for a market price of $18 per barrel was likely to be "phased in such a way as to avoid any unilateral violation of existing crude oil supply contracts."

The survey also said that The United Arab Emirates had trimmed its planned production for November and December to around 1.18 million barrles daily, but that the figure still remained above its OPEC quota of 950,000 barrels daily.

The publication said that Abu Dhabi's bid to cut overall United Arab Emirates production was complicated by the intent of Dubai, the second largest Emirate, to maximize its output around a level of 380,000 barrels daily.

"In Abu Dhabi the feeling is that the burden of the cutback to the OPEC quota level ought to be shared b Dubai," the publication said. "However, since each emirate in the UAE federation is totally responsible for its own oil policy, there is no way of enforcing a cutback on Dubai."

Mees said that an OPEC pricing panel expected to meet in Ecuador Thursday or Friday was likely to endorse the Saudi call for returning to a fixed price of $18 per barrel.

It expressed doubts over "how the rallying cry for a fixed $18 price can be reconciled with the other seemingly conflicting objective" for higher individual quotas and a bigger OPEC share of the international market.

Sexton resigns banking post

AUSTIN (AP) — James Sexton, state banking commissioner since 1983, has resigned effective Nov. 28 to become a financial consultant for a prominent Texas and Washington law firm.

"It was just a matter of changing professional directions," Sexton said. "I've been considering this for more than a year."

Sexton, 47, said his support of the interstate and branch banking measures in the recent special legislative session had nothing to do with the resignation.

Sexton said he would be joining the law firm of Bracewell & Patterson in Austin on Jan. 5, as a financial institutions consultant.

Sexton was appointed commissioner by the 12-member Finance Commission on Nov. 9, 1983, following an 18-year career with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in Washington.

"My entire professional career has been devoted to the regulation of banks," Sexton said. "With the challenge facing the banking industry in the years ahead, and as the industry moves to implement the new Texas law permitting interstate and branch banking, I look forward to the postitive contribution to banking in general that I believe I can accomplish in this new role with Bracewell & Patterson"

BUSINESS BRIEFS

MidCon's $724 million judgement reduced

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Occidental Petroleum Co. said Monday a federal judge in Wyoming has ordered the reduction of a $724-million jury verdict against Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America (NGPCA), a unit of Occidental's MidCon Corp. subsidiary.

Federal District Court Judge Clarence Brimmer of Cheyenne ordered that a judgement of $549 million be entered against MidCon.

MidCon said the difference between the amount in the judge's order and the amount reported after the jury's verdict stemmed from the "double counting" of several amounts awarded by the jury.

The jury verdict against MidCon followed a trial in a lawsuit brought against NGPCA by Colorado Interstate Gas Co. The jury award was broken into several components, including tripled $175-million antitrust damage, $160 million for breach of contract and $39 million for interference with Colorado Interstate supply contracts.

Icahn negotiators meet to clarify USX offer

NEW YORK (NYT) — Representatives of Carl C. Icahn, the New York investor, met in Pittsburgh Monday with officials of the USX Corp. William E. Keslar, a spokesman for the energy and steel company, said the discussions were intended to further "clarify" Icahn's $31-a-share, $8 billion proposal to buy the company. Keslar added that the talks were also intended to cover whether Icahn would be allowed to look at USX's financial records.

Negotiations between Icahn and USX officials have been going on for several weeks. Some Wall Street sources have predicted that the New York financier might take a profit on his $651 million investment and abandon his offer. Others said the two parties were working out a standstill agreement, under which Icahn would refrain from making any additional purchases of USX stock, until a company restructuring plan was under way.

Unions: Texas Air offer shortchanges investors

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines stockholders were shortchanged when the carrier's board of directors agreed to a takeover by Texas Air Corp. in lieu of entertaining other offers, a coalition of Eastern workers has charged.

Although the week-old Eastern Airlines Employee Coalition Acquisition Inc. has no money in the bank, it sued the carrier on Monday, seeking formal consideration of a $600 million purchase counteroffer.

To help prove that the coalition's offer is best, the group asked U.S. District Court Judge James Lawrence King to let it get financial information and take depositions faster than court rules normally allow.

