$10,000 arts award to SHS is official

The official word was released Tuesday morning that Snyder High School is one of eight nationwide winners of a $10,000 award in art education from the New York-based Rockefeller Brothers Fund.

SHS and the other winners were selected from a field of 238 applicants on the basis of excellence in one or more of the arts — including dance, drama, music, visual arts, creative writing and poetry.

In announcing the local honor, Rockefeller officials pointed to figures that more than half of the school's 800 students enroll in arts each year.

A release from the foundation notes "Teaching and performing spaces are extensive; the school library has large holdings in poetry, dramatic criticism and literature and visual arts.

"The vocal and instrumental music divisions have unusually large collections of sheet music. The theatre arts division's costume collection has grown from approximately 35 costumes to more than 2,000 today.

"Students also build ingenious and effective sets, for example a 15-foot papier-mache waterfall and life-sized palm trees for 'South Pacific.'

"Each of the performing arts departments schedule numerous performances in the small community.

"Students rank consistently high in regional and national competitions."

This year, the Rockefeller foundation chose to honor schools in Dallas and Chicago; in surburban areas in Tennessee and Ohio; and in smaller communities such as an island in southeast Alaska and in the southwest corner of Utah.

Two of these are elementary schools, one a junior high enrolling sixth through eighth grades student, and five are high schools, one established specifically for the arts.

Each school will receive $10,000 from a trustee or officer of the fund. A visit to Snyder is planned this spring.

The only restriction on the award is that the money be used to further the arts in the school.

Other winners announced Tuesday were Montezuma Creek Elementary School, Montezuma Creek, Utah; Garfield Elementary, Medina, Ohio; Blatchley Junior High, Sitka, Alaska; Germantown High School, Germantown, Tenn.; Proviso East High School, Maywood, Ill.; Wyoming High School, Wyoming, Ohio.; and Arts Magnet High School in Dallas.

FNB names new president

Larry Hearn, former president of the PetroBank in Houston, has been named president and chief executive officer of Snyder's First National Bank.

The announcment was made by E. D. Walton, chairman of the bank's board of directors. Hearn, 34, began his duties Tuesday and replaces Phil Guerry who has resigned to enter private business in Spur.

Walton said the appointment of Hearn ends a month-long search for a new chief executive officer for the bank. "The board conducted an extensive search, and we are happy to announce a man with the ability and background of Larry," Walton said.

Hearn began his banking career while attending the University of Texas. He worked in various teller and collection and exchange functions with two Austin banks.

From 1973 to 1981, Hearn was a banking examiner with the State of Texas. He held assignments in Austin, Odessa, Tyler, Lubbock and Houston.

In Houston he was the regional examiner in charge of 150 state chartered banks and supervised a staff of 36 examiners. During that period he also served as an instructor of bank examining policies and procedures, bank accounting, internal controls, Texas Banking Code and asset evaluation.

In 1981 he joined the RepublicBank Spring Branch as vice president for commercial loans. In December, 1982, he became senior vice president of the PetroBank in Houston. He later became executive vice president and then president and chairman of the executive committee. He had served as senior officer of the bank since May, 1983.

In addition to attending UT, Hearn also attended Texas A&M University. A graduate of John Marshall High School in San Antonio, he attended the School of Banking of the South in Baton Rouge, La., and the University of Oklahoma School of Banking.

Hearn and his wife, Debbie, a native of Odessa, have two children, ages 12 and 6.

Guerry, president of FNB since September, 1982, has purchased an interest in Donelson Motor Co. in Spur. Guerry was one of the original officers of the bank which opened for business in January, 1981.

Public hearing due for state's missed class rule

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Beginning Wednesday, hearings will begin to allow public comment on what has been characterized as one of the more controversial aspects of an educational plan which will affect all Texas school districts.

These public meetings will not address curriculum changes — a major part of the plan — but rather a "student absences" rule proposed by the State Board of Education.

It is one answer being considered by the state board to address House Bill 246 — the directive designed to insure that Texas school children receive a "balanced" public education.

The rule is an attempt to curb class days missed due to extracurricular school activity such as band, choir and athletic competition-related trips.

But as it is now proposed, officials at Snyder High School say it will create considerable "scheduling headaches" when implemented in the state's more remote schools.

As proposed, students may not miss class more than five times during the full school year for a range of school activites at the district competition level.

These five absences will be counted in respective classes.

As it is interpreted now, this would mean a specific class could not be missed for such activities as a football game during the regular season without counting against the student.

To illustrate with other examples, the same would be true for district-level competitions involving band, choir, one-act plays, vo ag grass judging or distributive education competitive events.

While five such absences would be the maximum for the school year, on a semester basis students would not be allowed to miss more than three. The rule would apply to grades 7-12.

When students compete above the district level, these absences from class would not count against them.

In addition, absences for activities considered an "extension of the academic curriculum" would not count in the total.

To illustrate the type of activity which would be authorized, the state board notes subject-related fairs, assemblies and field trips.

Ray Courtney, SHS principal, commented, "This rule is really going to have an effect in schools like Snyder and the other more isolated communities of West Texas and the Panhandle."

He pointed to the furthest "trip" involved in District 2-AAAA competition, the 200 mile distance to Fort Stockton.

"There's no way we can get to Fort Stockton and not leave before the school day is finished," he noted.

"A student who only takes football may not use up more than the three absences for one semester. But if he also wanted to be in the choir, he may not be able to take an out of school trip because he's already used up his allotment.

"I see the good in what they're trying to do," he said, "But it's a rule that is a lot easier to apply in the bigger cities than it would be out here."

He said if it is implemented as now proposed, the end result would likely be that high school students will be limited to only one extracurricular activity.

Across the state, the public meetings to allow comment regarding this rule begin Wednesday and will continue through March 14.

There are 20 regional education centers in Texas and meetings are planned at each. This area is served under the Region 14 center in Abilene. If is located at 1850 State Hwy. 351.

Two hearings are planned there Wednesday, from 9 a.m. until noon and from 4 until 7 p.m.

In addition, similar hearings will be held in Lubbock Feb. 29 (Region

Father, son face drug charges here

A father and son now face drug-related charges after both were arrested here Monday night. They were being held in Scuury County Jail Tuesday under bond amounts totaling more than $300,000.

The two were arrested separately in the early morning hours Monday by city police detectives and Scurry County sheriff's officers.

The first suspect taken into custody was Samuel Lee Davis. He was arrested at his residence, 3925 Muriel Dr., at 11:39 p.m.

He is now charged with illegal sale of a controlled substance. Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway set bond for the 38-year-old Davis at $100,000.

Following his arrest, officers arrested his father, 63-year-old Anderson (Son) Davis, Jr. at his residence, 1204 34th St. This arrest occurred around 1:40 a.m. Tuesday.

The elder Davis is now charged with one misdemeanor count of possession of alcohol for sale in a dry county and two counts of sale of a controlled substance.

Callaway set bonds for him at $750 on the misdemeanor charge and $100,000 each for the sale of a controlled substance charge.

SHS DE student to statewide meet

Snyder High School Distributive Education students placed high in individual competency competition conducted in San Angelo Saturday with two local students qualifying to represent SHS at the state meet in San Antonio next month.

The top local winner was Teresa Tate, who placed first. Joining her in San Antonio will be Gilbert Pesina, who qualified as an alternate contestant based on his second place finish in individual competency.

Other local students placing high at the San Angelo contest were Jamie Harbin and Connie Henderson, second place; Teresa Baez and Brad Rodgers, third place; and Todd Sorrells, honorable mention.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A popularity contest is an affair that usually makes the winner unpopular."

For a mere $12.05--the cost of an a 20 oz. sirloin that will feed the whole family--one can purchase a recently published book aimed at helping the businessman close his deal over lunch.

If you happen to be one who eats light at lunch, then be prepared to lose the business deal, the book advises. In other words, the tea room is not the place talk business, the author says.

Local cattlemen will be glad to hear that beef is suggested and such things as salmon and lamb are considered "whimp dishes."

The author claims that she arrived at the material for her book by more than 6,000 hours of eating lunch. We wonder how much she weighs?

A successful business lunch, she claims, starts with the choice of the right restaurant. In order to be in control, your power table should be near the front and highly visible. Next best choice is to be sequestered in the back. Make your guest face the wall so you may keep his full attention.

For women executives, dark restaurants should be chosen. Never repair makeup or put on lipstick--it may remind him of his nagging wife or greedy girlfriend.

The book says "steak is macho and the bigger the steak the more macho it becomes."

We observed a few maneuvers over the years, like the associate who always sticks with water. We finally asked if he was trying to keep an edge on the competition. "No, but I've tasted the coffee here before." And the real man's man does not eat quich, but he also finishes off the jalapeno peppers without disturbing his water glass.

We also feel slighted. Nowhere in the pages of the latest literary work on the corporate world did it list our favoite luncheon delight. Macho or not, we'll stick with the corn flakes.

Q. — If someone was interested in donating organs for research, who could they contact?

A. — There is a national service called The Living Bank which provides information for potential organ donors. In addition, the service maintains a registry of donors and operates a referral service. The service provides a toll free number (800) 528-2971 as well as a second number to call in Texas, (713) 528-2971.

In Brief

Recession may be triggered

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO has renewed its call for a substantial rollback of the 1981 three-year tax cut program and warned that high deficits "may soon tip the economy into another Reagan recession."

For the third consecutive year, the top leadership of the 13.8 million-member labor federation issued policy papers finding fault with President Reagan's budget and tax policies.

In the first day of its week-long meeting here, the 33-member executive council said Monday that the deficit, estimated to reach $180 billion in the next budget year, "must be reduced by stronger economic growth, increased federal revenues and lower military expenditures."

If more money is needed to shore up the nation's defenses, the labor leadership said, it should be bankrolled with a special income tax surtax on both corporations and individuals.

Longer school year sought

AUSTIN (AP) — A special subcommittee studying the state's education system has recommended lengthening the school year by two weeks beginning next fall and has called for a study into the possibility of year-round classes.

The Educating the Child subcommittee, a panel under the Governor's Select Committee on Public Education, made the recommendations Monday.

The panel's proposal said that if year-round schooling was found to be advantageous, it should be begin in five years.

The eight-member subcommittee also approved a proposal to dramatically reduce class sizes from kindergarten through the fourth grade.

The subcommittee's recommendations go to the full committee, which is chaired by Dallas businessman H. Ross Perot.

Foreign dishes at museum

Foods from several countries will be served up Friday night at the Scurry County Museum in conjunction with the current museum display of American Field Service momentoes.

Tickets for the International Tasting Tea will be available through Wednesday.

These are priced at $4 each and are to be purchased in the museum office on campus. The museum is open from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. each weekday.

The Friday event will begin at 7 p.m. and will offer foods representative of several countries. The museum is currently featuring an exhibit of items loans by Snyder members of the American Field Service in recognition of the 25th anniverary of the local chapter.

A brief program on the AFS will be presented during the evening.

Chamber to meet Tuesday

Snyder Chamber of Commerce will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday to consider a seven-item agenda.

Business items to be discussed during the regular monthly session include considering budget approval, financial report, consider acceptance of resignation, basketball playoff games report, membership luncheon report, industrial update and proposed committee chairmen appointments.

Area schools set vacations

Both Ira and Hermleigh Independent School Districts have announced dates for spring break and Easter vacation.

Ira students will enjoy spring break on March 8-9 and Easter vacation is set for April 19-24.

Hermleigh Schools will dismiss March 9-12 for spring break and April 20-23 for Easter vacation.

Extend principal's contract

Ira School trustees met in regular session Monday night.

Besides routine business items, trustees extended the contract of L. D. Monroe, principal, for two years. The contract now runs from July 1, 1984 to June 30, 1986.

Gary Hart claims it's two man race

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Buoyed by a second-place finish in Iowa, Colorado Sen. Gary Hart says the key to his Democratic presidential bid is immediate recognition as the only alternative to front-runner Walter F. Mondale.

"I think you'll see the gap narrowed very, very quickly," Hart told reporters who crowded around him at his Manchester campaign headquarters Monday night.

"I think this will be a two-person race, and I'll win it."

Hart said his No. 2 showing in Iowa's precinct caucuses will focus more attention on him, enrich his campaign coffers and persuade undecided voters in New Hampshire and other early contest states that his candidacy is alive and deserves their support.

"I expect more people will have heard my name tomorrow than have in the past year," he said.

Despite the burst of optimism, Hart's aides concede he has done little to organize key southern states that will hold caucuses March 13, and he lags far behind Mondale in fund raising.

Former Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota emerged from the ranks of longshots to finish just behind Hart. He claimed he had pulled off a "minor miracle," and said his showing proved that many Iowans "voted their convictions and voted their consciences."

Sen. Alan Cranston finished fourth, lower than the "clear third" he had said was necessary to remain a viable candidate. Even so, the Californian said the results were not fatal to his candidacy, adding "We are all still in the race" against Mondale.

Cranston branded Sen. John Glenn of Ohio the big loser, and the caucus returns bore him out.

Glenn finished a distant sixth, behind four other candidates and an "uncommitted" bloc.

He took his lumps at a news conference in Boston, declaring, "I'm not making any excuses. We got whipped tonight."

Former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina finished in the last three places. Only Askew made an effort in the state, with Hollings and Jackson skipping the caucuses for campaign time in New Hampshire and elsewhere.

It is Hart's campaign that will receive the biggest boost from Iowa, Mondale excluded.

He challenged Mondale to get half the votes in the New Hampshire primary — a level that will be exceedingly difficult to achieve in an eight-way primary election.

"He's a real believer in the dynamics of politics," aide Kathy Bushkin said a few days before the caucuses.

"...He feels that when it gets down to the two of them it will change the dynamics."

Nuclear plant foe criticizes advisor

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Opponents of the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant have questioned the independence of a consultant who said the plant's quality-assurance program was adequate.

Officials of Cygna Energy Service told a three-member panel of the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board on Monday that Cygna provided Comanche Peak officials a list of documents the firm planned to study before visiting the plant.

The Dallas-based Citizens Association for Sound Energy contended that the notice allowed the plant's staff to check the accuracy of the records before the inspection team arrived and biased the independence of the Cygna findings.

But Cygna project manager Nancy Williams said the notification had little effect on the conclusions of the study. Ms. Williams said the study team was aware of record-keeping problems at the plant before requesting about 1,000 documents during the quality assurance study last fall.

Boy confessed for fear he would be beaten up

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A 14-year-old boy reunited with his brother today after being mistakenly deported to Mexico says he falsely confessed to being an illegal alien because he feared that otherwise he would "get beat up."

Mario Moreno Lopez, who had been taken to Tijuana last week with a busload of Mexican nationals, was found wandering the streets of San Diego on Monday by a couple who recognized him from news accounts.

He was released to the custody of his 19-year-old brother, but his frantic father did not know he had been found and was still in Tijuana looking for him today.

Mario is Mexican but has a visa allowing him to live in the United States legally. He did not have it with him when he was rounded up on a Santa Ana street corner Wednesday.

His father has said he did not give Mario the visa because he was afraid the boy would lose it.

Mario said he sneaked back into the United States on Friday — after being stopped twice by Border Patrol agents — and had been looking for work in the San Diego area since. "I didn't know they were searching for me," he told reporters Monday night.

"I knew they (his family) were worried about me and they would come looking for me if something happened," he said.

When his father hadn't been located by midnight, San Diego police released Mario to his brother, Oscar, who said they would hitch a ride home with a Santa Ana policeman, Jose Vargas.

Vargas said that Mario's father, Juan Moreno Garcia, a plumber, had been checking with police every morning and that Tijuana officials would be alerted to tell him his son had been found.