King refused, but said he may hold a hearing on the group's request to stop a Nov. 25 meeting of shareholders, who are expected to approve the merger.

Mauro seeks appeal of Exxon settlement

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Land Commissioner Garry Mauro asked the attorney general Monday to appeal a court ruling that would allow Exxon oil company to benefit from a lawsuit that it refused to help the state win.

The issue involves the Relinquishment Act of 1919, in which the state rewards land surface owners for acting as the leasing agent in the production of underground minerals. The law gives surface owners 50 percent of the bonuses, royalties or rentals for acting as the state's leasing agent.

At issue is whether Exxon or other Relinquishment Act agents should be compensated when they do nothing to earn it.

Mauro said a recent ruling by a state appeals court in Texarkana makes Exxon an equal partner and entitled to some $700,000 from the settlement of a lawsuit even though Exxon refused to help the state litigate the suit.

"In the lawsuit in question, Exxon was asked to help the state win the case but refused," Mauro said. "Now they want to share in the profit and that's not fair. Not only is it not fair, but it may render the Relinquishment Act unconstitutional.

"What Exxon wanted to do was participate in the settlement, then they refuse to act as our agent," he said. "I say if they didn't act as our agent, they don't deserve one single penny."

The original lawsuit arose out of dispute between Duval County rancher Clinton Manges and the Mobil Oil Corp. over the mineral rights on Manges' ranch.

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Garza discovery pumps 139 bo/d from Strawn

From Staff Reports

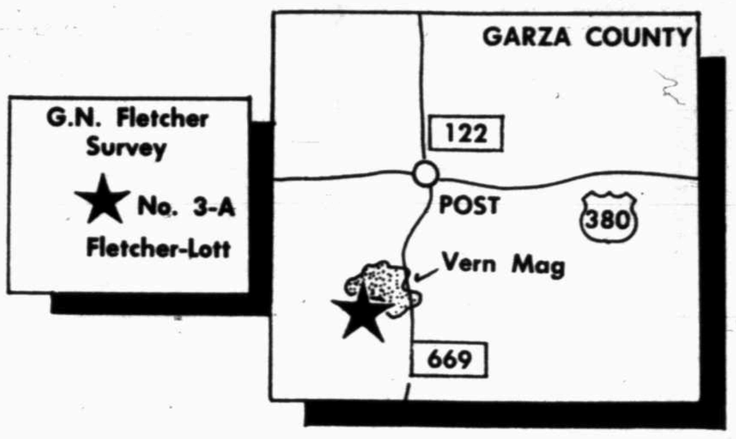

MAGUIRE OIL CO., Dallas, has completed a 139 barrel per day Strawn oil discovery in west central Garza County.

The company's No. 3-A Fletcher-Lott, six miles southeast of Graham Chapel, was completed to pump 139 barrels of 33.9 gravity oil and 27 barrels of water daily from perforations between 8,056 ft. and 8,094 ft.

Drilled to a total depth of 8,531 ft., 5 1/2-inch casing was set to 8,505 ft. and plugged back to 8,155 ft.

From a surface elevation of 2,609 ft., formation tops were picked at 6,405 ft., Dean; 8,050 ft., Strawn; and 8,320 ft., Mississippian. Pay was topped at 8,056 ft.

Suzan Conder/Reporter-Telegram

The well was drilled to 23,012 ft. and is plugged back to 16,055 ft. Five inch casing is set to a depth of 17,855 ft.

The well topped the Bone Spring at 9,157 ft., Strawn at 14,892 ft., Morrow at 16,535 ft., Mississippian at 18,955 ft., Devonian at 20,035 ft. and Ellenburger at 22,385 ft. Top of pay was picked at 14,935 ft. from a ground elevation of 2,954 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from west and 1,320 ft. from south lines of Sec. 36, Block 29 of PSL Survey, 12 miles east of Mentone.

Amoco adds well to Loving County field

Absolute open flow of the well was calculated at 13.9 MMcfgd from perforations between 14,935 ft. and 15,949 ft. The producing interval was treated with 30,000 gal. of 7 1/2 percent NeFe acid.

Texaco completes Penwell producer

TEXACO PRODUCING INC. has added a San Andres producer to the Penwell Field with completion of its No. 2356 Penwell Unit.