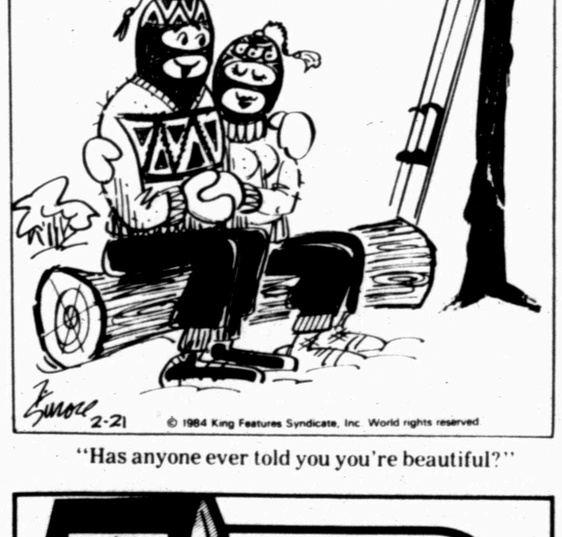

"I went through a lot of cold and hunger," Mario said of the days since U.S. immigration officials picked up him and 33 other Mexicans in Santa Ana, more than 100 miles north of Tijuana.

Through an interpreter, Mario said he signed a waiver of his rights and a declaration he was an illegal alien "because I didn't want to get beat up."

Officials "handed out a sheet that everyone was supposed to sign. They called out one guy's name and told him to sign, but he didn't want to sign."

At that point, Mario said an official "stood him up (the man who declined to sign) and shoved him against the wall. Everyone saw him. Then everybody started signing."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

As television viewers, there are few things anymore that make our blood run cold and cause the hairs on our arms to frost over.

The following story will do it.

A housewife and mother from Maryland walked into her home with her two young daughters and within seconds the door she entered closed again. She thought it was the wind.

As she viewed a large, sharp knife on the table she thought she must have left it out and chalked it up to forgetfulness. As she walked down the hall, she grew angry because obviously her son had thrown a large candle and put a hole in the wall.

"Here dog, come on girl," she called. No dog appeared. (she was later found cowering behind the toilet bowl.) Then she noticed her jewelry box was missing. Finally, it hit her. They had been robbed. Now, here comes the bad part.

"I got over the burglar and the police seeing our unmade beds," she wrote. "I lived with them checking for fngerprints on slightly dusty furniture. Even the hole in the wall was easily repaired. But the thing I will never get over is the time it took me to convince the officers that the children's rooms were not ransacked. They kept telling me that the insurance company would come in and put the rooms back in order. It was tempting, but I just couldn't lie. They always looked like that!"

What woman reading this account has not had nightmares about dying and having the neighbors come in and see her corroded oven and dustballs so big they look like they've been fed? I've known women who have put off their hysterectomies until their wax build-up was under control.

It reminds me of a story told to me by a Norweigian captain of a cruise ship on which I was traveling. He said he came from a small seaport in Norway that was a haven for a fleet of warships during World War II. It was an absolute mess. A real eyesore. Somehow, there was never time to restore order to it. One night they decoded a message from the enemy giving orders to bomb it. The reply from the reconnaissance plane was, "It's already been hit!"

I have plans for one of the scariest novels ever to hit the literary world. It's the story of a woman with three teenagers who is trying to sell her house. The night after the party for 300 half-crazed football fans, the realtor calls to bring by the only real prospect in the country who can get a loan. Will she get the toilet paper off the shrubbery in time? Will she get the tire marks off the entryway wallpaper? Will she rescue the dog from the TV antenna?

Your Birthday

Feb. 22, 1984

A number of changes are in store for you this coming year. Some may occur in the twinkling of an eye. Because variety is the style of life to which you aspire, these events should be appealing.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You tend to believe everything you hear today. This could make it possible for a conniving associate to use you as a conduit for gossip. The areas in which you'll be the luckiest in the year following your birthday are indicated in your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead. For yours, mail $1 and your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send an additional $2 for The NEW Matchmaker wheel and booklet, which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to make it a point today not to offer unsolicited advice to friends, especially in matters relating to their business or financial affairs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The possibility of associates being swayed to your point of view in controversal matters is slim today. Don't spur a dead horse.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Co-workers or helpers will pull away from you today if you are too critical. Take care you don't make offensive comments.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Where your larger expenditures are concerned, you're likely to have things under control today. However, dollar-and-dime stuff may play havoc.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Volatile family issues should not be introduced into the conversation around the dinner table today. The wrong remarks could ignite sparks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Double standards could cause you unnecessary problems today. Don't tell others they shouldn't do certain things and then go ahead and do them yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep a watchful eye on incidental expenses today, especially when socializing with friends. Don't be the only one to reach for the tab.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be able to distinguish today the fine line between being properly assertive or unduly aggressive. The latter will cause you complications.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Information passed on to you by "insiders" could be greatly overrated today. Take what you hear with a grain of salt.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your impulses to treat others generously today are worthy of admiration. However, seek recipients who are as open-handed and appreciative as you are yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Attemtping to do things piecemeal could deprive you of success today. Coordinate your efforts so that your forces aren't spread too thin.

"The Story of Henri Tod"...

Excellent espionage novel

THE STORY OF HENRI TOD. By William F. Buckley Jr. Doubleday. 256 Pages. $14.95.

"The Story of Henri Tod" is William F. Buckley's latest addition to his steadily growing collection of espionage novels that revolve around CIA agent Blackford Oakes.

Unlike the four earlier novels, this new book takes Oakes off center stage and replaces him as protagonist with Henri Tod. Oakes is, of course, featured prominently but it's Tod on whom the reader's main interest is focused.

Tod is a German Jew whose parents manage to get him out of Nazi Germany and to safety in England before he can be swept up by the Gestapo. The parents, however, do not escape and they and Tod's younger sister are sent off to the death camps. The parents die, the girl survives — in a fashion.

When the war ends, Tod, now a young man, returns to Germany. Convinced that the Communist Russians are just another version of the Nazis, Tod sets up an underground dedicated to doing all it can to making life uneasy for the Communist leaders in East Berlin.

They succeed in that purpose to a surprising degree and the methods by which these people operate are narrated by Buckley in most interesting detail. It is when word begins to get around that the Communists plan to do something drastic — such as building a wall — to keep freedom-hungry East Germans from fleeing to the West, that Oakes appears on the scene.

His job is to find out what the Communists plan to do and when they plan to do it. Tod does most of the intelligence work for Oakes, and his group even comes up with an excellent plan to foil the Communists. It's so good, but so contrary to U.S. policy, that Oakes must make an agonizing decision between Tod, whom he respects and admires, and his own government. The decision Oakes makes results in a shattering climax to this excellent novel.

Modern experts tend to get into the bidding early as long as they have any excuse. East's opening bid was not an example of this. He had a really sound opener.

South's overcall was made because he believed that when you hold spades you ought to bid them. In any event he held 13 cards, five of which were spades, and seven high-card points.

West, who had four cards in each unbid suit, stuck in one of those modern negative doubles to show support for the unbid suits. His hand was light, but it was his turn to bid.

North redoubled. East jumped to three clubs to show his very good hand and to invite three no-trump or five clubs. West wasn't interested.

North jumped to four spades and South had to try to make it.

West opened the diamond queen. South won in dummy and led a club. East won and returned a diamond to South's ace. South ruffed a club in dummy, a diamond in his hand and his last club in dummy. Then he led dummy's ace of trumps just in case East held the singleton king. He had decided that East held both that king and the king of hearts.

He led dummy's last trump to East's king and ruffed East's club return. Now East had shown three diamonds, six clubs for his club jump rebid and two trumps. He had to hold exactly two hearts, so South simply led to dummy's ace, played a low heart to East's king and scored his queen of hearts for a well-played game contract.

Salvation Army Offers Family Lost-and-Found

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When I saw the item in your column letting people know that the Salvation Army is expert at locating lost relatives, I had to write.

I am Dutch and my wife is of Ukrainian descent. We were married 32 years ago in Sydney, Australia, and later moved to the United States. We learned that about half my wife's family was "missing." A friend suggested that I contact the Salvation Army, so I did. I gave it as much information as I could about these missing relatives.

After two years the Salvation Army advised us that my wife's sister had been married and was living in Chicago! Contact was made with that sister, who had located another sister in Poland!

Thanks to the Salvation Army we were able to track down all our relatives with the exception of one brother. Is it any wonder I am eternally grateful to it?