The well potentialed to pump 83 barrels of 32.4 gravity oil and 129 barrels of water per day from perforations at 3,682 ft.to 3,861 ft.

The "2356" was drilled to a total depth of 3,900 ft. and was plugged back to 3,880 ft. Casing, 5 1/2-in., is set to 2,947 ft. The well was acidized with 12,000 gal. of 15 percent NeFe acid and fractured using 15,500 gal. of gel carrying 8,100 lb. of 20/40 mesh sand and 13,500 lb. of 12/20 mesh sand.

From a ground elevation of 2,894 ft., top of the San Andres was encountered at 3,497 ft. and top of the pay zone was at 3,682 ft.

The well is located 5,749 ft. from south and 860 ft. from east lines of Sec. 1, Block B-16 of the PSL Survey, two miles southwest of Penwell.

Terrell County wildcat yields minor gas find

A former Devonian gas producer in the Ingham Field has been recompleted as a Strawn gas discovery in Terrell County.

The PETRA OIL CORP. No. 1-21 Ingham Farms, was recompleted to flow 44 Mcf of dry gas daily from perforations between 8,693 ft. and 8,809 ft.

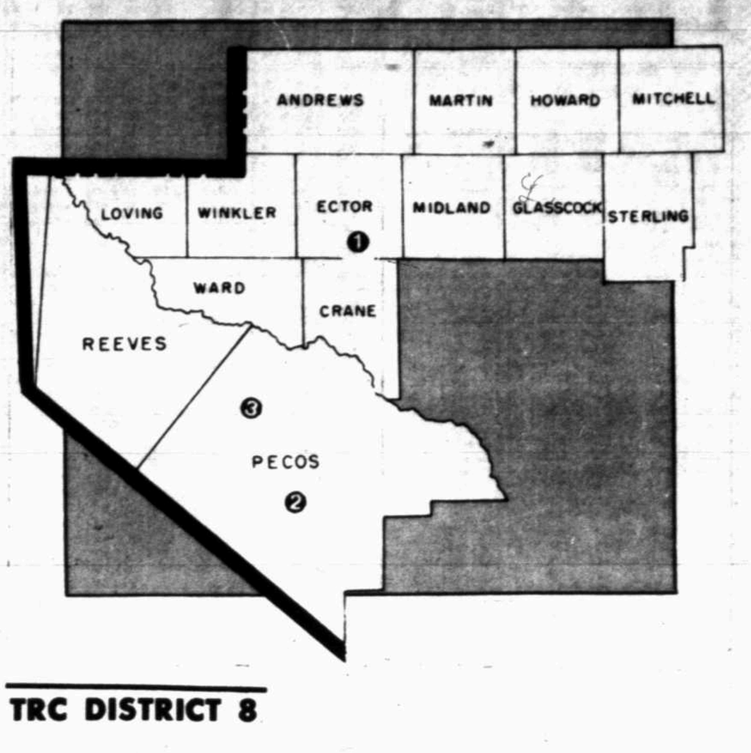

The Devonian completion in 1981 by Sioux Natural Gas Corp. had a CAOF of 2.75 MMcfgd, according to reports.

The well is now plugged back to 8,820 ft.

Formation tops were seen at: Strawn, 8,690 ft.; Detrital, 8,793 ft. and Devonian at 8,820 ft. Ground elevation is 2,180 ft.

The location is 3,575 ft. from west and 467 ft. from south lines of Sec. 21 Block 1 of the I&GN Survey, nine and a half miles southeast of Sheffield.

Samedan to acquire oil production

HOUSTON (UPI) — Texas Eastern Corp. and Noble Affiliates, Inc. have entered into a letter of intent for Texas Eastern to sell most of its domestic oil and gas properties to Samedan Oil Corp.

Samedan is a subsidiary of Noble Affiliates. The $176 million transaction is expected to be finalized and the transaction closed by Jan. 31, officials said.

The sale includes essentially all of Texas Eastern's proven and undeveloped reserves located in the United States and the Gulf of Mexico. The sale also includes Texas Eastern's domestic undeveloped acreage.

OIL & GAS DIGEST

Oil, gas discoveries down from previous month

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission says that Texas oil operators reported 16 discovery wells in October, one fewer than the previous month.

Oil discoveries in October included three in the Midland area.

The commission said gas operators reported 49 gas discoveries in October, 13 more than the previous month.

The commission said 371 dry holes were reported in October, 107 more than in September.

Endevco reports anticipated decline in earnings

DALLAS (SWN) — Endevco, Inc. reported that, as anticipated, revenues and net earnings for the nine months ending Sept. 30, declined as compared to the same period in 1985. For the same comparative periods, earnings from operations and cash flow (working capital provided by operations) continued to have strong increases over prior years.

The company anticipates that net earnings for 1986 will be lower than earnings reported in 1985. Two of the previously disclosed causes for lower earnings in 1986 are the expected losses during the year from the initial operations of the Mississippi Fuel Co. System which the company acquired in December of 1985 and lower than anticipated sales margins which have begun to manifest themselves during the third quarter of 1986. A third item that will negatively affect earnings for the year, the loss of investment tax credits as prescribed by the Tax Reform Act of 1986, will occur in the fourth quarter.

Pengo announces effective date for stock split

FORT WORTH (SWN) — Pengo Industries, Inc. announced that the one-for-ten reverse commmon stock split approved by its shareholders on Sept. 24, will become effective on Nov. 13. The company further stated that letters of transmittal will be mailed to all shareholders to facilitate the exchange of old shares for the new reverse-split shares.

The exchange of shares will be handled by the company's transfer agent, InterFirst Bank Fort Worth, N.A. The company stated that fractional shares will not be issued, but will be cashed out at the closing price of Pengo Common Stock on the New York Stock Exchange as of Nov. 12.

Entex posts net loss for three-month period

HOUSTON (SWN) — Entex Energy Development, Ltd. announced a net loss of $693,000 ($.08 per unit) for the three months ended Sept. 30, vs. a net loss of $540,000 ($.07 per unit) for the comparable period of the prior year.

Enron completes sale of chemical subsidiary

HOUSTON (AP) — Enron Corp. has completed the sale of its Enron Chemical Co. subsidiary to National Distillers and Chemical Corp. of New York.

National Distillers paid Houston-based Enron about $570 million in cash and assumed about $34 million in industrial revenue bond indebtedness in the transaction, officials said.

Enron will use the proceeds for general corporate purposes and will book a gain on the sale in the upcoming fourth quarter of about $90 million.

Western suspends payment of cash dividends

FORT WORTH (SWN) — The Western Co. of North America announced that the board of directors has continued the suspension of payment of the regular quarterly cash dividend of $1.8125 per share on the company's $7.25 cumulative preferred stock, Series A, as part of the cash conservation program necessitated by difficult oil and gas market conditions. Future dividend payments will be reviewed quarterly by the board of directors.

Former Enron chairman to lead Vista Chemical

HOUSTON (AP) — Sam Segnar, formerly chairman of what is now Enron Corp., has been named chairman of Vista Chemical Co.

Segnar, who resigned from Enron Corp. in November 1985, joined Vista Chemical Oct. 22. Vista is a privately held company that is a spinoff of Conoco Inc.

Segnar had been chairman of InterNorth Inc., which was based in Omaha, and arranged the 1985 merger with Houston Natural Gas. Those two companies eventually became Enron Corp., which moved its headquarters from Omaha to Houston July 1.

Texas International selling domestic oil, gas properties

OKLAHOMA CITY (SWN) — Texas International Co. announced it is beginning to offer to sell almost all of its domestic oil and gas properties. The properties consist of approximately 13 million barrels of proven oil reserves and 65 billion cubic feet of proven natural gas reserves. The properties are held by a single wholly owned subsidiary which has a federal income tax net operating loss carryforward of about $160 million.

The company expects to sell the subsidiary in a competitive process that it hopes to conclude by year-end. The company currently intends that proceeds of the sale would be used to retire debt and for general corporate purposes. No assurances can be given that the subsidiary will be sold.

James A. Kishpaugh, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said that virtually all of the subsidiary's net income for the next three years is required to service the company's senior secured debt. Therefore, no cash flow will be available to the company from the properties for that time frame.