A.C.S., ANCHORAGE, ALASKA

DEAR A.C.S.: Here's another touching testimonial:

DEAR ABBY: Last Dec. 22, my wife called her brother in Chicago to wish him a "Merry Christmas," only to be told that the apartment-hotel where he lived had burned two weeks before—that her brother was not among the listed dead or injured, but he couldn't be located.

My wife immediately called all over Chicago trying to find him. Thank God we called the Salvation Army's missing persons division in Chicago, for that was the one organization that got the job done!

The people at Salvation Army located my wife's brother, unidentified at the Cook County morgue—possibly just days from a potter's grave, and miserable days of wondering by his family for the remainder of their collective lives as to what happened to him.

Thanks to the Salvation Army and its concern for others everywhere, my brother-in-law now lies peacefully at rest beside his mother and father in Tennessee. His living loved ones still grieve his loss, but that loss would have been many times greater if he had never been located.

My respect for the Salvation Army has always been great, but it has increased a thousandfold with this experience. My wife and I feel that no organization on earth excels the Salvation Army as a caring, efficient and humane organization that "practices what it preaches" concerning the physical and spiritual well-being of all mankind.

JOHN E. STANFORD, FRANKLIN, TENN.

DEAR ABBY: How do you politely turn down someone who asks you to be a bridesmaid?

I have been in nine weddings already, and I just can't afford to be in any more at this time. Every wedding calls for a new bridesmaid gown with shoes to match, and they keep getting more expensive every year.

So please tell me what to say when a friend says, "I would like you to be in my wedding."

NEEDS AN EXCUSE

DEAR NEEDS: Don't give an "excuse"—give a reason, the real one. Say, "Thank you for the lovely compliment. I wish I could, but I can't afford it."

You will be respected for your honesty.

Murder-suicide try puts two in hospital

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A 24-year-old Vietnamese woman and her 4-year-old daughter remained hospitalized today after an apparent murder-suicide attempt in which another child died, authorities said.

Police said the woman's 3-year-old son was found dead on a bed, near his mother, in their two-bedroom apartment just before 10 p.m. Sunday night. The girl was wandering through the apartment, investigators said.

The mother was listed in serious condition today at Northwest Texas Hospital, while the girl was in satisfactory condition, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Several empty containers of prescription drugs and several written messages were found in the apartment, police Lt. Bill Kral said. But the woman does not speak English and interpreters were trying to decipher the notes, he said.

The death and injuries were believed to have stemmed from a murder-suicide attempt, though an investigation was continuing, Kral said.

Kral said an autopsy was performed on the boy Monday, but it would be at least 10 days before toxicology test results would show whether drugs were involved.

Officers said they went to the apartment after learning that the girl had told a neighbor through a window that her mother would not wake up.

Gold salt injections

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 34 and have had rheumatoid arthritis for seven years. I take 12 Bufferin tablets a day, plus 5 mg of prednisone.

At my last checkup my doctor noted the inflammation was not controlled enough and suggested I consider taking gold salt injections. Could you tell me a little bit about gold salts?

DEAR READER — Injections of gold is an old treatment. It fell into disrepute a number of years ago, but in recent years it's been revived to treat rheumatoid arthritis. It's very helpful in selected cases.

No one knows how gold works and it usually doesn't do any good unless you have 20 to 30 treatments.

It has a number of side effects. It can affect your blood-forming mechanism, which is why it's important to be carefully monitored when you're taking it. I'm sure your doctor will do that and I wouldn't be afraid to try it if your doctor has suggested it.

You could also consider taking a little more prednisone. Less than 10 mg a day usually won't cause any complications. The large doses used in the early days of treating arthritis with corticosteroids are not commonly prescribed anymore.

Other forms of treatment are briefly discussed in the Health Letter SR-10, Rheumatoid Arthritis and Ankylosing Spondylitis, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newsppaer, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband developed frostbite on his toe. He used every precaution he could think of but he still got a spot of it. How can he prevent this from happening again?

DEAR READER — The feet are more susceptible to cold than the hands. You can warm cold hands by exposing them to warm temperature or warm water. But the feet will not get warm unless you warm the entire body. Therefore, to prevent cold feet, you must keep the entire body warm.

Heat is rapidly conducted through the bottom of footwear to the surface on which a person is standing. If a person is standing on cold stone, it's almost the same as being barefooted. You want as thick a substance as possible between the bottom of the foot and the cold surface.

Thermal socks and several layers of socks with a shoe or boot that has a thick sole are recommended. Wool socks, a shoepac and a felt liner can reduce the heat loss from the foot to less than 30 percent.

Your husband should pay particular attention to how thick the material is between his feet and the surface on which he is standing. He should keep his body adequately warmed and avoid exposure over a long period before he is able to warm his entire body.

You can protect the hands with wool mittens or leather gloves or some other solid, tough material. The combination of wool gloves and leather gloves will reduce the heat loss from the hands to 30 percent.

Prison director...

Job should be divided

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Texas Department of Corrections is too complicated to be directed by one manager and the job should be divided in half, a firm studying the prison system's management has recommended.

The director's job should be replaced by a chief executive officer and a chief operations officer, representatives of a consulting firm firm reported to the Texas Board of Corrections Monday.

McKensey & Co. was hired about a month ago to make a progress report on the prison system, which recently has been the subject of investigations by the state attorney general's office and at least four other state agencies.

Those probes have uncovered fiscal mismanagement, improper purchasing practices, questionable hiring of consultants, excessive architectural and engineering fees, cost overruns in construction and brutality to inmates.

"One person can no longer manage this institution," George Norsig, a spokesman for McKensey & Co., told the board. "There are too many functions covering too many areas and too many things to do."

He proposed the chief executive officer develop policy, deal with legislators, oversee changes and select and develop a management team. A second executive, the chief operations officer, would deal with security, monitor compliance with court orders and oversee the inmate services program.

"At this stage, I'm so frustrated anything would be good," said Robert Gunn, chairman of the board. He described the recommendation as "very workable, very pragmatic. I think everyone would agree."

The board did not formally adopt the plan, but Gunn said the board's basic agreement would allow prison officials to "start narrowing our search for a new director. Perhaps we can throw out as many as two-thirds of the names we've got."

He said he was hopeful a director might be named by next month.

The McKensey & Co. study is about one-third complete, the firm's Lee Walton said.

Problem spotted before it occurred

WASHINGTON (AP) — The failure of a crucial cooling system at the nation's largest nuclear power plant last week was forewarned by government researchers in a report 19 months ago.

But, as with so many nuclear mishaps, correcting the problem that triggered an "alert" last Tuesday at the Browns Ferry plant was postponed while officials, disagreeing over the earlier findings, await a new study.

Both the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Tennessee Valley Authority, which owns the Athens, Ala., plant, were told in July 1982 that its system to prevent overheating during a reactor shutdown was vulnerable to failure.

Researchers at the government's Idaho Falls National Laboratory said that vulnerability posed the single biggest risk of a core meltdown — the most potentially catastrophic accident possible — at the three-reactor Browns Ferry plant.

Because of what the researchers identified as problems with the "residual heat removal system," the chance of a core meltdown at Browns Ferry is twice the level that the NRC has set as a safety goal for all nuclear plants.

Despite the failure of the residual heat removal system and the "alert" last Tuesday, TVA operators successfully cooled the reactor down to acceptable temperatures with one of several backup systems.

But Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., in making available copies of the July 1982 Idaho Falls study, questioned Monday why the system had not been fixed in light of the report.

"I would have expected that some remedial action would have been both required and implemented by now," Markey said in a letter to NRC Chairman Nunzio Palladino.

"What occurred on Feb. 14 was an accident waiting to happen," he added. "Apparently the NRC staff does not have adequate procedures in place to evaluate the practical significance of the agency's theoretical studies."

Markey, chairman of the House Interior investigations subcommittee, asked Palladino if a similar problem might exist at other plants with the same early-model General Electric boiling water reactors as those at Browns Ferry.

They would include the Pilgrim plant at Plymouth, Mass.; the Peach Bottom plant in Pennsylvania; and the Hatch plant at Baxley, Ga.