Two hundred years after the idea for its construction was conceived and 79 years after President Theodore Roosevelt laid the foundation stone, the National Cathedral, located on the highest hill in Washington, is still unfinished.

National Cathedral

When George Washington and architect Pierre L'Enfant were planning a new capital city here in the late 1700s, they happened to visit Secretary of Treasury Joseph Nourse, whose home was on the highest point of land in the Washington area.

Nourse told his visitors of his dream for a church there one day. And, to that end, a small box containing 50 gold dollars with a note designating the money "for a free church on Alban's Hill" was found after the death of Nourse's granddaughter, who shared his goal.

Today, more than two centuries after Nourse told Washington of his dream — and 79 years after President Theodore Roosevelt laid the Washington Cathedral's foundation stone with the same silver trowel that Washington used to set the cornerstone of the U.S. Capitol — what could be the world's last great piece of Gothic architecture is finally nearing completion.

"We're just beginning to think about it," Provost Charles A. Perry says of the current goal of 1989 or 1990, when the cathedral, one of the Western world's great monuments to Christianity, is expected to be completed and consecrated.

Even with the benefits of today's sophisticated technology, building a true Gothic cathedral is a slow, laborious task. And, in these fast-paced times, when new skyscrapers seem to appear overnight from heaps of glass and steel, the Washington Cathedral rises slowly on this city's horizon, like an old, gray lady from her rocker.

"We just keep setting one stone on top of the other and keep going up," says Richard T. Feller, clerk of the works, who oversees the massive project. With its ribbed vaults, pointed arches, flying buttresses and large windows, the cathedral has been "a very, very complex problem" to build, says Feller, a civil engineer who has spent more than 30 years at work here.

The Episcopal cathedral is also known as the National Cathedral and the Cathedral Church of St. Peter and Paul. Modeled in the English gothic style of the 14th century, the edifice dominates the skyline here atop Mount St. Alban. Each year, 300,000 visitors pass through the cathedral's doors, in addition to its 250,000 worshippers. Work on the interior is complete except for some finishing touches.

"It's our national cathedral," says Annie Lou White of Pasadena, Calif., a member of the 14,000-member National Cathedral Association's board of trustees, "and it's a symbol to all of us — not just in the Episcopal church, but to the whole country."

ITS SYMBOLISM is matched by its sheer physical mass. At an estimated 150,000 tons in weight and 518 feet in length, the cathedral ranks behind only five others in the world in overall size: St. Peters in Rome, the Seville cathedral, St. John's in New York, and the edifices in Liverpool and Milan.

Over the years, a key ingredient in the progress of this elaborately carved limestone cathedral has been the corps of artists, sculptors and skilled craftsmen who spent years at work here. It is a group that is steadily vanishing. The original stone carvers and masons have all retired or died.

But, beyond the myriad physical obstacles presented by such a project, which Feller says is based on precision and perfection, is the periodic problem of money.

Work on the cathedral was interrupted during both world wars and halted in the late 1970s for several years after a construction debt of millions of dollars had accumulated. Today, Feller says, "we pay as we go."

Perry estimates that $50 million has been spent on the cathedral, a figure that translates into $150 million to $200 million in current dollars. Although that sum would make a comparable undertaking virtually impossible today, financing the cathedral has nevertheless been no small task for an organization that depends on public donations and contributions to continue construction.

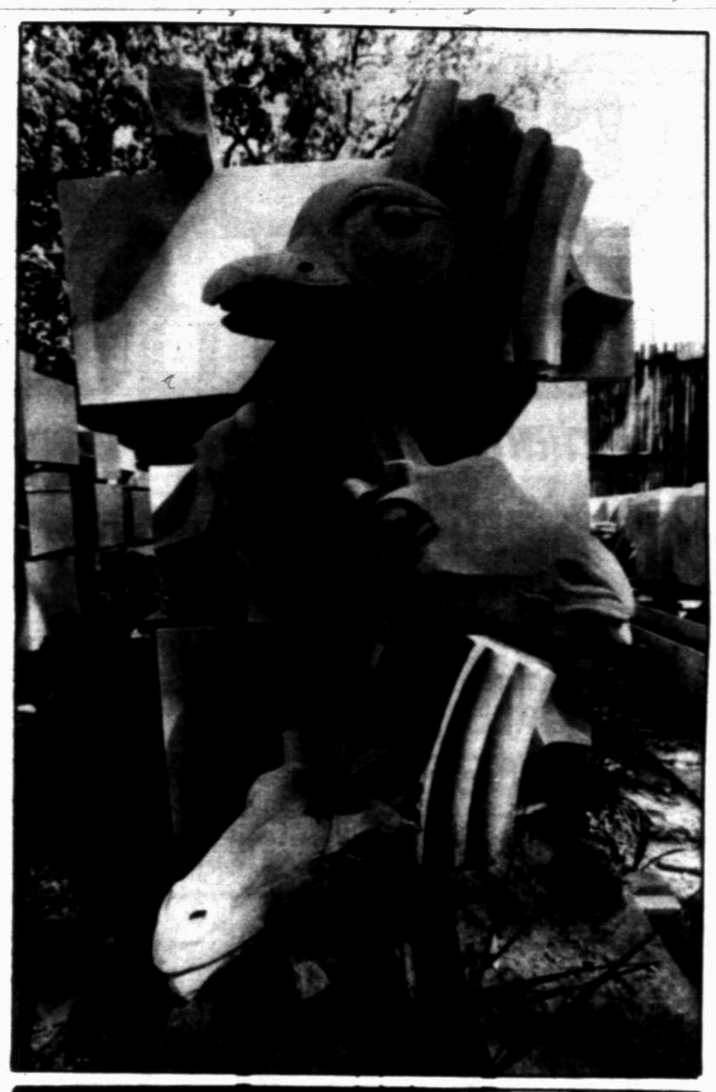

Perry estimates that the cathedral has $9 million in remaining construction costs and is launching a campaign to raise the last $4.5 million needed to complete the task.

Most of the money is needed for the twin west towers of St. Peter and St. Paul over the main entrance. About a third of both towers, which are being built in tandem to cut costs, has been completed.

While the blocks of buff limestone still are set by masons, there are some modern aids that ancient engineers would have envied. In fact, the tall Linden crane — now a nationwide fixture for building skyscrapers — was first brought to America for construction on the cathedral.

All of the limestone comes from Indiana quarries that have supplied the stone since construction began. The cathedral's planners wanted to be sure that there would be ample supplies of the buff stone for the duration of the building — preventing such eyesores as the different colored stones visible on the Washington Monument.

A small limestone likeness of Darth Vader, above, will join the more traditional gothic artistry of animal heads, seashells and angels to adorn the National Cathedral. Vader was carved by Chris Rader, 13, of Kearney, Neb., third-place winner of a "draw a grotesque" contest.

AND AMONG the array of flowers, seashells, angels and animals that adorn this majestic edifice, all examples of the elaborate gothic artistry that has withstood centuries of architectural alteration, stand a number of surprises: A small limestone likeness of Darth Vader, the Hollywood Villain of "Star Wars" fame, is awaiting its turn to be set by masons.

Darth Vader was carved after 13-year-old Chris Rader of Kearney, Neb., won third place in a "draw a grotesque" contest in which 1,400 children from 16 countries participated.

And, in tribute to a documentary film about the cathedral's stone carvers that won a 1985 Academy Award, one of the figures will hold an Oscar.

Moreover, ancient cathedral builders undoubtedly would be surprised to find that such a structure has a command post for its guards that is equipped with extensive electronic climate, fire and burglar alarm controls. Laser beams check the foundation for settling, while other sophisticated systems analyze the impact of pollution.

Much of the cathedral's design reflects the work of architect Philip Hubert Frohman, who studied at the California Institute of Technology and who worked on the cathedral for no less than half a century — from 1921 until he retired in 1971.

Frohman, who is said to have climbed the scaffolding daily, once wrote that he hoped the "Washington Cathedral might become the Westminster Abbey of America." He died in 1972 after being struck by a car in the shadow of the cathedral, where he is interred.

Feller, who came out of retirement to oversee the completion, is a self-described perfectionist who insists that his building standards are far stricter than most other construction projects.