Joseph Fouchard, an NRC spokesman, said agency officials had not yet seen Markey's letter, but that they will respond to it.

FUNDS FOR EDUCATION

What Reagan wanted -- and got

President Reagan has consistently proposed cuts in federal funds for education. However, Congress has been equally consistent in voting down his proposals, so spending has remained fairly stable.

Six set to move in despite threats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A poor Mexican couple who were promised a dream house in a seaside estate are actually "cruel pawns" in a spiteful family feud, according to a lawyer for a woman who owns part of the estate and opposes the offer.

Serafin and Elia Pimentel and their four children still planned to make the 320-mile drive from Los Angeles to Monterey County today, accompanied by two of the three sisters who own the seaside estate.

The sisters have vowed to let the Pimentels live there to escape their Skid Row hotel.

But a lawyer for the third sister, whose son lives in part of the house with a friend, said he would seek a court order barring the Pimentels from the home pending a hearing.

Attorney Mel Grimes described the Pimentels as "cruel pawns" in a family feud that has included two previous attempts to evict Michael Fitzpatrick and his roommate, Cody Oliver. Both court actions were dropped, Grimes said.

But the Rev. Alice Callaghan, founder of Las Familias, a center that helps Skid Row families relocate, questioned Grimes' description.

"Is the family simply being used as pawns in a family feud in which the nephew has a legitimate claim to the property?" she asked. "Or do we have a situation where nephew and friend are paying almost nothing to live in a beautiful piece of Carmel, who now don't want to be disturbed?"

The Pimentels finally hoped to realize their dream of escaping the cramped three-room apartment they have lived in for 3½ years when sisters Vesta Bauman of Lakewood and Irene Chennault of Los Angeles offered the home south of Carmel to a deserving family.

Mondale confident he can win against Reagan

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Walter F. Mondale says his "perhaps spectacular" victory in Iowa will help convince Democrats that he is the man to defeat Ronald Reagan, but his opponents for the nomination say they will be ready for him next week in New Hampshire.

Sen. John Glenn, whose claim to be Mondale's prime challenger sank under the weight of a fifth-place finish, said, "We took a licking tonight but we are on to New Hampshire ... I hope we do much better than we did in Iowa. Obviously, we won't do much worse."

Mondale scheduled a quick trip to the Granite State today. Others were already at work there, preparing for the first-in-the-nation primary Feb. 28.

After the dimensions of his Iowa caucus victory became clear Monday night, former vice president Mondale told reporters:

"I think I'm going to be the nominee and I think this win here in Iowa strengthens me considerably," said Mondale. "Tonight is the beginning of the end of the Reagan administration. Let the word go out from Iowa to the nation — to all Americans who want a safer world, I am on your side."

Iowa Republicans held caucuses as well on Monday, but Reagan had no opposition for renomination. To rally his troops and beat up on the Democrats, Reagan came to Iowa on Monday for his first political trip since he announced.

Mondale's victory was lopsided and long expected. Television networks projected his triumph while the caucuses were still under way, prompting an outraged state chairman, David Nagel, to complain that they had interfered with the process.

Mondale nearly shut out his opponents in the fight for national convention delegates. He took nearly half the raw vote at the 2,495 precinct meetings and led for 48 of 50 nominating delegates. Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, whose second-place finish gives him a claim to be Mondale's top challenger, won two delegates.

"It will be a big boost. It will add additional energy to our effort here," Hart told supporters in Manchester, N.H. "Hopefully, it does turn this into a Hart-Mondale race ... It sets up a contest between the party's future and its past."

George McGovern, starting late and spending little here, finished a surprising third and called it a "minor miracle."

"A great many Iowa voters ... voted their convictions and voted their conscience," said the party's 1972 standard-bearer.

With the New Hampshire primary only eight days away, Mondale said the Iowa results stand as a "recommendation to the rest of the nation" to support him.

Iowa will send a total of 58 of the 3,933 delegates to the Democratic National Convention in July.

THE WORK ETHIC: SURPRISINGLY HEALTHY

Some may find it surprising, but the American work ethic still lives. In a recent poll, U.S. workers showed a greater commitment to their jobs than did those in other Western industrial nations.

U.S. Marines begin to pullout forces

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Marines began pulling their combat forces out of Beirut today to Navy ships offshore, and Israeli warplanes bombed and strafed suspected guerrilla positions in the Syrian-controlled central mountains.

"Today the support people have gone and we're working on the combat gear," said Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks. "Today is the first day of the relocation of the actual 22nd MAU (Marine Amphibious Unit) personnel."

Brooks said he did not know how many of the roughly 1,300 Marines based at Beirut airport would leave today. He said the evacuation would take "approximately a week, maybe two."

Brooks said all support gear and 99 percent support personnel had been evacuated since President Reagan disclosed his decision Feb. 7 to withdraw the Marine contingent from the airport.

The Marine base has been surrounded by Syrian-backed Druse and Shiite Moslem militias since the militias wrested control of mostly Moslem west Beirut from the Lebanese army 15 days ago.

The Israeli military command said its warplanes attacked "terrorist targets" — the usual reference to Palestinian guerrillas — in Mansouriyeh, Ain Jdeide and south of Bhamdoun, a Druse-held town about nine miles southeast of the Lebanese capital on the Beirut-Damascus Highway.

There were no immediate reports of damage or casualties in the raid, the second this week and the fifth this year. All Israeli planes returned safely to base, the command said.

The raid coincided with reports the Israeli army has moved dozens of tanks and armored personnel carriers across its southern defense line toward Beirut over the past two days.

In Beirut, police said 11 people were killed today during clashes across the "green line" separating the capital's Moslem and Christian sectors and in fighting at the Lebanese army garrison in Souk el-Gharb, atop a mountain east of Beirut. At least 86 civilians and combatants were wounded, police said.

Security bothersome

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Millicent Fenwick, the 74-year-old former congresswoman who inspired the character of Lacey Davenport in the "Doonesbury" comic strip, says she's chafing under the security requirements of her current diplomatic mission in Rome.

Mrs. Fenwick, now U.S. ambassador to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, said she's felt like a prisoner since the assassination of a U.S. official in the Italian capital last week.

U.S. embassy officials were told to vary the times they leave their homes and vary the routes they take to work.

In a telephone interview from her Rome residence, Mrs. Fenwick said she has been told not to use her chauffeur-driven, armor-plated car. Her limousine is similar to the one in which Leamon R. Hunt, the civilian director general of the multinational force in the Sinai, was slain last week.

But she added that she's not concerned about her safety.

Newbury is vice president

Dr. Don Newbury, president of Western Texas College, has been elected vice president of the Texas Junior College Association. This is an organization of the 52 chief executive officers of Texas public and private two-year colleges.

He was elected to the post during the association's annual meeting which was held Friday in conjunction with the Texas Junior College Teachers' Association's annual convention in Houston.

Honor society forms at WTC

Psi Beta, a national honor society for junior college students interested in psychology, held its first induction ceremonies for the Western Texas College chapter Sunday.

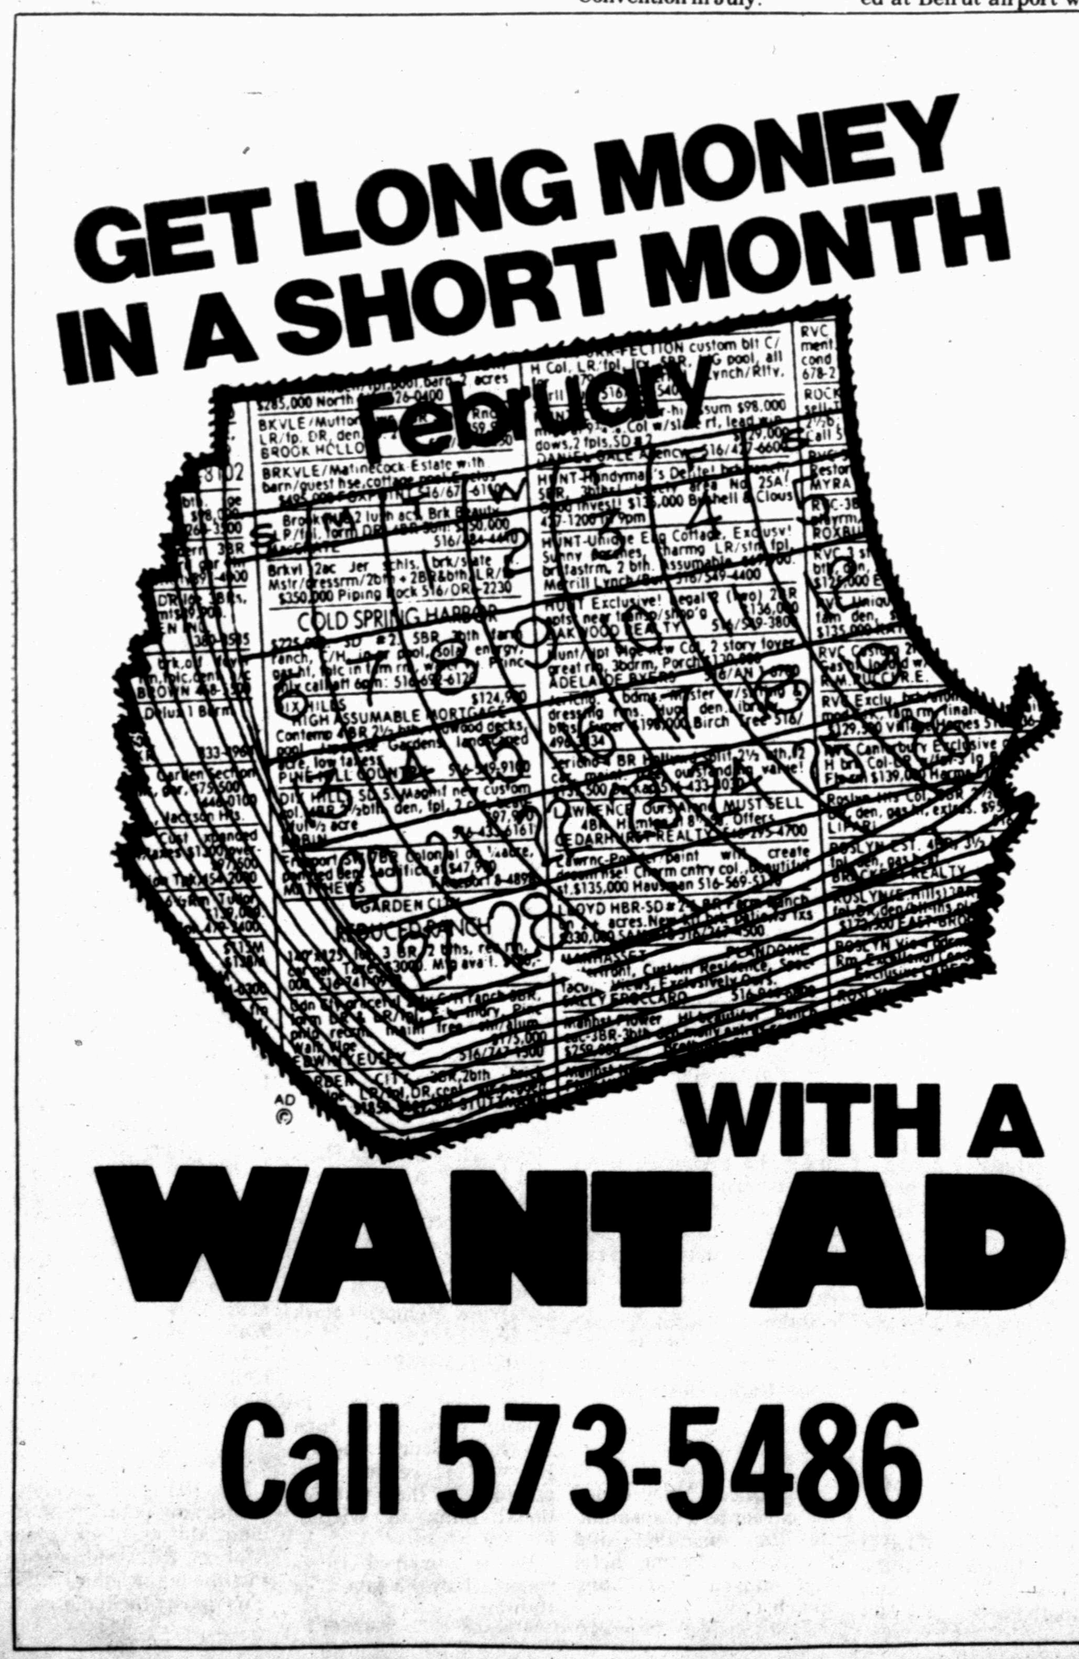

Dr. Don Newbury, college president, was guest speaker. Dr. Harry Krenek, dean of instruction, was inducting officer.

Officers of the chapter are Melinda Drum from Hermleigh, president; Pat Blakely of Snyder, vice president; Johnnie Evans of Snyder, secretary; and Veda Owens of Sweetwater, treasurer.

Other charter members are Howard Bigham, David Brim, Sharon Bynum, Teresa Stansell and Lilith Smith of Snyder; Lyndy French of Colorado City; Beth Owen and Chris Williams of Jayton; and Vicki Soper, Kathy Spaulding and Cindy Young of Sweetwater.

Dr. Joe Reaves, professor of psychology, is faculty advisor. Students interested in joining Psi Beta are invited to contact Reaves for further information.

Psi Beta members are required to maintain a B average overall and to have completed at least one psychology course with a grade of B or better.

Supreme Court okays limits on questioning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today allowed federal judges to strictly limit how news reporters question jurors after trials.

The court, over just one dissenting vote, let stand an order barring reporters — or anyone else — from making "repeated requests" for interviews with the jurors who convicted four people in the 1979 contract murder of a federal judge in Texas.

The order, aimed at ensuring jurors' privacy and protecting them from possible harassment, also bars anyone from asking one juror about how another voted.

The restrictions were challenged by the El Paso Times, its reporter Patrick Weir and The Associated Press as unjustified and impermissible violations of free-speech and free-press rights.

Only Justice William Brennan voted to hear arguments in the case.

But the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last Sept. 6 that U.S. District Judge William Sessions had acted within his discretionary powers in imposing the restrictions.

"Jurors, even after completing their service, are entitled to privacy and to protection against harassment," the appeals court said.

The Reagan administration urged the justices to leave intact that ruling.

"Individuals exercising the grave responsibility of serving as jurors may be inhibited from freely and fairly discharging their duties by the prospect of post-trial media scrutiny and publication of their thoughts and actions," government lawyers argued.

"This threat to the confidentiality of jury deliberations poses a danger to the integrity of the criminal justice system," they said.

Although today's high court action sets no binding legal precedent, it leaves other federal trial judges free to impose similar restrictions.

Wreck injures Rotan driver

A Rotan man was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries sustained in a one-vehicle traffic mishap around 8 a.m. Tuesday.

According to Department of Public Safety troopers investigating the mishap, Alva Leon West of Rotan lost control of a 1981 Ford pickup westbound on U.S. Highway 180 about seven miles east of Snyder. The vehicle struck a guard rail and overturned.

West was taken to the local hospital by DPS troopers and was reportedly suffering from bruises and abrasions. He was the only occupant of the truck, which sustained extensive damage.

Case cleared

Snyder police detectives say the reported burglary of the Irene Garza residence at 219 35th St. has been cleared after contacting a suspect in the case Monday afternoon.

Investigators report that all of the property reported stolen from the residence was recovered.

Ex-ballerina to be honored

MOSCOW (AP) — Galina Ulanova, prima ballerina of the Bolshoi Theater and a world ballet star until her retirement in 1961, travels to Sweden this weekend for a round of festivities in her honor.

Mrs. Ulanova, now 74, will be honored March 6 at a gala unveiling of a sculpture of her dancing that the Soviet ministry of culture has presented to Stockholm's national dance museum, the Soviet news agency Tass announced Monday.

Tass said Bolshoi Theater dancers will be featured in a ballet "in honor of Ulanova" showing "the mystique of a dance being born."