"It's such a pleasure to work here because they demand the best," says Peter "Billy" Cleland, the master mason. "I tell my men: "Take your time — you're building something to last 2,000 years."'

SUCH LONGEVITY has been made painfully clear to the builders and craftsmen who have spent decades working on the cathedral. Feller recalls a day in the late 1970s as they were working on the nave when he suddenly realized that everyone soon would be retired. "We took all kinds of pictures so other people would know how to do the work and do it economically," he said.

Along with the mortar and muscle that goes into building a cathedral, those who work on the awesome stone structure say, goes an unspoken faith and devotion.

Today, after 25 years here, he is the only remaining stone carver with long experience. To finish the carving, he has recruited a number of young students and is teaching them his craft in hopes that they too will continue a skill of which he is so proud.

"No book in the world can tell you how to give life to a flower or make a face full of life," he says. "Only experience can do that."

The masons will cease setting stone in 1988 so that the carvers can finish all of their work. Then the masons will return to set the last pinnacles — the turrets that taper to the top.

Feller plans to be there when the final stone is lifted into place.

"I hope to set that stone," he says.

WORLD IN BRIEF

UN General Assembly to monitor country's oil trade

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — With Israel accusing Arab producers of supplying the bulk of petroleum reaching South Africa, the General Assembly voted 136-5 Monday to monitor all oil trade with the racially troubled country.

The measure, introduced and co-sponsored by Norway, urged the 15-nation Security Council to follow up its 1977 arms embargo on South Africa by imposing a mandatory, worldwide oil boycott on that country. Only the Security Council can impose binding sanctions.

In the past, the United States and Britain have used their vetoes to block the Security Council from going beyond the arms embargo to impose broader mandatory sanctions against South Africa.

The two Western powers were urged by name in a separate resolution, passed 126-16, to "reassess their positions and facilitate" comprehensive sanctions.

In all, the assembly overwhelmingly adopted eight resolutions directed at isolating South Africa politically, socially and economically because of its policies of racial separation. The action, similar to that in past years, came after four days of debate in which 100 delegates spoke.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A three-member revolutionary tribunal begins deliberations today on whether American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus is guilty of terrorism for aiding anti-government Contra rebels.

As the 12-day period for submitting evidence expired Monday, Nicaraguan defense lawyer Enrique Sotelo Borgen said he petitioned the People's Tribunal for another chance to meet with his client.

Sotelo Borgen said he had not seen Hasenfus since the American's last court appearance Nov. 4. There was no immediate response to the lawyer's request.

Hasenfus, 45, was taken over the weekend to the southern Nicaragua site where the military transport plane in which he was flying was shot down Oct. 5.

The People's Tribunal, made up of a truck driver, a laborer and a lawyer who acts as tribunal president, could announce its verdict at any time from today through Thursday, tribunal spokeswoman Thelma Salinas said.

Justice Minister Rodrigo Reyes, the prosecutor, said sentence probably would be pronounced the same day if the verdict is guilty. Hasenfus could get 30 years in prison if convicted of the charges of terrorism, conspiracy and violating Nicaragua's security.

Oil off limits to Canadians

OTTAWA (AP) — Petro-Canada won't allow U.S. buyers of its idle oil refinery at Come By Chance, Newfoundland, to sell petroleum products to Canadian consumers outside the province in an apparent breach of federal combines law, The Canadian Press has learned.

An official in the Combines Investigation Branch said Monday the deal will be investigated because it appears to restrict competition in the marketplace.

American, Briton suspects in sinking of whalers

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Iceland says it will seek the arrest and extradition of an American and a Briton named as suspects in the weekend attack that sank half of Iceland's whaling fleet and wrecked the nation's only whaling station.

Thorstein Geirsson, permanent secretary in the Justice Ministry, on Monday identified the suspects as Rodney Coronado of the United States and David Howard of Britain. Their hometowns were not given.

A police spokesman, who commented on condition he not be further identified, said police had information linking the two with the Sea Shepherd Conservation Society, a North American anti-whaling group that has claimed responsibility for the weekend attacks.