Mrs. Ulanova joined the Bolshoi in 1944 and quickly gained worldwide fame for performances in "Romeo and Juliet" and "Giselle."

Lewis looking for improvement

ABILENE -- Coach Albert Lewis certainly wasn't awed by his Tiger's first outing of the season against Midland Lee on Saturday. He hopes today's scrimmage with Abilene High here will be better.

"We showed up and got blasted. I felt like we'd make a lot of mistakes and we sure did," said Lewis, who coached Snyder to the Class 4A state baseball championship last year.

"One positive thing was I was impressed with catcher Eddie McClure. I had been concerned with that position, but he did a good job. One other thing, we swung the bat pretty good."

Lewis said Snyder's fielding and pitching struggled the entire scrimmage. Charlie Bollinger was the only hurler not to have trouble, and he went just one inning.

"We're looking for improvement against Abilene High. We've got a long way to go," said Lewis.

Snyder scrimmages the Eagles at 3:30 today. Other upcoming scrimmages include Lubbock High in Lubbock at 10 a.m. Feb. 25 and Abilene High in Snyder at 3:30 on the 27th.

The Tigers open the 1984 season March 1 in the Fredricksburg Tournament.

Net team loses a pair; tests Sweetwater today

FORT STOCKTON -- Snyder Coach Charlie Chrane expected the competition to be tough here and it was as the Tigers fell 15-3 to Andrews and 13-5 to Fort Stockton in District 2-4A team play.

The Tigers, now 3-3 for the season, travel to Sweetwater today to finish up the district team tennis season.

"We knew they would be our toughest matches of the year and they were," said Coach Crane of the action here. "I felt like we should have played Andrews a little bit better than we did. Fort Stockton beat them 13-5 and us 13-5 and then Andrews beat us 18-3.

"Chris Wiman had his first defeat of the season against Fort Stockton's Gabe Urias and it was a real close match (6-4, 1-6, 6-4). Shanda Wiman lost her first district match to Shana Gillian of Andrews. She (Gillian) and Urias are undefeated and they'll probably be seeded No. 1 in the district tournament."

Chris Wiman defeated Andrews' Chris Dupler, 6-3 and 6-1, and teamed with James Melott to top the Mustangs' Dupler and Robert Barrera in doubles, 2-6, 6-2 and 6-2.

Shanda Wiman lost to Gillian, 7-5 and 6-1 but defeated Fort Stockton's Monica Castelo, 6-4, 4-6 and 6-4. She and Shana Hart then defeated Castelo and Mooney in doubles play, 7-5, 2-6 and 6-3. Michelle Osborne and Kim Butler won their doubles match over the Panthers' Tricia Urias and Monica Daiza, 5-7, 6-3 and 7-5, and Terri Holley and Michelle Killian defeated Laura Wood and Laura Baggett, 6-2 and 6-0.

Holley also won her singles match over Andrews' Rebecca Carlson, 6-0 and 7-5, and Killian defeated Baggett in singles, 6-2 and 6-3.

GIRLS DOUBLES: Wiman-Hart lost to Gillian-Barrera, 6-0, 6-1; Osborne-Butler lost to Gorman-Carlson, 6-0, 6-0; Holley-Killian lost to O'Conner-Downing, 6-3, 6-2.

In key WJCAC tilt...

Westerners edge Clarendon

Western Texas College eeked out a squeaker here Monday, holding off a comeback-minded Clarendon team for a 59-58 victory.

The win puts the Westerners at 9-6 in conference play and in a four-way tie for third place in the all-important Western Junior College Athletic Conference race. Western improved its season mark to 17-9. The Westerners travel to Hobbs, N.M. on Thursday to play New Mexico Junior College.

WTC's Coach Barry Davis was philosophical about the win.

"When you get down to the end of the year you can expect every game to be close. Everytime you win a close one it's going to help you going into the next one knowing you can win a close game," said Davis. "The main thing we've got to do now is take one game at a time and make sure we put our best game on the floor."

Western boasted a 31-19 halftime lead that grew to as much as 15 points when Larry Banks put up a pair of buckets and a single freethrow with 16:46 to go in the game. But Clarendon came back on the 1-2 punch of guard Richard Miller and 6-5 post Dean Jackson. The duo combined for 28 of Clarendon's 39 second-half points.

Miller's freethrows with 10:28 left stripped the margin to 47-41 and it stayed that way until Kent Stokes scored a jumper to cut the lead to 56-54 with about three minutes to play. Western built the advantage back up to five points on a field goal by Eugene Lewis and a freethrow from Billy Chambers, but the Bulldog's would not give in.

Stokes punched in a couple of freeshots with 54 seconds showing and Miller followed that with a basket as Clarendon pulled back within a point, 59-58. The Bulldogs then sent Lewis to the line with 16 seconds to go. Lewis' effort bounded from the rim and the 'Dogs rebounded, calling time out with 11 seconds remaining.

From there, Clarendon got the ball inbounds to James Richardson. Richardson tried to get the ball underneath to Jackson but the Westerners had him bottled up. Then, when Richardson tried to circle around the right side, he collided with Stokes and the ball rolled out of bounds.

With two seconds showing on the clock, Western simply inbounded and held on to the ball.

"We were fortunate to win, but I was real proud of the way we played defense in the last 11 seconds," said Davis. "They wanted to take it in and we weren't letting them.

"I can only take my hat off to Clarendon for making the passes and taking the ball inside on us in the second half. They did a good job of executing their offense," the coach added.

Western was 25 of 54 from the field while Clarendon, the top field goal shooting team in the WJCAC, was a sharp 24 of 45. The story came from the freethrow line, however. WTC hit 9 of 13 from the stripe but the Bulldogs were only 10 of 19.

Banks had 14 points and 13 rebounds to pace the Westerners. Richie Fells got 12 - all in the first half - while Lewis scored 11 and Victor Spencer put up 7.

Miller and Jackson both got 21 for the Bulldogs, who fall to 14-12 on the season and 5-10 in conference play.

Dusters muzzle Bulldogs

Coach Joe Cushing's Dusters took the lead four and a half minutes into the game and never lost it as they impounded Clarendon's Lady Bulldogs in a key Western Junior College Athletic Conference battle here Monday, 71-52.

Despite getting into foul trouble, the Dusters enjoyed a 31-25 advantage at intermission, then outscored the 'Dogs 12-2 to begin the second half. Much of WTC's second-half work was done without the benefit of starters Rhonda Hoelting and Clara Campbell. Hoelting got her fourth foul with 17:38 to play and missed the next five minutes. Campbell sat out 11 minutes after being flagged for her fourth with 16:44 left.

The win kept Western Texas in second place in the WJCAC with an 8-3 mark. Clarendon dropped to 6-6 and saw its chances for qualifying to the upcoming regional tournament dim drastically.

The Dusters, now 23-7 on the season, travel to Hobbs, N.M., on Thursday to play New Mexico Junior College.

"It was a big game for us," agreed Coach Cushing afterwards. "We more or less had to win it. We have to win our next three games, too. Well, we might be able to lose one, but we don't want to take that chance. We want to keep our destiny in our own hands."

The top four teams in the conference qualify for the regional tournament, and Western is in second place now, a game ahead of Amarillo and two games in front of Howard. Both Amarillo and Howard were idle Monday night.

As usual, the Dusters used a total team effort - 11 girls scored - but no player contributed more than Karen Kuykendall. The 6-0 sophomore more than held her own under the basket, giving WTC seven of its first 15 points of the game and scoring four more when the Dusters went on their 12-2 jaunt early in the second half. She also raked down five first-half rebounds.

"Karen played a real good game," acknowledged Cusing, who added, "That's the best we've played in a month. Clarendon had their backs to the wall and our kids showed we wanted it (the win) more than they did. I thought we played great defense. Our intensity level was super. We kept getting a lead on them and they kept coming back but we never quit. We kept putting on the pressure."

Western took a six-point halftime advantage when Mary Nell Clayton scored the final bucket of the first half. Two quick baskets by Clara Campbell and Kuykendall made it 35-25 at the start of the second half. When Tina Patton failed to convert a pair of freethrows for the Lady Bulldogs, the Dusters put up four more points via Renvy Evans and Lyndy French.