However, a Sea Shepherd spokeswoman in Britain said she knew nothing of Coronado or Howard. Asked if anyone from Britain participated in the raid, spokeswoman Sarah Hambley said she could not give out such information.

Prime Minister Steingrimur Hermannsson, speaking on radio and television, said Iceland was trying to determine the suspects' whereabouts to have them arrested.

Geirsson said they allegedly took an Icelandair flight to Luxembourg Sunday morning. Hermannsson criticized police for not raising the alarm soon enough to prevent their escape.

Attorney General Hallvardur Einarsson said Iceland would seek to extradite any foreigners involved in the sabotage.

No one was injured in the attacks in which two 430-ton vessels were sunk in Reykjavik harbor, and equipment was destroyed at the remote Hvalur Whaling Co. station, where whale byproducts are processed.

Hermannsson called an emergency Cabinet meeting for today and requested a detailed report on the raids, which local officials estimate caused $2 million damage.

The attacks also have caused a surge of anger among the 240,000 inhabitants of this North Atlantic island nation, which relies almost exclusively on fishing for its livelihood.

"This action is dreadful. I see the activity of these hysterical people as an attack on a way of life," said Jakob Jakobsson, director of the Marine Research Institute.

"Here in Iceland we are harvesting our resources and through research we hope to assess the whale stocks in the North Atlantic and use what is around us without exploiting it," he said.

Iceland abides by the International Whaling Commission's decision to halt commercial whaling until 1990, but permits the killing of 200 whales a year for research.

The Sea Shepherd group has accused Iceland of conducting illegal commercial whaling in the guise of research.

Paul Watson, the group's leader, said in Vancouver, British Columbia, that members of the organization infiltrated Iceland's whaling industry in August with instructions to act when there was no threat to human life.

Watson, a Canadian, said the action was delayed by the U.S.-Soviet summit in Reykjavik last month. After that, "at the first opportunity, when they found the ships unmanned, they scuttled them," he said.

Magnus Olafsson, foreman of the whaling station on Hvalfjoredur fjord, 50 miles north of the Icelandic capital, said the factory, now inoperable, looked like it was hit by an air raid. The factory and the boats are owned by the Hvalur Whaling Co.

The United States monitors foreign whaling. If it determines that efforts to conserve the whales have been undermined, the U.S. commerce secretary is required by law to recommend the president either embargo the offending country's fish products or curtail its right to fish in U.S. economic zones.

Iceland says that as a fishing nation it must conduct extensive research on how whales affect fish population and that it can finance its research only through selling whale meat.

Last August, Icelandic and U.S. officials reached a compromise that Icelanders would consume half the meat resulting from the scientific whaling. Before, 90 percent of it was sold abroad, nearly all to Japan.

Watson founded the Shepherd group in 1977 when he was expelled from the Greenpeace environmental group. No reason was given for the expulsion.

Conservationist loved, hated

VANCOUVER, Canada (AP) — Militant conservationist Paul Watson is, to many environmentalists, a swashbuckling defender of rapacious mankind's defenseless prey. To his opponents, he is a dangerous fanatic who has by remarkable luck so far avoided killing someone.

The 35-year-old Watson is president of the Sea Shepherd Conservation Society, which claimed responsibility for the weekend scuttling of two Icelandic whaling boats and for the sabotage of an Icelandic whaling station that processed whale byproducts.

The Vancouver resident's well-staged protests against nuclear arms testing, Canada's seal hunt and countries that hunt whales has earned him respect and admiration from many international conservation organizations.

Opponents, such as ranchers in northeastern British Columbia, where Watson tried to halt the provincial government's wolf kill program in 1984, see him at best as a misguided exhibitionist who knows little about the issues to which he attracts publicity like a lightning rod.

Watson is regarded more favorably outside of Canada than inside, partly because he has found himself fighting Canadians for much of the last 15 years.

In the 1970s, he led several forays against the hunters and later against a phalanx of Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers called in to protect the hunters from protesters. In 1979, he reportedly was hog-tied with rope by the Mounties and dragged across the ice of the St. Lawrence.

Later that year, his vessel was chased by a Portugeuse navy warship across open water for interfering in Portugeuse whale hunting. He snuck into Portugal a few months later to scuttle his impounded ship and was thrown in jail.