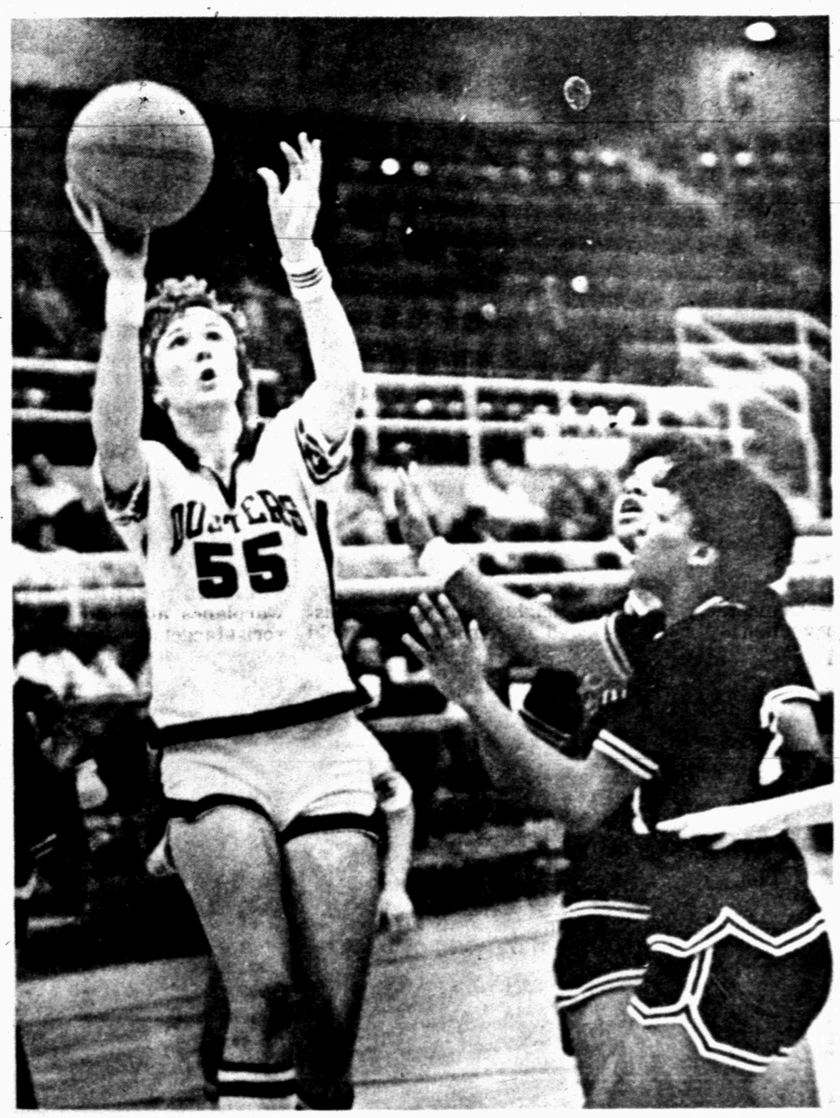

It was with 16:06 left when Rosa Benson finally tallied on a pair of charity shots to give Clarendon its first points of the second half. Western answered on baskets from Clayton and Evans, and the Dusters held a 43-27 advantage.

Clarendon never got closer than 13 points the rest of the way and when Kuykendall, Patti Hayes and Liz Grant reeled off six straight points at the midhalf, the score stood at 53-34. Western eventually claimed a 25-point lead with about four and a half minutes left in the game.

Kuykendall's 15 points and six rebounds led the Dusters, who also got 14 points from Clayton, 10 from Evans and 9 from Campbell.

The Dusters shot 27 of 49 from the field - 15 of 20 in the second half - and were 17 of 19 from the line. Clayton led from the stripe with a six-of-six performance.

Clarendon was led by Patton's 13 points. Paula Dotson scored 12, Benson 9 and Angela Gardner 8. The Lady Bulldogs, now 14-8 for the season, were 18 of 51 from the field and only 16 of 27 from the line.

USFL makes final cuts

by The Associated Press

While other United States Football League teams were cutting down to the opening-game limit Monday, the Arizona Wranglers were signing their No. 1 draft choice, UCLA defensive back Lupe Sanchez.

Sanchez signed a three-year contract with the Wranglers, calling it "an opportunity I couldn't pass up. I got what I wanted and I'm very happy to be here."

Coach George Allen said the signing of Sanchez was vital since cornerback Carl Allen is out indefinitely after separating his right shoulder in a scrimmage two weeks ago.

"He'll fit right in with our style of defense," Allen said of the 5-foot-10, 187-pound Sanchez. "He can play both corners. He has good speed and quickness. He has good hands and returns kicks. And what I like about him is he's a smart player and he has dancing feet, which is very important in a defensive back."

Arizona also announced that it has traded two future draft choices to the Philadelphia Stars for defensive tackle Mark Buben, cut eight players and placed six others on injured reserve to get its roster down to 50. All USFL teams are allowed 40 active players, while the 12 holdover teams also have a 10-player developmental squad, which swells to 13 for the six new franchises.

Elsewhere, the Pittsburgh Maulers put running back Amos Lawrence and guard Scutt Burris on injured reserve. The Maulers also released eight players, including Dave Jacobs, who was expected to be their regular placekicker, and strong safety Derrick Goddard, who had been competing for a starting job.

The Oklahoma Outlaws, another fledgling franchise, reduced their roster by cutting eight players, including punter Rick Engles, who spent parts of three seasons in the National Football League, and trading defensive end Joe Gary to Birmingham for a future draft choice. The release of Engles left the team without a first-string punter heading into Sunday's season opener.

The New Orleans Breakers disclosed that tight end Dan Ross, who balked at joining the Breakers when they moved from Boston to New Orleans, will rejoin them.

Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox played in a record 3,308 games during his career.

Charlene's Drapery specializes in custom window covers

Charlene's Drapery Shop, located on the Clairemont Hwy., just north of Baker Packers, is a custom drapery shop, specializing in custom window coverings for your home.

Your windows say a lot about your home, from the inside and from the outside. Inside your house, your draperies and window coverings can tie the decor of the room together and give the room the proper decorator touch. Windows should make a statement from outside your home as well, and make your home attractive and appealing from the exterior.

Charlene Hendrix is the owner of Charlene's, and she has hundreds of samples of fabrics in all types from linen casement to "Old English" chintz to choose your draperies from. Charlene has been making custom draperies for several years, and she can make them to fit any window type or size, including draperies for patio doors, bay windows and atrium doors. She also can custom make top treatments for doors and windows such as swags, cascades, cornices, and valances, either pleated or soft style.

Something extra Charlene offers may surprise you for a drapery shop. She carries a variety of wall coverings. Custom fabric walls are becoming increasingly popular and Charlene can create the special look you may want on your walls. Wall paper by Waverly and Schumacher are available also. A new arrival in the wall covering area at Charlene's is the Old Sturbridge Village Coordinates with paper, fabric to match and even special order paints in colonial colors.

Insulated draperies, as well as window shades and blinds, serve a dual purpose for windows. They are great insulators winter or summer, and they make attractive window coverings. Charlene offers a wide variety of alternate window treatments from the very popular woven wood shades to Roman shades or drapes and mini blinds. A wide choice of vertical blinds, custom roller shades, wood blinds, 1 inch or 2 inch pleated or plain fabric roman shades are also available along with Austrian shades, balloon shades, and the new soft light shades.

Gathered curtains are regaining popularity as new rods have been introduced, such as the 4½ inch Continental rod. While on the subject of curtain rods, for the country-look decor, wood pole rods are very appropriate and Charlene's has them both.

Custom made bedspreads in any of the beautiful fabrics can be made to fit any bed, even waterbeds and odd shaped beds, short beds, and tall beds.

If you're in the market for new draperies, window or wall coverings, bedspreads, or just looking around for ideas to make your home more attractive, go see Charlene Hendrix at Charlene's Drapery Shop, or give her a call at 573-6601. Remember, if you have a problem decorating need, Charlene specializes in custom work; she can "make-it-to-fit".
